House Asks Budget Cuts Totaling About $3 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee called today for budget cuts of nearly $3 billion, including large new slashes in government employment and research.

The committee, cockpit of a three-cornered economy fight involving Republicans and Congress, some Democrats and President Johnsons' administration, tied its cutback orders to an emergency bill to finance government departments whose regular appropriations are still pending.

The committee bill would require across-the-board reduction of 5 per cent in spending on government civilian employment.

Jobs directly connected with the Vietnam war and "employment required for the protection of life and property" would be exempt.

The committee estimated this provision would mean a reduction of 110,000 government positions that could be achieved mainly by leaving openings unfilled. Savings were estimated at $900 million.

The bill also would require executive departments to absorb, without extra appropriations, the estimated $625 million cost of a general pay raise now in process of enactment.

The budget for research—a total of $17.5 billion—would be cut 10 per cent, with exceptions allowed for reseach directly connected with the Vietnam war or applying to specific weapons systems. The cut was estimated at $.1325 billion.

The budget for research—a total of $17.5 billion—would be cut 10 per cent, with exceptions allowed for reseach directly connected with the Vietnam war or applying to specific weapons systems. The cut was estimated at $1.325 billion.

The $2.65 billion total savings estimated by the committee compares with the $5 billion cut demanded by Republicans and the suggestion by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and others that cuts should match any tax increase enacted. Johnson is asking a $7.4 billion tax boost.

The cuts ordered by the committee bill would absorb some reductions already provided for in separate legislation.

The committee said, for example, House-passed bills would require a $340 million reduction in government payrolls, which would be counted as part of the 5 per cent slash.

The pay raise bill already requires executive departments to absorb $78 million, the estimated excess cost above what Johnson budgeted for a more modest increase.

In research, the House already has trimmed the Defense Department's share by $164 million. The new bill would cut deeper, for a total of $340 million.

More than $600 million in reductions made in various bills for research in civilian departments also would be counted on part of the 10 per cent cut.

In addition to the specific cuts, the bill to provide emergency financing through Nov. 23 for departments with pending appropriations contains a general stop order against most new construction, buying or services during the coming month.

The economy forces in the House seized on the emergency spending bill as a vehicle for budget slashes. They rocked the administration by returning to the committee a measure that did not contain this provision. On a second try, the measure was passed with a general understanding that, before another extension was required, the committee would work on budget cuts.

The committee said in its report it had attempted to carry out the will of the House, but did not feel it could spell out detailed cuts in bills yet to be finally acted on.

"What the committee has done is submit some economy proposals on a general across-the-board basis, but limited and pinpointed as to the objects involved."

An exception, the report said, is that in absorbing the cost of the civilian pay raise "wide lat-

Bonn Arrests Four On Red Spy Counts

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP) — West German authorities have arrested four persons on charges of spying for the Soviet Union and one of them has hanged herself in prison, the federal prosecutor announced today.

The four were taken into custody last Wednesday in what the prosecutor said was a "grave, perhaps very grave, case of treason."

At a press conference he said Leonore Suetterlin, 39, a veteran secretary in the West German Foreign Ministry, hanged herself in her cell early Sunday.

Federal prosecutor Ludwig Martin said Mrs. Suetterlin hanged herself from the cell window with a part of her night clothing between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. in a Bonn women's prison.

Martin said a Soviet lieutenant colonel who recently defected to the U.S. officials had tipped authorities to the espionage in Bonn. He declined to name the Soviet officer, but said he was now in the United States and claimed to have directed activities of the four people arrested.

Besides Mrs. Suetterlin, those arrested were her husband, Heinz, 43, a photographer; Leopold Pieschel, 44, a courier employed by the French Embassy in Bonn, and Martin Marggraf, 41, a waiter.

Martin said the four are believed to have obtained important secrets from both the Bonn Foreign Ministry and the French Embassy.

Martin said the Suetterlins had operated independently of the other two and allegedly supplied secrets "of a high order" to the Soviet Union for many years.

Mrs. Suetterlin had been employed by the Foreign Ministry since 1959 and had access to safes containing personnel files and papers on security matters.

Her husband, who called himself a free-lance photographer-journalist, had moved from Berlin to Bonn in 1958 or 1959 on orders of the Soviet secret service, Martin said. He added that Suetterlin had been recruited for the Soviet secret service by his brother-in-law, Marggraf.

Martin said Suetterlin had photographed secret documents which his wife would bring home at noontime.

He said Pieschel had access to a safe in the military attaches' office at the French Embassy through a key provided for him by the Soviet secret service. He said Pieschel had photographed secret documents with two miniature cameras, one of which was of Soviet man-

Church School Aid Involved

Can Taxpayer Sue For U.S. Spending?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide if taxpayers can bring lawsuits challenging federal education programs that aid parochial schools.

This means the court will reexamine a 1923 decision that has barred individual taxpayers from going to court to try to block large-scale government spending programs.

Thus the court directly stepped into the controversial church-state area for the first time since its 1964 ruling barring required Bible reading in the public schools.

The target of the current lawsuit is assistance to parochial schools under the 1965 federal elementary and secondary education act.

A three-judge federal court in New York City dismissed the suit, brought by seven civic and education leaders, last June by a 2-1 vote.

This prevented determination of the taxpayers' claim that spending of federal funds for parochial schools violates the principle of church-state separation contained in the First Amendment to the U.S. constitution.

U.S. Circuit Court Judge Paul R. Hays, joined by U.S. District Judge John F. X. McGohey, said the seven taxpayers had no standing to sue because they could not show they directly suffered damages.

U.S. District Court Judge Melvin E. Frankel dissented, saying taxpayers have the right to attack a law "respecting an establishment of religion."

The test case was supported by the American Jewish Congress, the New York Civil Liberties Union, the United Federation of Teachers and the United Parents Associations.

Additionally, the National Council of Churches urged the Supreme Court to take the case.

3 GIs Killed, 9 Hurt In U.S. Bomb Error

SAIGON (AP)—A U. S. Marine plane accidentally hit the Marine outpost of Con Thien with a bomb Sunday, killing three Marines and wounding nine in the second mistaken bombing there in three days.

Communist shellfire wounded another eight Marines at the muddy base guarding Red infiltration routes just south of the demilitarized zone.

A mistaken bombing Friday killed two Marines and wounded 21. Both incidents were being investigated.

The defenders of Con Thien came under repeated savage shellings last month from North Vietnamese believed attempting to take the outpost but overwhelming American firepower beat back the assaults.

U.S. B52 bombers, which play a major role in the battle around Con Thien, swept into North Vietnam 50 miles above the demilitarized zone, their deepest raid in 10 months and blasted the Mu Gia Pass. This is the main entry to the Ho Chi Minh trail, which carries Communist troops and supplies through Laos and Cambodia to South Vietnam.

The eight-engine, $8-million bombers are usually kept away from possible danger from North Vietnamese missiles, which can reach them even at the 30,000-foot altitudes where they fly.

The bombers struck truck parks, supply concentrations and fuel storage sties at the pass after coming from Thailand over Laos so they would be in North Vietnam only briefly.

Today, they were back pounding a suspected Red infiltration route 10 miles above Con Thien and a suspected buildup point 2.5 miles southwest of the Marine fortress.

Weather hampered strikes against North Vietnam Sunday and halted all raids around the vital port of Haiphong but the man who has commanded the Haiphong campaign promised more missions in the continuing effort to isolate the port.

Holding a farewell news conference in Saigon before leaving for command of the Pacific Fleet in Hawaii, the 7th Fleet commander, Vice Adm. John J. Hyland Jr., said the recent raids had cut all four of the city's main bridges.

Acknowledging that the North Vietnamese were repairing the bridges and had set up temporary pontoon structures, Hyland said Navy planes would hit them again "when the time is ripe."

Hyland made no direct comment on whether he was satisfied with the recent gradual relaxation of the Pentagon's ban on raids aagainst certain sensitive targets in the North. But he said military men want "all those targets turned loose."

The U.S. Command reported heavy damage to at least three of five targets in the Hanoi-Haiphong area that were hit for the first time Saturday. They included boat yards, a storage area and a radar installation.

It also reported three planes losses over the weekend but said none was connected with raids in the Hanoi-Haiphong area. They brought to 701 the number of combat planes announced as downed over the North.

Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots were barred from the North Vietnamese heartland Sunday by bad weather. All 125 missions flown during the day were directed at supply lines stretching south from Hanoi to the demilitarized zone.

U.S. planes have been trying to damage Communist supply lines as much as possible before the impending start of steady bad weather.

A U.S. spokesman said the raiders hit the small airfield of Bai Thuong northwest of Vinh.

The field, now used mainly as a storage area, was one of 12 airports originally listed by the Pentagon as worthy targets. These included six smaller fields and six MIG airports. All have been bombed with the exception of the major MIG fields at Phuc Yen and Gia Lam, both in the Hanoi area.

In South Vietnam, guerrilla gunfire brought down an evacuation helicopter and a light spotter plane.

Attempts to lift out the downed spotter plane with a big Chinook helicopter provoked a stiff fight in the Mekong Delta. U.S. helicopters and Navy patrol boats moved in and their fire killed seven guerrillas, headquarters said.

In ground action, the U.S. Command reported that more than 100 Viet Cong mortar shells hit a U.S. Special Forces camp and two nearby South Vietnamese army installations 15 miles west of Saigon, killing two Americans and wounding 11 and causing some Vietnamese casualties.

Castro Says Che's Spirit Will Not Die

HAVANA (AP) — The revolutionary movement in Latin America will go on despite the "hard blow" of guerrilla leader Ernesto Che Guevara's death in Bolivia, Prime Minister Fidel Castro says.

In a broadcast speech Sunday night, Castro said that "imperialism has a fear of Che after death." He said Guevara has been eliminated physically but his example "can never be eliminated by anything or anyone."

Castro spoke softly in a low voice, his characteristic flamboyance muted by sadness, as he said he accepted as "bitterly true" reports that Guevara had been killed in a battle with troops in Bolivia's jungles.

The prime minister said he could not doubt the authenticity of photographs of the dead man and a dairy said to belong to Guevara, who fought with Castro against Cuban President Fulgencio Batista and became Castro's right-hand man in government. Guevara had dropped from sight in Cuba in 1965.

It was the first official Cuban comment on the reports of Guevara's death.

Castro, dressed in an olive green major's uniform, said he was declaring three days of mourning and that a memorial tribute to Guevara will be held Wednesday night in Havana. He said the Cuban flag would be flown at half-staff for 30 days and announced that Oct. 8, the day Bolivian authorities claimed Guevara's death, would be henceforth a holiday.

Castro said he accepted Bolivia's report of Guevara's death in part because its government is too "stupid" to invent it. But he said there were "strange and

26 Homes Burned Near Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A searing brush fire swept into another Los Angeles residential area today, boosting to 26 the number of homes left gutted in its path and threatening about 100 more on nearby hillsides.

The fire near suburban Chatsworth about 30 miles northwest of Los Angeles was one of two major blazes which have blackened an estimated 26,000 acres and left one person dead since Sunday.

Tired firemen, who battled through the night, said the major danger was that hot, dry winds might return.

At the most destructive point of the 10,000 acre Chatsworth free four homes were reported destroyed today.

Some 100 others stood in the path of the flames.

There were 22 homes destroyed Sunday in the area.

To the southwest—about 10 charred miles away—a second fire front burned toward new homes about three miles east of Thousand Oaks. However, firemen said no homes there were immediately threatened.

About 1,000 firemen fought the fingers of fire which nibbled over hills and into canyons and gullys.

Fire officials said the Chatsworth blaze combined with a 3,000-acre fire in the Simi Valley of southern Ventura County. Both fires were burning on a 20-mile perimeter bordering U.S. 101, the Ventura Freeway.

Fire department spokesmen said Janet Cameron was killed at Simi when a fire truck collided with her car. Two firemen and other motorists were hospitalized. Traffic on the Ventura Freeway to the Simi area was backed up for eight miles at one point.

"I lost everything," said Edward Collins whose home went up in flames, "everything—house and furnishings. My son and daughter lost their home too. I stayed to fight the fire un-

Wall Falls, 5 Firemen Die in Trap

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. (AP) — The deaths of five firemen trapped by a collapsing wall leaves 14 children under the age of 21 fatherless. The Ridgefield volunteer firemen also are survived by five widows.

A fire department spokesman said $8,000 had been pledged to a fund for the survivors sponsored by the Hudson Dispatch, a Union City newspaper.

Bergen County authorities say they are investigating the possibility of arson in the fire Sunday at Cardinal Lanes bowling alley in this town just across the Hudson River from New York City. The Ridgefield Fire Department scheduled memorial services for Wednesday.

One civilian and 10 other firemen also were injured when the cinder-block wall collapsed as about 130 firemen from eight communities tried to control the fire in the one-story building.

Mrs. Ida McFarland, 37, and Joecephus Weston were found shot to death last July 3 at Weston's New Haven apartment.

Anaconda Brass Struck

WATERBURY (AP)—A strike by 1,600 members of the United Auto Workers union idled the Anaconda American Brass Company's five Waterbury plants today.

The walkout began at midnight when UAW Local 1078's three-year contract with Anaconda expired.

Contract talks broke off in the middle of last week after the company made an offer which George Shaw, president of Local 1078, said would actually reduce wages in 20 per cent of the jobs involved.

Under Israeli Pressure

Arab Saboteurs Seen Giving Up War Hope

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Under unrelenting pressure from Israeli security forces, Arab saboteurs appear to have given up hope of starting a guerrilla war in Israeli-occupied areas west of the Jordan River.

Sources here said El Fatah gangs backed by Syria are pulling out of bases from which they have carried on a terror campaign for the last six weeks.

The sources said the raid on the Ma'oz Hayyim kibbutz in northern Israel Sunday is a strong indication that the saboteurs have reverted to the tactics they used before the Middle East war last June—hit-and-run raids across the Jordanian border.

Four bombs caused damage at the kibbutz but no casualties were reported. Army spokesmen said the tracks of three men led to the Jordan River, a mile east, and that 15 Soviet-made submachine-gun magazines, grenades and other ammunition were found near the kibbutz.

Israeli security officials say they have rounded up at least 200 terrorists west of the river. They claim they have broken the most successful group of saboteurs and have uncovered an El Fatah operations center in Jerusalem.

Arabic-speaking Israeli agents are still searching adobe villages for isolated resisters but curfews and other restrictions are being eased in Nablus, Tulkarm and Jenin, formerly saboteur centers.

U.S. Is Puzzled Over Viet Railyard Objects

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence experts are puzzling over mysterious shrouded shapes spotted in a Communist Chinese railyard just above the North Vietnamese border.

At first, some experts thought the shapes might be tanks covered by tarpaulins on rail flatcars.

But sources say there is a growing belief the objects may be heavy self-propelled artillery, possibly bigger than any guns yet used by the North Vietnamese.

U.S. Marines at Con Thien already have been battered by Communist artillery from north of the boundary separating North Vietnam from South Vietnam.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara confirmed in July that the North Vietnamese were using 152mm self-propelled guns. Military sources in Saigon said today the mystery objects could well be more of these guns headed for the demilitarized zone fighting.

The United States uses 155mm, 175mm and 200mm self-propelled guns in various places in Vietnam.

About eight tarpaulin-covered objects are among the mass of materiel which U.S. authorities said has been been building up in the big rail complex of P'ing Hsiang, which lies on the important train line between Hanoi and Nanning in south China.

Officials said the Chinese obviously have been stockpiling supplies and rail rolling stock at P'ing Hsiang in preparation for the extended period of bad weather, now closing in.

Under cover of this heavy rain and clouds, the Communists can hope to move supplies over the battered—but repaired—rail line to Hanoi while foul weather badly hamper U.S. bombing.

Sources said self-propelled artillery has been reported being unloaded from Soviet ships in Chinese ports.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

Quite a while back I received a letter from a reader who asked me to do a series of articles on composers, and also to give some bases for the evaluation of performances. Accordingly, over the past months, I have talked about some of the more important composers, and have tried to give you some idea of their individual styles.

Evaluating a given performance is intimately bound up with the matter of style. In fact, I might say that the commonest failure in today's performances is the lack of understanding of the composer's style and a consequent failure to realize just what the composer was trying to say.

We live in a hectic world, filled with sensational new developments. In many cases, musical performers today try to make a sensation of every piece they offer. They feel that in today's frenetic milieu they must give the listener astounding experiences that will practically bring him to his feet, or at least have him sitting on the edge of his chair.

This approach may be valid for music written in the present era, but it is definitely wrong for composers who lived a century and more ago, when life was very different. Always bear in mind that it is the composer who is important. We have always had loads of musicians who could execute music, but contemporaneous with composers who create music of lasting worth are few and far between. In consequence, it is the composer and his ideas that are important, not the performer, who only recreates the ideas of others.

Here is where many in the audience come to a parting of ways with me and my reviews. Many people take the attitude, "I liked it and thought it was just fine; what does that stinker have to find fault for?"

Good enough, but you are now judging what should be a work of art by its value as entertainment. My job is to judge it as a work of art. Almost any work of art is entertaining, but not every entertainment is a work of art.

We seldom go to a performance where the audience gets up and walks out; obviously then, they are usually entertained. In all the reviews I have written for The Herald I can recall two instances where there were mass exoduses from a concert.

In both instances what was offered was a work of art as conceived by the composer. What emerged was a thoroughly bad realization of art by the performers. In both cases I roasted the offerings and in general my readers felt as I did. There were a few, on both occasions, who took exception to my reviews.

In one case the composer was Bach, and in the other, Mahler. Those who took exception to my reviews apparently felt that even a bad performance was something to hear and I should not have been so rough on the performers.

My position was that when the performance is so lacking in conviction that it bores an audience to the point of walking out, then the composer has been rendered a disservice. Think of the people for whom this may have been their first encounters with Bach or Mahler! When they see those names on a future program, they are very likely to remain at home.

Both performances were technically bad, something which seldom happens nowadays. This was apparent to the audience, among whom are few who will forgive wrong notes, though within reason the critic will do so. What was really bad from my point of view was the failure to realize the style of the composers concerned.

In one case, the Bach was offered in the late romantic style, whereas he is a baroque composer. Even if the performance had been technically valid, it would have been impossible from an artistic standpoint, because of the clash of styles. It was as though John Singer Sargent had tried to paint da Vinci's "Last Supper."

The Mahler work was romantic, of course, but it got a modern treatment. This was as far off the mark as the other had been. No amount of technical perfection could have made the contrast in styles a unified whole.

Artistically, Leonard Bernstein is a bad conductor, even though audiences seem to love his performances. He plays everything in a frenetic, contemporary style. This appeals to the audience which does, after all, live in the 20th century, and has done little or no research into earlier centuries, their customs, or their arts. Again we have a conflict of styles, and consequently performances that are artistically invalid.

So in making a true, artistic evaluation of a given performance you have to be familiar with the styles of the different eras, baroque, classical, romantic, and so on, in the first place. Then you have to be aware of the style of the individual composer within that era.

These are things I have tried to point out in my articles in the past. For example, I recall showing the differences between Bach, Handel and Vivaldi, all of whom are contemporaneous, but all of whom should sound differently even within the frame of reference we call the baroque.

The styles must be firmly fixed in your mind, not something to consult in a textbook or series of articles such as mine. It may surprise you to know that the only things I looked up in all these articles were the dates of birth and death of the various composers.

These are not important in themselves, except as they place that composer within a certain era, and should give you an idea of what general style to expect, even if you are unfamiliar with the composer himself.

Styles cannot be comprehended from the printed page, but only from hearing them. Only by going to enough concerts can you hear sufficient variation in performance and conception to learn what is valid style for any composer. This does not mean that there is only one valid interpretation for any given work. Far from it!

Familiarity with the style of a composer, however, will let you discern performances and interpretations that are as out of place as a dirndl at a court ball of Louis XV.

Maine Fire Kills Six In Family

NORTH WHITEFIELD, Maine (AP) — "The only things I wanted in that house are already gone," Ralph D. Ferguson said as he stared at the fire-leveled home where his wife and five children died.

Ferguson, 33, awoke early Sunday and had time only to save one son, Ralph Jr., 9, from the blazing 1½-story house. When found the two were standing dazed outside.

Dead inside were his wife, Marie, 32, and the children: Debra, 8, Michael, 7; Randy 4; Angela, 2½, and Robert, 1½.

The bodies were found in the basement "where the whole place collapsed," Lawrence Vigue, a state police detective, said.

Th fire was believed to have started from the explosion of an oil pot burner.

"The house was completely engulfed in flames when we arrived and only one wall was standing," said Fire Chief Roger Glidden.

Prince Declines

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Prince Charles, who arrived at Trinity College last week as a freshman, received his first party invitation over the weekend. The future King of England declined with regret.

The invitation came from nurse Vivien Morgan of Cambridge who, with a few friends, was planning to celebrate the end of nursing exams.

It would be nice if you could come along, they wrote the 18-year-old Prince. And bring your own drinks.

The reply they received read: "His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, thanks Vivien, Sue, Anne and Diana for their very kind invitation—but regrets he will be unable to attend."

Vivien, 21, said she was disappointed and added, "I hope it wasn't the bit about 'with bottles please' that put him off."

Bomb Planters Killed, Hurt In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP)—Chinese Communist bombs today wounded a 16-year-old bomb-throwing suspect on a roof and an army demolition expert in the colony's fifth day of mounting terrorism. By noon, nearly 70 bombs had been uncovered.

Two terrorists were blown up by their own explosive charge Sunday, bringing to four the number killed since the stepped-up intimidation campaign against British authorities began last week. A third suspected terrorist, wounded in the same blast, was hospitalized in critical condition.

Forty-three persons have been killed since the Communist-incited rioting and labor strife began last May.

The Communists issued a call for more violence, including a "children's battle." Government officials said students were acting as bomb couriers and pro-Communist schools as depots for explosives.

Hong Kong's Communist newspapers carried no reaction to London's demand for the release of a British-born Hong Kong police inspector kidnaped across the Red China border Saturday after an altercation with Chinese peasants over land rights.

The border bridge at Man Kam To, where Inspector F. G. Knight was abducted, was closed Sunday in answer to the kidnaping.

Communists placed almost 150 real and dummy bombs the length of Hong Kong island and Kowloon, across the harbor from the island, Sunday night. Traffic was stalled for hours as demolition experts set about deactivating and detonating bombs.

They worked until dawn before all the bombs were dismantled. A spokesman said there was a bomb at almost every intersection along Hong Kong's waterfront road and busy streets in the densely populated Manchai and Western districts.

British troops opened fire on a building under construction after a bomb was thrown at them from the building—the first time they have done so since being called to riot duty in July.

One man was caught by two Chinese civilians as he tried to place a bomb in a children's playground. They beat him and handed him over to police, who said he may be charged with attempted murder.

DON'T RELY ENTIRELY ON HELP FROM ENEMY

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In the average bridge game you get quite a bit of help from your opponents, but it's safer to rely on your partner. The difference appears in one of the hands in H.W. Kelsey's fine new book Killing Defense at Bridge.

Opening lead —3 of Hearts.

As West, you open the three of hearts against South's shut-out bid of five diamonds. East takes the ace and returns the jack of hearts.

South covers with the queen of hearts, and you win with the king. You now need one more trick to defeat the contract. Should you lead out the ace of clubs, or should you lead another heart?

If you are looking attentively at all four hands there is no great problem. In an actual game, however, the opponents would give you a hard time if you tried to look at all four hands. There is a real problem.

Pause For Thought

If South is an average player he might pause for thought at the second trick before playing the queen of hearts. This would tell you that South had another heart.

It would be unethical for South to hesitate when he has only one heart. Good players don't try to win that way, but many average players are unaware that it is unethical to put on an act when playing bridge.

If South has played his queen of hearts quickly and smoothly, you can tell the right play by reflecting that your partner would see the problem if he held A-J-10-x-x of hearts. In order to give you a count, East would return his fourth best heart instead of the jack. Since East actually returned the jack of hearts you know that he did not hold five hearts; and you therefore correctly lead a heart at the third trick.

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player bids two diamonds. You hold: Spades, 9-6-5; Hearts, K-8-3; Diamonds, Q-4; Clubs, A-Q-9-8-5.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two hearts. You must completely discount the value of your doubleton queen in the suit bid by the opponents. The hand is therefore not worth a response of three clubs, and the raise in hearts is the only remaining possibility. If the opponent's bid had been one spade, you would bid two clubs, intending to raise hearts later, since your queen of diamonds would retain its full value.

25 College Admission Aides Attend 'Education Night'

Approximately 600 students and their parents are expected to attend "Further Education Night" at Bolton Junior-Senior High School Wednesday between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

This is the fourth annual "Further Education Night," which has been sponsored by the cooperating high schools of Bolton, Coventry, Rham, Lebanon and Windham.

Admissions officers from 25 New England and Middle Atlantic colleges will be on hand to discuss admissions procedures, financial aid, and programs their school offers, and to answer any questions which might arise concerning their particular school.

Parents and students will meet with three differenta representatives during the course of the evening, for 30 minutes each, and will have an opportunity at the conclusion of the evening to return briefly for further information from one of the representatives.

In addition to this event, which Bolton hosts once every five years, admissions officers from colleges and institutions visit Bolton during the year. During November representatives will visit from Dean Junior College, Mitchell College, Bridgeport Hospital School of nursing and Newbury School of Business. Interested students are asked to sign up beforehand on the calendar on the guidance bulletin board.

Warning letters were issued last week to those students in the junior-senior high school whose work for the first half of the first quarter has been unsatisfactory.

By issuing them at this time the staff feels that the students will have ample time to bring their grades up to acceptable levels by the end of the marking period.

Students have brought the letters home and parents are requested to sign them so that they may be returned as soon as possible.

Students to Be Tested

The Iowa Tests of Basic Skills will be administered to students in Grades 3-6 Tuesday through Friday this week and to students in Grades 7 and 8 in their homerooms Monday through Thursday next week.

Fifty juniors and seniors have registered for the preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test, which will be given Saturday from 8:30 to 11.

The S.A.T. itself, or "college boards", will be given at the high school Dec. 2. Seniors who are planning to apply to colleges should take the test at this time. The deadline for registering for the test is Oct. 28.

Approximately 15-20 seniors will take the General Aptitude Test Battery Nov. 15. It will be administered at the high school by vocational counselors from the State Employment Service in Manchester to seniors planning to enter into full-time employment immediately after graduation. Vocational counseling will follow the test.

Special Services

The guidance department is currently compiling a list of agencies in the Hartford-Manchester-Storrs area which offer special services such as developmental and remedial reading, speech and hearing, psychological testing and the like. The list is available now from either of the guidance counselors.

Among all the other information on the guidance bulletin board is a sheet asking for students who want part-time or Saturday jobs to sign up. No one has signed up, even though the list has been posted for several weeks, according to the guidance director, and no one has answered requests for babysitting or housekeeping help, broadcast over the P.A. system.

U.S. Is Puzzled Over Viet Railyard Objects

Some government sources said there are indications the Soviets may be bypassing the port of Haiphong with war material and landing it instead in Red China, for shipment by rail and truck to North Vietnam.

The shapes which appear in U.S. reconnaissance photos are of the dimensions of either tanks or heavy self-propelled artillery, sources said. As always, they would not discuss the origin of the pictures.

One source said it looked as though the guns under the shroud might be somewhere between 140 and 160 millimeters.

Marine authorities in Washington have said the biggest guns known to be firing at Con Thien are about 130 millimeters. Such guns could reach about 18 miles south of the Ben Hai River boundary between North and South Vietnam, covering much of the important Marine front and extending to a point just above the city of Quang Tri.

Recently, Pentagon officials said somewhere around 70 Communist artillery pieces have been bombarding these Marine positions.

Ordnance officers suggested the mystery weapons possibly awaiting movement south from P'ing Hsiang could be 152 millimeter Soviet heavy assault guns.

These have about a 20-mile reach and hurl a heavier projectile than the artillery the Communists now have trained on Con Thien.

Morals Charge Pending

STAMFORD (AP) — A 22-year-old Stamford man was to be arraigned today on a charge of assault with intent to rape in connection with an incident on the Merritt Parkway.

State police said the suspect, Julian Chetuti, pulled off the parkway Saturday and attacked a woman passenger. She tried to run away, but Chetuti caught her and hit her in the face, state police said. They did not identify the woman, who was treated at Stamford Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Chetuti was held at the Bridgeport state jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

The anaconda, largest snake in the western hemisphere, grows to about 20 feet. Legends abound about this huge reptile, but there is no authenticated report of the snake ever having killed a human being.

Governors' Viet Backing Not Expected

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Democratic and Republican governors said today that President Johnson will not get an endorsement for his Vietnam war policies during the cruise to the Virgin Islands that most of the nation's governors are undertaking.

Govs. John Connally of Texas and Otto Kerner of Illinois said in separate interviews they will not press for any endorsement of Johnson's Vietnam policies.

Both of the Democratic governors noted that 20 of their colleagues had endorsed the general policies of Johnson in Vietnam at a luncheon Sunday in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The Democrats had reaffirmed their support of the President's course in Vietnam. Most of them had criticized it at a meeting in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., last December, but they retracted the criticism in c St. Louis, Mo., meeting subsequently.

Twenty-three of the 25 Republican governors and 22 of the 25 Democratic governors were expected aboard the liner Independence today for the annual Governors' Conference.

Gov. John Love of Colorado, head of the Republican Governors Association, said he doesn't think the cruise conference will produce any unanimity on Vietnam.

"After all," Love said, "we Republicans are just about as divided as the Democrats on this issue and they have a candidate and we don't."

The declaration of Michigan Gov. George Romney, a Republican, that Johnson was following "a ping-pong" policy in Vietnam seemed to leave the governors as cold as the unsupported statement of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan of California that the United States may be "doing much better in the war than we're being told."

Reagan said Johnson was waiting until a politically opportune time in the 1968 campaign to announce that "we've turned a point in the war and perhaps we're winning."

He spoke on ABC's program "Issues and Answers."

Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio, a Republican who had taken the initiative two years ago in lining up the governors behind Johnson's Vietnam policies, said he is not interested in taking any similar action now.

Asked why, he said he thinks there is too much Republican dissent.

"I'm not running for anything and I'm not supporting anybody who is," Rhodes said.

"We Republicans don't seem to agree any more than the Democrats at this point on Vietnam."

Romney's latest views on Vietnam were aired on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday.

Where Romney, an unannounced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, said he believes Johnson's policies present only "a bleak outlook in Vietnam," Reagan said the President needs to pay more attention to the advice of U.S. military leaders.

The California Governor, who contends he is not a potential bidder for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination, said that he sees the possibility of an invasion of North Vietnam.

Romney said such an invasion would risk World War III, and Congress should be consulted before any action of that nature is taken.

Reagan said he recognizes growing support for his potential candidacy and, down inside, he feels "warm and good about it." But "that does not change my position, I am not a candidate," said Reagan.

Romney said he thinks that within six weeks he will announce his expected candidacy.

til it got so hot I had to leave. Now I have nowhere to go. All I have is on my back—pajama top, trousers and shoes."

No homes were damaged in Bimi but a tract of homes near Thousand Oaks was threatened during the night. The fire burned around the rocketdyne testing center of North American Rockwell Corp., destroying several small sheds.

A blaze threatened homes in the residential suburb of Whittier about 15 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

"It burned right up to the back doors of some houses," a Los Angeles County fire official said, but the flames were contained before there was any structural damage.

In Santa Paula, 100 miles northwest of Los Angeles, two ranches were destroyed in a blaze that had swept across 16,000 acres.

It was still reported burning out of control Sunday night.

The hot, dry Santa Ana winds which fed the flames had died down during the night but the whirling air current was expected to gain momentum again. The mountainous path of the fire was inaccessible to most fire fighting equipment.

'White Mountain' Said To Dwarf the Alps

KATMANDU, Nepal —Until 1862, Europe's Alps were thought to be the world's highest peaks. But in that year a British surveyor, Robert Colebrooks, discovered Dhaulagiri, the 26,795 foot "white mountain" of the Himalayas.

For 30 years after that it reigned as the tallest mountain known. Later discoveries installed such peaks as Everest Makalu and K2 as higher.

Bolton Firemen Show Their Stuff at Town Muster

The Bolton Fire Department held an intra-department muster yesterday afternoon behind the elementary school. A large crowd of townspeople came out to enjoy the autumn weather and to watch as firemen lit fires and put them out, as shown here, and performed other feats such as hose-laying and a tug-of-war.

According to fire department officials, the men did everything that won them a second place in the Tolland County Muster this summer except climb a muster. And there are silver greased pole and form a bucket brigade.

On the bulletin board at the firehouse, where the crowd troyed after the muster to look over equipment and have refreshments, there is a letter from the fire commissioners commending the department for its "excellent showing" at that trophies proudly on display in the show case.

The fire department auxiliary, basing its estimates on the amount of coffee served, says that at least 100 adults visited the firehouse — and this doesn't include the fruit punch drinkers who accompanied them. (Herald Photo by Pinto)

Zoning Board of Appeals To Hold Hearing Tomorrow

The Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall fireplace room to hear appeals from the Connecticut State Highway Department for six variances. All appeals are requested on a hardship basis, caused by the taking of land for highway purposes.

One is a request for a frontline variance on land owned by Anthony R. Deciantis of Manchester, along Rts. 6 and 44A.

The second is for a lot area variance on property on Iroquois Trail owned by Raymond H. Ellis.

The third is for a lot size and side-line variance on land on Iroquois Trail and Bolton Center Rd. owned by Edward J. Savina.

The fourth is an appeal for lot size variance on land on Bolton Center Rd. owned by HELCO.

The fifth is a request for a front line variance on land on Bolton Center Rd. owned by Norman Smethurst.

And the sixth is an appeal for lot size variance on property South of Tunxis Trail, owned by Andrew Ansaldi of Manchester.

The zoning board is expected to meet before the hearing for election of officers for the coming year.

Clothing Drive Off

Hold it! Don't put your clothes out for collection Saturday. The joint clothing drive, due to some difficulties in finding helpers, will not be held this year.

Members of the three Protestant churches have been asked to bring their clothing to designated spots in their buildings this week. Trucks for the Church World Service Community Appeal are scheduled to arrive some time after the 21st.

The clothing will probably have to be consolidated in one spot for pick-up.

Members of St. Maurice parish may save their clothing until the Thanksgiving drive.

Any other townsperson with articles for the drive may take them to the nearest church.

For two years all four churches have participated in a joint drive for the Protestant and Catholic relief funds, canvassing the whole town by trucks, and dividing up quite sizeable accumulations between the two appeals.

Besides articles of apparel, blankets and material for sewing are also requested. Shoes should be tied together. Warm hats, but not ladies' dress hats, are needed. And, for those who have nothing left in their attics and closets, a used dollar bill would be welcome, because shipping charges are 10 cents a pound —to get the clothing where it is needed.

Bulletin Board

The fire department auxiliary will meet tonight at 8 for a program on hair styling and grooming with Mrs. Terry Bolduc, who will also bring along wigs and wiglets.

The public is invited to the program, which will be held at the firehouse.

The selectmen will meet tonight at 7 in the town offices.

The monthly voter-making session will be held from 6 to 8.

Bolton Homemakers will meet Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the Community Hall to make terrariums. Members are to bring their own supplies. Hostesses are Mrs. Norman Preuss and Mrs. August Mildner.

HURT BY CAPSULES

SAL T LAKE CITY (AP) — homemade "thrill capsules" manufactured by high school students have hospitalized three teen-agers and made at least 15 others seriously ill, Salt Lake City police report.

Dr. Alan K. Done, director of the University of Utah Prison Control Center, said an overdose of the capsules—now turning up in several high schools—could be fatal.

Police said the capsules were made by grinding up asthmatic cigarettes in a blender and putting the powder in empty gelatin capsules.

All for the price of a fancier priced car.

$3260 is the latest average price paid for a new car these days. (So says the Automobile Manufacturers Association.)

$3260 will also buy you a new range, a new refrigerator, a new dryer, a new washer, two new television sets, a record player and a $1,695* Volkswagen.

Of course our little package doesn't include all those tricky little items you find on those fancier-priced cars. (Like an electric trunk opener. An electric ashtray cleaner. Or headlights that disappear when the sun comes out.)

But it does include good food, clean clothes, nice music and a chance to watch all the summer reruns in color.

A lot of people frown on a Volkswagen because they feel it doesn't offer enough in the way of fancy gadgetry.

Look again.

Pledge Day At The UN

The community of nations was showing its small better side at the United Nations the other day. It was something like an old-fashioned country Wednesday evening prayer meeting, in which almost everybody in attendance got up and put some kind of testimonial on the record, some kind of contribution into the collection.

It was, at the United Nations, annual United Nations Development Program pledge day.

Almost every nation present and reporting came up with an increased contribution to the Fund, which is made available to the world's under-developed countries to help them attract foreign investment and technology.

Back in 1959, when the Development Program was first established, it got total contributions of $55,000,000. The other day the United States alone pledged $75,000,000, an increase of $5,000,000 over its amount for the current year. And the total subscription to the fund for next year is expected to reach $190,000,000.

There were increased contributions, the other day, from Sweden, which has consistently been second only to us in the size of its donation, from Denmark, the Netherlands, Brazil, and from Czechoslovakia, the latter itself a recipient of a loan from the Fund this year.

On this pledge and testimonial day, the United Nations General Assembly turned off its debate on the current conflicts in the world, and concentrated on its word and thought about such an effort to create the conditions of peace through economic progress for those who need it most, channeled through an international organization, and provided by those who can best afford to give.

Perhaps the most encouraging thing that was said during this day of positiveness at the United Nations came from the American, Paul G. Hoffman, who is administrator of the Development Program.

What Hoffman reported was that the Development Program and the overseas investments it tries to promote have both been doing better because of a "rising tide of common sense" in the economic policies in some of the world's newer nations.

"Less and less," he said, "is assistance being sought for unnecessary or unrealistic projects and more and more the emphasis is on careful planning and down-to-earth assessments of needs." And Hoffman reported a "far less doctrinaire attitude toward putting total reliance on the public sector to the exclusion of the private," which is a report way of saying that developing nations are appreciating, more and more, the role that private enterprise can play.

All this news reads wonderfully well, and makes one think one lives in a world full of the good kind of excitement, until, going back to the figures again, one realizes that even the new record - breaking pledges represent something very much in miniature.

Take, for instance, the generous $75,000,000 the United States pledges. This donation for the year to the United Nations Development Program compares to something like $60,000,000 for a single day of waging the war in Vietnam, or to some part of the cost of a single shot at the moon, or to the $750,000,000 that West Germany calculates as its share of the expense of the development of that new super tank it has been developing in collaboration with the United States.

So, at the end of the reading about pledge day at the United Nations, one has to ask the following question. How can any nation so affluent and so good as the United States resist the opportunity to be even more generous than it is to such a wonderful idea and such a wonderful effort?

Nixon In The Polls

There ought, for the political sanity of the country, to be some kind of moratorium on those particular polls which conduct a hypothetical race between presidential candidates now, showing that, as of now, but not necessarily as of 1968, so and so would run thusly against so and so.

If we may make ourselves clear, we have no objection to the first part of the Associated Press poll of national Republican leaders, in which these leaders reveal that their personal favorite for the presidential nomination is Richard M. Nixon. That's all right with us, and what we say is that Republican leaders for whom Nixon would be the nominee they would have most ought to get Nixon and be stuck with him.

But the subsequent parts of this same poll—like so many other more professional polls—offered the same individuals who expressed their personal preference for Nixon the opportunity to dive headfirst off the bandwagon they were saying they liked.

Of those who liked Nixon best, a certain percentage failed to vote for him as the Republican candidate who would do best against President Johnson.

And when these same Republican officials were asked to select the two-man ticket which would be the strongest the Republicans could offer, they didn't even put Nixon on it, not even for Vice President.

One of the Republican National Committeewomen responding to the Associated Press poll gave the explanation for all this when she said:

"I want somebody to win this time."

That is the explanation of the curious fate that befalls Mr. Nixon in almost every poll. He is often the candidate organization Republicans consider the "most qualified," but the one they conclude, regrettfully, has less chance of winning than some others.

But the big interesting question is not about Mr. Nixon, but about these particular Republicans who are being polled. When and how did Mr. Nixon ever convince them that he is the "best qualified" man the party has? We suppose, in lack of other visible or obvious claims to such distinction, the two things that win such a rating for Mr. Nixon are the fact that he served two terms as vice president and ran once for the presidency himself. But the fact that Mr. Nixon has been up there, near the top, that much and for that time, is no automatic qualification. There are some durable people who can spend all their lives that near—and no nearer—the top.

LBJ And The Bombing

Once more the crucial question before the nation is—to bomb or not to bomb North Vietnam. And once more President Johnson insists he cannot pause in the bombing because that would be a betrayal of our troops.

Both in public and private the President argues that any cessation of the bombing would expose U.S. forces to much heavier casualties. It would be like "unloading your gun" and inviting the other side to shoot, he warns.

"I don't quite understand," he told the press, "why you want me to have our Marines and our airmen pause and put their hands behind their backs while the other people don't pause and continue to shoot at them.

The thought of American boys being helplessly and needlessly mowed down for lack of air attacks on the enemy is a distressing one. It is not easy to oppose the President when he emotionally says that reduced bombing means mounting casualties. He has found this to be his most effective and popular justification for persisting in the ever-greater air attacks on North Vietnam. The only trouble with this story is—it isn't so. Figures I have just obtained from the Defense Department flatly contradict the proposition that the U.S. casualty rate is closely related to the bombing of North Vietnam. The only other conclusion that could be drawn from this official data is that the heavier the bombing the heavier the American casualties.

Here are the facts: Bombing missions over North Vietnam for 1966 totaled 25,577. Weight of bombs dropped on all of Vietnam totaled 512,000 tons for that year. U.S. casualties for 1966 dead and wounded totaled 36,146.

For the first 8 months of 1967, bombing missions over North Vietnam were 24,488, or more than for all of 1966. For the first 7 months of 1967, our planes dropped 523,000 tons of explosive, or more than all in 1966. But, and this is the key fact, U.S. casualties through Sept. 26 totaled 55,139 for 1967 so far.

This means 1967 U.S. casualties are running at a rate of over 72,000 for the year, or twice as high as 1966, even though our 1967 bombing is much greater than 1966, both in number of missions and tonnage dropped. This would suggest that if Johnson keeps on escalating the bombing there will be still higher casualties.

Logically, then, a bombing halt should reduce rather than increase casualties. As a matter of fact, the Defense Dept. figures indicate that is what has happened. There have been three bombing pauses, totaling about 7 weeks, and U.S. casualties during the pauses were far less than when the bombing was resumed.

Actually, the bombing of North Vietnam (as distinct from South Vietnam) cannot possibly be the controlling factor over casualties. The record shows that, irrespective of bombing in the north, the casualty rate revolves around the deployment of U.S. troops, and the number of enemy actions they are engaged in. When our forces launch large search-and-destroy offensives, the casualties quickly mount. When contact is broken off, they go down.

The best answer to the President's argument against a new bombing pause is that he did not hesitate to order three of them in the past when it suited his purpose.

The President resorts to this argument because the earlier bombing justifications have been exhausted.—CLAYTON FRITCHEY IN THE NEW YORK POST

Inside Report

by
Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — A select group of New York executives recently got a glimpse of Dean Rusk with the unflappable veneer stripped off, revealing the embitterment and alienation pervading the Johnson administration because of Vietnam.

Relaxing over cocktails and luncheon in the Manhattan meeting with the executives, the Secretary of State shed the familiar public image of long-suffering serenity. Instead, he bitterly lashed out a "pseudo-intellectual" critics of the war and charged Communist control in the protest movement.

What startled his private New York audience would be commonplace to State Department insiders. Even more than President Johnson, Rusk deeply resents what he considers the superficiality of criticism by Eastern liberal intellectuals —particularly those liberal intellectuals who served in the Kennedy administration, stayed briefly under President Johnson, and now attack the LBJ foreign policy.

Justified though much of Rusk's criticism is, it only makes any fruitful discourse between the Johnson administration and the intellectuals all the more difficult. And the hostility to critics may well make Rusk all the more inflexible on policy in Vietnam.

Asserting Mr. Johnson has no intention of following critics demands for unconditional cessation in bombing, Rusk had a kind word for only the Quakers ("I have the greatest respect for them") among all anti-Vietnam groups during the off-the-record New York luncheon.

He contended that the President's proposed tax increase "created a lot of opponents" to the war, implying that two new Republican critics —Senators Thruston Morton of Kentucky and Clifford Case of New Jersey —are in that unflattering category.

Much earlier opposition, he said, resulted from Communist influence. FBI infiltrators in the Communist apparatus, he said, tipped him off to the exact wording of a peace telegram from an "innocent" peace group weeks before he officially received the same message. Despite detailed intelligence on Red control of the peace movement, said Rusk, "we haven't made public the extent of our knowledge. We didn't want to set off a new McCarthyism."

Communist influence, Rusk continued, helped build rabid anti-Vietnam sentiment among college students. But he placed a greater responsibility on what the students learn from their professors—Rusk's "pseudo-intellectuals." Their well-turned phrases, he said, simply can't stand careful scrutiny.

"Have you ever noticed how these people react against a Southern accent?" the Secretary asked his luncheon hosts. "Almost any other—British, New England, Hungarian, French—is acceptable to them. But not Southern."

Rusk said he was referring to the President's Deep Texas accent rather than the secretary of State's slight Georgia accent. But he told how one of his cousins back in Georgia, when asked by a reporter why the U.S. was in Vietnam, replied: "We promised 'em we would, didn't we?" Rusk's comment: "There was a great deal of profundity there. Compare it with the gossamer threads spun by Arthur Schlesinger."

Vietnam critic Schlesinger, a former White House aide who is now at City University of New York, ranks high in Rusk's Rogues' Gallery. But the former official-turned-academician who most infuriates him is Roger Hilsman, former Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs now at Columbia University.

Rusk revealed to his Manhattan listeners that Hilsman did not resign from the Administration as claimed in his memoirs (which criticize Rusk sharply) but was fired. "I fired him," the Secretary asserted, "because he talked too much at Georgetown cocktail parties. Then we had to help him get a job. So don't ask me about Roger Hilsman."

The Schlesingers and Hilsmans, according to Rusk, only deepen the unpopularity of the war with a naturally isolationist American public. He believes the publics' attitude, in turn, augments Ho Chi Minh's conviction that the American people will not support the war over the long haul.

Such bitterness toward the intellectuals, widely felt by policymakers here, is specially poignant when it is remembered that Rusk and many of his present colleagues took office in January, 1961, as part of an Administration whose bridge to academia seemed unbreakable.

"Condominium Kind Of People?"

To the Editor,

It may come as a surprise to the Town Planning Commission, but not everyone in the Buckley school district thinks a condominium means the end of the world. There are quite a lot of people who are not impassioned advocates of the idea, but neither are they against it. For this reason, they have not organized, as have the pros and cons, nor have they been vocal about their stand.

It is only a little over a week since the anti-condominium sentiment crystallized into organized opposition. During that time I have attended several meetings in an attempt to find out all I could about the arguments from both sides. I have found that the majority of the opposition arguments can be applied with equal force to other kinds of housing. Increased traffic, sewage and water use, crowded schools — all these possibilities apply whether the proposed housing is in the form of apartment, condominium, or single family units. It is true that a condominium will result in somewhat greater density than single family units, but not enough to warrant the violence of the opposition.

As I talked with people this past week, several things became clear. First, any arguments put forth by Green Manor Construction are disregarded as suspect, or simply not to be believed. Second, very little public mention is given to what is privately a great concern — the "kind of people" that a condominium will attract.

As to the second concern, it is hard to believe that a company the size of Green Manor would lie on such a grand scale to a Town Planning Commission that has the power to stop them cold if their adherence to regulations falls short.

As to the second concern, I trying to pin down what "kind of people" are objected to, the only concrete difference seems to be that they might not have quite as much money as some other residents. Since there are many current residents of the area whose homes clearly fall within the price range of the condominium units, perhaps they are no longer welcome. The irony is that quite a few members of the opposition would be included in that group.

Finally, what came through most clearly of all was an unwillingness even to listen to the other side, particularly at the public hearing.

A Though for Today

Daniel Webster was asked one day what was the most significant thought which had ever come to his mind. He replied, "That of my individual responsibility to God." When we give this matter a few moments thought it becomes an overwhelming one. Our responsibility is much greater than can be our service. Then let us give freely of ourselves and without regret to his service in the world. It will be a good beginning at least, and might move in the direction of identifying personally our responsibility to God.

Can you imagine how our world would be daily changing if we really felt this responsibility? Why not seek to change something around you for the better today because you do feel this responsibility to God!

Open Drains Worry Parents

The gaping mouth of a 42-inch storm drain pipe is tempting small children at the end of Huntingdon Dr. Parents have complained to town officials of the danger of their children exploring the pipe.

Andrew Tricarico, director of the Public Works Department, said the other day there are more open storm drain pipes than he has heard of. One large one is directly behind the Skinner Road School, he said.

Mrs. Edward Deane of Gerald Dr. complained of a large one near her house. Her six and a half-year-old boy "told me he was in it," she said last week. A strong warning from his father is all that keeps him out of it now, she added.

At an August meeting of the Board of Representatives, several Huntingdon Dr. parents asked to have the drain openings closed off from the children.

This year's budget includes $1,000 for cages to go around the openings. Tricarico was authorized by the board at the meeting to spend it and set the cages up.

But the land at several of the pipe openings does not belong to the town, he said. In fact, the pipes often open up into streams going through other people's property, he added.

Not even the streets in the Huntingdon Dr. area have been accepted by the town yet from the developer, Tricarico said. This makes it hard to even put up the cages on the pipes, he added, as the town owns nothing around it and has no easement rights.

But eventually there will be an extension of Huntingdon Dr. on to Rt. 83 across from Sunset Terrace, he said. With the building of that road, he explained, the present pipe will be extended under ground to the pipe now at Sunset Terrace. From there, storm water is piped to the Hockanum River where there is another pipe opening, he said.

The cages will still be needed, he said, since there has to be storm drain openings somewhere.

An example of the fears the drains give parents was told by Mrs. Mango Pianzio of Wolcott Lane.

"I was looking for my little girl one day," she said. Mrs. Pianzio said she walked down the lane near her home calling her eight-year-old daughter. She was standing near the woods where she knew one of the large storm drain openings was.

An echoing voice came from the pavement. Mrs. Pianzio looked down to the storm sewer inlet on the road. Her daughter was in there answering her call.

"We object to open-trench drainage wherever it is," Tricarico commenting on the drain near new developments. Town growth and incompleted systems have left a series of them around town now, he admitted.

Tricarico said his department has designed a special cage made of sheet fencing. It will extend out from the drain opening about four or five feet and have a wire top.

It poses a maintenance problem, he said. Sticks, rubbish and even toys get caught in them. At this time of year, he said, leaves are especially troublesome.

His department is now completing a leaves pick-up program. When they are done, he said, work on the cages can begin.

There are no state laws directly governing storm drain outlets, according to Charles J. Pelletier, hydraulics engineer with the State Water Resources Commission. Most guidelines in building them, he said, are set by the common law.

Accidents involving state culverts and drains, Pelletier noted, are rare. But the state has the same problem in hiding large drain openings, he said.

The state's attempts to close off dangerous drains have failed he said, despite high fences and warning signs. "If children want to get into them," he explained, "they do."

The best way to prevent children from going in the pipes is to keep the interest level down, he said. They can be made inaccessible or put where they are hard to reach, he explained.

A delightful decoration for a chocolate cake is made with blanched almonds (plain or toasted) and semi-sweet chocolate. Just dip one end of each almond in a little of the melted chocolate and insert the undipped ends of the nuts in the cake frosting. You'll need at least a dozen of the almonds for the top of the cake, but of course more may be used for a lavish effect.

Comment Session

The Board of Directors will conduct another of its bimonthly public comment sessions Thursday, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the town counsel's office in the Municipal Building.

The sessions, held on the first Tuesday and third Thursday of each month, are for those Manchester residents who wish to complain, comment or suggest solutions to town problems.

The hearings have drawn favorable reaction locally and word of them has spread statewide.

Connecticut Life, the magazine insert which is distributed once a month to Herald readers, is preparing an article on the comment sessions for a future issue.

Ordered Wage Hikes Start For 137,000 Railroad Men

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wage hikes dictated under a mandate from Congress go into effect today for 137,000 railroad workers. The boosts range up to 28 cents per hour.

The pay raises ordered by a White House board in the first case of its sort, go to members of six rail shopcraft unions working for virtually all the nation's railroads.

Chief industry spokesman John P. Hiltz Jr. said the railroads decide against going into federal court to try to upset the wage increases, which Hiltz previously called "clearly inflationary."

"Our people have had to wait a long, long time for a pay increase," said chief union spokesman Thomas Ramsey. "I to know they will be happy to get the money."

Congress created the presidential board in a special law to halt a two-day nationwide rail strike last July and gave the board power to impose the wage terms if there was no voluntary agreement. The law also forbade any further strike until Jan. 1, 1969.

While the railroads dropped any consideration for a court appeal, they refused to write the compulsory wage terms into a voluntary contract agreement.

"The railroads will fully comply with the provisions of the law and the award," Hiltz said in Chicago.

The five-man White House board, headed by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., ordered a 6 per cent boost in pay retroactive to Jan. 1 and a second raise of 5 per cent effective next July 1, plus a total of 20 cents per hour for 100,000 skilled workers.

The first 10 cents of the skill increases go into effect immediately, with 6 cents retroactive to April 1 and 5 cents retroactive to Oct. 1. An additional 5 cents will go into effect next April 1, and the final 5 cents next Oct. 1.

The workers had previously averaged $2.90 per hour, and skilled workers $3.05. The top paid men will get 28.3 cents per hour more immediately under the formula, bringing their pay to $3.33. They will be earning a fraction under $3.60 when the rest of the pay raises go into effect next year.

Other workers will get varying lesser hourly increases depending on present pay.

The workers include machinists, electricians, boilermakers, sheet metal workers, oilers, carmen and firemen.

Health Director Proposes Town Sewage Facilities

"It is essential that municipal sewage facilities be investigated in the near future" for the town, stated Town Health Director Marjorie Purnell in her annual report to the people of Tolland.

She further recommends the hiring of a full-time attendant at the town dump and the adding of improved maintenance equipment to properly meet the land fill operation requirements. Provisions for the attendent and the equipment would be made in the next budget, she states.

Several other recommendations have been made by various town agencies including a radio-equipped police car manned by town constables, and a communications center operated under the jurisdiction of the Civil Defense.

Resident State Trooper Harry Tomasek recommends the operation of a radio-equipped police car manned by town constables to provide more police protection at a minimal cost. The constables would work in conjunction with the resident trooper.

The increase in population, business establishments and additional schools, have required more time be spent on criminal investigation than in the past, according to Tomasek. These have included felonies, misdemeanors and juvenile problems, all resulting in the limitation of highway patrol time.

Tomasek received 285 complaints of which 101 required case numbers. An additional 254 case numbers were handled by personnel of the Troop C State Police Barracks in Stafford.

The barracks handled accidents and complaints on the Wilbur Cross Highway as well as investigations in town during the resident troopers off duty hours.

Twenty-seven motor vehicle accidents were investigated and 38 criminal arrests made by the resident trooper. A total of 65 motor vehicle arrests were made and 71 warning issued. General services and houses checked while on vacation totaled 45.

Tomasek spent 969½ hours on criminal investigation within the town, and 360¼ hours on patrol of town roads. He covered 5,310 miles while on patrol, and 22,272 miles on duty. His total on duty hours amounted to 2,457 for the year.

Civil Defense Center

Tomasek's recommendation for a radio-equipped patrol car, dovetails with the town communications center proposed by CD director David Cabanias. The center would provide communications between the town hall and various town emergency services such as the constables, fire department and ambulance association, as well as town business, such as contact with town trucks during snow removal operations.

"The date of completion of the center cannot be predicted at this time," according to Cabanias. Although all the necessary ground work had been completed, and the support of town officials was received, the proposed program was rejected by the town's people" at the annual meeting.

An office for the Civil Defense organization has just been completed in the town hall next to the state trooper's.

"The projected outlook for Tolland Civil Defense is grim," stated Cabanias in the Annual Report. "Progress of the CD organization will be similar to that of past years unless additional funds are provided to finance new programs."

"The funds allocated by the town are adequate to support the operating costs of the program, but fall considerably short of that required to finance any concrete or new programs," according to the director.

Present funds have been used to rebuild an emergency power generator to be eventually located in the Town Hall.

Conservation and PZC

The Planning and Zoning Commission has engaged the service of the local office of the Federal Soil and Water Conservation Bureau which will furnish base soil maps of the town and instruct the commission members and other town officials in their use.

The information will be beneficial to the Conservation Commission as well. The Conservation Commission, which met twice during the year, is considering parcels of land and preparing a comprehensive plan for the town, according to the annual report. The Soil Conservation Service is to be contacted for assistance with the plan.

The PZC is currently conducting research on the zoning of multiple dwellings (garden apartments) and plans to have regulations incorporated into the zoning ordinances of the town in the near future, according to the report.

Zoning Board of Appeals

The Zoning Board of Appeals denied two special exception variances, and one frontline variance during the year. It approved three sideline variances, two rearline and one frontline variance.

One business occupancy was approved and one frontage variance was approved. Three special exceptions were granted.

Nature Center Footbridge Dedicated

This "cover" on the new covered footbridge at Lutz Junior Museum's Oak Grove Nature Center proved unnecessary for yesterday's dedication ceremonies, held before several hundred spectators in perfect autumn weather. A small portion of the crowd that ringed the swirls is shown listening to the welcome by Mayor Agostinelli, center. The keynote address was by Horace H. Brown of Manchester, the Connecticut Development Commission's executive director; and others who spoke briefly were Dr. Frank Horton, a member of the Manchester Conservation Commission and prime mover behind establishment of the nature center; Richard Bobsitik, Manchester Jaycees president; and Nicholas Panuzio, president of the Connecticut Jaycees. Accepting the bridge, built as a community project by the local Jaycees, was Walter Schutheis, president of the museum's board of trustees. The Jaycees awarded certificates of appreciation to Clinton Hendrickson, designer of the bridge, and to Agostinelli for the town, in recognition of said town agencies gave the project. After the ceremonies, a reception for the Jaycees was held by museum trustees at the 64 Wyllys St. home of Dr. and Mrs. John Wright. (Herald photo by Pinto.)

Qualified Applicants Scarce For Town Engineering Jobs

Manchester has drawn a blank in finding acceptable candidates for town engineer and engineering aide, according to town manager aide John Harkins, who handles hiring procedures for the town.

Harkins said that the town actually hired a man to be engineer, but then lost him to Windsor before he took local office. The guy in Windsor is approximately the same as in Manchester, but the travel time to and from the man's home is about an hour less to Windsor than to Manchester, Harkins said. He declined to name the man or to say where he lives.

As far as engineering aide is concerned, no eligible applicants, applied, Harkins said.

Harkins said that Manchester is seeking a working agreement with Northeastern University, Boston, for an on- job training program for sophomores and junior engineering students.

A meeting will be held next month with university officials to define a program which may start in the spring. The students would spend three months in Manchester on a rotating basis, to fill the engineering aide void.

Candidates for yet another opening, that of superintendent of parks, will be given a written examination soon, Harkins said. That position has been vacant since July 31, when Horace Murphey retired.

Police say Calef was apprehended after he was stopped on Rt. 15 while driving the truck. An alert had gone out about the theft when James J. Duffield of 78 Hawthorne St. called police after he saw the truck pull away from his house.

Police say Calef left another vehicle in front of the residence when he took the truck. This car had been stolen earlier, police say.

Early this afternoon, Calef was awaiting appearance in Circuit Court 12, Manchester.

Church School Aid Involved

Can Taxpayer Sue For U.S. Spending?

The Council said there is "grave doubt" that federal programs aiding church-related schools are constitutional.

The federal program provides funds to finance guidance services, purchase of textbooks and some instruction in religiously operated schools.

Conviction Reversed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court reversed today the conviction of Johnny Coleman, a Negro under death sentence in Alabama in the slaying of a white mechanic.

The court said in an unsigned opinion that although evidence of is in dispute as to whether Negroes were included in grand and petit jury panels in Greene County, Ala., it appears that no Negro served on the grand jury which indicted Coleman or on the trial jury which convicted him.

Besides, the court said, "it further appeared that up to the time of petitioner's (Coleman's) trial, no Negro had ever served on a grand jury panel and few, if any Negroes had served on petit jury panels."

Walker Rule Reversed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court threw out today a $75,000 judgment won by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker in Louisiana courts against The Associated Press and The Times-Picayune Publishing Corp.

The court in a brief unsigned ruling cited its decision of last June that public figures—like public officials—cannot recover libel damages without a showing of actual malice.

Walker's suit was based on AP accounts of his activities at the University of Missippi campus at Oxford in 1962 during disorders accompanying the admission of a Negro, James Meredith, into the university.

Last June the court threw out a $500,000 judgment Walker had won against AP in a Texas state court. This suit was based similarly on reports of the Oxford incident.

Bonn Arrests Four On Red Spy Counts

ufacture in the shape of a pack of cigarettes. This camera, he said, was operated simply by sliding it over the document.

Pieschel and Marggraf are also believed to have concealed microphones and secret listening devices in conference rooms of the French Embassy and in hotel rooms, Martin said.

The material collected by the four was handed over to their Soviet contacts at meetings in East and West Berlin, Martin said. According to statements made following their arrest, Martin said, they received instructions by mail and sometimes received on a certain wave length at a certain time.

Martin said instructions for receiving the radio calls had been in Suetterlin's apartment, but West German agents had no opportunity to intercept a broadcast.

He said the arrests were carried out within 24 hours of the time that U.S. authorities revealed information from the Soviet defector.

Martin said a second woman had been arrested in the original roundup, but was later released.

House Panel Wants Budget Cut by About $3 Billion

tude would be allowed to the executive branch to make room for the absorption."

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the most popular members of the House in the middle of the budget battle between Congress and President Johnson, said he seems to be enjoying every minute of it.

"It's like being in the eye of a hurricane, so to speak," comments Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex), veteran chairman who heads the House Appropriations Committee.

In addition to being the number one congressional spokesman on appropriations—which originates in his committee—Mahon is a long-standing friend of his fellow Texan, President Johnson.

They thoroughly understand each other—an understanding born not only of their long friendship, but of almost weekly chats.

"The President has his responsibilities and I have mine," Mahon said in an interview. "I don't want to delegate to the President my responsibility as chairman of the Appropriations Committee and I'm sure he wouldn't want me to.

"I have too much pride and too much respect for Congress to abdicate our authority and tell the President to make $5 billion in budget cuts anywhere he wants to. I don't believe that is the proper way to run a democratic government."

The reference to the $5 billion was to Republican assistance that as the price for providing emergency government financing, the President should be ordered to cut that sum from spending this year.

The administration contends it can't cut the budget until it knows how much money will be available. And many of the bills providing the money haven't cleared Congress.

Mahon calls the GOP proposal "buck passing."

"It amounts to passing the buck to the President and downgrading Congress," he said. "It would be far less painful and more politically expedient for us to tell the President to do it, but we would lose our stature with the public."

Public hearings will be conducted for all six requests.

One is from the State Highway Department, for a variance for the property of Dalphine Kohn Holtman at 295 Spencer St., in Residence AA.

The state wants to acquire that portion of the property in the path of the relocated Rt. 6. The variance, if granted, would reduce the front setback line below minimum requirements.

The other five variance requests to be considered tonight are from:

1. Edward S. Toper, to erect an attached garage at 71 Santina Dr. in Rural Residence Zone. The garage would be closer to the sideline and to the front line than regulations permit.

2. Vernon National Bank, to erect a free-standing, ground sign on Rt. 15 in Rural Residence Zone, about 480 feet east of the O

Hebron Assessor Announces His Hours

Assessor Harold Maddocks will hold special hours on Oct. 21 and Oct. 28 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to assist in the preparation of property declarations. Other office hours will be held on Oct. 25, 26 and 27 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

All Hebron property owners are required by law to file a property declaration each year. A penalty of 10 per cent is added to all lists not properly filed with the assessor on or before Nov. 1.

The Episcopal Church Women will meet tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Phelps Hall. The public is invited to attend to hear Mrs. Ann Wright give a talk and demonstration on "Dried Arrangements" from our surroundings.

Roll Call Supper

The Hebron Congregational Church will hold its annual Roll Call Supper on Oct. 21 beginning with a 6:30 supper.

The Women's Fellowship of the Church will be in charge of the meal.

Parents Notification

Mrs. Dorothy Kirkham, elementary school nurse, has requested that parents notify her when children are home sick from school. This information keeps her informed as to "what's going around".

Parents are also requested to keep children home if they are too ill to go outdoors, as they may infect other children.

Mrs. Foote New Chairman

Mrs. Edward Foote was elected chairman of the Hebron Board of Education last week. She recently won re-election to the board for a six year term. Mrs. Foote has served on the board for 11 years. Richard Landon was elected secretary.

The board heard a report from Supt. Aram Damarjian on bus transportation. Buses are loaded to capacity according to a letter received from Clark Transportation. It has been suggested that an eighth bus be put into service because of the increasing problem. The board voted to study the problem.

Damarjian reported that at present there are four Hebron children attending the educable mentally retarded class held in Andover and one child in the learning disability class there. The board approved extra transportation if needed in the event there are additional children to enter the Andover classes.

The board approved the appointment of Mrs. Donna Mead as physical education teacher. Mrs. Mead is a part-time student and will work in the system two and one half days each week.

In other action, the board approved early closing of school on Oct. 23 for teachers workshop and on Nov. 15, 16 and 17 and April 9, 10, and 11 for Parent-Teacher conferences.

The recommendation to change the regulation on use of the auditorium at the elementary school was approved. Those groups wishing to use the auditorium on the weekends will have to make application for use to the school office two weeks in advance.

It was announced that Richard Putnam has been hired to help with the extra custodial duties at the school.

The board also approved the recommendation that Supt. Damarjian have sole responsibility for closing schools in case of inclement weather. These decisions will be announced over radio stations WTIC, WDRC, and WILI.

Bulletin Board

The Board of Admission of Electors will be held tomorrow night from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building.

Oiling and sweeping operations are in progress in Hebron this week.

Residents are advised by the Board of Selectmen, that during these operations, cars, bikes and toys are to be kept out of the road area. Cars will be towed away if parked in the work area.

Lynda Johnson Picks Sunset As Wedding Ceremony Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Johnson and Marine Capt. Charles Robb have picked romantic sunset time for their Dec. 9 White House wedding and have ruled out television coverage of the ceremony.

The Rev. Canon Gerald McAllister, a personable young Texas Episcopal clergyman, will perform the marriage, the White House also announced Sunday.

Guest list for the East Room nuptials of the President's elder daughter will be held to about 500 persons. That's 200 less than Lynda's sister, Luci, invited to her Aug. 6, 1966 cathedral wedding and White House reception.

This will be the first time in 53 years that a presidential daughter has been married in the White House. The Johnsons announced that "lack of space" will limit coverage by news media.

Only a pool of reporters will be permitted to cover certain portions of the event. There will be no television coverage of the wedding ceremony itself a White House spokesman said.

Lynda and her young Marine finance have set their Saturday wedding for 4 p.m., about a half hour before sunset.

Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary to Mrs. Johnson, said the couples' honeymoon destination remains secret.

In choosing the minister, Lynda didn't look far from home.

She picked the tall Texas clergyman, who only two weeks ago offered prayers for Lynda and Charles at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church in Fredericksburg, Tex., 15 miles from the LBJ Ranch.

He was so surprised when Mrs. Johnson called Saturday to ask him to perform the ceremony, "we didn't even discuss the details."

Two weeks ago when newsmen asked him if he would preside, he replied, "No. That's a job for a bishop.

The Rev. Mr. McAllister, son of W. W. McAllister, mayor of San Antonio, has known the President's family about four years—ever since he presided at the laying of a cornerstone at the St. Barnabas Church.

Since about a year ago, when he became "supply priest" at the church, which has no regular minister, the Rev. Mr. McAllister has seen the first family frequently. The President often goes to St. Barnabas when he is spending weekends at his ranch.

The minister is anxious about the required ministerial counseling session required of all couples marrying in the Episcopal church. Such sessions are usually conducted by the minister who will preside over the ceremony, but the Rev. Mr. McAllister said Sunday, "If it's not possible for me to handle it then perhaps someone in Washington could."

The Rev. Mr. McAllister attended Lynda's alma mater, the University of Texas, and was graduated from Virginia Theological Seminary in 1951.

Coventry
Two Panels Name Heads

Organizational meetings of town boards and commissions continue, following the Oct. 2 town election, as both the Planning and Zoning Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals elected officers late last week.

Incumbent Republican chairman Grant Toothaker Sr. was reelected to that post on the ZBA, and Democrat Robert Gantner is the new chairman of the PZC. Gantner was formerly secretary of that group.

Democrats captured the secretarial posts on both boards with David Roach elected on the ZBA and Stephen Joncus on the PZC.

The PZC switched from Republican to Democratic control during the recent election, while the ZBA remained Republican. Four town boards on which party control is possible now have Democratic heads, with the ZBA the only Republican board remaining.

New Democratic boards are the PZC, Board of Finance, and Board of Selectmen, with the Board of Education remaining under Democratic chairmanship as it has for the past two years.

Worth Knowing

An article on chemical compounds reminded us to mention once again the dangers of carbon monoxide. You cannot smell it because it is both odorless and colorless, but it is severely poisonous to many forms of life, including man. One thousandth of 1% in the air you breath can produce poisoning, and one fifth of 1% can prove fatal in a matter of minutes. It is estimated that a car running in a one-car closed garage can produce a fatal poisoning in only four minutes. A closed car can absorb a lethal dose from a leaking muffler or exhaust pipe, so check them, and never drive without at least a vent window open. Both our column and ourselves are here to SERVE you well. See our values!

Gunmen Get $102,000 at N.Y. Airlines

NEW YORK (AP) — Three gunmen wearing Halloween masks held up a cargo hangar of American Airlines at Kennedy Airport Sunday night and made off with $102,000 in cash and supplies and rubies from the Far East.

The FBI joined police in the investigation.

The bandits appeared at the hangar, in a remote section of the sprawling airport, wearing masks with putty-style noses, eye glasses without lenses, and large moustaches.

The trio, armed with pistols, rounded up an unarmed guard and six freight clerks, then locked them in the hangar. The seven men were not injured.

Within 10 minutes the robbers sped away in a car with the loot—$80,000 in American currency in one packet, and four packages containing gems valued at $22,000.

An original value of $97,000 for the jewelry was revised downward when the amounts listed on the packets was found to be in Hong Kong, not American dollars.

The cash and gems were being transshipped from the Far East.

DEVELOPING SMALL SUB

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A miniature submarine which would carry scuba divers to the bottom of the sea is being developed by North American Rockwell's ocean systems operations.

A company spokesman says the finished product would resemble a large torpedo about 15 feet long and four feet in diameter. It will carry from two to six men to work sites or disabled craft underwater.

The tiny sub was designed to save divers' energy because it will take him directly to deep undersea work sites.

ATTACKS POLICY

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Retired Air Force Gen. Bernard Schriever says the United States is losing its strategic air superiority to the Soviet Union on purpose.

Schriever, during an interview, said the U.S. lead apparently is being sacrificed in the belief that peace will be preserved if Russia is allowed to achieve parity in missiles with the United States.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By BILL LENNON

The white haired maestro Leopold Stokowski, at an age well past three score years and ten, continued an inspirationally active life. By personal example, he shamed many younger people when he said, "I would rather talk about the future, the past is something we can no longer do anything about."

He put his words in action. In approaching age 80, he grouped both young and old in the American Symphony. One third of the musicians were student youth; the other two thirds were more experienced, more mature. Dedicated to his conviction that America is a land of opportunity and that it must remain so, he exemplified a lesson many of us should heed. The young learn from the old and gain from the vitality and enthusiasm of the young. In recent years, in too many areas of employment, it is a shame that this two fold concept of opportunity seems to have been side-tracked . . .

Vikings Play Like Champs Against Powerful Packers

NEW YORK (AP)—No wonder the winning habit hasn't come easy for the Minnesota Vikings. They only play Green Bay a couple of times each year.

The Vikings pulled the biggest upset of the young National Football League season Sunday, spilling Green Bay's world champs 10-7 on a 12-yard field goal by Fred Cox with eight seconds to play.

It was Minnesota's first victory of the season...and the first setback for the Packers since they bowed to the Vikings 20-17 last November.

"Beating Green Bay is getting to be a habit," quipped Cox, whose second field goal in the 1966 game at Green Bay provided Minnesota's margin of victory.

After losing that one, however, the Packers reeled off five straight victories, beat Dallas for the NFL title, whipped Kansas City in the Super Bowl and got off to a 3-0-1 start this year. The Vikings, meanwhile, dropped five of their last six games in 1966 for a 4-9-1 finish and were 0-4 this season going into Sunday's game at raindrenched Milwaukee, Wis.

While the Vikings were overtaking Green Bay with a 10-point spurt in the final period, the Los Angeles Rams came from 10 points down in the last six minutes to earn a 24-24 standoff at Baltimore and spoil the Colts' perfect NFL record.

At Atlanta, Wade Traynham's 21-yard field goal with two seconds remaining gave the winless Falcons a 20-20 deadlock with Washington.

At Pittsburgh, Fran Tarkenton's 68-yard TD bomb to Joe Morrison off a triple reverse shot the New York Giants past the Steelers 27-24 with 1:50 to go.

At Philadelphia, Ken Willard's fourth-quarter scoring burst carried the San Francisco 49ers to a 28-27 nod over the Eagles.

The Dallas Cowboys edgeo New Orleans 14-10, the Cleveland Browns shaded St. Louis 20-16 and the Chicago Bears subdued Detroit 14-3 in other NFL games.

VIKINGS-PACKERS—

Green Bay's Zeke Bratkowski, unbeaten in eight previous games as a relief pitcher for Bart Starr, had two fourth-quarter passes picked off by the Vikings, who turned each theft into a score.

RAMS-COLTS—

Bruce Gossett's 47-yard field goal and Roman Gabriel's third scoring pass—a 16-yarder to Bernie Casey with 2:57 to play—pulled Los Angeles even at Baltimore. The Colts had won their first four games and appeared to have No. 5 wrapped up on Johnny Unitas' 31-yard TD pitch to Willie Richardson early in the fourth quarter.

Unitas, who signed a three-year contract for a reported $375,000 Sunday, completed two hit Alex Hawkins with a 14-yard TD pass. Lou Michaels kicked a 46-yard field goal for the Colts, but missed a 44-yard bid with 1½ minutes remaining.

REDSKINS-FALCONS—

The Redskins, beaten by Dallas in the final minute a week ago, erased a 17-14 Atlanta lead on a 24-yard Jenny Jurgensen-Bobby Mitchell TD pass with 42 seconds to go. But Tommy Nobis, Atlanta's brilliant linebacker, blocked the extra point kick by Brig Owens and Traynham's tying three-pointer capped a last-ditch drive by the Falcons.

GIANTS-STEELERS—

Trailing 24-20 at the two-minute warning, the Giants caught the Steelers napping when Tarkenton handed off to Ernie Koy, who slipped the ball to Homer Jones on an apparent end-around play. Jones, however, flipped it back to the quarterback, who dashed 37 yards alone on the Pittsburgh 30.

49ERS-EAGLES—

Willard's winning four-yard plunge avenged San Francisco's one-point loss to the Eagles last year. Two touchdowns by full-back Gary Lewis helped stake the 49ers to a 21-10 halftime lead, but the Eagles rallied to take the lead behind Norm Snead, who fired three TD passes.

COWBOYS-SAINTS—

The Cowboys held off winless New Orleans in the rain at Dallas, stopping a fourth-quarter Saints' march on the five-yard line and thwarting another drive when Dave Edwards recovered a fumble on the seven with one minute to play.

BROWNS-CARDS—

Lou Groza's first two field goals of the season lifted the Browns past the fumbling Cardinals. Jim Bakken's third field goal cut the Browns' lead to 17-16 early in the fourth quarter before Groza kicked a 34-yarder with 58 seconds remaining.

BEARS-LIONS—

Gale Sayers romped over a muddy field for 142 yards and one touchdown and Bennie McRae scored on a 29-yard interception runback as the Bears cuffed the Lions at Chicago. The winners threw only four passes in the game, but completed two—including a 31-yard Jack Concannon-Johnny Morris flip that set up Sayers' three-yard TD run.

YARDAGE GAINER — Fran Tarkenton of the Giants is a threat to pass, or run, when he's got the ball as the Steelers found out yesterday. Here he's off on a 23-yard gain. (AP Photofax)

Speedy Duncan Runs 100 Yards for Score

NEW YORK (AP) — The voices Speedy Duncan hears give him good information, but his dreams tend to get a little out of hand.

"I had a dream Saturday night that I would intercept four passes and help San Diego win," the Charger defensive back said after an important 45-31 victory over Kansas City Sunday.

In real life, Duncan intercepted just one of Len Dawson's throws, but it was a good one. Duncan took it 100 yards for a touchdown, the longest return of a pass interception in league history.

"Chris Burford had beaten me on that play for the last two years," the 5-10, 175-pound defensive back said. "It's a short up-and-out pattern where he pushes me off, goes for the flag and beats me. This time, I played a yard or two deeper.

"I got the ball with my hand, batted it up and was ready to down it when I heard (defensive back) Bud Whitehead yell, 'Run, Speedy, run, you've got the sideline.' So I looked. Whitehead yelled again, and I ran."

Earlier in the afternoon's festivities, Duncan had picked up a fumble by Mike Garrett and taken it 35 yards for a touchdown.

Two other Charger touchdowns also came on long strikes. Quarterback John Hadl hit flanker Lance Alworth with a 40-yard scoring pass, and rookie halfback Dick Post burst through for a 67-yard touchdown run.

In other AFL games Sunday, New York and Houston fought to a 28-28 tie, Oakland beat Buffalo 24-20 and Boston crushed Miami 41-10. Denver was idle.

CHARGERS-CHIEFS—

The defeat cropped the Chiefs into third place in the AFL's Western Division with a 3-2 mark while San Diego stayed in first with a 4-0 record. The Chargers face Denver, last in the division, next week, and Kansas City tries to take out its frustrations on Houston.

OILERS-JETS—

Houston's defense did what its offense couldn't, scoring three touchdowns and setting up the fourth against the Jets. Safety Ken Houston scored on a 71-yard return of a blocked field-goal try and a 43-yard run with a pass interception. Miller Farr intercepted three passes, returning one for a score.

In all, the Oilers intercepted six of Joe Namath's passes and threatened to win the game with a steal on the last play of the game by W. K. Hicks. Namath threw one yards and two laterals later. Namath himself prevented the score, tackling Larry Carwell on the four.

RAIDERS-BILLS—

Daryle Lamonica threw two touchdown passes against his former Buffalo teammates despite a lot of pressure from the Bills' line, which threw him five times for losses of 50 yards. The Oakland defense was equally hard-hitting, punishing Jackie Kemp 11 times for 96 yards lost.

PATS-DOLPHINS—

Babe Parilli threw five touchdown passes for Boston, three to Jim Whalen and two to Larry Grantham. The Patriots rolled to a 27-3 halftime bulge on four Parilli scoring aerials. Babe finished with 16 completions in 20 attempts and 281 yards gained.

The SCOREBOARD

Lawler and Henley, Jutze, Miles and Landry

Quarterbacks Dazzle on State Scene

Lawler and Henley, Jutze, Miles and Landry—these were the top names in a day of dazzling quarterbacking witnessed by Connecticut college football fans.

The last-named, Greg Landry, was working for the enemy, but even the most rabid fans of the University of Connecticut had to recognize the brilliance of Landry's performance in leading Massachusetts to a 35-14 triumph over UConn at Storrs Saturday.

Greg Lawler, Yale's second string quarterback until Brian Dowling was injured, and sophomore Dave Henley, the Bulldogs' third string signal-caller, shared the laurels in the Ells' Ivy League opening 33-0 victory at Brown with big Cal Hill, who rushed, threw passes and caught passes with equal effectiveness.

In a night game at Bridgeport, Al (Skip) Jutze of unbeaten Central Connecticut spotted the Purple Knights a seven-point lead before unlimbering his arm in the second half and passing Middletown, unbeaten Wesleyan kept its string of undefeated games alive by trampling winless Coast Guard 29-0 in a game that was slowed to a crawl by a seemingly endless string of penalties.

UConn defeated Maine at Orono in another Yankee Conference game next Saturday, and the Huskies can at least look forward to playing against someone other than Greg Landry. The rampaging Redmen eclipsed Jerry Whelchel's total offense record for a UMass quarterback by racking up 241 yards on the ground and through the air last Saturday, boosting his total ground gained to over 3,600 yards while scoring three touchdowns.

It was the third consecutive victory scored by the Redmen over the Huskies with Landry at quarterback.

UConn's record is now 1-2 overall and 1-1 in the Yankee Conference. The top spot now belongs exclusively to Massachusetts.

Young Dave Henley got his chance to direct the Yale team Saturday when Lawler twisted his ankle in the second period. The sophomore from Bloomfield, Tex., completed five of 11 passes for 77 yards while running the Bulldog attack moreover

Hits Tariff Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — New legislation to protect American industry from foreign imports would cost the United States some $3.5 billion in export sales, according to President Johnson's special trade negotiator.

"Never in my recent memory," said William M. Roth, U.S. negotiator at the Kennedy Round tariff cutting talks in Geneva, "is there been such a concerted protectionist drive as we are now seeing in Congress."

"The terrifying thing," he said, "is that if a number of the important bills were passed, this would cause retaliation against our exports, particularly against many of our agricultural products, such as tobacco, rice, grains, citrus fruits, and also our industrial exports, our farm machinery, our business machinery, at the time of an estimated loss of more than $3.5 billion in trade."

Castro Says Che's Spirit Will Not Die

contradictory things" surrounding the story and suggested that Che had been betrayed by a double.

He said he believed the Bolivians killed Guevarra after having him captive and not, as reported, during a five or six-hour battle. He said a battle that long is out of keeping with guerrilla strategy.

Castro ridiculed a Bolivian army report, contradicted in Bolivia by some military officials, that Guevara gasped for breath on his death, "I am Che. I have failed."

The Cuban leader said Che would never have said anything to aid the enemy."

Castro took note of the refusal of Guevara's brother in Argentina to publicly accept the report of his death and added, "We hope they understand we have to take this position."

Three women in Guevara's life, his wife, former schoolteacher Aleida March, and two of his comrades in Castro's army, Maestra mountain campaign—Celia Sanchez, now presidential secretary, and Haydee Santamaria, chairman of the Latin American Organization of Solidarity—were not present.

Mrs. Guevara and her four children have been reported out of Havana for the last few days. Besides their oldest daughter, Aliuska, who has been frequently seen at public events at Castro's side, the Guevaras have two other daughters, Camila and Celia, and a son, Ernesto, believed about 2½ years old. Guevara, who was 39 at death, also had a daughter by a previous marriage.

Late summer's drenching rains made some East Coast residents wonder if the wettest spot in the world still is in Hawaii. It is Mt. Waialeale, on the island of Kauai, has no close competition in the United States. Annual rainfall on the mountain averages 471.68 inches.

Scores Hanoi Display

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high Defense Department official denounced North Vietnam for allegedly placing photographs of captured American servicemen on the open market, for sale to the highest bidder.

"Exhibiting prisoners of war is a violation of the Geneva convention to which North Vietnam subscribes," said Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze. "Yet this is exactly what the Hanoi government does with the parade of prisoners through the streets of Hanoi and its other filmed public displays of our captured servicemen."

Nitze declared the North Vietnamese have allowed "hand picked newsmen" to photograph the prisoners and then arranged for the sale of the film to world news media through other Communist governments such as East Germany. Life magazine is to publish a series of photographs of U.S. prisoners this week it says were obtained from two East German newsmen.

Survivors Tell of Deaths And Rescue on Biscayne Bay

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "It Tom's gone, I want to go too," the young woman said and gave herself up to eight-foot waves that had washed her husband from the sinking boat they had been clinging to, survivors said.

She removed her life jacket, "the survivors said, then she slipped away.

Wainwright Vickers, 39, and his wife Barbara, 40, told of the deaths of their companions and their own rescue after being thrashed for 14 hours by wind-whipped waves on Biscayne Bay.

They said they joined Tom Carter, Miami Central High School principal, and his wife Dolores for the Saturday outing in a borrowed boat.

The foursome was bound for home, Vickers said, when a squall struck about 8 p.m.

The boat's anchor slipped from the bow and snagged on the bottom, he said, and the line fouled in a propeller of the twin-engine craft.

He said the 17-foot-er "snapped around," tearing an engine and part of the transom from the boat.

It began to take water and soon swamped, Vickers told officers, leaving the four occupants clinging to the bow.

Sometime later—Vickers told police he wasn't quite certain when—Carter "just disappeared in the dark."

Mrs. Vickers said that shortly afterward "Dolores said, 'If Tom's gone, I want to go too.' Then she disappeared."

Vickers told officers he donned Mrs. Carter's discarded life jacket and that he and his wife floated through the night clutching the boat, then each other at intervals.

Mrs. Vickers said when a fishing boat spotted them and changed direction, she thought: "It was a man sent by God."

Leroy Pendarvis said when he and his partner, George Apostol, saw the Vickers, they thought they were skindivers.

"When she waved with both arms like that I knew there was something wrong and went straight to them. They were pretty well exhausted. They told me two other people drowned," Pendarvis said.

He said he grabbed the woman while Apostol held Vickers.

"His wife kept saying, 'Save him,' " and he kept saying, 'Save her,' " Pendarvis said. "One of them had to be first, so I began pulling the woman in. It took 10 minutes to lift her in the boat," the fisherman said.

"Mr. Vickers said, 'Don't let me go. Don't let me go.' We had no idea of letting them go."

Carter, 46, was a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Officials said he was an experienced seaman and that the boat was one loaned him by a marina where he taught weekly navigation classes.

His wife was 26 and a teacher at a Miami high school. They had been married one year.

Dutch Urge Free Discussion At Catholic Laymen's Parley

By GERALD MILLER

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Dutch delegation to the Roman Catholic world laymen's congress asked for a reaffirmation of the assembly's freedom of speech.

The move by the Dutch came a day after a controversial directive from Maurice Cardinal Roy of Quebec to bishops attending the congress to help the laymen avoid doctrinal errors.

The cardinal's aides insisted the main purpose of the directive was to prevent bishops from interfering during the lay debates. But many among the 2,500 delegates to the congress took the Roy directive, as an attempt by the hierarchy to muzzle unorthodox discussion of such issues as birth control.

The Dutch issued a letter to the congress' steering committee and to other delegations.

Referring to the Roy directive, the letter said the Dutch did not think it useful "to lay undue stress on the rather negative means time in treating (with) the possible theological and other insufficiences of the laymen.

"In our interpretation of the intention of Cardinal Roy, nothing has really changed in the structure and the intentions of the congress, which is and was to give responsible laymen from all over the world the opportunity to express themselves freely on the subject of the renewal of the church.

"After having publicly expressed ourselves, we will gladly accept criticism and corrections."

The Dutch asked other delegations to "most urgently" reaffirm the right of the congress' assembly of delegation heads to be the supreme judge of all motions and resolutions submitted by delegates.

The letter stressed that the Dutch would accept resolutions that do not reach the floor of the congress for lack of a majority among the delegation heads should be made public anyway.

The laymen also had another complaint: lack of communication between their meetings and the simultaneous sessions of Pope Paul's synod of bishops.

Informed sources said some seminar groups of the third World Congress of the Lay Apostolate were circulating a memorandum Friday asking for more collaboration between the 2,500-delegate congress and the historic assembly of the 200 synod bishops.

The memorandum was said to ask, among other things, that the bishops sit in on the laymen's seminars, six blocks from the synod meetings.

Lay officials say they are especially disturbed because they were told Pope Paul had planned for the congress and synod to meet at the same time and that this had significance.

So far, they said, they cannot see what this significance is.

Some laymen also are fuming over what they consider an attempt by the hierarchy to muzzle their debates.

A directive by Maurice Cardinal Roy, head of two Vatican lay agencies, told bishops at the congress that they must not intrude in the laymen's debates but should correct any doctrinal errors that might crop up in the discussions. His aides say the more is intended to give a freer rein to the discussions.

The laymen and the synod exchanged what clerical observers considered merely routine greetings this week.

The heads of the laymen's delegations will visit the synod meeting hall later, but all that is planned is an exchange of courtesies.

Meanwhile, the laymen continue to thrash out such controversial problems as birth control

Wall Falls, 5 Firemen Die in Trap

The civilian and one firemen remained in a hospital today, but their conditions were not serious.

Joseph Licata, a volunteer fireman from Palisades Park, said, "The trapped firemen were just about to enter the building. Then, all of a sudden, the whole place just went 'whoosh' and the flames traveled right down the building from front to back, blowing out the roof and a side wall."

The sole survivor of the hose crew, Henry Dengler Jr., 22, said he was at the end of the hose and farthest from the wall.

"We were pumping water through the door to spray the roof from inside," he said. "All of a sudden I saw a big gush of smoke backfire and come out of the building." Dengler said he heard a "huffing noise" and yelled to the others to cut the hose and "get out of there." The next thing he knew, it seemed as if the whole building had collapsed and he was hurled 25 feet.

He helped dig the bodies out of the rubble.

The dead firemen, all from Ridgefield, were Gustave Genschow, 43, a tavern owner and 27-year veteran of the department; Dominick Acquafredda, 31, an employe of Lever Bros. in Edgewater; Harry A. Brown, 26, an employe of the New York Daily News; James Edwards, 35, manager of a trading stamp store, and James Lynch, Ridgefield's building inspector.

Arab Saboteurs Seen Giving Up War Hope

of the Jordan Saturday after snipers began firing near Sheik Hussein Bridge. It was the fiercest battle on the Jordanian border since the war.

The raid on Ma'ots Sayyim was the fifth in two weeks in the Beisan Valley, which runs south from the Sea of Galilee 25 miles to the old Israel-Jordan frontier.

The lush valley is vulnerable to saboteur raids, lying along the only secotr of the border unchanged by the war and the only direct point of entry to Israel from Jordan.

It is close to the infiltration route from Syria, where El Fatah training camps are located and near an Iraqi Palestine command battalion based a few miles the other side of the Jordan.

One israeli has been killed and several wounded in the valley in the past two weeks.

Critics Score Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriation Committee drove toward a $2.85 billion budget cut apparently has satisfied neither Republican critics of the Johnson administration nor Democrats who say the price of a tax increase is a deep spending slash.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., whose Ways and Means Committee shelved President Johnson's tax boost proposal two weeks ago, declined direct comment on the appropriation committee action. But he said he has no plans to reconvene the Ways and Means Committee to consider tax legislation.

Mills has said the House would not pass a tax increase bill without spending cuts between $5 billion and $10 billion—and perhaps not even then.

Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, senior Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, said in an interview he'll attempt on the House floor to win adoption of a $5 billion spending cut.

The Appropriations Committee rewrote an emergency financing bill Monday to direct a $2.85 billion cut in federal spending—about $1.4 billion of it in the current fiscal year.

Bow lost on a party-line vote when he tried in committee for a $5 billion cut all in the current year. But he said "I think we might win on a close vote" when he renews his fight Wednesday during House consideration of the bill.

Original purpose of the bill was to grant once more certain spending authority to government agencies whose appropriations for the fiscal year that began July 1 still haven't been approved by Congress.

Bow said the committee budget cut "is a step in the right direction but it still doesn't do enough."

The committee bill would require a 5 per cent payroll cut for federal executive agencies, require them to absorb without extra funds the $625 million pay increase now pending, and cut research spending 10 per cent. Exceptions are made for Vietnam and other urgent spending.

Bow and other Republicans want a much deeper slash in actual expenditures to reduce the prospective budget deficit.

Some Republicans say also they may attempt to extend the reduction in government payroll funds to the employes of Congress and the judiciary.

The Appropriations Committee said the restriction would eliminate about 110,000 government jobs, but there would be few if any firings since turnover is heavy and positions could be left unfilled.

The committee bill restricts the Office of Economic Opportunity, which operates the antipoverty program, to spending under emergency procedures at the rate of $1.4 billion a year. Johnson asked $1.9 billion in appropriations.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., who offered the amendment, said its purpose was to force the submission of a regular authorizing bill for OEO to the House.

The legislation is being fiercely fought over in the Education and Labor committee. Some Democratic strategists have suggested letting it remain there until next year while operating the antipoverty program on a month-to-month basis.

Republicans want to do away with the OEO as a central office and divide the antipoverty program among other existing agencies. With support from some Democrats, they amended the federal pay raise bill last week to exclude OEO employes from the increase.

Rights Death Trial Ready for Jurors

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Lawyers for 18 white men charged with conspiracy in the 1964 slaying of three civil rights workers predict the case will go to the jury Wednesday.

Defense attorney Travis Buckley of Laurel said only a few witnesses remain before rebuttal and closing arguments.

"It could possibly go to the jury late today," Buckley said. "But I doubt it. The jury will probably get the case Wednesday morning."

Buckley said the defense could have finished Monday, but the battery of 12 attorneys decided at a weekend meeting to put additional witnesses on the stand.

There were 57 witnesses called during a seven-hour session Monday. Before the weekend begins, the defense marched 40 witnesses to the stand. Two Negroes told the all-white seven woman and five man jury that Ku Klux Klan Imperial Wizard Sam Holloway Bowers was "a good man."

J.C. Powe and Amie Coleman both gave that description of the Klan leader. Mrs. Coleman added, "and he's a very nice person."

The witnesses fell in one of two categories: alibi or character.

Witnesses gave 13 of the 18 defendants alibis for the night of the slaying in Neshoba County, where the civil rights workers predict the case will go to the jury Wednesday.

Bomb Sinks Hong Kong Police Boat

HONG KONG (AP) — A terrorist limpet bomb sank a Hong Kong police launch today as Red newspapers threatened an increased violence in retaliation for raids by British colonial authorities on Communist schools.

Police said the bomb was planted below the launch's water line before dawn by saboteurs who may have swum underwater or approached silently in a sampan. The launch was at its mooring on an island 10 miles from Hong Kong Island.

The device, probably many sticks of gelignite, blew a hole in the craft's hull but four constables on board were not injured, police said.

The Communist newspapers Wen Wei Pao and Ta Kung Pao said in nearly identical 500-page stories that "British fascist authorities suppressing our compatriot students will get the iron fist from our combat vanguards."

Wen Wei Pao warned that Communists would purge schools and liquidate school authorities who cooperate with the government's crackdown on Red students.

Communist terrorists have planted scores of real and false bombs around Hong Kong in the past five days in a renewal of their campaign to weaken British rule in the colony on Red

USSR Aide's Arrival Raises Hopes at UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The arrival at the U.N. General Assembly of Vasily V. Kuznetsov, a Soviet deputy foreign minister and key negotiator, raised hopes today that the Russians may be ready to join in seeking peace in the Middle East.

One high-level Communist delegate said that Kuznetsov's arrival Monday was "a good sign" for possible solution of the Arab-Israeli stalemate. Kuznetsov was sent to New York in 1962 to negotiate with the United States over the Cuban missile crisis.

Jordan, one of the chief Arab participants in discussions on the Middle East, has sent its new foreign minister, Abdul Monem Rifai to New York to take part in the talks.

The United States is keeping a tight lid, however, on its role in the talks on the Middle East.

U.S. sources confirmed that Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg was meeting with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad, but they said nothing would be made public on the substance of the talks. An Egyptian source said they met Monday for 90 minutes.

Riad had met at least once before with Goldberg and conferred for 90 minutes with Secretary of State Dean Rusk in the opening days of the General Assembly.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban left New York Sunday for Jerusalem, but he was expected to return in a week or 10 days.

Attempts have been going on for more than three weeks to work out a meaningful resolution on the Middle East deadlock for the Security Council.

One proposal reported to have considerable support is for the council to list general principles for a settlement and authorize Secretary-General U Thant to name a special representative to work out details between the opposing sides.

The United States has been seeking Moscow's support for renewal of a combined attempt to win the endorsement of the Arab world for a resolution that

21 Leathernecks Die During New Strategy

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today announces a new group of operation aimed at taking pressure off South Vietnam's northernmost provinces. The command said 21 Marines and 44 Communists had been killed in the first week of the operation and 167 Marines wounded.

In the air war, U.S. Navy planes returned to Haiphong for repeat raids on a missile-helicopter assembly base, a major highway bridge and three SAM antiaircraft missile sites.

Possibly 5,000 men were thrown into the new ground operation—Medina—28 miles south of the demilitarized demilitarized zone. They included several battalions from the 1st Marine Regiment, a special battalion landing team from the 7th Fleet's Ready Amphibious Force and South Vietnamese troops.

The operation began Oct. 11 but was not announced until today for security reasons. Marine intelligence reports indicate there are 17 Communist battalions operating around the DMZ and in Quang Tri Province, perhaps more than 7,000 enemy troops.

Operation Medina is under way in the dense, jungled mountains near the southern boundary of Quang Tri Province, nine miles south of the provincial capital of Quang Tri.

U.S. spokesman said heavy monsoon rains were making the operation difficult. The heaviest fighting so far occurred last Thursday when 300 Marines ran up against about 400 North Vietnamese troops in a battle that raged for 4½ hours.

Backed by artillery and helicopter gunships, the Marines reported killing 30 of the enemy, while eight Marines were killed and 46 wounded.

Since then, there have been numerous scattered contacts between small units.

U.S. Navy bombers streaked in from carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin Monday to attack a huge military compound three miles south of the center of Haiphong for the first time in eight days and the northern approach to the Kien An highway bridge 1.7 miles from the heart of the city. The military compound contains about 70 army barracks and other buildings where Russian-built trucks and helicopters arriving by sea are assembled.

Elsewhere across South Vietnam, only scattered skirmishes were reported with 26 of the enemy reported killed by U.S. troops.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported Communist gunners killed one civilian and wounded 23 in two separate mortar attacks. One of the attacks was on a village between the demilitarized zone and the Marine base at Dong Ha.

U.S. pilots flew 108 strike missions over North Vietnam Monday. The focus of attention was on Haiphong, where Navy officers claim thousands of tons of war supplies have been backed up as a result of the campaign nearly two months to isolate the port city.

Navy A4 Skyhawk and F4 Phantom pilots reported numerous secondary explosions, fires and a plume of smoke rising 2,000 feet in the raid on the big military compound, hit for the

Trilogy on the War in Vietnam

Support

ABOARD SS INDEPENDENCE (AP) — A fight over a resolution endorsing President Johnson's Vietnam policy shaped up today as the floating National Governors Conference steamed toward the Virgin Islands.

Utah Democrat Calvin L. Rampton said he would offer his 44 colleagues a motion backing Johnson's pursuit of the war. He received immediate support from the conference chairman, Gov. William L. Guy, D-N.D., who said: "I favor a resolution in support of the commander in chief."

But the plan ran into resistance from Michigan Gov. George Romney, a recent critic of the administration's war policy and a potential Republican candidate for the 1968 presidential nomination.

Regardless of the resolution's merits, Romney said in an interview, "whenever there's an effort to use this conference for

Scores of persons have been arrested in antiwar and antidraft demonstrations staged by thousands in cities from coast to coast. Hundreds burned what they said were their draft cards.

Spokesmen at a demonstration in New York said their action was part of a nationwide mobilization of those resisting the draft. Protests took place in 30 cities across the country.

Some 5,000 antidraft demonstrators jammed onto the University of California's Berkeley campus Monday night in defiance of a court injunction barring any campus antiwar teach-in.

No action was taken against the protestors. A university spokesman said, "It is not in the best interest of public safety to move in with a wedge of police."

The protest came after police broke up a disorderly blockade of the Oakland Army Induction Center Monday with 125 arrests

Puzzlement

MOSCOW (AP) —Diplomats here profess perplexed about the Soviet Union's current position on how the war in Vietnam might be brought to an end.

The position seems no longer simply a matter of demanding a halt to U.S. air raids on North Vietnam, withdrawal of American forces from the South and recognition of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front—the NLF—as the only legitimate representative of the southern people.

Possibly nothing much has changed. But the whole history of Communist leaders' careful choice of words to reflect unstated policies argues against this.

One possibility is that the Soviet Union is working behind scenes to try to soften positions of the participants in the war, especially those of Washington and Hanoi, so that peace talks might be arranged.

Perhaps the most intriguing possibility is that the Soviet Un-

Teller, 21, Jailed for Embezzling

HARTFORD (AP) — A young Plantsville man who found himself in a morass of complicated bookkeeping while trying to make up for money he embezzled from a bank, has been sent to jail for 30 days.

A two-year term—suspended after 30 days — was imposed Monday on 21-year-old David M. Thayer, onetime teller at the Southington Bank and Trust.

Thayer was a promising enough employe to win two promotions during the period when he was juggling the books, U.S. District Judge T. Emmet Clarie noted.

Buying Island Studied

HARTFORD (AP) — "I think it's worth studying from all standpoints," said State Sen. John P. Janovic, D-New London, of the possibility of Connecticut's buying Fishers Island.

New York has not indicated it would be receptive to a purchase offer, Janovic conceded Monday at the first meeting of a special legislative committee created to explore the possibility of acquiring the island.

Drunk Case Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — With two justices dissenting, the Supreme Court refused Monday to hear the case of a Connecticut man convicted of drunkenness.

"I would think that a person, plucked from the streets and put in a cell, is entitled—as a right—to let his family know that he is in jail and to call for assistance," said Justice Abe Fortas, one of the dissenters.

The case involved Mark F. Heller of Cheshire, Conn., who was arrested at 1:50 one morning in 1964 and held until 7:05 a.m. before being allowed to call his lawyer.

The fear of losing face, he told the Yale Political Union, is "built into the males of our species" but "will be the death of all humanity."

Major Fire Controlled, Others Rage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fire fighters declared victory over the major Southern California brush fire Monday, but two other outbreaks were reported growing with ominous speed.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles County Fire Department said the major fire was brought under control late Monday. It blackened 25,000 acres and threatened the town of Thousand Oaks in adjacent Ventura County.

"We've got everything pretty well under control here," said the spokesman, Capt. Joseph Lemieux. "But we're having difficulty even trying to find out what's going on in those other areas."

Both new fires were in Ventura County, about 25 miles apart. One was reported along a ridge north of the town of Simi, racing up and down the ridge at the dictate of erratic winds.

The Los Angeles County Fire Department estimated 43 homes were destroyed in Los Angeles County and 17 in Ventura County.

The Simi fire destroyed six homes and came within a mile of the Simi Valley Community Hospital. Authorities evacuated an estimated 50 homes, but the hospital was not considered in danger.

The fire was reported to have destroyed 2,000 acres on the ridge above Simi late Monday.

The second Ventura County fire out of control Monday was east of Santa Paula, along the boundary of Los Padres National Forest.

Bill Walker of the U.S. Forest Service said the fire was holding steady during the night, but said he feared winds might push it out of its 2,000-acre area.

Men Fire at Truck On State Turnpike

WESTPORT (AP)—The bullet-punctuated wildcat strike of independent steel-haulers apparently was responsible for the firing of three shots at a truck on the Connecticut Turnpike early today.

The driver told police that a late-model convertible with three men in it pulled alongside his eastbound truck and one man fired at the truck three times.

The driver, who was not identified, escaped injury. He pulled off the turnpike at Bridgeport to report the incident.

The truck was bound from Sparrow Point, Md. to Waterbury.

Recent shootings apparently related to the strike occurred in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana.

Police said rocks were hurled at five trucks on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near Somerset, and another driver said he was shot at. Shots also were fired at a truck near Westport, Conn., and a parked truck near West Stockbridge, Mass. Stones were thrown at rigs near Washington, Pa., and Jamestown, Pa. But nobody was hurt.

It was the first report of violence from Connecticut and Massachusetts.

A bridge leading from the Youngstown Sheet & Tube plant near Youngstown, Ohio, was kept under armed guard all night after someone phoned a warning that it would be blown up. The windshields of 11 trucks were smashed Monday after they pulled out of the plant.

Howard Miller, chairman of the 68-company National Steel Carriers Association, said his group probably would accept a revised strike settlement plant worked out by governors' representatives of seven states.

The plan provides a charge of $12.70 an hour for holding trucks at steel mills for loading or unloading after four hours of free waiting time. Drivers would get at least $10 an hour and some would get more. The balance would go to the trucking companies.

A spokesman for the 10,000 to 20,000 strikers said striking independent haulers probably would accept the same amount of money, but with only three hours free wait time.

"With three hours and the same money, the trucks would be back on the road by next week," he said. "I'll bet on it."

But one striker expressed bitterness over the revision, saying, "Every time we go back into the conference room we get screwed down."

Last week the association rejected an earlier plan approved by the strikers in seven states.

"We are of the opinion that our previous objections have
