Seek Changes In Zone Law

Commission to Discuss Amendments at the Meeting on Sept. 13.

An amendment to the zoning regulations will be discussed at a public hearing of the Zoning Commission which has been scheduled for Friday, September 13 at 8 p.m. in the municipal building.

The Commission has filed the following intention of changes:

"Section IV of the Zoning Regulations to be amended as follows:

"Provided, however, that the Building Inspector may issue a temporary permit for the erection of a larger sign advertising the sale of lots in a land development containing not less than five lots, which permit shall specify the size of said sign; the time for which the sign may be maintained and the distance from the street line at which said sign shall be erected."

A second item of business is a proposed change to a zone from AA zone of six lots on the south side of Spring street running from Comstock road east. C. Elmore Watkins recently appeared before the Zoning Board of Appeals seeking the right to erect a house at this point on an undersized lot, and was referred to the Zoning Commission after protest was made.

The proposed amendment is said to be made necessary because the present rules forbid large signs without special approval of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Enlistments Lag For State Guard

The number of Manchester men who have signed up to become members of a Manchester State Guard unit has now reached 17. This does not include local men who have already enrolled through membership in the Governor's Foot Guard. Marcel Donze, who is directing the recruiting experts that the passage of the Conscription Bill will result in large enlistments of former World War veterans when the National Guard is called upon for further training.

The organization of the State Guard and the naming of the commanding officers from among members of the Horse Guard and the Foot Guard is not being taken too kindly by some of the former World War Veterans. They feel that men now heading the State Guard could not qualify in a real army

Plan on Drafting Plants Seen Turn Further to Left

House Rules Committee Discusses Procedure For Debate on Bill Calling for Registration of Men 21 to 44 For Army Training.

Washington, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Representative Cox (D., Ga.), contended today that sponsors of that section of the pending draft bill worth training bill which would empower the government to take over plants needed for defense were "taking advantage of a state of excitement to turn the government further to the left." Cox made the statement as the House Rules Committee, of which he is a member, discussed procedure for debate next week on the House bill calling for registration of men from 21 to 44, inclusive, and making them liable for a year's military training.

At the morning session, the committee heard proponents of the legislation argue its merits but postponed until later in the day a decision on whether to grant legislative right-of-way for its consideration on the House floor.

To Meet Again Tuesday

The House Military Committee approved the measure yesterday

Weight of Wife Found No Grounds for Divorce

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—(AP)—"You may not like it if your wife gets fat, but her weight is no grounds for divorce.

Superior Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus told Julius Boell, bartender, as much as granted Lucille Boell an interlocutory decree for desertion. Boell testified he left home and sued for divorce because his wife's weight increased in 14 years from 145 to 225 pounds.

The court noted that Boell "has the reputation of being an excellent amateur cook and he undoubtedly contributed to her obesity by supplying her with a super-abundance of his excellent cookery."

State's Aliens Resist Moves To Exile Them

Greater 'Resistance' Displayed Than Formerly Against Federal Deportation Actions.

Hartford, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Connecticut aliens display greater "resistance" than formerly against Federal attempts to deport them, District Director L. L. Martinpau of the Immigration and Naturalization Bureau at Hartford reports in an annual statement to his superiors at the New England headquarters in Boston.

"Last year and the preceding year, we had occasion to advise that more resistance was brought to bear in cases in which deportation was involved," the director reported in the summary for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940.

On the other hand, however, in many instances counsel are retained and substantial fees collected. No, evidence has come to our attention to date that during the past year alien deportees had been unduly exploited by lawyers practicing in Connecticut.

Hopes For Better Quarters

The director of the Connecticut district expressed hope that more appropriate detention quarters will be provided here for aliens, especially women aliens, held pending the outcome of deportation cases.

He said women arrested in such cases "are accorded the utmost courtesy consistent with the nature of the proceedings" and that no child of tender years has been placed in the county or city jail

Bandits Grab $25,000 Cash

Get Payroll of Trenton, N. J., Plant in Daring Daylight Holdup.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Bandits in a daring daylight holdup at the Crescent Insulated Wire and Cable Company plant made off with bags of cash which police estimated contained about $25,000.

The money had been delivered by an armored car only a few minutes before the robbers stalked into the plant, which is in the Chambersburg section in the eastern end of the city.

The Trenton Detective Bureau reported three bandits entered the company office on Olden avenue, intimidated Miss Viola Bitner, a telephone operator with revolvers, and grabbed the cash from Charles Pearce, who was taking the money into the cashier's office to be made up into the plant payroll.

Getaway Auto Stolen

The getaway auto while reported stolen in Trenton last Sunday, was found abandoned less than an hour later about 10 blocks away from the plant near the main Philadelphia-New York highway.

The car carried plates stolen from an auto owned by a Lambertville resident, police said.

Dropping Racing Business

Chicago, Aug. 30—(AP)—U. S. District Attorney William L. Campbell announced today that he had been assured that M. Lamnenberg, serving a three year prison sentence for evading $1,217,296 in income taxes, was abandoning his lucrative business in "run down sheets," the cards used by bandbooks to record information about race horses. Campbell said Joseph First, a Philadelphia lawyer, and Martin M. Yveter, Chicago, auditor of The Cecelia Corp., Annenberg holding company, had informed him that the Annenberg interests would be out of the business by tomorrow.

Declines to Answer Willkie

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 30—(AP)—President Roosevelt charged today that efforts were being made to involve him in a political controversy over a provision of the conscription bill authorizing the government to take over private industrial plants. He declined at a press conference to answer Wendell L. Willkie's demand that he state his position on the provision, asserting that an attempt was being made to involve him in a political discussion.

Indicted For Conspiracy

New York, Aug. 30—(AP)—George P. Skouras, part owner of the largest chain of independent motion picture theaters in the country, was indicted today by a Federal grand jury for conspiring to bribe former U. S. Circuit Court Judge Martin T. Manton, now in prison. The indictment accused Skouras and others of leasing Manton $30,000 in return for which the jurist allegedly approved the sale of assets of Fox Theaters Corporation by the receiver to the Skouras chain. Indicted with Skouras were Harry B. Nevins, The Skouras Theaters Corporation and The Ritma Corporation.

Draft to Fall Heavily Where Fewest Serve

Credit Will Be Given Each State for Men Already in Any Unit Of U. S. Armed Forces.

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—The first draft of 400,000 men, if the selective service bill becomes law, will fall most heavily on communities which have supplied the smallest number of voluntary enlistments, War Department officials said today.

When state quotas are prepared in Washington, credit will be given each state for the men it already has in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or National Guard, officials said, and within each state the credit will be extended to cities and counties.

For instance, a state might have a quota of 27,000 for the overall strength of all the armed services. If its residents already serving numbered 15,000, then the state's draft quota would be 12,000.

Southeast, Southwest Lead

In the first six months this year, voluntary enlistments have been heaviest generally in southeastern and southwestern states, lowest in middle western states.

The quotas would be determined on the basis of Class One registrants (those subject to conscription after all exemptions have been allowed for dependents, physical disability, conscientious objections and employment in key industry.

If the bill as finally enacted retains the Senate provision that all men 21 to 30, inclusive, be required to register, the Army expects to get 4,000,000 class one registrants out of approximately 12,000,000 men in that age group.

About One in Ten Ratio

Present plans call for a first draft of 400,000, or about one out of ten of the Class One registrants. To arrive at quotas, the draft board first would determine the "overall strength" of the armed forces, including this 400,000.

If the Army is expected to reach 300,000 or more by the time the conscription bill becomes law, The National Guard will be mobilized with about 220,000, the Navy has slightly more than 170,000, the Marine Corps about 30,000.

On that basis, the overall strength would be approximately 1,120,000 after the 400,000 draf-

Veterans Urge Army Training

Air Corps Officer Declares Service Now Is 'Second to None.'

Los Angeles, Aug. 30—(AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars are urging compulsory peace time military training, increased defense appropriations and "legislation to tax the profits out of war."

Prior to adopting the resolution the V.F.W. national convention heard Brig. Gen. Frank D. Lackland of the United States Army Air Corps declare that in the air service "man for man and plane for plane, we are second to none.

"Many people appear to have the impression that Germany has some knowledge about aircraft that we do not possess," he continued.

'That's a lot of baloney'

American Plane Superior

"The United States plane is superior to any they have in England or Germany. The United States has the best pilots in the world.

"No other nation can hold a candle to America in the matter of training pilots. Before the national defense expansion started we were training 2,500 pilots a year. Now it will go up to more than 10,000 a year."

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, national administrator of veterans affairs, appealed to the veterans for "a solid front in support of President Roosevelt and the Congress in their program of national defense and selective military training."

Urges Universal Draft

The V.F.W. resolution calls not only for peace time military training but adoption of a universal draft system for use in case of war.

It urges "liberalized authorizations and increased appropriations of sufficient magnitude to with-

British Repel Waves Of Nazis at London

Fighters and Anti-Aircraft Defenses Turn Back German Planes Second Time Today.

Bulletin!

London, Aug. 30.—(AP)—German raiders swept in from the coast this afternoon for a third attempt to raid London in the hours after twice unsuccessfully trying to penetrate this capital's defenses. Raiders also were reported over northeast and southeast England. The sound of gunfire and the roar of motors believed to be German could be heard in the London area. Bombs were dropped in the London area and several dogfights developed among planes flying at a great height.

Older Idle Workers Get Breaks on Defense Jobs

Baltimore, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Industry's "forgotten man"—the older, jobless worker—is being remembered as the defense department served up by national defense production.

Where age—even 40 or 45 years—was once a barrier, the older man's skill and experience are now an "open sesame" to jobs in rapidly burgeoning heavy industries and "war" industries.

Business is now asking for men from 25 to 60, or even 62, years old in certain skilled trades," said David L. B. Finger, Maryland State Employment Service director.

Last January only 15 per cent of persons placed in private industry in Baltimore were 45 and over. Last month it was 30 per cent. "This upward trend—which we can expect will continue—obtains not only here but in most industrial centers."

Last April, 28 per cent of the service's applicants were over 45. July's 20 per cent placement shows the older man "is approaching an even break with other age groups in getting a job."

'White Collar' Groups Outside

Still on the outside, however, are the "white-collar" and semi-skilled workers, from clerks and bookkeepers to former business executives whose age is a handicap.

But, Finger said, "even they will benefit if production and employment climb higher. Defense needs are a stimulus generating a whole cycle of more goods and more jobs all down the line. The white-collar man is the first to go, and last to come back."

Shortages in such lines as machinists, shipfitters, boilermakers have catapulted the employment call. Growing demands for such clerical workers as male stenographers indicate extension of the older, jobless man's chance for work, Finger said.

Agrees to Cede Area Under Axis Pressure; Defense Aid Pledged

Nazi Troops to Come Speedily to Help Defend Troubled Russian Frontier; Threat of Soviet Invasion Seen Forcing Capitulation To Four-Power Conference at Vienna.

Bucharest, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Rumania announced today she had accepted an Axis ultimatum in negotiations for a cession of part of Transylvania to Hungary, and reliable reports said she had received in return a promise that German troops would come speedily to help defend her troubled Russian frontier. While the government's communique did not say outright she had agreed to cede part of Transylvania, it did declare that "as a result of the ultimate demand of Germany and Italy, Rumania has decided to accept arbitration on the Transylvania question."

It was reliably reported here that "arbitration" would involve a loss of more than half of the 35,000 square mile province with its 3,500,000 people.

Threat Forces Capitulation

Threat of an immediate Soviet invasion as a consequence of a Rumanian attack backed by the Axis forced the early morning capitulation to the four-power conference at Vienna where Rumania reportedly was told German motorized columns and Air Force were ready to move at a moment's notice if the demand for a part of Transylvania was ignored.

But as part of a secret agreement made at Vienna, it was reported reliably, German troops will be sent immediately to guard Rumania's new frontier with Soviet Russia.

German Chemists Analyze 'War Paint' on Planes

Berlin, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Something "resembling rough black soot," which is smeared on some British planes and makes them difficult to see at night is giving German chemists something to analyze, informed sources said today.

This new "war paint" absorbs the rays of German searchlights so that on clear nights these British planes paying nocturnal visits to Germany are hard to detect, it was said.

The planes are shown up against clouds however, and German military authorities say the problem therefore is not so big as might be thought.

Soviet Troops In Maneuvers; Reply Awaited

Russians Demand 'Early And Satisfactory' Answer to Two Protests Sent to Rumanians.

Bulletin!

Moscow, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Russian Navy has begun maneuvers, with submarine flotillas scrutinizing theoretical enemy bases so as to permit the surface fleets to take the open sea for mock battle, Rear Admiral, the Navy's organ, announced today. The locale was not disclosed.

Moscow, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Soviet Russian Army began maneuvers today in a region described as the western special military district" as Moscow awaited a demanded "early and satisfactory" reply to two protests to Rumania.

The Red Army troops trained in offensive tactics under observation by Marshal Semen Timoshenko, commissar of defense. (There was no indication that the "western" district was near the troubled Rumanian border.)

Under theoretical enemy fire, the Russian forces marched 30 miles and crossed a river with artillery laid a smoke screen, aviation provided protection and engineers built bridges in the realistic western operations.

Italians Renew Malta Bombing

Native Italian Somaliland Troops Inflict Losses on British.

Rome, Aug. 30—(AP)—Renewed air bombardment of the British Mediterranean island naval base of Malta and bombing of British troop concentrations in Kenya colony were reported today by the Italian high command.

A band of native Italian Somaliland troops were reported to have inflicted serious losses on British forces in a sudden attack toward Bunar.

The daily high command communique said:

"The naval base of Mikabba in Malta was subjected to accurate bombing action by our air formation.

"Enemy pursuit planes which were in flight attempted to escape the action, not wishing to engage in combat with our escorting fighter planes. Our chasers, however, succeeded in damaging three enemy planes.

Barracks Bombed.

"In North Africa military warehouses and barracks and a railroad platform at Mersa Matruh were bombed repeatedly and intensely in successive waves by our formation. Several hundred tons were dropped on their objectives with accurate fire.

"In East Africa, troop concentrations and motorized columns were bombed by our planes at Arbo Elihsal and near Garissa in Kenya. The flying field at Buna also was bombed with one plane destroyed on the ground and two others damaged.

"Although some planes which took part in the above operations were hit all returned to their Missionaries in Sudan Die Under Deliberate Fire of Italian Fliers.

Cairo, Aug. 30— (AP) —The governor general of the Sudan announced today that two American missionaries were killed and two wounded by "deliberate" Italian machine-gunning of an isolated missionary post in the Sudan.

The governor's report said that two Italian planes attacked Doro, an isolated station of the Sudan interior mission, in upper Nile province about 55 miles southwest of Kurkuk, Aug. 23.

At least 30 bombs were dropped and then the Italian fliers strafed their machine-guns, the report said.

Germany and Italy, in Chosen Role of 'Creators of New Europe,' Make Long-Haggling Balkan Neighbors Settle Dispute Under Threat of Force, at Vienna Session Today.

Vienna, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Rumania, under the whiplash of Germany and Italy, surrendered the greater part of Transylvania to Hungary today. Rumania made clear she was capitulating to what she regarded as the Axis' ultimatum that she cede most of her World-war-won province to Hungary. Thus Germany and Italy, in their chosen role of "creators of the new Europe," overnight made the long-haggling Balkan neighbors settle their dispute under a threat of force and, in the Nazi view, ended the last territorial conflict in southeast Europe.

In return, Rumania received a German-Italian guarantee of her backed-up frontier, according to a DNB, official German news agency, announcement in Berlin.

Besides her submission to Hungary, Rumania recently ceded two other sizeable areas of her territory go—Bessarabia to Soviet Russia and the southern Dobrujia to Bulgaria.

General Guarantee

The Axis guarantee, it was said in Berlin, is meant for a general guarantee of Rumania's shrivelled borders—not only her frontier with Russia but also with Hungary and Bulgaria to whom any elements in those countries get the idea they can help themselves to more.

In Berlin authoritative sources said they had no information on

French Plan To Till Land

Embark on Sweeping Reclamation Program Of Arable Areas.

Vichy, France, Aug. 30—(AP)—The French government embarked on a sweeping land reclamation program today by ordering prefects of all departments to place under cultivation immediately all arable property which has been abandoned more than two years.

A decree published in the Official Journal stipulated property owners who had abandoned the land would be given one month in which to return to cultivate their farms before the prefects would appoint new tenants.

All Frenchmen "having sufficient means and technical knowledge" can be accorded nine-year tenants right over such land, with priority going to farmers living nearest the property and to farmers having the most children.

No Rent for Three Years

The prefect-appointed tenants will pay no rent to the owners of the property the first three years and thereafter will pay only half the normal rent.

Driver Blamed In Man's Death

Alexander Obremski of This Town Victim of A Fatal Accident.

Edward J. Vyakocil, of Hartford, is found criminally responsible for the death of Alexander Obremski, 26, of 38 North street, in an automobile accident August 16 in East Hartford, in a report filed today in Hartford County Superior Court by Coroner Frank E. Healy.

Obremski died in East Hartford hospital shortly after a car in which he was a passenger and driven by the accused crashed through a highway fence in East Hartford.

After the accident, Vyakocil disappeared, and at first it was thought the dead man was the sole occupant of the machine at the time of the mishap. Investigating by police brought to light the fact that two other men were in the car, one of whom, Vyakocil, was driving.

fixed by the government. In turn, the farmer will receive a 500-franc (nominally between $15 and $21) indemnity from the state.

Formation fo crews of apprentices for training on state experimental farms also was provided for in the decree.

May Take French Prisoners to Germany

Les Verriere, French-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 30—(AP)—Informed sources declared today that Germany Army of Occupation is considering taking all French war prisoners from the occupied zone to Germany because of a growing conviction the war will continue at least through the winter.

More than 1,000,000 prisoners are involved, it was said.

Fear Sabotage

The Germans would free these men in occupied territory but for the fear of sabotage and disorders, it was said, and the Vichy government is unequipped to care for them in the French zone not under occupation.

Furthermore, these sources said, some supplies earmarked for German occupying forces and troops preparing for the Battle of Britain are being used for war prisoners because of the inability of French authorities to feed them properly.

See Nazis Suspending Mail Service

Grenoble, France Aug. 30—(AP)—Return to their senders of 60,000,000 letters piled up in three weeks by severance of mail service between German-occupied France and the unoccupied zone was interpreted here as indicating the Germans plan to suspend mail service indefinitely.

The letters were piled up on the Vichy government's side of the line separating the occupied and unoccupied zones.

The newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois said the suspension order was "understandable" since the Germans are determined to prevent any leakage of military secrets from the occupied zone to the unoccupied region, whence they might reach Great Britain.

Child Drowned In North End

Boy's Cap Found Near Dam Leads Police to Body in the Pond.

Five-and-one-half-year-old Richard Thorburn, Jr., son of Mrs. and Mrs. Richard Thorburn of 31 Mather street was drowned in the Loyall and Foulds pond on Parker street yesterday afternoon, a tragedy not discovered until hours after police had begun to comb the area near his home, seeking him.

According to the police report, the child was last seen about 2 p. m. yesterday, and at that time he was playing with other children. After a while he disappeared, and when he did not come home about 4 p. m. his mother became alarmed.

Neighbors Start Hunt

Neighbors started a search, but by 6 o'clock when no trace of him had been found, policemen were asked to help. Sergeant Michael Fitzgerald and Patrolman Herman Muske started to go through the woods and fields in the vicinity, but this search was fruitless. Then a searcher found the missing boy's cap near the pond. Grappling hooks were brought to the scene, and very shortly the body was located in about seven feet of water near the pond dam. It is thought the boy may have tried to get out on the dam and fell in. During the search the entire neighborhood joined.

Accidental Drowning

Medical examiner Dr. D.C.Y. Moore viewed the body and seemed death accidental by drowning. The body was taken to the Thomas G. Dougan funeral home. Richard leaves, besides his parents, two younger sisters.

The funeral will be held in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Public Clock Works Again

Trust Company Installs Complete New Apparatus in Timepiece.

Manchester's only public clock, the one that is maintained by the Manchester Trust Company at Main and St. James streets, has been put in as near perfect order as it is possible for an electric clock to be and is now in operation. The Trust Company had spent considerable money on repairs to the clock and after learning there was real demand that it be continued in operation decided to install complete new works.

The Telechron Company has placed four new motors within the clock and a complete new lighting system has been installed. Time should be accurately told by the clock from now on, Trust company officials say.

Soviet Troops In Maneuvers; Reply Awaited

published reports on the Rumanian-Russian border situation and the German-Italian arbitration at Vienna without editorial comment.

Russia's two protests to Bucharest, charged Rumania, troops with "provocative actions" on the Russian-Rumanian frontier and warned of possible "grave" consequences of any further incidents.

Tass, official Soviet news agency, disclosed the protests this morning. Rumania stated in a note of Aug. 19 that "firing upon Soviet frontier troops by Rumanian troops could not be excluded" and protested in a second note yesterday against "new hostile actions" by Rumanian frontier troops and against "a number of cases of violation of the Soviet frontier by Rumanian military aircraft."

Return Fire

In some cases, Soviet frontier guards "were compelled to return the fire," Tass said. The Russian protest of yesterday stated, "the Soviet side as yet had had no casualties, but should casualties occur matters would take a graver turn."

Certain Rumanian Army units and supply depots were withdrawn from the frontier Wednesday, the same day a mixed Rumanian-Russian commission began investigation of a week-end frontier clash reported in the Bessarabia case caused the death of hundreds of soldiers near Ademceta in Bucovina.

(On Tuesday, Rumanian government officials reported, a Russian plane making a scouting flight over Rumania was shot down by Rumanians.)

Blames Government

The Soviet government placed upon the Rumanian government "the entire responsibility for possible consequences of the above-mentioned actions of Rumanian troops and military aircraft," Tass said.

Rumania replied to the first protest on Aug. 26th, Tass said, contesting the Soviet charges and declaring Rumanian frontier detachments had been fired upon, and that Soviet aircraft had crossed the Rumanian frontier.

Russia's answer, yesterday's protest, said the Rumanian charges would be investigated, but reiterated that "the Soviet government needs an early and satisfactory answer" to its own charges and stated that despite Rumanian assurances steps were being taken to avoid incidents, "repetitions of the Soviet frontier by Rumanian troops continue up to the present day."

The notes were exchanged through Soviet Deputy for Foreign Affairs Dekanozoff and Rumanian Minister Grigore Gafencu.

Willkie Seeks Roosevelt's Views on Plant Seizure

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 30—(AP)—Calling on President Roosevelt to state his own views, Wendell L. Willkie has denounced as "revolutionary" a section of the Senate-approved conscription bill permitting the government to take over certain plants needed for defense.

"It may be that the American people want to socialize and nationalize our system of free enterprise," the Republican presidential nominee told reporters yesterday. "If they do, that is all right, but that is one of the fundamental issues of the campaign and I want to debate it."

Criticizes Amendment

Willkie made this comment as he issued a 1,100-word statement criticizing the Overton-Russell amendment to the conscription measure. He said the amendment would let the government operate a plant whenever the secretary of war or Navy could not reach an agreement with the owner.

Declaring this authority would set up a "potential dictatorship," Willkie's statement continued:

"No such sweeping powers were ever heretofore granted to a president of the United States even in time of war. This amendment, if it becomes law, will further impede and disorganize the defense program at a very time when we must speed it up.

Sees Threat To Labor

"It will constitute a threat to the American labor and particularly union labor, for the president of the United States some time ago told a American labor that cannot strike against the government."

After issuing his statement, Willkie listened by radio to the speech of Henry Ford, who is accepting the Democratic vice-presidential nomination.

Asked for comment on the assertion of the former agricultural secretary that the Republican party "is the party of appeasement," Willkie said:

"There can't be anything more wrong than 100 per cent wrong can there?"

Then he added, "Mr. Wallace is a gentleman."

Of "Momentous Importance"

In terming the Overton-Russell amendment to the conscription bill an issue of "momentous importance," Willkie said:

"I put this up to the president now and I hope that he does not answer with any quip about how Wendell Willkie loves property and he loves humanity.

"I say, without any personal criticism of the president, that it has been his good fortune at every stage in his life to possess and enjoy more wealth and more income than I have. This is as true today as it was in the past."

Will Welcome Passage

The majority of Americans, Willkie said, will welcome Senate passage of the conscription bill as "the most democratic way" of creating a defense Army. He said, though, that if he were a House member he would vote against it should the Overton-Russell amendment be retained.

"This is a revolutionary bill," he told reporters.

"There is hardly any business of any kind today that may not be subject to seizure under this provision because practically any product could go into the defense program.

"Conscription of wealth is a catch phrase that converts a cheat, nut horse into a horse chestnut."

Report Local Girl Missing from Bus

Mrs. John McAllister, of 17 Hazel street, today was seeking to locate her daughter, a fifteen year old girl missing, it is reported, since Wednesday when she was supposed to have boarded a bus in New York bound for this town. The girl, Doris Payne, is a daughter of the local woman by a previous marriage and had been residing with relatives in Brooklyn.

According to the information received, the girl was placed aboard a Manchester-bound bus by relatives Wednesday, and has disappeared. Attempts are being made to get in touch with the bus driver to ascertain at what point the girl might have left the vehicle.

Japanese Close River at Canton

Hong Kong, Aug. 30—(AP)—Japanese authorities today closed the Pearl river at Canton to all commercial shipping for unexplained "military reasons."

Japanese headquarters here said Japanese troop movements were underway from Formosa to Canton.

The Japanese have closed the river several times in the past to screen troop movements.

Today's order necessitated postponement of the scheduled departure for Canton of the United States South China Patrol flagship Mindanao and also of a Standard Oil Company tanker.

Plans to Probe Trotsky Death

Mexico to Determine Responsibility for the Assassination.

Mexico City, Aug. 30—(AP)—The full powers of the Mexican government were pledged today to determine responsibility for the assassination of Leon Trotsky, while warning was served on the Mexican Communist party that any involvement in the crime constituted treason to this country.

The pledge and the warning were contained in a statement issued late last night by President Lazaro Cardenas, who reaffirmed Mexico's determination to "maintain the unlimited right of asylum."

Cardenas condemned Trotsky's assassination "with all force," then said:

"If the Mexican Communists have allied with a foreign power, which would represent aggression against the sovereignty of this country, in organizing armed assaults in league with Mexican and foreign elements then these elements have committed a crime of treason against the fatherland."

The Cardenas statement was displayed prominently in the capital's newspapers, most of which had published editorial charges and police reports that Frank Jackson, held for the killing of Trotsky, was an agent of the GPU (Russian secret police) and was aided by Stalinist sympathizers in Mexico.

He attended Yale summer school of forestry in Milford, Pa., in 1907 and was employed in forestry and landscape work in Norfolk and Union, Conn., for several years. Before coming to Stafford in 1916, he served as representative in the General Assembly from the town of Union. On September 4, 1912 he was married to Janet Ledingwell in Sheffield, Mass. In 1922 he entered the employ of the C. H. Moore Company here and for 18 years was in charge of the lumber yard. He was forced to retire last June because of ill health.

Mr. Towne is survived by his wife, Mrs. Janet L. Towne, parents Mr. and Mrs. George Towne of East street, three brothers, Ralph Towne of West Hartford, Edmund B. Towne of Rochester, N. Y., Harold C. Towne of Framingham, Mass.; two sisters, Lulu Lord, They were at Madison, Conn., and having a delightful vacation. When they left Hebron they hardly knew where they would turn up, but said they might visit Clark's Neck and possibly Rhode Island.

School buildings are being overhauled in preparation for the fall opening of public schools of the town, Wednesday, September 4. This will give teachers a chance to arrive here and get their bearings the day after Labor Day, ready for their school duties.

September 10 will be the deadline after which names will not be added to the list "to be made voters." All those who wish to become voters are reminded to hand their names in at time.

Hebron

One of the pleasantest social events of the season was the benefit card party given at the Charles M. Ann mansion Wednesday evening for the Hebron Volunteer Fire Department. This was a total surprise for the fire company, and was planned by the ladies of the Amston lake colony in recognition of the fine work done by the fire company in protecting the homes of the townspeople, and in particular those of the lake.

By early evening the immense drawing room was filled to more than capacity, with 35 tables packed by so closely there was hardly room to pass, and overflowing into adjoining rooms and the upper balcony.

People came from all parts of the town and from nearby towns and cities.

Contract and auction bridge, setback, pinochle and rummy were in order. The prizes were described as gorgeous, and were awarded as follows: Contract, G. Herschel Jones, first, Mr. Allison, second.

Auction, Miss Marion Bock of Colchester, first, and Vorus Nickerson of the lake colony, second; Pinochle, first, Mrs. Raymond Smith, second, Mrs. Charles Schmid; whist, first, Mrs. Mary McMahon, second, Miss D. Smith; Rummy, Mr. Mickle, first, Miss Jeanne Mickle, second; setback, Norton Warner, first, Mrs. Mary O'Donnell, second.

Refreshments of dainty sandwiches, cakes and coffee were served, and a delightful social time was enjoyed over the teacups. Following this cakes and other articles were auctioned off and hilarious bidding ensued.

Complete reports have not as yet been received but it is believed that more than $50 will be realized. The Fire Department will have their monthly meeting next week, and will discuss what use to make of the proceeds. They may decide to add to the fire house kitchen furnishings, buy additional fire hose, or other needed equipment.

Last Sunday a gala demonstration was put on by the fire department at the lake, and complete fire fighting apparatus was on exhibition.

Committees in charge of Wednesday evening's affair are to be commended on the efficient work done by them in planning and carrying out the event. Mrs. Stanton Harris of Amston was chairman of the general committee, with Mrs. Charles P. Miner, wife of the fire chief, acting for Hebron territory. Mrs. Raymond Fayne was in charge of refreshments, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Tanner of Danielson, Mrs. Adolf Sykevicz, and Mrs. William Day; prizes, Mrs. V. F. Nickerson and Mrs. Harold Pimm; reservations, Mrs. Charles C. Sellers, Mrs. V. Ahern and Mrs. George Rowe; special prizes, Mrs. Edward Bangston.

Wednesday, the day appointed for the annual parish picnic of St. Peter's Episcopal church, turned out to be a drizzling, threatening day. Nevertheless it was thought best to go on with picnic arrangements and quite a band of young folks and a goodly number of their elders made the trip to Columbia Lake, where the day's program took place under the shelter of a pavilion. A fine picnic dinner was partaken of, after which the entire party motored to Willimantic and visited the movies.

Weather reports received from certain sections of the town seem almost incredible. During the past week of the cold wave Hope Valley people had a temperature of 20 degrees one morning, with the result that garden vegetables were completely destroyed. This was real winter weather, the like of which has perhaps never been known here in August, unless it was in the historic cold summer of 1816, when there was a frost or snow every month, through the summer. Though New England's Hope Valley always gets it hard in the matter of temperature plunges. The land there is low. Other parts of the town, if the frost is some extent, with thermometer readings down in the 40's, and some gardens damage done.

The Hebron Women's Club celebrated the 15th anniversary of its founding by a dinner Thursday afternoon at the Well Sweep Farm, Andover, and a visit to the Bolton playhouse, to witness the play "The Angel of Hell's Part." The club was originally known as the Hebron Young Women's Club, but as the members have added 15 years to their respective ages, they decided to drop the adjective.

A New Method Laundry truck from Hartford met with an accident on Post Hill recently when it skidded on the wet road, and was rather badly damaged. The driver escaped unhurt and another truck was sent from Hartford, and he proceeded on his way after transferring the load. The damaged car was hauled to a garage for repair.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lyon of New Britain were recent dinner guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Johnson.

Cards have been received by Hebron friends from Miss Elizabeth Grotin, a former teacher in the Hebron and Colchester schools. She is spending a vacation at Ogunquit, Maine. She will return after Labor Day and will spend a little time with Mrs. F. N. Jones before going back to Colchester where she makes her home.

Word has also been received from Miss Irma Lord and Mrs. Lulu Lord. They were at Madison, Conn., and having a delightful vacation. When they left Hebron they hardly knew where they would turn up, but said they might visit Clark's Neck and possibly Rhode Island.

School buildings are being overhauled in preparation for the fall opening of public schools of the town, Wednesday, September 4. This will give teachers a chance to arrive here and get their bearings the day after Labor Day, ready for their school duties.

State Farmers' Income Shows a Definite Rise

Hartford, Aug. 30—Cash income for Connecticut farmers has shown a definite upward trend since 1932 according to figures released by the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C. From an all-time low in 1932, Connecticut farm income has risen from $39,000,000 to $52,237,000 in 1939, an increase of 34 per cent.

This year's income as a whole, cash farm income, including government payments, was 52 per cent larger in 1939 than in 1932, an increase from $4,652,000,000 to $8,540,000,000.

Connecticut farm purchasing power in 1939 was 126 per cent as much as in 1932 and 115 per cent of the 1929 level. Prices of farm products showed substantial increases, as evidenced by the rise in the wholesale price of milk from an average of $2.05 per hundredweight in 1932 to $2.60 in 1939. Other products grown by Connecticut farmers showed similar advances.

Along with gains in farm income, prices, and buying power, real estate values of Connecticut farm land have been maintained in the 1912-14 average level.

An improvement in the farm ownership situation also is evidenced, the number of forced farm sales having declined from 8.9 per thousand for the year ending March 1933 to 3.4 per thousand for the year ending March 1939.

Lack of Vitamins Will Cause Great Suffering

Victims of Battlefields May Be Lucky Victims of War; Biochemist Believes.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 30—(AP)—To some, death will come quickly and perhaps with but a flash of pain. A bullet between the eyes; a direct hit by a bomb; a crumpled airplane whining toward the earth.

But the victims of the battlefields—even the soldiers who die lingeringly—may be the lucky ones, an outstanding biochemist said today.

For vitamins—or rather the lack of them—will doom thousands of the survivors of Europe's war to blindness, stunted growth, respiratory infection, and slow and agonized death, he added.

Thus, ironically, the slacker of this war may have more to fear from living than from a hero's death.

Malnutrition at Heels

The biochemist, Prof. C. Howard Butterfield, of North Carolina State College, has made a survey of the malnutrition which lags at the heels of war. He is convinced that the lack of vitamins will take an improvement toll of survivors of Europe.

So much manpower has been engaged in the present war, he said, that gardening and farming have been neglected, as a source of age of fruits, leafy vegetables, and milk products is certain to result.

Even nations which have large food concentrations in storage will suffer from lack of vitamins, he continued, because vitamin-rich foods are the most perishable, and storage cannot prevent deterioration.

To picture what may follow in the wake of Europe's war, he conjured Butterfield cited these examples of nutritional deficiencies in other wars:

Neutral Denmark was stripped of its butter and much of its milk during the World War. The Danes were forced to use skimmed milk and butter substitutes without vitamins, and as a result the health of the nation was impaired. An epidemic of xerophthalmia, an eye disease, claimed many victims, particularly children. Those affected became blind, which brought temporary relief.

In the Russo-Japanese war half of the 17,000 men in the besieged garrison at Port Arthur were down with scurvy at one time because Vitamin C was lacking from their diet.

In the World War, a garrison at Kut-el-Amara in Mesopotamia was rapidly being cut down by scurvy, but the men saved their lives by eating two ounces of grass daily.

Some vitamins can be produced synthetically, but the cost is prohibitive for use on a large scale, he said. Vitamin A is not available in a pure state; Vitamin B1 is priced at $800 a pound—more expensive than gold; Vitamin C costs $40 a pound, he added.

State's Picture Cure for Blues

A sure cure for the blues, rating a laugh a minute, opened at the State Theater yesterday for an engagement of three days in "I Love You Again," co-starring William Powell and Myrna Loy.

The film, presented in a fast-moving, laugh-packed series of situations, deals with the plight of a man who suddenly recovers from a eight-year attack of amnesia and discovers that during that time he has acquired a new personality, a charming wife who is about to divorce him, a spotless reputation as the leader of a community called Habersville, a bank president and the manager's berth in a large pottery firm.

Powell has never had a happier screen role. The opportunity to portray a character decidedly different from the suave, polished detective in the early portion of the film, is something to see. Imagine the Nick Charles of Thin Man fame with a mustache, tight pants, white shoes and the hubby of a amateur taxidermy.

Once again Myrna Loy is cast as his wife, but she's not the perfect spouse on this occasion. As a matter of fact, the usual procedure is reversed, with Powell forced to chase after her instead of the opposite. A strong supporting cast turning in top performances includes Frank McHugh as Powell's pal, "Doc" Ryan, Edmund Lowe as a slick oil promoter, Donald Douglas as the rival for Miss Loy's affections, and Nella Walker as her mother. The film was directed by W. S. Van Dyke II.

New Charges Against Leche

Louisiana Celebrates Natal Day of Huey Long With Holiday.

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Louisiana celebrated the late Huey P. Long's birth anniversary with a holiday today as the courts continued to grind out indictments against the heirs who took over his political empire in 1935.

Former Gov. Richard W. Leche, already under conviction for mail fraud, headed a list of six persons indicted yesterday by the New Orleans grand jury on charges ranging from bribery to "confidence" games.

Long was shot and killed in the statehouse September 8, 1935. Underlings took over his dictatorship and ruled Louisiana until "Reform" Gov. Sam Jones smashed the regime early this year by beating Huey's brother, Earl K. Long, in the gubernatorial race.

Constitutional Holiday

The state constitution provides that Aug. 30 be celebrated as a holiday in observance of Huey's birthday. The Huey P. Long Veterans of Foreign Wars, of New Orleans, will conduct its annual memorial service Sunday at Long's grave in front of the capitol.

Governor Jones was invited but said he would be unable to attend. However, his chief aide, former Gov. James A. Noe of Monroe, is scheduled to make an address.

Scores of leaders of the Long regime have been indicted since the political scandals broke in June 1939.

Members of the politicians are now in prison, others are under sentence of many years. The big bulk of indictments were returned in Federal courts but the state is just now beginning its indicting investigation.

Others Newly Indicted

Indicted with Leche yesterday were at least two former state senators, lobbyists and former political treasurer for Long, and Freeman W. Burford, Dallas, Tex., oil operator.

The indictments charged that Burford paid a bribe of $48,592.66 to Leche and Weiss to "influence" state conservation officials on oil production in 1936 in the rich Rodessa field in northwest Louisiana.

The three men are charged in Federal court in connection with the same alleged oil deal. Weiss is now under conviction for mail fraud.

Draft to Fall Heavily Where Fewest Serve

ties had been indicated into service. This total, then, would be broken down into state quotas on the basis of each state's percentage of the total of Class One registrants.

State Boards To Be Notified

After this had been done, state draft boards would be notified of the quota, and also of the number already in the services voluntarily. The difference would be the number already in the service from each city and county, enabling them to distribute the credit to local communities.

While the Navy and Marine Corps figure in the quotas, they expect to get no draftees in the immediate future, since their present strength is close to the total for which funds have been provided, with a waiting list of volunteers. This situation may change, however, when warships now building become available and have to be manned.

Will Face Two Months Of Rigorous Hardening

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—The National Guardsmen who go on active service when President Roosevelt gives the word will face about two months of rigorous "hardening" before they tackle the tactics of modern warfare, Army officials said today.

Authorized by special legislation which became law this week, the president is expected to order the first contingent of the Guard, about 50,000 men in all—to entrain for scattered camps and cantonments about Sept. 15. A second group of about the same size would be called about Oct. 15.

To Review Rudiments

Although the War Department has been silent on plans for training the Guard, indications are that the citizen soldiers will be given a thorough review in the rudiments of military tactics before their units are brought together in large groups for simulated combat work.

As outlined, the program would call for intensive field service with the companies serving as the units of operation. Once the companies have been thoroughly hardened and taught to act as a unit, battalion maneuvers would be in order.

From that point on, field maneuvers are expected to become more intricate, with regiments cooperating in training until a full division of upwards of 18,000 men is pronounced ready to operate as a unit.

Plan Corps Maneuvers

Then, Army sources said, plans envision maneuvers on an Army Corps scale, with three divisions taking the field together to work out the problems presented by modern warfare.

No attempt will be made, it was indicated, to break the National Guard's present "square" divisions of two infantry brigades, one field artillery brigade and additional special service troops, up into the new "triangular" or streamlined division which normally include only 8,000 men but have 11,000 at full wartime strength.

Guardsmen are expected to share, however, in the training of mechanized forces as well as in the coordination of ground and air forces.

Local Sporstmen To Attend Trials

Manchester sportsmen, including five of the members of the Manchester Fox and Coon Club, will attend the field trials to be conducted by the Thompson Field and Gun Club in Thompson on Sunday and Monday. The chief attraction for men of the members of the local club is the fox hunt that will get underway at daybreak on Monday. At that time some of the best fox hounds in the state and from other states in the East will be entered.

The Thompson Club will release 30 wild foxes at daybreak and the dogs will be turned out soon after. There is a charge of $1 for entry in the contest and the club will divide 70 per cent of the purse among the contestants finishing in first, second and third positions.

Must Act at Once To Conduct Bingo

Bingo backers in Manchester will lose out in the legal permission for their gaming unless they take immediate steps for the sanctioning of this pastime here during the coming year. It was recalled today that the governing body in each town, in the local case, the Board of Selectmen, has to approve the continuation of bingo playing from year to year, and this decision, it was pointed out, had yet to be made before September 15 of each year. Hence, if the Selectmen do not act by the 15th of next month, there will be no legal bingo gaming here for a year.

Before the Board can act, a petition has to be submitted signed by at least 5 per cent of the registered town voters. The petition list has to be reviewed and certified by the Town Clerk. So far no move has been made to draw such a petition. The petitions, according to law, should must be completed and filed by September 1.

without the factory use proposal but arranged to meet again next Tuesday morning to consider whether the members would offer it during debate.

Pre-debate skirmishing opened up in the House today on the peacetime conscription bill, with a group of foes assailing it as "unnecessary" and its advocates predicting that it would ride through to overwhelming approval by the end of next week.

The attack was incorporated in an eight-man minority report filed on the revised version of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training measure which was approved yesterday by a majority of the members of the House Military Committee.

See Hot Fight on Age

Actual debate is scheduled to start Tuesday on the House bill, which differs in one vital particular from that passed by the Senate. The House measure would require male citizens from 21 to 44 to register for possible service, whereas the Senate age bracket was 21 to 30. Leaders have a fight in the offing on the age question.

The minority report attack on the Burke-Wadsworth bill declared "that this proposal and others inevitably to follow to conscript manpower, conscript the farmers, conscript industry, conscript labor to run industry and conscript the wealth of the nation is not only unnecessary at this time to adequate defense of the country, but that it is a distinct and dangerous directive which will lead ultimately to the destruction of the American form of government in a totalitarian military state."

The report bore the names of Representatives Anderson (D-Mo), Byrns (D-Tenn), Short (R-Mo), Arends (R-Ill), Jenkins (R-Ohio), Martin (R-Ia), Elston (R-Ohio) and Harness (R-Ind). It was reported that at least one more committeeman was expected to sign.

See Split Among Foes

Both Republican and Democratic leaders, however, were saying that the legislation would win by a smashing margin before another week passed.

The House bill will be passed by two to one in my judgment," said Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas.

A $5,134,628,277 defense appropriation passed speedily by the Senate yesterday was sent to a Senate-House Conference Committee today for a composition of differing versions passed by the two bodies, thus delaying final action until acceptance of the committee's recommendations by both houses, probably next week.

The House disagreed to several Senate amendments and appointed managers will meet with a similar group from the Senate to compromise the differences.

The bill carries funds to start construction of 200 warships for a "two ocean" Navy and more than 14,000 airplanes.

The Senate changes, among other things, would appropriate $100,000,000 for housing for defense workers, $13,065,000 for improvements at nine Naval yards and training stations, and an increase of $10,000,000 for Naval aviation.

May Accept Changes

There was a possibility that the Senate changes might be accepted or the bill sent to conference today, because leaders arranged to skip House sessions over the Labor Day holiday. President Roosevelt has asked haste on the bill, so that the planes and other defense equipment it provides for can be ordered without further delay.

In getting ready for the Burke-Wadsworth bill debate, neither party planned a poll of its members, as is customary before votes on major legislation. The Democrats said sentiment on their side ran about two to one against conscription, and the Republicans said that "it is not a party matter; it will be every man for his own ideas."

The decisive Senate vote for conscription Wednesday and final House Committee action yesterday set the stage for Chairman May (D-Ky) of the committee to go before the House Rules Committee, with full administration support, to ask legislative right-of-way on the floor for the conscription measure.

May said he would ask for procedure permitting two days of general debate the whole question and unlimited consideration of amendments to the bill. He estimated that a total of four days would be required in all. Rayburn said only that "it will be passed next week."

The House Committee's conscription bill was approved yesterday by a vote of 20 to 4, although some members who favored sending it before the House reserved the right to oppose it later.

The votes of Anderson, Shafer, Harness and Representative Schaefer (D., Ill.) were recorded in opposition.

Like the Senate bill, the House legislation would provide training deferments for ministers, men with dependents, the mentally and physically unfit and men in occupations deemed necessary "to the maintenance of the national health, safety or interest."

It also would limit the service of the men to the western hemisphere and United States territories and possessions, including the Philippines and would virtually require that the trainees be restored to their original jobs when they return to civil life.

24,000,000 Subject to Call.

The House committee's substitution of the 21-to-44 age bracket for the Senate's 21-to-30, would make 24,000,000 men subject to registration and possible service. The narrowed bracket would affect only 12,000,000.

Another change in the bill was the maximum of 1,000,000 set for at any one time. The Senate set the number of trainees in training maximum was 900,000.

The House Military Committee avoided immediate action on the question of including the Senate-approved Russell-Overton amendment which would empower the government to take over defense industries when no satisfactory price and profit agreement could be reached with the owners of Army and Navy orders.

Two proposals were made for a similar amendment but not vote was taken and the sponsors were given the week-end to work out such a provision to be presented to the House as a committee amendment.

Rumanians Cede Transylvania Area

reports that the German and Italian ambassadors in Moscow had "strongly protested" to discuss Balkan problems.

Moscow insisted, however, that it has long been known to all powers, including Soviet Russia, that Germany considers the Balkans her special sphere of influence where Russia, in her direct phase of expansion, merely wanted the frontiers of her former empire—that of the czars—restored.

These sources said that with the acquisition of Bessarabia this had been accomplished and the gain of northern Bucovina had gone beyond this aim.

Negotiations in Palace

Final negotiations to end the long territorial dispute between the Balkan neighbors were conducted in the ornate, octangular gold room of Belvedere palace this afternoon.

Hungarian sources estimated that the ceded area included 19,000 of Transylvania's 35,000 square miles.

There still was no indication whether an exchange of populations would be undertaken.

Both the German and Italian foreign ministers, Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, read similar statements explaining the purpose of the negotiations.

Von Ribbentrop conducted "impartially," that the outcome was just and that it would bring amicably friendly relations between Hungary and Rumania.

Leave Last Problem

The settlement, Von Ribbentrop declared, solved the last territorial problem in the Balkans.

In Berlin, it was acknowledged that mere "ashglten" (holding to") the status quo ante is not the solution and that "the Axis powers had to take an even stronger hand in the proceedings."

Previously, it was recalled, Rome and Berlin had said that peace would "hold Rumania and Hungary to find a solution."

But both Balkan neighbors stuck to their viewpoints, these sources said and an impasse developed.

Germany and Italy, determined that there should be no quarrel to ended at once made a "take it or leave it" proposal which neither side dared leave, they added.

Moscow dispatches said the Red Army was holding elaborate maneuvers in a "western" Mares, practicing river crossings under artillery smoke screens.

Occupation Simultaneous

It was stated that the Hungarian occupation of the ceded portion of Transylvania would take place simultaneously with Bulgarian occupation of southern Dobruja, which Rumania already has agreed to yield. About 800,000 Rumanians live in the territory to be surrendered.

Budapest dispatches said the ceded area would be occupied by far east as Brasov and give Hungary a frontier with Soviet Russia in the Carpathians—the mountain range which Hungarians have called the Russian Hindu Kush.

For Rumanian the Transylvania decision involves a third slice of territory she has yielded in a little over three months.

On June 27 she accepted a Soviet ultimatum which resulted in the Red occupation of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, an area of about 18,300 square miles.

The cessions of Bessarabia, northern Bucovina, southern Dobruja and now of Transylvania total about 43,000 of Rumania's 113,846 square miles, reduced to a little more than her pre-World war size.

Decisions Received Separately

The talks opened yesterday with preliminary discussions at which German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano received the Hungarian and Rumanian delegations separately.

Although authorities are inclined to be reticent regarding progress to date, a German spokesman said "from various signs it can be presumed that today concluding results will be reached."

The entire Balkan problem, Germans emphasize, cannot be dissociated from the fact Germany and Italy are at war with England. The Balkans are of prime importance to the Axis war economy, and hence Germany and Italy are eager for a quick settlement.

Letters Evidence In Scalise Case

New York, Aug. 30—(AP)— Correspondence has been placed in evidence today in support of defense contentions that George Scalise did not steal $60,087 from the Building Service Employees International Union (AFL), as the state charges, but received it legitimately in commissions.

Mrs. Helen Lockwood Cumberland, 26, a stenographer of Des Plaines, Ill., identified the letters as those which had either been dictated to her in the Chicago office by Paul David, international secretary-treasurer, or which she recalled having received from Scalise in New York in reply to David's letters. The letters dealt, she said, with Scalise's commissions and other union matters.

Scalise, former president of the union, is on trial charged with grand larceny.

'Appeasement Issue' Is Put Into Campaign by Wallace

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 30—(AP)—The national campaign had an "appeasement issue" today after Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice presidential candidate, said in a publican victory Nov. 5 would result in "one economic concession after another" by the United States to the totalitarian countries.

In a speech formally accepting the nomination here last night before a crowd estimated by Chief of Police Thomas Watson, at 7,000 persons, Wallace declared:

"Powerful elements in our opposition will, if the Republicans come into power, force us to make one economic concession after another to the totalitarian countries.

"These appeasers will have their way if the Republicans win, because they have contributed largely politically and financially to the Republican cause. These people believe the Republicans in power would give them profitable business with a German-controlled Europe at the earliest possible moment."

Addressing an enthusiastic crowd of fellow tenantmen, farmers and farm delegations from several other midwestern states, Wallace was applauded when he expressed belief that the American people would not "sell their birthright for a mess of pottage." He said the American people would not "sell their birthright" that Hitler wants to see defeated."

Symbol of Democracy

President Roosevelt has become "the symbol of democracy" particularly to the nations of North and South America, the speaker said.

"Hitler must and he will try to break the solidarity of the Americas" he continued. "If he succeeds, we shall assuredly walk the same path of destruction and lost freedom."

The nominee charged the "dictators have definite designs against this hemisphere" and said "they hope to get rid of the unyielding Roosevelt" in the coming election.

"They know that a political campaign is distracting to our people," he added, "and they know that in the many months that will elapse before a new administration could act effectively, they might have their chance."

Mr. Roosevelt the European conflict "a war to destroy freedom and democracy.

"It is a war to prevent the people of North and South America from developing their resources without paying tribute to Europe and without accepted rule of European secret police serving a self-appointed master race."

Defense Section Cheered

The crowd, waving cornstalks, cheered the defense and neutrality sections of the speech. The current rearmament drive has produced "splendid" results, Wallace said, "but it is only a start. It will be pushed until America is fully prepared to defend herself against any emergency."

Elsewhere he declared:

"By preparing completely now, we shall have the best chance of keeping out of war."

Several Democratic senators also believed the job was Walker's "if he would take it."

There was some talk that one of the present assistant postmasters general might be named acting head of the department if a permanent chief is not named immediately. In this connection the names of Ambrose O'Connell, of New York, and Smith W. Purdum, of Maryland, were mentioned.

Edward J. Flynn, of New York, who succeeded Farley as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is reported in line for promotion at the Capitol.

Flynn, Republican leaders say, nice things about the farm program in the Wallace speech, "if he said. "But when it comes to voting for the farmer, they don't deliver the goods."

In his address notifying Wallace of his nomination, Rep. Marvin Jones (D., Tex.) praised the candidate as a "magnificent leader of the manhood of the west and a worthy running mate for Franklin D. Roosevelt."

In another brief talk, Edward J. Flynn of New York, Democratic national chairman, said:

"This man Wallace must be good since even his political opponents say he is and promise to defeat him. They don't know the election the program he has set up."

Farley Saying His Farewells

Still Quiet as Mouse About Successor in Cabinet Post.

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—James A. Farley was saying his official farewells in the national capital today, but was still as quiet as a mouse about his successor as postmaster general. His resignation from the cabinet to enter private business is effective tomorrow.

Farley recently was of the opinion that Frank C. Walker, New York lawyer and theater owner and former Democratic National Committee treasurer, would take his place in the Post Office Department, but he would not say today whether the situation had changed since he talked with President Roosevelt last Friday. The chief executive said then he would pick a successor in a few days.

Several Democratic senators also believed the job was Walker's "if he would take it."

Retired Naval Hero Dies at His Home

Waterford, Aug. 30 —(AP)— Oscar Paul Tomel Dessez, 44, retired Naval hero and holder of three medals for bravery, died yesterday at his home here.

Born in Washington, D. C., Commander Dessez attended Georgetown University where he received the medical degree. He entered the Navy shortly after the Philippine insurrection and the Spanish-American war and served for more than ten years afterward was at sea with the Naval Medical Corps.

During the World War he held a command with the Fifth Marines. Twice wounded, he received the Distinguished Service Cross, the Navy Cross (and the Croix de Guerre. He was a member of the Army and Navy Club of Washington and the Lambs Club of New York.

Surviving are a son, Paul, Jr.; four sisters; and a brother.

The funeral will be held in the Arlington national cemetery, Arlington, Va., at a date not yet announced.

Recruits Need Not File in Washington

New Haven, Aug. 30—(AP)—Navy recruiting officials said today it was apparent that a good many prospective recruits did not know how to go about joining the Navy and emphasized that it was not necessary to file applications in Washington.

"You'd be surprised," one of the officials said, "at the number of prospects in New Haven and vicinity who write to the Navy Department in Washington instead of coming to us for information."

He said also that many Connecticut applicants make their inquiries at the New Haven office when just as easily they could go to the recruiting stations nearest their homes. There are stations in Bridgeport, Hartford, New London, South Norwalk and Waterbury.

Roosevelt Calls Wallace Speech 'Glorious Start'

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 30—(AP)—President Roosevelt acclaimed Henry A. Wallace's acceptance address today as a "grand speech, splendidly given before an appreciative audience," in which his running mate had made "a glorious start."

The president and Mrs. Roosevelt and their son, Franklin, Jr., had heard a radio in the library of their home last night and listened to the address in which Secretary Wallace formally accepted his nomination as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

Sends Wallace Telegram

Then the chief executive dispatched this telegram, made public today at the temporary White House, to his political teammate:

Henry A. Wallace,

Des Moines, Iowa.

A grand speech and splendidly given before an appreciative audien. We have been sitting at the radio and only wish that all of us Roosevelts could have been with the Wallaces in Des Moines tonight You have made a glorious start. All good luck and my affectionate regards.

Franklin D. Roosevelt.

While Wallace was getting off to the "glorious start," the president showed no signs of altering his position that world conditions and the defense program would not permit their backs on the business to engage in purely political debate.

Working on Two Speeches

He was buckling down to work, however, on two Labor Day speeches. One will be made Monday morning when he dedicates Bonneville dam on the Tennessee river near Chattanooga. The other will be given Monday afternoon at the dedication of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park at Newfound Gap, on the North Carolina-Tennessee boundary.

Nation-wide radio hookups are being arranged for the addresses, presidential aides said they definitely want no campaign speeches.

Mr. Roosevelt has another talk on tap for tomorrow, but his assistants said it would be only of local interest. He is scheduled to be an annual reception for the president by Dutchess county neighbors, who comprise the Roosevelt Home Club.

Harry L. Hopkins, retiring secretary of commerce, also will speak then.

Visits County Fair

Mr. Roosevelt kept another regular date yesterday by visiting the Dutchess County Fair at Rhinebeck. Crown Princess Martha of Norway and two of her three children went along.

The members of the royal family, refugees from German-dominated Norway, are guests at the Roosevelt estate.

Before leaving the fair grounds, the chief executive stopped at a prize-winning display by the Chapel Crown Farm, of which he has been a member 26 years.

The plunder represented an old farm collar, containing, among other things, a pair of barrels.

The president was told one was a vinegar barrel, but he was not informed which was in the other.

"Probably cider," he speculated. "If it wasn't, it ought to be."

Robert Welcomes Contract Probe

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—Demands voiced by Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) for an investigation of defense contracts awarded the Atlanta architectural firm of Robert and Company have brought word from Lawrence W. (Chip) Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee and president of the firm, that he welcomed such an inquiry.

Bridges told the Senate yesterday that Robert should be removed as Democratic secretary and read a statement showing that his firm had been awarded $931,569 in fees on Naval constrtion contracts amounting to $28,859,081. Bridges also asked that the attorney general investigate the contracts.

In Des Moines, Ia., last night, Robert said that the company he heads and its associates had been doing business "running into the millions" for the Federal government since the Coolidge administration.

Dysentery Latest Disease Conquered by New Drug

Atlanta, Aug. 30—(AP)—Sulfathiazole, a baby member of the amazing sulfanilamide family, is bidding strongly for recognition as the long-sought, effective weapon against dysentery bacilli, rugged pest equally at home in nursery or Army camp.

At Henrietta Egleston Hospital for Children, physicians have watched this drug score repeated, spectacular victories over acute dysentery in children one to three years old.

The hospital staff is unwilling yet to say positively that "thiazole is the long-needed curative agent for this ancient ill, but it definitely is encouraged.

The drug was first made available for experimental use about a year ago and Egleston was among the first to receive supplies of it. Sulfathiazole was designed primarily to attack staphylococci infections, as sulfanilamide deals with the dread streptococcus.

Used for Pneumonia

Sulfathiazole was used in treatment of pneumonia and did its work better with fewer unfavorable reactions than sulfapyridine, the drug which was standard. Thursday, day one week after admission—the patient was taken home.

Since then several other dysentery cases have cleared up speedily with sulfathiazole.

The profession has been forced to rely on palliative measures, on careful diet control, on intravenous injections of food and water to offset malnutrition and dehydration, on blood transfusions to maintain strength.

The disease had to run its active course of two to four or more weeks. Then the patient often had to go through more weeks of slow recuperation before his strength returned fully.

Cured Within Week

A 20-month-old girl was admitted to the hospital on a Thursday. Admission reports showed four days of illness with temperatures ranging from 101 to 103 degrees. The clinical diagnosis of dysentery was confirmed by the laboratory.

The baby's condition remained substantially unchanged through Thursday, Friday and Saturday when the accepted therapy was applied.

Sunday, thiazole was given by mouth. Monday, temperatures dropped to normal. Tuesday, the bowel action was normal. Thursday, one week after admission—the patient was taken home.

Since then several other dysentery cases have cleared up speedily with sulfathiazole.

Democratic Blitzkrieg

Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice-presidential candidate, is a consummate politician. It is not going to do at all for the Republican leaders to ignore that fact, and to attempt to compel the settle field commander of the Democratic forces to fight on ground of their choosing.

Mr. Wallace's acceptance speech at Des Moines last night indicates very clearly that he intends to adopt the military principle that the best defense is through a vigorous offensive. The plan obviously is to make this campaign appear to the voters to be a battle between Roosevelt and Hitler—and to paint all opponents of the former as aides of the latter.

That is the position that Mr. Wallace took up last night, and, from the viewpoint of the purely political strategist, it is one from which he and his Democratic army of speakers and writers are not likely to be driven by any desultory sniping at outposts. It calls for a concentrated frontal attack.

It is one thing for the Republican leaders to know a hundred things about this administration that should condemn it in the eyes of the electorate, it is going to be another to get the people to listen to them so long as politicians as skilful as Mr. Wallace ignore them and continue to shout that nothing in the world counts but the menace of Hitler and Hitlerism.

The Democrats quite obviously are going to conduct a frightfulness blitzkrieg, in the midst of whose noise and tumult news proofs of scores of blunders and extravagances and reprehensible tie-ups will hardly get a hearing unless the main position that Roosevelt alone is capable of leading the nation to security, is successfully assaulted.

Trying to Break Morale

When Berlin communiques and the Berlin press tell us that such British objectives as Tilbury Docks have been destroyed we have no reason to believe it. When British communiques and the British press tell us that the German bombs did no damage to Tilbury Docks we have no reason to believe that. We know that all belligerent governments talk for effect. So you are left without information. But when American have seen Tilbury Docks, that they saw Tilbury Docks, that they have been damaged and that so have several ships lying there, but that the damage had by no means stopped or seriously affected the functions of that great terminal and that the damaged vessels were being repaired, then we have something dependable to go on. The correspondents are not belligerents; their job is to obtain and tell facts.

There are, however, no American correspondents in the areas of Germany which are being bombed nightly by the RAF and if there were they would not be permitted to see any damage or to send out word of it if they did see it. The British airmen who drop the bombs cannot know more than a little about the damage they do, if anything. So we have no means of learning anything dependable about the damage done in Hitler's country.

For that matter we are not much better off with relation to Midland England. British official statements are either silent on that score or merely belittle the extravagant claims of destruction made by the Germans.

We know nothing of the effect of British bombings on the Berlin population. We do know that the people of London are being subjected to the torture of sleeplessness, which appears to be just one more thing that Hitler is trying as a means for the winning of the war.

We don't believe that even the horrid device of screaming bombs and constant airplane roaring will break the morale of the London people. You can get used to noise. Any kind of noise. If you don't believe it ask any World War veteran who had to live day after day amid the thunder of never ceasing guns. Ask him whether, when he was "dead for sleep," he could lie down, practically under one of the guns, and in two minutes be in dreamland.

Perhaps, in London, they will have to give up herding the people into air raid shelters, let them stay right in their beds. When one is starved for sleep it becomes quite unimportant to him whether he ever wakes up or not—he is going to have the sleep. He would sleep in a tree, on the cornice of a skyscraper, on a railroad track if he could sleep nowhere else. The urge to sleep may, after too long a period of wakefulness become a good deal more pressing than the urge to live. Pretty soon, if this thing continues, London is going to say, drowsily, "To hell with it!" and go to sleep and sleep straight through any howling, screaming, crashing air raid racket that the Hitlerites can devise. Maybe a lot of London will be killed as it sleeps, but you can't destroy the morale of a dead man or woman.

The Chinese have been taking it for years, and not even the surface of their morale has been scratched. It doesn't appear probable that Hitler will find the British less tough than the Japs have found the Chinese. And he just going to last for years. Not unless the British do crack.

Those Rescue Ships

The refugee children ship bill has been signed by the President. The government is going to try to initiate the work of rescuing children from the war perils of Britain—that must be a private undertaking. When arrangements have been made for the care of the rescued children on this side of the ocean and a ship or ships have been chartered by private interests, then the United States government will request from all belligerents pledges of safe conduct for the vessel or vessels.

No belligerent will be asked for any guarantee that a rescue ship shall not hit a mine, because that is a guarantee which, manifestly, no belligerent could give. All that any nation at war can do is to give its solemn promise that the ship will not be attacked by any of its armed forces, submarine, surface or air.

Of course the chances are much greater that any such ship could reach a British port and return without being blown up by a mine than that it could not. But the hazard would, nevertheless, be a long way from slight. It may be a very fair question whether the risk run by any particular child through remaining at home would be any greater than it must face on such a voyage.

Still, it is to be assumed that such voyages will be undertaken, since it is improbable that the Germans will refuse to join in a safe conduct, provided they are specifically exempted from any responsibility for a mine sinking.

In such event there is one thing which it seems to us should be insisted on before any permit for the voyage is granted. The child refugees to be passengers on the ship should constitute a cross section of the British child population; definitely should not belong to any one or two social or financial classes or strata. The United States government is assuming a very definite responsibility in sponsoring these rescue ship journeys. The United States is a democracy. It must insist on practical democracy in the conduct of the rescues.

Transport's Pests

Probably worse than the mine peril, the sea sickness or the overcrowding which frazzled the nerves of the passengers on the transport American Legion on their dangerous voyage from Petsamo was the presence on the ship of 87 real or pretended refugees from Germany, who arrived at the port of departure three days before the ship sailed and proceeded to make nuisances of themselves aboard the transport.

Most if not all of them were American citizens—or at least had papers to show that they were—but they were no sooner aboard than they began to preach Nazism. They pushed their way into the quarters of the crew and began their peculiar brand of missionary work upon the sailors. The sailors promptly threw them out.

As the passengers arrived aboard the Nazi sympathizers assailed them with the same kind of propaganda. Most of the women and children of the refugee passengers had had something real to fear from the doings of the real Nazi thing and arguments were frequent and violent.

It was not until Major Frank L. Burns, ranking military officer of the transport and sharer of command with the maritime commander Captain Bror E. Torning, read the riot act to them, by forbidding all political discussion and propaganda on the ship and threatening to set the Nazi trouble makers ashore, that these sympathetically American Hitlerites subsided.

It is improbable that the officers of the American Legion neglected to obtain full identification of these people or to turn over their names and addresses to the FBI. It is evident that, thinking as much as they do of the Nazi system and as little as they do of the American way of life, they can hardly have left that heaven on earth on anything but errands of mischief.

Anyhow, it's regrettable that they didn't let out a few more peeps so that they could have been put off the ship, preferably before she sailed but anyhow, put off the ship.

Not Quite True

Paul Mallon, the Washington publicist, referring to Wendell Willkie's repudiation of the support of Father Coughlin, makes the flat statement that "the hitherto unbroken custom of Presidential candidates has been to accept support from all quarters, even Communists, until after election day."

Mr. Mallon, as is so often the case, is slightly inaccurate in this assertion, in at least one historic instance. A Tammany judge or ex-judge had issued a statement during the 1916 campaign declaring that unless the late President Wilson changed his position on a certain matter of principle the Tammanyite and many others would not support him. To which Mr. Wilson promptly and openly replied—the quotation is from memory—"I should be very sorry indeed to know that you or anyone like you voted for me."

If Mr. Mallon were to do a bit of research it is to be suspected he would find many instances of repudiation of undesirable support by Presidential candidates.

Washington Daybook

—By Jack Stinnett—

Washington—If any of you readers of your acquaintances are wondering about the Hatch act, which keeps all Federal full or part-time employes out of politics and otherwise makes a hazard of some objectionable tricks in the national political game, tip your hat to a man who is himself waging his biggest political campaign under the new rules and regulations.

He is John J. Dempsey. Friends call him Jack. He's around 60. He's white of hair and red of face, but he looks, acts and talks like a post-graduate athlete in his upper forties.

For six years he has been New Mexico's only representative in the House. Now he's campaigning from the snow-capped peaks above Raton Pass to the sandy bottoms of the Rio Grande for United States senator (incumbent Senator Dennis Chavez is his primary opponent.)

He's not the only man in politics who got there inadvertently, but he is one of the few. As a result of a long personal friendship with (and mutual admiration for) President Roosevelt, he was designated to set up the New Mexico recovery program in the hectic summer of 1933. A year later he dropped in on the New Mexico state Democratic convention and found himself nominated for the state's single seat in the lower house.

Succeeds With 100 Bills.

For three terms he has been elected with clock-like regularity. He has seen 100 of his sponsored bills written into the statute books and has earned an enviable reputation for personal popularity.

That is not all. Dempsey's story is that of a man who emerged after years in the subways of New York City and won success in the wide open spaces.

Jack Dempsey was born in White Haven, Pa., near Wilkes-Barre. His first job—and he needed it—was waterboy with a Lehigh Valley railroad construction crew. His second was telegrapher for the same railroad. He taught himself the code.

At 19, he was tapping the keys in that labyrinth underworld known as the New York City subway system. You can't keep a good man underground, he demonstrated, and eventually he was vice president of the company in charge of operations.

You would think a fellow like that would stick by his guns. But not J. Dempsey. He took his savings out to Oklahoma, where he again went in for underground stuff. This time it was oil. He pyramided his savings into a fortune.

When most men are just hitting their stride, Jack decided he had enough of the world's goods to compensate for the years of water-toting and dot-dashing and he retired to New Mexico. On a ridge above Santa Fe he built a rambling Spanish villa, with windows that run from floor to ceiling and a view that takes your breath away.

He spent more money on a water system (it had to be piped in from the valley) and gas and electricity than he did on his house.

Odds Were Against Him.

Jovial and good-natured in social gatherings, Dempsey is as serious and hard-working in politics as he was in working his way up. When he started pumping steam into Hatch Act No. 2, the odds here were 10-to-1 that there wasn't a chance for this measure to take out of politics any workers partly paid from Federal funds. He fought it out of two committees and onto the House floor and when the final vote was in, the act was passed 243 to 122.

It was the 100th Dempsey-sponsored measure to become a law. With that mark, he arranged for pairing on the measures now before Congress and went home to work for election to a seat on the other side of the capitol.

Man About Manhattan

—By George Tucker—

New York—Sally Rand, the bubble and fan dancer who has retired from the New York World's fair but who is doing business every night at a hotel on Broadway, is a demure miss in all moments except those when camera fiends in the audience are spotted training their candid cameras on her dance. Then she becomes an indignant tigress and she will scratch your eyes out quicker than you can snap a lense.

Reason: She wants no free thrills being toted about the country by sneaks who take unauthorized pictures of her dance, which, as you know, is done without benefit of clothing.

Second, she fears that photography will hurt her. She doesn't mind disrobing at the proper moment before paid audiences. She very much minds those who would "sully" her reputation by emphasizing nudity when it is really grace after all that is her forte, in case you didn't know.

Lately she has refused attractive offers from picture magazines wishing exclusive pictures of her dance. "It's the principle of the thing," she explains. "Those sort of pictures aren't good for you. Usually they are made out to be something entirely different than what they really are." So that's the set-up. A special warning is also passed along to those who might try to defy this edict. Not only will Sally scratch your eyes out, she'll also have you arrested. It hasn't been a week since one enthusiastic observer started out to sneak a picture and ended up explaining his behavior to a judge.

You like golf stories like the one Winchell Cerberus sent in last week? Here's another of the old Dipsy-Doodler's anecdotes of a wayside tee which concerns Joe Venuti, who at one time played an amazingly hot fiddle for Mr. Paul Whiteman. The action takes place at the 18th hole.

Approaching a water hazard Joe's drive fell short, leaving him a 200-yard shot to clear the water. Venuti blithely reached for his spoon at which the caddy conversionally said he didn't think Joe could make it—

"Don'tcha tell me how to play!" thundered Venuti, and promptly slapped the ball right into the lake. Warning the boy not to say a word, Joe took a new ball and dropped it in the same place. In a stentorian voice he called for a third ball. The caddy, unnerved by now, meekly handed it to him only to see it fall not five feet from where the others had landed. Joe called for a new ball.

"Mr. Venuti," wailed the caddy, "we haven't got any more!"

Joe headed lugubriously for the water hazard. At its bank he took the spoon he had been carrying and broke it over his knee and threw it in the water. Without a word he turned to the caddy, took the golf bag, and with a muttered word threw the bag in the water. Then he picked up the protesting caddy and threw him into the water!

Then with a despairing look, Venuti pulled off his shirt (that Bing Crosby had given him, and he jumped in!

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, said today that internal revenue collections for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1940 were $158,787,394.20 more than those of the preceding 13 months.

Income tax payments, both corporate and individual, showed decreases, however. Corporations paid $1,120,561,500.75 in the 1940 period compared with $1,122,540,500.61 the preceding year.

Individuals' payments amounted to $982,017,376.17 for 1940 as compared with the $1,028,853,786.49 received in 1939.

Bird Calls For Two

Chillicothe, Mo. — (AP) — Chillicothe Business College students welcomed their new football coach, Bob White, with bird calls every time he stepped on the campus. The situation hit a new high after Tuesman, Ark., candidate asked for gridiron equipment and signed as Rob White, too. Coach White was elated. "Even if he can't carry the ball, he ought to divert some of the constant whistling." For the information of indoor sportsmen, the bob white is a bird which has a whistling call.

If teachers ruled the world there would be no wars to destroy the children whose lives we have nurtured.

Will Check Status Of All Arrested

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 30—(AP) —Police Chief Philip T. Smith announced today that, starting immediately, a check would be made on the citizenship status of every person arrested and charged with an offense punishable by a year or more in prison.

If the suspect is found to be an alien this information will be given to city court officials before the case is disposed of.

The chief pointed out that previously it might have been possible for non-citizens, who are subject to deportation if they are imprisoned twice for terms of more than one year for crimes involving moral turpitude, to be convicted and imprisoned without their status as aliens becoming known.

House Passes New Tax Bill

Signs Point to Possible Overhauling of Measure in Senate.

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—The excess profits tax bill, which whisked through the House in less than four hours, went to the Senate today where signs pointed to considerably less speed and a possible overhauling.

Opposition to the bill was reported in the Finance Committee, where Senator LaFollette (Prog., Wis.) already was talking of even stiffer taxes than the excess profit levies of from 20 to 50 per cent provided for by the House.

The House gave its approval to the complex measure yesterday, passage coming on a voice vote which brought only a handful of members dissenting. Its approval was urged on the ground that it would end the "bottleneck" of tax uncertainty on defense contracts, and at the same time prevent the amassing of huge "war fortunes."

Other Provisions.

Besides the imposition of a 20 to 50 per cent excess profits tax, the House-approved bill would:

1—Permit government contractors to "amortize" defense plant expansions by deducting the cost of new facilities from taxable income.

2—Suspend the present profit limitation on warship and aircraft contracts.

3—Yield an estimated $300,000,000 revenue in 1941 and $900,000,000 annually thereafter.

Senator LaFollette, who may seek to boost the rates, was the author of a more drastic excess profits tax formula passed by the Senate earlier this session but thrown out of the $1,000,000,000 general defense tax measure in a Senate-House compromise.

Hearings Start Monday

The new excess profits legislation went immediately to the Finance Committee and, Chairman Harrison (D. Miss.), said hearings would commence next Tuesday. The Senate leadership plans to start debate the week after next.

The ease with which the measure was pushed through the House at a single day's session was made possible by drastic procedure which barred all amendments not approved by the Ways and Means Committee and also limited debate to two hours.

Many more complaints were heard against the tax than Republican Rep. (R., N. Y.), called the procedure "a vigorous gag," but nevertheless supported both the procedure and the bill itself because both Democratic and Republican Ways and Means Committeemen urged that the legislation not be tampered with.

Two Main Complaints

The two main complaints against the bill were made by Representatives Knutson (R., Minn.) and Ford (R., Calif.).

Knutson objected to what he called "aimless haste in the formulation of tax policies" and to "day-to-day and hand-to-mouth" defense financing. He urged more comprehensive tax legislation to finance the plant.

Ford expressed fear that the tax would "slow assassination of business" which he said already was "over-taxed, over-regulated and harassed." He suggested that the $300,000,000 the bill is expected to raise this year could be obtained through Federal economy.

India to Aid Britain When Independence Is Admitted

Bombay — (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — India with all her vast millions in manpower will "throw her full weight into the struggle" with Britain against the Axis powers only if India's independence is acknowledged, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the Indian National Congress, declared today.

Nehru said the Aug. 8 statement by Lord Linlithgow, British viceroy of India, reiterating promises of "empire partnership" between India and Britain at the end of the war was actually a continuation of the "Entire British policy of creating and aggravating disruptive tendencies, crushing nationalism and advance elements in favor of federal and reactionary forces so as to consolidate British imperialism."

In an exclusive interview, explaining the India Congress' refusal to cooperate with the empire's war effort, Nehru said:

"We are entirely opposed to Nazism, but we are also opposed to imperialism, with which we have had bitter experience ourselves and which crushes our growth and exploits us.

Imperialism Must End

"The demand of Congress for complete independence as opposed to the promised dominion status is based on the idea that if the war is really a war for democracy and freedom, then imperialism must end and the independence and self-determination of India must be acknowledged.

"In that event," he said, "India would throw her full weight into the struggle.

"Congress sought no power or position for itself," he declared, "but demanded an elected constituent assembly to frame India's constitution.

Reply Unsatisfactory

"The British government's reply was wholly unsatisfactory, and in most provinces the provincial governments resigned in protest.

"Since then autonomy has been suspended and autocratic rule prevails. It is the old conflict between Parliaments and the king's autocracy which England, America and France know so well."

Under the Independence plan was made 11 months ago, Nehru said, "the wishes of the Indian people have been completely ignored and over-ridden by means of government by ordinance and decree."

Hundreds of well-known public workers, he said, have been arrested.

Two Surveys On Resources

Data on Lumber and Aviation Supplies in State Being Gathered.

Hartford, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Two industrial surveys of the state, one concerning lumber and the other on aviation supplies, are being furthered by the State Development Commission, it was revealed today.

The commission is assembling for transmittal to Washington all the data it has on hand about Connecticut manufacturing establishments that are present or potential sources of supply for the aviation industry.

The action is in response to an urgent request for this information from the National Defense Council. Questionnaires are being sent to manufacturers for verification or supplemental information on a survey made some time ago by the Aeronautical Development Commission.

Retaining Field Technician

The commission is also retaining a field technician to bring Connecticut's facilities for defense production to the attention of appropriate Federal procurement agencies.

The second survey, on lumber, is being conducted by the state forester to get accurate information concerning the consumption of lumber and wood products in Connecticut so that local production of timber may be effectively coordinated with its use.

Forests of the state, according to the commission "are potentially capable of producing, under improved management, not only increasing quantities but also grades and qualities adapted to more exacting requirements. Current utilization of wood products, native and imported, within the state is apparently of considerable extent

Lock Company Will Continue

Proxy Battle to Determine Fate Ends; New Directors Elected.

Terryville, Aug. 30— (AP) — A proxy battle between two groups of shareholders to determine the fate of The Eagle Lock Company was ended today with the decision of the stockholders that the century-old firm should continue its manufacturing operations.

At the annual meeting yesterday, it was announced that holders of 42,399 shares wished the company to remain separate, while holders of 25,960 shares favored liquidation and cessation of business.

In addition to voting down the plan of the minority bloc, the stockholders also elected a new, nine-man Board of Directors, retaining only three members of the present five-man board.

New Directors Elected

The new directors elected were: Charles W. Deeds of Hartford; President Eliot Farley; Dudley S. Ingraham of Bristol; Royal Little of Providence; Vice-President Rollin B. Plumb; Charles E. Rolfe of New Haven, chairman of the State Development Commission; Lester Shipps of Hartford; Sinclair Weeks of Boston; and Roy C. Ullcox of Meriden.

Weeks headed the group which marshalled the victorious vote, while Charles J. Thornton of Boston and Andrew H. Wilson, Jr., of Providence, stockholders, led the minority group.

Of the new directors, only Farley, Little and Plumb were members of the five-man board.

To Make Improvements

Farley told the stockholders that many improvements will be made in the factory, including the installation of new machinery. Terryville's largest industry, the Eagle Lock employs about 800 persons.

The accounting firm of Rath & Strong, engaged to study the company's financial status and prospects, recommended recently that it continue operation, forecasting an end to its operating at a loss in three years.

Bright Eyes and Blushes Enter Range of Television Programs

New York, Aug. 30 — (AP) — Bright eyes and blushes have entered the range of television, says Columbia Broadcasting System report on color technique.

Paul W. Kesten, vice president, says the company expects to broadcasting color in its commercial programs by Jan. 1. A private demonstration was made yesterday for James L. Fly chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

Kesten says a method developed by Dr. Peter C. Goldmark, CBS television engineer, makes color reception possible for sets already in use, with only minor adjustment and the addition of a simple attachment.

Uses Only One Camera

Goldmark simplified color television by finding a way to limit color to the standard wave band used for ordinary television. In previous experiments, three cameras working on three wave bands were needed. Goldmark uses one camera which lays down alternating rows of colored dots, giving an effect of blended color in the image.

Kesten says present receiving sets without adjustment receive these color broadcasts in ordinary black and white tones.

Kiddies' Day At Carnival

Tonight there will be another radio given away and there will be another awarded on Saturday night and the seventh on the closing night, Monday.

British Repel Air Attack on London

craft defenses turned back wave after wave of German planes—numbering 100 in all—trying to break through toward the London area for the second time in three hours today. Repeatedly the raiders stormed against the capital's outlying defenses only to meet with firm resistance from British fighters and thundering anti-aircraft guns.

The German attackers, who lost at least 19 planes in their first attempt to reach the London area, shifted their route for the second try.

The day's second alarm sounded about 3:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. e. s. t.) and the all clear signal came six minutes later.

Battles in Southeast

An hour before the afternoon alarm sounded air battles were reported over southeastern England where the raiders were trying to cross one another section.

While the battle still raged, the Air Ministry issued this communique:

"Reports received to 2 p. m. (8 a. m. e. s. t.) show that 19 enemy aircraft are known to have been shot down. Six of our own aircraft are lost but the pilot of one is safe.

"The Berlin radio reported 29 British planes shot down over England and only six German planes lost."

Undaunted by their losses, the Germans apparently returned to the attack by another route after only a few hours of trying to force their way through the city's defenses from the southeast.

During the first raid battles raged from the outskirts of the London area all the way to the coast.

Three Successive Waves

A second communique issued by the Air and Home Security Ministries, said the Germans came over in three successive waves and were "scattered and driven back."

A "small proportion" of the raiders approached the London area, the communique said, but were unsuccessful in attempts to bomb airports surrounding the city.

"Bombs were dropped indiscriminately in districts of Kent and Surrey," it said. "Slight damage is reported and the number of casualties is small, but includes some killed."

Coming over in formations of 25 to 30 planes, the Germans ran into a solid wall of anti-aircraft fire and swarming fighters protecting London following early morning attacks on the great industrial northeast, including the textile center of Manchester.

One of Heaviest Attacks

The attack on the northwest, one of the heaviest of the war, was coupled with others on the southeast, the Midlands and South Wales. Many persons were killed and injured in these forays.

Of the 19 Germans known shot down in the try against London, at least six bombers were shot down in a single battle over the southeastern area.

Note by Ministry communique announcing the results of the morning raid was issued from the Ministry of Information's special deep shelter press room during the second raid.

Some bombs were reported dropped in the outskirts of the London area and the drone of planes was heard in one London district. The city's first air raid alarm sounded shortly after noon (6 a. m. e. s. t.) but was lifted about an hour later without the appearance of any raiders over London proper.

The great industrial area of England was the object of additional night and day German raids, described as some of the heaviest of the war.

Mother and Children Killed.

A mother and two children were reported killed at Manchester and a number of cottages wrecked. Rescue squads worked frantically to get out a number of persons trapped in the wreckage.

Six persons were reported killed and many injured in another west coast area.

Manchester is one of the largest and most important industrial cities of England. It has a population of 766,000 and is 31 miles east of Liverpool, to which it is connected by a large canal accommodating seagoing vessels.

The Germans reported great fires were started by Nazi raiders in heavy attacks on Liverpool and Birkenhead, which is on the opposite bank of the Mersey. With Liverpool, Birkenhead constitutes one of Britain's busiest receiving points for American supplies from across the Atlantic.

Raids Aimed At Southeast

Still more intensive attacks at southeast England during the night. The home of the late Henry James, the author, was reported destroyed at Rye, an ancient southeastern town sitting on a high rock promontory crowned by an ancient castle and fortress.

With the waves of 15 to 20 German planes still attempting to break through to London, numerous dogfights raged throughout the day as fresh British fighters swept to the challenge and circled over the sea.

Six German planes were known to have been shot down during the day's violent fighting.

The drone of planes was heard in one London district. Anti-aircraft guns were active and the chatter of machine guns could be heard high in the sky.

Bombs were dropped in southeastern England, while Nazi raiders also were reported over towns in the industrial midlands.

Relative "Breathing Spell"

Today's daylight attacks followed a night and early morning in which Britain had a relative "breathing spell," with London itself having only a "stand-by" warning. The most severe pre-dawn attacks were reported in northeast England.

Some of the heaviest fighting during the half-hour before London's first raid in more than 30 hours was reported over the southeast, but fighting took place at such altitude it was impossible for ground observers to follow its progress.

At times as many as half a dozen dog fights were going on 20,000 and 30,000 feet up in a cloudless sky.

Anti-aircraft guns gave the raiders their first hot reception and seemed to have found the range, for they continued firing for several minutes before R.A.F. Spitfires and Hurricanes raced into action.

Traffic Heavier Than Normal

During the first 15 minutes of the London alarm there was no sound of plane motors. Traffic continued and was, if anything, heavier than normal.

Friday is London's traditional pay day, and banks were crowded.

A few people took to air raid shelters but most stood in doorways looking at the sky.

A few moments before the alarm sounded ambulances raced down the streets to take up their posts as is usual during a preliminary warning.

One group of three German raiders appeared to have turned back toward the coast after fighters dived on them.

"The raiders took full advantage of any wisps of clouds there were.

"Three raiders which tried to take cover were followed by one Spitfire pilot while two more waited outside. As soon as the three came out the two Spitfires attacked them and the Germans headed for the coast.

Paish Is Ready To Help America

Larchmont, N. Y., Aug. 30—(AP)—Sir George Paish, British economist, asserts he is here "to help America in anyway I can" and not to bring the United States into the war as Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) charged in Senate debate on the conscription bill.

The Briton said he was "deeply hurt" by Senator Wheeler's assertion that Sir George had admitted in a conversation he had come here to attempt to involve the United States.

Visit Airport Outpost

Newfoundland Airport, Newfoundland, Aug. 30—(AP)—Members of the Canada-United States Permanent Joint Defense Board, travelling in a Royal Canadian Air Force bomber, made a swift, secret flight to this North-American outpost yesterday. After an inspection of equipment and fighting forces stationed here, the party took off again for a survey of the coastline before returning to Halifax.

Conscription—and Two Mothers

A mother who is against conscription and one who, although she lost a son in the World War, favors it, made a dramatic contrast while Senator Claude Pepper of Florida spoke in favor of the Burke-Wadsworth bill from the Capitol steps in Washington. Beside Senator Pepper is Mrs. W. Walter Williams of New Bedford, Mass., past president of the Gold Star Mothers. On the ledge above, a policeman quiets a crepe-shrouded woman heckler. Veiled woman said she was Mrs. Olga Macomber, of Philadelphia, member of the League of Mothers and Women of America, who oppose conscription.

Germany Pledges Aid on Defense

mania faced overwhelming odds in a ring of threatened invasions.

Besides a Hungarian invasion, backed by Germany, and the possible Russia would decide to move in from the north and east in event of conflict, Rumania also faced the possibility Bulgaria would act from the south, they said.

Late this afternoon the Rumanian populace still knew nothing of the momentous decision except what they had heard rumored.

The communique announcing the capitulation was signed by members of the Crown Council, council of ministers, the orthodox patriarch, one of whom is a Transsylvanian bishop, Constantine Bratianu, former head of the National Liberal party, Ion Mihalache, a leader of the Peasant party who had argued against the cession; and Horia Cordescu, ex-Army officer and brother of the late Iron Guard premier, Cornelio Zelea Codreanu.

Manin Signature Missing

The signature of Julin Manin, veteran Peasant party leader who had argued for resistance against giving Hungary a single inch of territory, was notably missing.

This communique was announced after an answer had been received to Rumania's decision from Vienna where the German, Italian, Rumanian and Hungarian foreign ministers and other statesmen were holding a four-power conference.

Five Minutes To Decide

An authoritative account of the all-night palace conference in which telephone contact was maintained with Vienna and a parade of leaders consulted with King Carol, said that at one stage Rumania was told she must make her decision within five minutes.

At 12:14 a. m. this story said, Foreign Minister Manoilescu, with German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop sitting beside him, telephoned that he had been given five minutes in which to get a definite acceptance of the Vienna plan from Bucharest.

If the five minutes passed without Rumanian official approval, Ribbentrop was reported as having said, Rumania might face immediate invasion by Russia on one side, and Hungary, backed by the German motorized columns and air force, on the other.

Advises Acceptance

The Rumanian general staff was reported to have advised the government to accept the Axis award at Vienna on the ground that the Rumanian Army would be helpless to protect the country against possible Russian, Hungarian and Bulgarian attacks especially if these were backed by the strong armies of Germany and Italy.

Besides pressure from Hungary and Bulgaria, informed circles saw indications that Soviet Russia was prepared to take advantage of any Rumanian preoccupation on these frontiers by entering southern Bucovina from the north and Moldavia from the east.

The official Russian news agency made public a note disclaiming responsibility for border clashes in Southern Bucovina warning Rumania of the "consequences" if such clashes continued, and declaring that Russian-Rumanian relations would "take a new turn" if further incidents occurred.

Moscow Warnings Discussed

These Moscow warnings were discussed at an all-night government conference.

The Army was ordered to be ready for any emergency.

King Carol, who has spent many hours each day in conference with his ministers and other advisers since the night the Russian ultimatum on Bessarabia was delivered, was counseled in making his decision by hundreds of political personages who streamed through the palace doors until after dawn.

Government quarters said Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, injected no words at the Vienna conference, but told the delegates what had to be done under threat of an overwhelming attack.

The veteran pro-German political leader George Bratianu and Peasant Leader Julin Manin were called to meet with King Carol and the Crown Council today to decide on a course to be followed at Vienna.

This call and a series of political talks gave rise to reports King Carol might be forming a new cabinet.

Carol held an extraordinary cabinet session in the royal palace which lasted until nearly dawn, called in a number of leaders of the Iron Guard, Rumanian Fascist organization, and then called another day's special meeting of the Crown Council to discuss the Vienna conference.

Committed To Hospital

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 30—(AP)—Angelo Lodi, 59, who allegedly shot himself, Aug. 15, nine days after his daughter, Rose, 22, was mysteriously slain, was ordered committed today to the State hospital at Northampton for observation. Lodi found his daughter's body in underbrush near a route she followed to and from work in a match factory.

Cooperating On Defense

Boston, Aug. 30—(AP)—Reporting findings from a survey, the New England Council announced today that New England manufacturers were cooperating in the national defense program and that they had the facilities to play a larger part in it.

Nazis Leave Fires Raging After Raids

Britain's greatest center of west coast shipping, were reported by German sources today after night air attacks directed chiefly at industrial plants and ports.

The high command said the fires there showed the "success" of the night raids after limited reconnaissance flights yesterday in which 19 British planes were shot down in air battles and seven German planes lost.

Industrial plants of Felixstowe in Suffolk county, airplane plants at Weybridge southwest of London, and Langley-Slough Wells, and port facilities at Dundee, Leith and Hartlepool also were subject to night attack by fighter planes, the high command said.

Limited to Scouting

Its communique said:

"The air forces activity yesterday was limited to several reconnaissance, in the course of which several air fights developed over southeastern England.

"During the night of Aug. 29-30, fighting plane units attacked several airports in the counties of Lincoln and Suffolk, industrial plants at Felixstowe, airplane plants at Weybridge and Langley-South Wells, and port facilities at Dundee, Leith, Hartlepool and Liverpool.

"Extensive fires in the attacked regions, particularly in Liverpool and Birkenhead, which is on the opposite bank of the Mersey. With Liverpool, Birkenhead constitutes one of Britain's busiest receiving points for American supplies from across the Atlantic.

Raids Aimed At Southeast

Still more intensive attacks at southeast England during the night. The home of the late Henry James, the author, was reported destroyed at Rye, an ancient southeastern town sitting on a high rock promontory crowned by an ancient castle and fortress.

With the waves of 15 to 20 German planes still attempting to break through to London, numerous dogfights raged throughout the day as fresh British fighters swept to the challenge and circled over the sea.

Six German planes were known to have been shot down during the day's violent fighting.

The drone of planes was heard in one London district. Anti-aircraft guns were active and the chatter of machine guns could be heard high in the sky.

Bombs were dropped in southeastern England, while Nazi raiders also were reported over towns in the industrial midlands.

Relative "Breathing Spell"

Today's daylight attacks followed a night and early morning in which Britain had a relative "breathing spell," with London itself having only a "stand-by" warning. The most severe pre-dawn attacks were reported in northeast England.

Some of the heaviest fighting during the half-hour before London's first raid in more than 30 hours was reported over the southeast, but fighting took place at such altitude it was impossible for ground observers to follow its progress.

At times as many as half a dozen dog fights were going on 20,000 and 30,000 feet up in a cloudless sky.

Anti-aircraft guns gave the raiders their first hot reception and seemed to have found the range, for they continued firing for several minutes before R.A.F. Spitfires and Hurricanes raced into action.

Traffic Heavier Than Normal

During the first 15 minutes of the London alarm there was no sound of plane motors. Traffic continued and was, if anything, heavier than normal.

Friday is London's traditional pay day, and banks were crowded.

A few people took to air raid shelters but most stood in doorways looking at the sky.

A few moments before the alarm sounded ambulances raced down the streets to take up their posts as is usual during a preliminary warning.

One group of three German raiders appeared to have turned back toward the coast after fighters dived on them.

"The raiders took full advantage of any wisps of clouds there were.

"Three raiders which tried to take cover were followed by one Spitfire pilot while two more waited outside. As soon as the three came out the two Spitfires attacked them and the Germans headed for the coast.

About Town

Start New Drive On Fifth Column

London, Aug. 30—(AP)—British police have started a new drive against suspected Fifth Column activity during Nazi night air raids, it was reported today.

On recent nights, there have been spotted fires which police believe were set by Fifth Columnists to guide German bombers to their objectives.

In the London area, police observed flashes of lights from a large block of apartments. They raided the apartments and took a man in custody for questioning.

Scotland Yard daily has received scores of calls from persons reporting what they believed to be signal lights. In most cases, these reports of light proved to be accidental.

Bridge Plans Approved

Hartford, Aug. 30—(AP)—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson has notified Governor Baldwin of the department's approval of plans for the new $6,000,000 New London-Groton bridge. Governor Baldwin, back at his office after a two weeks western trip, said that bids for the bond issue to finance the bridge will be called for soon as the next step in the project.

Resume Negotiations

New York, Aug. 30—(AP)—Opposing factions in a dispute which has caused 15,000 unionized truck drivers to threaten to strike Sunday morning resumed negotiations today in an effort to reach an agreement. The agreement now in force expires Saturday midnight.

Capt. Alan Moore

Capt. Alan Moore, director and leading man of the Showboat Players, has made many friends this season while playing at the Bolton Playhouse.

Since 1938 Capt. Moore has adopted Connecticut for the summer months, playing first in Hartford and then at the Bolton Playhouse. Winters find the captain in Florida playing at the exclusive Dania Beach Playhouse in Dania, but at the end of the tourist season in Florida Capt. Moore begins the long trek northward for his opening in the Bolton Lake Playhouse in the Bolton hills.

Plan to Protect Average Budget

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—The defense program is not going to hit the average household budget "out-of-line," Leon Henderson, chief of the Consumers' Division, told representatives of national trade organizations yesterday that suggestions would be made for staggering military purchases not of an emergency nature in order that civilian markets would not be disrupted.

Can Run Light Gauntlet

Washington, Aug. 30—(AP)—Development of a paint which is reduced the visibility of an airplane flying at low altitude to run a gauntlet of searchlights without being detected was reported by Army Air Corps officers today.

pending disposition, and that this was true also of women until a year ago. The latter were held at the House of Good Shepherd in occasional cases, although the general practice of the Hartford office is to release on their own recognizance those taken in custody under deportation warrants.

"During the past year, however, the facilities of the House of the Good Shepherd, owing to crowded conditions, were denied the (immigration) service, as a result of which on two or three occasions women had to be confined for a very short period in the city jail."

50 Ordered Deported

Deportations were ordered against 50 aliens during the year, out of 112 deportation actions. Thirty-five others were permitted to depart voluntarily, and 23 more departed in cases where warrants of deportation were not requested.

The bureau is eight months behind in its naturalization work, owing in part to the small size of the office unit in the face of increasing numbers of petitions. A total of 161 immigration cases were pending, involving possible deportation.

Men and women admitted to citizenship totaled 5,959, a gain of 356 over the preceding year. Preliminary examinations were given 8,606 aliens in connection with which a total of 17,000 witnesses appearing for the petitioners were examined.

Immigration inspectors handled three Chinese cases against six such cases before.

The crews of 26 vessels from foreign countries, calling at New Haven and Bridgeport, were examined by the Hartford office, involving the arrival of 285 alien seamen. Eight seamen were paid off and three deserted.

British Happy in War; Use Entire Strength; Victory Seen Certain Bad Times Seen Since Government Listened To Voice of England; Fighting Spirit High.

(Editor's Note: The Special News Service of The Associated Press presents below a frank, interesting British viewpoint after nearly a year of war with Germany. It is written by Evelyn A. Montague, of The Manchester Guardian, one of England's great newspapers. Mr. Montague served with the British Expeditionary Forces as a war correspondent. He is a son of the late C. E. Montague, the famous essayist and novelist.)

By Evelyn A. Montague

London—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Britain to-day is a happy country! That is the strangest thing that has happened to us in all this strange year.

I am a happy man! My home has been broken up, my child is in one part of the country, my possessions in another. My wife and I are in a third, living in a stranger's house, overtaxed, overworked, uncertain of the future, cut off from most of our small pleasures, restricted in our movements, threatened with invasion.

But we are happier than we were twelve months ago.

Mexico Haven For Refugees

To Bring 250,000 Spanish Across Atlantic From France.

Mexico City, Aug. 30—(AP)—Mexico tackled today the problem of how to bring 250,000 Spanish refugees across the Atlantic from France.

The refugees have been in France since the Spanish civil war, and Mexico agreed with the Vichy government last night to provide a haven for them, effective as soon as she can find means for transporting them.

The Mexican government hopes to charter ships for this purpose with the financial aid of private organizations in the United States and other American republics, a responsible government official said last night. The ships would be transferred temporarily to Mexican registry.

The agreement between Mexico and France was signed at Vichy, temporary French capital. The text will be published Sunday.

Principal Conditions

As reported from France, the principal conditions are:

1. Mexico will pay transportation expenses and upkeep in France for the refugees, beginning as of yesterday.

2. All Spanish refugees will be accepted without regard to creed or political beliefs.

3. France reserves the right to hand over any common law criminal in the refugee ranks, if the Spanish government so requests.

Several hundred thousand dollars have been earmarked for establishing the refugees on agricultural and industrial projects by the Mexican government and the Spanish Republican group.

Seen Highly Desirable

President Cardenas' administration, already host to 13,000 refugees, regarded the Spaniards as highly desirable immigrants, the government official said, and recently modified the naturalization laws to facilitate granting them citizenship.

The Spanish Republicans now in Mexico have found difficulty in making a living, and various refugee relief organizations, some financed by private groups in the United States, have contributed steadily to their maintenance.

Germany Worked Six Years on Defenses

Winant Says in Labor Day Survey That European Worker Has One Hope for Survival.

By John G. Winant
Director, International Labor Office

On September 1, 1939, Hitler in speaking to the Reichstag said: "For six years now I have been working on the building up of German defense. Over 80 milliards (20 billion marks) have been spent on the building up of those defense forces."

Measured under any reasonable exchange rate this would exceed the total gold reserves held in the United States. It was so large a part of the total national income of Germany as to materially lower the living and social standards of that nation or any nation attempting to meet them on a defensive armament basis. It explains the literalness of Goering's blunt demand of bullets instead of butter.

Punitive System

In a peace period only a government organized on force rather than on consent could have accepted the drastic deprivations compelled by this war spending policy. Under these conditions, there was established a combination of the punitive system of the middle ages harnessed to modern machine technology with the individual subject to the will of the dictator.

Something of these sinister changes are known to us through the news carried in the daily press and in broadcasts. But how many realize that the social gains that have been won through years of effort are being ruthlessly swept aside?

It is not only political leadership is conquered democracies that is being liquidated. Labor leaders meet the same fate. Trade unions and employers' organizations, as well as parliaments, have been destroyed. Collective bargaining in conquered territory has ceased to exist. Hour regulations have been completely broken down. Wage rates have been reduced. The cost of living has increased while the standard of living of the masses of working men and women has been progressively lowered.

In attempting to suggest something of what the war has done and is doing to labor in Europe, it is necessary to look back for a moment to the situation that existed before the war. While the aggressor nations were building their war machines, the democratic states worked to maintain the civil liberties of their people and to raise the workers' standard of living.

Much has been accomplished toward the realization of those objectives. A moderate but steady increase in national income and in the volume of wages, a more equal distribution of purchasing power due to social security and public welfare measures—all bear witness to the preoccupations of the democratic countries of continental Europe until war forced change. Until then, little by little, through untiring effort, these countries had erected a social structure protecting the decency and dignity of man.

This structure included the limitation of hours of work in industry and commerce, the protection of working women and children, the protection of health and safety of workers, compensation for industrial accidents and occupational diseases, a system of old age pensions and pensions for widows and orphans of deceased workers, the arbitration of industrial disputes and the determination of labor conditions by collective bargaining. Membership in the International Federation of Trade Unions, the largest international organization of workers, numbered in 1939, twenty-one million.

Destroyed Trade Unions

This situation has been completely changed by the invader.

There has been complete destruction of the trade union movement in Germany, Austria, and Czechoslovakia and in the conquered democracies. All that the free trade union movement has stood for—the right of being heard, the right of consultation, the right to negotiate—has been abolished. These rights were consecrated by the constitution of the international labor organization established in 1919 to promote social justice.

In Great Britain the last bulwark of democracy in the old world, the organized workers have accepted freely, spontaneously, and in common accord with their employers, compulsory arbitration and the outlawing of strikes and lockouts for the duration of the war. Their action is based on their knowledge that today with them all things depend on the strength of national defense. British union workers have themselves recommended the adoption of the emergency powers defense act which grants the most drastic authority a free people has ever conferred upon its government.

This authority includes power to control all persons and all property, to conscript labor and regulate conditions of employment, to control banking and finance and to impose an excess profits tax of 100 per cent. The secretary of labor and national service has been charged with the creation of a new arbitration board to adjudicate disputes on working conditions.

On the outcome of the present struggle between Great Britain and Nazi Germany depends the future of labor and the labor movement in Europe. If Britain fails, the whole of western and central Europe will pass under a totalitarian rule that will obliterate the gains made in one hundred and fifty years of struggle and sacrifice, and place the American worker in the frontline of defense.

Pup Dozes Peacefully As Argument Rages

Miami, Fla., Aug. 30.—(AP)—A tiny pup dozed peacefully in city court while his ownership was argued before a perplexed judge who finally told the contestants to go to a higher tribunal.

Mrs. Lena Jones, 25, declared the dog was her own little "Fluffy" five months old. R. C. Bradley insisted the pup was six weeks old and none other than his dog, "Gypsie."

The case landed in court yesterday after Bradley charged that Mrs. Jones had taken the dog from his small brother-in-law when the lad carried it out to show her.

Mrs. Jones said she did take the dog, but she'd swear he was "Fluffy," who disappeared from her automobile several weeks before. She insisted the pup would answer to the name "Fluffy." Bradley scoffed at the idea. The pup slept on.

Finally, Judge Jack R. Kirchik dismissed the charge against Mrs. Jones and suggested that a civil action be started to settle the question.

The pup, still asleep, was turned over to the Humane Society until his ownership is decided.

The Poet's Column

Soldier, Sailor, Or Marine

We're not ashamed of our uniform,
And if you're an army friend,
Never say a word against it,
The man inside to offend.
It has covered honest bodies,
And by heroes has been worn,
Since the early dawn of nation,
When the stars and stripes were born.

Uniforms have many patterns,
Some are Khaki, some are blue,
And the men that wear them
Are of many patterns too.
Some are sons of wealthy parents,
Some are college graduates,
Some are many manly virtues,
Some are reprobates.

We have many skilled mechanics,
Men of letters, men of brains
Men who bravely serve, their country and are flouted for their pains.
None are angels, some are blackguards? Yes, we have a few of those,
Who are now about the same
As when they wore civilian clothes.

A square deal is all we ask for,
We'll appreciate it more
Than a lot of noisy cheering,
When we're leaving for the war
For we have an honored calling,
As our garments plainly show,
You may be a saint, or sinner
How on earth are we to know?

We don't care about your money
Or what your father used to do,
When you're looking at a soldier
He is looking back at you.
Whose the one to judge between us,
As we stand there man to man?
Only one, the Great Almighty, name another if you can.

Drop your proud and haughty bearing and egotistic pride;
Get acquainted with the soldier, sailor or marine,
With the heart and soul inside
Test and try to analyze him,
Criticise him through and through
And you'll very likely find him
Just as good a man as you.

Sent in by wife of one, army, and mother of the other, navy.
Mrs. Frances Hunt.

Hartford, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The deadline for compulsory inspection of motor vehicles was extended to Wednesday, Sept. 4, today by Motor Vehicles Commissioner Michael A. Connor.

The extension, from Saturday at 6 p. m., was announced in view of the rain today which threatened to continue through tomorrow and prevent operation of the inspection lanes during the last two days of the period.

Open Until 6 p. m.

The lines will not be open Sunday and Monday, Labor Day, but will be open to 6 p. m. each day until the final day. Cars in line at 6 p. m. will be accommodated, Commissioner Connor said, which he believes will mean that the lanes will be operated until about 8:30 p. m.

From 12,000 to 15,000 motorists of the state, he estimated, have failed to have their cars submitted to the compulsory inspection. Suspension of their automobile registration hangs over the heads of motorists who fail to have their cars inspected by the deadline, but it was intimated that where excuses are reasonable and valid, mercy will season justice.

Peak of Season Near For Flea Infestations

New Haven, Aug. 30—The peak of the season for flea complaints comes immediately after Labor Day. Vacationers, returning to their homes which have been closed for part of the summer, find them heavily infested with fleas. Already numerous inquiries have been received by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station in New Haven for control of these perennial pests. In reply the Station sends out Circular 97, "Fleas and Their Control" by H. H. Walden, Assistant Entomologist. This is available to anyone requesting it.

The reason for heavy infestation of fleas in houses is the presence of pet animals, either cats or dogs. Under normal conditions cats and dogs have a few fleas but they never seem to cause very much trouble either to the animals or to the members of the household. While the animals are in the house, the fleas stay on their bodies. However, when they leave the house for a short period of time with their owners, outbreaks of fleas may start from the animals' infested bedding. The insects hatch from the eggs dropped in the bedding and multiply in the empty house. Fleas can live without food for more than a month. It is also known that some fleas can find sufficient food in the cracks and crevices of apparently clean houses.

There are two ways to rid a house of fleas. One of them is to use five pounds of flake naphthalene for each ordinary sized room. Scatter the naphthalene on the floor and leave the room closed for 24 hours. At the end of this time the naphthalene can be swept up and used in another room. This is a safe, effective remedy and very cheap. However, the fumes of naphthalene are somewhat annoying and it is best to use the material only when the windows of the rooms not being fumigated can be left open. Another method is the use of an ordinary household fly spray such as is used according to directions on the can, they usually are successful. This means treating the windows and doors of the infested room and spraying from one-half, pint to a quart of the spray in each infested room according to its size. Then the windows and doors should be left closed for at least an hour after spraying.

The bed on which the animal slept before its removal should be either thoroughly sprayed or washed in soap and hot water, or the bedding should be destroyed.

SERIAL STORY

LOVE ON THE LINE

BY PAUL FRIGGENS

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Cast Of Characters
CARRIE LANE—an eastern girl who came into the frontier west to find a home.
MARK DEUEL—a homesteader who keeps his business to himself.
ASHTON OAKS—a land agent, with town lots to sell.

YESTERDAY: Carrie is terrified after the shooting. Mark laughs it off, says Newt Gale took care of Oaks all right. But Carrie is worried about him. As he walks back to his room, Newt Gale warns him to look out for the land agent.

CHAPTER V

The Taylors left Sioux Springs early. Carrie joined them after a hearty breakfast at Ma Parmley's. The wagon was piled high with supplies, most for Carrie's claim. She sat between Mrs. Taylor and Ed, perched up in front of the wagon.

The wagon, grinding deep into dry purple earth, rolled up a choking cloud of dust. Afraid, Carrie could see still other wagons, and behind them Mark's wagon, some dusty street was alive with running, creaking freighters and every conceivable homesteader outfit.

Carrie would never forget that morning. The sun beat down mercilessly, she thought, and she was glad that Mr. Parmley had warned her to wear her biggest bonnet. Mrs. Taylor was too busy, Ed Taylor, busy driving, didn't say much except to note the powdery dryness of the land.

"Seems," Ed said, "as if this is about the dryest spell I've seen in a long time. Little rain would sure help this here prairie grass. Look at how brown it's getting now."

It was brown. Carrie sat there, bumping along, staring at the seared grass as far as her eyes could reach, and thought, with a shudder, it was almost hot enough to burn. She noticed, however, grass was green in the bottom lands when Ed Taylor whipped his team of grays across Rock Creek an hour before noon and pulled up at Carrie's claim. While Mrs. Taylor got out their lunch, he unloaded supplies stacked there near the oddly site. Then they sat down and ate as Carrie never remembered eating before.

The Taylors drove on to their own claim, a mile distant, after eating, promising Carrie to return early for her that afternoon.

"Might as well come with us now," big Ed said, "until we get straightened around. Not much you can do here alone till we put up that soddy." But Carrie refused, saying she might as well get used to being on a homestead alone, that she wanted to get the "feel" of her land.

Carrie waved goodby to the Taylors, standing there on her stack of supplies, and was thankful that such people lived. She watched them down the knoll and out of sight beyond the green along Rock Creek. She was turning back to survey the things Taylor had unloaded when she saw a lone figure driving across the creek in a buggy toward her claim.

Instantly she was excited. She did not have long to wait. The visitor was Ashton Oaks. Carrie recognized him with a sudden fear, which she could not wholly disguise as he drove up.

Oaks, affable, immaculate in his cutaway and black hat, jumped down from the buggy, greeted Carrie effusively.

"Well, well," he said, surveying the pile of homestead stocks. "Looks like you're going to do it up right. Building and everything."

"That's exactly it," said Carrie. "The Taylors hauled out the last load today and this afternoon or tomorrow we begin on the soddy. I can't wait to get it finished and move in."

"That drove out from town," Oaks went on pleasantly, leaning leisurely against the side of his buggy. "Pretty busy. You homesteaders certainly can stir up the dirt." He laughed and Carrie Lane suddenly had the feeling of being stared from head to foot.

"Where there's dust, there's action," Carrier retorted. "Why, you won't know this country in six months, Mr. Oaks," using the formal words Oaks had used on the ride out to Rock Creek two days before.

"That's right. That's right," Oaks bowed and laughed again, pulling back the black hat to wipe his forehead. "I'm glad you mentioned that. That's why I'm out here today."

"What do you mean Carrie asked.

"Seriously now, Miss Lane," Oaks went on, "you're not going to settle out here on Rock Creek and live in a sod house, alone."

Carrie thought he emphasized the word "alone," though she couldn't be sure. "That's all right for married folks and for men," he went on quickly, "but it's no place for a woman."

"We'll see about all that, Mr. Oaks!" Carrie was suddenly defiant. "Besides you suggested there was opportunity here, yourself."

"There is," Oaks cut in quickly. "Plenty of opportunity, Miss Lane. Plenty. But it's not here in Rock Creek. It's in town. In the town I'm lots. Lots in Sioux Springs and Laurel and Salem and a dozen other towns along the railroad."

"What railroad?" Carrie couldn't resist the temptation to ask, remembering Mark's interruption in the hotel.

Oaks colored so deeply that for a minute Carrie wished she had not reminded him of the encounter with Mark in the hotel lobby. But he laughed quickly recovered.

"Miss Lane. I don't know this man Deuel, whoever or whatever he is, but I do know the railroad is coming. As your friend, I'd like you to be ready for it."

He stepped away from the buggy, came closer to Carrie, resting one foot on the pile of tin roofing while he talked. Instinctively, Carrie drew slightly back, sensing for the first time the real measure of the man.

"Miss Lane, I understand you have a little money you might well invest out here. I'm prepared to invest that money for you, invest it in good, sound real estate in Sioux Springs or in any other town out here you like."

He reached into his pocket, produced an elaborate lithograph, spread it out before Carrie. It pictured a "State Capital of Tomorrow" with broad streets and humming river and railroad traffic.

"Miss Lane," Oaks pressed on, "the capital must be located in Grove City. Look, hundreds of lots have been sold there already." He produced further evidence of lot transactions. "People are coming west on every train out of Chicago. In six months it will be too late to get in on this. You don't need to homestead out here one hour."

Oaks stopped. Carrie Lane was not listening. She was looking toward Rock Creek and the wavering sleygrass and the rolling plains beyond. She turned back, with a look of definite defiance.

"Mr. Oaks, I'm sorry, but I think you'd better drive on."

Oaks flushed. He turned back to the buggy, picked up the reins, but he held them a minute. And then he bowed ever so slightly and smiled, a dark, insinuating smile. "I suppose Mr. Deuel is to blame for this." He nodded his head. "In that case I don't think you or Mr. Deuel either have heard the last from me."

He climbed back into his buggy, reached for his long, black whip. "It might be a good thing to remember, Miss Lane, that pretty girls sometimes get mixed up in things out here a lot more than they want to." He cracked his whip and the buggy rolled away.

Carrie, trembling, sat down on the pile of lumber and watched him across Rock Creek. It was with a long sigh of relief she saw the Taylor wagon pull through the trees an hour later.

Newt Gale was closing his livery stable at midnight when he glanced in the direction of the darkened land office across the street. A solitary figure crouched in the shadows.

"Um, that's funny now," mused Newt. "This time of night." He walked toward the land office. Suddenly the figure darted down the side of the building and out of sight. But not before Newt Gale recognized the flat-crowned hat and the cutaway coat of Ashton Oaks.

Questions and Answers
(Needs Psychological Help)

Question: "Worried" writes: "I am greatly worried about my older sister. Although we have spent all kinds of money having her examined by various doctors, none of them can find anything wrong with her physically. She refuses to mix with people, says the thought of a social gathering makes her feel like she would like to drop out. She refuses to go anywhere and if we try to coax her to go, she cries. When she is badly upset, she loses her temper. What can we do?"

Answer: Probably the best plan would be to persuade her to consult a psychologist. With sufficient help in the right direction she may possibly find herself capable of returning to a normal enjoyment of life. It is best to insist the aid of psychology if this is at all possible, although some cases of this nature have been known in which a long period of rest and quiet, combined with sensible habits of living, have enabled the patient to return to normal without any specific treatment being used. Her symptoms seem baffling and unnatural to you, because you do not understand them. To a psychologist, there are in no wise unusual.

(Baked Apple)

Question: Susan K. writes: "What is the best way to bake apples?"

Answer: Remove the core. If you wish, you may fill this space with raisins. Bake slowly in order to bring out the natural sweetness. Upon serving, add a dash of whipped cream, or a scoop of ice cream. Blow baking is the secret of flavorful baked apples.

Coroner's Request Filled

Decatur, Ill. —(AP) — Dr. I. V. Gibson, county coroner, asked the sheriff's office to summon witnesses to an inquest he had scheduled. Taking him at his word, they served him with a summons.

Vivien Leigh Weds Laurence Olivier

Santa Barbara, Calif., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh of the films were married early today.

Actress Katharine Hepburn and Garson Kanin, youthful film director, were their attendants.

The ceremony was conducted by Municipal Judge Fred Hatch at San Ysidro Ranch, resort popular with motion picture celebrities, in suburban Montecito.

Other witnesses to the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Weingand, Santa Barbara socialites and long-time friends of the couple, and County Clerk Jack Lewis.

Olivier and Miss Leigh, British film figures who have attained prominence on the American screen, recently were divorced in London by their former spouses.

The Germans hold the rope and twist it whenever they consider the accord is not being carried out.

"TRIFLES MAKE PERFECTION.. AND PERFECTION IS NO TRIFLE"

Michelangelo, according to legend, was busy putting the finishing touches to one of his immortal statues when a friend stopped into his studio and spent some time admiring the work. Several weeks later he called again and found the great man still at his masterpiece.

His friend, looking at the figure, exclaimed, "Dio Mio, have you been idle since I saw you last?"

"By no means," replied the sculptor. "I have retouched this part and polished that; I have softened this feature, and brought out this muscle. I have given more expression to this lip and more energy to this limb."

"But all these are mere trifles," said his friend.

"Perhaps," replied the artist, "but trifles make perfection, and perfection is no trifle."

Recognition of this great truth was probably responsible for making Michelangelo the most renowned artist of all time. And so it has been with outstanding craftsmen through the ages . . . Attention to detail . . . attention to the little things neglected by others have distinguished the leaders from the field.

It may seem a bit far fetched to liken ourselves to Michelangelo . . . yet, there is a similarity in purpose. We at Pinehurst Grocery possess a genius for taking pains with trifles.

A trip behind our meat counters will disclose scores of "little things" we do a little differently, a little better, a little more thoroughly than the ordinary meat market. You will observe the infinite care that is taken in the preparation of every single product: the individual methods of cutting and trimming meat, the high ideals of craftsmanship and strict code of cleanliness that govern the operation of our departments.

Our first concern has never been merely pounds and prices, but the pleasure, satisfaction and gusto our foods bring to the dinner table.

Plan to Attend Women's Meet

Democratic State Ticket To Appear in Body For First Time.

New Haven, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The members of the state Democratic ticket will appear before the public in a body for the first time in the current Connecticut campaign on Sept. 7 when the Connecticut Federation of Democratic Women's Clubs hold a meeting in West Haven.

The nominees met here last night with State Chairman John T. McCarthy of Newtown and National Committeeman David E. FitzGerald of New Haven to map out strategy for the early part of the campaign and all agreed to attend the West Haven meeting.

McCarthy, who described last night's parley as mainly an "acquaintance" meeting, said plans for the formation of a speakers' bureau and invitations to the various members to speak at party rallies were considered.

Maloney Absent

Absent from the meeting was U. S. Senator Francis T. Maloney, a candidate for reelection, who was kept in Washington by Senate business.

All the meeting were State Public Works Commissioner Robert A. Hurley, the gubernatorial nominee; Prof. Odell Shepard of Hartford, candidate for the lieutenant governor; Dr. Frank M. Anastasio of New Haven, nominee for treasurer; John M. Dowe of Danbury, seeking the comptroller post; Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse of New London, candidate for secretary of state; and Lucian Maciora of New Britain, candidate for congressman-at-large.

Early Frost No Hindrance To Home Canning Plans

Hartford, Aug. 30—Connecticut housewives who are starting their annual heavy canning program of tomatoes, peaches and pears are advised in a statement issued today by the State Department of Agriculture not to be alarmed by the frost damage reports of early in the week and fear of a tomato famine resulting. The statement by the Agricultural Department points out that first reports of the amount of damage which crops suffered last Sunday morning were too ominous. That later checkups proved he total injury suffered by tender vegetables and other crops was widespread but in most cases too slight to materially reduce the total potential canning supply.

Market offerings of a number of our midsummer vegetables have been reduced the past few days, the Department points out, but this was the result of cool unfavorable growing weather rather than of actual serious damage to the crops. Housewives can count on finding abundant supplies of tomatoes for canning for the next week or two, possibly longer, if September, unless we experience an even more serious cool temperature within a week or so, the statement continues.

Such popular pickling and preserving items as cucumbers, peppers, beets and onions are in continuing abundant supply at present.

Prices are very favorable when compared with those of last year.

Hopes to Sell Oil To Belligerents

Mexico City, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Mexico turned a hopeful eye toward European belligerents today as possible customers for her oil industry in the belief their reserves are running low.

Vincente Cortes Herrera, general manager of the industry which the government expropriated from foreign companies, expressed this belief in a statement to the Mexican people and to the Petroleum Workers Union. He said foreign sales must be increased "to avoid the ruin of the industry."

The union has opposed economies which President Cardenas ordered in a reorganization of the industry.

Monthly sales since the 1938 expropriation have declined from $2,100,000 to $300,000, Cortes Herrera said, although internal sales have increased 20 per cent.

National Guard News

By Danny Shea

Company Commanders of the Connecticut National Guard units received notification today from Brig. General Howe, Adjutant General, that "National Guard Veterans' Day" will be held at the New York World's Fair on Sunday, September 29th. The event is sponsored by the Associated National Guard and Naval Militia Veteran Organizations of the United States. The feature program to be held at the Court of Peace will be entitled, "On Guard with the Guardsmen." Tickets for the affair may be purchased at the association's headquarters, Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City.

Pvt. James Brennan of the K Guards, who has been convalescing in the Plattsburg hospital since the Guards returned home from camp, is expected to arrive in town today. The ticket was forwarded from the Hartford State Armory yesterday afternoon at the request of the hospital authorities.

Members of the local Guards were glad to hear today that their Battalion Commander during the recent encampments, Major Frederick Reinecke, has received orders to appear before an examining board for a promotion to Lieutenant Colonel. Major Reinecke is expected to succeed the late Colonel Williams.

K Company today brought their Immunization Record up to date, and all members that are not now protected by innoculation and vaccination, are expected to be taken care of in the near future by the surgeon of the 169th Infantry, Major Dow, who has received their "shots" during the New York encampment.

The United Aircraft Corporation announced today that only 20 out of the 123 Guardsmen employed in their corporation are "key men." The plans to send the 43rd Division to Fort Benning, Ga., in October or November still remains unchanged, it was announced yesterday.

Of interest to local Guards is the following description of the Regimental Insignia, which will soon be worn for twelve consecutive months. Here's what it stands for:

Shield: (White) for Infantry; saltire: (Civil War service, fleur-de-lis: World War service, lion, Revolutionary War service, motto (Armis Stant Legis); Laws are maintained by force of arms.

This insignia was approved by Major General Connecticut on March 2, 1927, and has been in active use since that date.

For the convenience of men wishing to sign up with the K Guards, the Company office will be open this evening at the State Armory.

Laying Gas Mains In Town's Streets

Men from Hartford's office of the gas company are working in Manchester laying new mains and laterals for new houses that have been erected, or are under construction in different parts of the town. At present they are employed in Westwood street and when this work is completed they will go to St. John, Oak, Haynes and Ann streets. All of these lines are extensions of mains already there. The greater amount of mains to be laid in these streets is in the Oak street section.

The company is also planning to lay new mains and laterals on Rummil street, but this can not be done until the fill has been made around several of the houses that are being constructed on the street. The mains have already been laid through Woodbridge street where Greenway Park development is underway and where 15 houses are being built along Woodbridge street. Laterals will be laid into the new houses and when other houses are erected in the other part of the development, mains will be laid in the new streets.

Baseball May Be Hit Hard by Conscription

Major Leagues Won't Dodge Draft, Declares Clark Griffith; Many Star Players Eligible.

Washington, Aug. 30— (AP)— Clark Griffith, baseball's unofficial ambassador to Washington, refused to dodge the draft issue today—he spoke up and said the national pastime was ready to do its part for national defense.

"Baseball," said the man who is credited with encouraging such greats of the game as Christy Mathewson and George Sisler to don khaki in the World War, "will do what the country wants. We're all ready. Why, by gin, at my age I'm ready, too, if they want me."

A blanket draft of men in the 21 to 30 age group would hit about deplete the ranks of today's big leagues, if all of them were taken. This, of course, is improbable, but some of the game's outstanding performers undoubtedly may go into uniform if the conscription bill is enacted.

Bad Daily Drills

Back in the World War Griffith virtually saved the major and minor league from shutting down. He did it by convincing Newton Secretary of War Baker, but getting the jump on the draft board.

Under the direction of Army sergeants all of the big league teams underwent a strenuous course for drills and then put on public drills before every ballpark.

"They use bats instead of guns," said Griffith. "But let me tell you they were in shape and ready when really had a four months start on the fellows who hadn't been to camp."

When the work-or-fight order came down in July, 1917, the old fox explained, he reminded Baker that the ball players had had drilling for four months, and asked him to wait until September for the players.

Baker said he realized the first months in camp were spent in conditioning and drilling and agreed to the suggestion.

"But," said Griffith, "if the secretary had asked me, I would have called off that afternoon's game and done whatever was wanted. That's the way we all felt at the time. If they want us tomorrow, we're ready and I hope they find a spot for me."

Griffith said he recognized the fact that conscription probably would not interfere with the 1940 baseball season, but he said there are some plans for spring training and the regular 1941 season.

Eligible Players

Barring exemptions other than for age, the National League would have eligible, under the conscription bill as passed by the Senate the following stars:

Bucky Walters, Johnnie Mize, Frank McCormick, Joe Medwick, Arkie Vaughan, Lee Allen, Morris Rasma Rowell, Elbie Fletcher, Augie Galan, Phil Cavarretta, Harry Danning, Don Padgett, Ernie Koy, John Rizzo, Mortie Arnovich, Dixie Walker, Max West, Vince Di Maggio, Mort Cooper, Cliff Melton, Harry Dumbert, Kirby Higbe, John Lanning, Bill Lohrman and Hugh Mulcahy, among others.

American League stars, within the age limit would include:

Joe and Dom DiMaggio, Bob Feller, Al Milnar, Lefty Gomez, Rudy York, Taft Wright, Ted Williams, Schoolboy Rowe, John Rigney, Frank Hayes, Charley Keller, Buddy Rosar, Cecil Travis, Red Ruffing, Ken Keltner, George McQuinn, Mike Kreevich, Barney McCosky, Hal Trasky, Hank Greenberg, Babe Dahlgren and Joe Gordon.

Paul Derringer, Reds—Kept batters hits scattered in downing Dodgers.

Bill McGee, Cardinals—Shut out Giants with two-hit pitching.

Babe Dahlgren, Joe DiMaggio and Frank Crosetti, Yankees—Dahlgren hit three singles toward first game victory over Browns; DiMaggio pinch-homered with two on in ninth inning of nightcap, tying the score, and Crosetti laid down squeeze bunt with bases loaded in 13th to win game.

Dale Garns and Bob Elliott, Pirates—Each made three hits as Pittsburgh beat Phillies.

Bill Posedel, Bees—Held Cubs to five hits.

Bobby Doerr, Red Sox—Batted in two of Boston's four runs against White Sox.

He commented that the agreement proved "mutually satisfactory" this year.

Einar Anderson

Einar "Ricky" Anderson, Manchester Country Club pro, turned in a pair of par-busting scores this week and one of them squalled the course record of 66, which he established a year ago. Par is 70 for the local 18-hole layout, so Anderson was four shots under perfect figures in his best effort, while on the other round he turned in a 69. He matched par on 14 holes and collected four birdies, three of them in row, shaving two strokes off par on both the outward and homeing nine. His card against par:

Crams Scores Tennis Upset

Downs Sapienza in Straight Sets; Sinnamon Also Gains Win.

A mild upset took place in the town tennis tourney last night when D. Crams, ranked upon as a darkhorse entry, turned back Rosario Sapienza in straight sets by scores of 6-3, 6-3. In the other match played, Bill Sinnamon, champion of the last tourney in 1936, trounced Ken Wallace by 6-0, 6-3.

With five players left in the net event, three matches are scheduled to produce the finalists. Crams is slated to oppose Carl Bissell for the right to enter the finals, while "Cap" Bissell meets Alvin Yulyes with the winner of this encounter going up against Sinnamon for the other berth in the finals. Players are asked to get in touch with each other as soon as possible in order that play may be completed over the week-end.

Bob Feller Still Learning to Hurl

Philadelphia, Aug. 30—(AP)—Cleveland and their ace hurler, Bob Feller, are in a tough spot, they agree—the Indians at the top of the American League and Feller with 22 victories under his belt.

But Bobby figures he's still learning and expects to profit from mistakes in the current campaign.

"Certainly experience is the difference between my 1939 and 1940 records," said Feller yesterday as he packed to leave for Chicago. "I fellow who has a high, hard one and a good curve just rears back and throws, but there is more to this business than throwing.

"I can look back on last season and pick out games where I made glaring mistakes. Naturally, I'm not making those same errors this year.

"But next season I'll look back on this one and pick out different mistakes. . . . It's the price you pay for youth but I'm satisfied I learn something every day, realizing eventually I'll reduce my mental errors to the minimum."

Bobby, nearing his 22nd birthday, is firmly convinced that a pitcher reaches his peak at 29 or 30 years of age. "When a pitcher begins losing his fast ball he becomes a better pitcher," he said. "You then have to depend on your knowledge and experience."

12th Victory Won By Pat Vendrillo

Pat Vendrillo scored the 12th straight triumph of his flatic career last night at Thompsonville when he stopped Dick Howard of Springfield on a technical knockout in the third round after a hard fought battle in which both boys swapped punches with abandon. The outcome was expected after trifying to the local boy as Howard was 40 pounds heavier and shy earlier this month to hold Vendrillo to a decision.

Pat has won ten of his starts by the kayo route and the other two bouts by decision. Pat Vendrillo, Sr., announced today that he was taking his entire stable to Thompsonville next Thursday night, including Billy Farr, who has been out of action all summer while serving as councillor in a Massachusetts camp.

Texas Aggies Back in Full Force To Carry on Bone-Crushing Attack

By Felix R. McKnight
AP Feature Service

College Station, Texas, — Old-timers, listing three All-America personalities, return this fall to take up their old chores along the eleven positions of 1939's crack football juggernaut—the Texas Aggies.

The massive undefeated Rose Bowl kings, "Jarrin' John Kimbrough, All-American fullback, at the helm, return to do duel a box that has never been overcome down here in the Southwest—win the Southwest Conference title two years running.

Not in the 25-year-history of the league, however, has such an able crew returned for a second successive whack at the title.

Nine of the eleven positions will be manned by regulars of the nation's No. 1 team of last season; the other two spots will be plugged by gentlemen who seldom more than half-time at the same job last year.

The team that closed a breathless season by handling Tulane 14-13, in the Sugar Bowl game, the team that mixed Kimbrough's shocking speed and power with cunning pass plays; the team that turned one of the nation's tidiest defensive records, by permitting the team to heat again—traditions notwithstanding.

Tough Games Away

But everything points against such a feat. Three of the toughest games—Southern Methodist, Baylor and Texas—must be played on enemy soil. The Southwest Conference, down to the weakest sister, revels in gunning for the favorite, and defending champion.

Too, possible military conscription would wreck the Aggies. The RCTC trained footballers, veterans that they are, have had two years' military training and are liable for immediate service under these contracts. But conscription could wreck any college team.

Coach Dana Bonnet, baldpated master of the big powerhouse, muses:

Conscription doesn't worry me insofar as it affects my team. If the national emergency becomes so grave as to demand conscription, then football will become very Unimportant to me."

Strictly on its talent, other possibilities tossed out, here is what the Aggies have:

Kimbrough, the All-American fullback, amazingly fast for all of his 212 pounds and the battering ram of a great ground game, plus a power on defense behind the line.

Guard Marshall Foch Robnett, vicious 205-pounder who made The Associated Press second All-American team.

Blocking Back James Thomason, 200-pounder who came close to being the first blocking back to win an All-America post, even honorable mention on The Associated Press list.

Veteran ends Bill Buchanan and Jim Sterling; veterans tackle Ernest Pannell; veteran guard Charles Henke; veteran centers Tommie Vaughn and Odell Herman, splitting the veteran backs Kimbrough, Derace Moser, Thomas Wild Bill Conatser, one of the nation's great punters, and Marion Pugh.

Watch Webster

Eight of the eleven positions are backed up by lettermen; the other three have brilliant sophomore substitutes. Frankly, sophomore Jack Webster gave Kimbrough a terrific run for his money in the spring drills and Hosts Simmons, a six foot, four inch ineligible last season, pushed Buchanan at left end. In his freshman year he caught Texas' famed Cowboy Sam Crain from behind when the scooter was worn on one of his many long scoring dashes.

Actual losses off the '39 team include little Herbie Smith, 160-pound end who played the magnificent game in the Sugar Bowl; Tackle Joe Boyd, who made the AP's third All-American team, and Walemon (Cotton) Price, canny quarterback.

Southern Methodist, with its great array of backs headed up by Preston Johnson, one of the finest punters in Southwest history; Baylor, with its destructive native team, and possibly Texas, with its Cowboy Jack Crain thrust and a year's experience for last year's youngsters, loom as the chief challengers to the Aggies.

But down at Rice Institute, where dreaming Jess Neely of Clemson fame is starting his first year, they're talking dangerously and Texas' Christian has in Kyle Gillespie, spectacular junior, a mate Coach Dutch Meyer rates the equal of Slingin' Sam Baugh and Davey O'Brien at the same stage of their careers. Arkansas will be big and powerful, but shy on ball carriers.

Green Bay Pros Stage Dazzling Air Barrage As Don Hutson Shines

Veteran End Leads Money Players to Victory with Amazing Performance; Winners Collect 315 Yards on 11 Passes.

By Tom Siler

Chicago, Aug. 30—(AP)—Now the college boys know only too well why the Green Bay Packers and their unexcelled end, Don Hutson, are the scourge of the National Football League.

The All-Stars, 49 players seasoned by four years of college football, moved into Soldier field last night, forewarned and presumably forearmed for the prowess of the pro gridsters, . . . two rich Jersey Irishmen, interested in young Pat Comiskey, are willing to pay angels in his new fistic ventures. . . . Joe Berry, Notre Dame's great freshman center, is on an appointment to Annapolis and notified Elmer Layden he'll be playing his last game for the Navy bench. . . . the way North Carolina's gridsters are getting the Duke heat Tennessee, you'd think they were using the Duke millions.

Today's Great Star

Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune: "Quotation from Casey Stengel: 'We are about to show our teeth to the Cubs too . . . save us a couple of those Bear teeth for our watch charm, Casey.'"

Names and news: Glenn Seidel is giving up his coaching job at Tulane after this year to go into business in Minnesota. Everybody out there wishes it were the quarterbacking business, for he spanked the Gophers to grid greatness a few years back. . . . Sec Taylor, Lehigh's new prexy, is a Sports Register, who has been football officiating since 1920. . . . made his farewell bow in the Chicago all-star game last night. . . . Ernest Hill, the captain of the Packers in the same period when a Kinnich-McFadden aerial settled it.

But Hutson still hasn't finished his amazing performance. Will-way in the third period he took a 17-yard bullet pass from Herber and romped 12 more yards to Green Bay's fifth touchdown. The All-Stars, however, marvelous spirit again cracked the Packers. Schindler climaxing a 46-yard attack by smacking the line for a touchdown.

Packers Cut Loose.

Thus threatened, the Packers cut loose again from their own 20, running and passing to the All-Stars' 25 where Paul Engebretsen booted a field goal. Just to polish off the night's work Lebell sparked another drive and rounded right end for the final score.

In the course of the evening Hutson pass gains exceeded 150 yards. Herber Day collected 315 yards in 11 completed tosses out of 22. Each team made nine first downs, the Packers gaining only 34 net yards rushing.

The record crowd paid $178,837 to see the game. The sum, less expenses, will be donated to three Chicago charities by the Chicago Tribune, originator and sponsor of the game.

Crosetti's Bunt Tallies Winning Run in 13th After DiMaggio's 3-Run Homer in Ninth.

By Judson Bailey

There is something catching about the New York Yankees' spurt.

They've already captured fans' imaginations with a thrilling drive that has bagged 10 victories in their last 11 games, and they're liable to catch the leading Indians and the Detroit Tigers, if the latter clubs don't watch out.

In an entire stand against the four clubs in the western division, the only game the Yankees dropped was a 1-0 squeeze-out to the Chicago White Sox. They polished off the St. Louis Browns, 10-3 and 6-5, in a doubleheader yesterday to show once more why they've been world champions four years, and may be for a fifth.

Ten-Run Outburst

They reeled off ten runs in one merry-go-round inning to overwhelm the groggy Browns in the first game, and in the second they rallied three times to emerge triumphant in the 13th.

With two out and two on in the ninth, Joe DiMaggio, who had been on the bench with a charley horse, went to the plate and smacked Elden Auker's first pitch for his 28th homer to tie the score. George McQuinn put the Brown back in front with a home run in the 11th, but again the Yanks deadlocked the count on Charley Keller's double and Buddy Rosar's single. Finally in the 13th, with two out and the bases loaded, Frank Crosetti caught the Brownies napping with a perfect bunt down the third-base line and squeezed the winning run home.

The victory reduced the idle Indians' margin over them to 4 1-2 games.

It didn't get them any closer to second place, however, because the Tigers were busy in their own backyard, mowing down the Washington Senators in a doubleheader, 5-2 and 6-3, to advance within two games of the lead.

Rowe Pitches

Schoolboy Rowe, nearly as good a bateman as he is a pitcher, doubled the deciding run across in the first game for his 12th victory. Buck Newsom notched his 17th in the nightcap, shrieked to six innings by darkness. Hank Greenberg helped out with a homer in each game, bringing his season total to 26.

In the only other American League game, the Boston Red Sox were handed a 4-3 decision by Johnny Rigney, who walked Joe Cronin with the bases loaded in the ninth.

The National League bunting has been more or less generally recorded to the Cincinnati Reds for some time, but twofold development yesterday came close to clinching it.

First, Harry Lavagetto, star third baseman of the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers, underwent an appendectomy and, second, the Reds raided the Dodgers, 8-3, in a rain-drenched game. The Dodgers were helpless before the newfit hurling of Paul Derringer, bagging his 17th victory, and a 13-hit assault on five pitchers. This which staggered the Hamdenite Hartford, Aug. 30—(AP)—The best heavyweight fight Connecticut has seen in years is the way 4,200 fans are today describing Nathan Mann's successful defense of his New England title against Larry Lovett, stout-hearted Hartford negro.

The Hamden Hammerer sent Lovett to the canvas five times last night in the main attraction at Bulkeley stadium before the challenger appeared sufficiently rejuvenated to have Referee Louis (Kid) Kaplan raise Nate's hand in the tenth round in token of a technical knockout victory.

Lovett, who came to Connecticut from his native Florida only a short time ago, made a host of friends by his courageous stand against Mann's thudding gloves. Despite the fact that he often appeared hurt and dazed, Lovett continued to get to his feet and play a tattoo with a rapier left

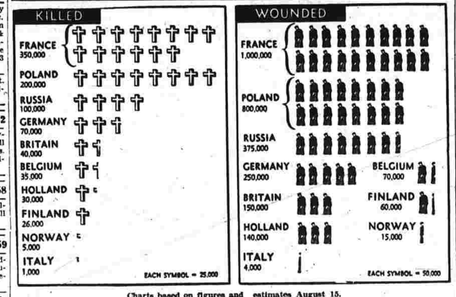
One Year Of War
(and what it has meant to the world)



Charts based on figures and estimates August 15.

By Morgan M. Beatty
AP Feature Service Writer

Strike a balance on the first anniversary of the new World war, and you're deep in bloody bookkeeping!

Already 800,000 human begins have worn the uniforms of their nations to death and three million more have been wounded.

Those are conservative estimates based on official communiques and adjusted to the U. S. army's unofficial mortality tables for modern warfare.

Nor do these totals account for civilian casualties, in themselves astronomic.

Take hapless Rotterdam as an index. One-third of that Dutch city was destroyed by German high explosives in 20 minutes. Perhaps 100,000 persons died in that worst holocaust of its kind in all time.

Eight Million Homeless

Mechanized warfare and the conflicting crusades of races, creeds and nationalities have created homeless refugees at the most staggering rate known to civilization. More than 8,000,000 Europeans have been forced out on the high roads—7,000,000 in France alone.

Precious property accumulations of lifetimes—centuries, have vanished. A gruesome index is the collective loss at sea. More than 800 vessels have gone down, accounting for 3,000,000 tons of ships and cargo. With them went approximately 7,000 lives.

All this has happened since Adolf Hitler's juggernauts cranked up a year ago September 1 and started into Poland.

All this has happened—and infinitely more.

Turn To Berlin Or Moscow

In 365 brief days the little Austrian corporal has become the most feared man of our time.

With the pact of Josef Stalin and Benito Mussolini, he has changed the courses of nearly a score of nations and fragments of nations.

More than 185,000,000 people have turned their faces toward Berlin or Moscow. Some 34,000,000 of these are now breaking their necks trying to face both ways at once.

Under the muzzles of guns, zones of influence have been widening from Berlin and Moscow. Today they embrace 1,500,000 square miles of Europe alone, an area half the size of the United States.

That's not counting the plans of Italy. Mussolini has hardly dipped in his oar yet, except along a tiny strip of the coast of France.

Craziest Pattern In History

Future historians will inherit from this era the craziest pattern of war in all history. Before them will be the awful scheme of September 1, 1939. Contrast that with the hand-playing, blood-tingling enthusiasm for physical combat when the first World war descended on Europe in 1914.

Then, there was the shabby humor of Britain's tinpan alley, "We're Goin' To Hang Our Washin' On The Seigfried Line." And of course the Germans' hoarse songs of conquest.

All Nations Affected

Nor was this eerie war confined to the continent of Europe. The British blockade and German reprisals, whatever their aims against the enemy, affected the economies of all nations.

In America the effect was electric. The stock market gyrated wildly, and within twelve months the accent of our national economy changed from a peacetime drive to whip the depression into a drive for armaments.

The spending rate for our army and navy was stepped up six-fold to 12 billion dollars annually, despite the national debt of close to 40 billions of dollars.

We called out the national guard by sections and considered conscription. We put on paper a two-ocean navy, convertible into fighting reality by 1945.

Hemisphere Solidarity

We took a broader view of the Monroe doctrine, invited the 20 other American republics to help us enforce it. Oddly enough, they agreed to hemisphere solidarity.

One of the nation's major parties scuttled precedent, nominated a man for a third term in the White House.

J. Edgar Hoover's FBI headed up non-uniformed forces charged with stamping out "fifth columnists." We set out to fingerprint the nearly 4,000,000 aliens in our midst.

And for the first time in many a year, the Congress enacted two pieces of major legislation for national defense—with practically a unanimous vote in both houses.

Large Attendance At Art Exhibition

Members of Mrs. Josephine Hills's art classes exhibited their work to the public in room 13 in the High School building yesterday. There was a goodly attendance of visitors. One of the paintings, a landscape, by Miss Phyllis Hollister of 62 Hollister street, painted in Bolton, was sold. In addition to the paintings, sculptor work done by boys with soap was shown. They had 20 such exhibits.

Mrs. Hills is to form an Art Guild next month to which all local artists will be invited to become members.

New Britain Man Held in Death

New Britain, Aug. 30—(AP)—Holding George H. Goodrich, 38, on a technical charge of breach of the peace, police are investigating the death early today of Raymond Nelson, 33, presumed to have been caused by carbon monoxide poison in an automobile in a garage at 98 Clayton court where both men have lived for several years.

Police Lieut. Michael J. Flynn said Goodrich told him he found Nelson slumped over the wheel of the car about 2 o'clock this morning and dragged him out into the open. Police were called into the case about 3 a. m.

Lieutenant Flynn said police were investigating the relationship between the two men. Goodrich was arraigned in police court on the technical charge and the case continued pending completion of the investigation.

Preferred Reading
For Hole-In-Oners

Seattle—(AP)—Bill Segalla got a hole in one at the 16th at Jefferson Park. He read about it in the paper a day or so later.

The day after he read the item he got a hole in one at No. 15 at the Rainier Golf club.

But he hasn't made any more dodoes since reading about his second hole in one in a week.

An American business man had the nerve to criticize me, so I told the president of the Rotary Club to tell him to get out of the country if he did not like what I had done.

Sarazen Ousts Picard From PGA Links Event

Veteran Upsets Champ In Brilliant Tussle to Enter Quarter-Finals; Hagen Defeated.

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 30— (AP) — Gene Sarazen keeps rolling along, and today a handful of comparatively youngsters still in the running for the 1940 professional golf championship found the veteran campaigner squarely in their path.

Sarazen didn't reach these quarter-finals by a fluke. He shot one of the greatest match rounds of his career to knock out defending P. G. A. champion Henry Picard yesterday.

Hagen Loses Out

In the 16 matches which reduced the field to eight players, none packed more brilliant golf than the Sarazen's nearest rival, Walter Hagen, but the Haig lost and thus ended the hopes of many that these two would defy father time, get to Saturday's semi-finals and meet once more.

It was the young fellows with thick wrists and strong legs who survived the third round, 36-hole matches, by and large. Byron Nelson knocked out Dick Metz, the medalist, 2 and 1; Eddie Kirk conquered Art Clark, 5 and 4; Ben Hogan whipped Al Brosch, 5 and 4; Ralph Guldahl pushed aside Jim Foulis, 5 and 3; Sammy Snead had a breeze with Jimmy Hines, 7 and 6; and Paul Runyan disposed of Ed Dudley, 4 and 3. Hagen bowed to Harold (Jug) McSpaden, 1 up.

Picard, after the Sarazen match, never was more correct than when he walked off the home hole and said, "You've never had a tougher match."

Picard was three down with only three holes to go when he turned on the best golf he knew and closed out with three successive birdies, but the last hole broke his heart. Picard was only two feet away, and Sarazen was seven feet off the pin.

Gene's Putt Wins

Sarazen looked at the crowd, like those that followed him when he won the P.G.A. three times and the U.S. open twice, grinned a bit and without apparently trying rapped the putt down for a deuce and the match.

Picard had the uncomfortable experience of shooting a five-under-par 68 on his home course, yet losing. Sarazen had the same medal score in the second 18 holes of their 36-hole match.

Hagen looked like a success for the day at least when he led McSpaden two up at the end of the first 18 holes. In the afternoon, he gave away one hole, the 13th, however, by acknowledging his club brushed McSpaden's ball in the rough, accidentally. Then he fiddled around on the 16th green for three putts.

The old master tossed in a birdie three on the 17th as his last gallant try, but McSpaden tied it, and so youth was served.

Commanding a good deal of attention by getting sharper as the tournament progressed was Ralph Guldahl, who was four under par against Foulis and closed his match with a pair of birdies. As good from tee to green as they come, Guldahl now is putting like he did when they couldn't beat him at medal play several years ago.

Kirk Big Surprise

Surprise of the Quarter-finals was 30-year-old Eddie Kirk of Farmington, Mich., who never has won a major tournament. He flirted with par to beat Clark and send him back to Uniontown, Pa.

If Hogan had been any hotter finishing his round with Al Brosch, he would have set the course on fire. He scored four birdies on the last five holes.

Japanese Halt German Steamer

Shanghai, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The 1,040-ton German coastal steamer Hanna, with some 20 missionaries aboard, including Americans, returned to Shanghai today after being stopped three times by Japanese warships in trying to reach the port of Kuantao, south of Choklang.

The passengers said the Hanna was halted the first time by a warning shot which landed only 100 yards away.

Japanese officials admitted Kuatao was outside the "forbidden zone" which they are blockading to keep supplies from China, but insisted it would be dangerous for the Hanna to enter the port. They flatly refused to let the missionaries land there.

there's no credit at the store.
I'll manage to get new ones,
though—(I always have before!)
There's scarce enough to eat; it takes so much to feed us four.
The ravens, P'raps may bring some food — (They always have before!)
I dare not look one day ahead.
God! help me, I implore.
To keep expecting something good

Patient (to second patient in waiting room of doctor's office)—How do you do? . . . I'm aching from neuritis.

Second Patient — I'm glad to see you. I'm Jones from Chicago.

Maid—I'm leaving, ma'am.

Mistress (astonished) — But, why, Mary? I can see no reason?

Maid—I can't bear that young man who calls on Miss Ethel.

Mistress—But he doesn't call to see you. You've nothing to complain of.

Maid—Oh, no. The neighbors might think he calls on me!

IF WE CAN BUDGET OUR TIME MAYBE WE CAN SET ASIDE A PORTION—NEVER TO BE EXCEEDED—FOR WORRYING ABOUT OUR TROUBLES.

There are people just like that: The tenant had not paid the rent for his room for several months.

Landlord—Look here! I'll meet you half-way. I am ready to forget half of what you owe me.

Tenant — Right! I'll do my part! I'll forget the other half.

Census Taker—How old are you, madam?

Madam—I'm 25.

Census Taker—Why, anybody might easily say you were five years younger.

Madam—Oh, I've already done that.

Accuracy counts:

Chatty Man—Let's see, your brother went abroad on a fellow ship, didn't he?

Friend—No, it was a cattleship.

This was tragedy for the boy anyhow:

Junior's uncle was visiting at his home, so Junior had to give up his bed to make room for him. One morning at breakfast the uncle said:

Uncle — I must thank the thoughtful person who put the glass of water near my bed. I found it very refreshing when I woke up during the night.

Junior (gasping)—Oh! I'll bet you've swallowed my tadpoles and everything!

ANY WIFE CAN HELP HER HUSBAND IN NO SMALL DEGREE IF SHE CAN KEEP HIM NEAT AND ENCOURAGE HIM TO KEEP REASONABLY WELL DRESSED WITHIN THE LIMIT OF HIS ABILITY TO PAY.

Friend—How long did you know your wife before you married her?

Man—Not a minute. Don't know her yet. Never will know her!

If you wish to be a writer:

After introducing yourself state that you are gathering material for your new novel. Jot down the ideas on your cuffs, from the conversation that follows. If you have no cuffs, jot down the ideas on your shirt. If you have no shirt, everyone present will know you are an author, and there will be no need of introducing yourself.

Gently, he pushed her quivering shoulders back against the chair. She raised beseeching eyes in which faint hope and fear were struggling. From her parted lips, the breath came in short, wrenching gasps. Reassuringly he smiled at her.

Bzzzzz went the dentist's drill.

STORIES IN STAMPS

British Centenary Issue Pictures Two Sovereigns

GREAT BRITAIN departs from philatelic custom by showing two rulers, Victoria and George VI, on the stamp above, commemorating 100 years of penny postage stamps. British issues usually picture only the reigning monarch, although the present Queen Elizabeth was shown on the coronation issue of 1937.

Although the honor of introducing the adhesive postage stamp and penny postage belongs to Victoria, the history of postal service begins with the system organized by Cyrus the Great of Persia in 500 B. C. For more than a thousand years, however, the service was restricted to government communications.

By the Middle Ages, postal service had spread throughout Europe. The first public post in England was put into operation between London and Edinburgh early in the 17th century.

For 200 years the system underwent few changes. Rates varied according to distance, weight of letter. Charges were excessive, service was irregular. Recipients often refused to pay.

Rowland Hill's postal reforms, inaugurated in 1837, produced the postal system that is now worldwide.
