About Town

Manchester Odd Fellows are urged to attend the meeting tonight at 7:45 in Odd Fellows hall, East Hartford, when the third degree will be conferred on a class of candidates by four lodges, Manchester, Rockville, Stafford Springs and East Hartford. This is the first of the proposed district meetings this fall.

Members of Dilworth-Cornell Post, American Legion, who have not been contacted by the committee supervising the Hallowe'en parties and dance this evening are requested to report at the Legion Home early for duty in this connection.

No trustee was named by United States Referee in Bankruptcy Saul Berman in the case of Edmund N. Manning of Manchester, who filed a petition in bankruptcy in which he listed liabilities of $637.20 with no assets at the hearing in Hartford yesterday. He was represented by Judge Raymond R. Bowers. No creditors were listed from Manchester.

Lockhart B. Rogers, son of Mrs. Mabel B. Rogers and nephew of Police Commissioner and former Chairman of the Board of Selectmen Thomas J. Rogers of East Center street received his Master's degree in chemistry from Princeton University last Monday. Lockhart, a graduate of Manchester High school, graduated last June from Wesleyan University with honors.

College Girls Escape Fire

Danville, Va., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Fire starting in the basement of Averett College sent 122 lightly clad girl students to the street at 1:40 a. m. today. Firemen extinguished the blaze after it had destroyed the laundry and storage room. Curtis Bishop, college president, who directed evacuation of the building, said there was no panic. Damage was estimated at $5,000. Firemen were unable to determine the cause of the blaze.

Germans Claim Nine Ships Sunk

Berlin, Nov. 1 —(AP)— German stukas in a punishing, diving attack on a British convoy off Sheerness today sank nine vessels totaling 27,000 tons and scored direct hits on three others, DNB, official German news agency, reported tonight. Another success for the Nazi Air Force over Britain's merchant marine was reported off Great Yarmouth, on the Norfolk coast, where, DNB said, German bombers attacked a convoy which included twenty destroyers, a number of submarines and transports. The bombs each were reported dropped on one destroyer and one merchantman while two other merchantmen were hit.

Bus Drivers Strike Ends.

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A strike of drivers and ticket takers which cancelled schedules of the Greyhound Bus Company between New York and Boston and some points in Maine ended today, and service was scheduled to be resumed immediately, R. J. Myers of the U. S. Labor Department's commissioners office, said points of disagreement between the employes and the management were composed in a settlement "in favor of the union."

Roosevelt Record For Spending Hit In Willkie Speech

Expresses Belief President Has Expended More Government Money Than Any Other Ruler in World During Same Period.

Aboard Willkie Train in New Jersey, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, approaching the end of an 18,000-mile speaking tour, expressed belief today that President Roosevelt had expended more government funds than any other ruler in the world in the same length of time. From a tiny platform in front of the white-pillared court house at New Brunswick, N. J., the Republican presidential nominee declared that his opponent had not lived up to a 1932 platform pledge to cut Federal expenses.

"In eight years the Federal budget never has approached a balance," Willkie asserted. "No man can balance it today, immediately, but worse than that, there is no attempt to balance it and apparently no desire to balance it."

The current defense program, he predicted, would cost 25 or 30 billion dollars before it is completed.

Difference To Average Person

"That cost is going to be piled upon the overwhelming public debt," he continued. Asking what difference this would make to the average person, Willkie said:

"You pay the taxes. Every suit, every hat, every suit of clothes that I see in this crowd is literally saturated with taxes.

"More than that, when the costs of those things are increased, it has a depressing influence on business."

The nominee contended that government fiscal policies also affected "serial gains" of labor. It does no good to have collective bargaining, he asserted, if a man does not have a job to bargain about.

From continued deficit financing, he said, "inevitably come inflation, bankruptcy and chaos and out of the ashes of those things come dictators."

To Burn All Political Literature in Bonfire

Salina, Kas., Nov. 1.—(AP)—All political literature in Salina will be burned in a public bonfire Nov. 6, the night after the election, as a gesture toward national unity.

Ed Laubengayer, president of the sponsoring Junior Chamber of Commerce, explained:

"The president, whether a Republican or a Democrat, will need the united support of the nation. The country can not present a united front to dictators if it is torn by political bickering."

Hot Campaign Heads Toward Home Stretch

Baldwin and Hurley Show No Signs of Running Out of Verbal Ammunition in Drives.

By The Associated Press

Connecticut's scorching political campaign today headed toward the home stretch four days hence with Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, Republican candidate for re-election, and Robert A. Hurley, his Democratic opponent, showing no signs of running out of heavy verbal ammunition.

While the governor was telling young people in Connecticut last night that the New Deal was responsible for holding the "youth of our country paralyzed and helpless and hopeless because of an economic collapse that occurred when they were just children—boys and girls in school," Hurley disclosed further information from a special investigation of Governor Baldwin's new industries and war job claims.

Hurley charged that Governor Baldwin had "played politics with national defense" and with "Connecticut's prosperity and industrial production."

Receives Comptroller's Report

Meantime, the governor announced that he had received Comptroller Fred R. Zeller's report on the state's fiscal operations for the year which ended June 30, 1940, and that it showed a general fund surplus of $1,748,809.18.

Hurley, Governor Baldwin asserted, had predicted that the comptroller's report would be withheld from the public until after next Tuesday's election and yesterday charged that the Democratic candidate had said:

"The comptroller's report is not yet out, and today is the thirtieth. It may will not bring out the report until after the 6th of November.

"Zeller, presenting the first copy of the 246-page report to the governor, ordered that a copy be sent to every daily newspaper in the state immediately, and stated:

"And copies of the report are available in my office if Mr. Hurley wants to see it."

Third Term "Bad Thing"

Paul L. Cornell, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, also spoke, labeling the third term as "a bad thing for America," and stating that "there is no indi-

Found Dead; Murder Seen

Body of Man, Face Half Covered with Lather, Near Door of Store.

Malden, Mass., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Shot through the heart, James Hayes, 60, was found dead in his little variety store early today under circumstances described by Police Lieut. William F. Cronin as indicating murder.

Hayes had been shaving in the suite of rooms he occupied in the rear of the store. The body—the face half-covered with lather—was lying near the store's front door, which was closed. He was dressed in trousers, sweater and shoes. There was a pistol nearby.

Police said they had not learned whether there has been a robbery attempt.

Seek Two Men in Auto

They sought two men in an automobile who accosted three other men about a mile from the store and who said:

"We just saw a man commit suicide in a store at Belmont and Main streets. You can see him through the window."

Nazis Destroy British Planes During Attack

Sprinkle Air Base with Bombs from Low Altitude; Fires Are Seen In Industrial Plants.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Many grounded warplanes were destroyed in a Nazi air attack on a British airdrome, DNB, official German news agency, reported.

Benefitting from extraordinarily good weather in the London region, it said, the raiders sprinkled the British air base with bombs from low altitude and hit several hangars.

DNB said fires were observed also after bombardment of industrial plants in a south coast city.

One British Hurricane fighter was shot down and no German planes were lost in the day's air raids, it said.

Report Far-Flung Successes.

Far-flung successes against Britain's merchant marine, air force and war industries were reported today by the German high command.

It declared that two British planes were shot down yesterday off Norway's west coast, one by a minesweeper and the other in air combat; that a British transport of about 6,000 tons had been bombed and sunk off the west coast of

Chinese Rebel To Beat Japs

Soldiers Impressed Into Service Drive Invaders from Shaohing.

Shanghai, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Chinese soldiers impressed into service by the Japanese revolted and drove the invaders from Shaohing, famed wine making center in northern Chekiang province which the Chinese announced they recaptured early this week, first foreign reports from the area said today.

Foreign missionary circles in both Shaohing and Hangchow gave this first independent confirmation of Chinese claims of uprising by "puppet" troops during intensification of hostilities in the last two weeks.

600 Join Guerrillas

Chinese also reported a revolt in the Poutseng region, scene of the Shangpoo river from Shanghai, where 600 soldiers were said to have deserted the Japanese and joined guerrilla attacking the invaders.

Mis on sources in Shaohing said all missionaries were safe so though the Japanese, before retreating after the short-lived occupation, burned large sections of the city, including the business district, local government buildings, telegraph, newspaper and bank buildings.

Foreign reports from Hangchow said the Japanese were withdrawing northward across the Qiantang river into Hangchow, bringing "thousands of dead and wounded Japanese from the Shaohing area."

British Attack Naples, Italian Industrial City

Bulletin!

London, Nov. 1.—(AP)—British bombers attacked the great industrial center of Naples last night in their first raid on the southern mainland of Italy, and hit the railroad station, oil tanks and refineries, the Air Ministry reported today. "Our bombs hit the point" their targets, it said, the British fliers reared over Naples in three waves and at times, swooped to within 2,000 feet of the city's rooftops to let go their bombs.

London, Nov. 1.—(AP)—British bombers attacked the great industrial center of Naples last night, their first raid on the southern mainland of Italy. An Air Ministry communique today reported "a direct attack on oil tanks and other objectives" at the Italian port but did not disclose the base of the British bombers. However, it stated it specified that they were of the bombing command. Naval planes were used.

Malta, 350 miles from Naples, is the nearest British base for land planes.

British bombardments of the Italian mainland previously had been confined to such northern industrial cities as Milan and Turin, carried out by bombers crossing the Alps from Britain. Naples, however, is about 1,000 miles from

Axis Planes Hit Britain By Daylight

Strike at London, Merseyside and Other Sections; Fighters Turn Back Raiding Craft.

London, Nov. 1 —(AP) —Axis bombing planes struck at London, Merseyside and other points in England and Scotland by daylight today for the second consecutive day and a raid by R.A.F. bombers on Naples, Italy.

Oil tanks and "other objectives" at Naples were attacked successfully last night, a communique said, adding that a direct hit was scored on a merchant ship off the German-occupied Norwegian coast.

Both Alarms Brief

London, after a comparatively quiet night, underwent two alarms before noon, but both were brief and British fighters in each case were reported to have turned back the attacking planes.

In a later raid several bombs were dropped on the capital's outskirts. One demolished a house, but all the occupants apparently had left shelter.

Bombers were reported over Merseyside, dock and shipbuilding area of Liverpool, this afternoon.

Raiding planes also were reported at east Scotland coast today. A solitary raider which dropped bombs near an east Anglia village, causing a number of casualties, was reported brought down at sea.

Another German plane was reported shot down over a southeast coast town by British fighters. The pilot descended by parachute.

Sky Presents One of Most Varied Shows in November

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The sky is presenting in November one of its most varied shows, including meteors, comets, transit of Mercury and the moon passing between Jupiter and Saturn.

Dr. J. F. Hellweg, superintendent of the U. S. Naval Observatory, has broadcast a request for amateur and professional astronomers to aid in observing Mercury when it passes across the sun's face Nov. 11. He gives this reason:

"Our standard of time, which is the period of rotation of the earth, can be checked against motions of other bodies so we can correct for the earth's error (its rotation on its axis) and obtain a more uniform system of time measurement.

"One of the most valuable checks is furnished by the observation of the transit of Mercury."

Will Need Small Telescope.

Prof. Alfred H. Joy, secretary of the Mount Wilson observatory, said today a small telescope will be needed to enjoy most of the November sky show, but persons with a piece of smoked glass may be able to detect Mercury as a faint speck against the sun's surface.

R. S. Richardson and Dr. Seth B. Nicholson plan to make motion pictures of Mercury's transit, using one of the solar tower telescopes at Mount Wilson.

Three comets are visible in November, reported Professor Joy, Ohkayasa's and Cunningham's with small telescopes and Whipple's only with a large reflector.

On Nov. 13 the moon, nearly full, will pass between the planets Jupiter and Saturn, which are bright in the southern sky.

Will Detract from Display

The brightness of the moon will detract from the brilliant display of leonid meteors. The meteor shower will reach its height Nov. 16.

Mercury's transit will begin at approximately 12:45 p. m. (p.s.t.) Eastern Standard Time and will take nearly six hours. Los Angeles will be able to see much more of it than New York, and Honolulu will witness it in entirety.

Captain Hellweg points out that observations of the transit are uncertain by amounts approximating one-half minute. "To help insure an exact check the Naval observatory will broadcast the signals every second by both long and short wave radio during the first five minutes of the transit.

Steamships Can't Climb Mountains

The $1,000,000 liner Alaska lies aground with her bow high in the air and a column of smoke rising straight up from her stack after missing her channel near Prince Rupert, B. C. Her 270 passengers, traveling between Alaska and Seattle, Wash., were removed safely to the beach and later to another ship. The island where the ship struck is not far south of Ketchikan, Alaska. The vessel was pulled free later.

Italy Claims Seizure Of Populous Section; Greeks Halt Attacks

Tank-Supported Italian Infantry 'Repulsed Everywhere,' General Staff Asserts; Navy Moves Alongshore to Bombard Invading Fascists; Planes Also Join in Fighting.

Bulletin!

Athens, Greece, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Air raid alarms sounded twice here this morning but no bombs were dropped in the city. The first alarm began at 10:35 a. m., (3:35 a. m., e.s.t.) and lasted 50 minutes The second, ten minutes shorter, began at 11:50 a. m. (4:50 a. m., e.s.t.). One bomber was seen high in the clear sky over the northwestern outskirts and the sound of explosions came from the direction of Piraeus, Athens' port.

Athens, Greece, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Tank-supported Italian infantry attacks in northwestern Greece have been "repulsed everywhere," the Greek general staff asserted today, and the small Greek Navy has moved alongshore to bombard the invading Fascists. Greek planes also joined in the fighting, a communique said, bombing and machine-gunning invasion forces "from a height of 100 m." Naval guns were said to have shelled "successfully," the Italian right wing (closest the sea) for more than an hour yesterday.

The communique said the Fascist forces suffered losses in yesterday's fighting and added that "prisoners were taken."

"Irregulars Collaborating"

For the second time in as many days the general staff reported that "irregulars are collaborating with the enemy" without further identification.

Hallowe'en Disguise Of Girl Bit Too Good

Columbus, O., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Hallowe'en disguise of Janice Effler, 21, was a bit too good.

Dressed as a football player, she tripped downtown last night to join the celebrating throngs.

Someone tackled her and, like many a stalwart of the gridiron, she didn't get up.

Police gave her first aid.

Major Attack Made on Pass Near Frontier

Heavy Mountain Artillery Supports Italian Troops in Assault on Strong Greek Positions

Belgrade, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Italian troops supported by heavy mountain artillery and warplanes were reported today to have launched a major attack on Greek positions in ancient Pindoderis Pass at the northern end of the Albanian frontier.

The drive, coming from the direction of the Albanian town of Koritza, apparently had as its immediate objective the Greek city of Phlorina, about 30 miles from the north.

Strategic Traffic Center

Yugoslav military experts cited Phlorina as a strategic traffic center.

Highways lead out of the city to the south and east—the latter providing an effective route to Salonika, Aegean port believed to be the ultimate goal of the Italians in the north.

The thunder of guns on the battle front was said to be incessant as the Greeks, operating from positions blasted out of solid rock, directed a point-blank fire along the mountain road over which the Italians were attempting to advance.

A British officer experienced in mountain warfare in Ethiopia was reported leading the Fascist forces.

Must Pay High Price

It was believed here the Italians would have to pay a high price to capture Phlorina but it was pointed out that if they attack on this objective they would be able to bring their mechanized equipment into play for a push deeper into Greece along serviceable roads.

The Greek defense in the Phlorina area were said to be substantially effective but the Italians should they get across the mountains, may place pressure on the Greek rearline communications with their mechanized equipment.

Only Positive Italian Success

Belgrade press reports indicated the only positive Italian success so far was in the Ioannitis (Janina)

Nazis Active In Rumania

Fears Stirred Bulgaria May Become Involved In European Conflict.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Indications of increasing German military activity in Rumania, nearest base for any Nazi attack upon Italian-invaded Greece—stirred fears here today of complications which might involve this country in the war.

(Berlin dispatches have declared German officialdom to be confident that the Balkan conflict will be localized.)

As the Italian offensive against Greece entered its fifth day without evidence of notable success, unofficial reports from Rumania said the German armed forces there had reached a new high level of strength.

Although given no credence by government officials, rumors persisted that "German troops may go through here within 10 days" en route to the Greek border.

Watch Turkish Attitude

Sharing attention with rumors of possible German intervention in the Italian-Greek conflict was Turkey's attitude toward the struggle, which President Ismet Inonu was expected to clarify today in an address opening Turkish National Assembly.

Balkan observers generally believed that Inonu would affirm

Fascist Sources Also Report Apparent Resumption of Offensive in Egypt; Conquered District in Ioannina Sector Contains 79 Villages; Reach Cross - Roads.

Rome, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Fascist sources announced today the seizure of a populous area of Greece 35 miles within the country and reported an apparent resumption of Italy's offensive in Egypt. Stefani, the Italian news agency, said the Italians in the Ioannina sector had conquered a northern district containing 79 villages. The high command merely said the invaders of Epirus, extreme northwest Greece, had reached a crossroads at Kalibaki, an unmapped village which was not precisely located.

About 100 miles inside Egypt's western desert, Italian motorized columns aided by planes smashed into British forces, the high command reported. Informed sources said that could be interpreted, "unofficially" as a resumption of the Italian offensive which has waited for weeks inside Egypt, but they were unable to say whether the drive would be continued immediately.

Admit British Bombers Strike

The high command also acknowledged that British bombers for the first time had struck at the industrial areas of southern Italy, dropping bombs in two industrial suburbs of Naples.

(At Ioannina, also known as Janina, is only 35 miles from the Greek-Italian line, the Stefani report would indicate either that the city now is under Fascist siege or that the Italians are not advancing on the shortest line.)

The Stefani report said that the area so far in Italia hands is known as the sub-prefecture of Sulati and contains 35,000 inhabitants.

A communique said one person was killed and five were injured in bombing the raid on Naples, but minimized material damage.

(The British Air Ministry said the raiders scored hits on oil

Plan Release Of Prisoners

Million Frenchmen to Be Freed Gradually as Result of Agreement.

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Gradual release of 1,000,000 French prisoners by the Germans is provided in an "agreement in principle" reached with Nazi leaders by Vice Premier Pierre Laval of France, diplomatic sources said today.

This agreement, those sources asserted, is Laval's ace-in-the-hole with which he hopes to win at least temporary approval and support of the mass of French people for the Vichy government's program of collaboration with the Axis powers' "new order."

Laval's collaboration, with the means put over for later discussion, was agreed upon last week when Marshal Philippe Petain, France's chief of state, conferred with Adolf Hitler.

(Petain on Wednesday foreshadowed some action affecting French prisoners when he told his people that, as part of France's deal with her conquerors, "in the near future the suffering of our country may be alleviated by the lot of our prisoners ameliorated, the charges of occupation eased.")

Obtained Agreement in Talks

Diplomatic sources said there was no doubt that Laval had obtained the release agreement during his recent Paris talks with German officials.

When he plans to play his ace card remains in doubt, it was said.

Almost every family in France has a son, brother, husband or close relative in the "vanished legion" of 1,500,000 or more prisoners now in internment camps in Germany or German-occupied parts of France. Announcement that two-thirds of these men soon would be back home certainly would bring joy to millions.

About 500,000 prisoners, diplomatic sources said, will be forced to stay in those camps until the end of the war against Britain.

Some still will be held because they sympathize with the "free French" movement of Gen.

Turks Viewing War Situation

Key to Decision Seen to Lie in More Friendly Relations with Russia.

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 1.—(AP)—President Ismet Inonu of Turkey informed his National Assembly today that Turkey would not enter the war now, but was studying the situation in the Mediterranean in collaboration with Great Britain, her ally.

The key to the decision seemed to observers to lie in the president's statement that "Turkey's relations with Soviet Russia are now taking a friendly turn" after "passing through a critical stage."

He reiterated, however, that Turkey would fight instantly if attacked and insisted: "We remain loyal to our friendships, obligations and ties of collaboration.

To Defend Independence

"Our neighbors, the Greeks, unfortunately have been called into the war and we, with our ally, Britain, are defending the situation," said Inonu. "Our country has decided to defend our independence, security and land. This is the greatest pride of our nation and no change has been made in our foreign policy. We have no external ambitions . . .

"We have decided to act for the interests of our nation without harming anyone else."

This was interpreted to mean that Turkey, acting probably with the counsel of Soviet Russia, had decided to avoid development before going to war. These developments might be a direct attack on Turkey or entrance of Bulgaria into the Greek-Italian war on the side of the Axis.

Confers With British General

Before the assembly convened Inonu conferred with Maj. Gen. Arthur F. Smith, chief-of-staff of the British Near East command. Turkey has a mutual defense treaty with Britain.

The president spoke warmly of Soviet Russia.

Polish Rally Draws Crowd

Overflow Meeting Held In North End to Advance G. O. P. Cause.

Liberty Hall on Golway street was crowded to the doors last night while others stood outside during the rally held under the sponsorship of the Polish-American Republican Club.

Judge William S. Hyde, chairman of the Republican town committee presided. Because of other engagements Congressman A. Lagge R. J. Monkiewicz, a candidate for re-election, was the first speaker. He spoke both in Polish and English. Without taking up much time in reviewing his own record he paid tribute to Senator William J. Shea of Manchester and asked that the voters support him for re-election. He said that Senator Shea was one of the "finest of senators." He criticized the New Deal and many of its spending projects and asked that the voters support the entire Republican ticket. During the early part of the rally a man in the back part of the hall wanted to have it understood that he was for Roosevelt and said it so loudly and often he was ejected from the hall.

Un-American Custom

Goodwin Beach of Hartford, spoke both in Polish and English and advocated the election of the Republican ticket. He took issue with the third term on the ground that holding of power for too long was not an American custom.

Senator Shea spoke in behalf of the state ticket, telling of the work he had been accomplished by Governor Baldwin in cutting expenses and balancing the budget and advocated the re-election of the Governor as a man of experience.

Local Speakers

Representative Legislates Wood and House spoke briefly as did Mrs. Bernice Sendrosk. Mrs. Eleanora Rabacka was thanked for her efforts for the party among the Polish women.

Judge Stanley J. Traceski, of New Britain, was the last speaker and in addition to advocating the election of the Republican ticket, paid a glowing tribute to the work done in the last session of the legislature by Senator Shea and predicted that he would become the leader of the party at the next session of the Legislature, having proven his ability as a leader, the judge declared.

Following the rally there was dancing to music furnished by Walter Wojnarowicz's orchestra. Refreshments were served in the lower hall.

Charles de Gaulle, it was said, and others because their homes are located in areas along the English Channel and northern Brittany now restricted to German military operations.

To Be Gradual Operation

Release of 1,000,000 is reported to be planned as a gradual operation partially to enable smoothest possible reabsorption into civil life.

Their return, however, may bring with it a tremendous economic problem of employments for dormant French industry, which is only beginning to stir under another encouragement of the Vichy government, it was said.

According to Vichy government figures, there now are 1,100,000 unemployed in France, without counting prisoners — including 200,000 jobless in the Paris region alone.

However, French industrialists who travel into the German-occupied zone report that the Germans are trying to get French industry back into at least partial production, especially when the output is of interest to Germany.

Production Limited

Generally the Germans are reported to have limited production to 50 per cent, declaring that normal production would bring the French plants into competition with their German counterparts.

One French industrialist, said his firm—one of the largest in Europe making automobile tires—stopped production after the armistice.

Later a German Trade Commission asked what raw materials were needed. The plant director said he had rubber stocks for a year but lacked cotton fiber. The Germans then delivered the fiber at the world market price and guaranteed to purchase half the factory's output, but limited it to half its normal production. It is operating at half-speed today.

Similar instances have been reported throughout France.

How to absorb released prisoners into an industry so limited, economists say, will be Laval's greatest problem.

The Germans, it is said, have declined to import French labor—as they have Italian, Polish and Slav workers—because they say French unskilled laborers are too "undisciplined" and independent to work under German direction.

Laval, however, is reported willing to risk the labor problem for an immediate rise in his prestige, while the Germans are said to be unwilling to keep French prisoners in their territory indefinitely.

Hot Campaign Heads Toward Home Stretch

pensable man. There are," he added, "indispensable principles."

The Governor, addressing the young people of the state in a radio broadcast originating out of Hartford, said:

"We have cut unemployment in Connecticut by one-third, but there are still jobs needed, jobs for youth, jobs not alone in munitions industries, but in sound, peace-time production. * * *

"Today we have a 'war boom' and jobs in national defense industries, but still there are many of you right here in our state who would not have the jobs you now have were it not for the job training courses that we set up here in Connecticut and which are now being copied throughout the length and breadth of our land as the basis for national training for defense production."

Began Operations in 1938

Hurley, in a radio broadcast in Hartford and later at rallies in Bristol, New Britain and Waterbury, asserted that the Duparquet, Inc., shell-fuse equipment makers of Norwalk, began operations in Connecticut in 1938, and asked:

"How will Mr. Baldwin explain that his 'friendly government' attracted this business long before he took office?"

Hurley went on to charge that the governor's claim of 15,000 employees was for The G. H. Preble Co., and The F. M. Whiting Company was inaccurate, stating these companies are the same The Elmore Corp., Inc., jewelry and silverware makers of Meriden. "This firm "registered with the secretary of the state on Sept. 14, 1934, approximately four years before Mr. Baldwin took office," Hurley added.

Quoting further from his report, Hurley revealed that V. Larosa & Sons, Danielson, credited by Governor Baldwin as having come to Connecticut because of his "friendly government" actually had "registered for business in Connecticut on February 18, 1938, almost one year before Mr. Baldwin took office."

Sought Quicker Deliveries

Referring to the Brenda Bedspread Co., of Putnam, Hurley disclosed that his investigators had interviewed the proprietor, who said he moved to Connecticut from Georgia "because he wanted to be able to make quicker deliveries to the New York market and to get lower freight rates because of the shorter haul."

Hurley continued:

"Our check up of only one half of the Baldwin list also discloses these facts: That three of the companies for which Mr. Baldwin claims credit filed papers of incorporation with the secretary of state prior to 1938. It discloses the fact that at least five of the companies on his list registered with the secretary of state during the year 1938. Recalling again that he did not take office until 1939, I tell you that it was humanly impossible therefor for him to have been in any way responsible for the removal of these firms to Connecticut. It was impossible because he was not governor of the state.

"Add these mis-statements and inaccuracies to the misrepresentations concerning the number of employes, concerning the existence of plants that do not as yet exist, and you will find that Mr. Baldwin's list of new industries is full of fancy and fiction. A bid for political advantage, without basis in fact or logic. It was an ambitious effort to claim credit where no credit was due, but it is an effort which withered under the glare of a factual analysis.

Asks About Indictments

"Has Governor Baldwin offered business men special inducements to move to Connecticut? Has he told those violators of our state labor laws that they may violate those laws with impunity? I have asked this question before and I ask it again tonight: What inducements has the present Republican administration offered business men to move into Connecticut? and if any inducements have been made, we are entitled to know what they are."

Out of New London came a report that Odell Shepard, Trinity college professor and Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, professor of political economy at Connecticut College for women and candidate for secretary of state, had addressed a letter to every school teacher in Connecticut urging the re-election of President Roosevelt in the coming election.

Industrial Machine Needed to Back Army

Branford, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Paul L. Cornell, Republican senatorial nominee, asserted today that "America's military machine must be backed by a great industrial machine and an army of laborers and men on the march to the plants of the nation.

"Our ice trucks must be converted into tanks; our stove pipes into anti-aircraft guns, our brooms sticks into modern rifles by the men who work with their hands in the plants of this nation if we are to survive," Cornell said in an address prepared for a rally at The Malleable Iron Fitting company here.

He added:

"Is it good for America that this nation in the face of the armed might of European powers has failed to let the cracking ice from industry; bring labor, industry, and government together for a common purpose? Is it good for America that our business men and women cannot find jobs when our national security demands they be employed producing the essentials of war and the necessities of peace?

"The senatorial candidate declared that he stood for the national labor relations act without qualification, for a floor to wages and a ceiling to hours.

"I know," he concluded, "that this nation can only be as strong as its labor. Labor must have strength. It must grow strong and healthy and powerful if we are to survive."

Much Evidence Of Pranksters

Despite Hallowe'en Parties Some Children Got Out of Bounds.

Although the American Legions Hallowe'en parties are highly successful in eliminating mischief by most youngsters, there was a good bit of evidence around town this morning that pranks of one kind or another haven't been completely wiped out. Energetic window cleaners were hard at work at nearly every store on Main street, removing the last of the artistic creations that had been daubed on the windows with wax and soap.

Glass Decorated

From the Center to the Terminus, scarcely a store window was spared but the job of the janitors took it with good nature. As one remarked, "I don't mind this cleaning up at all. When I was a youngster we did the same thing."

After the parties were concluded some of the more lively boys went about their old tactics of cutting clothes lines, marking up windows of houses and cars with wax, ringing doorbells, placing objects against doors which would strike the house upon opening the door and moving things found outside homes. Veranda chairs, in some instances were moved out into the garden and in several instances, air was let out of tires.

In one instance the distributor of a parked car had been lowered from its place atop the motor and the car owner had to have his car pushed to a filling station for repairs.

British Bombers Attack Naples

"Slight Damage" in Suburbs

The Italian high command said "slight damage" was caused in the Naples suburbs of Bagnoli and Pomigliano D'Arco. The former is the site of some of Italy's largest steel plants and the latter of airplane factories, testing fields and laboratories. The Rome communique reported one person killed, five wounded.)

Another group of British bombers scored a direct hit on a merchant ship off the coast of German-occupied Norway yesterday during daylight operations, the Air Ministry added.

Text of the Air Ministry's communique:

"All Aircraft Return Safely

"Last night a small force of aircraft of the bomber command made a successful attack on oil tanks and other objectives at Naples. All our aircraft have returned safely.

"No operations were carried out over western and central Germany because of bad weather.

"During daylight operations yesterday aircraft of the coastal command scored a direct hit on a merchant ship off the Norwegian coast. One of these aircraft is missing."

Supplies Destroyed By British Patrol

Cairo, Egypt, (AP)—Supplies being carried by a camel train in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan were destroyed by a British patrol and a prisoner was captured Tuesday, a British bombers communique reported today.

It said another British patrol inflicted casualties on an Italian force in the Egyptian western desert Wednesday night.

Exempted

Turkish ships are exempted from the international law which requires all ships to carry bells for time keeping and for signaling. Turkish vessels carry drums instead.

thrust at London early in the afternoon and defending fighter planes engaged formations of raiders high above the capital.

Thousands watched in the streets as the opposing planes maneuvered slowly to lose sight of them in the clouds. A little later the "all clear" signal sounded again.

In the two morning raids bombing was confined principally to the suburbs. These raids followed a night of comparatively light attacks.

A score of raiders participating in the afternoon raid were said by observers to be part of a flight of more than 50 which crossed the coast at Dungeness. The others, they said, were turned back before reaching London.

During a predawn raid, four persons were killed and a number injured by a bomb which fell in a London residential district, where several houses were demolished.

A large part of the British press, meanwhile, demanded stronger blows against Italy and cheered the Greek Navy for shelling Italian positions along the Albanian border.

With a long rest in the middle of the night, London underwent one of the lightest after-dark attacks of the war on the 55th consecutive night of bombings.

Two explanations were suggested for the lessening of air raids during the last week—first, bad weather, with ground mists and boggy fields in France; second, the assertion that many German bombing pilots have gone to southeastern Europe and Italians who have moved into French bases are just getting their bearings over England.

The few bombs which were reported during the night fell mainly in London, East Anglia and a town in the Midlands. The government said these caused little damage and few casualties.

A small number of bombs also dropped at one point on the northeast coast of Scotland—with little effect, it was communique said.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, echoing the sentiment of the Fleet Lord Chatfield for victory through bombing, said:

"Living women and children matter more to us than the antiquities of Rome. If bombing Rome is to mean an earlier victory for the Greeks and ourselves, we should begin it tomorrow and continue it until the Italians surrender."

The Daily Herald declared "we have got to hit Mussolini and hit him so hard that we leave our mark upon him."

The News Chronicle commented:

"Italy, it cannot too often be said, is the weakest link in the Axis. Smash it and more than half the battle is won."

Long-Range Guns Get Hot Reply

London, Nov. 1.—(AP)—German long-range guns on the French coast shelled British shipping in the Dover strait today and got a hot reply from Britain's big batteries.

The Nazi bombardment lasted about two hours.

The Germans used at least two batteries, one near Cap Gris Nez and the other in the Calais area.

Third Parties Enter Fight in Two States

1940 Campaign Encounters Complications in Both Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The 1940 campaign has encountered third party complications in two important north central states—Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Wisconsin's Progressive senator, Robert M. LaFollette, seeking to retain a Senate seat he has held since 1925, has tied up with the Roosevelt-Wallace forces in an attempt to break the grip Republicans fastened on the state two years ago.

President Roosevelt carried Wisconsin in 1932 and 1936 with the aid of Progressives. The alignment has been renewed, but some local Progressive and Democratic groups have come out for Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential candidate.

Endorsement Widens Breach

Moreover, Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice presidential nominee, lauded LaFollette recently for his "unfailing support." The Democratic party in the state already was split into factions and the endorsement widened the breach.

Republican strategists recall that their total in the September primary was more than twice the combined total for the Progressive and Democratic candidates.

LaFollette is opposed by Fred Clausen (R) Horicon Manufacturer, and James E. Finnegan, (D), Gov. Julius P. Heil, Republican running for a second term, competes against Orland S. Loomis (D) and Francis E. McGovern (D).

Pool Efforts For Roosevelt

In Minnesota, Democrats and Farmer-Laborites—with the exception of several one-time leaders who swung away from the president—are pooling their efforts to keep the state in the Roosevelt column.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen, keynoter at the Republican national convention who compiled more votes than all other gubernatorial aspirants combined in the three-party September primary, is campaigning for the governorship and Willkie, too. Senator Henrik Shipstead, standing for re-election as a Republican after 18 years as the Senate, as a Farmer-Laborite, introduced Willkie at a Minneapolis rally. On the Democratic side, Elmer J. Ryan, congressman bidding for the same post again, is openly opposed to a third term for the president.

Discuss Farm Policies

The battle of Iowa—Wallace's home state—has developed considerable discussion of farm policies. The top state ticket pits Gov. George A. Wilson (R.), against John K. Valentine (D.), for the governor's job.

South Dakotans watching the fight between Governor Harry Bulfield (R.), and Lewis K. Bickpell (D.), for the governorship, hear much more about state than national issues.

Two of the entrants in North Dakota's senatorial race— Rep. William Lemke and Former Gov. William Langer—are backing Willkie. Lemke, Union party presidential aspirant in 1936, is running as an independent after winning renomination to Congress as a Republican and then withdrawing from that contest. Langer won the Republican nomination. The Democratic contender is National Committeeman Charles J. Vogel.

Major Theme Farm Relief

Nebraska's senatorial contest places Gov. R. L. Cochran (D.), who broke a state record by serving three consecutive terms as governor, against Hugh Butler, (R.), Omaha grain man. Their major theme, in the light of several years of drought, is farm relief. Terry Carpenter, former Democratic congressman, seeks the governorship against Dwight Griswold (R.), Gordon publisher.

Illinois Democrats, united after a primary feud, expect to attain a decisive plurality for Roosevelt in their party's stronghold, Chicago.

Republicans figure Willkie's downstate margin will assure victory. Dwight H. Green (R), arch-enemy of the Kelly-Nash Democratic organization, is matched against Harry B. Hershey, former Democratic state chairman, in the gubernatorial fight. Senator James M. Slattery (D) opposes Wayland Brooks (R) for a Senate seat.

Involves Veteran Senator.

Michigan's senatorial test involves the veteran Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg (R) and Frank Fitzgerald (D). Gov. Luren Dickinson (R) seeks election, at the age of 81 against Murray D. Van Wagoner (D), state highway commissioner and only Democrat holding an elective state office.

In Indiana—Willkie's native state—Senator Sherman Minton (D) faces the challenge of Raymond E. Willis (R), who lost a similar contest two years ago to Senator Frederick Van Nuys (D) by only 3,100 votes. Lieut. Gov. Henry F. Schricker (D) runs for governor against Glen R. Hills (R).

These nine states hold 111 electoral votes. Roosevelt carried the region in 1932 and 1936 but it produced a Republican resurgence in 1938. The current campaign, dramatized by ace orators of both parties, has turned it into one of the nation's major battle fields.

Almost the entire automobile production of the Dominion of Canada is manufactured in the province of Ontario.

Old Marcel Wave Is Coming Back

Miss Bernice Juul, of the Weldon Beauty Salon, has returned from New York City where she attended the convention of the New York State Hairdressers and Cosmetologist association at the Hotel Pennsylvania this week.

Miss Juul went to New York on Sunday to attend the pre-convention festivities "The Glass of Fashion Reflects Hair-do Hats" with coiffure presentations by members of the Coiffure Guild of New York. According to the Guild there will be plenty of waves this Winter, more elegant and more elaborate than ever before. As history eventually repeats itself, coiffures will likely follow the first World war in fashion history. The fashion magazines will show coiffures were more elaborate from 1914 to 1917.

During troubled times women are more eager to present a feminine picture. That is why it is very definite that this Winter will bring back deeper waves and possibly slightly shorter hair, and in many cases the old-fashioned marcel will come back.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were devoted to hairdo demonstrations and many special features. Among them were "Then and Now" a comparison of the Seventeenth Century pompadour, with the 1940 version presented by the well known Robert Sievers of New York. There were unrehearsed discussions with such beauty editors as Bernice Peck of "Mademoiselle." Mrs. Lee "Glamour," Katherine Vincent of the New York Herald Tribune and others.

Burned Building Is Under Guard

Washington, Nov. 1 — A wing of the War Department's Munitions Building remained under military guard today while an official board pressed an investigation of a fire which swept through a $110,000 addition to the structure.

Persons without special permits were barred from the wing, to prevent confusion, officials said, while damage was repaired from the blaze of early Wednesday.

Chicago Registration High

Chicago, Nov. 1 — Registration of voters in Cook county, the Democratic stronghold of Chicago, reached an all time high of 2,185,166, the Board of Election Commissioners announced yesterday.

Norwegian Steamer Sinks

Berlin, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The 1,200-ton Norwegian steamer Hjejrvik hit a mine and sank south of the mouth of the Segne fjord with a loss of five men, informed German sources said yesterday.

Early Sends His Apology

Message Goes to Negro Policeman from White House Secretary.

Washington, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A message of apology went today to a New York Negro policeman from Stephen Early, White House secretary, for whatever part Early may have had in the altercation which the policeman said resulted in his injury.

The incident, which Early called "regrettable" in a formal statement last night, occurred in New York's Pennsylvania station Monday night when a party of White House officials and newspapermen were attempting to board the presidential special train for Washington.

"I do not believe that I did anything wrong in this incident," Early said in making the apology. "I did not attack or kick any officer."

Claims Injury Support

The policeman, James Sloan, 42, said the next day that he had suffered abdominal injury from a kick by a member of the presidential party. The same day Early told his press conference that in a meeting in "a taxicab" he had "given to one of a group of officers who showed him after refusing to examine his credentials, so he could board the train."

Early's statement last night, which charged that "in certain Republican quarters political prominence is being attached to an unfortunate incident," did not mention Sloan by name.

It said, however, that he wished to apologize "to the policeman" and "believes I was responsible for whatever injury he may have sustained." Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine "for of having had any part in this regrettable affair."

To Vote For Roosevelt

Word came from New York, meanwhile, that Sloan had told Joe Louis, world's heavyweight boxing champion and a Willkie supporter, that he was a Democrat and would vote for President Roosevelt next Tuesday. Louis visited Sloan at his home yesterday.

Early asserted in his statement that "I cannot understand why Republican politicians are attempting to find political significance in this incident" and said he was "anxious to cooperate" in "a full disclosure of the facts."

ADVOCATE BUILDING
Stamford Connecticut
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1940
OF SENATORIAL CALIBER
The campaign which Paul Cornell is carrying on here in this State shows him to be fitted in every way for the post of senator in the national Congress. He is not only winning votes for himself as a candidate for the office to which he has been nominated by the Republican party of this State, but he is winning votes for the candidates on the State ticket and for Willkie as head of the national ticket. In a special sense the senatorial toga calls for qualities of constructive statesmanship. Mr. Cornell's statements and speeches show that he possesses these qualities to an unusual degree.
The voters of Connecticut are not misled by the fact that foolish statements and violent actions have a greater news value than plain common sense. * * * Paul Cornell is counting on his qualities of sincerity and sagacity to win him a hearing and a following. These qualities he displayed, not by finding out what his hearers want and then by promising it to them, but by setting forth the situation, the problems, the difficulties, and the best methods of meeting the difficult situation in which the country finds itself.
The President and his champions belittle the direness of the conditions in which we find ourselves. According to them things are going well. The debt which we, as a nation are piling up, is all right. The unemployment can be met by increasing the relief and the WPA activities, although they soft pedal the fact that some real business prosperity, aside from the war industries, must be built up to provide the revenues for these relief and WPA activities. The Republican candidate for the Senatorship, after facing all the facts, does not take a gloomy view of the future, provided the citizens can work toward what is good for the country as a whole. Again and again he has raised the question in facing any given policy, "Is it good for America?" Unselfishness is an essential ingredient in true patriotism.
He would have all the people of the land pull together — capital, labor, agriculture, and the consumer interests — and agree on policies and measures designed to build a strong nation on a sound economy. He has stood again and again for a sound economy that will benefit the entire nation. In the meetings which he addresses, he encourages the open forum attitude among his hearers. When anyone suggests this or that, he replies, "Now just what do you propose to do specifically, and is it good for America?"
He would have the voters think for themselves and not follow the grandiose promises of sanguine leaders. Some of these sanguine leaders are self-deceived. Some of them would deceive the voters. In a democracy the people must think the problems through for themselves. If we speak of his personal platform we could say that his first interest is security for the United States. His second elective is a restoration of good business, good business not dependent on spending policies, nor on war expenditures. His third interest is in the development of a healthy citizenship, intelligent and truly patriotic. We might mention as another interest his belief that we cannot borrow ourselves into prosperity. By hard work, by thrift and by stressing the service motive we must put our country in a position to resist the economic as well as any military wars that are ahead of us.
We believe that Paul Cornell is carrying on the kind of a campaign that will go over in Connecticut, even if it is not the kind of a campaign which would go over in Louisiana.

Louis Booed During Rally

Heavyweight Champion Advocates Election of Willkie in Harlem.

New York, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, was booed at a Republican political rally in the heart of Harlem last night, but he took it like a champ.

"You boys," said the imperturbable Brown Bomber, "can boo 'till you get blue in the face . . . but I'll just keep on talking."

Looking down at his hecklers, he declared, "I'm used to boos—and I win anyway."

Negroes Jam Ballroom

He was up there to urge the election of Wendell L. Willkie. Police estimated 3,500 to 4,000 Negroes jammed into a ballroom to hear him, and that 3,000 to 4,000 waited outside.

Louis was booed by some of his listeners when he said, "I endorse Mr. Willkie because he knows what $15 a week will do."

He waited until the booing subsided.

The champ said, "You boys who are booing are boys under 21 who don't know . . . You don't know what your mothers went through.

"If Mr. Willkie is elected," said Louis, "he has promised in writing to put over the anti-lynching bill. Roosevelt has been in office for eight years and do nothing about that. The people in the north don't know how long is eight years."

Before walking off the platform, he concluded, "If some of you people don't appreciate what I am saying, I'm sorry."

Scares Hallowe'en Pranksters

Scottsbluff, Neb. (AP)—Frank Martischewsky had the Hallowe'en ghost on his side when 137 young callers besieged him for "treats and tricks." Martischewsky, an electrician, rigged up a loud speaker that gave out an eerie shriek when the youngsters rang his doorbell. The results, he said, were astounding. But he lured some of the boys back for candy.

Guardsmen Honor Terrier Mascot

Camp Shelby, Miss., Nov. 1.—(AP) Members of Company A, 145th Infantry, a Cleveland, O., unit of the National Guard, took time off from training to hold funeral services for Tomah, their little black terrier mascot.

The dog, named after Tomah, Wis., where the soldiers trained last summer, had to be killed because of an incurable ailment.

It was the Tomah favorite to romp, leaping and barking when the men drilled with rifles.

Solution to Mullish Problem

Temple, Tex. (AP)—An old, blind mule went for a stroll down a high railroad trestle. Along came a fast train, whistle screaming. The mule balked. The train stopped. Out piled the train crew and firemen and pleaded with the mule to get out of the way. The mule was adamant. Two hours later the mule still stood there. So did the train. In desperation they shot the mule. Then the fast train sped on—two hours late.

Woman Makes First Kill In Annual Bear Hunt

Tellico Plains, Tenn., Nov. 1 —(AP)—A 24-year-old woman made the first kill in the bear and wild boar hunt held annually in the rugged mountains of the Cherokee National Forest.

Mrs. Edith Hass Padgett, wife of Tellico Plains postmaster, bagged a 400-pound black bear with a rifle yesterday, bringing it down with two shots at 65 yards.

She was a member of a party of 15, headed by Daniel Boone, Nashville, Tenn., attorney, who patrolled a mountainside with the help of ten bear dogs.

Three men bagged wild boars with rifles. Men armed with high-powered bows and arrows returned empty handed.

All Neutrality Patrol at Sea

Remainder of Key West Fleet Sails on Secret Mission.

Key West, Fla., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The entire neutrality patrol fleet operating out of Key West was at sea on a secret mission today and Navy officials here and at Washington declined comment on the sudden sailings.

Three destroyers—the Overton, Bainbridge and Sturtevant—took on fuel and supplies yesterday and departed under sealed orders, perhaps to join the five destroyers, a seaplane tender and six Navy bombing planes which left in haste Tuesday.

Concentration Near St. Lucia

The Miami Herald said it had "learned unofficially" that a concentration of United States sea power is under way near St. Lucia, one of the Caribbean air and Naval bases leased by the United States from Great Britain.

St. Lucia is about 25 miles south of Martinique, French owned island.

British warships have kept a close watch on Martinique since the French capitulation because an aircraft carrier with American planes aboard and a cruiser are anchored there.

It has been estimated that there are more than 10,000 species of the daisy.

Ruling Hits Late Voters

Possible to Lose Out If Not Checked at Closing Time on Tuesday.

It was learned today that it is entirely possible an election contest between candidates may develop here if the voting is close for any candidates Tuesday, the basis of such a contest being the ruling of Attorney-General Francis A. Pallotti regarding "dead-line" vote casting.

The Attorney-General has issued an opinion that, by law, all persons to vote on Tuesday must have had their names actually checked from the lists by 6 p.m. Otherwise they may not use the machines. The polls are open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. and on all previous occasions all voters within the polling place by closing time have been allowed to vote. The later arrivals are lined up and a policeman ends this line. When the policeman arrives before the checkers, the polls are closed for further voting.

It was the opinion of some election authorities here that there will be little danger of anyone being deprived of a vote through the ruling. Both Republicans and Democrats here are making a drive to get the vote out early and if their efforts are successful there should be no line at the polls at six in the evening. Should there be a line it would be a simple matter to check all those in the line and inside the polling place by 6 p. m.

Roosevelt Record For Spending Hit In Willkie Speech

tion which can stimulate business and provide jobs and raise the national income".

At New Brunswick, Police Lieut. W. J. Savage estimated the crowd at more than 10,000. Before he was introduced, the nominee smiled and waved his hat to the time of his campaign song, "We Want Willkie in the White House," played by a band beneath him.

Will Carry Missouri

Willkie said he had heard from "responsible people" this morning that he would carry Missouri and that the "swing in Kentucky is coming more rapidly every hour.

"I feel very confident we are going to carry West Virginia," he added. "There is no question about what is going to happen in this state (New Jersey) despite Frank Hague."

Earlier Willkie asserted President Roosevelt's foreign policies "are leading us straight to a war for which we are totally unready," and added that his domestic policies "are leading to complete collapse."

The Republican presidential nominee issued a statement continuing his criticism of the chief executive's Boston address as he approached the end of an 18,000 mile campaign tour.

He announced he would discuss the speech further in a radio broadcast at 8:30 o'clock tonight (e.s.t.) over the NBC (RED) network. Special attention will be placed on aviation angles.

Willkie's statement, made public from his special train which will be broken up tomorrow noon, took up primarily Mr. Roosevelt's disclosure at Boston Wednesday of what the Republican candidate termed "certain orders which the British government has placed."

"Must Remain on Order"

"And the tragic fact," he said, "is that, owing to the policy of neglect and delay over the past seven years, they must remain on order for many, many months to come."

The Republican candidate argued that the president "by inference and innuendo" tried to take credit for the plane orders to manufacturers who, he declared, had been neglected and "even abused" by the New Deal.

(In Boston Mr. Roosevelt disclosed he had asked the Defense Priorities Board to give "most sympathetic consideration" to British request to order 12,000 more planes from American manufacturers).

"I was surprised by the use, in such a superficial manner," he said, "of an effort so vital to Britain and our own safety. I cannot understand the propriety of quoting in a political speech, as from the White House, a making campaign material of the duties of the president of the United States."

Declaring that he had entered the campaign determined "insofar as I could, to present a solid American front against the world in this dangerous hour," Willkie continued:

Goes Limit In Support

"Accordingly, I went the limit in supporting certain elements of the third-term candidate's position in foreign affairs. This attitude of mine has been called, by the third term candidate, 'political sterility' and 'me-too' stuff.

"I was willing to forego use of some of the most telling points against Mr. Roosevelt's rashness in foreign affairs. But my opposition was not willing to let it rest at that."

The president, he contended, has refused to debate "our great domestic issues." Willkie asked why, and replied to his own question by saying:

"Obviously, because he couldn't. In every field after a record of failure, he has only to offer that he has spent almost sixty billions and increased our national debt by twenty-four billions—and accomplished no recovery whatever.

"His record on national defense and international relations is even more disastrous. We need effectiveness by prudence rather than swashbuckling conduct abroad. We need realistic national defense at home. We have neither.

"Incompetent In Defense"

"The fact is now clear that the third-term candidate is just as incompetent in national defense as he has been in the solution of every great domestic problem.

"The sooner our people realize that his foreign policies are leading us straight to a war for which we are totally unready, and that his domestic policies are leading to complete collapse, the quicker will come our opportunity to correct both and above all to keep out of foreign war."

Willkie scheduled only two talks today—at New Brunswick and Elizabeth, N. J.—before sending his campaign train to a New Jersey siding for 24-hours parking. His radio speech tonight will be given from his private car, and the candidate will remain in seclusion on his train until shortly before he speaks tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden, New York.

That night will be the official climax of his campaign for the presidency, although he will make a radio talk Monday on election eve and may visit one or two last-minute engagements in the metropolitan area.

Willkie has been making from three to a dozen speeches a day "occasions excepted — since he boarded his special train at Rushville, Ind., on Sept. 12.

He spoke last night at Camden, N. J., telling an audience which filled 10,000 seats in convention hall:

"We are sick of the type of government that treats our Constitution like a scrap of paper.

Sick of One-Man Rule

"The people are sick, he contended, "of the kind of one-man government that calls an ambassador of the United States' my ambassador.'

Willkie drew a laugh when he said: "It used to be 'My friends.' Now it is 'My ambassador.' Pretty soon it may be 'My generals.' It certainly is 'My captain.' Then it will be 'My people.'

The "captain" reference was to the promotion of Elliott Roosevelt, the president's son, to a captaincy in the Army Air Corps.

After finishing his prepared speech, Willkie declared that "we have the most entrenched foe that ever existed in the history of American public life.

"They stop at nothing," he added.

"For instance, I am told this afternoon that they circulated here in south Jersey that if Wendell Willkie is elected president, time and a half for overtime will be abolished.

"Let me tell you the difference between myself and the third-term can idate. I know what it is to work in a factory and I know what it m ans to work overtime.

"Instead of abolishing any of the social gains that have been made by labor, Wendell Willkie will be their most vigorous defender."

The nominee said also that "Republicans had been told that if they do not vote in accordance with the New Deal, they may lose their jobs. When you go into the voting booth, he declared, "you are the sovereign of the world."

Out-Dated

Scientists say the still extant spiny ant-eater of Australia was out of date in construction 60,000,000 years ago. Had it run true to type, they say, it would have disappeared from the earth about 100,000,000 years ago.

About Town

Dr. Hugh Vernon White, secretary of the American Board, will address the leaders of the churches of the Hartford East and Tolland associations of Congregational and Christian churches and ministers Wednesday evening of next week at 7:30 at the Second Congregational church.

John Bilinsky of the Hartford Seminary staff will be the guest speaker at the Monday noon meeting of the Rotary club at the Manchester Country club. His subject will be "The Problem of the Foreign Born People Growing Up In America." Mr. Bilinsky is a Ukrainian who was born in America and educated in Europe. He spent sometime in the navy there, and after making up his mind to fit himself for the priesthood of the Russian Orthodox church, came back to America to learn the English language and over again, Mr. Hewitt will furnish the attendance prize.

The three Lutheran churches of Manchester, Emanuel Lutheran, Zion Lutheran and Concordia Lutheran will join in a Reformation service Sunday evening, Nov. 10 at 7:00. Rev. Victor E. Beck of Worcester, Mass., will deliver the message.

Chapman Court, Order of Amaranth, will hold its meeting tonight at eight o'clock sharp in the small lodge room. The motion picture, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" will be shown and demonstrations will follow. Mrs. Birdella Leeberg and her committee will be in charge of refreshments.

The Republican Women's club directs attention of new voters, or those who have voted in other towns by ballot, to the fact that a demonstrating machine is to be found in the Municipal building at the Center, and others will be located in the State Armory Tuesday, Election Day. The polls will be open from six o'clock in the morning to six o'clock in the evening. Potentially you govern when you vote, and abdicate when you fail to vote."

Mrs. Lucille Sloan and Miss Jeanette Paton will act as co-chairmen of the Manchester Red Cross Chapter's annual membership roll call which will start on November 11 Armistice Day and will continue through November 27, it was announced today. The local chapter quota has not been declared.

Another meeting of the Permanent Armistice Day Committee will be held in the Army and Navy club tonight at 8 o'clock. All delegates are asked to attend.

Nearing Finish Of Brick Work

Heavy Plumbing Also Done on Two Floors Of Hospital Here.

The brick work on the new hospital addition has almost been completed and the sash of the first floor has been cut in by the H. Waite Lines Company, contractors of the new building. All of the heavy plumbing on the first two floors has been completed.

The roof and third floor steel has been set in place and the entire building will be roofed in within the next ten days, weather permitting.

Heating Plant

The foundation for the new heating plant boilers has been poured and is ready for setting up the new heating plant in the new location.

The changeover from the present heating plant to the new one will involve accurate timing so as to be sure that there be no interruption of heating and steam service for the operating rooms, laboratory and other departments.

Only the top of the present heating plant chimney, which is an integral part of the older building, will be dismantled. The old chimney up to the top of the third floor will remain and may find later use for ventilation.

Obituary

Deaths

Mrs. Paul Dilworth

Mrs. Martha M. (Benkbeil) Dilworth, wife of Paul Dilworth, of 352 Summit street, died at the Manchester Memorial Hospital last night. She has been in poor health for several months. Born in Waterbury 49 years ago, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benkbeil, she came to Manchester as a child and had since made her home here.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Dorothy and two sons, Paul and Donald Dilworth; her parents and three brothers, Arthur of Waterbury, Otto, of East Hartford and August, of Naugatuck; a sister, Mrs. James Shay of Manchester and four half brothers, John, Michael, James and Samuel Adamy, of Manchester.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the W. P. Quish funeral home, 225 Main street. Rev. Karl Richter of the Lutheran Concordia church will officiate and burial will be in the East cemetery.

15 Convicted In Lottery

Norwalk Men Given Prison and Jail Terms For Conspiracy.

Bridgeport, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Fifteen Norwalk men began prison and jail terms today following conviction on charges of conspiracy to set up and maintain a lottery in which elevated the "numbers game and similar forms of gambling. Maximum court offense to a felony answerable to the Superior court.

A jury composed of ten men and two women acted the five-and two, women acted the five-week trial in Superior court yesterday afternoon when it returned guilty verdicts against all 15 men charged with conspiracy.

Judge John B. King then sentenced Louis M. Rola, 34, alleged head of the Norwalk lottery ring, to 3 to 5 years in state prison; his brother and alleged chief lieutenant, James, 32, to 2 to 4 years; and another brother, Tony, to 1 to 3 years.

Seven others also received 1 to 3 year sentences: Tony Rola, Joseph Massano, 30; Willie Gonch, 32; Frank de Martino, 40; Augie Ramazzo, 33; John Tomasello, 40; Daniel Warren, 41; and Paul Marcuccio, 44.

Given Jail Terms

Sentenced to one year in the county jail were Walter Hobdson, 47, a former special deputy sheriff; Frank Fontino, 32; and Joseph Pascarelli, 29. Fred Mastrianni, 22, and Frank Bongoon, 28, were given six month jail terms.

The men were removed to prison and jail at the conclusion of the sentencing early in the evening, Defense counsel said they were still deliberating whether to appeal the convictions to the Supreme Court of Errors.

State police arrested the men on May 18 in a drive against lotteries instigated by the office of State's Attorney Lorin W. Willis after an under-cover investigation which lasted six months.

It was testified during the trial, which began Oct. 1, that operators of "numbers games" collected about $200,000 a year in Norwalk.

New Chimney For Hospital

To Be 70 Feet High, Nearly 20 Feet Over The Present One.

The American Chimney Company of New York City will start work early next week building the new hospital power plant chimney located near the new power plant on Armory street. The new stack will tower 70 feet in the air, nearly 20 feet higher than the present chimney, and will be the highest stack in town other than industrial chimneys of Case Brothers, Rogers Paper Company and Cheney Brothers.

The new chimney will be constructed of radial red and white brick. The base of the stack will be of solid concrete about 12 feet in diameter and 10 feet thick. The inside diameter of the chimney at the base will be eight feet and four inches and will gradually telescope to three feet, six inches inside diameter at the top. The top of the stack will be approximately three stories above the third floor of the present hospital building.

The cost of the new chimney will be $1,700 exclusive of the concrete base which will cost $600. The chimney will be lighted now by galvanized iron steps along the outside and lightning rods also will be installed.

Stafford Springs

John O. Nettis
472, Stafford

The Stafford Teachers' club will present "What A Life," a three act comedy in the auditorium of the Warren Memorial Hall this evening. Friday night the play is being directed by Wilfred Schmidt, director of the Little Theater group. Superintendent of Schools Earl M. Witt and Principal Chester E. Bastow are in the cast, along with members of the teaching staff of the local public schools. Miss Geneve Gorman and David Erwin, teachers in the High school will play the leading roles. Other members of the cast are: Eleanor Pelton, Raymond Houle, Elizabeth Sharpe, Frances Mullane, Mrs. Edith Sullivan, Joseph Vinick, Marion Lord, Ruth Gregory, Floyd Brackley, Barbara Street, Mrs. Edith Glaster, Esther Tophnam, Margery Taylor and Joseph Young.

The dress rehearsal last night was attended by children of the schools and received with great enthusiasm. The proceeds from the production will go towards the local Public Health Nursing funds.

Miss Rebecca Bowles, R. N., who has been local public health nurse here for three years has resigned and accepted a similar position in Washington, Conn. Her resignation will take effect December 1.

Church Choir Enjoys Party

Members Celebrate Hallowe'en in Chaplin; Double Celebration.

Members of the South Methodist church choir held a jolly Hallowe'en party last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Agderson of Chaplin. It took the form of a surprise celebration of the 34th anniversary of the marriage of the former Miss Florence Wagrock and Mr. Anderson, on October 31, 1925, which was the first to take place in the present South Methodist church after its erection; and also of the 25th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Gordon, which occurred today.

Mrs. Anderson was a member of the South church choir for a number of years and recently moved to Chaplin to be near Will Imantic where her husband is employed. Mr. Gordon has also been active in the choir as baritone soloist for a number of years.

A buffet supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Eunice Case Hohenthal, now of Windham, formerly of this town. Each couple received the congratulations of their friends, and to each was presented an anniversary ice cream cake.

Games and appropriate Hallowe'en stunts were followed by the hanging of several of the old favorite songs.

Hero Fund Files Tell Stories of Courage

Commission Declines to Single Out Any One Act Reported to It As Most Heroic.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Who is the nation's "hero of heros?"

The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission three times each year awards medals to those who have risked or given their lives for others, but it declines to single out any one act as the most heroic. That, the commission says, is a "matter of opinion."

This body, holding a meeting here today to make further selections, has granted 3,155 awards in the past 36 years.

Amazing Examples of Courage

Here's just one amazing example of human courage from the files:

It was at Highlands, N. C., May 14, 1911. Fr Augusta Blatz, 26, fell from the summit of Whitside mountain, rolling 150 feet down an almost vertical cliff into lodging against a small bush only two inches from the brink of a 2,000-foot precipice. There he lay, injured and unconscious, on one foot and one leg dangling over the top of the precipice—a matter of two inches from eternity.

Charles N. Wright, 38, a merchant, slid down the cliff to the rescue, his only handholds and footholds ridges and holes not more than an inch deep in the stone cliff.

Down, down he inched his way, a single misstep would have sent him plunging to his death, a scene 2,000 feet below.

His wife, above, saw what he was attempting. She screamed, a wild piercing scream that startled Wright and nearly caused him to lose his grip—and nerve.

Thought of Safety

Another man started to descend but changed his mind and waited in a place of safety while the daring Wright continued.

Many long minutes later Wright reached Blatz, and by holding to a bush near the base of the cliff, lifted him up. Once the delirious Blatz all but plunged himself and rescuer over the precipice.

By and by, Wright announced that Wright hauled the helpless man to safety up the side of the cliff. The spectacular rescue took two and one-half hours. Blatz, recovered from his injuries.

For his feat Wright received a gold medal and $2,000. Only in other gold medals have been awarded by the Carnegie Commission. There have been 553 silver awards and 2,583 of bronze.

The commission has been doing this since 1904, when a $5,000,000 fund was set up for the purpose by Andrew Carnegie, the Scottish-born steelmaker who felt that mankind applauds deeds of sacrifice. But forgets to care for those who perform them.

More than 35,000 applications have been passed over after careful consideration.

Largest Monetary Award

Through the years the largest monetary award to an individual, $6,500, and a gold medal, went to Mark Casto, master of the fishing schooner Alberta, for his rescue of 52 persons from the stranded steamer Cherokee off Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 14, 1906.

There have been many thrilling rescues from drowning, water accidents being the most common Carnegie cases. Second in number to those are train rescues—persons being knocked out of the paths of approaching trains just in the nick of time. Fire, flood and mine rescues are far fewer.

The old movie thrillers used to depict an engineer climbing out a window of his speeding locomotive to reach down from the cowcatcher and whisk up to safety a child playing on the railroad tracks. That story was drawn from the annals of truth, the tradition. Such a rescue has occurred no less than three times in Carnegie hero history.

Shot in Struggle

One man won a silver medal for saving William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York in 1910, from a would-be assassin. Gaynor was shot once in the head before William H. Edwards threw himself on the assailant. Edwards was shot in the struggle, but he saved the mayor recovered.

Rescues from the paths of runaway horses were an ordinary affair in the pre-automobile era.

Odd rescues include a farmer using a pen-knife to defend a man from goring by an enraged bull. A woman won a silver medal by sucking venom from a rattlesnake bite on the arm of a youth. A man received a bronze decoration for helping subdue a jailbreak.

Nine special awards have been made on the heels of disasters, largely floods and mine accidents. The biggest, $54,000, went to sufferers of the California earthquake and San Francisco fire of 1906.

Medals Bestowed Posthumously

Silver medals were bestowed posthumously on 11 men killed while helping rescue miners from burning coal mine at Cherry, Ill., in 1909.

When heroes are killed, the medals and pensions go to their widows and children. Some widows receive up to $80 a month for the remainder of their lives, or until they remarry, to support themselves and children.

It is notable no awards are made for valor on the battlefield. Carnegie, lover of peace, directed his medals go only to those following "peaceful vocations."

Hero Fund Pet Philanthropy

Because it was original with him the hero fund was the pet philanthropy of the whimsical Scot, who made millions in the steel industry and gave away most of his fortune before his death in 1919. His gifts for free public libraries, relief and pension funds for his employes, and for the advancement of learning and other purposes, are generally estimated at more than $500,000,000.

He said he cherished his hero fund with a "fatherly regard" because "no one suggested it to me." He later established similar funds in 10 European countries. His theme was:

"The heroes of the barbarian past wounded or killed their fellow men, Heroes of our civilized day serve and save others."

Seven New Songs In Coming Film

Seven new songs are featured in Bing Crosby's new Paramount picture, "Rhythm on the River," which plays Sunday and Monday at the Strand theatre.

They are: "Only Forever," "I Ain't Got Rhythm," "I Can't Get Started," "That's for Me," "What Would Shakespeare Have Said?," "Rhythm on the River," "Ain't It a Shame About Mame?" and "When the Moon Comes Over Madison Square."

The names are divided between Bing and Mary Martin, Broadway stage star, well known for her version of "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in "Leave It to Me," hit musical of last season.

Also starred is Basil Rathbone with Lillian Cornell and Oscar Levant, one of the experts on radio's "Information Please" is the featured cast.

Three States In Final Push

Roosevelt Gets Ready For New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio Trip.

Washington, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Opening up the final "big push" of his 1940 campaigning, President Roosevelt got ready today for a quick sweep through New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The territory marked for invasion was politically rich, representing 109 electoral votes—one fifth of the entire national total. Entraining here in mid-afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt will swing through metropolitan and upstate New York, western Pennsylvania and thence to Cleveland, the biggest city in Ohio.

The first major speech of this final drive was down for tonight (9 p. m. est) at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, a spot that has almost been a "fixture" on the Democratic nominee's program during many years of campaigning. Tomorrow night (9 p. m. est) he will speak out to the nation again, from Cleveland's auditorium, scene of several national party conventions.

To Broadcast Closing Appeal

The campaign finish will end Monday night—at his own home in Hyde Park, N. Y., where he will broadcast his closing appeal to the nation's voters.

While Brooklyn speech will be his second bid within a week for the greater New York vote, it will be only one of the major addresses of his campaign at Madison Square Garden in Manhattan Monday night, in his drive to pile up city majority sufficient to carry New York's 47 electoral votes to the Democratic column.

To Visit Aircraft Factories

En route from Washington to Cleveland on Saturday, he will make train platform appearances at Rochester and Batavia, N. Y., and spend two hours motoring around Buffalo, visiting two aircraft factories and a steel plant.

The last platform appearance before Cleveland will be at Erie, Pa., where he will make his second appeal for Pennsylvania's 36 electoral votes. His first was at Philadelphia last week.

The Cleveland visit will be his second to the Buckeye State during the current campaign. Ohio has 26 electoral votes.

The White House said that if world conditions demanded, the chief executive would return directly to Washington from Cleveland, instead of going home. In that event his Monday night radio speech presumably would be made from the White House.

Works On Speeches

Mr. Roosevelt's day yesterday was taken up by work on his speeches, conferences with Secretary Hull on foreign affairs, a visit from Archbishop Spellman of New York, and a quick trip in the late afternoon to nearby Bethesda, Md., where he dedicated the new

Engineer Blamed For Rail Wreck

Philadelphia, Nov. 1.—(AP)—An engineman's alleged failure to heed a stop signal was blamed by a Pennsylvania railroad official today for the collision of a suburban electric train and a steam-drawn express in which more than 75 persons were injured.

The six-car electric train, crowded with home-bound commuters at the peak of the evening rush hour, crashed into the rear of the express late yesterday on a bridge in North Philadelphia.

R. W. Brown, vice president of the Reading, placed responsibility on the engineman of the electric train, Iva Showers, who was critically hurt.

Brown said in a statement the express had stopped to permit another passenger train to go by, and added that "the engineer of the electric train operated his train at a high rate of speed contrary to rules and disregarded the stop signal given by the flagman protecting the rear of the express train which was struck."

Wallace Hits G O P Tactics

Says Republicans Will Stoop to Anything to Stave Off Defeat.

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Republican party is "so desperate that it will stoop to anything to stave off defeat," says Democratic Vice-Presidential Nominee Henry A. Wallace.

He made that statement before an American Labor party rally last night in reply to Wendell L. Willkie's contention that, if President Roosevelt were re-elected, the country—on the basis of Mr. Roosevelt's "past pledges and performances"—might expect war by next April.

"We are arming for peace," Wallace declared. "We are arming to be so strong that we will not be attacked."

He reiterated his charge that Nazi organizations are going to "cast all of the votes they can muster" for Willkie next Tuesday.

$4,000,000 Plant of the National Industrial Council

He said there that "neither the American people nor their government intend to socialize medical practice any more than they plan to socialize industry."

With this statement he made a strong appeal for a "new deal" for the nation's farmers.

The farmer secretary of agriculture maintained that Willkie's campaign speeches indicate "he is not qualified by experience or judgment for the difficult task of keeping American secure and at peace," and that Willkie had shown "a southern cotton-field mind" upon foreign issues.

"The Republican leadership in Congress for the last several years, Wallace continued, "has misjudged the probability of a European war, the weakness of the Allied powers, the need for an early start on the American defense program."

Lauds Clear-Sightedness

On the other hand, he emphasized, "throughout the past seven years, the only clear-sighted view of the coming dangers to our country, and the only determined pressure toward preparedness for defense came from President Roosevelt.

"Even if the Republican candidate were a man of experience and proved wisdom," Wallace said, "even if the other Republican leaders had not discredited their statesmanship, by so doing taking the trend of foreign affairs, it would be a dangerous matter to have a change in the weeks between the election and the inauguration of a new president, while the European war blazes in the balance."

Over $175,000 In Buildings

About One Permit a Day Issued Here During The Last Month.

Figures available at the office of Building Inspector Edward C. Elliott, Jr. today show that a total of slightly over $175,500 in new building value was reached last month. Of special interest in connection with the total is the fact that of the 83 permits issued for October, 38, or better than one a day, were for new homes now being erected.

One For $8,000

While most of the new homes come under the figure of $4,500 in value, there are 8 buildings to cost $5,000 to $6,000, one for $7,200 and one for $8,000. Many garage permits were granted as were permits for alterations and additions.

Remains On Top

With its October total, Manchester remains among the top towns of the state in really development, and the past month compares very favorably with other periods for the year. During the winter months there probably will be some slackening of construction activity, but as long as the present clear weather holds there is no sign of a letup in work.

For today, the first of November, permits with a value of $6,300 had been granted up to this afternoon.

Italians Seize Populous Area

tanks and "other objectives" at Naples.

Several bombs fell at Bagnoli, four miles west of the city, and at Pomigliano D'Arco, eight miles to the northeast, the high command said.

Big Steel Mills in Region

Some of Italy's biggest blast furnaces and steel mills are located in this region.

The communique did not indicate from what direction the raids were launched.

("The London communique merely said the raiders were "a small detachment of the bomber command." Naples is nearly 1,000 air line miles from England, nearly twice as far as Milan, Genoa and other north Italy cities hitherto bombed by R. A. F. planes flying from home bases.)

In Bagnoli are some of Italy's biggest steel works and rolling mills, while new airplane factories with testing fields and laboratories are at Pomigliano D'Arco.

The communique reported a revival of heavy fighting in Egypt, with the Italians smashing at the British 20 miles east of Sidi Barrani, advance base of the drive toward the Nile and the Suez Canal which has been stalled for several weeks.

There was no indication, however, whether this activity meant the reopening of a major offensive coordinated with the Italian drive into Greece.

Reach Highway Junction

On the Greek warfront, meanwhile, Italian forces were reported to have reached a highway junction at Kalitaki. Italian engineers were said to be repairing roads damaged by the retreating Greeks.

In Egypt motorized Italian columns were said to have attacked British forces and pursued them beyond Alam el Samu, 25 miles east of Sidi Barrani.

Italian warplanes, the high command said, "unleashed violent attacks" on British positions in North Africa, during which they engaged in a "bitter combat" with British fighters.

Seventeen British planes were reported shot down and two others were listed as "probably" downed. Three Italian planes were said to be missing.

British Air Raids Ineffective

Scattered British air raids on Italian positions in north and east africa were described as ineffective.

The British raiders which attacked Naples dropped "several" high explosive bombs and one incendiary bomb, which caused "slight damage," the communique said.

This damage, the communique added, occurred at Bagnoli, a small watering place on the sea in the western environs of the city; Pomigliano D'Arco, a town eight miles northeast of Naples, and at the Porta Capuana, a triumphal arch or gateway in the eastern part of the city which dates from about 1485.

Asserts Roosevelt Initiated Offensive

Rome, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, accused President Roosevelt today of initiating an offensive against the Axis and held him and his supporters responsible for creation of an "ideological political conflict which is skidding toward belligerency between the United States and the Axis."

The editor of Il Giornale D'Italia, who often reflects official Fascist opinion, said he was answering a recent speech of United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Hull's speech, he said, "pretended again to change the elementary truth of the facts, inventing an Axis menace to America." He invited "these bellicose Americans" to furnish "one single, concrete, documented proof" of this menace.

Not Interested in Election

(Secretary Hull, speaking last Saturday night over a nationwide hook-up, described the rulers of Germany, Italy and Japan as "would-be conquerors" engaged in a relentless attempt to reduce mankind to "a master-and-slave relationship among nations and individuals maintained by brute force."

(They "adhere to no geographic links . . . on their programs of invasion" and "there can be nothing more dangerous for our nation than for us to assume that the avalanche of conquest could under no circumstances reach any portion of this hemisphere," Hull asserted.)

Citations of Speeches

Gayda followed these charges with citations of speeches and actions of Hull, President Roosevelt, Henry C. Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury; William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France; William Allen White, editor of The Emporia (Kas.) Gazette, senators and other leaders.

President Roosevelt, he charged, concerned himself with the internal affairs of Italy and Germany, including "public defamations of their political systems."

Gayda's citations began with the president's Chicago ("quarantine") speech in 1937 and continued down to the British-backed "Free French" attack on Dakar. He said a Spanish diplomat, "inquiring at a foreign office" (presumably in London) . . . was told the expedition against that French West African port had been made on American suggestion.

His editorial cited what was purported to be a secret report by Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish ambassador to the United States, May 7, 1939, which attributed to President Roosevelt "constant preparation of American public opinion to hate everything which savors of totalitarianism or Fascism."

To build up his case, Gayda mentioned speeches by William E. Dodd, former United States ambassador to Germany, Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, Former War Secretary Harry H. Woodring; Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, War Secretary Henry L. Stimson, Admiral Yates Sterling, ret., Hull and Bullitt.

Actions Seen Non-Neutral

Gayda cited these actions as particularly non-neutral:

Alleged routing of Atlantic Clipper planes by way of Bermuda (where there is British censorship) to keep Italians and Germans from using this means of communication.

Alleged application partiularly to Germans and Italians of alien residence in the United States.

Alleged refusal to furnish an Italian airline in South America with gasoline.

Export bans on various mineral products.

The trade of 50 destroyers, which he said were good warships "for British bases in the western Atlantic."

Coordination of American and English airplane manufacture to help Britain.

His reference to "fighting men" apparently meant the "eagle squadron," a unit of American pilots who individually have joined the British Air Force and who, Gayda said, already are fighting in England.

Greeks Repulse Italian Attacks

were included in the Fascist invasion columns.

The Stefani correspondent also said Italian troops had penetrated Greece from the sea as well as from Albania but he did not elaborate.

Continued Italian air raids yesterday on the port of Patras were reported officially and the toll of Monday's opening raid on the city reached 100 dead and 250 injured as Premier John Metaxas addressed a message of sympathy to the city.

Civilian Population Bombed

"A formation of raiders attacked an open town in a cowardly manner and the civilian population was bombed and machine-gunned from 600 feet," Metaxas declared.

"The innocent blood shed galvanizes our faith in the sanctity of the struggle and affords to the eyes of the civilized world a measure of the manliness and honesty of our enemy, who believes that with known murderous means he will intimidate a brave people.

"The blood of the dead citizens of Patras will be avenged by the nation."

Axis Workers Aid Greece

Aristides Demetratos, undersecretary of labor and general secretary of the Greek National Labor Confederation, called on workers throughout the world in a broadcast last night to come to the aid of Greece in her struggle against Italy.

The text of his appeal was sent to United States labor organizations.

He suggested a boycott of Italian products and urged that workers demand that their governments ban exports of raw materials and munitions to Italy.

King George II conferred yesterday with Metaxas and Generalissimo Alexander Papagos on the war situation.

Effective tomorrow, Greek newspapers will be reduced to two pages.

Under other new war measures foreign nationals now are forbidden to spend the night away from their homes and no mail will be accepted for foreign nations except Turkey, England and America.

Colonel Nolan Quits Guards

All Local Officers in Attendance at Banquet Held in Hartford.

Last night all the local Guard officers attended a farewell banquet in honor of Colonel Desmond J. Nolan in Hartford. Colonel Nolan retires today with the rank of Brigadier-General as commanding officer of the 169th Infantry regiment. The commander succeeded Colonel Petty as head of the 169th, and has made many friends by his cordial and willing attitude toward the men of his command. His post is expected to be filled by Colonel Cramer, now the assistant adjutant-general.

The Army has announced that 127 new Generals will be made at once to build up the present defense forces. This will cause promotions all the way down the line.

Transport Known Here

The planting of a bomb on the Army transport "Republic" has caused much speculation in town. The transport travels between New York and Panama and Hawaii carrying soldiers to and from their foreign posts. It is not known whether any local boys were on the boat at the time of the bomb discovery, but many of them have signed for overseas service while others, now back in town, travelled on the Republic while in the service.

A new transport has been added to the Army's fleet. The "President Roosevelt" has been acquired by the War Department, and will be used as a troop transport. This is no let-down for the liner due to the fact that she was ordered built for just the purpose she is now about to fulfill, to carry the boys in khaki.

Here and There

Questions have been coming in regarding the wives of Guardsmen attending the year's training. . . . this column will print full information that is available on the subject tomorrow night. . . . Corp. John Rieder is very patriotic these days. . . . the other night he had a cold and he wanted to find out if it was caused by a draft from his bedroom window. . . . therefore he filled a hot-bottle with numbered quizzes and placed it on the window sills. . . . in this way he could find out if he was in the "draft." (Ouch). . . . Our old friend Al Crane may be back with us again. . . . however he may wait awhile as his number has not yet been called. . . . We close with the reminder that the school on induction will be continued in Hartford tonight. . . . Officers, first sergeants and company clerks are expected to attend.

Ireland, while a British convoy had been dispersed off England's southeast coast by German planes.

A number of ships in the convoy were hit, said the daily communique, "one of them so effectively that it remained stationary with a heavy list." Informed sources had reported this success yesterday.

The communique also told of the successful bombing of important armament works near Birmingham and Bristol and an attack on a munitions depot west of London in which several buildings were blown up and a train was derailed.

Owing to bad weather the English decoated from all operations in the air yesterday," the communique said.

Aerial Activity Limited

Nazi aerial activity over England during the night was limited to the smallest scale of bad weather, but nevertheless London and Birmingham were bombed, informed sources reported today.

Heavy rain storms gave Germany a bombless night, these sources said, declaring that so far as had been ascertained no British planes had flown over Reich territory.

One British bomber was reported destroyed over German-occupied territory, however. Two other British planes were said to have been destroyed on the ground during attacks on England.

May Continue French Parleys

Berlin, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Sometime, somewhere, under a plan not yet fully arranged, representatives of France, Germany and Italy may meet to continue discussions started between Adolf Hitler and Marshal Philippe Petain, authorized sources said today, without, however, committing themselves beyond envisaging such possibilities.

They said the fundamental facts underlying such discussions, however, would be, on one hand, that France started and lost the war, hence must pay; and on the other hand, that the Axis will be guided both by a desire to be decent to a vanquished enemy and by a feeling of responsibility toward a new, peaceful Europe.

The Axis will not impose conditions humiliating to France nor will it strip France of her African empire but she "must pay for the war;" these authorized sources continued cryptically, leaving open whether they meant that France might have to give up part of her colonial possessions.

Choir of Emanuel Lutheran Church

First Appearance Here On a Concert Program

Harriet Hubbard Ayer

The Emanuel Choir, under the direction of G. Albert Pearson, will make its first Manchester appearance on a concert program with the G Clef and the Beethoven Glee Clubs on Monday evening, November 4, in High School hall. This choir which consists of forty-five mixed voices has been rapidly gaining fans in Connecticut as well as Massachusetts as one of the finer Lutheran choirs.

It will present a program of A Cappella numbers ranging from the Russian School to the present modern arrangements of the Lutheran Chorale. This choir is featured every Sunday at the morning service of the Emanuel church. G. Albert Pearson is just beginning his sixth year as director of the choir.

The Beethoven Club, the G Clef Club and the Emanuel Choir as a combined Chorus will present one group of songs.

The entire proceeds of the concert will be given to the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Biochemistry, Berlin-Dahlem, Germany,

The Name of a Day

Great Britain, it is officially announced, will forego the traditional two minutes of silence with which it has observed the anniversary of Armistice Day ever since 1918 when the long revered November 11 arrives. King George has cancelled the usual ceremony before the Cenotaph in Whitehall and the authorities have asked that other large service s be abandoned.

Instead there is to be observed on Sunday, Nov. 10, a national "Day of Remembrance and Dedication," when, in the words of the Archbishop of Canterbury, "those who already in the present war have given their lives will be remembered with the World War dead and we shall dedicate ourselves to finishing, if it may be, the work which the men of 1914-18 sought to do."

Just incidentally it may be said in passing that if it had been Winston Churchill or almost any of the seven or more millions of "little people" of London who had made this announcement, instead of the Archbishop of Canterbury, there is small likelihood that those words "if it may be" would have appeared in it.

A year ago we speculated in these columns as to whether or not our own annual observation of Armistice Day had not lost part of its meaning. Such speculation seems to be now superfluous. As a special memorial day to those Americans who gave up their lives in the conflict which we all thought was a war to end war the date has lost none of its high significance. But besides being such a day of tribute to men Armistice Day was also a day of gratitude for the victory of a great idea.

The trouble with us all was that we had never sufficiently weighed the real and possibly sinister meaning of the word "armistice." It had never meant anything but a temporary cessation of hostilities by agreement. Yet in 1918 we waited for nothing but the announcement of the Armistice of Compiegne to jump at the conclusion that the war to end wars had been won, that it was all over and that everlasting peace had come to the world. So we went mad with joy, shrieked with exultation, threw away our hats—and our guns—and gave ourselves over to a happy poppy dream that we had accomplished what all the ages had failed to bring about.

We utterly forgot all about the fact that the document signed in a railroad car in a forest was, after all, an agreement for a temporary suspension of fighting—and that throughout history there had been literally thousands of armistices, and no end to war.

And somehow that confusion of term and fact remained with us. For a long time we continued to think of Armistice Day as a day that stood for a finality, for a new order. We kept on dreaming through a dozen little wars that chased close on the heels of the great one. We kept on dreaming as new threats of new and greater wars gathered.

And now we know that the wonderful peace we thought we had achieved in the signing of a temporary truce had no more permanence than fair weather between storms—that we had been worshiping a rainbow.

No one can thrill to the words "Armistice Day" any more. They are filled with bitter irony. Perhaps we, too, would do well to find another name for the day of our reverent remembrance for those who accomplished so heroically a task that the forces of evil have robbed of its meaning.

The Duty of Voting

No one expects that more than fifty million Americans will go to the polls next Tuesday. Four years ago the total vote was 45,646,817. It is believed that nearly twenty million persons eligible to vote in that election did not do so.

Only a relatively small proportion of these could have been people deliberately disfranchised by gerrymanders discriminatory laws or by social pressure, as are so many Negroes in the South. The majority were prevented by voting only through sheer indifference, actual inability to get to the polls for various reasons or by the fact that they had never taken the trouble to qualify as electors. It would probably amaze any zealous American who regards his franchise as something to be treasured and defended if he could be made aware of the number of his fellow citizens who have neglected to be made voters and have never cast a ballot throughout a political maturity extending over many years.

It is easily one of the most discouraging things in this country's experience as a democracy that there are always twenty-five or thirty per cent of the nation's people, legally eligible to take part in elections, who habitually fail to do so.

Even here in Manchester there are always from fifteen to twenty-five per cent of the registered voters in any election however important, who do not get to the polls.

This is not a healthy condition. It is potentially dangerous that there are far too many people who have no real sense of the responsibilities of their citizenship.

It is profoundly to be hoped that next Tuesday the country, this state and this town will set a new high mark for the proportion of its qualified voters who discharge the duty which they owe to themselves, their families and their citizenship by going to the polls and voting according to their convictions.

Source of a Roorback

There appeared on the streets of Manchester yesterday a mimeographed single sheet circular bearing the typed signature "F. Henry Statler, Co-ordinator of the Union Party," the real purpose of which is a bit baffling. It is a long, rambling, poorly constructed distribe combining an utterly nonsensical attack on the Free Masons with an equally extravagant and wholly libelous assault on Governor Baldwin and the whole state administration. It winds up with an admonition to vote for Hurley and the Democratic state ticket and for "Maloney."

No intelligent person will assume the Democratic party or any of the Democratic candidates of any responsibility for this specimen of gutter literature. It could not win a vote for them. It might easily lose many. It is even more difficult to imagine any Republican strategist descending to such tactics in the belief that it would react directly against the candidates it purported to support.

Yet the distribution of a large number of these circulars throughout the state—and the presumption is that the circulating was state-wide—must have involved considerable expense. Somebody put up some money.

At the risk of being suspected of witch hunting we suggest the entire possibility of the clumsy finger of Nazism being in this pie.

Great distension and mutual suspicion among the people; play on religion against religion; attack the motives of all public officials; accuse all secret societies of criminal disloyalty and corruption; set group against group and spread suspicion and fear everywhere—and you will have destroyed the essence of democracy and opened the way for Hitler. Hell Hitler! That is the creed that Dr. Goebbels has been preaching to his followers in America—and in every other country.

And there are many stupid fellows in the United States ready and eager to follow Goebbels. This could be some of their work.

Fear Axis Votes?

Representative James A. Shanley of New Haven is the only Connecticut member of Congress on whom the Connecticut Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies has turned thumbs down as a result of its test of all representative and senatorial candidates by the questionnaire method. Shanley, who voted against the amendment of the neutrality law and against conscription, proved to be so antagonistic to the program of the CDAAA that that organization, so far as any support of the committee and its friends is concerned, put him in a class by himself. It is perhaps unfortunate that his Republican opponent, Ranulf Compton, while generally favorable, declined to answer three questions, among them this one: "Are you opposed to all attempts to appease Hitler?"

New Haven has the largest population of foreign-born people of Axis origin of any community in the state and it polls a heavy proportion of the vote of the Third Congressional District. It may possibly be that neither Mr. Shanley, in his past course in Congress and his attitude toward the future, or Mr. Campton, in his refusal to commit himself on the appeasement question, are courageously following their true convictions. If so they are unfortunate indeed in presenting the appearance of being cowards when they fearful of a racial minority and its probable action on election day.

Why Wait?

In the news columns today appears a dispatch from Salina, Kan., stating that all political literature in that town is to be burned in a public bonfire the night after the election. The project is sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, whose president declares that the country cannot prevent a united front to dictators if it is torn by political bickering.

In our view that puts the cart well in front of the wisest communities in the United States. We have only one suggestion to make concerning the idea, which is that Salina would win the distinction of being not only the wisest and most patriotic town in the country, but the sanest if, instead of waiting till the night after election for its bonfire of dissension promoting, interparty shame it would hold that ceremony right straight off—tonight.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Shed a tear for the pigeon bill. It died.

There were some who called it emergency defense legislation. There were some who merely pooh-poohed it as another clutter on the statute books. Among the latter was President Roosevelt, who sent it back to the House of Representatives with his veto.

The pigeon bill was a measure which would make it an offense—punishable by $500 fine to shoot, capture, pursue or otherwise hamper a homing pigeon in flight.

It was introduced in the House by the representative from Brooklyn, Dr. Joseph L. Pfeifer, prominent surgeon and himself a fancier of the winged messengers. He pointed out at the bill's inception that it was an emergency measure, that the war department was "interested in the measure, which it says is needed for military defense" because "when all other means of communication fail, the homing pigeon always gets through."

Passed By Senate

Senator Wagner, also of New York, had the bill given right of way in the Senate as defense legislation. It passed both houses.

The President said in his veto message that it seemed like an unnecessary new law and that if any real need should arise for the measure there would be plenty of time to enact it later.

"I am inclined to think there are no Americans, or at least very few of them who would deliberately shoot or capture a homing pigeon. I think there are practically no people who would deliberately remove or alter a message in the leg band of a homing pigeon. After all, homing pigeons do not closely resemble any game birds."

Story Behind It

On the face of it, I'll string along with the President. Name an enemy spy out to bag a homing pigeon and its message who would tremble with fear at the prospect of a $500 fine.

But if I have my pigeons in a straight line, there's a story behind this story . . . and here it is.

In Brooklyn and other communities there's a widespread pigeon racket, perpetrated by a sort of Black Hand of Pigeonholes. These fiends who prey on the pigeon fanciers have devised intricate ways of capturing the homing birds.

Sometimes they send up their own flocks nearby during exercise periods and, thus snare a few strays from the purebred. Ant-weeps or homers.

Sometimes they net them or stun them with minute shot and light charges from rifles or shot guns.

They examine the bands, find the owner, call him up and give him the "Say, Mister, I just found your pigeon. I'll bring him back but I'm way cross town, and it'll cost a dollar to get there. Will you pay it?"

Fanciers Furious

This pigeon snatching for ransom has the fanciers furious. Since their feathered pets ARE important to armies in wartime, they didn't see why the government has to be so antagonistic to the program of the CDAAA that that organization, so far as any support of the committee and its friends is concerned, put him in a class by tle in their hoots. Death before a firing squad for squabnapping—there would have been a sentence severe enough to make enemy spies and even Brooklyn Blackhanders think once or twice.

I agree with the President, but I sympathize with Dr. Pfeifer and his friends. They do have a cause. I particularly sympathize with Dr. Pfeifer for this is the second time he has championed a lost cause. Last year he introduced and saw defeated a bill to provide that all gravestones in national cemeteries should be of the sugar bright

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—A few weeks ago we congratulated Buddy DeSylva, via this space, for elevating Betty Allen to the role vacated by Ethel Merman in "Du Barry Was a Lady." Miss Allen is a young woman who had, until that moment, always served as an understudy, but had never starred. The Merman vacancy gave her a chance.

But it wasn't but a handful of days after this that the above announced still a new addition to the cast. The tall, well-known figure of Gypsy Rose Lee, ex-burlesque strip tease dancer, was brought to the company, and the Merman role was divided into two parts: Miss Allen was to remain and sing all but two of the songs, but Miss Lee was to play the role of "Du Barry" and speak the lines.

Buddy DeSylva knows his business, I suppose. He must he's made a lot of money on Broadway and you don't make money on Broadway unless your judgment is sound. Nevertheless, we can't see Miss Gypsy Rose Lee as an improvement in any way over Miss Allen. We think she is a swell person but mediocre as a singer and talker.

We were wondering how the two girls were making out, whether there was any hair-pulling back stage as a result of this shift, but one of our colleagues, who chatted with them, both, says no.

"Of course," Betty told him, "I was disappointed that I couldn't keep the part as long as the show stayed on Broadway, but you couldn't expect Gypsy Rose to remain idle until they took the show on the road—that might be December or later. . . . So I don't have any hard feelings on that account. I'm glad to stay in the show. I'm young and can afford to wait. Now you take Gypsy. She's a natural for the role. She's more the Du Barry type than I am, and on the road she's known; her name will mean more at the box office."

So that's the new set-up as of today, with "Du Barry Was a Lady" which has proved itself one of Broadway's happiest events in a long while. The show must be almost a year old now, and still coining money.

As for Betty Allen—she's 24, a brunet with flashing eyes and a husky voice, a native of San Diego, Calif., who has lived most of her life in New York.

She's been on the stage nine years, "often an understudy but never a lead," she grins. . . . "Funny thing," she recalls, "the first job I ever had was understudying Ethel Merman in the 'Scandals,' and now I was hired to understudy her again."

Betty lives with her mother and likes to paint in her spare time. She's never exhibited any of her work in a gallery, but some of her stuff is hanging in a little hamburger stand around the corner from where she lives.

She thinks that's funny.

Recluse's $8,000 Deposit Unclaimed

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 1.—(AP)—An $8,000 bank deposit left by an 83-year-old recluse lay unclaimed today.

A newsboy found the man, T. J. Parker, dead a week ago on the bed room floor of a ramshackle house, where he lived alone. A search of a battered trunk revealed papers that led to the bank deposit.

Police have been unable to find relatives of Parker, who they said, was a retired railroad man.

Badgett Quadruplets Being Reared Simply

Nearing Second Birthday in Perfect Trim, Despite Absence of Unusual Precautions.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Badgett quadruplets—as coy a batch of girls as ever smashed a toy—are nearing their second birthday in perfect trim, despite the absence of any unusual precautions to safeguard their health.

The Badgetts—Joan, Joyce, Jeraldine and Jeanette—are being reared in simple fashion. That's the way Mrs. W. Ellis Badgett, 38-year-old mother of America's youngest quads, wants it.

"Those children are going to grow up just like any others," she says firmly.

Housed in One Room

The blonde girls, born Feb. 1, 1939, are housed in one light, airy room of the Badgetts' modest bungalow. Their four trundle beds take up most of the room's space.

There is no nurse, no governess for the children. Mrs. Badgett takes care of them herself.

"And that is a full-time job; they're to look after four wild little girls keeps me on the jump.

"They are rough sometimes; they get into fights. I can't let them have toys very much; they'll hit each other with them."

Joan is the heavyweight of the quartet and occasionally takes advantage of her bulk, bullying the others about. She tips the scales at 29 pounds, compared with the neighborhood of 23.

Mother Knows Girls

Jeraldine learns quicker than the others.

Joyce is timid around visitors and serious. She loves to look at the comic section of the Sunday paper. But often does so with a poker-faced expression.

Jeanette is the "spit-fire." She "pushes 'em and pulls 'em around, starts lots of fights, and generally stirs up things."

Joyce is the sweetest.

The quartet physical and mental development has been so swift that Mrs. Badgett decided she would enter them in dancing school this winter.

Aunts Already

"They are growing up. You know, they are aunts already," she laughs.

The tots became aunts this summer when their 18-year-old half-sister, Mrs. J. Jones of Odessa, Tex., gave birth to a girl. Mrs. Jones is Mrs. Badgett's daughter by a former marriage.

The city of Galveston, in an effort to repay the Badgetts for the publicity they have brought the island resort, is endeavoring to raise $10,000 toward the purchase of a home for the quadruplets.

The process is slow, but in less than a year the Badgetts are expected to be in their new domicile.

Father Home Twice Weekly

Papa Badgett comes in from Bay City, Tex., where he is a farm tractor dealer, about twice a week. The tots, who "all look like him," create a bedlam of welcome.

In keeping with their policy of rearing the children quietly, the Badgetts have permitted no public appearances. Visitors are allowed to peer through the windows of the quadruplets' room, but that is all.

"It's only time they get outside the yard," Mrs. Badgett says, "is when I take them for an automobile ride.

"But I can't do that very often; they fight even in the car."

The sole time the quads have had any connection with a public gathering was on the occasion of a "quadruplets convention." But the tots still were in the hospital and the general public had no opportunity to see them.

Reaches Classical Standing

It was during that "convention" that Mrs. Badgett dropped the remark which has reached classical standing in the annals.

Mrs. Badgett was semi-petrified by the sight of Harold Hormone, famous quadruplets' father, and somewhat confused by the immense crowd which had caused him.

But after conversing with Mrs. Dionne Keys, mother of the Indiana girl quadruplets, and Mrs. Marie Perricone, mother of the Beaumont, Tex., boy quartet, Mrs. Badgett confided:

"I feel so much better now. If they can do it, I can, too."

Plane Report "Fantasy."

Moscow, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Tass, the official Soviet news agency, yesterday termed a British-circulated report that Soviet airplanes had reached Greece "a fantasy" and said it "does not correspond to the facts in any extent whatsoever."

Man Wanted

Have you ever said to yourself . . . "I wish my rooms weren't so cluttered and crowded . . . If I only had enough storage space for clothes and linens." Young Modern Furniture solves such problems. It is carefully architect-designed to meet the needs of today's homes and today's living.

For instance, in your bedroom you might use a scheme like the one pictured . . . beds and ample drawer space on one side of the room. This leaves the balance of your floor space for chair groups! Imagine a room as practical and useful as this! Then imagine every other room in your home just as smart and attractive for Young Modern Furniture is made for every room in the home. It is truly flexible. It fits. There are five sizes of chests alone. Bookcases and cabinets come in numerous widths. Beds can be had with or without footboards and over-size if you wish! And nearly every piece serves dual purposes!

See Young Modern tomorrow. Try it in your rooms by means of our set of miniature replicas and scaled plan-paper!

Fire Damages Plane Plant

Troy, O., Nov. 1 — The Waco Aircraft Co., working at capacity production on Army training planes, was damaged by fire yesterday. Reporting combustion among oil rags started the blaze, firemen said there was no evidence of sabotage. They estimated damage at $10,000. Four crowded ships were wheeled to safety but many plane parts were lost.

Mrs. Browder Told to Leave

Justice Department Orders Deportation of Communist's Wife.

Washington, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Justice Department yesterday ordered the deportation of Mrs. Raissa Berkman Browder, wife of Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, on the ground that she had entered this country illegally.

The order signed by Attorney General Jackson also denied application for suspension of deportation order on the ground that Mrs. Browder's "evasive testimony regarding her relationship to the Communist party had created doubt as to her eligibility for leniency."

Immigration officials said that Mrs. Browder, who is 43, would be given a 'reasonable time", in which to present herself for deportation to her native Russia.

The period she will be permitted for winding up her affairs will be determined within a few days, it was said.

Married in Moscow

Mrs. Browder and her husband, the Communist party candidate for president, were married in Moscow in September, 1926, and have three sons. Two were born in New York city in 1934. The family resides in Yonkers, N. Y.

Earl Browder, a native of Kansas, is under sentence for passport fraud. He is now at liberty pending action on an appeal granted him by the Supreme court.

Mrs. Browder had asked leniency on the ground that she was the wife of a native-born citizen of the United States and the mother of three children, offspring, but the Board of Immigration Appeals held that that had "no bearing upon the question of her deportability."

She disclosed that she had last entered the United States in the fall of 1933 by train from Canada and intended to remain here permanently although she did not have a valid immigration visa.

One Possibility for Delay

One possibility remained for further delay. The attorney general said that Mrs. Browder could now, prior to her departure, seek to reopen the hearing if she had further evidence to produce. He noted, however, that his opinion was based on the "respondent's own statements made in her previous visitations entry in 1933," and that she had not challenged either the Appeals Board's finding of fact or its conclusion of law.

The denial for leniency was sued. Jackson said, on the alien registration act of 1940 which permits the attorney general to suspend deportations of aliens under certain circumstances, but not in cases where the aliens are members of or affiliated with organizations which advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Mrs. Browder testified, the Appeals Board's opinion said, that she assisted her husband in his secretary and by doing research for his writings and speeches and that "she lived from 1919 to 1933 in Moscow under the Communist regime."

Completing Plans For Dance of No. 1

Plans are going forward rapidly for the annual Thanksgiving Eve Social which Hose and Ladder Company No. 1 of the South Manchester Fire Department is sponsoring at Cheney Hall on Wednesday evening, Nov. 27. This affair has come to be looked upon as one of the traditions connected with the local observance of Thanksgiving.

This season's renewal of the "Turkey, Goose and Pig" event promises to be of the same high quality as the socials held in the past. The usual prizes will be awarded, consisting of twenty-nine useful articles, and tickets for these are now on sale by members of the company.

These prizes are as traditional as the affair itself, the list being headed by the old standbys of a turkey, a goose and pig. The prizes will be drawn the night of the dance at Cheney Hall and the sponsors are looking forward to a gala turnout of townspeople on Nov. 27.

Six Are Injured In Bomb Blast

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Nov. 1.—(AP)—A 12-year-old schoolboy yesterday ruefully surveyed the toll of damage from a homemade bomb which exploded in his trouser pocket as he sat down at his desk in the Mamaroneck Junior High school.

Five pupils and a teacher were injured in the explosion Wednesday. Alfred Weeks, Jr., the boy who made and carried the bomb, suffered severe lacerations.

Washington, Nov. 1 — The National Jewish Monthly said yesterday there were no issues involving race or religion in next Tuesday's elections and that many members of the Jewish race would vote for each presidential candidate.

'Master List' Now in Mails

Last Copies of Lottery Roll Off Presses at Early Hour Today.

Washington, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The last copies of the Selective Service lottery "master list" rolled off the presses at the Government Printing Office in the early hours today and were rushed into the mail for the conscription boards in nearby states.

The "master lists" for inland and western states had long since been on their way by train and plane, as Selective Service headquarters here concentrated on speedy distribution so that local boards would have their lists by the start of next week.

To Send Out Questionnaires

Until the lists are in the hands of the nation's 6,175 local boards, these boards cannot get to work on the mailing of questionnaires and the classification of the first Selective Service eligibles for a year's military training. The questionnaires will be sent to registrants in the order their numbers were drawn in Tuesday's lottery, and the information developed by the questionnaires is the initial basis for determining whether a registrant will be called for duty or deferred.

Although most of the first Selective Service quota of 30,000 is expected to be filled by volunteers who prefer to take training immediately instead of waiting for their turns on the draft list, they must go through the questionnaire and classification processes before being accepted for service and inducted into the Army.

Jailed For Wife-Beating

Malibu, Calif., Nov. 1 — (AP) — George Drexel Biddle Steele, 44, self-described retired Philadelphia stock broker, must serve 60 days in the county jail for wife beating. A justice of the peace sentenced him to 180 days after Steel pleaded guilty to a battery charge, but suspended 120 days as a condition of two years' probation.

New Deal Seen Great Failure

Smith Says Roosevelt Didn't Heed Reports Of Military Officials.

Boston, Nov. 1.—(AP)— Declaring that the New Deal was "the greatest failure in recorded history," Alfred E. Smith asserted last night that "we would be ready now and have our defense" if President Roosevelt had heeded reports of Army and Navy officials.

Speaking within 24 hours after Mr. Roosevelt had delivered a campaign address in this city, the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee urged the election of Wendell L. Willkie and declared:

"Almighty God in His infinite goodness, in His infinite mercy, has always presented to the United States the man who she is in her hour of trial—Willkie."

SERIAL STORY

NEW YORK JUNGLE

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

Yesterday: Barkes is trapped, holding a package in a tree. He explains to Plowman that he has been innocently involved trying to save his dog, trying to keep Langdon from discovering it. They follow the murder, he had to get rid of the dog. In an attempt to smuggle the dog out of the house, he gave it too much chloroform. Killed it. It was he, whom Braitwood trailed down the passage into the Jungle. Plowman questions him about $500 Langdon had at the time of the murder.

Plowman Makes An Arrest

CHAPTER XXII

For a moment Barkes was silent. Then he faced Plowman furiously.

"You can't railroad me, Plowman," he shouted. "Mr. Langdon knew I had that money. He gave it to me. I cashed the check for him at the bank. The teller telephoned him to make sure it was all right. You can ask him.

"Mr. Langdon had told me to take the midnight train to the city. I was to see his doctor and get a special prescription. It was about taking that much money, just for medicine. Mr. Langdon said it was a remedy for jungle fever, that it was very costly. He told me not to tell anyone that I was going on the errand."

"Why didn't you tell us this before?" Yeoman shot back.

"I was afraid to. I didn't think you'd believe me. All that money for medicine. I intended to return the money to Mrs. Langdon.

"All right, all right. Come along, Barkes." He motioned to a trooper to take the chauffeur away.

"We'll check your story with the bank teller, and look up the doctor. You needn't worry, if you're telling the truth." Braitwood tried to ease the chauffeur's terror. He knew that Pat would corroborate Barkes' story of the medicine, knew that she had burned Adam's supply of drugs, and that he would attempt to get more. There was little more to say, as the trooper led Barkes away.

"Any new evidence?" He turned back to Captain Plowman.

"Plenty," the officer replied. "We found the money, hidden in the garage. Found a gun, too, but it had been cleaned. Then this friend, whom Barkes claims to have talked to in town, this fellow Brabant, has a record. He has a green sedan, too.

"Brabant may have been just a casual acquaintance," Sidney argued. "There are hundreds of green sedans. Barkes didn't recognize the driver. He wouldn't offer Brabant as an alibi if he knew he wasn't in the village."

Plowman ignored his arguments. "The way I see it, Mr. Braitwood, is that Barkes cashed the check all right, brought the money here, gave it to Langdon, then stole it again and hid it in the Jungle. He knew as soon as Langdon went upstairs he'd miss it and call police. He was after Mrs. Langdon's pearls, too."

"Naturally," Sidney agreed.

"Suppose he had a confederate in the Jungle. Say the valet. The bad blood between them may have been faked. The confederate put out the light so that Barkes could escape through the chimney, while the entire company think they have been locked in from the outside, so that the thief could loot upstairs."

"I don't agree, but it could be true" Sidney commented.

"Let us all save Barkes drive off and he had a witness who had been him in the village. He admits he came back. He says, before he drove to the village. It couldn't have been after.

"Suppose he did get back before you came downstairs for coffee instead of after. It needs no stretch of the imagination to figure that he was in the Jungle with the plan to go up through the flue into Langdon's room for the pearls when you all came in, so he hid. He could get up through the flue without anyone hearing him. But when you surprised him by coming down for coffee so soon, he was in a jam."

"You are making out a case, Plowman, but I still don't agree."

"Wait until I have finished." Plowman half smiled. "Barkes shot circuited the lights in the smaller room while Togi turned them off in the larger room. Togi locked the door. When Togi was on the ladder he saw Barkes hiding and they signale each other. In the darkness Barkes was to make the flue.

"Then came the lightning. Langdon saw Barkes sneaking toward the passage. He aimed but Barkes shot first. In the thunder that followed, no one heard him. He was frightened by what he had done and gave up going after the pearls, especially as he knew you men were on the way upstairs. He went out the drawing room window. That accounts for there being no wet prints on the parlor carpet. He was leaving, not entering.

"Well reasoned, if you can prove it," Sidney admitted.

"Maybe I can and maybe now I can't, Mr. Braitwood," Plowman said, in a tone that left Sidney in doubt.

The clock in the hall had emitted a solitary tinkle when Sidney knocked on Patricia Langdon's bedroom door. Her face expressed surprise at the lateness of his visit, but he saw that she was fully dressed. She had been examining some legal-looking papers, probably some she had found in Adam's desk.

"Sorry to disturb you at such an ungodly hour, Mrs. Langdon," the lawyer said, with a touch of weariness, "but Plowman has just made an arrest and I thought you'd want to know it."

"An arrest!" Pat gasped. "He can't have fastened the murder on Craig?"

"Oh, not Gundrum. He's arrested your chauffeur, Henry Barkes."

"Oh, Barkes." Pat's relief was evident. "What can he have learned about that poor, simple man?"

"He believes, or says he does, that Barkes worked with a confederate, a fellow he met at the hotel. He thinks the confederate, Brabant, he called him, came up here sometime before dinner to look for your pearls and failed to find them, so he left the actual theft to Barkes.

"Barkes missed the pearls, but he did take $500 from Adam's desk. Barkes claims that Adam gave him the money to take into New York for some medicine. He had the money hidden in the garage and was expecting to take the midnight train to New York after bring back your packages from the village.

"Plowman reasons that Barkes, after taking the money, went down into the jungle through the passage—which he admits having explored—and hid the money there. He was about to have another hunt for your pearls when he heard us coming downstairs and he did not have time to get to the fireplace before we opened the door. After that the story goes pretty much as Gundrum had figured it."

"Marvelous detecting!" Pat sneered. "I don't believe Barkes would kill a fly, intentionally."

"Did Barkes know you had the pearls?" Sidney asked.

"How could he know about them? I haven't worn the string since I left Capstone."

"That," said Braitwood, "was what I came up to find out. If you haven't worn the pearls or displayed them, I can't see how Barke could have known you owned them."

"Adam and I did not even land in New York. We came on a freighter and landed in Savannah. We flew up here." She laughed. "Barkes is in no danger if that is Captain Plowman's case."

"I understand," Sidney said gravely. "You telephoned Gundru i to come here for your protection, didn't you?"

Pat flushed. "What if I did? My father is in Capstone and there was no one else to whom I could turn. Craig did not shoot Adam."

Bay State Gets Extra Tax Cash

Boston, Nov. 1.—(AP)—An unexpected "present" of more than a half million dollars was dropped today in the lap of the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Tax Commissioner Long revealed that the inheritance tax from the $37,000,000 estate of Col. Edward H. R. Green, previously estimated at $4,750,000, would be $533,180 in excess of that amount.

Long said the additional money, if applied to relieve real estate owners, would benefit them by 30 cents on each $1,000 valuation in 1941.

The $4,750,000 amount was applied in the 1939-40 biennial budget and so benefitted real estate tax payers by $1.22 on each $1,000 valuation, official figures disclosed.

Movies Will Be Used in Training

Hollywood, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Movies will help teach draftees how to drive a tank, operate a machine gun or make a snappy salute.

The motion picture industry today offered its entire facilities to the U. S. Army for production of training films for which $250,000 has been appropriated.

Maj. Richard T. Schlosberg, chief of the Signal Corps Photographic Division, will arrive next week to inaugurate production.

Willkie Tells British Views

Sends Telegram to Local Woman Stating Position on Help in Crisis.

Wendell Willkie's position on aid for Great Britain in the present war crisis was explained last night in a telegram from the Republican Presidential candidate to Mrs. Gloria C. Goodrich, vice chairman of the Republican Town committee. Mrs. Goodrich asked Mr. Willkie to clarify his position on help for the British when it was brought to her attention that many British sympathizers in Manchester felt the Republican candidate was not friendly towards the Allies.

Mr. Willkie's telegram to Mrs. Goodrich reads as follows:

"Long before the Philadelphia convention I made statements to the effect that we must give Britain all aid short of war. I believe by keeping this country out of war our great industrial plants will then be able to do much more for Britain than if we declared war and thus were forced to retain outputs of munition factories for ourselves. I have repeatedly made these statements and am glad you have given me this opportunity to again make my position quite clear.

Wendell L. Willkie."

Los Angeles Feels Jolting Temblor

Los Angeles, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Los Angeles metropolitan area felt a jolting earthquake at 11:26 o'clock last night (2:26 a. m. Friday, e. s. t.) The temblor lasted two seconds and caused a rolling motion. No damage was reported.

In Glendale, sleepers were awakened and windows rattled. Santa Monica residents felt the shock, as did other beach cities in the west bay area.

The earthquake appeared to be local in origin, however, and was not felt as far north as San Luis Obispo, or southward to San Diego.

Bridgeport Man's Body Recovered

Port Jefferson, N. Y., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The body of Leonard Kassin of Bridgeport, Conn., one of three men drowned when their small boat overturned last week-end in Long Island Sound, was recovered yesterday.

George Barlow's body was washed ashore last Monday. Kassin's son, Leonard, is still missing.

The three men started from Bridgeport last Friday in a 12-foot boat with an outboard motor. Police said they were apparently upset when a squall caught them in open water in the sound.

Johnson Hits Power Desire

Accuses Kennedy of 'War Mongering' in Speech for Willkie.

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, says Gen. Hugh Johnson, would give up emergency powers "as willingly as a hungry tiger gives up raw meat."

In a radio address last night under auspices of The Associated Willkie Clubs of America, the former NRA administrator accused Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy of "war mongering" and said Kennedy had been "brought back" from England "to save the president's threatened fiasco."

Has Lost Confidence.

He contended the president had lost the confidence of business men and said that workers on WPA and others on relief had little chance of bettering their condition under the present administration.

"New Deal efforts in this election show you are asked to sell your political souls for the crumbs of poverty you get and are entitled to get, not from the fourth New Deal, but from the whole people," he said.

"There is only one way out, and that is to create millions of jobs in private enterprise. Mr. Roosevelt can't. I am confident that Mr. Willkie can."

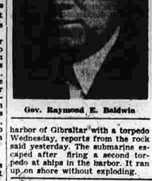
Baldwin Speaks Here At Big Rally Tonight

Governor to Top List Of Noted Citizens to Make Addresses at The Masonic Temple.



Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin

Governor Raymond E. Baldwin heads a distinguished group of speakers who will be at the Republican rally in the Masonic Temple tonight. The rally is scheduled to get underway at eight o'clock and the public is welcome to attend.

Paul L. Cornell, candidate for United States Senator, will also be here to expound his views in favor of the Republican ticket as will Attorney General Francis A. Pallotti. Other speakers on the program will be State Senator William J. Shea, who is a candidate for re-election in the Fourth Senatorial district, Judge Charles S. House and Leland T. Wood, candidates for representative to the General Assembly, are also on the program.

Keynote Of Big Crowd

A large gathering of voters is expected at the Temple to greet the distinguished guests tonight. The Republican town committee has canvassed in a number of voters in an effort to give the speakers a capacity audience. There is plenty of parking space in the vicinity of the Temple and the banquet hall in the building makes an ideal place for such a gathering.

Address To Youth

In an address to the youth of Connecticut last night Governor Baldwin offered the Republican party as the party of youth. He said that while "we have cut unemployment in Connecticut by a third there still are jobs needed, jobs for youth, jobs not alone in munitions industries, but in sound, peace-time production.

"The New Dealers in Washington," the governor said, in his address which was broadcast over a hook-up of radio stations, "had been concentrating upon relief and WPA jobs for the unemployed. We found a whole new generation of young men and young women, literally the products of the depression and of the New Deal's inability to cope with the acute problem of unemployment. Here in Connecticut, our Republican administration saw that situation for what it was—a vicious circle in which you, our younger people, were caught.

"Today we have a 'war boom,'" the governor said, "and jobs in national defense industries, but still there are many of you right here in our state who would not have the jobs you now have were it not for the job training courses that we set up here in Connecticut and which now are being copied throughout the length and breadth of our land as the basis for national training for defense production."

Job Training Class

Governor Baldwin referred to "two occasions which are outstanding in my mind as memorable incidents of these two years that I have been governor." The first is "the memory of the graduation exercises that we held the Monday before Christmas, 1939, in the Hartford Trade School for our first job training class." The governor said, "I shall never forget the look in those boys' eyes, nor my own pride in their accomplishment, and no one will ever be able to tell me that our Connecticut young people of today are soft, unwilling to work, or lack any of the ambition that we have been so proud of in our young people of the past."

The second occasion, the governor said, was the presentation in May, 1940, of the Connecticut Youth Awards for achievement of boys and girls in agriculture, 4-H club work and home economics. "These Connecticut youth awards were originated by our new State Development commission, and for this first occasion were limited to awards in agriculture and home economics. However, we plan to widen the variety of awards to include both industry and recreation."

"Our Republican party here in Connecticut, and Wendell Willkie in the Republican party nationally, are the leaders of youth in this land of ours today."

Again Named Head Of Manufacturers

Hartford, Nov. 1.—(AP)—E. Kent Hubbard of Middletown was elected for his 31st successive term as president of The Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, Inc., yesterday at the annual meeting here.

John H. Goss, president, Scovill Manufacturing Company, Waterbury, was re-elected vice president. Harold D. Fairweather, executive vice president, Colt's Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Company, Hartford, re-elected treasurer, and C. L. Kyannon, West Hartford, secretary and assistant treasurer.

Directors elected were: Phelps Ingersoll, vice president, Wilcox, Crittenden & Co., Middletown, director representing Middlesex county, R. H. Valentine, president, The Warren Woolen Company, Stafford Springs, director representing Tolland county, G. W. Blunt White, vice president, Sonoco Products Company, Mystic, director-at-large. The new directors will serve for a term of four years starting Jan. 1, 1941.

Destroys Part Of Net

La Linea, Spain, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A daring Italian submarine destroyed part of the metal underwater net which protects the harbor of Gibraltar with a torpedo Wednesday, reports from the rock said yesterday. The submarine escaped after firing a second torpedo at ships in the harbor. It ran up on shore without exploding.

Questions and Answers (Food Questions)

Questions: W. O. asks: "Will you kindly let me know through the daily column what are the best tissue building foods and what vitamins are best? Does plain gelatin (Knox's) contain much acid? Does it contain protein? Is there much food value in popcorn and blown rice? I would like to thank you for the great help I have received through reading your articles."

Answer: The one indispensable element used by the human body in building tissue is protein. Some of the common protein foods are meats, poultry, fish, eggs, milk and nuts. However, the various minerals are most easily obtained from fruits and vegetables. All of the vitimans are essential to the body and it is therefore difficult to say which ones are "best." The usual tables listing the acid-forming foods do not mention the plain unflavored gelatin. However, this food is classified with the protein group, and as most proteins have an acid reaction, it is likely that gelatin is acid forming. No figures are given in any of the books consulted in regard to its relative degree of acidity. As to the protein content of the unflavored, plain gelatin, the protein runs as high as 85 per cent. Gelatin is a wholesome food which is highly recommended. The chief food value of topped corn lies in its carbohydrate content, which runs on an average about 77 percent. This food has a protein content of about 70 percent. The food values of blown or puffed rice are not given in any of the food tables searched. If you wish to write to a manufacturer of this product, possibly he could supply you with this information. The starch of ordinary brown rice is about 76 per cent, while that of white rice is about 79 percent.

No Signs of Cracking

London, Nov. 1.—(AP)— Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, declared yesterday that while Britain has "no cause for complacency," he nevertheless detected "no sign of cracking under the strain of night bombings and overcrowded shelters."

More than 500 species of plants have been listed in Death Valley, Calif.

To Note 50 Years Of Fruit Growing

Hartford, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Fifty years of fruit growing in Connecticut will be celebrated Nov. 12 to 14 here when The Connecticut Pomological Society holds its annual meeting and golden anniversary program.

Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut and Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont are among the guests invited to the anniversary banquet at the Garde Hotel Wednesday evening, Nov. 13. M. C. C. Miles of Milford, veteran secretary of the society, will deliver the principal historical address.

Over 2,500 Youngsters At Hallowe'en Parties

Eight Socials Held in Various Parts of Town —500 Boys and Girls At A. L. Home.

Eight Hallowe'en parties sponsored by the American Legion attracted over 2,500 youngsters last night from 7 to 9 p. m., at Manchester Green, the YMCA, Hollister street school, Nathan Hale school, the East and West Side Recs, St. James's school and the Legion Home. A dance for older children attracted over 500 boys and girls at the post home.

Kept Off the Streets

Long hours of preparation by a group of Legionnaires and Auxiliary members in filling bags with apples, oranges, candy and peanuts was rewarded again when police reported but a few exceptions to the usual rule of Hallowe'en frolic of harmless nature. Police attribute the lack of malicious mischief, connected with the holiday doings to the worthwhile efforts put forth by the ex-service units in planning and executing this town-wide community program each year for the youngsters.

Tragic Refugee.

A war refugee who wept with grief upon landing safely in the United States was Mrs. Monica Linya, daughter of Thomas Mann, famed anti-Nazi German author. Pictured on arrival at New York, she said she and her husband, Jenö Lányi, sailed together on the ill-fated City of Benares. He was killed when refugee ship was torpedoed.

Famed Killer Loose Again

Wagner Escapes from Prison Farm After 14 Years Imprisonment.

Parchman, Miss., Nov. 1—(AP)—There will have to be some new verses to "The Kenny Wagner Song."

The bad man about whom they sing in the cotton fields and around the plantation cabins in Mississippi is out again, his trail lost.

Kinnie Wagner—the ballads call him "Kenny"—escaped from the Parchman prison farm after 14 years of imprisonment.

Officers in Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee, states in which he has been charged with a total of five slayings, took up the alarm but declared today they had no clues.

Serving Life Term

Wagner, now 37, was a trusty, serving a life term for the killing of Sheriff Murdock McIntosh who sought to arrest him in Greenville, December, 1924, he was arrested for larceny and jailed at Lucedale, but escaped within a few days after slugging a guard.

McIntosh led a posse that cornered Wagner in a shack near a sawmill, but the desperado escaped after sending a volley from two automatics into the officer's body. At his trial he claimed self-defense.

One of the ballads about the bandit, widely sung in Mississippi, relates:

"It was down in Mississippi, where I murdered my first man;

"When the sheriff there at Leaksville for justice took his stand;

Wagner fled to Tennessee. Patrolman John Smith of Kingsport and Deputy Sheriff Hubert Webb of Sullivan county were slain when they investigated a disturbance. Wagner was charged with the killings.

Then goes the ballad:

"Then I went from Mississippi to the state of Tennessee;

"Two men went down before me ere they took my liberty."

Wins New Trial

Tried, convicted and sentenced to be electrocuted, Wagner won a new trial and then escaped from jail in Knoxville.

Months later he surrendered to Mrs. Lillie Barbery, woman sheriff of Texarkana, Ark., telling her he had shot three men in a drinking bout near the town. The sheriff investigated and found William and Samuel Carpio dead and their brother, Robert, wounded seriously.

The ballad continues:

"Then I wandered through the country, but I never could find peace;

"Till I went to Texarkana, away out in the west;

"Again I started drinking and again I pulled my gun,

"And within a single moment the deadly work was done.

"The sheriff was a woman, but she got the drop on me.

"I quit the game and surrendered, gave up my liberty."

Arkansas surrendered Wagner to trial in Mississippi and in 1928 he was convicted of slaying McIntosh.

Not on Way To California

Chamberlain's Secretary Asserts Former Premier Still at Home.

London, Nov. 1—(AP)—Widely circulated reports that Neville Chamberlain was on his way to California in hopes of regaining his health brought from the former prime minister's secretary today the assertion that he "has not left this country and has no intention of doing so."

Chamberlain himself, the secretary added, regarded the reports as "much rubbish that he does not consider them worthy of a formal denial."

Reported On High Seas

Reports emanating previously from Chamberlain's home city of Birmingham were to the effect that he and his wife had been on the high seas for about 10 days.

The 71-year-old former leader, under whom Britain entered the war against Germany, resigned from the cabinet of his successor, Winston Churchill, Oct. 3, because of failing health.

He underwent an abdominal operation last July 29 and has suffered also from gout. During the last two months of German air raids on London, he has been unable to get proper rest, it was said.

California Guard Sails to Hawaii

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 1—(AP)—The United States liner Washington, under government charter, sailed last night for Hawaii and the Far East with 700 members of the 251st Coast Artillery, California National Guard: 177 officers and men of the 20th pursuit squadron from Hamilton Field, California, and 1,000 government civil service workers.

The coast artillery is destined for duty in Honolulu. The Hamilton Field group will go on to the Philippines, and the civil service workers will build dry docks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and air fields on Wake and Midway Islands.

The California guardsmen are the first to be sent to Hawaii.

The Washington, after disembarking men and supplies at outlying American bases, will move to the Far East to aid in evacuating American citizens.

Door Taken Off Hinges So Jury Can Gather

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 1—(AP)—"The jury is unable to get together," said the U. S. marshal to Judge Isaac M. Meekins, after the 12 men, good and true, had been out for about two hours.

"Can't they agree on a verdict?" asked the judge.

"No," replied the marshal. "One of the jurors is locked in the wash room and they can't get him out."

Judge Meekins sent two officers to remove the wash room door from its hinges.

British Seamen Reach Safety After 70 Days in Open Boat

Nassau, The Bahamas, Nov. 1—(AP)—After spending 70 days at sea in a tiny open boat, two British seamen have reached the safety of British soil in a voyage rivaling that of Capt. William Bligh following the famous mutiny of the Bounty.

The two men, Wilbert Roy Widdicombe, 24, and Robert George Tapscott, 19, were believed to be the only survivors of the 5,596-ton freighter Anglo-Saxon, which was sunk by a Nazi raider about 300 miles southeast of the Azores Aug. 21.

Propped up in bed here, the cheerful Widdicombe, who lost 80 pounds during the amazing 2,500-mile transatlantic voyage, told how seven men hurriedly climbed into the 16-foot open boat when the raider opened fire.

"Two of them died of machine-gun wounds inflicted by the raider. Two others, crazed by heat and thirst, leaped overboard, another slashed his throat.

"When we took to the boat we had 20 pounds of biscuits, four gallons of water, 21 tins of condensed milk and 16 pounds of tinned beef," Widdicombe said.

This lasted 15 days. Gradually the other three men started to lose their minds and one night took to sea.

"We had sailed and drifted endlessly. We ran into three hurricanes. We had no fishing tackle, but one sail fish and one gar fish washed into the boat and we ate them raw.

Seaweed Only Food

"Seaweed was our only food for most of the journey," Widdicombe continued. "Tapscott was sinking fast when we sighted a white beach and ran the boat ashore. Then we staggered and crawled to some trees and fainted.

"The next thing we realized we were surrounded by dark kindly faces but didn't know where we were until we were addressed in English to our unbounded relief."

That was at nearby Eleuthera Island. They were brought here by plane yesterday, burned almost black by the sun.

Widdicombe, the stronger of the two when they were found, said they had only rain water to drink most of the voyage, and had no water at all the last eight days.

Bligh's famous voyage after the mutiny in 1789 covered 3,600 miles, but he and his 18 men completed it in 47 days, 23 less than the time Tapscott and Widdicombe took.

Parties Help Keep Order

Boston Police Pleased By Record of Children On Hallowe'en.

Boston, Nov. 1—(AP)—Reporting that Hallowe'en was one of the most orderly on record, police today credited the showing largely to 53 parties they gave for approximately 100,000 children less than 16 years of age.

Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty, who originated the Hallowe'en wholesale party idea three years ago, disclosed that the boys and girls—

Consumed 16,000 gallons of ice cream, 67,583 bottles of soft drinks, 84,000 doughnuts, five and a half tons of lollipops, three and a half tons of candy, two tons of peanuts, 620 gallons of cider, 3,000 candy bars, 392 bushels of apples, 1,800 pies, 700 pounds of cake, 23,000 sandwiches, 61 crates of oranges and other goodies.

Danced to music from 100,000 noisemakers.

Captured 700 pickpockets.

Went home at 10 o'clock too tired to get into mischief.

The parties, financed by the police, merchants and civic groups, were held in police stations, schools and halls. Some vandalism and the ringing of almost two score false alarms were blamed by police on persons above the party age limit.

Not Carrying Out Sabotage.

London, Nov. 1— (AP) — Jan Masaryk, foreign minister of the Czech government-in-exile in Britain, declared yesterday that the Czechs were not carrying out organized sabotage against Germany "for the simple reason that we would be massacred."

Many Yet Few

A codfish can produce approximately 6,000,000 eggs, but only about half a dozen of these mature into adult fish. Most of the eggs fall prey to other fish.

Barker Picks Minnesota to Beat Northwest ern

Makes Weekly Selection of Grid Winners

AP Expert Also Likes Brown Over Yale, Navy Over Penn, Princeton Over Harvard in East.

By Herb Barker

New York, Nov. 1—(AP)—Another chapter in the weekly football guessing contest (and may it be happier than last week's.)

Northwestern-Minnesota: I—As close to a standoff as can be imagined. Both unbeaten, both untied, both potent. Minnesota, fast and alert, seems to have waded through the tougher competition but perhaps none as tough as the wildcats. Blanketed by a deep fog. Minnesota.

Army-Notre Dame:

Think of a number. Notre Dame.

Texas A. and M.-Arkansas:

The Razorbacks are coming along fast. Not for an upset but stringing along with the Aggies.

U. C. L. A.-Stanford:

UCLA has lost its five ball games yet nobody has scored more than one touchdown on the Bruins. There's a strong urged to take a chance on them until you glance at Stanford's record. Then the urge disappears. Stanford.

Tulane-Tennessee:

This is where everybody discovers just how good Clemson may be. Finally, Clemson.

Georgia Tech:

Tossing fireworks but taking Duke.

Cornell-Columbia:

The Lions made it close a year ago and may again for Cornell's one for a let-down. No possible selection, however, but Cornell.

Fordham-North Carolina:

Penn-Navy:

Ohio State-Indiana:

These two have really been through the mill. The Buckeyes have the greater man-power and that might prove decisive. Ohio State.

Tennessee-Louisiana State:

Can't look beyond Tennessee.

Kentucky-Alabama:

A little bird-sight would come in handy here. Taking Alabama, but not too happily.

Georgia-Auburn:

The loss of Rufus Deal will hurt Auburn and it looks like to be making excellent progress. Still, Auburn.

Vanderbilt-Mississippi:

Hapes, Hovius and Mississippi Texas-Southern Methodist:

Jack Crain apparently is not fully recovered from influencing this ballot for S. M. U.

Texas Christian-Baylor:

Baylor.

California-Oregon State:

Boston College-Manhattan:

Duquesne-Bucknell:

Taking Duquesne.

Harvard-Princeton:

Holy Cross-Colgate:

Penn State-South Carolina:

Syracuse-Georgetown:

Iowa-Purdue:

Wisconsin-Illinois:

And still another. Wisconsin.

Michigan State-Kansas State:

Oklahoma-Nebraska:

Might be close but Nebraska gets this vote.

Southern Cal-Washington:

Looks like Villanova.

Detroit-Tulsa:

West Virginia-Washington & Lee:

Quick, Watson, the coin. West Virginia.

George Washington-Wake Forest:

Out of the blue comes a Charlie Forest.

Also: Temple over Bucknell; Dartmouth over Sewanee; William & Mary over Virginia Military; Virginia Tech over Washington State over Idaho; Oregon over Montana; Colorado over Utah; Brigham Young over Utah State; Lafayette over Washington & Jefferson; Santa Clara over San Francisco.

Moriartys Practice

Moriarty Brothers' basketball team will practice tonight at 8 o'clock at the Rec. All players are urged to attend.

Held Without Bail

Newburyport, Mass., Nov. 1—(AP)—John W. Henry, 40, truck driver and special police officer of nearby Salisbury, was held without bail for the grand jury yesterday in the death, Oct. 25 of Mrs. Olive Farrell, 46, assistant manager of a Salisbury Beach hotel.

Cools Off Hot Texas Aggies

George (Monoplane) Blackburn, Texas A. & M. water boy, appears to be only one-capable of cooling off Aggies, who haven't lost since late in 1938 season. Blackburn does it with water-filled spray gun, tank for which is strapped to back.

Indians Defeat Reds To Lead Hockey Loop

Eddie Shore's Springfield Team Gains 3-2 Win Over Providence In American League.

By The Associated Press

Eddie Shore, the old hockey hand who is owner, player and coach of the Springfield Indians, has a right to feel satisfied with his club.

His club has crulsed off to an early lead in the American League with two victories and no defeats with "Mr. Hockey" himself taking part in all his three capacities in both games.

The Indians squeezed past the powerful Providence Reds 3-2 last night in the only game on the program and Springfield's home debut.

It was the kind of a fray to make any owner jingle the coins in his pocket—a nip and tuck tilt be sure to bring the customers back for more.

For half the game the Reds matched Springfield's speed. The first period was scoreless as the foes felt each other out and then in the sixth minute of the second stanza Providence forged in front as Bill Mosienko took a pass from Paul Piatz and Max Bentley and beat goalie Charley Rayner in a scramble in front of the net.

The advantage was short lived, however, for Springfield's highly touted "kid line" stormed into action at the other end of the ice and four minutes later Freddy Hunt tied the score by ramming home a pass from Fred Thurier.

And 28 seconds further along the "kids" put Springfield in front on a lightning thrust by Larry Thiebault. Before the period ended the veteran Glenn Brydson scored what proved to the clincher on a pass from Max Kaminsky, another Indian holdover.

Providence's other tally came in the third period while Springfield was shorthanded with Norm Schultz in the penalty box. Mosienko grabbed the puck and skated in close for his second score.

No games are on tap tonight but a full slate of four games is scheduled for tomorrow night.

Sports Roundup

By Eddie Brietz

New York, Nov. 1—Doc Sutherland left Pitt in 1938, but he still rates. He got 60 votes in a contest to determine the sports figure who did most to publicize Pittsburgh in 1939 . . . Buffalo fans would like to get Charley Gehringer as manager next season if Charley decides he's through with the big time . . . Charlie McPhail, Syracuse end, is no relation to Brooklyn's Larry, but they look enough like to be brothers. To add to the coincidence, the Dodgers are scouting the youngster as an outfield prospect . . . pro football men say Clyde (Bulldog) Turner of the Chicago Bears will be Mel Hein's successor as all-league center.

Today's Guess

Jere Hayes, Dallas Times-Herald: "On the theory that the further I get away from the most dictable southwest conference, the better my chances are to nail a winner, I'll take a flyer on U.C.L.A. to thump Stanford this week . . . and then retire to my bomb shelter."

Chitter Chatter

If he's feeling good, Ken Overlin should be much too cute for Steve Belloise tonight . . . horse racing may be back in Texas in a big way next year . . . "Sweet" Lalanne, North Carolina's passing artist, practices two to four hours a day all through the season—throwing pigskins at a bull's eye . . . Congratulations to Freddie Fitzsimmons who has been voted the "Veteran of the Year" in a contest conducted by the "Sporting News" . . . any stranger in Portland (Ore.) these days is balled as a prospective purchaser of the Pacific Coast League Beavers . . . friends of Sam Cohen, sports editor of the Meriden (Conn.) Journal, will regret to learn he lost his father last week.

One-Minute Interview

Bob Zuppke, Illinois Coach: "Elmer Layden and I had a lot of problems in common . . . Elmer has trouble describing 36 men in his ranks on his trips . . . I have trouble finding 36 for a traveling squad."

Late Broadway Odds

If you're looking for good short enders, how about Penn 2-1 over Navy; Fordham 8-5 over North Carolina and Auburn 8-5 over Georgia . . . other prices: Cornell 6-1 over Columbia, Texas Aggies 2-1 over Arkansas, Colgate 7-5 over Holy Cross, Stanford 5-2 over U.C.L.A. Notre Dame 6-1 over Army, Missouri 4-1 over New York U. Princeton 2-1 over Harvard, Minnesota 7-5 over Northwestern, Clemson-Tulane, 6-5 and take your pick, Southern Methodist 7-5 over Texas, Alabama 8-5 over Kentucky, Yale-Brown, even money. Ohio State 12-5 over Indiana, Duke 2-1 over Georgia Tech, Oregon State 7-5 over California, Texas Christian-Baylor, even, Penn State 9-5 over Carolina, Tennessee 2-1 over Louisiana State, Nebraska 7-5 over Oklahoma, Georgetown 2-1 over Syracuse, Mississippi U. 2-1 over Vanderbilt.

Mail Box

"Wouldn't it be nice if they could cook up a deal in which Kimbrough, Harmon, Christman and Reagan would be caught in the first draft and assigned to West Point for the duration—of the season?" . . . Gary Madsen, Ill.

"Can you tell me why wig-wags signals for the Ivy League teams of Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth . . . I'm going to send them some new wig-waggers, anyhow" . . . H. G. in Boston Herald.

Housing Projects Given Approval

Washington, Nov. 1—(AP)—Charles F. Palmer, defense housing coordinator, announced yesterday that President Roosevelt had approved "immediate construction of housing projects in 63 vital defense areas" with 845,762,500 of defense funds.

This money, Palmer told press conference, will provide 13,515 family dwelling units scattered throughout 31 United States. The contracts will be handled by the Federal works administrator, John M. Carmody, he said.

The coordinator estimated that all the projects would be completed within 8 to 12 months.

Air Counteracts Gravity

Force of gravity on the planet Venus is 15 per cent less than that on earth, but the air is thinner and would counteract most of the difference.

Tide Is Bulge

Tides are caused by the attraction of the moon's gravity. As the earth turns, the moon attracts the water in the ocean and raises a bulge in it. The bulge is the tide.

Tennessee, BC In Sugar Bowl

Seen Likely Choices for New Year's Day Game At New Orleans.

Atlanta, Nov. 1—(AP)—You can print on your hatband the names of Tennessee and Boston College as probable New Year's Day opponents in New Orleans' Sugar Bowl football classic.

And Clemson of South Carolina is rated an odds-on choice for the Orange Bowl game at Miami, Fla., with speculation that undefeated Georgetown might be invited as an opponent.

With the bids only a month away, there are few teams of bowl calibre ready, willing and able to fill the exacting bill. Fewer still are available in the case of both the Sugar Bowl and Orange Bowl like a southern flavor on one side of the field when the teams line up.

Sugar Bowl officials are traditionally reluctant to speculate on probable opponents, but sportswriter Fred Digby, of the New Orleans Item magazine has been assembling the Sugar Bowl group, and is regarded as speaking for an unofficial spokesman through his column. And his word is Tennessee vs Boston College. Bad bet is that unless there is an upset for one of these, or Texas Christian, there will be the choice of officials.

Digby considers Texas A. & M., last year's Sugar Bowl winner, is Rose Bowl-bound, and rates the Aggies definitely out of the Sugar Bowl speculation.

Bowl officials discourage talk of probable entries, Chapman Will M. Prewitt, of the bowl committee insisting "It's still a wide open proposition." Southern sports writers, however, feel if Clemson gets by Tulane tomorrow and Auburn a week hence, the powerful Tigers are a cinch for Miami. Clemson and Tennessee are the only unbeaten southern teams in the big-league bracket.

Additional datasets of Michigan, Northwestern, Minnesota, Notre Dame, Cornell and Navy for post-season games has caused speculation that Georgetown might be invited. Penn State and Detroit also have been mentioned as possibilities.

The Orange Bowl committee already has signed two of all seats between the 30-yard lines, and the Sugar Bowl is nearly as far along.

Punts—Passes

By The Associated Press

Caldwell, Texas—Buck Sellers, assistant football coach at the College of Idaho, doesn't like to talk about his latest scouting trip. He went to La Grande, Ore., Saturday to see the Northern Oregon College of Education play Linfield College only to find the game had been played Friday night.

San Jose, Calif.— Pop Warner says the old gridiron tale that he sewed halves of footballs on to jerseys of his Carlisle Indians one season is just a myth.

"This was my intention," Warner reminisced. "But Percy Haughton of Harvard heard about it. He wrote me that if we pulled this stunt Harvard would not play Carlisle again. That's as far as it got."

Chapel Hill, N. C.—More than a little bit of Carolina is going to be transplanted to New York tomorrow when the University of North Carolina Tarheels battle the Fordham Rams.

In addition to a special train that will leave tonight with the team, a 100-piece band and many fans, a bus caravan also is heading northward today with another group of football followers.

Between 500 and 1,000 North Carolina rooters have arranged to parade down Park avenue tomorrow morning and hold a pep rally at the Waldorf-Astoria. Cheerleader Ray Kyser.

New York— New York—Nine Columbia University gridders played the full 60 minutes against Cornell last year when Cornell's big rods squeezed out a victory on a blocked punt. This year coach Lou Little expects it to be different. He led a squad of 30 players toward Ithaca, N. Y., last night and said he thought he had enough replacements to go around.

Denver — Coach Cac Hubbard had a readymade alibi for his Denver eleven's loss to Utah last week and wouldn't use it.

Hubbard said the U. U. players flew in the game, the first Rocky Mountain gridders ever to travel by plane, but Hubbard refused to blame the flight for the defeat.

"The entire 19 regulars got the best night's rest of any team we ever sent to Utah," he asserted.

University, Ala.—It will be just like old home week for big Fred Davis when Alabama's Crimson Tide rolls into Lexington, Ky., for tomorrow's game with Kentucky.

Davis a tackle, is a native of Louisville and his high school coach was Ab Kirwan, present mentor of the Wildcats. Besides Alan Parr, Kentucky end, is Davis' cousin and quarterback Junior Jones was one of his closest chums and a high school team mate.

New York—When the St. Mary's University Rattlers of Texas played Long Island U. last Sunday they booted a batch of footballs into the stands. The gesture proved so pleasing to the crowd that the Long Blackbirds are going to kick 100 red, white and blue souvenir footballs into the stands between halves of the game with Canisius on Armistice Day.

Future-Book For ALL-AMERICA

By DILLON GRAHAM

Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

As the gridiron season hits the November trail the field of contenders for All-America team positions narrows down to a few dozen stars. Many players started the year spectacularly but bumped into a bad afternoon or were laid low by injuries. Here are some who are still in the running for top honors:

NORMAN STANDLEE (tugging the ball) is one of the main reasons why Stanford is riding the victory trail again. He can blast the line from his fullback post, race the ends or kick booming punts.

Big, fast and rough RUDY MUCHA of the University of Washington has few superiors as a center.

GENE GOODREAULT, Boston College's sturdy wingman, has been a star in all of the Eagles' games against Southern Methodists. PRESTON JOHNSON, This triple-threat back punted 92 times against Fordham, ran 92 yards against Auburn.

Southwest experts say there is no doubt about Southern Methodist's PRESTON JOHNSON, This triple-threat back punted 92 times against Fordham, ran 92 yards against Auburn.

Challedon Is Choice For Pimlico Special

Meets Can't Wait in Match Race for Title "Horse of the Year"; Held at 1 to 5 Odds.

Baltimore, Nov. 1—(AP)—Challedon, reigning king of the turf, goes forth in the Pimlico special today heavily-favored to defeat his lone opponent, Can't Wait, and add another bright jewel to his crown.

The Special, featuring the opening-day program of Pimlico's 13-day fall meeting, brings Challedon and Can't Wait together in a mile and three-sixteenths race for a winner-take-all purse of $10,000. Post time is 4:15 p. m., e.s.t.

Odds of prestige, as well as the rich purse, awaited the winner, for the Maryland Jockey Club has termed the event a race to determine the outstanding horse of the year, a title Challedon won last year.

Eight bids were issued to the invitation affair, but Pension, Hash and Midland were withdrawn and Seabiscuit, Bimelech and Eight Thirty already were out of action.

Challedon, the Maryland-bred champion, was entered by L. Brann, won the Special last year and is the only horse besides War Admiral ever to go in straight settings of the event. War Admiral won in 1937 but lost to Seabiscuit in 1938.

Can't Wait, owned by Myron Selznick, Hollywood movie producer, was overlooked in the bids were sent out but got an after-thought invite on the strength of his victory in the Continental handicap.

George Woolf, who rode Seabiscuit in the 1938 special and Keyak II last year, will be in the saddle on Challedon today. Al Richman, who boots Can't Wait to victory in the Butler Continental and Washington Caps, got the call again.

Overnight odds made Challedon the 1 to 5 favorite with Can't Wait held at 12 to 5. Both were assigned 126 pounds. Can't Wait drew the No. 1 inside post in the Pusti electric starting gate.

Nazi Freighter Runs Aground

Port Alegre, Brazil, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The 6,062-ton German freighter Rio Grande, sheltered in Rio Grande, harbor since the war broke out, attempted to sail last night without permission of port authorities but ran aground in the harbor entrance channel. Three tugboats worked in an effort to pull her off. She was fully loaded.

Leclerc Admirer

Editor, Manchester Herald:

In these days just before election with candidates attacking their opponents, it is refreshing to find one who would climb by his own ability rather than by stepping on the neck of another. I refer to Walter N. Leclerc, candidate for representative from Manchester. I have known him for twenty years, and we have travelled this hemisphere together. It has been my business both in the past and at present to judge men, and I commend Walter N. Leclerc to the attention and the consideration of those who would desire a capable and a thinking man to represent this town at the State Capitol. During his thirteen years as a resident of Manchester, he has made and kept friends by his enthusiastic and energetic efforts in their behalf. He does not prejudge an issue, and seeks all possible information before coming to a decision.

His travel in the countries to the South of the United States and in the country to the North, have given him a perspective regarding this country and its part in the affairs of this hemisphere.

Having seen the mountains of Brazil, he still prefers the hills of old New England. He has a sincere desire to serve the best interests of all the people of the town of Manchester. Walter N. Leclerc is a man deserving the support because he is economical of promises, but generous in performance.

Yours truly,
Walter H. Hibbard.

Third Term Issue

Editor, The Evening Herald:

A Tammany councilman once remarked that in matters affecting his constituents he "tread the narrow path between partiality on the one side and impartiality on the other."

In weighing the issues of the present campaign, I find myself treading this same narrow path, because I start with the measured conviction that the Roosevelt Administration saved the United States from revolution in 1933 and has achieved almost unbelievable social and economic rehabilitation since then.

That aside, it seems to me that consideration of the issues of the present campaign leads to this final conclusion: President Roosevelt stands for election on the record of what his administration has accomplished internally and in foreign affairs; the Republican nominee, who has not made a single definite constructive suggestion as to what he would do differently from what the Roosevelt Administration has already done, stands for election on the ground that President Roosevelt should not be elected because he has already served two terms.

In 1939, a vast majority of the voters of the United States showed undeniably that they approve of the policies of the Roosevelt Administration. A vast majority of the voters still approve of these policies. The only question then is, is the third term issue a valid reason for not voting for President Roosevelt?

In normal times, there may be reasons of tradition that argue against a third term for a President. But these are not normal times. Today, the whole world hails through troubled, dangerous waters. This country cannot run the risk of having at the helm of our Ship of State the inexperienced and untried hands of a candidate who is an admitted novice. As Ambassador Kennedy recently said, "The man of the hour is the man of experience." If President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull were to leave office, this country would lose the invaluable benefit of their intimate acquaintance with international affairs and matters of defense. Now, of all times, we cannot afford to lose that experience.

That is why, in my opinion, the fact that President Roosevelt has already served two terms is the most persuasive argument for his re-election.

Ruling Given On Time Limit

Must Have Name Checked by 6 p. m. to Vote Next Tuesday.

Hartford, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Only those who are within the voting place and have had their names checked by 6 p. m. may vote next Tuesday, Attorney General Francis A. Talbott ruled yesterday.

The opinion was a reply to Registrar of Voters Asa B. White of Danbury who said that officials in that city feared that the number of voting machines in some districts would be inadequate for an anticipated large number of voters just before closing time.

The attorney general also ruled that a person whose 21st birthday falls on Nov. 5, the day after election, is entitled to be made a voter and cast his ballot on Nov. 5 on the ground that "the law is well settled that one becomes of full age on the day preceding the 21st anniversary of his birth."

Time Fixed by Law

In regard to the closing-time ruling, the attorney general said that "the law has fixed the time for the closing of the polls and it must therefore be complied with."

White said it had been suggested that in districts in Danbury wherein there were persons still waiting to vote at closing time "that a line be formed outside the building with an officer at the end, and after 6 p. m. no voter could enter that line and said officer would follow the line until all had cast their vote."

Although the Statue of Liberty was dedicated in 1883, it was not unveiled on Bedloe's Island until Oct. 28, 1886.

— Daily Pattern —

Pattern 8827

Make this adorable frock for your own little girl, tie a ribbon round her head and send her off beaming to her most important party date! You may be sure she'll have a good time, and be the smartest little girl there! Correctly simple, with waistline slimmed in by inside tucks beneath which the skirt flares and ripples, it's trimmed with frills and ribbon at sleeves and neckline. You can sew from the diagram sketch how easy this design (No 8827) is to make. Just cut out four pieces, make the tucks and the darts, and sew it together. Even the least experienced mother or doting aunt can do it!

For the coming holiday parties, or to make as a Christmas gift, this frock will be most appropriate in velveteen or taffeta, with organdy or very fine lace for trimming. Simple as it is, this pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart.

Pattern No. 8827 is designed for sizes 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1 7-8 yards of 39-inch material; 1 1-8 yards trimming and 1½ yards of velvet ribbon.

For a Pattern of this attractive model send 15c In Coin, Your Name, Address, Style, Number and Size to The Herald Today's Pattern Service, 106-7th avenue, New York, N. Y.

Have you seen the new Fall and Winter Fashion Book? Better send for it right away. You can plan your whole wardrobe from it, from morning frocks to formal ones. You can sew your own, with these simple, carefully planned patterns! Have more clothes—more individual clothes—and save money besides!

— Sense and Nonsense —

DRUDGERY . . .

Nine-tenths of the work that produces results must by its very nature be drudgery . . . Nothing can be well done by any man who is not willing to make this sacrifice to monotony . . . And there is nothing which repays itself so well as perseverance against such weariness.

First Man — You should have seen the fish I caught last summer. It was so big it pulled me into the river.

Second Man—Got a good wetting, I suppose?

First—Oh, no; thank goodness, I landed right on top of the fish.

IF WE DO LESS THAN OUR BEST FOR TWO MONTHS, WE'LL FIND OURSELVES DOING WORK WE'RE ASHAMED OF AT THE END OF THREE MONTHS.

Visitor (to host's little girl) — How do you know that it's the first of the month?

Child—'Cause all daddy's letters have got front windows in them.

"Everyone has some secret sorrow," says a philosophizing friend. "Even the fattest and jolliest of us has a skeleton in his nodule."

Teachen—Can you tell me the name of any animal peculiar to Australia?

Boy—The rhinoceros, sir.

Teacher — Wrong! That's not found in Australia.

Boy—Well, sir, that's exactly why it would be peculiar.

IT IS SAFER NOT TO EXPECT TOO MUCH OF OTHERS. BUT WE SHOULD EXPECT PLENTY OF GOOD MANNERS.

HOURS . . .

Any young man with a streak of idleness in him may as well make up his mind that nothing better than mediocrity will be his lot in life . . . For the higher men climb the busier they are, the longer their working day . . . There are no office hours for leaders.

Fred — Mabel's husband was a judge, wasn't he?

Frank—Everybody thought so until he married her.

Junior—Dad, What's an operetta?

Neighbor (to small boy sweeping up the dead leaves)—Good morning, Junior. Is your mother in?

Junior—Well, I wouldn't be doing this on Saturday morning if she wasn't.

SINCE LIFE IS A SUCCESSION OF UPS AND DOWNS, IT MAY BE THAT IF YESTERDAY WAS BETTER THAN TODAY, TOMORROW MAY BE SO ALSO.

Sue—Would you be happy if you had all the money you wanted?

Sam—I should be happy if I had all the money my creditors wanted.

FOR EVERY FACT THERE IS ALWAYS AN EXPLANATION. WE MAY NOT KNOW WHAT IT IS, BUT IT IS THERE JUST THE SAME.

Hubby—Ha, ha, ha! I'll bet I drive you nearly wild talking in my sleep.

Wifey—Darling, it isn't the talking, it's your mumbling.

Have you ever noticed how willing everybody is to do you a favor when you don't need it?

About Town

The Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing in the municipal building Tuesday, November 12, to act on a request of Albert Schendel to change the zone of his property on Gardner street from Rural to A zone.

A combined rehearsal of the Emanuel Choir, G Clef Club and Beethoven Glee Club will be held at the Emanuel Lutheran church tonight at 7:30 o'clock in preparation for the concert to be given at the high school auditorium Monday evening for the benefit of the Verplanck Foundation.

The Young People's society of the Concordia Lutheran church will meet this evening at eight o'clock.

John Rota, John Patelli and Luigi Genovesi, delegates from the Sub Alpine club on Eldridge street will attend the all-day convention of the Italian-American Alliance clubs at Columbus hall, Meriden, Sunday.

A sauerkraut supper will be served by the Ladies Aid Society of the Zion Lutheran church, Thursday evening, November 7 from 5 to 7 o'clock.

First Lieutenant George H. Nutter of 281 Spruce street was promoted to that rank from 2nd Lieut. on Oct. 10, 1940 and has been reassigned to duty with the 131st Observation Battalion. Lieutenant Nutter is a registered engineer and was employed in an East Hartford industrial plant.

Dolly Jane, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Glamann of Oak Grove street, entertained 12 of her friends at a Hallowe'en party at her home last night. Francis Sonego won first prize for a Cinderella costume. Various games were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

The second edition of the cook book issued by the Dorcas Society of the Emanuel Lutheran church has been received and copies are now available. The entire first edition of 1,000 books was sold out in five weeks.

Shop to Close Eighth Season

Simple Simon Restaurant Had Most Successful Season.

The Simple Simon Sandwich shop will close for the season on Tuesday, Election day at 7:15 p. m. The usual luncheons and dinners which have been served throughout the summer will continue until that date, including the final Sunday dinner, November 3 from 12:15 noon, with choice of turkey and all the fixin's, or roast beef.

Ends Eighth Season

As everyone in this section knows, the shop which is now closing for its eighth successful season, has been managed during this time by the women of the Porter North Methodist Ladies Aid society, now the Women's Society of Christian Service. Committees and managers have been elected from the organization each year.

Regular Customers

The project was started and has continued in the old one-room Oakland schoolhouse, on busy Route 15 between New York and Boston. Profits for the catering service, above the overhead and expense for labor, have been devoted to the upkeep of the church. The shop has not only been popular with people living in this section, but has many regular customers among commercial travelers and others. Families from this state and beyond who have summer homes on the New England coast, take or mail orders, find it convenient to stop for dinner at the shop both going and returning.

Youth Council To Meet Here

District Convention To Be Held in South Church Tomorrow.

The Norwich District convention of the Youth Council will take place tomorrow afternoon and evening at the South Methodist church. The young people will meet for registration at 3:30 p. m. A period of recreation at four o'clock will be followed by a business session. About 5:45 a banquet will be served by the members of the Asbury group under the direction of Mrs. Ellen Clowes.

After the meal a Peace Forum will be conducted under the title, "What Should I Do Now?" The speakers will be Wayne Womer executive secretary of the Connecticut Peace Commission; Charles Jervey, an officer of the "Travelers" insurance company; Commander James Moore of the submarine base, New London, and two students from the Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Miss Dorothy Doty of East Hartford is president of the Norwich District Council of Methodist Youth, which is the new name for the Epworth League.

Games Each Week Of Auction Bridge

Starting on Monday evening at eight o'clock, the Masonic Social club will hold weekly Auction bridge parties in the club rooms. These will be open to the public and both ladies and gentlemen are cordially invited to attend. Each player will remain with his partner for the evening. Merchandise prizes will be awarded the value of which will be determined by the number of tables.

The committee in charge, composed of Eskel Buckland, chairman, assisted by Millard Parig and James Maher, feels that there are many people who are anxious to enjoy the sociability of these weekly gatherings.

Weddings

Driggs-Lilley

Miss Florence Esther Lilley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lilley of New Albany, Penn., was married yesterday to Collins H. Driggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Driggs of 99 Walnut street. The ceremony was performed at one o'clock in the Little Church Around the Corner, New York City. The double ring service was used. Miss Dora Madara of New York City was bridesmaid and Leonard A. Driggs was best man for his brother.

After a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Driggs will locate in New York City, where Mr. Driggs will continue his work of recording for the Victor Record company and radio broadcasting. He is also composing music for the Robbins Publishing company. With the close of the New York World's Fair at Flushing he completed his engagement with Ferd Grofe's New World Ensemble at the Ford exhibition.

The local man met his bride at the Fair. A graduate of the Nurses' Training School of Christ hospital, Jersey City, she was connected with the medical staff of the Ford exhibition at the fair both seasons.

Pastor's Home Changes Hands

South Church Parsonage on Spruce St. Sold To Misses Johnson.

Miss Mary and Miss Elizabeth Johnson, of 236 Center street, today became the owners of the South Methodist parsonage, property at 316 Spruce street. Authorization for the sale of the property was given by the church quarterly conference Tuesday evening, October 22 after the gift of a new parsonage by Mrs. Mayvin Case Crowell had been announced.

Those in Transaction

The transaction was made by Herbert J. McKinney, of McKinney Brothers, with Thomas J. Fogarty, trustee, representing the church. The Misses Johnson are the daughters of Ennis Johnson of 236 Center street and for a number of years were residents on Eldridge street. They intend to move to their newly acquired property as soon as arrangements can be made.

Temporary Parsonage

A temporary parsonage for Dr. Earl E. Story, pastor of the South church, will be at 59 Oxford street. Dr. and Mrs. Story will move to their temporary quarters as soon as possible. They will remain there until the completion of the new parsonage to be erected at 1202 Main street.

Samuel Holtz Makes Appeal

Stock Salesman, Now in Wethersfield, Is Seeking a Pardon.

Among the many prisoners in Wethersfield who will appear before the Board of Pardons on Monday will be Samuel Holtz, stock salesman of the Vanco Company who was sentenced to State's prison for one to four years on three counts, sale of stock not registered by the state.

Holtz was apprehended in Shreveport, La., after the Vanco Company crash last spring. Holtz was brought back to Connecticut, tried and sentenced.

During the ill-advised floating of the company stocks in this vicinity, Holtz was active in selling the stock for several years.

Silk Industry Here Is Now on Upgrade

Cheney Brothers Now Advertising for Weavers and Learners; U. S. Orders the Reason.

An upswing in the silk weaving industry, dormant for several years since the beginning of the depression, was advertised here today. Cheney Brothers, producers of the nation's finest silk products, note in The Herald that they need immediately the services of men and women, with or without weaving experience, who will train to take care of a large expansion in plant operations.

Got Jobs Elsewhere

This almost-dispaired-of improvement in local industrial conditions was hailed here today as providing increasing opportunity for work for all who desire jobs. During the depression many of the Cheney Brothers weaving force had to be laid off, and re-employment in other lines, death and removals from town have all tended to drain the reserve of help at once available. Now, as defense orders have piled up at the mills it has become necessary for the company to undertake the training of a larger weaving force.

Paid While Learning

Applicants for training who are accepted will receive $15 per 40 hour week for six weeks while they are learning, with a guarantee of $18 minimum per week thereafter. Earnings, of course, may be substantially higher than this stated minimum.

Defense orders form the bulk of the business increase, and in asking for both men and women applicants for training, evidence is seen of preparing women for industrial duty in the event a national emergency arises.

Orders This Year

At Cheney Brothers today, Vice President Henry B. Mallory reported that his company, so far this year, has received the job of weaving about 1,000,000 yards of parachute cloth, besides getting sizeable contracts for the making of powder bags and neckerchiefs for the navy. Just yesterday the Navy Department announced the award of a $51,430 contract to Cheney Brothers for the manufacture of 139,000 yards of parachute cloth. On this material the mills are now working three shifts.

It is directly due to a present jump in activity, as well as possible future increases, that the training of help will be started.

Make Attempt To Rob Store

Two North End Men Are Arrested After the Register Is Carried Out

Between 1 and 1:30 o'clock this morning, burglars broke into the store conducted by Joseph Lucas, at 265 North Main street, and carried out the McCaskey register in which is kept the daily slips of sales made to his customers. Entrance was made through a cellar window and then a trap door to the store was pried open. The register, which is enclosed in a steel case, was taken down through the cellar and out into the driveway to the west of the store.

Awakened by Noise

The noise attracted the attention of Chester Kebert, who lives in the house to the west of the store and, dressing, he started out to investigate. He saw two men going to the north of the store and flashed a light on them. They dropped the case containing the records and ran. He started after them. As they ran toward Depot Square one of the men hurled a jimmy at him. They continued east and escaped.

As the iron bar hit the sidewalk Officer John Cavagnaro, who was on duty at that end of the town heard the noise and ran to North Main and North School streets and at once started an investigation.

Arrests Are Made

As the result of the policeman's investigation, Walter Rubacha, of 95 North street and George H. Asprakisa, of Minta Court, were later picked up and are being held at the police station, charged with the burglary. They will be presented in court tomorrow morning. Both have previous court records.

The register and its case were brought back into the store and the screw driver that was used in prying open the trap door was found in the cellar. There was no money in the register and little damage was done to the case and the records were intact.

Colonel Roger Cramer of Wethersfield spoke on national defense at the weekly assembly of the local State Trade School yesterday.

Brand New Car Is Abandoned

Had Been Stolen from Warehouse in North End; Found by Police.

While investigating the burglary in the store of Joseph Lucaus early this morning, Officer John Cavagnaro saw an automobile in the lots to the rear of the Miller dance hall on Tolland turnpike. He found that the car was without a marker of any kind. It was a new c and the front fenders were bent. The car had been run without water in the radiator and was also without gas.

Later on in the morning he found the storehouse on Allen place, near the railroad tracks, had been broken into. In this place was stored new cars only recently unloaded from freight cars and owned by Robert Shaller. Mr. Shaller was called and identified the car as owned by him.

As yet the police have not been able to learn who stole the car.

The BLUE COLOR Labels it AMERICA'S FINEST ANTHRACITE!
It was locally more thrifty folks it every day are changing to 'blue coal'. The Blue color tells them it is the finest quality coal obtainable.
Anthracite is unequalled for home use. It's not a flashy fuel that burns fiercely for a few minutes, then dies down completely. It burns slowly, steadily, evenly all day long with little attention. So burn anthracite, the fuel your furnace was designed for. And to get the best anthracite, order 'blue coal'.
"blue coal", mined by Glen Alden, is the cream of Pennsylvania anthracite—carefully prepared—and laboratory tested for purity and uniform sizing. For clean, healthful, money-saving heat order 'blue coal' now. The Blue color guarantees its quality.

"Creation of Work Republicans' Aim" Says Baldwin Here

Governor Receives an Enthusiastic Reception At Local Rally Attended by 600; Says Training of Youth Important; Other Speakers.

Jobs have been created in Connecticut under the Republican administration of the past two years because emphasis was placed on employment—the creation of work and the training of youth rather than on unemployment, Governor Raymond E. Baldwin told a wildly enthusiastic gathering of 600 at the Masonic Temple last night. On the same platform with Mr. Baldwin, candidate for the United States Senatorship told his audience that only under an economic system of production for profit that is constantly growing stronger can the large mass of the people be served.

The major Republican rally in Manchester was preceded by a car cavalcade of honking horns and flaring red fire that gave folks about town a last minute reminder that Governor Baldwin and members of his ticket were in town for the evening. Returning to the Temple the paraders found they had to get almost twice as many chairs as were available and the large banquet hall was quickly filled.

Democrats "Gloomy"

Unscheduled as a speaker here last night was Congressman William J. Miller who defended his record in Congress and reported that Democrats in Washington are "gloomy" over their prospects next Tuesday. Congressman Miller said that he heard several leading Democratic Congressmen admit that they should not "have fallen for the third term."

Attorney General Francis A. Pallotti said his travels about the state in the campaign gave him a feeling that a Republican victory is at hand.

Local Speakers

Judge William S. Hyde, chairman of the Republican Town committee in Manchester, presided at the rally and introduced all the speakers. Local speakers were State Senator William J. Shea, and candidates for the General Assembly, Judge Charles S. House and Leland T. Neal. Senator Shea who had been the recipient of glowing tributes from Governor Baldwin earlier in the program proved himself worthy of the praise in a brief but eloquent plea for support of the entire Republican ticket in Tuesday's election.

L. T. Wood told the audience he believed the trend of the past two weeks has been definitely towards Willkie as indicated by several reliable polls and surveys. Judge

New York's Vote Puzzle

Generally Agreed, Even Among Politicians, Final Tally to Be Close.

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The puzzle of how this New York's 47 electoral votes next Tuesday—Native Son Franklin D. Roosevelt or Adopted Son Wendell L. Willkie—is as baffling as a good deceptive story. You can't tell until the end.

That the final tally will be close is generally agreed, even among some politicians. That the outcome is doubtful is indicated by the way both candidates are firing their heaviest batteries in this direction, right down to the finish.

May Decide Election

This stumping by both sides also shows how important these 47 votes are considered. Some observers have suggested New York might decided the election, although not in modern history has the state played such a part. Never since 1892 would a shift of its votes have changed the national verdict; yet only once in that period, in 1916, was the state on the losing side.

To realize New York's influence, one must remember that its electoral votes are six more than New England's six states can muster combined; that they equal those of California, Washington and Oregon, with Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming thrown in; that they equal those of Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi.

One must also remember that the state contains two distinct units as far apart politically as Vermont and South Carolina. Upstate—the 57 counties outside of New York city—is traditionally Republican. New York city is traditionally Democratic.

New Equal Voting Strength

They have near-equal voting strength. This year, the city has 3,388,171 registered voters, an increase of nearly a half million

Parties Tell Cash Spent Up to Date

Both Democratic and Republican National Committees Expend in Excess of $900,000.

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Reports filed with the House clerk showed today that the Democratic and Republican National Committees each had spent more than $900,000 since June 1.

The Democratic Committee, the reports showed, received $981,462 and spent $942,883 during the June 1-Oct. 22 period, while the Republican Committee reported receiving $2,020,554 and spending $955,827.

Campaign Efforts Reconferred

In addition, the campaign efforts of the two parties were reenforced by such amounts as these:

Democratic—National Committee of Independent Voters, $160,671; National Committee for Agriculture, $49,750. Senatorial and

Party Orators In the State Plan No Rest

Schedules Full Until Election Day; McConaughy Assails Hurley's Public Works Record.

By The Associated Press

Driving ahead to a rousing finish Connecticut's 1940 political campaign, virtually all candidates for public office are confronted with rally schedules leaving them scarcely a free minute from today to election day next Tuesday.

Joel Hayden, Mrs. E. Baldwin and his Democratic rival, Robert A. Hurley, who shared the spotlight yesterday in activities, and other candidates for major offices are booked solidly for the next three days for appearance throughout the daytime and evening hours on speaking platforms in many sections of the state.

Backed from Governor Wilbur Cross yesterday, telling workers at factory-gate rallies that Hurley's Danielson and Willimantic that a third term was a "threat" to the American system of government and would lead ultimately to "one man" rule, the Republican Extend benefits under old age and unemployment insurance if re-elected.

Hurley charged at a series of rallied county meetings last night that Republicans were seeking to "purchase" the election, and asserted that he had favored new industries for Connecticut he did not believe "in claiming credit for things that I have not done like our present governor."

Seeks to Set New Air Mark

Baker Is on Coast-to-Coast Flight, Burbank to Florida.

Burbank, Calif., Nov. 2.—(AP)—G. T. Baker, president of National Air Lines, Jacksonville, Fla., took off at 3:03 a.m. (p.m.) today in a Lockheed Lodestar on a speed flight to Jacksonville which he hoped would set a Pacific-Atlantic coast record of nine and one-half hours.

The plane is a standard transport ready to go immediately into airline service, is powered with two 1200 horsepower Wright Cyclone engines, and has a top speed of about 260 miles an hour at 8,000 feet altitude.

To Fly High

Baker planned to fly at about 13,000 feet, or 230 miles an hour. The distance is 2,357 miles, compared with 2,478 miles to Floyd Bennett field, New York, terminus of Howard Hughes' accepted transcontinental record speed flight of 10 hours, 34 minutes in 1938.

Among passengers is Flight Engineer Kenneth J. Boedecker of the Wright Aeronautical Corp.,

Big British Liner Lost by "Enemy Action"

This is the first picture to reach the United States of the stricken British liner, Empress of Britain, 42,348-ton liner and one of the 10 largest in the world, as she burned after "enemy action" set her afire 60 miles west of Ireland. The British said she was still afloat but towed back up while in tow. Germans claimed a 17-boat sank her 30 miles from the spot where bombing planes first attacked her. Forty-five of the 643 persons on board were believed lost.

Willkie Rests For His Final Talk Tonight

Charges Abuse of Aviation Industry Will Delay Aircraft Goal; Denounces "Pauper."

Aboard Willkie Train in New Jersey, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie declared today that President Roosevelt's Brooklyn speech was designed to "stir up class hatred and divide our people," an aim he described as "the tactic of Lenin, the strategy of Hitler and the preaching of Trotsky."

Saying his opponent "triumphantly boasted of what he called the support of many different elements of our populations," Willkie continued:

"The answer to that is obvious. It is because the extent of damage is the only one which differs only in degree from that of the country."

Disavows Philadelphian's Talk

"In a desperate effort to bolster this movement of unity, the third term candidate stooped to the use of an alleged quotation which I made, was discreditable. This quotation is supposed to have come from some one in Philadelphia talking in connection with the national Republican ticket."

Mr. Roosevelt, in his Brooklyn speech, said "a prominent Republican

New Coat Models Bring Speedy Plane Production

Los Angeles, Nov. 2.—(AP)—By making one metal part fit several kinds of airplanes, the American aircraft industry has taken a long step toward speedier production and lowered costs in the air rearmament drive, Engineer John F. Thompson said today.

Standardization in aircraft design—as has long been practiced in automobile design—was described in Thompson's paper before the Society of Automotive Engineers' aircraft engineering meeting.

Thompson, employed by The Glenn L. Martin Company of Baltimore, said "judicious standardization applied to aircraft design on a large scale co-operative basis will form one method by which the mass production of airplanes may be expedited."

The idea originated in the Los Angeles area, where some 60 per cent of all the large airplanes made in the United States are manufactured.

2,500 Dies Common Property

Today, 2,300 dies used in production of aluminum and magnesium alloy parts are the common property of the entire industry.

A "Western Aircraft Standards Committee" was formed in the beginning. It was followed by a similar group on the east coast. The idea is now carried out to such an extent that certain unrestricted engineering information, such as the speech and research data, is circulated freely among the companies.

A "pool" for extrusion dies is the major accomplishment of the standards committees to date.

An extruded aircraft structure is a piece of metal which has been forced through a die, or shaping machine, much as a housewife creates odd-shaped delicacies out of dough. The pool not only enables manufacturers of aircraft to standardize on many common structural parts but reduces die costs as well.

Dearborn Has 'Freedom' Row

CIO Bill Distributors At Ford's Arrested, Two Justices Disagree.

Detroit, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Suburban Dearborn is scene of free speech and free press, as involved in an anti-handbill ordinance has developed new complications with another court battle promised.

Twenty-five members of the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO) were arrested yesterday while distributing pamphlets at the gates of The Ford Motor company's big Rouge plant, and two justices of the peace disagreed on dispositions of the cases.

Defendants brought before Justice Lila M. Scandrett on Saturday night were released. On Thursday Justice Scandrett ruled the ordinance unconstitutional, declaring it an abridgment of the rights of free speech and press.

On the other hand, Justice Leo R. Schaefer, before whom other pamphlet distributors were brought, ordered all to stand trial. He declared that Justice Neunfelt's decision was not binding, that a ruling from a higher court was needed.

Injunction Denied

The series of legal moves continued with the city of Dearborn petitioning Circuit Court for an immediate injunction against handbill distribution—and drawing a rebuff from Judge James E. Chenot.

Circuit Judge Chenot, denying an immediate injunction but setting a hearing for Nov. 8 on a show cause order, criticized what he called an effort to have his court "use the injunctive process to reverse the judgment of a justice of the peace."

Claiming it was "unbecoming" for a justice of the peace to act on a constitutional issue, Walter S. Rae, assistant Dearborn corporation counsel, said Justice Neunfelt

British Fighters Beat Off Three Day Raids

Bomb Strikes Crowded Bus and Probably Kills Several Persons During Night Attack.

London, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A bomb struck a crowded bus and probably killed several persons in a night raid on London, it was reported today as Britain's fighters beat off three day attacks on the capital. The raiders were pounced upon and scattered by patrols of British Spitfires which swooped from high cloud ceilings in bushes along the southeast coast.

During the same surprise tactics, the fast British planes were credited with splitting up another large wave of German planes, this time Messerschmitt fighters, which tried to penetrate inland while the morning sun was at their backs.

Seven Raiders Shot Down

The Air Ministry reported seven raiders shot down before noon, in addition to five downed by anti-aircraft guns overnight.

Some raiders, however, streaked through the light-drawn defens and gave London three alarms for high-tailed it for home in only a few minutes, and in the second alarm bombs fell in the outskirts of the city.

The Spitfires were said to have dived to the attack along the coast from a height of nearly 30,000 feet.

Italian planes reported among the raiders were described as fighters. The plane of the Italian fighter planes taking part in the Battle of Britain have been bombers with German fighter escorts.

Bomber Crew Wiped Out

Apparently one German bomber crew was wiped out in the crash of their plane during the night in a North Yorkshire moorland. One body was found beside the wreckage of the plane and three others were found a short distance away.

Another Nazi plane which crashed during the night struck an apartment house near Hornchurch, killing a man, his wife and their two-year-old daughter. The bodies of two Nazi airmen were found in the wreckage.

German long range guns on the French coast pounded away in a new bombardment of British shipping in the English Channel.

British Raid Upon Berlin Is Surprise

Thousands of Residents Caught in Cafes and On Streets by Early Attack of Bombers.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A surprise attack on Berlin by Royal Air Force raiders shortly after other British planes had bombed German-held Amsterdam, caught thousands of Berliners in cafes and on the streets last night and set the capital's defense guns thundering in a volume not often equalled in recent months.

A communique today said at least 26 persons were killed in Amsterdam while several Berlin civilians were killed and injured.

The extent of damage in Berlin was not immediately disclosed, but every phase of the raid was marked by intense energy and that indicated the power of defense against air attacks had increased.

The British came over at an unexpectedly early evening hour.

At some points the surprise was so complete that numbers of Berliners were turned away from public refuges jammed to overflow and had to take shelter in doorways until a lull permitted them to seek safer quarters or hurry home.

At one time early in the attack a British plane was caught in searchlights and held there for a minute or so of harrowing fire, but apparently escaped. The official communique made no mention of any plane being shot down.

A military hospital at Amsterdam was damaged severely, the communique said. Nineteen wounded German soldiers undergoing treatment there were reported killed, and 7 had been found by residents in other parts of the city.

"The number of slightly and seriously wounded is not yet certain," the communique said. "It is feared the number of fatalities will increase."

In both Amsterdam and Berlin, the Germans declared, the R. A. F. attacked residential sections.

In the raid on Amsterdam, the communique said:

Italian Fliers Bomb Greece Again Today; Famous Unit Active

Bombing of Salonika Carried Out by Famed Desparata Squadron Led by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in Ethiopia; Drop 'Many Tons of Explosives' on Targets.

Rome, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The bombing of Salonika, Greek Naval base, upon which Italy yesterday centered her aerial offensive, was carried out by the famed Desperata Squadron which was led by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in Ethiopia, the official news agency, Stefani, said today.

(Count Ciano himself previously has been reported preparing to go to Albania, whence the Italian press in Greece is being directed. Berlin dispatches said, however, that advices from Rome indicated he may be planning a hunting trip to Germany.)

The Fascist fliers dropped "many tons of explosives" on military and naval objectives which were "completely destroyed," the agency said.

Numerous Fires Break Out

"In the fortified zone, supply dumps, reservoirs and barracks were hit," the dispatch said. "Numerous fires broke out amid discernible devastation."

The agency's correspondent said the Greek anti-aircraft fire was violent and that Greek chase planes attacked as the Italians bended back toward their base.

The high command said, the Italian bombers and clinics were bombed. A Catholic church was said to have been hit at Salonika.

Other cities which felt the might of the Fascist air arm were Patras, where an oil and Piraeus the port of Athens; Corinth, Mycenae, Megara, Eleusis, Thebes, Mieis, Perama, and Retimo, Crete.

British Get Much News On Election

United States Presidential Campaign Compete with War Reports for Attention.

London, Nov. 2.—(AP)—News of the United States presidential campaign competed today with war communiques for the attention of a British public eagerly watching the politics of a nation which they look for planes and guns.

Although British commentators frequently say "no matter which side wins it's all right for us," the press features news of the campaign second only to war developments.

Salonika Hardest Hit

The strategic city of Salonika was reported hardest hit in the sudden burst of aerial warfare, with 50 killed and 84 injured in four raids yesterday. The government said "generally, no military target was hit" and charged that "all the raids were directed against civilians."

Fourteen persons were killed and 10 wounded at Larissa, while eight were killed and 87 injured in five raids on Corfu, where a communique said the Jewish quarter, the Italian school and clinics were bombed. A Catholic church was said to have been hit at Salonika.

Attack Canea in Corfu Island and Port of Patras, Where About 10 Casualties Are Caused; Athens Has Alarm, But No Planes Sighted; Italy Makes Slow Headway in Invasion.

Athens, Greece, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Italian Air Force resumed its attacks against Greece today, bombing Canea in Corfu island, and the port of Patras, where about 10 casualties were caused. Athens had a 20-minute air raid alarm today, ending at 11 a. m. (e.s.t.), but no planes were sighted over the city.

Italy, apparently making slow headway in her invasion of Greece, was reported today to have unleashed her Air Force on this little kingdom in a widespread series of raids which the Greek government said had killed or wounded almost 500 civilians.

No Reason for Withdrawal

Tokyo, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, in a statement officially dismissed for the eve of the United States election, today declared himself "utterly at a loss" to explain what caused withdrawal of American nationals from the Far East and expressed lack of concern over who is elected president. Matsuoka said his statement was issued in answer to "innumerable questions" asked him concerning the election.

Two Girls Hurt in Crash

New Britain, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Two girls were injured at 1:10 a. m. Saturday when an automobile in which they were riding struck a parked 5-ton truck, allegedly without lights, on Park street. Taken to New Britain General hospital for treatment were Miss Harriet Trasako, 20, of 108 Market street, this city and Miss Mildred Ward, 20, of Liberty street, Middletown. Miss Ward was unconscious. Joseph Greger of 20 Clinton street, this city, driver of the auto claimed the truck was unlighted. Police arrested Joseph Zesk, 17, of 370 South Colony road, Wallingford, the truck driver, on a charge of violating rules of the road and his trial was set for next Saturday. He was released under a $100 bond. The girls are expected to recover.

Naval Units On Patrol

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Secretary Hull told reporters at his press conference today that United States Naval units now in Caribbean waters were operating on training and patrol work, from other sources it was learned that at least some of the vessels in the Caribbean would visit St. Lucia, one of the proposed sites for Naval bases to be leased from the British. St. Lucia is near the French possession of Martinique.

Italians Join Raid On Britain

London, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Germans three half a dozen or more strong formations of fighters and bombers against England today, including some of the planes of Nazi Italian Allies, and were reported by the Air Ministry to have lost at least nine machines in violent battles along the south coast. Both Italian bombers and fighting planes were reported to have participated in the raids. At the same time a British convoy of black strong steamers towing barrage balloons ran through German coastal fire in the channel without damage, the British said.

Japan Air Force Seen Superior

Aircraft Executive Believes Planes Better Than United States'

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Charles Healy Day, aircraft plant manager who has lived through 35 Japanese bombing raids in China, has brought back to the United States a belief that the Japanese Air Force is better than America's "in quantity and quality."

"We have consistently underrated the Japanese in the air," he said today in an interview. "They have splendid airplanes and lots of them. In China alone they are operating between 500 and 900 first-line planes."

He added he had no doubt the United States has better designs on drawing boards than the Japanese actually have in service.

"Americans are too supine in their belief that the Japanese are Occidental airplanes," Day said.

Designed by Japanese

"I examined one Japanese pursuit plane shot down in the Chinese war. It was assembled in many ways abroad. It had been designed by the Japanese themselves and was good for 315 miles an hour. It did have a Japanese adaptation of an American engine."

Day has been in the aviation business since the World War when he was vice president and chief engineer of one of the major American aircraft plants.

He went to Canton, China, in 1934 at the invit
