Demand Renewed On Second Front To Help Russians

Emphasis on Possibilities of Libya Is Sounded in British Commons Debate on Reply to King's Message Opening Session.

London, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A renewed demand that Britain form a second fighting front to aid Russia, with emphasis on the possibilities of Libya, was sounded in parliamentary debate today by Labor-ite Emanuel Shinwell, who has been among the critics mentioned as a possible recruit for the British cabinet. "Why has the offensive in Libya been delayed?" Shinwell demanded. "It has been expected many months.

Would Have Distracted Nazis

"It would in effect have created a second front. It would certainly have distracted the Nazis and created difficulties for them. Let the government answer that question.

"Next week or next month an offensive in Libya may not be as effective."

If the failure to move again into Libya was due to a lack of equipment, Shinwell added, then obviously it is idle to speak of invasion elsewhere.

High Spot Of Debate

The Shinwell criticism was the high spot of a wide-ranging debate in the House of Commons on the House's reply to George VI's message opening a new session of Parliament yesterday.

Shinwell asked whether defense of Britain's Oriental empire represented the government's idea of a second front and, if so, whether it bore Russian approval.

He asserted that if Britain actually had what seemed to be air superiority over Germany then the R. A. F. "failure" to take the initiative was "inexcusable."

Claim Made Monday

He recalled that Prime Minister Churchill made the parity claim for the R. A. F. on Monday when he also declared that Britain would join the United States immediately in any war with Japan.

Socialist Dennis N. Pritt called for the removal from the government of elements "lukewarm" to the British-Russian alliance.

Referring to a recent statement by Lord Croft, undersecretary of war, that the British should concentrate their energies on defense of the eastern empire, Shinwell added:

Would Be Fatal To Victory

"For a responsible member of the War Office this declaration was inexcusable . . . This would be fatal to victory.

"While large forces were immobilized Hitler would be free to reorganize his resources and squeeze

Coleman Gets Life Sentence

Middletown Chef Found Guilty of Murder in the Second Degree.

Wethersfield, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Abbott F. Coleman, 50, of Middletown, saved from the electric chair by a jury's verdict of second degree murder, began a life term today in state's prison.

Coleman, one time bus driver and more recently a chef at the Middletown State hospital, shot his wife, Agot, also 50, last June and the state sought a verdict of first degree murder for which the mandatory penalty is death.

The Middlesex county Superior Court jury which heard Coleman's week-long trial in Middletown returned the second degree verdict last night after deliberating five and a half hours. Judge Robert L. Munger immediately pronounced the sentence of life imprisonment and the chunkily-built Coleman, who had listened silently to the proceedings, smiled as he was led from the courtroom.

Had 10 Children

One of his daughters, in court with two sisters at the time, wept as her father left the room. The Colemans had 10 children, several of whom testified in their father's defense at the trial. Most of their testimony concerned his drinking habits.

The defense contention was that Coleman was crazed by jealousy and liquor when he shot his wife, from whom he was estranged, at a home where she was employed as a domestic.

Coleman testified that he did not intend to shoot and that his .25 caliber pistol went off accidentally when he sought to frighten his wife with it.

Mrs. Coleman lived for five days after she was wounded. Coleman was arrested in South Cromwell, near here, a few hour after the shooting.

U. S. Renews Attempts to Bring Peace

Great Britain Also to Add Pleas to Finland to Stop the Conflict Against the Soviets.

Bulletin!

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Finnish minister called at the State Department today, while word spread in diplomatic circles that the United States and Great Britain might renew their efforts to end Finnish-Russian hostilities. The visit of the minister, Hjalmar J. Procope, to Undersecretary of State Welles followed closely on the delivery of the Finnish government's note rejecting a Soviet offer to negotiate peace with Finland, which was transmitted to the Finns by the United States. Procope declined to make any comment.

Disputes Cast Dark Shadows On Industries

Immediate Future of Rail Transportation, Long Distance Phones, Soft Coal Uncertain.

Bulletin!

Chicago, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Fourteen unions of non-operating employes, representing 900,000 workers in the railroad industry, issued a joint statement today rejecting the recommendations of the president's emergency board for settlement of their wage dispute. The statement was made public by Bert M. Jewell, president of the Railway Employes Department.

By The Associated Press

Labor disputes today cast dark shadows over the immediate future of railroad transportation, long distance telephone communication and the mining of soft coal to fuel the cruisers and steel mills.

In addition, there was a growing possibility that the disturbed labor situation might cause the defeat of administration-sponsored changes in the neutrality act. Some House members declared

Asks Farmers To Take Risk

Secretary of Agriculture Makes Address Before National Grange.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard declared today that the "adequate defense of America means nothing less than the defeat of Hitler this time."

Therefore, he told the nation's farmers, they must run the risks of over-production in the interests of national defense.

The Cabinet member also served notice that the United States was ready to show its "force" in both oceans, if necessary, should the country's interests be menaced.

In an address prepared for the 75th anniversary meeting of the National Grange, Wickard said that Hitler "can be defeated only by a superior force of materials and men. The men are there today, in Russia, in China, in England. Our greatest need is to get materials to these men and get them there fast enough.

If our production is 'too little and too late' it may be too late for us to hope for freedom in our generation."

The United States, he went on, desires peace "but not at the price of slavery."

To Counter With Force

"We will not initiate the use of

Japs Prepare Set of Laws If Talks Fail

Emergency Legislation Made Ready for Diet; Would Increase Taxes; Some Double Figures.

Tokyo, Nov. 13.—(AP)—New emergency legislation was made ready today for a special session of the Japanese Diet amid indication that the government was preparing for a crisis should negotiations with the United States collapse.

Saburo Kurusu, special Japanese envoy, has reached Honolulu en route to the United States for renewed discussions of the situation in the Far East.

Received by Emperor

Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo, Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, and Finance Minister Okinobu Kaya were received by the emperor, to whom they submitted the speeches they will make to the Diet and the new laws they will introduce at the sessions starting Saturday.

Among the new laws is a new tax program which would increase and in some cases double indirect taxes on what are regarded as luxuries. The cabinet approved the program in extraordinary session earlier today.

Raw Materials For After War

New England Council Says U. S. Should Ask For Guarantees Now.

Boston, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Formation of international holding companies to control the world's raw materials after the war was proposed today by New England Council President Ralph E. Flanders as the price America should demand for unlimited lease-lend aid to the democracies.

"If these empires are to be saved by our aid," he told the New England conference, "it is essential that their assets be made available as an offset to this aid. The joint possession and control of such resources would be the best guarantee against any attempt at that which destroyed international order this time."

The conference is an annual union sponsored by the New England Council, a business group, and governors of the area.

Food for Spain

Flanders also advocated, in a prepared address, sending "not a few millions, but billions" of dollars worth of food to Spain in order to steer her away from the Axis while Hitler is busy in Russia.

"Spain," he asserted, "now hangs in the balance, and her position is of vital importance to the winning of the war. All visible indices of her attitude point to a blockade, but the tremendous influence of disease, starvation and physical waste of Asiatic Russia be made to weigh in the other direction."

America's fate, he declared, has tied to "warfare waged to the limit of our ability," but, he added, he was opposed to formal entry into the war until this country had obtained a commitment from Brit-

Bi-Partisan Plea Made On Revising Neutrality

Woodrum Sees Nation Sitting on Keg of Dynamite and Quibbling; Passage Majority Seen.

Bulletin!

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today that failure of Congress to repeal neutrality act restrictions on United States shipping would bolster aggressive steps and intentions in Germany and other aggressor nations and would be definitely discouraging to the British Empire, China, and Russia.

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Despite disaffections from administration ranks, the House heard a bi-partisan appeal today for revision of the neutrality act to help Representative Woodrum (D., Va.), asserting that "we are sitting on a keg of dynamite and yet we quibble." Amid mounting tension as the voting hour approached, Rep. Bloom, veteran of the chamber would give a majority to the Senate-approved measure permitting American merchant vessels to carry arms and sail anywhere in the world.

Leaves Hospital Bed

Woodrum, who left a hospital bed to attend today's momentous session, referred pointedly to southern Democrats who announced yesterday they would oppose the legislation because the administration had failed to take "strong action" to curb defense strikes. Such a viewpoint, Woodrum declared, represented a desire to "spank" President Roosevelt.

Supply Lines Hard Hit By British Navy

To Stop Losses Germany Will Be Compelled to Take Many of Its War Planes Out of Russia.

London, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Aviation circles predicted today that heavy losses being inflicted by the British navy on Axis supply lines in the central Mediterranean would compel Germany to divert strong air forces from the Russian front to Greece and Crete.

With British land forces in North Africa growing ever stronger, these sources said, it is imperative that the Axis powers maintain an open line of communications with North Africa to meet a possible offensive to drive them out of Libya.

"Neither the Italian navy nor airforce has shown the slightest ability to cope with Britain's Mediterranean squadron," one air authority asserted, "and Germany must maintain a Libyan garrison.

"The only answer is for Germany to establish bases in Crete and Greece as she did last May when she gave the fleet such a lasting."

Had 1,000 Planes

The British announced the loss of 1,000 planes since the beginning of the battle of Crete as the result of German air blows with forces estimated at about 1,000 planes.

To keep out of range of British warships and planes now based on Malta, the Italians are said to be sailing to Libya by slipping down the Greek coast from Brindisi, then south toward Bengasi and coastwise to Tripoli.

These informants deduced that a constant German air patrol from Crete, which lies like a stepping stone on this route, might make it extremely difficult for British submarines to operate and make attacks by British land-based planes extremely costly.

Wound Help Russia

Such a step by the Germans, it was contended, would be a severe drain on their airpower available for action against Russia, with a considerable number of Nazi fight-

Urged to Guard Health Of U. S. Defense Workers

Pittsburgh, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A. Tamm, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, today urged industrial executives to help improve the health of defense workers, because "America's strength in the future will depend on the uninterrupted flow of goods from her production lines today."

Addressing the annual convention of the Industrial Hygiene Foundation, Tamm said that "with enough work lost through illness or industrial accidents, the saboteur doesn't have to turn a hand—his work is being done for him."

A similar plea was made by Andrew Fletcher, vice president of the St. Joseph Lead Company, New York, the nation's largest miner of lead ores. He asserted:

"Each worker in the United States loses about eight days per year. If we can save 50 per cent, or four days, we save 32 hours per worker. With about 7,000,000 persons in defense industries, we would save about 200,000,000 hours of labor, which is sufficient to build 100 destroyers, or about 300 standard cargo ships."

Fletcher estimated the cost to American industry of employe absenteism at about $70 a worker annually.

"If it is found that a great deal more time is lost from colds than from accidents, then a company might well consider the desirability of making available to employes protective cold pills or vitamin capsules or sun lamps," he said.

"If it would appear from absenteism figures that an epidemic was starting, workers might be sent home immediately upon feeling sub-normal, and not be allowed to return without a doctor's permit."

Reports Nazis Knock At Caucasus' Gates; Reds Yield No Gains

Nazis Smash at Sevastopol in Crimea with Increasing Intensity And Growing Losses; Action at Kerch Described as Particularly Fierce; Attempt To Turn Soviet Lines.

Moscow, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Moscow radio reported tonight that the Germans were smashing at Sevastopol in the Crimea with increasing intensity and growing losses, but that the Red forces had yielded no gains to the invaders. "The Germans repeatedly bombed our forces at the approaches to the town and attacked our defenses with tanks, reached without results," it was added.

Support Ground Troops

Action at Kerch on Nov. 11, when Soviet aircraft and Black Sea fleet units were said to have successfully supported Soviet ground troops against a German effort to breach the defenses, was described as "particularly fierce."

A German attempt to turn the Russian lines in the Kerch area of the Crimea and strike the Red Army flank was reported today by Pravda, Communist party newspaper, to have been thwarted by Soviet troops.

"The German attacks were repulsed by the joint effort of land troops, aircraft and Naval forces," Pravda's war correspondent said.

Nazis Bomb Approaches

"Fighting near Sevastopol was equally unsuccessful for the Germans. They bombed the approaches to the city and several times three tanks into action but failed to break through our defenses."

He said fighting in the Crimea was becoming more fierce every day. "The Fascists attack our fortifications several times each day but sustain heavy losses."

The Soviet mid-day communique today merely announced again that the Russians fought the "enemy on all fronts" last night.

Pravda, describing fighting at Tula, 100 miles below Moscow, where the Germans were reported yesterday to have been hurled back a distance of five miles, said the Nazis now were seeking to turn the Soviet defense lines there from the north and south.

Germans Retreat

The correspondent said, however, that the city's main street was out of range of the fighting, as a result the German retreat.

"Our artillery fire destroyed the enemy fortifications at the approaches to the city," he said. "Ho-

British Fear Envoy Plane Met Mishap

Increasing Anxiety Expressed in London Over Safety; No Information on Search Yet.

London, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Increasing anxiety was expressed in London tonight over the safety of a plane carrying Laurence A. Steinhardt, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, and Maxim Litvinoff, new Soviet ambassador to Washington, which was understood to have left Kuibyshev, Russia, two days ago for Teheran, Iran.

Usually informed persons said they had no word as to whether a search had been instituted along the route, adding that the only reason was that the plane was overdue came in press dispatches from Teheran. Officials said, however, there was a good chance that the plane had been forced down by weather at some point out of communication with Teheran or Kuibyshev.

British Units Hit Garrison In Ethiopia

Land and Air Forces on Gondar Front Launch Assault; Bomb Bengasi, Several Villages.

Rome, Nov. 13.—(AP)—British and air forces on the Gondar front in Ethiopia have launched an assault on the beleaguered Italian garrison which is resisting tenaciously and has inflicted considerable losses on the British, the high command reported today.

For the first time in ten days, new air raids on southern Italy or Sicily were mentioned in the daily communique although British planes were using the Italian bombed Bengasi, the Axis' advance port in Libya, Derna and several villages of Italian colonists on the Jebel plateau.

Axis Planes Attack Tobruk

Axis planes attacked the besieged British-held port of Tobruk and a British airport, the communique said.

The war bulletin listed six British planes as destroyed yesterday in a German and Italian reconnaissance plane and four British Hurricanes.

Probe Started To Find 'Goat'

Connally Protests Testimoney Taken in Field Is 'Ex Parte Stuff'.

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Senator Connally (D., Tex.) expressed the opinion today that Senate Elections Committee investigators inquiring into charges against Senator Langer (R., N.D.), had gone to North Dakota "at the start with the idea that we've got to get somebody."

Connally, a member of the committee, made the comment during committee hearings on Langer's fitness to hold office, when C. E. McGuire, an attorney for a North Dakota group seeking to unseat Langer, was cross-examining the accused senator.

McGuire asked the committee to give attention to testimony taken in the field by the investigators. but Connally protested that this was "ex parte stuff" and that if it was relevant the witness should be called in person and subject to cross-examination.

Considered Before Committee

Chairman Hatch (D.-N.M.), told Connally, however, that it had been agreed at the start of the hearings that all the testimony taken by the investigators could be considered "as being before the committee."

McGuire questioned Langer about his 1934 trial on a charge of conspiring to obstruct the orderly operation of an act of Congress, in which he said he was convicted by a "hand-picked" jury and a "prejudiced" judge. He later was acquitted.

Langer acknowledged that a Democrat and a Republican participated in the drawing of the jury panel for the trial, but contended that in North Dakota there were "only two parties—one is Langer and the other anti-Langer."

"Both men who drew the panel, he asserted, were "anti-Langer" although technically of opposite political persuasion.

Papers Found Intact Today

Huntziger's Briefcase Beside Wreck of Plane In Which Eight Killed.

Le Vigan, Unoccupied France, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A briefcase containing papers Gen. Charles Huntziger was bringing back from North Africa was found intact today beside the wreckage of the plane in which he and seven others were killed yesterday.

The papers apparently were thrown out by General Huntziger, minister of war in the Vichy government and commander of the French Army, in an effort to save them.

Youths from a French camp said they saw the plane go into a tail spin in a snowstorm before it disappeared behind the trees.

Heard Violent Explosion

Immediately afterward, the boys heard a violent explosion followed by another so strong that they could feel a rush of air.

Hampered by thick fog and numerous ravines in the mountainside, the boys reached the scene of the accident about 3 p. m. earlier than originally believed, but it was 4:30 p. m. before the boys could make their way back to call in local police.

Reports Nazis Knock At Caucasus' Gates; Reds Yield No Gains

Germans Storming Fortifications of Kerch While Air Force Roars Over Narrow Strait to Carry War into Oil Fields; Anapa Under Heavy Air Bombardment; Nine Ships Hit.

Berlin, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A German spokesman said the German Army was "knocking at the gates of the Caucasus" tonight, storming the fortifications of Kerch on the Crimea's eastern fringe while the Air Force roared over the narrow Strait of Kerch to carry the war into the Caucasian oil fields. The land forces were reported to have reached the coast south of Kerch after seizing several of the city's key fortifications. Kerch therefore seemed open to direct attack from the west and south although dispatches did not indicate how near the Nazi columns were or whether the city was under artillery fire.

Bombs Rain on Ports

Across the strait, Anapa on the Caucasus shore was under heavy air bombardment, the spokesman said, while bombs also were rained on Kerch and Sevastopol, the other beleaguered Crimean port in the southwest.

Three cruisers, one destroyer and five large merchant ships were hit, in attacks on Soviet shipping in the Black Sea, the communique continued.

On the northwestern sector of the continent-spanning front, the Germans said heavy batteries shelled military objectives at Leningrad and harbor installations at Kronstadt, Soviet Baltic naval base near Leningrad.

Great Damage Caused

The high command also said great damage was caused by direct bomb hits on the harbor of Sevastopol.

It reported "further successes" on the remainder of the eastern front and said effective air attacks were directed against Moscow as well as Leningrad.

The fighting today claimed control of the Straits of Kerch between Kerch and the Caucasus and authorized sources said Nazi bombers were carrying out devastating raids on two Caucasian ports east of the straits "to prevent the further flight of Soviet troops" from the Crimea.

Protest Secret Vote

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Four senators walked out of a Foreign Relations Committee meeting today in what Senator Gillette (D.-Iowa) described as a protest against a vote to consider in secret a reciprocal tax waiver treaty with Great Britain. Gillette said that Senators Vandenberg (R.-Mich), Johnson (R.-Calif), Capper (R.-Kan) and Clark (D.-Mo) arose and left after Vandenberg's motion to lift the secrecy ban usually imposed on consideration of treaties was defeated by a 7 to 5 vote.

Deny Not Considered Closed

Helsinki, Finland, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Finland does not consider the door closed to further negotiations with the United States, a Foreign Office spokesman said tonight. He said Finland's note of yesterday, in effect rejecting an American warning against continuing her war against Russia, was meant to be only a cordial exposition of her reasons for warring on the Soviet Union. Finland, he declared, in no wise wanted to set obstacles to possible future diplomatic overtures from Washington.

To Help Small Industry In Big Race Against Time

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—It is difficult to imagine any greater confusion than Floyd B. Odlum jumped into when he came to Washington a couple of months ago to head up the new Defense Contracts Distribution Division.

Because of priorities in strategic materials and the concentration of contracts (85 per cent of them had been let to 56 firms in our largest industrial centers), nearly 185,000 small manufacturers, employing about 60 per cent of 2,000,000 persons, of total factory labor had only the prospect of closing shop and going bankrupt.

In two months, the fog hasn't cleared much in this confused scene, for the task of bringing order out of the mess, pulling these little businesses out of the black-eyed blackout, and saving the jobs of those 2,000,000 is probably the biggest that national defense has had to tackle.

Some things, however have been done and other proposed. In setting up his organization, Odlum already has established 85 field offices, also "pieces" to small manufacturers. This isn't any defense industry gag.

Technical experts of the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission and OPM will be on these trains to explain every one of the objects exhibited to discuss with some 50,000 owners of little plants who are expected to visit the trains whether it would be possible for them to convert their factories to production of these needed articles.

Odlum has suggested, but so firmly that there has been opportunity yet for action, that government loans be made to small businesses threatened with liquidation to tide them through the emergency. He also is asking that minimum allocations of critical raw materials be made to thousands of threatened little fellows—that enough to keep them in business until something else can be done.

Summing up his job, Odlum says: "I feel much like a doctor who has suddenly acquired thousands upon thousands of patients scattered over the breath and breath of the land. He doesn't even know how many or where they are. He knows they all need attention, but he doesn't know their individual symptoms and cannot possibly see them all personally."

He therefore must do first things first. He must organize his staff of assisting experts, direct medicinal vapors ... STIMULATES chest and back surfaces like a warming poultice ... And WORKS FOR HOURS to ease coughs, relieve muscular soreness or tightness, and bring rich comfort.

To get this improved treatment ... just massage Vapo-Rub for 3 minutes ON BACK as well as throat and chest ... spread a thick layer on chest and cover with warmed cloth. Try it! VICKS VAPORUB — the Improved Way!

Disputes Cast Dark Shadows On Industries

they would not vote to send American merchant ships into war zones unless the administration took firm steps to prevent work stoppages as defense projects.

Expect White House Action

White House action of some sort appeared certain in the soft coal dispute, involving the CIO United Mine Workers' demand for a union shop in the captive coal pits operated by the steel companies. President Roosevelt invited UMW President John L. Lewis, CIO Chief Philip Murray, UMW Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy, and the heads of three large steel companies to confer with him tomorrow.

Murray and Kennedy resigned Tuesday from the Defense Mediation Board, in protest to that groups 9-to-2 recommendation against the UMW's demand for the union shop in the captive mines.

There was no indication of what action Mr. Roosevelt had in mind, but the conference was called for the very day that Lewis summoned the UMW Policy Committee to a special meeting, presumably for a decision on the union's next step of the Mediation Board recommendation.

Effect Remains Problematical

While the White House conference was called for tomorrow, the House of representatives was asked to vote on the neutrality act changes today, so the effect of Mr. Roosevelt's move on the pending authority to arm merchant vessels

The UMW so far has shown no sign of giving up its demand for a union shop clause in the captive mines—a provision which would require every miner to join the union after a probationary period of employment.

The threatened nationwide railroad strike caused extreme concern to the country's shippers as well as to the administration.

Increase Rejected Flatly

The five operating brotherhoods, representing 350,000 workers, decided to walk out progressively Dec. 1, 8, and 15 in support of their demand for a 30 per cent wage boost. A fact finding board appointed by President Roosevelt had recommended a 7½ per cent increase, which the men rejected flatly but which the carriers said they would accept. The brotherhoods of the operating personnel now receive $5.60 a day.

A decision was awaited from the representatives of 800,000 non-operating crafts, who asked for 30 to 34 cents an hour more than their present range of 55 to 85 cents. The carriers have offered a 9-cent increase, which the men rejected flatly but which the carriers said they would accept. The lowest paid of the operating personnel now receives $5.60 a day.

News of Our Boy Scouts

Highlighting the local Boy Scout activity during the past week was the Armistice Day hike held by the St. James's Scout troop. Scoutmaster Francis Peckenham and his assistants offered this opportunity for boys to get out into the open, where they had an opportunity to do, on several tests, and enjoy a real day of scouting.

The write-ups below, written by the scribes of local troops, gives a vivid description of the progress that many of our local boys are making in Scouting. It is noticeable that many tests are being passed each week, proving that the boys are really serious about what they are doing.

Splendid Appearance

The Boy Scouts put on a fine demonstration in the Armistice Day parade, and the Cubs also deserve praise for the way they turned out for the affair. It is hoped that news of our local Cub packs will be included in this weekly column in the near future.

And, now let us turn to our troop scribes and find out what has happened during the last week.

Troop 18

The regular meeting of Troop 18 was held this week, and the session was called to order at 7:15 with the recitation of the Scout Oath. Patrol meetings were held soon after, during which time instruction was given and tests were passed.

Much of the work was on Scout Pace and Compass, and the following boys successfully passed the requirements: Scout Pace, F. Marlaire, R. Birker and P. Brown. Compass, E. Snow. During the recreation period that followed, two games were played, Lion Hunt and Buck, Buck.

The meeting was brought to a close at 8:45 with the Scoutmaster's Benediction. All members of the troop are urged to be present next week's meeting.

E. Snow, Scribe.

Troop 98

The weekly meeting of Troop 98 was opened at 7:10 last Friday evening with the Scout Oath and Law. A new Scout, transferred from a West Hartford troop, was introduced to the troop members. Test passing during the evening's program, and a twenty-minute recreation period was held.

Henry and Eddie Beck, Jimmie Moriarty, Ed Palmer and Bobby Vice were welcomed to the rank of Tenderfoot. Scout Pace and Safety were completed by Bobby Vice and Ed Burke. Bill Lutton passed second Class first aid, and Danny Beck passed Law and Oath and Thrift.

Tests passed Sunday, November 9 included firebuilding by Bob Vice and Jim Moriarty, and tree trimming by Bill Lutton. Five boys who did not pass tests at the meeting, schools in first aid and signaling were held.

The Scouts were dismissed at 9:30 with the flag salute. Twenty-one Scouts were present. All members of the Green Bar Council will be a meeting last Monday evening at 61 Uldine street at 7:30.

William Barclay, scribe.

Troop 15

The regular weekly meeting of Troop 15 was held last Thursday evening at St. James's school commencing at 7:15. Scoutmaster Francis Peckenham and Assistant Scoutmaster Donahue were in charge of the session. Following the recitation of the Scout Oath, several Scouts passed the First Aid, Signaling and Compass tests.

A resume of a recent football game witnessed in New Haven was given the troop by Assistant Scoutmaster Donahue and Scouts Herbert Guerra, Salvatore Bazzano Victor Giangrave and Joseph Cunningham.

Scout Victor Giangrave was appointed Quartermaster of the troop and Joseph Cunningham was appointed the scribe.

Joseph Cunningham, scribe.

Troop 25

The regular weekly meeting of Troop 25 was held Tuesday evening at James Hooker and William Cavanaugh were presented with their Tenderfoot pins. Following this presentation, the scouts adjourned to patrol corners where they discussed patrol policies. Talk was given on the use of the compass by Scoutmaster Carlson.

The meeting was brought to a close with the Scout Oath and Laws, the former being led by Earl Schlesinger and the latter by Kenneth Barnes.

K. Barrett, Scribe.

Troop 136

The meeting was called to order Wednesday evening at 6:30 by Eddie Ferris, who piloted the color guards. The flag was then saluted by the troop. Carl Peterson, of the patrol leaders, led the Scout Oath and George Bettinger led the Scout Law. An announcement was then held, followed by a game of Snatch the Handle.

A patrol contest has been going on since October, points being given for church attendance, regular attendance at scout meetings, hikes, and participation in other things including patrol games. The patrol game in the meeting was a game of aid game where the patrols are given a card between them and one with a pattern, where he is, and under what conditions he is wanted. The results of the game were, First, Flying Eagle patrol, second, Pine Tree patrol, and third, the Wolf patrol.

The Scoutmaster then gave a report of the activities of the past month, showing how money came and spent. The scouts then went to their patrol corners where dues were collected and tests studied. This was followed by a troop inspection and a game where a victim was placed on a stretcher and then the first patrol, and carried to the doctor. At this month is Communication month, each patrol had to prepare a skit.

The Wolf Patrol gave a skit on the Scouts code at this meeting, and after some test passing, the troop was closed with the usual the Scout benediction.

Troop No. 17

The meeting opened with regular exercises conducted by Assistant Scoutmasters Maguire and Irvine. Several new recruits were welcomed to the troop.

The Patrol Leaders are concentrating their non-merit badge individual advancement and hope to see very large advances in such work.

An initiation was performed on all the new members present, including Joseph Forbes, Philip Shewes, Marvin Brownell, Alfred Gerhardt, Richard Jones, Roger Lisko, and Francis Jones. The good natured hazing was swift and under the direction of the Chief of the Indian tribe, Jim Lewis.

Eight boys received their first badge of rank as tenderfoot scouts and six second class and one passed during the meeting.

Appeals Board Meets Tonight

Six Applications Before Body; Expect to Hear Several Protests.

Six applications for exceptions to zoning regulations are to be discussed tonight at 8 o'clock when the Zoning Board of Appeals holds a public hearing in the municipal building. Expected to raise considerable debate is the request of Lawrence L. Williams, Thomas and James Hooker and William Cavanaugh were presented with their Tenderfoot pins. Following this presentation, the scouts adjourned to patrol corners where they discussed patrol policies. Talk was given on the use of the compass by Scoutmaster Carlson.

Raw Materials For After War

ain regarding post-war control of strategic materials.

Increased Production

The Council, in a statement issued as the conference got under way, called for consideration of increased production under existing defense contracts; spread of defense production to more and more plants, large and small; maintenance of employment in every community in the face of material shortages; maintenance of New England's service of industry, represented in fuels, transportation and power; adjustment of the area's agriculture to the national and international food program; and civilian defense and morale.

"The life and death struggle in which our western civilization is now engaged," the council said, "is being decided perhaps as much in our machine shops as in the ranks of the North Atlantic or on the plains of Russia."

Close Cooperation

"We cannot produce what is required of us if the defense workers the closest cooperation between government and industry, owner and worker, agriculture and both government and industry, among all groups of individuals within our communities, states and region," the council added.

Among those scheduled to address the two-day convention were U. S. Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), Donald M. Nelson, director of the Priorities Division, Office of Production Management, and R. M. Evans, administrator, Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The opening morning session was confined to registration and other incidentals followed by the governors' session at noon. State dinners to the governors were scheduled for tonight along with a general assembly. Group sessions were arranged for tomorrow.

people in the government who like to fight the whole world."

Senator Nye (R., N. D.), like Johnson and Wheeler an opponent of administration foreign policy, shared Wheeler's view that there were "spies" in the government in the Pacific.

"Great Britain can't afford to let us go to war with Japan," he declared, "because she needs our energies for the production of land-lease materials. War with Japan would require shifting to the Pacific many ships which Britain now uses in the Atlantic.

Might Be Able To End War

"If there is any desire on our part for peace with Japan I think it can be accomplished without delay. We might even be able to end Japan's war against China."

Kurusu, making a stopover in Honolulu on his flight to Washington, told reporters it was the common responsibility of the United States and Japan to maintain peace in the Pacific.

Describing his mission as very important and very difficult, he said details must be withheld until his arrival in Washington.

Told of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's statement that Great Britain would fight alongside the United States in a war with Japan, Kurusu laughed and said:

"He must as well have said he would have breakfast in the morning."

Scouts Thank Their Friends

Funds Are Still Coming In Although the Budget Was Exceeded.

The finance committee of the Girl Scout Council, at its meeting yesterday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, went off record as extending gratitude to the people of Manchester who, by their generous contributions, made it possible to exceed the budget of $860 for the coming year.

Still Coming In

Funds are still coming in, and it is probable the Scout Council will be able to extend its programs in several directions. For instance, it is expected the troop committees will be able to run the day camp on the Steele farm for a period of six weeks next summer, to provide new books and additional training for Scout leaders which will be of direct benefit to the troops.

The Girl Scouts themselves are deeply appreciative of what has been done, and hope to justify this support and confidence by their whole-hearted cooperation in any civic emergency in which their services may be used.

One Week from Today Is Thanksgiving Day

Foodstuffs at Prime as Traditional Holiday Approaches; To Shop Early Is Advisable.

Thanksgiving Day is only one week from today, Thursday, Nov. 20.

Manchester's food stores this year are offering more than ever before in the way of fine provisions for the holiday, with variety second only to quality in the shopping items that have to go to make up a real old fashioned Thanksgiving dinner.

The best native turkey consignments in many years have been reported this season, and duck, geese and roasting chickens have been stocked from the finest available sources. On the fruit and vegetable stands all of the usual delicacies are displayed: such things as pomegranates, persimmons, excellent mixtures of nuts, Bosdwick squash, celery hearts, celery and turnips, big red apples, juicy grapes of all hues, sweeter fruits like dates and figs, oranges and tangerines and the best cranberries Cape Cod produces if you want to boil down your own.

Truck Drivers May Quit Jobs

Dispute Over Wages and Hours Threaten Strike In Eleven States.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A dispute over wages and hours between nearly 200,000 union truck drivers and approximately 800 operators of motor carrier fleets threatened a shutdown today with a strike already authorized.

Deadlocked were the drivers, members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL), and the operators in the Central States Employers Council. Affected would be over-the-road truck drivers in 11 midwestern states, much of them connected with national defense.

Frank Brown of Chicago, president of the union, said last night that the drivers had authorized a strike if necessary.

Brown said the union would determine which is most likely to spare you from the midnight wailing of your neighbor's baby.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Here's one you haven't heard.

Scientists have taken a scoop of atmosphere, wrapped it up in a huge 50-ton concrete box, set it on soft rubber blocks, and found after experiments that they created the quietest spot on earth.

You should have to go into space 300 miles above the earth to find a place so devoid of sound.

A group of reporters who inspected this scientific handiwork at Northwestern University were stumped. They usually know the biggest noises in town, the political orators, fire sirens, and police whistles. This time they heard nothing.

"Even that dog whistle which is pitched so high the human ear can't hear it would make a racket in there," Prof. C. J. Overbeck of the physics department said.

The only sounds you can hear sounds which vibrate at 16 to 18,000 times a second. Above and below those speeds we call it silence. The dog hears a whistle vibrating 25,000 times a second. The concrete room goes to the other extreme, and is tuned at 7-12 cycles a second, far below the human note—and, by the way, the hum of the clock in the room.

Through a glass panel in the door he could read the gadgets inside which show how long the vibration continues before it is absorbed. A comparison of various materials under this test showing that 18 per cent of all automobile tires used by farmers was for necessity purposes.

Bill to Assist Atlantic Ports

Measure Would Replace Lost Trade Caused by War Shipments.

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Members of the House Merchant Marine committee considered today proposals for distributing land-lease shipments to ports along the Atlantic to replace lost coastwise trade.

One proposal in the form of a bill (H. R. 6001) by Representative Oliver (R-Me) would give the Maritime Commission jurisdiction over the assignment of ships, and, Oliver said, "Place the responsibility in the hands of the commission to see that cargoes are distributed to east coast ports so as to replace the coastwise trade that has been depleted."

Oliver is a member of the Merchant Marine committee, which is conducting closed conferences on this and other proposals with freight forwarders and shipping representatives. He contended that outlying ports have not been utilized "because the Maritime Commission has not had the opportunity to assign cargoes to specific ports."

Lend-Lease Cargoes

Oliver's bill would authorize the maritime commission to assign cargoes to American freight forwarders and shipping brokers, permitting them to handle lend-lease cargoes which, he said, were being routed by the British ministry of war transport.

The Maine congressman contended that with lend-lease shipments now being routed and re-placing normal export trade, freight forwarders and shipping brokers would be forced out of business if the British government continued its practice of routing such cargoes to ports.

After the War Practice

He predicted further that unless freight handlers were permitted to continue in business, a foreign government would be handling cargo assignments after the war, when competition for world trade became vigorous.

Some members of the committee said they had been informed that the British government was subsidizing private freight forwarders and shipping brokers in the United Kingdom to prevent their going out of business.

So far, Oliver said, the United States has taken no steps to assure that such operators would survive war conditions and be prepared to handle exports and imports of American firms in the post-war period.

A soldier requires about one-half bale of cotton a year, ten times more than the average civilian, the Department of Commerce says.

Gives Picture Of Bob Hope

Artist Flagg Says That Comedian Has Worked Hard to Get to the Top.

By James Montgomery Flagg

Hollywood, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Talent is only going where to go, and you know the only way to keep him from going where he decided was the place he wanted to get to would be to cook him with a pile-driver from behind.

His chin would splinter the pile-driver if it was tried from the front. His brow juts out over his eyes like a marquee over a theater entrance. His small toboggan nose is overawed between these two powerful features. His eyes twinkle with continual mirth.

I sat out in a sunny quadrangle at the Paramount studios doing a quickie of Hope who sat there squinting and joking with several young men as he posed.

Suddenly a girl quietly came out of a door and walked rapidly around two sides of the square. She was only a slim young girl going about her business evidently a clerk but she had on a brown sweater and a brown skirt and all eyes followed her figure around the square.

Hope barked several times like New Englanders from sheer astonishment. The brown sweater went quickly out of sight around the end building.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast, to say nothing of box office.

So I sat with stars except the Barrymores, who are too tall and unflinchingly to get where he is today, with a background of being born in England or one of the Dionne quintuplets, the father a mechanic who came to America in 1904 to do better for his family.

Bob has been through tough times trying out many angles, singing, dancing, prize fighting, being KO'd at sixteen (cheaper vaudeville to buy a Zogbaum follies to radio to movies to star dom.

Now he is old man box office's favorite son!

Man Found in Sea Committed Suicide

Stonington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A mystery which stirred this little village to its core when the dragger Mary Ann brought in a weighted dead body which it had pulled to the surface of the ocean off Watch Hill, R. I., was cleared up today with the definite identification of the body as that of Charles G. Richardson, 50, of Merrick, N. Y.

Two Mineola, N. Y. policemen, Sergeant Bert Bedell and Detective T. J. Shanley, who knew Richardson, came here last night and made the identification. Richardson disappeared from the Boston, New York Colonial Line steamer Priscilla off Block Island, leaving in its stateroom a note which was turned over to the Rhode Island state police.

The Mineola officers said Richardson had been worrying over financial matters and called his wife a "millstone around his neck."

A chain was fastened around the body, under the clothing, with a padlock and sash weights were found in the pockets.

Richardson leaves his widow and a daughter. The body was returned to Merrick today.

Governmental surveys show that 28 per cent of all automobile tires used by farmers was for necessity purposes.

Heavily Fined On Jail Charge

Rockville Man Furnished Liquor to Inmates Of Jail.

Rockville, Nov. 13 — Jesse Daniel Newell, 25, of 21 Linden street, Rockville was sentenced to 60 days in Tolland jail and fined $100 and costs on a charge of furnishing liquor to inmates of the Tolland County jail, at a session of the justice court held in Tolland Wednesday night with Trial Justice Clayton Reed presiding.

The arrest of Newell following an investigation by State Trooper Arthur A. Ross of the Stafford Springs Barracks of an attack on Alex MacDonald of this city, an inmate of the jail on Monday night by two other prisoners, William Mulka, 22, of Ellington and Elton James Maine, also of 21 Linden street, a step brother of Newell.

It was revealed that last week Friday Newell and Maine were presented in the Tolland court on a charge of misconduct and were fined $10 and costs each. In default of payment they were taken to jail, but Newell was later released when his fine and costs were paid.

Newell told the police that when Mulka found that Newell was going to be released Mulka asked Newell to bring some liquor to the jail and threatened him with physical injury if he did not do so.

It is alleged that Monday night Newell brought a quart of liquor to the jail, remaining outside and passing the liquor through a hole in a screen into the general cell room where the prisoners are allowed their freedom until nine o'clock when they are locked in their cells. The police believe that Mulka and Maine started to drink the liquor at once and a short time later attacked MacDonald, who was acting as night watchman and whose cell was not locked. MacDonald is at the Rockville City hospital where he is being treated for facial and body injuries.

Tolland jail is one of the smaller jails in the state and has no inside guard. Merritt Brown, jailer, attempted to get the man to return to the cells and called the state police at the Stafford Barracks.

"Dot" Thompson Seeking Divorce

Woodstock, Vt., Nov. 13 — (AP) — Charging "willful desertion," newspaper columnist Dorothy Thompson has filed suit for divorce from Captain Josef Lonchinski, a prize-weight.

Miss Thompson, whose legal residence is at Twin Farms in Barnard, nine miles north of here, filed the suit yesterday in Windsor county court. The petition was served on Lewis in New York and is returnable at the December court session.

The columnist asked custody of their child, Michael Lewis, a student in the Riverside school on the Hudson. She said in her petition that Lewis, a former Nobel prize winner, deserted her in 1936. They were married in London in 1928.

Both had been married before, her marriage to Joseph Bard terminated in divorce in Budapest in 1928 and Lewis' to Grace Heegner ended with a Reno divorce in 1926.

Paints Gloomy Picture Of World's Condition

Hartford Attorney Is Guest Speaker at University Club's Meeting Here Last Evening.

Attorney Frank Dully of Hartford painted a dark and sombre picture of the world in general and the United States in particular before the members of the University Club in the YMCA last night. Declaring that the United States is at war today regardless of the lack of a technical declaration, Attorney Dully said: "Whether we like it or not, we are now engaged in a shooting war."

Declaring that he would leave the facts leading up to our entry into the war to future historians he said that a totalitarian war must be fought in a totalitarian way without stint or limit down to the last vestige of U. S. manpower and stocks in the U. S. storehouses.

Must Give Manpower

The time has come, Attorney Dully stated, to disabuse our minds that we can engage in this way without a generous contribution of our manpower. The greatest totaling war in the history of mankind to come out of this war, more than ten years, he said, and will take from five to ten million of our young men.

"We must brace ourselves for a shock," said the speaker. "Such a war will call every last resource of our country, and we must be the prized possessions of every one of our citizens."

The speaker quoted Senator Claude Peppper of Florida, whom he termed the "conscience of the administration" as stating that if we fought a totalitarian war for years, utilize 10 million men and consume 500 billion dollars.

Attorney Dully reviewed the action leading up to the first World War and its participation of the U. S. in that struggle.

He said that it was now generally admitted the United States contribute more than a token force in the first World War to assist those engaged in the struggle for over three years. Two elements of U. S. Engineers were the token force, he said, and these men were assigned to the front and dined before the King of England. Later the United States dug in and drifted before the enemy at the front and the French offensive in General Neville was started.

Attorney Dully said that at the present rate of spending for war purposes, which began on July 1, 1942, will be $150,000,000,000. As an interest bearing debt of this debt figure, the speaker said that it would be equal to the insurance policy in the United States were paid out of its face value it would only reach a total of $118,000,000,000 and as further comparison with the Hoover moratorium, he said that the valuation of all real estate in Great Britain is more than $125,000,000,000.

"The only ways I see an escape from war is by divine supplication that the chalice shall not be offered to the American people," Attorney Dully concluded.

Urges President To Work for Peace

Boston, Nov. 13 — (AP) — Senator Walsh (D-Mass) proposes that President Roosevelt inaugurate action through the Pope and other religious leaders and neutral governments to "put a stop" to the present warfare in Europe.

The Senate naval affairs committee chairman also suggested in a radio address last night that the President cancel "staunch" and he has given the navy of the United States to engage in a shooting war with Axis warcraft."

Walsh, speaking over the Colonial network, said the administration had been prepared and based toward the European conflict.

"But surely," he added, "the administration, using the influence of this government throughout the world, can prevail upon the Holy Father and other impressive religious spokesmen of every faith and creed and the heads of some government which have been genuinely and truly neutral towards the contestants to act as intermediaries and arbitrators.

Local Women Furnish Room

Equipment Obtained to Send to Air Base at Windsor Locks.

The Manchester committee of the Hartford County group interested in furnishing the day rooms of the enlisted men of the Air Base at Windsor Locks has completed arrangements for furnishing one complete day room, Mrs. Henry Mallory, chairman of the local group reported today.

Sufficient furniture has been donated by local people for the purpose and the collections have been made by trucks operated by the Legion Post and the Tolland Soap Company and the furniture has been stored temporarily in a factory mill until trucks from the Air Base can collect the entire furnishings.

Fund Established

In addition to the complete furnishings of one day room, a fund of $212 has been given to the committee, part of which will be used to provide furniture not contained in the local drive, the remaining to become an initial fund to be given under-cover to the Red Dane Chaplain to loan to enlisted men in emergencies, to buy books and for various uses of the enlisted men at the discretion of the control officer.

Mrs. Mallory wishes to thank all those that have responded to the appeal for furniture, those who have given time to the committee work, and also to the Legion, the Tolland Soap Company and the Cheney Brothers for valuable assistance.

A placque will be placed in the room furnished denoting that the furnishings have been donated by the people of Manchester.

Ask Early Mailing Of Xmas Packages

Washington, Nov. 13 — (AP) — Postmaster General Walker urged today early mailing of Christmas packages for the United States' military and naval outposts.

Because of irregularity of transportation to some points that may it was desirable to get packages in the mail early as possible. Officials announced that deadlines had been established for some of the outposts based on the time of the latest dates and that persons sending packages to get them in the mails even earlier if possible.

Among the deadlines, for all mails except air mail included:

Nov. 15 packages for Iceland must be in New York by December 18; Bermuda, in New York by December 20; Trinidad, in New York by December 11; St. Lucia, in New York by December 11; Antigua, in New York by December 13; Brit-ish Guiana, in New York by December 11.

Mail for the Panama Canal Zone should be in New York by December 18, and for Cuba by December 21.

For the most part, the department has not established special deadlines for mails for Pacific outposts. An exception is Hawaii. The President Monroe is due to sail from San Francisco December 12, and officials said it will carry the last mail assured of Christmas delivery at the Islands.

The department did not announce deadlines for Iceland and Greenland, but mails for those points should be mailed in advance of the deadlines for other Atlantic off-shore points.

As of April 1, 1940, there were 33,188 active pilot certificates of competency in the United States.

To Have Voice On Priorities

Real Estate Men and Contractors to Have a Representative.

Washington Nov 13 — (AP) — Real estate men and contractors who have bombarded the capital with protests against priority restrictions on the use of critical materials in non-defense building, probably will be granted a voice in administering the program.

Defense mobilizer said it was likely that a construction industry advisory committee would be formed as in other industries affected by curtailment. Its advice and counsel will be sought by John L. Haynes in the civilian supply division of the Office of Production Management.

The groups handed out realistic non-jargon general construction will be invited to appoint a representation it was said but the group will also take in spokesmen for engineers, highway builders and probably home-financing interests.

To Clarify Order

A formal order now was expected also to clarify the broad language of the priorities issued by the supply priorities and allocations board on Oct. 9. That decree criticized by a number of real estate and builders' groups as ambiguous and unnecessarily drastic—forbade priorities and to building materials other than those of critical materials for use in non-defense construction or building.

However, an OPM spokesman said there was hardly a chance it would have the policy changed but be modified to any appreciable extent when formulated in amendations order. Ample statistical evidence existed, he said, to demonstrate that there is a real and worsening shortage in critical building materials.

This was in conflict with sleeptin claim about the [illegible] by members of the National Association of the Real Estate Boards of their Detroit convention last week.

Is a Policy Guide

OPM officials re-emphasized however that the NPAB announcement did not "prohibit" residential other private construction. Neither did it restrict the use of materials on to the farm of farmers, tractors or dealers. But it did set up a policy guide to be used by the priorities division in rendering future requests for priorities on critical materials.

Future priorities may be given only if the construction is necessary to national defense or essential to the health and safety of the people.

An OPM spokesman said that the present $6,000,000 restriction on residential building in OPM designated "defense certified areas" would be relaxed to permit, despite agitation, by the real estate men, a quarter million limitation on actual critical materials for a future that could not be.

This source said the $6,000,000 restriction had a double purpose to serve as a warning to the industry made available to workers in defense industry homes. Many could not do OPM feared that if a quantity of homes were affected there would be a tendency to build undersized homes at high prices, which the officials feel may be said.

The Last Chance

The national policy committee of the United Mine Workers meets at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, presumably to take whatever course John L. Lewis advises with regard to the National Mediation Board's refusal to grant a closed shop in the captive coal mines.

At 11:15 o'clock Mr. Lewis and Philip Murray and Thomas Kennedy, the two C.I.O. and United Mine Workers officials who resigned from the Mediation Board because it did not award Mr. Lewis a victory, are bidden to the White House, where will be representatives of the mine owners, and where the President himself will preside over a last minute effort to provide a peaceful solution.

These two meetings represent the last chance for continuation of the administration's effort to rule the labor situation by reasonableness, mediation, and appeals to the patriotism.

President Roosevelt has frequently been labeled, by labor itself, the greatest friend American labor has ever had. He has, throughout this growing national emergency, done everything in his power to avoid any drastic solution of the problem posed by the fact that certain labor leaders are neither patriotic nor loyal to the best interests of the labor they represent.

On those few occasions where he has taken firm stand he has been directly in response to the nation's supreme need for continued defense production, but his policies he has adopted to date have contained no permanent or routine repression of labor's rights. He has, we believe, by living on the hope that, sooner or later, the patriotism of individual American workingmen would assert itself over the power schemes of some of the labor leaders. He has a right to expect that patriotism should guide American labor policy.

But it has not, where Mr. Lewis is concerned, worked out that way. Leaders like Mr. Lewis have freely and boldly and insolently taken advantage of what they thought to be administration and White House weakness. And now they have reached the point where either they go along with the President's policy of a reasonable settlement of difficulties, or they compel him to forsake his stand and take up stronger policies and more effective measures.

The meetings tomorrow represent the last chance for Mr. Lewis and his associates to come into the American scheme of things as patriotic partners. They represent the last chance of continued life for the reasonable, middle of the road policy, the President, out of his friendship for labor, has tried to follow.

If these meetings fail, not even the President himself can stand in the way of strong alternatives. In fact, he himself must, if he is conscientiously concerned for American safety, take the lead in recommending these strong alternatives.

For the record, it should be stated that the great majority of American labor has been loyal to this country's need and appreciative of the course the President has tried to follow. The abuses made of the President's policies have been the exceptions—but they have been strong exceptions. Mr. Lewis has had as much regard for the safety of this nation, for the good of labor itself, and for the objectives of the President's policy as would a rattlesnake. If he persists, he will leave the President and the nation no choice. Tomorrow is his last chance to save himself, and save all American labor from penalty for his crime against this nation. If America, if labor itself, mean anything to him, he will do it. Let us hope that somewhere in all the vast human mountain of egotism there is one small growing spark of decency and patriotism.

"Fought" to a Standstill

From other periods of what eventually proved to be lull in the Russian campaign, we can remember how, at the time, impressive talk of offensives and 'progress according to plan' gave the impression of activity which was not going forward at all. Thus, if the German reports of progress around Leningrad during the past two months had ever been added together, the Nazi troops would have been beyond Leningrad long ago and would now be knocking about the North Pole.

It has been frequently the case that, long after the Nazi troops themselves have been halted, the Nazi propaganda has run on, making its descriptions of the fighting sound as if a perpetual offensive was in progress. And then, gradually, Soviet assertion to the effect that the battle line had been stabilized began to seep through until, eventually, it was admitted by all sides that the line had actually been stabilized.

All this gradual emergence of stalemate now seems to be occurring with regard to the general battlefield of all the Russian campaign—that immediately before Moscow.

But this time there is a difference. The traditional Nazi claims of "progress according to plan" are being omitted. Instead there is complaint about the mud, and then, when the ground does freeze, about the snow. Such "offensives" as are mentioned obviously reflect no full-fledged striking power for the Nazi army. We are having, on the Moscow front, the same kind of 'advance' that the Nazis have been making for two months on the Leningrad front.

But now not even the Nazis themselves are taking such occasional claims very seriously. To the contrary, for the first time, they are themselves joining in the effort to convince the world that they have actually been halted. A few days ago a Nazi spokesman went to great length to explain how Napoleon made his great mistake when he didn't wait until spring to finish his Russian campaign. And yesterday the Nazi about what Herr Hess might be doing. Now a slight corner of the curtain is raised, and the mystery is replenished with the casual, artful use of a sentence or two.

The "deputy fuehrer" has "let fall" various remarks. He has done it "from time to time." He would seem to have been talking of Hitler's grand strategy. The man who took down "Mein Kampf" is adjusting himself to his "sojourn" among the British. For all Hitler knows, he may be writing the epilogue to that bible of barbarism.

What other disquieting things he may be doing is held in reserve and left for Hitler to imagine. The big secret of the why and the how of his coming is still kept close. But the slow, tantalizing unravelling of the mystery has begun. Hitler has been allowed to hear a little bit—just an exasperating little bit—about the state of being of his best friend. There will undoubtedly be further revelations, at the carefully selected moments when Hitler seems least able to hear them.

Of all the wicked shafts Churchill has aimed at Hitler this quiet little paragraph seems most likely to give Adolf sleepless nights.

The Short of It

We have written many long editorials on the question of price control. Here's a short one:

Congress refuses to draw an honest price control bill.

Roosevelt refuses to recommend one.

With prices running away, it is inevitable that wages must try to catch up.

They never will.

No wage increase is any good unless it narrows the gap between wages and the cost of living.

Nothing else can even be narrowed unless prices are made to stand still.

Elemental arithmetic: A $35 wage which will buy a living is worth more than a $70 wage which will not buy a living.

Controllable result of the present trend: Ever higher prices, continual but hopeless wage readjustments, chaos, and the impoverishment of everybody in the end.

Only solution: Adoption of real price control, which will make whatever wages are received real, not fictional, wages.

Connecticut Yankee

By A. H. O.

Branching aside from pure politics for the moment, we note the fact that both Motor Vehicle Commissioner McCarthy and Inland Commissioner Hall are exercising a tough mood with regard to the question of speeding, and we note that the Merritt Parkway Commission, custodian of Connecticut's best design for speed, is likewise concerned.

We note, too, that, despite such official awareness of the part speed plays in accidents, these accidents continue, in all quarters of the state, at a rate which is seriously disquieting.

We wonder, therefore, if it is not time for someone to write an elemental essay on the subject of Connecticut highway engineering and traffic control.

The trouble, it seems to us, is that a good deal of engineering fantasia assume that they receive royal favor and safety so long as they think, first, that the road is smoothly paved, with two lanes, it is relatively safe. They regard the Merritt Parkway, which is smoothly paved, and which has two lanes for each one way traffic, as a road upon which any speed the speedometer can reach will be safe. Police clocked such a fellow, the other day, doing 95 miles an hour. We, for an extremist, feel that the mere physical conditions which it knows as a modern highway to be safe for which it feels is comfortable driving.

The ordinary public is wrong, and it has taken the Merritt Parkway, engineering experts and advanced piece of highway engineering, to prove it. What the Merritt Parkway has proved is that smoothness of road and isolation of traffic are only a relatively small part of the formula for road safety.

The one great factor for safety in a road, which even the Merritt Parkway engineers and advanced piece of highway engineering, to prove it. What the Merritt Parkway has proved is that smoothness of road and isolation of traffic are only a relatively small part of the formula for road safety.

The one great factor for safety in a road, which even the Merritt Parkway engineers and has fatally neglected, is vision. And yet, vision means absence of hills and knolls as well as absence of curves.

What happens in most Merritt Parkway accidents is that some driver, going at a high rate of speed comes around a curve or over a knoll to find some sudden traffic situation—a group of cars, or another motorist stalled—on the Parkway immediately in front of him. He doesn't have time, at 50 or 55 miles an hour, to halt at a safe distance. Sometimes, for this reason, there is a rear end crash up in one accident.

In a repetition of this experience once, on the Merritt Parkway, is making inevitable a downward adjustment of the speed limit. And it is this experience which is going to be amplified if, while the upper end of the state thinks the Wilbur Cross Parkway is going to be safe for speed, the engineering for that Parkway still includes curves and grades of any proportion.

Needless to say, on less perfect highways, the combination of speed with curve and grade is continually fatal.

There is, we may observe parenthetically, a brand of highway engineering which does permit highway speeds and make them comparatively safe. It is to be found on the "autobahn" of Germany, where remarkable forward vision has been provided by a ruthless annihilation of all curve and grade obstruction.

We traveled on an "autobahn" at 80 and 90 miles an hour for hours at length, but there was never a moment at which there was not clear vision of all the road for at least three or four and more frequently ten miles ahead. If there was any pile-up or congestion, you saw it miles before you got to it. In this case, engineering has, at expensive and almost prohibitive cost, advanced to the state where it made the speed any one could go and yet human could drive reasonably safe.

But any engineering which connoisseurs of highway design and tourers of the Connecticut countryside is never going to be able to make unlimited speed safe. It is a rule fact that even on our best highway there must be a rigid limit, and that, furthermore, it should be a limit which laws have reached and passed their proper upward limit. Connecticut must, if it is to be content with it until it feels like financing an entirely new system of roads, which is not likely ever to be.

In short, highway speed is one phase of modern progress where the public has already gone too fast. Our highways are not adapted to it, and, in the interest of safety, they never can be made safe as people assume them to be.

For 25 years the motorist has been educated toward the relation of higher speeds, until he naturally thought the process was going to go on forever. That assumption has come to an abrupt halt, even on the Merritt Parkway, which represents the motorist's dream of the future. Beyond this the education must be back toward sane use of what we have.

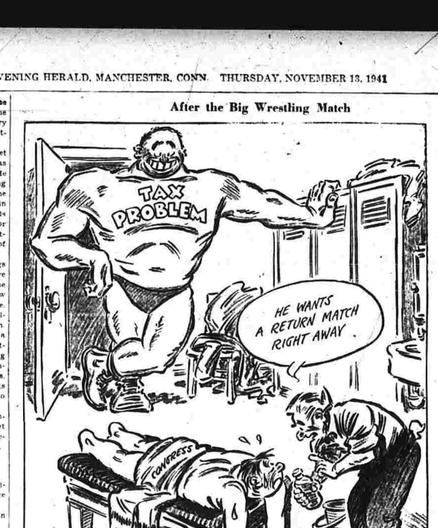
Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington, Nov. 13.—It is no news any more when President Roosevelt breaks another record in the history of executive and White House activities, but it may be worth more than a passing note that with only a few months overtime on our two-term President, Mr. Roosevelt is rapidly approaching that day when he will be champion vetoer of all time.

The fact has just been unearthed in the first summary of Presidential vetoes made in the last 52 years. The record of bills vetoed and action taken thereon from 1889 to 1941 was compiled by Robert L. Baldridge, a Senate employe, under the direction of Edwin A. Halsey, the Senate's veteran secretary.

President Roosevelt, to date, has vetoed 535 bills passed by Congress and has had only seven of these passed over his veto. Even leaving his third term out of it, President Roosevelt has to tip his topper only to Grover Cleveland, who vetoed 584 bills in his two terms. In the same period, President Roosevelt vetoed 505. No other President has even approached



After the Big Wrestling Match

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York, Nov. 13—I thought you might like to have this stick of incidental information on Maxwell Anderson...When you go to see Helen Hayes in "Candle In the Wind" you will be sitting in on Anderson's 22nd play... His first written in collaboration with Laurence Stallings, was "What Price Glory" went into production Anderson borrowed $500 from the National Bank of Nyack, N. Y.... With it he bought a waterfall and three acres of land in a township called New City, a few miles beyond Nyack. He still has that waterfall, and his acres have been increased to 60.

In his years of all his writing in longhand with pen, in a small, neat, legible script. His writing is done in ledgers, a play to a ledger page, and he can write literally his final one, save for minor revisions. A play is completely worked out mentally before he writes a word...He makes few revisions in manuscript. All his scripts are types by his wife.

"Candle In The Wind" is the crystallization of an idea in a thoughts on the Nazi menace. The action takes place in Occupied France, and the hero is an American actress whose love for a French naval officer leads her to dissipate her fortune and her peace of mind in the effort to obtain his release from a Nazi concentration camp. The summation of these efforts tends to underscore that common honesty and decency are the greatest weapons, and no more chance than a candle in the wind.

As for Anderson personally—he never has been known to go to a night club...He frequently dines at drugstore counters, and in this he is not unlike his confrere and fellow member of the Playwrights Company, Robert E. Sherwood... He wears travel suits and in cold weather usually a slip-over sweater...He hates tuxedos and evening clothes...Six or seven years ago when the New York drama critics presented him their award for "Winterset," he was the only one of the group who wasn't dressed up...He came in his usual tweeds...The only thing he has ever invested money in has been land... He owns a lot of it now in Maine... He likes New England, and especially Maine because it is slow to arrive at decisions, given to deliberation, and to thoughtful thought... Once, however, he has stated his opinion, he never moves from it. He is a rapid thinker, but a slow talker.

Curiously enough, though he is the author of many successful and financially remunerative dramas, none of his plays has received unanimous approval of the critics. "Winterset," which won the Critic's award, was generally to a variety of critical opinions. Of his other plays, "Elizabeth, The Queen," "The Star Wagon," and indeed all of his plays. Now comes "Candle In the Wind," which apparently has struck a responsive note in expectations... Nevertheless, their joy in Helen Hayes is unanimous and unqualified. Since the opening, the house has sold out every single performance for her.

I doubt that you can find a better buy for your $3.30 anywhere in town.

Tax Problem Is Reviewed By Rotarians

Rotarians were informed by speakers at their luncheon meeting yesterday that the problem of taxation is one of the most important ones now facing the country.

Speaking on the subject, "Our Tax Problem," Attorney Edward J. Neagy of Nassau county said the Rotarians, Ernest Roy Watkins, 35, had been booked for manslaughter in the deaths of Edward Kranglewicz, Sr., 53, his two sons, Edward Jr., 22, and Michael, 19, all of Bayside, N. Y.; Stephen Sikorski, 25, of Bayside, and Joseph H. Gutowski, 47, and Joseph Obiezowski, 42, both of Flushing.

Joseph Kranglewicz, 24, driver of the truck, was critically injured. The men were en route to their homes from their work as concrete mixers.

Nassau quoted Watkins as saying that the gates at the grade crossing were up and unlighted as the truck in which the men were riding approached.

Assistant Attorney Edward J. Neagy of Nassau county said the Rotarians, Ernest Roy Watkins, 35, had been booked for manslaughter in the deaths of Edward Kranglewicz, Sr., 53, his two sons, Edward Jr., 22, and Michael, 19, all of Bayside, N. Joseph Kranglewicz, 24, driver of the truck, was critically injured. The men were en route to their homes from their work as concrete mixers.

Nassau quoted Watkins as saying that the gates at the grade crossing were up and unlighted as the fast express, roaring in from Montauk Point, at the eastern tip of Long Island, to New York City, crashed into the motor truck and dragged it about a mile.

Watkins, Neagy said, told authorities he was not familiar with train schedules. He had been employed at the crossing only two days.

The express ripped up rails and scattered debris onto both inbound and outbound tracks as its engineer struggled to bring it to a stop. The heavy, early evening commuter traffic was tied up for more than an hour and a half.

Time of the wreck was placed at 5:18 p. m. (e. s. t.)

Send for Articles on Catarrhal Disorders

Catarrh is a very common condition and for this reason literally thousands of people want to know about it. By catarrh is meant a disorder affecting the mucous membranes of the body and it may involve any of these membranes occurring in different parts. For example when the colon is affected, with a discharge of mucus as the chief symptom, the trouble is called colitis. When the catarrhal condition affects the bronchial tubes, then we have bronchitis. Sometimes the appendix or the gall bladder undergoes an acute catarrhal inflammation. When the mucous membrane of the nose and throat are affected, then the common nose and throat catarrh so often seen, is the result.

While catarrh is not of itself a dangerous disease, when it affects the nose and throat it may encourage the development of other disorders having a serious effect upon the general health. For example, catarrh may encourage the development of sinus trouble, loss of hearing, ringing noises in the ear, etc.

The chief objection to ordinary catarrh is that the continued discharge is located in the nose and throat the patient may find it disagreeable to have to clear it out and this usually forces him to make a good resolution to do something about it. However, he forgets about it in a short time, and usually the catarrh is neglected. I have seen patients who have had nasal catarrh for 10 to 15 years, without ever attempting any treatment.

Local treatments may bring about a temporary benefit but rarely have any lasting effect as they do not reach deeply enough to affect the real cause of the trouble, which is constitutional in nature. Catarrh is caused by the acid formed from the waste products of an excess of fats, sugars and starches in the diet. This acid is partly discharged through the mucous membranes, with the membranes secreting a plentiful supply of mucous in an attempt to wash away the irritating products. Catarrh is thus an indication that Nature is ridding the body of waste and is using the mucous membrane as an extra channel of elimination.

In a typical case of catarrh the patient is generally undiversified in his diet and he may well enough weight he may stuff on the very foods which make the catarrhal discharge worse.

I have on hand several of Dr. Frank McCoy's articles on dealing with catarrhal disorders. If you wish to secure copy of them, be free to write to McCoy Health Service in care of this newspaper, requesting the ones desired, enclose one large self-addressed envelope stamped (3c) for each one you wish, but add 5 cents in stamps for each separate article. Here are the names of the articles: Catarrhal Deafness; Catarrh of the Colon; Sinus Trouble; Mucus Colitis; Defective Hearing; Nasal Catarrh; Bronchial Asthma; Adenoids; Polypi (or the nose).

Either Higher Taxes or Living Boost Seen Likely to Hit Contents; New Estimates.

By Paul Gesner and John Beckley

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Average American's family pocketbook appeared destined today to be the football in a looming tug-of-war between tax revenue and rising costs.

These developments of the past few days give hints of some of the buffeting the family pocketbook may take together with glimpses of some of the powerful forces molding future living costs trending:

1—The flood of defense spending is only beginning. Spending for arms for the full year 1941 will aggregate only about $13,000,000,000, the experts say. In 1942, they estimate, the pace may more than double that in 1941, approaching $28,000,000,000; and the newest defense aim is to spend nearly $100,000,000,000 in two years, which would mean the outlay in 1943 would surpass 1941 and 1942 combined.

2—With Federal spending swelling the national income to record heights and greater numbers yielding consumer goods giving way to defense, the treasury has proposed siphoning off the expanding national income through a 15 per cent tax, deducible from wages and salaries at the pay window.

3—The House ways and means committee has "deferred temporarily" any action on the treasury proposal. Hints are dropped that nothing will be done towards framing the tax bill before Congress until Congress has completed consideration of the price control bill, now occupying its attention.

Tax Revenue Is Sought

4—President Roosevelt has urged the ways and means committee to speed up, draft a new revenue measure quickly to stem price inflation. Says Roosevelt:

"I very much fear that unless we start within two or three months to withdraw through taxes a larger part of the current national income, an even greater part may evaporate upward through inflation, and the upward spiral may gain such momentum that it will be difficult to regulate, despite all efforts through price control and stabilization of wages."

5—Present opinion of competent observers is that the price control bill, if it finally made law, may prove ineffective as a controller of living costs, for farm legislators are opposed to any present restraint on farm prices and the administration does not favor a limit on wages.

Representative Gore, Democrat of Tennessee, insists the Baruch plan of an overall price ceiling on farm products, rents and industrial items is the only sure way to keep living costs in check.

So appears a dilemma for Mr. and Mrs. Average American.

The family pocketbook is in for a walloping.

If taxes aren't created to siphon off more consumer dollars, then living costs will rise.

One way, taxes take a bigger chunk of the family pocketbook.

The other way, the grocer, the landlord and the tailor get it at prices of 10 cents, clothing, other items increase.

In either case, the family pocketbook loses.

Sooner or later, some formula for dealing with labor troubles must be tried as part of defense production is to hit the gait supervising officials are aiming at, business executives say.

A coal strike threatens this coming Saturday. A railway strike threatens for Dec. 5. A telephone walkout threatens to disrupt telephone communication. There are a dozen other situations which have gone so much in stoppages of work unless a general method of settling labor difficulties before strikes start is developed.

Seeming to hint lack of faith in administration hopes to stem rising living costs through either higher taxes or price control laws was announcement by the head of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York of a "supplemental compensation plan" for its staff of workers. Under this plan the bank's employes get an extra payment of 6 per cent, subject to certain restrictions, on the first $1,500 of annual salary. The bank stresses that this payment is separate from salaries and is, in effect, extra pay to employes who have felt the brunt of the cost of living. Three Wall street commercial banks — Guaranty Trust, National City, National Bank and Marine Midland Trust Company—last week announced extra compensation plans, too. Bankers Trust Company has boosted salaries. Some banks are studying bonus propositions.

J. P. Morgan & Company has joined the procession, adopting an extra compensation plan.

Unlucky Day

Fort Lauderdale, Fla.—It was a bad day for Mail Carrier John F. Coleman, who reported:

"At 800 S. W. Fourth street a dog ran out and broke the skin above my left ankle. Iodine applied.

"At relay box on Northwest, Broward and Seventh avenues while making a collection, a scorpion bit my middle finger. Iodine applied.

"But I am still shaking from nervously stepping on a rattlesnake at 526 N. W. Sixth avenue at end of orange stripe mailbox."

Practically all important industrial establishments in Free China provide food and housing for their employees, the Department of Commerce says.

Berlin Giving Newsmen Plenty of Headaches

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Network staff men in Berlin seem to have more difficulty with the controls than those in any other place from which regular war broadcasts are made to America. Numerous such instances have developed.

Latest was the announcement by NBC that its Berlin man, Alex Dreier, had been banned from broadcasting, with differences over censorship of his material given as the reason. The ban later was removed. CBS likewise was unable to bring in its man, Harold K. Smith, although it had no immediate word from him as to why.

Radio men who have returned home say the Berlin censors have become increasingly strict as the war lengthens. They even have taken recordings of the broadcasts to check on diction and inflection in the voice of the belief that, through the manner of delivery, a different interpretation was being given to the script, which previously had been gone over carefully.

One broadcaster said he was denied the use of the word "attack" because of the way it was thought he stressed the phrase. The high command claimed "slang and idioms also have come under close scrutiny, on the theory that they are conveying restricted information in disguise.

Political Leader Is Seriously Ill

New Haven, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Daniel C. Fitzgerald, Democratic National committeeman, was reported critically ill today from a streptococcal infection resulting from intestinal grip.

The 67-year-old lawyer, taken ill last Tuesday after appearing in a trial in Hartford, was under the attendance of nurses working in three shifts at his home and was fed oxygen from time to time to aid his respiration.

A member of the family reported this morning that Fitzgerald, a former New Haven mayor, had spent a "more comfortable night" last night, but that the crisis in his illness was not passed.

Fitzgerald came home from the Hartford trial last week with what he thought was a cold and was immediately to be interested in legislative grip later developed, followed by the streptococcic infection.

Refused to Report Mother Had Died

Norwich, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A woman was discovered living in an apartment with the body of her mother who had died "at least a week" before when a Welfare Department nurse investigated a complaint by telephone why neither of the women had appeared at the welfare office to collect a monthly relief check, one witness said.

The nurse, Miss Clare Sullivan, reported to her superiors that Mrs. Anna Sheedy, 52, would not let her into the apartment. Police and Dr. Louis Cassidy, a relative, then investigated and found the body of Mrs. Sheedy's mother, Mrs. Mary J. Kelly, 72.

Dr. George H. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, said Mrs. Kelly had suffered a heart attack and had been dead "at least a week."

He reported that Mrs. Sheedy, who had been staying in the apartment with the body, was taken to the Norwich State hospital.

Odor In The Courtroom!

Kansas City—The attorney for defense made the mistake of polishing exhibit A around the courtroom in a trial before Judge of the Peace J. J. Dougherty. The judge ordered a 10 minute recess and opened the windows.

Exhibit A was a sample of the bench bomb the defendant is supposed to have dropped in a thirty-first street bowling alley.

Noted Lawyer Very Modest

New U. S. Solicitor General was a World War Flier in 1918.

By Frank I. Weller,

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The new solicitor general of the United States is a shy little man who always lets you have his own way.

Charles Fahy is brilliant, modest, almost bashful—but he won a remarkable series of administration victories in the Federal courts and in committees of Congress before President Roosevelt made him the government's No. 1 trial lawyer.

His is a new technique around here. He stepped into one business tycoon after another, mission politely, to establish constitutionality of the National Labor Relations Act and uphold labor board decisions.

There is a saying that Fahy (after-dinner weight, 160 pounds; height, 5 feet 8) is a lot of a wolf in sheep's clothing when he goes about his legal chores. He marshals a devastating array of a packet of facts with such impeccable behavior that his opponents must watch him every moment.

Always Friendly

"Now, gentlemen," he will say, "here is the law in this matter. Of course we all want to conform to it." That's Fahy, always friendly and persuasive. Then he opens up with both barrels to make sure of one holds an opposite view.

Fahy abhors Mister and belching of opposing counsel like a benison. Never in the history of the bar, does he lift his voice. His most threatening gesture is seventy poised forefinger, a how that stops at the neck, and, "I'll proceed now, with your leave."

The wallop is in his finely drawn points of law, his clear-cut reasoning and carefully assembled documentary proof. This has made him a great favorite with the Supreme Court.

Real Southerner

He talks and moves with the quiet, easy grace of the old South. Fahy, 49, was born and reared in Rome, Ga. He clings to home customs. To this day he can't get too much of rice smothered in chicken gravy. His hunting is lowe-pointed mustache and black hair are beginning to gray now, and scholarly spectacles are a kindly eye and quick smile. That's what 28 years of lawyering have done to him.

He was 16 and maybe the lightest quarterback his high school ever had, when he suddenly decided to become a lawyer. The round court house at Rome rang with sonorous oratory in those days. It became Fahy's dream to do that, and the eloquent trial judge became his hero.

Papa Fahy, a prosperous Irish Catholic merchant, sent his son to the University of Georgia and Georgetown. He was admitted to the bar here at 21 and in his reference was asked to go to Santa Fe, N. M., where he still has a family connection and residence.

Government Service

He entered government service as an attorney in the treasury department in 1933, also serving as chairman of the Federal Alcohol Administrative Board. In 1935 he became general counsel for NLRB and argued the Jones & Laughlin case before the supreme court. He was called to the justice department as assistant solicitor general in 1937.

Fahy concedes, if he must, that he's done pretty well. He says he swings back in that swivel chair, behind an immaculate desk half as long as a dining table, as solicitor general of the United States, poised, serene, and confident, he says, of his hair.

Dogpsone it, he didn't get to play college football! Oh, he was plenty good in high school. But what chance have you got to carry the ball Dame ball with such great ones as Notre Dame's Frank Leahy?

Okay, he still can love football and go to the games. He can, for exercise, recreation and hobby roll out into one.

Lawyer Fahy, who probably has the finest St. Francis of Assisi library in Washington, can hardly bear to sleep with detective stories, just plain old yarn spinning yarns. These when that hair-trigger legal mind is weary. When he needs inspiration, he turns to his tomes on great personalities in English law, the works of Hilaire Belloc, Justices Brandeis and Holmes, and biographies of world characters.

World War Veteran

Like most overseas veterans, Fahy clam up on his World War I record. He was an aviator with the U. S. Air Service, forerunner of the Army Air Force, and was attached to a British night bombing squadron with the British and later to an American bombing group in the same area. He cracked up one dark night near Luxembourg. He was wounded, but he carried on to the end of hostilities and President Wilson awarded him the Navy cross for distinguished and heroic service in line of duty.

His war record may have had something to do with Mr. Roosevelt's selecting him as a member of the special mission he sent over two months in London last winter negotiating the destroyers-for-bases swap.

Deaths Last Night

Harrison, N. Y.—Mrs. Marie Saxon Silbermann, 37, former stage and screen actress, suicide.

St. Louis—Ernie Koob, 48, former pitcher St. Louis Cardinals, shot, buried a no-hit, no-run game against the White Sox in 1917.

Murfreesboro, Ark.—John Wesley Huddleston, 84, reputed discoverer of the Arkansas diamond mines 35 years ago.

Germany's Fighting Plane Studied by U. S. Experts

Downey, Calif., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The German Messerschmitt ME110 combat plane is built of the highest quality materials—not of ersatz—and is equipped even more abundantly than comparable American ships, a detailed study here discloses.

A Messerschmitt shot down over Britain was brought here for study by aircraft experts Fridlin, a were made public today by H. Wallace Wade, vice president of Vultee Aircraft, Inc. He reported:

The Germans used highest quality alloy steels, copper, natural rubber, aluminum, nickel, chromium, magnesium and other materials.

The design is particularly well suited to mass production, especially in the use of large dispence sections to reduce sub-assembly work.

As an example of German efficiency, connecting fittings in the camouflaged twin-tailed ship were reduced to a minimum with considerable freedom for adjustment, whereas the ratio was only two to one before the war.

Hector E. Hansen, executive director of the employment security division of the California Labor Department, spoke against proposals to increase social security taxes as a defense measure, declaring "in my opinion it is not only dangerous but positively dangerous to the increased defense situation to pave way with social security. . . . He said there was no reason why defense payroll taxes could not be levied entirely apart from social security taxes.

This was in contrast with numerous American fittings requiring highly accurate production.

Although designed for mass production, German engineers lost little aerodynamic efficiency in the multiplace fighter.

Rev. A. S. Kline Leaves Bolton Church Sunday

Is Now Awaiting Extended Call to Active Duty as Chaplain in United States Army.

The Rev. Alfred S. Kline, minister of the Bolton Congregational church for over five years, will conclude his ministry this Sunday morning. He is awaiting an extended call to active duty as a chaplain in the Army of the United States. The Rev. Mr. Kline was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the Chaplains' Corps on October 9th of this year. He will become the third clergyman representing the Congregational churches of the State of Connecticut, now on active duty. Until he receives his assignment his family will reside at Stony Creek, Conn.

While Chaplain Kline has had no previous connection with the Army and has been opposed to war as a means of settling international disputes, he is now "completely committed to the policy of our government, because it is no longer a question of mere dispute but of the survival of any free or God loving people." It is his conviction that "credulous Christians contribute cutely comfort to the cause of Hitler." He is certain that "Hitler hopes to encourage Christians to surrender in the name of a hopeless peace, but in contradiction to the Christian way of courage to deny the disciplined demand of any dictator."

Wide Circle of Friends

Chaplain Kline has expressed his keen regret upon leaving his parish and the Bolton community. He has cherished his wide circle of friends since coming here from Vermont. He came to Bolton to attend the Hartford Theological Seminary, where he has taken part-time work for three of the five years. He is a member of his church's slate committee on Religious Education.

Upon coming to Bolton, Chaplain Kline found a community of willing workers but very few connected with the church. There were no men serving the church. The Executive Board was entirely composed of women and there had been no Deacons for twelve years. There was no regular church youth group since any of the young folks could remember, no church school functioning, although fifteen were enrolled, and a total of only thirty-three church members. A group of capable volunteers quickly formed in response to his call for cooperative expansion. Most of this same group is still heading up the work.

Many Major Changes

After his first year of study, Chaplain Kline secured a one year release from his seminary to devote all of his time to the building up of the parish in Bolton. During that time, and since, he has made two major changes.

His first efforts were with the church school which rose from an enrollment of 15 to over 60. The average attendance since that time has been nearly 40 per Sunday, which has been exceeded three times this Fall. Ten persons now serve regularly on the Officers' and Teachers' staff.

Since the town of Bolton began, some part of the church has been used as a Town Hall. When there was a basement, that was the part so used, making it impractical for the church to use it for any kind of normal church school work. Through the generous cooperation of the Town, Grange and other organizations, Chaplain Kline secured the release of the basement for the exclusive use of the church. This due to the fact that a Community Hall and Public school house had for some time been available. With the help of the ladies and the youth of the church, both of the basement rooms have been completely equipped, repaired and redecorated.

New Organ Purchased

The church possessed a small reed organ around which to organize a regular choir. A new Hammond Electric organ was purchased and paid for, as were twenty-two choirs gowns. For the past three years a paid choir director had been leading a choir averaging a fraction under twenty voices for each Sunday worship service.

Church membership has been considerably more than trebled, rising from 33 in 1936 to 122 in 1941, not including a loss of 2, making a net gain of 91. With the first increase of membership, eight men have accepted positions as Deacons, officers or chairmen of standing officers in the Church school or youth work.

In appreciation of his efforts, the church added several modern conveniences to the parsonage and by R. I. will take place at St. Mary's Episcopal church, Saturday, at 3, o'clock.

attendance, until last year the community took over the whole affair with well over 300 present. In the summer of 1938 he composed a hymn sung on the north shore of Bolton lake which numbered over 300 singers.

Inter-Faith Meeting

Rural life Sunday was proposed by him in 1937 as a joint event, with the Bolton Notch Methodist church. It has developed each year until last year it was made an Inter-Faith meeting in cooperation with the Grange and held on a Sunday evening during the Community green and hall. The ministers of the three churches and the master of the Grange spoke briefly, followed by the principal speaker, the Dean of the Sociology department of Connecticut State University. Over 200 took part.

Chaplain Kline has expressed his pleasure and gratitude for having been twice elected moderator of the town meeting, one of them having been the annual election.

He has made it a policy not to enter not actively take sides in local politics, in order that none might feel slighted in their religious relationship to their minister.

As a parting bit of service to the community, he has been busy starting a community Scout Troop in Bolton. The troop is now set up with a large troop committee composed of able men representing the three churches and the Grange. An excellent scoutmaster and assistant scoutmaster have been secured, and a large group of boys who are already at work.

Chaplain and Mrs. Kline have a daughter, Flora, who was born a year and a half after they came here. Two children were born here, a son, Sidney, who is three years old and a daughter, Dorothy, who is nearly two years old.

Chaplain Kline has a brother Sidney, who visited him recently from his air training base in Florida. His father, Dr. Fred Kline is a professor of anatomy in the University of Ohio, Columbus.

Not Sure What Happened

Salt Lake City.—(AP)—The Broadway coffee shop cashier isn't sure what happened, but she was $16 short after this customer left last night. He asked first for change for a quarter for a cigarette machine, then in rapid succession for a fifty dollars in the treasury for next year. Two other changes introduced were the bimonthly executive board meeting and the annual Every Member financial canvass.

Interested in Community

Chaplain Kline has devoted much of his time to community affairs. His first concern has been community harmony and loyalty. His first venture of this kind in Bolton was the Community Christmas Carol Sing at the Community hall around a specially planted and lighted Christmas tree in 1937. Some 300 persons shared in this friendly gathering. Other gatherings of the same kind were held with increasing

To Keep Secret Sub Sinkings

Secretary Knox Tells Publisher He Will Stick To Britain's Practice.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Knox, in a letter to a Raleigh newspaper publisher, stood pat today on his assertion that the navy wouldn't give out the news if a German submarine were sunk.

The secretary said he believed in the American tradition of freedom of the press, but that his first duty was to President Roosevelt in carrying out the country's naval policy.

"I am sure that the President, likewise, has no desire to withhold information and that his actions are prompted solely by a desire to promote, above all, this country's security," Knox wrote.

"Contrary To Policy"

The letter was sent to John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh Times, who had written Knox that the withholding of naval news was "highly improper" and "positively contrary to the wide open policy of the American free press which you as a former newspaperman should be expected and cherish some years ago."

Knox indicated the statement that the British government feels that its morale will be injured if "When a sunken ship is simply disappears without clew, it made a guessing contest over what happened to it."

Knox also added this: "It's probably very successful during the last World War. German submarine sinks some people so bad that it was in large part responsible for the defeat in the German fleet at Kiel."

Want Information

Park replied today that he still believes in telling what goes on in time of war, and in "giving mothers on the gunstock."

Relatives and friends of fellow townsmen will be eagerly scanning the reports of every naval engagement and closely scrutinizing casualties and sinkings, the publisher said. "Giving them the results of all engagements, including those with submarines is a part of the wide-open policy of keeping the nation informed about what goes on by its own men and with the money provided by its own taxpayers."

Park said that his criticism was offered after his customer had a friendly even, and added that he regretted if he had offended in the policies that I do not approve."

U. S. Renews Attempts to Bring Peace

factory guarantee for Finland's security against future attack.

The informed belief here was that the Helsinki government had left the diplomatic door open for further discussions along such lines, even though its note to the State Department did reject Russia's initial overtures for peace.

American officials were noncommittal on the subject, pending a thorough study of the note which set forth the Finnish position and their insistence upon guaranteed security for their little republic.

Secretary Hull gave the only hint of possible future action when he told the press yesterday that an analysis would disclose that Finland was not irrevocably committed to collaboration with Nazi Germany.

Last Part of Note

In diplomatic quarters much importance was attached to the concluding portion of the Finnish note which stated:

"The supreme task which presides at the present juncture has assigned the United States for the remedying of prevailing conditions and ending the existence of millions of human beings, would be achieved only of a permanent state of law between nations that would enable also a small nation to feel its existence secure."

Again and again the necessity of a guaranteed future security for Finland was emphasized in the note, which was made public yesterday officially by Hjalmar J. Procope, the Finnish minister.

"Merely An Interlude"

Finland," the note said, "is destined to terminate the struggle as soon as the danger threatening her existence has been averted and her security created by continuous security." However, any cessation in the fighting was unacceptable if it was to be merely an interlude in Finland's uncessant self-defense against Russia's imperialistic aims.

The note reminded Americans that Finland had been "subjected on two separate occasions, within the space of less than two years, to unprovoked armed attacks on the part of the mighty Bolshevist terrorist state."

Did Not Keep Promises

During the course of conversations between Under Secretary Welles and Procope, another second part of the note asserted, the grave doubts of Finland, based on many bitter experiences, regarding the trust that can be reposed in promises made by the Soviet Union, were explained to the representatives of the United States.

"The Russians had indicated readiness to make territorial concessions.

The United States, the note added, had not inferred any guarantees of security "as a pledge of a Prime Minister Churchill pointed up the Mediterranean situation with his observation yesterday that "Malta shipping has become a very difficult for Germany and Italy to reinforce or even supply their North African armies. Some British sources read in this a suggestion of an early British attack against Italian imperialistic aspirations.

Police Instruction Seen As Vital to Defense

School Is Opened by Patrolman Prentice as Importance of Supervision Is Stressed.

Policeman Joseph Prentice started yesterday a school of instruction for the local policemen, stating at the outset that it was not to be his school, but for every member of the Manchester department. Sessions yesterday afternoon and last night were attended by members of the department, both regulars and supernumeraries, the hours being 11 at the session yesterday afternoon and 12 last night. Each man was given a note-book and the policemen were told that they would be required to take notes on the different talks that would be given.

These note-books will be turned in later on in the lecture course and the students will be held to marks on the result of their notes. Later on, he said, they will be given a written test. It was not an intuitive test, however, to have the men feel that he was telling them what they were to do, but he said he was just doing some of the instructions that he was given and creation of Washington. There will be 10 such lectures given to be held a week apart.

Officer Prentice introduced Postmaster Thomas J. Rogers, who presided at the meeting last night. Also in the room was Town Treasurer George H. Waddell. Mr. Waddell said he was glad to be present with the officers of the Manchester Police in a training school for the benefit of the men. He said that when the chief of police asked for the same and then came two other doctors who gave testimony against the two officers and the doctor. He called them all back, asked their examination and was convinced that the policemen were telling the truth. Later years proved to him that they had told the truth in the case and in all ways felt they had in giving a report to the court. He closed his remarks by paying tribute to Chief Samuel G. Gordon for the fair way that he had conducted the police department.

FBI Agent Speaks

Special Field Agent John T. Madigan, of the FBI the last part of the evening, told the assembling that what they could learn in attending sessions of this kind was going to be of much help to them. The work that had been done in the past by Chief Gordon, Lieutenant Barrie and by Joseph Prentice, was going to be important to the men. All could learn something. It was a school for Manchester men and what would be done by the members of the Manchester police department would be of help to all residents of Manchester. It is your school, he said.

The method of law enforcement today on a whole different than when Chief Gordon did his rounds at night alone and sent out to do what he thought was the right thing. There was no two way radio between the man on the beat or no cruising car. A man in the early days walked his beat, "pulled a bar" and when a case came up he handled it the best he knew. It was no longer a case of brawn against brains. Science had done much for police work as it had for other work. He reviewed the work of the FBI. It was started in 1908. It came into its own in 1926 and has been advancing each year since. It was important that men who were members of the FBI should learn how to present evidence. It was known where men not versed in the FBI had been discharged because they could not present evidence in a fair way.

Proper Evidence

Judge Johnson, he said, had told of the need of proper presenting evidence. It was decided when the FBI was established that all the membership made up of law men, or trained investigators and agents. This was considered necessary. The judge would know, how to write up a case and the accountant would know how to present the figures and the fingerprints, of which there was so many in use now and now. That system was used hundreds of years ago in China and it was found that it to be paid by the early Chinese. It was taken up by Scotland Yard and the FBI was using the same fingerprints on file in Washington for the use of police departments. The fingerprints were not an idea of Hoover's but came from Scotland Yard. Prentice was presented by the chiefs of police as a man who had been in charge of this work for the past 14 years. Prentice at that time it was only possible to secure such prints in three or four different places in the United States and it was a task to secure such prints, but other important information was available. Most of the men working in the laboratories now are working for police departments and the old idea, of the FBI man thinking that he was better than the police is past. Today the state, local and FBI work with each other and the results are being secured.

Actor Mantlan closed his remarks with the statement that he would be here again and was interested in the school.

Chief Gordon made it plain that attendance was not compulsory at the school and at the next session the men would get down to real police work. He was glad to hear from Judge Johnson, who, he said, was the best judge the town ever had.

Asks Farmers To Take Risks

for to extend our interests or our holdings," he said. "But for one thing we must not interfere in our usual sources of supplies through contracts and branch contracts on defense orders.

Training Camps Need Bases

Of the billion-and-a-half total, the greatest single item was for approximately $533,000,000 for construction of military camps, hospitals, air bases and airports.

This the biggest building boom in the country, Hartford's housing, army camps navy bases, shipyard facilities, airplane factories, air bases and factories—and it has thousands of workers into the construction business.

Housing still is an acute problem, and rents have risen. It is common to hear of houses bought and sold before the Japanese attacks have been laid.

Housing developments have been rushed in such cities as Norfolk, Va., Wilmington, N. C., Charleston, S. C., and Jacksonville, Fla., but still there are people in the South living in trailer camps as a last resort.

Drawn From Farms

To build these new houses and these factories and camps in the new south of the defense era—and to run the sleek machines in new factories—farmers are being drawn from surplus farm labor.

During 1940—when the number of men employed in construction industries jumped from 84,000 to 208,000 in less than 12 months—anybody who knew how to use a hammer and saw could get a job at a job at wages far above the farm level. This employment has taken off somewhat from the peak in recent months, but it remains far above normal.

Total employment in mining, manufacturing, construction and other non-agricultural occupations leaped, in about the same period, from 1,943,000 to more than 2,220,000. And latest reports are that it still is rising.

In some cases, the states have the hands but not the skills. So skilled labor is being trained for the first time on a mass scale. Hundreds of thousands of men are being trained in the South, partly by private industry and partly by government subsidized schools.

Shifting Workers

In vocational schools and NYA shops of the southeast, some 135,000 workers were trained between July, 1940, and April, 1941. While this was not seen a large number, its importance lies in the fact that the south with only 7.25 per cent of the nation's population, 11.9 per cent of the trainees enrolled for study in industrial trades.

And some in the south are asking: Will those men who go into industry and earn good wages be motivated to return later to the farms or work areas as Lee County, Ala., where the average small farm of about 60 acres produces a cash income of only $90 a year?

Studies by the Department of Agriculture show that the small farms in representative counties of Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina produce cash incomes of $90 to $105 a year for an operator and two sharecropper families, while the large farms produce an annual income of $317 to $781 for the operator and sharecroppers.

But the readjustment of the wage-earner to post-war conditions is only one of the problems puzzling those southerners who seek to find clues to the future of the land of cotton in the present bewilderment of defense work.

To Buy Beach For Greenwich

Town Votes to Purchase Tod's Point if Price Is Low as $165,000.

Greenwich, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Greenwich voters have authorized the purchase of Tod's Point, in Old Greenwich, and its development as a beach for the Greenwich area, the property, the Greenwich hospital of New York, will agree to sell for $165,000.

This was one of the issues debated at a long and heated town meeting last night at which a budget of $4,290,630, largest in Greenwich history—was adopted for the fiscal year beginning next January 1.

Only $3,968,631 will be raised during the year, the balance, appropriated for school construction and renovation and the Tod's Point project, to be raised during the next four years.

The 1941 budget was $3,568,106.

The school projects are coming upon the heels of obtaining a priority rating.

Tod's Point, a 150-acre sandpeninsula extending into the Sound from Old Greenwich, was developed by J. Kennedy Tod, New York private banker, in the 1880's and originally was assessed for $1,058,930.

Under the supervision of the Scotchman Tod, the point became one of the showplaces of Greenwich with its Italian mansion, nine-hole golf course, numerous cottages, a small grounded yacht and a salt water lake covering 20 acres in the center of the plot.

A year after Tod's death in 1925 the Presbyterian hospital bought the property for $400,000 from his estate, having his widow life use of the mansion half. She died in 1939.

The hospital had intended to use the point as a site for a convalescent home but in the interim it was given back to Mrs. Tod by Mr. Tod's will, which it erected such an instead of the usual Greenwich one-room public beaches. Capital, Skilled Work Is Changing the South

Defense Works Spur Shift from Cotton to Industries; Money Spent Freely.

By Don Whitehead

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The import of hundreds of millions of defense dollars has shaken the old south right down to its economic foundations.

The beat of marching feet and the clatter of an army on wheels are blended with factory whistles in the new sounds of the southland. The land of cotton is changing.

And underneath the hustle and bustle there's a current of foreboding and uneasiness among the people who wonder what the post-war south will be like.

Some fear that when peace comes to the world again an economic collapse may leave the south as poverty-stricken as it was in the days after that other war six years ago, after Sherman had marched his army to the sea.

But that is the exception view. Others see the south shaking loose the bondage of cotton tenancy and emerging stronger and wealthier, with a sound balance between agriculture and industry.

Lands Being Tradled

The south always has been a reservoir of unskilled labor and natural resources. Now, with hundreds of millions being spent for defense and creating new wealth of capital and skilled labor.

Perhaps one has a chance for a peek at what's happening to the south in the Atlanta field office of the National Resources Planning Board. From various government sources, it has collected a mass of facts and figures on defense activities in the southeastern states (Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia.

The south was swept into the defense boom perhaps faster than any other part of the country. As a low-income area, it felt most quickly the impetus given by the new money.

Land Very Cheap

The region became a chief center of military training immediately after the government's decision to build a new army on a two-ocean navy. The land was cheap and the climate comparatively mild.

Factories for producing the implements of war sprang up, or have sprung up in the cotton fields, and thousands by the thousands left their plows to build ships, make munitions and put up barracks.

The Atlanta office of the NRPB found that actual expenditures for defense expenditures for construction and manufacturing from July 1, 1940, to August 1, 1941, were pouring at an estimated $1,547,700,000 into the southeast.

The estimate did not include the other millions of this year's payroll, the money spent for food and supplies for army camps, outlays for training defense workers or money diverted to the south through subcontracts and branch contracts on defense orders.

Training Camps and Bases

Of the billion-and-a-half total, the greatest single item was for approximately $533,000,000 for construction of military camps, hospitals, air bases and airports.

Date Is Set For Holiday

Governor Hurley Issues Proclamation; Thanksgiving on Nov. 20.

Hartford, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Governor Hurley, calling upon Connecticut citizens to be grateful "for that deathless devotion to liberty and justice and truth before which no tyranny can long endure" has proclaimed next Thursday, November 20, Thanksgiving Day.

The Democratic governor sided with 31 other states which broke away from the traditional "Last Thursday" Thanksgiving, but his proclamation, issued last night made no reference to this fact.

The 20th has been proclaimed National Thanksgiving Day by President Roosevelt and all the New England states excepting New Hampshire and Vermont are observing it.

"In keeping with a tradition handed down across 300 Connecticut years, I appoint Thursday, the 20th day of November, as Thanksgiving.

"On that day, let us return thanks in our houses and places of by prayer and feasting, not alone for our material blessings, but more yet for our present immunity from the ravages of other lands. Let us be grateful also for the gifts of the mind and spirit in which the people of other lands may share, for love that smites in the hearts of hatred, for truth that grows in the midst of fear, and for that deathless devotion to liberty and justice and truth before which no tyranny can long endure. Let us be thankful that our own land has fallen in a time of supreme disaster, that we have been given the chance to be partners-by of toil and the brotherhood of pain. And let us be thankful above all that our country is now returning to that deep and simple faith in the Almighty Goodness out of which our land, and that custom of Thanksgiving first grew."

Body Fluid Examination Can Diagnose Cancer

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Diagnosis of sudden cancer, by studying tumor fragments from the blood and other fluids of the chest and abdomen was described today before the Southern Medical Association.

Dr. Hugh Jetter of Oklahoma City told members of the organization that this method is not a substitute for X-ray or surgical exploration but is a great aid in proving or disproving the existence of the disease in doubtful cases.

In this approach to cancer diagnosis, fluids are taken from the lungs and the abdominal cavity, studied under the microscope for tumor fragments. If present, tiny fragments of cells which are not present in normal body fluids.

If they are found they indicate the presence of a tumor or cancer and give a physician or surgeon a clue to the nature and extent of growth, enabling him to proceed with exact diagnosis and early treatment with X-ray, surgery or radium.

In cases where such growths throw off cell particles which are not normal and which may be readily recognized we believe this routine examination is not only justifiable but is a more direct diagnostic procedure than X-ray, blood counts, analysis of the urine and other examinations, Dr. Jetter declared.

The examination, which promises to save hundreds of lives, is based on the early diagnosis of cancer, is comparatively simple. The examining surgeon makes a tiny incision in the abdominal or chest cavity, inserts a trocar which is a small, hollow needle, and draws fluid. This is taken to a pathologist who places it under the microscope and if there are any cell fragments show up it is indication, but not proof, that a tumor or cancer is present.

From such examinations it may be assumed that the presence of tumor fragments in the fluids is indicative of the spreading of a cancerous growth and is therefore obviously equivalent to malignant disease, Dr. Jetter said. The Oklahoma physician and his associates opened the diagnosis on less than 10 per cent of the persons they examined.

Jr. Republicans Planning a Party

Because of other attractions last night the meeting of the Young Republican Club was not largely attended, but action was taken towards the enlargement of the club's membership. Miss Lillian Wagner, the assistant secretary of the club, was named as head of a committee to arrange for a party to be held next January. The club last night held an informal discussion on matters pertaining to the club's interest and how it could be enlarged and take a more active part in local politics. In doing not to have a party of local members held before January it was taken into consideration that the Fourth Congressional District is to be held in East Hartford on December 5 as well as an invitation received from the East Hartford club to the guests at their meeting on Friday.

MAD AS A HATTER, I took up my problems with the Koppers Service Man. He put the furnace in top-notch condition, then gave me a furnace chart with 3 simple rules to follow in operating the fire.

I FOLLOWED THEM TO THE "T". I never dreamed that furnace tending could be so easy. Helen was delighted, too. There was plenty of heat all day long to keep the young sters warm.

I WAS SO PLEASED, I ordered a Koppers Heat Regulator. It saves opening and closing drafts, keeps the house at even temperature. Helen's mother dropped in last night. She looked at the thermostat, at Helen—then kissed me. Gosh!

DO AS THOUSANDS OF OTHER MEN HAVE DONE — let the Koppers Service Man show you an easy, better way to heat your home. He will check the furnace and make sure it is in proper working order, even though you are not a Koppers Coke user. No charge. No obligation! Phone for this service today!

Armistice Day Assembly Held

Speakers Tell of First Armistice Day; Justify 1941 Celebration.

An effort to reconcile the events of the first Armistice Day with those of the Armistice Day of 1941 was made by the speakers in the assembly, Monday. Speeches were made by Charles Wigren of the faculty and Livingston Friend of the student body, to picture the first Armistice Day.

The first speech, given by Charles Wigren, described the reception of the Armistice at the front. He described the lack of shouting and cheering and the general relaxation of nerves there.

The second speech, given by Livingston Friend, described the joyous clamor in American towns and cities that started early in the morning and continued till the last reveler was exhausted. New York City people wandered about the streets fraternizing with all types and kinds of people, drunk with joy. In a little hamlet of Merryville, Ga., the town was awakened by the bells of a neighboring factory town. The people built nees and ran up and down the streets shouting with joy.

In Manchester the citizens were awakened early and the celebration was much the same as that in New York.

We end I didn't even get just bored a bit, owned Mr. Wright for a change one really don't need one thought and hopped down to New Haven.

Briefly This

By Betty Barstow

This week finds us right in the middle of a week in which no sports are in football ended last Friday with a tie for the C. C. I. L. championship, basketball season begins next Thursday with the usual alumni game, it seems as if we are somewhat like much like Sports Wire.

History Students Revive Past Events

Essays in connection with the American Revolution are the centers of the famous rulers from Richelieu and Frederick to Mussolini and Hitler.

A few of the other new books are "There Shall be no Night," a play by Robert E. Sherwood, "The Best Short Stories of 1938" edited by Edward J. O'Brien, and a volume of Whittier's complete poems.

Elimination Tournament

After playing the ladder tennis tournament to determine who five girls would end up in the highest rank, an elimination tournament has begun.

The first five players are: Sally Morrow, Alba Quagia, Pat Kilpatrick, Donna Boyd, and Janet Boyd. These players are known as seeded players because they do not have t. play as many times as the other 12 girls. The latter are divide into groups of two. The winner of each group plays a seeded player. The loser each time is eleminated. The one girl who remains after all of the matches have been played wins the tournament.

Somanhis Staff Corrections

Due to an error caused by a last minute rush, two mistakes were made in the Somanhis story of November 7, 1941. The business staff consisting of Virginia Lathrop, manager, Florence Harworth, Eleanor Woodhouse, Leonard Anderson, Helen Foley, Alice Snow, Marjorie Marte and Mary Bantly, was listed as the statistical staff. The statistical staff was left out completely. They are Ruth Earn, Dorothy Dougan, Robert Gardner, Donald McGann, Dorothy Prentice, Irene Stevenson and Joseph Tedford.

New Books Added To School Library

A variety of new books have been added to the high school library recently.

Especially interesting to present seniors should be John R. Tunis book "Choosing a College." This very informative book containing a number of chapters on the subject of college expenses, working one's way through college and detailed information on various universities, also has tabulated information giving the complete cost at the 100 leading colleges and universities throughout the U. S. A.

Tempting to any "photography minded" boy or girl is the attractively bound "Boys Book of Photography" by Edson Way Teale. How a camera works, developing, printing, enlarging, taking pictures, trick shots and color photography are among the number of subjects dealt with in this book. It also contains many diagrams and more than thirty full-page photographs.

For something exciting to read (after your homework is done) is James D. Ahern's new book "Cap'n Ezra, Privateer," which takes a place during the War of 1812.

Since more and more young high school people are cultivating the art of driving, the American Automobile Association has illustrated book on "Sportsmanlike Driving" one to be put on your "required reading list."

For the more serious minded there is "Juggernaut: The Path of Dictatorship" by Albert Carr. This American journalist discusses the careers of the famous rulers from Richelieu and Frederick to Mussolini and Hitler.

A few of the other new books are "There Shall be no Night," a play by Robert E. Sherwood, "The Best Short Stories of 1938" edited by Edward J. O'Brien, and a volume of Whittier's complete poems.

National Education Week Themes Illustrated in Manchester High

The theme for National Education Week Education for a Strong America" is subdivided into seven separate themes. Members of the Journalism class compiled their first quarter's work by analyzing the way in which M H S carries out these themes. The best on each theme follows

Seeking World Order Through Manchester High School

The students of Manchester High are learning that world order, the first theme of National Education Week, is vital to the human race through their Modern European and United States history courses, their economic and geography courses, their science and language courses, as well as extra-curricular activities.

The history classes study past world orders, both in the economic and political views. The reasons for the failure of these past orders are explained. In all history classes, as well as some others, the news events of the day are discussed by the students. Panel discussions, student speaks, debates, all are part of this program to educate the young Americans to intelligent ways of thinking and judging world news. The need for world order is shown by examples of the chaos taking place in Europe, a chaos which these young people may be asked to take part in by being drafted into the aggressor nations.

The students studying economics and geography discover the vital need for world order in carrying on international trade which reaches jobs to thousands of people all over the world from the factory worker to the shippers to the store clerks. A disrupted, disunited world, they learn, thwarts or balance the system of commerce established between all nations, both great and small.

The foreign language and secretarial classes find the need for a universal language and world order. The topics discussed by the students treat, on most cases, subjects of other national importance of world-wide importance. A variety team has the opportunity to exchange view points on the various topics by the teams.

All in all, the students of Manchester High are learning through their committee work how they, both in class and out, both indirectly and directly, the importance of world order when it comes time for them to undertake adult responsibilities, and the ruining of this country, they will be able to help establish world order because they will understand its importance.

Building Physical Fitness

For a second theme of National Education Week, we have Building Physical Fitness.

Manchester High School has many opportunities where one may improve his physical being. There are gym and swimming classes provided for both boys and girls. Football, track, soccer, basketball and baseball are some of the numerous sports which the boys of M.H.S. may enjoy. They are keeping their health by playing these various games and at the same time they are learning the meaning of sportsmanship and fair play. In Field hockey, basketball, swimming, bowling, and tennis are a few of the sports provided for the girls. One can easily see how both these sports our physical health is being helped.

The doctor and the school nurse are provided for our protection. An epidemic could be avoided if a diseased person was allowed to return to school before he was completely cured. Every year schools throughout the town are visited by dentist who cleans our teeth for very little and also advises us if there is need for any further dental treatment. Dental care is health insurance for the future.

All these factors go to show how Manchester High school keeps its students healthy. Physical fitness is a "must" in everyone's life.

Strengthening National Morale

The modern school is one of the greatest builders of a strong state of national morale which now looms so important in building a powerful national defense. The young people, the future citizens of this vast country, who attend American high schools receive a wide basis for building a strong enduring love for their country do not their homes.

Patriotism in the schools is prominent. Assemblies at Manchester High are opened by a salute to the flag and the singing of the national anthem or some other patriotic song. Frequent talks by the principal instill in the students a confidence in their country.

History courses play a major role in strengthening morale. Through these courses a student becomes more familiar with his country and the mechanism of its government. Through a more thorough understanding of his country, a student is made to realize to what a really wonderful place it is. By the study of his school a high student can understand what a heritage our democracy is. Current events topics covered in many classes show students the shining, of modern events and the part the United States is playing in them. Citizens courses in government and democracy are also offered.

A newly added feature at M H S is the Student Activity Association. There is also a large enrollment in many clubs. Some students belong to more than one. All these factors show that the students do support their school.

The students are trying to have the people of the town realize the importance of school support too. They are doing this by economizing as much as possible so that the money will go farther. In this way the public gets more for its money. Because the school system is making the most of their money, it has a great deal to show for it in structures, text books, and equipment.

No matter how well a thing is to have support, the public must be shown what it can do outside the every day program. Every year the high school tries to bring the public into the knowledge of what it is doing through various programs. Plays and musical concerts are given to which the public pays no fee a small fee. Many sports events are held to which people in the town who are interested in a good sport follow the games with interest.

In order to tell the public what the high school is doing, Parent-Teachers evening in the Manchester Evening Herald was held in the High School World. It is through this paper that the school relies support from the public. The paper acts as a publicity agent for the high school.

Eleanor McKenna.

Learning Democracy

Man hasten High School conducts a program of democracy by allowing the students to take part in all of it deals particularly with the ways of a democratic nation. Through the study of history, books and through the lessons of the classes, democracy is explained and taught thoroughly. It helps the student to understand what has happened by people in the past and how they have acted in the past, and what they should do this role. It gives to the students a clear idea of what their job is going to be in the future.

Out Student Council is a perfect example of democracy. Through it, one learns just how we will act as we enter the adult stage. The student body elects two representatives from each homeroom. It is these people's jobs to make the laws but only with the consent of the students. That is one of the greatest factors in a democracy. Representative type of government is, acting only for the people and doing only what they consent to. In our Student Council we see those same factors prevailing. The representative goes before the room and tells just what happened in the meeting, what was discussed, the outcome of the laws or resolutions, and the new problems that have risen.

The class room and home room carry out democracy in a sense of the word. The students could be considered as the people. The progress and rating of the certain class is determined only by the way each and every student behaves. If a motion is made to give a present to a sick member, it is only determined by the rest of those students.

Partaking in school activities is related to the partaking of elections and the voice in the government that the older people have. It is the students' duty to keep the activities of the school going as it is the people's duty to vote at elections, to attend town meetings, and to stand by the laws of their government.

Everything that is done or passed is done only through the entire student body. ...An assembly not be a success unless the student thinks so. School activities cannot be carried on without the cooperation of the students, the government cannot run without the taxes. The school therefore, not only teaches us the ways of democracy but it runs by the students, of the students, and for the students.

Eleanor Stipsits

Education for a Strong America

The enriching of family life, the last theme of National Education, is perhaps one of the most important benefits to be gained from an education. This is because each of us will always be one in family—not only the small group of our immediate relatives but in the immense family which occupies the American household. And at the present time it is of particular importance that the people of the country live harmoniously together, united as a family.

Manchester High does its part, for it is at school that we learn to cooperate with people of all creeds and beliefs. It is at school that we learn that each and every one of us must shoulder responsibility and although some of us are singled out to have the responsibility of being a leader, more of us share the responsibility of being an aid to the leader. A school is, after all, like a model nation. We at school live under the jurisdiction of men and women who have been given their position because they have shown their ability as leaders. We have a democracy for we have a representative body, and like the older people we have a right to vote, we are doing our part in this national crisis by paying taxes and by doing our share to conserve paper and other materials of which there is a shortage. And as a school we are learning the things which are making us more understanding of the conditions which are facing all families today. Our understanding and cooperation will not only make it easier for our present families but will make us wiser heads of families later.

There are more manifest ways in which Manchester High helps to enrich family life. One of them is the home economics course which includes sewing, cooking and general information for making better homes.

It is courses like this which enable us to aid in our homes, but they are not the only ones which do this. Shop courses, art classes, music appreciation classes, classes in physical education, classes in dramatics, classes in debating, classes in journalism, classes in commercial drawing and mechanical drawing. The boys participating in these classes are learning practical information and training in the use of tools, which is considered very important to our country today. Our country is relying on these men to carry on confidence in their jobs, to do a fair part in this time when the full employment of every one is needed.

Recent discussions in the classes impress upon the student the fact that he is an important gear in the vast machinery of democracy.

The strong feeling of devotion to his country is carried by the student from the classroom and thus serves a twofold purpose. The school has produced a spark which joined with others will set the great flame of feeling and emotion among the people. The schools are the cradle of the democratic ideals and they need to continue its position as a prominent world power.

George Hunt.

Improving Economic-Well-Being

"Education for a Strong America" The theme for National Education Week, stresses the importance of improving the economic well-being of the pupils, if they are to help build a strong country.

The purpose of various subjects connected with economics, and taught at Manchester High, tend to strengthen the pupils ideas and purpose to create better economic conditions in his community. Commercial subjects such as bookkeeping, typing and short-hand equip the student with knowledge which can be put in use in the business world, which plays an important part in the economic system of a community.

Consumer's Economics departs valuable information to students, so that they are shown what to look for in buying something, and how to get the best buy. Commercial Law, which teaches commercial pupils the rights of people under contract, the responsibility of contracts and how they are drawn up is a further help in improving economic conditions, since, if the students use this knowledge to the benefit of their ability, the people of the community will benefit by it.

The Home Economics course for girls gives them knowledge and practical experience in the management of home affairs. Good home life in a community enriches the community life and economic standing.

Vocational guidance advisers help the student plan what work he is fitted for, and should plan for, in that field in which he will be an asset to his community.

However, the pupil can connect the things he learns in any subject with what is met in everyday life, and his ideals will not only be a benefit to the individual but the nation as well.

Wanda Kosinski.

Safeguarding School Support

"Safeguarding School Support," begins with the school itself. Nobody would ever think of supporting anything, in any way whatever, if the people who are in it do not support it. Manchester High School, however, is well supported by its students. This is proven by the fact that about 70 per cent of the student body has joined the Student Activity Association. There is also a large enrollment in many clubs. Some students belong to more than one. All these factors show that the students do support their school.

The students are trying to have the people of the town realize the importance of school support too. They are doing this by economizing as much as possible so that the money will go farther. In this way the public gets more for its money. Because the school system is making the most of their money, it has a great deal to show for it in structures, text books, and equipment.

Learning the Ways of Democracy

Hail to the Band!

Congratulations to the M. H. S. band on its excellent performance in the Armistice Day parade Tuesday, and for the numbers which it played in front of the Memorial hospital.

H. S. Hopes Upset By CCIL Ruling

Manchester High and West Hartford, previously heralded as CCIL football champions for the just completed season, have been informed that the league rules revised in 1937 now gives five points for a win two points for a tie and minus three for a loss. Thus giving the final CCIL standing an entirely revised picture. The new and correct standings are now as follows:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts
Middletown	1	1	2	6
Meriden	1	1	2	6
Bristol	1	1	2	6
Manchester	1	2	2	4
West Hartford	2	0	2	4

Capt Mohr Shines

Captain Freddie "Bonehead" Mohr ended a brilliant three-year football career for Manchester High last Friday afternoon on the Meriden gridiron as he and his followers trampled an overestimated team from Meriden, 20 to 0. Captain Mohr displayed the power of a light tank as he fought his way through a wall of Silver Citytes for sizable gains time and time again to set up the three scoring plays for the Kelleytes.

Coach Kelley's charges never set foot in Meriden territory in the first period as kicks from the goal line never reached the half-way mark. It was in this period that the men from Meriden came fleet closest to scoring—and that was about the twenty-yard line. The Red and White uniformed boys began the scoring late in the second frame when Mohr broke away for a 29-yard run to bring the ball to the Meriden 40. "Steve" Atkinson picked up a first down on an end run to the opponents 29 and it was from there that Captain Mohr started the aerial attack a pass of 30 yards to "Deacon" Curtis in the end zone for a tally.

Fumbles Marred Offense

The third fray produced little action as fumbles marred the offense. At the start of the last period Mohr carried the ball on the first play after the intercepted pass and ran in to the eight-yard stripe. Again Mohr heaved a pass to Curtis in the end zone for the tally. Jack Turkington kicked the extra point. A few minutes later a pass to Mohr and then an end run spread resulted in the last marker. "Bonehead" Mohr broke through tackle for a gain of 32 yards when put the ball on the Meriden five. On the next play "Steve" Atkinson went over for the counter on a center plunge. Jack Turkington converted. But McCabe played a game worthy of mention up until he broke his right arm.

Leaders Class Has Play Day At Rec

Sponsored by the Girls' Leaders Class, a Play Day was held last Saturday at the "Rec" with girls from Rockville and Glastonbury participating. Chairman Anna Staum and President of the Leaders Class Mildred Turek planned the event.

The girls of the Leaders Class did all the work. The decorations were based on a patriotic theme. Basketball, horseshoes, bowling darts and ping pong were played from 10-12. From 12-1 the girls went swimming. Lunch was served from 1:30. Relays and games were played from 1:30-2. Singing lasted from 2-2:15.

Miss Doris Cole, now the Physical Education teacher at Rockville and a 1937 grad of M. H. S., accompanied the girls from Rockville. Verie Hartwell accompanied the Glastonbury Girls. Girls participating in the Play Day were: E. Blinks, K. Kleinschmidt, M. Cathalade, M. Pelice, S. Stevenson, S. Tedford, Alberta Staum, I. David, D. Firato, E. DeSimon, F. Down, L. Hansen, L. Naretto.

Hockey Teams Organized

Here's field hockey's column again! During the first quarter of the school year four girls' teams have been organized. The "Just Us" Team represented the Senior Class, with the "Hockeyettes" representing the Junior Class. The Sophomores have two teams, the "Spitfires" and the "Speed Girls." Due to the fact that hardly any freshmen girls showed up for field hockey this year, there has been no freshmen team organized. The Seniors haven't "suffered" one defeat this season. Those significant seven are: P. Skrabac, C. Stavnitsky, A. Zwick, M. Cotter, F. Harwarth, Anga Staum, and M. Turek. The girls who have been picked to be on the Varsity team are: P. Binks, P. Commins, E. Delimone, D. McFarland, P. Skrabac, Anna Staum, C. Stavnitsky, and Mildred Turek.

Lists Aid Pupils

Special lists are posted on the bulletin board of Miss Mary Burke's room to aid the pupils taking Biology and also to be used in writing English composition. "Most students", said Miss Burke, "do not realize that an English theme can be written on a Biology subject." Such subjects suggested by Mr. Emery are "U. S. Bureau of Fishes," "Game and Fish Laws," "Fish as Food," and "Ancient Fishes." This should be of special interest to the students as Fish and Biology can be done at the same time.

World Goes To Convention

Speakers, Play and Quiz prove Helpful to Reporters at New Haven.

Gay Head, author of Scholastic's "Boy Dates Girl" feature, Jack W. Schaefer, editor of the New Haven Journal Courier, a student a dramatic sketch, and student discussions were headlining events in the ninth annual Connecticut Scholastic Press Association convention on November 8. New Haven's Hill House High saw about 200 delegates from the High School World, Arthur Ludwig and Robert Gardner represented Somanhis, and Robert Wright of the Hilltop Observer, went in the High school bus.

"Unlike most of you," said Jack Schaefer, "I enjoy the reading and of a newspaper much better than the writing end. I am not interested in dead people, dead languages or dead things. I like alive, interesting drama in bulletins." Mr. Schaefer continued by telling the delegates how he got his start in that field as a member of the United Press. It was several years before he could write a satisfactory story.

Gay Head Speaks

To be an actress "a la Hepburn" was Gay Head's burning ambition before she became a writer, she told the convention delegates. But after one year in a dramatic school, she abandoned the idea and went back to her home in North Carolina. She was called upon by the editor of the local newspaper to substitute for his secretary. However, instead of doing secretarial work, Miss Head's job was reading proofs. After two weeks of this work the editor asked Miss Head what she thought of the newspaper. She told him she thought it was "dead as a doornail" and that they needed an inquiring reporter. Gay Head was put to work and became the newspaper's inquiring reporter.

Miss Head began writing for the Scholastic magazine after she received a letter from the New York editor saying he had a game for an article, but could think of nothing to put under it. The name of this feature was "Boy Dates Girl." Since then she has added "Jack Session" and "Fashion Spread" to a monthly feature.

Students Present Play

"How to Interview a Celebrity," was enacted by two members of New Haven High. In the first scene, which demonstrated the wrong method, a young girl reporter swaggered into the living room of a supposedly famous musician. The reporter confidently perched herself on one a length of a table, all the while vigorously chewing gum. Starting the interview, she had no idea whom she was interviewing, and when she found out the profession of the interviewee, professed ignorance of his life's work by asking stupid and unrelated questions. The musician, having another appointment, left in disgust, while the young reporter also departed with no story.

In the second scene the same reporter walks with a dignified air into the living room asking politely if she may take notes having prepared well before hand she knew the exact question to put to the musician: which she did in a conversational manner. Before the interview she notes over to the interviewee, asking his permission to put down in print.

Students In Quiz

Another feature of the program consisted of an Editor's Quiz. Representatives from six school papers composed the "Quiz Kids." Eleanor Stuffit represented the Hilltop World.

"Journalism is one job which you do not get by high marks or degrees," Joseph Mitchell, director of the Columbus Scholastic Press Association, hot on your own ability to write and express himself." In his brief address, Mr. Murphy pointed out that today there are over 500,000 students who are writing, editing and publishing school magazines and newspapers.

Advertisements Displayed

Advertisements on meat have been displayed on Russell Wright's bulletin board during the past two weeks. For the benefit of the salesmanship classes. This material was sent to Mr. Wright by Professor Bellatty of Boston University. Professor Bellatty is at the head of an advisory service in advertising.

The pages pictured choice cuts of meat for thrifty shoppers. The reasons for buying such cuts were explained to the consumer.

These ads were obtained to show the salesmanship classes the different means of advertising articles, which they are now in stip in their studies. Just

Success Seen For Red Cross

Canvassers Here Report Excellent Response to Appeal This Year.

Red Cross canvassers are reporting excellent response to local residents in the current Roll Call membership drive which began on Nov. 11. The campaign organization is working to secure a 100 per cent enrollment from every home in their sections — a Red Cross emblem in every window.

Team Captains are requested to make an initial report on the progress of the local drive at Red Cross headquarters, second floor, House and Hale building before Saturday night.

Chairman Benjamin Cheney is optimistically hopeful for the success of the drive this year although the amount of membership is more than trebled since last year.

Truck Wrecks Parked Auto

Driver Injured in Crash, Says He Fell Asleep At the Wheel.

A large dump truck, operated by a driver who said he "fell asleep" rammed into the rear of the car of Attorney Charles S. House at 1:45 p.m. today badly wrecking the House car and starting in the whole front of the truck which is owned by Louis C. Ehrlich, of Plainville.

The truck driver, Milton Demeritt, 19, of Plainville, was taken to Memorial hospital suffering from internal injuries as yet undetermined.

No One In Car

No one was in the House automobile at the time of the impact.

Attorney House said he had left his car parked in front of his house on East Center street. The force of the crash sent it down the street to a point opposite the entrance to the John Cheney place. The car had been left locked and the wheels held a course in against the curb so that another automobile, passing at the time, was not struck by the uncontrolled auto.

The truck driver is being held for reckless driving.

Bi-Partisan Plea Made on Neutrality

for something he had or has not got.

The Virginian asserted that defeat of the legislation would make the nation's fighters "heavy-hearted," and added that it would be the occasion for "cries" editions of Berlin papers.

Representative Martin (R.-Mass) appealed for approval of the legislation to "unshackle" America and permit it to act as it pleased and to make certain that it "do not give aid and comfort to the enemy."

Crowded galleries heard the debate and several times some of the visitors applauded speakers, chiefly those opposing the legislation.

Two more Republicans who voted for the arming of American merchant ships took the floor and announced they would vote against the changes made in the measure by the Senate to allow the ships to enter belligerent ports. They were the veteran Representative Treadway (R-Mass.) and Representative Canfield (R-N.J.).

Asserting, passage of the broadened measure would give America "green light" to all-out war, Canfield said that when he served in the World war, a favorite expression of the soldiers was "Don't kid the troops.

"I say to you," he added, speaking directly to the Democratic membership, "Don't kid America."

Meanwhile, administration leaders worked feverishly behind the scenes in order to recruit as many votes as possible for the legislation for many of them conceded the result was still "dangerously close."

While saying that "we have enough votes," Rayburn declined to estimate specifically what the margin would be.

In response to questions, however, he asserted he had "no knowledge" of any commitment by President Roosevelt or any other administration leader to engage the House group seeking stronger action by the president to curb dictator strikes.

Although Rayburn talked with the President late yesterday after a group of southern Democrats bolted the administration's foreign policy because of the labor situation, Rayburn said it would not be correct to assume that he had complete information as to what the President might have decided to do in the situation.

Reports Bills to Be Offered

Presidential Secretary William D. Hassett, asked about reports that Mr. Roosevelt had promised congressional leaders that he would propose some measure to bring work stoppages in defense industries, told reporters:

"Nothing can be said about that in anticipation of the meeting tomorrow."

To a question whether this meant the meeting and possible strike halting legislation were connected, Hassett replied:

"I would not say they were connected, but the meeting tomorrow is of such importance it is to be hoped that some constructive results will come out of it."

Should a coal strike develop, despite presidential intervention, some officials and informed legislators indicated a belief some form of compulsory arbitration or a "cooling off" period before strikes could become effective would be recommended by the President.

Mr. Roosevelt told a recent press conference that he was studying the question of strike-curbing legislation.

The House appeared closely divided as it drove toward a vote on the Senate-approved broad revision of the neutrality act.

"A photo-finish," concluded Representative McCormack (Mass.), the House majority leader, after an industrious, week-long canvass of members.

Republican opponents, reinforced by disaffected Democrats, were openly optimistic. "We have this bill licked," they claimed.

Speaker Rayburn (D. Tex.), who wears a worried look as administration votes swung over to the opposition yesterday, still insisted, however, that when the final roll call came, the House would approve the Senate revision amendments allowing American merchantmen to go to belligerent ports. They also demanded that strikes in defense industries be curbed first.

Signs of the growing opposition strength appeared in the opening two hours of debate yesterday. Of the 39 speakers who took the floor, nearly a dozen opposing the amendments had voted on Oct. 17 for the original House revision measure which limited to the land arming of merchant ships.

Since then the Senate enlarged the bill to give such vessels unrestricted freedom of the seas. Approval of the Senate amendments by the House would send the legislation to the White House.

Should the House reject the revision as amended by the Senate, it would go to a conference committee in which efforts would be made to reach some agreement on the legislation agreeable to both chambers.

First indication of the revolt of southern Democrats came when Representative Smith (D. Va.), a consistent supporter of administration foreign policies, announced he would not approve the Senate amendments which would engage in the present generation.

Pleading against the proposal in the debate on the reply to King George VI's message opening a new session of Parliament yesterday, Prime Minister Churchill spoke for the entire British empire.

Unionism Finding Feet

"Trade unionism in the United States is going through the stages trade unionism in this country did a generation ago," Hopkins said. "It is finding its feet. It has increased at a tremendous pace and hasn't quite grasped that British trade unionism has got. The result may be leading up to a greater and better day for the inexperience of trade union leaders."

When Laborite James Griffiths interjected, "and for employers," at this point, Hopkins added:

"I agree that employers in America on the whole have the more primitive ideas. There are exceptions."

Following precedents of the last two sessions and of the last war, Prime Minister Churchill had announced that the members' right to criticize the government would not be impaired.

Laborite Emanuel Shinwell, a persistent critic of the government, demanded to know whether defense of mines and possessions in the east was the Churchill cabinet's notion of a second war front and if so whether the plan met with approval of the Russian government.

Griffiths Cheered

Griffiths was cheered when he said that Adolf Hitler's "gang" had been distributed in a belief "which Churchill said yesterday he had learned from Rudolf Hess — that the people of this country are prepared to make a deal because we are on the verge of starvation."

He was cheered again when, referring to Joseph Stalin's recent statement that Hess had offered a German alliance with Britain against Russia, he added:

"Our thanks is due to the British government that they spoke the mind of the people of this country when Russia was attacked. We are not so morally and spiritually starved that we were prepared to doubtscross anyone."

Conservative William Nunn asked amplification of Churchill's Monday declaration of support for the United States against Japan and added:

If the government could make the definite declaration that further aggression by Japan would mean instant attack I think there would be no aggression at all."

Prentice Tells Of Experience

Patrolman Speaks Before Parent - Teacher Group at the Green.

The monthly meeting of the Manchester Green Parent-Teacher association, advanced one week on account of the early Thanksgiving, was well attended last night. About 50 of the men assigned to work at the Green community gathered in the school assembly hall to hear Officer Joseph Prentice tell of his experiences in Washington, D. C., last spring where he took the F. B. I. training. He was one of 591 patrolmen selected from various police departments throughout the country for this intensive training which occupied 18 hours of each of the 24 on some days.

Questions Asked

At the close of his talk, Officer Prentice was plied with questions from the audience in regard to crime detection, fingerprinting and other branches of the work. At the close he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks.

A rising vote of thanks was also given the Manchester Herald and staff for cooperation in publicizing the affairs of the association in the paper.

Several new residents in the Green section were welcomed into membership at the meeting.

A social time followed with sandwiches and coffee served by Mrs. Frank Fairweather, chairman, and members of the hospitality committee.

the last ounce of production out of the occupied territories."

Charging that Lord Moyne had "amused" government critics and referring to his parliamentary assertion that an invasion of western Europe would be "suicide," Shinwell declared:

"If this is the decision of the government, it is hardly consoling to Russia and most pernicious that Hitler should be apprised informed."

Not Accusing Churchill

Shinwell made it clear he was not accusing Prime Minister Churchill and his associates in the government of "harboring subversive ideas" but he said he was not so sure of all the others."

Replying for the government, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander disclosed that Shinwell had refused to take back a phrase "Churchill first formed his government in this way."

Alexander said that Shinwell apparently had decided "that in this war his role should be that of a self-appointed critic who receives the applause of the less informed among the multitude rather than, if you wish to, self-imposed discipline and silence."

In a long list of criticisms, Shinwell also charged that some "high British factories are not fully employed, that everything is conscripted with the sole exception of pooled industries," that apart from bomb suffering the civil population has made little or no sacrifice and that the Churchill government was "carrying too much baggage."

General Strike Seen

Prediction that the United States labor situation "may be leading up to a general strike similar to that which paralyzed trade union leaders" was put forward today in the opening of the parliamentary debate on British war policy.

This prediction was pointed out by Austin Hopkinson, independent in support of his statement that despite the United States' contribution, Britain's enemy "has a greater production and uses that capacity very much better than we do."

Hopkinson said "it is all very well to point to the United States, but people don't realize in this country what the industry of the United States is doing through in the present generation.

Pleading against the proposal in the debate on the reply to King George VI's message opening a new session of Parliament yesterday, Prime Minister Churchill spoke for the entire British empire.

Record Broken At Memorial

120 Patients Are Registered There Today, a Brand New Mark.

A short time ago the Memorial hospital was receiving an average of [illegible] cases of 80 patients or better with the extras reaching at times over 100 patients. Germans Intensify Scouting Operations

Kuibyshev, Russia, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Germans were reported today to have intensified their scouting operations on the Moscow front, apparently preparing for a new offensive along the approaches to the capital.

German troops have rolled the Red Army lines with local attacks along the entire central front, concentrating especially on the flanks, the reports reaching here from Russ sides for a possibly impending battle.

Push For Rzhev

The heaviest action continued in the Tula region where military dispatches said the Russians pushed their for the second time in two miles with counter-attacks on the enemy approaches to Tula, manufacturing city, 100 miles south of Moscow.

The Germans were said to have stopped frontal attacks at Tula, working mainly on the flanks of the Russian ranks.

The Russian flank of the Moscow front the Germans were said to be attempting a push northeast of Kalinin, which is 80 miles northwest of Moscow, but their fight to the Moscow area was stubborn resistance and counter-attacks.

In the northeastern quarter of Kalinin, which the Germans reported said, the Russians pushed the Germans back toward the Volga despite a bitterness of snow, mud, rain, machine-gun and rifle fire.

He said the figures given, which covered the period to Nov. 9, "make no allowance for the sick, whose numbers certainly are very high and likely to be much higher during the winter."

Main Center of Activity

The Kalinin sector, 95 miles north of Moscow, appeared to be the main center of military activity on the central Russian front today, with indications that German pressure on Tula, 100 miles south of the capital, was decreasing under repeated Soviet counter-attacks.

The Moscow radio said last night that fighting at Kalinin, northern bulwark of Moscow's defense belt, had been raging unabated for four days and is still continuing. The Germans were said to be bringing up fresh troops with the evident intention of continuing the assault.

Military circles expressed belief the Nazis were girding for a fresh push on Moscow from several points, despite reportedly heavy losses suffered in recent weeks, but said their plans probably would be dependent upon the weather.

Alsab Wins Close Race

Just Noses Out Bless Me In Photo Finish at Pimlico Yesterday.

By Mason Brunson

Baltimore, Nov. 13 (AP)—Through with racing at 1941 and with the two-year old championship wrapped up, Alsab is ready today for a rest. He's earned it, rivals reverses and apparently needs.

Alsab was a dog tired colt after he won all out in winning the Walden Handicap by a neck at Pimlico yesterday and probably would welcome a little lesson in the Kentucky Derby. The grass after the strenuous offering of Alsab's last was triumphant in 1:5 of 22 starts.

Dressed fetlock to knee in the Saint Sabath's colt to be aged from Pimlico to Kentucky, he, where he will be "unwound" by Trainer Sam Hildreth, leaves him to Florida to prepare for the rigid stakes of the three-year old division.

Alsab, first entry for the 1942 Kentucky Derby, is eligible for the Preakness Stakes and his owner has indicated he will be made a supplementary entry in the Belmont Stakes. These races compose the "triple crown" of racing for next year.

His victory in the Walden enabled Alsab to wind up his two-year-old campaign by 101 straight triumphs, but it was one of the hardest races the colt has had to run and he came within a few strides of suffering defeat.

Unexpectedly tough opposition developed from Odd F. K. Bradley's Bless Me and the Mill River Stables' Fair Call. Alsab had to overhaul Fair Call twice and so much was taken out of him that he just managed to stave off Bless Me's charge.

Although many asserted Alsab would have been defeated by Bless Me had the race been a few yards longer, the champion got credit for equally the stake record of 1:44 3-5 for the mile and a 1-16 second over the track record for a mile and one-sixteenth.

The purse of $7,720 increased Alsab's earnings to $110,600.

Featuring the mid-Day Pimlico meeting today is the $16,000 added Governor Bowie Handicap, with Don Tufano's Market Wise, Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put and H. C. Hatch's Fighter Pilot entered. This is the mile and five-eighths run.

Others named overnight were C. D. Axton's Bala Ormont, G. H. Bostwick's Nellie Boy, Joseph Bradley's Best Seller, Mrs. E. K. Bryson's Trois Plateles and A. J. Hackett's Tola Rose.

Has Large Cement Works

Novorossiysk, a city of about 100,000, has large cement works and a large harbor, and is connected by a rail line with Tuapse, on the plan sea, and with Rostov-on-Don, by a rail line. The city is a possible hideaway for Russian warships should they be forced to leave the base at Sevastopol.

The Germans said long range guns have been placed on the heights overlooking the Kerch straits, cutting off Soviet reinforcements and approaches to Rostov-on-Don and Black sea ports in the Caucasus.

The German-Rumanian advance on the Black sea coast, south of Kerch, announced yesterday by the Nazis, was said to have brought a highway to Sochi, 100 miles within range of Axis artillery.

No Repeat Of Duels

The Nazis acknowledged that Soviet artillery was concentrated at Yenikale, about six miles east of Kerch. There have been no reports of an artillery duel in this area thus far, however.

On the northwestern front, it was said the German Air Force broke up its bombing of Soviet warehouses at Leningrad while the German and Finnish ground forces were reported to have repelled repeated Soviet attempts to break the encirclement at Leningrad.

Around Moscow, as well as along the entire front, there were signs that the soldiers were settling down for a winter war. The Moscow front was reported almost static.

Female birds usually wear subdued colors, males bright. Bright colored plumage would attract enemies to the nest where the females incubate the eggs.

High School Harriers Trim New Britain High

Local Second Team Just Misses Third Clean Sweep by Scant Two Points; Fine Record Compiled by Wigren's Squad This Season.

Manchester High harriers romped to an easy win over the New Britain High at New Britain yesterday afternoon. The second team of the Manchester prep harriers turned on the heat by missing a clean sweep for the third time by two scant points. Brown of the home club outfooted Mansfield to set a new course record of 12 min. 18 seconds.

From the record this season it looks as though Coach Pete Wigren will have a nifty track and field squad for the 1942 meets. He has groomed the boys for this season's meets and turned them loose winning the CVIL little handicap and then losing out only in the big meets. However, the bright ray of hope which flitters through indicates that the Manchester High track squad for 1942 will be a busy, busy day.

First team

Manchester, 24

New Britain, 31

Second team

Manchester, 17

New Britain, 38

The runners finished in the following order:

Varsity — Brown (NB), Mann field, Reider, Southergill, Nelson (NB), Regan (NB), Campbell, Fay McCann, Erickson (NB), Van Wyck, McCahill (NB), Muldoon, Pretash (NB).

Second team — Anger, Johnson, Bo Goushian (NB), Stevenson, Heritage, Kilbourne (NB), Heatley, Major, Barclay, Stidham, Bentley (NB), Freidenberg (NB), Lachowicz (NB).

Special Race At Rockingham

Outstanding Sprinters in Feature Event to Run For $5,000 Purse.

Salem, N. H., Nov. 13.—With a tumultuous Armistice Day promotion under its belt, Rockingham Park now heads towards the finish line of its fall meeting and the close of the New England racing season, a week from Saturday.

There are to be special features on Saturday, a gala day the following Thursday when the first Thanksgiving Handicap in the history of New England racing will be run, and a fine, jammed to the ceiling day that should bring the season to a roaring climax.

The lovers of the thoroughbred, around the track, now are talking about a match race between Mrs. Ethel F. W. Colins's champion sprinter, Red Mc-Clain's Wise Muse, one of the outstanding sprinters in the land.

It all started, curiously enough, when a very-girl sprinter, Ethel Mc-Cann's Wise Muse, one of the outstanding sprinters in the land.

It all started, curiously enough, when a very-girl sprinter, Ethel McCann's Wise Muse, one of the outstanding sprinters in the land.

Goes to victory in a special quarter-mile race, the champion sprint actually blew the distance in 26 seconds and three-fifths — and blew aboard. That brought up a discussion of relative speed, Sweet Willow, the outstanding sprinter of this or any other continent, found her name dragged into the debate. Ed McCann followed as how Wise Moss, at the peak of form, could match scrides with any Sweet Willow in the country.

Now Mr. Colins, owner of Sweet Willow, and Mr. McCann, owner of Wise Moss, have gotten to the stage where they are saying, "I betcha," and "Get it, boys" and making business-like remarks of the same nature.

Well, there's a nice, kindly racing strip out there, where horsemen and horses daily settle their differences of opinion. There's a racing secretary named John P. Turner who is a master with the ponies. He knows how to handle the boys.

That they are preparing to get into this newest sport, basketball, is a matter of record. In fact they have organized a "cheering squad" of 40 young people, who have been practicing skating as well as basketball. Yep, this sport is for the birds, and many of the fans a lot of thrills before the season ends. Its new, anyhow.

For once this writer has hit a popular forecast. Last week I picked Manchester fans who attended the game between Indian-Hartford Blue game last Sunday have called to say that they were so complete record with Sport Chatter the other night. They claim, to a man, that they have been right at the game but managed to stave off Bless me's charge.

Although many asserted Alsab would have been defeated by Bless Me had the race been a few yards longer, the champion got credit for equally the stake record of 1:44 3-5 for the mile and a 1-16 second over the track record for a mile and one-sixteenth.

The purse of $7,720 increased Alsab's earnings to $110,600.

Featuring the mid-Day Pimlico meeting today is the $16,000 added Governor Bowie Handicap, with Don Tufano's Market Wise, Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put and H. C. Hatch's Fighter Pilot entered. This is the mile and five-eighths run.

Others named overnight were C. D. Axton's Bala Ormont, G. H. Bostwick's Nellie Boy, Joseph Bradley's Best Seller, Mrs. E. K. Bryson's Trois Plateles and A. J. Hackett's Tola Rose.

Heavyweight Champion Gives Share to Navy

Bout Arranged by Navy Officials Last Night to Be Held January 9; Baer Gets His Cut.

By Judson Bailey

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Heavyweight champion Joe Louis has been paid princely sums for fighting, but his wage scale is sliding to the vanishing point.

Within a few weeks he will be inducted into the Army to fight, if necessary, for $21 a month and now he has agreed to fight for the Navy for nothing.

A 15-round title bout between the champion and Buddy Baer, the big Californian he beat in six rounds last spring, was announced last night for Jan. 9 in Madison Square Garden.

The proceeds will go to the New York Auxiliary of the Navy Relief Society and Louis will receive nothing more than his expenses for staging his heavyweight crown the most valuable battle in sports.

Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the Third Naval District and commander of the North Atlantic Naval Coastal Frontier announced the match, which was arranged for him by Promoter Mike Jacobs.

Aside from the fact that Louis will be dodging his services, the Navy will see plenty of the champion's 20th defense of his title were not disclosed.

But Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, said in Sacramento, Calif., that Buddy would receive the customary challenger's percentage after taxes and a 10 per cent cut for the Navy had been taken off the top. In the past Louis' challengers have received from 12 to 20 per cent.

The previous Brawl between Louis and Baer, 217-pound brother of Madcap Maxie, the former champ, was staged at Washington last May by Referee Arthur Donovan. Baer his brother wouldn't leave the ring for the start of the seventh round.

Since then Louis has beaten Abe Simon, Tony Galento and Lou Nova, but has not dimmed the confidence of Baer.

Takes Teacher's Place

Rantoul, Ill. — (AP) — Lieut. George O. Kenney, of Rantoul, Ill., flew to Gifford country school a teacher's place came about through a visit he paid to the school teacher who was needed as a witness before a court martial at Chanute Field. She was willing to testify, but she couldn't leave her class. Nichols' suggestion that he teach was accepted and he took her place in the one-room rural school.

Party Apron from Mexico

By Mrs. Anne Cabot

Just the gayest apron you ever saw! A friend brought it to me from Mexico. It's made of less than a yard of tan linen and has a stunning 2½ inch banding of crochet wheels done in Christmas tree red and green and white.

11 "wheels" with red centers, white spokes and green rims make the inset for the skirt of the apron. One crochet wheel is set in the bib of the apron. It's all so bright, so colorful and gay that it will put your guests in a gay and happy frame of mind the minute they see it. Use it when you serve at your bridge parties—take it to wear at your church suppers (the men will think it the prettiest apron they've ever seen) and be sure you wear it around the house during the Christmas holidays! It's a beauty—take my word for it! It's easy and quickly made, too. Use unbleached muslin, tan linen, tan poplin or tan cotton for the apron—red, green and white crochet thread for the Mexican lace insert.

To obtain pattern for Apron and crocheting instructions for the Red, White and Green Lace (Pattern No. 5248) send 10 cents in coin, your name, and address and the pattern number to Anne Cabot, The Manchester Evening Herald, 106 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

Dies in Air Crash

General Charles Huntziger (above), Vichy's minister of war and commander-in-chief of the French army, was burned to death with seven other persons in the crash of a plane 15 miles from the town of LeVigan in southern France. General Huntziger was returning from a three-weeks' tour of North Africa.

Invite Soldiers For Thanksgiving

Hartford, Nov. 13 —(AP)—Aubrey Maddock, who has arranged for thousands of Hartford persons to write to men in military service, today proposed that Hartford persons invite men from the Windsor Locks air base to Thanksgiving dinner.

"Most of these boys are a long way from home," she pointed out. "A good many of them are from the south, where people are entertaining our boys in military service. I think it would be a splendid thing if we could see that all these boys at Windsor Locks enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner in some one's home Thursday."

Mrs. Maddock suggested that Hartford families invite the Windsor Locks men in cars.

"You know how it is," she explained. "If you're invited somewhere alone, perhaps you feel a little strange. It's more pleasant if there's someone with you."

It will be necessary to furnish transportation for the guests, Mrs. Maddock suggested that persons who wished to entertain the men might drive to the air base Thursday morning and inspect the reservation before taking the men home.

Arrangements may be made by telephoning Mrs. Maddock at 2-8786; the Hartford Defense Council, at 2-0149; Mr. Maddock's office, 2-0255; or Lieut. Colin Kerr at the Air Base, Windsor Locks, 1480.

Propose Changes In Party Rules

Hartford, Nov. 13—Proposed revision of the rules of the State Republican Party will be further studied this afternoon by a committee named by State Chairman J. Kenneth Bradley for that purpose. The committee will meet at Republican headquarters at 3 o'clock. At its initial meeting two weeks ago the committee started work on redrafting the Party rules. When completed the draft will be submitted to the Republican State Central Committee and thereafter to the next Republican State Convention.

Members of the committee are: W. Ellery Allyn, State Committee Secretary; Hugh Meade Alcorn, Jr., of Suffield; William L. Hadden of New Haven; Fred R. Zeller of Stonington; Charles E. Wheeler of Stratford; George L. Benedict, Jr., of Winsted; Mrs. Claudine Maitland of Middletown; Mrs. Julia Keeney of Somers.

Jobless Claims Are Increased

Hartford, Nov. 13—During the week ending Nov. 1 2008 people were placed in jobs by the State Employment Service, State Labor Commissioner Cornelius J. Danaher announced today. Unemployment compensation claims showed an increase from 8426 to 9163 during this same period.

Increases in unemployment claims were noticed at Danbury, Meriden, New Britain, New Haven, New London and Norwalk, with the largest increases in Danbury and Norwalk, due to the seasonal slowing down of the hatting industry. The increase in New Haven is likely due to seasonal layoffs in the garment trades, it was said.

Hartford led the State in new jobs with a total of 426 placements during the week. It was followed by New Haven with 321, Bridgeport 274, Waterbury 241 and New Britain 110.

Right and Wrong in Labor

November 13, 1941

Editor, The Herald:

We have recently stated the outstanding facts in regard to the origin of "Union Maintenance" and other issues arising out of recent governmental policies in regard to labor. Let us now draw some conclusions from these facts.

First, repeated occurrences of recent weeks show this a united agreement not to strike by either the C. I. O. or the A. F. L., has no binding effect upon its members or leaders. It is questionable whether union members ever had a fair opportunity to vote in the Kearsy strike. In this case as in many others, only a showing of hands at a mass meeting was called for.

Second, there is shown to be a basic contradiction in the National Labor Relations Act. It insists that no employer may coerce an employee as regards union membership. Yet a majority of the employees may coerce a minority. The Act must be amended so that the same standards of right and wrong apply to the employer and to all of the employees.

Third, the use of coercion and intimidation establishes a control and direction over labor which is contrary to all of our ideals of maintaining freedom to bargain for one's labor at any time or under any conditions. The right to work—a most fundamental right—the Government now seeks to deny by compelling the employer to make the payment of union dues a condition of employment.

Fourth, the National Labor Relations Act results in union agreements which are binding upon the employer but not upon the employee. In addition, it has become the policy of the administration, established by executive fiat and the acts of the National Defense Mediation Board, to insure the continuance of closed shops by guaranteeing the amount of the salaries of leaders through the seizure of plants if necessary. This has been accomplished in some cases without a vote of the employees concerned, and without the consent of Congress as to seizure, which had recently been denied.

Fifth, it has hitherto been an established policy of the Government not to recognize any union in dealing with over one million of its employees. To do so would destroy its influence as the government of all of the people. What the Government realizes it must not do, it seeks to force the employer to do, to wit: to coerce employees to maintain and support a particular union and its leaders.

Sixth, the recent Currier case has proposed a governmental policy that a low bid may be rejected contrary to law and an award made to a higher bidder in order to establish a labor monopoly in the single field of building construction. The government would thus permit the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. to carry out a conspiracy to divide the several fields of labor with the object of compelling it, i.e. the taxpayers, to increase the cost of construction by some 25 per cent. What the Government has expressly and repeatedly forbidden private individuals or corporations to do, if now not only permits but encourages labor unions to undertake, thus placing them above the law and against the public interest. Further, in order to enforce this policy, the Government has taken possession of plants, notwithstanding the fact that Congress has as late as August 6, 1941 refused to accede to the requests of the administration that it be given the authority to seize or operate plants held up by strikes or any interruption of production which could not be removed by agreement.

The public policy as now enunciated sets up the ideal that a non-governmental agency in the form of a labor union will be maintained in order that it may so regulate the conditions of employment that only those who are union members may be allowed to work. When this boldly stated, it is evident that this policy is contrary not only to the Constitution of the United States, which guarantees the right to life, liberty and property, but to our every ideal of the freedom of the individual to pursue his life in the manner that best develops his productive powers, so long as he does not injure his fellows.

A monopoly of labor may for a time yield an advantage to a limited number. Having achieved this, it soon becomes tyrannically oppressive to the interests of those whom it excludes and to the interests of the consuming public which is forced to pay tribute to it.

In effect the Government through the National Defense Mediation Board has now sought to lay a tax upon the right to work. This, moreover, is "taxation without representation." It has compelled the employer to be the collector of this tax and pay it not to the government which alone could properly receive it, but to certain unions which have established a monopolistic control over labor. Finally, the employees must pay the tax are powerless to secure an accounting of its expenditure.

It has now been brought about through the agencies of the National Labor Relations Act, the decisions of the Supreme Court in setting aside previous interpretations of the Anti Monopoly Acts, and the decisions of the National Defense Mediation Board that:

1. Contracts and agreements not to strike cannot be enforced against unions and hence are authorized in protecting employees, employers or the public.

2. Closed shops are established contrary to the interests of employees and the public, and in denial of our fundamental rights.

3. Monopolies are legalized, including conspiracies and combinations in restraint of trade. The Government and the public for the time being appear to be powerless to prevent them.

4. Intimidation, and coercion, criminal in their nature, are indulged in by labor leaders, by means of which labor racketeers prey upon working men and the public, while both federal and local police appear to be indifferent.

5. Our defense is paralyzed. The safety of the people is put at naught. The authority of the President is defied by labor leaders.

The remedy is simple in principle. Remove from our labor legislation in every particular the principle that what is wrong for one is right for another. Laws which create discriminations in favor of certain individuals create more injustice and more lawlessness than they prevent. We cannot attain to industrial unity, justice or safety until Congress wipes them out.

Use Cinderella Trick

Peru, Ind.—(AP)—Peru police used the Cinderella slipper trick in some Sherlock Holmes detective work. A man in a stolen car had abandoned it and fled into a field but lost a shoe. They found the salesman who had sold the shoe and the man who had stolen the car, it, and got the name of a suspect they tried the shoe on him, it fit and they arrested Claude W. Byrd on an automobile theft charge.

Only One Sticker

Camp Upton, N. Y.—(AP)—The sergeants who call the roll can handle all the names with the greatest of ease—from Abberuzzese to Zyrzamski — until the reach Private Gim C. Ng (Sic). a Chinese-American from New York city. So, they call him Chalie.

—Sense and Nonsense—

Don't Wait

When I quit this mortal shore,
And money round the earth no more,
Don't weep, don't sigh, don't sob—
I may have struck a better job.
Don't go and buy a large bouquet
For which you'll find it hard to pay.
Don't mope around and feel all blue—
I may be better off than you.
Don't tell the folks I was a saint
Or any old thing that I ain't.
If you have jam like that to spread
Please hand it out before I'm dead.
If you have roses bless your soul,
Just pin one on my button-hole
While I'm alive and well—today.
Don't wait until I've gone away.
—Anonymous.

The village fire brigade stood by watching the third story of a building blazing merrily. When questioned by an onlooker about their inactivity, the captain replied, blandly:

"Our hoses ain't any too powerful, mister. We'll save a better chance when the fire gets to the second floor!"

Sam—Sally, I've never seen such dreamy eyes.

Sally—You've never stayed so late before.

Paste This in Your Hat

If you your lips would keep from slips, five things observe with care;
To whom you speak, of whom you speak, and how, and when and where.

Stranger—By love, what a long and lanky girl that is over there (At dinner).

Host (whispering)—Hush! She used to be long and lanky—but nowadays she's tall and statuesque. She's just inherited $100,000.

Mrs. Sharp (sharply) — And what would you have been now, if it weren't for my money?

Mr. Sharp (mildly)—A bachelor.

Male Straphanger—Madam, you are standing on my foot.

Female Ditto—I beg your pardon. I thought it belonged to the man sitting down.

Gladys—What a nice man that was! He was so complimentary about my complexion.

Edith—He ought to be—he sold it to you.

The wife wrote as follows: Dear Boss:—My husband cannot possibly come to the works today, as he is very sick in bed, with two trained nurses.

"Market" Cemeteries

In medieval times, European markets often were located in cemeteries. Cemeteries, as well as churches, were places of sanctuary for those seeking refuge in time of war, fire, or famine. Here they were protected from all harm by church law. So many persons lived in cemeteries, as a result, that regular market places were established in them.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Five Nations Exploit Liberian Resources

LIBERIA, a colony founded in 1821 for the settlement of former American Negro slaves, is now independent but its trade and government remain under close scrutiny by British, French, German, American and Dutch governments.

The stamp above, issued in 1940 in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the commonwealth, bears the likenesses of Thomas Buchanan and a picture of his residence at Bassa Cove. Liberia proclaimed independence in 1847.

Buchanan, cousin of James Buchanan, 15th president of the United States, went to Liberia as governor in 1836 to help organize the young state. Buchanan was the last white governor.

The French interest dates to 1910 when an agreement was signed which transferred to France some 2000 square miles of inland territory which Liberia claimed but could not control.

The American State Department obtained 1,000,000 acres for rubber plantation development in exchange for development of a harbor, railroads and highways.

Bulk of the trade with Liberia is in the hands of the British and Germans with the Dutch close followers. The Spaniards are in control of rich plantations at Fernando Po.

Y Drive Falls Short of Goal

Only $2,218 of Needed $6,000 Was Raised in The Campaign.

At a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. directors held last evening at the Y it was reported that the drive held two weeks ago, had raised but $2,218 of the needed $6,000 asked for in the quota. However, it was reported today by Miss Marion Tinker that contributions were still coming in and if the present rate continued it was possible to realize at least 50 per cent of the amount set forth.

Extra Activities

The increased cost to the Y this year is due, in a large measure, to the extra activities and burdens thrust on it by defense workers. The Y, according to Miss Tinker, is making every effort to maintain a schedule that will take care of the "odd shift" workers as well as the regularly scheduled programs. Capable assistants for both men and women had laid out a course of events calculated to meet every need.

Every morning the bowling alleys, gymnasium and other facilities at the Y are used to the utmost and immediately after lunch the afternoon program starts and until closing time, 10 o'clock, the activities are in full swing.

Automobile Blaze Quickly Put Out

The advantage of having a man on call at all times at two of the three houses in the South Manchester fire district was demonstrated this afternoon.

An automobile owned by an out of town man was noticed burning as it came into the Center just before 1 o'clock. A call was sent in for the fire department. James Schaub was at No. 32, located on Spruce street, and knowing that No. 2, the company near the fire, was without a driver as the regular driver had just gone home for dinner he had "Chief Fox but no time in driving to the scene. The fire was out in a short time after the firemen arrived.

The sprinkler system at Apel's Opera House at the corner of North Main street and Apel place let go about 5:30 this morning. Chief Roy Griswold of the Manchester Fire department answered a still alarm and took care of the situation alone. Slight damage was caused by water and no trace of a fire was found after a lengthy inspection. A defective sprinkler head was responsible for the alarm.

Legion Guards Club Formed

Members of Company G Organize Social Group —Jenney Is President.

Following the regular weekly drill session of Company G, local State Guard unit at the local armory last night, a meeting of the social club was held at the Legion Home. It was decided at the meeting to call the organization, the "Legion Guards" in honor of the Legion post which sponsored the unit.

Capt. John L. Jenney was appointed president of the club, Pvt. Howard Keeney, vice-president, Pvt. Elton Johnson, recording secretary, Pvt. Harry Shenning, financial secretary, and Pvt. William Pitkin, treasurer.

In appreciation of the work which they accomplished in forming the Guard unit, Elmer Weden and Marcel Donze were enrolled as honorary members. Felix McEvitt, former second lieutenant of the outfit, was also appointed an honorary member by a unanimous vote.

The club is planning several social functions during the winter in an effort to make the four of State Guard duty for the "G" company soldiers both interesting and enjoyable.

Last Night's Drill

Mr. Marchisotti of the YMCA was present at the unit's drill session last evening, at which time he gave the members instruction in first aid and bandaging. This is one of the many features which Captain Jenney is arranging in an effort to provide his company with a varied program of educational subjects. Close order drill and rifle practice completed the evening's program.

No Drill Next Week

There will be no drill of the unit next Wednesday due to it being Thanksgiving eve, it was announced today. The next drill session is scheduled for Wednesday evening, November 26.

Roosevelt Asks CIO, Steel Firms' Heads Continue to Dicker

President Says Government Will Not Order Nor Congress Pass Legislation Ordering So-Called Closed Shop In Captive Mines; Requests Report on Agreement by Monday.

Washington, Nov. 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, asking the CIO United Mine Workers and steel company heads to continue negotiations to avert a strike in the captive coal mines, told them today that "the government will never compel" the minority non-union miners affected by the dispute to join the union. "I tell you frankly," he said, "that the government of the United States will not order, nor will Congress pass legislation ordering, a so-called closed shop."

Would Require Joining

The union is asking a union shop in the mines, which supply coal to steel mills busy on defense orders. Such an arrangement would require that all employes become members of the union after a probationary period.

The closed shop, in labor parlance, provides that the employer may not hire any man who is not a union member.

The President asked the mine union leaders and the steel representatives to give him a report on an agreement to continue production by Monday, or at least a progress report.

Use of Armed Forces Rapped

Army and Navy Action To Settle Disputes Typical of Enemies.

Boston, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Thomas R. Jones, New Jersey manufacturer, declared today that "the use of the Army and Navy to settle industrial disputes is typical of the methods of the very governments we are arming to destroy and beneath the dignity of nations calling themselves democracies."

In an address prepared for the industrial session of the 17th New England Conference, sponsored by the New England Council and the region's six governors, Jones, president of American Type Founders, Inc., of Elizabeth, called upon the administration to adopt a "sound, enforceable labor policy."

Policy Favored

Such a policy, he said, should include:

1—A statement that no person may be compelled to join union membership, or forced to contribute to or join a union not of his own choosing, as a condition of employment.

2—A statement to the effect that there shall be no strikers or lockouts in industries contributing directly or indirectly to defense until there shall have been reasonable negotiations and use of all mediation facilities offered by the national government.

3—A statement that a strike shall be called only after approval by a majority of the workers in governmentally-supervised election.

4—A statement to the effect that no employer shall be called the 'slowdown' or sabotage shall be allowed to interfere with defense production.

5—A statement of conditions forming the basis for future intervention and seizure.

Intelligent Management Needed

"What our nation needs," he added, "is both big and little industry is a more intelligent, better informed, and more courageous management. We need management alive to its broad responsibilities, management with a third

Japan Makes War Machine Bit Stronger

Action Taken on Eve of Special Session of Parliament Opening in One of Gravest Crises.

Tokyo, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Japan strengthened her war machine today on the eve of a special session of Parliament opening tomorrow in one of the gravest crisis of her modern history.

The cabinet approved for submission to the Diet an extraordinary war fund of 3,500,000,000 yen (nominally $44,000,000) and the War Office announced a drastic revision of conscription regulations making scores of thousands of men hitherto exempted liable to early summons for military service.

Situation Aggravated

These steps were taken as Domei quoted well-informed Japanese circles as saying that revision of the U. S. neutrality law "certainly aggravates the situation, not only in the Atlantic but in the Pacific."

Nevertheless many Japanese looked to Washington for signs of hope for the mission of Saburo Kurusu, special Japanese envoy, en route to the American capital for talks on the Pacific crisis. Major decisions in the Diet were set for later dates, apparently to give more time for Kurusu to report.

To Be Re-Examined

The conscription regulation revision provided that all men of the last ten military classes who were exempted because of inferior physical condition shall be called for re-examination and possible induction into the forces. This applies to all classes back to and including that of 1927—men between the ages of 20 and 30.

The new regulations also change the status of certain officers and non-commissioned officers of the reserves, making them more readily available for duty. This applies

Russians Drive Nazis Tank Unit from Tula

Battle Lasting Two Weeks Described as One of Most Dramatic; German Losses Heavy.

Moscow, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A Tass broadcast declared today that tank-led German assault troops had been driven from the southern outskirts of Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, after a two-week battle described as one of the most dramatic of the war.

"The Germans were here yesterday," Tass said of Tula. "Today only their corpses are here." The news agency reported that the Germans hurled 15 consecutive tank attacks at heavily-mined, strongly-defended approaches to the little village of Rodenkemy on the southern outskirts of Tula, and gained a temporary foothold in part of the village before being smashed back with heavy losses of men and equipment.

Driven Back on Both Wings

The Moscow radio said the Germans had been driven back on both wings of their drive toward the Soviet capital.

It gave Tass, official Soviet news agency, and Red Star, the Army's own newspaper, as authority for assertions that the Germans had lost heavily in men and had been driven from important footholds on both approaches to the capital.

In the Maloyaroslavets sector, 65 miles to the southwest, it quot-

Marines Will Leave China

United States Decides to Withdraw Units Now Stationed in 3 Cities.

Washington, Nov. 14 — (AP) President Roosevelt announced today the United States government had decided to withdraw American Marines from Shanghai, Tientsin and Peiping.

That will take all the American Marines out of China, the chief executive told a press conference. Nine hundred and seventy of them have been stationed in the three cities. The president would not discuss capital speculation that the withdrawal of these troops be linked with efforts to reach a better understanding between this country and Japan.

No Plans to See Kurusu

He said he had no definite plans yet to see Japanese special envoy, Saburo Kurusu, who is flying to Washington today to discuss the Far Eastern situation.

Asked whether he thought war could be avoided in the Pacific, Roosevelt said he certainly hoped so.

But he declined to give a yes or no answer to an inquiry regarding how this might be done.

If he said so, he remarked, somebody might use interpretation on his answer. And if he said yes, he added, it would be pure guessing. He said he did not know, this qua-

House Leaders Get President's Letter

Speaker Sam Rayburn (left) (D. Tex.), and Rep. John W. McCormack (D. Mass.), House majority leader, read the letter President Roosevelt sent them urging repeal of the neutrality act restrictions on U. S. shipping. The letter arrived just before the House prepared to vote in Washington on amendments which would permit merchant ships to enter combat zones and belligerent ports.

American Vessels Get Arming Right, Freedom of Seas

House Finishes Legislative Job in Suspense-Packed Historic Session by Scrapping Neutrality Act Amendments; Vote 212-194.

Washington, Nov. 14.—(AP)—American merchantmen received freedom of the seas today by act of Congress, and with it the right to mount guns and shoot if attacked. The House finished the legislative job in a suspense-packed historic session yesterday by scrapping the neutrality act amendments which since 1939 have prohibited American shipping from entering the combat zones or belligerent harbors.

Vote 212 to 194

The vote was 212 to 194—no tremendous majority but a very sweet victory to Administration leaders who had been haunted by visions of a photo finish where two or three votes could mean defeat.

The final roll call climaxed the hardest battle yet waged in up-

Religious Awakening Seen Among Youths in Service

Fort Knox, Ky., Nov. 14.—(AP)—"There is a pronounced religious awakening among the youth in the army," Lieut. Col. William D. Cleary, chaplain leader at Fort Knox, believes.

"We have discovered it in Army camps," Colonel Cleary said today. "Every day many men who have never had religious training come to us for information. This is one reason we know there is an awakening."

No Statistics To Back Relief

Colonel Cleary said the 32 chaplains who have charge of the religious guidance of the nearly 40,000 men at the fort had no statistics to back up their belief but "we can see it."

Reserve officers who have just come from civilian churches and they all agree that attendance here exceeds anything they have ever experienced previously.

The colonel, a Catholic priest, whose brogue is as Irish as his name, has been in the Army 24 years. He came to Fort Knox three years ago from the Philippines.

First World War, Colonel Cleary declared, taught Army officials the value of religious training for troops.

In 1917-18, he explained, worship facilities were a hit or miss matter, "but today the situation is changed."

Religion Stressed In Army

"Today, religion is stressed in the Army just as much as drill and is just as valuable.

"And now we are about to open nine new chapels for use by every denomination," the colonel said.

The first of the chapels, costing $22,000 each, will be dedicated Sunday afternoon. Each has a seating capacity of 400 and all are equipped with electric organs.

British Praise Repeal Action On Neutrality

Press and Public Jubilant; How Soon Vessels Will Reach Britain Not Known Yet.

London, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Repeal of vital sections of the U. S. neutrality act was hailed by an authoritative Britain source today with "much gratification" while the press and public greeted the congressional action with jubilation which the Daily Express put into this banner headline, in letters big enough for a major war victory!

"They're Coming Over!"

This referred specifically to reopening of British seaports to American merchant ships. How soon and how fast American vessels loaded with lend-lease materials would reach Britain immediately became a subject of speculation.

The Express suggested that the first ships would arrive from Iceland, which formerly was the last stop for U. S. vessels carrying supplies for England, while other sources thought that among the first arrivals might be some American-owned ships which have

British Using Shock Troops On Occasions

Commandos, Trained For Sabotage, Raiding Still Mystery Force; Work Is Kept Secret.

London, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Ministry of Information announced today that the newly formed "commandos" — Britain's toughest shock troops already have been trained for sabotage and raiding, are "still rather a mystery force and the work they do is the sort, which, in so far as it is deceptive, cannot be revealed so long as telling of it might give information to the enemy."

Raid Achieved Purposes

The Bardia night raid achieved its purposes of making Axis troops believe a full scale British attack was being launched from the beaches and of causing the destruction of Axis stores, the ministry said.

The Commandos came ashore from landing boats which were described as "shallow bottomed craft with armored sides rising above the heads of the men who sat in three lines, 30 to a boat. At the bows were ramps which let down and enabled three lines to move out together so that all could get ashore quickly."

Blew Up Road Bridge

The troops reached the town without being detected and blew up a road bridge. When their work was finished a coast defense battery top of an escarpment "had been blown sky high" and a great dump of new rubber tires brought night from its desert fortified airdromes off the misty British Isles.

Urged Cliques in Army

Minneapolis, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A government witness testified today in the trial of 28 persons on charges of seditious conspiracy that Vincent R. Dunne, one of the defendants, urged Socialist Workers party members who were drafted to organize cliques in the Army, spread the party gospel and when the time came, take over the guns and arsenals and turn them on those in power. The witness was Eugene A. Williams. Williams also testified that a General Drivers' Union 544 defense guard was actually drilled in marching by Ray Rainbolt, another defendant, and the guard at one time considered purchase of crash helmets, not only for protection but for identification in case of pitched battles.

Stock Certificates Missing

Washington, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Senator William Langer (R-ND) testified today that while he had received approximately $25,000 from a Chicago lawyer in 1937 for bank company stock which other witnesses told the Senate Sections Committee was worthless, he had never delivered the stock certificates to the purchaser and they now were missing. Langer, defending his right to a Senate seat in the fifth successive day of testimony, testified that he and the lawyer, Thomas Sullivan, had agreed verbally to share equally in stock of $55,000 par value in the land development company, a cotton holding Mexican land and claims to expropriated Mexican areas.

Hope Rising Envoys Safe

Dispatch from Cairo Reports Landing of Missing Plane on Caspian.

By The Associated Press

Hope rose today for the safety of U. S. Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt, Russian Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff and nearly a dozen others who had been reported missing in a Russian plane in the wild wastes along the border between Europe and Asia while en route from Kuibyshev, Russia, to Teheran, Iran.

An American woman journalist, Alice Moats, was reported today to have been aboard the plane, along with Quentin Reynolds, American magazine writer, Litvinoff's English wife and their child, and a number of British diplomatic officials.

Reports Safe Landing

A Cairo dispatch reported the craft had landed safely at Pahlevi, Iran, on the Caspian Sea about 175 miles short of Teheran, but British officials in London were frankly puzzled over a delayed Teheran dispatch, filed yesterday, stating the Russian legation could not confirm reports the plane had landed at Pahlevi.

The British Ministry of Information allied fears in part by stating that the plane was not due in Teheran before last night, despite Advance Only Yard by Yard in Crimea and On Bitterly Contested Front in Center.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—(AP)—German military dispatches said tonight that the pace of the fifth successive day of Russian front had slowed to a yard by yard Nazi advance in the Crimea and the bitterly contested central front. The Crimean fighting was summed up here as a gradual tightening of the German grip on Sevastopol and Kerch with fierce fighting necessary for every gain.

Russian Advance Reported

At one place on the central front, presumably in the general region of Moscow, a Russian advance in considerable force supported by tanks was reported in the German dispatches.

They said, however, the German Army was forging ahead "village by village," sometimes fighting hand to hand with the Russians.
