Partisan Warfare Follows Strategy Democrats Adopt

Senator House Labels Wechsler's Declaration 'Most Frank, Shocking' Statement; Sees Bills Considered As Part of Deal

State Capitol, Hartford, April 27—(AP)—Partisan warfare broke out in both legislative branches today as a result of avowed Democratic strategy to hold up "pet" Republican bills in an attempt to force action on major administration proposals.

Repeated on Senate Floor

The strategy, first announced last night by Senator Alfred F. Wechsler, Democratic floor leader, was repeated by him today on the Senate floor.

His rival, Republican Leader Charles E. House heatedly labeled it a "most frank, shocking" statement.

It amounted to a declaration, asserted House, that Democrats intended to consider the "not on their merits but as part of a deal."

Wechsler shot back:

"This is not a deal, but an attempt to awaken the Republican party to its true responsibilities."

Wechsler asserted further:

"The Republican party has a failed to recognize that public interest comes before private interest."

Similar Squabble in House

The Senate clash, which set a pattern for a similar squabble in the House, came when Wechsler asked that a comparatively minor bill be placed at the foot of the Senate calendar.

That parliamentary device has the effect of delaying action on a measure.

When House asked why that action was taken, the Democratic floor leader repeated that action on "pet Republican bills" would be held up until the G. O. P. side showed "more inclination" to consider major administration measures.

Sees Intent to Use Pressure

Senator George Griswold (R-Greenwich) said that there could be "no greater admission" than Wechsler's statement that Democrats intended to use "personal

Norwich Couple Found Dead

Norwich, April 27—(AP)—William R. Redhead, 46, and his 29-year-old wife Janet were found dead this morning in their basement apartment in the Greeneville section of this city. Death, according to Medical Examiner Dr. George H. Gildersleeve, was due to public monoxide gas. Police found after forcing their way into the place that a gas-burning hot water heater was in operation and Gildersleeve later expressed the opinion that this had observed all of the oxygen in the apartment. The medical examiner also expressed the belief that Mr. and Mrs. Redhead died last night. This theory was based on the fact that both were fully clothed.

Tell of "Shadowing" Girl

Washington, April 27—(AP)—FBI agents told today how they "shadowed" Judith Coplon for nearly two months before they arrested her and Valentine A. Gubitchev, a Russian, on espionage conspiracy charges. The FBI men testified in the absence of the jury, in connection with a defense motion to prevent the government from using in Miss Coplon's trial papers they seized when she was arrested. The government says the papers contained secret government information.

Defense Move Fails

New York, April 27—(AP)—A defense attempt to have a copy of an FBI statement praising a prosecution witness produced in court failed today in the conspiracy trial of 11 top Communist leaders. The defense contended the statement was unwarranted interference and prejudicial action. The statement concerned Miss Angela Calomiris, a photographer, who testified yesterday she was an undercover FBI contact within the Communist party up to the time she took the witness stand.

To Become Army Secretary

Washington, April 27—(AP)—Curtis E. Calder, utilities executive, has agreed to become secretary of the Army, it was learned today. Calder, now assistant secretary, will be promoted to under-secretary and serve as acting secretary until Colder can take over the post. This is the job formerly held by Kenneth Royall.

Will Propose Civil Rights Be Included

Northern Democrat to Try to Tie Amendment to Wood Labor Measure Today

Washington, April 27—(AP)—A northern Democrat said today he will try to tie a civil rights amendment to the Wood Labor bill, which was introduced in the House with the support of southerners and Republicans.

The measure was offered by Representative Wood (D., Ga.) as a substitute for the administration's Taft-Hartley repeal bill. The Wood bill would repeal the Taft-Hartley act too, but it would then write back into law many of the Taft-Hartley features.

Will Propose Amendment

As the House went into its second day of debate on a new labor law, Representative Cavalcante (D., Pa.), a freshman lawmaker, said he will propose amending the Wood bill to make it an "unfair labor practice" for either an employer or union to discriminate against a worker because of race, creed or color.

Any bill with that amendment in it would have a difficult time getting southern support. But the amendment itself would have the support of many.

Technically, the measure now under debate is the bill introduced by Representative Lesinski (D., Mich.) and supported by President Truman and labor unions. It would wipe out Taft-Hartley and replace it with an enlarged version of the 1935 Wagner act.

But the Wood bill is scheduled to be acted on first, because a substitute bill must be disposed of one way or the other before the original legislation.

Vote Expected to Be Close

The vote on the Wood bill due tomorrow—is expected to be close. Speaker Rayburn (D.Tex.) and Representative Priest (D.-Tenn), assistant Democratic House leader, both reported it won't pass. Representative Halleck (R.-Ind.) said it will.

If it fails, the House will plunge into consideration of amendments to the Lesinski bill—which is identical with a measure approved by the Senate Labor committee. Senate debate is still some weeks off.

Chances are neither the Wood nor Lesinski bill will pass the House without being amended in some respects. There were even

Chiang Sees Another War

Views China as Tinderbox to Furnish Men If Communists Win

Shanghai, April 27—(AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek today returned to the battle against Communism, forecasting a third world war if China is lost.

In his country, he said, would be the tinderbox and furnish the men for that war if the Chinese Communists win.

The generalissimo pledged to share the hardships of his countrymen "on the brink of disaster." He said he could not disregard his reasonability at such a time.

The statement—his first since retiring from the presidency Jan. 21—was issued from Chikow, his ancestral home. But foreign and Chinese newspapers said he was back in Shanghai, soon perhaps to become another civil war battleground.

He spoke as director general of the Kuomintang (government) party.

Communist forces swirled around Soochow (Wuhsien), only 50 miles to the west, as Chiang's statement was made public.

Seeking to Enslave People

Chiang said the Communists were seeking to "enslave the Chinese people to the cause of international Communism by attempting to make all China the military base and source of manpower for the benefit of the Communist plan of world domination."

Chiang promised full support to the government of Li, but pledged to share the sufferings of my fellow countrymen." Thus he may have shown this means of coming from retirement to lead China in her battle against Communism.

He called on his people to fight as hard against Communism as they did against the Japanese in eight years of war. At the same time he admitted some of the shortcomings of his own 22-year rule of the vast country.

Blames Lilo Japanese

The generalissimo said the Reds by crossing the Yangtze had blundered into the same military errors that had mired the Japanese in their conquest of China.

The river crossing, he said, represents the "peak of Communist military development." It will bring the Reds "face to face with the targting mass of military, po-

Identified

The Federal Bureau of Investigation identified Mrs. George Hateneye (above), 26, of Buffalo, N. Y., as the woman whose bullet-riddled body was found floating in the Genesee river, of up-state New York, April 22. She is the former Jean G. R. Gazela, of Oakland, Calif. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gazela, of Oakland, said their daughter had been living recently at the Buffalo address with Hateneye, her second husband, and their two children, Diana, 3, and Paul, eight months.

Baldwin Hit For Decision

Some of Republican Colleagues in Senate See Party Disloyalty

Washington, April 27—(AP)—Some of Raymond E. Baldwin's Republican colleagues in the Senate today privately accused him of party disloyalty for accepting appointment to the Connecticut Supreme court.

But other G. O. P. senators said the critics ought to withhold judgment on Baldwin's decision.

The Connecticut senator was named to the post yesterday by his state's Democratic governor, Chester Bowles. Senators who urged a damper on criticism said they are sure Baldwin has good reasons for deciding to accept the bench appointment. They said he might make them known when he returns to Washington.

Chinese Reds Grab Putung

Nationalist Troops Abandon Soochow, Guardian City for Shanghai

Shanghai, April 27—(AP)—Red guerrillas in a surprise coup today seized Putung, right across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai.

At the same time Nationalist troops abandoned Soochow (Wuhsien), guardian city for Shanghai 50 miles to the west.

Red possession of Putung in any strength could make all operations on the Whangpoo, including evacuation of foreigners, hazardous. (Right across from Putung point are the Chinese City Council house, and the British and American consulates. The Whangpoo is less than one-fourth of a mile wide there.)

Shift Nearer Shanghai

The Shanghai garrison, without using the word withdrawn, made a communique government troops at Soochow had "shifted their position" to a point nile nearer Shanghai.

Ten thousand Communist troops participated in the Soochow battle. The Nationalists said they killed 3,000 Reds.

From Soochow the Reds may pivot toward Hangchow, 85 miles south of here, or may turn directly toward Shanghai.

Rail service between Shanghai and Hangchow had not been interrupted. Both seaports may become escape avenues for the Nationalists.

At least two ship loads of Nationalist soldiers and equipment sailed out of Shanghai today. Likely they were headed for Formosa where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's followers have established a bastion.

Foreign and Chinese newspapers said Chiang had arrived in Shanghai. He issued a statement

Urge Solons Reject College Control Bills

Connecticut Educators Deny Discrimination in Admission Practiced; No Need for Action

New Haven, April 27.—(AP)—A group of Connecticut educators urged the General Assembly today to reject bills which would establish state supervision of college admission policies. Denying that discrimination in admissions is practiced, the educators, who include the presidents of Yale, Trinity, Wesleyan and Connecticut College for Women, said the proposition the restoration of normal communications with Berlin would automatically require a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers and this would bring back to the conference table the whole range of issues on which Russia and the western powers deadlocked in the 1947 Foreign Ministers' conferences in Moscow and London.

These issues arise from the fact

About 6,000,000 Autos Beyond Scrapping Age

Washington, April 27—(AP)—About 6,000,000 cars, or almost one out of each five now on the road, are beyond the age (12 years) at which cars normally are scrapped.

The Commerce department making this estimate today, accordingly reported that there is "still a very large market for new cars."

This bright note for auto makers was sounded despite the effective date of the second relaxation of the Federal Reserve Board's installment credit controls in two months. From today on, dealers may allow buyers 24 months to pay for cars or other goods.

Two Years To Fill Backlog

The Commerce department survey indicated it may take upwards of two more years for auto production to fill the backlog demand built up during the war.

A department study also pointed to existence even yet of a backlog for electric refrigerators, but suggested that for vacuum cleaners and probably for electric washers demand for carry-over wartime demand has largely been met.

The newly eased installment credit controls reduce the cash down payment on these and other appliances, such as radios and television sets, furniture, etc. from 15 to 10 per cent, and exempts articles costing under $100.

Down Payment Still One-Third

The auto down payment also trending at 33 1-3 per cent, but the control restrictions now in effect permit buyers in cars and appliances to give terms as easy or easier than typical prewar terms if they wish.

Dealers are free to insist upon shorter terms under the control limits, and Reserve board studies show many of them do.

Would Be Less Free To Oppose Arms Aid If Treaty Approved

Top Officials Wary About Reds' Offer

Condition on Proposal For Lifting Berlin's Blockade Obvious Despite Informal Action

Washington, April 27—(AP)—Russia's proposal for lifting the Berlin blockade is regarded warily by top American officials. Caution is obvious even though the State department has informally accepted it as certain that the Senate approve the treaty and that Congress vote a $1,450,000,000 foreign arms program.

Plans to Ask Arms Aid

The treaty, signed here April 4, by 12 nations, will not be binding on the United States until the Senate approves it by a two-thirds vote. The Truman administration plans also to ask the arms aid. It would require approval by a majority of both Senate and House.

In the Senate, some members have said they are inclined to vote for the treaty but doubt the wisdom of the arms program. Senator Byrd (D., Va.), for one, has demanded to know whether a vote for the treaty would be regarded as a moral commitment to support the arms aid.

Votes Promptly Raised

So that point was promptly raised when the Foreign Relations committee opened hearings on the treaty today with Acheson as the first witness.

First off, Acheson read a long prepared statement. That said, in effect, that if the pact is approved by the required two-thirds of senators voting, the entire Senate membership then will be committed to the principle of mutual assistance to the western European nations linking themselves against possible Communist aggression.

When Acheson concluded his Former Senator Dies

Former Solon Dies, Aged 79

Frederic C. Walcott in Failing Health Some Time; Hoover Friend

Stamford, April 27—(AP)—Frederic Collin Walcott, 79, former United States senator, financier and conservationist, died at a convalescent home here today.

He had been in failing health for some time.

Walcott was a life-long advocate of conservation—both of human and natural resources, and practiced what he preached.

Under former President Herbert Hoover he investigated social and living conditions in war-torn Belgium and Poland in 1915 and 1916. He was Hoover's aide when the latter became World war I food administrator, and later was an administrator of relief in post-civil war Russia in 1938.

Help Write RFC Bill

Walcott was United States senator from Connecticut from 1928 to 1934 and helped write and steer through to passage the Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill.

His first public office was that of fish and game commissioner in the state, serving from 1921 to 1928, his last was that of state

Russian Stand To Be Probed

United States Expecting to Learn If Conditions Attached

Bulletin!

New York, April 27—(AP)—The United States delivered a note to the Russians here today asking for a formal statement as to when and on what conditions they will lift their Berlin blockade. The note was taken by Philip C. Jessup, American ambassador-at-large, to Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik. Jessup called on Malik at the Soviet offices on upper Park Avenue at 12:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m., e. s. t.)

New York, April 27—(AP)—The United States is expected to learn today whether Russia is ready to lift the Berlin blockade without attaching unacceptable conditions.

State department officials raised the curtain of secrecy long enough to disclose that new informal meetings between U. S. and Soviet representatives were imminent and that they would be in New York.

Informed quarters said at one time that a meeting definitely had been arranged for some time today. U. S. officials said last night, however, that the time and exact meeting place still was not definite.

Two previous meetings were held at the Soviet delegation headquarters on upper Park avenue here. The series started when Philip C. Jessup, U. S. ambassador-at-large, contacted Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik Feb. 15 in the delegates lounge in the U. N. headquarters at Lake Success.

Bush May Figure in Talks

A flying visit of Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state, to New York last night gave rise to speculation that he might figure the next step. Rusk said he had come to attend dinner at the home of U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie. Another guest at the dinner was Andrei A. Gromyko, Russia's No. 1 deputy foreign minister.

But the direct superiors of Jessup and Malik, it was pointed out, they would be in a position to step into the informal discussions if the occasion presented itself at the dinner. There was no immediate

Seek Reasons Sullivan Quit

Republican Senators Call for Detailed Inquiry on Resignation

Washington, April 27—(AP)—Republican senators today called for a detailed inquiry into the reasons for Secretary of the Navy Sullivan's resignation.

Sullivan quit yesterday with a blast at Secretary of Defense Johnson for halting construction of the USS United States, which would have been the world's largest aircraft carrier.

While Chairman Tydings (D-Md) of the Senate Armed Services committee chalked up the matter as a "closed incident," G.O.P. committee members said they thought the group should dig deeper into the dispute.

Democrats appeared willing to follow Tydings unless Sullivan himself asks for a congressional airing of his differences with Johnson.

But Senator Bridges (R-NH), top-ranking G.O.P. committee member, said reports he thought there was "an understanding" with Tydings to call up Sullivan for an explanation "in view of the conflicting statements that have been handed out."

Not Let Present Side

Shortly after his resignation was announced by the White House, Sullivan released a letter he had sent Johnson in which he thought it, in effect, that the Navy had not been given an opportunity to present its side of the carrier question.

The project had been under attack by Air Force backers who said the huge flat-top would allow the Navy to intrude on the air arm's strategic bombing assignment.

In his letter, Sullivan expressed

Would Return To Dank Hole

Shaggy-Bearded Man of 33 Dug Out After 10 Years in Cubicle

New York, April 27 — (AP) — A shaggy-bearded man of 33, dug out after ten years of fantastic solitude in a dank cubbyhole, yearned today to return to the tomb-like cubicle in which his mother sealed him when she went insane.

Shoeless, filthy his clothes in rags, Paul Makuchak, one-time college student, stood on wobbly legs and blinked into the unaccustomed glare of electric lights.

Taken To Hospital

"I liked it in there," he said. "I'd like to go back. I don't care for the outside world." Police took him to a hospital.

The man told a strange story of voluntary exile since 1939 when his mother sealed him off from the world with a wall of wood and plaster at the outbreak of World War II.

Makuchak spent the 10 years in a tiny walled-in cubicle built in the corner of a littered third floor bedroom in a brownstone house in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn.

His father, who runs a tailor shop in the same building, said he never knew the man was imprisoned in the cubicle.

The cubicle, about three feet wide and five feet long—scarcely big enough to hold Makuchak when he stretched on the floor to sleep—had been devised, police said, because his mother presumably wanted him to escape being drafted.

Investigating Draft Status

Assistant U. S. Attorney Frank J. Parker began an immediate investigation of Makuchak's draft status in conjunction with FBI agents. He planned to question him later today in the observation section of Kings County hospital.

Meanwhile, authorities reported his mother was in an hysterical condition in another hospital after learning her son's hiding place had been found.

Makuchak, however, was vague about the war.

"The draft?" he replied to questioning by Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald. "I don't know about the draft. That was in 1917, wasn't it?"

He said he didn't "believe in violence," and added "I don't know" when asked if he would have gone in the Army.

Battle Again On Billboards

Garden Clubs and Outdoor Advertising Concerns Opponents

Hartford, April 27—(AP)— The battle of the billboards, a biennial legislative attraction, has had its 1949 showing in the General Assembly.

The opponents were the same as in former years—the garden clubs of the state against outdoor advertising concerns.

And the arguments were essentially the same.

Mrs. Wodzsy S. Conover of Guilford, president of the Federation of Garden clubs of Connecticut, noticed an argument used by most of those urging strict curbs on new outdoor advertising signs.

"Billboards are dangerous, hazardous and distracting," she said.

Deodles Charges Made

Nathan A. Schatz, of Hartford, representing the Outdoor Advertising association of Connecticut, denied that that was so. He quoted statistics from the Highway and Motor Vehicles departments in support of his contention that the Merritt parkway, from which billboards are barred, has a worse accident record than U. S. Highway No. 1, thick with advertising signs.

Several speakers at yesterday's hearing suggested that the garden club members and the outdoor advertising industry should get together and work out "voluntary means of self-restraint and voluntary codes."

Coulter pine cones sometimes weigh more than four pounds and measure 12 by six inches.

South Church Sunday Plans

Advance Program to Be Held at Regular Morning Services

The joint committee of South Methodist church's "Advance" program has been working toward its goal which is to raise ten thousand dollars for the expansion and modernization of the present church building. This program has been necessitated through the tremendous growth of the church school departments during the past several years.

With the addition of stairways, doors, exit signs and emergency lights in the corridors, the church building has been brought up to date so that it now complies with the recently revised Fire Safety Code of the State. Although the building has always proved adequate, the officials of the church have felt a moral obligation toward the rising generation and have, therefore, launched this fine program so that the present structure may be equipped with modern facilities to better serve the community.

Advance Sunday

Sunday, May 1, will be Advance Sunday in South church. At a designated time during the regular morning worship service, the entire congregation, presided by the annual representatives of the church school and the trustees, will be given the privilege of sharing in the culmination of this program. The final letter which was sent this week to the members and friends of the church also contained the pledge envelope which will be placed on the altar by the giver as his personal contribution toward the Advance program.

For those who will be unable to attend this special service, it is requested that they mail their pledge envelope to the church office by Saturday and the minister will personally place these envelopes on the altar.

A complete tabulation of all pledges and gifts will be made immediately following the morning service. A contact member of the Advance committee will call on all those persons who, because of varying circumstances, were unable to attend or were not fully informed as to the procedure to be followed in presenting their contributions.

Flag Presented To Girl Scouts

Mrs. Viola Rice and Mrs. Mary Brosman, on behalf of Dilworth-Cornell-Quey Unit 105, American Legion Auxiliary, presented an American flag to Troop One, Senior Girl Scouts in an informal ceremony Monday evening. Miss Virginia Green, president of the troop, accepted the banner for the girls and stated that it would be carried across the seas this summer on their European trip, where the colors will be displayed in many lands.

It was announced at the meeting that a check for five dollars has been received from the Cosmopolitan Club as a contribution to the funds raised by the troop for their summer tour of Great Britain and Europe.

Escape Enemies

Flying fish, according to the Encyclopedia Britaannica, probably move through the air to escape capture by other fish, sometimes sailing over the water as far as 200 yards.

Cedars Plan Big Program

Parade to Be Public Feature of Annual Ceremonial Here Saturday

Manchester's Nutmeg Forest, No. 116, of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon, are holding their Spring Ceremonial, Saturday, April 30. A business meeting at 3:30 p. m. will start the large program arranged. A gigantic fun parade will get under way promptly at 5 o'clock. The parade will form at Main and Charter Oak streets and proceed up Main street, past the reviewing stand and thence to the Masonic Temple where it will disband. Bus service has been arranged from the Temple to the starting point.

All members and sandicats will then go to the banquet hall, where Nelson Quimby and his committee will serve a delicious dinner. Following the dinner, members will adjourn to the main lodge room where Grand Tall Cedar Gustave Peterson will introduce the Supreme Senior Deputy, Arthur Farmer and Supreme Junior Deputy William Schmidt.

At 7 p. m. the Royal Court and Prologue degree teams will put on these two degrees, using full costumes. William Forbes, Preceptor, has them in tip-top shape. They will be assisted by Nutmeg's Hangers and the Tall Cedars Band.

The Sidonian degree, under the direction of James Lewis, will get under way promptly at 9 p.m.

Entertainment arranged by Harold Turkington commences at 10 o'clock in the banquet hall.

An unusual attendance is expected at this ceremonial due to the colorful parade planned, and the presence of two Supreme officers. Grand Tall Cedar Peterson urges all members to be on time so as not to delay the lengthy chain of events scheduled for the Ceremonial.

Officers Selected By Local Ski Club

The Manchester Ski Club held its final meeting of the year in the form of a banquet and elected the following officers: president, Geno J. Andreini; vice president, Ray Dwyer; secretary, Peggy Kehler and treasurer, Doris Carlson. The Board of Directors includes; Past President William Mounce, Gordon Filigy, Edward Gimalouski, and Gus Bichsbittach.

Included in the plans for the next year is a ski tow on Mt. Nebo. This year Mt. Nebo was used as often as snow conditions allowed and it proved to be an excellent slope for the local ski enthusiasts.

Approves Bond Issue

Hartford, April 27—(AP) — The State Public Utilities commission has approved the proposed issue by the New Haven Gas Light Co., of first mortgage bonds in the principal sum of $1,200,000. The bonds will be known as series 1947 and will be sold privately to eight savings banks in the state. The proceeds of the sale will be used to discharge notes of $400,000 and to finance capital expenditures to the company's plant and distributing system.

About Town

Mrs. Jane J. Aldrich of Binghamton, N. Y., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brown of Tanner street.

Dr. Charles Johnson of Manchester Green will be the speaker at the Mid-week service at the Covenant Congregational church this evening at 7:30. Tomorrow night at 7 o'clock the adult choir of the church will hold a rehearsal.

The $100 raffle for the benefit of the Great Council Fund of the Red Men was won last night at Tinker Hall by Mrs. Lenore Daley of 17 Pleasant street, Cromwell, Conn., with number 37 ticket.

Miss Patricia Tyler and Robert Turner of Ipswich, Mass., were the week-end guest of Miss Connie Roy of 68 Jensen street. Miss Tyler was a former resident of Manchester.

When the April meeting of the Connecticut Chapter 55th Infantry (Blue Devils) Division Association was held last Sunday at Putnam Phalanx hall in Hartford, Guarino J. Agostinelli of 153 Eldridge street was elected president and Charles Mathiason, Jr., of 56 Valley street was elected vice president.

The 79 Annual meeting of the Hartford East Association of Congregational-Christian churches and ministers will be held at the Buckingham Congregational church this Sunday. At 3:30 Philip M. Rose will conduct the worship service and Dr. Matthew Spinka of the Hartford Seminary Foundation will deliver an address. The Buckingham Ladies of the society will serve supper at 6:15. Rev. Elmer T. Thiesen, will be Moderator for the meeting.

Television reception was unusually good in town last night. Many home sets as well as commercial sets were able to get the Boston and New York stations as clear as New Haven. So is claimed that the warmer weather and the elimination of air obstruction will make it possible to get better reception from May until October. There are around 100 sets installed in Manchester at the present time.

"Guest Night" To Be Noted

Missionary Circle of Emanuel to Hold Annual Event on Friday

The Missionary Circle of the Emanuel Lutheran church will observe "Guest Night" at its meeting in the church vestry on Friday night at 8 o'clock. It has been an annual affair with the organization every spring since its organization four years ago.

An interesting program has been arranged for the evening with Miss Annamu Thomas of Travancore, South India, who is studying at the Kennedy School of Missions in Hartford, as the speaker. Miss Thomas has previously appeared in town, taking part in the unique interracial dinner at the North Methodist church a few weeks ago under the sponsorship of the Youmeth Group of that church. Miss Thomas will speak about the people of India and their customs.

Take Part in Program

Two members of the Emanuel Choir, Miss Viola Nelson and Miss Laurine Hoagland will also take part in the program. The former will sing "The Holy City" and the latter, "Today I Walk Where Jesus Walked."

Refreshments and a social hour will be enjoyed. The following committee is in charge of the evening's arrangements: Mrs. Peggy Pencheff, chairman, Mrs. Edith Peterson, Mrs. Lillian Rieling and Mrs. Helen Harris.

The Circle is not only extending an invitation to the Women's Missionary Society to attend "Guest Night", but invites other women as well as the men of the church who would be interested in hearing Miss Thomas.

Here, at your fingertips, is foot-year with the perfect combination—first plus comfort. Natural Bridge combines them both into a look of smartness — with a foot that only built-in comfort features can give. They're truly Special Shoes for Natural Walking.

Guessing Now On Successor

Probable Choice for Baldwin's Senate Seat Brings Speculation

Hartford, April 27—(AP)—Governor Bowles' nomination of U. S. Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) to the Bench of the nation's highest tribunal today over his probable choice for the Senate seat being vacated.

The Democratic chief executive said nothing about Baldwin's successor except to rule out one logical candidate—himself.

When the Republican senator's appointment to the bench was announced yesterday, the governor was told by newsmen that reports were current he intended to resign in favor of Lieut. Gov. William T. Cargroll (D) who then would name him to Baldwin's Senate seat.

"That's out of the question," Bowles said. "It's not true. I will appoint Mr. Baldwin's successor."

Free To Name Democrat

Baldwin was nominated to succeed Justice Arthur F. Mitchell, who will retire from the bench December 17. Under state law, the governor may fill the Senate vacancy until the January following the 1950 election. He is free to name a Democrat since the appointment does not require approval of the General Assembly in which Republicans control the House.

Speculation over whom the governor would pick ranged over virtually all prominent Democrats in the state. Some wondered whether Bowles would reach outside the ranks of the regular Democratic organization.

Bowles, former national OPA administrator, has been closely allied with Americans for Democratic Action, formed by "New Dealers" before the last election. Some thought that organization would urge a candidate upon him, and the names of John Everett, ADA state president, and Elmer E. Schattschneider, another ADA leader, were being mentioned. Both are members of the faculty of Wesleyan university.

Attention on Congressmen

Attention centered too, on the state's three Democratic congressmen—Graham A. Barden, of the First district, Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, on the Second, and John A. McGuire, of the Third.

Other possibilities were listed as Joseph M. Tone of New Haven, whom Baldwin defeated for the Senate seat in 1946 and Thomas J. Dodd, Hartford lawyer whom Bowles defeated for the Democratic nomination for governor last year.

Along with the speculation over Baldwin's successor, political circles buzzed with talk about the "coup" achieved by Bowles in the senator's appointment to the bench.

In addition to creating the Senate vacancy to which a Democrat can be appointed, Bowles removed from politics a man who had been widely mentioned as his potential rival for the governorship in 1950.

Recent reports said that Baldwin, a former three-term governor, was being urged by G.O.P. leaders to return to Connecticut to seek the governorship again. The senator was regarded as his party's best vote-getter in the state.

Connecticut Republican leaders publicly congratulated Baldwin on his appointment. But there were some who privately expressed shock and chagrin.

Ansonia Rector Taken by Death

Ansonia, April 27—(AP)— Rev. Valentine Junker, rector of Immanuel Episcopal church, died last night at the rectory after a short illness.

Rev. Father Junker had been rector at Watertown, S. D., before coming to Ansonia on Aug. 1, 1942. During his rectorship here the new Immanuel church edifice was consecrated.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Freda Braun Junker, and by three sons, Rev. Curtis W. V. Junker, deaan of the Episcopal cathedral at Dallas, Tex., Herbert Junker of Dallas and Ralph Junker of New York city and by two daughters, Mrs. John Peabody of State College, Pa., and Mrs. Charles Miller of Cleveland, Ohio.

Arrangements for the funeral are incomplete.

Trade Agreements Viewed as Helpful

Waterbury, April 27—(AP)— S. Ralph Lazarus, president of the Benrus Watch Co., in a statement issued last night, asserted that domestic watch manufacturers have been helped rather than hurt by reciprocal trade agreements with Switzerland.

"Recent reports to the effect that low tariffs are responsible for difficulties of domestic watch companies do not correspond to the fact" Lazarus said.

As a member of the American Watch Assemblers Association, Lazarus said that he favored extension of the trade agreement "without change." He listed statistics which he said showed that from 1931-35, prior to the effective date of the agreement, the average domestic production of jeweled watches was 900,000 units. From 1936-41, after the conclusion of the agreement, he said, the average domestic production was 2,000,000. The Benrus executive said that at the present time production is at 10 percent and "yet cannot satisfy the United States consumer demand."

Given Lecture On Bias Evils

Roller Skating Rink Attendant Gets Fine and Jail Sentence

Bridgeport, April 27—(AP)—A roller skating rink attendant, convicted of discriminating against a Negro couple by failing to supply them with proper sized skates, was fined $100 and sentenced to serve five days in jail here yesterday.

In addition, Earl Bradley, 42, received a lecture on the evils of discrimination from Judge Philip J. Sullivan in the criminal Court of Common Pleas.

Bradley had appealed a conviction and fine of $25 in City court. Judge Sullivan, imposing sentence after Bradley had pleaded guilty midway of the trial declared that "discrimination in places of public amusement must cease."

Refused Skates of Right Size

Bradley was accused of having failed to issue the proper sized skates to a Negro couple who appeared at the rink accompanied by a white couple. James Bethea, a Negro, testified that he and his companion, Mary Nims were refused skates of the right size by Bradley. Alfred Kalish and Edith Horowitz, both white, testified that they followed Bethea and Miss Nims in requesting skates. They said they had received skates of the same size refused the Negro couple. The alleged discrimination took place June 19, 1948.

The maximum penalty on conviction of violating state Statute 860F—alienage, race or color discrimination, is a fine of $100 and 30 days in jail.

Fails to Uncover 'Loot of Lima'

Riverside, Calif., April 27—(AP)—The fabulous $500,000,000 "lost loot of Lima" is still lost.

But James A. Forbes, who admits failure for his fifth quest for pirate gold on tiny Cocos island, emphasizes he still needs convincing that the treasure is a myth.

In fact, he said last night he just learned that Santa Clara university in northern California has 100 ancient letters referring to the treasure.

They were written by his great, great grandfather, James Alexander Forbes, an "educated pirate" whose maps were used in trying to locate the booty.

Heads Junior College

Assembly Peace Parley Cancelled

Hartford, April 27—(AP)—A few little words resulted in cancellation of a "peace conference" between Republicans and Democrats in the General Assembly.

They came yesterday from Senator Alfred F. Wechsler (D-Hartford) as he was awaiting a meeting with Republican leaders on pending legislative questions.

Wechsler, Senate majority leader, told reporters that "until the Republican-dominated House is willing to act favorably on vital measures concerning the public welfare, we do not intend to pass yet bills of various Republican legislators."

Rep. George C. Conway (R-Guilford), House majority leader, heard of Wechsler's statement and promptly cancelled the scheduled conference.

"In view of the fact that he (Wechsler) is trying to use a club on the House to drive through unsound legislation, there will be no meeting as far as I am concerned," said Conway.

Reliable sources reported that the leaders had planned to discuss administration-sponsored welfare and housing legislation.

Public Nurses Get Donation

Receive Check Even Before Their Drive Is Officially Opened

The first donation to the annual drive of the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association has been received. Although the drive will not be opened formally until the first week in May, this was a check for $20.52, the proceeds from a bowling match played between the Manchester Women's Bowling League and the Women's bowling team of Cheney Brother's Athletic Association.

When Mrs. Mary Simmons of 39 Pioneer Circle, a member of the Manchester League, presented the check, she said that they hoped it would be the first donation for this year's drive. Asked why they chose to give it to the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association Mrs. Simmons said, "Well, we are a group of women so we wanted to give our money to some organization that is run by women. Also we wanted our money to stay and work in Manchester. Besides we are all married women with children—eleven between us—so naturally we all know the Public Health Nurses, and have called on them for help many times."

Mrs. Simmons went on to say, "We hope to make much more of it next year. We can advertise the game more ahead of time. This year we asked Mrs. Rayner to present the trophy, which was donated by a local jeweler. Perhaps next year all the nurses can attend the game. We'd like to have them."

This was a heart-warming tribute for the Visiting Nurses to hear, and also was deeply appreciated by the members of the board.

Rain Falls Today Over Wide Areas

Chicago, April 27—(AP)—Rain fell over wide areas of the country today. One wet belt several hundred miles wide extended from New England west and southwestward to the Ohio valley and to western Tennessee and Arkansas. There were thunderstorms in parts of Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado. Dodge City, Kan., reported a rainfall of more than one inch in six hours. Wind, hail and rain hit western Kansas and the Oklahoma panhandle last night. Winter wheat in the vicinity of Lakin, Kans., was reported damaged.

Temperatures generally were around normal over most of the country. The mercury was near the freezing mark in northern Minnesota, in parts of North Dakota and at Sheridan, Wyo. Yesterday's highest mark was 98 at Yuma, Ariz.

Pipe And Slippers For Ray

This newspaper's good friend, and Connecticut's good servant, Raymond E. Baldwin, comes into comfortable, distinguished, and fitting life place with his appointment, by Governor Chester Bowles, to the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors.

Ray Baldwin would be the first to acknowledge that public life has given him much. The record of his own service is eloquent testimony that he has given much in return, that he has repaid honor and prestige with fidelity, intelligence, and a growing largeness of spirit.

But this process of exchange between the public and Ray Baldwin has been arduous and demanding. Part of his political success has been the fact that he gave himself so generously to the people of Connecticut, to his party, and to the causes in which he believed.

Several times, during his career, Ray Baldwin felt forced to halt and consider whether there could ever be an end to this process. When did one reach security? When could a man and his family have an evening to themselves? When would the life of the platform, the conference, the committee, the convention, the telephone call ease up and give a man a chance to breathe? He loved the game; he had natural and vigorous talents for it; still, when did he get an evening with pipe and slippers?

Now it is pipe and slippers, and security, and a distinguished and suitable new field for public service for Ray Baldwin. His varied experience with human beings in every walk of life, the warmth and depth of character he has developed in the course of his public service, together with his own experience in the profession of the law, should make him one of Connecticut's great jurists.

We, and a host of his other Connecticut friends, are happy for him, because, at last, he can look forward to some peace and relaxation and serenity. But it will be no easy matter for either Connecticut party to provide a worthy replacement for him in the Senate, no easy matter for the Republican party, in particular, to duplicate the calibre of leadership he has given it in the past decade.

Cold War To Cold Peace?

The big news in world affairs today is not that Soviet Russia is trying to lift the Berlin blockade, which has been the disturbing focal point of the "cold war," but that the United States is apparently ready to accept its cold war victory and face the tempestuous issues which lie beyond it.

The basis on which we are now apparently willing to accept a lifting of the blockade, in return for which we will lift our own very efficient counter-blockade of the Soviet zone of Germany, and in return for which we will undertake to join in new Four Power talks on the whole German problem, is not vastly different from the basis on which the blockade could have been ended last fall, if we had been willing to accept the compromise proposals advanced by the small neutral nations.

The vastly encouraging change, in the meantime, is that United States policy is apparently now ready to face the fortuous issues of trying to make peace.

What will follow the lifting of the blockade, if it is lifted, could be highly embarrassing to western diplomacy. From the lifting of the blockade, the Russians will go on to advocacy of one united Germany. They will go on to propose that all occupation troops be withdrawn from Germany. They will go on to proposals that a final peace treaty with Germany be drawn up now.

In all these proposals, the Russians will be advocating things both Germany and the world will want, for these proposals will comprise a surface ending of the big victor dispute over Germany.

Our diplomacy, up to this time, has feared such proposals from the Russians. It has feared them because it has distrusted the capacity of democracy to hold its own in Germany against the political inroads of communism. It has feared them because, while it could not see its way clear to going along with them, it could imagine their appeal to the Germans themselves.

If the big power log jam is loosed by the lifting of the Berlin blockade, all these questions are likely to cascade upon world diplomacy in what may seem like a mad flood of discussion and decision, in which many advantages will lie with the Russians.

Our State Department knows this. The conclusion, therefore, must be that it feels itself somewhat ready and capable of dealing with such developments. The conclusion is that the State Department has finally reached the conclusion that the time has come when it must be ready to convert its toughness into negotiation, when it must no longer seem to fear the issues of peace. It is no longer determined to hold cold war tension high, and keep building it higher, toward some unlimited and never defined goal. It is ready to translate the cold war into something a little better—say, a cold peace. But peace, once started, may have a dynamics of its own.

Mexico Asks Us Back

Eleven years ago, Mexico, following a twin policy which settled both the principles of socialism and the desire of all our "Good Neighbors" to be rid of "Yankee imperialism," drove the American oil companies out of their Mexican investments and operations.

Perhaps there was some justice in the Mexican feeling that the oil companies were exploiting Mexico. Individual American business enterprises are not always too good neighbors when they are operating in foreign territory.

But now Mexico is inviting the American oil companies back. Two have already signed new agreements for operations inside Mexico. The agreements, it is true, close the door on the "good old days." The profits to be taken out of the country will be limited, though generous. But Mexico wants American capital and American enterprise to come in and do its stuff.

This, it seems to us, is just about the finest endorsement and advertisement that the much-abused American capitalist system has received in many a year. Here is a country which, for 11 years, has been indulging in an experiment with the non-private enterprise way of doing things. Certain phases of that experiment it does not intend to abandon, even now. For instance, the oil produced by these American enterprises which are going back into Mexico will go into a socialist monopoly for distribution. But Mexico has decided that its oil program needs a little extra kick, that extra something which, it has also decided, is to be found in the American system.

So the great socialistic experiment is to get a capitalist shot in the arm, and by its own request.

Perhaps America has something after all. Perhaps the American system, although in need of restraint now and then, has something that can't quite be imitated or counterfeited or substituted for. Perhaps we ought to take billboard space in every country on the globe and proclaim, in good high letters, "Mexico Asked Us Back."

26 Physicians To Be Honored

New Britain, April 27—(AP)—At its 15th annual meeting to be held in this city on May 4-5, the Connecticut State Medical society will honor 26 physicians who have been members of the society for 50 years of more. Six of the 50-year members are from New Haven. Four are residents of Bridgeport and four live in Hartford.

Service pins will be awarded to the 50-year members by Dr. Samuel C. Harvey of New Haven, president of the society. Dean of the group is Dr. John C. Lynch of Bridgeport, who has been a member of the Medical society since 1887. Second in seniority is Dr. Charles J. Foote of New Haven, who joined the society in 1886. Third in seniority is Dr. William L. Higgins of South Coventry who became a member of the society in 1891.

New Rate Set By Directors

School Bond Issue to Be Re-Offered Now at 1.8 Per Cent

Acting swiftly last night in special session to get Manchester's new school building bond issue sold before the market thickens up, the Board of Directors voted to re-advertise the $1,680,000 issue at a higher interest rate.

Yesterday, when the directors met to receive bids on the issue, interest for which had been set at 1.6 per cent, there were no takers. The bonds will be re-offered at 1.8 per cent, just above the market requirement of yesterday for ready sale.

Yesterday afternoon, after no offers were received at 1.6 per cent interest the Board voted to hold a special session next Tuesday to discuss the question further, but the need for haste was impressed on the Directors by the banking houses and they decided to re-offer during a discussion last night at a meeting originally called to take up sewage disposal and water distribution matters.

Market Becoming Crowded

It is explained that with the opening of the "heavy building season" of the year, towns and cities everywhere are starting their new school and public works programs with the result that the market is becoming crowded with bond issues and a buyers' market has developed under which sales are slowing unless the issue bears attraction interest. This change has occurred within the past two weeks since Manchester's issue was first advertised.

It was necessary, under terms of the charter for the Directors to re-offer the issue in order to get it out at a higher permitted interest rate.

Under terms of the charter, Chapter 19, Section 5, the Directors must in authorizing a bond issue, determine the kind of bonds, and they must be offered at public sale by bid. The directors have determined that coupon bonds should be issued at a pre-fixed interest rate. The charter permits bond sale by private negotiation if the results of the advertised sale are not approved as in the present instance.

With the market as it is, however, the Board considered it doubtful, after investigation, if negotiation would accomplish any more than did the public sale at 1.6 per cent. In fact, two interested firms would have bought the issue yesterday, it is reported, had the interest rate been 1/7 per cent. In setting the upper interest limit at 1.8 per cent, the Directors are allowing a margin for further anticipated interest demand before the issue can again come up for sale.

Snow for Sugaring Off

New Haven, April 27 — (AP) — There was snow here last night, four barrels of it. Although the weatherman said "it couldn't happen here," there was enough of the fluffy white stuff to add realism to the annual sugaring off of the Vermont association's maple sugar party. The snow job, Association President Harry L. White supplied that. It was the remnants of a February snow storm which he had stored in the refrigerating unit of his dairy.

Senior Girl Scout Rotary Speaker

Virginia Green, president Senior Girl Scouts Troop 1, was the guest speaker of the Rotary Club last night. Her talk was interesting and sparked with humor as she related the efforts of the twelve girls who are to make the trip to Europe this summer.

Rotary will launch Boys and Girls Week on Monday, May 2 when High school students will take over town offices.

Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evening and Friday afternoon will feature the Hobby Show at the Y.M.C.A. building and Friday night will be highlighted by an amateur show at Hollister street school. The climax of the week will come on Saturday night with the teen-age block dance being held at the First National parking lot on lower Main street.

Prizes are being awarded to top contestants in all fields of endeavor. Entries for the Amateur show close Thursday, April 28 at 5:30 p. m. Entries for the Hobby show will remain open until early next week. The Manchester Rotary Club is entered in the National Boys and Girls week contest as a community sponsoring such a week.

From the number of entries already received in the various events, it should indeed be a gala week for the town's young people as well as their parents.

Girl Scouts Taken On Hartford Trip

Troop 15, Girl Scouts under the leadership of Mrs. Leslie Hoyt and Mrs. Lawrence MacGilpin visited several places of interest in Hartford early in the week, including the Aetna building, capitol, and State library. They found the Aetna dome a fascinating place. Mrs. Carl Anderson helped with transportation. This troop will also go to Camp Merry-Wood for the week-end of April 29-May 1, and are looking forward to this camp-out.

Mrs. Earl Herrick, leader of Troop 12, decided to substitute a hike for the regular meeting of her troop, last Thursday. Leaving the Second Congregational church the group went into the woods near Buckland for about two miles. It proved to be a real nature walk as the girls observed brooks, birds, trees and wild flowers in the course of their trip. A spot beside one of the brooks proved ideal as a place to eat for the "nose-bag" lunches which the girls carried. Mrs. Herrick has used her backyard on Union street as a meeting place on other occasions, and here the girls have practised firebuilding toward their badge, and in preparation for another hike next time to the Manchester campsite, which they hope will be in the near future.

5 doctors prove this plan breaks the laxative habit

If you take laxatives regularly—here's how you can stop!

Suppose 5 New York doctors each gave you a different laxative every night, for months! Suppose you actually lost your natural powers of regularity. Eighty-three per cent of the cases tested did it. So can you.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, take Carter's Little Liver Pills. Take two Pills, liquid or pill, one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then—nothing! Every day, drink eight glasses of water, and a definite time for regularity.

Five New York doctors proved this plan can break the laxative habit.

Why? How? How can it break the laxative habit? Because Carter's Pills "unlock" the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers.

Further—Carter's Pills contain no habit-forming ingredients.

Break the laxative habit . . . with Carter's Pills . . . and be regular naturally.

When worry, overeating, overwork make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's Pills temporarily. And never get the laxative habit. Carter's Little Liver Pills at any druggist's or drug store. You'll be grateful the rest of your life, today.

Four Colleges Plan Is Best

Bowles Calls Consolidation Proposal Snare And Delusion

Hartford, April 27—(AP)— Gov. Chester Bowles today declared that "essential expansion of our teacher training facilities should be based on the existing colleges."

He called proposals to economize by consolidating the state's four teachers' colleges into a lesser number "largely a snare and a delusion."

Bowles, in a letter to Senator Benjamin Leipner, chairman of the Education committee, asked for improvement as well as expansion of the colleges. He said he is "thoroughly convinced that the present system of four regional colleges is sound."

The colleges are at New Britain, Willimantic, New Haven and Danbury.

Bowles said he reached his conclusions after conferring with "educational authorities of all shades of opinion" and "examination of the systems in other states."

"Can Make Good Start"

He added, "I agree that our four teachers colleges must be maintained as the basis for an expansion program, the remaining question is how rapidly can we increase these facilities. The job cannot possibly be done in the next biennium. We can make a good start on it, however, and this I believe we must do."

The governor said a request by the Department of Education for $1,274,333 for a teacher college building program could be shaved to $9,000,000. He said this could be done "by cutting out every expenditure that can possibly be eliminated."

Bowles blamed the state's "doubled birthrate" for placing "a severe strain on our entire educational system." He said 800 additional elementary school teachers will be needed next September.

He said only 218 of these could come from the state's Teachers colleges. The rest, he said, would have to be recruited from former teachers who have left the profession, out-of-state teachers, and through an emergency teacher-training program for liberal arts graduates.

He termed the New Haven Teachers college as being "in desperate shape." In the other three, Bowles asserted, there is "overcrowding, or inadequate facilities for an up to date program, or both."

Bowles ended his letter with a blast at former administrations, charging it was "most unfortunate" they failed to follow the example of other state governments and most large corporations in putting away funds for post-war building programs."

"In the absence of such savings," the governor said, "there is only one solution and that is a bond issue. We cannot delay this building program any longer."

The governor called upon Leipner's committee to "act favorably on this recommendation."

Council Talks On Park Rules

Discusses Regulations For Henry Park and The Roads There

Rockville, April 27—(Special)—The matter of regulations governing the hours that Henry Park and the Park roads should be open received considerable attention at the meeting of the Common Council held Tuesday evening. Alderman Harry Ertel stated that it was felt the park should be closed after 9 p.m. and that parking on the roads should be not allowed after 9 p.m. It was brought out that after each week end the workers of the Public Works Department found it necessary to clean up a large amount of rubbish left by the parkers in this vicinity.

Alderman Leo Flaherty stated that the park facilities were to be enlarged this year with bleachers, benches, fire places and the like and that he felt a city ordinance should be adopted to safeguard the protections of these items. The members of the Council voted that an ordnance should be drawn up which would cover the situation.

The first group of building permits which had been inspected by the new building inspector Alden Usher were approved at last night's meeting. Connady Bros. permit to build extension at 166 Union street, one story, approximately 21x29 of brick; Palace Theater for incinerator, 9 School street, with attached chimney; Joseph Tucker for outside stairway and door, 152 South street; Harvey J. Bennett, chicken coop, at 46 West street; William Golick, dwelling house at 253 Hartford street, 24x38; James H. Heffernan, one story dwelling, 8 rooms, 28x35.2, at 3 Lewis street; William H. Bassett and M. E. Knight, Neon sign at 26-28 Village street.

In presenting the bills for the Recreation Board, it was explained that the original cost of the Dancing classes just completed was figured at $375.00. Due to the increased interest with 60 teen agers attending and each paying 35c per week, the final cost was only $256.05.

A communication was read from the Public Utilities Commission of a hearing on April 28 at 10:30 a. m. in Room 585, State building, Hartford, on the proposed changes in the Greyhound Bus Lines. Alderman Flaherty stated he felt that the Corporation Counsel of the city should attend this hearing, and this was voted by the Council. The new Building Inspector, Alden Usher, informed the Council that he needed assistance from a Building Commission and Mayor Fred Berger appointed Alderman Harry Ertel, James Doherty and S. Neff to the Commission.

Special Meet On Bond Issue

Directors Must Satisfy Legal Proprieties in The Matter

This morning General Manager George H. Waddell said that he believes that further discussion of the $1,689,000 school bond issue plus validation of last night's vote to re-advertise the issue, will have to be made at a special meeting of the Board of Directors next Tuesday. Last night, when the Directors voted to re-offer the bonds at an interest rate not to exceed 1.8 per cent, no previous advertisement of the purpose of the session had been made, and to satisfy all legal proprieties, a meeting specially called for the setting of a rate may have to be held. Bonds may not be sold, according to Chapter 19, Section 3 of the town charter, unless the rate of interest has been legally prescribed by the Directors.

Enough Funds on Hand

It is uncertain today whether the issue will be offered for sale again at once, or if sale will be delayed until the bond market improves. At the present time sufficient current funds are on hand to continue the school building program.

The public approval of the bond issue was made after General Manager Waddell explained that it might not be floated for interest of less than two per cent. Present effort to get the issue sold for a smaller interest rate is an effort to save the taxpayers as much as is possible on interest charges. Each one tenth of a per cent interest on this large issue represents $1,689 per year, and over the twenty year run of the bonds, even on a diminishing principal sum, would amount to large proportions.

Discussion of the town's sewage disposal system also was entered into last night by the Directors, but no action on the question was taken.

litical and economic problems which will eventually result in their downfall.

"I am certain," he said, "that as long as we carry on the struggle the Communists can neither enslave nor destroy our country. Within three years the final victory will be ours."

He recalled that only four years ago Nanking was liberated from the Japanese.

Threatens Peace of World

"We are confronted," said Chiang, "by a dark, brutal force which seeks to rob our people of their liberty, destroy the independence of our nation and threaten the peace of the entire world.

"In this struggle, the life and liberty of every one of our people is tied with the life of the nation," he continued. "Although I retired from the post of president, I feel I can not lightly disregard my responsibility as a citizen at a time our country is faced with danger, our people on the brink of disaster. I wish to pledge at this time of crisis that I shall share the sufferings of my fellow countrymen."

Chiang said his government realizes that Communism was a problem of international implication that China alone could not settle. If that problem in China could have been settled through peaceful and political means, Chiang went on, he felt that it would help establish a basis for world peace.

Would Become Tinderbox

The government, he said, was "constantly faced with the dreadful possibility that if we should fail, China would become the tinderbox battleground of a terrifying third world war in which every nation of the world would be tragically involved."

Chiang pleaded some of the blame for the military and political shortcomings of his regime on the "general misapprehension of Communist intentions as long certain sections of the Chinese and the foreign public as well as the press made by Communist fifth column activities in China and abroad."

Chiang charged the Reds have no intention for peace. Recent actions prove that the ultimate aim of the Chinese Communists is the conquest and final subjugation of China so that this country could be conveniently used as a base for the third world war and the Chinese people its cannon fodder for aggressive world Communism.

"No nation which desires to be free can complacently shun the responsibility which China is now bearing as a result of her tragic struggle," Chiang said.

Child Born With Teeth Just Like Her Mother

It must run in the family.

Some years ago, Mrs. Albert Katsaug of North Coventry gave birth to a daughter, Virginia. Little Virginia was born with two, lower front teeth.

At 2:30 this morning at the Manchester Memorial hospital, Virginia, now Mrs. Camillo Buscaglia, gave birth to a daughter, Dianne Camille. Dianne has two, lower front teeth.

Dr. Charles Peckham, attending physician, said this is only the second such case in his experience.

If Dianne continues to imitate her mother, she will have these two front teeth until she is three years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Buscaglia live on Silver street in South Coventry. This is their first child.

A variation of a popular song, now out of season, would go something like this: "All I want for my birthday is my two front teeth."

public welfare commissioner, in which he served from 1935 to 1939.

In 1940 he declined a post on the State Selective Service (draft) board, because of a position he had taken with the Federal government. What this post was never was clear, but he was seen infrequently at his home in nearby Northfolk until after the war.

Walcott's story was not that of a poor boy who made good. He was born at New York Mills near Utica, N. Y., where his father operated a textile plant.

Although he worked in the plant for $1.25 a day, Walcott later inherited the business, operated it successfully and then sold it at a profit before embarking on a financial career.

Advised To Contact Hoover

He was in Europe negotiating war loans for Bonsight & Company of New York with the French and Italian governments, when at the age of 48, he received a cable advising him to contact Hoover in London.

His association with Hoover led to a lifelong friendship which brought Hoover on occasion to Connecticut to fish for trout in the streams around Norfolk.

Walcott, an accomplished musician with a flair for drawing and sketching, also travelled extensively. He travelled a great deal in Alaska and helped revise the game laws of the territory. His trips to Yucatan made him an authority on the Mayan civilization and he published a number of self-illustrated articles on it.

Big, blunt (he was well over six feet) Walcott was known to his fellow Norfolkers as "a very plain fellow" and he confided that he liked being called that.

His political career, under the aegis of the late J. Henry Roraback, Connecticut's powerful Republican boss, included two terms in the state Senate before he went to Washington.

Defeated By Maloney

When he sought a second term as United States senator, in 1934, he was defeated by 15,000 votes by Francis T. Maloney of Meriden.

Walcott married the former Mary Hussey Guthrie of Pittsburgh in 1931 and was left a widower before his election to the Senate.

Their sons chose to study medicine. Alexander Guthrie Walcott died in 1941 while at Johns Hopkins university.

William Welch Walcott entered Yale, of which his father was an alumnus, studied at the Medical school and transferred to Columbia University Medical school where he became a research fellow in psychology.

Wants Publicity in Juvenile Crime

Swansea, Wales—(AP)—Swansea's chief police officer recommended a new approach to juvenile delinquency: let newspapers print the names of children in court cases.

"It is a well known fact," chief constable D. V. Turner said in his annual report, "that offenders, whether adolescent or adults, are usually more perturbed about publicity in the press than about penalties inflicted in court."

Present laws ban the publication of names and addresses of children dealt with by juvenile panels.

Agree Record Nice to Have

Barris and Riedel Never Will Try Endurance Flight Again, However

Fullerton, Calif., April 27—(AP)—Bill Barris and Dick Riedel agreed today it's wonderful to have gas to hold the world endurance flight mark, but:

"We'll never try it again," says Barris.

"Roger!" echoes Riedel.

The weary pair had planned to leave with their wives for a beach hide-out last night after their 1,000-hour aerial ordeal. But friends and well-wishers staged a big party for them at the Hollywood Knickerbocker hotel.

Legs Still Wobbly

And the airman, their legs still wobbly, and partly deaf from listening to the Sunkist Lady's six cylinder motor for six long weeks, couldn't disappoint them.

They postponed their rest until today. Even at that, it will be interrupted. They are booked for several radio appearances this week.

Luckily, both men were declared to be in excellent shape after bringing the Sunkist Lady down to municipal airport here at 11:45:50 a. m. (p. s. t.) yesterday. A crowd of 8,000, including their families, greeted them.

Fourth Try at Record

It was their fourth try at the endurance record. Nearly 12 days earlier they broke the old record of 726 hours, set 10 years ago by Wes Carroll and Clyde Schleper of Long Beach, Calif.

Barris, 36, and Riedel, 35, were examined by physicians soon after the landing. Dr. Legrand Spencer said Riedel was in the better condition because he took more exercise.

This consisted of lifting 25-pound cans of gasoline from a speeding jeep during refueling operations.

Several Deals in Making

Soon the airmen can start thinking about their future and what they will get out of the flight. Their manager, Fred Gobble, said several deals are in the making.

Both have been flight instructors at Fullerton airport. Riedel is interested in a newspaper career. He has experience as a reporter and photographer and would like to become an aviation editor.

Barris wants to continue in aviation, but in administrative work. Gobelle said Barris has had an offer for such a job but declined to go into details.

Ground Crew Set Hand

On hand when Barris and Riedel landed yesterday to share in the glory were the three members of their ground crew, Lloyd Colloch, Frank Miller and Don Jansson.

The trio fed up gasoline in cans from a speeding jeep. They recorded the Sunkist Lady in four non-stop cross country flight to Florida to refuel her.

There was a big parade here yesterday afternoon. And promptly in the line of march was the Sunkist Lady, an Aeronca sedan, hauled by a jeep.

Would Be Less Free to Oppose Arming Europe

statement and leaned back in the witness chair. Chairman Connally (D, Tex.) leaned forward and put the big question:

Could a senator vote for the program?

Tussely Await Answer

With the crowded hearing room poised tensely for his answer, Acheson replied:

"It would be pleasant if one could answer that question 'yes' or 'No.' There is something in this treaty which requires each member to accept the principle of mutual assistance.

"Although, as a senator, I would be less free to vote again for a military program than he was before.

"No member then can properly say to himself: 'I do not believe in the principle of military assistance—I'm silly and I will put it out of my mind.'

But, Acheson said, "if a senator thinks for some reason—economic, financial or military — that the United States is not in a position to help other nations, then the senator has the right to exercise his judgment accordingly."

Connally asked if a senator might conscientiously oppose some particular proposal for military aid which fell within the general principle of military assistance.

"Of course," Acheson replied, "there is no question about that."

Believes Both Necessary

The cabinet officers termed the 12-nation security treaty and the foreign military assistance program parallel ways of building world security and said he believes both are necessary.

But he met head-on one of the biggest questions raised by some congressional critics by saying that the treaty does not formally bind Congress to approve the projected military program.

What the pact does do, Acheson said, is bind the United States to the principle of "self help and mutual aid." He went on:

"There is an obligation to help but the extent, the manner and the timing is up to the honest judgment of the parties."

It is the administration's judgment that the pact would be backed up with the arms program, Acheson continued, "but "the pact does not bind the Congress to reach the same conclusion, for it does not dictate the conclusion of honest judgment."

The scene of the hearings is the big, marble-columned caucus room in the Senate Office building. Spectators pushed into it long before Acheson took the witness chair.

The senators sit at a long table stretching across a dais, or low platform, at one end of the room. The witness chair is on the main floor level, facing the table.

Before Acheson began his testimony, Chairman Connally (D-Tex) made a preliminary statement saying "we want the widest possible information for the American people" about the treaty.

Want Truth

Connally added: "We hope there is not too much newspaper comment and columnist agitation about it. We want the truth.

"We'd like to have the truth and facts if it is not too offensive to the press."

Acheson wore a grey pin stripe suit, a striped shirt with a white collar and a blue and white print tie.

Before settling into the witness chair, he shook hands with the senators.

Seated behind Acheson as he testified was C. E. Bohlen, State department counselor. A group of State department aides sat behind them.

Both the treaty and the arms assistance program are aimed primarily at building up the strength against fears of Russian aggression.

Stem From Soviet Policies

Acheson himself told the senators that the two proposals stem from Soviet foreign policies, described as:

"The use of Stalinist methods in eastern Europe is not a flagrant escape route for the government's 300,000 man reported in the Iron Curtain countries—it has come about through the conduct of the Soviet union.

"Nowhere in the 5,200-word present statement is there mention the latest development in the cold war—Russia's apparent willingness to lift the Berlin blockade in favor of Big Four talks on the whole German problem.

But even in advance of his appearance, there was no sign in the senate that the drive for ratification of the North Atlantic treaty would be slowed even if the Berlin air lift can be abandoned.

In discussing past Russian performances, Acheson declared:

Charter Principles Violated

"Western European countries have been the basic purposes and principles of the (United Nations) charter cynically violated by the conduct of the Soviet union with the countries of eastern Europe. Their right to self determination has been extinguished by force or threats of force. The human freedoms as the rest of the world understands them have been extinguished throughout the whole area."

Economic problems have been solved by international cooperation but dealt with by dictation. These same methods have been attempted in other areas—penetration by propaganda and the Communist party, attempts to block cooperative international efforts in the economic field, waves of nerves, and in some cases thinly veiled use of force."

Acheson gave out the cost figures on the arms program for the first time so far as the committee information is concerned although they previously had been given members of the Senate committee. Those figures are $1,130,000,000 for the Atlantic pact countries and $230,000,000 for other countries such as Greece and Turkey.

Acheson reviewed the development of American foreign policy to meet the situation created by Russia. He described the Atlantic treaty and the military assistance program, as well as the European recovery program for Greece and Turkey, as "all designed to this end."

Acheson is the first of about 100 witnesses expected to give their views on the treaty signed here April 4. The hearings will last a month or six weeks—and then the Senate will open debate on the alliance.

saying that although he had retired as president he could not disregard "any responsibility as a citizen" in the crisis.

Possible use of Hangchow for a sea escape route for the government's 300,000 man reported in the area was questioned by observers. Hangchow's port is not suitable for heavy shipping and only light craft would be able to use the port.

With Nanking and a large part of the area just south of the Yangtze in the hands of the Communists, the government had fled to Canton, far to the south.

Hackett Farm Starts Suit

Buckland Plantation Claims $10,000 Damage to Crops from Dust

It looked today as if, before it is finished, the state highway Department and its contractor will be very sorry they ever built the Wilbur Cross Parkway through Manchester. Claims and suits in connection with asserted damage to property here were increased today when a $10,000 action was started against the contractors in behalf of the John H. Hackett & Son tobacco plantation. Already the state is fighting the Willard J. Thornton suit seeking figures of over a half million dollars.

Others may accept the lead of the Hackett suit. Yesterday at one of a per cent on net income over $5,000 on unincorporated business. The present tax on unincorporated businesses is one dollar per $1,000 of gross business done, or in the case of wholesalers, twenty-five cents per $1,000. The administration expects the new bill to yield nearly two and a half times the revenue now derived from unincorporated businesses.

Chambers Are Protesting

Members of the Chambers of Commerce throughout the state are strongly opposed to the plan and feel that no increased burden of taxes should be imposed at this time, but that the state government should be concerned with ways and means of decreasing the tax load by economizing and curtailing expenditures and by preventing overlapping in state offices. They feel that the Sales Tax, which amounts to about nine dollars a year for the average family, should bring in the necessary revenue.

Senator Charles S. House, and Representatives Frank D. Lonergan and Sherwood G. Bowers will attend these public hearings, and it is expected that they will voice the opinions of the Manchester small businessmen by opposing the bill. There are 88 type businesses that are now taxed in separate ways, and is the general opinion of merchants in town that they are being taxed to the limit now, and it would afford a hardship on them if any more taxes are levied.

She asked a neighborhood woman to go and care for her son —whose only contact with the world was a hole in the top of his room, through which he was fed.

The neighbor, unidentified, told police about him.

With crowbars, police banded down the thin plaster wall that sealed Makushak's son, Mike, 17, hitched him back into the world.

He was dressed in heavy woolen clothing. A tattered grey stocking cap was pulled down over his thick, matted black hair.

Policemen had to hold him up when he walked.

His beard flared out around his face in four-inch curls and he wore glasses that were held together with wire.

Around his legs was a pair of thick stockings, pulled up over the knees. Over them he wore a pair of long underwear that once had been white.

Knotted around his loins was a ripped and tattered grey sweater.

Occasionally Chased Neighbors

He said he never shaved for the decade he was in the cubbyhole, but occasionally chased neighbors with a pair of shears he kept there.

The tiny cubicle itself was littered with trash, empty cans, and rags.

Several books on shorthand lay on a makeshift shelf. Makushak said he liked to practice shorthand to while away the hours.

A Bible lay at arm's reach.

On the floor was a pair of 1939 New York Giants baseball home plates.

An old and battered radio was on the floor with a pair of earphones beside it.

Makushak's father, Peter, 60, lives in the same building at 102 Nassau avenue. Operator of a little tailor and dry goods shop, the father said he last saw his son as a youth of 23, when Paul one day came into the tailor shop to fix a little trouble.

Told Son in Canada

The father said he and his wife had quarrelled several times about the son. The wife, he said, told him Paul was in Canada.

As a result of the quarrels, the father said his wife moved to the third floor while he remained in his first floor tailor shop. He said his wife never let him go to the third floor.

"How was I to know where he was?" the father asked, shrugging his shoulders. "My wife and I were separated, like they say, and I never came upstairs for the past few years."

The father said he lives now inside the tailor shop.

Life in his cubicle "was all right," Makushak said. He has a radio, some ventilation, a dim electric light, and his meals came in.

Occasionally his mother gave him a newspaper to read.

His mother, he said, lowered his food to him through the top of his cubbyhole, where an opening led up to the roof of the building. There were no sanitary facilities.

Students Visit Union Settlement

Hartford, April 27—(AP)—Four Negro students, barred from a trip to their state's capital by segregation rules, started a day of activities as special guests of the state with a visit to Union settlement this morning.

The four, one colored seniors from the Middletown High school whose other classmates are touring Washington, D. C., were four white students, guests of Uncas Regan Chapter.

The group entered into a lively discussion of interracial relations with Mrs. Ethel Hale, a staff member at the settlement.

Later in the day they will attend a hearing on an education bill at the Legislature, will talk with Governor Bowles, and be the guests of Mayor Coleman.

Their schedule also includes a dinner and a theater party.

Urge Rejection Of Control Bills

ucation practices bills, but also would outlaw discrimination against teachers and students "because of political opinions or religious affiliations or activities, or because of any other lawful activity." It would also:

Call Measures "Inconsistent"

They hold the Senate Judiciary's Education committee that all the measures "are inconsistent with the Constitution of Connecticut" and "ought not to pass" because:

"1. They assume the existence of evils which do not exist.

"2. They would be disruptive of the education system of the state and of the operations of the colleges.

"3. Academic freedom ought not to be legislated, and cannot be wisely legislated.

Take Issue With Report

In a separate statement, President Charles Seymour of Yale, Keith Funston of Trinity, Victor L. Butterfield of Wesleyan and Rosemary Park of Connecticut College for Women took issue with a recent report of the State Interracial commission.

The commission had charged that Jewish, Italian and Negro students applying for admission to non-denominational colleges, both within and without the state, were discriminated against by an "unwritten quota system."

The college presidents contended that the commission's charges were "ridiculous" and based on "inadequate and misleading" statistics.

"There are no 'quotas' in any of the institutions," they asserted, "and there is complete equality in admission to our colleges of all religions and races. None of our institutions now inquires about religion or race on our application forms."

The college presidents contended that the statistics on which the commission's report was based were misleading, "the fact that three more Protestants than Jews were admitted by colleges which considered more than 7,000 applications. Jews in large numbers applied to which a mountain has been constructed."

Report Based On Survey

The commission's report was based on a survey of attendance of high school graduates from five Connecticut communities in applying to enter colleges in 1947.

The presidents' statement said that Trinity received 75 applications from the high schools whose 1947 survey's were included in the report, "of these," the statement added, "26 were from Protestants and 39 from Jewish students. Twelve of the Protestants (or 48 per cent) were admitted and 10 of the Jewish applicants (or 50 per cent) were admitted."

Connecticut college records 26 applications from the high schools in question, the statement said.

"Of these 13 were from Jewish and 13 from Protestant students. The college approved for admission 10 of the Jewish applicants (or 77 per cent) and 8 of the Protestants.

"With such small statistics from other colleges could not be procured in time, the college authorities are certain that the facts at their institutions are substantially the same," the statement said, noting that there are about 750 to 800 Jewish students at Yale.

The college presidents said that "since we have been working for years to combat prejudice of all kinds, we deplore the fact that unfounded charges should be brought against us.

"Trend of Record"

"The Connecticut colleges are proud of their record of religious and academic freedom. They are also proud of the opportunities which they offer to the students of this and other states, regardless of their racial or religious background. No one is more scrupulous than they to see that this record and these opportunities be maintained.

"The proposed legislation is unnecessary and unwise. Its most probable effect would be to increase prejudices which unfortunately still exist and which it and which the colleges by precept and example are striving so hard to diminish."

Business Here Protests Bills

Chamber of Commerce And Merchants' Bureau at Hearing Today

Two bills of major importance affecting business are being discussed at a public hearing this afternoon in the Senate Chamber of the State Capitol. They are Bill 729, the Corporation Business Tax, and Bill 731, the Unincorporated Business Tax. Representatives of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the local Retail Merchants Bureau are attending the hearing in opposition to the bills. These hearings are before the Finance Committee of the General Assembly.

Senate Bill 729, will provide additional revenue by raising the corporation business tax from 3 per cent to 4 per cent, and Senate Bill 731, will impose a tax of 4 per cent on net income over $5,000 on unincorporated business. The present tax on unincorporated businesses is one dollar per $1,000 of gross business done, or in the case of wholesalers, twenty-five cents per $1,000. The administration expects the new bill to yield nearly two and a half times the revenue now derived from unincorporated businesses.

Chambers Are Protesting

Members of the Chambers of Commerce throughout the state are strongly opposed to the plan and feel that no increased burden of taxes should be imposed at this time, but that the state government should be concerned with ways and means of decreasing the tax load by economizing and curtailing expenditures and by preventing overlapping in state offices. They feel that the Sales Tax, which amounts to about nine dollars a year for the average family, should bring in the necessary revenue.

Senator Charles S. House, and Representatives Frank D. Lonergan and Sherwood G. Bowers will attend these public hearings, and it is expected that they will voice the opinions of the Manchester small businessmen by opposing the bill. There are 88 type businesses that are now taxed in separate ways, and is the general opinion of merchants in town that they are being taxed to the limit now, and it would afford a hardship on them if any more taxes are levied.

Local Red Cross Chapter Approves Blood Program

Representative John D. LaBelle was appointed chairman of the National Blood Program committee at the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Red Cross held last night at the chapter headquarters. The Board unanimously voted to adopt the blood program and then named Representative LaBelle.

T. J. Miller, Red Cross chairman of the Manchester Chapter, outlined the program. He explained that it is being approved and adopted by many states and at present is operating very successfully in many towns and cities.

Manchester's Quota

Herman Heck, publicity man for the chapter, said the Manchester quota will be approximately one pint each year from one of every 25 residents. He added, 1,100 pints would be needed yearly.

Technical advice for the local blood program will be furnished by the Manchester Medical Society. Dr. Robert Keeney, Health Officer, endorsed the program. He felt there was a desperate need for a blood supply and it is always low and was strongly in favor of a state-wide program.

Manchester Medical Society is expected to approve and appoint three members to assist on technical advice.

William P. Glover was named as the hospital representative while Mrs. William P. Glover will serve as Donor Recruitment Chairman. The program will start September 1.

Several resignations were accepted at last night's meeting.

Elmer Woden resigned as chairman of the Finance committee and Adam Rhodes was appointed to fill the vacancy. Miss Mary Friedman resigned as Junior Red Cross chairman, effective June 25. No successor was named. Mrs. Myrtle Benson, canteen chairman, also submitted her resignation. A new chairman will be appointed at a later date.

Family Future Reason Given

Baldwin Not Considering Political Future In Acceptance

Stratford, April 27—(AP)—U. S. Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R-Conn) said today at his home here he was considering his family rather than a political future when he accepted a postwar the Connecticut Supreme court.

Baldwin said he had telephoned Senator Arthur Vandenburg (R-Mich) yesterday after accepting Democrat Gov. Chester Bowles' offer to be associate justice on the State Supreme Court of Errors, and had told him this.

He said he told Vandenburg the judgship was something he had pointed toward and wanted for many years, and that when the opportunity presented itself, he felt that this time his family, rather than his political party, should be considered.

Says Decision Final

Baldwin said he told Vandenburg and Senator Owen Brewster (R-Me.) in telephone conversations that his decision was final and was not made at the spur of the moment.

The senator appeared emotionally upset because of a statement reported made in Washington by Senator Ralph Bridges (R-N.H.) but declined to comment until he had an opportunity to see the statement in its entirety.

Bridges said he "just don't believe it. It's hard to understand how a Republican senator could do this at the time of appointment of a New Deal senator from Connecticut."

In commenting on remarks from Washington on the statement he felt he might be deserting the party at a time when his vote was needed in the Senate Baldwin said he expected to continue his legislative work until he takes his place in the State Supreme court next September.

All this is dependent upon confirmation of his nomination by the Connecticut General Assembly.

The Republican senator declared he will be in the Senate for all important votes and business which will be coming up in this session of Congress. The surmise that he would not be seemed to be the basis for partisan comment in Washington.

To Resume Hearings

Baldwin said the Malmedy massacre hearings, for which he is chairman, will be resumed Friday.

Baldwin has been besieged with telephone calls from all sections of the state and nation at his Stratford home. Among calls the day was one by Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.)

Both Senator and Mrs. Baldwin said they have had little opportunity for peace and quiet since last night due to constant telephone calls. Both Baldwins stated they are being grateful for the many messages of congratulation and best wishes.

Baldwin said he planned to be in Hartford tonight to attend the annual dinner of the Laurel club. The club is composed of newspapermen covering the state Capitol.

He said he would return to his home in Stratford later and would leave tomorrow morning from the airport to fly back to his Senate desk.

Jury Dismisses Mrs. Runde's Suit

New Haven, April 27—(AP) — A U. S. district court jury has dismissed a $17,500 damage claim made by Mrs. Ella Runde of Manchester against the Manufacturer's Casualty Insurance Company of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Runde was seeking to recover for injuries claimed to have been received three years ago, when a car in which she was a passenger was involved in a collision in Bridgeport. The car was owned by Mrs. Laurinda A. Gomes of West Haven and operated by Robert D. Leonard, formerly of West Haven and now of Rocky Hill.

A statement accompanying the jury's verdict for the defendant, explained the decision was reached upon the jury's determination the car was not being used with the permission of the owner upon the occasion of the accident. It also said the owner or the operator did not give required written notice to the company as soon as practicable after the accident.

Counsel for Mrs. Runde indicated he would appeal the decision in the Circuit Court of Appeals. Mrs. Runde formerly was granted a $15,000 judgment against Connecticut in Bridgeport Superior Court. When the sum was not paid to her, she brought action in the Federal court against the company.

Laurel Club's Dinner Tonight

State Capitol, Hartford, April 27—(AP)—The strife on Capitol Hill will be stilled temporarily tonight while the 40th anniversary dinner and gridiron show of the Laurel club takes place at the Hartford club with a capacity attendance.

Governor Bowles and former Gov. James C. Shannon will be the featured speakers at the "off the record" session at which U. S. Senators Raymond E. Baldwin and Brien McMahon also are scheduled to speak.

Members of the Legislature and political leaders from all parts of the state will attend the affair at which Capitol newspapermen and political writers lampoon the politicians in a series of skits built around doings on the legislative scene.

Seek Reasons Sullivan Quit

fear that Johnson's action might lead to additional splitting away of Naval functions and added:

"However, even of greater significance is the implication of action on the part of the secretary of defense in so drastically and arbitrarily restricting the plans of an armed service without consultation with that service."

Sullivan emphasized that construction of the carrier had been approved by the president and the Senate and House Armed Services committees.

He also stressed that Congress last year voted the funds to start it and the House two weeks ago approved extra funds to keep the work going.

Johnson replied with this brief statement: "I regret very much that my old friend and colleague, John L. Sullivan, has joined the aircraft carrier issue on personal grounds, and I believe that he, too, will soon regret his action."

Like Bridges, other Republicans felt that the Army-Navy feuding should try to get the resigning official's views in more detail.

Republican Senate Leader Wherry (Neb.), told reporters: "I think Sullivan should talk to Senator Sullivan." Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.), also a committee member, said he thought Sullivan might have some "very helpful information for Congress."

The matter probably will come up for discussion at a regular meeting of the armed services committee Thursday.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services committee was applause from house lawmakers when he praised Johnson for canceling the carrier contract.

"We cannot afford the luxury of two strategic Air Forces," Vinson said in a one-minute speech.

Like all other senators who commented, Hydrick said he was sorry to see Sullivan resign.

"Mr. Sullivan has cooperated for unification and yet has insisted upon the Navy keeping its separate entity on purely administrative matters," Hydrick said.

Among those mentioned as a possible successor to Sullivan is Jonathan Daniels, editor of The Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer. Daniels is due in Washington today in his capacity as a member of the advisory board of the Economics Cooperation administration.

Such a visit customarily includes a stop at the White House for a visit with the president.

Will Hike Price Of Cigarettes

Hartford, April 27—(AP)—Cigarettes sold through vending machines in the Hartford area are slated to be boosted in price from 20 to 22 cents a pack, starting sometime next week.

Nathan Weil, manager of the Cigarette Vending Service company, says the first to announce the price boost. Other vendors said the 2-cent hike is being forced on them by wholesale cigarette sales by some retailers.

The vendors said the boost would go into effect as soon as machines are converted to take 25 instead of 20 cents. Time also will be needed to include three-cents change in each pack.

Fire Destroys Autos, Garage

Cause of the Blaze on Pine Street Is Not Yet Determined

A 1947 Mercury club coupe, a 1935 Plymouth sedan and a 1937 Chevrolet sedan were destroyed last night in a fire at the rear of 95 Pine street. Companies 1 and 2 of the South Manchester Fire department answered the call, sounded at about 6:30, and kept the flames from spreading to nearby dwellings.

Joseph Vesco of 9 Walnut street is the owner of the sedan and Walter J. Phillips of 11 Walnut street owns the coupe. Some parts of the coupe may be salvagable, it was said today. The garage is owned by Otto Muller of 10 Elm Terrace.

Although a slight circuit in one of the cars and a rubbish fire burning near the garage have been suggested as probable sources of the blaze, Fire Chief Albert S. Foy said today the cause of the fire is as yet undetermined.

The alarm was turned in from Box 27 at the corner of Pine and Walnut streets by an unidentified person. The smoke pouring into the sky brought many spectators to the scene. Patrolman John Chagnaro was on duty at the scene.

Baldwin Hit For Decision

occupant Dec. 16. Baldwin plans to resign from the Senate, presumably at that time, to be elected for a six-year term ending in January, 1953.

Baldwin's senate successor, to be named by Bowles, undoubtedly will be a Democrat. He probably will serve until November, 1950, when the congressional elections are held.

In announcing acceptance of the court assignment, Baldwin, who served as governor of Connecticut for three terms, said in Hartford that the Democratic majority in the Senate is "so wide" that "one vote one way or the other isn't going to make much difference."

The Democrats have 54 seats in the Senate at present and the Republicans have 42.

Tender Off Resentment

That Baldwin remark, as much as anything, appeared to have touched off the resentment expressed by several influential Republican senators. Nearly all of those who criticized Baldwin refused to permit the use of their names.

An exception was Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), who said:

"I just don't believe it. It's hard to understand how a Republican senator could do this. It means the appointment of a New Deal senator from Connecticut."

Calls Action "Outrageous"

One high-ranking G. O. P. senator privately called Baldwin's action "outrageous," and added:

"The Democrats in this Senate aren't united by any means. One vote next winter on such issues as President Truman's national health insurance program might mean the difference between defeating the program and putting it across."

Another Republican policy maker said Baldwin's move "could be politically disastrous for us," because control of the Senate conceivably could hinge on a one-seat majority for either party starting with the 82nd Congress in 1951.

Another Republican protested that Baldwin "is not a free agent to decide whether he will give up the place in the Senate to which he was elected." He said Baldwin "has an obligation to the people of his state and to the party."

Dislike Losing Good Vote-Getter

Some G. O. P. leaders in Baldwin's home state had much the same reaction, disliking to lose such a good vote-getter.

Baldwin's acceptance of the court post means Connecticut will elect two senators in November, 1950. The state's other seat is occupied now by Brien McMahon, a Democrat, who plans to run for re-election.

Senator Brewster (R-Me), co-chairman of the G. O. P. Senatorial campaign committee, said that with Baldwin's seat also on the block in 1950 in Connecticut "we are exchanging a certainty for a possibility" two years earlier than was expected.

Brewster Optimistic

But Brewster, whose party job is to recapture control of the Senate in 1950, said he is optimistic about getting up the two Connecticut seats in 1950.

"There are now 100,000 unemployed in the state and I am told there are about 250,000 workers on part time. The Democrats will have to do a lot of explaining of that condition."

The naming of Baldwin to the state court appeared to have removed him as a possible Bowles opponent in the Connecticut gubernatorial race next year. Brewster remarked that is the "obvious" political explanation of why Bowles appointed Baldwin.

indication, however, that they did so.

U. S. officials alerted reporters last night for possible developments at any moment.

The immediate question the U. S. wanted to clarify was whether Gromyko meant exactly what a Tass dispatch from Moscow said yesterday—that Russia would lift the blockade if the western powers agreed to a meeting of the heads of the Big Four foreign ministers to consider the whole German question.

The State department said in Washington that this apparently clear the way for a lifting of the blockade, but further talks were needed to make sure there were no strings attached.

Truman U. S. wants to know exactly what Russia would mean by "lift the blockade." It also would be necessary to discuss some sort of timetable.

Then, possibly in a more formal meeting including Britain and France, arrangements could be worked out for the Council of Foreign Ministers to meet, the place and date could be decided and the agenda could be formulated.

Western sources were particularly concerned as to whether Russia has changed her attitude on the arrangements now going forward for the establishment of a west German state. The Tass dispatch made no reference to this issue which previously had been a stumbling block.

The western powers insisted that they could not agree to any delay or suspension of the plans for the proposed new state as a condition for the lifting of the blockade. One western spokesman said whether the door still was open to unification of Germany would depend on the Council of Foreign Ministers, if and when it meets.

Wandering Children Here Keep Policemen Busy

Police Chief Herman Schendel and other members of his department has been called on several occasions during the past week to assist lost parents in finding their wandering children.

Children, ranging in age from two to four, have been found by policemen after receiving calls for help. Especially all cases in the past have resulted in youngsters going to either Center Springs park and pond or Memorial Field.

pressure" to push through their program.

Referring to Wechler's recent announcement that the Senate would go on a longer week effective next Monday, Knowland asserted that it appeared that the longer week would be "devoted to party politics."

Senator Stanley Stroffolino (R-Rockville) told the Senate the Republicans too had a legislative program which demanded attention.

"The Republican program has been knocked down because of pure politics—impure politics," he said.

When another bill came up for consideration and Wechsler asked that it be placed at the foot of the calendar, Senator Thomas H. MacWhinney (R., Essex) inquired the reason for the request.

Wechsler replied his party wanted to give it more study.

MacWhinney remarked:

"I just wanted to know who was going to be whipped this time."

He said about a half dozen bills were placed on the foot of the calendar.

Says Maneuver Won't Work

Republican Leader George C. Conway, during a partisan debate in the house on a Republican-sponsored deficiency appropriation measure, flatly asserted that Wechsler might as well abandon his foot-of-the-calendar maneuver because "it just won't work."

The Republican leader said the tactic was one of "coercion" to force approval of "hysterical legislation they (the Democrats) send down to us.

"We wells of cooperation are fast drying up," he declared.

The Republican-controlled House today adopted an $8,102,500 deficiency appropriation bill, about half the size of the deficiency appropriation approved yesterday in the Democratic-controlled Senate.

Harshly Worded Debate

The House action, taken by voice vote, followed a harshly worded debate during which each party accused the other of holding up important legislation.

Even as the House acted, the Senate-approved deficiency appropriation measure lay on its desk with leaders of the Democratic minority urging that it be taken up instead.

Rep. Nelson Carpenter (R., Canterbury), Appropriations committee chairman, told the House that the $8,102,500 did not include a $6,483,000 item for the Interior department nor items in two deficiency appropriations previously approved by the House but not acted on in the Senate. These bills provide $1,200,000 to pay a cost-of-living bonus to state employees and $355,000 to care for the immediate needs of four state departments.

Those two items, plus the Highway department's $6,483,000, are included in the Senate's deficiency appropriation bill.

The Highway department has asked for the money as an advance on its budget for the next biennium so that it may award contracts immediately without waiting until the new fiscal year starts July 1.

Says Character "Paintsed"

Carpenter said the Republicans planned to handle that as a separate bill because the Democrats "falsified the character of the appropriation" by calling it a deficiency.

Rep. John P. Cotter (D., Hartford), the minority leader, called the Republican method of handling the deficiency as of "utter confusion," and urged approval of what he termed the Senate's "overall" bill.

"It is beyond me to explain," he said, "why we must devote so much time to such silly political tactics when there is such a tremendous backlog of unfinished business to be considered."

Seizing on Cotter's remark about the "backlog of unfinished business," Republican Leader George C. Conway of Guilford charged that it would not be cleared up "until the political ambitions of people in the Senate are satisfied."

Charges Bills Held Up

He accused the Democrats of holding up House-approved bills liberalizing the laws on old age assistance and aid to dependent children, and Cotter shot back that the Republicans were blocking labor and housing legislation.

Without mentioning names, Conway asserted the Republicans had learned "from relatively high quarters" that there were "means of cooperation" in which differences between the two parties might be resolved.

But, he declared, "the General Assembly has been subjected to ridicule and bombast inspired by the legislative impotence and deception of the people who were saying these things."

Governor Bowles, in his inauguration address, stressed that he believed there were means "short of agreement" that would permit the rival parties to get together on legislation.

Would Affect Payroll

In introducing the deficiency appropriation, Carpenter told the House that unless some action were taken the state comptroller's office would be unable to meet its payroll, that the state police department could not make "legal purchases" and that various other departments and institutions including the Highway, Welfare and Health departments and the Connecticut Thames sanitarium would be hard pressed for funds.

The situation would get worse, the committee chairman asserted, if the delaying tactics of the Senate Democrats" continued.

A deficiency appropriation is not needed because the state is without funds, but legislative authorization is needed to allocate funds to various departments and institutions.

Carpenter said there would be an $11,000,000 surplus in the general fund when the fiscal year ends.

Valley Authority Favored

Reported favorably in the Senate was a resolution calling on congress to establish a Connecticut Valley authority similar to the TVA but adapted to "local conditions."

Approved by the Senate and sent to the House were bills which would:

Permit the Amvets to acquire property in the same manner as other veterans organizations.

Provide representation on the state military council for the air force and the artillery.

that control of all Germany is one of the main objectives in the cold war. Western officials are convinced that the Russians want to control all of Germany including the west into a Communist state; the aim of the western powers is to make the entire area a western democracy.

And since Germany is the heart of Europe and one of the world's great production centers, neither side appears likely to budge an inch on this main objective. That being true, officials say it is difficult to see what could be achieved in a four power meeting on Germany.

Nevertheless it is felt that if the Russian new offer is genuine it will clear the way for it by lifting the blockade the western powers must explore this possibility for reaching an east-west settlement. They must debate means whether there has been any basic change in Soviet policy and prove the fact to the world if there has not.

Extreme Care Used

The State department's statement yesterday was worded with extreme care in one respect. In saying that "the way appears clear for the lifting of the blockade and a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers" it first laid down a big "if." The proviso is that the Russian proposals, as now officially, should be exactly the same as the proposal given by the Tass (Russian) news agency.

This proviso had no strings attached except the requirement for a foreign ministers meeting which the Russian proposal also called for said they would accept if the blockade was lifted first.

The proposal came out publicly after negotiations between Ambassador Jacob A. Malik and A. Malik, Soviet member of the U. N. Security Council, beginning last Feb. 15.

The department statement indicated that at no time in his talks with Jessup had Malik declared a Russian withdrawal to act on that single condition. The implication was rather that the Russians expected some sort of stoppage in the plans for creating a western German government and were angling for that result.

Plans to Go Forward

State department officials therefore said privately (as Gen. Lucius D. Clay, military governor of Germany, said publicly in Germany) that there would be no reason why the West should be blamed for "striking" match that caused $2,500 cottage fire in Lynn, Mass. . . . rumors that neither bill will be passed at all.

Intend to Kill Both Measures

Some supporters of the Lesinski bill are saying that Republicans and southern Democrats really intend to kill both measures, leaving the Taft-Hartley act on the books as is.

The opening debate yesterday didn't produce any new arguments.

The Truman Democrats took the position that the November election was a mandate for repeal of the Taft-Hartley act. This was a vision "union-busting device," and the Wood bill is just the Taft-Hartley act all over again.

Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich) and Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va) argued that the Taft-Hartley act, although not perfect, protects the public. The Lesinski bill would repeal every single provision of that law, and the Lesinski bill is written so as to be "impossible" to amend.

Sports Roundup

Washington, April 27 —(AP) Clark Griffith, 80-year-old owner of the Washington ball club, reports his team isn't as bad as it has been looking —probably it couldn't. . . Griff explained "I wasn't looking for everybody except Gil Coan to stop hitting at once." Another astounding explanation that just turned up here came from Al Evans, who failed in the district qualifying test for the P.G.A. golf championship. Al said: "I wasn't using enough club on the greens." . . . George Sauer, who just wound up spring football drills at the Navals Academy and hit the road to promote three schoolboy stars hang out, figures he has potential varsity starters at every position last season undistributed plus a 195-pound quarterback from Algoma, Wis., who is a very tough lad to hold off his feet, and Frank Hauff, a halfback from St. Louis.

Seems that Sankey Blanton, head of Wake Forest's school of religion, entered a small town hotel in Tennessee just in time to hear that all rooms were occupied, making a desperate bid, Blanton carried his Wake Forest-labeled luggage to the desk and received a warm welcome. . . "Of course I have a room for Peahead Walker" the clerk told him. "But nobody else could get one" . . . Blanton protested he wasn't a football coach and, his name really was Sankey Blanton, but the clerk insisted: "I know you're in disguise, Mr. Walker, and everybody in Tennessee knows you since you came over here and beat Bob Neyland's team." . . . Peahead's only comment when he heard about it: "You've darn lucky to know me."

End of the Line

Chicago newspapers are blasting the White Sox and Cubs for letting Johnny Groth, a Chicago boy, get away to Detroit. . . . Seems that Johnny used to play in kid football games and was thinking of going to Notre Dame when Wish Egan waved that $50,000 under his nose. . . . The Cubs and the Sox, they say, don't have as good scouting systems as Frank Leahy, Billy Hassett, who was been playing basketball with the Tri-Cities Blackhawks in the National League, is reported in the the Georgetown coaching job vacated by Elmer Ripley. . . . Back in 1878, the University of Illinois student newspaper reported: "The baseball nag its cover knocked off. There is nothing but literary exhibitions this week." . . . Cancer Drive Given Boost

Local Industrial Companies Contribute $1,000 to Campaign

Added by most generous donation from Cheney Brothers, the Ellis Coat company and the independent Cloak company, the current Cancer Fund drive has pushed up the sum of $1,000, getting the total part of the campaign off to a really satisfactory start. In initial report on progress, Robert Spencer, retail chairman, commented on the liberality of the firms mentioned above, as well as several proportionately large amounts resulting him from smaller establishments.

All retail contributions, regardless of size, will be acknowledged through the press before the end of the drive on Saturday.

To insure complete, accurate coverage of every firm, Mr. Spencer urges all merchants to make sure that their donations reach him by Friday.

Now that $500 from the Independent and Ellis companies and $500 from Cheney Brothers have given all added impetus to the drive, all remaining merchants and establishments are asked to contribute an amount, not only according to their means, but including an extra something that will represent business good will. Aim is to the 100% need for helping cancer sufferers, now and in the future.

Bowers in Town Court this morning. Bond was set at $500 in both cases. Screwball Bill Hit by House

Measure Would Eliminate Phone Charges Between Four Towns

Hartford, April 27—(AP)—A bill which Senate Minority Leader Charles S. House, Manchester Republican, announced he would call "screwball legislation," was passed by the Democratic-controlled Senate yesterday afternoon.

The measure would eliminate telephone charges between the towns of Ansonia, Derby, Shelton and Seymour.

Arguments for the measure were made by Garrett Burkitt, Republican, who charged that the Public Utilities Commission had "not acted fairly" in approving a hike in the toll rates between the communities from five to 10 cents. He said that the tolls are creating an economic and social barrier between four communities which, he contended, are an economic entity because they are so closely grouped.

Viewed "Unconstitutional"

Senator House, who opposed the bill, not only labelled it "screwball legislation," but said that it probably was "unconstitutional" as well. He was joined in opposition by two other Republicans, Senator William H. Dillon of West Hartford, and George Griswold of Greenwich, both of whom declared that the legislation would "interfere" with the functions of the PUC and might establish precedents.

Thus bill went to the House where it will be considered either Friday or Monday.

Other bills passed by the Senate yesterday:

Designating U. S. Highway 6 as the "Grand Army of the Republic Highway," authorizing the trustees of the will of David Watkinson to transfer some funds in the trust to the Hartford Orphan asylum, and permitting guardians of minors or incompetent persons to invest in life insurance and annuities.

Boys May Face Serious Charge

Arthur, Ill., April 27—(AP)—Two boys who beat and shot a 57-year-old country school teacher in revenge for a spanking given them by her husband, face a possible charge of attempted murder today.

Sheriff Glen W. Braden said the boys, in statements, related that Titus shot Mrs. Nina Donahoo at the White school west of here yesterday. Mrs. Donahoo, shot in the groin, was in a hospital suffering from shock and loss of blood.

They are Miss Fennessey Canty, Waterbury, president; H. Chandler Hunt, Meriden, treasurer; Mrs. Helen S. MacFarland, Mansfield, past president and member of the Professional Standards commission. High Breaks Losing Streak, Triumphs 4-1

Nino Petricca Scatters Four Hits, Fans Ten, Allows But One Walk; Frey Triples Twice

Giving up but four hits and attacking only 30 men in the nine innings, Nino Petricca registered his first pitching win yesterday afternoon at Middletown, as the Red and White baseballers broke into the win column with a 4-1 victory. It was their first win in three starts, and pulled their CCIL showings up to .500.

Captain Bill Frey, with two triples, and Moe Silverstein, who collected a pair of doubles, led the local hitting attack. Although only six hits were chalked up by the winners, all were good for extra bases. "BSU" Moose Finnegan continued to specialize in his favorite department, as he rescued two tallies.

Petricca was extremely fast, setting down 10 Tigers via the strikeout route. After yielding a run on two doubles in the first, he settled down to fan six of the next in the last 25 outs. One hit was nullified, as the runner tried to stretch a fly to a double, and Jim Hawkes fired a strike to Finnegan. Hawkes walked only one, and Frey nailed him attempting to pilfer second.

Al Kowalski, unable to find the plate at times, gave up nine walks, but came out on the short end in the scoring.

The locals play host to Hamden Thursday afternoon at the West Side Oval as they go to the post for the third time this week.

Local Sport Chatter

Ed Chapdelaine, a sophomore at Boston University, is a member of the Terrier crew team and has clinched a varsity position. Last year the local crewman sparked B.U. to several impressive victories.

Willie Oleksenski and Mickey Murphy received recognition for outstanding activity in sports earlier this week at Hillyer College. Both played varsity baseball last season for Coach Phil Carlson's Fighting Hawks. Oleksenski is at present a shortstop with the baseball team.

Billy Pagani reports he has the signed contracts of Eddie and Andy Ragauskas and Iggy Miller for his West Side baseball team. Miller is a pitcher while the Ragauskas brothers are infielders. Pagani also expects to sign Lefty Persian, a fine hurler.

Roy Hagedorn unveiled a new Offenhauser powered midget car at Springfield's Cherry Park in Avon. Roy's new creation is the sixth car, since the war, he has carried the same number, nine, as his Hagerty cycle which Jimmy and Frey nailed him attempting to pilfer second.

Al Kowalski, unable to find the plate at times, gave up nine walks, but came out on the short end in the scoring.

The locals play host to Hamden Thursday afternoon at the West Side Oval as they go to the post for the third time this week.

Expand 1952 Olympic Games

Two Winter Sports Are Added; Detroit May Be Site of Contest

Rome, April 27—(AP)—The 1952 Olympic games program will be expanded, rather than trimmed down.

That was settled yesterday by the International Olympic Committee. Next important item on the agenda is the selection of the site for the 1952 games and the committee is hopeful that a decision will be reached by Friday evening. Among those making bids for that award are Detroit, Melbourne, Buenos Aires and Mexico City.

Secret discussions of the past two days regarding a proposal to cut the 1952 program resulted in the I.O.C. voting it down. Actually two winter sports were added but otherwise, only minor changes of an administrative nature were made following full study of the Olympic charter and rules.

Otto Mayer, chancellor of the I.O.C. secretariat, said too many countries were opposed to streamlining the '52 schedule for such a proposal to succeed. Helsinki, Finland, host for the next summer games, originated the proposal to trim back the program to the package of Chicago, U. S. Olympic boss and vice president of the I.O.C.

The winter sports to be added at Oslo in 1952 were first dropped since 1936, and the northern game of "orientation," a Scandinavian suggestion. Contests also in the winter sport program showing points they must locate and cross on skis. The one finding all the points and getting home first is the winner.

The "military patrol" ski game will be erased from the winter schedule because it is purely military and not properly Olympic, for everybody. It will be replaced by the "combined patrol" cross-country ski sport, proposed by Sweden, which involves civilians as well as the military.

A Helsinki suggestion to shift fencing and wrestling from the summer to the winter program in 1952 was discarded.

Joe Louis Makes Debut as Promoter

Detroit, April 27 —(AP)— Joe Louis makes his debut as a promoter tonight.

The former heavyweight champion will stuart his new career by staging a boxing show in his home town.

Three 10-rounders, a six-round preliminary and a four-round exhibition featuring world featherweight champion Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., are on the program at Olympia Stadium.

As a promoter, Joe didn't disregard the build-up.

With Louis at ringside will be former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey, referee in two of his prime, Ellis Ask of Philadelphia, who opposes Pep in the exhibition.

Joe's press agents have made much of Dempsey's presence in the city.

Most of the principals on Louis' initial program are "unknowns" to Detroit fans.

The 10 rounders Lester Felton, unbeaten Detroit welterweight, takes on Sandy Dykes of San Antonio, Tex., Luther Burbank, Chet Martinez, Ernesto Mesta Miguel Acevedo of Cuba; and Luther Rawlings, Chicago lightweight, faces Art Aragon of Los Angeles.

The opening six-rounder sends Glen Flanagan of St. Paul against Baby Alvarez of Mexico.

Tony Zale Announces Retirement From Ring

Veteran Middleweight Surrenders $60,000 Guarantee for Bout With Marcel Cerdan

Chicago, April 27—(AP)— Tony Zale, with enough gumption to admit that he is over the hill, has retired from ring after a brilliant, rough career.

In making his decision, the "Man of Steel" whose age has made him a hit rusty, surrendered a $60,000 guarantee for a return bout with Marcel Cerdan. The Frenchman won Zale's middleweight boxing crown on a 12th round technical knockout in Jersey City last Sept. 21.

The two battlers had been rematched at New York's Yankee Grounds June 21. Zale, who will be 36 next month, was assured of at least $60,000 as his share.

The Tournament of Champions promoting firm met plans to give veteran Steve Bellisse or possibly battle-scarred Jake LaMotta, the Bronx bull, a chance at Cerdan in either June or September. A Sugar Ray Robinson-Kid Gavilan welterweight title tilt may be on the same card.

Doting father of two young daughters, will not hang up his gloves. He will wear them in the role of chief instructor training lads of Chicago's Catholic Youth Organization how to fight.

"I looked bad against Cerdan," said Zale, a clean-living family man who rarely strays with Rocky Graziano made ring history. Zale's relief Fee passed a mighty. It was to satisfy my pride that I wanted to meet Cerdan again. But now I'm satisfied to rest on my past."

It took some convincing by Jacques Sabele's decision by Managers Sam Pian and Art Winch. They had passed up a neat managerial cut from the Cerdan match to insist Zale retire—"for his health and his family."

The two managers did the same with Joey Medill, Earl Mastro, Solly Shuman and Barney Ross in the past.

Zale used to keep in condition working in the steel mills of his home town of Gary, Ind. He held the middleweight crown from 1940 to 1948 except for a brief time in 1947 when he lost to Graziano in the second of their three fierce encounters. He regained his title from Rocky last June 10 at Newark, N. J., flattening him in the third round.

Zale thus equalled the feat of the immortal Stanley Ketchel in recapturing his middleweight honors by knocking out the man who dethroned him.

Zale's three battles with Graziano paid him $286,262, a record record for middleweights. Their second engagement in Chicago Stadium July 16, 1947—a gruelling exchange of knockdowns with Graziano being declared the winner in the sixth round—drew the largest indoor gate in boxing history, $422,918.

Zale extended his earnings to $862,962 by defending a $100,000 guarantee for risking his title against Cerdan.

Fast Getaway of Yankees No Surprise to Vet Scout

New York, April 27—(AP)— The fast getaway the Yankees have made in the American League race comes as no surprise to Paul Krichell, the veteran scout who heads the club's scouting staff.

"We did little else in spring training," he snorted indignantly. "Fifth or sixth wasn't it. They're supposed to be still 10 or 15 games out of contention."

Billy Johnson's slugging since Manager Casey Stengel gave him the call at third over Bobby Brown, the "Golden Boy", is a great source of satisfaction to Krichell.

"A great all-round player, that kid is," he said. "Playing anywhere. First time I ever saw him over in New Jersey, he was pitching and playing the outfield. He could have been a fine pitcher. Just wing them all around. Maybe got ball club, and it'll get better."

The Yankee players, themselves, are only hoping they can match up at or near the top with Joe DiMaggio is able to add his big bat to their attack.

There is no indication when the day will come, though it could be any time now. The lean slugger is walking on his bad heel without a noticeable limp and is watching games at the Stadium from the runway leading to the Yanks dugout. He intends to accompany the club on its first western trip so it would have been superfluous to inquire about his hitting.

"He's improving every day," avowed the scout, himself a big leaguer back in the 1900 decade. "All he needs to learn is a little more footwork in order to develop more confidence in his throwing. He has a great arm, but he hesitates to use it. He'll get over that as he goes along."

Grace Lenczyk Tops Mrs. Allen

National Champion and Pat O'Sullivan Gain Quarter Final Round

Pinehurst, N. C., April 27.—(AP)—Seven of the top nine qualifiers were ready for their second match play test today as the 47th annual Women's North and South Golf Tournament got down to the quarter-finals stage.

In only one case during first round play yesterday did the form of the qualifying play fail to hold up under the pressure of match competition.

Mary Agnes Wall, Michigan champion from Grosse Pointe, qualified with an 82, fell before Ruth Woodward of Pinehurst, 3 up, in the day's lone upset. Miss Woodward had qualified with an 83.

Other favorites, led by National champion Grace Lenczyk, prevailed. The Lenczyk cause they had to hustle in the face of unexpected opposition by lesser competition.

The first day's scrambling set up a four-match slate like this for today:

Miss Lenczyk vs. Mrs. J. D. Allen, Jacksonville, Fla.; Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn., vs. Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., in upper bracket.

Peggy Kirk of Pinilay, Ohio, vs. Mrs. Frank Stranahan of Boston, together with Mae Murray of Rutland, Vt., vs. Betty Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill.

Miss Lenczyk had no romp over Mrs. Allen. The 44-year-old Virginian who had to play off to qualify after shooting an 88 to her Hartford, Conn., rival's record 70, made the champion sweat right along. Grace was two up at the turn, but needed a one-under women's par 36 to do it. The eventual margin was 4 and 3.

Miss Kirk was two down after four holes against Jo Anna, South African star, but recovered for a one up lead with an outgoing 39. The final was 4 and 3.

Miss Lindsay pulled out a 5 and 3 decision over 20-year-old Ann Mackenzie of Charlotte after shaky start.

Miss O'Sullivan had her short game working against Mrs. H. L. Berg of Minneapolis. She caned the 1948 runner-up twice five straight holes from the fifth hole on. Pat turned in a creditable 38 and walked off with a 7 and 5 victory.

The day's easiest triumph went to Mrs. Page, North Carolina champion, seeking her eighth North and South title. She opened with four winning fours and closed out Pinehurst's Mrs. Karl H. Abbott, 7 and 6.

Mrs. Platt, who could be troublesome to the champion, Miss Lenczyk, zoomed into a three lead at the turn, but faded home to lose 2 holes.

Stocks Champion At Avon Track

Avon — Red Cummings, 1948 champion of the New England Stock Car Racing Association, will be featured in the first stock car racing show under lights at Cherry Park Speedway tonight.

A minimum of 35 cars will make the fast quarter mile track, the first qualifying heat of the 8-event program scheduled to get the feature green flag at 8:30 p.m.

Cummings, a Massachusetts resident, is a red hot favorite on Lonsdale Speedway in Rhode Island where crowds of 10,000 have been recorded at a single stock car meet.

He employs the same dashing style used by Bill Schindler in midget competition. Cummings is strictly a amateur, in the sense he a retread from ranks of the small car drivers in the low point standing brackets.

Fates at the speedway will open at 7 p. m. with the warmup period slated to start at 8 p. m. There will be no time trials as all cars are registered in the Association's point standings.

Basketball

Fort Wayne, Ind. — National Basketball League Western championship coach, Murray Mendenhall of Anderson Packers, to the rival Basketball Association of America. Mendenhall will coach Fort Wayne Pistons.

Each Started Three Games With No Wins

Dodgers Defeat Braves; Coleman's Home Run Supplies New York's Margin of Victory

By Joe Reichler
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Jansen and Ken Raffensberger failed last night in the Giants-Larry Jansen are being tabbed today as the two biggest early season pitching flops of 1949.

Counted on to carry their teams this year following superlative '48 seasons, both have been terrific disappointments. Each has started three times with nary a victory.

Sain, whose 18 triumphs last year was the biggest single factor in bringing the first National League pennant to Boston in 34 years, currently owns an unglorious 0-3 won and lost record.

Jansen, fortunate in being backed by heavy hitting support, has been charged with only one defeat, but the Giants haven't won any of the games started by Jansen.

Both had extremely rough sledding yesterday. Sain, who previously had been beaten by Philadelphia and Brooklyn from the mound by the Giants, managed to go the distance, but he and his Braves were handed a 5-2 shellacking by the Brooklyn Dodgers in Ebbets Field. The Boston hurler was tagged for nine hits, including a pair of Home Run Jackie Robinson-Gil Hodges relays engineered the triple killing.

Lasts six innings

Jansen still hasn't pitched a complete game. He lasted only six innings yesterday as the fighting Phils came from behind to nip the Giants 12-11 in Philadelphia. After the Giants had taken an 11-9 lead in the top of the 11th, the Phils came roaring back with three runs climaxed by Del Ennis' home run with a man on base.

Gerry Coleman, rookie infielder filling in for the injured George Stirnweiss at second base, engineered his first major league home run to give the first place New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. Coleman's round tripper came off Alex Kellner in the last half of the eighth with a mate aboard to erase a 4-3 Mackmen margin. Kellner had replaced starter Phil Marchildon in the first inning. The latter had complained of pain in his throwing shoulder while serving up to the first batter.

The Detroit Tigers moved into second place, a game and a half from the top, by taking both ends of a double header from the White Sox in Chicago, 6-2 and 7-5. The Tigers had to go 10 innings to win the second game.

Johnny Groth, Detroit's sensational rookie, clouted home the runs in the extra frame that gave Hoot Evers' pitcher Dizzy Trout the triumph. Groth also helped in the first game victory with a two-run homer.

Manager Leo Boudreau hit his first home run of the season and righthander Bob Lemon pitched his first shutout as the Cleveland Indians whipped the St. Louis Browns 1-0. Boudreau's clout came in the fourth and was one of the four hits allowed by Red Embree, a former Indian pitcher. Lemon now has a lifetime record of 13 wins and one loss against St. Louis.

Cleveland swept games between Washington and the Red Sox in Boston, and Cincinnati against the Cardinals at St. Louis were postponed by rain. Pittsburgh and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

Youth At The Throttle!

Hangood, Wales—(AP) — William Johnson, eight, wrote the British Railway administration that ever since his youth he has wanted to be a locomotive engineer. Wants to highball down the line.

He thinks he may still be a little young but asked that his name be put on the list for a job in 1956.

"Take there's my brother, now two, who wants to be a fireman on my train," William said in a postscript.

$3 Billions Spent for Flood Control Buys Only Feeble Protection for U. S.

Newest theory of flood control includes Department of Agriculture's soil conservation program aimed at curing badly eroded pasture, severe gullies and sheet erosion etched by the snow on the slopes of this New York farm.

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington — (N E A) — Although the U. S. government has spent close to $3,000,000,000 to protect its citizens against floods, progress has been negligible in achieving maximum flood control for the country.

In terms of money spent, number of miles of levees built and number of dams constructed, the job done appears impressive. Another bad flood year, however, would show only too clearly how feeble these efforts have been against the annual menace of floods.

The bulk of the effort so far has been made since 1928 by the Army Corps of Engineers. The great Mississippi flood of 1927 inspired Congress to accept flood control as a job for the Federal government, and it authorized the Corps to make studies of the main river basins in the U. S. and to start actual work on flood control along the lower part of the Mississippi.

To date the Corps has completed 172 local flood protection projects—not including the dams—and has 78 more under construction. Projects range in size from 2,800 miles of levees, built along the lower Mississippi—the biggest earth moving job in history—to minor repairs of levees on the tributaries of smaller rivers.

There have been several different approaches to the problem. Floodwalls have been built completely around some cities, to protect them from rising river waters. Many millions have been spent to improve river channels, so that means water can run more quickly to the sea without overflowing.

Another type of project in the local protection category is the floodway, a system of levees running parallel to the river banks some distance back from the actual stream. When the river overflows its normal banks, these floodways serve as an oversized channel to keep the river running in the general direction of the sea without spilling over into the countryside.

The Corps has completed 86 huge reservoirs and is building 44 more. There are many others in the blueprint and planning stage, on which no money for construction has been appropriated. Many of these dams also generate electric power, in addition to providing flood control.

In the western half of the U. S. and in the Missouri Valley, the Bureau of Reclamation has built eight giant dams and is working on 12 more. Although primarily designed for irrigation and electric power benefits, they also help in flood control. Reclamation's dams are called multi-purpose projects and are believed to offer the most efficient way to use the scarce water resources of the west.

The Tennessee Valley Authority is another water project not conceived solely to provide flood control. But the 16 dams completed by TVA, along with a complete program of soil conservation on the 26,000,000 acres of the Tennessee River watershed, have given that area maximum flood protection.

The newest theory of flood control, on which the government has spent the least money—only $17,500,000—is through soil conservation and reforestation by the Department of Agriculture. By planting field grass on barren plains, breaking up farms into strips of different kinds of crops, terracing, pasture improvement and constructing small ponds on farms, flood waters are kept at their source.

The theory of this approach is to try to keep as much rain as possible where it falls, rather than letting it flow through the various tributaries into the main stream to cause floods. During the floods of 1936, tests were made on land along the Mississippi. Ground that had its natural cover of grass and forests held 86 per cent of the water that fell on it, while the bare ground only soaked up 26 per cent of the excess rain.

In addition to lessening the severity of floods along the lower parts of a river, this method of flood control also saves millions of acres of farmland from wasteful erosion.

The $17,500,000 spent thus far for this type of flood control has financed the start of 11 projects in various parts of the nation. Ultimate cost of finishing them as estimated to be $89,000,000, less than it takes to build one small dam.

In spite of all these projects and all the money appropriated, the simple fact remains that the annual flood toll in the U. S. shows no tendency to decline.

Tolland County Safety Records

Hartford, April 27 — Tolland County stands unique among the eight Connecticut counties of the state, according to the Highway Safety Commission, because of being free of pedestrian traffic fatalities for two years in succession, 1947 and 1948.

According to records of the Department of Motor Vehicles, no pedestrian has been killed in Tolland County since 1946 when two cases were charged Vernon. This excellent record has been compiled despite steadily increasing traffic passing through the county on Route 5, the Cross Highway.

Tolland County also reports fewest traffic fatalities of all types year after year. For 1948 seven such deaths were charged the county as compared with six in 1947. Accidents for both years were the same, 737 cases. Personal injuries, however, were less—246 cases against 262.

Try Trees on Weather Forecast

Philadelphia, Pa.—(AP)—An industrial engineer reported here that scientists at three universities are measuring the electrical impulses given off by trees to aid in weather forecasting. By using a device known as an electronic potentiometer to chart the electrical impulses, the scientists have discovered that the trees react to storm days in advance of actual meteorological disturbances, a Brown Instrument Company engineer disclosed.

He said the complete parallel between oncoming storms and the trees' electrical pattern was not yet known, but the electrical impulses are believed to be caused by the reaction of cosmic rays on the growth cells of the trees.

Trend in Jobs Is Still Down

Unemployment Continues to Increase; Confined in Fewer Firms

Hartford, April 27—The downward trend in Connecticut employment continued in April. Reductions have been heavy each month since the first of the year. Layoffs have been substantial, although in many areas they're not nearly so widespread, not general as in February and March, but concentrated in fewer firms. Drop in amount has been cushioned by shortening the work week. Some firms are spreading employment by reducing hours. The reductions are still concentrated in metallic manufacturing. In February factory employment on Connecticut totaled 379,020. In March it dropped to 367,420, and first returns for April show an additional slide. Hours, too, have dropped further. In January the work week averaged 40.4 hours; in February, 39.7; and in March, 39.6. In addition some firms are operating on a week-on, week-off basis, while others are scheduling selected departments on a stagger system.

Textiles Off Further

Industries which reported the heaviest layoffs during the month, machinery, brass and electrical equipment, Textiles, too, showed a further drop with woolens and worsteds hardest hit. Orders are being received for the new 1949 fall and winter lines, but some manufacturers have reported that price seems to be limiting volume. In the apparel firms Connecticut's share of sewing machine operators have been eased, although considerable demand still exists in some areas.

Construction employment showed a gain in April, but much less than expected. Industrial and highway construction showed substantial increases but residential construction, particularly the private, single home variety, is lagging. Actual level of employment in the building trades, however, is high compared to previous years. The March employment of 27,900 was about 1,000 more than the year-ago total.

Unemployment in Connecticut is still rising and in the middle of April, reached 79,300—the highest level in ten years. Last month jobseekers totaled 68,000; in February, 58,300; and in January, 47,100. The major portion of the jobless is from the manufacturing industries, and virtually all occupational skills are included. The number of women unemployed increased substantially more than the number of men during the month, as apparel firms and other industries employing many women experienced layoffs. In April men comprised 64 per cent of the total as compared with 60 per cent in March.

Average weekly earnings dropped further in March for the third consecutive month. In the middle of March earnings of factory production workers averaged $55.02, in February, $56.67. The further reduction in hours was responsible for most of the drop. Average hourly earnings declined slightly from $1.38 in February to $1.37 in March.

The number of workers idle due to labor dispute was at a low level in April, with five disputes in progress affecting only a few hundred workers.

Australian Industry Booming

London—(AP)—Australia's industry is undergoing the "most spectacular" expansion in the country's history, J. B. Todd, assistant Trade Commissioner for Australia in London, says.

He says the end the war was followed by a flood of overseas capital" into Australia.

The development is particularly evident in the metal, machine, implement and conveyance group of industries where 193 companies have announced their intention of building new plants or expanding existing factories. Thirty-four of these firms are from the United States, Todd says.

Australia's major problem is a labor shortage and the government is sponsoring an immigration policy to ease it.

Although man invented glass about 9000 years ago, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica, he didn't invent window glass until more than 7000 years later. First mentions of window glass came at the end of the third century, A.D.

Ex-Sea Dog Trains Guns on Crime To Sink West's Booming Underworld

By Al Ostrow
NEA Special Correspondent

San Francisco—(NEA) — The underworld, from coast to coast, is keeping a wary lookout these days on California and the towering figure of a 78-year-old retired admiral who has sworn to smash organized crime and its masters.

As a boy, Admiral William H. Standley used to tag along with pirate ancestors by his father, then sheriff of Mendocino County, in pursuit of desperate criminals.

As a man, he lost sight of his childhood ambition to fight crime and fought the war instead. He served in the Spanish-American war, Philippine insurrection, Boxer uprising, Vera Cruz landings and World War I. His career seemed ended when he retired to San Diego after being President Roosevelt's ambassador to Moscow during the crucial period of World War II, and a member of the high-level board which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Then Gov. Earl Warren asked him to perform "one more public service" — chairmanship of the California Commission on Organized Crime.

California was uneasy over rumors that Eastern gangsters, hired by easy pickings and a post-war boom, were flocking to the West Coast, muscling into local rackets and busily setting up new ones.

The commission's job would not be easy. It had no authority to make arrests or to prosecute anyone. Its assignment was to uncover the facts about organized crime—the identity of its political protection — and report them to the public and legislature, along with recommendations for punitive action.

Because organized crime has nationwide ramifications, the commission put a staff of former FBI agents and Navy and Marine Corps combat intelligence officers to work tracing the carefully camouflaged links of the national crime setup.

They concluded that big time New York and Chicago mobs which had their inception in the Prohibition era are still functioning—and still capitalizing on public opinion. But the 1949 rackets empires have a new base—gambling.

A tightly organized nationwide slot machine syndicate rakes in two billion dollars a year income, the commission reported, and shells out an unusual $400,000,000 in bribes and inducements to local law enforcement officials for the privilege of operating without too much harassment.

The commission named Frank Costello of New York, one-time associate of Charles (Lucky) Luciano and Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, as the head of "The Combination"—a charge which Costello's attorney promptly denied. Costello himself claimed he couldn't even fix a traffic ticket in New York.

According to the commission, "The Combination" is engaged in a vast expansion program, taking over many new states and territories, with "Murder, Inc." the mob of professional killers thought to have been dissolved by a Brooklyn prosecution, serving as its "enforcement arm."

By murder and intimidation, Admiral Standley said, the old Capone Syndicate of Chicago has seized control of a nationwide bookie racing wire syndicate.

Extortion is the favorite game of the crime syndicates—with local gamblers and racketeers also are loathe to "holler copper" the primary targets. Later, the commission said, the gangsters extend their field to prey on legitimate business, too.

"Organized crime cannot exist without political protection," Admiral Standley declared. "We are out to expose the higher-ups as well as the general pattern."

The commission has urged the Federal Communications Commission to stop the nationwide bookie racing wire, and recommended adoption of a law already on the Minnesota statute books which would make mere possession of a slot machine a crime, and automatically revoke the license of any premises on which one-armed bandits operated.

Admiral Standley's investigation has already resulted in conviction of four men for slot machine conspiracy, indictment of two others, and discharge of a sergeant from the Los Angeles police force. But these are small fry.

Still hunting "big game," the Admiral and Governor Warren have asked the Legislature to extend the crime commission's life another year to permit completion of the investigation.

Sword Swallor Hungary for Bayonet

Lyon, France—(AP) —When the police returned sword-swallower Camille Pedebour a stolen suitcase containing the sabers that were his stock-in-trade, Pedebour sadly complained that a bayonet was missing. "That was my favorite which I ate most often," he declared. "It was a kind of aperitif for me."

Time to Spring Clean your Buick too!

Bright sun shining—new greenery showing—soft breezes calling you onto the highway—this is the season that Buick of yours was made for!

This is the time when you'll want to hear the sweet hum of its eager power, feel the lazy comfort of its easy stride, get the springtime feel of its thrilling action.

And you can have all that—with just a little attention to some simple things to shake the winter out of its bones.

For instance—the rusty sludge that has accumulated in your radiator should be cleaned out. Transmission and rear end may be low on lubrication, and should be checked. Crankcase oil should be changed to a summer grade.

The underside of your car has taken a lot of splashing on wet roads. Some of the chassis grease has been washed out, some of it fouled with mud and grit.

So it's time to drain out the dregs of winter. Time for a little of the knowing, loving care every Buick gets at the hands of our Buick-trained men, armed with Buick-developed tools, Buick-established methods, Buick-engineered parts.

It doesn't take long, doesn't cost much. But it goes a long way toward making old Buicks step out again like lively spring colts. How about stopping in—this week—to see about a spring rejuvenation for your faithful Buick?

Check your car—Check accidents!

Driving is twice the fun when you have complete confidence in your car—when you know that tires, brakes, steering, lights and the like won't let you down.

Altogether, there are 10 points to be checked for safety on any car. Bring your Buick in to us for a thorough going-over before setting off on your spring outing. We'll take the worry and hassle off your hands—so you can be carefree at the wheel.

Changes in Campus Made at Trinity

Hartford, Ap., 27—The south section of the Trinity College campus is getting a facel—including a 300,000 cubic foot mid pack.

A new road, a 200 car parking lot, and extensive landscaping of the south end of the campus hilltop are final steps in the 125th Anniversary Development Program alterations which brought Memorial Field House and Elton Hall dormitory to the south end of the campus last year.

The new parking area is near Hallden Engineering Laboratory on South College Lane with entrance from both Broad and Summit streets. It is midway between the college auditorium in the Chemistry Building and Memorial Field House.

Other projects which have involved the moving of more than 200,000 cubic feet of earth are conversion of the old parking lot to a limited reserve, a lawn and filling of low areas in the vicinity of the new athletic building. The projects are being carried out by the firms of E. B. McDuff, A. F Pensiero, Peter Casolo and C. A. Putnam.

English Get Health Plan Spare Parts

Birmingham, England—(AP)—Five thousand persons have applied for artificial eyes under Britain's socialized medicine plan.

There have been 120,000 applications for surgical appliances. Nearly 10,000 artificial legs have been ordered, and 3,000 supplied.

C. J. Simmons, parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Pensions, disclosed the figures in a speech here. The Ministry of Pensions handles such applications for the Ministry of Health, which administers the health plan.

Simmons said one application for an artificial leg was in behalf of an 15-months-old boy. The child lost his leg in an automobile accident. His name was not disclosed.

Stress Needs In Education

Teachers Group Seeks to Stimulate Public Interest in Campaign

The Connecticut Education Association has distributed a large number of leaflets, aimed at stimulating increased public interest in State Aid for Education, throughout the state. According to Lyndon Pratt, Executive Secretary, "Our aim is to inform the general public as to the basic issues in the over-all picture of Connecticut education. It would be short-sighted and tragic for the 1949 General Assembly to fail, regardless of the reasons, to make secure a proper education for the children of this state. Since so much public interest has been aroused in this vital matter, returns from the leaflets have pointed to, indicating widespread, conclusive support, especially of state aid for current expenses and buildings, from citizens in all walks of life and from all areas of the state. A tally of the returns is being made by the CEA and results will be made available to legislators before the issues are voted upon. These issues are so vital to all public-spirited people that it is a real necessity to make sure they understand what is at stake while time remains to enact suitable legislation."

As explained in the printed material distributed through the CEA, State Aid is needed to raise the state's contributions to towns by an amount equal to $40 per child; schools must be made available to the thousands of youngsters born during the war years, when provisions for building, or even repairing, schools had to undergo rigid cutting; more teacher-training material must be provided for the state-operated colleges; funds are badly needed for the construction of thoroughly adequate schools from the primary level up through college grade, including vocational schools.

It is also pointed out that inflation has shrunk the 1940 school dollar to sixty cents, that Connecticut's per capita income fourth highest in the nation, has climbed steadily since 1940, but in spite of that fact the percentage of income going to educational institutions has dropped in the same length of time from 2.6 to 1.5.

Local Distribution

Local distribution of pamphlets has been made to the League of Women Voters, all branches of the P.T.A., and to the membership of the Manchester Education Association through its Legislative Action Chairman, Miss Marion Casey, of the high school faculty. Miss Casey's committee has also been responsible for arranging to secure Dr. Raymond Fay to address the MEA about different phases of state aid on Thursday of this week. Among the bills pending, which deserve the most thoughtful consideration of every local taxpayer during the current building program, are Senate Bills 238 and 240, House Bills 482 and 896. The former would provide, from state funds, an appreciable amount toward per capita expenses of pupils; failure of this bill to pass would mean a forced reduction in the quality of educational programs, based on inadequate teaching equipment, too-large classes, sub-standard teachers. The House bills noted above would insure the state's sharing with the town costs of new construction, to the extent of approximately 40 percent; failure of the bill would undermine plans for further building by placing excessive burdens on the taxpayers. Manchester's present program of fortifying its school system, after many years of inactivity, would suffer a serious setback should unfavorable legislation cut down the amount of state assistance that the townspeople feel they are entitled to receive. Manchester's children deserve nothing but the very best; it is up to Manchester's adults to secure it for them, if humanity possible.

ECA Aids Iceland Fisheries

Paris — (AP) — Marshall Plan funds are saving Iceland's "lifeline" the fishing industry.

R. H. Fiedler, European Cooperation Administration fisheries specialist, said after a survey trip to Iceland that ECA funds are being used to modernize their fish processing plant and to outfit the herring industry.

The significant thing about the expansion of Iceland's fishing industry isn't only in saving it for Iceland, Fiedler said, "but it is providing animal protein food for Europe at a time when meat is in short supply."

More than a million miles of barbed wire are said to have been used by the combatants in World War I.

Interviewing Patient at Cancer Clinic Here

Mrs. Leona Reed, interviewer at the local cancer clinic maintained in conjunction with the tumor clinic, is pictured above at the Manchester Memorial hospital headquarters discussing treatment with an unidentified patient. The drive for funds in the local cancer campaign has passed the half-way mark. If donations are speeded up the quota will be reached when the drive officially ends on Saturday.

Plenty of Fun In Mardi Gras

Carnival Opens This Evening in Hollister St. School Auditorium

A rollicking Mardi Gras Carnival will arrive on stage at the Hollister street school auditorium this evening for a three-night stand. And everyone who has ever cherished a desire to attend the annual festival in New Orleans is advised to get his tickets as soon as possible for the local celebration.

"Mardi Gras," the fourth annual musical comedy to be present by the Co-Weds of the Center church will have its world premiere tomorrow evening. The entire show is an original piece by A. William Astley, (director of the Thespians in such successes as "The Rock" and "Love Leaves Mary," and previously an active participant in the Little Theater Movement in Mass.) while the music has been under the capable direction of his wife, Ruth Astley.

The plot will remain a secret until the performance; but the cast of eighty includes such well-known talent as: Beth Roscoe, who played the lead in "Blythe Spirit"; Ralph Lundberg soloist at the Center church; Rhoda and Harris Gibson, gifted dance-team; Merrill Adams, of "John Loves Mary" fame; Quentin Miller, Paul Ames, Harold Johnson, and a bevy of charming chorines.

A. William Astley

The King Zulu Parade promises to be one you will never forget and the pastoral love scene between Black Beauty Boy and Elsie will probably never again be duplicated. There will be more romance in the scenes with Snow White and her prince; and it is rumored that the Creole Girls could easily rival New York City's Rockettes.

Get your tickets early for either Thursday or Friday evening performances. The curtain goes up at 8:15

Reds Spend as Much on Arms In Year As U. S. and Great Britain Combined

By NEA Service

Chicago (NEA) — The Soviet Union spent as much money on armaments last year as the United States and Great Britain combined.

This revelation is made in an article on "Armies of the World," written by Brig. Gen. Hewitt Sibert in the forthcoming 1949 Britannica Book of the Year. Sibert was commanding general of the U. S. Army forces in the Antilles, and is a veteran of governmental intelligence work.

The Soviet Union professed to spend only 17 per cent of its budget on its military forces, the article points out. However, an analysis of allocations, "including the expense of assisting the military forces of other eastern European powers," placed the outlay in the neighborhood of 20 billion dollars, at the existing rate of exchange.

Thus, Gen. Sibert's article declares, the Soviet expenditure on military preparations was "approximately the combined total of the US and British outlays."

The Soviet Union maintained last year about 4,000,000 men under arms, of whom about 40 per cent were believed to be in Russia, 30 per cent in Germany and eastern Europe, 20 per cent in the Far East, and the remaining forces in the Caucasus. Gen. Sibert reports.

"The Russians maintained 100 divisions mobilized and in close to combat condition. Of these 26 were in Germany. More than half of the divisions in eastern Germany were armored, with a large proportion of the troops mechanized. Another nine Soviet divisions were in Poland.

"In addition to the Soviet divisions, reports continued to flow from the east concerning German units under Soviet command. A large proportion of the 246,000 police in the Soviet Zone of Germany were believed to come from those German units captured at Stalingrad.

The Red army held large-scale training exercises in Germany almost continually during good campaign weather of last year. "These exercises, conducted on corps and army basis, were undoubtedly directed as much toward the 'cold war' effect as toward actual training," the article comments.

India To Pay For British Military Stores

New Delhi — (AP) — India has agreed to pay Britain $400,000,000 for the defense stores and installations left behind in the subcontinent when the British left India, in 1947.

Finance Minister Dr. John Matthai told questioners in the legislative assembly that India agreed to make the initial payment on behalf also of Pakistan which was to reimburse India later. He added Pakistan's share of the liability was $30,970,000.

"Death" Was Not To Serious

Memphis, Tenn. — (AP) — Two o'clock in the morning, and a sudden sharp report like a pistol shot. Mrs. Ada Morris told herself it was nothing.

Then foot-falls and hushed voices. She crept to the window.

Shadowy forms were clustered around a power-pole on the street. She caught the word "...dead." The figures melted away.

Mrs. Morris grabbed a phone and called police.

But the utilities truck got there almost as soon as the police did, and put a new fuse in the switchbox.

Killed by Sound

Two scientists in Texas were successful in killing bacteria by producing sound waves of extremely high pitch with a nickel tube made to vibrate almost 8800 times a second by electro-magnetic coils.

Discussion Groups Formed By Local Women's League

The Provisional League of Women Voters of Manchester announces that four unit discussion groups are being organized throughout town. Any woman, whether or not a League member, is invited to attend.

Leagues throughout the country this year are studying the United Nations. This topic was discussed generally by Mrs. John S. Custer, State Resource Chairman of the League of Women Voters of Connecticut, at a membership meeting of the local League held last week. The unit discussion groups will carry on with the United National study and later in the year will discuss the Town Survey now underway.

Mrs. Edward Radtke, Mrs. Irving Gunderson, and Mrs. Augusta McPadden will serve as discussion leaders.

The groups will meet at the following times: Monday afternoon, May 2, 2:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Edward Brosnan, 83 Washington street; Tuesday evening, May 3, 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Radtke, 25 South Hawthorne street; Wednesday evening, May 4, 8:00 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Gunderson, Farm Drive; Wednesday evening, May 4, 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. M. S. Hathaway, 55½ Park street.

Each group will consist of fifteen to twenty people and will meet once or possibly more often each month. The time and place of meeting as published today may be changed after the groups have been organized for a few weeks.

Members of the Provisional League or interested women in the community are requested to telephone Mrs. M. S. Hathaway, or Mrs. Letitia Towle, about enrollment in one of the groups.

Men With Big Hearts Aid Sick Boy With Big Smile

By Joseph Agor
(NEA Special Correspondent)

Blakeslee, Pa.—(NEA)—Practically everyone likes "Buzz" Whitmer. Maybe it's the broad smile that comes to his face so easily; maybe it's because he quotes his brother, Mrs. Buzz Whitmer. Buzz is a "fine boy."

But Buzz is a sick boy, too. At the age of 12 doctors found him diabetic; at 17 he was pronounced tubercular.

Buzz is 26, and he has only one worry. He can no longer aid in the support of the neat little home his mother maintains for Buzz and a sister.

Buzz Whitmer: He tried to look serious.

His father, a miner, died more than 20 years ago. Buzz is an only son. One sister is married, another is working her way through a special nursing school. The third is working part time in a local textile mill.

Buzz this real name is Russell) worked when he had the strength. He dropped out of Shamokin High School for a semester because of ill health, then went back and completed his course.

The help that Buzz Whitmer needs to fight off two deadly diseases is shaping up in the form of the "Russell Whitmer Fund." A West End business man who knows Buzz started the whole thing, and soon had several others, including a well-known local physician, interested.

Recently, smiling as usual, Buzz was taken to a convalescent camp, where he probably will spend the next year. His physician friend made the arrangement for Buzz to enter Camp Hill. And he was driven there by another of his new-found friends, a busy business man who is one of the sponsors of the fund to pay the bill.

Young Buzz doesn't pity himself and he doesn't want charity. His buddies at Golden Gas Station, where the "bunch" gathers, will tell you a lot about Buzz. They may heckle and "needle" each other unmercifully, but to them Buzz is "a great guy."

The kids with the impulsive generosity of youth, have set up a "Buzz Box" in the gas station. The slot in the top of the box is for coins, and the coins will go into the Russell Whitmer Fund. The kids heard that treatment such as their favorite buddy needs calls for money. They don't have much money, but they're out to do their part.

At the Whitmer home, a small but brightly cheerful place, Buzz and his mother talked freely of the boy's condition. There was no embarrassment, no whining about their situation. In answer to a question concerning his ambition, Buzz smiled (always the big smile) and admitted he wanted to be a pharmacist. Realization of that boyish dream must now seem far away to the stricken youth.

Buzz readily consented when asked if he'd pose for the photographer. He tried to look serious when the bulbs flashed and he made a good job of it. His mother had only a small snapshot of her son, but sure enough, there on the little picture was the unconquerable smile.

Czechs Extend Phone Service

Prague—(AP)— Czechoslovakia is extending its overseas telephone connections, the Communist newspaper "Rude Pravo" says. In addition to facilities with most of the countries of Europe and the United States, it listed these as soon to be linked up:

Alaska, Bahama Islands, Barbados, Bermuda, Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Haiti, Hawaii, Honduras, Jamaica, Nicaragua, Panama, Puerto Rico, Salvador and Trinidad.

Beethoven Glee Club to Given Concert on May 2

On Monday evening, May 2, at eight o'clock the Beethoven Glee Club will appear in the High School Auditorium to present its Twenty-fourth Anniversary Concert. The chorus will be under the direction of Frederic E. Werner. Accompanist for this program will be Paul Chetelat.

Head Scarves Bring Memories

London—(AP)— A reader away up in Alloa, Scotland, wrote to the "Daily Mirror" to thank girls who wear picture scarves on their heads. Because of these, he said, "every morning my bus ride to work brings me new joys, new horizons, memories of old ones.

"One morning I saw a circus, with clowns and performing horses, and on another mosques and minarets. Later on I met pirates with golden earrings and kegs of rum.

"Every week I roam the world. I see the Taj Mahal, the racecourses at Alexandria, Naples and its lovely bay, Paris, lovely ladies languishing in the harems of the East.

"Thanks, girls, for those lovely day dreams and memories."

U. N. Helps Filipinos

Manila —(AP)— Three thousand needy Filipino children are being fed back to health by the United Nations. When the program begins running full speed 16,000 youngsters will be fed.

The program has been launched throughout the Philippines by the U. N.'s International Children's Emergency Fund. The Philippine government also is contributing Milk and meat will be served in 189 feeding centers, hospitals, child institutions and schools.

James E. McCall, Freeport, Ill., program manager, says the fund also will provide aid for 1,700 nursing mothers and expectant mothers.

Skates made by fastening animal bones to the runner on a wooden frame were invented in the 14th century.

Push Vacations on Farms

New York, N. Y.—(AP)— An unusual plan for the coming summer months which will increase farm incomes and broaden understandings between urban and rural people has been presented by Grange organizations to members in 12 states from Maine to Virginia.

The plan encourages farmers who have two or more spare rooms to take in city vacationers on a paying basis, and thus develop a new type of resort business in rural areas.

The project was originated by William F. Wolfe, New York representative, to provide a vacation for a city family who cannot afford a hotel or boarding house rate, and to give farm families a chance to earn money from their surplus rooms.

Will Succeed Sinatra

Bill Harrington, now with a Saturday matinee variety show on NBC, will succeed Frank Sinatra as the hit Paradis singer on NBC. He goes in June 4 simultaneously with the transfer of the program to the New York from Hollywood.

The first of May is always a double anniversary for Kate Smith, an NBC daytime regular for the last two seasons. Next Sunday is the 15th anniversary of her advent in radio via CBS, where she appeared so long. Also, it's her birthday.

Injection of new comedy elements in the Henry Morgan Sunday night radio show are being continued. The program started out with Henry and his regular stooge, Arnold Stang, then took on the comedienne antics of Patsy Kelly, and next Sunday is adding Clarence Hartsell. Mrs. Irving Lohr, chairman of the committee which was chosen to buy it, brought it to the meeting for display. The women voted $11 to the Mohnlake Laurel Girl Scout Troop which it sponsors. $1 was for the new credentials and $10 for a movie picture program the girls plan for the near future. Belgium Ex-Flying Diplomat

Bangkok—(AP)—Louis de San has a vast territory to cover in Belgium's charge d'affaires for Siam, Indo-China and Malaya, but he manages easily—by shuttles about by piloting a fighter plane over southeast Asia. Flying is nothing new to the 39-year-old diplomat. He has 1,800 hours to his credit, many as a British Royal Air Force transport pilot during the war. Before the war, Louis de San was a glider pilot. In fact, de San was glider champion of Belgium and later, when a secretary in Chungking, he set an American glider record for height.

Now, when he makes his longer trips—he flew to Bangkok in easy stages from his previous post in Teheran, Iran, two months or so ago—de San's attractive blonde wife Kiki, the former Leone Alice de Chaffoi de Courcelles, helps him pilot his plane.

The Doctor Says:

Growing Pains Pass in Time If Children Are Kept Quiet

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Children often have vague pains in their arms or legs usually called "growing pains." Probably youngsters with these pains merely have been growing as fast that their nerves and muscles have not quite kept up their proper relations.

Sometimes the curve of the spine, may not be just right, or crooked heels or bow legs are present which cause slight strains on the muscles or ligaments. In such cases in which the abnormalities are mild, plenty of sunshine, good food and the passage of time usually take care of the difficulty.

Serious abnormalities may be responsible in some cases. The help of an orthopedic surgeon in deciding whether braces or other mechanical measures are necessary is then desirable. A few children with growing pains seem to have something wrong with one or more of their internal glands. When present, this requires correction.

Occasionally the pains may be caused by diseased tonsils, adenoids or sinuses, and this is probably related to the muscular rheumatism which older people get.

Possible Connection

There is also a debate among medical men as to whether growing pains may be a mild form of rheumatic fever. Usually rheumatic fever comes on suddenly with swollen and painful joints and other characteristic symptoms. Rheumatic fever can and often does injure the heart. Since some children with growing pains develop heart trouble without any other typical signs of rheumatic fever, the possibility of a connection has to be considered.

Certainly children who have sever growing pains which last for very long should be examined by a physician to make sure that no permanent damage is being done and find out what can be tried to relieve the discomfort.

The Doctor Answers

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

Questions: I have a great deal of trouble with cold feet, especially just before going to sleep. The feet look white. What can be done for this?

Answer: This is some kind of disturbance of circulation. Whether it is caused by Raynaud's disease or some similar condition is hard to tell. A careful diagnosis is indicated. If nothing serious is found, soaking the feet in warm water before retiring might be helpful.

We, The Women

By Ruth Millett
NEA Staff Writer

"What do you think I'm made of—time?" an impatient mother demanded of her five-year-old son, who wanted to stop and examine an interesting toy as he was being yanked along on a shopping trip.

The five-year-old made no answer to the question, yet the wistful look on his face showed he knew the answer. Mothers should be made of time. That's what a child needs most.

He needs her to have time to answer his questions fully, instead of wearily brushing them aside.

He needs her to have time to listen, when he wants to talk, and to admire, when he acquires a new skill.

He needs her to have time for companionship with him—not just planned special events, but easy-going moments throughout the day.

Time to Teach

He needs her to have time to teach him things, to lend a hand when he is trying to do something that is just a little bit beyond him.

But most of all, he needs his mother to have time for shared gaiety, time to be pleasant and ready for fun, instead of being rushed and hurried and irritable.

Maybe mothers aren't made of time. But from a small child's point of view, they should be.

And the mother who gears her life so that she does have time for her children when they are small is more likely to find that when they are grown they have some time for her.

Breweries Go Atomic

Philippines Lumber Seeks Market

Manila.—(AP)—Lumbermen have decided to launch a sales campaign to put Philippines hardwoods back in the United States market.

Industry leaders say exports in 1948 totalled only 14,000,000 board feet. In 1941 the total was about 200,000,000. They say African woods made big headway in the United States when the war stopped Philippines shipments.

Day Nursery Outgrows the Romper Set; Keeps Older Children Off Streets, Too

Nursery boss Major Frank Evans: New name, "Day Care."

SCHOOL'S OUT, but their mothers are at work, so these girls do some sketching at Kansas City's grownup "day nursery."

No Longer Toddlers, these boys still go to nursery to work in the hobby shop instead of running streets after school.

Pictures and Text
By Mary C. Flynn
NEA Staff Correspondent

Kansas City, Mo.—(NEA)—Boys and girls long out of rompers answer roll call along with toddlers at the Salvation Army's nursery in the west side tenement section on the fringe of Kansas City's downtown shopping district.

Children up to 11 years of age are included in the nursery program "to keep them from running the streets before and after school hours," according to the director, Major Frank Evans.

To protect them from possible taunts of "nursery babies" by schoolmates, the older children technically are in the "Day Care" division, while tots attend the "Day Nursery."

The school age youngsters' schedule includes a hot noon lunch, afternoon lunch, supervised after-school recreation in the gym or play rooms, crafts training and semi-weekly movies. They are accompanied to and from school by nursery teachers.

Of the current enrollment of 122 children, 33 are over six years old. All are children of widowed or estranged mothers, who must earn their livings away from home in the daytime, or of working mothers and fathers taking courses at nearby training schools.

Sparking the nursery program is amiable, 55-year-old Major Evans. He has done most of the remodeling work on the three-story Community Chest Fund.

The average weekly fee for each child is $3.20. A large percentage pays less according to the amount set by a trained social worker. The average weekly cost to the nursery per child is $6.83.

Besides Major Evans, the staff includes seven teachers, a dietician, two maids and a janitor. Teachers are college graduates trained in child welfare and guidance work.

A definite need for care must be established before a child will be admitted to the nursery rolls. With fatherly delight, Major Evans points out that, even after disciplinary reprimands, "the children, when punished for misconduct, ask for "spankings" rather than in any phase of the regular schedule. Spankings are out, but punishment comes in the form of denial of a favorite attraction. For the older boys and girls, it's usually the movies.

Luxembourg, Germany —(AP)—Two wild pigs with one bullet—that is the hunting claim of farmer Heinrich Winkelmann of Lettzingen. He borrowed a rifle from military government to go after wild boar which were destroying his crops. He spotted a sow and fired at her. The bullet passed through the sow and hit a boar which had just come up behind her, says Winkelmann.

Czechs May Move Doctors

Prague — (AP) — Czechoslovak doctors have been warned that they can expect to get moved around the country. Alois Plojhar, minister of health, said that there is one doctor to every 554 inhabitants in some parts of Prague the country's capital. But some country areas have only one doctor for every 6,000 inhabitants. So doctors, who are controlled by the state health service, can expect re-deployment orders, he said.

Japan Studies War Loss

Tokyo—(AP) —The government's Economic Stabilization Board estimates Japan's war losses cost her one-fourth of her national wealth, exclusive of the vast overseas holdings that went down the drain.

The board says Japan's national wealth is about that of 1935. Heavy losses in shipping and from air raids and naval bombardment wiped out the wealth gained since that year.

Jeep Puts "View" Into U. S. Voice To Sell America's Story to World

Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen inspects one of 65 jeeps, which will carry motion pictures, radio, recording and public address equipment to the far corners of the globe.

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — The State Department will soon have 65 potent packages of propaganda in action selling the story of America, in pictures, to more than 100,000,000 people around the world.

The packages are jeeps loaded with every kind of picture projector ever dreamed up, plus elaborate radio and recording equipment and a complete public address system. The idea is to turn the Voice of America into the "View of America" and take it to the people in every far corner on the globe.

A Congressional committee which toured Europe in 1947 to see how effective the Voice and other propaganda efforts of the State Department were, discovered that only a handful of the people were being reached with the story. Audiences were mostly limited to those who owned radios and could read. The great mass of the people, including many workers and farmers, just weren't getting America's side of the argument in the cold war.

The pictures-and-movie-laden jeep is the State Department's answer to this problem. Movies and still pictures, it has been discovered, are excellent mediums for mass education. And when they are brought right to backyards, where it requires only a minimum effort to see them, they're twice as effective.

In addition to telling the story of democracy with movies and slides, the jeep is equipped with powerful short wave radio for picking up actual Voice of America broadcasts. The public address system has any sized audience in on the programs, giving millions a chance to hear them who wouldn't have been able to otherwise. Transcribed music and educational programs can also be provided for great numbers of people in this way.

Another use for the unit is to record the propaganda programs and speeches of the other countries for later study and analysis.

One or two men will travel with each jeep as it takes its story to the far reaches, depending upon how far from the home base it must go. It is equipped with air mattresses, camping equipment, cooking gear, large drinking-water cans and an 80-gallon gas tank. This permits operators to camp out when no other lodging is available.

An operator of one of these compact units must be a competent camera technician, sound man, radio engineer, public relations expert and master of ceremonies.

Films will not be shown simply for entertainment. The film library on each jeep will consist of travelogues, educational films, shorts showing America's manufacturing plants and farms, and newsreels. Slides for presenting various types of lectures are also part of the equipment. The sound accompanying all the slides and movies, will be translated into the native language.

The State Department hopes to have all 65 of these units in operation by the middle of July. They will be operating in 44 different countries on every continent. Each one costs approximately $4500, including the equipment.

English Teachers Guessed Wrong

London—(AP)—The old school report cards of many distinguished Englishmen reveal some shocking things.

The school masters of a generation ago regarded Field Marshal Lord Montgomery "rather backward for his age", and he was said to be weak in what an artillery man needs—mathematics. G. K. Chesterton, who became mighty in the world of letters, couldn't write very well, said the school master shortly before the turn of the century.

Old report cards are posted for the public to read at an exhibition called "The English at School".

Both Montgomery and Chesterton attended St. Paul's school and the report cards displayed cover their senior years, when they were 18 years old.

Wine Temperatures

According to connoisseurs, the rule for serving red and white wines at banquets is that red wines always should be served at room temperature while white wines, especially champagne, should be served chilled.

Salutation

Look to this day!
For it is life, the very life of life.
In its brief course
Lie all the verities and realities of your existence.
For yesterday is but a dream,
And tomorrow is only a vision;
But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness,
And every tomorrow a vision of hope.

Judge (sternly)—Young man, do you remember your father, that father whom you have disgraced?

Young Man—I remember him perfectly. When I went to him for advice or companionship he would say, "Run away, boy, I am busy." My father finished his books and here I am.

"You look as if you were all in. What's wrong?"

"Last night I called on that new girl I was telling you about. Her mother opened the door and let me in—and then and there she demanded to know what my intentions were."

"That must have been very embarrassing."

"Yes, but that wasn't the worst of it. As I was leaving, the father had finished speaking, the girl shouted down the stairs: "Mother, that isn't the one!" ."

"What is the greatest grief of fathers?" I asked a friend. Promptly he replied: "Why, seeing our sons inherit all of our own weaknesses."

Better Homes Week's Theme

Observance to Be Noted Throughout Nation During May 1-7 Week

Storrs, April 27 — "A Better Home Today for a Tomorrow's World" is the theme for the observance of National Home Demonstration Week, May 1 to 7, in Connecticut the 18,000 women who participate in home demonstration activities will celebrate this week with special events to interest the public with their work, according to Mrs. Ruth Clark, state home demonstration leader with the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Connecticut. They will also pay tribute to the 1,336 volunteer local leaders who have assisted them with their programs.

Within the past year in Connecticut, improvements were made in 4,154 farm homes and in 11,648 non-farm homes through home demonstration work. This educational service, which is part of the Cooperative Agricultural Extension program, has as its aim better thrifty and community living. It is carried on in each of Connecticut's eight counties with the help of one or two county home demonstration agents. Volunteer local leaders in each county are trained by the Extension specialists stationed at the University of Connecticut, and these leaders then carry back the information to the women in their home demonstration groups.

Connecticut women will observe the week with many special activities. Twenty-two New Haven County homemaking groups are sponsoring 14 different events. These include hospitality teas, open houses, and working exhibits. Hartford County will hold a county-wide meeting on Monday, May 2. An open house to view a remodeled farm kitchen and a working exhibit to show some of the projects carried on by various groups will be part of Windham County's special program. Tolland County has plans for a county-wide coat revue followed by a tea on May 4. Members of home demonstration groups in four counties, Fairfield, Litchfield, New London and Tolland, are planning trips to the assembly of the United Nations at Lake Success as part of their program for the week.

Radio broadcasts are scheduled during the week of May 1 to 7 to tell of home demonstration activities. On May 2, 4 and 6, Frank Lyman will interview home demonstration agents on his early morning program on WTIC. Harold Ward, director of Agriculture program on Saturday, May 7, at 1:30 p. m., will feature home demonstration work.

Exhibits of demonstration activities, as well as all phases of Extension work, are open to all interested persons. Twenty home demonstration agents are located at Extension headquarters in Danbury, Hartford, Litchfield, Middletown, New Haven, Norwich, Putnam and Rockville.

Lunitania Lifeboat to Be Moved

Broadstairs, England —(AP)—The village council has decided to move its principal monument, a lifeboat from the Lusitania, brought to this southeastern England resort years ago as a memento of the tragic sinking of the liner, the lifeboat is to be shifted to "a more suitable spot." These are the reasons given by the councilors:

"Visitors who arrive in a festive spirit do not want to see the town decorated with dead men's rafts. It is nearly 35 years since this sad tragedy of the sea occurred and the memory of it is fading from the minds of visitors in the late war. It is a menace and a danger to the children who play with it."

Singapore May Have Radio Phones

Singapore — (AP) — Singapore will soon be on the world radio telephone map.

Before the end of this year, plans are already afoot to link Singapore with the United Kingdom by telephone.

The move is to facilitate quicker trade enquiries. Negotiations are also under way for direct radio telephone links with other Commonwealth countries — Australia and India. Connections with Hong Kong and Manila are also under consideration.

House Unanimously Votes Compromise On Deficiency Bills

Carpenter Says Today's Bill 'Represents Total Deficit Spending' of States to Be Acted Upon by Assembly; Highway Funds Out Bulletin!

State Capitol, Hartford, April 28.—(AP)—The General Assembly, patching up its partisan differences over the issue, approved today a compromise deficiency appropriation bill of $9,820,627.

State Capitol, Hartford, April 28.—(AP)—The Republican-controlled House unanimously approved today a compromise deficiency appropriation bill of $9,820,627. Apparently marking the end of a legislative fight that has been going on for weeks, the bill "represents the total deficit spending" he said, "of the state." Democratic Speaker Carpenter (R., Canterbury), Appropriations committee chairman.

To Be Acted on Next Week

He said a Highway department request, for $6,683,000 would be acted upon separately next week. He declared the request did not represent a deficiency in the department's budget, but was sought as an advance on money budgeted for the department for the coming biennium so that contract may be awarded earlier.

Until today's compromise, Democrats had insisted that the Highway department's request be included in general deficiency appropriations.

They accused the Republicans, who have passed two separate deficiency appropriations upon which the Democratic minority in the House refused to act, of adopting "piecemeal legislation" in an effort to conceal the amount of the deficiency.

Each Side Claims Victory

Each side claimed the compromise spelled victory for its stand.

Rep. Charles Henchel (D-New Haven), stating that the new appropriation approved today, plus the Highway department request, would add up to the $16,164,499 in a deficiency appropriation bill, told the House:

"The Republicans finally are beginning to see the undesirability of piece-meal legislation. We have

Able to Print Despite Rows

Newspapers No Longer Can Be Forced to Suspend by Strikes

New York, April 28—(AP)—Newspapers no longer can be forced to suspend publication by printers' strikes, the American Newspaper Publishers Association was told today by its special committee on labor problems.

The committee reported that on March 31 the International Typographical union (AFL) was pursuing 42 strikes against 81 papers but that all of these dailies were going to press regularly with circulations aggregating nearly 3,000,000.

"A long-accepted belief that a daily newspaper had to suspend publication when ITU composing room workers struck is now a myth," said the report of the committee, headed by George N. Dale of the ANPA staff.

Other Union Leaders Cooperate

The report said leaders of all the mechanical unions except the ITU had cooperated "in our effort to preserve local bargaining" and to keep strife-torn papers publishing.

Most of the ITU strikes stemmed from the "no-contract" policy adopted by the union after the Taft-Hartley law forbade the closed shop which the union formerly held in most newspaper plants, the committee said.

It reported 27 new strikes against newspapers in 1948, a total of 20 of them called by the ITU. Nine ITU walkouts were settled in the year, leaving 32 still going on. Some of these are four years old.

Among the cities in which ITU strikes remain unsettled are Chicago, Miami, Fla., Springfield, Mass., Allentown, Pa., Trenton, N. J., Huntington and Charleston, W. Va., and Colorado Springs, Colo.

Other ANPA convention proceedings have shown that some of the strike papers are using a photo-engraving process to continue publication. Others are

10 Persons Killed Today In Ambush

Widow of First President of Philippines Victim; 10 Others Are Wounded by Bandits

Manila, April 28 — (AP) — Mrs. Aurora Quezon, widow of the Philippines' first president, her daughter and son-in-law were killed today in a blood-thirsty machine-gun ambuscade that brought death to 10 persons.

Ten others were wounded.

President Elpidio Quirino, notified of the ambush in the mountains of northern Luzon, ordered an immediate campaign against the killers, whom he identified as bandits.

The Quezon party, with an armed constabulary escort, left Manila shortly after 5 a. m. local time for Baler on the northeast coast of Luzon. The 60-year-old widow was to have unveiled a marker in memory of her husband, Manuel Quezon.

Maj. Gen. Rafael Jalandoni, former Philippine Army chief of staff, who was in the first automobile of a caravan with Mrs. Quezon, described the ambush tonight.

"Shots in rapid succession were fired at our car," he said. "We stopped at once. The attack was so sudden that the first thing I knew Mrs. Quezon was slumped over me.

"Mayor Ponciano Bernardo (of Quezon City) shouted:

"'Donna Aurora is in this party.'

"Then Bernardo himself was shot. I pulled my gun and was about to use it when someone suddenly appeared by the side of the car and hit me on the right side of the face with the butt of a rifle. I was knocked unconscious and that was the last I remember. I can not imagine how I escaped."

The General said when he regained consciousness he found the bodies of Mrs. Quezon, her daughter and others.

He said apparently the fire was concentrated on the first machine in which he and Mrs. Quezon and her immediate party were riding. Mrs. Quezon's machine led the caravan, he said, to avoid the choking white dust of the country road.

He estimated there were 100 in the attacking party and about 50 in the Quezon group.

Robbed of Jewelry

He said the bodies were robbed of their jewelry and that he lost his wrist watch and identification bracelet. Mrs. Quezon's jewelry was removed, he said.

Constabulary troopers guarding the party reported the fire of the attackers but were forced to retreat. They returned to nearby Infanta and picked up reinforcements.)

Later at the scene of the am-

Denies Motion On FBI Report

Judge Refuses to Prevent Use of Papers Coplon Girl Carried

Washington, April 28—(AP)—Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves denied today a defense motion to prevent the prosecution from using papers taken from Judith Coplon in her trial here on espionage charges.

Judge Reeves also denied a defense motion for mistrial, and another to expunge from the record an FBI statement telling what was in Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested March 4 in New York with Valentine A. Gubitchev, a Russian.

In a sworn statement filed yesterday Robert B. Granville, who arrested Miss Coplon and Gubitchev, said Miss Coplon's purse yielded a statement telling of her efforts to gain access to a top secret FBI report dealing with Communist espionage activities in this country.

To File Memorandum

Judge Reeves announced that he will file a memorandum later outlining his reasons for refusing to suppress the papers taken from Miss Coplon's purse or former Justice Department employe.

Her attorney, Archibald Palmer of New York, contended the papers were the private property of Miss Coplon and that she was illegally arrested and searched without a warrant.

Palmer, in arguments just before the court ruled contended that

'Most Embarrassing Moment'

The faces of these two members of the fire-fighting crew at Mitchel field, N. Y., must be red—and not just with the heat—as they squirt helplessly and watch flames consume an Army Mustang. Pilot and co-pilot escaped unhurt.

Help Wanted In Pentagon

Jobs of Secretary of Army and Navy Still Open; Refusals Given

Bulletin!

Washington, April 28—(AP)—President Truman said today he hopes that Curtis E. Calder, New York utilities executive, will accept appointments as secretary of the Army.

Mr. Truman also told a news conference that Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer is under consideration for appointment as secretary of the Navy.

Washington, April 28 — (AP) — Help wanted signs continued to hang forlornly on some high offices in the Pentagon today.

The jobs of secretary of the Army and Navy still were open and President Truman and Secretary of Defense Johnson were discovering that a number of people apparently don't want the posts.

Yesterday the administration thought it had a new secretary of the Army to succeed Kenneth C. Royall, who left the Pentagon last night. Word went around that Curtis E. Calder, utilities executive, had agreed to begin work in 60 days.

Has Not Accepted

But when Calder came out about it, he called The Associated Press in New York and asserted that "I have not accepted the secretary-

Shanghai Gate Begins Closing

Last Ships Preparing To Get Under Way to Take Foreigners Out

Shanghai, April 28—(AP)—The escape gate from Communist threatened Shanghai began closing early today.

For foreigners, the last ships were preparing to get under way. For the Chinese, land routes were coming under Red troop domination. Airplanes still ferried out refugees over land and sea.

The American liner President Wilson, likely to be the last liner to call here for some time, sailed down the Whangpoo this afternoon. Aboard were 300 evacuees, 150 of them American.

"Those Americans who elected to stay in Shanghai—some 1,000 of them — are now here come what may."

May Be Last Boat Out

One small U.S. Navy craft during the afternoon took a few straggler refugees down the river to the hospital ship Refuge. Navy officials stated that may be the last boat out.

Big Naval craft moored down the river, out of range of Communist shore guns, may depart today or tomorrow, one Naval officer said.

British warships still are in the Yangtze and Whangpoo—but the British are not undertaking emergency evacuations.

People who leave Shanghai from now on will move mainly by air. Both the American Northwest Airlines and Pan-American still are running regular flights and some special planes to the United States, Manila and Hong Kong. British flying boats are going to Hong Kong and Tokyo daily. They are booked solid until next week.

50 or 60 Miles Away

The approaching Communists appeared to be at least 30 or 40 miles away yesterday—although they took Soochow (Wuhsien), about 60 miles west of Shanghai, early yesterday. Their advance may be slowed down by

Taft Hartley Repeal Votes Loyalty Test

Truman Puts Actions Of Democratic Lawmakers on Other Platform Issues in Class

Washington, April 28.—(AP)—President Truman said today Democratic votes in Congress on Taft-Hartley repeal will be a test of party loyalty. He put actions of the lawmakers on other Democratic platform measures in much the same class.

Little to Say About Jobs

Thus Mr. Truman indicated that the senators and representatives who fail to go along with striking out the two-year-old labor law and adhering to other platform planks will have little to say about who gets Federal jobs.

The president left wide-open the question of whether the lawmakers who failed to back the party candidates in last fall's election will have any voice in patronage.

On that point he suggested that reporters wait and see how it works out.

Truman's news conference discussion of the issue of party loyalty went beyond what he said in actual conflict with—earlier comments of Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

Possible Indicator

A possible indicator of how the loyalty yardstick will be used in measure congressmen appeared just after the president's talk with newsmen.

W. L. McElroy, father of Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburg, secretary of the Democratic National committee, was appointed acting postmaster at Columbus, Miss., on the National committee's recommendation.

Rep. John Rankin (D. Miss) at odds with the administration during and since the election, had recommended Julian B. Gardner, now assistant postmaster at Columbus.

A Comment on House Floor

Rankin said he would make his comment on the House floor later.

Use of 'Obey' in Marriages Seen Antiquated by Judge

Chicago, April 28—(AP)—The use of "obey" (in marriages) in Illinois is "as antiquated as hoopskirts," Circuit Judge Julius Miner told a husband being sued for separate maintenance yesterday.

"The modern view of marriage is that it is a 50-50 proposition," Miner told Glen Ford, 36, a high school band leader and music teacher.

Ford, being sued by his wife, Doris E., after 27 years of married life, replied: "I don't believe in that. The man should be the head of the house with the power to end all discussions."

"Maintaining per cent of the people will disagree with you," the judge told Ford. "Are you willing to back and change your attitude, adopt the modern view and not insist on the stand of your grandfather?"

"The views was good enough for my grandfather and it is good enough for me," said Ford. "Marriage is a business. How can a business have two heads?"

85 Weekly to Run Household

Mrs. Ford's attorney, Sol R. Friedman, said Ford refused to let his wife join the Parent-Teacher association and church organizations, and allowed her $5 weekly to run the household.

Ford's attorney, Charles C. Cooley, said when the couple was married in Albion, Ill., 27 years ago Ford insisted that she take the vow to "love, honor and obey" while Ford "merely promised to 'love and honor.'"

Cooley said Ford "has a passionate love of white or angel food cake. For 27 years she gave him nothing but dark or jelled food cake. He has always loved angel cake. He seldom get any at his home."

Judge Miner, noting that the Ford's four grown children are in no need of support, ruled that Ford should pay his wife $25 weekly for temporary support.

Austin Says Russia Losing in Cold War; Asks Pact Approval

Blockade Offer Seen Made in Good Faith

Truman Says If He Didn't Think Feelers Sincere Nothing Would Have Occurred

Washington, April 28.—(AP)—President Truman said today he believes the Russians are acting in good faith in their new moves toward lifting of the Berlin blockade.

The president told a news conference that if he didn't think the Russian feelers were advanced in good faith the United States would not be continuing conversations on the matter.

At Final Decision Stage

The conversations have reached the stage of final decision with Russia controlling the next move.

At the State department, Lincoln White, press officer, was told at a news conference that there are reports in Berlin that the blockade may be lifted in the next four days or so.

White said he "hopes it's true," but that he had no idea on what the report was based.

The Soviets were expected to reply soon to the questions raised by the western powers on whether their only condition for ending the blockade is western agreement to a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

The western powers already have made known their willingness to such a meeting once Berlin is restored to a tolerable normal.

What they are trying to nail down now is the point that Russia does not insist on suspending the application of some phases of western Germany pending the session.

Molotov Still Holds Power

Voznesensky Deposed as Head of Gosplan and Out of Politburo Now

New York, April 28—(AP)—Any doubts about the present position of V. M. Molotov in the Soviet hierarchy were dispelled today. He is still the top man under Prime Minister Stalin.

This can be reported with assurance, since the disclosure comes in an indirect way. It also can be reported:

1. N. A. Voznesensky, deposed as head of the all-important Gosplan (State Planning commission) and as a deputy prime minister, also has been removed from the ruling Politburo. He has not been replaced and the Politburo now at least has 10 full members (activities last summer, a witness testified today at the conspiracy trial of 11 party leaders).

Miss Angela Calomiris, slender brunette photographer who spent seven years in Communist ranks as an FBI informant, said the party recruiting drive was aimed at basic industries, including railroad workers, railway express, longshoremen and teamsters.

Miss Calomiris, who continued her testimony, said she still was a party member when she first appeared on the witness stand last Tuesday.

Letter Sent Organizers

She said a letter was sent to all Communist party branch organizers last May prohibiting them from taking more than three weeks vacation without specific permission.

Some Changes For Labor Bill Viewed Likely

House Leaders Ready To Accept Certain Amendments to Save Repealer from Defeat

Washington, April 28. —(AP)—House administration leaders said today they will accept certain amendments to their Taft-Hartley repeal bill to save it from defeat by Republicans and southern Democrats.

They claimed a minimum of 210 votes for a modified version of the Lesinski bill as a desirable vote approached—possibly late today but probably not until tomorrow.

Normally, that total would be enough to send their bill to the Senate. The measure would repeal the Taft-Hartley labor act and replace it with a union-backed measure modeled after the 1935 Wagner act.

Still Publicly Claim Edge

But opponents still publicly claimed an edge in voting strength. They hoped to substitute a bill introduced by Representative Wood (D., Ga.), which would retain most of the Taft-Hartley law's major provisions.

Some labor spokesmen have called the Wood bill a tougher measure than the original Taft-Hartley law.

Privately, Republicans and southern Democrats leading the fight against the administration measure told newsmen "the pressure" being applied by labor and Democratic leaders was beginning to produce results.

It looks like a toss-up right now," a top Republican said. "It all depends on how many amendments the administration is willing to accept to save its bill."

Willing To Accept Changes

Administration spokesmen indicated willingness to accept these changes in the bill introduced by Chairman Lesinski (D-Mich) of the Labor committee:

1. A requirement that representatives of both employes and employers sign non-Communist affidavits as provided in the Wood bill. The Taft-Hartley law requires only union leaders to sign them.

2. A provision allowing Congress to obtain injunctions to delay strikes that imperil the national health or safety. The Taft Hartley law and the Wood

Plans of Reds In Drive Told

Witness Tells of Opening of Drive in Basic New York Industries

New York, April 28—(AP)—The Communist party opened a concerted drive to enlist members from basic New York City industries last summer, a witness testified today at the conspiracy trial of 11 party leaders.

Miss Angela Calomiris, slender brunette photographer who spent seven years in Communist ranks as an FBI informant, said the party recruiting drive was aimed at basic industries, including railroad workers, railway express, longshoremen and teamsters.

Miss Calomiris, who continued her testimony, said she still was a party member when she first appeared on the witness stand last Tuesday.

Couples Bitter Attack On Soviets With Plea; Accuses Russia of 'Brazenly' Violating UN Charter Pledges To Refrain from Use Of Threats and Force Against Other Nations

Washington, April 28.—(AP)—Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations, told senators today Russia is losing the "cold war" and Soviet rulers are beginning to find it out. Austin coupled a bitter attack on Russia with a plea for Senate approval of the North Atlantic treaty.

Would Promote Peace Efforts

The former Vermont senator told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that the pact would promote U.N. efforts to keep the peace because it gives the ability to remove causes of war."

Austin accused the Soviets of "brazenly" violating U. N. charter pledges to refrain from use of threats and force against other countries. He said this "deliberate and calculated policy of obstruction" had crippled the U. N. and hampered work on peace treaties.

"While most of the world was seeking to build a system of collective security in the United Nations," he said, "the Soviet union sought security through the discredited policy of territorial aggrandisement. This feudalistic concept of security threw its black shadow over country after country in eastern Europe."

Hit Growing Opposition

But, he said, the Soviets are running into growing opposition of the non-Communist world and "the balance is swinging toward the forces favoring peaceful progress."

Realization of this, he continued, is reaching into "the nations which the ruling class of the Soviet union has created for itself behind the walls of the Kremlin."

Austin made no direct reference to the proposed U. S. program to arm this nation's European allies under the 12-nation pact.

But while Austin was testifying,
