Heard Along Main Street

And on Some of Manchester's Side Streets, Too

There was quite a humorous item in the Manchester column of a nearby a.m. edition yesterday in regards to General Douglas MacArthur's passing through Manchester in his special train.

The item which drew a chuckle was to the effect ". . . those assembled at the railroad station at Depot Square caught a fleeting glimpse of the general as he waved to them through an open window." Evidently the reporter got his information from a poor source, or he was guessing as to what actually went on for General MacArthur never did peer through an open window. He couldn't, for there were no open windows on his special train.

Les Tyler, public relations chief for the New Haven railroad was a visitor to The Herald yesterday, and he said, "There were no open windows on the MacArthur train. For three reasons, there were no open windows. First, because the train was air conditioned. Second, because closed windows keep out dust; and third, because of stone protection, the windows are always closed." Les added that double windows have been on railroad cars for years. None can be opened.

The Herald was unable to find anyone who actually saw the general on his train trip through Manchester. One resident, however, claimed she saw Mrs. MacArthur wave a handkerchief at the crowd at the station.

No one except the a.m. reporter saw General MacArthur wave "through an open window."

We were attracted by the display of marshmallow strawberries, "just arrived" in a Main street store, and going along the counter we came across another interesting item, a nickel chocolate bar, made by J. S. Fry & Sons, Ltd., Bristol, England; "By appointment to H.M. the King, makers of the finest quality chocolates since 1728." The weight and ingredients also appeared on the label. We of course bought some of them and found them filled with a white peppermint flavored mixture and very good too. Not so long ago people in England hardly knew what confections looked like, and one of the service clubs sent to Harrowgate a sizeable package of locally made candy. It no doubt reached England all right, but not the sister club it was intended for. It is inconceivable that a concern could export five-cent candy bars at a profit in competition with so many here in the U. S.

And from our mailbag:
To Heard Along Main Street:

The Centennial year of 1923 was certainly a big year for Manchester. Much, I remember in that Centennial issue presented to you.

The repairing of our Main street was completed in time for us to be proud about for the Centennial. The car tracks were moved from the west side to the middle. They were doubled south to St. James street and the street was wined south from there to the "terminus."

After the new street lights were lighted we thought we had one of the best lighted streets in Connecticut. They replaced the globe lights on the east side of the street and the street was widened on the west.

In fact we thought our Main street rivalled the best Main streets. Yet, about 15 years later we thought Main street was inadequately lighted. Though trolley lines were being discontinued in 1923, little did we think the Hartford-South Manchester line ever would be. Now the part of Main street near Hale's seems like a bottle-neck. Yet I did not think of it as being narrow even before it was widened.

Oh, yes, 1923 was the year the Hotel Sheridan was built and we were proud to have a "city hotel." The summer of '23 saw Main street changed from a village street to a city street.

Yours truly,
J. W. Cheney.

Our heartiest congratulations to those lucky people who took their vacations during the month of July. If they stuck around Connecticut, they really hit the perfect weather.

It doesn't seem there were more than three or four "bad" days during the whole month, and those were pretty well spread out so that, they didn't "kill" any one-week vacations.

We know of a person who went on his vacation last year but left the state. He hit rain, rain and more rain. When he returned, he learned that the weather back home had been fine.

Now the people preparing for August vacations have the odds against them. But they shouldn't feel too badly if they hit some rain. After all, we've had a dry summer. And a good soaking rain would be good for the crops.

Our Middle Turnpike correspondent tells us about an incident that happened over there last week. Seems Huck Ellis, noted Silk City football player, has a pet monkey at his house. The monkey "flew the coop" and was swinging himself from branch to branch in the trees in the neighborhood. Huck and some of his neighbors gave chase. The monkey leaped from a tree to a telephone pole. Climbing up to the wires, the monkey got a sudden jolt when he stepped onto the live wires and came quickly down to the ground, thoroughly shaken up. Huck thought for a while that his pet monkey was done for, but soon the pet came around and was none the worse for his experience—except he probably will be shock-proof for awhile.

Appeal Liquor Store Ruling

Owners of Fred's Package Store Oppose Moving of Oak St. License

A writ for appeal returnable to the Court of Common Pleas on the first Tuesday of September has been entered by Attorney John Mrosek for Joseph J. Farr and Florentino Zanlungo, the plaintiffs, appealing from a decision rendered by the Zoning Board of Appeals that granted the moving of a package store to William C. Wiganowske. The plaintiffs own Fred's Package store at 117 Spruce street.

The Appeals Board granted Wiganowske's application to transfer the package store from 35 Oak street to 219 Spruce street in a Business Zone II. A public hearing was held June 11 and on July 16 the board granted the request.

Wiganowske applied to operate a package store at 219 Spruce street in December of 1949 and it was denied. According to the document, Wiganowske purchased the package store at 35 Oak street on June 5. He applied for the transfer on May 22, before owning the Oak street business.

The plaintiffs will argue that the Zoning Board of Appeals acted arbitrarily and illegally and in abuse of the discretion reposed in it in that the facts presented to the board did not warrant its granting the application.

Plan More Tests Of Atomic Bomb

Washington, July 30—(AP)—The United States is planning more tests of the atomic bomb, Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy commission said today.

Dean declined to tell a news conference, however, whether the tests would be at already announced proving grounds or at some other place. There has been speculation that a new proving ground may be established in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska.

Dean said any first test of a British atomic bomb on an American proving ground would probably necessitate a change in the United States' atomic energy law. Dean was asked this direct question by a reporter:

"Have the British made any overtures about their first atomic test?"

And Dean answered:

"If they have they did not make it to us. (The Atomic Energy commission)."

Dean ordered no statement that the British actually were planning any first test of an A-Bomb. But he did say:

"It would mean a change in the (atomic energy) law to allow them to use one of our proving grounds."

Dean added: "It would involve a lot of problems . . . I don't see how a joint test could be conducted without some kind of legislative blessing."

Hold Sites, Dates

In saying that the United States is planning further tests of its own atomic weapons, Dean said "we are not quite ready to give you the test sites and dates."

Mac Qualifies 'Appeasement'

Says His Use of Word In Boston Did Not Apply to Truce Talks

New York, July 30—(AP)—General Douglas MacArthur's use of the word "appeasement" in his Boston speech last Wednesday did not apply to the current truce talks, says an aide to the deposed Far Eastern commander.

Instead, the aide explains, MacArthur referred to appeasement "in our failure to apply the full potential of our available military power to secure a prompt and decisive victory at a minimum loss of life and with a maximum deterrent against future aggression."

As to the current cease-fire negotiations, says the aide, MacArthur "has consistently refrained" from discussing the talks "for fear that any distortion of his views might possibly militate against their successful conclusion."

Talks Will Not Deter 'Hot' War

U. N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 30—(AP)—Allied and Red negotiators bargained more than three hours in sultry Kaesong today, but made no progress toward ending the shooting in Korea.

Instead, they agreed that the war would continue while they talk. As they reached this understanding Allied warplanes smashed at the Red Korean capital of Pyongyang in one of the most determined air assaults of the war.

The negotiators remained deadlocked on the problem of a buffer zone to separate the opposing armies if and when a cease-fire agreement is reached.

Meet Again Tonight

A U. N. spokesman said: "The final solution is hoped for. That doesn't necessarily mean it is in the immedate offing."

They will tackle the same thorny question when their 15th session opens tomorrow at 11 a. m. (8 p. m., Monday, e. s. t.)

The United Nations communique said Gen. Nam Il, chief Communist delegate, "stated it was also his definite understanding that hostilities would continue during the current armistice sessions."

Nam was replying to an earlier "clarifying" statement by Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, senior U. N. delegate.

It was the first official hint of any prior misunderstanding on this point.

In today's session, an eye-witness said, Joy used a slightly different approach "to penetrate

Army Relieves General For Accepting Favors

Washington, July 30—(AP)— The commanding general of the Detroit Tank Arsenal has been fired from his command and reprimanded for accepting favors from contracting companies.

An Army announcement last night said Secretary of the Army Pace had relieved Brig. Gen. David J. Crawford after an Inspector General's report showed Crawford had "violated Army regulations and had not met the high standards required of an Army officer."

The 54-year-old Crawford, a West Point graduate and veteran of 29 years' Army service, admitted before a Congressional committee at Detroit on July 23 that he had accepted a free Washington hotel suite and the gift of a boat keel from contracting company representatives.

In addition, he acknowledged using government materials in building pleasure boats and transporting personal property at government expense.

Awaits New Orders

Crawford, head of the Detroit Tank Arsenal for the past four years, will be replaced by Brig. Gen. Carroll H. Dietrick, 53, who now commands the Watertown, Mass., Arsenal.

Informed of the Army's action at his home in Detroit, Crawford said: "I am still in the Army. I

U. S. Agency Financing To Sept. 30 Passed by House Appropriations

Washington, July 30—(AP)—The House Appropriations committee today approved an emergency measure providing stop-gap financing for federal agencies until September 30.

The bill is slated for House passage late today and Senate action tomorrow.

In general, it permits the agencies to spend during the next two months at a rate comparable to last year's spending or funds voted for the present year by either branch of Congress.

None of the regular appropriation bills financing the government for the year that started July 1 has cleared Congress. All the agencies were financed during July by an emergency measure expiring tomorrow midnight.

Hint Nationalists Beaten In Yunnan

Taipeh, Formosa, July 30—(AP)—Rumors circulated in Taipeh tonight that Chinese Nationalist Lt. Gen. Li Mi's forces from northern Burma had lost the Kongma airfield they reportedly seized from Reds in a thrust into Yunnan province of southwestern China.

This could not be confirmed here.

Official Nationalist quarters continued reluctant to talk about reports from Rangoon that Li's Nationalist Refugee Army of about 15,000 regulars had seized a 100-mile-wide strip along the southern border of Yunnan.

Britain Set To Reopen Iran Talks

London, July 30—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison announced today Britain will send a cabinet mission to Tehran to discuss an oil settlement with Iran.

He told the House of Commons the mission will be led by Richard Stokes, Lord Privy Seal, and added: "it is not expedient for me at this moment to say anything further on this matter."

Morrison explained the decision came about as a result of consultations with Averell Harriman, President Truman's envoy now in London.

Morrison said there are still some points to be cleared up before the missions can leave for the Iranian capital.

A United States embassy spokesman announced Harriman intends flying back to Tehran by tonight.

British Sympathetic

Morrison said the British government and the Anglo-Iranian Oil company (AIOC) "have been ready at every stage to meet the legitimate aspirations of the Persian (Iranian) people."

"We have every sympathy with the natural desire of the Persian people to control their own mineral resources," he said.

While Britain is ready to accept the principle of nationalization, Morrison explained, she will not accept a one-sided violation of an agreement.

"We are entering a new era in the development of Middle Eastern oil," Morrison said.

Dispatch of a mission headed by a cabinet minister reportedly was agreed to by Iran as a basis for reopening discussions over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil company's $1,400,000,000 properties.

Heretofore the Iranians have held they would deal only with oil company officials and not the British government.

A spirit of optimism prevailed both here and in Tehran that Harriman had brought about an atmosphere in which the explosive Middle Eastern oil crisis could be solved.

Taft Set to Run in 1952 If Republicans Want Him

Plymouth, Mass., July 30—(AP)—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) has set a complete housecleaning in Washington as a 1952 G.O.P. election aim and says his hat will go into the Presidential ring if the Republican party says the word.

Taft told newsmen he'll run for the GOP nomination "if the majority of the Republicans want it." But he said he may not make his decision until next January.

These observers pointed out that just before his arrival for an address at Plymouth Rock yesterday Taft wired a Plymouth newspaper that he didn't intend to announce his candidacy "at Plymouth or anywhere else." Asked about that wire, Taft smiled but did not comment.

Foreign Relations Committee Admits Armed Services Control Right

Washington, July 30 — (AP) — Senators contending the proposed gram is primarily a military, rather than a foreign relations matter, won a point today.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee bowed to demands from the Armed Services committee and agreed to let the latter group act jointly with it on the measure.

The decision was taken over the opposition of Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations group who reportedly voiced protests in salty language at a closed meeting.

More than a tiff over Senatorial prerogatives is involved. There is a move under way to deny Secretary of State Acheson the policy direction over how the $8,500,000,000 is distributed.

Truman Veto Not Expected

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Congressional action was completed today on legislation continuing price and rent controls until next June 30.

House passage sent the compromise measure to President Truman, who was expected to sign it despite the fact it falls considerably short of what he wanted.

The President has until midnight tomorrow to act. A temporary measure keeping economic controls in effect expires at that time.

House passage was by roll call vote. The Senate passed the bill last Friday.

Both branches previously had passed different bills, the final measure being a compromise.

It contains no authority for the President to build defense plants, to impose beef slaughtering quotas or to curb commodity market speculation—powers the President wanted—and limits the administration's authority to roll back prices. It makes no changes in the present wage stabilization program.

Truman Silent

Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) of the Banking committee told the House he doubts if the bill will "effectively control prices," but said "it is the best that can be gotten and I think the President will be compelled to sign it."

Rep. Wolcott of Michigan, top Republican on the committee, asserted that the bill gives the President "all the authority needed to prevent prices from getting wholly out of hand if they are judiciously administered."

Congressional leaders talked over the bill with President Truman at their regular Monday morning conference. They told reporters afterward that Mr. Truman did not say what he would do.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said his own opinion is that it is a "workable bill" and "a better one than I thought we would get."

Senate Democratic leader McFarland (Ariz) said he agreed.

Legislators who had major parts in working out the bill said they felt certain Mr. Truman would sign it.

Lack of time, if nothing else, makes a veto practically out of the question, they said.

Better Than Nothing

"This is better than nothing at all," commented Chairman Spence

The spokesman, Dr. Clarence Ryee, called for the immediate withdrawal of Chinese Communist forces and the disarmament of the North Korean army.

Ryee, Director of Public Information for the South Korean government, told newsmen:

"We don't want the United Nations forces to evacuate Korea until the security of the Republic of Korea is established. But we want the Chinese army to go. They have no business here."

Ryee said the South Koreans could "defend ourselves if we had artillery and planes."

Marshall Warns Reds Build for All-Out War

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall has warned Congress that "the enemy's build-up" is increasing the danger of all-out war.

Marshall left no doubt he was referring to Russia as the enemy and to reported Communist build up of troops and supplies in Korea and elsewhere.

The Defense Secretary testified before a closed meeting of the House Appropriations committee which released part of the testimony today but deleted other portions for security reasons. The committee is considering the administration's $60,000,000,000 military budget proposal for the year which started July 1, 1951.

President Truman, in a speech in Detroit last Saturday, warned of Communist build-ups for war "around the world." The President said the free nations must have men and munitions on "hand—ready for any emergency."

Sticks To Total

Marshall testified last Friday before the Senate Appropriations committee that the U. S. will have about 400,000 troops in Europe next year. This was about twice the number of previous estimates, some by Marshall himself.

The Defense Secretary's new estimate drew a barrage of questions on Capitol Hill and elsewhere. But Marshall stuck to the 400,000 figure. He wrote Chairman Richards (D., S. C.) of the House For-

Marshall Probes Pentagon Report

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall is digging into the who's and why's of a controversial Korean war statement, issued at the Pentagon apparently without top level clearance.

The statement, read to reporters at a news briefing last Friday, suggested the Communists could be using cease-fire talks for gaining time to build up their forces and to set a military trap.

pleted only Saturday and six acres of tobacco were in it.

Foreman Chester Hoynoski said the crop hung in the shed was being cured at one end by gas, and at the other by charcoal. The fire broke out in four bents where charcoal was being used for firing.

Spreading acres of tent cloth covering a crop worth over $6,000 an acre ranged from within 50 feet of the flaming shed. A spark on this, and fire would have flared over the whole plantation.

Quick acting workers and firemen prevented this catostrophe.

Manager J. Walter Hinson of Consolidated said the shed, which quickly was entirely ablaze, would be a total loss. It was insured.

Britain to Send Mission to Iran

AIOC spokesman emphasized that the refinery was closing only because storage tanks were full and not in an attempt to put pressure on the Iranians.

Harriman arrived here Saturday and personally explained the current Iranian attitude on negotiations to Prime Minister Clement Attlee and other cabinet ministers. The cabinet gave him a series of questions it wanted answered before giving a final decision.

Harriman cabled these to Tehran and the Iranian cabinet met in emergency session last night to consider them. Iranian government officials said afterward they were optimistic and declared a "spirit of conciliation" had prevailed at their meeting.

Details worked out by the Iranian cabinet then were cabled to London.

Accept Principle

One of the British queries was believed to have been whether Iran would ease what London calls intolerable conditions imposed on British employes still in the oil fields.

Britain has accepted nationalization in principle but has objected to the way Iran proposed to carry it out. Though ready to accept Iranian ownership of the oil installations, the British want to retain control of refinery operations.

Unconfirmed reports from Tehran said yesterday that Premier Mohammed Massadegh's cabinet is willing to discuss "additions" to the nationalization law which would water down some of the drastic features to which the British objected.

Mossadegh's son-in-law, Mattin Daftari, said after yesterday's Iranian cabinet meeting:

"Indications are that the British government is ready to accept our oil naturalization law. I am more optimistic about new talks than at any time before."

Reports from Iran's neighbor Iraq, meanwhile, said that Middle East nation is completing a lucrative new contract with foreign oil interests.

The Bagdad newspaper, Liwa Alistiqlal, said the new agreement would give Iraq roughly a 50-50 share in the profits of the British-American-French-Dutch-Iraqi Petrolum company. This is about double the old rate.

Plan More Tests Of Atomic Bomb

Dean said the commission at one time or another had thought of test sites "in practically every part of the globe." He did not amplify that statement. Asked why the same proving grounds cannot be used over and over again, Dean said that one of the reasons was the "heavy logistics" involved in faraway tests such as those at Eniwetok.

He added: "It depends on what you want to test."

Dean said that "If it is something that does call for elaborate instrumentation and a big 'bang'" such a test is held at a remote place. Otherwise, he added, a test can be held "closer in." Then he said "one of the considerations also is hurting somebody."

Dean added confidently:

"We don't test these things to see if they will go off. We know they will. We test them to determine improvements that might be incorporated."

Silent on H-Bomb

He said that none of the weapons so far tested by the United States "has ever failed to go off."

Dean was also asked by a reporter if he could say "what progress is being made to determine the feasibility of the hydrogen bomb?"

And Dean merely replied: "Not today."

Ty Cobb Favors Player Controls

inning of the Congressional inquiry.

"There has to be something to protect the big league clubs from one another," he said, adding that the reserve clause in players' contracts gets this job done.

The reserve clause is the contract provision enabling club owners to buy, trade or sell players without their consent. And if the players object, the clause bars him from playing anywhere in Organized Baseball.

Cobb told the lawyer-packed committee that if the reserve clause was taken away the richest owners would be able to get the best players. And this, he said, wouldn't be good for the game.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, followed Cobb with a sturdy defense of baseball's "reserve clause," calling it "the foundation stone" of all of the games' operations.

"Frankly, I don't see why all the furore about the reserve clause," he said. "Basically it is a long term contract which is nothing unusual where distinctive services are contracted for."

He said the "popular notion" about the clause is that it gives the club that first signs a player "a continuing and exclusive right to his services."

"Actually, the uniform player contracts do not contain a particular clause which spells out the reserve provisions.

"The reserve clause may be said to comprise (A) the 'renewal clause' or option in the player contract, (B) the agreement that club and player will abide by major and major-minor league rules, and (C) the reserve rule and the rule against tampering contained in the major and major-minor league rules."

Pratt-Tremblay

Miss Claire Rita Tremblay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo F. Tremblay, of Stonehouse road, South Coventry, was married Saturday, July 28, to William Howard Pratt, son of Mrs. Maude Pratt, also of Stonehouse road, South Coventry, at 10 a. m. in St. Mary's church, South Coventry. Rev. Bernrd J. Foster performed the double ring ceremony with the bride given in marriage by her father.

Theodore Paquin of South Coventry, organist, played the Wedding March from "Lohengrin" was the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the recessional. Arthur Pratt of Caldwell, N. J., brother of the groom, soloist, sang "Because" before the ceremony and "Ave Maria" during the ceremony.

The bride had as her only attendant her sister, Miss Lucille Louise Tremblay, as maid of honor. Pvt. Richard Eugene Pratt of Camp Pickett, Va., brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Robert E. Noble of Willimantic, brother-in-law of the bride, and Robert E. Pratt of Manchester, brother of the groom.

The bride wore a white gown fashioned with a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace over marquisette with a Peter Pan collar and fingertip sleeves. The groom attended Windham High school and was a member of the Air Force for three years from September, 1946, to September, 1949. He is employed at the Electro-Motive Manufacturing Company in Willimantic.

Moats Are Used To Stump Reds

Malacca — (AP)—It's going to be a lot tougher for Communist terrorists to get back into areas from which they have been driven by British security forces. One village, Simpang Bekoh, is being resettled with loyal and law-abiding citizens of Malaya, but it has a unique feature—it is to be surrounded by a moat. Dredgers now are at work, making a moat 14 feet wide around the village.

British authorities may carry out this scheme to help protect other villages which are being resettled after the areas are cleared of Communist terrorists.

Bowzavich Death Probe Postponed to be able to take up the case again in a few days.

The inquest today was to have climaxed a three week investigation which brought the detention in Haddam jail of Marion W. Czaplicki of Hartford, held on a coroner's warrant and the arrest in Hartford and subsequent freeing of Czaplicki's wife in a conspiracy charge.

Czaplicki, foreman over Bowzavich at a New Britain factory, is also under investigation by the State Labor department which has received information Czaplicki was forcing Bowzavich to make "kickbacks" from his pay.

Although no definite cause for Bowzavich's death has yet been described, Coroner Wrubel has stated that on the basis of medical findings to date, he concludes Bowzavich died by suffocation after he had been rendered unconscious.

Mrs. Czaplicki, whose case was nolled in Hartford police court last week, was under subpena to testify at the inquest here.

Stop-Gap Fund Bill Approved

stop-gap measure, 60 days, was an indication that Congressional leaders are not too optimistic over an early break in the Congressional deadlock on money bills.

The measure was carded for House passage just as soon as the appropriations committee sends it to the floor. It would then go to the Senate.

Same Spending Rate

The new measure would provide authority for the government to spend during the next two months at a rate based generally on the lowest amounts voted by either the Senate or the House in bills passed but still hung up on Capitol Hill. The earlier stop-gap plan made the same allowance. The amounts spent will be charged against appropriations eventually approved for the present fiscal year.

Should the present money stalemate continue beyond Sept. 6, Congressional veterans claim, it would set a new record. The federal agencies received their regular funds last year on Sept. 6 as the day a one-package appropriations bill, financing all of them, became law. This year Congress decided to give up the one-package approach and is handling each money measure separately.

Usual Procedure

Stop-gap appropriation measures have become the rule rather than the exception in recent years but in most past year a majority of the departmental money bills have been cleared by the end of July.

Only five of the nine regular bills passed this year by the House have been approved by the Senate. As quickly as the Senate passes them, they go to a Senate-House conference for adjustment of differences.

The first two measures to emerge from conference—those for (A) the Department of Agriculture and (B) the Treasury and Post Office departments—have been sent rgiht back to the conference committees. The same fate appears in store for the others unless wrangling over a job-reduction formula can be ended. The House is insisting on a provision requiring 75 per cent of most federal job vacancies this year to be left vacant until the payrolls drop to 80 per cent of the July 1 levels. The Senate wants its own plan, aimed at reducing the payrolls of specified agencies by 10 per cent.

The two biggest money bills have not yet emerged from committee stage in the House. They finance the Defense departmnt and the foreign-aid programs. The $60,000,000,000 defense measure is due for House action next week, but hearings have not been started formally by th appropriations committee on the $8,500,000,000 foreign aid measure.

Napanoch Noise Is Now Stilled

Napanoch, N. Y. — (AP) — Ben Feinberg, director of the Napanoch Country Club in Napanoch, New York, scrupulously observed the rules of Noise Abatement Week recently.

Following the Governor's statement that "noise impairs human health and lowers efficiency" Feinberg said he installed muffled buzzers in each room instead of the customary bell, that loudspeakers replaced the dinner gong, all help wore rubber soled footwear, a sign was posted at the entrance against excessive horn blowing and a slogan of "No Noise at Napanoch" was ordered.

Thailand Stops Beast Exports

Bangkok—(AP)—In an effort to conserve its wild life, Thailand has banned the export of wild animals. Action followed reports that trappers and dealers were stripping the jungles to fill the expanding trade in wild animals.

Thailand has been the main operating ground for international wild animal dealers since the war. Elephants, tigers, leopards, monkeys, gibbons and snakes have been shipped to the United States and Europe to replenish war-depleted zoos.

Wild animal operators are now expected to turn to Borneo for their supplies. Communist terrorism has closed Malaya as a hunting ground.

Blind Group Has Motto for Blind

New York—(AP)—"Let the blind lead the blind." That is the motto of an organization made up entirely of blind people including the board of directors, officers, and members. It's called, "The Associated Blind, Inc."

The organization was founded 14 years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Selis, both blind, who were annoyed by blind groups which had sighted people as leaders. They believed that sighted people couldn't fully appreciate the problems of the blind and started their own organization.

At the headquarters of the organization a shop sells items made by blind people all over the world. The senders are paid upon acceptance of the article.

Serious Fire Averted Here

Quick Action of Passer-by, Police and Firemen Halts Blaze

Fire burned several pieces of furniture in the living room of the home of Patrick Peak, 4 Waddell road about 5 o'clock yesterday morning. Companies One and Two of the South Manchester Fire District responded to box alarm 161 and the recall was sounded about 6:05.

William Sherman of 41 Hyde street, son of a fireman, noticed the blaze as he was covering his morning milk route for the West Side Dairy. After turning in the alarm he returned to the home and Robert Tierney, an occupant of the house and only one at home at the time, had come to the porch. The Peak family was at the shore at the time.

Fire Chief James Schaub said quick work by Sherman in notifying the fire department and the response by the two companies averted a serious blaze. Booster tanks and a chemical line were used to extinguish the flames. Officers of the police department, Sgt. George C. Dent and Patrolman Albert E. Scables, arrived at the scene in cruisers upon hearing the alarm and used chemical tanks to confine the blaze until firemen arrived. Extent of damage is not known. The origin of the blaze is still under investigation.

Berlin Airlift May Be Revised

Bonn, Germany, July 30—(AP)—The Western Allies may revive the Berlin airlift—in reverse—if the Russians don't stop restricting exports fro mthe Red-surrounded former German capital.

An informed source said yesterday the United States, Britain and France are lining up planes to take Berlin's exports to the West if necessary to by-pass new Soviet restrictions.

The Russians have demanded that all Berlin exports moving the 100 miles through the Soviet zone to the west carry "certificates of origin." The Allied High Commissioners in a strong statement Thursday denied the "right of the Soviet High Commission to assume such arbitrary control over the shipment of goods from Western Berlin."

Export products meanwhile are stacking up in West Berlin warehouses. The informant said if the Russians don't come around in a few days, the new airlift will be started.

Taft Set to Run, Awaits GOP Word

land Republicans gathered at the historic landing place of the Pilgrims.

In his address to a crowd of 8,000 the veteran GOP leader said:

"It is hopeless to expect honesty and integrity in the Washington government . . . without a complete housecleaning and the election and selection of officials with much the same uncompromising honesty as the Pilgrims brought to Massachusetts."

On foreign affairs, Taft said that the "one danger facing America is that we undertake more than our capacity," and he added:

"I believe that control of the sea and air throughout the world is within our capacity, and that we should, therefore, undertake to secure that control in cooperation with the British Empire."

If that is done, Taft said, "this country will be safe, and we can be of maximum assistance to those who undertake to check Communism throughout the entire world."

"I believe that the preparation in time of peace for immediate land welfare by ourselves against Russia on any large scale on the Continent of Europe or the Continent of Asia is beyond our capacity," Taft went on.

"We can assist those who are defending themselves, but we cannot undertake the job ourselves, or do anything unless the bulk of the defense is furnished by the nations who are directly concerned," he said.

Urges Consistent Policy

"The stationing of American soldiers in foreign lands to defend them against attack is the most likely to involve us in war, and therefore should never be undertaken without Congressional approval.

And, said Taft, he sees "no reason why we should favor either Asia or Europe."

"All that I have asked for is a consistent policy applying to both."

Taft criticized President Truman's suggestion that we might be spending a hundred billion dollars on the federal government by 1953, and said that would amount to 40 per cent of the national income.

"We cannot raise the taxes for any such program," Taft said, "and we must recognize that it means further inflation, a great increase in the national debt, hardship and turmoil and impairment of the very production which is the backbone of our strength."

Cites Probes Results

On the domestic front, Taft accused the Democratic administration of a "studied habit of concealing the actual meaning of policies which they propose."

"No one can review without shame the revelations made by direct Congressional investigation of the influences used in Washington to obtain favors . . . ."

"The discouraging thing today," he said, "is that no one has even been rebuked, or dismissed from the government because of these revelations."

"The immoral, if not illegal, practices are condoned by the highest authorities."

But, he said, "there is no reason for fear or trembling.

"It is only our leadership which has led us temporarily into an emergency problem.

"We need only a government inspired by the principles of the Pilgrim fathers — a government which is honest to the core, and furnishes a moral and religious leadership to the people, a government inspired by the dominating purpose that it will maintain at all costs the liberty of its people from foreign and domestic threat."

MORE APTITUDE TESTS

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Students who started college this summer, too late to get in on Selective Service's aptitude tests, almost certainly will have a chance to take such tests early next year.

This assurance was given today by Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrom, acting Director of Selective Service, to Raymond S. Homes, Staff Associate of the American Council on Education. The two men discussed the draft tests in a radio broadcast.

Truman Veto Not Expected

(D-Ky) of the House Banking committee. "I don't think the President will like it but he's got to sign it."

However, administration leaders wouldn't be surprised if the President couples with his approval a sharp rebuke to Congress for having refused to give him the broad powers he requested—powers which many Republicans claimed would lead to Socialism.

Particularly disappointing to the President, they said privately, was refusal of Congress to permit more effective price rollbacks and to allow the imposition of livestock slaughtering quotas while at the same time allowing rent increases and relaxing curbs on consumer credit.

Fears Inflation Runaway

Defense Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson told a Detroit audience last Saturday that "the biggest headache of all—and one for which there is no sure cure—is the danger of runaway inflation."

He said the U. S. must report to economic controls now "because you simply cannot take some $150,000,000,000 out of our economy for defense purposes without creating terrific inflationary strains."

He urged Americans to use their traditional impatience "to see that war production gets rolling and to see that inflation is curbed." Then, he added, "We will have a platform of impregnable strength" for world peace.

Rep. Keating of New York, a Republican, announced he plans to introduce a separate bill today to give the administration the power to set slaughtering quotas. Both Houses specifically refused to do this in the controls act.

May Renew Requests

Mr. Truman also may renew his request to Congress for this and some of the other powers denied him, but the prospect of Congress granting them this year is dim.

"But it may be a different story next year," Spence told newsmen. "The voice of the consumers may be recognized then for, with all the bugs in it, this bill isn't going to do the consumer any good. The ones who will benefit from this bill are the organized interests."

Some Republicans challenged Spence's prediction that the wrath of the consuming public will descend on Congress as a result of the bill. They concurred generally in the declaration of Representative Halleck of Indiana, assistant Republican leader, that the bill will be "adequate if properly administered."

Bill Unenforceable

Senator Moody (D., Mich.) last night quoted Wilson as saying the new bill is "unenforceable."

Moody said Wilson expressed this view particularly on a section of the bill which permits cost increases up to July 26 to be added to prices.

Here are some of the major provisions:

PRICES: Permits rollbacks on non-farm commodities to pre-Korean levels if increased production costs since then are taken into consideration and if ceilings permit retailers and wholesalers their customary percentage markups. This could lead to increases in prices of some goods and decreases in others. Rollbacks on prices of farm commodities would be allowed provided that ceilings are not below parity or below 90 per cent of the May 19 levels. This would allow the current 10 per cent rollback in beef prices to remain in effect but would ban two additional cutbacks originally planned.

Allows Some Rent Boosts

RENTS: Permits increases up to 20 per cent over June, 1947 rates in areas now under control, with rollbacks to pre-Korean levels in newly designated critical defense areas not now under control. The 20 per cent boost will include increases already imposed since June, 1947.

WAGES: Continues the present wage control program without change.

CONSUMER CREDIT: Makes it easier for consumers to buy automobiles, furniture, household appliances, radios, television, etc., by spreading out the payment period over 18 instead of 15 months. The present requirement for a down payment of one-third stands for all automobiles, with a 15 per cent initial payment on radios and televisions.

LIVESTOCK SLAUGHTER QUOTAS: Prohibits them, despite the administration claim they are needed to curb black market meat activities.

GENERAL: Creates a small defense plants administration to help small business get war contracts; continues, with modifications, the present program of priorities and allocations covering scarce materials, and continues the existing controls on imports of fats and oils with daily products added.

Congress rejected the President's plea for power to build defense plants and to curb speculation on commodity exchanges, and disregarded his warnings against relaxing consumer credit controls.

Zipser Club Gives Party For Jacobs

Ernest F. Jacobs, steward of the Zipser Club on Brainard place for the last decade, was tendered a party Saturday evening in recognition of his 78th birthday which occurs tomorrow. The affair was held at the clubhouse and attended by over 100 of the members, their families and friends.

Mr. Jacobs kept busy in and around the clubhouse until six o'clock, when he left for 249 Woodland street where he makes his home with the family of his son Peter. He was called back to the club about 8:15 on a fake errand and when he arrived was surprised to find the hall decorated with flowers and his children, grandchildren, club members and friends already assembled.

President George Stavnitsky, in behalf of the group, presented to Mr. Jacobs a purse of money, praising him for his service and hoping he would long remain as steward of the club. Mr. Jacobs, recovering from his surprise, expressed grateful thanks to his friends for their fine gift and the thoughtfulness which prompted the party in his honor. One of the oldest members of the club, he is also one of the most active and seems to enjoy the work.

Mr. Jacobs came to this country from Germany as a boy. He lived in Talcottville, and being of a religious nature he was accustomed to travel by train on Sunday to a German church in Hartford.

He established and for many years was proprietor of the West Side Dairy of this town, and was one of the first of the local milk dealers to pasteurize milk. Since Mrs. Jacobs' death he has lived with his son.

The party proved a jolly one for the gathering. Refreshments were served and John Kamm provided accordion music for those who wished to dance.

Capture Joint Aid Hearings

Byrd (D-Va) told a reporter today that he believes military men ought to have the final word on the dispatch of weapons to North Atlantic defense partners.

Byrd said he was considering offering an amendment to set up a special agency to handle the program.

Byrd is a member of the Armed Services committee.

Senator Bridges (R-NH) described the Foreign Relations committee's closed door meeting as stormy.

He told reporters Conally finally agreed to consolidated hearings with the Armed Services committee but declared that he was "having rocks thrown at him," and accused other Senators of "holding a gun at his head."

The Armed Services committee members had threatened to take the fight to the Senate floor.

The huge aid bill contains authorization for $6,300,000,000 in military and $2,200,000,000 in economic aid.

Talks Will Not Deter 'Hot' War

what might be a language barrier. It might have some clarifying effects."

Joy gave a detailed analysis of the Allied and Communist proposals for a military dividing line across Korea.

The Reds want a zone 12½ miles wide along the 38th parallel, prewar political boundary between North and South Korea.

The Allies want a 20-mile wide zone along the present battle lines. Most of these lines are inside Red Korea, on the average about 20 miles north of the 38th parallel.

Joy asked the Reds for comment on the U. N. proposals "so that the final solution to this item may reflect our mutual views."

Situation The Same

The Red reply took one hour and one minute, and left the situation just where it was before.

Brig. Gen. William P. Nucklos, U. N. briefing officer who attends the sessions, said Nam merely repeated what he has said before, the same words, but in different order.

Today's session lasted three hours and eight minutes, longest uninterrupted meeting since the talks began.

Nuckols said Joy's statement concerning a final solution was "another invitation to the Communists to consider the U. N. stand on the buffer zone."

Much Whispering

Nam Il carried the Communist ball all alone today. North Korean Colonel Chang was unusually quiet, in contrast to the last two days when he passed numerous messages to the senior Red delegate.

Nucklos also said "it seemed there was little if any communication" between Nam and the Chinese delegates. There was considerable whispering between the other two North Koreans and the two Chinese officers.

Nuckols said no maps had figured in the talks since Joy introduced two last Friday. Joy gave the maps to Nam, and they haven't been brought out since.

Political Boundary

Before today's session started, Nuckols made it clear to newsmen that the U. N. considers the 38th parallel "a political boundary" and not suitable for a military dividing line.

"A military armistice conference is interested in providing a defensible line for each side. It would be the rarest coincidence if there were a natural defense line along an imaginary dividing line along a parallel of latitude."

This morning he told reporters the 38th parallel was "an arbitrary line picked out of a hat, so to speak," in 1945 for the exchange of Japanese prisoners. The Russians handled those north of 38, he said, and the Americans took care of those to the south.

Thus it has "no military significance," the spokesman added.

This view was bitterly attacked today by Communist radio stations in Peiping and Pyongyang.

Both warned indirectly that the Allied stand might force a breakdown in cease-fire talks.

Mixed Shower For Miss Tobin

Lakota Council, No. 61, Degree of Pocahontas, gave a surprise Jack and Jill shower Saturday evening, honoring Past Pocahontas Elizabeth Tobin and her fiance, Harry DePace, of Hartford. The party was held at the home of Mrs. Irma Miller of Ridge street and attended by over 30 of the members.

The bride and bridegroom-elect were seated in front of a "dream boat" fashioned of crepe paper and filled with miscellaneous gifts.

A buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. Miller and several of the members. It was also discovered that Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Vendrillo were having a wedding anniversary, and a cake was provided for that event.

Dancing in the recreation room followed, to music of a two-piece orchestra.

RKO's State Own Terms For Peace

"We have the fighting spirit," he added.

Ryee said about 250,000 men are available as troops but half are untrained and the other half have had basic training of only one month.

The spokesman disclosed that President Syngman Rhee had conferred four or five times with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway since the Kaesong cease-fire talks started July 10.

Ryee maintained that the North Korean Reads should be demobilized because "aggressors must be punished."

If we maintain the status quo, "we are appeasing them," Ryee said.

"The best thing is to disarm the entire North Korean Army."

Ryee said the South Korean government still sticks by the five point program for peace it proposed just before the cease-fire talks began.

He listed the points as:

1. Withdrawal of Chinese troops across the Yalu;
2. Disarmament of the North Korean Army;
3. Agreement by members of the United Nations that no third powers give military or economic aid to North Korea or the Chinese Army;
4. Representation by the official Republic of Korea government in all matters concerning Korea;
5. A guarantee against the violation of the administrative sovereignity and territorial integrity of the Republic of Korea.

2 Gunmen Face More Charges

Route 44, Avon. Mrs. Brown is in serious but not critical condition at St. Francis' Hospital, Hartford.

New Haven police charged the men with two counts of theft of motor vehicles, breaking and entering, theft, and defrauding a service station. They allegedly are charged with armed robbery, assault with attempt to kill, and the theft of three cars.

The charges filed by New Haven police include:

Theft of a car belonging to John S. Malicki, 188 East street, from a parking lot at 181 East street on July 26.

Theft of a car belonging to Edward Minor, Hotchkiss Grove, Branford, from in front of the Knights of St. Patrick Club, Elm street, on July 27.

Breaking and entering at Tony's Tire and Battery service, 5 Wooster street, on July 26.

Theft of a $50 radio at Tony's.

Defrauding Vinnie's Service Station, 60 George street, on July 28, when they did not pay for gasoline and grease.

The car the men allegedly stole from Malicki crashed into the front porch of a house at 121 Short Beach road, East Haven, at 7 a. m., July 26. Matthew Proto, proprietor of Proto's Service Station, 402 Main street, East Haven, was asked to remove the car but would not do so without permission of the police. The radio taken from Tony's was found in the car.

The other car was cracked up in Cheshire when the youths fled after allegedly holding up the lunchroom in Avon, later being captured by State Troopers Glen Thomas, Edward Dooling, George Fagan and Carl Carlson when they tried to telephone for a taxi.

Extols AAA Work To Kiwanis Club

William Drummond of the Hartford Automobile League association was the guest speaker at today's luncheon of the Manchester Kiwanis club. The meeting was held at the Country club.

The speaker told of the benefits afforded by the American Automobile association. Mr. Drummond spoke on the growth of the organization in the United States, pointing out that there are now 300 clubs working for the best interests of motorists from coast to coast.

One of the main purposes of the AAA is for the safety of drivers and the protection of pedestrians.

The attendance prize, donated by Edson Bailey, was won by Bill Glenney, a new member. Mr. Glenney was accepted as a new member of the club at today's meeting.

Start Sunday Sale Petition

Seek to Place Issue on Machines; Must Get About 1,000 Signers

A petition designed to place the Sunday sale of liquor question on the voting machines in a special referendum is currently being circulated in town, it was learned today. The petitioners propose that an ordinance be adopted to allow Sunday sales in hotels, clubs and restaurants between the hours of noon and 9 p. m.

This marks the second petition by the liquor interests in recent months. The first was addressed to the Board of Directors and requested that they adopt the Sunday sale ordinance. After a public hearing, the directors declined to take action.

The current document is a Petition for Enactment and is a method provided for in the charter by which proposed ordinance can be placed on the voting machines. The petition must bear the signatures of at least five per cent of the registered voters.

If the previous petition is any indication, the required number of signatures, about 1,000 should be available. The first carried 1,075 signatures.

When the signatures have been secured, the petition must be submitted to Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington. After checking to see that the document and names are in order, the town clerk will present the petition to the Board of Directors. If the directors take no action to pass the proposed ordinance within 45 days, the issue is presented to the public at a referendum.

Sunday sale of liquor has proved a controversial one so far with local ministers and temperance groups spearheading the opposition. Attorney George C. Lessner represents those favoring Sunday sale.

New India Radio Links 12 States

New Delhi—(AP)— Indian government officials will have a direct communications link with 12 important state capitals for the first time through a new police wireless network.

Aimed at preventing disruption of communications by subversive elements in time of crisis, the wireless will connect Delhi with key stations now being set up by the home ministry. Each state government has its own intra state wireless.

Attendance at 21 TRA (Thoroughbred Racing Association) tracks during the first six months of 1951 showed an increase of 3.1 per cent over a similar period in 1950.

JOBLESS PAY FUND

Washington, July 30—(AP)—The U. S. Treasury has $7,329,000,000 tucked away to tide workers over any period of unemployment.

Secretary of Labor Tobin said Saturday that this is the amount on reserve for use by States in paying out unemployment compensation.

Employer contributions have exceeded benefit payments since Jan. 1, resulting in an extra $641,000,000 for the reserve fund. This was in contrast to 1950 when unemployment was higher and jobless insurance checks were bigger.

Two Auto Racers Die In Same Skid

at the Funk Speedway near Winchester, Ind.

First to die was Green whose Offenhauser Special spun as he hit the steep southwest banked curve. The car crashed through a two-foot guard rail, turning as it plunged down a 25-foot embankment.

Within 15 minutes Mackey zoomed toward the same curve. His car went into a sudden spin, smashed the guard rail and went down the embankment. Later, a track official said Mackey's racer left skid marks less than six inches from those made by Green's ill-fated car.

A spokesman for the American Automobile association said there was an oil slick on the steep curve and that both drivers apparently were going too fast along the asphalt track to negotiate it. Green and Mackey were making time trials on the half-mile track.

Another top driver Walt Brown, 41, of Massapequa, N. Y., was killed yesterday at Williams Grove, Pa., half mile speedway when his car went out of control during a time trial. Clipping along at breakneck speed, Brown's car rose on a curve, spun and turned over, crushing him.

A spinning wheel spelled death for two spectators at a stock car race at Mt. Hawley Speedway near Peoria Saturday night. The wheel wrenched free from a car, bounced off a wall and was hit by another car, sending it like a shot into the stands. It plowed into Mr. and Mrs. Maxie Myers, both 54, of Peoria Heights, mortally wounding them and hurting two other spectators. The driver of the car was not hurt.

Green, Mackey and Brown were among top-rank drivers in the country. Green ranked sixth, Mackey 13th and Brown 27th in AAA season point standings. Green was third and Mackey finished fourth in a 250-miler at Darlington, S. C., July 4, the AAA's second ranking race.

Reds to Try Nine As Spies For U. S.

London, July 30—(AP)—Warsaw radio announced today four generals and five other Polish Army officers will go on trial tomorrow charged with running a spy ring for the United States and Britain.

Among the defendants is Brig. Gen. Stanislaw Tatar, former Chief of Operations for the Polish Home Army.

Others include Col Marian Utnik and Col. Stanislaw Nowicki, who served with Tatar on the London staff of the Polish Refugee Army in World War II.

Utnik was chief of the Polish purchasing mission in London until last October, when he was recalled to Warsaw.

The Warsaw broadcast said the nine defendants, financed from Washington and London, had sought since 1945 to undermine the Polish Army and make ready for a forceful overthrow of the Communist regime.

The broadcast said the nine men planned to "make it possible for the imperialists to tear away the Polish western territories from the mother country and annex them to neo-Nazi Germany."

In addition to Tatar, Utnik and Nowicki the defendants were identified as Brig. Gen. Franciszek Herman, former Deputy Chief of the Home Army's Second Department, Brig. Gen. Jerzy Kirchmayer, Maj. Gen. Stefan Mossor, Col. Marian Jurecki, Maj. Wladyslaw Roman and Commander Szczepan Wacek.

Bulgaria General Arrested as Spy

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 30—(AP)—The Yugoslav press reported today that Maj. Gen. Slavco Trinski of Bulgaria has been arrested secretly in that country as a spy.

Without disclosing the source of its information, Borba—the voice of Marshal Tito's gvoernment—said the arrest was part of a purge of all Bulgarians opposing Russian domination.

The front-page article described Trinski as a veteran Communist and long-time advocate of Yugoslav-Bulgarian cooperation. It also said the general was a firm believer in the principle that Bulgaria should not sacrifice its rights to Russia.

Borba said Trinski went along with the anti-Tito Cominform resolution of 1948 "because of party discipline." But, it added, he did so only unwillingly and therefore fell into Russian disfavor.

The newspaper claimed only seven of the 11-man Bulgarian Politburo are "Russia's men" and that opposition to the regime is increasing.

EDITORIAL WRITER DIES

New York, July 30—(AP)—William D. O'Brien, 56, editorial writer for the New York World-Telegram and Sun, died yesterday.

O'Brien served on the staff of the W-T & S—and its predecessors, the old World and World-Telegram—for the past 25 years. He had been suffering from a heart ailment for some time.

Mac Qualifies 'Appeasement'

as a "complete misrepresentation" of MacArthur's Boston speech in yesterday's New York Times.

In its section reviewing the news of the past week, the Times described the Boston address as the strongest indication that MacArthur "intends to wield his influence in the '52 political picture."

Paraphrasing a section of the speech, the Times attributed this view to MacArthur:

The talk of truce in Korea is "appeasement on the battlefield."

MacArthur in his Boston speech said:

"The high moral purpose which so animated and inspired the world a year ago yielded to the timidity and fear of our leaders as after defeating our original enemy a new one entered the field which they dare not fight to a decision.

No Comment

"Appeasement thereafter became the policy of war on the battlefield."

Whitney said the Times statement "to the effect that in his Boston address General MacArthur attacked the cease-fire negotiations now under way in Korea as appeasement is a complete misrepresentation."

The Times had no comment on Gen. Whitney's statement.

"Last March 24," Whitney added, "the general publicly announced his readiness at any time to engage in such talks with the enemy commander in the field in an effort to find a satisfactory formula under which further bloodshed might be avoided and the United Nations' objectives in the liberation and unification of Korea, under a free and representative government, might be achieved through peaceful means.

"Since the start of the present cease-fire conferences, it has been his fervent hope that they would serve just such purposes without resort to appeasement on our part."

Basic Differences

In recommending the application of maximum power, Whitney said, the General "made it clear in testimony before the Congressional committees that we should first give the enemy the opportunity to sit down at a conference table in an honest effort to avoid further bloodshed by finding a satisfactory cease-fire formula.

"The only difference in the General's basic concept and that underlying the existing cease-fire negotiations is that the initiative in the present effort was yielded to the Soviets. The only reference by the General's Boston statement to the cease-fire negotiations was to the effect that the Soviet proposal and that which he advanced on March 24 were identical—but the same authorities who relieved him of his command because of his proposal, enthusiastically received that of the Soviets."

General George C. Marshall, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has said that the impact of MacArthur's March 24 peace offer on other United Nations wiped out chances to negotiate a Korean war settlement at that time.

Ingrid In London, Awaits Roberto

London, July 30—(AP)—Ingrid Bergman moved from a private home here to a hotel today to await the arrival tomorrow of her husband, Italian film producer Roberto Rossellini.

The Swedish film star slipped quietly into London last week to see her 12-year-old daughter, Jenny Ann Lindstrom, who was on her way to Sweden with her father, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, Ingrid's former husband.

Ingrid and Jenny Ann (whose name used to be Pia) met and talked in the home of British movie star Ann Todd. Originally, Dr. Lindstrom had announced the meeting—the first since 1949—was to take place in Sweden.

The Rossellinis plan to spend a few days together here before returning to their home in Rome.

Locating The Buffer Zone

It is, once again, a question of the timing of something inevitable which is snagging the Kaesong negotiations.

Previously, it was the general question of withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea. That will come, eventually, in any peace settlement. We, while conceding that informally, were not willing to discuss it as part of the arrangements for a cease-fire. We were right enough in that stand; the Communists were wrong; the Communists yielded.

Now the question is one of location of the proposed buffer zone to lie between the opposing troops in the opening phase of any truce. The Communists want the 38th parallel to be the guiding line for this buffer zone. We want the present battle line, which we have in some sections pushed 20 or 30 miles north of the parrallel, to be the guiding line for the buffer zone.

In this stand, we are seeking to retain a military advantage, in the negotiations at Kaesong, which we have not previously or elsewhere reserved or claimed for ourselves. We have put ourselves on record many times as considering the 38th parallel, not some line above it, as a suitable line for truce in Korea. The Malik proposal, which we accepted as the basis for talks in Korea, was based on the prospective withdrawal of both sides from the 38th parallel.

Our present insistence, at Kaesong, upon some other line falls, then, into the category of those diplomatic stratagems for which we are always criticizing the Communists. We are trying to change the basis of negotiations, after these negotiations have begun, for our own advantage. We are trying to exact, in the course of the negotiations, a price higher than the price we seemed to be asking when the negotiations opened.

In all this, we do not pretend that we are not eventually going to accept the 38th parallel as the political dividing line between North and South Korea. But we are trying to get a cease-fire which gives us a military advantage to be held during the wider diplomatic negotiations which would follow a cease-fire. Such a military advantage would be very nice and comforting to have. But it is doubtful if it can be gained as a result of negotiations which were begun on the assumption of the 38th parallel as the truce line. We would not accept such a shift of negotiations basis from the Communists; it is not likely they will accept it from us.

It would seem to be our turn, as it was the Communists' turn on the issue of general withdrawal of foreign troops, to seek and propose a face-saving compromise, lest we wreck the negotiations on a point where we are not clearly right and strong. The solution might be agreement on withdrawal to the 38th by stages supervised by the truce inspection teams to be created under the third item on the Kaesong agenda.

"Extraordinary Phenomenon"

"If the day's news were not so crowded with excursions and alarms, we should recognize the signs of Europe's obstinate push toward unity as the extraordinary phenomenon that it is," wrote Anne O'Hare McCormick in the New York Times the other day.

"It is extraordinary," she wrote, "because it keeps on in spite of snags at every turn."

The particular development which had spurred her to comment was the fact that five European nations, France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg, had just met and signed a report calling for a 50-year pact creating for themselves one "European army" to be under the authority of one European defense commissioner.

This is a move which is as revolutionary as the Schuman Plan for pooling the the steel industries of those old enemies, Germany and France, as revolutionary at the Council of Europe, as revolutionary as General Eisenhower's call for political unity of Europe, as revolutionary as the lowering of trade barriers which has already taken place in Europe.

As Mrs. McCormick writes, it is difficult for most of us, in the midst of a riot of dramatic news alarms, to realize the full significance of such proposals, or the fervent extent of Europe's devotion to them. All these things are things that have never happened before. They are dreams. Yet they have, in Europe, an almost unbelievable strength.

What we are witnessing in Europe, when we do take time and thought for it, is a revolution. It is a revolution against the concepts of extreme nationalism which have dominated the world for a thousand years past. It is a revolution toward a new world political order, in which the welfare and safety and peace of all people is placed ahead of the traditional importance of national boundary lines. And this revolution enjoys not only the support and leadership of some of the most gifted men of our time—like Churchill— but it also has a tremendous groundswell of popular support. This combination of able leadership and popular support is willing to attempt the "impossible." It is willing to attempt it because it believes that the "impossible" has become necessary.

This is the great and the true and the forward-looking revolution of our times. It is the revolution which contains the idea that is at once a true product of human experience and a true expression of human aspiration. It is the only revolution in our times which wears the shape of the future and not the shape of the past.

It is indeed, as Mrs. McCormick observes, an "extraordinary phenomenon."

Paralyzed—Yet Strong

If you want your democracy in its purest, most elemental form, you go to France, where there are so many parties and so many points of view that it has proved, for days now, to be impossible to form a Cabinet.

During this period France has been in what can only be called a state of political paralysis. Superficially, at least, it has no government. On the surface, the country appears helpless. It has so much democracy, in other words, that it seems incapable of governing itself. And when we look at such a France, we look back at our own instinctive loyalty to the two party system, and our own constitutional structure, and we are thankful that they keep us out of such predicaments.

But the real contrast to the periodic shapelessness and lack of political cohesion which exists in France is not so much our better-organized democracy as it another alternative—the strong, certain rule by one man— Franco in Spain, Stalin in Russia, Tito in Yugoslavia, Salazar in Portugal, or General Charles de Gaulle, who would not mind providing such leadership for France.

General de Gaulle, in his campaigning, which was unsuccessful, promised to lead the people of France back to strength and glory. If he had won the election there would have been no difficulty about forming a government, no political paralysis. There would have been political mastery, and France heading in one clear direction, and this might have been very satisying to some.

Hitler and Mussolini were satisfying to some, too. They eliminated political confusion and political indecisions.

Yet France today, in its most glaring sample of political paralysis, is still basically stronger, still better equipped to survive as a nation and as a people and as a culture than were Italy and Germany at the moment of their greatest glory under Hitler and Mussolini. The glorious and threatening order these two created was basic weakness; the confusion France suffers contains, for all its surface distress, a basic strength. It is the durable, resilient, ever-self-renewing strength of freedom, as opposed to the brittle, always - eventually - broken strength of superimposed order.

Plan Two-System Service Pension

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Defense department plans for a modified pension system for limited-service military personnel were disclosed today by the house appropriations committee.

Anna M. Rosenberg, assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel, told the committee during closed hearings on the 1952 military budget that a separate pension system may be developed for the limited-service men.

Army Relieves Gen. Crawford

don't know what I will do now. I am awaiting new orders."

In testimony before the Congressional committee, Crawford said he felt there was no impropriety in his actions and that he "couldn't do business without accepting hospitality."

Pace said Crawford's work in organizing the big tank center had been outstanding and that an investigation had not disclosed any contractual irregularities.

"Nevertheless," Pace said, "Gen. Crawford's failure to meet the high standards required of an Army officer cannot be condoned, nor can his violations of regulations which require very exacting standards on the part of Army personnel, both military and civilian."

The Army said Crawford also "acted in a manner contrary to standards expected of an officer . . . by converting to his own use government material in the construction of pleasure boats at Fort Wayne, Mich., and in transporting personal property at government expense from Detroit to his home at Cobb Island, Md."

The Army added that action has been taken "to require Gen. Crawford to reimburse the government for the materials so used."

Deitrick, Crawford's successor, started his military career in the Navy in World War I. He later was commissioned as an Army officer and has served the past 30 years as an ordnance officer. He was on General Dwight Eisenhower's Allied Headquarters Staff in Europe in World War II and formerly commanded the Cincinnati Ordnance District and the Ogden, Utah, Arsenal.

John H. Jackson, 39, Dies Suddenly

New Haven, July 30—(AP)—John Herrick Jackson, assistant to the publisher of the New Haven Register, died suddenly Sunday while visiting at the Fairfield home of his father-in-law, H. Smith Richardson. Death was due to a heart attack. He was 39 years old and resided in Blue Hills road, North Haven.

Jackson was associated with the Register since shortly after his graduation in 1934 from Yale university, where he captained the varsity crew. He was active in numerous civic, community and welfare organizations and in Yale organizations.

He was born in New Haven January 8, 1912, the son of John Day Jackson and Mrs. Rose Marie Herrick Jackson. He attended Kent school, and was a student at Radley College, Abingdon, Berkshire, England, before entering Yale. He stroked the freshmen crew and for the next three years held the same position in the varsity shell.

He married the former Miss Mary K. Richardson in Southport on June 20, 1936. She survives with three children, Herrick, Alison and Robert Wolcott Jackson.

Other survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Day Jackson; three sisters, Mrs. John I. Ely of New Haven, Mrs. John Wade Shepherd of Greenwich, and Mrs. William Blain Reese of Havre de Grace, Md.; and three brothers, Richard S., and Lionel, both of New Haven, and Henry of Phoenix, Ariz. Another brother, William, was killed in action in World War II.

Ellington

Approximately 200 members and friends of the Rev. John C. Miller and Mrs. Miller were present at the reception held in their honor in the social rooms of the Ellington Congregational church, Friday night. Max Kabrick of Rockville played several violin selections and Mrs. Ernest Meyer sang two solos. Mrs. William Frisbie, chairman of the reception committee, gave a short talk on the friendships the Ellington people have enjoyed with the Millers. Rev. Metzger of South Windsor was introduced and his talk was very humorous of the long friendship with the Millers of times before they came to Ellington. Mr. Frisbie then made a presentation speech of the gift of a large purple or copper beech tree that will be planted in the yard of the new home the Millers are building in Greenwich, Conn., for their future home. The Friendship Class of which Mr. Miller is the teacher and Mrs. Miller a member, presented them with an individual gift. A social hour was then enjoyed with refreshments being served by the officers and committee members. The Millers were assisted in receiving by William Frisbie, the senior deacon; Miss Alice Hyde, clerk of the church, and Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Clapp. Mr. Clapp is chairman of the board of trustees.

Morton E. Thompson, the 60-year member of Ellington Grange, has been elected to fill the vacancy on the executive committee of Frederic Hemeller who resigned recently.

Marshall Warns Of Red Menace

eign Affairs committee last Saturday, noting that his estimate had been questioned and saying that the 400,000 is correct — 340,000 ground forces and 60,000 air force personnel.

Marshall explained in his letter the figure includes supply and supporting troops as well as combat units.

The Senate has approved the dispatch of six U. S. divisions to Europe to be used in the defense of western Europe. The understanding at the time was that additional separate units, such as anti-aircraft groups, also would be sent. The six divisions at full strength would number about 108,000 men.

War Threat Increasing

Marshall recalled that "when Congress discussed the six divisions, there were already in Europe some 100,000 military personnel."

Marshall was asked by Representative Mahon (D., Tex.) whether the likelihood of all-out war must still be considered.

"I think it is continuing and, from the viewpoint of the enemy's build-up, it is increasing," Marshall replied. His elaboration of his statement was deleted from the public record.

Marshall said he was "deeply concerned" that Russia apparently had trapped the American people into developing an attitude of let-down.

"It is tragic," he said, "that we should be so susceptible to propaganda, that a single speech would create a state of mind that can very seriously react to our disadvantage in the world picture.

Sees Propaganda Trap

"That is the trap, that is the cleverness, and the ready response to it in America is tragic. We should not change our whole procedure every time the Kremlin decides on some new point. That, to my mind, is distressingly serious, because with so little effort they have accomplished so much to our great disadvantage."

The single speech to which Marshall referred was Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Malik's bid for Korea truce talks which led to the present negotiations in Kaesong.

Marshall said he believes it will be "quite a period of time" before the "real intention" of the Soviets is evident. Until that time, he said, America must be "determined, implacably determined, to get ourselves in such a strong position that the Kremlin will not dare upset the peace of the world."

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the committee an armistice or cease-fire in Korea "may lead to our undoing unless we take steps to prevent such undoing."

"If peace in Korea means a letdown in defense," Bradley said, "we have lost the time that our valiant soldiers, airmen and marines — and our allies — have brought for us and other free nations.

"If peace in Korea means a letdown in production, we will be cutting back on weapons just as we have begun to modernize and properly arm our forces."

Marshall Probes Pentagon Report

Coming at the height of Korean cease-fire talks, it jolted top Pentagon officials who promptly took the "official" label off the statement and said they knew nothing of its origin.

A department spokesman said yesterday that Marshall and Deputy Defense Secretary Robert Lovett "intend to get to the bottom of it."

A Pentagon general, who asked not to be identified, said he understood the statement was written by the Army's Psychological Warfare division. That's the Army branch which uses words and other devices as weapons of psychology against an enemy.

There was no immediate comment from Psychological Warfare division officers.

But why the statement was issued, no one could—or would—say just yet.

The statement said United Nations forces cut short a successful advance last month which had Red trops "on the ropes" after Russia made its truce talks proposal.

The statement added that the Communists had seized the opportunity to build up striking power along the battlefront while the U. S., instead, had actually withdrawn a combat unit from the line and sent it to Japan.

The investigation into the reason for the statement and its source apparently was ordered by Marshall and Lovett.

Airline Strike In Fourth Day

Los Angeles, July 30—(AP)—A mechanics' strike which has halted all operations of Western Airlines entered its fourth day today with no immediate sign of a settlement.

All of Western's 56 daily flight schedules have been grounded since the walkout was called last Friday by 300 members of the Air Carrier Mechanics association.

Pilots and stewardesses have refused to cross the picket lines. Yesterday, 20 members of the AFL Air Line Dispatchers association joined the absentee groups by failing to report for work.

The dispute centers around one principle issue: the union shop clause. The mechanics are demanding it and Western refuses to give in.

Representatives from both sides met again yesterday with Federal Mediator James Holaren.

lating President Truman's ban on operations against Red China.

Fear that publicity given Li's activities might inspire Chinese Reds to take more determined action against him than they would ordinarily.

Deside not to give the Reds a pretext for invading any part of southeast Asia, and Desire to avoid giving the idea that Li's operation is in any sense a forerunner to bigger things on the mainland.

Observers here expressed the opinion that with determined effort Reds could sweep Li's forces out of Yunnan.

Belief was widespread in Taipen that Li's troops have been given equipment and other secret help by sources other than nationalist Chinese.

A Taipen relative of the Nationalist general said Li now controls about one-third of Yunnan. The relative, who must remain unidentified, said Reds controlled another third of the province and that the rest was dominated by bandits.

Li reportedly has been operating in the province about three and one-half months.

He was appointed governor of Yunnan by the Nationalist government in 1949, when former Nationalist Gov. Lu Han switched to the Red side.

Taipen, Formosa, July 30—(AP)—Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, head of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory group in Formosa, indirectly denied reports today that he was seeking to have Gen. eralissimo Chiang Kai-shek's two sons relieved of their high Nationalist military jobs.

He told a news conference he is satisfied with progress of his mission and branded all reports to the contrary "wild rumors."

Falls 100 Feet, No Bones Broken

Millinocket, Me., July 30—(AP)—A 22-year-old girl was recovering today—with no bones broken—from a hundred foot fall Saturday night down the granite face of Maine's highest mountain which left her helpless on a ledge for seven hours in cold fog.

Marcia Doolittle of Schenectady, N. Y., was reported in good condition at Bangor hospital after her rescue early yesterday from the mile-high peak of Mt. Katahdin.

Landing on the ledge saved her from falling another 200 feet into a basin studded with boulders.

Her hiking companion, David Chipman, 23, of 30 McLean street, Boston, raced five miles to the base of the mountain for help.

A nurse, game wardens, forest rangers and lumberpacks removed the injured girl on an improvised stretcher.

Miss Doolittle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Doolittle of 3613 Becker street.

Columbia

The Flower show sponsored by the Catholic Ladies Society of St. Columbia's Chapel held in Yeomans Hall Saturday afternoon was, in the eyes of those attending, as well as the ladies themselves, a hugh success. A success, both from a financial viewpoint and eye appeal. As one entered the hall, through doors made attractive by hugh tubs of Black eyed-susans, a charming view of well arranged displays of the various classes of entries, ready for judging met the eye. To the rear of the stage, set up for a tea room was banked by tiers of attractive plants, in bloom on one side, cacti of every possible description on the other; and stairs of atttractive figurines set up on grass mats, separating the two. Off to the left was another hugh tub, this one filled with two types foliage plants, one a deep purple, the other green and white and front and underneath these a most luxuriant growth of what our grandmothers used to Patience, in a lovely shade of red. On the walls hung shadow boxes, the first attempt in the artistry of flowers for most of the exhibitors, who were encouraged to do this by Donald Kulte, the director of the show. These boxes, were made and donated by Walter Wheaton. Set up they were very lovely.

The Judges, Kenneth Scott of Suffield, with Ward and Co. decorators of Hartford and Joseph Wright, display directors of G. Fox and Company, gave Mrs. Thomas O'Brien of Andover first prize in this class. Mrs. O'Brien showed oriental influence as she arranged her display around a handsome Zula Queen Rose. Her arrangement with Chinese vase a Japanese figurine had dark maroon against blue background with gladiolus and snapuragons in deep red shades, used with the rose.

Second prize went to Mrs. Alfred Soracchi for her arrangement of the common thistle used with buddlea in an antique container and a dainty antique figurine. Others entered but not placed, included one with a minature deer head with green vine and a bowl of black eyed-susans made-up by Mrs. Jonn Mathieu, a study in black and white using white hydrangea, petunias and zinnias and miniature porceline skunks was made up by Mrs. Harry Chowanec. Mrs. Soracchi made up a second entry using Chinese influence with an ebony picture frame and Chinese object d'art and dahlias.

To fill the last shadow box, Mr. Scott worked up a particularly beautiful entry using coral and a conch shell against a silver background. He had lavender pink glads combined with those shading to a deep purple with one sprig of fushia. His, of course, was not entered for judging. There were three tables set for dinner or luncheon with floral centerpieces. Mrs. Alfred Soracchi placed first here with a dinner table setting using pastel pink flowers in a dainty antique dish.

Unusual flower arrangements had Mrs. Harold Walsh of Andover taking first place with an arrangement of tuberous begonias raised by H. Howard Peckham of Willimantic. Mrs. Paul Merrick, second, used a fresh fruit arrangement in a Blackamoor head.

In mixed bouquet class Mrs. Lucien Leavesque placed first with a small bouquet of phlox and flax in a wicker basket. Mrs. Henry Bernitt was second with a glass basket of phlox and gysophilia.

Floral arrangements, Mrs. John A. MacVeagh, 1st, with an entry using aseleamums petunias, buddlea and beebaum, shading from a pinky yellow through pink to pale lavender, arranged in a very lovely French Bisque dish. Mrs. Eugene Hennessy second, had used golden glow, snapdragons shading into a rust and beebaum, in a small porceline roaster.

Flower specimens, Gladilous, 1st, Mrs. Harry Chowance; 2nd, Mrs. J. A. MacVeagh Petunias, Mrs. Harold Walsh, 1st; Mrs. Louis Soracchi, 2nd; Zinnias, Mrs. Harry Chowance, 1st and 2nd. Mrs. John Mathieu showed dahlias, waterlillies, and calendulas but had no competition.

Mrs. Harry Jones exhibited the cacti and A. H. Buell of Eastford showed so very lovely gloxiania, all of which were sold during the afternoon.

A plant and flower table where things were sold by Mrs. Jones had small potted plants and tiny bouquets made up by the women. Mrs. MacVeagh got most of the plants started. Mrs. Gerald Cleary and Mrs. Karl Lockwood painted containers for the bouquets.

Tea was served during the afternoon with Mrs. MacVeagh pouring. Musical background was furnished by John MacVeagh and Mrs. Brian Minalga at the piano.

About one hundred people visited the show, and many expressed their pleasant surprise at the fine showing such a small group of women prepared. The show this year was confined to membership only, which gave only about twenty exhibitors. Another year, having felt this event a success it is hoped that other organizations will be included. Mr. Klute complimented the exhibitors on this work and spectators complimented both Mr. Klute for his direction of the affair, and the women for their efforts.

Congressional Committee To Look at Baseball Laws

Washington, July 30—(AP)— A Congressional committee today began looking at organized baseball in the light of Anti-Trust laws.

But Chairman Celler (D., N. Y.) quickly let it be known that his House Judiciary subcommittee's investigation will go on in a friendly atmosphere.

The probers, he said, want to preserve the integrity of the game and are agreed that it "must go forward with greater strength."

As two of baseball's big names—Ty Cobb, the old Detroit immortal, and Ford Frick, president of the National League —stood by, Celler said the committee wants to find out whether organized baseball should be exempted from Anti-Trust laws.

Celler said that since 1922, when the Supreme Court ruled that organized baseball was neither "interstate" nor "commerce", it has been assumed generally that the game was exempt from Anti-Trust legislation.

"However, in the intervening years the industry has regulated itself without feelings that it was necessary to comply with the laws relating to monopolies and restraint of trade.

"Therefore, organized baseball affords this subcommittee with almost a class-room example of what may happen in an industry which is governed by rules and regulations among its members rather than by the free play of competitive forces."

"Without knowing at this time whether such regulation is in the best interests of baseball because of its many unique characteristics, we may at least learn something of importance about how an industry operates when it regulates itself instead of being forced to comply with Anti-Trust laws."

Celler said the committee has no doubt whatever about the "validity and desirability" of the nation's basic anti-trust policy.

The committee, he said, is aware of "expressions of discontent" about baseball's reserve clause, the farm system, the powers of the high commissioner, franchises, and problems relating to broadcasting annd televising of games.

And he added that it knows about a number of lawsuits, pending in courts, based on anti-trust laws and involving treble damages.

The Congressman referred to the cases of Danny Gardella, former New York Giant and Fred Martin and Max Lanier, former St. Louis Cardinals, who "jumped" to the Mexican League and then were barred under the rules from further participation in organized baseball. Although the players sued for treble damages, their cases were settled out of court and the players reinstated.

He also cited the following cases now pending in courts:

The Tri-City Broadcasting Co. vs. the Cincinnati Ball Club and others, seeking $300,000.

Boyd Tepler vs. Ford Frick, the Chicago Cubs and others, seeking $450,000;

Jack Corbett and the El Paso Club vs. former Commissioner A. B. Chandler and others, seeking $10,000;

Walter J. Kovalsky vs. Chandler and others, seeking $150,000;

James P. Pendergast vs. the Syracuse Baseball Club and others, seeking $150,000;

George Toolson vs. the New York Yankees and others, seeking $375,000.

Cellar said that if the plaintiffs in the cases were successful in their suits and injunctions against the operation of baseball regulations were to result, there would be "a marked effect" on the game.

"Thus there would be endangered the livelihood and the investment of the thousands of people who are presently dependent on Organized Baseball," he added.

"This, in turn, might also affect the general public which looks upon baseball as our National pastime."

The committee, he went on, is not going to pass on the merits of the lawsuits "but it can and will thoroughly examine the merits of the argument that organized baseball should be exempt from the operation of anti-trust laws."

Walker Reinstated

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Minor league baseball czar George M. Trautman today lifted the 90-day suspension of hot-tempered Dixie Walker, manager of the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association.

Walker will be allowed to resume his job immediately.

The suspension of Walker came after a hot, vigorous rhubarb in Mobile, Ala., June 29, on an argument over a decision at home plate.

The result: Walker was suspended for 90 days and fined $100. He immediately appealed the decision.

Paces New York's Twin Triumph Over Chicago

Indians Top Red Sox; Dodgers Continue to Spreadeagle Field in National; Highlights

By Ralph Roden
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees expect easier sailing in the tight American League pennant race now that "the big guy" is hitting for distance once again.

Joe DiMaggio, hobbled by injuries all season, came to life over the weekend and forced the experts to put his obituary back on the shelf.

The $100,000-a-year outfielder looked like the DiMaggio of old as he slammed three home runs in as many games to help the Yanks sweep a three-game series from Chicago and knock the White Sox out of the race for at least the time being.

DiMaggio clinched Friday night's disputed 3-1 victory with a homer and yesterday he enjoyed his greatest day of the season before 70,972 fans, largest crowd of the year at Yankee Stadium.

The poker-faced veteran drove home five runs on a pair of homers to spark the Yanks to an 8-3 victory in the opener. He singled and scored the insurance run in a 2-0 nightcap triumph.

The sweep enabled the Yanks to pull two games ahead of the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians. The Indians nipped the Red Sox, 5-4, to tie Boston for second place. The fourth-place White Sox are lagging 6½ games off the pace.

In other American League games the Washington Senators split a doubleheader with St. Louis, winning the first game, 7-2, but losing the second 8-6; and the Philadelphia Athletics divided with the Detroit Tiges, taking the nightcap, 3-0, after dropping the opener, 8-4.

Meanwhile, the Brooklyn Dodgers continued to make merry in the National League. The Brooks trounced the St. Louis Cardinals, 9-3. The runnerup New York Giants shaved the Dodgers' lead to nine games by taking a 'pair from the Cincinnati Reds, 3-1 and 6-4.

The Chicago Cubs also swept a doubleheader, beating the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-4 and 8-6. Boston and Pittsburgh divided, the Pirates winning the opener, 6-2, and the Braves the nightcap, 5-4.

DiMaggio's long-ball busting overshadowed a brilliant pitching performance by Vic Raschi in the first game. Raschi fanned 12 batters in posting his 15th victory.

DiMaggio homered with one on in the first inning to match a pair of Chicago runs. The Yanks broke the tie with three in the fifth and DiMaggio clinched the game with a three-run homer in the sixth off starter and loser Lou Kretlow.

Lefty Bob Kuzava also pitched brilliantly in the nightcap. A former Chicagoan, he yielded only five hits, fanned nine and walked four in the Yanks' 16th shutout of the year. The Yanks have won nine out of their last ten starts while the White Sox have dropped nine out of their last ten outings.

Birdie Tebbets, a former Red Socker, ruined his old mates at Boston. He poled a two-run homer in the fourth off loser Leo Kiely and singled to launch the Indians' winning rally in the seventh. The Dodgers, trailing 3-1, scored seven runs in the seventh inning in beating the Cardinals for the 12th straight time. Preacher Roe, who bowed out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh received credit for the victory his 15th of the year and sixth without a loss over the Cards.

Sal Maglie of the Giants also hung up his 15th victory in the opener at Cincinnati with a seven-hitter.

Moodus Defeats Hamilton to Win State Baseball Title, 3-1

Mangrum's Life Threatened During St. Paul Tourney

St. Paul, Minn., July 29—(AP)—Usually calm Lloyd Mangrum headed for his home course in Chicago today, a $2,250 first prize check in his pocket and his nerves slightly a jingle because of a threat that he hadn't better win the St. Paul Open Tournament if he wanted to live.

Mangrum set a new St. Paul Open record yesterday with a 266 for the 72 holes. He told of the threat at the ceremonies at which he received the check.

The call came Saturday night, he said, after he had set a new 18-hole record with a ten-stroke-under-par-62. It was about 11:30 when he answered the telephone in his hotel room.

A voice told him, he said, "We've got a lot of money bet on the tournament: If you want to get out of St. Paul alive don't win."

He reported the call to authorities and all during yesterday's play uniformed and plain clothes policemen mingled with the large gallery that followed him. They stayed close to Mangrum, who in turn steered clear of spectators and well-wishers alike.

"I didn't sleep very well last night," he said, "and naturally the call unnerved my golf game. I refused to shake hands with anybody for fear they would try and twist my hand or wrist."

It wasn't until he left the clubhouse locker room, with plainclothes police close by, that he would even sign an autograph.

How much the call upset him was shown by the two-under par 70 he posted for yesterday's round. It was his poorest score of the four-day tournament over the 6,557-yard Keller Municipal course.

He started out with two rounds of 67, five strokes under par, and then chopped ten strokes off par Saturday in his record breaking tour of the course.

His 266 for the 72 holes set a new record also, clipping two strokes off the mark set by Henry Ransom in winning the 1946 event. Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., equalled the total in 1949 when the Western Open took the place of the St. Paul Open.

His first prize money of $2,250 also boosted him into first place among Professional Golfers Association members making the summer tour, with $18,948.83. That put him ahead of Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, the previous leader.

Ferrier, who finished yesterday with a 72 for a 274 total and a tie with amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo for seventh place, received $700 to boost his season's winnings to $17,495.83.

Stranahan was beaten out for low amateur honors by Dow Finsterwald, 21 year old law student from Athens, Ohio, who finished with a 272 on rounds of 69-67-68-68.

In second place among the pros was Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Texas, who copped $1,400 on his six-under-par 66, his second such score of the tournament. He started Thursday with 68 and had a 67 Friday.

E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., also carded a 68 yesterday to go with his previous rounds of 68-65-67 for a 268 total and $1,200 for third place. Jack Burke of Houston, Texas, and Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn. each received $1,050 for their fourth-place tie at 269. Middlecoff shot a six under par 66 and Burke a 67 in the windup.

Ed Oliver, Wilmington, Del., got $900 for fifth place on his 66-67-70-67—270. Behind him came Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., who finished with 272, good for $800 on his 68-68-69-67—272.

Anton Karl, former pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies and the Boston Braves, is now pitching for the New York Athletic club team.

Silk City, Props Paired Tonight

Silk City and Hamilton are paired in tonight's twilight League contest at the Oval starting at 6 o'clock. Starting pitchers are expected to be Skippy Kearns and Jimmy Blanchard.

Last week the Aces scored an 8 to 7 verdict over the Props. This will be the third and final meeting of the season between the two clubs who are fighting for playoff berths. Silk City hasn't been beaten this year by the Props, boasting a 7 to 5 triumph early in the season.

Both teams were knocked out of the semi-pro tourney by Moodus, Silk City losing 3-2 in the semifinals and Hamilton was dethroned yesterday as state champions, 3 to 1.

The Aces will count on the stickwork of Pat Bolduc, Freddie Booth, George Kepler and Mike Plecan to secure the win while the Props set their hopes on Bobby Knight, Art Pongratz, Mike Zwick and Johnny Green.

Noises Tally Once in Each the First, Third And Sixth Innings in Well Played Contest

Moodus lifted the State semi-pro baseball championship right off the Hamilton Props' heads yesterday afternoon at the Oval when giant George King posted a 3 to 1 victory over George Swan. Swan suffered his first tourney loss in two years. He gave up a walk in the eighth frame, the first walk issued in six tourney games. He had previously won five straight.

The Noises outhit Hamilton 6 to 4, but it took two bad errors by Hamilton to produce the winning runs. Moodus scored single tallies in the first, third and sixth innings while the Props lone tally crossed the dish in the first, also aided by a miscue. King was in trouble only in the first and six stanzas but pitched his way out and went on to hurl his second win of the tourney. He was named Most Valuable Player and also the leading pitcher in the event.

Jay Breslow and Dan Maus were the two men Swan couldn't take care of. Breslow led off the game with a single. After a sacrifice had moved him to second, Swan got Maus on a long fly to right. Ed Kelly fired to third and the ball was high over Mike Saverick's head and into the stands. Breslow came all the way home.

Hamilton tied it up in their first time at bat when Hal Lewis sent a blooper to right for a hit. He was sacrificed to second by Saverick. Bobby Knight grounded to third after Red Jacko had fanned for the second out. Al Novinski pulled his foot off the bag and Knight was safe on the error. That was the life needed, and Charlie McMeans knotted the count with a run scoring single to left.

Add Insurance Run

In the third, Breslow doubled with one down and scored as Maus hit a two-out single to left. The winners added an insurance run in the sixth when Maus tripled down the left field line. Swan got Novinski on strikes for the second time but then tossed wildly to third trying to pick off Maus who scampered home easily.

King was extremely tough in the clutch. After two outs in the fourth, Hamilton got two runners on base via an error and single by Kelly, but Art Pongratz went down swinging to end the threat.

Props Threaten

McMeans hit his second single in the sixth and King was in more trouble when he gave up a pass to Mike Zwick. Kelly took a third strike and Pongratz rapped into a DP, third to first. The next nine men went down in a row before King who gave up only two hits over the last eight innings after allowing a pair in the opening frame.

The errors made the difference as both hurlers were hooked in the brilliant mound duel. King fanned eight to Swan's nine.

Following the game the presentation awards were made. The happy Noises each received a beautiful sports ash tray with a baseball batter figure in the center. King received a sport lamp for most valuable player and a sport clock in an ivory case with a figure for leading pitcher. George Kepler of Silk City was the tourney's batting star with a .400 mark on four hits in 10 trips. He will be presented sport bookends. An all-state team will be selected this week. Each will receive certificates and tie pins.

Moodus will meet the Circle A. C. of Providence, Rhode Island NBC baseball champions, in the first game of the Bi-State Regionals best two out of three series. The first game is at the Oval Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Sports in Brief

Rocky Bridges, rookie infielder for the Brooklyn Dodgers, is a movie bug. He has seen as many as four double features in one day.

Edward Lee Conarty is the correct name for Irish Bob Murphy, the light-heavyweight boxer. He picked up the "Murphy" monicker in the Navy.

Irish Bob Murphy, the light-heavyweight boxer, received 12 citations for bravery in action during the war. He was in the Navy.

Sammy Baugh, the great football player with the Washington Redskins, was hurt on the first play of the first game he played as a professional.

Horton Smith, secretary of the Professional Golfer's Association, was a regular on the U. S. Ryder Cup team seven times.

Eddie Leonard, one of the two new owners of the Baltimore Bullets in the NBA, was a flyweight boxer back in the Twenties.

Jake La Motta, former middleweight boxing champ, won 18 amateur fights in a row before turning pro in 1941.

In 1933 Johnny Goodman became Open Golf champ when Ralph Guldahl missed a four-foot putt on the last green.

Five members of the roster of the New York football Giants live in Texas.

Paris Curtains Oppose Manors

Paris Curtain, battling for a first place tie, must defeat Green Manor tonight to tie Silk City A. C. for first place in Rec Softball League.

Steady Frank Johnson, with a record of five wins and four defeats, will toe the slab for Green Manor in quest of victory number six. Tom Mason, Ben Metivier and Johnson have been hitting best for the Manor.

Paris Curtain will counter with Lloyd Jarvis to cop this important tilt. Hippo Correnti, Ed Pagani and Joe Thompson are all slugging the apple at .385 plus averages.

This game should prove to be interesting with plenty at stake. Game time is set for 6:15 at the Charter Oak Lots.

Local Sport Chatter

Second round in the baseball Little League will get underway tonight at 6:15 at Memorial Field when the Red Sox face the Yankees. Coach Ernie Dowd's Red Sox won the first round with the Cardinals seconds, the Yanks third and the defending champion Dodgers fourth and last.

Eighteen games remain to be played in the regular Little League season. Games are scheduled every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights for the balance of the season with Saturday nights set aside for makeup games. All games will start at 6:15 and will be played at Memorial Field.

Hard luck pitcher in local independent games this season has been big Dick Blow of the Silk City Aces. The former minor leaguer has been the victim of poor support by his mates in every game he hurled this season at the Oval. Dick was never better last Thursday night against Moodus but costly miscues let in three runs and Blow was charged with a 3 to 2 loss. Blow, incidentally, is building a new home in Tolland.

Best bad ball hitter in the Twi League this season has been Pat Bolduc, player-coach of the Silk City Aces. Pat is high up among the leading swatters in the circuit and sprays hits to all fields. He swings from the left side of the plate.

Howie Barton has been the ace chucker for the North Methodist entry in the Church Softball League this season. The Methodists are well on their way to clinching the regular season championship. A standout performer with the Methodists all season has been Infielder Al Cowles. Cowles starred many years in the now defunct Softball Twi League at Robertson Park.

Hard-hitting cleanup batter with the Garden Groves in the Rec Softball League is Jimmy Minicucci. Minnie played with Manchester High's baseball team last spring.

Only one game separates first and fourth place in the Rec Softball League standings. Silk City heads the pack with an 8-6 mark. Paris Curtain 7-6, Army and Navy 7-7, and Garden Grove 6-6 follow. Green Manor, the surprise team of the past three weeks, is last with a 5-8 record.

Final match in the club championship tourney at the Manchester Country Club yesterday between Bobby LaFrancis and Billy Thornton was not played. The Tournament Committee will seek to set a new date at a special meeting tonight for the 36-hole match.

Tourney Baseball Jottings

Hail the new Connecticut semi-pro baseball champions— the Moodus Noises. The scrappy Noises defeated the defending champion Hamiltons yesterday afternoon at the West Side Oval in the 1951 tourney finals, 3 to 1.. Choice of big George King, ace Moodus chucker, as the Most Valuable Player in the tournament was a wise one. The big righthander was also the No. 1 choice of this writer.. Press row included Walter Snow, Sambo Prentice, State Commissioner Hal Turkington, Billy Pagani, Mel Cushing, Stan Dzura and Steve Pongratz .. Shortstop Joe Platek of the Bombers also serves as manager of the new champs... First game in the best out of three game series between the Connecticut and Rhode Island tourney winners will take place Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Oval. The second game will be played during the week in Rhody. If necessary, the third game site will be decided by the toss of a coin.. The weather was excellent for baseball yesterday, both from a player's and spectator's standpoint.. The crowd was good, following the pattern of all previous contests. Leftfielder Red Jacko of the Hamiltons turned in two spectacular catches, one going away and the other coming in on the dead run.. Mel Cushing reported he took in Saturday's game at Fenway Park between the Red Sox and Indians and was thrilled. Ditto for Johnny Bohenko.. Mel assisted Hal Turkington, official scorer, with statistics on the game as well as all previous tourney attractions.. Winners of the Rhode Island tourney were the Providence Circles. Rhody Commissioner Don Burke is a practicing attorney.. Three umpires worked the finals, Vic Dennis behind the plate, Frank Vittner at first and Bill Brainard at third base.. The West Side playing field was in excellent shape.

Hamilton shortstop Hal Lewis made his debut yesterday. Lewis had been playing in organized baseball earlier this season but decided to quit and come back home .... All team and individual prizes awarded to participants were on display to the right of the scorer's table behind the screen ....About 100 fans journeyed up from Moodus to witness the game ....Youngsters on bicycles are still a nuisance at the Oval during the course of a game. Yesterday being no exception .... Dave Robinson, in the third base stands, sported a special sun hat .... Manager Jeff Koelsch of the Hamiltons reports he has located a rent in Manchester and will move his family down shortly. Jeff has resided in Rockville for years ....King pitched tight—inside — to most batters and was better as the game progressed .... Pongratz made a great running catch of a pop foul fly ball off the bat of King in the fifth. The Props' catcher gobbled up the pill near Nick's concession stand ....Nick Angelo, Jeff Koelsch, Billy Pagani and Bill Kelley handled the collections ....Pepper-pot Joe Kuzaro, Moodus catcher, is one of the smallest receivers ever seen in action at the Oval but he has more life and hustle than ten fellows twice his size. How about that voice of Kuzaro? It resembled a fog horn ....East Hampton's defensive play throughout the tourney was remarkable ....Tommy Tedford won the attendance prize ....Thursday night's prize winner was Pete Hansen, for the second time within one week .... Ed Kelly, Hamilton rightfielder, leaves for Army duty Wednesday ....Hal Turkington handled the presentation of awards following the game ....Charles White, sales manager of Coca-Cola Bottlers of East Hartford, presented Manager Platek of the Noises with the elaborate four foot winners' trophy.

Lew Worsham defeated Sam Snead in the 1947 Open by one stroke when Snead missed a 30-inch putt on the 18th green.

Sense and Nonsense

The high cost of haircuts is making an actuality out of that old gag of the man who went five weeks without a haircut, and then carried an empty violin case for three more.

Waitress—Tea or coffee?
Customer — Coffee, please. Without cream.
Waitress —You'll have to take it without milk. We haven't any cream.

"In the future the Air Force will be able to drop a bomb on a dime." A nickel, though, presents a larger target, and anyway what else can you do with a nickel?

A salesman stopped at the house and tried to sell Grandpa one of the new hearing aid devices.
Grandpa—Don't need it. I hear more now than I can understand.

Things that begin at 40: Life, lumbago, bifocals, stomach disorders, and an inclination to tell the same old stories, over and over.

New "miracle" drug is announced and we can imagine the difficulties of some announcers in pronouncing it, if the name given to it sticks. It is polyvinyl pyrrolidone. But maybe they will compromise on "Polly."

How did the fool and his money get together in the first place?

Professor— What's the most common impediment in the speech of American people?
Freshman—Chewing-gum.

The American public is confronted with this kind of a situation:
"One man can prevent American ships from sailing;
One man can stop transit and paralyze a city like Philadelphia;
One man can stop production of fuel, causing all to suffer;
One can can stop the music of a nation;
One group can strangle the nation's communications;
One group can stop all rail and truck transportation."

Not so long ago in a large Western city one Cemetery Union ordered its members to refuse to bury the dead, or allow others to dig graves. More than 1,200 bodies accumulated during the controversy over pay and hours. You read about this so-called strike against health and decency in the daily newspapers. Just why should the United States Government when paralyzed in its operations permit any group, whether unionized or not, to defy its authority?

A schoolteacher asked one of her pupils:
Teacher—Willy, what is a husband?
Willy—I don't know.
Teacher (to next boy)—what is a husband?
While he was hestitating about answering another boy held up his hand.
Teacher—Well, you may answer.
Third Boy—A husband is a thing no respectable family should be without.

Claims Reds Called Lattimore 'Our Man'

Court Verdict GOP Victory

Hartford, July 31—(AP)—Republican judges take office today in municipal courts throughout Connecticut, succeeding Democrats who were ousted from their posts by a decision of the State Supreme court.

In a test case decided under an agreement that its outcome would govern all the judgeships at stake, Connecticut's highest tribunal ruled yesterday that Governor John Lodge's appointees were legally entitled to mount the bench. The decision swept from office Democrats who had been given the jobs two years ago by former Governor Chester Bowles. The Republicans will receive back pay from July 1, the date the court held they were entitled to office.

Last Patronage Plumb

The minor courts, located in more than 60 towns, cities and boroughs and handling minor criminal and traffic cases as well as limited civil dockets, were the last major state patronage left to Democrats after they lost the 1950 state election. In addition to about 125 top jobs as judges and deputy judges, several hundred other posts such as prosecutors, clerks, probation officers and attendants were involved. The two parties long have regarded the municipal courts as key elements in local political machines.

The partisan conflict over these patronage plums arose because of failure of the 1949 and 1951 legislatures to fix terms for the judges. An amendment to the state constitution in 1948 gave the governor power to nominate the judges, formerly appointed by the General Assembly alone. It provided that the Legislature should fix their terms of office, set at two years in an earlier constitutional amendment.

Fail to Fix Term

Both in 1949 and 1951, the House of Representatives was controlled by Republicans while the Senate had a Democratic majority. With each party jockeying for advantage in the fight to control the courts, an agreement on term-fixing legislation never could be reached.

Faced with this situation, Governor Lodge, as had Governor Bowles before him, exercised his power to make interim appointments alone after the Legislature had adjourned.

Two years ago, the Bowles' appointees had to win a case before

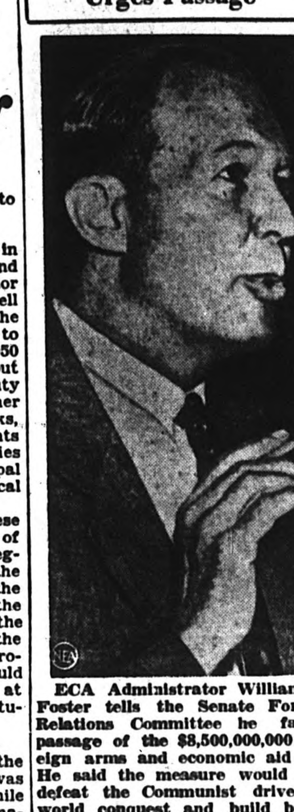
Urges Passage



ECA Administrator William C. Foster tells the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he favors passage of the $8,500,000,000 foreign arms and economic aid bill. Truce Talk Stymied on Zone Issue

U. N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 31—(AP)—Armistice negotiators argued stubbornly for an hour and 34 minutes today on where to draw the cease-fire line in Korea without getting any closer together.

It was the fifth successive day United Nations and Communist delegations devoted to the buffer zone issue. The announced result of each session was the same: No progress.

"The area of disagreement has neither broadened or narrowed," an official U. N. spokesman said. The Reds want U. N. forces to abandon their present battle line and pull back to the 38th Parallel.

Delegates meet again at 11 a. m. Wednesday (8 p. m. Tuesday e.s.t.) in their 16th session at Kaesong for another try at breaking the deadlock

No Compromise Seen

"There was no perceptible compromise to me today," commented the briefing officer, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols. "On the other hand, as you know, a position can be adjusted very quickly. That is neither optimistic nor pessimistic."

The official U. N. communique said:

"There was no perceptible change in the expressed viewpoints of the two delegations" in Tuesday's sessions.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy amplified the Allied position, the announcement said, trying to show "the mutual benefit to be derived from acceptance of this view."

North Korean Lt. Gen. Nam Il replied by repeating "his previously stated stand."

Urge Truman To Sign, Hit At Measure

Washington, July 31—(AP)—President Truman's key stabilization aides reportedly have advised him to sign the new economic controls bill today—and also to blast it as inadequate to curb inflation.

In Congress, the general expectation was that Mr. Truman will approve the bill by midnight, when the present law expires.

The White House said only that the President was not expected to act on the measure until late in the day, probably in the evening.

Some lawmakers termed the bill they sent to the White House yesterday a good one and said the President has no justification for complaint. Others criticized it and declared more legislation will be needed to check inflation.

Would Back Veto

The United Labor Policy committee, representing most of organized labor, blasted the measure as a "callous betrayal of the consumers" and said it would back Mr. Truman if he vetoes it.

The measure provides for continuing wage, price, rent, consumer credit and defense production controls through next June, but in some cases it eases curbs the President wanted tightened or unchanged. It lacks most of the additional anti-inflation powers the President requested.

The House approved the bill yesterday by a roll call vote of 294 to 80. Senate passage was by voice vote last Friday. The bill is a compromise version of separate measures approved earlier by the two branches.

No Choice

Price Director Michael V. DiSalle reportedly has told Mr. Truman it appears he has no choice but to sign the bill — that letting controls lapse would cause chaos in the defense production program and perhaps send prices soaring.

A government official who asked not to be named said, however,

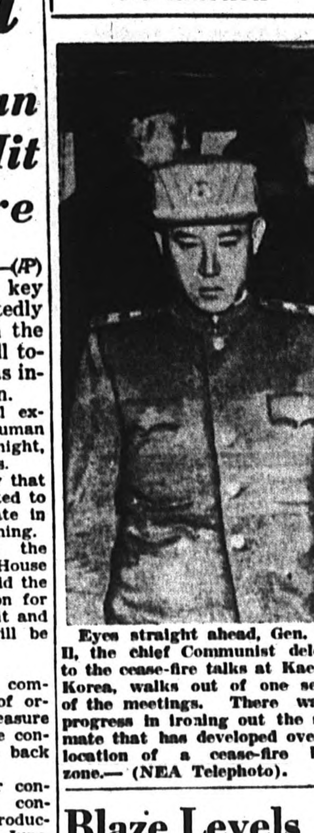
No Emotion



Eyes straight ahead, Gen. Nam Il, the chief Communist delegate to the cease-fire talks at Kaesong, Korea, walks out of one session of the meetings. There was no progress in ironing out the stalemate that has developed over the location of a cease-fire buffer zone.— (NEA Telephoto).

Ex-General Airs Soviet Espionage

Washington, July 31—(AP)—A former Russian general testified today that in the early 1930's the head of Soviet Intelligence referred to Owen Lattimore and Joseph Barnes as "our men."

Alexander Barmine, now head of the Russian unit of the State department's Voice of America, gave the testimony to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Barmine said he was supplying arms to a western China province in 1933 while serving as a Russian intelligence officer.

He recounted that he asked his superiors for additional personnel.

Quotes Red General

He quoted a General Berzin, identified as Chief of Soviet Military intelligence, as first offering several of his men and specifically mentioning Lattimore and Barnes among others.

Testifying in a low voice with a foreign accent, Barmine said that for about three years he has been chief of the Voice of America's Russian unit.

Served As Private

He told the committee that he was born in Russia in 1899 and came to this country 11 years ago. He said he became a naturalized citizen in July, 1943, after his honorable discharge from the United States Army.

Barmine said he served in the Army as a private.

Barmine said these were "the first two American names" that ever came to him in his intelligence work for the Soviet government.

Barnes was identified in the committee record as a former foreign correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune who from 1931 to 1934 was the secretary of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations (IPR). Barnes is no longer with the Herald Tribune.

Lattimore, now a Johns Hopkins university professor specializing in Far Eastern affairs, was then

The conservative General Zionists were second with 17.76 per cent throughout the nation.

Results so far gave the Communists only 3.32 per cent and the left-wing pro-Russian Mapam 11.85.

Smith to Ask General For Opinion on Single Administration Plan

Washington, July 31—(AP)—Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) said today he will ask Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's opinion on a proposal to put the $8,500,000,000 foreign aid program under a single administration.

Smith has drafted a bill of this nature which Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) said the Senate Republican policy committee had approved in principle.

The measure will go to the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, with the latter group sharing responsibility under an agreement reached yesterday.

Hearings on the aid measure continue today behind closed doors with George Perkins, assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, as a witness.

The GOP policy group, in an admitted attempt to deny Secretary of State Acheson any authority over the program, agreed yesterday to support a single, separate agency for the economic and "Point Four" activities but left open the question of military aid operations.

Smith told a reporter he will forward his bill to Eisenhower's Atlantic Pact Military headquarters in Paris for the five-star gen-

Turns Off Oil Pumping Machines; Harriman In Tehran for Talks

Abadan, Iran, July 31—(AP)—A red-haired Scotsman pushed a button today and halted the last gasoline producing machine of the world's largest refinery—closed in the bitter oil row between Britain and Iran.

The Anglo-Iranian Oil company's giant plant at Abadan island has been slowing down production for the past month. Today it ceased altogether because no room remained in the acres of storage tanks to put any more gasoline, kerosene and other products.

More than a month ago the traffic of oil tankers was halted by the nationalization dispute which centered over Iranian seizure of the AIOC's vast holdings. Both the Iranian government and AIOC demanded payment for oil shipments and, as a result, the company pulled out its tankers.

Blaze Levels Dance Palace

Officials Dispel Reports Of Deaths; Local Man Gives First Warning

Niantic, July 31—(AP)—Police and firemen this afternoon dispelled initial reports that four or five men perished this morning when a roaring fire destroyed the big Crescent Beach ballroom.

Firemen had expressed concern for the men as flames roared through the frame structure but a later investigation, following queries by police, disclosed that the place was locked when the first eye witnesses arrived on the scene.

They did not know the identities of themen who were reported to be living in the place. Neither did they find an automobile owned by one of them, which customarily is parked overnight outside the hall. This led them to believe the men had been away from the place.

The fire was one of the most spectacular in the town's history.

It completely leveled the place and only charred, smoking ruins remained in evidence this afternoon of the once popular dance hall.

The fire was discovered by Wesley L. Miles of 39 Trebbe Drive, Manchester, who is renting a cottage nearby for a week.

No Objection Says Frick To Players Voting for New Commissioner

Washington, July 31—(AP)—Ford Frick, president of the National League, told Congress today he sees no objection to baseball players having a voice in choosing a commissioner.

In a hearing that wandered all over the lot, from Leo Durocher to complicated baseball rules, Frick said in answer to a question:

"I would personally have no objection whatsoever in players having a voice in choosing a commissioner, none whatsoever."

The issue isn't a light one, lawyers for a House judiciary subcommittee pointed out. The subcommittee is studying whether baseball violates anti-trust laws. Several bills have been introduced to exempt sports from anti-monopoly regulations.

If baseball were so exempted, players no longer could appeal to the courts if they didn't like a commissioner's ruling.

At present, the baseball commissioner —a post vacant now

Farm Price Prop Seen As Next U. S. Problem

Washington, July 31—(AP)—Weaking markets point to the possibility that the government soon may be working harder at keeping farm prices from going "too low" than at keeping them from going "too high."

Recent price declines have carried several commodities down to or below levels at which the government is committed to support them. Developments indicate that several others may drop to support levels by harvest time.

Supports Seen

The Agriculture department's $6,750,000,000 Commodity Credit corporation (CCC) is fully prepared to step in to prevent excessive price set backs. It operates through the department's far flung system of farmer committees.

Farm commodities whose prices probably will have to be supported in some degree before the summer is over include wheat, cotton, oats, barley and peanuts.

Wheat already is selling below the support rate of 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, declared by law to be equally fair to farmers and those who buy their prod-

Nationalists Air Red China Push

Taipeh, Formosa, July 31—(AP)—Chinese Nationalist military quarters today confined for the first time that Nationalist General Li Mi is campaigning against Communists in southwest Red China.

They had been silent for several days on a Rangoon report that Li's forces from northern Burma had closed into Yunnan province on a 100-mile front.

Feared Truman

They held back, presumably, because they feared:

1—Nationalist China would be charged with violating President Truman's ban on operations against Red China.

2—Publicity given Li's activities would bring on a strong Red campaign to oust him from Yunnan.

3—The Reds might use the matter as a pretext for invading Southeast Asia.

But today these officials, who declined to be quoted by name, said Li had gone into Yunnan, not to take over real estate, but to de-

Nine Top Polish Army Men Go on Trial as U. S. Spies

London, July 31—(AP)—The spy trial of four Polish generals and five other high ranking officers opens in Warsaw today. The trial follows widespread reports in the West of dissension within the Polish Army.

The nine are accused of conspiring with Britain and the United States to overthrow the Communist Polish government. Warsaw reports said the British and American military attaches there were mentioned as being involved.

The Warsaw radio identified the defendants as Lieut. Gen. Stefan Mossor, Maj. Generals Stanislaw Tatar, Franciszek Herman and Jerzy Kirchmayer; Colonels Marian Utnik, Stanislaw Nowicki and Marion Jurecki; Maj. Wladyslaw Roman and Commander Szczepan Wacek.

Tatar served with the underground Polish home army during World War II and was also on the London staff of the Polish Army in exile. Colonels Utnik and Nowicki served with him there.

Col. Utnik continued after the war as chief of the Polish purchasing mission in London until he was called home last October.

The radio said the nine men sought to undermine the army and "make it possible for the Imperialists to tear away the Polish western territories from the mother country and annex them to neo-Nazi Germany."

The reference was to former German territory which Poland took over at the end of World War II.

The Polish trial coincides with

India, Pakistan Near Strife Over Kashmir

New Delhi, India, July 31—(AP)—Prime Minister Nehru refused today to remove Indian troops from near Pakistan's border and warned the Pakistanis to stop getting tough if they wanted to avoid war.

Nehru sent Pakistan's Premier Liaquat Ali Khan a stiff 2,000-word message in which he rebuked him for taking an aggressive attitude towards India last week. He said:

"Either we are going to settle the various issues between us by peaceful methods or by war. I want to rule out war and I invite you to do the same."

India and Pakistan have been embroiled in a bitter dispute over possession of the princely state of Kashmir which lies on both their borders.

United Nations Mediator Frank Graham is making strenuous efforts to settle the squabble over Kashmir.
