U.S. Releases 'Tokyo Rose'

Alderson, W. Va., Jan. 28 —Tokyo Rose, whose cultured voice and dreamy records tantalized U.S. troops in World War II, was released from prison today but faces possible deportation for her wartime treason.

"I'd like to be able to have a 50-50 chance to get back to my feet," said Mrs. Iva Ikuko Toguri D'Aquino as she left the prison. "I have no complaints," she added.

Shivering in the 15-degree cold but smiling, the brown-eyed woman answered newsmen's questions for about 15 minutes after her 6 a.m. release from the Federal Reformatory for Women.

Snow covered the spacious prison grounds while some 30 reporters and photographers crowded around her just beyond the prison gates. Her father, brother and sister sat waiting in an automobile nearby. They drove here yesterday to take her home to Chicago.

Mrs. D'Aquino, now 39, politely refused to comment on the newly announced government decision against her.

Served with Papers

Legal papers in the proceedings were served on her inside the prison late last night.

With time off for good behavior, Mrs. D'Aquino's 10-year sentence for treason ended today. She entered the reformatory Nov. 18, 1949, after being convicted for her wartime broadcasts from Japan, which beamed a mixture of treasonous sweet talk and American jazz to U.S. servicemen in the South Pacific.

She sometimes called herself "Orphan Annie" on the air, but her GI listeners called her Tokyo Rose. English-speaking women actually took turns on the broadcasts.

Mrs. D'Aquino, born in Los Angeles, was the only U.S. citizen among them.

She wore a little white hat, a trim pearl grey suit and a tan coat for her return to the outside world. She acknowledged the outfit was brand new, commenting

Thief Killed in Gunfight At Home of U.S. Ex-Aide

Richland, Kan., Jan. 28 (AP)—An unidentified man was found shot to death near the home of Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark Gray, former treasurer of the United States, today, a few hours after her husband, Andrew, reported exchanging shots with an intruder in their home.

Police said apparently the dead man was the housebreaker.

The body was found about a block from the Gray residence.

The Grays were awakened about 1 a.m. by their dog, "Mamie," who barked loudly as the intruder entered the house after breaking a window in the back door.

Grabs Loaded .38

After telling Mrs. Gray to go to another room and close the door, Gray grabbed a loaded .38 caliber revolver and fired shots after the fleet robber and ran to the head of the second floor stairs.

"Just as I got to the stairs this guy was coming up," Mrs. Gray said. "I fired once and he turned and ran. I fired another one out the window to attract the attention of neighbors."

Gray, a Washington public relations counselor, said he did not know if he hit the intruder who fired several shots as he hurriedly left the house the same way he entered.

Investigating officers said the intruder might have been "promoted to colonel," said Mrs. Gray, who was treasurer during the Truman administration.

Richland is a town of about 250 population 65 miles southwest of Kansas City.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gray said their dog was the hero in preventing another possible robbery.

"We rescued him from corporal to private last time but now he's reported upward to colonel," said Mrs. Gray, who was treasurer during the Truman administration.

Richland is a town of about 250 population 65 miles southwest of Kansas City.

Gray at gunpoint Jan. 2, and forced her to open the vault of the Richland State Bank and a grocery store she operates here. They bound and gagged the Grays and fled with $2,000. The men have not been caught.

Gray said he believes there may have been more than one man involved today because the Grays' beagle hound ran from window to window as if he knew there were others outside the house.

A Kansas Bureau of Investigation agent said the intruder must have panicked when confronted by Gray because "he was shooting aimlessly." The man fired four shots from a .32 Colt revolver, the agent said.

Man's Belongings Found

A mask to cover the face and horn-rimmed glasses were found behind the Gray home. One of the three men who participated in the robbery wore horn-rimmed glasses.

A 1949 Ford sedan, stolen in nearby Topeka, Kan., last night, was recovered in Richland, a town of about 250 population 65 miles southwest of Kansas City.

Ives Wants Ike Clue on 1956 Hopes

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Sen. Ives (R-NY) suggested today that President Eisenhower could end second term speculation by announcing that if his health continues to improve up to convention time he would accept the Republican nomination.

Eisenhower has said his health will be a major factor in his decision. But when he was asked at his news conference Wednesday whether his health was the only problem, he called that "a question that no one can answer."

GOP Conclave Aug. 20

The Republican national convention will open Aug. 20 in San Francisco. Ives said in an interview he thinks the interval would give the President sufficient time to test his endurance and decide whether he feels able to take on four more years of the presidency.

"The President could say that if he is still on the upgrade physically by convention time he would accept the nomination," Ives said. "The American people know they would get an honest decision. In my opinion the decision, whatever it was, would be accepted without question."

However, Sen. Payne (R-Maine), one of the original 1952 Eisenhower supporters, said in a separate interview he doesn't believe the President will make any conditional announcement.

"I think he will say 'Yes' or 'No'," Payne said. "And when he makes his decision it should be accepted without any pressure on him to change it."

Payne said he expects Democrats to continue to discuss Eisenhower's health in the campaign if the President runs again.

His Neuberger Idea

He joined other Republicans in condemning a suggestion by Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore) that some Republicans who are anxious to have the President run again "might try to have him propped up unwisely with drugs and other such aids" if he became ill for any reason during the campaign.

Neuberger said in a newsletter to Oregon voters that if Eisenhower suffered a mild virus attack during the campaign it probably would be regarded by the public as much more serious than it actually

Tokyo Papers Say Reds Push To Renew Ties

Tokyo, Jan. 28 (AP)—Major Tokyo newspapers said today Russia has informed Japan unofficially it wants to end the state of war between the two countries and exchange ambassadors at once.

Spokesmen in the Foreign Ministry, bypassed by the Soviet feeler, said Japan will ignore any such proposal unless it is advanced at the deadlocked Russo-Japan peace treaty talks in London.

Kyodo News Service said Russia sent word it may unilaterally declare World War II with Japan at an end as early as next Monday, depending on Japan's reaction to reported proposals that ambassadors take over the London talks.

Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu and his party chiefs reportedly are standing pat on Japan's primary demand that the thousands of Japanese war prisoners still held in Russia and certain territory lost in World War II be returned before diplomatic relations are begun.

There were conflicting reports on what Russia was offering regarding the prisoners. The Asahi and some other major papers said the Soviet feeler included a promise of immediate repatriation. But others said it was implied.

Yomiuri said the original orbit through unidentified intermediaries, could not be reached for comment.

The newspaper Yomiuri said Russia's Jacob Malik soon will advance the Soviet proposal formally at the London talks.

A foreign office spokesman said the government had not received any such notice or offer from Russia, either officially or unofficially.

The newspapers said the offer

Truman Plot Story Questioned at Trial

New Haven, Jan. 28 (AP) The story of an undercover agent's report to the FBI on what was said at a Communist meeting about the 1950 attempt on President Truman's life was under question today as the Smith Act trial of 17 alleged Communists recessed until Tuesday.

Rowena Paumi, 41, of Bridgeport, a government witness, testified yesterday that James Tate of Hartford, one of the defendants, said that the Puerto Ricans who tried to assassinate President Truman in 1950 "knew what they were doing but they didn't go into it in the right manner."

'Einstein' Removed From Oxygen Tent

Glendale, Calif., Jan 28 (AP)—Einstein the cat was recovering today after leaving most of his nine lives in an oxygen tent.

The alley cat came down with lobar pneumonia two weeks ago and his adopted owners, Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Bernal, provided the best of care.

The childless couple spent $150 for medical expenses including penicillin and all the oxygen Einstein could inhale.

A veterinarian removed the oxygen tent yesterday and said Einstein was out of danger.

Surine Claims Hughes Hinted FBI Affiliation

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Donald A. Surine, investigator for Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis), has testified in the perjury trial of Paul H. Hughes that the defendant intimated to him he was an informer for the FBI.

Surine was a witness yesterday in the federal court trial of 35-year-old Hughes, accused of giving false testimony to a federal grand jury regarding alleged financial aid given to Harvey M. Matusow to purportedly induce Matusow to become a turncoat witness.

In the latter part of March, 1955, Surine said, Hughes told him he was working with the FBI and had obtained information that involved Mr. Fritchey (Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic National Committee), Mr. Rauh (Joseph L. Rauh Jr., national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action) and others in a conspiracy with the Matusow matter."

Fantastic Fabrication

U.S. Atty. Paul W. Williams asked Surine: "Did he say he was a double agent?"

Replied Surine: "He didn't exactly use that term, but he gave me to understand that he was acting as an informer for the FBI."

Surine also testified that all material gathered by Hughes pertaining to alleged activities of McCarthy and his Senate permanent investigations subcommittee were "fantastic fabrication."

Surine said that Hughes never had been employed by McCarthy's committee and that he (Surine) never requested that Hughes do any investigating work for him.

Another witness yesterday was Brig. Gen. Carpelius J. Mara, assistant military aide to President Truman before his retirement in April, 1953.

Mara testified he met Hughes for the first time in his Washington home in mid-November, 1953. After receiving a telephone call from Hughes in which the latter said he had valuable information to submit.

Attending the meeting besides himself and Hughes, Mara said were Fritchey, Philip Stern, research director for the "Democratic" Digest"; and Mrs. E. R. Baker, a political writer.

Mara said he asked Fritchey to be present at the meeting because he felt that through his "newspaper

Benson Says 'Boner' Of Letter on Farmers

QUEEN AND HER HUSBAND

Secretary Attacked By GOP, Democrats

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Red-faced Republicans agreed with Secretary of Agriculture Benson today that he "pulled a boner" in apparently endorsing a magazine article which referred to farmers as "pampered."

The Secretary hastily retracted the endorsement, saying he had seen neither the article itself nor a letter to the editor written in his name calling it "excellent."

But his Democratic critics beat him to the punch with new demands for his ouster and some Republicans joined in the criticism.

The article, in the December issue of Harpers Magazine, started out "Our pampered tyrant, the American farmer, is about to get his boots licked again by both political parties."

It called farm price support programs "legalized corruption."

Benson's letter, which he said was signed by an aide without his seeing it, was published in the magazine's February issue.

Benson took full responsibility, but said "We pulled a boner on this one."

Sen. George (D-Ga) said in an interview that "Benson has lost his usefulness as Secretary of Agriculture on account of that intemperate letter. He can't serve the welfare of the farmers of the country."

Reads Article to Senate

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) set off the political furore by reading to the Senate yesterday excerpts from the article and from Benson's letter.

"This man should be fired now, this afternoon," he said.

Other Democrats and Sens. Young (R-ND) and Case (R-SD) joined in the attack until Rep. Kitchen (R-VA) requested Benson's explanation.

Aides said an advance proof on the article in Harper's by Jack Fischer was sent to the Agriculture Department last November along with thousands of other communications.

A Benson aide who usually checks such letters went home early. A young woman secretary wrote the acknowledgment that someone signed Benson's name, Aides said.

He added that Benson had no idea of what was in the critical article or his letter and both were "completely out of keeping" with the Secretary's views.

"It's all right to thank people for sending you things," Aides dispersed later. "It's not all right to say what they sent you is good."

Sen. Case (R-SD) said "it will

Nigeria Welcomes Elizabeth II, Duke

Lagos, Nigeria, Jan. 28 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II—first British sovereign to visit this century-old crown colony—landed here today amid jubilant shouts of welcome from a 30-day ceremonial visit.

The young sovereign and the Duke of Edinburgh rode 11 miles to the city from Lagos airport past masses of cheering Nigerians.

The visitors sat in an open car under a cream-colored umbrella with tassels. They waved constantly during the slow ride to Government House, where they will stay during their visit.

There were stirring demonstrations as the procession moved through the throngs.

Beat Welcome on Drums

Tribesmen who traveled to Lagos from the deep bush country beat drums. The Queen was told their message in tom tom language meant "welcome."

The Queen and the Duke were received at the airport by Gov. Sir James Robertson and Lady Robertson.

In the welcoming group was one federal minister wearing a straw hat with long purple and yellow-green feathers and a robe with a purple and gold train which trailed in the dust five yards behind him.

The royal couple left London yesterday for the 3,200-mile trip to this black land, four times the size of the United Kingdom, which was once the main source of supply for the slave trade.

They made the flight aboard the same Canadian plane which took Elizabeth home from Africa four years ago when, at the start of a world tour, she learned of her father's death.

Enthusiasm has been so great over the royal visit that native people have begun asking: Don't run after the Queen's car. You might be run over by following vehicles.

The public has also been warned not to panic at the scream of jets during a Royal Air Force show scheduled in the Queen's honor.

The whole program of events included:

Inspection of public buildings and institutions, presentation of colors to the Nigerian regiment, a state dinner, visits to the courts and parliament, and a garden party.

The Queen will then begin her strenuous 2,500-mile tour inland by train and plane.

Her first stop will be Kaduna, 350 miles north of Lagos. Also on

East Reich Army Joins Warsaw Military Group

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Czechoslovak government granted a visa to Tom Reedy, AP Berlin correspondent, to go to Prague for the meeting of the Communist Bloc's Warsaw Alliance. He is the first AP correspondent to write directly from Prague since the government there imprisoned William N. Oatis in 1951 on charges of espionage in connection with routine reporting of events. Oatis was freed in 1955.)

By TOM REEDY

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 28 (AP)—The East European Defense Conference today enrolled East Germany's brand new army in the Warsaw Military Alliance.

The defense ministers of the eight Warsaw Pact nations then wound up their two-day talks here but arranged for a final reception tonight for the Soviet bloc leaders who came to Prague was confirmed during the party as the supreme military command for eastern forces. He conferred several times yesterday and today with an old colleague in the Soviet Army, Poland's Defense Minister Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, and also with the top Soviet soldier, Defense Minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov.

Willi Stoph, the newly named defense minister of East Germany, and Deputy Premier Walter Ulbricht represented the new ally here.

Unanimous Vote

The defense ministers voted unanimously to include the East German Army in the alliance, which was conceived in Warsaw two years ago. The other members are the armies of the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Albania.

Conference sources indicated a final communique would include references to the "full signature of all eight nations involved. This implied a new document bringing the original Warsaw Pact up to date was being drafted.

At a final session today, Molotov spoke at length about what he called the duties of the alliance to resist western aggression.

Throughout the two-day session, which set for a total of 12 hours, Red China was represented by several high ranking generals in the role of observers. The participation of the Peiping government in membership in the pact apparently was not brought up.

Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, who has taken part in the closed sessions, is the honor guest for the reception along with Soviet Marshal Ivan Koney, commander-in-chief of Warsaw pact forces.

The East German forces now coming under his command are estimated at 110,000 men, former members of the Peoples Police who have undergone military training.

Somers School Revolt Studied By CEA, PTA

Somers, Jan. 28 (AP)—Two agencies—the Connecticut Education Assn. and the Somers Parent-Teacher Assn.—are taking a look at the school situation in Somers today and tomorrow.

Cut down in the wake of the adoption of a new statement of principles by the Somers Board of Education.

Neither the CEA nor the PTA had much to say about the matter except that they are looking into it.

Attract Statewide Attention

The action taken about two weeks ago by the Somers Board has attracted Statewide attention.

The statement it adopted by a 5-4 vote, with the chairman breaking a 4-4 tie, has been hailed by its supporters as advancing a "free philosophy of education" replacing emphasis upon "individual thinking and creative expression."

It also has been described as a "revolt" against policies of the State Board of Education, a description disputed by State Education Commissioner Finis E. Engleman who says the State Board is all for emphasizing the individual student. Engleman also says the use of the term "revolt" is inaccurate because the State Board has no control over the curriculum decided upon by individual towns.

CEA Aides Visit Somers

Lyndon U. Pratt of Wethersfield, executive secretary of the Connecticut Education Assn., which claims to represent 85 per cent of the teachers and other educators in the State, said last night that representatives of the association have visited Somers.

He said they "conferred with members of the Somers school staff concerning possible effects of the board's recent actions upon the

Astride the Equator

Bulk of Humanity to See First U.S. Earth Satellite

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—American scientists aim to send their first satellite zooming through the heavens in a path around the middle of the earth, where the majority of the world's people may see the sight.

The National Academy of Sciences, announcing new details for the satellite phase of the International Geophysical Year program in 1957-58, said the intended path would be in a range about 5,500 miles wide straddling the equator.

Trackable by Telescope

With radio, radar, telescopes and sometimes even the naked eye at night, it might be seen or traced by scientists in the merry-go-round area from New York to Buenos Aires, from Tokyo to Melbourne, Australia.

Its weaving course would take it over parts of 40 countries, including part of Russia, during its several weeks or months of life.

In Boulder, Colo., Dr. Sydney Chapman, noted British physicist who heads the IGY planning, referred to the "generous effort and skill of your country" in undertaking the satellite launchings.

But he noted that the scientific results "will depend much also on the part taken by other countries in observing the orbits and in receiving messages coming from the satellite."

The information obtained is to be shared among all participating countries, including Russia.

The Russians have announced intentions to launch some satellites of their own, but Dr. Chapman said the Soviets have not yet gone to the version into space first.

The apparently weaving course of the American satellite will result from the fact that it will be put into orbit, which the scientists hope to launch it, As the earth rotates under the inclined ellipse, the satellite will sail sometimes far to the northern edge of its range, sometimes to the south. Its orbit will bring it down at times to within 200 miles of the surface, then send it up at other times to 800 miles.

"Under good atmospheric conditions," the scientists said, "the sun aided eye, when the satellite has an altitude of 500 miles, will be able to detect it at about a maximum distance of 100 miles away from the track and will see it as a moving star of magnitude between 600 and 800 miles.

An observer who might be standing directly under the track of the satellite will have to look fast—it will traverse from horizon to horizon in from eight to twelve minutes.

Plan to Issue Timetable

The IGY plans to issue a timetable in advance of each satellite launching, to show the time and place at which the satellite may be expected to be seen. No date has yet been set.

Molotov Sees War Peril Still Present

London, Jan. 28 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov told leaders of the Warsaw Military alliance today that Russia regard the danger of a new war as having receded.

Moscow Radio quoted Molotov, speaking at an alliance meeting in Prague, as saying last year's Big Four talks showed that achieving East-West understanding is "a realistic task." He added:

"It is necessary, however, to realize that the successes achieved by the peace-loving peoples in lessen international tension should not blunt our vigilance.

"One cannot regard the danger of a new war as having receded.

Hebron

Study Reveals Many Heirs Of Acadians Living in State

By SUSAN PENDLETON

Hebron, Jan. 28 (Special) — Many readers are familiar with Longfellow's poem, "Evangeline," which tells the poignant story of the breaking up and deportation of the Acadians of Nova Scotia, 200 years ago, as ordered by King George II, king of England, in 1755, but few local people may realize that descendants of these Acadians are now living in Hebron and other towns of the area.

The year 1955 was the 200th anniversary of this cruel deportation. Acadia was settled by the French in 1604, several years before the Pilgrims arrived in this country. It was a bone of contention between France and England for many years, but under the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713, it was ceded back to England. The Acadians, however, refused to take the oath of allegiance to England or to leave their pleasant homes. They were a primitive, home loving people of the Roman Catholic religion. Thus, for about 42 years the situation remained at a vexing stalemate between the English, who, perhaps with some reason, suspected the loyalty of the Acadians.

The hell fell in 1755, when all the men of the settlement, Grand Pre, were summoned to the Church Grounds to hear the orders of King George:

That all your lands and tenants and cattle and livestock of all kinds are forefeited to the Crown and all your effects except money and household goods, and that you yourselves are to be removed from this, his province."

Homes Destroyed

The population of Grand Pre at that time numbered about 1,000. The English authorities made work of practing the orders. The men were taken to the seashore, where the children and wives joined their husbands, helping their children, including babies in arms, and carrying vessel-loads mementos of their old homes with them. The thatched roofed houses, most of them wooden, were set on fire and completely destroyed.

In the confusion resulting the herding of the families into boats leading them onto the waiting ships, tradition says that in many cases these were heartrending separations, children from their parents, brothers from sisters, friends from friends.

The Acadians were distributed here and there, some in Canada, others in the various English colonies of America. One wonders why these heathrobe people didn't take the oath and stay where they lived?

There must have been a very strong sense of loyalty to France, the Mother Country, and the Acadians can but be admired for this. But looking at the matter in the long run of the years, they lose their French ties by being scattered as they were, and lose everything else besides, their homes, their property, their peace of mind, their honor and self respect.

As shown by the public records of Connecticut, 1751-1757, an act of distribution was received stating that "A number of French people are being dispossed of from Nova Scotia, about 400 in all." They were allotted as follows: New Haven and Norwich, 19 each; Fairfield, 17; Middletown, 16; Hartford and Farmington, 14 each; Hartford and Windsor, 13 each; New London, Lebanon, Wallingford and Norwalk, 12 each; Guilford and Stonington, 11 each; Milford, Stamford, Woodbury and Waterbury, nine each; Groton, Killingly, Lyme, Windham, Branford, eight each; Saybrook and Colchester, seven each; Simsbury, East Haddam, Waterbury, Greenwich, Pomfret, Preston, Woodstock, and Danbury, six each; Coventry, Canterbury, Mansfield, Hebron and Suffield, five each; Plainfield, Ill., Kilmarnock, Litchfield, Durham, Derby and Newton, four each; Tolland, Ashford, Holland, Enfield and Haddam, three each.

Just how many reached the towns to which they were allotted is uncertain.

A story handed down from Hebron descendants of the Acadians is of one Bruvin, or perhaps Le Bruin, whose parents left him, a small boy, in Acadia, with friends while they, the parents, returned to France for some reason. The boy's parents were never heard from again. It was conjectured that they met with misfortune in some way, by shipwreck, or possibly by death from smallpox, which often happened on ocean voyages, or even that they returned during or after the deposition, and were unable to trace their son.

In those days an ocean voyage was a hazardous trip. Descendants here have always scouted the idea that this Brown or Le Bruin was one of those allotted to Hebron. His descendants are scattered in large numbers not only in this town but country wide.

Local Descendant

The Herald correspondent from Hebron is one of these descendants, as is Charles Finch, editor of the Tacoma, Wash., Tribune and his son, Douglas Welch, a contributor to the Saturday Evening Post. Mrs. John Courtose, a writer of mystery stories and novels, the late Mrs. Charles C. Seiler, writer of children's books and poems, Maj. John Barton Welles of East Hampton, World War I veteran, and many others.

A great-uncle of this correspondent, the late David Brown of Hebron at age of 83, told of the destruction of his ancestor's home by the English. It was a stone home, he said. He fairly sicook with rage as he told the story.

"And they shall be repaid a thousand fold," he declared, shaking his fist as at an imaginary enemy. He had all his teeth in his head when he died. Another great-uncle, the late Lyman Brown of East Hampton, a descendant of Benjamin Pettis as well as of the Browns, said of his ancestry:

"My ancestors were of French descent, and the emigrant is said to have been the head of one of the wealthy Acadian families whose property was confiscated at the time of the French War. He came to Norwich with his two sons, but with one of them he subsequently returned to Nova Scotia.

"Apparently here he is speaking of his Pettis ancestry.

"The French are a gay people, fond of dancing, and light wines." We read in some old book, perhaps Parkman, Parley's geography. One wonders how the Acadians reacted to the change from their light hearted surroundings to the Puritan atmosphere of New England where the blue laws were still observed.

Of Benjamin Pettis, the tradition has been handed down that he joined the Revolutionary Army at Lexington at the age of 17 and fought through the war.

Rats Saw Hat

He was a prisoner on the British ship "Jersey," known as "the Hell" from the terrible sufferings of those confined there. He was so nearly starved that he caught a rat, for which he was offered a dollar; but refused to sell. He ate the rat raw, which probably saved his life. He said it was the sweetest meat he ever tasted. He also helped make rope, which was used in New York harbor, and while rowing out to the vessel a shell burst and killed one of his companions. He was so stunned that until he placed his hands on his head he was unconscious that his head was on his shoulders, but found it was.

It is a great pity that the actual name of the Brown or LeBrun Acadian ancestor has been lost. Search of the town books reveal nothing, as the records are mainly taxed and those particular pages which might give some light are missing. However, it is well known that the Brown and Pettis families intermarried and have many descendants all go back to them as ancestors.

Without delving too deeply into genealogy, it may be stated that Temperance Pettis, daughter of Benjamin, married David Brown, probably son of the Brown Acadian ancestor. All descendants of the Acadians could be so proud of loss everything else besides, their homes, their property, their peace of mind, their honor and self respect.

As shown by the public records of Connecticut, 1751-1757, an act of distribution was received stating that "A number of French people are being dispossed of from Nova Scotia, about 400 in all." They were allotted as follows: New Haven and Norwich, 19 each; Fairfield, 17; Middletown, 16; Hartford and Farmington, 14 each; Hartford and Windsor, 13 each; New London, Lebanon, Wallingford and Norwalk, 12 each; Guilford and Stonington, 11 each; Milford, Stamford, Woodbury and Waterbury, nine each; Groton, Killingly, Lyme, Windham, Branford, eight each; Saybrook and Colchester, seven each; Simsbury, East Haddam, Waterbury, Greenwich, Pomfret, Preston, Woodstock, and Danbury, six each; Coventry, Canterbury, Mansfield, Hebron and Suffield, five each; Plainfield, Ill., Kilmarnock, Litchfield, Durham, Derby and Newton, four each; Tolland, Ashford, Holland, Enfield and Haddam, three each.

Just how many reached the towns to which they were allotted is uncertain.

Justice Convicts On Skid Marks

Coventry, Jan. 28 (Special)—Richard D. Johnson Jr., 21, of North Haven, was found guilty of speeding in Justice Court last night, despite Johnson's contention to the court that "I don't see how you can prove it."

Johnson was arrested Jan. 22 by Safety Patrol constables who said they found his car at the bottom of a 30-foot bank on Rt. 31 South at 45-foot skid marks on the road.

The road was covered with hard-packed snow, but had been sanded, constable said.

Johnson told Justice Leroy M. Roberts, "If don't see how you can prove I was speeding."

"You were driving too fast for conditions, weren't you?" Roberts asked.

"I don't know about that," Johnson said.

You had an accident. Then weren't you driving too fast for conditions?" Roberts asked.

Johnson admitted that he was.

"The court will find you guilty and impose a fine of $15," Roberts concluded.

Speeder Fined

In another case, Nicholas Armentano of Stafford Springs, entered a plea of guilty to speeding on Route 31 near Coventry on M. Kinghorn, 28, West Hartford, who was absent in the court room.

Kinghorn was fined $15. Constables said he was operated early in December.

In two other dispositions, Justice Roberts levied $15 fines on Louis Bleau, 23, of 31 Park Place, for failure to grant one-half of the highway to oncoming traffic, and Dale F. Eddy, 22, Three Hearts, Coventry Lake, for rules of the road violations.

Marechal was arrested Jan. 4 by State Trooper Robert Heiberman following an accident on South St., west of Parker St. Heiberman said Marechal's car was on the left side of the road when it collided with another auto coming the opposite way.

Arrest

One hour after last night's court session, Safety Patrol constables arrested Reginald Wetzler, 53, of New York City, and charged him with speeding.

Wetzler was clocked at speeds of 65 to 70 miles an hour at intersection of Rts. 44 and 31 to the Bolton town line, constables said. He posted $45 bond for court appearance Feb. 3.

Officer of District To Pay Visit Here

Mrs. Joan Gaiser, president of Manchester Emblem Club, No. 8, will preside at the meeting Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 8 p.m. at the Elks Home. It will be district deputy night and Supreme District Deputy of Connecticut East, Alice Heinits of Rockville Emblem Club No. 8, will be the guest of honor. Invitations have been sent to Emblem Clubs in the State.

A buffet style luncheon will be served following the business meeting. Ruth Lathrop, junior past president, is general chairman and Barbara Barnes heads the refreshment committee.

Classes Continue In Arts, Crafts

Afternoon classes in arts and crafts have been organized by the Recreation Department. The program is for boys and girls from the seventh through the fifth grade who may be interested in the different craft projects offered by the Recreation Department.

The sec 1 class of this program will begin this week. The classes are held as follows: Monday at the Community Y, Tuesday at the West Side Recreation Center, and Thursday at the East Side Recreation Center. The classes are conducted by Beverly Lawrence and Jim Herdic. They begin immediately after school and close about 4:15.

There is no charge for this activity and all children who wish to participate may do so by going to the recreation center nearest their home. For further information, call Jim Herdic, at the recreation office, East Side Recreation Center.

The Cupboard Is Bare

The sharpest political cartoon of the moment is one which shows the Democratic donkey—temporarily a sort of Mother Hubbard—going to the party cupboard to get her candidates some issues. She finds that it has been stolen by the Eisenhower administration.

The climax of such theft has been unfolding in the series of Eisenhower messages to Congress. Add these messages up, and you find they contain a variety and breadth of concern for the welfare of the American people which, when the Republicans were out of power, would have seemed impossible for a Republican administration. The truth is that the Eisenhower administration has moved, with moderate recommendations and programs it is true, into almost every acceptance of federal responsibility that was denounced by the Democrats during the New Deal. The truth is that the Democrats would be hard up to find any really sound and worth while program of federal functioning for the benefit or protection of the people which is not doing fairly well under this Republican administration. The truth is that this Republican administration has not only not turned back the clock. It has actually kept it moving ahead—not at any reckless or feverish pace—but still ahead.

This, however, unpleasant it may be for the fanatic Republicans of the extreme right—and it is just as unpleasant for them as it is for the Democrats who feel their own campaign issues have been purloined—actually represents what should have been the historic function of the Eisenhower administration.

That historic function — the thing many people voted for it for —was to bring to an end the New Deal revolution, consolidating and preserving and extending its sound achievements. Moderation —as contrasted either to more experimentation or to violent counter-revolution—was what was demanded. It is generally speaking, what we have had from the Eisenhower administration.

So, as the Eisenhower messages have been unfolding to a degree it we have had a spectacle in which the responsibility and duty of the federal government in many phases of American life has been accepted, rather than contested.

One of the interesting political angles in this concern the question of how it may affect the Democrats. Being out of power, and having your normal party platform usurped by the party in power, can have strange effects. The New Deal itself, for instance, had the result of reversing the historic positions of both parties. Until it came along, the Republican party had always been the party for a strong federal government, and the Democrats had always been the champions of state's rights, and decentralization of power.

But while the New Deal was running its course, the Democrats became the party for a strong central government, and the Republicans became the passionate defenders of state's rights.

Now, back in power, the Republicans are losing some of their aversion to a strong federal government. The most ironical development would be for the Democrats to turn back full force to their traditional championship of state's rights. This is already happening with the Southern nucleus of the party, on racial issues in particular. But it would not be too surprising to have it begin to happen in the party as a whole. In politics, after all, you have to be for something, and you have to be for something which is against what the party in power is doing. The Democrats, on this basis, have already mustered considerable talent for opposing elements of foreign policy which were supposedly once their own. The same thing could happen in domestic issues, should the need for campaign arguments grow great enough.

Anyway, unless they do artistically shift their ground, it is going to be rather hard for moderate Democrats to campaign against the Eisenhower administration. The party cupboard is indeed bare. It is a little early for them to come out against the "Eisenhower welfare state," but, given time enough out of power, they could do it.

Farm Formula That Works

We have just discovered a brand new solution of the farm problem.

We know it would work, because it has already worked, solving one of the most critical farm product crises we have had in a long time.

The crisis which has been solved is the crisis in hogs.

This crisis opened last fall, with discovery of the fact that the American farmers had grown more hogs this year than we would normally consume. As these hogs began to come to market, prices began to fall. Some of the hog raisers—not necessarily those most to blame for the over-production—began to lose a lot of money.

Two things happened. One was the launching of a great distress campaign toward Washington, to exert a change in the farm policy. The other was that the meat industry began to advertise the fact that there was a surplus of pork, in fact that pork was cheap.

Pork was cheap. This was, in fact, one of the few times in many years when the consuming public was allowed to get something out of a break from an instance of overproduction.

People ate more pork.

This week, the price of hogs began climbing up again, rather rapidly. The crisis in hogs was over. It had been solved, primarily, by letting the people buy pork a little cheaper for a few weeks.

Next week, Washington officials are scheduled to confer with leaders of the hog industry, to see what can be done about solving the crisis.

But the crisis is already solved, even before the experts could get on the job.

If there are any flaws in the formula by which the crisis was solved, we'd like to have government officials and economists point them out. But if no flaws can be discovered, then we submit the formula as a solution.

It's very simple. When we have over-production, let the price go down so people can afford to consume more, until the people eat up the surplus.

What we do now is more complicated. When there is over-production, we pay the farmer for having achieved it, we buy up the surplus and pay millions of dollars a year to store it, out of our taxpayers' pockets, and we never get a cheaper price in the market either. This is not a formula for solving the farm problem, but for perpetuating it.

Salubrious Days

The robins left us as soon as they had read what we wrote about them, and dispersed themselves all over town. This was just in time to release our attention so that it could, without freakish distractions, give just honage to a certain perfect succession of winter days.

If there is any better climate for living in the world than a climate which ranges from 15 above at night to 35 above in the afternoon, which has air both windless and dry, which has its sun rising through frost mist and its noonday sunshine in the world of beauty, we have never heard of that better climate.

Days when every breath is a tonic, when the sun is a gentle promise, nights still and clear, boasting both Jupiter and Venus in their sky, dawns when frost smoke is straight and still, twilights when the horizons are green and rose—what more dare one ask? Where could there possibly be a life more salubrious? We can't imagine.

What could be better than the perfect winter weather of a few days this week? We are forced, by pleased experience and reviving logic, to concede that a perfect day in any one season is the equal of a perfect day in any other season. This, just as we had almost formed the rigid opinion that winter was one season we could not do without. Our apologies to winter, and our thanks to the robins, for getting out of the way.

"LOVE" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, January 29.

The Golden Text is from I John (4:12): "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us."

Selections from the Bible include the following: "For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself" (Gal. 5:14).

Correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 518:19-19): "God gives the lesser idea of Himself for a link to the greater, and returns the higher idea always protects the lower. The rich in spirit help the poor in one grand brotherhood, all having one common father or Father; and blessed is that man who seeth his brother man and supplieth it, seeking his own in another's good."

NLRB Rule Stated On Union Election

Bristol, Jan. 28 (AP) — Official announcement of the outcome of a bargaining election at the Bristol plant of Sarg's is expected to be released by the supervising National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) in a few days.

In the election yesterday, 222 of the employes voted in favor of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers as their bargaining agent while 209 of the 445 who participated voted against the union. There were 14 votes challenged and an NLRB spokesman said these votes must be examined before the official outcome can be determined.

There never has been a union at the 75-year-old clock manufacturing company.

BACK DODD AS SENATOR

New Britain, Jan. 28 (AP) — The Democratic Town Committee has endorsed U.S. Rep. Thomas J. Dodd as the party's nominee for U.S. senator. Dodd, who is expected to announce his candidacy soon, would oppose Sen. Prescott Bush of Greenwich, the incumbent, in the November election. First Britain became the second First District community to endorse Dodd's candidacy. Winsted having done so some time ago.

Doodles

By ROGER PRICE

'UNASSEMBLED SANDPAPER' This Doodle is the only result I got out of a disastrous experiment I tried that I hoped would supply me with enough ideas to last a year. I borrowed two friendly monkeys from Henry Treffich, the Animal Dealer, and taught them to hold a crayon and gave them each a small pad of paper. Then I went down to pick up my shirts at the laundry figuring that when I got back the little fellows would've made hundreds of primitive drawings which I could use in the newspaper. Unfortunately I had an argument with the laundry man about him losing my shorts with the built-in secret change pocket and when I got back the monkeys had eaten the crayons and pads and had my landlady, Mrs. Goonsgarten, trapped under the bed. Made her so mad she took away my kitchen privileges for 2 weeks.

State Tobacco Growers Seek Soil Bank Help

Hartford, Jan. 28 (AP)—Connecticut Valley tobacco growers plan to ask that they be included in the administration's "soil bank" program.

Two Connecticut men said last night they will place the plea before Massachusetts and Connecticut representatives in a meeting scheduled for Tuesday at Washington.

Ellsworth Newberry of South Windsor and Samuel J. Ward Jr., of Suffield said they'll present the case of the tobacco growers to the Connecticut delegation in the morning while Orr plans to appear before the Massachusetts delegation in the afternoon.

The soil bank plan, which does not include tobacco, would provide incentive payments to farmers who voluntarily reduce acreage to cut crop surpluses.

"Tobacco is a surplus crop and should be included in the soil bank," Newberry said.

Open Forum

More on the Curve

To the Editor:

In the "Open Forum," section of the Jan. 25 and 25 edition of the Manchester Evening Herald, there appeared some truthful articles on the road-ability of a local curve on the Camp Meeting Rd., and Carter St. in the Town of Manchester, Connecticut. I do not know, or know of, the writer or writers personally, but I am pleased that someone has time forward and brought attention to the public, the conditions that really exist at said curve.

I travel that road to my place of business twice daily as many other people do from the surrounding towns, and I know of no greater, such as Coventry, Bolton, Andover, Lebanon, East and West New London and Norwich. Many motorists use this road for many months to go to and from the Manchester area, and I can be connecting one with Route 85. Many time I have had some "close calls" because of an approaching driver not realizing there is a curve there until it is upon one. There are no properly situated illuminated warning signs on this curve or pole reflectors, as one approaches this curve from the Manchester end and a very small and poorly placed curve sign, almost on the curve, practically involves an one approaches it from the Bolton end. During fog and night driving, it is almost impossible to find this curve, never mind trying to negotiate it.

The curve has already proven it's treacherous time and time again. Not all accidents can be prevented because of speeding and recklessness, but with proper highway conditions they can be cut down.

I would like to add to the present Manchester Engineer's, the following necessary items to be placed at the aforesaid location on Camp Meeting Rd. in the Town of Manchester, Connecticut:

1. A stop sign should be placed at the corner of Birch Mountain Road and Camp Meeting Road.

2. A stop sign should be placed at the corner of Porter Street and Camp Meeting Road.

3. A stop sign should be placed at the corner or corners of Carter Street and Camp Meeting Road.

The above improvements would be of great help to the motorists and drivers, both from outside and within the state to prevent the question of who has the right of way, and to cut down speed at these intersections, thereby lessening the chance of accidents. Smaller towns than Manchester have done these things in similar situations with great success.

Let us please have a thorough and immediate overhauling of the Camp Meeting Curve and preferably a further high accident rate in this locality at this time.

Loren D. Trenta

Editor's Note—Action has been taken at the curve in question has already been published.

A Mother's View

To the Editor:

In regards to the letter in the Open Forum, on Tuesday, Jan. 24, we are proud that Manchester has a judge that is willing to see these teenage gangs that have been developing recently; if we had more judges that stopped these hoodlums and gave them a fine, there probably wouldn't be any first offenses. It's time people stopped feeling sorry for the teenagers who receive sentence for the wrong they have done. It seems to us that boys of 18 years more or less can, and should find other ways to spend their evenings, other than drinking and looking for excitement that hurts others and disgraces themselves. The boys that are serving our country would stick to serving the country and remember the uniform they are wearing should not be disgraced. The ones who believe in (lush) positions are probably parents who believe in letting their boys wander the streets looking for excitment.

As a mother and father we would appreciate a judge like Judge Gryk, who doesn't tolerate nonsense to do the best for our children if we were in such a case we didn't have to keep our children on the right path.

Another thing would be sentence some of the parents for their negligence in their dosings; and maybe make it safer for our children who enjoy good clean fun.

Sincerely yours, A Mother.

Harry Maidment-Troop 23

To the Editor,

As I sat in the Supreme Court Building on Jan. 26, I looked and two of his friends passing the rigid requirements for an Eagle Scout. I looked at Harry Maidment, their leader, who sat there proud, happy, beaming and looking as if all this were actually happening to him all over again.

At a time when our newspapers are filled with news of murder, wars, fires, and unhappiness in general, I thought a little space should be given to a High School teacher who in his quiet way makes wonderful news everyday, the kind that gives one faith in your fellow men. He is one of these rare people who is really dedicated to our youth in and out of classroom.

Like a mother hen he prods, pushes, scolds, guides, and finally makes a first class Scout and man that this community can well be proud of. No matter is too trivial, no cause too big for him to tackle if it will help his boys in any way.

I am sure all of us that know him wish to say thank you, Harry Maidment.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Herman Yules

Tolland County Superior Court

Rockville, Jan. 28 (Special)—Fred Provencher, Ellington, was granted a divorce from Marion Grace Provencher, Ellington, yesterday by the superior court in session of Tolland County Superior Court.

Granted on the grounds of adultery, the decree provides Provencher custody of a minor child, subject to reasonable rights of visitation by the child's mother.

In a foreclosure action, Judge John H. King accepted a committee report, approved the deed and set allowances of $186.62 for expenses and $250 for committee compensation and $25 for each of three appraisers. The monies were Savings Bank of Manchester vs. Lester C. Abbott, et als, involving property in Vernon.

In the case of The Will Rogers Corp. vs. Highway Commissioner of the State of Connecticut, Judge King ordered the case referred before Hon. Thomas J. Molloy, state referee. The case concerns a dispute over land owned by the plaintiff and acquired by the State for highway purposes.

Several other cases were continued until Saturday.

Police Nab Trio For Store Holdup

Ansonia, Jan. 28 (AP)—Police said that three men whose getaway was interrupted by a flat tire on their car would face armed robbery charges in city court here today.

The three, arrested by Milford Police as they waited in a Boston Post Road filling station for the tire repaired, were booked as Albert Fustino, 34, and Sidney Garrett, 40, both of Bridgeport, and Edward Wilkerson, 30, of White Plains, N. Y.

Police Chief William O'Brien said the men were accused of holding up a short while earlier at a Main St. package store where Joseph Butrygnowicz, 70-year-old fatherin-law of the owner, was forced into a rear room by two gun wielding bandits who escaped with between $85 and $80 and several bottles of whiskey.

The elderly man had been left in charge while the owner, Edward Pedenski, took an ailing child to a doctor.

O'Brien said that a quantity of money and several bottles of liquor were found in the bandits' car of the trio, and that a search of the vicinity of the filling station uncovered an empty 25-caliber pistol.

The police official said that Garrett and Wilkerson had been "positively" identified by Butrygnowicz as the men who held him up.

FIREMEN START YOUNG

Knoxville (AP)—If Jimmy and Gary Fox want to be firemen someday, they know where to get a good recommendation. The boys, 15 and 11, held a fire in their basement under control with a garden hose until firemen arrived. A city official said they probably saved the house from burning down.

Rockville Elks to Sponsor Education Clinic

Rockville, Jan. 28 (Special)—A clinic will be held Sunday afternoon at the Elks Club, with District Deputy John A. Lohse in charge, as part of the national educational program for officers in the various lodges.

Past exalted rulers of the Rockville Lodge are assisting the district deputy in preparing for the event, and will take part during the instruction period.

This is the first such event to be held here, and it will be attended by about 50 representatives from lodges in Manchester, Hartford, Middletown, Westbrook, New London, Norwich, Danielson, Putnam and Willimantic.

The clinic is scheduled to start at 2:30. At the close, those attending will be the guests of the Rockville Lodge at a roast beef dinner.

Goodwill Collection

The collection of articles by the Goodwill Industries of Springfield, which was postponed due to the snowstorm, has been rescheduled for Tuesday. Clothing, shoes, furniture and similar articles are desired for the project in which the material collected is turned over to handicapped persons for repairs and later sale. Anyone having articles to donate is asked to call Springfield Republic 6-7277, collect, and the material will be picked for next Tuesday by workers with trucks.

Church Events

The young people of the local churches will attend the Tolland County Youth Rally to be held at Stafford Springs Methodist church noon. The conference theme will be "Your Other Voices," with leaders in a number of fields of work.

At the evening service, the Rev. J. Garland Waggoner of Storrs, will be the speaker. Those attending will carry box lunches and refreshments will be served in the church.

The Boy Scout Club of the Baptist Church will meet this evening at 6 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Schwarz.

"The Prophet Daniel" is the sermon topic for the Rev. Andrew Burton at the 9 a.m. service tomorrow, Community Methodist Church, Crystal Lake.

Homemade Doughnuts at Pete's Market

Few of us can resist the mouth-watering goodness of home made doughnuts, and if you would like some delicious, freshly made home made doughnuts, drive up to Pete's Market at the corner of Pitkin and E. Center St. tomorrow (Sunday) and choose from six different kinds. Peter Clark will serve refreshments and "supply" honey dipped, chocolate covered, plain, cinnamon, sugared and those wonderful old fashioned crullers—all home made, all made that very morning! The store will be open, as it is every Sunday, from 9 to 1 and 5 to 9, so stop in when you come home from church and get some doughnuts to enjoy with your coffee. If guests drop in—or for a special treat for Sunday night supper—serve, assorted doughnuts. Of course, Clark has these homemade doughnuts every day, but tomorrow he will have the six different varieties. Once you have tasted them you will be a regular customer, breakfast dishes disappear when mouth watering doughnuts and coffee appear.

A full line of groceries are always available at Pete's Market, featuring the nationally known Sweet Life brand, a big selection of dair

Sense and Nonsense

Woman customer—Do you mind if I try that suit on in the window?

Clerk — Not if you insist, but we'd much rather you used the dressing-room.

Wife — Were you nervous when you first asked your husband for money?

Neighbor — Oh, no. I was calm and collected.

Government doesn't owe anyone a living, and when it seeks to provide such a living, those who toil must pay the bill.

Mother—What did your father say when he fell off the ladder?

Junior—Shall I leave out the naughty word?

Mother—Of course, dear.

Junior—Nothing.

Three good men were talking to a preacher.

Three good men—Do you think a man could get to heaven without joining the church?

Preacher — I think he could. They laughed, patted him on the back, and called him broadminded.

Preacher — Let me ask you a question, and I want you to answer me just as quickly as he answered you. Why do you want to go to heaven that way?

They were speechless.

Preacher — Why don't you ask me another question? Why don't you ask me if a man could get to England without going on a ship?

Three good men — Well, we will ask you that. Now what is the answer?

Preacher—I see no reason why a man could not get to England without going on a ship, provided he was a good swimmer, tied some food between his shoulders to eat on the way, had strength to buffet all the waves — if a shark did not get him. And suppose he did get to England without a ship, do you think he would get there much ahead of the man who goes by ship? And would he be any better off than those who had the fellowship of others and went by ship?

Dinner—Waiter, didn't you hear me say "Well done?"

Waiter (ignoring pale pink steak) — Yes, sir; thank you very much, sir. It's seldom we get any thanks, sir.

Indians Gain State Tournament for First Time in 10 Years

Farmington Wins 60-49 Over Rockville in Loop

By DON BERGER

Farmington High's basketball team handed Rockville its sixth defeat of the season last night, winning 60-49. The game was a Valley B League encounter and gave Farmington a solid grip on third place in the standings with an 8-4 record.

Generally speaking, it was a sub-par performance for Coach John Canavari's charges, although they did come within three points of tying the score in the last three minutes.

Canavari's usually bothersome box zone offered no problem for Farmington. The Indians shot from out front and from the corners virtually unmolested. Rockville was without its usual hustle and the shooting in a word was pathetic. For the first eight minutes, the Yellowjackets made good on only one of 16 attempts from the floor, and for the first half six for 31 for 19 per cent. This was the pattern of the game. Some shots missed both the hoop and backboard by as many as three feet.

Tourney Road Bumpy

Rockville's record evened off at 6-6, wins and six losses in the league, eight and six overall. The Jackets are vying for tourney consideration dipped to 2.85 with six games still to be played. At this point the tourney road looks a bit bumpy. Four of the te ms to be met already own decisions over Rockville this season. Another, Wilcox Tech, is outscoring them by 20 points from the field the first time, but lost the game from the foul line.

Farmington got off to a good start, shelling Rockville's zone for a 16-4 lead at the first turn. Rockville switched to man for man in the second period and was successful in initiating an offense of its own. Don Beerworth, playing to the right of the key, popped in 10 points in the period.

For Farmington, talented Jack Shearer, a fine all-round athlete, was the whole show. Mixing an ice-filling, two-handed set with a variety of twisting drive in shots, Shearer connected for seven baskets and two free throws for 16 points in the second half. These seven goals came on but 14 attempts or at the rate of 50 per cent conversion. At one point, the Indians led by 19 points, 24-5.

The two teams played the third quarter on fairly even terms, but midway through the final stanza the Rockville forces began to move. Nine consecutive points by Wayne Kupferschmid, Doll Plank, Capt. Gary Staiger, and Beerworth narrowed the gap to 49-46, with three minutes remaining.

Verdict Iced

At this point, Farmington called time out. When play resumed, Larry Remkiewicz was sent to the sideline (for the rest of the game) for some unexplained reason. In the time that remained, Rockville had several shots, but none would register. Field goals by Ed Kristofer and Bob Gunther iced the verdict for the winners. Farmington had become a little careless in its play coming down the stretch, but rallied in time to win.

Rockville shot very well from the foul line with 17 conversions in 27 attempts for 63 per cent. Farmington could salvage only 10 of 24 attempts for 42 per cent. From the field the home team attempted 78 shots and connected on 25 for a very fine 44 per cent. Rockville made just over 20 per cent.

Shearer led all scorers with 25 points. Beerworth was best for Rockville with 17 with Kupferschmid adding 11 in support. For the second straight game, Remky failed to connect from the foul line while Staiger has had not one field goal during this time.

Short Pops

A standing room only crowd watched the contest. Very few Rockville fans included. . . The Indians began their game with the entire crowd singing the Star Spangled Banner. Very appropriate. . . Farmington gym, only of the nicest in the state, except for fan-shaped metal backboards. . . Lee Pinsky, former UConn luminary, coaches football and baseball at Farmington. . . Shearer tentatively planning to go to prep school. . . Rockville held Shearer scoreless in first meeting in Rockville. . . Kupry did a fine defensive job on Shearer in the third period, allowing no field goals . . . Next game for Rockville is Tuesday at Rockville against Wilcox Tech. . . Farmington's overall record is now 10-4.

Prelim went to Farmington 44-37.

Football Giants To Shift Tilts To Rival Park

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—After 21 years, the New York football Giants have quit the Polo Grounds for spacious Yankee Stadium. The baseball Giants may follow them in 1957.

The football club moved across the Harlem River because Tom Bell, commissioner of the National Football League was "continually worried" about the chances of being shut out of New York.

Bell arranged the deal with Arthur Priedlund, secretary of the New York Yankees, when unofficial persons bid $1,000,000 for the football Giants, based on their offer on the availability of the Stadium. When the bid was refused, he talked the Giants into picking up the lease.

The football team moves in this fall, with President Jack Mara confident of new success at the box office and in the league standings. Mara said the deal is for 10 years with an option to renew for the football team. Payment will be on a percentage of the gate receipts.

Sought Giants in 1952

It was Mara's father, Tim, who brought the Giants to the Polo Grounds in 1925 after paying $2,500 for a franchise. The game caught on in 1926 when a crowd of about 70,000 turned out to see Red Grange.

"I have been confused by stories about what was going to happen after the baseball Giants' lease runs out in 1962," said Mara.

In the absence of President Horace Stoneham, who is in Phoenix, Ariz., the baseball Giants insist they expect to continue at the Polo Grounds. There appears to be no doubt about 1956 with tickets already printed but 57 is a different matter.

Stoneham said last November he had discussed a switch with Dan Topping, co-owner of the Yanks, but the matter still was in the tentative stage. No year was mentioned.

There have been many stories printed in recent years about the Giants moving to the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul where they already own the Minneapolis Franchise in the American Assn.

However, the Giants recently signed a new radio-television deal, in New York calling for payments of about $5,000,000 in the next four years.

Baseball May Follow

A source close to the situation who did not want his name used, said he was convinced the baseball club would shift to Yankee Stadium in 1957.

A shift would be expensive for the Yanks with the Coogan Estate runs through April 30, 1962. The estate owns the land and the stadium, plus everything above ground, including the actual park. Yankee equipment is excluded. The real estate was estimated to be worth at least $1,000,000.

Under the terms of the lease, the Giants pay a $55,000 annual rental, plus rent that amounted to $1,500 in 1955 and assessments. In addition they rent the adjoining parking lot for $18,500, plus $13,000 in taxes. If they wished to move out next year, they probably would have to pay over $500,000.

Lack of adequate parking facilities, slow building of a housing development, new schools and expanded parkways in the vicinity has hurt the Giants.

Landy Runs Mile In 3:58.6 Clocking

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 28 (AP)—Australian Jim Landy, a physical science teacher who last year was actually decided to give up running for good, made the most fabulous last minute mile look just humdrum today.

For the third time since he set the world record of 3:58 at Turku, Finland, on June 24, 1954, Landy broke the four minute barrier at Melbourne today to win the Victorian State Mile in 3:58.6—the second fastest mile on record.

What would I give to clasp her hand
Her happy face to see
Hear her voice and see her smile,
That meant so much to me.

Modern Movie Viewing

Three exist among individuals of varying intelligence and motives who seem to take special pleasure in panning, ridiculing or ignoring television.

At the risk of appearing to have joined that other cynical and invariably high-brow clique, we would like to call attention to at least one rather obnoxious situation which has developed as a result of the wonder of the electronic world.

Some time ago it became apparent that members of the TV audience (living-room variety) were not devoting the same rapt attention to the new entertainment media they formerly were accustomed to giving the cinema, theatre or even radio.

Today, it is not unusual for a family to arrange themselves comfortably in front of the video, with the apparent intention of watching their favorite program, and proceed to employ their eyes in multifarious extraneous tasks — knitting, reading, finger painting, talking, and of course, eating.

Now, there's nothing intrinsically objectionable about such behavior. We would be the last to complain about our fellow man attempting to do two or more things at the same time even though wiser souls than us have indicated it is quite impossible to do more than one thing well.

The thing that bothers us is that once this television behavior pattern became sufficiently intrenched it was more apparent that the video watcher was not confining his habits to his home.

In the local cinema palace recently an example of what can happen when a few hundred persons accustomed to watching television in the privacy of their own homes are obliged to sit through three hours of doing nothing but watching.

(It should be mentioned that the audience in question was not the Friday night group, but an adult aggregation extensively entered together for the single purpose of viewing a movie.)

The first 15 minutes or so were not too bad. But soon seat squirming, hacking coughs and an undercurrent of muffled whispering could be detected. By the end of the first hour of the 3-hour show, it was quite difficult to maintain an intelligent comprehension of the dialogue piped in over the audio system.

Occasionally the crackling of pop-corn and the crunching of candy, provided these days apparently on the audience will not be left completely at the mercy of Hollywood, would punctuate the roar of the more dramatic scenes on the silver screen.

By the end of the second hour of a surprisingly excellent (we are told) picture it was virtually impossible to catch more than a stench of the dialogue.

Believing that perhaps such a state of affairs was just a temporary aberrancy we continued our observations at a neighboring metropolitan theatre. The results were virtually identical.

At this point, we were sure that the video viewer had definitely revolutionized the techniques of movie watching and a thought came to us like a bolt out of the blue.

Why not keep the lights on during the show? In this manner the theater manager can be sure his customers will really make themselves at home.

Violent Testimony

An occurence in an area courtroom last week has given rise to speculation as to when a recommendation for a football scholarship may be an invitation to a party. The letter was unsealed, although it bore a 3-cent stamp. She slipped it out of the envelope and as it was a bid to a "shower" in another town within a few days, she sealed it, looked up a likely address for the recipient in the town directory and dropped it in a mail-box.

To the Point

Children often have a wonderful way of coming to the point.

We found a good example of this from the father of a 3-year-old. He was shifted his weight forward and asked the witness to show him.

The witness lunged off the stand, crossed the floor, grabbed the prosecutor around the arms and tossed him forward as a basketball player would pass a basketball.

Then he stood there, probably wondering what a coach would have said, while the prosecutor floundered at a 45 degree angle from the floor a few yards away.

Righted once more, the prosecutor told the witness to see him if he ever wanted a recommendation for a football scholarship. Maybe the witness didn't think he meant it. We did.

Thrill Thieves

Reports have had it that some kids have been snooping around down at the Water Department garage from time to time. It looks like they were casing the place not simply for what they were after this week.

It is said that one recent night someone broke into the garage and ruffled things up a bit. The intruders rummaged through trucks and disarranged tools. They "borrowed" flashlights to aid in their search. They very considerately left the lights by the window as they left.

Only one thing was missing—some pinup pictures.

Indirect Contribution

General Manager Richard Martin, through his recent confinement to a hospital bed made a contribution to the March of Dimes.

Martin, suffering from a back ailment which is the aftermath of a case of polio, was ordered to a hospital for rest.

His fellow workers in the Municipal Building, according to their custom, planned to dip into the Cheer Fund for flowers to bolster the spirits of their boss. But the manager had different ideas. He let his secretary know that he would get more pleasure from her knowledge that the March of Dimes was richer by the cost of the bouquet.

The secretary passed the word along and the Polio Drive got its contribution.

A local gofer recently received a Valentine gift from his loving wife.

The lady couldn't wait to see his face light up with pleasure when he opened the gift, so nothing would do but to unwrap it immediately.

It was a small leather bag for carrying a change of clothes to and from the golf course — a very thoughtful gift from a woman who is tired of being a golf widow.

Not long after the unwrapping, the golfer's brother-in-law, a duffer in his own right, visited, and of course he was shown the gift.

In demonstrating the different compartments in the bag, the proud owner, discovered a gift card inside. He thought he had overlooked a sweet note from his wife.

As read the message aloud, "For a regular gul." From: the gang at U.A.D."

He wondered if the gang is aware their regular guy exchanged his Christmas gift.

Power of a Woman

We expect the polio ball tonight at the Armory to reveal a good deal about human nature.

In a week someone a friend confided he yielded to the blandishments of his wife and consented to go, although he normally can take dancing or leave it alone. He had purchased a ticket anyway, but did not plan to attend.

His wife convinced him it would be foolish to get the ticket and not use it. Our hero said he couldn't understand how his wife figured, the opinion that it was worth while to buy a gown, get a new hairdo, wear a corsage and other arrangements, but who understands women?

Now that all the plans are laid, the husband expects to enjoy himself (he said out of earshot of his wife), but he had dreaded all the red tape connected with the brilliant social event.

His experience made us wonder how many others will be attending under similar circumstances, as it is well known that men generally feel most at ease when relaxed in their home lairs.

We suspect that the success of many social gatherings can be attributed to "the power of a woman." Have a good time, ladies.

Hurricanes and Speed

Two developments in widely separated fields which occurred this week probably interested Manchesterites.

Tobacco growers were no doubt happy to learn that a student of weather systems announced he believes the frequency with which hurricanes hit the New England area will begin to decline this year.

And, motorists here, probably aware of the radar campaigns waged against speeders, may have thought twice on learning that a U.S. Representative has advocated governors on cars.

This latter step has long been urged by several officials connected with highway safety here. If there is anything wrong with the Representative's suggestion, it is the 70 m.p.h. top speed he advocated, in the view of local citizens.

Of course it can be argued that no matter what speed cars are limited to, some drivers will become involved in accidents. It should also be remembered that two cars traveling at 50 m.p.h. in opposite directions and hitting headon meet with the impact of one car hitting an immovable object at 100 m.p.h.

But the governors may be coming, sometime in the future. Perhaps the whine of the wind may decrease as well as the shriek of brakes.

No Dividing Line

Can you imagine anybody addressing a letter nowadays simply to "North Manchester?"

One of our Herald women employes received what appeared to be an invitation to a party. The letter was unsealed, although it bore a 3-cent stamp. She slipped it out of the envelope and as it was a bid to a "shower" in another town within a few days, she sealed it, looked up a likely address for the recipient in the town directory and dropped it in a mail-box.

To the Point

Children often have a wonderful way of coming to the point.

We found a good example of this from the father of a 3-year-old. He works days, while his wife often leaves after supper to work part-time a few evenings each week.

One night this week when the little boy's mother left, he said, "Da home, Mom work, Ma turn."

The Ys Have It

The following note was brought home to a young mother this week by her young son in school:

"Dear Mother:

We are having a cooky sale. Can you give a box of cookys to the March of Dimes if you can give cookys you will help the March of Dimes."

Belated Greetings

Any of you who might have complaints about the U.S. postal service might give thanks after considering this fact: An acquaintance received a Christmas card from New Zealand a few days ago. It had taken about eight weeks en route.

Lanette J. Lewis

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lewis of South Windsor announce the engagement of their daughter, Lanette June, to Kenneth T. Janssen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Janssen of 290 Leonard St., Agawam, Mass.

Miss Lewis is a graduate of Ellsworth Memorial High School. Janssen graduated from Manchester High School and attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.

Both Miss Lewis and her fiancé are employed at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft.

Group to Attend Midwinter Forum

Manchester will be well represented at a meeting in Hartford on Feb. 3 featuring a panel discussion on "Juvenile Delinquency" believe that juvenile delinquency and many less serious teenage problems can be eliminated if everyone pitches in to help.

Those from Manchester planning to attend include Mrs. C. Elmore Watkins, Mrs. Victor J. Herling, Mrs. Theodore Arnold, Mrs. Hugo Pearson, Mrs. Richard Gimmore, Mrs. Norman Larson, Mrs. Arthur Benton, Mrs. Donald Morrison, Mrs. William Roscoe, Mrs. Anthony Urbanetti, Mrs. Lane Giddings, Mrs. Charles House, Mrs. Robert Beach and Mrs. Ralph Leander.

The experts on the panel are Dr. Herold C. Hunt, U.S. under-secretary of health, education and welfare; Dr. Florence Kluckhohn, Harvard anthropologist and expert on the family; Dr. Francis J. Braceland, during World War II chief psychiatrist for the U.S. Navy and now psychiatrist-in-chief, the Institute of Living; Mark McCloskey, chairman, New York State Youth Commission; Representative Ralph R. Trecker, dean, University of Connecticut School of Social Work.

Reservations for the meeting, for which there is no charge except for the luncheon, may be made at the Service Bureau.

Town Dwellings Increase by 230

There were 230 more dwellings in Manchester in October 1955 than a year before, records of the tax assessor's office show.

The 230 brought to 8,895 the number of dwelling buildings in town.

The number of building lots also increased by 346 to 11,477 while land assessed acreage decreased by 215 acres to 10,692 acres.

Other increases were in barns and sheds, up 51 to 3,966; commercial buildings, up 13 to 3,565; mills, up 11 to 150; motor vehicles, up 903 to 15,107.

Machinery dropped by 463,741 to 4,631,047.

Announce Cast, Committees for MEA Production

Eighty-five members of Manchester's educational staff, representing 12 schools and all the special services from nursing to music supervision, have volunteered their time to provide a sparkling entertainment on Feb. 11, when the Manchester Education Assn. will present a farcical musical, "Dear Father's Secret," at the Waddell School. Proceeds from the play will increase the scholarships to be offered to assist capable Manchester young people who are going into the teaching profession.

Farthest "out of step" with their normal behavior, but practising vigorously to "get in step" with the spirit of the evening are the "choirines" and "chorus boys." Ladies of the ensemble will be Carol Laird, Jo-Ann Connary and Marita Kemp from the Verplanck School; Mrs. Betty Richardson, Thelma Wright, Jean Gimalowski and Mrs. Marie Lalime from the Bowers School; Betty Brown from Highland Park School; Eileen Barrett and Betsy McNiff from Buckley; Margaret Bowers and Irene Hollister, Mrs. Corinne Pockette from Keeney; Mrs. Christine Parize and Mrs. Carol Fish from Nathan Hale; Jean Farnham and Dorothy Hilliter (from Waddell; Martha Peterson (from High School; Mrs. Cleo Livingston from Robertson; Estelle Boyatis from Lincoln; and Mrs. Ruth Morris, nurse.

The "boys of the line" (the singing-dancing line) will be: Mr. and Ronald Edmundson, Charles Gerrans and Robert Von Deck from Buckley School; Principal Charles Johnson, Jacob Harrison, Jerry Perry and Kenneth Skinner from Barnard School; William Cox, Holister; Don Berger, Verplanck; George Bradish, Michael Guadano and Harry Schoonmaker from Bowers; Edward Timbrell and Robert Cliffe from Waddell; Andrew Mesnick, speech therapist; Hyatt Suttifer, guidance director; and Ralph Maccarone, music supervisor.

Principals of the melodrama" of which the songs and dances are a part are not "type cast," according to the director Mrs. Helen Skinner of the High school. Marian McLagan of Bowers School will play a snobbish mother; Nathan Joy of Lincoln School, a hen-pecked father; Marita White and Helen Nicol, music supervisors, will act the glamorous stock daughters; Charles Beattie from High School will be a narrow-minded suitor; Mark Kristoff of Barnard will appear as an old man with young ideas; Barbara Jones of Bowers will enact a fading but tempestuous star; and Arthur Lalime, visual aids director, will be cast as a theatrical producer with an eye for the ladies.

Eight committees are active in the production: Costume Committee, Mrs. Marrian Lynch and Mrs. Tess O'Leary of Waddell School, Harriett Atwood of Green School, Hannah Jensen and Mrs. Thelma Woodbridge of Bowers School and Mrs. Bernice Maher of Barnard School. Property Committee, June Mirshall of Bowers School, Caryl Laird of Verplanck, Principal Florence Woods of Robertson. Art supervisor Hazel Lutz and dental hygienist Hazel Hosey; Makeup Committee: speech therapists Phyllis Ohnoiman and Andrew Massey, Margaret DeClantis of Hollister, Mrs. Bernice Maher of Barnard, Mrs. Mary Lyn Leonhardt of Barnard, and Isabel Worth of High School.

The Ticket Committee is made up of Mary McAdams, Anne Belcher, Kenneth Holt, and Edward Ryder, High School; William Freeman and Catherine McGuire, Hollister School; Mrs. Mary Hutchinson, Bowers School; and Mrs. Rose Mitchell, Barnard School. Lighting will be handled by Paul Finkbein of Bowers School and Calvin Fish of Robertson. Mrs. Elizabeth Budd of High School is talking care of poster publicity. Ushers will be June Cates, Bowers School; Mrs. Lynn Wagner and Roberta Hynde, Lincoln; Mrs. Elizabeth MacDonald, Mowery; and Charles Wagner, Donald Warren, Barnard. Principal Walter Fish of Buckland School will be in charge of the check room.

Ads and tickets are already in the hands of Teachers' Council representatives in each of the local schools.

West Supports Ike Rejection of Soviet Friendship Treaty

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Western World has generally approved President Eisenhower's turndown of a 20-year "treaty of friendship" between Russia and the United States proffered by Premier Bulganin.

The Soviet press yesterday headlined the news of Bulganin's proposal. Moscow papers carried the full text of the letter and treaty draft.

But Russian papers carried no word of Eisenhower's reply that such a pact is unneeded and might create a false impression it appeared that. Moscow hoped later publication of the reply would give it greater impact on the Russian people.

In its issue today, the Communist Party paper Pravda said without mentioning the reply, called Bulganin's offer "a deeply thought out system of measures to reestablish the historical friendship between the Soviet Union and the United States."

It cautioned, however, that "I cannot be considered that the threat of a new war has disappeared."

"It is deeds and not words alone which count," Eisenhower told Bulganin in the exchange made between Russia and the United States proffered by Premier Bulganin.

Bulganin has written that it would be "an act of great international significance" for peace if the United States and Russia would sign a treaty pledging (1) to settle disputes peacefully, (2) to avoid interference in each other's affairs and (3) to strengthen economic, cultural and scientific cooperation.

Eisenhower's letter, as courteous in tone as was Bulganin's, suggested that Russia join it steps to unify Germany, and the threat of atomic war, free Russia's satellite states and abolish the Iron Curtain. He invited Bulganin to write his reactions.

Stand by U.N. Charter

The President noted that the four Party paper proposals call for a treaty—the United Nations Charter—to do all the things Bulganin suggested. He said it is the duty of country past.

"Never can we hope," Eisenhower

10 Perish in Panic At Baltimore Blaze

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP)—Ten women perished in a mad dash for the exits last night after fire touched off panic in a hall jammed with a church crowd of about 1,000. One of the dead was identified. The other nine bodies were believed those of women whose families had reported them missing.

More than 200 were injured in the frantic clawing, shoving and trampling which erupted as the swiftly spreading flames consumed Arcadia Park Auditorium on the south edge of Baltimore.

Red Cross officials reported 18 were admitted to nine hospitals and 111 were released after treatment. Firemen said about 100 others were treated at the scene.

Survivors said one minute they were sipping beer and munching food and listening to an orchestra play a tune on the floor. The next moment, pandemonium had broken out.

Stampeding Humanity

Within a few momfits the celebrants, including many children there with their parents, were transformed into a shrieking, stampeding pack of humanity.

As the fire swooshed along the wooden rafters and roof of the country cinder-block building, hundreds broke for two large doors in the front and rear.

One of the doors, which were of the kind swinging type used in garages, was never opened.

Firefighters said the escape hatch scores of occupants made for nearby windows.

Some of the first bodies recovered were found huddled under one of these.

Panic at Window

Al Bachmine, former professional basketball coach of the old Baltimore Bullets and one of the survivors, described the scene as a "panic in panic."

"With everybody trying to get out of that window, it was pretty brutal," he said.

"Some were being pulled back by others as they started through. Some were even throoing out of the windows, friends they didn't think could make it any other way."

Hartheime said the fire was first detected in a duct.

"Seven of the fellows got up on a ladder to put it out. All at once the flames burst out. You might say it was an explosion. The fire engulfed the guys on the ladder for a minute. I don't know what happened to them."

Like scores of others who squeezed through the steel-framed windows at about 18-by-30 inches,

Firemen pour water on the smoking remains of a hall in Baltimore where at least 10 persons died in a fire-caused panic. Firemen continue to search for other reported missing persons.

H. L. Mencken, Literary Great, Dies in Sleep

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP)—Doubting H. L. Mencken, whose needle-sharp pen pricked at the pretentious for nearly half a century, is dead. And how—as he once literally imagined it—all they stage his "inescapable last act."

"The age of Baltimore"—newsman, author, wit, and critic—died quietly in his sleep early Sunday. He was 75.

A doctor said a clot probably ended Mencken's life.

His brother, August, said funeral services, not arranged, will be "strictly private."

Mencken once wrote: "One of the crying needs of the time in this phantasmagoric republic is for a suitable burial service for the admittedly damned. . . .

"Such a service is needed, and what have for politely, is a service that is free from the pious but unsupported assevarations that revolt so many of our best minds, and yet remains happily graceful and consoling, a suitable funeral for doubters, full of lovely poetry, but devoid of any specific pronouncement on the subject of a future life.

"Such a libretto for the inescapable last act of mankind would be valuable. I renew my suggestion that the poets get upon their hands and confect it at once."

This was typical of Mencken as he viewed the passing scene.

His views, laced with humor and vitality, were given life in two dozen books and thousands of essays.

"The American language," a scholarly investigation of the origins of our speech, is a monument to his intellect. His three "days" books—"Happy Days," "Newspaper Days," and "Heathen Days" exude his personal charm.

Cigarettes Up Cent A Pack Wednesday

Hartford, Jan. 30 (AP)—Cigarettes in Connecticut go up a penny a pack Wednesday. They'll stay at that price for nine months. The extra tax will raise more than $2 million, according to estimates.

The money goes for the flood fund, to pay the state's share of the cost of repairing the damage of last year's disastrous floods. The new increase raises the state tax from three to four cents a pack.

Tax Commissioner John L. Sullivan said today his entire force of sales tax examiners will be assigned to a field survey.

The examiners will inspect cigarette packages all over the state, on counters and in vending machines, to see that all packs bear the tax stamp.

Reds Set Mark For Olympics Speed Skating

Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Russian speed skaters continued their cascade of gold medals today when two young speed skaters, Yury Mikhailov and Eugeny Grishin, tied for the 1500 meter (metric mile) championship in the identical world record time of two minutes and 8.6 seconds.

The sensational race on the mile-high Misurina Track overshadowed other highlights of the Winter Olympic games' fourth day. Hopes for a American gold, Ann Albright gain a substantial lead in women's figure skating and Nger-ing of Switzerland skated through to their first championships.

The wiry, 24-year-old Grishin, a Moscow engraver who campaigned the 500 meters earlier in the world record time of 40.3 seconds, first shot across the finish line in a free ride against the clock. Moments later Mikhailov, a 20-year-old engineering student, matched the time in a mighty burst over the ice.

Sweep Medalling Events

This victory gave the Soviet Union a sweep of the three speed skating events. Russia already has added two more gold medals to its Olympic collection pile, which now counts five. No other country has more than one. Two young Finns, Toivo Salonen and Juhani Jarvinen, also shattered the world and Olympic marks on the light-heavyweight jump, finishing first in the world, Salonen did 2:09.4 and Jarvinen in 2:09.7.

Russia, scoring 17 points in today's speed skating and placing third in each of the other two events, boosted its team point total to 45 points, more than double that of the closest pursuer, Austria, with 20. The United States, still without a medal, was far back in the dim 41 points. The Olympic games have no official team champion but, the traditional system awards points to the first six finishers on a 10-8-6-4-3-2-1 basis.

However, America saw a championship in the making when Ann Albright, 20-year-old world champion

Knowland Favors Delegate's Contest In New Hampshire

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 30 (AP)—Three supporters of Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) said today he encouraged them to enter a delegate slate favorable to him in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary March 13.

The three spoke out in separate interviews after the Senate minority leader told a news conference yesterday he will not add his name to be entered in the preference poll section of the two-pronged ballot.

The net effect of the political maneuvering appeared to leave this picture:

Eisenhower Praised For Reply to Russia

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden opened talks at the White House today on the Middle East crisis and new strategy for blocking Soviet Cold War offensives.

The first meeting of the American and British leaders was a limited one, with only the two leaders also by Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Diplomats said in this first gathering the two leaders who are old personal friends would take an over-all look at the work they have to do here and set the general pattern of their three days of conference.

Eden said on his arrival here that he was sure the meeting would "pave the way for further progress toward a peaceful and prosperous world." Eisenhower, wearing a brown worsted suit, walked bareheaded down the steps of the White House to greet Eden when the Prime Minister arrived at the White House, a few minutes before 1 p.m. EST.

Greeted by Eden

After shaking hands vigorously, the President inquired, "How have you been?" Eden, wearing a blue double breasted suit, smiling-ly replied, "Fine-ly." Then the Prime Minister asked Eisenhower, "How are you feeling?"

The President's reply was lost to bystanders because he whispered it through a cupped hand to Eden and then chuckled.

Eden landed at national airport at 11:18 a.m. EST aboard the President's plane, Columbine III, a DC-6 dun-like weather.

The President's plane picked him up in New York where the Prime Minister arrived this morning aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth. Dulles headed a delegation on hand at the airport to greet Eden.

There was a U.S. Army honor guard, carrying the colors of the British flags side by side, and fifteen stand at attention in a giant rectangle about the plane. There had been a steady rain all morning.

At a news conference, both leaders pledged their Queen Elizabeth. Eden termed "admirable" the President's reply to Soviet Premier Bulganin's proposal for a 20-year peace pact.

Bulganin's move was regarded here as a propaganda effort to attempt to steal a march on the Eden-Eisenhower conferences even as they began.

Eden and Foreign Secretary Lloyd stressed British-American close understanding in responding to the formal welcome by Dulles at the airport.

Eden said today he was sure "we can make a serious and positive contribution to the work through better British-American understanding."

Lloyd said that if the United States and Britain "talk apart it will give others reason to think there is no danger which may not befall the free world."

Dulles welcomed them as old friends of the United States and said he was confident the conference would "make for more freedom and a just peace more secure."

Dulles, with the rain flicking his sparse white hair, met Eden at the foot of the stairway from the plane and said "Welcome." Eden replied, "I'm very happy to be here."

Gesture by Eden

Eden said he was grateful for such a warm welcome. Then, calling Dulles by his name "Foster," he said he hoped it was all right with Dulles for him to speak to such a familiar manner.

This looked like a deliberate gesture by Eden to show friendship for a man with whom he has

Three Pleading No Defense in Heiress' Death

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Supreme Court decided unanimously today that 1947 Portal-to-Portal Act requires wage payments for out-of-hours activities "ordinarily" related to production.

Chief Justice Warren delivered the decision.

The Portal-to-Portal Act was passed to offset a 1946 Supreme Court ruling that resulted in suits totaling some $6 billion for pay for such activities as walking to work places, washing and changing clothing.

The act outlawed pending portal pay suits, except those covered by wage contracts or industry cus-

Ice Cuts New York, Cairo Hop at Paris

Paris, Jan. 30 (AP)—William F. Judd landed in Paris in a single-engine plane near here today, beaten by icing conditions and fatigue in his attempt to fly nonstop from White Plains, N. Y., to Cairo, Egypt.

Judd, 40-year-old Trans-World Airlines pilot, brought his 230-horsepower Fireball and silver Cessna 180 plane in for a smooth landing at 2:40 p.m. (8:40 a.m. EST) at Toussus-le-Noble Airfield southwest of Paris. He had been in the air 24 hours, 11 minutes. Obviously dead tired, he was greeted by his wife, Claire, and their 3½-year-old son, Alan Patrick.

"How the little boy?" he asked as he hoisted himself out of the cockpit.

"I ran into six hours of ice between New York and Gander and I had another six hours of instrument flying in bad weather off the coast of Europe," Judd said.

Eden Begins Talks With Dulles

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles began talks today on the Middle East crisis and new strategy for blocking Soviet Cold War offensives.

Diplomats said in this first gathering the two leaders who are old personal friends would take an over-all look at the work they have to do here and set the general pattern of their three days of conference.

Eden said on his arrival here that he was sure the meeting would "pave the way for further progress toward a peaceful and prosperous world." Eisenhower, wearing a brown worsted suit, walked bareheaded down the steps of the White House to greet Eden when the Prime Minister arrived at the White House, a few minutes before 1 p.m. EST.

Greeted by Eden

After shaking hands vigorously, the President inquired, "How have you been?" Eden, wearing a blue double breasted suit, smiling-ly replied, "Fine-ly." Then the Prime Minister asked Eisenhower, "How are you feeling?"

The President's reply was lost to bystanders because he whispered it through a cupped hand to Eden and then chuckled.

Eden landed at national airport at 11:18 a.m. EST aboard the President's plane, Columbine III, a DC-6 dun-like weather.
