U.S. Earth Satellite Rocket Blasts 125 Miles into Space

Dag Urges Early Visit To Hungary

United Nations, N. Y., Dec. 8 (AP)—U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold expressed doubt today that there would be any purpose in his visiting Budapest unless he could do so soon.

He did so in a report to the General Assembly on his efforts to get observers into Hungary or neighboring countries and his negotiations to go to Budapest himself. He disclosed that he had written Austria, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Yugoslavia for permission to send observers to those countries for investigation of the situation in Hungary.

"Pending replies . . ." he said, "I have not been able to arrange for the dispatch of any observers to the region."

Meanwhile, a U.S. proposal to freeze out the U.N. delegation representing the Soviet-controlled Hungarian government ran into opposition today from a group of western delegates. They contend present action should be limited to a rebuke.

The United States scheduled a meeting with 16 interested nations —including Belgium, spearhead of the moderation group — to discuss the question.

The Americans want to push through a common agreement for action over Hungary's refusal to admit observers or to give Hammarskjold a definite answer when he could go in.

The disagreement over how far to carry the action arose yesterday when the 17 nations held a closed door conference on the situation.

Informed sources said U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth declared the Hungarian delegation's credentials should be rejected—or at least suspended—if the Kremlin-backed government of Premier Janos Kadar stood "fast against observers."

Belgian Ambassador Fernand van Langenhove pushed for a mild resolution which would rebuke the Soviet government and Hungarian authorities for their attitude.

Favor Moderate Stand

The informants said Australia and Italy favored Belgium's more moderate stand. But they indicated that if Hungary doesn't com-

Peak Speed Reported at 4,000 mph

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Naval and civilian scientists blasted a Viking rocket—dubbed "the first test rocket of the Earth satellite program"—125 miles into the air early today.

The Defense Dept. said the rocket reached a peak velocity of 4,000 miles per hour before plunging into the Atlantic Ocean about 180 miles from the launching base at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Newsmen watched the huge 45-foot rocket, 13th in the Viking series, from a vantage point four miles away. One reported it "rose slowly and almost silently into the air," leaving "a glowing bright pink trail" as it picked up speed.

The launching site was the Air Force Missile Test Center (AFMTC) at Patrick Air Force Base, Cape Canaveral.

The department said the rocket was fired to test instruments and gather information to be used later in the launching of the Earth satellite planned for the 1957-1958 International Geophysical Year (IGY). It was built for the Navy by the Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore.

The IGY is a worldwide cooperative research program aimed at finding out more about the Earth and the air around it.

The rocket was launched by the Navy's project Vanguard, which supports the Earth satellite program sponsored by the National Academy of Science as part of the U.S. participation in the IGY.

The Navy announcement said: "After taking off from the launching platform it (the Viking) ascended vertically a short distance. From that point on it was turned slowly toward the horizontal. It reached a peak velocity of 4,000 miles per hour and climbed to an altitude of 125 miles, ending its flight in the Atlantic Ocean about 180 miles from the launching base."

Observers, including a reporter for the Orlando (Fla) Sentinel, watched the firing from a distance of four mile, outside the destruct area. Firing took place at 1:04 a.m. (EST).

"A 'minitrack' radio transmitter similar to the one which will be employed in the satellite was fired from the rocket at an altitude of 50 miles and tracked by

NATO Meeting Seen Repairing Western Split

Paris, Dec. 8 (AP)—Ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO)—pushed into a renewed spirit of cooperation by events in Hungary next week open what may be their most dynamic meeting.

The session begins Tuesday, bringing together the ministers of foreign affairs, defense and finance of the 15 nations. It will provide the setting for the first meeting of British, French and American foreign ministers since the Suez campaign which threatened to split the Atlantic Pact organization wide open.

But the three members, once so widely divided with France and Britain on one side and America on the other, have begun the healing process so actively that one highly placed figure in the organization predicted: "It will be the love match of the year. The lovers are going to confess their faults, kiss and make up probably more warmly than ever before."

Budapest Changed Picture

For the past two years NATO has shown signs of pulling apart at the seams. Many members, raimed by the smiles of the Kremlin, wanted to cut their defense expenditures. Russian rancour over tanks in Budapest changed all that.

"Members who were reluctant before are now remembering how much security the Atlantic Pact gives them," a member representative said.

The biggest event in the expected meeting of Secretary of State Dulles, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany and French Foreign Minister Pierre Pflimlin. It has not definitely been decided

Will Get Electric Chair

La Marca Convicted For Kidnap-Killing

Mineola, N. Y., Dec. 8 (AP)—A jury of 12 fathers last night condemned Angelo LaMarca to death in the electric chair for the kidnap-murder of 32-day-old Peter Weinberger.

The jury found the swarthy auto mechanic guilty of kidnaping and first degree murder.

LaMarca's knees wobbled when he heard the verdict. Two court attendants grabbed him to keep him from sagging to the floor.

The defense built its case around a temporary insanity plea. It claimed the 31-year-old LaMarca was a normal, hard-working husband and father until last spring when a burden of mounting debts drove him out of his mind.

In that unbalanced state LaMarca embarked on the kidnap plot, the defense said.

LaMarca tried but failed to collect a $2,000 ransom.

The defense asked mercy for LaMarca.

But Dist. Atty. Frank Gulotta, the prosecutor, called LaMarca a scheming, cold-blooded criminal and demanded of the jury:

"What mercy was shown baby Weinberger when he was left in that woods . . . what mercy did he show then?"

The jury was out, for six hours and 24 minutes before returning its verdict ending the month-old trial.

Never in Doubt

Two of the jurors, Morris Yohai, 31, Brooklyn, and Peter Meyer, 39, said the jurymen never were in doubt during their deliberations, as to LaMarca's guilt. But they said the question of the defendant's sanity was an important factor in their decision.

Mrs. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger, parents of the tiny victim, were present in the Nassau County courtroom when the verdict was returned. Mrs. Weinberger was filled with tears. But neither she nor her husband would comment on the outcome.

The defendant admitted killing the baby from the patio of the Weinbergers' Westbury, N. Y., home last July 4 and abandoning him a short while later in a Long Island honeysuckle thicket a few miles away.

Police found the child's body Aug. 24, the day after the FBI seized LaMarca.

LaMarca's brunette wife, Donna, 31, herself the mother of two small children, collapsed after the verdict. She was carried from the courtroom.

LaMarca's 57-year-old mother, Vilina, also collapsed.

The jury did not recommend mercy in finding LaMarca guilty on both the kidnaping and murder charges. That automatically doomed him to the electric chair.

Trial Judge Mario Pittoni scheduled the sentencing for Dec. 14.

The sentence will be subject to automatic appeal, however, under provisions of New York State statutes.

LaMarca, father of a 9-year-old boy and a 6-year-old girl, told the jury from the witness stand during the trial:

"I just don't see how I could have done such a thing when I have got my own children to think of."

UN Told Egypt Sneaks Shells Into Port Said

Port Said, Egypt, Dec. 8 (AP)—The British-French Command said today it had found thousands of rounds of rockets and ammunition being smuggled into Port Said.

French Lt. Gen. André Beaufre said the British-French headquarters protested to the United Nations truce commander and also notified higher Allied authorities "to take such representations as considered proper, as this type of activity might lead to a serious situation."

"We view it with considerable concern," said Lt. Gen. Hugh Stockwell, the Allied task force commander.

U.S. to Assure West Europe Of Every Aid

By JOHN M. RIGHTTOWER

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles flies to Paris today with the evident intention of assuring the European allies of efforts that the United States will do everything possible to help them surmount their current financial crisis.

How much help can be given will depend largely on the Congress, both branches of which are making intensive over studies of the foreign aid concept.

The formal purpose of Dulles' trip is to attend a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) Council.

The council is scheduled to review the over-all Allied defense program against Soviet might and also to consider ways of increasing the cooperation of the NATO powers on international political issues.

An additional major concern of Dulles and other foreign ministers attending the session will be to try to restore Allied unity and close working relationships among the United States, Britain and France. The unity was shattered by their disagreement over the British-French attack on Egypt.

Attending the meeting along with Dulles, but traveling separately, will be Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

The trip will be Dulles' first diplomatic mission since he underwent a successful cancer operation early last month.

Dulles is described by associates as feeling it is of the utmost importance to rebuild security in the western alliance and relance to oil-short Europe the economic strength which is necessary to provide a sound basis for military strength.

For this reason he believes it is important that the United States help the European allies both to solve their economic problems and to carry the burden of armament which is their responsibility in the NATO system.

So far there has been no discussion of the U.S. aid problem with

Auto Industry Opens $11½ Million Display

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — In a setting as modern and glamorous as its newest product, the nation's auto industry opens its 1957 national auto show Sunday.

Scene for the 11½ million industrial venture is the Coliseum, New York's new Coliseum on Columbus Circle. For all practical purposes the show opened last night—as thousands of people roamed over three floors of the glittering Coliseum to inspect the last word in passenger cars and trucks and scores of cutaway displays of engines and components like fuel injection systems, high compression engines, braking systems and multiple barrel carburetor assemblies.

It was an invitational preview for the press, industry representatives generally and their friends. The main show runs through the next nine days. In today's formal opening ceremony Mayor Robert F. Wagner, of New York City, cut the customary ribbon and presented a dozen or more auto companies join in a horn-sounding fanfare.

There are 125 passenger cars on the second and third floors of the Ford display. One of the newest Fairlane model with a retractable steel top. Probe Reveals Torch Sparked Brooklyn Blast

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh . . . says Brooklyn's disastrous pier explosion was caused by acetylene torch sparks igniting a fire which touched off 37,000 pounds of detonating fuses.

Cavanagh said last night sparks from the torches of ship riggers making repairs on the roof of the big pier, fired burlap-wrapped foam rubber stored on the pier and spread to cargoes of alcohol, lacquer and varnish.

Ten persons were killed and 246 injured in the fire and blast last Monday. Damage has been estimated at $15 million.

The "prominent" fuses, the commissioner said, "became heated and detonated and was the combined and producing cause of the tragic explosion."

The manufacturer of the fuses, the Ensign Bickford Co. of Simsbury, Conn., said it had shipped "hundreds of millions of feet" of

Guerrillas Harass Reds in Hungary

Budapest, Dec. 8 (AP)—Defiant rebels continued today their assaults of rebel guerrillas are waging hit-run warfare on Russian troops from mountain hideouts in southern Hungary.

There have been numerous reports of continued fighting around the mining center of Pecs, but until now they were impossible to confirm. Communication with Pecs is cut off.

Today an unimpeachable Hungarian source reported that at least 3,000 rebels are harassing Russian forces from the Mecsek mountains, near Pecs and not far from the Yugoslav frontier.

But the informant said he believed the rebels would be crushed the last still holding out.

This indicates the Russians have succeeded in wiping out some 2,000 college students that had been waging guerrilla raids from the Matrafuredo region, north of Budapest, in the past 10 days ago.

"It is true that the revolutionaries in Pecs killed the Russian (commandant) about two weeks ago," the Budapest informant said. "This is true although our Budapest newspapers and radio were forced to deny it.

Rebels Hold First Foe

"The Russians can't wipe out these Freedom Fighters because they can't find them.

"They hide in the forests and they are supported by a rebellious local population: Around Pecs, the Russians are getting a taste of the same kind of partisan warfare they waged against the Germans in World War II."

Telephone lines to Pecs have been closed to civilians calls for many days.

The source said there has been a continuous struggle between the Russians and the rebels for control of the lines, which run through the mountains.

There was an air of tension in Budapest. The government issued a demand by the capital's Central Workers Council to quit workers' occupation of face another outburst of violence.

The council had accused the puppet regime of dragging officers and members of councils from their homes "without investigation or hearing," and warned that "if this continues" the end will be a general strike, bloodshed and a general civil tragedy."

The workers demanded an answer by 8 p.m. but none came.

The council was still debating today whether to call the threatened general strike.

Policy of Force?

A delegation of workers met with Premier Janos Kadar several hours but, apparently Kadar made no concessions. A source close to the workers council said: "The news is bad because Kadar continues his 'policy of force' against us and all alleged 'counter-revolutionaries.'"

Informed sources said at least 140 Hungarians were arrested

Poland Settles Dispute With Catholic Hierarchy

Warsaw, Poland, Dec. 8 (AP)—Poland's new anti-Stalinist Communist government and the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy today announced a broad settlement of their differences including restoration of religious education in state schools.

A joint communique said the church expressed full support for all government activities aimed at strengthening the Polish People's Republic and uniting the energies of all citizens for the common good.

The agreement was worked out by a joint state-church commission established after the release of Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, Catholic Primate of Poland, Oct. 28. He was kept under House arrest for three years. His release followed the elevation of Wladyslaw Gomulka to leadership in the Polish Communist Party.

The joint commission worked for four weeks to settle the state-church dispute. The restoration of religious education was a top demand by the church for any agreement.

The commission communique said the government wants to end all the hindrances to full freedom of religion. It added:

"As a result of changes in public life aimed at establishing legality, justice, peaceful coexistence, the strengthening of social morality and the restitution of wrongs, the Catholic Episcopate will extend to the government the church's full understanding for these aspirations.

The announcement listed three main points in the state-church agreement:

1. Restoration of religious education to grade and high schools for children whose parents request it.

2. Permission for chaplains to work in hospitals and prisons.

3. Establishment of a govern-

The meeting will be preceded by a roast beef dinner at 6:30 p.m. to be served by the women of the Eastern Star Order in Moosup. All area past masters planning to attend are asked to contact Myrton E. Wright by Tuesday for dinner reservations or further information.

Young Mother's Party

The Young Mothers Club will have a Christmas party for members Dec. 14 at 8 p.m. in the Nathan Hale Community Center. Mrs. Arnold E. Carlson will be meeting chairman, assisted by Mrs. David A. Abrams, Mrs. Clarence A. Bradfield, Mrs. Duane Pollanshee, and Mrs. Charles Parrington.

There will be a 10 cent gift exchange. Members are asked to bring $1 which will be turned over to the Public Health Nursing Assn. visiting nurse, Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, to use as she sees fit. This is the second year the group will be giving in this manner.

The Jan. 1 meeting has been postponed to Jan. 8 with Mrs. Ronald Knapp and Mrs. Frederick C. Rose as hostesses. The Jan. 15 meeting will be postponed to Jan. 22.

Work Session Set

The Ladies Assn. of First Congregational Church will have an all-day work session Wednesday starting about 10:30 a.m. in the vestry. Available to the public will be Christmas cards, sprays, and other gifts suitable for Christmas.

The Church Board of Trustees will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Florence Cochrane.

Garden Club Party

The Garden Club annual Christmas pot-luck Luncheon Tuesday will start at 12:30 p.m. in Booth-Dimock Memorial Library.

A collection will be taken for the Patients' Activity Fund at Mansfield State Training School and Hospital. Each member attending is to wear an original holiday hat.

Mrs. Carleton P. King will be meeting chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ernest J. Starkel, Mrs. Hubert A. Standfest, Mrs. Earle W. Rose, and Mrs. Robert H. Wilcox.

First Church Notes

The Rev. James R. MacArthur will use "Fake—Read," as his sermon topic during the 10:45 a.m. worship services tomorrow in First Congregational Church.

The church nursery school will meet at 10:45 a.m. in Kingsbury House. These children will not take part in the White Gift Service for the Church School's two morning sessions. Any gifts nursery children may have will be received during their session.

The Pilgrim Fellowship will start its repairing and mending project of toys for Mansfield State Training School and Hospital, at the 7 p.m. meeting Sunday in the church vestry.

The younger children of the church, from nursery through fourth grade will have a Christmas party in the church vestry at 4 p.m. Dec. 22. The older groups, from fifth grade through the Pilgrim Fellowship group will have their party Dec. 22 from 7:30 p.m. on here. Both groups will have carol singing and films will be shown.

Second Church News

The Rev. C. Arthur Bradley will use "How To Destroy A Bible" as his sermon topic at the 11 a.m. worship services in Second Congregational Church tomorrow. The second and final collection of gifts for patients at Norwich State Hospital will be received at containers in the rear of the church.

The Junior Pilgrim Fellowship will meet at 6 p.m. tomorrow in the Church Community House; the Junior Choir at 7 p.m. in the church sanctuary under leadership of Miss June D. Loomis; and Senior Pilgrim Fellowship at 7:30 p.m. will leave to visit a fellowship in Northfield.

Monday the South Tolland Ministerial Assn. will meet at 10:30 a.m. in the local church parsonage with the pastor to be host at a noon luncheon here.

Representatives of Church, with the Rev. Mr. Bradley, pastor, will attend the Tuesday 7 p.m. supper meeting of the Tolland Congregational Christian Laymen's Assn. in Staffordville Congregational Church. Dr. Moses Bailey of Hartford Theological Seminary will be main speaker.

The Mr. and Mrs. Club will have a Christmas party for members and their children Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. in the Church Community House. Each woman attending is to bring a 50-cent gift for a woman, and each man a 50-cent gift for a man. Parents are to provide a gift for each of their own children attending.

Co-op Kindergarten

The North Coventry Co-operative Nursery and Kindergarten parent-members realized about $60 from their recent dance with proceeds to be used for school equipment.

Members have expressed appreciation for Community cooperation with the project. There will be no meeting of the parent-member group this month.

The school will have respective Christmas parties Dec. 20 and 21 during class sessions from 9 a.m. until noon.

Prof. Jesse Wall of the University of Connecticut child development department, will be the January parent-member meeting speaker.

UN Told Egypt Sneaks Shells Into Port Said

The munitions smuggling coincided with increasing defiance from Egyptians in Port Said as the British-French garrison dwindled.

As a precaution against any flareup by an Egyptian underground, the British-French authorities stepped up a search for arms and ammunition and banned all fishing boats from entering the Port Said area.

The announcement said an Egyptian felucca, one of the graceful sailing craft that ply between Port Said and the Egyptian delta to the west, carried thousands of rounds of new Czechoslovak-made ammunition and Bazooka rockets to the city's western edge.

A British-French patrol found the ammunition hidden in fishing baskets being brought ashore by Egyptians in the western sector of the Port Said area, the statement said.

The boat reached the fringe of Lake Manzala before being intercepted. A spokesman said there were some arrests. He gave no other details.

There was an air of hostility in Port Said more evident than at any time since the British and French occupied the city a month ago.

Anti-British slogans appeared on more and more buildings.

"Get-out—Port Said is your grave," some said.

Yesterday about 2,500 Egyptian civilians, mostly young men, marched through the streets in a show of mourning for Egypt's war dead. British riot squads stood by with submachine guns, but there were no disorders.

The open-defiance came as the British-French withdrawal neared a climax. Some 4,350 of the 11,000 British Tommies in Egypt have gone, and the exodus is continuing at a fast pace.

The U.N. police force that is taking over the British and French positions in phases still is of only token size.

Business Bodies

By DON FRIEDMAN

Robert K. McIntosh

Bob and Natalie McIntosh, owners of the McIntosh Boat Co., 52 Oak St., announce their firm has been awarded a dealer franchise by Johnson Motors of Waukegan, Ill., manufacturers of outboard motors. Among the products handled by the local firm are the new Sea Horse, 18 to 35-horsepower, models. The "18" replaces the "15" and the "35" replaces the old "30."

McIntosh Boat will also handle the "Golden Jaguar," a 35-horsepower motor in which the accent is placed on design, power and styling. Bob and Natalie point out that they are now affiliated with the largest Johnson outboard organization in the field, composed of more than 1,500 factory service outlets in the U.S. The local boat store was opened in February 1950 and it handles a line of marine equipment and paints along with outboard boats and motors.

Samuel J. Kemp, owner of Kemp's furniture and appliance shop 763 Main St., recently returned to his business after a lengthy illness.

Joseph Levay, of the new National Shoes, Inc., Manchester outlet at the Parkade, was recently named manager of the local store. According to Fred K. Siegel, vice president of the New York headquarters, the local store was one of 22 new shops to be opened this year by the chain which now boasts 131 shoe stores. Siegel says the promotion of Levay is in keeping with company policy of recognizing performance and loyalty by employees from "our own ranks."

B. D. Pearl Appliance & Furniture Center, 840 Main St., distributor for Maytag washers tells us that the washing machine manufacturer recently sent them a souvenir piece of the firm's 10 millionth washer completed Nov. 29.

Apropos of the bustling Christmas shopping season, Harry T. King, of the Ka-Klar Cloth Toy Co., 60 Hilliard St., informs us that the American toy industry is expected to set new records this year. Indications are that the toy industry locally as well as nationally will show a healthy average advance of about 12 per cent over 1955. King said retail sales for this year are expected to hit over $1.4 billion. The Toy Manufacturers of U.S.A., Inc., took a survey recently which revealed that women participate in about 81 per cent of all toy purchases and that these mothers are stressing quality and safety more than ever before.

While on the subject of Christmas gifts it seems fitting to take note of a policy recently adopted by Grand Union Co. Lansing P. Shields president of the super market chain which has an outlet at the Manchester Parkade, wrote suppliers doing business with Grand Union to discourage exchange of business gifts at Christmas. Shields bluntly asks the suppliers' help in abolishing the practice. The food executive goes on to say, "Traditionally Christmas is a time for exchanging gifts with friends and family but increasingly in the business fraternity Christmas gifts to customers have become something of a problem to all concerned." Shields concludes, "For many years it has been the practice of employees of Grand Union not to accept—or when delivered to refuse—business gifts at Christmas time.

Marlow's recently announced a new store policy which is sure to be a big hit with children. The Main St. department store is giving free gifts to each child accompanied by his parent during the pre-Christmas weekends.

Newest member of the local service station fraternity is Ruben Levitt, president of Economy Filling Stations, which is holding its official opening today at 568 Center St. According to Levitt the new station will sell gas, tires and other auto accessories. Levitt, who operates other garages in Hartford and West Hartford under the name, Woodland Garages, opened his first station in Hartford 27 years ago. Souvenirs are being given to all purchasers of 10 or more gallons of gas today.

Charles W. Smith, senior consultant in marketing with McKinsey & Co., Inc., management consultants, and national president of the American Marketing Assn. will speak to the Connecticut chapter of the Association Thursday evening at the 1711 Inn in Meriden. Smith has written and spoken extensively on the magnitude of the distribution job ahead, and industry's need for planning and organization to meet the challenge it offers.

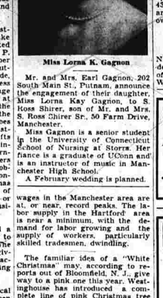
The Connecticut Labor Department recently announced hiring in State industries picked up speed in November and moved toward the all-time peak set in December 1955. The main impetus was provided by a strong pre-holiday pickup in retail trade outlets, particularly temporary sales people, for the Christmas shopping season. Employment and wages in the Manchester area are at or near record peaks. The labor supply in the Hartford area is near a minimum with the demand for labor growing and the supply of workers, particularly skilled tradesmen, dwindling.

The familiar idea of a "White Christmas" may, according to reports out of Hollywood, U.S.A., give way to a pink one this year. Westinghouse has introduced a complete line of pink Christmas tree lights. Manufacturers of trans-ufacturers are offering a wide variety of pink decorations.

Alaska Adds Roads

Nome—The Alaska Road Commission, created 51 years ago as an agency of the War Department has added more than 3,000 miles to the territory's highway network since its transfer to the Interior Department in 1932. Some 1,000 miles of these roads are improved and paved.

Engaged



Miss Lorna K. Gagnon

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gagnon, 202 South Main St., Putnam, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lorna Kay Gagnon, to S. Miss Shirer, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Ross Shirer Sr., 50 Farm Drive, Manchester.

Miss Gagnon is a senior student in the University of Connecticut School of Nursing at Storrs. Her fiance is a graduate of UConn and is an instructor of music in Manchester High School.

A February wedding is planned.

Farm Props Cost Billion for Year

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Farm price support operations cost the government more than $100 million a month for the four months ended Oct. 31.

The Agriculture Department put the figure yesterday at $436,245,-685, compared with a total of $240,514,022 for the same period of 1955. For the fiscal year which ended June 30, the loss was computed at $974,767,583.

As of Oct. 31, the department said, the government had $8,101,286,000 tied up in price support operations. This included $2,878,434,000 in outstanding crop loans and $5,222,852,000 in surplus crops owned by the government.

500 SPECIES ON STAMPS

Washington — Since 1928 the National Wildlife Federation has depicted more than 500 species of wild animals and birds on its Wildlife Conservation Stamps.

Sandbags Cost Plenty

Washington — In six years of warfare — from 1941 to 1945 and 1950 to 1952 — the United States armed forces bought about 587,000,000 sandbags. These cost about $113,000,000.

Bottled Deicer Cheap

Flint, Mich. — A tightly sealed bottle of heavily salted water carried in the glove compartment during the winter may supply a cheap means of quickly deicing windshields.

Blaze Destroys Catholic Church At Cambridge

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 8 (AP)—A roaring fire which police believe may have been the work of an arsonist, destroyed the Catholic church of 1,300 St. John the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church early today. Damage was estimated at more than $2 million.

At the height of the spectacular 3-alarm fire the roof and walls of the granite edifice collapsed in an inferno of sparks and flame. Four firefighters were swept from ladders by the falling wall. Three were hospitalized.

Police said a 16-year-old Cambridge boy is being questioned concerning the blaze. It was the fifth fire on church property since last summer.

Destroyed in the church, regarded as a showplace of the Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, were priceless religious relics and stained glass windows and a $20,000 organ that once was housed in Boston's historic Park Street Church.

During the fire the Rev. Thomas J. Williams, senior curate of the church, accompanied by firefighters, ran into the smoke-filled church to rescue vestments and vessels from the altar.

Bird Has Unusual Tail

Panama—The motmot, a gray-ish-green tropical bird, has a tail that looks like a tennis racket. The "rackets" are fashioned by the birds themselves, which pluck off about an inch of the feather vane below the end of the two outermost feathers. The bird, found on the Smithsonian Institution's tropical preserve in Gatun Lake, swings the tail from side to side like a pendulum.

Consolidation Backers Consider New Plans

Proponents of consolidation have reported today to be studying several new solutions to the financial problem in the South Manchester Fire District.

They were said to be opposed to the plan favored by General Manager Richard Martin to solve the problem which developed in the wake of the District's action to transfer its assets, liabilities and functions to the town.

That plan, which calls for a bi-monthly delay in consolidation, delays the merger unnecessarily and is impracticable, according to those discussing several new proposals.

The District is in trouble because it is due to merge with the town on Feb. 1 and has no funds to operate until that time. Banks will not lend the money since no tax was levied by which a loan could be secured.

Seek Longer Now

Therefore, say the consolidation proponents, the Board of Directors should amend the town's consolidation plan to make it become effective immediately. The town could then assume the costs of fire protection.

Another solution being offered calls for the town to hire the SMFD personnel and rent its equipment until Feb. 1. The action could be justified on the grounds that the town is obligated to provide fire protection for persons and property outside of Manchester's two fire districts.

If this were done, an arrangement could be made whereby both the personnel and equipment could be lent back to the District in the event of an emergency.

The latest finance either scheme, those advocating them say, by levying a special tax. They estimate that a 1-mill tax would be needed, basing that on the additional estimate that $25,000 would be needed to pay fire protection costs from now until June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Difficulty Resolved

The only difficulty which they see is the matter of levying a tax, and they see that as a political consideration. They say some feel the Board of Directors would be unwilling to levy the special tax.

In objecting to Martin's plan, the proponents of consolidation find themselves in unexpected company. SMFD Treasurer George W. C. Hunt, who strongly opposed them when they forced the merger action through at a District meeting Nov. 15, doesn't like Martin's plan, either. He has said he does not oppose the merger.

That plan, which came out of a meeting with Town Counsel Charles Crockett and the town's bond counsel, Warren Carley, calls for a 5-month postponement in consolidation to enable the District to borrow the money it needs.

Under this plan, the Board of Directors would amend the consolidation ordinance, changing the effective date from Feb. 1 to July 1. The District would then hold a special meeting to approve the new consolidation date, adopt an appropriation large enough to carry it through the additional five months, and vote to lay a tax.

Tax Would Back Loan

This tax, which would be laid in February, after the Grand List is compiled, could secure the necessary loan.

What bothers the consolidation proponents is the 5-month delay involved, which they see as unnecessary.

In addition, since an ordinance does not become effective until 10 days after passage, they say it would be possible for those opposing Martin's plan to take one of two actions, both of which would scuttle the hoped-for effects of the proposal.

What if those in favor of immediate consolidation," one of them asked, "petitions for a recall of the amended ordinance" in the 10 days during which passage is pending.

By time the machinery for the special election could be put in motion, a considerable amount of time would be consumed, he indicated.

Might Oppose Postponing

The second action the proponents of immediate consolidation could take, he said, would be to vote against acceptance of the July 1 arrangement at the District meeting that would have to be called. The effect of this would be to leave Feb. 1 as the merger date.

In either case, the District would not be able to get the funds it needs. Principal sufferers would be the 20 District firemen. Their next pay is Dec. 21, but there is no money left to meet that payroll.

As a result of this sentiment against the postponement plan that is developing among consolidation proponents, considerable activity is expected of them over the weekend.

The Board of Directors is scheduled to meet Tuesday night to amend the consolidation ordinance in accordance with the proposed postponement and to appropriate $25,000 to purchase Hose House No. 2.

If the consolidation proponents hope to have either of their plans enacted, they will have to work fast.

Meanwhile, the SMFD commissioners are scheduled to meet tomorrow morning with the District counsel, Atty. John R. G. Rottner, to review the situation and decide whether to go along with the proposal to postpone consolidation until July 1.

Obituary

Deaths

George H. Taylor

George H. Taylor, 31, 33 Lincoln Ave., West Hartford, father of Mrs. Everett E. Phelon of 104 Falkner Dr., died yesterday morning at his home.

He was a founder and vice president of the Central Connecticut Finance Co. Before helping to found the company he was associated with the J. H. Grossier Construction Co. He headed the construction of the Hartford YMCA, the Broad St. YWCA and the Southern New England Telephone Co. Building in Hartford. He was a member of Dunham Lodge, No. 84, A.F. and A.M., of Glastonbury, Washington Commandery, Knights Templar and Sphinx Temple, of Hartford. He played in the Shrine Band and for many years in the Governor's Foot Guard Band.

Besides his daughter, he leaves his wife, Mrs. Elsie Richmond Taylor; a brother, Charles Taylor of Lebanon; two sisters, Mrs. Samuel W. Flank and Mrs. John Welch, both of Glastonbury, and a granddaughter, Shirley M. Phelon.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 Monday afternoon at the Newkirk and Whitney Funeral Home, 214 Burnside Ave., East Hartford. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home tomorrow from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Richard G. Boughton

Richard G. Boughton of 125 Charter Oak Terrace, Hartford, a former Manchester resident, died Wednesday afternoon at McCook Memorial Hospital.

Born in Manchester, he had resided in Hartford for the past 16 years. He was employed at the City Line Restaurant.

He leaves five sons, Richard, stationed at Fort Dix, N. J., Robert, stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., and Frederick, Larry and Melvin Boughton, all of Hartford; three daughters, Mrs. Pearl LaMay of Newington, Mrs. Donaline Singerlile and Mrs. Myrna LaMoore, both of Hartford, and 17 grandchildren.

A second anniversary memorial Mass will be said tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. in St. John's Church for Janice Opalach, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley F. Opalach, 164 Henry St.

PUC Hearing Slated Jan. 21 On Rail Line Abandonment

The New Haven Railroad's proposal to abandon passenger service on the Hartford-Putnam line will be aired by the State Public Utilities Commission at a public hearing Jan. 21.

The hearing, which will be held in the PUC office in the State Office Building, is expected to attract a large contingent of Eastern Connecticut residents and officials who are strongly opposed to abandonment of the service, which runs through Manchester and Willimantic.

Manchester will be represented at the hearing by Atty. John R. LaBelle, a former town counsel, who will be working on a voluntary basis. He offered his services to General Manager Richard Martin two months ago. LaBelle said today, after Martin told him he was looking for a volunteer. The Board of Directors when approached around that time gave its contribution to fight abandonment, showed little enthusiasm.

LaBelle has been working with the 5-member committee appointed by Eastern Connecticut representatives during this year to fight for restoration of the passenger service. Bruce Watkins, former president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, is a member of this committee, which is headed by First Selectman Ralph Crosthwaite of Windham.

Service on the Putnam line disappeared in the August 1955 floods, when the impinging Quinebaug River washed out a railroad bridge at Putnam.

Scheduling of the hearing by the PUC marks the end of that agency's hopes that the matter could be settled outside of its offices.

Governor Ribicoff appointed a 3-man committee last March to work with railroad officials to find a means of providing service that would be satisfactory both to the railroad and Eastern Connecticut.

This committee came up with several proposals, but each was rejected out by the railroad.

The New Haven is petitioning for abandonment on the grounds that the line's record as a money loser does not justify the expense involved in rebuilding the bridge and repairing the roadbed.

New Haven president George Alpert has estimated this cost at $500,000, although a number of Eastern Connecticut officials feel this estimate is grossly too high.

One proposal submitted by the Eastern Connecticut group proved to have some hope of acceptance by the railroad was also ruled out on the basis of cost. This involved rerouting the line by way of Plainfield, over tracks now used exclusively for freight.

After an investigation of the proposal, railroad officials said the cost of adapting the Plainfield tracks to passenger service and providing protection at grade crossings would be higher than that in rebuilding the Putnam bridge.

Rockville

City Demurs To Counts in Curbing Suit

Rockville, Dec. 8 (Special)—Action taking issue with charges brought by Rockville Acres, Inc., against the city of Rockville has been filed in Hartford County Superior Court by Corp. Counsel Harry Hammer.

According to Atty. Hammer, he has filed a "demurrer to relief sought" in the case involving the city's failure to accept a street because of what it claims to be faulty curbing installed by the developer.

The motion, presented in court yesterday, was put over until Friday by Judge John R. Thim. Atty. Hammer said. The corporation counsel said he has requested the suit for damages against the city and an injunction be dropped and that action be limited to a declaratory judgment on the city's acceptance of the street.

In his answer to charges brought by the developer, Hammer stated that the curbing constituted a hazardous condition, was of poor quality and defectively installed.

Bribery Charge Added

A charge of bribery was added to the reckless driving count lodged against Pierre Letourneau, 31, Rollington, yesterday. State Police claim Letourneau offered three $10 to drop charges of reckless driving against him. He was arrested Tuesday morning when he lost control of his car at Vernon rotary.

State Patrolman Wendell Hayden said the car traveled about 200 feet in the air before Letourneau escaped injury but the car was extensively damaged and had to be towed away.

Officer Hayden said Letourneau was warned when he first offered the bribe that if he repeated it he was arrested for attempted bribery, he said.

Letourneau was released under a $500 bond.

City Court to Recess

To prevent sending anyone to jail during the Christmas holidays, Prosecutor Harry H. Lugg and Judge Raymond J. Talbot have agreed to cancel City Court sessions for Dec. 24 and 31.

This is in accordance with the closing of local law offices on the Mondays before Christmas and New Year's Day this year, Atty. Lugg said.

A special City Court session, will be held Dec. 10 to prevent an overload of cases.

The regular City Court session will be held Monday.

Motorists Blamed

Congestion caused by motorists would have hampered firemen in a call to 20 High St. at 8:45 last night had the fire occurred, Chief Officer Hayden said.

Firemen were called to the address to extinguish when firemen arrived, he said, there was no fire.

Asbestos shingles to give fire protection the right of way and keep cars out of the area where fires occur.

Man Falls 3½ Stories But Lives to Tell Tale

Hartford, Dec. 8 (AP)—A window washer fell three and one-half stories from the Heublein building, 37 Jefferson St., Friday and lived to tell the story.

"I had time to think while I was going down," said Richard Brewer, 31, this morning. "I wondered how much it would hurt."

Was he frightened?

Gave Him Quite a 'Hike'

"Yes," he said. "It gave me quite a hike."

But frightened or not, Brewer wanted to go right back to washing windows. His boss, Donald J. Rudder, owner of the Rudder Window Cleaning Service, had to talk him into an examination by a doctor.

The mishap occured while Brewer was cleaning the outside panes of a window on the third floor of the Heublein building, which is a nurses' residence of the Hartford Hospital.

Brewer squatted down sideways on a window ledge. He was pushing up the lower window sash and pulling down the upper sash when suddenly his fingers slipped and he lost his balance.

"I started to twist around going down," he said, "so that I was facing away from the building. When I hit the ground I bent my knees and fell forward on my hands and knees."

Frank Dondzik of Wethersfield, another window cleaner, who was also working in the third floor, heard a noise in the room where Brewer had been working and rushed in to see what had happened.

There was nobody there by that time, and Dondzik raced down stairs. As he reached the main floor Brewer walked in the front door.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

Just Had a Little Fall

"Oh, I just had a little fall," said Brewer. "I was going back up to work."

Dondzik telephoned the boss and between them, after much arguing, they managed to persuade Brewer to go with them up the street for an examination in the emergency room of the hospital.

"The effects of my fall are still in me," said Brewer this morning. "The doctor told me to go back to work until Tuesday."

He seemed disgusted at this turn of events.

What saved Brewer from serious injury, apparently, was the fact that he landed in the soft turf on the Hartford Ave. side of the nurses' residence.

Bargain Beer

A bid of $8.50 by Mrs. Frances Fitzsimmons of 775 Parker St. was high enough for 48 12-ounce bottles and 11 quart bottles of beer confiscated off a Town Court this morning.

Court Officer Joe Blanchette auctioned off the beer which he seized last night in a recent raid at the Lithuanian Social Club.

Andover

Polio Drive Head Named

Andover, Dec. 8 (Special)—The appointment of Mrs. George Koerber, Pine Ridge Rd., as chairman of the Mothers March for Polio here has been announced by Mrs. Alfred Sewell, Columbia, Tolland County chairman of the campaign.

Mrs. Thomas J. Birmingham of Long Hill Rd., will serve again as overall chairman. Assisting in the annual drive which will be conducted in January.

At a recent dinner in Somers given by county campaign leaders, it was announced that $1,500 has been spent for Andover polio cases in 1956, necessitating an increase from the national fund's share contributions from the town amounted to $150.

Mrs. Birmingham and Mrs. Koerber have stated they hope the county may be made up in the January fund drive.

Polio Clinic Held

In a polio clinic conducted at Andover Elementary School yesterday, it was estimated that Salk polio vaccine has administered to 50 pre-schoolers and 85 school children.

Mr. C. H. Hainsworth was attending physician, assisted by Mrs. Wilma Greene, school nurse. This was the last polio clinic scheduled for this year.

Principals Meet

Principals of the elementary schools of Andover, Hebron and Marlborough met yesterday morning at Hebron Elementary School with Andover's E. Mangus, rural superintendent, to discuss coordination of curricula in the three schools, which will receive graduates of the Regional District No. 8 junior high school in Hebron, scheduled to open September 1957.

School Lunch Menus

Menus for the coming week at the elementary school are as follows: Monday, cheese pickle and cheese sticks, peaches, bread and butter; Tuesday, shepherd's pie, scalloped tomatoes, chocolate pudding, bread and butter; Wednesday, scrambled eggs, green salad, corn bread, raspberry pudding with sauce, bread and butter; Thursday, noodles and frankfurt, hot cheese sticks, green beans, baked custard, bread and butter; Friday, chicken noodle soup, egg salad sandwiches, and frosted cake.

Milk is served with all meals.

Christmas Concert

A concert of Christmas carols will be sung at First Congregational Church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock by children of the Windham-High School Choir.

All interested members of the community are invited to attend.

Miami, Pittsburgh Grid Game on TV

Miami, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP)—Fans across the nation had a chance today to see the Pittsburgh Steelers and Miami Dolphins in a nationally televised pro football game.

The National Broadcasting Co. network carried the game, which was the first pro football game to be televised in Miami. The Dolphins are in their first year in the National Football League.

The host Hurricanes, shooting for a 9-0-1 season, were favored by 7 points, indicated sympathy for the plight of the trio, some sixty-members, felt that such a bill, if passed, might open up the gates for the government of a hundred or more.

But such a fear was unwarranted, the three say. To the best of their knowledge, it would involve no more than eight persons.

Vienna, Dec. 7 (AP) — Austrian border police said today an organized "underground railway" now seems to be helping Hungarians flee communism. In at least some cases, money oils the wheels.

WW II Vets Ask Waiver Of Bar Exam

Hartford, Dec. 8 (AP)—Three World War II veterans who graduated from law school in 1953 and spent an average of five years each in the service will renew their appeal to the Legislature to be admitted to the bar without examination.

The trio, all Boston University Law School graduates, are: Merwill R. Stotz, Hartford; James F. Sponzo, Windsor, and Samuel M. Fraulino, Middletown.

Ask Equal Consideration

They plan to ask the 1957 Legislature, which convenes next month, to grant them the same consideration as other World War II veterans admitted to the bar without examination, under a 1941 law.

The latter statute says that any serviceman whose law education was interrupted could be admitted to the bar without examination if he graduated from an accredited law school since 1941 and not later than 1946.

The three law school graduates renewing their appeal complain that the 1945 law failed to take into consideration graduates of the classes of 1939-1940 who were inducted into the service interrupting their special studies aimed at admission to the bar.

They contend that the specific intent of the 1945 law was to benefit all veterans whose education was interrupted by the service, and that the 1941 date was picked without realizing that 1939 and 1940 graduates were drafted during the process of making preparatory studies for the bar.

Difficult to Retain Knowledge

After spending years in the service, they have found it difficult to retain and hone-up on intricacies of the law needed to pass such an examination.

Thus, they maintain, the law unintentionally is depriving them of practicing a profession they spent years and thousands of dollars in education to prepare for.

Although the 1955 Legislature indicated sympathy for the plight of the trio, some lawyer-members felt that such a bill, if passed, might open up the gates for the government of a hundred or more.

But such a fear was unwarranted, the three say. To the best of their knowledge, it would involve no more than eight persons.

Peak Speed Reported at 4,000 mph

Navy scientists stationed at the AFMTC.

"The rocket also carried telemetering equipment and tracking beacons similar to those planned for the satellite rocket.

"After 450 seconds of flight the instrumented nose cone was separated from the rocket and allowed to descend independently, telemetering information on the temperatures and pressures it encountered.

"Since the scientific Earth satellite will be launched from the AFMTC, another objective of today's shot was to check out the newly installed launching facilities and ground equipment.

The department said it was "the first rocket of the earth satellite program."

The rocket which carries the actual Earth satellite into space will be a three-stage affair, each stage boosting the satellite a bit higher and then dropping away. The final push will put the satellite some 300 miles above the earth.

The satellite itself will be a relatively small shiny ball 20 inches in diameter, equipped with instruments to beam the secrets of space back to the waiting and watching scientists.

The satellite is expected to circle the Earth at a speed of 18,000 m.p.h., for perhaps two weeks. Individuals from all over the globe downward again through the atmosphere.

The engine used in the Viking is built by Pratt and Whitney, and has a thrust of 21,000 pounds at sea level. It is fuel-cooled on gimbals, enabling it to be tilted in direction of flight will be controlled and stabilized by the motors corrected.

The rocket is prevented from spinning by movable tabs on its fins and by a device that is used when the rocket is too high, in the thin air, for the tabs to work.

The fuel is a combination of liquid oxygen and ethyl alcohol.

Fully loaded with propellers, the Viking weighs about 15,000 pounds, but after the fuel is used up the weight is reduced to about 3,400 pounds.

One of the 12 previous firings of Vikings were from the White Sands Proving Ground, N.M.

The finless satellite vehicle which will be used in the Vanguard project will be much larger than the Viking, with a total length of 72 feet. The first stage motor will have a thrust of 27,000 pounds at sea level.

The first two stages will carry the satellite to heights where it will be proper altitude, where it will be turned back and maneuvered into horizontal direction, with speed sufficient to put it into an orbit around the earth.

The guidance system is carried in the second stage, and will continue to control flight until the first stage motor has been dropped and the satellite is close to the earth.

The third stage, which will use solid instead of liquid fuels, will be switched on by a timer.

Fuller Tract Notices Set for Land Owners

Property owners of an 80-acre tract of land on the Manchester-East Hartford town line were scheduled to receive letters by mail today notifying them that options held on the land will be exercised.

The tract, on the north side of Pulland Tpke, is reportedly being sold to Fuller Brush Co. of Hartford, which sources say will construct a $4 million plant at the location.

Inquiries reports that Fuller is planning to locate in the area, the firm's first vice president, Wallace E. Campbell, reportedly answered with a "no comment" when asked about the move.

The purchase will end a 5-month search for a new plant site which began after the company announced in July the intention to abandon its 34-year-old Hartford location.

The Manchester-East Hartford property is one of two parcels being considered by the company, both of East Hartford, William Allen, Manchester, and Martin Blode, Cogstal Lake.

Also, Manchester and Martin Blode, Cogstal Lake.

The two areas are reported located in Manchester. Change of zone would be required for the Manchester property now designated for residential use, while the East Hartford tract is already zoned for industrial purposes.

The firm was originally been optioned in the name of Theodore Montanaro, Hartford, but later transferred to C. M. Middlebrook, Hartford, real estate brokerage firm.

Louis Lavitt, Rockville real estate broker, has been named as agent for the transaction. Purchase price of the land has been reported in the neighborhood of $160,000.

Reports that Fuller Brush manufacturing firm will maintain its Hartford plant have been circulating for several years. The space would be leased back from its new owner, since Fuller is reported a buyer for its present plant.

Fuller Brush is the largest Hartford Grand List, the present Fuller property was assessed at $4,047,248. It was among the city's top 15 in assessed valuation. Fuller presently employs about 1,000 persons.

Last summer the firm listed the need for more space and a more modern plant as reasons for erecting a new location. At that time, officials stated that it would seek to establish north of Hartford, in Windsor-Windsor Locks area, where most of its labor force resides.

Dag Urges Early Visit To Hungary

ply with U.N. requests by Monday, they would go for tougher action.

The cohousiting group consists of Britain, France, Peru and the 14 nations which sponsored a resolution Wednesday calling for admission of observers, a pullout of Soviet troops and examination of mass deportations from Hungary.

The sponsors are the United States, Argentina, Belgium, Cambodia, Cuba, Denmark, El Salvador, Ireland, Italy, The Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Sweden and Uruguay.

Hammarskjold has been trying to get observers or himself into Budapest for the past month. The Kadar government has flatly refused to admit observers and declined to set any date for Hammarskjold to go in to set up a permanent mission.

Hungary's delegation said last night it was keeping contact with the Secretary General on the question of his visiting Budapest.

It denied charges that Hungarian Minister Imre Horvath sought to deceive Hammarskjold or the Assembly, when he suggested last week that the Secretary General might be welcome in the Hungarian capital Dec. 16.

After Hammarskjold announced plans to visit Budapest on that date, Budapest Radio served notice that the time was "not suitable."

The Hungarian delegation branded as "absolutely unfounded" a statement by U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. that deceit was intended. It charged Lodge's statement was insulting to the Kadar government and calculated to aggravate the situation.

Workers at UAC To Vote on Hike

Hartford, Dec. 8 (AP)—Almost 10,000 employes of the United Aircraft Corp. in three plants will vote Sunday and Monday on new proposals for pay increase and an additional paid holiday.

The new agreement calls for wage increases of from 9-14 cents an hour and the day before Christmas as the new paid holiday. The hourly wage scale is varied.

About 1,800 workers in the Hamilton Standard divisions of the corporation signed a 10-cent-an-hour offer Friday. The East Windsor local accepted a similar offer on the proposal. They are represented by the International Association of Machinists.

About 3,500 workers at the North Haven plant will vote on the proposal Monday. They are represented by the United Automobile Workers Union. All indications that the proposal around the clock the workers accept the new terms which have been advocated by the union negotiating committee.

The increase was negotiated under wage reopening agreement in the present contract. Last week about 26,000 employes in East Hartford, Meriden, Portland and Southington approved the increases.

Poland Settles Dispute With Catholic Hierarchy

ment communion to arrange for the return of exiled clergymen and nuns to the western territories which Poland took over from Germany after World War II.

4. Recognition by the church that the state has a decisive political voice in church appointments. It was understood, though not written in the agreement, that the government promised not to veto appointments in the church.

Future appointments of clergy will be subject to a law to be drafted jointly by church and state. It will replace a government decree vetoing the appointment of bishops and excluding priests from their parishes.

The communique noted an agreement for the return to their dioceses of five bishops whose appointments were annulled by the state since 1951.

The return or exile of leading prelates and the suppression of religious orders by the Communist-dominated Communist regime that followed Poland's seizure the two courses that stirred the keenest resentment among the faithful in predominantly Catholic Poland.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the Polish-Vatican agreement, an authoritative source said Archbishop Eugen Baisch, Apostolic administrator of Krakow and seven other bishops, who prelate in Poland, had returned to his archdiocese after three years in exile. Cardinal Wyszynski was released a short time in jail and then was placed in a Catholic seminary.

Cardinal Wyszynski has resumed his duties as Archbishop of Gnesen and Warsaw.

Prior to the announcement of the church-state agreement, Catholic authorities disclosed that 250,000 Catholics have been reported in expanding the return of Bishop Czesiaw Kaczmarek to his diocese. He was freed from jail earlier this year, but was not granted permission to go back to Kielce.

On the question of religious education, the joint commission announced agreement on the principles.

1. Full freedom for religious instruction in grade and high schools on a voluntary basis when parents express a wish for it.

2. Although this will be an extra-curral subject, school authorities must furnish facilities for proper instruction in schools and in Church-County chairman of the campaign.

Mr. Thomas J. Birmingham of Long Hill Rd., will serve again as overall chairman. Assisting in the annual drive which will be conducted in January.

At a recent dinner in Somers given by county campaign leaders, it was announced that $1,500 has been spent for Andover polio cases in 1956, necessitating an increase from the national fun's share contributions from the town amounted to $150.

Mrs. Birmingham and Mrs. Koerber have stated they hope the county may be made up in the January fund drive.

Polio Clinic Held

In a polio clinic conducted at Andover Elementary School yesterday, it was estimated that Salk polio vaccine has administered to 50 pre-schoolers and 85 school children.

Mr. C. H. Hainsworth was attending physician, assisted by Mrs. Wilma Greene, school nurse. This was the last polio clinic scheduled for this year.

Principals Meet

Principals of the elementary schools of Andover, Hebron and Marlborough met yesterday morning at Hebron Elementary School with Andover's E. Mangus, rural superintendent, to discuss coordination of curricula in the three schools, which will receive graduates of the Regional District No. 8 junior high school in Hebron, scheduled to open September 1957.

School Lunch Menus

Menus for the coming week at the elementary school are as follows: Monday, cheese pickle and cheese sticks, peaches, bread and butter; Tuesday, shepherd's pie, scalloped tomatoes, chocolate pudding, bread and butter; Wednesday, scrambled eggs, green salad, corn bread, raspberry pudding with sauce, bread and butter; Thursday, noodles and frankfurt, hot cheese sticks, green beans, baked custard, bread and butter; Friday, chicken noodle soup, egg salad sandwiches, and frosted cake.

Milk is served with all meals.

Chemical Test for Drinkers Urged to Cut Motor Mishaps

Hartford, Dec. 8 (AP) — Governor Ribicoff and the Legislature were urged today to make the chemical test for judging drunkenness a part of Connecticut's highway safety program.

Dr. Leon A. Greenberg, head of the Yale Center of Alcohol Studies, said that State law fails to provide essential for shame protection against drinking drivers, given those in about 24 states.

94% of Deaths Due to Drinkers

"The best statistics show that about 50 per cent of highway deaths are caused by motorists whose driving is seriously impaired by alcohol," he said. "It's about time we put this on a scientific and non dominantor under the law for judging drinking drivers."

Governor Ribicoff, informed of the proposal today, said he will refer it to a board of State highway safety experts who are studying safety measures to recommend to the Legislature, which convenes Jan. 5.

Dr. Greenberg, who invented the Drunkometer, a device for judging alcoholic content of the blood, determine how far his drinking faculties are impaired by liquor—said chemical tests must be given "with acceptance under Connecticut law."

"The medical profession has made available to the police and the courts a marvelous, fair, objective means of determining driving fitness and means of drinking drivers," he said. "But until it is given official, legal recognition in the State of Connecticut, it is only "Such recognition, including the scientific formula for determining unfitness to drive by the amount of alcohol in the blood, would "take the burden off the court and the jury in such cases," he said.

The Yale professor expressed doubt that the State would pass a bill received strong support at public hearings held by the past two Legislatures, but failed to win passage.

"The police, safety experts and others spoke for it and no one spoke in opposition," he noted. "But in both sessions, the bill was killed in committee."

In the 1955 Legislature, he said, it failed to get out of the Judiciary committee.

Stolen Auto Ends Spots In Mansfield Ditch

Willimantic, was picked up near his home sometime after the accident. He was booked on charges of theft of automobile plates, illegal use of plates, speeding, reckless driving, resisting arrest, and operating without a license.

Policeman Arthur Gagne filed this report:

He spotted a speeding car on Main St. and pursued it. Even though he sounded his siren and tried to force the driver off the side of the road, the chase continued for about 2 miles, until the car finally landed in the ditch.

The driver fled from the car into the nearby woods. Gagne found footprints and letters back yard. The arrest was preceded by a scuffle in which the policeman received a bruised back and an ankle injury.

The passengers in the automobile, police reported, said they protested to him to Hussey during the chase. He had met them in a restaurant and had offered to drive them home.

New Haven Clock Firm Shuts Doors

New Haven, Dec. 8 (AP) — The 137-year-old New Haven Clock Co. one of this city's leading industries, closed its doors yesterday, throwing 1,000 employes out of work.

President Seymour Ziff of the firm filed a bankruptcy petition just before the closing said earlier that the shut-down would be for "a couple of days" only.

No Concrete Plan to Reopen

He could not be reached for further comment, and there was no statement from him or other officials about any plans for reopening.

Reasons for the closing. Ziff said "active negotiations with a very important company" that might take over the operations of New Haven Clock were in progress.

Two federal tax liens, one for $122,556 and another for $83,870, were filed against the company this month.

Louis Squeglia, a union official whose task it was to tell his fellow workers the news, said he no work for them on Monday, said when he described the news made the announcement:

"It's very bad. I couldn't even look at them. They were dumbfounded. They didn't say anything."

The announcement however, could not have come as a complete surprise to the working force, which had been warned that the plant 15 years or more.

The company's financial troubles had been well publicized earlier in the week when the directors held a meeting in New York to discuss ways and means of keeping the firm afloat.

Officials have attributed a large part of the difficulty to a lessening of demand for automobile clocks, the company's principal product.

Judge Robert J. Anderson of the U.S. District Court is expected to decide on Monday whether he will approve the company's bankruptcy petition.

Auto Entries at Record

The Role Of Canada

Surely, in the Near East crisis, no nation has played a more constructive role than Canada. Her representative, intelligent, saving role than our neighbor Canada.

For Canada, perhaps, the original decision—that the British-French attack on Egypt could not be approved—was recently sufficient than it was for us, even though we had to take our decision in the midst of a hot election campaign. For Canada it had to involve a certain amount of break in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

When Canada did make its decision, that was very vital assurance of strength for the cause of morality and law in the United Nations.

But Canada's contribution was to be even more valuable than that. Once the moral stand had been taken, it was Canada's able and intelligent foreign minister, Lester B. Pearson, who came forward with the proposal for the sending of a United Nations police force to Egypt. This was the ideal policy proposal of the hour, without which there could be no solution of the problem of war in the Near East. Under the impulse of the crisis, the United Nations did something in 48 hours it had previously been unable to accomplish in 11 years—it did establish its own police force.

This was no sudden innovation of policy on the part of Canada, but rather a natural outgrowth, in the test of crisis, of policies and principles Canada has long been advocating. Canada was among the first nations to contribute troops to the less formalized United Nations police action in Korea. And after Korea, Canada became the world's first nation to offer a definite pledge of a standing contingent for a permanent United Nations police force, if one could be established.

Now the United Nations does have a police force, which has a job to do in the Near East for some time to come. But already Canada is pushing, in the United Nations, for arrangements which will convert this emergency action into a permanent action, so that, henceforth, the United Nations will always have law enforcement force of its own, ready for immediate emergency use anywhere. One expects and believes that the United Nations will take such action, and that what has been gained in the Near East crisis will not be thrown away and lost.

It is to be noted that all this Canadian policy was recently subjected to full debate in the Canadian Parliament, where it faced charges that it needlessly deserted Britain, and ignominiously became an errand boy for the United States.

The outcome was an unprecedented vote of confidence, in which the government was supported by parties which had never voted in support of it before.

It is a powerful thing to intelligent, and right, and moral, and constructive, and sometimes it succeeds at home as well as being invaluable to the world.

A Dramatic Irony

The British Commons took two votes at the end of its debate of the Suez crisis. On the first vote, on a Labor motion to censure the Eden government, the Conservatives in Commons voted in solid ranks. On the second vote, a motion of confidence, 15 Conservative members abstained.

This abstention was interpreted as the really significant thing about the two votes, and was taken as the tell-tale warning that, although the Conservatives would remain in power, Anthony Eden could not long remain as prime minister.

The laws of politics are rough, and perhaps Eden has in fact rice for many reasons. It would still be something of an irony, however, if he should be pulled down by the particular faction represented by these 15 members who abstained so conspicuously. For they represented the "Suez rebels."

The "Suez rebels" are a group of violent, right wing conservatives who have only one criticism of Anthony Eden. That is that he didn't invade Egypt sooner, and that, having invaded Egypt, he didn't keep on fighting in defiance of the United Nations.

The policy they were recommending to Eden at the height of the crisis was that he take Britain out of membership in the United Nations.

They want to dump Eden, then, not because he went into Egypt, but because, in the end, he yielded to world opinion and to the cause of world peace, not because he made what the rest of the world considers his original mistake, but because he rectified it.

But the irony of the possibility that it should be these members who drive Eden out of power is not strange to either politics or drama. That the hero who is entangled with the fates should finally fall by the wrong sword, for the wrong reason, has often pleased the fates, or the dramatist.

Iceland Reacts

Our presence on the soil of other nations becomes an issue not or cold according to the temperature of the winds from Russia.

Thus, among the other consequences of its disaster in Hungary, Russia can count the fact that the nation of Iceland has now found its dislike of the presence of foreign troops on its soil overpowered by something else it fears even more—the spectacle of Russian tanks shooting up the city of Budapest.

Iceland, which had given us formal notice it wanted our troops out, has now changed its mind, and we keep our bases there, with the troops to man them.

The Russians certainly did not intend it this way. They never, not even in the days of Stalin's tough policies, intended all the repairs of Western unity they made for us, over and over again. And certainly, in Hungary, they themselves have at least been partially the victim of circumstances which controlled them. But, in all circumstances, the old law keeps operating—a warm wind from Moscow thawa Western unity, a cold wind freezes it hard again.

The Democrat To Watch

There are some decisions which are made by events, even before the man involved announces them. In that classification is the decision of Adlai Stevenson not to run for President again.

It can be accepted as fairly certain that, no matter what he did, or how he campaigned, Stevenson was fated to meet defeat both in 1952 and 1956. Looking then, was in itself no disgrace, either time. Conceivably, if he had lost in a certain manner, both times, he might have been eligible for still a third try.

The thing that did eliminate him from the picture, so far as future candidacy is concerned, was the fact that, in his 1956 effort, spurred, no doubt, by a bitter resolve not to leave anything undone, Stevenson made a sorry attempt to alter himself, until almost everything he did and said in the 1956 campaign became a betrayal of the standards he had seemed to honor in 1952.

It will be new blood in 1960, and the man who would seem to be potentially in the best strategic position is Senator-elect Joseph Dilworth Clark of Pennsylvania, who first upset the Republican machine in the city of Philadelphia, and then survived the 1956 Eisenhower sweep in the state. As he enters the Senate, he will be watched closely, to see what kind of shadow he casts, as the brighter, larger national stage.

Not Beaver Summer

In the tribe of the Podunks, there was one brave who was more lazy and shiftless than most, even in a civilization which believed in taking it easy. While his fellow tribesmen somehow managed to tag along with the seasons harvesting, their corn, and drying their fish, and salting down their pemmican so they could move into winter quarters before the ground began freezing and thawing, this one particular brave, whose name was Not Beaver, spent the golden suns of October sleeping and warmed himself in November, by attending the harvest feasts in which the braves of other wigwams ate up the food they didn't want lugs carry to the winter village.

When the other braves chided Not Beaver, for having such a good time while they were doing work they themselves hated so much, he was good natured and forgiving.

"Fun work," he said, "by Podunk summer. Not Beaver enjoy Podunk summer too good, work. More big warm days come December before enough Not Beaver pick corn, catch fish, shoot deer not dry not salt put in deep freeze not fresh kill meat. Why come big feast Groundhog Day?"

Some years there did come big warm days in December, and there were called not Podunk Summer, but Not Beaver Summer. Some years no big warm days in December only Podunk Summer and Not Beaver sleep like groundhog all winter and wake up then.

Connecticut Yankee

By A. H. O.

Two of the State of Connecticut's financial ills of the moment are linked to the federal government's "tight money" policy. The easiest solution for Connecticut, then, would be to wait until the federal government has been pressured out of its tight money policy.

The state financial crisis immediately in the headlines concerns the recent failure to sell $54,000,000 in Connecticut Turnpike bonds. Whatever distaste for toll roads in particular may have infected the money market, there seems little question that the market's capacity to pick and choose among issues it will buy up is based primarily upon the scarcity of money.

Along with the failure to sell Turnpike bonds the state also finds itself in another of those periods in which Governor Chester Bowles' famous decision to cut the costs of the state-sponsored housing program by using short term financing can be classified, at least temporarily, as a great mistake.

Over the past six years, the Bowles method of financing has seemed not too bad when money was cheap, and has been classified as a grotesque failure when ever money has been scarce. This is one of the scarce times, and Bowles is, in retrospect, once again a poor financial bet.

However, he was in this same financial position, last year, when the Eisenhower administration was making an earlier effort to crack down on the supply of the money picture. Then, just as Connecticut Republicans were jumping up and down on his folly, the Eisenhower administration suddenly became persuaded to relax its money policies, interest rates went down again, and Bowles escaped from the doghouse, temporarily at least.

His allies, in that instance and at that time, were all the elements in the national economy which were arguing that the Eisenhower administration's money policies were producing a threat even harder to take than that of inflation, the threat of a major business recession.

Today, the eventual solution of the problem of Connecticut's housing program financing and of the problem of selling Connecticut Turnpike bonds may rest more on what happens in the national business community brings than on any "easing" that can anything Connecticut can do for itself.

Maybe Washington, having put both Bowles with his housing financing, and John Lodge, with his Turnpike financing, in the same doh-partisan doghouse, will relent again, and restore credit to both ventures.

But we are merely being playful, of course, in suggesting that these two issues. The fact is that Bowles and Lodge, with their town, and every borough that has lost in a certain manner, both times, he might have been eligible for still a third try.

The thing that did eliminate him from the picture, so far as future candidacy is concerned, was the fact that, in his 1956 effort, spurred, no doubt, by a bitter resolve not to leave anything undone, Stevenson made a sorry attempt to alter himself, until almost everything he did and said in the 1956 campaign became a betrayal of the standards he had seemed to honor in 1952.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches.

LET ME WORSHIP GOD WITH YOU

Let me worship God with you.
When to church I come,
Let me pray for you earth-day
When all is quiet at home.
It's then my prayers are quite sincere
And shall be to the end
So let me worship God with you,
My neighbor and my friend.

Let me read the psalm by you
The psalms both joint and clear.
If this be done in Jesus' name
Our Saviour is near.
Near to the hearts of everyone,
Near to the ears of everyone,
Our Lord from heaven will enter in
And here He will abide.

Let me sing along with you
When you Your voices raise.
Let me worship God with you,
In hymns of thanks and praise.
Let us all one family be
In the service of our Lord.
To seek and find Him, day by day
And to serve Him in deed.

Deaths Last Night

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington.—Dr. Arthur Lahge, 67, a composer and conductor who worked largely in the movie industry and at one time headed the music department at several film studios, died Friday.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Major Henry C. Hill, 79, former chairman of the Pennsylvania State Parole Board and onetime warden of prisons at Joliet, Ill., and Lewisburg, Pa., died Tuesday.

Philadelphia.—Douglas Robinson Warfield, 76, member of a prominent Maryland family, first cousin of the Duchess of Windsor, and who was in the railroad equipment and supply business, died Friday.

Detroit—John T. Millen, 72, director of the Detroit zoo from 1927 until 1944, who developed the city's zoological park into one of the nation's best, known cagelessness, died Friday.

The Crackerbarrel

By Ron Devine
County Editor

The amount of space devoted to items concerning education problems in our area towns has up quite frankly on the horns of a dilemma. At times we wonder if the preponderance of such news is justified, and at other times, we feel its importance is not stressed enough.

The facts that always seem to support justification to the percentage of space allotted, however, always seem to shine brighter than any arguments that might be put forth in favor of discouraging publication of so much school news.

First of all, about 80 per cent of a town's annual budget is spent for education. People like to know how and for what their hard-earned tax money is being spent.

Second, the problem of classroom shortages and adequate school facilities is one of the most pressing questions facing small towns.

Third, with education rests the success of the future generation in an increasingly more complex and competitive world.

Introductory paragraphs dispensed with, we shall now present two more items regarding education that are in the news or behind it.

The report of the Bolton Planning Commission School sub-committee published this week serves to shed light on the school plans concerning construction of a new school in town.

At the same time, population figures for Bolton by D. Lloyd Howard, manager of the Manchester office of the Southern New England Telephone Co., might be an indication that even the most liberal estimates of population growth in that town will prove to be conservative.

In other words, what the committee recommends holding up construction of a school until the town has at least 450 high school students, that day might come considerably sooner than expected.

Many folks have wondered exactly why Bolton isn't going ahead with plans for a new high school right away, especially in view of the fact that tuition costs have risen sharply in recent years. But the report explains the reason: To offer an adequate high school program on a reasonably economical basis, at least 450 students are needed. In other words, it would be more expensive to build and operate new high school now than to continue to "buy" secondary school education.

And since Bolton, perhaps wisely, does not wish to enter into any regional school programs, its planners feel it would be most economical to wait a while before undertaking a high school building project.

A phone call from one of the members of Coventry's delegation to the General Assembly this week put the two members of that group on record as favoring a proposed bill that will increase school aid to towns by more 50 per cent.

According to our informant, the bill will hike per-pupil grants about $30 apiece and increase school construction grants by about $100 per pupil.

Current statutes provide grants ranging downward from $120 per student for every-day operating expenses and $450 per student for new high school construction and $300 for elementary school building.

The State budget presently allows for a minimum of $25 million for education grants, while the Governor's budget has resigned that to around $36 million, the Coventry contact reported.

One thing that seems to be left out of the majority of school aid bills is that it would be best to be used on the basis of need." To be fair, the amount of aid to a town would create the problem of what is a "need" and what is a "luxury" that would be classified as "needy." But it would be a step toward solving some of the problems that inequities of tax revenues among the various towns.

Sense and Nonsense

The youth who entered the dentist's office wished to have a tooth drawn. The dentist regarded the patient curiously. The young man had a vacant stare; his face was without expression; his lower jaw hung slightly agape. It appeared to be the sort of jaw which naturally would hang agape.

"One moment, please," the dentist said, and opening the sufferer in the chair he slipped out of the room and summoned his assistant.

"You saw that young fellow, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, he ought to have gas—this job is liable to be very painful. But I'm afraid to give him gas."

"Why?" inquired the helper.

"How am I going to be able to tell when he is unconscious?"

Arriving early at the theater, the girl excused herself, telling her escort she wished to mend her make-up. Soon after she left her seat, the lights went out and she groped through some dark passageways until she found a room furnished in mid-Victorian style. No one was about with the exception of a maid dusting a chair. Carefully she restored her make-up, straightened the seams in her stockings, and made her way back to her seat.

Girl (whispering to boyfriend)—How did it begin?

Boyfriend (tersely)—You should know. You were in it.

All members of the Chastek family at Cass Lake, Minn., have first names beginning with "Sh." The father is Sherman; the mother is Shirley, and the children are Sharon, Sheryl, Sherwin, and Shirwood.

—Theima McGuire, Cass Lake, Minn.

Little Mary was visiting her grandmother in the country. Walking in the garden, she chanced to see a peacock, a bird she had never seen before. After gazing in silent admiration, she ran quickly into the house and cried out, "Oh, grandmy, come and see! One of your chickens is in bloom."

There was no profanity in the original language of the Indian. Apparently there was nothing to swear about until the palefaces showed up!

Lady — You would stand more chance of getting a job if you would shave and make yourself more presentable.

Tramp — Yes, lady. I found that out years ago.

Lawyer — Tramps are so lazy. It's a wonder they do not get tired when they talk to each other.

Minister — You forget that most of their conversation is idle gossip.

Anthony Stops Rival in First Round of Fight

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — Tony Anthony is clamoring for a light heavyweight championship bout with Chuck Spieser today and Gordon Wallace is protesting the official count that ruled him a knockout victim in 1:31 of the first round at Madison Square Garden.

"He was on his feet at nine," said Wallace's co-manager, Harry Shapiro. He said his fighter was alived bout, "Randy Turpin also knocked him down in the first round he got up and knocked him out. I'd like to go to the commission to make a protest."

Any protest is not likely to get much consideration for the New York State Athletic Commission already has the report of Referee Harney Felix who said, "Wallace's knee was on the floor at the count of 10."

Crowd Roos Ending

The small crowd of about 2,000 that paid $5,000 to see the nationally televised bout booed the sudden ending because they felt short changed. After all, they had seen the British Empire light heavy crown although it weighed only 164 to Anything's 173 3-4 pounds.

Anthony, 21-year-old Golden Glove graduate who pro career has been handicapped by his China chin, shook Wallace with a left hook to the head in the early seconds of the bout and then came with both hands, backing Wallace toward a neutral corner, and then sent his off-balance opponent through ropes with another two-fisted flurry.

REBUILDING JOB

Durham, N.C. (NEA)—Harold Bradley, starting his seventh season as Duke's head basketball coach, faced a tremendous rebuilding job. Seven lettermen are missing.

Rockville High Edges Newington in Bruising Battle, 58-54

Russia Wins First Olympic Crown, Games End with Solemn Ceremony

Melbourne, Dec. 8 (AP)—Russia carted home its first unofficial team and gold medal Olympic championship today as the Games ended with solemn ceremonies on a chill, damp afternoon following another Russian victory in the soccer finals.

As the Olympic scoreboard flashed, "Farewell and Bon Voyage-1956. Good Luck, Rome 1960," American officials already were mapping plans for regaining world supremacy in Italy four years hence.

The final totals showed Russia a clear cut winner in points 722 to 593 for the United States and also in gold medals 37 to 32. The Russians also amassed more total medals, gold, silver and bronze, with 99 to the Americans' 74. No matter how it was scored, American point system or European, it was a Russian victory.

Superior in Track

Although the U.S. showed a marked superiority in track and field, bettering its 1952 Helsinki showing with 13 gold medals in men's track and field and one in Women's, Russia piled up huge chunks of points in 11 gold medals and 181 points in gymnastics and six gold medals in wrestling.

Eleven world records were set and 31 Olympic marks were broken in the sports carnival that started Nov. 22 and finally was concluded this dull day when the flame in the historic Olympic torch was extinguished. American athletes set six of the world records with its men's 400-meter relay team, in track, Mildred McDaniel of Atlanta in the women's high jump, George Breen of Buffalo in a trial heat of the 1,500-meter swimming event and weightlifters Charley Vinci of York, Pa., Isaac Berger of Brooklyn and Tommy Kono of Sacramento, Calif.

The U.S.-Russian gold medal crop was distributed by sports in this fashion: (Men's and women's events under one heading).

	U.S.	Russia
Track	16	5
Swimming	9	0
Weight Lifting	4	3
Gymnastics	0	11
Wrestling (Free Style and Greco-Roman)	0	6
Boxing	2	3
Rowing	0	2
Yachting	1	0
Basketball	0	1
Canoeing	0	2
Shooting	1	0
Pentathlon	0	1
Soccer	0	1
Total	32	37

Russia's final triumph was a 1-0 decision over Yugoslavia in one of the roughest soccer matches of the tournament. Players on both sides were guilty of unnecessary foul tactics and personal feuds flared.

Great Attendance

After this rough and ready scramble, another capacity crowd of over 100,000 settled down for the brief, but impressive closing ceremonies. The final day's attendance pushed the unofficial total over 2,000,000 and appeared to have assured a small profit for the organizing committee.

A cold wind swept across the cricket oval as the flags of the 68 nations were carried into the stadium with Greece first and Australia, the host nation, last. An Australian carried a card with the name of each nation as a band played military marches.

In contrast to the impressive opening ceremony in which the full team marched behind their flags, only about 1,500 athletes appeared at the closing. They did not march by teams but intermingled in a way the committee said would typify "friendly internationalization of sport."

Some of members of the Hungarian team didn't leave for home with the rest of the team as a result of the political unrest in their revolution-torn homeland. Others returned only to rejoin their families before moving on to some other nation.

Summing up, the Russians who made their first Olympic appearance at Helsinki in 1952 and lost to the U.S. 614-553½, showed remarkable all-around improvement. Their great scoring strength lay in the gymnastic events, wrestling, boxing and shooting. But they also had a double winner in track with Vladimir Kouts in the distance events.

Dominate Track

The United States again dominated track and field with Bobby Morrow winning three gold medals by taking the 100 and 200 meters and running on the winning 400-meter relay team. Americans won all the track events except the javelin and hop, step and jump. The basketball crown was also retaken, easily, whipping Russia twice.

Australia's swimmers abruptly ended an era of America rule taking every free style event.

As the athletes left, a tremendous crowd-pleasing event sent them from the cricket grounds for the last time. The entire crowd rose as one to sing Australia's National Anthem — "God Save the Queen."

Breaking the solemnity of the ceremony, three young boys hurdled the barrier and raced a quarter of the way around the track. They crossed the finish line with a burst of speed and mounted the victory dais. Another youth appeared and handed them coins in an amusing imitation of the Olympic victory ceremony. They then threw some of the coins to the crowd which waved and laughed.

Attendance Record Set For '56 Olympic Games

Melbourne, Dec. 8 (AP)—The 1956 Olympic Games set a record attendance of about 2,000,000 admissions and probably turned in a small profit to the Olympic Organizing Committee.

Although the final figures are subject to revision on a recheck that may take several days, the estimates seem close enough.

Attendance since the opener at the 100,000-capacity Melbourne cricket ground, have passed all previous games. The giant stands were full every day for track and field events and there always were attendances running well into five figures for such sports as field hockey, soccer and basketball, sports with low public interest in Australia.

The swimming stadium was packed for all sessions.

'Double Double' Olympic Winner

Mrs. Pat McCormick, Lakewood, Calif., housewife and mother, holds her two gold medals after she led an American sweep in the platform dive contest. She also scored an unprecedented Olympic diving "double double" by winning the springboard and platform crowns this year in addition to her victories in same events in 1952 Olympics.

Cousy Cages 34 Points As Celtics Beat Lakers

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—After having their 10-game winning streak busted Thursday, the Boston Celtics are riding high again today with Bob Cousy apparently headed for one of his best seasons of his National Basketball Assn. career.

Cousy netted 34 points in the Celtics' 121-114 victory over the Minneapolis Lakers last night to bring his total for the week to 92 points in three games and 406 for the season. He is ahead of his pace last year when he scored 1,504.

In a doubleheader at St. Louis, the only other action last night, the Fort Wayne Pistons trounced the Syracuse Nationals, 105-97, and the New York Knickerbockers won their third game in a row, defeating St. Louis, 107-101.

Boston, leading the Eastern Division, had to battle the Lakers all the way, finally cracking a tie midway in the last quarter. From there, Cousy and Jack Nichols supplied the punch to keep Boston on top. Clyde Lovellette's 24 points was high for the losers.

Montreal Club Comes to Life

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — The Defending Champion Montreal Canadiens, thanks to Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard, were closing in on first place in the National Hockey League today.

Richard scored two goals and assisted on the other last night as the Canadiens whipped the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in the circuit's only action.

The victory gave Montreal 30 points. The Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings are deadlocked for the lead with 32.

The Pocket Rocket put the Canucks in front midway in the second period when Hec LaLande came back to tie the game for the Hawks later in the session.

Boom Boom Geoffrion and Richard scored in the final period which saw several fights break out. As both teams left the ice, fights broke out in the stands and players on both teams abandoned their scraps to watch the side attractions.

COACH WITH SCORING TOUCH

Cleveland, Ohio (AP)—Jackie Gordon, playing coach of the Cleveland Barons, holds scoring records for three American Hockey League teams. In 1949-50, Gordon set 83 points to lead New Haven. The following season he led Cincinnati with 65 points. In 1952-54 he rang up 102 points to set a Cleveland scoring record.

Plays Tonight

Captain and standout defenseman with the Springfield Olympics of the American Hockey League this season is Gordon Tottle, above. He will be seen in action tonight with the Indians against Hershey at 8 o'clock at the Eastern States Coliseum.

Lead Changes Hands Several Times in Half

By DONALD BERGER

Rockville High's basketball team opened its 1956-57 season last night turning back a favored Newington quintet 58-54, in a stirring, ding-dong battle. The game was played on the losers' court in an almosphere of enthusiasm and excitement that one might expect to accompany a league championship final or a state tournament contest.

To say that Rockville's Rams were "up" for this match would be a gross understatement. The Red and White literally flew up and down the court displaying a blazing fast break, good outside shooting, and the type of hustle every coach strives to perfect.

Many Fouls Called

This same hustle could in some way account for the fact that officials Warren Brink and Frosty Francis charged the Rams with a total of 29 personal fouls. This could have meant the difference, except that the Indians could connect on only 26 while missing 18. When the contest ended, Rockville had four players fouled with five personals each.

The game was nip and tuck through the first half with Rockville opening a 10 point spread just before intermission. The lead was shown lived, however, as the Indians, led by 6-8 Bob Brandenburger, pushed home eight points in less than a minute and a half, for a 30-28 halftime score.

The fourth period had the large crowd on its feet throughout. The lead changed hands six times early in this quarter before Don Bearden's one-hander gave the Rams the advantage for good, 50-49. Rockville's lead moved to 55-49 with about two minutes left, but Newington would not quit. Reserve Fred Larson's chanty toss, sandwiched between two hoops by hustling Johnny Borzewski, cut the margin to 55-54, with about 60 second left.

Then followed the most crucial play of the game. Captain Wayne Kupterschmidt, a terror on defense throughout, gathered up a loose ball, spotted teammate Borzewski streaking for the hoop, and fired a long pass to the lanky youngster who converted to ice the decision.

Borzewski led the winners with 20 points. His teammate, Bob Brandenburger, was close behind with 20 markers, with his specialty being the front man on the fast break. Larry Kemkowske also played his usual aggressive style game, directing the attack from the backcourt.

A factor that hurt the Newington cause was the inability of Jim Marshall, 6-5 forward, to perform at maximum efficiency. The giant senior was performing from an ankle sprain.

Play Tuesday

Rockville will attempt to make it two in a row Tuesday when they journey to Windsor to face the Windsor last night. The game will be played in Farmington, as the high school's new armory court is not ready for playing.

Rockville jayvees copped the preliim in a 31-24 verdict.

Giants Need One More Victory To Clinch Eastern Grid Title

After four weeks on the road, the San Francisco 49ers return to their home stadium this afternoon to play a return game with Green Bay Packers in a bid to get the 11th week of National Football League play under way. Channel 18 will telecast the game.

It is the next to the last week of activity for all league except Baltimore and Washington, which have a game scheduled for Dec. 23 in Baltimore.

Five other games will be played tomorrow. Los Angeles, which has been away from its home base for the past three weeks will meet Baltimore in the Coliseum, the Chicago Cardinals and the Chicago Bears will continue their town rivalry with a contest in Wrigley Field, the New York Giants, with an opportunity to clinch their first conference title since 1946, will meet Cleveland in Yankee Stadium. This game will also be television locally. Washington, after two weeks away from home will entertain Philadelphia in Griffith Stadium and Detroit, showing the way in the Western Conference will play host Pittsburgh in Briggs Stadium.

Heading for Title

The New York Giants with seven wins, two defeats and one tie are heading the Eastern Conference by one and a half games over the Chicago Cardinals. A victory over Cleveland would insure the Conference championship. In their first meeting on Oct. 14 in Cleveland the Giants won 21-6. The Browns have won two of their last three games and are tied with Pittsburgh for fourth place with four wins and six reverses.

Cleveland leads in the series with eight victories to five with one tie.

Detroit with a half game edge over the Chicago Bears in the Western Conference will play Pittsburgh in the home gridiron for the first time since 1953. The Lions have won eight of their 10 games this year in Pittsburgh. The Detroit won from the Steeler 31-28 in a game in which Pittsburgh scored three touchdowns in the fourth period.

Of the 14 games played Detroit holds the edge 10 to four.

The series between the Bears and the Cardinals is the oldest in the league. It started in 1920 and has continued ever since, the exception, in 1944, ever since. Over the years the Bears have won 41 to 19 for the Cardinals with six ties.

The game is a highly important one for both teams. The Bears have won seven, lost two and tied one and need a victory to remain in contention. The Cardinals have won six and lost four and are within striking distance of the Giants. In their meeting last year the Cardinals scored a stunning 33-14 upset.

Play Arch Rival

Washington, two games out of first place with a five and four record, will meet an arch rival in the Philadelphia Eagles who have won three, lost six and tied one. Their series of 16 games is the most in the league and stands at 18 for Washington to 17 for Philadelphia and two ties.

The Redskins after five successive victories lost to New York last week. The Eagles lost a close one to Cleveland 17-14 in their last game.

Green Bay and San Francisco will be battling for possession of fourth place. The Packers have won four and lost six and the 49ers have won three, lost six and tied one. This will be the closest

WANTED TO BUY

Rockville, Dec. 8 (Special)—In a crowded calendar session of Tolland County Superior Court yesterday, Judge Howard W. Alcorn granted four divorces and reserved decision on a motion to set aside a verdict.

Divorces were granted on grounds of cruelty to Edna M. Moore, Coventry, from Paul Moore, Graham, N. C.; to Alice A. Milanese, West Falmouth, Mass., from Alberta Cordner Milanese, Rockville.

Divorce was granted to Mrs. Margaret B. Dalker, Stafford Springs, from Herbert C. Dalker, Utica, N. Y., on grounds of desertion.

Kathryn Damon Riddle, Rockville, was granted a divorce from John W. Riddle, on grounds of intolerable cruelty. She was awarded custody of two minor children and $75 per month support for each during litigation, and $150 in counsel fees. The defendant is to have reasonable rights of visitation, and is to have the children during vacations.

In an action brought by Gloria A. Sultaskis, Stafford, against Walter R. Sultaskis, Windsor Locks, the plaintiff was granted custody of a minor child, $12.50 support and $12.50 alimony during litigation.

Judge Alcorn reserved decision in a motion to set aside the verdict in a case brought by Francis T. Crimmins against Thomas J. Moore, Jr., both of Stafford.

Attorney Bernard Ryan represented the plaintiff in the action brought by Mrs. Sultaskis and Attorney Edward J. Mansfield represented the defendant.

A statutory continuance of three months was granted in a divorce action brought by W. David Andrews, Andover, against Pearl Ayer Bonney, et al., of Coventry. Two companies, who, police said, were with him when an alleged assault and battery was committed, were referred to juvenile authorities, also charged with breach of peace. The other youths were Roger Liebman, 17, also of Coventry, and Donald Ryan, 16, of 150 Woodside St.

Offers were fined $12 for failure to grant the right of way and $6 for driving without a required third glasses. The rules of the road charges arose out of a separate incident involving a Mansfield man.

the fuse cord in 20 years without one instance of its exploding in transit.

The fuse is used to set off explosive charges in quarrying, mining and general blasting operations.

The company says the shipments complied with regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the U.S. Coast Guard.

The Kreigh Rickford concern, which had said it would fight the fire department ban on further shipment of its product via city piers, said last night such legal action was not planned "at this time."

A company statement yesterday said: "The action of the Fire Department has serious implications. There are many products made by other manufacturers, including explosives and chemicals, which will explode if detonated by another explosion."

Experts still are studying the area surrounding the wrecked pier at the Luckenbach Steamship Line.

Edward S. Silver, Brooklyn district attorney, said yesterday his house committee has spoken "with a fair degree of certainty" that the explosion had been caused by the primacord.

Court Cases

Douglas W. Hickox, 21, of 400 Center St., was charged with indecent assault on a minor, was bound over to the next term of Hartford County Superior Court on criminal session, under $1,000 bond to date.

Hickox waived examination of probable cause in Town Court. He was arrested Nov. 26 during investigation of a complaint filed by a Manchester man.

Three youths involved in an incident at a Spruce St. service station Nov. 21 had their cases disposed of in Town Court. One, on entry, was fined $25 for breach of peace. Two companions, who police said, were with him when an air hose was taken and later returned, were referred to juvenile authorities, also charged with breach of peace. The other youths were Roger Liebman, 17, also of Coventry, and Donald Ryan, 16, of 150 Woodside St.

Offers were fined $12 for failure to grant the right of way and $6 for driving without a required third glasses. The rules of the road charges arose out of a separate incident involving a Mansfield man.

Passenger Thrown from Car in Crash

Two passengers seek to comfort Mrs. Regina Evinski, 30 High St., after placing blanket over woman who was thrown from car in which she was passenger about 12:30 this morning. The accident happened at Pine St. and Walnut St., when the car in which Mrs. Evinski was riding was struck by another vehicle. (Burkamp Photo).

during demonstrations Wednesday and Thursday. One man said: "We were brutally beaten by the police and so were prisoners taken to the jail."

A resolution of Kadar's Socialist Workers (Communist) party printed in the government newspaper Nepszabadsag today increased fear that the government had adopted a policy of police state repression, despite its pledges to the contrary. The resolution, again blamed the United States and other western nations for provoking the rebellion.

There were more strikes and street fights yesterday. The strikes disrupted work in several factories.

A street fight broke out at the same place in Budapest where a clash Thursday took three lives by official count, and 17 according to uncomfirmed reports. No deaths were reported in the second incident, provoked by the shout of a Hungarian crowd over the arrest of a young man by Russian troops.

Hungarian police charged the crowd, swinging clubs and firing shots in the air. Police carried several truckloads of men and women from the scene.

Vienna, meanwhile, called its ambassador home from Budapest amidst signs that relations with the current Hungarian regime are growing more chilly.

President Tito's government in Irate because former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy was arrested and apparently deported after leaving the sanctuary of the Yugoslav embassy in Budapest.

Radio Belgrade reported last night that Ambassador Dalfrok Soldatic, Yugoslavia's representative in Budapest, has paid a farewell visit to Premier Kadar — the first announcement that Soldatic was about to leave his post. Some observers thought his recall was a move to show full disapproval of the Hungarian action. Belgrade has rejected Yugoslavia's protests to the arrest of Nagy and his followers broke a Yugoslav-Hungarian agreement guaranteeing their safety.

Vice President Edward Kardelj interrupted a session of parliament in the Hungarian rebellion was aimed at preserving the balance of power in Europe rather than saving communism in Hungary.

Kardelj, One man said: "We were slaves before the war. Now we are free. We want, cooperate with the workers and other Communists in the Nagy group. But, he said, violation of the Yugoslav-Hungarian agreement of Nagy and his "deportation" to Romania "are hitting into serious doubt" whether Kadar will use his opportunities to the best end.

Providence Paper Absolved of Libel

Newport, R. I., Dec. 8 (AP)—A superior court jury deliberated 2½ hours yesterday before returning verdicts for the defendants in three libel suits filed against one of its reporters, John Birchmeyer, in a 1950 libel suit.

City Councilman Henry J. De Costa and Strohmeyer for $50,000 and the newspaper for $100,000, charged Birchmeyer had libeled them in a May 1, 1955 story in the Sunday Journal.

The suit revolved around the story Birchmeyer wrote. De Costa enjoyed a back yard terrace of city property, which, he said, belonged to his city truck."

In his charge to the jury, Judge Antonio Pontes Jr. said the jury should be for the defendants if they found statements in the story were substantially true and if the jury's conclusions from them were reasonable.

Hartford Cabbie Collapses

Hartford, Dec. 8 (AP)—Louis Goulet, 60, a Hartford taxicab driver, collapsed yesterday afternoon as his cab was moving along New Park Ave. An unknown pedestrian jumped into the cab and brought it to a halt. Goulet was taken to St. Francis Hospital where he was declared dead on arrival. The man who stopped the cab disappeared.

Two Women Hurt in 4-Car Auto Accident

Two women suffered moderate injuries about 12:30 a.m. today when the car in which they were driving was struck by another vehicle at Pine and Walnut sts. and forced into two parked cars. Police made two arrests.

According to police, Mrs. Regina Evinski, 30 High St., a passenger in a car operated by Miss Doris Todd, 26, Bolton, was thrown from the car in which she was riding and suffered multiple rib and chest injuries.

Mrs. Evinski was admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital where her condition this morning was described as good. Miss Todd, who suffered contusions behind the right ear and was also admitted to the local hospital, was in fair condition, hospital officials said.

Patrolman John Hughes, who investigated the accident, said Miss Todd was going south on Pine St., when she saw the lights of a west bound car, operated by Orris L. Cousins, 45, of 42 Cooper St.

Cousins attempted to police he was trying to make a turn onto Pine St., when she saw the lights of a west bound car, operated by Orris L. Cousins, 45, of 42 Cooper St.

Cousins admitted to police that he had consumed "five or six beers." He was arrested on a charge of operating under the influence of liquor.

Police arrested Cousins on charges of reckless driving and operating an unregistered motor vehicle. Guy L. Darling, 54, of New Britain, owner of one of the two parked cars on Pine St., struck by Miss Todd's vehicle, was charged by police with parking his car improperly on a corner.

Cousins and Darling are scheduled to have their cases heard Saturday. Damage to the Todd vehicle was estimated by police at $400.

Town Absolved In Quarry Death

West Hartford, Dec. 8 (AP)—There was no criminal negligence on the part of Anthony Ciotta, 22 when a 13-year-old boy fell 50 feet to a ledge in a town-owned quarry, also a Coroner Louis Schaffer.

Robert F. McCormick died instantly in the fall from a quarry ledge while on a bicycle hike with friends and fellow Boy Scouts.

Schaefer's finding will be presented to the Town Council Tuesday night, says Town Manager Donald H. Blatt.

Meanwhile officials are carrying on their attempts to have the quarry filled in with "clean fill."

In 1953 a court injunction restrained the town under penalty of $5,000, from filling the quarry with rubbish, litter, ashes, refuse, junk, or waste materials of any sort.

Last night Corporation Counsel Thomas Hennessey said that in his opinion the town has the right to fill in the quarry with clean fill to remove its hazard.

Spanso said clean fill stored in the quarry could not be classified as rubbish or refuse, which he said, is implied in the injunction.

Motorist Cleared In Fatal Accident

New Haven, Dec. 8 (AP)—Arthur F. Demenick of North Branford has been absolved of criminal responsibility in connection with the auto death of Charles Linsley, 74, of North Branford.

In a finding released yesterday, Judge James J. Corrigan said adverse weather conditions including heavy rain and the dark, cloudy day contributed to the fatal accident involving Demenick's car and Linsley who was walking on the highway.

The accident occurred last Sept. 8 and Linsley died at Grace-New Haven Community Hospital on Oct. 23.

Two Cornell Medical College scientists discovered by amplified listening that mosquitoes from different locals have different calls. Their bites are all the same.

NATO Meeting Seen Repairing Western Split

when — or even whether — they will meet as a Big Three.

Dulles, freshly out of the hospital after an operation for cancer, will report to the council on immediate consultations with U.S. officials here. A meeting of the Big Three appeared a possibility later in the week.

Possible important developments during the coming session include:

1. Agreement on a better method of consultation before any member makes a move which might affect the others. This grows out of the Suez affair.

2. Agreement on extending the area of interest to include the Middle East. This grows out of Britain's effort to get behind NATO's defenses by entry into Iraqi.

3. Radar Warning Net

3. Agreement on extension of a large scale radar warning net similar to that across North Germany, to other western sectors and segments in West Germany.

4. Election of a new Secretary General to succeed Lord Ismay who has asked, the time instantly, to be relieved by next April. Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium is regarded as his likely successor.

5. Action on the report of the 3-man committee appointed last year to suggest ways of improving political consultation among members.

Foreign members to discuss projected action, such as the Suez operation, to avoid trouble in advance.

"If we had told the United States what our proposed action in Suez," French Premier Guy Mollet said recently, "the United States would have resisted it."

Nevertheless, this meeting is expected to bring about a new spirit of faith in talking before jumping.

But even more important is what to do about the Middle East. NATO can't simply incorporate the Middle East in its sphere of protection. Could it require the consent of the parliaments of each of the 15 countries, and the approval of the Middle East countries to be "protected?"

What seems more likely is that NATO may work out some mutual defense accord with the Baghdad Pact nations—Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Britain. That could be done without difficult parliamentary action.

Middle East Hat

All NATO members now agree that trouble in the Middle East spells trouble for the whole Atlantic front because of oil supplies, and because of the danger in Russian penetration.

The report of NATO's "three wise men," Lester Pearson of Canada, Halvard Lange of Norway, and Gaetano Martino of Italy will represent another major project.

They have evidently advanced a plan under which discussion of political matters by the member Britain and Greece over Cyprus and the mandated Sudan so far Spain has objected to NATO's discussing Cyprus on the ground that it is strictly a British question.

Such problems, under the trio's plan, would not be classified as rubbish or refuse, which he said, is implied in the injunction.

Frank A. Johnson Now Octogenarian

Frank A. Johnson, 41 Strickland St., reached his 80th milestone yesterday and the day was made very happy for him by relatives and friends from this town and New Britain who called at the Johnson home to offer their congratulations and to remember him with gifts and flowers. Among the gifts was a gram from his only brother in Sweden was another pleasant surprise.

Mr. Johnson is enjoying excellent health. Formerly with Cheney Brothers for a long period, he retired some years ago. He has long been an active member of the Covenant-Congregational Church, 79 Spruce St.

Ike Will Hold Secret Talk on Fund for AEC

Wilson said the new Pentagon budget was not settled during his talks with the President. The three services—Air Force, Navy and Army—reportedly has asked Wilson for about $44 billion.

Wilson himself figures several services need higher costs for equipment and weapons would jack the defense expenditure $1 billion to $3 billion over the current $38 billion. But yesterday he declined to speculate regarding the increase he expects.

He did say he looks for no "substantial change" in the overall budget strength of the armed services, now 2,800,000 men.

Spending for such items as nuclear weapons developments and stockpiling of critical materials never has been included in Pentagon budget estimates. And the Atomic Commission never has disclosed expenditure for atomic weapons development and production.

However, some guesses on outlay in that field range up to $2 billion.

What Juvenile Delinquency?

All kinds of strange tales are unfolded at police headquarters but one of the strangest stories in the passing parade unfolded Wednesday when a 9-year-old boy walked in to give himself up.

Sgt. George Dent was on duty at the station when the youngster opened the front door and nervously approached him.

When the sergeant asked the boy what he wanted, the youngster said he was throwing stones at a tree in his backyard on Lenox St. when one bounced off a limb and broke a window of the house next door.

Asked if he had contacted the people whose window he had broken, the youngster said he tried to but there was no one home.

"Did you tell your mother?" the sergeant asked him.

"No!" the boy said loudly.

"Well now," the sergeant said, "you're a pretty good boy for coming in here, so we'll take care of everything. You go home and don't worry."

The youngster's mother was notified and the sergeant explained the situation. She told Sgt. Dent, "I'll take care of paying for the window. Thank you."

"When commanding on the youngster's activities the next day, Police Chief Herman Schofield said "In all the years I've been a policeman, this is the first time anything like this has happened."

Was She Burned!

A woman was more than little chagrined the other day after a rather unfortunate experience with a local fuel oil dealer.

It seems that she heard a bothersome rattling sound which apparently emanated from her fuel burner in the basement. She called her oil service man and he came over to take a looksee. After a hasty check he told the repairman took the unit apart and made what he considered $60 worth of repairs.

But the next day the woman heard the sound again and she decided to investigate herself. After making a complete study of the situation she happened to notice a bird on the roof pecking away with his beak on the TV antenna.

Apparently the sound was conveyed by a pipe near the antenna down through the house to the basement and the fuel burner.

Must Take Firm Stance

Although the public hearing preceding the Board of Directors' adoption of the Parking Authority ordinance was for the most part heated, it had its lighter moments.

Among those who got a few good yuks from the audience was Michael McDonnell, the former Manchester auto policeman. McDonnell, who isn't called "Spider" for nothing, began his remarks with, "I shop in Manchester. . . ." Then paused, and added, "When they can fit me." McDonnell appears to weigh about as much as a large whiff of smoke.

Builder and Developer Alexander Jarvis helped set up some choice bits by two of the Directors. He was stating that an authority would provide legs to stand on. "But how long will they be?" he asked, looking about.

Mayor Harold A. Turkington had an answer ready: "It depends on how tall you are." And Director Pascal Pod, who is Dean of Hillyer College, couldn't let slip the opportunity to quote Lincoln.

"Legs," Pod said, "ought to be long enough to reach the ground."

Powers of Observation

Two teenage high school girls went shopping one night this past week and this was their conversation which we overheard:

Said No. 1 to No. 2, "I just don't know what to get my father for Christmas."

Neither do I" said No. 2.

Then No. 1 said, "Does your father shave? If he does we can get him some shaving cream."

No. 2 answered, "I guess he does." And so it goes.

True Confessions

Second graders at a certain elementary school in one of our neighboring towns enjoy passing on highlights of their personal activities and opinions on the form of brief notes to the teacher, which are periodically gathered in a sort of "newspaper," which is sent home for the enjoyment of the parents.

Regarding current events, one boy wrote, "I had a good thanksgiving. We went up to my Uncle Pop's house. We had a good time. We had a hurricane and game. We went to the movies. I like Christmas better than Thanksgiving."

Another lad, with an eager-beaver outlook, wrote, "I want more work because I don't have enough work."

A girl, with a more practical turn of mind, advertised: "I have lost my mittens. Will you please look for them?" Another girl wrote, "My mother has a new car. It is red and yellow."

Still another frankly admitted, "We are going to get a new baby. I will love her."

Parmesan or Cheddar

One of our informants called recently with a piece of news which may be construed as a warning to roisterers continuously plagued by the foreign articles their little ones see fit to ingest.

The latest item on the market, in this vein, is a perforated cheeser can which bears a striking resemblance to grated cheese containers. The cleanser, which was mailed out to various local householders as a free sample, comes in a can which is about two inches in diameter by three and one-half inches in height. Even its outside cover is almost an exact replica of the cheese cans.

So, March, her mothers, beware lest you be hustling your youngsters off to have their little stomachs pumped in the emergency room of some local or area hospital.

Homelife Vignettes

The family listened as Dad was called from dinner to the telephone in the kitchen. As we all do at times, he "put his foot in it" during the conversation.

When he came back, Mom teased "Oh your fans pax!"

Immediately coming to Dad's defense, the youngster son demanded, "What did you call him?"

Then there was the young mother who burrowed her sniffly nose into her pillow and thanked her lucky stars for an understanding and helpful husband who got up in the middle of the night to fix a bottle for their daughter.

She was thankful, that is, until next morning when she looked twice at the unfinished bottle in baby's crib.

She wasn't delirious, she finally decided. But the milk was definitely pink!

Pop, logical as ever, dispelled her mounting confusion.

"I just mashed a children's aspirin and dissolved it in the warm milk." You guessed it: The aspirin was a lovely salmon-pink color, designed for eye appeal.

Still another Mom and Pop looked fondly at their little daughter the other day, and Mom said wistfully, "If I'd known she was going to have red hair, I'd have named her Cleopatra."

"Hmpf," snorted the younger son. "That's a boy's name."

"No, it isn't honey," said Mom, who should have known better than to argue, "Cleopatra was a red-headed Egyptian queen."

"Huh," younger son retorted. "You're just making that up." There was no mistaking the certainty in his voice.

"You can't fool me," he accused. "Cleopatra's a dog. We see him each week on television."

Mom looked at Pop, who quipped, "Poor Mark Anthony. He led a dog's life."

Did on Cash Em?

A bit of forensic exercised by the wife of a local candy store owner this week may have saved her from adding some unwanted rubber to her inventory.

Two youths, both of them unknown to her, entered the store and asked her to cash a check. "Why should I?" she asked. "The banks are open."

Muttering something about the inconvenience involved in going to a bank, the boys sauntered out, presumably headed for a bank.

A few minutes later, however, the boys were seen driving off in a car with Maine license plates.

Bailey Urges Yuletide Use Of Substation

Postmaster Aldon E. Bailey urged residents to use the Broad St. parcel post station during the Christmas rush.

Pointing out the spacious parking facilities and the availability of one-stop service for stamps and money orders, Bailey said more use of the Broad St. station might help take some of the load off the main Post Office.

Mail Surpasses '55 Rate

Mail received at the Center Station at Depot Sq. and the parcel post station is creeping ahead of the amount handled last year at this time, Bailey said.

In addition to its regular trucks, The Post Office has one Army truck delivering parcel post. Starting Monday, three more trucks will be added, and 100 men hired as letter carriers and sorters.

Parcel post not delivered because of the absence from home of the recipient may be picked up at the Broad St. station, Bailey said, by simply presenting the notification left by the mailman.

"Most people realize that the early arrival of a Christmas card or gift is always welcome," the Postmaster said. "But there are still many who have the mistaken idea that a gift or card arriving Christmas Eve has special significance. Actually, it is the thought behind the card or gift that is important."

Bailey urged residents to bring parcels and Christmas cards to the postal windows before 10 a.m., or between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m., to avoid the peak rushes.

Bailey reminded parcel post senders to be sure the gift is securely wrapped and tied with heavy paper in sturdy corrugated cartons and tied with strong cord. The recipient's name, street address, zone number, city and state should be legibly printed. Christmas cards should be addressed in the same manner, Bailey said.

Christmas Theme Set for Meeting

"Keeping Christmas in the Home" will be the theme of Monday evening's program for the Women's Club of Manchester, to be presented at 8 p.m. in the Second Congregational Church.

Mrs. Kathleen Johnston, director of religious education at Center Congregational Church, will be the main speaker. Traditional Christmas music will be provided by the Women's Club Choral Group under the direction of Mrs. Leon Wheeler.

Each member is requested to bring a gift—anything but sharp instruments or matches—indicating whether for a man or woman. Wrapped gifts should have a note attached, stating the contents.

Refreshments will be served by a committee headed by Mrs. Louis Champeau and Mrs. Roger Macomber.

62 on Airliner Lost in Canada

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 10 (AP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines plane carrying 62 persons vanished during a violent windstorm over mountainous south central British Columbia last night and was believed to have crashed.

Potentially the worst commercial aviation disaster in Canadian history.

An early, slim clue to the plane's possible fate "the sighting of a light on Sumas Mountain near Abbotsford, 43 miles east of Vancouver, fizzled out. It was only a light on a microwave relay tower.

Although Trans-Canada still listed the 4-engined North Star as only "overdue" the airline's public relations director here, Al Carlson, said there was "a tremendous hope" the plane was still in the air.

According to the Royal Canadian Air Force, which sent "every available plane" into a massive search for the missing aircraft at 2am. the North Star would have exhausted its fuel supply at 1 a.m. (P.S.T.).

In addition to the aerial search, a ground party started out from Chilliwack, 60 miles east of Vancouver.

Four RCAF planes criss-crossed the North Star's route during the night, without sighting a trace of the missing plane.

The airline listed the plane as "overdue" at 11:15 p.m.

It carried 59 passengers and a crew of three.

The worst commercial air disaster in Canada occurred on April 8, 1954, when an RCAF training plane crashed into a TCA airliner in flight over Moose Jaw, Sask., killing 37 persons.

Among the passengers which boarded TCA's Flight 810 at Vancouver list night were four members of the Saskatchewan team of the Western Interprovincial Football Union who were here for Saturday's East-West Shrine game.

The missing aircraft, a Canadian version of the DC6, left Vancouver at 9 p.m. (PST) last night on a flight to eastern Canada but turned back at Hope, 125 miles east of here, when one engine failed.

At approximately 7 p.m. the pilot, Capt. Allan Clarke, 35, of Montreal, reported to the air traffic control center here for permission to descend from 8,000 feet to a lower altitude.

Could Lead to War, Dog Lovers Claim

London, Dec. 10 (AP)—A delegation of indignant British dog lovers, led by a snarling bulldog named Joy, protested to the Soviet embassy today about Russian scientists using mongrels to probe the mysteries of space.

"An act of gross cruelty," declared delegation leader R. Harvey Johns, secretary of the National Canine Defense League. "Things like that lead to war," a petition stated.

A startled embassy official promised to take the matter up with Ambassador Jacob Malik.

The dog fanciers were outraged by a report that Soviet scientists had shot two space-suited mongrels 68 miles into space and brought them back by parachute.

Budget Blocks U.S. Taxes Cut, Treasury Says

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—A Treasury spokesman told Congress today the government's budget for the coming year as of now has "no room" for a tax cut.

Dan Smith Smith told a House Ways and Means subcommittee that the final budget figures are still being assembled. But he said they make no provision, as they now stand, for any tax reduction that would produce a net loss of revenue.

"So far as I know now, I see no basis for a proposal to reduce any taxes at this time," Smith said.

Asked by Rep. Eberharter (D-Pa) if that meant the Treasury opposes reductions in any tax, excise or income, Smith replied:

"Involving a net loss of revenue, yes."

The budget which Smith discussed is the one President Eisenhower will present to Congress next month. It is for the fiscal year which begins July 1, 1957.

Smith, special adviser on tax policy to Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, appeared before a subcommittee investigating the federal excise tax laws for possible overhaul at the next session of Congress.

The subcommittee, conducting public hearings on individual excise taxes, announced yesterday its present the Treasury's position on proposals for revision or abolishing of some taxes.

It was reminded by Eberharter that Eisenhower in a message to Congress in May 1953 stated that the excise tax system was basically economically unsound.

Smiling, Smith agreed it may "not be economically sound, but it is the best we can do."

Court Backs Union With False Chiefs

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Supreme Court today unanimously ruled that unions may not be deprived of the protection of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act because one of their officers files a false non-Communist affidavit.

Justice Douglas delivered the opinion which held that the only penalty provided is a fine and prison sentence for the union officer.

Speaking for the entire court Douglas said:

"We cannot find an additional sanction which in practical effect

Ike Bids Free World Note Soviet Tyranny

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 10 (AP)—President Eisenhower called on free people everywhere today—human rights day — to take fresh note of Russian ruthlessness and never forget "what tyranny has done to our fellow man in Hungary."

Soviet brutality there is cause for "worldwide mourning," for action and "deep and revolving" Declaration.

Noting this is the eighth anniversary of the declaration's adoption by the U.N. General Assembly, Eisenhower said in a statement put out at his vacation headquarters at Augusta last night:

"This year the free world has the most compelling reasons for observing human rights day with renewed awareness and resolution. For it has little cause to 'celebrate' that day.

"The recent outbreak of brutality in Hungary has moved free peoples everywhere to renewed horror and revulsion. Our hearts go out to the courageous, liberty-loving people of Hungary.

The President's strongly worded statement is a follow up to his proclamation issued last week which designated this week as Human Rights Day in a "season of tragedy."

"The terror imposed upon Hungary," Eisenhower said in his statement, "contradicates and negates almost every article in the Declaration of Human Rights.

The President said of the Russian terrorism:

"It denies that men are born free and equal in dignity and rights, and that all should act in the spirit of brotherhood.

"It denies the right to life, liberty, and security of person.

"It denies the principle that no one shall be subjected to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment.

"It denies that no person shall be arbitrarily arrested, detained or exiled.

"It denies that all are equal before the law and entitled to its equal protection.

"It denies the right to fair and public hearings by an independent and impartial tribunal.

"It denies the right to freedom

Eight Negroes Back in Clinton High Classes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negro pupils at the integrated Clinton, Tenn., high school returned to classes today, a few hours before U.S. attorneys from Dixie and border states met in Washington to discuss what action they should take regarding state laws requiring racial segregation on buses.

The Clinton school was closed Friday night after a white mobbed had his nose bloodied by a group of pro-segregationists who rushed into the building. Police and school officials said there was no trouble when classes resumed today.

The meeting in Washington was called by Atty. Gen. Brownell after the U.S. Supreme court last month that Alabama state and city of Montgomery laws requiring racial segregation on buses are in violation of the 14th Amendment.

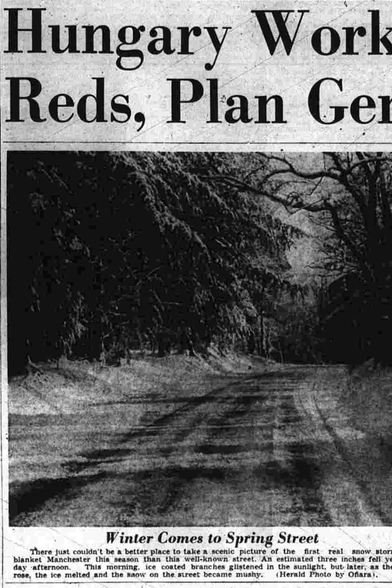
Hungary Workers to Defy Reds, Plan General Strike



Winter Comes to Spring Street

There just couldn't be a better place to take a scenic picture of the first real snow storm to blanket Manchester this season than this well-known street. An estimated three inches fell yesterday afternoon. This morning, ice coated branches glistened in the sunlight, but later, as the sun rose, the ice melted and the snow on the street became mushy. Kadar Regime Sets Strict Martial Law

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 10 (AP)—Workers in several big Budapest factories declared tonight they would defy the Soviet-sponsored government and undertake a nationwide general strike tomorrow.

Budapest was tense tonight under the guns of Russian tanks and Hungarian police. A 48-hour general strike was proclaimed yesterday by the Budpest Central Workers' Council to start at midnight tonight. The government countered by outlawing the council and imposing martial law.

Due to the strong armed pressure by the government, it appeared that not all factories would completely obey the strike call. The strong government stand, relying on overwhelming armed force, threatened new bloodshed.

Midnight tonight, Monday night (6 p.m. EST) is the zero hour.

A communications blackout preventing western correspondents from transmitting their dispatches about weekend events in Budapest lasted from Sunday morning until just after noon today. Then it was lifted without explanation.

There were several other major news developments here. These included:

1. Strong rumors that Soviet Deputy Premier Georgi Malenkov visited Budapest again last Friday and Saturday and that he would return to Budapest tomorrow. If Malenkov did come back tomorrow, observers said it presumably would be to help the Kadar government deal with the strike. Malenkov's first reported visit here some 10 days ago coincided with a stiffening attitude of the Kadar government against the workers.

2. Stronger Russian and Hungarian armed patrols were out in force in Budapest today. One of their jobs was widespread search and seizure to deprive Hungarian civilians of their last firearms. A proclamation of martial law forbids civilians caught possessing arms after midnight tonight liable to be shot.

Report 30 Killed

3. A delegation of miners from the town of Salgotarjan, in northern Hungary, arrived in Budapest and told western reporters 30 unarmed Hungarian civilian demonstrators were killed there Saturday by Hungarian armed police. The demonstration was one of several which reportedly occurred in the Hungarian provinces Saturday and resulted in the killing of scores of Hungarians and the wounding and arrest of many others.

The proclamation said the strike was intended to protest the "anti-people and anti-workers activities of the government of Premier Janos Kadar."

The Russian-supported Kadar government reacted swiftly.

It sent dozens of plainclothes police and armed workers into factories in the former Stalin Square where the workers council meets.

Word of the police action was spread quickly by workers who drove around to the headquarters early this morning to pick up copies of the strike proclamation. When two police squad cars left the square shortly before 8 a.m. they were loaded with police.

The government also banned international telephone calls from Budapest, which prevented western correspondents from getting out their dispatches about the strike call.

Local phone service in Budapest and the countryside also was cut off our hours to prevent the workers leaders from announcing the strike call to their members.

Hungarian police turned westbound newspapermen away from the workers headquarters. But reporters were admitted to a Budapest

U.S. in Ranks Of UN Nations Assailing Reds

United Nations, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP) — U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. today joined delegates from all parts of the free world in demanding an immediate U.N. condemnation of the Soviet Union for its actions in Hungary.

Lodge addressed the 79-nation General Assembly as that body began debating a proposal to censure the Russians and demand once more that they comply with previous U.N. resolutions.

It is a measure for the assembly to act, he said, "so that the world may know of our condemnation."

Lodge compared the Soviet intervention in Hungary to the actions of Adolf Hitler in suppressing Czechoslovakia and Austria in the World War II.

Delegate Frederick H. Boland called the Hungarian U.N. delegation "impostors" and delegates "from the puppet regime of Hungary."

"We may not be able to expel the spurious representatives of Hungary," Boland said, "but we do not have to listen to them."

Delegate Leonardo Vitetti said "the Soviet government has violated more and more the moral standards of the civilized world."

Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shatilov, the Soviet Union in the early stage of the debate were representatives of Belgium, Peru, Australia and Thailand.

British Patrol Under Attack In Port Said

Port Said, Egypt, Dec. 10 (AP)—Egyptian guerrillas attacked a British patrol from a rooftop in Port Said's Arab quarter today with a burst of machine gun fire and a hail of hand grenades.

One soldier of the 8-man Royal Scots Regiment patrol was wounded slightly. The British patrol counter-fired and sent off an urgent protest to headquarters of the U.N. Emergency Police Force, accusing Egypt of violating the cease-fire.

The police called reinforcements and cordoned off the area. Egyptian sources were headquarter.

First Since Truce

The ambush was the first such attack in Port Said by the Egyptian underground since the cease-fire became effective Nov. 8. Previously there have been scattered shots fired occasionally.

The aim apparently was to harass the diminishing British-French force as it rushed its withdrawal ordered by the U.N. General Assembly. "The bulk of British and French troops are expected to be gone from Egypt within three days.

The Egyptian underground has been growing more openly hostile the day of the final British-French pullout nears. The occupation commanders have put their men on the alert for a final Egyptian show of defiance.

Dulles, Lloyd Map Suez Canal Policy

Paris, Dec. 10 (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd ended their meeting today about the rift over Suez and were reported to have made "real progress" in reaching an agreed policy on the Middle East waterway.

An American spokesman said the two diplomats discussed methods of clearing the canal and ways to implement a British proposal as well as a program for its future control and operation.

"Real progress was made toward aligning their views," said the spokesman.

Dulles met with Lloyd for more than an hour, then conferred with Foreign Minister Christian Pineau of France.

The spokesman described the Dulles-Lloyd meeting as a "cordial, constructive meeting."

The Dulles-Lloyd meeting at the American embassy residence was the curtain raiser in a week of intensive western diplomatic activity here.

Foreign, finance and defense ministers of the NATO council will meet tomorrow to review the position of the Atlantic alliance and set new goals of preparedness.

The 7-nation Western European Union (WEU), the regulating alliance that governs the level of West German armament, met this morning.

The talk by Dulles and Lloyd emphasized the feeling of all sides that NATO members must hence forth work in greater harmony. The United States opposed the British-French policy in the Middle East which led to the attack on the Suez Canal zone.

Dulles, Lloyd and Pineau again would get together in the Thursday session, resuming the practice of NATO sessions before Suez, was set in motion.

Dulles also talked today with U.S. Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey and Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, who would have a big finger in any American or financial aid programs designed to ease the economic strains resulting from the closing of the Suez Canal.

Asked whether Dulles had promised Britain up to $1 billion in aid, a current Paris rumor, Lloyd replied, "If he did, you wouldn't expect me to tell you would you?"

U.S. Sets Safety Limits Of Radiation Exposure

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—Recommendations for what would be the first radiation exposure limits ever set up for the population as a whole have been drafted by a quasi-official watchdog committee.

The same group, the National Committee on Radiation Protection, recently recommended limits for what would amount to new and sharply reduced limits on radiation exposure for the nation's half million workers in atomic and similar plants.

This was reported today by Dr. Lauriston S. Taylor, chairman of the committee and a National Bureau of Standards scientist, in a report prepared for delivery later this week to a meeting of the American Nuclear Society. He amplified in an interview.

Taylor said the intent of both actions is to assure that exposure to radiation from all sources—including atomic bomb fallout, products of atomic energy plants, and medical and dental uses of x-rays—does not go beyond a point of "acceptable risk" from the genetic or hereditary standpoint.

The committee he heads is sponsored by the Bureau of Standards. It is made up of representatives of the Atomic Energy (AEC), the Public Health Service, American Medical Assn. and other professional and industry groups. It has no regulatory power but its recommendations in the past have been widely followed.

The unit by which radiation is measured is the roentgen. Taylor said the new recommendations are:

1. For the population as a whole a limitation of 10 million roentgens-made radiation—delivered to the reproductive organs for every one million persons in the population from conception up to age 30.

That would mean an average limit of 10 per person. But Taylor stressed that individuals who might receive an amount in excess of that would not necessarily be exposed to any "significant" genetic hazard. Moreover, he said

Inside Communist China

Canadian Gives Uncensored Story Of Life and Industry in Manchuria

EDITOR'S NOTE—A Canadian reporter, David Lancashire, has spent six weeks touring Red China—an area which foreigners seldom cannot travel because of State Department rulings. Lancashire freely censored story, first of a series to appear this week, Lancashire tells of the industrial development of Manchuria and how life is lived there.

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

Mukden (Shenyang), China (AP)—Mukden was developed and also wrecked by the Japanese. It was captured by the Russians when they occupied Manchuria after World War II. Today, back in Chinese hands, it is the hub of an industrialization program aimed at making Manchuria a world production center.

There are 1,834 factories and mines in Liaoning Province, and most of them are located in Mukden and Anshan, two hours away. So many factories are now plugged into the city's power lines that public electricity is often cut off in the daytime.

There is no gaiety here. By 7 p.m. streets are empty except for workers on their way to night school. Social and family life is sacrificed to production, and even the cigarettes in Mukden are stamped with a little cog-wheel trademark.

It is a dreary city of almost 2½ million, with miles of walls and rows of housing projects for workers who tend the production lines.

The residents live and think in terms of the factory. The model housing village outside the city, where 7,000 factory families live in new but squalid buildings, is peppered with posters and slogans. The factories are hung with banners urging workers to "increase your political consciousness as you increase production."

In the downtown district, a former department store houses an exhibition of Communist doctrine. There are five floors of lathes, plows, bottled chemicals, assorted cases of ballbearings and steel bars, drill presses and truck tires.

48-Hour Work Week

But the monotonous display ends with a photograph of the director said, and 4,000 or 5,000 on Sundays. A good percentage of the curious-faced visitors are women and tiny children, and high school students intently
