A NEW YEAR'S STORY.

It was the last week of the year,

when one morning I read aloud this advertisement:

"Oh, Lucile!" I cried, "this is your chance. You can now retrieve your fallen fortunes." And I tossed the newspaper across the breakfast

table.

Lucile read the advertisement

again, and looked over with a sigh

where, between the windows, an old desk, such as the newspaper described,

occupied the post of honor.

"I should feel as if I were selling my grandpa's bones," she said decastly.

"Well, I don't believe your grandmother," I began, "would blame you

if she knew—"

Here Ruth stopped me with a look,

and began telling something that had happened in the store that day.

Ruth was saleslady in the cloak department in one of our great city establishments. I taught school, and Lucile had been the French instructor in a young ladies' academy. We kept house together until quite recently in two rooms in the third story of a New York house. We had our own furniture, and cooked

our own meals over a little gas stove.

To girls who had been motherless from childhood, and to whom the word "home" was a word with no meaning, such a life was very pleasant.

Lucile was a dark-eyed, graceful

French girl, who had once seen better days, though she was quite reluctant to admit it. She was so improbable and beautiful that Ruth and I loved and guarded her as if she had been our youngest sister. Ruth was sturdy, independent, and New England born, and so true-hearted

and brave that we looked up to her as a heroine, and felt a certain protection. As for me, I was Mollie, born in the sunny south, willful, high tempered, but capable of deep feelings they said. The war had ruined the fortunes of my family, and my life had been full of hardships ever since.

I do not think three girls could have been more unlike. And yet we led a very tranquil, happy life, until

a month or two before the evening of which I write, when a cloud had appeared on our horizon.

That night Lucile came home flushed and indignant. It took but a little questioning to discover the cause. The assistant principal of the school had long annoyed Lucile with his attentions, and her studied avoidance of him did not seem to make any difference. He dogged her steps, wrote her notes, and sent her flowers,

until the poor girl was nearly crazy.

At last unable to endure it any longer, she had refused him peremptorily. Two days later she received his dismissal, and that, too, without a recommendation.

"Never mind," said Ruth, encouragingly, "you need a rest, and Mollie and I need a housekeeper. This is your home, you know."

The girl's dark eyes filled with tears.

"You are very kind," she sobbed

out. "But, ah! it is this that makes me think of the old days in France,

when grandmamma was alive. We lived in the country, you know, and in such a beautiful little chateau.

And the neighbors were so kind, especially those in the next place. Ah!

what pleasant days I had," she added, recalling it with a sigh, "playing in the meadows with their son, Henri,

and what pretty fettes they gave.

But then grandmamma lost her fortune,

and she was too proud to stay where she was known, and she came out to America and died. You know the rest. Oh, you are very kind."

We tried, after this, to get her another situation, but were not success-

HOW THE DOCTOR WAS PAID.

"Two dollars a visit!" cried Dot

in dismay, forgetting entirely that she had come to look for a spoon of

Mo. 40 in Mamma's drawer, and opening her brown eyes wider and wider as she read the heading of an old bill of Dr. Cogswell's.

"Two dollars a visit!" she repeated.

"Oh, why doesn't Dennis get well? And when he's all that to come from?" she asked miserably. "We will get very poor,"

brown head slowly over the bill.

After thinking awhile, she slipped

the paper in her pocket and went down stairs.

Mamma and Sister Margie were sewing. Dot went quietly to Mrs.

Ledyard and whispered:

"We'll feel very poor, won't we,

Mamma?"

Mamma smiled. A sad smile, Dot thought, as she replied: "You're better at guessing than we supposed.

Now, why don't you take your trimming, little daughter, and go into the library? There's a nice fire on the hearth, and you can work away

like a bee. We'll need it soon, you know," added Mamma, for Dot was rather inclined to dream when she was alone.

"We'll need it soon," repeated Dot,

as she climbed up in the big library chair. "We'll need it soon. And to think I never once thought that

Mamma and Sister Margie were making those things to sell, nor how much 'twas costing to have the doctor coming every day, and sometimes twice a day. Poor Dennis! Perhaps he's worse than they tell me.

Perhaps," and there was a great lump in her throat, "he's going to die, and they are leaving me to find that out."

Tom went into the barn to clean

his gun. Dot saw him. "I'll see you in a minute," he called, and nurturingly in a little girl's hands,

and started with it for the base.

"He won't tease me when he knows how badly I feel."

"Halloo!" was Tom's greeting.

"Been crying?"

"Yes," admitted Dot, in a voice that could leave no doubt of it in any one's mind.

"What's up?" continued Tom, as he rubbed away at his gun. "Want any help?"

"Well, you know, Tom," began

Dot, in her sweet, plaintive voice;

"there's a secret in there," pointing toward the house, "and I never found it out till this morning."

"So you found it out, did you?"

Well, I told 'em you would."

"I wouldn't, but for the bill."

"You wouldn't what?" asked Tom,

who was rubbing away again.

"I'll tell you about that afterward.

When I went into the sitting-room,

Mamma and Margie were sewing."

"That certainly didn't surprise

you!"

"Of Tom! how can you make fun

of it all? Mamma looked just ready to cry, and—oh, oh, what can we over do about it!" as she threw her self face downward on the hay, and sobbed as though her little heart

would break, while Tom stood by in speechless astonishment, wondering

why the words "Two dollars a visit"

seemed mingled with her sobs.

"Come, Dot," said he, tenderly,

"Don't cry. You haven't told me yet what the matter is. Now we'll sit right up here while you tell Tom

all about it."

After a while, Dot managed to say:

"Doesn't Dr. Cogswell charge people who are ill two dollars every time he goes to see them?"

"Something like that, I believe,"

answered Tom, wanderingly.

"It's exactly that," said Dot, feeling that she was ill two dollars more

hundreds of dollars!"

New York Beggars.

It seems as if half the beggars in town were to be found about the city hall and the lower part of the city at night. They hover about printinghouse square and the post-office like

June bugs about a lamp. Every one has a doleful tale to tell. It is generally of a protracted fast and inability to procure work, or some misfortune. All the beggars are not men.

There are many women among them,

and they drink as readily, as a rule,

as the men. Once in a while a beggar is encountered who does not drink and who appeals for aid from sheer necessity, but he is a rarity. The grocery is the beacon-light of the down-town beggar. A few nights ago a man stood in front of the bar

of a downtown saloon talking politics. He wore a tall hat that was a trifle out of style and a suit that was somewhat rusty. He "treated,"

however, when it came his turn and did not seem to lack for money.

That man was a beggar, who practiced the "shabby-gentle" trick. The scene of his operations is in Fulton

street, Brooklyn, between the ferry-house and Smith street. After a late dinner he goes across the river,

say about 11 o'clock at night, and patrols Fulton street. He tells a pitiful tale of reduced circumstances and hard luck, and bemoans the fate

that drove him to beggary. His appearance is favorable, and he usually gets a small sum. He remains until about 1 o'clock, and then returns to

New York to meet his friends. One night he went into a drug store and asked for money to buy something to eat. The clerk took pity on him and told the beggar to accompany him. He led the man to a restaurant

across the street and told the waiter

to give him what he wanted to eat.

The beggar was profuse in his thanks. The clerk returned to his

The Law Regarding Search Warrants in Liquor Cases and the Rights of an Officer Under Them.

The cases of Robert Hunnford vs. Richard W. Pitkin and George Hutchinson decided at the Court of Common Pleas at Hartford last week, reported in the Herald last week, involve points of so much interest to the public, that we publish an epitome of Judge Calhoun's decision in the same.

Robt's Hunnford v. Pitkin, Dec. 6, 1882.

R. W. Pitkin, Judgment Dec. 15, 1882.

Same, Judgment Dec. 15, 1882.

Geo. Hutchinson, Judgment Dec. 15, 1882.

Two separate complaints in the nature of trespass for breaking and entering dwelling house in Manchester, March 8, 1882. Pitkin, deft., defends under a warrant of search for intoxicating liquors directed to him as a Constable of Manchester, and Hutchinson says that he was Pitkin's assistant. Counsel for Defta. claims that both suits cannot be pursued for a joint trespass. This is not so. Two or more judgments can be obtained for a joint trespass although there can be but one satisfaction.

Atwater vs. Tupper, 45 Ct. p. 144.

Pitkin replies (1) Warrant valid because not according to Statute in form, in that it does not allege that complainant made oath that "intoxicating liquor" had been sold in violation of law, etc. The language used in the "oath" being—"spirited or intoxicating liquor, or mixed liquor a part of which is spirituous and intoxicating."

(2) That search warrant for liquor does not authorize breaking open outer doors.

(3) That Pitkin made no demand for entry, nor stated his office or duty before breaking in.

(4) That, when in, Pitkin broke an inner door without first demanding that it be opened.

As to these claims of the Plaintiff, warrant is substantially correct and that this is all that is necessary.

The act of 1854 gave forms for complaints and warrants which were to be substantially followed.

The words "mixed liquors a part of which is spirituous and intoxicating" does not change the character of the allegation that intoxicating liquors had been sold within a month before.

The original form used these words.

Revised Statutes of 1854, p. 827: "Spirited or intoxicating liquors or mixed liquors a portion of which is, etc."

It is simply making the allegation more particular, and does not state the commission of a crime in the alternative.

They are superfluous and redundant.

Mixed liquor a part of which is spirituous and intoxicating, is intoxicating liquor in law.

Revised Statutes, 1875, p. 553.

It is the same as if the oath and warrant had used the words intoxicating liquors or rum, brandy, ale wine, etc.

But the complaint alleges that the place to be searched is occupied by pitkin as a saloon and place of public resort, and nothing is said in it about its being a dwelling house where a family resides and so the allegation of a sale within a month in the oath and warrant was unnecessary.

(2) But it is claimed that a search warrant of this kind does not authorize breaking open doors. This is a bold position.

The keeping of intoxicating liquors for sale by an unlicensed person being a crime, the power of the legislature to authorize seizures of such liquors and a search for it for the purpose of seizing is limited only by Sec. 8 of Art. 1 of the Constitution of the State.

Gen. Statutes, (1875) p. 46.

Search warrants in aid of the criminal or police laws of the government are common and are granted to search for stolen goods, smuggled goods, implements of gaming, lottery tickets, counterfeiting tools, plates, etc., prohibited liquors, explosive materials, obscene publications, etc., etc.

The power to authorize search warrants is beyond question. It is only necessary in any case that the intention of the legislature be plain and the constitutional conditions complied with.

Our Statute authorizing search warrants for intoxicating liquors illegally kept is very plain, has been in existence 22 years and provides for the search of any place—dwelling house included.

The practice under the Statute is pretty well settled. Places where liquors were illegally kept have been searched and forcible entry made when necessary.

The idea of a search warrant is that there is to be a search at all events, whether liquor keepers were willing or unwilling. It would be a novel search warrant, the service of which depended on the permission of the transgressor.

There has been a statute authorizing search warrants for gaming tables and another to search any building containing obscene literature or used as a gaming house. These statutes have been in existence many years, are much less carefully guarded than the act in question, but have never been called in question.

Gen. Statutes, 1875, pp. 223, 557.

Lowry vs. Gridley, 30 Ct. p. 450.

The plaintiff's counsel calls attention to the law on p. 34 of Gen. Stat. and to the act of 1878, chap. 137.

The first relates only to service of warrants of arrests of persons keeping or frequenting disorderly houses and does not refer to search warrants. The argument of counsel proves too much, for it might be inferred from it that outer doors could not be broken to arrest criminals of every sort. Counsel of pitkin also claims that by Sec. 10, p. 371, Gen. Statutes, the proceedings to seize and confiscate liquors are "to be conducted as civil actions" and therefore there can be no forcible entry under a search warrant. Remarkable that this argument would apply equally to the issuing of any search warrant in the first place, for search warrants are not allowable in aid of civil process, I think this claim of pitkin has been set at rest by supreme court.

This section (10) applies only to proceedings in court.

State vs. Maxwell's seizures, 36 Ct. p. 157.

(3) The officer did make demand. Pitkin and wife could not have heard. It is clear that admittance was demanded loudly. This they did not hear.

Hutchinson heard the statement "I am an officer, and have a search warrant."

Pitkin thinks he so called.

(4) This renders a judgment for deft. Hutchinson necessary as he is not responsible for what the officer did alone.

Pitkin however broke open an inner door without a demand that it should be opened. I think he could not have done this, as an officer would be justified in every case in breaking open inner doors without previous demand, but under certain circumstances he would be justified.

2nd. Hilliard on Torts, p. 755.

Semaynis case.

1st. Smith's leading cases, p. 88.

Pitkin could legally break open this inner door under the circumstances, the door having been fastened to keep him out after he entered the house. An officer is required to act reasonably only. He need not make a demand at outer door when it is clearly needless.

Judgment for defendants in both cases.

BUCKLAND.—Work on the railroad at this place has been suspended for a part of the week.—We paid a visit to John McDiarmid at the hospital last Saturday and found him somewhat improved in health.—L. Balch has been confined to his home for several days and is under the doctor's care, but we understand that he is getting better.—Mr. McConnell at the Waverly mills has been made happy by the birth of a daughter.—Christmas was greatly enjoyed by most of the people of Buckland.—A prayer-meeting was held on Wednesday evening of this week at the house of J. D. Pickles, Esq. We hope they may continue and that good may result from them.—The public school will commence again Tuesday, Jan. 2.—Let us close this week by wishing all a happy and prosperous New Year.

BURNSIDE.—A Sunday school concert and service of praise was held in the M. E. Church, Sunday evening Dec. 24th.—Those desiring to learn telegraphy should apply to A. K. Gerry at the depot, who is forming a class for that purpose.—The thanks of the public are tendered to our officials who have kept the bridge well snowed.—Mr. William Foley was presented with an heir on Tuesday, Dec. 19th.—The installation of officers by Orient Lodge took place on Wednesday evening Dec. 20th.—Mr. O. W. Elmer runs his bus to Hartford every evening during the holidays.—The petition in regard to the post-master-ship does not seem to take largely. Perhaps good enough is well enough. The interests of the public will probably be consulted rather than those of any one individual when a change is desired.

Stone is prepared to shoe with the ice calk, which is movable and is pronounced to be the ultimatum for winter calking. Give him a trial.

O. W. Treat is at home from Paterson, N. J. for the holidays.

Ezed. O. Boynton succeeds Dr. Weaver as organist at the Methodist church.

Jabez Starkweather is filling his ice-house as rapidly as possible. He has not forgotten the season of '80-'81.

Mr. Winslow Chadwick is soon to open a harness shop in the Cowles building, same rooms formerly occupied by D. C. Fox.

The N. Y. & N. E. time table will be changed again next week. The new arrangement goes into effect next Monday, Jan. 1st.

Mrs. E. B. Hibbard and her daughter, Philena, were the recipients of very valuable Christmas gifts from their boarders, Messrs. Pettibone, Williams, Smith, Hannibal and Brandt.

The next meeting of the "Ours" is postponed to Tuesday evening, January 2nd, 1883. The principal feature on the program is an illustrated lecture, "Paris and Versailles," by Olin R. Wood, Esq.

Your rubber initial appropriately mounted for 5 cents, or initial together with one bottle of red, blue or black ink and outfit complete for 10 cents, at C. H. Rose's. See advertisement in another column.

The "Giant Frame" extension table with its beautifully carved spiral legs, is certainly the strongest and handsomest extension table ever made. B. C. Apel is sole agent for Manchester.

Geo. L. McLean of Vernon Depot, who went to Colorado in November, is now located on a sheep ranch fifteen miles from Cheyenne, Wyoming Territory, for Mr. William Miner formerly of Vernon.

The North Manchester Reading Circle will meet Monday evening, Jan. 1st, at the house of Dr. S. H. Burgess, at 7 1/2 o'clock. Subject, "The Indian Wars of our Country prior to the Revolution."

The committee for improving freight facilities and railroad crossings was reduced to three at a meeting held this week. The present committee consists of James Campbell, R. O. Cheney and N. T. Palisfar.

The wedding of Dr. G. M. Griswold and Miss Zulu Robinson will take place at the Methodist church next Monday evening at 6 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by Presiding Elder H. D. Robinson. All friends are invited to be present.

The members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union have presented their president, Miss M. M. Loomis, with an engraving of the Mrs. Hayes' portrait, neatly framed, as a token of their appreciation of her faithful services as president of the Union since its organization.

Jupiter Nivens favoring, about fifty couples will take a sleigh-ride to Broad Brook next Wednesday evening. The party is to be made up under the auspices of the Happy Hours club. The committee of arrangements consists of R. P. Bissell, A. L. Brown, J. C. Carter and E. L. Smith.

About thirty-five couples participated in the sociable given at Bissell's Hall on Wednesday evening by Happy Hours club. Cowles of New Britain prompted in a very acceptable manner and Coates's orchestra furnished excellent music. These sociables are exceeding popular with the young people of this and neighboring villages. Several couples attended from East Windsor Hill.

The Christmas services at the Congregational church last Saturday evening were well attended. The Christmas tree was unloaded of an abundance of presents for the little ones, who enjoyed the occasion hugely. The audience were entertained with music by the choir, and recitations and readings by the members of the Sunday school. Miss Ella Parker was the recipient of a small but valuable package, a testimonial from her friends of their appreciation of her services to the school and society.

The young people of the Methodist church had a very merry time last Monday evening. Mr. Martin's remarks to the children were given with a warmth of feeling and an aptness of expression which put them all into good humor at once. Miss Lulu Manierre then read a "Christmas Story" in a very effective manner. Santa Claus arrived promptly at 7:45 (Connecticut time) and was introduced to a delighted audience by the genial superintendent, Mr. Haynes. Although the tree was a very large one, it could sustain only one-half of the presents which had been gathered in. Santa Claus presented the pastor with a purse of $60, and two or three of the most promising young men in the village were recipients of special favors. Many handsome and useful presents were found marked for Mrs. Martin. As usual, a beautiful collation was served. The gathering broke up as an early hour.

WATKINS.

Arrangements have been made for A. T. Cornwall, Superintendent of Granby Creamery, and Mr. J. N. Loomis of the firm, Loomis Bros., Granby, Ct., to give information to the milk producers of Watling and adjoining villages, concerning co-operative creameries, and especially of Granby creamery, the methods and success of which have attracted the attention of all who have read its monthly reports. There will be a public meeting, Wednesday, Jan. 3d, at 1 o'clock, p. m., at the Congregational church, at which a full attendance is desired of any and all who are interested.

Mr. C. M. Johnson, Esq., and your correspondent, took a drive over to the west side of the Connecticut, to learn about creameries, of which there are six or seven, while there is not one east of the Connecticut from Massachusetts to the Sound. East Granby creamery, on the plan of collecting milk, started the past season, has had only moderate success, and in order to live has discontinued gathering cream from the farmers who are not willing to carry their milk to the creamery. Granby creamery, on the plan of gathering cream, started also last season, has met with decided success, as the statements made by the patrons of the creamery, whom we called to see as well as the reports of the Superintendent convinced us. Details will be given at the public meeting.

Night found us at the house of Harvey Goddard, Esq., the "latch-string of whose door is always out." He has a farm of hundreds of acres, a family of five sons, stout and intelligent. There is a fine hand-drawn and welcome which we the night spent under his roof, and to be remembered with pleasure. Evidently there is room for co-operative creamery in this vicinity, and if the lightning of the labor of the house and the increased income that would come to three-quarters of all who keep cows are of any value, the proposal should receive the support of every intelligent farmer. Come and hear.

Another Case of "Red Dye." John Brennan, employed as track-hand on the N. E. & N. Y. R. R., went to Rockville last Saturday morning, filled up with licensed fire-water and returned to Manchester to enjoy his Christmas vacation. He fell in with another employee of the company and insisted on going with him to his boarding place. The Coyne's there, he violently assaulted Mrs. Coyne and, on being locked out, became so abusive that constable Snow was sent for. He made so vigorous a resistance to arrest that Mr. Snow called upon R. P. Bissell to assist, and it was only with extreme difficulty that he was finally handcuffed and juggled. He had one or two friends in the crowd who even went so far as to interfere with the officers. Of course they rendered themselves liable to arrest by so doing and we advise them to beware of repeating the experiment. Brennan's case came up for trial on Monday morning at nine o'clock, the Herald office serving as a court-room. He pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and, after a brief hearing of the facts of the case, Justice Strong fined the prisoners $3 and costs, amounting in all to $12.42. That this was a very aggravated case of assault is evident from the fact that Mrs. Coyne's arm was bruised and discolored on the day of the trial, and on account of the serious character of the offense, the grand jury, at the suggestion and solicitation of the friends of temperance, had concluded to prosecute under two separate charges, viz: drunkenness and assault; but being informed in advance by Squire Strong, that he would confine on only one charge, the case for drunkenness was abandoned.

A LOOK BACKWARDS.

A CONDENSED RECORD OF A YEAR'S DOINGS IN MANCHESTER.

Saturday, Aug. 10th, Cheney's band had their annual excursion to Watch Hill. The same day Augustus Riely was found dead in a field at Manchester Green. The following Tuesday, Daniel Woods died suddenly. Aug. 21st, Justice Agard bound over the Superior court, Cornelius Sullivan, John Jay, Dennis Sullivan and Thomas Burke on the charge of retaining Officers Loomis and Pitkin when attempting a seizure of liquor. During the first week in September a representative of the Saltyson Army visited North Manchester.—Sult between officer Loomis and Con. Sullivan commenced. Contract for building new Episcopal Church awarded H. B. Porter of Norwich.

Sept. 9th, Young Men's Catholic Dramatic club organized.—The temperance club action in political matters; 50 pledged to continuous labor at town meeting with ladies as well.—Post office improvements inaugurated. Sept. 16th, manufacturers greatly troubled to get freight. Last Sunday, Robbie Templeton drowned in Plunkett's trout pond.—Temperance campaign opened by Rev. Hugh Montgomery.

Sept. 28th, Sullivan fined $150, and costs in Superior court for retaining officer.—Deyres & Benedict's concert at Cheney's hall last Tuesday night.—J. S. Cheney, M. S. Chapman, Olin R. Wood and R. P. Bissell elected delegates to state republican convention.

Sept. 30th, Congregational conference in Second Church lasting two days.—Olin R. Wood delivers temperance lecture in Second Church. Mrs. Ellen Foster talks at Cheney's hall.

Oct. 7th, Town election, Republican victory; heavy vote and no license majority of 89.—G. S. Parkhurst's store entered by burglars. Oct. 9th, Alfred Sault met with a shooting accident resulting in the loss of his left arm.—Oct. 13th, Twenty-three gallons of liquor seized, confiscated and destroyed in North Manchester.—Oct. 23rd, Play "Among the Breakers" by Young Men's Catholic Association, at Bissell's hall.—E. H. Parshey convicted of violating the liquor law, Justice Agard imposing three fines, one of $30 and two of $50 each.—Concert by the Spanish Students' at Cheney's hall.—Oct. 26, Sad death of Charles Howlett, and heroic services of Mrs. Carvay both at the bedside and at his grave.—Michael Murphy, 19 years old, fatally injured while wrestling.—St. Bridget's fair in full blast this week at Bissell's hall.

Nov. 2d, First sociable of the season by Happy Hours club.—Democratic rally at the town hall with an address by Hon. W. W. Eaton.

Nov. 7th, State election resulting in a Republican victory in Manchester, Messrs. Frank Cheney and E. C. Hilliard elected representatives for the session of 1883.—A town meeting was held at which there was much discussion about the improvement of freight facilities at North Manchester and about several proposed improvements in our highways, but no definite action was taken.

Nov. 16th, Happy Hours club held their second sociable. Harvest supper at Cheney's hall by the St. Mary's Guild.

Nov. 21st, Old Folks concert at Bissell's hall by the South Windsor choir.—Agents of the N. Y. & N. E. Co., meet the railroad commissioners at North Manchester, but take no action that is satisfactory to the citizens of the village.

Nov. 25th, Sylvester Tiptoe, the "oraxy man" whose case came up at the election day town meeting, taken to Middletown.—Adjournd town meeting held at town hall at which $500 was appropriated for improvements at the N. Manchester freight tracks, and $1000, for the building of a post house near the town farm.—James Develin, Charles Andrus and E. H. Parshey prosecuted for violation of liquor law. Develin ran away from a conviction, the others were convicted and heavily fined.—During the week ending Dec. 2d, another seizure and two arrests for drunkenness were made.—On the evening of Nov. 21st, comrade R. H. Kellogg gave at Cheney's hall, a thrilling address on "Scenes in Andersonville Prison."

During the last week of the Herald's first year, James Burke was robbed of $600.—Capt. J. L. Woodbridge appointed Asst. paymaster-general on Gov. Waller's staff.—Spanish Students company made their second appearance at Cheney's hall, and the long-promised flagman made his appearance at the Center street crossing in the person of Mr. Ralph Cutler.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

NOTES ON CURRENT RELIGIOUS TOPICS.

The grave wonder of the Living Church at Popper's Calendar for "going beyond the Prayer Book," as the L. C. says in introducing Corpus Christi Day among its feasts and festivals...

Few are aware of the existence of a small sect in this country calling themselves the Whiebronarians, after their founder the Rev. John Wine-branner. Their views are mainly in accord with the Baptist denomination...

The Christian Union, usually so careful as to its facts prints the following curious case of mistaken identity: A new sect known as the Catholic Apostolic Church has come to light in Chicago...

The "new sect" was started in 1833 or thereabouts, Rev. Edward Irving, being one of the founders, from whom they are popularly called "Irvingites."

A stranger, journeying in France fell sick unto death; his friend called in a physician, who demurred about his professional services, fearing the wherewithal might not be forthcoming...

The Clinton street Presbyterian Church and the Second Church at Brooklyn, N. Y., have decided to consolidate. The new organization will be known as the Second Church, and will worship in the church corner of Remsen and Clinton streets.

The Methodist ministers of Trenton endorse the Salvation Army, calling it "worthy evangelistic work."

The religious press joins in denunciation of the proposed production of the "Passion Play" in New York. One of the leading weeklies comes to the point as follows:

The preparations for a production of the American Passion Play in this city are drawing toward a completion, and the author is reported to have declared his purpose to give the exhibition in spite of a protesting public sentiment.

It is strange that names churches in the South and West will give themselves. A Baptist church in North Carolina asked incorporation under the name of "Hanging Dog Baptist Church."

The people of Nebraska are trying the efficacy of a high license law as a restriction upon the evils of intemperance. The license for the sale of intoxicating liquors in cities of over ten thousand inhabitants is one thousand dollars and five hundred dollars in cities of less than ten thousand inhabitants...

The Independent gives two columns of heavy solemnity on the recent absurd attempt to enforce the Sunday Law, according to the penal code, newly codified in New York.

The observance of Sunday cannot be enforced by law. The most the law can do is to protect Christian people from disturbance in their worship. To compel its observance is to destroy the very spirit of it.
