Agents Grab Half Million In Fake Cash

HARTFORD (AP)—Federal agents said today they have broken a major national counterfeiting ring headquarters in Southington, with the arrest of three men and the seizure of more than $500,000 in bogus bills.

The phony money was printed in the basement of a house in Plantsville and distributed initially in San Diego and Los Angeles, agents said. Later more bogus bills were passed in New York, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Connecticut.

Secret Service agents said they found in the trunk of an automobile at Bradley Interntional Airport this morning $500,000 in counterfeit bills, numerous counterfeiting plates and negatives. They said the car belonged to one of the men arrested.

The money was in boxes and some of it was in raw sheet form, not yet cut, the agents said.

All of the printed bogus money was in $20 bills, but agents said some of the plates were for $50 bills.

The half-million dollar estimate may be conservative, agents said. They were still counting the phony money late this morning.

"It's unbelievable as to the amount of money, plates and negatives we found in that trunk," an agent said.

"This is a major national operation," Asst. U.S. Atty. Randy Roeder said. "The arrests were based on an excellent investigation conducted by the Secret Service in Connecticut."

Roeder said the Secret Service began its investigation in early December when the first bogus bill was passed.

He identified those arrested as Daniel Brookes, 35, of Southington; Roy Schmid, 45, of Plantsville, and James E. Wilson, 31, of Meriden.

Brownout Chills Britons

LONDON (AP) — The government told a shocked House of Commons today that millions of British workers may be laid off because of new massive electric power cuts.

Hundreds of factories were expected to shut down because of the drastic blackouts, ordered to save electricity from coal-fueled power stations crippled by a five-week miners' strike.

John Davies, trade and industry minister, said "many, many people, perhaps millions" will be out of work at a time when Britain already has more than a million unemployed because of economic woes.

Under a state of emergency proclaimed after talks with the miners broke down, electricity was cut off to one in every 10 British homes, offices and factories on a rotating basis.

Broadening this limited blackout which began Thursday, Davies ordered the biggest factories to slash their electric consumption by 50 per cent—meaning shutdowns of machinery and lay-offs of workers.

In addition to these biggest users of power, a larger number of medium-sized plants—more than 20,000—were banned from using electricity four days a week.

Harold Lever, industrial spokesman for the opposition Labor party in Parliament, warned that the bigger blackouts beginning Monday "will inflict . . . very heavy damage upon industry."

As coal stocks dwindled further, the government also banned the use of electricity Saturday for heating offices, shops, theaters and many other premises. It pleaded with everyone to voluntarily switch off as many home appliances as possible.

'No Deals' Says Nixon

8-Point Offer 'Stands'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon has drawn the line against further concessions to the North Vietnamese until they negotiate on his eight-point peace proposal.

"The next step is up to the enemy. Our proposal is on the table and it is going to stand there until we get a reply from them," Nixon told a news conference in his White House office Thursday.

At the same time, the President appeared to hit somewhat harder at Democratic White House hopefuls who spurned his earlier plea for caution in their criticism of his Vietnam policy.

"The responsibility for the enemy's failing to negotiate may have to be borne by those who encourage the enemy to wait until after the election," the President said.

Nixon called the joint U.S.-South Vietnamese proposal he made public Jan. 25 fair and forthcoming and said "it should be negotiated on."

Although Nixon said the other side has not yet responded, North Vietnamese leaders and diplomats have been quoted as rejecting the U.S.-South Vietnamese formula for peace, including a cease-fire, mutual troop withdrawal, and release of war prisoners.

North Vietnamese spokesmen have insisted the United States abandon support of the regime of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Thieu has expressed unhappiness over a statement by Secretary of State William P. Rogers that the United States remains flexible on details of a possible political settlement of the war.

But Nixon said he wanted to reassure the South Vietnamese president that "there will be no new proposals made unless it is a joint proposal."

Standing behind his desk, Nixon opened his news conference by giving a general rundown on plans for his trip to Communist china, which will start next Thursday.

The President said his visit and talks with Chinese leaders "will mark a watershed in the relations between the two governments" which have been at odds for more than 20 years.

The old chapter now comes to an end, Nixon said, "from the time that I set foot on the soil of mainland China, and a new chapter begins."

Once again, Nixon cautioned that his groundbreaking visit, first by an American president to China, "should not be one which would create very great optimism or very great pessimism."

New Look Taken At Value of Pot

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new government report today questioned some widely held beliefs about marijuana and suggested that pot may hold medical value for glaucoma patients.

The second annual report to Congress by the National Institute of Mental Health emphasizes that more research is needed, however, on marijuana's effect on driving ability, chromosomes of women of childbearing age, and possible damage to the brain and kidneys.

The researchers have strongly recommended against pot smoking by young women until the birth defects question is answered and against intravenous injection of the weed.

The 270-page document, basically a scientific report, leaves recommendations to a presidential commission that is scheduled to report next month.

The authors digressed at one point, however, to suggest that "simple availability of marijuana may not be the most significant factor in its use and abuse."

"In the attempt to prevent abuse," they said, "social customs and controls, guided by informal knowledge, are far more potent than legal sanctions alone."

Reversing itself since last year, the NIMH said marijuana use appears to be widespread and on the increase, with no signs of tapering off.

The report estimates that between 15 and 20 million Americans, mostly in the 18-to-29 age group, have tried marijuana. Three weeks ago the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse estimated 24.6 million have tried it and 8.3 million are current users.

Marijuana has the highest rate of use in the West and Northeast, the report said, and its popularity in high schools varies from a high of 50 per cent down to as low as 5 per cent.

The use among college students rose from 31 per cent in 1970 to 44 per cent in 1971, according to available statistics.

A survey of four medical schools, none of them named, turned up marijuana use in all of them and one school where nearly half the future doctors said they currently use marijuana.

"With the greatly expanded research effort into marijuana and related synthetics," the report said, "there is a strong possibility that cannabis derivatives, very possibly in chemically modified form, will once again achieve medical acceptance in the treatment of a variety of conditions."

It cited a 1971 study by R. S. Hepler and I. M. Frank in the Journal of the American Medi-

Value-Added Tax Mulled On Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John Connally will discuss the value-added tax this weekend, but Nixon says he can't predict the outcome.

"We have not yet found a way, frankly, that we could recommend it to replace the property tax," Nixon told newsmen Thursday. "But, with the obligation to face up to reduce or reform property taxes, the Treasury Department necessarily is considering other methods of taxation."

Still, as Nixon spoke, administration officials were presenting a favorable view of value-added taxation to a governmental committee opening a study of the plan.

The tax, a form of national sales tax collected in stages, was put before the Advisory Commission on Inter-

Heaviest Raids Pound Foe

SAIGON (AP) — Hundreds of U.S. and South Vietnamese warplanes pounded a 225-mile stretch of the western frontier from the demilitarized zone to the central highlands in some of the heaviest raids of the Indochina war, informants said today.

Air Force and Navy fighter-bombers and U.S. B52 heavy bombers launched about 400 strikes during the 24-hour period ending at dawn today, the informants said.

The raids ranged over South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Warplanes struck at North Vietnamese infiltration corridors leading from the DMZ, Laos and Cambodia into western South Vietnam, at staging areas, base camps, supply depots and troop concentrations.

Their mission was to blunt the big enemy offensive which U.S. officers predict will come this month, just below the DMZ or in the central highlands and adjacent coastal lowlands.

About half of the raids were flown in South Vietnam, the heaviest since last August and September when U.S. air power helped counter a North Vietnamese push below the DMZ.

Many of the strikes were along supply lines leading from the Ho Chi Minh trail in southern Laos into the A Shau valley, a major North Vietnamese supply transshipment point in the northwestern quarter of South Vietnam.

B52 raids were doubled across South Vietnam, and at the same time the giant bombers kept up strikes in Laos and Cambodia.

A total of 201 tactical air strikes were reported in South Vietnam, 32 more than were flown in the previous 24 hours. On both days half were flown by U.S. planes, the other half by the South Vietnamese air force, while almost all the missions in Laos and Cambodia were flown by American pilots.

In one raid on an enemy base camp in the central highlands, the U.S. Command said, helicopter gunships and bombers killed 32 enemy troops and destroyed 20 bunkers.

The command also announced that an Air Force F4 Phantom crashed Thursday night while on a mission against the Ho Chi Minh trail. The two crewmen were picked up by a helicopter this morning and were reported in good condition, the command said, but the cause of the crash was not known.

The Saigon command reported 23 enemy attacks during the 24-hour period ending at dawn

IRA Bombs Harass Ulster

BELFAST (AP) — Bomb blasts wrecked a furniture store and an office in downtown Belfast today as the Irish Republican Army maintained its harrasment of Northern Ireland.

This followed the killing of two British soldiers by a land mine Thursday night.

Gun-wielding guerrillas struck first at the furniture store near City Hall and planted a gelignite charge after shouting to the staff to get clear.

In a similar swoop later, three men burst into nearby finance company offices dumped a tartan bag on the floor and told people inside: "It's a bomb."

An office worker said the men grabbed a bundle of bank notes before escaping.

No one was hurt in either incident but the blasts set off fires in both buildings and shattered windows in the vicinity.

In the strongly republican County Londonderry, a 20 pound gelignite bomb badly damaged a fire station at Dungiven and wrecked a fire engine.

The IRA is waging a guerrilla campaign against 15,000 British troops in Northern Ireland in a bid to unite the British-ruled province with the Roman Catholic Irish republic in the south.

The violence has claimed the lives of 243 people in 2½ years of bloody feuding.

In Dublin, Prime Minister Jack Lynch met with pro-Catholic opposition legislators from the North to discuss the crisis and plan the spending of an estimated $260,000 that the Irish government intends giving for relief work.

The cash also will be used to finance peaceful and political efforts to topple the Protestant-based Northern Irish government.

Top ranking IRA men—some high on the British army's wanted list in the north—will address a mass rally in Dublin on Sunday to press for the British army to get out of Northern Ireland.

Fires Hit Car Wash And Home

By GLENN GAMBER

Fire struck three times yesterday damaging a private home, a car wash, and a lumber company shed.

Heavy damage was reported to the home of Larry Scranton at 267 Boulder Rd., while damage to the Begin Clean Car Wash at 263 West Middle Tpke. was less extensive.

Fire officials said the shed fire at the Manchester Lumber Co. on Center St. could have been more serious since the shed was only 50 feet from the main lumber storage area. The fire was extinguished quickly, however, and was confined to the shed.

The town fire department was called upon to fight all three of the fires, two of which occurred within a short time of one another and kept firemen busy.

The shed fire was called in by a lumber company employe at about 2:30 yesterday afternoon.

Some of the three pieces of fire equipment sent to the lumber company were still at this fire when Michael Klemens

World Trade Pact Multi-Nation Aim

BRUSSELS, Belgium, (AP) — The United States and the six countries of the Common Market announced today they will start in 1973 a comprehensive review of international trade designed to improve the standards of the people of the world.

They asked other countries to join them. Japan and the United States announced a similar agreement on Wednesday.

At the same time, they announced details of the short term concessions made by the Common Market to help the United States export grain, oranges, grapefruit and tobacco.

The accords were the result of negotiations by William D. Eberle, President Nixon's trade envoy, with representatives of the Common Market. The U.S. administration insisted on them before introducing its bill to devalue the dollar by raising the price of gold.

Improvements in world trade are needed, the two sides agreed, in view of structural changes which have taken place in recent years.

They said their talks would cover all measures which impede or distort trade in farm products as well as raw materials and manufactured goods.

Other such negotiations—like the "Kennedy round" which ended in 1967—did not cover major farm commodities.

They promised to give special attention to the problems of poorer countries.

The aim was stated as "the expansion and ever greater liberalization of world trade and improvement in the standard of living of the people of the world." The way to do this, they said, included dismantling obstacles to international trade.

The Common Market said one means would be international commodity agreements on specific types of goods. The United States said such agreements "do not offer a useful approach."

Both sides subscribed to the principles of "mutual advantage and mutual commitment with overall reciprocity." They agreed to start this year to work out the best way to negotiate, using facilities that already exist in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

There also was an exchange of letters between Eberle and Theo Hijzen, director of foreign trade in the Common Market executive commission. The major provisions:

Grain—The Common Market will add 1.5 million tons of wheat to its carryover from

Harvard Cop Is Harvard Grad

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — John Pippin is the first Harvard College graduate to become a Harvard campus policeman, and he says he likes it well enough to stay.

"I wanted to do something I enjoy," he said. "I wanted to have a job where I knew that if I, with my own particular ability, weren't there, the world wouldn't be quite so good a place."

The 22-year-old Pippin, with a luxuriant mustache, patrols a regular campus beat.

Pippin of Dallas, Tex., was a German history major and said his parents expected him to go to graduate school after his graduation last June.

He said his friends also were surprised when he took the job, "but people mellow and they've mellowed too."

DON'T OPEN DOOR TO DESPERADOES

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If bandits break into your house, you are entitled to all the sympathy you ask for. If you open the door and let them in, however, the sympathy may be mixed with a snicker.

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Opening lead — Queen of Clubs.

West opened the queen of clubs, and dummy won with the ace. Declarer got to his hand with the ace of trumps and ruffed a low club in dummy. Then he finessed with the jack of spades.

West won with the queen of spades and looked around desperately for a way to get three more tricks. The situation was pretty hopeless unless his partner had the ace of diamonds.

So West crossed his fingers and led the king of diamonds. East signaled encouragement by playing the six of diamonds, but the thing that encouraged West most was the fact that his king won the trick.

West led his remaining diamond to the ace and ruffed the diamond return. This defeated the contract, much to South's discomfiture.

Cold Contract

"Bad luck, partner," said South, with all the cheerfulness he could muster.

Luck had nothing to do with it, for the contract was cold. South opened the door to defeat when he finessed with the jack of spades. The correct play is to win with the king of trumps.

This leaves one opponent with the queen of spades, with all the other trumps drawn. South then leads diamonds to knock out the ace and king. The defenders can take two diamonds and the queen of trumps, but nothing else.

Soon Paris was bombarded with everything Turkish — including coffee. In no other capital did the coffee house play as important a role as in Vienna, however, where grew up a special cafe for every group and class, for young men, artists, journalists, workingmen, etc. Whenever a Viennese wished to see a friend, he went first to the cafe which the friend was known to frequent. To go with the coffee, elaborate pastries were offered; in fact, no other city in the world has ever matched Vienna for pastry!

Three at Hebron School Win National Fitness Test

National Physical Fitness Awards were presented to Lisa Oliver, Greg Attardo and Craig Fox at ceremonies held yesterday afternoon at the Hebron Elementary School.

Each of the sixth graders received a President's Council on Physical Fitness patch as well as a certificate signed by the President.

The first students fro ma Hebron school ever to qualify for a national award, the three had to score above the 85th percentile in seven events.

These included the 50-yard dash, 60-yard run-walk, standing broad jump, softball throw, pull-ups, sit-ups and the shuttle run.

Physical education teacher Mrs. Marsha Eaton felt that this was quite an accomplishment for the three in that they were being compared with other students in the nation who have gym two or three times a week. The Hebron schools only have gym once a week.

The national test, which is issued by the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, was taken by fourth, fifth and sixth graders throughout the nation. Results were compared with a national scale.

School Awards

The school presented nine additional certificates to students who came close to the national scale but did not quite make it.

Receiving these awards were Dana Radman, Roger Soucy, Diane Rychlovsky, Ed Gotreau, Bruce Rose, Debra Dewey, Carol Andrews, Barbara Gerry and Emily Sklodosky.

The awards were a surprise to the recipients but not to their parents, who had received written invitations from principal Paul A. White to attend the ceremonies.

Flag Presentation

Before the awards ceremony, Richard Grant, former commander and presently vice-commander of Jones-Keefe-Hasson Post 95 of the American Legion, presented the school with a new flag.

Grant, in making the presentation, said the Legion was aware of the faithfulness with which the school flag was flown and that the present one was just worn out.

The new flag was accepted by student Kris Karvelis, then displayed by students Colleen Green and Craig Porter.

Square Dance

The third in a series of square dancing lessons for the towns of Hebron, Andover and Marlborough will be held tomorrow evening at 8 at the Gilead Hill School.

Additional dates for the remainder of the lessons will be announced soon.

Tomorrow's class is being organized with the assistance of Mrs. Joyce Corriveau of Abbey Dr.

Red Cross

George M. Boone Jr., membership chairman for the Hebron, Andover and Columbia Chapter's American Red Cross annual fund-raising drive, has announced the appointment of area chairmen for Hebron.

Chairman for the Gilead area is Miss Connie Ellis; for the center of Hebron, Mrs. Robert Butt; and for the Amston area, Mrs. Adrian Cheney.

The drive is expected to start March 1, and the three local chairmen will appoint their captains and canvassers before then.

Midget Football

The Hebron Midget Football League, sponsors of the Hebron Rams, will hold its annual meeting on Monday evening at 7:30 at the Town Office Building.

Jackie Testifies In $1 Million Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis, President John F. Kennedy's widow, has completed pretrial testimony as a defendant in a $1.3 million suit filed by a photographer who claims she interfered with his work.

Photographer Ronald Galella, who has made a career of photographing the former first lady and her children, filed the suit. It is scheduled for trial starting Feb. 16.

Mrs. Onassis spent more than two hours Thursday in the U.S. attorney's office, with lawyers for both sides and James B. Kilheisner III, who acted as a special master to iron out legal points in depositions given by Galella and Mrs. Onassis.

Burl Ives Sued For $1 Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Burl Ives is accused in a $1,125,000 suit refusing to contribute his share in a business to franchise campgrounds nationally.

Roger Cunningham, 38, who filed the suit Thursday in Superior Court, said he had invested $40,000 and spent almost a year in promoting the business, Wayfaring Campground, Inc., of Santa Fe, N.M.

The suit contends Ives failed to repay Cunningham his costs and refused to allow his name and likeness to be used for publicity purposes.

Cunningham seeks $18,000 in compensatory damages, $40,000 in special damages, $800,900 in general damages and $250,000 in punitive damages.

Court Changes Jails For Boy Who Was Beaten

A bruised and cut 16-year-old youth was presented in Circuit Court 12 yesterday and was sent to the state Corrections Center in Brooklyn instead of being returned to the State Corrections Center in Hartford where he was allegedly injured.

The left side of Bruce Secore's face was discolored and swollen and his head was bandaged when he appeared before Judge Nicholas Armentano, Terence Sullivan, public defender, asked that Secore not be returned to Corrections Center in Hartford "for fear of additional physical violence."

"There was a misunderstanding among inmates the night before court and a fight occured while Secore was waiting to go to court," Capt. Stephen Malley of the Hartford Center, said this morning. He also said that cases of assault are turned over to State Police for investigation and it has been done in this instance.

Secore, of 36 N. Park St., Rockville, is charged with robbery and larceny in the first degree in a Dec. 1 armed robbery at the Gas Town Service Station on Union St., Rockville, when about $240 was taken and with larceny in the second degree in the theft of a car from the Park West Apartments, Vernon, on Nov. 27. The cases were bound over to Tolland County Superior Court.

Sullivan's request to have Secore's $2,500 bond reduced was denied.

White Recommends Lowering Standards

HARTFORD (AP) — Educational requirements for all State Welfare Department jobs would be eliminated under a proposal unveiled Thursday by Welfare Commissioner Henry C. White.

White said there are many capable and experienced people qualified to serve the department, but because of financial and other difficulties could not have completed their education.

Such educational requirements "are a very real form of discrimination which I will not tolerate," said White. "The only qualification I am concerned with is—can the person do the job?"

White said his proposal would apply to all job levels in his department and to all levels of educational requirements. He said he hopes the proposal will be accepted by all state agencies.

"I don't care whether they (applicants) have completed high school or anything else," White said. "I just want them to be able to read and write, pass the basic tests for each position, and be able to carry out the work they are applying for."

White formally requested the elimination of the education requirements in a letter to state Personnel Director Edward H. Simpson.

Asked whether there were any state agencies that did not require college degrees in at least some positions, Simpson said he believed that most, if not all, state agencies had some positions with college-degree requirements.

White has been carrying on a running battle with social workers in the department, and has said in the past that he doesn't feel their college degrees are adequate qualification for serving those on welfare.

White said Gov. Thomas J. Meskill gave preliminary approval of his proposal.

of Ferguson Rd. called at about three o'clock and told firemen that he could see flames through the woods, but could not pinpoint the location.

Police who had responded to the call notified fire headquarters of the blaze's location.

Flames were confined to the living room and sunroom, but smoke and water damage to other portions of the house rendered it uninhabitable.

Firemen were forced to fight the blaze with four lines of hose from pumper trucks since there are no hydrants in the area.

Scranton was home alone when the fire began, police say.

The car wash fire was called in shortly after 11 o'clock last night. Flames ate their way through the roof of the building before firemen could extinguish the fire.

Fire Chief William Mason said this fire apparently started in a central service area in the car wash where some electrical equipment is located.

Mason says all three fires are under investigation and no damage estimates are immediately available on any of them.

Damage to living room at 267 Boulder Rd. was extensive. Flames scorched walls, but were confined to this room and sunporch.

All Passengers Removed From Grounded Cruise Ship

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Norwegian cruise ship Lindblad Explorer ran aground in heavy seas in the Antarctic today. Chilean naval craft rescued her 120 passengers, most of them Americans.

The Childean navy said the vessel was aground on Almirintago Beach in the Chilean Antarctic with some crew remaining on board. The 2,480-ton vessel had a crew of 68.

The Lindblad Explorer's owner, K. S. A. Explorer, reported in Oslo, Norway's capital, that the skipper, Capt Bjarne Aas, and the radio officer remained aboard. The company said the ship was taking water. The Chilean navy reported her awash.

The ship, chartered by the Lindblad Travel Agency of New York, was on a cruise to the Antarctic.

High seas caused by 50-knot winds washed over the vessel and knocked out her diesel engine, the navy reported.

Capt. Ladislao d'Haimud, commander of the navy's Antarctic group, dispatched the Yelcho and Pardo to rescue the passengers. Telegraphed reports said all passengers were brought to the Chilean navy's Antarctic base on King George Island, about 500 miles south of Punta Arenas, Chile, the southernmost city in the world.

Reports reaching Santiago navy headquarters said the passengers probably would be taken to Puerto Williams, a navy base at the southern tip of Chile near the Beagle Channel if the ship could not be readily pulled free by the two Chilean navy vessels.

The navy said all the passengers were well.

He Shoots From the Hip

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — Gov. Winfield Dunn stopped by the Tennessee Highway Patrol target range Thursday.

Handed a .38-caliber revolver from the hip, the governor fired five more shots—and zeroed in on five more targets.

Asked about the governor's shooting prowess, a spokesman said Dunn was no sportsman. "Just lucky, I guess."

cal Association in which most of the 11 marijuana smoking subjects had up to a 25 per cent decrease in intercular (eye) pressure.

Although more research will be required, the NIMH said, the experiment "holds forth the promise" that marijuana or some derivative may be useful in treatment of glaucoma, a hardening of the eyeball often resulting in blindness.

Marijuana has been used since the 5th Century in some parts of the world for treatment of ailments ranging from diarrhea to dandruff.

The NIMH researchers said more recent studies, generally favorable, have shown marijuana can be effective in treatment of depression, alcoholism skin problems, sinus, ear inflammations and preventing epileptic seizures.

Of particular significance to "the unknown number of users who may drive at night while stoned" is evidence that pot-smoking motorists are likely to be slower in braking and recovering from glare, the report said.

Mixing marijuana and alcohol slows mental and physical performance more than when either is used alone, it added.

Contrary to popularly held beliefs, the report said, marijuana smoking does not appear to lead to crime, hard drug use, tolerance build-up, requiring more and more intake of it, and is relatively safe to physical health and does not cause chronic psychosis.

Although research has uncovered little evidence that marijuana causes chromosomal abnormalities, the NIMH said the active ingredient (THC) can invade the bloodstream of animal fetuses and therefore, women in their reproductive years, should avoid the use of marijuana and other drugs "of unknown potential for producing birth defects."

Columbia

Letter from Nixon Highlights Dinner

A personal letter from President Nixon to First Selectman Howard Bates was the highlight of the Republican Town Committee's Lincoln Day Dinner Wednesday night in the Congregational Church parish house.

Richard Dann, GOP chairman and master of ceremonies, presented the letter to Bates.

Dann said he personally was pleased to think Nixon would write the letter, which has the President's signature and seal.

"The President's letter said, "It is most appropriate that your many friends and associates and fellow Republicans in Columbia would want to pay tribute to your exemplary service to the community.

"Nothing is more important to the success of our Republican Party than the willingness of good men to serve at all levels of government and especially at that level which is closest to the people.

"There you have the greatest opportunity and the greatest obligation to attend to the needs of our citizens.

"I want to extend my appreciation for your contributions in the past and best wishes now as you assume your duties of first selectman.

"Surely your work as the town's chief executive will continue to reflect the same deep devotion to the people of Columbia which has already earned their respect and admiration."

Dann said Bates, who is the first Republican first selectman in six years, also performs numerous party functions. He has been a member of the town committee for 14 years, committee chairman for four years, and was Columbia's representative to the 52nd Assembly District Republican Committee.

His community service includes two terms as president of the PTA, vice chairman of the original Columbia Public Health Nursing Agency, 14-year member and past president of the Lions Club, two-term member of the Charter Commission, deacon of the Congregational Church and immediate past superintendent of the church school for 15 years.

There were about 50 persons at the dinner, which was prepared and served by town committee members. The dinner was in charge of Town Clerk Rita Cloutier and her husband Norman.

Those attending were Republican town officials, members of the town committee, and the Women's Republican Club and their spouses.

Taxpayers Told By Consultant To 'Pay the $5'

HARTFORD (AP) — Even if a person earned capital gains or dividends of less than $5 in 1971, that person still owes the State of Connecticut $5 in taxes.

"That's what the law says," warned state Tax Commissioner George Brown Thursday. "The minimum tax that can be paid the state is $5."

"I don't like it," he said. "I hope the General Assembly changes the law...to exempt anyone who has a tax liability of less than $5."

The constitutionality of the law, approved by the legislature last year, already is being challenged in Superior Court.

The tax forms, mailed during the past week, have to be completed by April 15.

The strange feature of the tax was noted by an East Hartford tax consultant, David Grudem, who is a supervisor for the Tax Corporatpon of America.

"The way the law is written," he said, "the little guy who has a couple of shares of stock and gets $1 or $2 in dividends most likely, when he finishes his computation, will owe the state $5 in taxes."

Grudem added that such a person "is likely to be paying more in tax than he gets in dividends."

He said he had already "discovered" three cases that fall into this category and his counsellors have come up with two more.

Grudem said he advised one client who had earned only $1.65 in dividends to pay the $5 tax, because the penalty for not filing a tax form is $20.

What did the client say to that advice? "I wouldn't want to quote what he said," Grudem replied.

Another client, he said, decided to sell the two shares of Northeast Utilities she owned that paid her less than $2 in dividends but cost her $5 in taxes.

'No Deals' Says Nixon

On other matters, brought out in questioning, Nixon made these points:

Taxes—"There will be no increases in taxes this year." He denounced the property tax as regressive and said the only way the value-added tax could be considered as a source of school revenue is if its regressive features were removed. "Whenever any tax reform is recommended by this administration, it will not be one which will replace one form of regression with another form of regression."

In his State of the Union address, Nixon promised to try to find a way to relieve home owners of property taxes. There have been reports he plans to propose a value-added tax, a form of national sales tax that opponents claim bears heaviest on the poor.

Busing—Nixon restated his opposition to busing "for the purpose of racial balance." However, he noted that some courts have differed from his views, and said he will confer with congressmen on the feasibility of a constitutional amendment to prohibit forced busing.

Nixon said he has arranged a White House meeting next Monday with key senators and House members to discuss such proposals.

India—Nixon denied that he and his administration were anti-India during the recent war between India and Pakistan. "I can only say I was antiwar," Nixon said. "We did everything we could to avoid the war . . .

"At this point, we are going to do everything we can to develop a new relationship with the countries on the subcontinent that will be pro-Indian, pro-Bengalese, pro-Pakistan, but mostly peace."

Bangladesh—Nixon said the United States has not made a decision whether to recognize the new state of Bangladesh, formed from what was East Pakistan before the Indian army conquered it in December. He ruled out any decision before he returns from China in late February.

Security Leaks—The President said "we have a lot of circumstantial evidence" as to the source who leaked secret minutes on top-level U.S. discussions on U.S. policy during the Indian-Pakistani crisis to columnist Jack Anderson.

However, Nixon said "we do not have evidence that I consider adequate . . . to take to court."

Leaders Seeking Trade Accord

last year's crop for a total of 3.9 million tons. It also will make an effort to stockpile grain from the coming crop. The United States will add 22.1 million tons to its grain stockpile from last year's crop. For the coming year it will try to take another 8 million acres of wheat and 18 million acres of feed grains out of production.

Subsidies—The Common Market will take care that through the end of the current grain crop year, its system "does not result in trade diversions in favor of the community."

Oranges and grapefruit—Common Market imports of sweet oranges between June 1 and Sept. 30, 1972 and 1973 will be subject to a duty of only 5 per cent. Grapefruit will be imported at 4 per cent between April 1, 1972 and Dec. 31, 1973. These are substantial reductions.

Tobacco—The Common Market promises that its taxes on tobacco will be "neutral"—that is, will not hurt U.S. trade—and said it is ready for discussions on the subject with the United States "at an appropriate time."

There was no promise to consult the United States on the Common Market's negotiation of free trade agreements, which Washington had asked.

Brownout Chills Britons

"Except where there is sickness, only one room should be electrically heated," Davies said. "Lights should only be used where essential."

Even before the drastic new power cuts, some factories starved of coal started shutting down. Five hundred workers at two plants in Derby were thrown out of jobs, and 1,000 at a Derbyshire Iron Works were put on shorter shifts.

As a court of inquiry prepared to investigate the strike and recommend a pay settlement, mine workers leader Joe Gormley estimated the power cuts would have to continue until April. He said this was because of delays in resuming coal production even if the strike is settled today.

The grim economic outlook, darkened further by news today of a $5.2 million deficit in Britain's January trade balance, sent prices plunging on the London Stock Exchange.

The power cuts also brought disruption to millions of Britons in their day-to-day life.

Housewives prepared cold breakfasts by candlelight. Traffic was snarled for miles where traffic lights went out. Hundreds were stranded in stuck elevators and women were caught with half-finished hairdos under driers that went dead.

Buckingham Palace was without electricity for three hours. "We managed with candles and torches, thank you," said a spokesman. Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and Princess Anne are in the Far East.

Scotland Yard was busy answering questions about failure of the traffic signals when its own lights went out. The House of Lords was blacked out as it debated the power crisis. The lights illuminating Big Ben, the giant clock atop Parliament, went out.

An estimated 80 per cent of Britain's 18 million households use electricity for some or all of their heating. Many others depend on coal, which is unavailable. Overnight temperatures were in the low 40s in London.

Housewives with electric stoves prepared meals to serve cold. Stores ran out of candles and flashlight batteries; many that had them raised the prices. Shops reported a run on gas lamps and kerosene stoves.

Age Concern, a welfare organization, claimed that the cold strike contributed to the deaths of seven old people in the northern city of Newcastle. It said promised emergency coal supplies failed to reach them, and that some old people in frigid homes were chopping up their furniture for fuel.

Hospitals and other essential services were exempt from the power cuts, however.

The power cuts also threatened layoffs or shorter work days at factories and other businesses dependent on electrical power. The British Steel Corp. said it may be forced to lay off 5,000 men next week. The jobs of another 1,000 men in the paper industry were jeopardized.

Leaders of the 280,000-striking miners and the National Coal Board were reported totally deadlocked in their pay dispute, raising fears that the strike might go on for several more weeks. Power stations reported their fuel stocks could last only three weeks at the most.

The strike leaders on Wednesday rejected a new offer of $57.20 a week minimum pay. The present minimum is $49.40, and the miners want at least $15.50 more.

today plus 38 government operations of battalion size or larger.

Communiques from the Saigon headquarters and field reports listed at least 29 South Vietnamese troops killed and 104 wounded. The South Vietnamese command claimed 149 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed, many of them by bombs, rockets and napalm.

Communist forces apparently trying to cut South Vietnam's busiest highway ambushed two U.S. convoys and encircled a government outpost, field reports said.

On Route 1, the north-south coastal highway, enemy soldiers firing rockets ambushed a U.S. convoy near the Hai Van Pass, about 20 miles northwest of Da Nang. The command said no Americans were hurt, and one vehicle was damaged slightly.

A second convoy was hit 230 miles to the south near Tuy Hoa by about 30 enemy troops firing small arms, automatic weapons and grenades. One American was reported wounded and two vehicles were damaged slightly.

Eighty miles north of Tuy Hoa, a battalion of North Vietnamese surrounded and attacked a 40-man government outpost, then clashed with reinforcements trying to relieve the outpost.

The South Vietnamese command said several hundred reinforcements drove off the enemy and killed 40 of them with U.S. air support, but field reports said the outpost remained under siege.

Initial reports said 12 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 18 wounded in the fighting Thursday.

Loose Moose Delays Booze

GARDINER, Mont. (AP) — A loose moose put a damper on the opening of the state retail liquor store at Gardiner.

A 9 a.m. opening was scheduled but only minutes before that hour vendor Lorraine Mack telephoned Liquor Administrator Joseph Shea to request a delay.

She said a moose had parked itself on her driveway between the house and car. Lorraine described the animal as "three feet higher than the car."

Sometime after 9 a.m. the moose made for the hills and the liquor store opened.

Agents Grab Half Million In Fake Cash

Wednesday night in Greece, N.Y., near Rochester. The other men were arrested shortly before dawn today at their homes, Roeder said.

Secret Service agents said the bogus money was printed in the basement of Schmid's house in Plantsville.

Agents theorized the two men arrested today may have become alarmed when Brooker was arrested in New York and decided to hide the counterfeiting tools and phony money in Schmid's car at Bradley.

Roeder said the three men were charged with one count each of making, passing and possessing counterfeit money. The three counts carry a maximum penalty of 45 years in prison and a $15,000 fine or both.

The three men were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Thomas R. Parker in Hartford who set a hearing for 2 p.m. Monday. Schmid was released in $10,000 non-surety bond and Brockes and Wilson were freed in $5,000 non-surety bond.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices stumbled onto soft ground today, bogging down in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was off 5.04 at 916.24, virtually unchanged from a half hour earlier.

Declines outnumbered advances on the New York Stock Exchange by over 2 to 1.

Analysts said the market was being buffeted by a wave of profit taking, after a sharp advance during the past three sessions in which the Dow rose some 17 points.

Selling began late Thursday, trimming most of the day's sharp early gains, and continued throughout today's session.

Most stock categories were lower, except for rails, which were up, and steels, which were mixed.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was off 1.0 at 330.9.

Big Board blocks included 158,900 shares of Heller International at 26½, off 1¼; and 100,000 of Addressograph-multigraph at 40, down ⅝.

Noon prices on the Big Board also included Wheelabrator-Frye, off ⅝ to 8; General Electric, off ⅝ to 60¼; Ampex, down ⅜ to 8⅝; Itek, down 3¼ to 46⅝; and Bengue, off ⅛ to 9⅛.

American Stock Exchange prices included Vikoa, up 2⅛ to 19½; Anthony Industries, up 1⅛ to 23⅝; Circle K. Corp., off 1¼ to 28¼; Austral Oil, down ¼ to 21½; and Gearhart, off ⅝ to 14¼.

Value-Added Tax Mulled On Weekend

governmental Relations Thursday in favorable terms by Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Robert E. Merriam of Chicago, commission chairman, said Nixon "said directly and unequivocally to me he had not made up his mind."

The plan described to the 24-member commission would involve a value-added tax of about 3 per cent, raising $18 billion. Of this, $5 billion would be used for income-tax rebates and credits to ease the effect of the new levy on low-income persons.

About $13 billion would be distributed to the states, on the condition that local residential property taxes for schools be dropped. These amount to about half the property taxes on homes.

The distribution could be on the basis of $1 for each $2 of state support.

Richardson said the tax could be made much less regressive, that is, easier on the lower incomes.

In addition, he said, states will need help if the Supreme Court upholds lower-court rulings that the financing of schools by local property taxes leads to inequities and is unconstitutional.

When the commission took up a resolution to start staff study, Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., a member, successfully moved to amend it so the first matter studied would be whether and to what extent federal funds are needed to help states and local taxpayers with educational costs.

"Philosophically, I'd have to be convinced about a tax of this kind," Fountain said. "My mind is open on the possibility of some form of federal help."

Merriam estimated the commission will need six months to a year to come up with recommendations.

Our Managerial Charter

The Board of Directors has now unanimously voted to create a new Town Charter Revision Commission.

What the prospective existence of such a Charter Revision Commission should produce is a careful, searching look at the mechanics and concepts embodied in the 1947 Charter under which we operate, to see whether either our municipal experience or changing times and conditions recommend touches of modernization.

What the existence of a Charter Revision Commission is more likely to produce is a new round in the kind of debate which becomes perennial for cities and towns which have gone into the managerial form of government.

Most municipalities go into the managerial form of government after they have found themselves being corrupted and bankrupted by the old political system.

We here in Manchester had government which was both honest and solvent and chose the managerial form, when we did, not out of desperation ,but as our own idea of what would be the best form of government to have through the period of change and growth which lay ahead.

We believe the Charter, and its form of government, have served Manchester remarkably well.

Inevitably, however, in every managerial government community there develops a certain political restiveness. One political party or another thinks it would like to have more complete power and responsibility for itself. Some ordinary citizens regret the fact that they can't go to the voting machines and vote the city manager or the town manager or the general manager out of his job.

This kind of combination of political hunger and voter unrest, or regrettable voter indifference, has already begun to manifest itself in Hartford, which went into the managerial form of government in 1947 for reasons of political corruption and fiscal bankruptcy combined. In Hartford, the voters have already been tempted back toward a stronger mayor and more directly political form of government.

So far as any basic change in its own philosophy of government is concerned, Manchester has an excellent opportunity to watch and see how a turn back toward the old political system is going to work out in Hartford, before it opens the way for any charter proposal which might galvanize the manager system's eager enemies without rousing its sleepy friends.

Snow As A Socializing Influence

One might judge, from the amount of audible protest, that it is only the skiers who have any interest in having New England winters honor tradition by piling down a little snow over themselves now and then.

But if the many-corpuscled bloodstream of the skier gives a joyful leap when snow falls, there is also a quiet, more subdued pleasure which flows through the fancy and expectations of the gentle bird watcher.

The bird watcher knows that the number of inches of snow covering the landscape has a definite proportionate influence on the shyness and friendliness of the birds.

It takes only the thinnest kind of cover, in fact, to persuade the birds who live on wild seed that the convenience and plenty of man-collected and man-displayed food is worth the price, which consists of consenting to being looked at, and perhaps photographed, at close range, by members of the human side of the family.

A little snow can open the kind of winter which is social and full of new acquaintances and possible new friendships, which is what skiers say, too.

Puzzlements

Among editorial writers and other journalistic pundits it's almost unthinkable to let anyone think that as they think things over they don't know what to think.

The nature of our work casts us in the role of professional amateurs. Few of the tribe are experts in anything, and of course none can be experts in everything. Yet the tribal custom calls for some comment one day on the question of Red China, the next day perhaps on the policies of the Federal Reserve Board and on another day some opinion on the proper size of the Defense Department. Rarely is one of the clan found wanting in that duty.

This is not as outrageous as it may seem. Every thoughtful citizen has his own opinion on most of these matters, as indeed he should, however unexpert he may be. The journalistic commentator differs only in that he is not distracted by having to tend the store, lay bricks or remove appendixes.

This confers on him no special wisdom. His only claim to public attention is that he has the time to make an occupation of every man's avocation. That, and the fact that most of the affairs of this troubled world are too important to be left to the experts anyway.

Yet with all of that, there are some things that remain a puzzlement no matter how much time you have to think about them. Brood as you will, you cannot find the right or wrong of them. The solution eludes the mind. They passeth understanding. To wit:

The troubles on the Indian subcontinent. Here Hindus are slaughtering Moslems, and Moslems Hindus. The Pakistanis oppressed the Bengalis, and the Bengalis in turn cut the throats of Pakistanis. India makes war on Pakistan with no martial provocation, ostensibly to save the Bengalis.

But the war lays waste to the countryside, unleashes a wave of wholesale killing and leaves an Indian army of occupation in what used to be East Pakistan. Meanwhile, the big powers choose up sides; Russia here, China there and the U.S. in the middle.

Where is the right or wrong of it?

And where is the man wise enough to know now the way out of it all?

Or take the Irish question. Surely it is beyond understanding that in the 20th century Catholics and Protestants, Christians all, cannot live together without blowing everything up. The more you think about it the more you are brought to sorrow.

So too will the Israeli-Arab confrontation. When you try to find the "right" or the "wrong" of it, all depends on what point in time you choose to begin. In its present form the hatred has been with us all of our century, and much of it is as old as the time itself.

But it is not only in far off places, or in matters of such slaughter, that there are things to overwhelm the mind. Here at home also are problems that remain a puzzlement. Forty years ago more than 12 million people in this country had no way to earn their daily bread. The problem then, or so it seemed, was to raise prices and wages. Since then the best minds of our time wrestled with that problem, and today the problem is to restrain wages and prices; on that score, inflation did its work well.

Yet withal the plague of unemployment remains. No one has found any solution for it except the dole or forced labor, which substitutes one misery for another.

There are other problems even more excruciating because they cannot be answered even with a dole. Why must every parent today agonize in fear that his child too may go the way of the heroin addict?

The usual explanations will not suffice. Dope-pushers we have always had with us, victims also. But now it is not a matter of the ignorant, nor of the unfortunate at the lower end of the economic scale; the drug problem touches every segment of society, the informed, the educated, the affluent. The victims begin it with no excuse and knowing that there is no way out.

If the Why? escapes us, so does the solution. Halting the drug traffic proves daily futile, and how do you change the whole outlook of people?

This last question is the most nagging. For if you could change the attitude of Moslem and Hindu, of Arab and Jew, of Catholic and Protestant, of old and the young, of black and of white, of those who govern and those who are led — well, if you could do all that, then the other answers might not be so elusive.

Be that as it may, everywhere you turn you meet problems that defy the mind. Some are merely intractable; others defy even comprehension.

Perhaps this confusion is just a product of senescence, for it's true that when I was younger I was surer of the answers to things. Or at least more ready to accept the simple solutions offered by others. Whereas now I am at loss how to answer a gentle reader who brought up these problems, noted above, and thus spared these meanderings.

The gist of his letter was that if I was so all-fired smart why didn't I solve these problems and save Messrs. Nixon, Muskie and Humphrey a lot of woe.

About all I could reply, in a moment of unwonted humility, was that after a long time observing this troubled world there are some things still bewildering. The more you think about them the less you know what to think. And if that be treason to the tribe, make the most of it.

Muskie And Vietnam

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — The inner dynamics of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's front-running campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination explain why he has now lunged toward an advanced position on Vietnam: A threat to end military supplies for the Saigon regime unless power is shared with the Communists.

So clear an anti-Saigon stance has been stubbornly resisted by Muskie during his laborious three-year journey away from support of the war. But irresistible pressure has come from the new Muskie apparatus of advisers, political technicians and supporting politicians. Nearly all advocate total termination of U.S. military aid to South Vietnam, the heart of President Nixon's Vietnamization program.

The result is Muskie's new position, having shrouded implications that may not be revealed until Nov. 2. For now, Muskie men are jubilant that brutal White House attacks against his position have pinned down a Democratic nomination which seemed nearly certain anyway. But still to be determined is the image, essential to defeat President Nixon.

That image depends upon impression, and nothing could have been more immodest before last week than Muskie's on Vietnam. He steadfastly refused to say whether he would or would not continue military supplies to Saigon after U.S. troops were gone. Muskie had declined to go as far against such aid as was advised by Clark Clifford, the hawk-turned-dove former Secretary of Defense and now Muskie's principal political tutor on Vietnam.

When President Nixon laid bare on Jan. 25 secret negotiations with Hanoi, Muskie (in Carbondale, Ill.) had time to place but one telephone call before making a public statement. It went to Clifford in Washington, who urged a denuciation of the President's initiative.

Muskie, by nature a cautious state-of-Mainer, instinctively rejected Clifford's advice. "Obviously," he declared that night in Carbondale, "we all welcome a new initiative on the part of our government to end the war and bring the troops home." The next day, Jan. 26, brought some Muskie criticism of the Nixon plan's details but no outright opposition.

Nor was there any change Jan. 27 when Muskie, airborne between Jacksonville and Daytona Beach in Florida, told us that Mr. Nixon's speech probably secured short-term political advantage. But long-term advantage, Muskie went on, would depend on whether the plan actually ended the war. On that point, he was extremely doubtful. Supremely confident, Muskie scarcely seemed geared for massive rebuttal.

But some Muskie operatives were less self-assured. Veterans of 1968 peace politics, they feared Mr. Nixon had suffocated the war issue for the foreseeable future. One top aide wondered, almost hopefully, whether it would take a successful 1972 Tet offensive by the Communists to revive anti-war sentiment.

More important, Muskie's soft response to the Nixon plan evoked harsh private reactions from prominent Democratic doves who had endorsed the Senator for President. One such influential Congressman telephoned a Muskie lieutenant to inform him that he and his constituents were in a state of anxiety over Muskie's position. However small the true weight of such sentiments might be on the scale of national public opinion, they were keenly felt in Muskie headquarters.

Finally, Muskie's foreign policy advisers in Washington had immediately begun writing a Vietnam speech, hoping Muskie would change his position. In this atmosphere, Muskie was indeed changing. On Saturday morning, Jan. 29, Muskie told aides he felt the Nixon proposal had been rejected by Hanoi (though this was debatable) showing a green light for him to criticize it.

Subsequent Florida-to-Washington telephone calls and non-stop meetings back in Washington transformed Muskie's past imprecisions into much harder formulations. Muskie staffers do not deny the new position, delivered Feb. 2, boils down to this: Unless Saigon seeks political accommodation with the Communists, Muskie as President would — sooner or later — end its warmaking potential by cutting off military supplies.

That is still a step from Sen. George McGovern's first acceptance of Hanoi's demands. Muskie as President could indeed changing. On Saturday morning, Jan. 29, Muskie told aides he felt the Nixon proposal had been rejected by Hanoi (though this was debatable) showing a green light for him to criticize it.

"Jobs That We Must Do"
To the Editor,

After the side stepping of a very serious situation in Manchester by both the Republican minority and the Democratic majority, I have no choice but to respond. I agree with the majority party that a fence along Main St. is not the answer to the problem of our young people hanging around the area of Friendly Ice Cream. I agree with the minority that some of our elderly walk by or drive by this area every day. But I must say that our elderly and our young people walk or ride in many areas of town and are just as apt to be molested there as on Main St. I disagree with the Human Relations Commission and the Youth Commission that an unsupervised coffee shop is the answer. The Friendly Ice Cream parlor across the street from where they hang out is open to them if they want to behave themselves, for that matter, any coffee shop or restaurant in town.

We, the taxpayers, are paying dearly to give our young people a good education. We are allotting money for a teen center for our youth to enjoy themselves, and I commend the young people who have worked so hard to make this a reality. I hope the few who feel they must be accepted will find this a place to have fun and not cause trouble for the rest of the young people.

If many of the parents of these young people who hang around on Main St. blocking the sidewalks, walking in front of cars, and the usual trouble making, took a ride by and made their children get home where they belong, we wouldn't have this problem. But if these parents don't know or don't care, then the town ordinance states that the Town Manager should instruct the Chief of Police to arrest these people who are obstructing sidewalks and roads in our town. If law and order is not the answer, or if parental guidance does not work, then we have a real problem.

The members of our Board of Directors are elected by the people and I would hope that they would sit down and discuss problems such as this on a strictly non-political basis, not how happy it will make the Democratic voter, the Republican voter, the young, the old, the rich, the poor, but all the people in the town of Manchester. Maybe we can set an example for other towns by doing the jobs that we must do.

Supports Pearson Amendment
To the Editor,

This writer agrees wholeheartedly with Rep. Marilyn Pearsoll when she said: "An income tax is a politician's dream and a taxpayer's nightmare and I highly commend her for submitting a resolution to amend Connecticut's Constitution so that an income tax would be prohibited unless approved by a state-wide referendum. It is a rare occasion these days when an elected official will stand up without fear or favor and act in the public behalf in the interest of God and country. We need more of the type of representative for the General Assembly that Marilyn Pearson has been in the conduct of her elected office and less of the "strictly" political type "representative" of the majority as the fiscal mess in "general" and the state debt in "particular" so well implies.

State Treasurer Robert I. Bardon said recently that the total state debt will reach an all time high of $2.15 billion by the end of June and that it will require a "phenomenal" $344 million to service the debt during 1972-73 fiscal year. This $344 million in interest fees is one "gravy-train" we don't hear advertised over television. The reason is obvious. The Encyclopedia Britannia says: Banks lend by creating credit; they create the means of payment out of nothing. Inflation occurs. Question. When was the last time the board of directors of the banks and the insurance industry made any public request that our government return to a sound money and fiscal economy? Sound money and fiscal integrity is the very taproots of a free society. Destroy one and the other will die. Socialist bureaucrats by discarding the rule of law and substituting principles civilization has proved to be unsound and often degenerate have all but scuttled our ship of state.

Government under the rule of law is essential and necessary in the government of a free society. But when a government circumvents the rule of law it is tyranny.

Caps, Gowns May Fade From Graduation Scene

By JUDITH DONOHUE
(Herald Correspondent)

Those attending Bolton High School's graduation in June may be surprised to find several departures from the traditional graduation fare.

First, and most obviously, students may not be wearing caps and gowns. Under a new policy adopted by the Board of Education last night, each senior class will determine for itself whether it will wear the traditional garb. If a majority of the class votes in favor of the cap and gown, all seniors will be required to conform.

Ornaments, such as peace symbols and beads, may be added to the graduation outfit only with prior approval by the class.

In another major policy change, the honorary positions of class valedictorian and salutatorian have been virtually abolished. Instead the top five students in the class, as determined by grade point average, will be recognized at the commencement ceremony and in the program.

Two graduation addresses will be given by seniors selected on the basis of a contest which will be open to everyone in the class. Judging of the essays will be done by a committee of five faculty members to be selected by the seniors.

Policies adopted at last night's meeting were based on a proposal submitted by a committee of students and staff members set up early in the school year to explore graduation policies.

The committee was formed after students objected to a statement made by Dr. Joseph Castagna, superintendent of schools, which suggested the essay method for choosing graduation speakers. His recommendation was apparently based on dissatisfaction with present policies by which the top two students automatically are designated to give the addresses.

Both High School Principal Norman Shaw and student Stephen Sherman admitted that the policy adopted last night is "not much different" from Castagna's original proposal, except that it is more specific and defines the selection committee more clearly.

The students' original complaint, that pre-selection of the graduation message by an essay contest amounts to "censorship", has apparently not been answered.

Asked whether the proposal submitted last night represents the feeling of the majority of the senior class, Sherman replied, "It represents the majority of our committee."

The committee's endorsement of the proposal was far from unanimous, having been passed by a 4 to 4 vote. The committee is comprised of six students and five staff members.

Member Comments

School board member Dr. Elizabeth Alton commended the students for coming up with a "reasonable" decision on the graduation issue, saying that the proposal "is a good one, represents a lot of thought and work, and is compact."

Member Marilyn Sreslow indicated her support for the open policy embodied in the essay contest, saying, "Certainly a C student may have something as worthwhile to say as the A student."

Board Vice - Chairman William Grunake expressed reservations to the new policy, admitting, "I hate to break with tradition."

In another first, the board agreed to a student council request to have one of its members sit on the Board of Education as a non-voting, but contributing member. The student, to be chosen by the student council, will be allowed to sit at all regular board meetings but will not be admitted into executive sessions.

Most board members supported the request for student representation, feeling that it would be beneficial for both the students and the board. Sherman and Dr. Alton both expressed the view that it would provide information and clear up lines of communication.

Board member William Vogel was the lone dissenter, voting against the proposal on the grounds that other groups in town were equally entitled to rights of representation.

"Why do you feel that you need a privilege beyond that of any taxpayer, specifically the Parent-Teachers Organization?" he queried.

Other board members, supporting the student representative, said that most groups interested in education represent parents and taxpayers, whom the board, as elected officials, already represent. There was no provision, however, for representing students under existing policy.

Dr. Alton indicated her support of a student seat, but first jokingly elicited a promise from Sherman that there would be no student filibusters. The board adjourned to executive session at 10:10 p.m.

Columbia

PZC, Conservation Unit Study Natural Resources

The Conservation Commission (CC) attended the meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) this week to present suggestions and recommendations for the preservation and use of the town's natural resources, and to explain a recently completed soil survey map.

Conservation Commission Chairman Austin Doscher displayed the color-coded map prepared by CC members under the direction of Thorton Secor, of the State Soil Conservation Service.

The map shows marsh and swamp lands, compact glacial till, hardpan and flood plain soils, the three types of soil found in Columbia.

The hardpan and seasonal highwater table make it very difficult to design and install septic fields that function satisfactorily. Two acre zoning is recommended in such areas. No building is recommended for the marsh and swamp areas.

The CC suggested the map be the basis for regulations for building restrictions.

Considerable discussion resulted from the CC's recommendation that any subdivision containing 10 or more acres should reserve one acre in every 10 for open space.

The open space would be decided to the town and its location in the subdivision would have to be acceptable to the town. This would allow open space on adjoining subdivisions to be made contiguous.

The arrangement would protect the quality of streams and provide recreation areas, the CC said, and would preserve the country atmosphere, insuring a healthy, attractive natural environment.

It also was suggested the town try to preserve 25 per cent of its total area as open space.

This would include school, church, town hall and town recreation areas now in use and would leave unsuitable building areas in their natural state, eliminating the need for costly corrective measures after ill-advised development.

Regarding river zones, the CC urged provision of a method of development for land located in areas adjoining rivers, provision for flood control and soil conservation and the promotion of preservation of streams and streambelts.

Flood plain areas along the Hop and Ten - Mile Rivers, which have a high water table during most of the year, have severe limitations for urban uses because of flood hazards, the CC said.

Open space could be located in a stream area without loss of building acreage and additional land to the developer, the CC said. A minimum setback of 150 feet from wetland could be required for building along streams, thus protecting flood plain vegetation.

Mrs. George Greenway, co-chairman of the CC, spoke about the importance of regulating lakefront summer cottages' remodeling for year-round use, a problem that has come up in several neighboring towns.

Building Officer Sam Pescatello said any applications for such modeling have been approved only if current requirements for drainage fields and sewage disposal are met.

The printed suggestions given to the PZC contained many references to regulations in nearby towns. Les Barber, planner for the Windham Regional Agency, was also present and offer suggestions.

The PZC has scheduled a special meeting in two weeks to begin an in-depth study of the CC's suggestions.

Nonetheless, the White House can now claim Muskie is forcing Saigon into an historically fatal embrace with the Communists even though its armed forces are faring well on the battlefield. Muskie's political advisers do not deny this but add American voters really don't care about such questions anymore, a fateful judgment that has helped propel Ed Muskie a long distance on the Vietnam road.

Vernon

Kickoff Concert To Open Drive For Band Trip

A concert, to kick off a membership drive for the Vernon Friends of Music will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at the Vernon Center Middle School.

The new group was formed to help finance a trip for the high school and Middle school bands.

The two bands have been invited to participate in the Northeast Instrumental Conference to be held in New Hampshire later this month.

Samuel Goldfarb, head of the music department asked the Board of Education, in December, to contribute one-half the amount of the cost of the trip. This would have been about $4,335. The board, however, agreed to contribute $2,500 and asked that the remainder of the total be raised by other means.

While the Friends of Music formed to initially raise the money for the New Hampshire trip, the group plans to remain organized to raise funds for future trips.

Monday night's concert will be presented in two parts with the Middle School band playing the first half and the high school band, the last half. During intermission booths will be set up under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. James Earl, co-chairmen of the membership committee. At that time there will be an opportunity to enroll in the organization.

Alfred Adam has been elected president of the group; Mrs. Charles Boland, secretary; Mrs. Theodore Dougenik, treasurer; Joseph Duffin, chairman of by-laws committee; John Ryan, special gifts chairman; Richard Steinberg, a student at Rockville High School, was named student coordinator of all student activities and will also serve as advisor to the club officers.

Another fund-raising event is planned for next Thursday. It will be "Band Day" at the Tasty Chick on Rt. 83 when a portion of the day's proceeds will be turned over to the band fund.

Seeks $1 Million

False Prosecution Claimed in Civil Suit

A former Manchester businessman, C. Richard Jablonowski, has filed a civil suit in U.S. District Court suing his former employers for $1 million.

Jablonowski, who was acquitted on three counts of embezzlement last year, claims that complaints from his employers caused him to be falsely prosecuted.

Named as defendants in the suit are Neil H. Ellis of 43 Butternut Rd., Seymour Kaplan of 126 Adelaide Rd., and five real estate and construction firms based in Manchester.

The firms, all with offices at 655 Parker St., are the Green Manor Construction Co. Inc., First Hartford Realty Corp., Slated Construction Co. Inc., Village Construction Co. Inc., and Adepa Inc.

The writ, filed in federal court in New Haven, was served on the defendants Jan. 26, according to Jablonowski's counsel, Atty. Sid Miller of Hartford.

The suit charges that defendants Ellis and Kaplan headed a plot to have Jablonowski falsely prosecuted. The legal papers claim that the criminal charges against Jablonowski were instigated by the defendants "falsely and with malice," and that they "maliciously" hindered, and obstructed the due course of justice.

Jablonowski was charged with drawing dual salaries from two of the corporations in the Manchester business complex. After his acquittal in Hartford County Superior Court in February 1971, he was held on lesser embezzlement charges which were later nolled by the Hartford County state's attorney.

Jablonowski was arrested on complaint of Ellis in May 1970. Ellis said then that Jablonowski, an executive assistant, had drawn a $25,000 annual salary from one firm and $18,200 from another.

In his trial, Jablonowski admitted the double salaries, but said that part of his job was to falsify records to justify overcharges for federal projects in Rockville, Torrington, West Haven, and Massachusetts. The firms were doing business with the federal housing authority and the Department of Housing and Urban Development at the time.

While awaiting trial in Superior Court, Jablonowski was held in lieu of bond under maximum security in the state prison at Somers. He had requested maximum security because he claimed he was marked for execution as a result of supplying information about the construction trade to federal investigators.

Ellis, formerly Jablonowski's employer, is president of many of the related corporations named defendants. Kaplan, Ellis' brother-in-law, is also an officer of many of the firms connected with the case.

The writ claims that Ellis "exercised virtual control" over actions and decisions of the corporate defendants, and that Kaplan, as an officer and employe, assisted Ellis.

In the damage claims, Jablonowski contends that he suffered "humiliation," an "impaired" ability to find a job, and the lengthy imprisonment. He was held at Somers for over eight months.

Reward Offered In Death of Girl

WATERBURY (AP) — A $3,000 reward was offered Thursday for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who stabbed 14-year-old Diane Bowman of Torrington early Sunday.

The reward was approved by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill after a request was made under the general statutes by Francis M. McDonald, state's attorney of New Haven County.

The girl apparently was abducted from Torrington, McDonald said, adding that "at the present time the investigation appears to be without any substantial leads."

Any information should be offered at the nearest state police headquarters.

Multi-Town Approach Favored by Business

The Vernon, Ellington and Tolland business committees favor a multi-town approach to many vital services, favor a personal income tax over a higher sales tax, and are very concerned about the ecology.

Richard Rose, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce legislative committee, reported to the chamber board of directors Tuesday, the results of a survey his committee conducted of the businessmen in the tri-town area.

Of the 257 chamber members contacted, 57, or 22.2 per cent responded. The questions concerned a number of timely civic matters and Rose urged the directors, "Let's tell Houley, Dooley and King how we view the tax situation." He referred to Sen. Robert Houley, Thomas Dooley, who is Vernon's representative to the legislature, and Atty. Robert King, representative from Tolland and Ellington.

Of the 57 people answering, 53 per cent favored a personal income tax while 44 per cent favored a higher sales tax or other "pay as you go" taxes. Three per cent didn't answer this question.

Asked if they would support cutbacks in state services to avoid a deficit, 82 per cent said they would, 11 per cent said they would not and 7 per cent offered no opinion.

Only 5 per cent would favor an open-ended welfare budget while 86 per cent would not and 9 per cent had no answer.

While 87 per cent consider unemployment at the present level in the state a serious problem, 13 per cent do not.

The businessmen were overwhelmingly against paying unemployment benefits to strikers (96 per cent).

On the question of using public funds to subsidize private corporations for public bus transportation, 72 per cent voted against, 25 were in favor and 3 per cent had no answer.

Asked if they would favor rapid completion of 86 widening, 79 per cent said they would while 17 per cent said they would not and the other 4 per cent offered no opinion.

Those surveyed showed little interest in the establishment of a civic center in the area or a "model city."

About 75 per cent of those polled indicated an interest in a multi-town approach to problems of: Public water supply, refuse disposal, sewage treatment, public recreation and school busing.

The survey also asked those contacted to make a list of priority items they would like to see accomplished. Rose said these lists were omitted mostly toward recreation and ecology.

One answer: "Clean up the stinking river."

Boston Controls Noise Pollution

BOSTON (AP) — The city Air Pollution Control Commission has issued preliminary regulations which set maximum permissible levels of noise in neighborhoods.

Sixty decibles of noise is permitted in residential areas during the day; 50 at night. Commercial zones would be allowed five decibles higher.

The commission said most sounds fall between 20 decibles of a whisper and 140 decibels of a jet plane taking off. Heavy traffic has a rating of 60 while the noise near some autos goes to 85.

A spokesman said the commission will begin enforcement with spot checks and follow ups to complaints.

Audience Silent For Spokesman Of States Party

Rene Sauzedde of Terryville and chairman of the Connecticut chapter of the National States Rights Party spoke on the aims and goals of his political party last night at Manchester Community College. The spectators were silent.

Sauzedde, who was accompanied by a bodyguard, was sponsored by the Cultural Committee of the college sociology classes involved in social problems.

Sauzedde spoke briefly on the "only political party in the United States which is for white" people only. The party would like to expand its membership and run political candidates for office.

During the question period, one black student asked him that either he was accusing so many groups of being Communist, how could the students be sure that he was not a Communist? The audience spontaneously applauded the student.

Sauzedde said he had files on known Communists.

When asked to define a white person, he said that whites were a minority of less than 10 per cent of the world population. He said the definition of a white person would differ from the regular definition as he felt it was members of the Aryan race who were white.

When asked why he had become involved with this right-wing group Sauzedde said, "I felt that communism was taking over the United States and until two years ago I had not studied this at all. When I got into the study of communism I found that it was only part of a national conspiracy for one world government."

The National States Rights Party has been in existence for 12 years and Sauzedde has been chairman of the Connecticut Chapter since November 1970. There are about 300 party members in Connecticut.

Sauzedde, who has been involved with the chapter for about two years, is employed in a motorcycle shop in Thomaston. He and his wife have three children.

There is no Manchester chapter although there are members of the party who live here.

Business Told To Fight Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says businessmen should be as tough in trying to reduce crime, which costs them about $16 billion a year, as they are in attempting to cut the prices of labor and materials.

A study made by the Department of Commerce said: "Businessmen should start to view crime just like any other component of business cost. Crime losses are costs. Cutting crime losses should receive the same sort of constant aggressive attention devoted to cutting labor costs, facility costs or any other costs that sap profits."

The survey reported Thursday covered only ordinary crimes like burglary, robbery, vandalism, shoplifting, employee theft, bad checks and arson, and excluded losses caused by organized crime or crimes like airplane hijacking and embezzling.

Mine Maps on Film

WASHINGTON — The Bureau of Mines now has on film maps of virtually every anthracite mine in three out of the four hard-coal regions of Pennsylvania.

The bureau began the microfilming of mine maps in 1963. Thus far the collection includes 289 major and 19 independent abandoned mines, representing about 95 per cent of all major mines.

River Park Unit Backs Laurel Lake Purchase

The Hockanum River Linear Park Coordinating Committee voted to support the proposed purchase and development of land in the Laurel Lake area for a landfill and recreation area by the town.

The vote was taken after Ronald Kraatz, a waste disposal engineer of the Town Public Works Department, explained the plan being considered by the Board of Directors. The plan includes the relocation of part of the river and a brook, the extension of the present landfill and the creation of recreation area near the river. The landfill, as proposed, eventually would be covered with a park.

"This fits in with our plans for the River," said Ernest Tureck, superintendent of the Town Park Department and a committee member. He added that the proposal would help solve the town recreation and refuse problems.

"It falls in with our hopes and our dreams," added Harry Maidment, chairman of the river committee.

Also at the meeting, William Brenelli, assistant town counsel, explained easements. The committee hopes to get easements from property owners on the west side of Hartford Rd. to plant land near the shores. Brenelli will draft some easement agreements for committee members to use in negotiations with owners. The members have been meeting with property owners of the Union Pond area and explaining its plans for a river park. The committee has focused most of its efforts on the pond area.

This Off-Beat Job Is Spent on a Boat

By MARC CHARNEY

MYSTIC (AP) — In a chilly workman's shed used for restoring old sailing vessels, a group of 10 college students saw, hammer, fit, sand and carve to make a boat. They spend a month at it, then look back proudly at what they've put together.

Their work is for a course in economics, but not really. It's a lesson in what craftsmanship is all about. Increasingly this type of experimental course is being offered at a number of colleges and universities across the country.

This program is offered by Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., and it's listed under an economics heading because that's what the teacher who dreamed it up teaches most of the year.

The students are 10 young men and women on a one-month winter break their college has set aside for this type of experimental course—designed to foster individual expression, creativity, or some other kind of experience they wouldn't get in Economics 101.

Other colleges, like Yale University in New Haven, take a different approach, but the idea is the same. At Yale, students pick from a range of student-initiated "hall seminars" to fill out their schedules during the regular academic semester. The subjects can range from film-making to advanced studies in science or political science, depending on what the students and their teachers agree on.

The setting for the Williams course—one of several in which students travel from their campus—is Mystic Seaport, an outdoor museum of sailing history that features replicas of 18th-century buildings standing alongside well-preserved examples of old sailing ships.

So what, you might ask, could you learn in that chilly shed?

. . . his down-east twang . . .

The course's main teacher, a white-haired boatbuilder from Maine named John Gardner (his more formal title at the seaport is senior craftsman, small craft studies), tells you in his Down-East twang that "this type of cross plank goes back to the middle ages.. It goes back to Breughel...back like this were used in the Newfoundland fishery."

The gunwales, mast step and stern transom are made of yellow pine. Another part is made from the roots of a tree. The boat's planking is northern white pine, its bottom Virginia cedar, its stern white oak.

All that for a 13½-foot boat that could carry one sail and a couple of pairs of oars. Except that it is put together by hand, and the skill used to build it gives it both its beauty and seaworthiness.

Gardner's assistant, a former cabinetmaker from Dublin named Sylvester Costello, talks about craftsmanship with a trace of a brogue, but the message is the same: "The hardest job is learning to handle tools, to sharpen tools...my belief is that anybody who can use a tool can build almost anything...It's the old saying—what's right to the eye is right...It's good for college students to get a chance to use their hands for a change instead of their minds."

. . . learned from them too . . .

The students live for the month on one of the sailing ships, the Joseph Conrad.

Their teacher, assistant economics professor Peter Gottschalk, says he's learned from them too by seeing them 24 hours a day.

And, he says, meeting people like Gardner and Costello is a large part of what he wanted to teach—not just what craftsmanship is, but who the craftsmen are.

"We woke up at 7:30 to get into the same rhythm as people like Mr. Gardner," says Gottschalk, a youngish man with a modest beard. "I found that just by being in contact with it I was being educated."

At the end of the month the students take the boat back to their inland college with them.

Sophomore Chuck Augenbraun says of the project: "One of the big things was living together. We're building something...we're not just building little things. We're building something that we're really proud of. You take much more pride in this kind of work than you do in a paper."

For Jean Utall, an art major and junior exchange student from Smith College, it was "highly educational...I've never done any woodworking. It's all a form of art. It's not a piece of art, it's functional art."

Or, in Augenbraun's view, "You learn you can be very happy without following an accepted career. To me this is an awakening."

Your Dental Health

This week is National Children's Dental Health Week. This is the fifth in a series of articles published by The Herald in cooperation with the Manchester Dental Health Society.

My dentist just told me to stop smoking, as I could be in danger of developing cancer. This really scared me. Can smoking really cause cancer of the mouth?

Smoking is a major factor in oral cancer, just as it is in lung cancer. The incidence of oral cancer is four times as great among smokers as among nonsmokers. Oral cancer is particularly insidious because it is usually painless until it is too late for treatment.

Oral cancer is one of the most malignant of all cancers. Some 15,000 new cases of oral cancer are reported each year. About two out of three of these result in death within five years. Only persons with lung and stomach cancers have lower survival rates than those with oral cancer. Even when oral cancer is treatable, the treatment is often severely disfiguring.

While oral cancer may be the most frightening result of smoking, there are other oral problems associated with the use of cigarettes. For example, dental scientists have found that smokers have a much higher incidence of gum disease than the non-smoking population. In addition, smoking stains the teeth and can cause bad breath. Finally, smoking dulls the taste buds and prevents smokers from enjoying fully the varying tastes of different foods.

In short, smoking is as bad for your oral health as it is for your general health. People who do not smoke shouldn't start and those who do smoke should stop — immediately.

We should add a further word of caution: Do not make the mistake of switching from cigarettes to pipes or cigars. Pipe and cigar smokers have a much higher incidence of lip cancer than non-smokers do.

You should know the five warning signals of oral cancer. They are:

— A sore on the lips, gums, or inside the mouth that will not heal.

— Any swelling of the neck, lips, tongue, or palate.

— A numbness or loss of feeling in any part of the mouth.

— White patches or red spots on the oral structure.

One last comment. Since early detection of oral cancer is vital to its cure, see your dentist regularly. If he observes any abnormality, he will recommend a biopsy to see if the abnormal area is malignant. The sooner oral cancer is diagnosed the better the chances are for a minimum of disfiguring surgery and a complete cure.

Russia Tests Nuclear Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evidence indicates that the Soviet Union has touched off another underground nuclear blast, the Atomic Energy Commission says.

The commission said Thursday seismic signals, "presumably from a Soviet underground nuclear explosion," had been recorded at about midnight Wednesday from the USSR's nuclear test site in Siberia.

The commission said the signals indicated the blast probably packed an explosive wallop of between 20,000 and 200,000 tons of TNT.

Coventry

Charity Ball To Feature Vaughn Monroe Orchestra

The steering committee of the annual Coventry Charity Ball has announced that this year's ball will be held on May 20 at the Manchester Armory, with music provided by Vaughn Monroe and his Orchestra.

This will mark Monroe's second appearance at the ball. He and his orchestra played at the 1969 ball also, the first year that it was held in Manchester.

Ticket sales will be announced shortly, with Coventry residents being offered tickets one month before sales to the general public.

Al Rossi is president of the steering committee, with Leonard Benjamin as chairman; Pat Pesce and Eileen Boardman are in charge of reservations; Ben Zollo, ticket sales; Jack and Bobbi Bynes, program; and Terry Bishop, patron sales.

Vaughn Monroe

Jack Lacek is general coordinator, with Anita Hamblett serving as assistant. Tinka Diehl is secretary and in charge of publicity.

Whirlaways Dance

The Coventry Whirlaways Square Dance Club will hold a "fun level dance" at the Capt. Nathan Hale School Sunday night from 7 to 10.

Guest caller for the Sunday dance will be Dick Leger of Rhode Island who has been calling since 1952. He is well known for his excellent timing and concern for smoothness in dancing.

As a result, Leger is often asked to give lectures or serve on panels at callers' clinics and dance organizations.

Leger's repertoire includes quadrilles and traditional calls, along with western figures, a combination which makes for a varied and interesting program.

He cuts three or four records a year, and at present is working on a series of educational modern square dance albums now included in schools throughout the country.

Rounds for the evening will be cued by Lillian and Paul Zepke. Guests are welcome and soft-soled shoes are required.

Town Counsel To Rule On Teacher Back Pay

Before voting action on retroactive pay for teachers for the period from September 1, 1971 to November 15, 1971, the Board of Education last night directed Aram Damarjian, superintendent of schools, to ask for an opinion by Bruce Kalom, town counsel, as to whether the board can legally pay the teachers.

At its January meeting the board had discussed a letter from Mrs. Grace Parmer, secretary for the Hebron Education Association (HEA), requesting that the teachers be paid salary increases according to the board-teacher agreement.

Action was tabled at that meeting until Edward Hinchliff, a member of the board's negotiating team, could check the legality of paying the retroactive raises.

Last night, Hinchliff said that in his opinion, after checking with the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education and the Economic Stabilization Act, "I can't recommend that this board do anything but turn down the request."

Hinchliff based his decision on the fact that the negotiating committee undertook to negotiate every item with the teachers and created a package, or contract, which was signed Aug. 26. Since the contract was signed, he added, the board is legally bound by the Aug. 26 date.

Hinchliff also mentioned that negotiations, according to his records, were still under way as late as Aug. 23, or after the price freeze went into effect.

The HEA, on the other hand, is contending that the salary agreement was reached before the freeze and, according to its interpretation of the Economic Stabilization Act, there is no statement that it has to be in writing.

Mrs. Marcia Eaton and Mrs. Jacqueline Aldo, representing the HEA at last night's meeting, questioned whether the board was looking for a loophole to get out of paying the raises.

They both stressed that it was not the money involved, as each teacher would receive under $100, but the principle of the matter.

Mrs. Aldo reminded Hinchliff that they bargained in good faith, agreed on terms, and felt at that point that it was settled.

The teachers who are on the HEA negotiating team, she stated, are given the power to enter into agreements and that they are final. They assumed that the board's negotiating team has the same power.

However, Hinchliff told her no agreement is final with the board's negotiating team until the full board has voted approval.

Funds for the increases were appropriated in the budget, and board chairman William Henaghan felt possibly this would give the board an outlet for approving the retroactive pay.

Hinchliff also mentioned the possibility that, if in Kalom's opinion the board could not make the retroactive payments, the funds could be transferred to an expense column for use by the principals and staff.

From this account, each classroom teacher, he stated, could receive an $100 allowance to be spent for equipment, programming or special interest projects for that classroom during the balance of the school year.

This action, he felt "would, in effect, demonstrate to the staff that the Board of Education supports the negotiations that were conducted during the year and also wants to promote the educational environment at the direction of the teachers."

Superintendency

Mrs. Marion Foote reported that the superintendency committee on which she, Hinchliff and Charles Barrasso are representing the board, feels a budget should be drawn up to cover expenses that might be incurred by the committee.

It might be necessary, she stated, to pay transportation for applicants that the committee might be interested in interviewing, as well as hiring a professional to screen the applicants prior to the interviews.

The committee feels, she said, that the four boards comprising Regional District 8, which are jointly considering hiring a superintendent should share this cost equally.

However, once a superintendent is hired, the committee feels the cost should be shared according to the average daily membership (ADM) percentage presently used as the basis of the town's share of Rham High School's budget.

Barrasso expressed an opinion that has been brought up by many Hebron residents lately — Hebron pays its share, the highest part, but "when it comes time to vote, we are getting taxation with out representation."

Mrs. Foote asked whether the board felt a selection committee of four (one from each board) would be sufficient to interview the candidates.

She said the committee also felt that there should be a central office committee of four, one from each town, to coordinate activities once a superintendent is hired.

The board wished to review these recommendations before a decision but it was generally felt by the members that the selection committee should have eight members, or two from each board.

Conference

Damarjian reported to the board on the mid-winter conference held by the Connecticut Association for Advancement of School Administration, formerly the Superintendents Association.

The conference, he said, dealt mainly with the relationship between superintendents, boards of education and municipal officers. Representatives of the three groups were guest speakers.

It was felt that the group did not like the idea of boards of education transferring funds from one category to another in their budgets. Also, boards should not contract with the teachers before a budget is adopted.

Officials also felt, he said, that there should be no difference in pay scales for similar positions in the school system and the town, such as clerks, and that the boards do not look far enough ahead relating to long-term planning and financing.

The conferees expressed dissatisfaction, Damarjian stated, with the idea that some boards feel they have to spend their entire appropriation and that they don't want to get involved with the municipalities in cooperative purchasing.

Generally, it was felt by the group, that there should be more "frequent and intense cooperation and coordination," he said, between the municipal officials, the school boards and the boards of finance.

Special Education

The board authorized Damarjian to make the necessary arrangements for special education of a student after school hours, rather than sending the child to a special school as previously authorized.

Darajian reported it was felt this situation would be better

3 Requests Pending in State

Freeze Is Placed On Utility Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acknowledging that its powers to regulatory agencies so that they can more properly certify regulations were too vague, the Price Commission has temporarily frozen all private utility rates while it develops new guidelines for rate increases.

The commission said Thursday it will announce the new guidelines by March 10.

In the meantime, rates charged by privately owned utilities are frozen for up to 30 days at the rates that were in its effect at midnight Wednesday.

The ruling temporarily blocks about 60 requests for increases totaling billions of dollars, the commission said. It affects virtually all electric, gas, telephone, telegraph, railroad, airline, intercity bus and trucking, barge and pipeline rates.

Publicly owned utilities, such as public mass transit systems and municipal water operations, are not affected. Their rates may go up during the freeze period.

Price Commission chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said the commission will hold four days of public hearings beginning Feb. 22.

"The prime objective of the public hearings," he said, "is to create more explicit guidelines that can be given the rate applications pending before the Public Utilities Commission would be affected by a temporary freeze on rates announced Thursday by the Price Commission.

The three pending applications are from The Connecticut Co., the Southern New England Telephone Co. and the Connecticut Natural Gas Co.

The possibility of a federal veto of the 10-cent-a-ride increase being sought by The Connecticut Co.'s Hartford and New Haven division brought a warning from the company. The current rate is 20 cents.

Attorney John Murtha, who represents the bus company, said Thursday that the government cannot expect the company to operate at a loss.

"If we are prohibited from making increases, legally we couldn't be held to operate the company," he said.

Murtha added he was confident the Price Commission will recognize that any company operating at a loss will have to have an adequate rate increase.

Hearings on a 23 per cent rate increase requested by SNET have been completed, but the "PUC's decision is not required before April 13. A company spokesman said he firm will not comment until the federal guidelines are announced.

The Connecticut Natural Gas Co. was granted an interim rate increase of $1.1 million in revenues to cover rising costs in natural gas and state taxes.

The interim increase, about 3 or 4 per cent to residential customers, will be subject to a final decision by the PUC. The total request is for an additional $2.5 million. Hearings are scheduled for April and the decision is due in June.

The bus firm's hearing has been continued Feb. 22, with a decision due in May.

Yo-Yo Anyone?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University and Antioch College will meet Saturday in the first intercollegiate sports contest between the two schools since 1894.

The last time it was football. This time it's yo-yos.

The Ohio State varsity yo-yo squad recently challenged half a dozen schools. Antioch tagged at the string.

Ohio State captain Karl Allen said each of the six players on a squad must complete 10 tricks picked out of a hat. He is scored on the number of tries required to do the trick.

Cool Dip

Story by LYNDA SCHOLD

Slippery roads and snowflakes may cause some people to shiver at the thought of swimming in February but not the members of the Deepsixers, Manchester High School's diving club.

About 10 members of the diving club participated in an ice dive Sunday morning at Crystal Lake with Gil Hunt, club advisor and head of the English department at the high school. Hunt has been diving for about 20 years and is a certified advanced diver.

At left, Hunt fastens a static line around Michael Peretto of Maple St. while Scott Buceviciius of Benedict Dr., South Windsor looks on.

Eric Bengston of Ridgewood Dr., club president, pours warm coffee for Hunt just after he has surfaced from a dive. Mike Peretto and James Wicks of Glenwood Dr. wait their turn to explore the bottom of the lake.

Thomas Hite of Oak St. attempts to warm his hands after completing a dive.

About 45 students are members of the club. Ten of these members are certified scuba divers. 14 are completing certification and the rest of the club members are skin divers. The scuba divers get their equipment from the Alpine Haus in Vernon.

The club, which has been in existence for three years, participates in several ice dives during the winter and during the summer tries to dive at least once a week. They have participated in several wreck dives to explore ships which have sunk in the Long Island Sound.

Last year the group went to Key Largo, Fla. during spring vacation. This year they plan to go to the Bahamas. In the early spring they also plan an ecology dive to clean the bottom of the lake at Bigelow Hollow State Park in Union where they frequently dive. According to Hunt, when a tank goes on reserve oxygen which lasts about three to five minutes, the boys usually stop what they are doing and fill a nylon mesh bag with garbage from the lake bed.

The boys also go to the Portland State Correctional Facility about once every two months and talk to the men who have almost completed their sentences. To be considered rehabilitated the men must have an outside interest, hobby or job. The boys discuss scuba diving with the men in an attempt to get them interested.

Most of the boys have received their instruction from William O'Neill, town director of public works and the instructor for the scuba diving class sponsored by the Manchester Recreation Dept. He is also a former U.S. Coast Guard and Geodetic Survey diver.

The OLD CODGER'S COGITATIONS

Maple Street ended when the road grade began to be steeper. Mrs. Russell's home on the north side was the last house. Her large mowing or hay field crossed the end of the road and extended some distance to the left and right of it. To the east her lot went to the woods. Opposite her house was a very high hill on the top of which was a large white house occupied by a Shay family — and back of it a small brown house of the Black family. Henry Black was teamster for many years.

None of these, Wells St., School, Eldridge, Maple and Oak Sts. extended as far as present maps show them intersecting with others. Only cart paths went through to Autumn from the ends of Oak and School. In the area bounded west by the ends of these streets, east by the cart path that became Autumn St., south by Charter Oak St., and north to about where Cromwell St. is now, there were no streets. It was almost solidly occupied by quite large trees. Largely yellow (pitch) pine, a little white pine, and variety of hardwoods, oak and chestnut in top story. Much of this area had been part of the big Eldridge estate. There was evidence that before the pines took over, their site had been under cultivation and the remains of a sizeable apple orchard were evident.

All O.C. saw was nearly straight rows of stumps and hollow trunks of long dead apple trees. From them we could get a pot flying squirrel anytime. Mother would only allow one to be taken for a pet at a time. The little fellows were perfect pets. Always gentle to handle, easy to care for, very neat and sweet. They always seems they were content and happy when well treated. They became so attached to their home and friends they would not leave when allowed their liberty. They were all named "Gyp." Don't know why.

One morning when O.C. was about to put on a stocking he found "Gyp" sleeping in it. One day when he came out of a coat pocket and climbed up on a shoulder the kids were giving him too much attention so the teacher told O.C. to put his pet in one of the drawers of her desk and get him when time to go home. At dismissal time all that "Gyp" had in the drawer with him was a lot of white confetti. The test papers had to be all done again which didn't add to O.C.'s popularity.

But one summer day "Gyp" took off from the top of an open door, sailed across the room and landed all spread on a sheet of sticky fly-paper. In no time flat he was completely wrapped up in it. O.C.'s Mother rescued him and washed him the best she could, but there was still enough poison he licked off to cause his untimely death.

Vocation Test For Military Slated at MHS

Manchester High School's guidance department will sponsor the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery of tests (ASVAB) Wednesday at 8 a.m. Students who wish to be tested must register by the end of the homeroom period Tuesday.

Testing is voluntary, there is no cost to the high school or student, and the program is not connected with Selective Service.

ASWAB is a series of nine paper and pencil tests covering electronics, general mechanical, motor mechanical, clerical administrative, and general technical. It is designed to measure the potential of the high school student in a variety of occupational groups important to the military services.

The test battery provides free aptitude testing and assistance in career planning. Tables, showing the relationship between certain civilian occupations and military occupational groups tested, are available to guidance counselors for discussion with students.

ASWAB also provides the high school with a vocational counseling tool. It can supplement the academically oriented tests produced by the College Entrance Examination Board and other organizations.

ASVAB is the joint responsibility of the military services. The Army is charged with research and development, the Air Force with scoring, and the Navy with preparation of the counselors' manual.

Information Session Thursday

First Draft of CDAP To Be Shown Public

By GLENN GAMBER
(Herald Reporter)

A public information session on a preliminary CDAP (Community Development Action Plan) draft has been scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building.

The session was set at a meeting last night of the CDAP Agency, after the members had briefly reviewed and discussed the document. The draft recently was received from the Center for the Environment and Man Inc. (formerly the Travelers Research Corp.), the agency's planning consultant.

Thursday's session is to allow members of the public to examine the document and ask questions. It will not be a public hearing.

Public hearings will be scheduled for later dates. At these hearings members of the public will be asked to comment on the CDAP plans. A final draft will be written after the comments at the public hearings have been reviewed by the CDAP agency.

There are 12 areas of community life for which various plans have been suggested. John Harkins, assistant town manager and CDAP coordinator, has indicated that there may be several public hearings, with only a few of the areas covered at each. The areas for which plans have been proposed include education, recreation, culture, housing, public safety, economic development, social services, general government, public utilities, health, transportation, and interpersonal communications.

The document contains those projects and those changes in town administration and government which the seven CDAP task forces and the CDAP Agency feel should be accomplished some time during the next six years.

Patrick Donlon, agency member, suggested that there be a brief narrative at the beginning of the document explaining the CDAP process. He proposed also that there be an outline of the agency's $150,000 budget and a list of those persons who participated in the program.

Harkins observed that some of the proposals listed in the document are already in progress and said there has been "a lot of spinoff planning" generated by CDAP.

Donlon said, "That wouldn't hurt a bit to be in the narrative."

Dr. Sedrick Rawlins voiced what appeared to be a latent complaint of several agency members, the unsatisfactory service of CEM. Rawlins suggested that representatives of the center be invited to meet with the agency so that agency members could express their disappointment with CEM's work. "I think they should know how disappointed we were," Rawlins said.

Roger McDermott, Donlon and Harkins seemed to share Rawlins feelings.

From comments by the agency members last night, their disappointment seems to stem from the fact that the consulting which Traveler's Research, and later CEM, was supposed to provide, tapered off as the program progressed. Rawlins recalled that representatives of the consulting firm attended CDAP task force and agency meetings in the early stages of the program.

The original $67,500 contract with Traveler's Research Corp. was signed in August, 1969. According to Harkins, provisions of the contract included consulting services and printing of the CDAP document, as well as preparing a map of existing land uses and a map of recommended land uses.

The town has received the existing land use map, but has not received a map of recommended land uses, Harkins said.

Last night's meeting marked the beginning of the end of the CDAP process, begun nearly three years ago. For something of which originally was quite controversial, CDAP is finishing, at least so far, in a whisper.

The Board of Directors in a 7-0 vote in April, 1969 approved what was expected to be a two-year CDAP program. Most of the directors in office then made it clear, however, that they were voting for the program reluctantly, and only because the state required, at that time that a town have an approved CDAP program in order to qualify for state grants under many development and improvement programs.

Last night's meeting was held in the conference room, a cubicle in the Municipal Building basement. In addition to Harkins, McDermott, Donlon, and Rawlins, the only other person present was Wells Dennison, another agency member.

Harkins said he doesn't expect a large turnout for the public information session, but if there is a large turnout, a second such meeting would be scheduled.

Public hearings could draw crowds, since many of the CDAP proposals involve proposed expenditures. The plan must be approved by the Board of Directors. If that occurs, CDAP will exist only as a sort of master plan for the town, a plan which town officials can refer to in setting up future programs.

Those involved with CDAP have said, however, that they hope the Citizen's Advisory Committee, from which the seven CDAP task forces were formed, will continue to advise the Board of Directors and update the CDAP plan.

Police Arrest Coventry Youth In Drug Sale

Joseph Buccheri, 21, of 317 South St., Coventry was arrested by Coventry police last night on a bench warrant issued by the Tolland County Superior Court, charging him with sale of controlled drugs (LSD).

Buccheri was held overnight at the police station in lieu of a $2,000 bond. He was to be presented in Superior Court, Rockville, today.

VERNON

Steven Secore, 17, of 152 South St., and Thomas Ziemba, 19, of 47 Village St., both of Rockville, were arrested last night by Vernon police, on warrants issued by Circuit Court 12.

Secore and Ziemba both were charged with assault in the second degree in connection with an incident in Rockville on Feb. 5, police said.

Both were held at the police station overnight in lieu of posting $7,500 bonds. They were to be presented in Circuit Court 12, East Hartford, today.

Court Cases

CIRCUIT COURT 12
Manchester Session

Two young men were fined for motor vehicle violations yesterday by Judge Nicholas Armentano in separate court trials. Both men questioned the arresting officers and took the stand in their own behalf.

Eric J. LaPierre, 25, of Rt. 19, Stafford, was found guilty of improper parking near the Dial Tone Restaurant, Rt. 195, Tolland. David N. Turkington, 19, of 23 Woodland Dr., South Windsor, was found not guilty of passing on the right and fined $3 for failure to carry his driver's license.

Thomas C. Allen, 18, of High St., pleaded guilty and was given a sentence of six months, suspended, two years probation, and fined $150 for possession of controlled drugs. The charge had been reduced from two counts of the sale of controlled drugs. The probation has the conditions that he must refrain from using, selling and possessing illegal drugs and he must not associate with known drug users.

Guy LeBrun, 17, of 108 Carter St., was sentenced to 15 days for larceny; 60 days, suspended, for criminal mischief; and 30 days, suspended, for larceny. He pleaded guilty to the three charges.

Brian McCartan, 23, of 47 Lilac St., pleaded guilty and was fined $50 for criminal trespass.

Sherman Small, 46, of Orange, was fined $50 on a guilty plea of speeding on the Wilbur Cross Highway in Union. Police clocked his speed at 78 to 80 miles an hour in a 60 mile zone.

Ralph Maynes, 50, of no certain address, was presented on a charge of criminal trespass, second degree, and released on his promise to appear in court Feb. 15 in Rockville. The judge referred him to the Greater Hartford Council on Alcoholism.

500 Million Tons

MEMPHIS — As the Mississippi flows to the Gulf of Mexico it picks up sediment from wheatfields in Montana, the Badlands in South Dakota, rangelands in Colorado, cornfields in Iowa and strip mining in West Virginia.

Its annual flow of 450 million acre-feet carries nearly 500 million tons of sediment to the Gulf annually. This much silt is equal to the topsoil from nearly 500,000 acres.

Zone Hearing Set On Housing Complex

A public hearing will be held March 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Sykes School, Park St., on a request to construct a 320-unit apartment complex on Rt. 83.

The hearing, to be conducted by the Zoning Commission, will be on the request of Melvin Steinman of Rosewood Garden Park, Great Neck, L.I., N.Y. The proposed name for the complex of semi-luxury apartments, is "Nutmeg Village." The land where they would be built is adjacent to the Vernon Gardens Apartment complex.

The plan was originally presented to the commission last November and at that time members of the commission questioned the affect the large number of units would have on the traffic flow onto Rt. 83. Town Attorney Abbott Schwebel also said he had misgivings about the affect the additional number of units would have on the town's sewage treatment facility.

The complex, designed by McHugh Associates of West Hartford, will be garden-and-townhouse-type apartments and built in a courtyard style on the 50-acre site.

Plans are to have 21 units in each building and provision for the parking of 1,050 cars, 298 of which would be in covered carports. The Mt. Vernon apartments, the largest existing complex, contains 260 units.

William McHugh, the architect, said the exterior of the buildings will probably be either cedar or redwood which he explained would lend a warm and more residential look. He added that the warm, natural materials to be used, and the colonial roof lines, will give the complex a contemporary look.

Plans are to have a courtyard between the clusters, a community building, a large swimming pool and a children's pool plus four tennis courts and plenty of open space area for other activities, McHugh said.

If approved, the proposed complex will probably be the most luxurious in Vernon, to date. McHugh said the rent scale will be as higher or higher than any other in town.

Derby Woman Named Judge

HARTFORD (AP) — JoAnne Kiely Kulawis was nominated Thursday by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill to the Circuit Court.

If confirmed by the General Assembly she will become the first woman judge in the state's major adult-court system.

Mrs. Kulawis, Derby's town counsel, was chosen to fill a vacancy created by the elevation of Judge John J. Cassale of Orrington to Common Pleas Court.

A graduate of Albertus Magnus College and George Washington University Law School, she was admitted to practice in Connecticut in September, 1969.

Two other women serve in the Juvenile court.

Blue Cross To Offer Dental Insurance

HARTFORD (AP) — Blue Cross, the hospital insurance plan, has established a dental insurance program in Connecticut.

The program will be offered initially only to companies with 25 employes or more.

Under the "indemnity dental plan" Blue Cross will pay a fixed dentist fee for various dental procedures. If the dentist charges more, the subscriber must pay the difference. The plan will cost $2.60 per month for an individual and $6.85 a month for a family.

Two other programs received conditional approval by State Insurance Commissioner Paul B. Altermatt Wednesday.

A "co-pay" plan would pay 80 per cent of the dental bill, with the subscriber paying 20 per cent. The cost: $2.95 for individuals and $9.95 for a family, per month.

A "Full-service plan" would pay the entire dentist bill, at a monthly pre-paid cost of $3.75 for individuals and $12.60 for family coverage.

Supplemental riders will be available.

The conditional plans will go into effect if half of the state's 1,800 practicing dentists sign up as participants. Blue Cross said it has signed up 35 per cent so far.

The dental programs will be marketed separately from the hospital insurance.

Swank Explains Stand Against 'Porno' Store

A few weeks ago Mel Horne, an employe of the Manchester Book Store, spoke to Lee Hay's "Novelists of Social Protest" classes. His topic was pornography and the so-called 'hard-core' pornography sold by the store.

This past Monday J. Grant Swank of Citizens Against Pornography and John Thompson, mayor of Manchester, spoke to the classes.

Swank emphasized that he and the members of the citizens group were not 'anti-sex' and that he believes that sex is "one of the most exciting, precious and beautiful!" things around. He feels that pornography puts sex in a box and makes it ugly. It is more important that two people totally commit themselves to each other that there be more love in the home and that there be a rebuilding of family life, he said.

Mayor Thompson spoke on the need for authority. The basis for obscenity laws is a social interest in morality. He said that many letters have been received from church groups, the PTA, and individuals who are opposed to the "indiscriminate dissemination of smut."

During the question-and-answer period Swank said that pornography is a legal issue as well as a moral one. He believes that the Connecticut Penal Code is not in keeping with Supreme Court rulings on pornography.

A hostility seemed to exist between classes and Swank and Mayor Thompson that was not evident when Mel Horne spoke to these classes. It appeared that several students were more interested in trying to prove the speakers were de-sexed fuddy duddies than in learning about their point of view.

Whether pornography is 'good' or 'bad' and no matter what their personal feelings are, there is no reason for a closed mind.

Correction

In an article last week, credit for organizing Career Day was given to the Guidance Department. Although the Guidance Department did cooperate in the program, it was initiated and organized by Mr. Rodden, of the COEP department. We regret this error and hope that Mr. Rodden will accept our apology.

Girls' Basketball...Part Two

In my last article on girl's basketball, I featured the varsity squad, because at that time the JayVees hadn't played. It's kind of hard to write about a team you haven't seen, so I didn't. That's where the problem started.

Since the printing of that article I have been subject to several requests (which have lead to outright THREATS) from fellow colleagues, and so have been convinced to write an article featuring the forgotton JvVees. So, here's the article, fellow basketball players, and please don't tie me to the basket at the next practice.

Before I got to the JayVees, I'll comment briefly (very briefly) on the varsity, for those of you who are interested. As of date, the girl's varsity squad has compiled a not-so-brilliant 1-4 record. Talent abounds, but the girls just haven't been able to put it together. Key scorers have failed to score consistently and defense hasn't been at its best (Sorry, Mrs. Best).

The JayVees however, have done surprisingly well. A talented squad combined with strong defense, accuracy and solid teamwork account for their 3-1 record. Their only loss has been at the hands of Rham, a loss they plan to avenge on the 16th.

I think they can do it. With whizzes like Betty Funke (captain) Gail Bartlett, Lorraine Roberts, Anne Grncyalny and Cathy Linsenbigler as starters, everything's going for them (right Mrs. Grcven?).

Betty handles the team like a seasoned pro. She can shoot from any angle, but her lay-ups are most effective, Gail is quick and accurate. She can shock up points faster than you can count them, Lorraine and Anne are cool players and excellent team members. They can guard territorially, and they shoot as well. Rounding off the starting quintet is Cathy. She is best known for her Hardie-shots. She can shoot from either corner and land perfect sinkers.

The other JayVees members: Lynn Leeagh, MaryEllen Hewet Carla Volkert, Ellen Cosgrove and Diane Kelleey are always ready to fill in for one of the starters.

Both the JayVees and the Varsity have two more games to Play. You can see them play their last game Friday February 18th at home in Charles Arena. A stronger rooting section would help. Show time is 3:15 for varsity and the Jayvees play immediately after. Stay on to see them; they're well worth the wait.

Folksinging Club Formed

A new singing group has been formed at MHS. This group consists of 32 interested students who are participating in guitar, recorders, flute, ensemble, piano, and solo voices. Also accompanying performances will be choreography. Audience participation is stressed.

The group will perform at elementary schools in Manchester and Hebron, and will sing such favorites as Guantanamara, The Marvellous Toy, The Circle Game, Puff, and Teach Your Children.

The singers meet twice weekly after school for an hour. This club formulated as a result of requests from many enthusiastic students to be involved in a performing group of folk and popular songs. The success of this year's endeavors will determine whether or not the group will be formed next year.

CCSC Deadline Set March 1

Cut off date for applications for freshmen students entering Central Connecticut State College next fall will be March 1, 1972.

The college anticipates some 5,000 applications for next fall's freshman class with the college having 1,400 openings for freshmen in September. The March 1 date corresponds with a similar cut-off last year when the college received 5,500 applications from potential freshmen for 1,600 openings.

Central currently enrolls students from 144 of Connecticut's 169 towns and cities. Enrollment at the New Britain campus this past fall was 7,039 full-time day students and 5,900 Evening College students.

Town Youth Commission Probes Several Problems

Last Monday night another meeting of the Manchester Youth Commission was held. Two main projects were discussed: The late bus, and the problem of kids disturbing meetings at Bowers School.

The late bus project is really getting under way. A meeting has been scheduled with members from the Youth Commission, the transportation commission of the Board of Directors, and Elmer Thrall, the president of the busing company which serves MHS. They will discuss the feasability and practicality of such a project. Meanwhile three members from the Youth Commission will be talking to bus students and bus drivers to gather more information for the meeting.

A problem was brought to the Youth Commission's attention by way of a letter written by a Girl Scout Leader at Bowers School. Kids hanging around the school had been constantly interrupting their meetings. The Youth Commission feels that this is a problem which seems to be happening at a lot of the elementary schools in town, and should be looked into. Various ideas were brought up, such as hiring high school or college age kids to keep some kind of order. They felt the first step would be to talk to the kids who are making the trouble, and see what they want.

Dan Silver brought out the point that some students don't want to get involved in the Commission because they don't know all the political, and governmental ways of getting things done. This idea is misplaced; the Youth Commission is a learning experience.

According to the town charter the Youth Commission must have an open meeting at least once a month. These meetings will be announced, but don't wait for them, get in touch with a member of the Commission now. This year the Youth Commission is really getting moving.

On Comeback Trail

Three weeks ago, the Manchester High basketball team was riding a four-game winning streak and tied for first place in the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League. Sporting a 5-1 record in the league, the Indians were awaiting a clash with Maloney High of Meriden, also tied for the top spot.

In the game the Red jumped off to a quick lead and held it for the entire game . . . almost. Manchester led by as much as 46-30 in the third quarter when the Spartans began their comeback. Their amazing surge ended when Greg Costigan threw in a shot at the buzzer to give Maloney a 71-70 win. The stunning defeat completely demoralized the Tribe, and they were caught napping in their next game against Bristol Central. The lowly Rams completely outplayed their hosts and upset them 68-67, for their first CCIL win.

The Tribe's misfortunes continued with Wethersfield, as they found themselves down 14 points midway through the third quarter, but they rallied and managed to eke out a 66-61 victory by outscoring the home-standing Eagles 15-5 in the final canto.

Their winning streak was shortlived, however, as the Indians were mauled in their next two contests.—First by Platt 76-57, and next by Hall, 81-68. In the Platt game, the team committed 33 turnovers, an atrocious figure. They allowed Platt to jump off to a 15 point opening quarter lead, and it was all downhill from there. Against Hall the Injun quintet ran into a buzzsaw of a Hall team that shot nearly 70 per cent in the first half, while amassing a 53-24 lead. In the second half, the Injuns played a good game, cutting the deficit to 10 points, but the margin was too great.

Windham High of Willimantic handed Manchester its third consecutive defeat, 55-50, to avenge an earlier defeat at Willimantic. The Indians made a game out of it all the way, but the taller and stronger Whippets had just a little too much firepower.

Facing the prospect of failing to qualify for the state tourney, the Tribe entertained Penney High of East Hartford on Tuesday, Feb. 8. For once, they jumped off to early leads of 4-0 and 11-2. However, the visiting Black Knights reeled off the first 11 points of the second half and took a 24-27 lead, making it look like Manchester would go down to lose number eight. But the Indians roared back to catch Penney early in the last stanza. Led by the inspired play of sophomore Kurt Carlson, they went on to triumph 56-53. It was only their second win in their last seven games.

Co-Captain John Herdic continues to be the leading point maker for the Indians. The scrappy guard has scored 301 points in 14 games for a 21.5 average.

The main reason for the team's slump appeared to be a general lapse in attitude by the players. However, Tuesday's big win appeared to be just the push needed to get the Indians back on the winning track. The Injuns currently stand 7-6 in the CCIL and 7- 7 overall. To qualify for tournament competition they must win three out of their remaining five games. At present in the CCIL, the Tribe is three games behind pacesetter Windham, which has a 10-3 record. Though chances are slim, the Tribe still has a shot.

Tonight the cagers travel to Bristol to face the Lancers of Bristol Eastern who currently sport a 2-11 league standard, but are just coming off an upset win over Maloney. The Indians hope to repeat an earlier 89-60 triumph. It's hoped that the fans will continue to follow the team on the road and come tonight to root them on to their second win in a row.

Students Develop Ecology Platform

Several hundred Connecticut high school students met Feb. 5 at the University of Hartford for a "Politics of Pollution" conference. Sponsored by the Connecticut Citizens Action Group (CCAG), the conference was the highlight of a program during the last two months in which the participants have attempted to create an "earth platform" for the coming election year.

The platform will contain specific recommendations for action on environment matters and will be used as a discussion piece and a gauge of candidates.

In the morning, after a few short ecology movies, task forces met to discuss their individual platforms. These task forces included air, water, land use, pesticides, food additives, power, transportation, occupational health, solid waste, population, wildlife, and urban environment.

Later in the afternoon, all participants gathered to hear each task force present recommendations for the platform. After discussion, the task force recommendations were voted on by participants.

Although adult resource persons were available, only the high school students discussed and voted on the platform.

Featured speaker at the Conference was Ralph Nader, consumer advocate and founder of CCAG.

Nader emphasized the need for students to learn citizenship and of their individual impact on institutions. Technical skills and know-how are important but moral feelings about environmental and other problems are also necessary.

He stated that the educational process and family life stretch adolescence out into non-action. He feels that individuals as young as 13 or 14 years old can grapple with social and political problems. This is an important period in which students are free of many restrictions that bind older people and are able to think and create. Instead of restricting themselves to textbooks, he suggested that students pick the "problem of their choice" and study it.

Nader emphasized that the sooner you find out about yourself the better. Put yourself into a situation of stress; then firm up your weak points. It is important to develop the ability to work in controversial areas, demanding areas or areas that demand much work.

In the question-and-answer period that followed his speech, Nader reiterated that he would not consider running for political office.

Copies of the platform can be obtained from the CCAG office in Hartford.

Youth Group Was on Radio

If you were tuned to WINF Tuesday night from 11:00 to 12:30 you were an earwitness to Sue Klemens, Dan Silver, Ed Simmons, Jeff Stone, and Rick Gowen break into radio. Their show: A discussion about Youth Commission. Jay Albert, an 18-year-old graduate of East Hartford High, was their disc jockey, helping by pushing the right buttons and keeping the show going a half-hour more than was scheduled.

Questions having to do with the projects of the Commission were phoned in by listeners. Eleven-thirty came around, and the phones kept ringing and Dan kept talking, while the discussion kept going. Twelve midnight is here: They're still talking, yawning and laughing; but the show must go on.

The conversations were sometimes very deep but at other times, near ridiculous, as our own disc jockeys took over and phoned in by listeners. VICTORY GATHERING—USA's Barbara Cochran is swarmed over by teammates Patti Boydstun and Susan Corrock after winning the women's slalom.

Most Successful Winter Olympics For United States in Two Decades

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) —As the song says: "Thank Heaven For Little Girls. . ." Without 'em the United States wouldn't have a medal to show for its efforts in the 11th Winter Olympic Games.

But with 'em, America's got six tucked away, three of them golds, which makes this its most successful winter Olympics in two decades.

The third gold came rocketing out of a heavy snowstorm Friday in the personage of Barbara Cochran, a 20-year-old skiing whiz from Richmond, Vt., who mad-dashed her way to victory in the women's special slalom.

It came only two hours after Anne Heming put the third American bronze medal on the board in the 1,000-meter speed skating. The 16-year-old miss from Northbrook, Ill., who had won the 500 meters on Thursday, finished less than a quarter of a second behind West German winner Monika Pflug.

The American men remained shut out in the Games Friday night as world champion Andrej Nepela of Czechoslovakia captured the gold medal in the finals of the men's figure skating.

Russia's Sergei Chetverukhin took the silver, moving ahead of Patrick Pera of France, who had been second after the compulsories.

Ken Shelley of Downey, Calif., finished fourth and John Mischa Petkevich, the Harvard pre-med student from Great Falls, Mont., was fifth, the two Americans moving up one spot as young Jan Hoffman of East Germany, fourth after the compulsories, slipped to sixth.

This marked the first time since 1936 that the United States had not won a medal in men's figure skating. Americans dominated the event from 1948 through 1960.

Miss Cochran, who managed to finish only 11th in the giant slalom, brought America its first gold in Alpine skiing—the first time never since the 1952 Olympic event—since the 1952 Games in Oslo, Norway, when the United States finished with four golds.

She did it with an all-or-nothing effort that resulted in a fastest first-run time of 46.05 seconds, when she was first down the slope, and a second-fastest time of 45.19 on the second run for a total time of 1:31.24, an incredibly scant two hundredths of a second less than silver medalist Danielle Debernard of France.

"This is definitely my kind of course," Barbara said after her triumph, which she climaxed by a kissing, hugging dance a n d a brief victory ride on the shoulders of her ecstatic teammates and coaches. "I usually do better on a steep course than a turning one."

After being the initial skier in the first run—"I liked the No. 1 start . . . because there was a a light snow cover"—she was 15th in the second, when the snow really began coming down.

"I didn't watch any of the first 14," she said, "because I didn't want to know the times of if they were having trouble. I didn't want to see them." She probably couldn't have, anyway, because of the downfall.

Asked how she felt about criticism that American athletes are too soft, she replied: "I think our skiers train as hard as anyone—and the results today prove it!"

The Northbrook crowd, which has had plenty to cheer about, was ready for more as Miss Heming and Dianne Holum, gold medalist in the 1,500 meters, prepared to fulfill their roles as favorites in the 1,000 meters.

But suddenly, there was Miss Pflug, the 17-year-old outsider, gaining the glory with her Olympic-record 1:31.40. Atje Keulen-Deelstra of The Netherlands took the silver in 1:31.61 and Anne got the bronze in 1:31.92. Dianne wound up sixth at 1:32.51.

In Friday's other finals, Po l a n d's Wojciech Fortuna soared a magnificent 364 feet 2 inches in the first of two runs in the 90-meter ski jump, more than enough to win the gold. And the Soviet Union defended its Olympic title in the biathlon relay.

In the four-man bobsled, Switzerland held the lead at the halfway mark. The remaining two runs are scheduled for Saturday. West Germany was second and Italy third. One American team was disqualified in the first heat when its members fell off the sled as it overturned. The No. 2 U.S. team was 12th after the first two runs.

Fortuna, whose second jump was 287-1 for a total of 219.9 points, captured the event which many observers had expected to go to the Japanese, who swept the 70 meters. Yukio Kasaya, took the 70-meter gold but was seventh in the 90 meters.

Second was Switzerland's Walter Steiner, who got the silver with 219.4 points. The bronze went to East Germany's Rainer Schmidt with 219.2. The best American was Ron Steele of Leavenworth, Wash., a distant 25th with 177.7.

Behind the victorious Russian biathlon team were Finland and East Germany, with the United States a surprisingly high sixth, its best Olympic finish ever.

Esposito's Theory Works, Just Keep Shooting Puck

BOSTON (AP) — Phil Esposito has a theory for those rare times when he falls into a scoring slump—"just keep shooting."

That's what he did Thursday night. He just kept shooting. Twelve times he shot. Nothing happened. On the 13th shot he scored his first goal in four games. The goal really didn't matter much.

The Bruins were leading the Vancouver Canucks 5-1 at the time, and went on to make the final score 9-1, increasing their lead to nine points over the idle New York Rangers in the National Hockey League's East Division.

Elsewhere, Montreal handed Chicago its second straight setback 7-1, Minnesota beat St. Louis 3-1, Detroit defeated Buffalo 4-2 and Pittsburgh routed Los Angeles 6-1.

But to Esposito, the league's leading scorer, the goal was simply the manifestation of his theory.

"I wasn't really worried about not scoring," he said after the game. "I just kept shooting. One of those times it had to go in. It's the law of averages."

Esposito, who has a four-leaf clover and a lucky charm hanging from the name-plate on his locker, was asked if he were superstitious about scoring on his 13th shot of the night.

"Not when it comes to shots on goal," he said. "I'll take 13 shots on goal every night."

Esposito was playing with a new linemate Thursday, and had to make some adjustments.

Mike Walton moved into the left wing spot and Wayne Cashman moved from left wing to right, replacing Ken Hodge who is out with a fractured ankle. Each accred a goal, while Walton had two assists and Esposito one.

The biggest change Esposito said he had to make was in his passes to Walton, who is a left-handed shot.

Fred Stanfield led the assault against Vancouver Goalie George Gardner with two goals while Bobby Orr had one goal and three assists.

Eddie Westfall, Derek Sanderson and Don Marcotte also scored for the Bruins.

Vancouver's only goal was scored by Rosaire Paiement.

Rookie Guy Lafleur scored three goals, Frank Mahovlich added a goal and four assists and Ken Dryden was superb in the nets as Montreal whipped Chicago. The seven-goal explosion against the NHL's top defensive club in games included two assists by Serge Savard, making his first home appearance since he suffered a fractured left ankle more than a year ago.

Larry Pleau, Pete Mahovlich and Yvan Cournoyer got the other Canadien goals while Chicago's Cliff Koroll spoiled Dryden's shutout bid midway through the final period.

Minnesota got brilliant goaltending from Gump Worsley in beating St. Louis. The 42-year-old goalie was beaten only by Frank St. Marseille early in the third period. By then, the North Stars had a 2-0 lead on goals by Lou Nanne and Jude Drouin.

Detroit trailed Buffalo 2-0 before a strategic move by Coach Johnny Wilson turned the tide. Wilson moved Ron Harris from defense to forward and his aggressive checking loosened up the Sabres' defense. Harris then set up the Red Wings' first goal by Red Berenson, Mickey Redmond knotted the score with his 32rd goal and Marcel Dionne got the tie-breaker.

Pittsburgh got even for an 8-1 thumping in Los Angeles five days earlier by trimming the Kings as Ron Schock scored twice and set up another goal. Darryl Edestrand, Steve Cardwell, Greg Polis and Bryan Hextall also scored for the Penguins.

Bob Beckwith Superb In Ansaldi's Triumph

It took a superb all-around effort by Bob Beckwith to lead Ansaldi Construction to its ninth straight win without a loss over Schiebel Brothers, 119-99, last night at Illing gym.

Things looked difficult from the start as Schiebel's jumped off to a quick 8-0 lead before Ansaldi's fought back to take a 34-22 margin into the second quarter. Behind Big Carl Hobenthal and sharp - shooting Dennis Murphy, Schiebel's closed the gap to 55-52 at intermission.

Schiebel's drew within two points early in the stanza before Beckwith's rebounding and 17 period tallies by Frank Kinel lifted Ansaldi's to a commanding 87-78 lead going into the last 10 minutes.

Ansaldi's finally started to play defense in the fourth canto and used it to outscore Schiebel's 31-23 to win easily.

Kinel led all scorers with 35 points, 21 coming in the last half. Jack Redmond added 22 with Beckwith and Pat Mistretta popping in 19 each. Bill Viot and Ray LaGace hit for 12 and 11 markers.

Murphy paced the losers' attack with 26 points followed by Hobenthal, Jim Kuhn and Steve Rascher with 24, 24 and 11 tallies.

ALL ALONE — Yvan Richard of France appears to be about to fly off into space as he leaps from 90-meter ski jump in Olympic Games at Sapporo. Thousands of spectators look like ants from this jump built on Mt. Okura.

Glued to TV

RICHMOND, Vt. (AP) — The skiing Cochran family, glued to its television set Thursday night, watched daughter Barbara win a gold medal in the women's slalom in the Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan.

"We were pretty happy," said Mrs. Cochran, "but we were sad for Marilyn. She fell." Barbara, Marilyn and brother Bob are all members of the U.S. Olympic ski team.

Mrs. Cochran said the family had its fingers crossed when Barbara was skiing.

"We were hoping," she said. "I know she can ski well under pressure."

The telephone interview came to a halt with a shout from the rest of the family in the background.

"Can I go now?" Mrs. Cochran asked. "It's on again."

High Tourney Rating Coach's Present Goal

18-Year Cage Career Rewarding For Ellington High's Bob Healy

By DEAN YOST

Coaching athletics has been part of Bob Healy's life for the past 10 years.

The clever most successful Ellington High basketball mentor has won an impressive 238 games while losing only 134. Healy, a local resident and graduate of Central Connecticut State College, started in the coaching profession at Durham High in 1962 before moved to Valley Regional from 1966-68 and has been at Ellington ever since.

While on the coaching staff at Durham High, Healy directed the baseball and basketball teams and founded track and also organized the school's first soccer team.

In four years of coaching basketball at Durham, Healy had two winning seasons and posted his best personal coaching mark when his 1966-67 team was 18-0. His four-year total here was 44-29. Healy's first season was 5-12 followed by 12-5, 7-11 and 18-4. The latter overall standard was 20-1 after losing in the tournament.

Following the 1967 reason, Healy moved to Valley Regional to assume the coaching duties in baseball, basketball and soccer. It was during this period that he had his first of only three losing seasons in his 18-year career. In his last campaign at the school, the hoop team posted a 9-10 record. At Valley Regional his personal total was 52-24. The breakdown was 13-6, 16-3, 14-8 and 9-10.

11 Years At Ellington

Then in 1961, Healy again moved to a different school, this time it was Ellington. Now in his 11th season, he has coached varsity baseball, soccer and basketball. He now concentrates only as cage mentor and as director of athletics.

The third losing season came in Healy's initial campaign as the Knights' headman. His fourth came in 1965-66 (9-11) and the most recent one was in 1969-70 when the team dropped to 8-12.

Healy's 11-year total at Ellington is currently 140-81.

During his long career, Healy has coached one state basketball championship team, that was in 1963. The Knights have been North Central Connecticut Conference hoop champs in 1965-67-68-71.

In baseball, Healy's 1965 and 1968 clubs were also title holders and the soccer team of 1968 under his leadership also took conference laurels.

At Durham High, Healy had his first All-State basketball player, Bill Rundle and presently Knights' Court Harned was also an All-State selection.

Assistant hardcourt coach, Pete Fortini was a member of Healy's only undefeated team at Durham High. Fortini is also head soccer coach at Ellington and he took his club to the 1971 State Class S Soccer championship.

The key to Healy's success as a cage mentor, as he stated "has been some good players. The thing to coaching is getting the players to enjoy what they are doing."

Extra For Players

Healy, a firm believer of giving something extra to his players, has arranged trips for his cagers to Fisher's Island, Connetquot in Bayport L. I., and to Farmington, N. H.

"The players get a real meaning of the word sportsmanship in these trips," Healy added. "The players eat and share the same rooms (with their opponents) and follow each other around to get a better knowledge of how other people live."

"At Ellington High, I have been real fortunate to have good coaches working with the younger players. It helps a lot when they come up to the varsity level. Don Beerworth, the junior high mentor, has produced numerous winners and Fortini's JV's haven't lost a game in 40 starts," he commented.

"The support we have gotten from the faculty and townspeople has also bolstered our athletic program," Healy noted. "People and students are taking pride in the school and it helps the overall picture."

Ellington was ousted in last year's hoop tourney, bowing to Putnam in the quarterfinals, but this season hope to go all the way. The road will be hard to travel with Cromwell High leading the list of good Class S powers. Also included are Coventry, Durham, East Windsor High, Thomaston, and Shepaug Valley of Washington.

A high tournament ranking is Healy's present goal.

Haynes' Cagers Here Next Friday

One of basketball's greatest all-time stars, Marques Haynes and his Fabulous Magicians will appear at the Clarke Arena one week from tonight against the East Hartford Explorers.

Haynes, who has been playing professional basketball for better than 30 years, can still run and run with the best and there are few better dribblers around.

Tickets are on sale at all branches of the Hartford National Bank and the Savings Bank of Manchester.

Proceeds will enter the Youth Activities Fund of the sponsor-ing Exchange Club of Manchester.

BASKETBALL

INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE

The Cons nipped Ye Old MD's, 48-38, last night at the Community Y. Playing with only four men in the final eight minutes the Cons made the good shot pay off. Bill Krause netted 18 points followed by Ron Lanasse with 10 and Jim Lepenta with eight. MD's Arnie Pagani tossed in 14 with Jim LaChapelle adding nine.

The second contest found the Spiders squeaking past the Warriors, 54-52. John Kilduff led the winners' offense with 21 markers followed by Mike Pagani with 18. For the Warriors, Frank Lalashus had 20 and Don Pagani canned 15 tallies.

Title Fight Main Goal At Garden

NEW YORK (AP) — The Floyd Patterson-Oscar Bonavena 10-round bout, more than a year in the making, is set for Madison Square Garden with both fighters hoping it will mean a step toward a heavyweight title shot.

The fight was first set for January, 1971, but was postponed when Bonavena's physician said the Argentine had not had enough time to recover from his knockout loss to Muhammad Ali the previous December.

Three more postponements followed, all due to hand injuries to Bonavena.

This will be the 37-year-old Patterson's biggest fight since he lost a controversial 15-round decision to Jimmy Ellis Sept. 14, 1968.

The former two-time heavyweight champion, who was the youngest to hold the title, 21 in 1956, and the only man to win it twice, has seven straight fights, six of them in 1971. He has a 54-7-1 record with 39 knockouts.

Patterson is guaranteed $60,000 against 30 per cent of the live gate. Bonavena is guaranteed $60,000 against 25 per cent.

Ticket prices range from $8 to $30. The bout will be seen on a home television network set up by the Garden. The New York area will be blacked out.

FIS Not to Take Action Against Young French Skier

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The board of the International Ski Federation (FIS) decided Friday not to take any action against veteran French skier Annie Famose for allegedly working for a French language radio and television station, said Yoshio Ito, general director for ski events of the 11th Winter Olympic Games.

Ito, a member of the FIS board, emerged from a meeting to say that the board concluded that the whole thing had been "an accident," apparently meaning that Miss Famose had been involved inadvertently.

He said the FIS Eligibility Committee had recommended that Miss Famose be suspended until at least the end of the Olympic Games here, but that the board ruled instead not to take such harsh action.

Notes from the Black Book

Planning an evening of basketball entertainment? Highly recommended is the appearance of Marques Haynes at the Clarke Arena one week from tonight. The great, veteran traveling man will bring his Fabulous Magicians into town to battle the East Hartford Explorers in an exhibition. Haynes, who admits to being around professional basketball for 30 years, is still a crowd-pleaser who can shoot outside with the best of 'em and can literally make a basketball talk while dribbling. . .Interest will be picking up in the annual Town Men's and Women's Duckpin Bowling Tournament Saturday and Sunday at the Holiday Lanes. . .Oddities in the men's qualifying last week included an opening game below-par score of 86 by George Cochran. He came back with a 159 effort in his next game en route to gaining the 12th qualifying spot in the 16-man field. . .On the other side of the coin, Art Johnson fashioned a 165 in his first game and fell down to a 92 in his last game. In between he rolled consistently and wound up 11th in the qualifying. . .Vying for the women's crown will be a mother and daughter team. Jeanne Irish paced the distaff side qualifiers while her daughter, Rolane Ough, just made the eight women field. Mrs. Ough reigned as champion in 1969 and was second in 1970. With competition open only to Manchester residents, Mrs. Ough, after marrying, moved out of town during last year's tourney and was not eligible to roll. . .Basketball officials in Connecticut may refuse to work any home games involving Wilbur Cross, Hillhouse or Lee High, all in New Haven, following the latest rhubarb when the two whistle toters were threatened and pelted with an assortment of objects. One official's life was also threatened when Hillhouse played Notre Dame. The jayvee game had to be cut short in the first quarter when a fight erupted. . .Football press box at Manchester High's Memorial Field was gutted by fire last Tuesday night during the Manchester High-Penney High basketball game. A fire bomb started the damage.

Off the Cuff

Add the brother act of Mel and Randy Cote to the list of young football players from the same family who have won the Thom McAn annual awards at Manchester High. The Cotes join the Simmons brothers, Mike and Don and the Leber brothers, Jim and Bob as players from East Catholic. Mel Cote was tabbed the No. 1 lineman in 1968 and nine years later his younger brother Randy came along to gain the nomination as the most valuable back at MHS. The latter, following a stint in the Marines, returned to Utah State and is now a senior in Wildlife Conservation and Fisheries. Mel went on to Boston College after his high school days and later received his PhD in guidance and education from Harvard and is the new dean of admissions and student activities at the College of the Atlantic, Bar Harbor, Maine, which will open in September. . .When Nice Guy Awards are made in baseball to active players, none rate higher than Brooks Robinson, Ernie Banks, Al Kaline and Harmon Killebrew and it was no surprise to learn that these four led the field in the most recent voting. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn made the award to Robinson "as the player who best typifies the game of baseball on and off the field." Voting was by a special committee of sportswriters, sportscasters and baseball executives. . ." As flawless as his work is on the field, it is marked by his actions, behavior and manners off the field. No request is too big, no demands placed upon him are too great," read the inscription on the plaque presented the Baltimore third baseman. . .There's unrest among Yankee Conference colleges following the report that all eight college presidents recently decided that all athletic scholarships be awarded on a financial need basis only, beginning with the 1973-74 season. At least four of the eight members colleges have indicated they might drop out of the conference. At present, Maine and Boston University base their scholarships on financial need. Rhode Island, UMass and Holy Cross have a grant-in-aid program with UConn. New Hampshire and Vermont operating with a half and half program.

Here 'n There

Johnny Groman's Sports Shop has assumed sponsorship of the Center Billiard softball team for the 1972 season. . .Bob Gorman (not to be confused with Gorman) reports his softball entry, Gorman's hopes to move into faster company in local league play this season and will be completely outfitted in new uniforms. . .Tickets are now on sale for UConn's four remaining basketball games — after Saturday's game with UMass — with New Hampshire Feb. 16, Rhode Island Feb. 26, Boston College, Feb. 29 and Manhattan, March 4. Saturday night's UConn-UMass meeting will be telecast by Channel 8 starting at 8 o'clock. It will be a sellout, the fourth in 10 home starts. The Yale, Vermont and Hawaii contests were the previous SRO attractions. . .Connecticut Council of Ski Clubs, which includes the Manchester Ski Club, will hold a dinner-dance at Okemo Mountain Saturday night. Millie Lucek, Sue Driscoll, Patty Macie, Ron Schuster, Bob Blake and Gordon Mathewney of the local club are serving on the committee. . .NBC has 67 cameras, 455 commentary booths, 30 miles of camera cable, 85 miles of studio and video cable and a 1,500-man work force covering the Winter Olympic Games in Sapporo, Japan. . .How the time flies, two years ago this coming Monday night I was honored for having spent 25 years with The Herald. . .Springfield's Kings host Rochester Saturday night at the Eastern States Coliseum. . .Basketball-football game in East Hartford on Feb. 20 lists St. James of Manchester against St. Lukes at 8 with all proceeds entering the Cancer Fund. Ray LaGace and Frank Kinel will officiate at St. Rose's gym.

Consistency Trademark In Town Duckpin Tourney

By EARL YOST

Consistency has marked the performance of George Cochran in the annual Men's Town Duckpin Bowling Tournament at the Holiday Lanes. During the seven years the event has been staged at Holiday, Cochran, a two-time champion, has worked his way past the qualifying round and into head-to-head competition.

Cochran reigned in both 1967 and 1969 and nearly made it an every other year conquest when he moved into the finals last year only to bow to George Pelletier.

Besides Cochran, three others still in the running for the 1972 title will be making their fifth attempt at winning top money. Rollie Irish, Tony Marinelli and Fred McCurry, all veterans of many years on the polished lanes. Irish came in second best in 1968 while McCurry was No. 2 on the prize list in 1961.

Four-Time Qualifier

Pelletier. Howie Hampton and Art Johnson are in the head-to-head meeting for the fourth time in seven years while Charlie Gardella, Bob Boroch and Rocco Lanzochino will be trying for the third time in the money matches.

Of the other survivors, Bill Sheekey, who paced the qualifiers with a six-game total of 560 last weekend, Art Cabral, Bert Davis, Al Pirkey and Ernie Oakman will be in their second championship rounds while Mike Balesano is the lone first-year man to survive the qualifying test.

First round matches are listed tomorrow starting at 2 o'clock with the quarterfinals among the eight survivors scheduled Sunday, also 2 o'clock.

The semifinals are listed Sunday, Feb. 20 with the finals the following Sunday afternoon.

All matches up to the finals will be on a best of five-game basis. The championship set will be best of seven.

Besides Pelletier and Cochran, Hampton is the only other former winner. He captured the crown back in 1963.

First place will be worth $70, plus a trophy. All in head-to-head rolling will finish in the money.

Saturday's pairings are: Pelletier vs. McCurry, Cabral vs. Davis, Lupacchino vs. Johnson, Gardella vs. Balesano, Hampton vs. Marinelli, Irish vs. Cochran, Boroch vs. Pirkey, Sheekey vs. Oakman.

The Women's Division quarter finals are listed Saturday afternoon, also at 2 o'clock.

Qualifiers

Of the eight women in the championship field, one-half will be making their fourth starts past the qualifying round. Jeanne Irish, Agnes Claughsey, Reggie Gburski and Rolane Ough. Mrs. Irish led the qualifiers last week with a 737 total.

Runner-up last year, Sylvia Stechholz will be in the title picture a second time along with defending champion Joan Urbanetti while Sandy Bunce and Natalie Geidel will be making their debuts.

The pairings: Urbanetti vs. Ough, Stechholz vs. Bunce, Claughsey vs. Gburski, Irish vs. Geidel.

Mrs. Ough topped the field in 1969 and was second in 1970. She was ineligible last year as she resided outside the town limits. Mrs. Claughsey was another "bridesmaid" in the 1967 rolling.

All matches are open to the public.

Supersonics Too Strong For Quartet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seattle is a problem. And Baltimore, Atlanta, Cincinnati and Cleveland haven't come up with an answer all season.

The four teams which comprise the National Basketball Association's Central Division have dropped 13 straight games to the Supersonics this season. No. 13 came Thursday night when Seattle slapped down the Royals 115-96.

The Sonics, third in the NBA's Pacific Division, were led by Spencer Haywood, who scored 28 points. The Royals, third in the Central, got 22 points from Tom Van Arsdale and were hampered by the absence of guard Nate Archibald, out with the flu. Archibald has been averaging 35 points in the last 15 games.

In other NBA games Phoenix defeated Baltimore 131-98 and Golden State topped Philadelphia 121-112.

Kentucky beat the Floridians 119-101 and Virginia downed Pittsburgh 131-111 in American Basketball Association action.

Baltimore, playing without center Wes Unseld, out with an ankle injury, lost its sixth straight. Dick Van Arsdale led Phoenix with 27 points and Paul Silas 25. A strong Suns' defense held the Bullets to just 14 points in the second period. Jack Marin had 24 and Archie Clark 18 for Baltimore.

Golden State, behind the 32-point performance of Nate Thurmond, rallied in the second half to overcome Philadelphia. The Warriors trailed by as much as 14 points and 63-53 at the half. Jeff Mullins added 27 for Golden State, which recorded its 18th victory in the last 22 games. The Phillies, playing without Billy Cunningham, who has a leg injury, were led by Fred Foster with 30 points and Bob Rule with 26.

Rookie Julius Erving scored seven points in 56 seconds to break an 82-82 third-quarter tie and pace Virginia to victory. With Erving scoring 30 points and Charlie Scott 34, the Squires outshot Pittsburgh from the floor 57 per cent to 36 per cent.

It was the Squires' fifth straight victory, their longest win streak of the season. Dave Lattin led the Condors with 26 points while Mike Lewis had 20 and John Brisker 19.

The Floridians' loss was their 13th in the last 15 games, leaving them a half game from last place in the ABA East.

Coventry Invades Cromwell, Indians Travel to Bristol

By DEAN YOST

Manchester High squared-off its overall basketball record Tuesday night and hopes to go one game above the .500 mark tonight when it treks to Bristol's Eastern High. The Tribe is now 7-6 in the CCIL while Eastern is the cellar dweller at 2-12.

Meanwhile, Ellington High, second to East Windsor, visits Suffield High in a NCCC tilt. South Windsor High battles neighboring Rockville High in a CVC tilt on the latter's court. The Rebels are 13-2 in the loop and the Rams are 3-12. Charter Oak Conference finds the co-leaders, Coventry High 13-1, and Cromwell High, also sporting a 13-1 conference record, Bolton travels to East Hampton and Rham visits Rocky Hill in another CCC play.

East Catholic remains idle, but will be in action tomorrow night against arch-rival South Catholic at the University of Hartford's gym. Game time is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

The spiriting Indians finally put on the brakes after dropping three consecutive outings. The tourney road remains difficult for Manchester though. Tonight's foe, Bristol Eastern staged an upset victory over a strong Maloney High, last Tuesday night. While cut of the league race, the Tribe still has hopes of a tourney bid and must win three of its five remaining starts to qualify.

After the Eastern contest the Tribe faces Conard, Maloney, Bristol Central and Weaver, in field.

Currently Windham High, 10-3, leads the closely knit CCIL field with Hall second and Maloney third. Manchester, Penney and surging Platt High are tied for the next spot with 7-6 marks.

Hustling Indian guard John Herdic brings a potent 21.7 scoring average into the game. Center Rick Kiernan has a 11.12 point per game mark while Herdic's backcourt partner Dan Carlson sports a 10.8 average.

Currently riding an eight-game winning streak and leader of the best hoop record in the area, Coventry High will run into big trouble once again.

Cromwell, a small but potent Class S outfit, dumped the Patriots earlier in the campaign, 64-56. As usual, "Mr. Rham. Everything," Al Weston, led the Panther offense. He'll get double coverage tonight.

Coventry, meanwhile, has been using a well balanced offense to rout the opposition. The closest team to put a scare into the Pats since Cromwell was Rocky Hill last Tuesday night in a 60-44 decision.

TONIGHT'S PICKS: Manchester dumping Bristol Eastern, Ellington having little trouble with Suffield, South Windsor breezing past Rockville, Coventry surprising Cromwell, East Hampton defeating Bolton and Rocky Hill topping Rham.

Jump Up in Division No Handicap to Lamar

NEW YORK (AP)—Small college or major college, it's all the same to Dwight Lamar.

The NCAA college division scoring leader last season with a 32 point average, Lamar has picked up right where he left off, even though his school, Southwestern Louisiana, has switched into the major college ranks.

Lamar—an an off night—poured in 42 points Thursday to lead Southwestern Louisiana, 17-2 and ranked 12th in the nation, to a 95-83 victory over McNeese State. The 6-foot-1 guard currently leads the nation's major college scorers with a 35.8 average.

Although Lamar's scoring has been an instrumental factor in Southwestern Louisiana's success, he has had help—much help. It from center Roy Ebron who scored 22 points and pulled down 24 rebounds against McNeese.

The Cajuns led by only 45-43 at the half and did not manage to open the game up until late in the second half. Henry Ray scored 32 points to keep McNeese close.

Southwestern Coach Beryl Shipley said he felt Lamar did not have a good game.

"Lamar didn't have a good shooting night," the coach said. "I'm glad he got 42 points, but he tried about 41 shots.

"We didn't shoot well, but it was understandable," Shipley added.

"We are coming off a five-game road trip and the boys are extremely tired."

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 Penn beat Columbia 69-59, No. 8 Long Beach State bowed to Fresno State 76-69 and No. 15 Memphis State was upset by St. Louis 76-72.

The Quakers jumped off to a 30-15 lead midway through the first half and managed to stay at least nine points ahead of Columbia the rest of the way. Penn, 19-3, was paced by junior forward Phil Hankinson's 21 points.

Long Beach State scored just five points in the first 10 minutes as Fresno State built up a 15-point lead. The 49ers, now 18-3, never caught up.

The game was won at the free throw line, where Fresno State, 8-11, scored 28 points. Long Beach State, which saw three of its starters foul out, scored only nine points on free throws.

Clarence Metcalfe led the Bulldogs with 24 points. Ed Ratleff had 20 and Nate Stephens 18 for Long Beach.

Memphis State, trailing 37-20 at halftime, rallied in the second half but fell short of catching St. Louis.

"We just got beat," moaned Memphis Coach Gene Bartow. added.

Eight-Game Win Streaks On Line for Celts-Lakers

BOSTON (AP) — Two teams with eight-game victory streaks on the line will go at each other tonight at Boston Garden when the Celtics meet the Los Angeles Lakers in a National Basketball Association game.

The Lakers, who ran off a record 33-game winning streak earlier this season, have lost only seven games all season and have an overwhelming lead in the NBA's Pacific Division.

Celtics coach Tom Heinsohn is not too worried, however. He has a secret plan.

"I think we know how to beat them," Heinsohn said Thursday. "But I'm not about to reveal the strategy at this time."

"It would be a big game for us to win," said Heinsohn, whose squad leads the Atlantic Division by six games over the New York Knicks. "Psychologically, a victory would be extremely meaningful to our team, especially if we are successful in the playoffs and have to face them in the championship round."

The Lakers are the only NBA team the Celtics have not beaten this season.

"We lost a game here and two in Los Angeles, but both of those came at the tail end of long road trips. Every time we make a trip to the coast Los Angeles always seems to be our last stop and the Lakers are there waiting for us," Heinsohn said.

Tonight, he hopes to have his Celtics waiting for LA.

$11,680 Sum Okayed For IGE Program

The Board of Education has approved the allocation of $11,680 to permit implementation of the Individually Guided Education (IGE) program at the Hicks Memorial School next year.

The allocation covers all expenses not covered by federal Title III grants.

Tolland is one of several area towns included in a joint application for the federal funds for establishment of IGE programs, as are Vernon, Bolton, Ellington and Willington. A total of 16 towns submitted joint applications for the grants.

Basically the IGE method of teaching separates the school into units; each has a unit leader and usually four other teachers, some aides and often a student teacher for each block of approximately 125 students.

No additional staff of materials would be needed for the program, other than hiring some aides.

The program centers on recognition of the individual learning capacities of the students and their rates of achievements.

It is viewed by school board members as a natural follow-up to Meadowbrook School's individualized program, based on the British Primary system.

While the IGE program offers more freedom and responsibility to the student, it is more highly structured than the British Primary, and demands more of the teachers involved than a regular classroom type program.

Approval for the IGE program was sought in December by Andrew Winans, principal of Hicks School. Several meetings were held with the board during which the IGE program was discussed in detail.

Winans plans to phase the program into the school gradually, taking three to five years before it is fully implemented. One requirement of the IGE program is the thorough orientation of the teachers.

It is this teacher training program which the federal grants are to pay for, along with a continuing evaluation of the program for the first few years.

Among the changes which will be required at Hicks for the start of the program during the first year are the organization of the school into four multi-age grade units, according to Winans. Adequate teacher in-service training must be provided.

An aide must be hired for each identified unit and unit leaders selected.

The unit leader will be responsible for instructional planning and coordination and will receive a $400 increment for the increased responsibilities, similar to a department head in a high school program.

An instructional improvements committee (IOC) will be formed with decision making powers related to the instructional program. The committee will meet weekly, according to Winans.

Weekly planning periods for each unit team will be included during the school day for two to three hours. During the planning period, instructional programs for the students involved will be reviewed and new instructional ideas and materials discussed. Teachers presently have 2½ hours a week for preparation periods.

The IGE program will be implemented in "at least one subject area during the first year," Winans told the board.

Police Report

Car Hits Window When Brakes Fail

Brakes failed in a car driven by Sabastian Gambatesi of RFD 1, Manchester, yesterday morning when he pulled into a parking space on Main St. The car struck the building at 474 Main St., breaking a plate glass window.

Gertrude K. Skoumal of East Hartford was issued a written warning for following too closely after an accident last night at Spencer St. and the I-84 exit ramp. Her car was in collision with a car driven by Faye G. Otis of East Hartford at about 8:40 p.m.

Two scales were taken in a break Monday night at Multi Circuits Inc. of Harrison St. Police said there were no signs of forced entry. Loss was about $94.

The northeast corner of a fence at the West Cemetery on Spencer St. was reported broken down yesterday, apparently by snowmobiles.

Car parts valued at nearly $800 were taken sometime Wednesday night from a garage at 68 Hollister St.

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Mazursky has been signed to produce and direct his own original screenplay, "Love in Blume," a contemporary romantic story set in Los Angeles and Venice, Italy. Filming will begin later this year.

Japanese Film Tonight on 24

"Seven Samurai," an action-packed Japanese battle film which has become a favorite among international film buffs, will be presented in a rare, uncut version on Film Odyssey, tonight at 8:30 on Connecticut Public Television, Channel 24 in Hartford.

Although "Seven Samurai" is an epic film running over three hours, it has a simple story: A group of farmers in a 16th century village, plagued by predatory raids on their rice crop, hire seven samurai swordsmen to protect them. The warriors devise a successful but bloody defense system.

Released in 1954, the movie was directed by Akira Kurosawa and starred Takashi Shimura and Toshiro Mifune. It is the fifth presentation of the Film Odyssey series of 26 uncut and uninterrupted movie classics from around the world.

"Seven Samurai" has been compared in scale to an epic Western—Hollywood style. And in fact, the Japanese film was the basis for John Sturges' popular Western "The Magnificent Seven."

Also tonight . . .

NBC Friday Night at the Movies presents "Two Mules for Sister Sara" at 8:30 p.m. A woman masquerading as a nun and an American mercenary join forces in fighting the French, who are in control of 19th century Mexico. Shirley MacLaine and Clint Eastwood star.

Channel 18 in Hartford will telecast the Floyd Patterson-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight from Madison Square Garden. The long-awaited tenrounder will be presented from 10 to 11 p.m.

ABC's "Room 222" series has an episode dealing with venereal disease, "I Gave My Love. . . ," at 9 p.m. The story concerns a high school student with VD, and a teacher who is brought up before the school board for giving sex education instruction without parental consent.

Coventry

Public Hearing Set On Nongraded Plan

The Board of Education has set next Wednesday as the date for a public hearing on the Sequential Learning Programs for Individualized Development. The hearing on the program, which would ungrade the school system in five phases over four years, was called for on a petition submitted to the board last week.

The public hearing, open to all residents, will be held at the high school at 7:30 p.m.

Under the program, kindergartens in the two elementary schools would be nongraded starting in September. A committee of kindergarten teachers has been at work since early fall designing the kindergarten program, which met with overwhelming approval at a public session held last month at Coventry Grammar School.

Phase 2 of the program would include Grades one through four in September 1973, and would be set up in a similar fashion, with a committee of teachers doing the planning. The school board has not yet voted to implement Phase 1 of the program, members stating they preferred to get as much feedback as possible from residents as to their opinions.

The kindergarten committee and Dr. Donald Hardy, superintendent of schools, will make their formal proposal of Phase 1 at Wednesday's session. The board and Hardy said last night that they welcome the opportunity to present the program to as many residents as possible. The Wednesday night meeting is being held in place of one scheduled that night by the Robertson School PTA, at which the nongraded proposal was to be discussed also.

Junior Women's Club

The Coventry Junior Women's Club will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday at Watkins Brothers Furniture Store in Manchester.

Members will meet at 7:45 p.m. Barbara Ziegra will lead the "decorator's tour" with a question and answer period to follow.

Mrs. Anthony Felice, membership chairman, will present the Clubwoman of the Month award. Previous members selected for their outstanding club work have been Mrs. Paul Goodin and Mrs. Robert Danehy.

Also included in the evening's events will be the raffling of an electric wall clock.

Guests are welcome and should contact Mrs. Felice.

JWC members are planning their first annual fair, "Spring Fever," to be held May 5 at Capt. Nathan Hale School. Various booths representing the club and area craftsmen are anticipated, including booths for baked goods and preserves, a food and coffee bar, holiday articles, children's amusements, white elephants, and handmade articles.

January Permits

John Willnauer, building inspector, has released a report listing the number and type of permits issued at his office during the month of January.

A total of $960.50 was collected in permit fees for the month, for jobs totaling an estimated $290,950.

Fourteen zoning permits were issued; 14 construction permits; 21 plumbing; 13 heating; 13 electrical; and 13 septic.

Types of jobs for which the permits were issued include 11 houses, an enclosed porch, a furnace, a recreation room and a sign.

Willnauer expects to issue the reports on a monthly basis.

Cub Scout Pack 57

At a recent Pack meeting, the following boys received their first award, the Bobcat pin: David White, Bruce Bollinger, Timmy Parent, and Scott Pierce. Wolf badges went to Todd Bolce and Keith Lane.

Den 9 took first place in the peanut relay.

The annual Blue and Gold Banquet for Cubs and their fathers will be held Sunday at 6 p.m. at St. Mary's Church Hall. The Cubs provide the decorations for the event and there will be special entertainment. Presentation of the 1972 charters will be made, and annual awards acknowledged.

Correction

In an item on ways to seek tax relief in Wednesday's Herald, it was noted that those owning 25 acres of forest land might, through filing, "reduce the assessment by a factor of 10 per cent." The word "per cent" was erroneously inserted, so that the item should read "by a factor of 10."

Manchester Evening Herald Coventry correspondent Holly Gantner, tel. 742-8795.

Judge Declines to Transfer Neptune Draft Case to Maine

The request of a change of venue for the trial of Martin A. Neptune, 21, charged with draft violation, has been denied by U.S. District Court Judge T. Emmet Clarie and the case is scheduled to be heard Tuesday in the Hartford court.

A motion for continuance, filed by Neptune's lawyer, Atty. Michael P. Berman, is also scheduled to be heard Tuesday.

Neptune, a native and resident of the Penobscot Indian Reservation on a river in Maine, contends that the island of the Indian, Eskimo, Aleutian or other aboriginal tribe" is a citizen as long as it does not impair his rights to tribal or other property.

A sturdy pastry board tied securely in a slanting position would expedite proceedings, as witnesses and documents would be more readily available.

In a legal opinion, Judge Clarie said Neptune is governed by the Nationality Act of 1940 which states "a person born in the United States to a member where he lived is neither a part of Maine nor a part of the United States and therefore he is not a U.S. citizen nor eligible for the draft. Neptune and his wife are presently living on Park St. in Manchester.

Neptune was originally indicted in 1970. His attorney claimed the moving of the trial to Maine would expedite proceedings, as witnesses and documents would be more readily available.

In a legal opinion, Judge Clarie said Neptune is governed by the Nationality Act of 1940 which states "a person born in the United States to a member of the Indian, Eskimo, Aleutian or other aboriginal tribe" is a citizen as long as it does not impair his rights to tribal or other property.

Protestants Act to Fuse Ulster Attack

By COLIN FROST

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Brian Faulkner has appealed to Northern Ireland's Protestants to finance a campaign to counter "vicious propaganda being poured out against us" by militant Roman Catholics who want the British provinces merged with the Irish Republic.

"We must actively publicize our determination to stay British," Faulkner declared Friday night. "It is not enough for the government's voice to be heard...It is also vital that the voice of the ordinary people of Ulster comes across loud and clear."

Leaders of the Catholic minority, meanwhile, announced that the third Sunday demonstration in as many weeks would be held in the agricultural community of Ballykelly, 45 miles southwest of Belfast, to protest the provincial government's policy of interning suspected members of the Irish Republican Army—IRA—without trial. The IRA is waging a guerrilla war against 15,000 British troops stationed in the province.

Faulkner's appeal for cash highlighted the belief among many Protestants that skillful propagandists of the IRA have captured the sympathies of the world press. Compared to the coverage given Catholic grievances, they say, Protestant grievances against terrorist bombings and shootings of troops and policemen get little press attention.

"For every newspaperman I take to the Protestants in the Shankill Road, I take a dozen to the Catholics in the Falls," said a Protestant taxidriver.

"We are the majority here," he said, "but the other side gets all the notice."

Although they are outnumbered 2-1 in the province of 1.5 million, Catholics are the largest single denomination in Northern Ireland and usually present a united front.

The Protestants, divided among Presbyterian, Church of Ireland, Methodist and a dozen smaller denominations, are divided politically too. They spend much of their energy in outshouting each other.

At the moment a huge row is blasting in the Protestant camp over a David Frost television program which put the spotlight on John McKeague, chairman of the Shankill Defense Association.

McKeague said on the program that "bloody Sunday" in which 13 Roman Catholics in Londonderry were killed should be renamed "Good Sunday."

Newspapers are packed with letters debating the incident. Some writers think McKeague's comment did drastic damage to the Protestant case.

Others seem sympathetic and

Strike Heats Britons

LONDON (AP) — Millions of British homes cut off from electric power were plunged into a dark, disrupted and cold weekend today. But the political climate heated up with attacks on the government that threw the switch.

Former Prime Minister Harold Wilson, leader of the opposition Labor Party, accused the Conservative government of industrial sabotage after it ordered power cuts be extended to factories. The cutbacks have thrown industry into near panic and imperiled the jobs of up to 5 million workers.

Calling it "the blackest Friday Britain's industry has seen," Wilson urged Prime Minister Edward Heath to meet today with striking miners. Their five-week walkout has cut off supplies to coal-fueled power stations and led to the blackouts.

The miners' leader, Joe Gormley, said he was ready to discuss a pay settlement with Heath. But a spokesman for the prime minister said he had no plans to meet Wilson's call.

The spokesman said Heath stands by his speech Friday that appealing to the miners to accept an interim pay deal and go back to work pending the outcome of an inquiry into the dispute.

The 280,000 striking miners have rejected his appeal.

With power cuts lasting longer and affecting more homes, housewives struggled to prepare cold meals and replenish their dwindling supply of candles and flashlight batteries.

Hospitals were supposed to be exempt from the cuts. But by accident St. James's Hospital in South London was blacked out. Its emergency generator kicked on in time to power equipment keeping a heart patient alive.

Police spent hours checking buildings where burglar alarms went off, tripped by a device that operates automatically if electricity is interrupted.

Both the government and the miners were the targets of public wrath. Gormley, the strike leader, said his London headquarters had two bomb threats and many abusive phone calls.

Angry demonstrators chanted

Jungle Buildup Mauled from Air

SAIGON (AP) — The United States has launched its biggest aerial campaign across South Vietnam in more than 18 months, hoping to crush a Communist buildup along South Vietnam's western borders.

Ranging over jungled infiltration networks, supply routes, staging areas and storage sites, U.S. tactical fighter-bombers and B52 heavy bombers made about 200 strikes Friday and today in northern and central South Vietnam.

Informants said a North Vietnamese buildup of troops and supplies is continuing in the regions along South Vietnam's western frontier bordering Laos, but that they did not anticipate a major offensive until after the Tet lunar new year celebrations which begin Tuesday.

The Viet Cong have announced a four-day cease-fire for Tet, beginning at 1 a.m. Saigon time Monday. The allies have said they will observe a 24-hour cease-fire effective at 6 p.m. Monday.

The U.S. Command announced that Navy and Air Force fighter-bombers made 172 strikes in South Vietnam during the 24-hour period ending at dawn today, the most in one day since September 1970. This raised to 356 the total number of strikes flown by American fighter-bombers in Vietnam alone during the past three days, compared to an average of less than 10 a day during the past four months.

Aerial Campaign

Other Air Force and Navy planes also kept up the pressure on the other side of South Vietnam's border. They made about 200 strikes against the Ho Chi Minh trail supply network, which snakes through southern Laos and into South Vietnam's northern provinces and central highlands.

The U.S. Command also reported that B52 bombers flew 12 missions in South Vietnam, the highest number since January 1970.

The command does not disclose the specific number of B52 bombers on each mission, but it ranges from one to three. Most of the latest missions reported were one plane strikes, sources said.

All but two of the U.S. strikes in South Vietnam were concentrated in the northernmost provinces below the demilitarized zone, in the central highlands and along the central coastal plain. This is where U.S. officials have been predicting a big enemy push.

With American ground troops down to less than a dozen infantry battalions mostly in a security role, the United States is relying heavily on air power in hopes of delaying a Communist off-nsive.

Informants said the biggest buildups were in the central

Antiwar Parley in Paris Spars with POW Wives

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — A delegation of American wives of prisoners of war and missing men charged the pace of an antiwar assembly here today by showing up to seek information about their husbands.

Two of the three wives tried to become delegates to the World Assembly of Paris for Peace and Independence of Indochinese Peoples. They were admitted to the assembly hall but their applications for delegate status were turned down because they did not belong to antiwar groups which embrace Communist policy on the war.

The three wives, however, received a sympathetic hearing from Communist Indochinese delegates, but received no specific information on their husbands. The wives talked informally with representatives of the Viet Cong and Pathet Lao delegations and sought appointments with others.

The wives were Mrs. Paul E. Galanti, Richmond, Va., whose husband has been a North Vietnamese prisoner since June 17, 1966; Mrs. James Blair White, St. Petersburg, Fla., whose husband has been missing in Laos since Nov. 24, 1969; and Mrs. Bruce G. Johnson, Salina, Kan., whose husband has been missing in North Vietnam since the June 10, 1965.

They were accompanied by a Washington, D.C., lawyer, Charles W. Havens.

The delegates was able to enter the assembly hall despite tight security, and their presence was quickly recognized because they were more conservatively dressed than most of the hippie clad members of the American delegation.

Some of the American delegates murmured to newsmen that the wives' unexpected appearance at the assembly was a "maneuver by the American administration" to disturb the assembly. But the wives and their lawyer denied that they had any connection with the government or that they had any intention of disrupting the proceedings.

Mrs. Galanti and Mrs. White formally applied for delegate

Mills Abandons Fence, Dons His Running Shoes

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL

Responding to a campaign generated by home-state supporters and congressional colleagues, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a leading figure in many a Capitol Hill scrap, says he will actively seek the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mills moved off the list of presidential fence-sitters and into the battle proper Friday with the announcement that he "intended to be in Miami" would nominate him at the Democratic convention and that he "intended to be in Miami" seeking the support of other delegations."

The statement, ending a period in which Mills said he was not a candidate but would not fight a convention draft, came after his name was entered in the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries.

Mills office said the congressman has written to the Wisconsin and Nebraska secretaries of the state that he could not in good conscience sign the required affidavits to remove his name from the ballot.

Such a move, Mills wrote, would require him to say "he is not now and does not intend to be a candidate for President."

Mills, whose committee handles all tax legislation, has been a member of Congress since 1939. He is considered an expert on internal revenue matters and an effective backer of tax policies traditionally espoused by the Democrats.

Mills is reported to have the support of many fellow Southerners to run for the presidency as well as being a favorite son in Arkansas.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State William P. Rogers made it known he will give special foreign-policy briefings to all candidates, starting after "a winnowing out process" has narrowed the now-crowded field.

A department spokesman confirmed this when asked about a call by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., for the administration to give "in-depth discussions" to keep candidates informed.

The State Department said the briefings probably would not start until after Rogers returns from his trip to Peking with President Nixon.

Humphrey appearing on an NBC's "Today" show, also called on fellow presidential hopefuls to "refine the debate" over the President's latest peace moves.

That view was shared by another Democratic contender, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington who urged Americans to support Nixon's Vietnam efforts "as long as he continues to negotiate effectively for peace."

Jackson, on the campaign trail in Florida, called for a "little moratorium" among presidential contenders.

"There will be ample time to hold Nixon accountable for what he has done—or hasn't done—come November," Jackson told a Jacksonville gathering.

In the same vein, two administration spokesmen continued an attack of Democratic criticism of Nixon's peace efforts.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, in San Diego, Calif., where the families of many American prisoners of war live, said those "who reject the peace initiatives of the President even before the enemy has given a clear response are not helping the prisoners, the missing and their families."

"Responsible men," Laird said in a speech prepared for the Club of Club of San Diego, "will recognize that we can have only one president at a time."

Laird's remarks were echoed by Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, who said the leading Democratic critic, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, had

'Market Basket' High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers last year paid $21 more for a "market basket" list of food items, but farmers got only $1 of the 1971 increase.

Middlemen pocketed the rest, according to a new analysis by the Agriculture Department.

Put on another basis, farmers last year got only 38 cents of each dollar consumers spent on food, down one cent from 1970.

The report, issued Friday, was another in a series issued by USDA this week on food prices. Earlier, the department predicted supermarket grocery prices will rise this year about 4 per cent, compared with a 2.4-per-cent gain in 1971.

But that includes all food consumers buy at retail stores, imported and seafood products as well as items which begin on U.S. farms. The market-basket list includes only farm-originated food products and is used to gauge where the consumer dollar goes.

On that basis, the latest re-

No-Fault Study Panel Calls for $5,000 Payoff

HARTFORD (AP) — A legislative study committee has recommended a limited no-fault auto insurance plan for Connecticut that would cover medical expenses up to $5,000 but would exclude property damage.

No decision has yet been reached by the committee on whether to recommend that the plan carry a requirement that auto insurance companies reduce their premiums in Connecticut.

The plan, approved unanimously by the 22-member committee Friday, would require automatic medical payments up to $5,000 to insured accident victims regardless of who was at fault.

All car owners in the state would be required to subscribe to the plan.

The plan would entitle injured persons to sue in court for the any medical expenses, earning losses, rehabilitation and other medically related losses over $5,000.

However, medical expenses and loss of earnings would have to total more than $700 for persons to be able to sue for additional compensation based on "pain and suffering."

No-fault insurance advocates argue that minor medical and "pain and suffering" cases tie up courts so that other accident victims must face lengthy delays.

Regardless of the amount of medical costs, lawsuits would still be allowed in cases of death and permanent disfigurement or injury, said State Sen. Jay W. Jackson, D-West Hartford, who is one of the committee's four chairmen.

The committee also recommended that a partial-fault concept of auto insurance be adopted. It would allow a person who sues to collect from the other party even if the victim is partially at fault in the accident.

Under the present system, a person probably won't win any payment if he is found to be even slightly at fault. Under the proposed regulation, a person would lose his right to sue only if he were more than half at fault.

The special legislative committee was set up by the legislature last year after another no-fault plan was voted down in the Senate. The committee is composed of legislators and representatives of the executive branch of government, the insurance industry, labor and business.

Massachusetts, the first state to inaugurate a no-fault system, required lower premiums when the plan went into effect at the beginning of 1971. Since then five other states have adopted no-fault plans for medical expenses in auto accidents.

The committee also made a number of recommendations related to prevention of accidents. Among them were:

—Passage of a "bumper law" that would require cars sold in the state after a certain date to withstand crashes at a to be determined maximum speed without being damaged. Jackson said Florida has adopted such a law which will take effect in 1975 and require that cars withstand impacts at up to five miles per hour from the rear and three m.p.h. in a forward direction.

Tragic Fire Claims Four At Lowell

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — Police said four persons died early today and five others were missing after a general alarm fire that raced through a three story rooming house.

Officers said only one of the victims was identified, James O'Brien, age unknown.

Police helped rescue 17 persons from the building down a back stairs. They were taken to a nearby Salvation Army shelter.

Police Sgt. William Finn, 35, said he was on patrol when he saw two men run from the house with a television set. As he began to chase them he saw smoke coming from the house and stopped.

He said he sought to enter the front door but was turned back by flames. He alerted the occupants of a nearby diner who helped officers rouse occupants of the building and lead them down the stairs.

The blaze broke out about 5 a.m., and within three hours the roof and third floor of the brick and frame dwelling had collapsed.

Sgt. Finn was later hospitalized for treatment of smoke inhalation.
