THE IRISH EVICTIONS

THE PAINTERS' RIGHTS IN GLENBLOCH. (V. G. Eaton's Letter in Boston Globe.)

There was but one car for hire in all the place, and I had it. The driver's name was Denis. Denis couldn't talk much English, but he was way up in Celtic, and could talk more of an Irish than I could.

"Who owns this land?" I asked.

"How much rent does he charge an acre?"

"How much rent did you pay?"

"Did you keep cows?"

"How many?"

"Did they support you?"

"I lived."

"Your family, where are they?"

"Gone."

"And you, what do you do?"

"I am here."

"What will you do when it gets cold this winter?"

"I have your money?"

"No."

"It is hard work to live."

"Do you want to die?"

"I can."

"I am hungry."

"I am."

"I have your money?"

"No."

"It is a beautiful view you have here."

"I have seen it before. It is a beautiful view you have here."

APFARIS ABOUT TOWN.

New millinery at W. H. Cheney's. Vienna bread fresh daily at Hartman's.

Of the 47 new voters made this year, 41 are said to be demagogues.

W. H. Cheney is selling millinery at low prices. New stock just received.

Rev. Mr. Shaw, of South Windsor, will exchange with Rev. Mr. Barber tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Ferris Sr. are visiting friends among the mountains of northern Massachusetts.

No license will be the subject of discourse by the pastor at the South Methodist church tomorrow.

John Campbell, the promoter, has been suffering from an accident by which a bit of steel flew into his eye.

All interested in forming a Chautauque circle are invited to meet at 7.30. Mr. U. M. Triswold's Monday evening at 7.30.

The New Home sewing machine took first prize at the State fair. Watkins Brothers are sole agents for Manchester.

Now is the time to replenish your line of bedding. Blankets and quilts of every kind are sold at low prices by A. Hartman.

If you wish to get the largest amount of office stationery for the least money visit the stationery department at W. H. Cheney's.

Those interested in the high school project should be on hand at the town meeting prepared to express their opinion. Otherwise the opponents of the plan will defeat it.

McFarlane did not make an exhibit at the fair but he has at his place of business an extensive exhibit of men's overcoats just in. He is glad to order at reasonable prices.

Even with the latest styles at McFarlane's latest receipts in gentlemen's pants goods. They were opened this week and the variety of patterns will be sure to please.

W. H. Cheney has ordered a complete new Yale outfit of boxes for the South Manchester post office. The 480 call boxes now in use, with counters, are offered for sale cheap.

George Silgo, who has recently been released from the insane asylum, cut his throat with a razor at his sister's in New Britain Saturday. His body was brought here for burial Monday.

If the streets have a deserted look next week it will be because nearly all the horses in town will be absent at the Rockville fair. They are to race with the Manchester Driving Club.

Two carloads of amusement seekers came from Hartford by the special train Thursday evening. Most of them went to see Dixie in Adams. A special train to Manchester after a good show always pays.

The Catholic fair at Cheney's hall this week has, in spite of other attractions, been well attended and the receipts are satisfactory. The fair will close tonight and the hall is to be occupied tomorrow night by the temperance meeting.

These New England winters are expensive seasons. Take the item of coal alone. Manchester will pay $50,000 this winter for coal for domestic use to say nothing of the fuel consumed by factories. It seems a large sum but it pays for only five tons each for the 1500 families in town.

Following is the list of advertised letters in the South Manchester post office for the week ending Sept. 30: Alex. Allen, Mrs. W. C. Cabot, Richard Flavel, Frederick Gerard, H. W. Hovens, Miss Laura Nevins, care of John Nevins, Mrs. D. D. Smith, Henry Symes-3, Miss Annie Thompson, Mrs. J. Smith, care of Jas. Wright. Postal: Michael Fox. W. H. CHENEY, P. M.

There will be another citizens' meeting in Cheney's hall tomorrow evening at 7.30 to discuss the no license question. There will be numerous five minute speeches and a consolidated choir will furnish music. Rev. J. H. LaRoche will preside. A special train will run from Manchester. All the pastors in town are expected. Children should remain at home as all the rooms are required for adults.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing quarter at the last quarterly meeting of the Sons of Temperance: W. P. Emil Hohenthal, W. A. Miss Lettie Lockwood, R. S. Fred L. Southwick, A. R. S. Miss Dora Hohenthal, F. S. Wm. A. Taylor, Jr., Treas. Harry Brown; Chap. Rev. J. H. LaRoche; Con. David Rogers; A. C. Miss Lena Brown; J. S. Edward Gotberg; O. S. Oliver Sadt; P. W. P. John Burns; Organist, Miss Mary Lyons.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Drayton have been suffering more than their share of affliction during the last two months. For more than a fortnight their three children and Major Drayton himself were sick in bed at the same time. Their trouble culminated Wednesday in the death of their daughter, Christa, an estimable girl of 18. The Christian Endeavor society, of which she was an active member, furnished music at the funeral and contributed an elegant floral emblem, bearing the society's motto.

Cowles' hotel has forty-six regular boarders and a transient patronage of fifteen or twenty guests a day. The new rooms, lately finished from the old hall, have been furnished in first class style and are as nice as can be found in any hotel in the state. A large new range has been put into the kitchen this week and as soon as the electric light system is in operation, twenty-five incandescent lamps will illuminate the lower floor. The force of wetters, cooks and chambermaids has been doubled to meet the increasing demands of patrons.

RENEWED HER YOUTH. Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clark Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of that town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years. I could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am vigorous as I ever was. I owe my health to the Electric Bitters, for having removed my youth, and recovered completely all disease and pain. Try a bottle only 50 cts. at Cheney & Gould's drug store.

THE GRANGE FAIR.

An exhibit that surprised everyone. A financial success.

When Army Hall opened for the fair of Manchester granges Wednesday noon it showed the result of the efforts of twenty or thirty hard-working men and women during the two days preceding. It is wonderful that they were able to accomplish so much.

The exhibit shows that the farmers of Manchester are producing at two weeks' intervals. Last year they produced early in the season to hold a fair in the fall and prepared for it. When fall came it was decided not to hold a fair and the extra preparations therefore were wasted. This year there was no talk of a fall until within a few weeks and therefore the exhibit is entirely impromptu. It proves that the farming interests of this town are more extensive than most people believed.

Four tables, each eight feet long, extended through the hall were loaded with products of the farm, while along the walls and on lines over the tables were hung samples of needlework, decorative paintings, etc. The array is a large hall but the grangers had met its demands with an exhibit that filled it. There were not far from 2,000 articles displayed. It will be seen at once that a detailed description would occupy more space than the Herald could spare. We can describe only the chief exhibits and them briefly.

Along the east wall, O. W. Gosling made an exhibit of his pastured farm produce. He showed a dozen articles including harrows, cultivators and plows especially adapted to the soil and crops in this vicinity.

The east table was devoted to vegetables exclusively and one half of it was occupied by the splendid exhibit of Charles E. Bunce. The center piece, the work of his hands, was an artistic conception. It consisted of a shallow basket about three by four feet with sides of woven corn husks and bottom of corn stalks. The basket was filled with a pyramid of highly colored squashes and gourds; at its apex was a nest of dried grass and wheat heads filled with vegetable eggs. Notable features of Mr. Bunce's exhibit were fine samples of Persian horse Muscatello tobacco from seed which came from Persia two years ago and of Case tobacco, a line of 23 cucumbers showing the growth from the seed, rare Australian squashes, choice turnips, carrots, corn and potatoes.

The Buckland brothers showed 200 articles, and made important contributions to the vegetable table. They exhibited Mrs. E. J. Bidwell's potatoes and beans. Walter Bidwell exhibited fourteen articles of farm produce which gave evidence of careful cultivation. J. S. Ribley's exhibit comprised four varieties of field corn, Canada, Canada Dent, White Field and Angel of Michigan. He showed also elegant sweet potatoes of his own growing.

Joseph S. Cushman showed the only large exhibit of large crook-necked squashes, banana melons and six plates of potatoes. George W. Bidwell would be a good man to give a squash party; his exhibit proved him an adept at raising red ears of corn. His display included also eight plates of sweetest short-skin sweet potatoes at the fair. Choice potatoes are shown by W. W. Cowles, M. S. Noyes and Gardner Warren. A. W. Keeney contributed samples of tomatoes, including the only pear tomatoes shown: E. B. Manning had a collection of 14 kinds of vegetables, such as a perfect sample of his kind. Henry Bidwell exhibited big turnips, oats and wheat. The vegetable exhibit was not confined to the east table; it overflowed to the table on the west side of the hall, which it nearly filled.

THE FRUIT EXHIBIT. This was the spectacular part of the show. Imagine 650 plates of apples, peaches, pomegranates and grapes assembled on three tables! And all the red-cheeked apples were polished so highly that you could see your face in them. One table had scarcely anything but apples on it—over 300 plates. It would be useless to attempt to name them. There was every species from the knobby wild fruit to the huge shining grafters. Buckland Brothers showed 92 plates of natural fruit and 47 of grafted. E. J. and W. S. Yall contributed the pyramids of perfect fruit that adorned the long table. Joseph Cushman contributed 50 varieties of grafted fruit including several novelties and all attractively arranged. J. S. Ribley showed three different specimens of King of Tompkins county, peaches and six plates of apples, pears and quinces, all elegant fruit.

Joseph Bidston is gaining a wide reputation as a fruit farmer and his success was amply attested by his exhibit. He showed 40 plates of apples, grapes and pears. A large seedling apple beside the diminutive sample of the parent stock was a curiosity.

His grapes were the finest shown and embraced the largest variety. He showed also 12 varieties of canned goods, all in perfect condition. His exhibit was garnished with crab apple branches laden with fruit. C. D. Parsons made an attractive exhibit including 35 kinds of apples and pears. The largest assortment of pears was shown by C. H. Owen who exhibited 21 plates of luscious fruit. G. W. Bidwell exhibited two plates of choice grapes.

Lodie Cheney exhibited mammoth Lima beans and honey; D. F. Blinn cooks of high-bred poultry; F. E. Tucker, peaches; Mary Ribley strawberry tomatoes; Fred Hagenow, quinces; George W. Woodbridge and A. J. Spencer, apples.

At the southeast corner of the hall there was an unpretentious show case; but those who took the trouble to examine its contents saw a most tempting array of farmer's butter. There were fourteen specimens. The center piece was a pattern of refined samples of the product of the Hillside farm, contributed by Mrs. W. W. Cowles. The other exhibitors were Mrs. Lucia Bunce, Miss Ellen E. Strong, Mrs. J. S. Cushman, Mrs. Charles Conch, Mrs. Henry Bidwell, G. W. Mills, Mrs. John Loomis, Mrs. Wm. Washburn, Mrs. Francis Buckland, Miss Mary E. Ribley and Mrs. C. D. Parsons. Their product proved that even the cooperative creamery system has not monopolized all the good butter.

PANTRY ARTICLES. The exhibit of dairy articles was arranged on the west center table and along the west wall. It consisted of an almost endless variety of articles. The contributors were Miss Mary Ribley, Mrs. M. S. Noyes, Mrs. Clara Carpenter, Mrs. C. D. Parsons, Mrs. Bario, Miss Ellen Strong, Mrs. G. T. Tully, Mrs. George Perkins, Mrs. A. J. Camp, Mrs. George W. Woodbridge, Mrs. Orion Treat, Mrs. Gardner Warren, Mrs. Joseph Cushman, Mrs. William Kelsch, Miss Alice Strong, Mrs. George Bunce, Mrs. J. Brewer, Mrs. Ida Talbot, Mrs. Addie C. Taylor, Mrs. P. J. Jacobson, Mrs. Horace Bidwell, Mrs. Henry Bidwell, Mrs. H. S. Keeney, Mrs. Henry Taylor, Mrs. F. Buckland, Mrs. Ethan Strong, Mrs. Francis Buckland, Mrs. Albert F. Bidwell, Mrs. Frank Spencer, Mrs. M. H. Keeney and Mrs. Warren Taylor.

THE GRANGE FAIR.

An exhibit that surprised everyone. A financial success.

When Army Hall opened for the fair of Manchester granges Wednesday noon it showed the result of the efforts of twenty or thirty hard-working men and women during the two days preceding. It is wonderful that they were able to accomplish so much.

The exhibit shows that the farmers of Manchester are producing at two weeks' intervals. Last year they produced early in the season to hold a fair in the fall and prepared for it. When fall came it was decided not to hold a fair and the extra preparations therefore were wasted. This year there was no talk of a fall until within a few weeks and therefore the exhibit is entirely impromptu. It proves that the farming interests of this town are more extensive than most people believed.

Four tables, each eight feet long, extended through the hall were loaded with products of the farm, while along the walls and on lines over the tables were hung samples of needlework, decorative paintings, etc. The array is a large hall but the grangers had met its demands with an exhibit that filled it. There were not far from 2,000 articles displayed. It will be seen at once that a detailed description would occupy more space than the Herald could spare. We can describe only the chief exhibits and them briefly.

Along the east wall, O. W. Gosling made an exhibit of his pastured farm produce. He showed a dozen articles including harrows, cultivators and plows especially adapted to the soil and crops in this vicinity.

The east table was devoted to vegetables exclusively and one half of it was occupied by the splendid exhibit of Charles E. Bunce. The center piece, the work of his hands, was an artistic conception. It consisted of a shallow basket about three by four feet with sides of woven corn husks and bottom of corn stalks. The basket was filled with a pyramid of highly colored squashes and gourds; at its apex was a nest of dried grass and wheat heads filled with vegetable eggs. Notable features of Mr. Bunce's exhibit were fine samples of Persian horse Muscatello tobacco from seed which came from Persia two years ago and of Case tobacco, a line of 23 cucumbers showing the growth from the seed, rare Australian squashes, choice turnips, carrots, corn and potatoes.

The Buckland brothers showed 200 articles, and made important contributions to the vegetable table. They exhibited Mrs. E. J. Bidwell's potatoes and beans. Walter Bidwell exhibited fourteen articles of farm produce which gave evidence of careful cultivation. J. S. Ribley's exhibit comprised four varieties of field corn, Canada, Canada Dent, White Field and Angel of Michigan. He showed also elegant sweet potatoes of his own growing.

Joseph S. Cushman showed the only large exhibit of large crook-necked squashes, banana melons and six plates of potatoes. George W. Bidwell would be a good man to give a squash party; his exhibit proved him an adept at raising red ears of corn. His display included also eight plates of sweetest short-skin sweet potatoes at the fair. Choice potatoes are shown by W. W. Cowles, M. S. Noyes and Gardner Warren. A. W. Keeney contributed samples of tomatoes, including the only pear tomatoes shown: E. B. Manning had a collection of 14 kinds of vegetables, such as a perfect sample of his kind. Henry Bidwell exhibited big turnips, oats and wheat. The vegetable exhibit was not confined to the east table; it overflowed to the table on the west side of the hall, which it nearly filled.

THE FRUIT EXHIBIT. This was the spectacular part of the show. Imagine 650 plates of apples, peaches, pomegranates and grapes assembled on three tables! And all the red-cheeked apples were polished so highly that you could see your face in them. One table had scarcely anything but apples on it—over 300 plates. It would be useless to attempt to name them. There was every species from the knobby wild fruit to the huge shining grafters. Buckland Brothers showed 92 plates of natural fruit and 47 of grafted. E. J. and W. S. Yall contributed the pyramids of perfect fruit that adorned the long table. Joseph Cushman contributed 50 varieties of grafted fruit including several novelties and all attractively arranged. J. S. Ribley showed three different specimens of King of Tompkins county, peaches and six plates of apples, pears and quinces, all elegant fruit.

Joseph Bidston is gaining a wide reputation as a fruit farmer and his success was amply attested by his exhibit. He showed 40 plates of apples, grapes and pears. A large seedling apple beside the diminutive sample of the parent stock was a curiosity.

His grapes were the finest shown and embraced the largest variety. He showed also 12 varieties of canned goods, all in perfect condition. His exhibit was garnished with crab apple branches laden with fruit. C. D. Parsons made an attractive exhibit including 35 kinds of apples and pears. The largest assortment of pears was shown by C. H. Owen who exhibited 21 plates of luscious fruit. G. W. Bidwell exhibited two plates of choice grapes.

Lodie Cheney exhibited mammoth Lima beans and honey; D. F. Blinn cooks of high-bred poultry; F. E. Tucker, peaches; Mary Ribley strawberry tomatoes; Fred Hagenow, quinces; George W. Woodbridge and A. J. Spencer, apples.

At the southeast corner of the hall there was an unpretentious show case; but those who took the trouble to examine its contents saw a most tempting array of farmer's butter. There were fourteen specimens. The center piece was a pattern of refined samples of the product of the Hillside farm, contributed by Mrs. W. W. Cowles. The other exhibitors were Mrs. Lucia Bunce, Miss Ellen E. Strong, Mrs. J. S. Cushman, Mrs. Charles Conch, Mrs. Henry Bidwell, G. W. Mills, Mrs. John Loomis, Mrs. Wm. Washburn, Mrs. Francis Buckland, Miss Mary E. Ribley and Mrs. C. D. Parsons. Their product proved that even the cooperative creamery system has not monopolized all the good butter.
