A GOOD MAN GONE.

Sudden Death of Father Campbell.

OBSEQUIES AT PROVIDENCE AND AT MANCHESTER.

Sketch of a Useful Life.
Rev. James F. Campbell died at Providence Monday. The Herald last Saturday told of his critical illness. For several years he had been an invalid, his trouble being ulceration of the stomach. He had however maintained active control of the affairs of the parish and felt well enough to conduct the late recently given by the young ladies of St. James parish at Armory hall. At the close of the fair he went to his home in Providence for a brief rest and while attending the funeral of a brother priest in that city was taken suddenly ill. He received the last sacraments Thursday. Soon after that he seemed to grow better. Our dispatches last week were hopeful of his recovery and his condition continued to appear favorable until Monday morning about four o'clock. He was sitting in his chair when his sister saw him suddenly fall forward. She thought he had fainted and grasping his shoulder raised him. He gasped once and expired instantly. His physician was called at once and said that heart disease had caused his death.

The news of Father Campbell's death was telegraphed to Manchester Monday morning. The message caused general and profound grief. Not for many years has the death of one of our residents caused such universal sorrow. His life-long, self-sacrificing work here and kindly disposition, his integrity and his public spirit—all had won for him the respect and admiration of all with whom he had more intimate relations. The death of such a citizen and clergyman called for more than ordinary observance on the part of the community at large and for every possible mark of respect from his own church and people.

As soon as the news of the death of Father Campbell was received in town a meeting of the male members of both St. James and St. Bridget's churches was called for that evening. It was not known where the body was to be interred at this time, but Rev. D. A. Haggerty left on the 2.38 train for Providence and said he would send word about eight o'clock, or as early in the evening as possible, to Manchester, advising where the interment would take place. The meetings were delayed until after eight o'clock for this reason, when a message was received over the Western Union wire stating that the body would leave Providence Wednesday noon and the burial would occur Thursday at 10.30. It was understood, however, that should the body be brought here, it would be interred in the St. James yard. As soon as the word was received the meetings were called to order. The meeting at the north end was held at the rooms of the Young Men's Catholic Association and was presided over by J. E. Dunn with M. E. Tushy secretary. Mr. Dunn stated that a meeting of like nature was being held at South Manchester and that the object was to appoint representatives of each congregation to go to Providence to escort the body to Manchester; also to appoint a committee for the erection of a vault and others on church decoration and resolutions. The meeting was largely attended and several of those present expressed sorrow at the sad news. The suggestions of the chairman were ratified. While the meeting was in progress word was received by telephone from South Manchester stating the number they had appointed on their committee and that at the close of the meeting they would appoint a committee to come to Manchester and confer with the committee appointed here. The committees appointed by St. Bridget's congregation were: Messrs. O'Connell, J. E. Dunn, John Sheridan, P. J. Tushy, Daniel Ward, Michael Dunn, Maurice Maloney; on decoration and vault, John Campbell, John Sullivan, Michael Cunningham, Edward Young, Thomas Moriarty; on vault, R. J. Maloney, Dennis McCarthy, John McCarthy; on resolutions, J. E. Dunn, M. E. Tushy, M. O'Connell, Daniel Ward and R. J. Maloney. A committee was appointed to notify the presidents of the different societies connected with St. Bridget's church to have the societies be present at the church on the morning of the funeral and all march in a body.

The meeting at South Manchester was presided over by John Egan and W. J. Carr was secretary. The committees appointed were as follows: On escort, Dennis Dunn, John Egan, J. M. Carney, John Foley, Edward Taylor and W. J. Carr; on decorations, Thomas Irish, John Hughes, Edward Dunn, Michael Murray, M. J. Sullivan; resolutions, J. M. Carney, John Hickey, M. A. Moriarty, John Irish, W. M. Keating; on vault, John Hickey, John Hughes, P. F. Carney, James J. M. Carney, W. J. Carr, Edward Dunn, Thomas Irish, John Hughes, John Hickey. The members from St. Bridget's were Maurice Maloney, Michael Dunn, J. M. Carney, Edward Young, P. J. Tushy, John E. Dunn. A committee was also appointed by St. James' people to wait on Cloney Bros. and ask them to release all people from work who wished to attend the funeral services. The committee were: J. M. Carney, John Hickey, M. A. Moriarty. A committee was also appointed to come to Manchester and confer with St. Bridget's committee. It consisted of John Hickey, John Hughes, Patrick Moran, Thomas O'Gorman, Edward Dunn, Patrick Ryan, and Owen Lafferty. When the committee met, the meeting adjourned to the parlor residence and consulted with Rev. Father Lynch. It was decided that the escort committee leave on the 2.38 train Tuesday evening for Providence and that members of the decoration committee go to Hartford the next morning to make arrangements for the decorations and the committee on vault make arrangements for its erection the next day and have everything in readiness, on the arrival of the body in Manchester. The work by each committee was done faithfully and well, as was shown by the harmonious manner in which all was carried out.

The Children of Mary of St. Bridget's church also held a meeting at the church the same evening and decided to dress in black and form in the procession at St. James' church. The Irishmen had a meeting at Cloney's lower hall Wednesday and voted unanimously to come to Manchester and join in the procession. The Children of Mary of St. James' also voted to attend the burial in a body, and meet the procession from Manchester, while on its way to the church. The Young Men's Catholic Association also had a meeting Wednesday evening. A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions, and it was voted that they be printed in the Hartford Times. Messrs. O'Connell and O'Connell called on the committee and it was also voted to procure caps for its members. The meetings of each of the societies were well attended and all turned out in full measure to pay their respects to their dear pastor. Father Campbell's body remained at the house of his brother Monday night. Tuesday it was removed to the cathedral where a funeral service was held. It was attended by nearly fifty priests, including Bishop Harkins, and by many representative men of the city. The father and mother of Father Campbell were among the oldest Catholic residents of Providence and he had many friends there. The services were very impressive. The body lay in the cathedral until it was delivered to the Manchester committee Wednesday morning. The body arrived on the New York and Boston express at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon. It was in charge of Undertaker McMurrough, of Providence, and was accompanied by the diocese relatives and a few intimate friends and the escort committee. A large concourse of people, who filled the deep platforms, were awaiting its arrival. The platformers followed the body in backs to St. Bridget's church, the order going on foot. At the church processions were offered in which all present took an earnest part. A few popular resolutions were made by Rev. Father DeBruyckere, of Wilmamatic. The list of the escort was then returned and the procession moved to the residence of Rev. Father Lynch. Deep was their regret and many a sob could be heard as they passed the altar. The body was placed in the vault and the funeral service was held by Father Haggerty.

At the residence of Rev. Father Lynch, St. James' people were held in the relative quiet of Providence and the body was placed in the vault in the morning. A full view of the funeral service was given in the morning. A beautiful service was given with the remains of the deceased in the morning. The funeral service was held at the residence of Rev. Father Haggerty.

Next comes the tanning. A mixture of mahogany, rosemary, alum and other ingredients is sprinkled over the skins, and pressed in by being trod upon.

The fur trade of the far eastern countries is a peculiar one. The fair at Nizhne Novgorod is the mecca toward which many caravans wind their way.

The far seal is now found in but few localities. Alaska furnishes the greater portion by far of the world's product.

During the sixth day was a violent storm. As the tempest subsided he heard a most welcome sound - the creaking of his seals.

The islands are about fifty miles off Alaska Cape, and in summer are very barren and unproductive.

Great care has to be taken not to alarm the seals, for should they get alarmed they will be so nervous.

The First Rehearsal of the Choral Society.

The first rehearsal of the South Manchester Choral Society, for this season, occurred at Cheney Hall last Tuesday evening. The rehearsals of last season were held on Monday evenings and the change of evening for this first rehearsal seems to have proved inconvenient for a good many old members some of whom were prevented from attending. But after all plans had been made for beginning on Monday it was learned at a late day that the hall had been engaged long in advance for an entertainment on that date; so it was deemed best to have the rehearsal on the following evening rather than postpone it a week. Considering this difficulty and the unpleasant weather, the opening was highly satisfactory. Nearly sixty people being present, including many new members, twenty of whom came from Manchester and returned by special train. The principal work for this series of rehearsals is John of Arc, "The Maid of Orleans," an historical cantata by Alfred R. Gaul, performed by the Birmingham Festival Choral Society in England. Mr. Loveland played some of the principal choruses, which were tried in turn by the chorus and studied sufficiently to give a good idea of their character and of the movement of the parts. The great interest and tenor of the work could easily be appreciated through this first attempt of the singers and Mr. Loveland's reading on the piano, and from the expressions of enjoyment already heard from members, there can be little doubt that the study of it will be pursued with increasing pleasure and enthusiasm. After the intermission Mr. Loveland read an interesting paper on the history of John of Arc, to make the text of the cantata more intelligible to all the singers.

The work of the society deserves the hearty support of all our musical people, that the chorus may be the pride and delight of the town. It can hardly be necessary to point out that success in chorus work depends largely upon numerical strength, and that far grander results can be reached if all the energy and talent are concentrated on one chorus than if they are divided among several conflicting undertakings.

As there are probably many people who would like to join the chorus this fall, information about membership may be of interest. The conditions of active membership are correct ear, good voice and average ability to read music; and applicants must be endorsed by three active members. All singers who can attend the rehearsals will be welcome additions. Those who have friends already in the chorus should consult them and go with them to the next rehearsal. Others should communicate without delay, by letter or in person, with the secretary, Mr. Charles C. Anthony, Manchester. The endorsements can generally be arranged for by introductions. All the singers should, if possible, appear at the next rehearsal, when work will begin in earnest, and attend regularly through the series. Rehearsals will regularly occur on Monday evenings at 7:30, the next on Oct. 24th. A special train will return to Manchester after each rehearsal.

Death of Amos Lay.

After a protracted illness, quietly and peacefully Amos Lay entered into his rest on Sunday evening last. He was born in the town of Lyme, Conn., Sept. 4th, 1842 and came to Manchester just before the breaking out of the civil war. He enlisted from this town, in Co. H, 10th Regiment, and served until the close of the war, and was discharged when the regiment was mustered out of the service.

Coming to South Manchester soon after the close of the war, he entered the employment of the Cheney Brothers. At the time he was obliged to give up active work, he was holding a responsible position, and by careful, accurate and thorough attention to business, had won the confidence of his employers.

For many years he was a member of Co. G, First Regiment State Militia, and held the position of lieutenant and afterward captain of that company.

One of the first members of Drake Post, Grand Army of the Republic, to which organization he was greatly attached, he was active in all matters of interest to the Post, and one of its most useful members. He had filled the position of Quartermaster, and for three years previous to the time when his failing health compelled his retirement, he had held the office of Adjutant.

Faithful to every interest, thoroughly reliable, always ready to do his part, Drake Post mourns his loss, and will long cherish his memory.

His funeral was attended from his late residence on Chestnut street on Wednesday afternoon the Rev. Mr. Coby, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church, of which Mr. Lay was a member, officiating.

A quartette sang the responsive service and rendered "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me" in a sympathetic manner.

The floral offerings were very beautiful and consisted of a pillow from Drake Post, a wreath from surviving members of Co. H, 10th Regiment, pillow from the 10th Regiment veterans and a pillow and shoulder strap from Co. G, 1st Regiment State Militia. Drake Post attended the funeral in a body, and its services for the burial of the dead was read at the cemetery at Buckland, where the burial took place.

Thus the march of another comrade is over, and he was laid to rest until the re-assembly of the Grand Army above.

C. E. HOUSE.

Rightly made and neatly fitting clothes bring us well pleased and agreeable customers. In overcoats especially, style and fit are what you want. And why not have your suit or overcoat made up to fit. Good cutting and fitting add but little to the expense of getting up a coat but it adds wonderfully to its looks.

At present I use silk for sleeve lining in nearly all my overcoats and for a small extra charge I line them with silk all through. Fall and winter stock is now complete and all who wish to come and look are welcome.
