AFFAIRS ABOUT TOWN.

Most of the seaside visitors will be gone next week.

Edwin Rogers, clerk for A. H. Skinner, has bought of P. F. and Samuel Little the Bradley place on Hudson street and will make it his residence after Sept. 1st. He will retain his place at Mr. Skinner's, driving to and from his work.

E. M. Huntsinger has issued a very handsome catalogue of his business college at 30 Asylum street, Hartford. There are many graduates of Huntsinger's in Manchester and vicinity and they all speak well of the school. The catalogue will be sent free upon application.

Mr. La B. Crane was prostrated by a severe attack of typhoid malaria last Sunday and his condition this week has been critical. She is under the care of Dr. DeVore and yesterday was somewhat improved.

The annual reunion of the Association of the 10th Reg. Conn. Vol. will be held in Plainville next Thursday. This meeting is held in Plainville upon invitation of the citizens of that place and they have prepared to make it an interesting occasion. The business meeting will be at 11 o'clock and the dinner at 12:30. The committee expect to arrange for reduced fares.

The Perkins Lamp company has this week moved into new offices directly over the office of The Mather Electric Co. Formerly their offices have been in the north wing of the factory. The new offices are colored with yellow pine, carpeted and handsomely furnished. The main entrance to the Perkins factory as well as to the Mather factory is now from Hilliard street and its employees are forbidden to leave the works from the rear door, which opens on the railroad tracks.

The Sunday schools of the North and South Methodist churches will hold a union picnic at Cook's White Oaks on Thursday, Sept. 1st. A special train will leave at 7:30 a. m. from South Manchester and Manchester after the regular 7:30 a. m. The final arrangements regarding the price of tickets and refreshments are in the hands of competent committees who will make their reports to both schools tomorrow. All members of the schools are requested to be present.

The work on the new addition to the school building in the ninth district is proceeding as fast as a force of 28 men can push it. The roof is all framed and will be put on next week. The workmen can then work uninterrupted through rainy weather. None of the new rooms will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term, but it is expected that the building will be completed about the middle of November.

The building boom near the Center continues unabated. Last week three new cellars were dug, one for a large double house for James Veitch, on Church, another for James Gordon at the corner of Center and Winter streets and the third for Mrs. Agnes Gordon on Center street. Within the last eight months more than 20 large dwelling houses have been built just west of the Center, involving an outlay of over $50,000. Thirteen of the new dwellings have been built on the old Knox farm, which was bought by James Trotter.

Last Tuesday was the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Barber of Vergen Center. Sixty tickets were sold by Manchester station for the excursion to Boston and Nantasket Beach last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Farnum, of Col-linsville, were visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Beckwith the past week. All are invited to call at Fitch & Drake's next week and get a free sample of Highland Evaporated cream. See their advertisement in another column.

The business address of The Herald is Manchester, not South Manchester. News communications, for sure prompt delivery, should be addressed to Manchester.

A theatrical company has been giving dramatic performances in a tent at the corner of Wells and Spruce streets all the week. The tent has been erected nightly.

Rev. Mr. Barber is back from his vacation and will occupy his pulpit Sunday, Sunday evening in connection with the Christian Endeavor meeting he will speak of what he saw and heard at Northfield.

The Peter Adams company will give their employees an excursion to Saratoga Rock today. There are 110 of them and as the married men are allowed to take their wives along the total number will be about 130. Everything about the excursion is free, the employees bearing all the expenses.

The masons at work on the new hotel have reached the third story and the observer now gets a good idea of how the building will look. The towers at the north and south ends are giving a trimmings of Pompeian brick, relieved by a pretty effect. The space between the hotel and the building south of it, will be occupied by a store.

The Manchester telephone exchange is soon to be made the best in Connecticut. A gang of men in the employ of the telephone company are now at work replacing all the iron wire in the exchange with copper wire. It will take about 18 miles of copper wire. All the instruments, too, are to be replaced with new ones of greater effectiveness than their work. "Limiting" the old exchange, however, says that this is the first office in the state to be so equipped. The change will result in a great improvement in the service.

Ela who was to act as one of the judges, was unavoidably absent on account of illness. The contest was interspersed with singing, Mrs. M. E. Ingalls presiding at the organ. DEATH OF MISS DWYER.

Miss Josie Dwyer, daughter of John Dwyer, of Buckland, died at her home last Tuesday morning. She had been sick about two weeks. Her funeral took place from St. Bridget's church Thursday morning. Solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. W. J. Doolan, Rev. D. A. Haggerty acting as deacon and Rev. Michael O'Connor as sub-deacon. The funeral was a very large one and the church was crowded to its utmost capacity. A large number of friends were present from out of town. The funeral was a very beautiful one and the friends of the deceased wherever she was acquainted, she was twenty-one years of age.

The following tribute to the memory of Miss Dwyer is contributed by a friend of the family:

In Memory of Miss Josie Dwyer, who was a dear one that nearly laid out. Where our loving young friend lay, stay the eye's crystal tribute for she is living with God.

In the far away land of the blest Having known in her young soul entranced in prayer, The bright sherry blossom of love, He smiled it, and bore it, all fragrant and fair, To grace the bright mansion above.

Sad indeed, and almost incomprehensible is the premature death of Miss Josie Dwyer. But a few short days ago this estimable young lady "whom none ever knew but to love, her smile of but to praise" walked in our midst a picture of perfect health and happiness. "Today how sorrowful is the change! That beautiful flower, whose innocence and purity of life so readily evoked our praise and admiration has within the present week lost its strength and beauty of color, eye been dimmed, and deprived of its fairest and richest treasure. In the words of the poet:

"A precious soul from us has gone, Which never can be filled."

Yet, why should we entertain feelings of sadness? The untold pangs of sorrow occasioned by the sad event should be converted into thoughts of deepest joy, since we know by faith that our loss is her gain; that though we never more will gaze upon her in the flesh, still one more star shines brightly to-night in the firmament of paradise. I need not dwell upon, or call attention to the exemplary life and heavenly disposition of that pure soul which last Tuesday morning winged its flight to the kingdom of God. All know full well the priceless jewels of virtue with which her soul was adorned. Hence words of praise in portrayal of them now, would be as useless as a wish "to paint the lily or gild refined gold." Though it pleased God to call our friend from this earthly habitation in the morning of her life, when the horizon beamed up before her bright and cloudless, betokening for her all kinds of success, yet her life's mission was fulfilled. She exerted an influence for good upon all who had the happiness to form her acquaintance, that will last as long as life remains. And now that she is gone, the chief fact that her sad and unexpected death recalls most vividly to us is, that men are like leaves falling daily from the great tree of time. Storms of pestilence and disease occasionally move over the land, literally covering the ground. Others having rounded out a long period fall naturally in the autumn of life exhausted by the battle. Others again, are struck from the parent stem ere they have scarcely begun to live. Then it is that death is sad and hard. This is the wreath of immortality I place upon our departed friend's grave.

HARMEI BROS. IN FRANCE.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE DESCRIBED IN THE FORUM.

A firm that cares for its employees as a Moral Duty—Their System of Organizing Labor—Means World-Wide Attention.

When the town of Manchester was asked to abate the taxes on the Union mill, the directors provided Harmel Brothers should buy it the question arose as to the class of help Harmel Brothers would employ and also as to the character of the employees.

All questions as to the desirability of selling such a concern as Harmel Brothers to the circle of manufacturers in Manchester are satisfactorily answered in an article in the August number of the Forum.

The man who is first to invest in such a dwelling house will not only benefit the community but will also make sure of a comfortable income.
