CHICAGO, ILL., May 29, 1892. If any of the readers of The Herald have been in doubt whether they would visit the World's Fair, let me advise them to hesitate no longer. Make up your mind at once to come to Chicago. No matter what sacrifice it may cost, you will never regret it. Never in the history of the world has there been so grand a display and once you are in Chicago the cost of seeing it is small. You can see a good deal in a week but you can comprehend better what you see if you spend two weeks or even longer in the process of digestion. One can, for fifty cents, remain in the exposition grounds from eight in the morning until seven at night, and see something new every minute of that time. But human endurance is not squal to the ordeal. The body gives out and the mind loses it spowers of comprehension before the close of such a large of the strong of the suited and loses it is powers of comprehension before the close of such a large of the strong of the suited and loses its powers of comprehension before the close of such a large of the strong the hard discovered an old schoolmate in the this laborate in the was at the considerable local pride that I discovered an old schoolmate in the this led world school in charge of one of the most time portant departments of the fair. HE FOUND Us. -Just before noon on sday we received word by telephone hanging around that town for several days woken mule. It was added that he had two guns and a knife and blood in his eye, and that we had better look out. When we know for sure that a critter is camping of our trail, we feel like having it over with as soon as possible. After dinner we mounted our mule and rode out to meet the ranger. We sighted him while he was yet a mile away. He found us at about ame time. As soon as our mule, knowing what was coming, began to amble and cavort, the stranger grew discouraged and turned tall. When we got within 40 rods of him, he vacated his mule and took to the scrub, and while we are no physiogno-mist it is our firm belief that he was a badly frightened man. We also dismounted and ran him for a mile, but he seemed to an electric motor in each boot. We brought his mule into town with us, but no one can identify the beast. He looks like the Bad Lands of New Mexico. We shall the Bad Lands of New Mexico. We shall sell him at auction next Tuesday for the nefit of the sewerage fund. We were disappointed in the stranger, but of course we can't expect things to always go our way. He ought to at least subscribe for THE KICKER for the bother and trouble we went to in the matter.

In fact, the breeding of Brown Leghorns can scarcely be considered speculative when well defined lines and established methods are pursued in their management and keeping. Their proficiency and precocity, combined with extraordinary vigor, render them no inferior antagonists in the contest for honors in the financial arena of poultry culture. Their ancient lineage has stamped an indelible impress on their constitution that rough usage and promisenous interbreeding seem powerless to wholly efface. Long coninued, judicious selection under favorable climatic conditions has made them a fixed breed with such tenacious, innatequalities as no mushroom breed ever presents, and they come nearer to being a species than any other of our domestic
