BASE BALL

South Manchester Easily Won from Rock ville last Saturday.

Manchesters and Rockvilles drew a large crowd to the Mount Nebo grounds last Saturday afternoon. The spectators went home well pleased, for the South Manchesters won the game, 28 to 6. There is a strong rivalry between the two nines and their supporters. Both sides were confident of winning, although the backers of the Rockvilles were offering to bet at odds all the way from three to five to five to one on their team. During the early part of the game the batting was light on both sides and the fielding was good. The South Manchesters, however, led at the bat, and in the first two innings brought in five runs. The Rockvilles made one in the second and one in the sixth.

At the beginning of the seventh the score stood eight to two in favor of sewing departments will also be dis-South Manchester. With three men on bases the batter struck a hot one to Spillane, who stopped it neatly and fielded it to at Rockville, Saturday. Holland, who put out the man at home. Holland then threw to first base to cut off the runner, but threw wild. The ball soared past Behnfield and started down the ravine toward the Globe Hollow pond. Two of the Rockvilles crossed the plate on the error. In the eighth inning Messler was substituted for Pinney as pitcher. Messler was "dead easy" for the South Manchester batters, and they rapped the ball all over the field. They had made twelve runs on his pitching and had only one man out when Pinney was recalled to the pitcher's box and put the side out in short order. J. P. SOUTH MANCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL

Graduating Exercises at Cheney Hall Next Tuesday Evening-Lower Grades will Exhibit Monday.

The graduating exercises of the class of '94, South Manchester high school, will take place at Cheney hall next Tuesday evening, beginning at eight o'clock. This is the first class ever graduated from the South Manchester high school, and for that reason the occasion will be one of importance. The class has six members, each of whom will give either an essay or an oration at the graduating mountains of Sevier county, where she exercises. Miss Gertrude Albiston will give an essay on "Visions;" Reuben Gray will give an oration on "The Right of Petition:" Miss Minnie Johnson, essay, "The Ice Age;" Miss Agnes Henderson, "A Day with the People of Ancient Rome:" Miss Alice Belcher, "A Shakespearean Tragedy;" Miss Mary The ball game between the South Grav, "The Humor of Different Countries.

Variety will be added to the program by chorus singing by the high school chorus and by gymnastic exhibitions by selected classes. The public are invited to attend these exercises, and without doubt the hall will be filled.

The undergraduates of the Ninth district school, from the high school down to the kindergarten, will be on exhibition next Monday afternoon from one o'clock to 3.30. Parents and all persons interested in the school are cordially invited to be present at that time. The regular work will be in progress in all the rooms, including the Sloyd department, the cooking department, the sewing department and the gymnasium. The Ladies' Home Missionary society will give an entertainment and strawberry festival in Talcott Brothers' hall this evening. The admission will be 25 cents which will include supper.

The Children's day services at the church were largely attended Sunday. The church was handsomely decorated. The Organ was nearly covered with laurel and pinks. At the morning service there were four children baptized and the pastor preached from the text found in Luke I. 66, "What manner of child shall this be?" In the evening at seven o'clock the service was entirely given up to the children. The exercise "Summer Blossoms" was given and Mrs. Geo. Goodrich sang the soprano solo "Consider the Lilies." The chorr gave three anthems. The children all took their parts exceptionally well. John Kuhney will attend the music teachers' convention, to be held in New Haven today and tomorrow.

Rev. F. R. Waite has been re-elected school committee for the ensuing year. The South Manchester correspondents of the Hartford papers evidently have a grudge against the Talcottville drum corps. In their accounts of Saturday's ball game between the South Manchesters and the Talcottville-Rockville combination they say that the drum corps expected to parade through South Manchester if the visitors won the game. Now this is entirely false as your correspondent is a member of the drum corps and was not aware of it until it came out in the papers. The drum corps and the ball nine are two distinct organizations. Now it is but a few weeks since the South Manchesters went to Winsted and were defeated by a score of 22 to Q. Not one of them ever reached the second base. The South Manchester correspondents of the 'Hartford papers did not have a word to say about that game. We would suggest that; the next time the South Manchesters play the Winsteds they take the South Manchester flute band along with them and perhaps some one of them will reach

A FAMOUS WOMAN MOONSHINER.

The Death of Mollie Miller, Once the Head of a Desperate Gang. Information has reached this city through a southern detective that Mollie Miller, the woman moonshiner of Polk county, Tenn., died a few days ago at her home in the mountains.

Her operations at one time were carried on very extensively, and she was at the head of a gang which was involved in more bloody fights with revenue officers than any other organized in the south. Her first experience was in the assisted her father, Sam Miller. Here Deputy Marshal McPherson led a raid under a guide who had a grudge against Miller. In an almost inaccessible gorge the officers encountered the moonshiners. A bloody fight followed, and three of the revenue men were killed, the others retreating. It was noticed that a young girl was one of the party, and it has always been believed that she killed one of the officers. Another raid was made in which Miller was killed and his associates captured. About this time the revenue officers received a box containing the remains of the man who had informed upon the gang. There was nothing to indicate from whom, it came, and the box must have been carried by wagon and left at the marshal's house.

The woman was not found, and it was soon known that she had fled. In a few months Polk county, which had always furnished considerable illicit whisky, became the headquarters of the moonshiners throughout east Tennessee, and raid followed raid until there was scarcely a cave on the Hiawassee river that had not been the scene of some bloody fight between the moonshiners and revenue

It became known that this woman was a leader, but she was never arrested but once, and then the proof was such that she escaped with a light sentence. After the Knoxville Southern railroad was built the country became too easy of access, and with the exception of an occasional petty offender the gang was broken up. The woman moonshiner retired to a small farm, where she remained undisturbed, except at two or three times, when she was taken to Chattanooga as a witness, when she would collect her fees and start on a walk over the mountains, a distance of 60 miles, to her home.

It is supposed that the killing of three revenue officers and four or five informers can be charged to her directly, while the gang of which she was a member could be held accountable for several others, but it was never possible to prove these charges, and she died without ever having been tried for them.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

TO PREVENT PLINDNESS.

Laws to Punish Nurses For Ignorance and Carelessness In Neglecting Babies.

The State Medical society has done well in calling public attention to the fact that a large proportion of the blindness of the world is due to the disease called ophthalmia neonatorum, and that the well known treatment of this like use by a physician at a sufficiently early period in its course almost always results in preventing the blindness that would otherwise follow. For this reason the society recommends the enactment of a law that has been already adopted in a number of states, to this effect:

Should one or both eyes c. an infant become inflamed or swollen or reddened at any time within two weeks after its birth, it shall be the luty of the midwife or nurse having charge of such infant to report in writing within six hours to the health officer or some regally qualified Engraved and Printed Invitaphysician of the city, town or district in which the parents of the infant reside the fact that such inflammation or swelling or redness of the eyes exists.

The proposed statute imposes a penalty for noncompliance. A specific penalty is necessary to make any statute ef fective, but the value of such an enactment would be mainly to draw attention to the necessity of timely action, since it is improbable that any parent or nurse would willfully neglect the precautions necessary to save a child from blindness if the nature of the case were understood. For this reason the declaration of duty made in the paragraph quoted, if it could be universally circulated, might accomplish almost as much as if formally enacted by the legislature.

The common affection referred to, the "sore eyes" of newly born infants, is one that yields almost certainly to very simple treatment, promptly and skillfully applied, but that almost as certainly goes on to destructive inflammation if neglected, and one of the reasons why so many infants become blind is simply that those in charge of them do not understand, as any physician would, with what a serious matter they have to deal.

A legislative enactment would make it easier for health officers and others to bring the subject to general attention and especially to impress its importance upon those who are recognized as nurses er midwives. The greatest number of cases of neglect, however, occur among the very poor, or in the remote country, where these things are left to volunteers and hygienic intelligence penetrates slowly, and we shall have to mingle some education with our legislation successfully to combat this dreadful scourge .-Philadelphia Times.

The Antiquity of Advertising.

Fourteen hundred years before Christ street criers went into public places to advertise salable articles or walked through the thoroughfares ringing a bell and promulgating public notices. In the exhumed ruins of Pompeii authentic evidence is found in the crude wall inscriptions depicting the prowess of the gladiators, together with testimonials from citizens, which might really be said to be the birth of the advertisement.

io Democrats have gone into many ons heretofore with a delegation wided among itself. There have been McLeans and Thurmans, Paynes and Pendletons, and today there are Buces and Campbells. Factions, fatal factions, have marked the conventions of Democrats of Ohio for 20 years. The man who belongs to no faction and who has not grown too great by feeding upon the mest of ambition will be a star actr in the Democratic farce comedy of the miner of 1896. The name of Tom L. Johnson seems to start a spirit of enhusiasm among the faction of "kids" and "mossbacks" slike, and it would not take much to start his political stock moving skyward. The rise of Congressman Johnson has been remarkable. Ten years ago he was n obscurity. He made a few fortunate investments in street car enterprises with his limited means. He has quadrupled his fortune about every two years. Six years ago he entered politics with a well filled barrel and a first class following. He met with defeat. Two years later he ried it and won. He was re-elected over the Hon, O. J. Hodge, and he will be nominated once more without opposition this fall. He will have to work against disrupting factions, and it is this single fact that causes apprehension among his friends. If he can overcome party opposition, he may get his seat in congress once more.

A prominent Cleveland Democrat, just returned from the state capital tonight, stated that the political battlefield of the nation was going to center in Ohio for the next two years. He drew a little diagram of the political battlefield about like this: "John R. McLean, editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, will be a candidate for the senate to succeed Calvin 8. Brice. I am absolutely certain of this fact. Senator Brice will be a presidential candidate, and so will Tom L. Johnson. Ex-Governor Campbell can expect nothing, for he is faithless to his friends and does not remember them. Johnson is a stronger man in Ohio than Brice. Both are rich, and both are fighters. Neither will yield until beaten. Johnson will win."

It is generally conceded that the preliminary skirmish for Johnson is to be made this fall. If he can overcome party tions and a Republican majority in his own congressional district. he will be a leading candidate before the Demo-cratic convention of 1896.—Cleveland Cor. Chicago Tribune.

What is more, the gorilla furore is extending to places out of town. Gorilla parties are getting to be the rage in the suburbs, and the gorilla is a wonderful being. Of all the specimens of the tribe which have been exhibited he is altogether the most interesting. This may be little severe on the late lamented Mr. Crowley, but facts are facts. To begin with, Mr. Crowley was a genuine, unmistakable chimpanzee. This gorilla is a gorilla from his toes up.

The thing which impresses one most in looking at the gorilla for the first time is that indefinable creepy sensation which a human monstrosity inspires.

The creature's strength is so great that even his gentlest caress may mean a dis membered limb. He has a sense of humor, for one thing, and it might occur to him that it would be jocular to twist Antonio's head off, which he could do quite as easily as he could pull the covering from a banana.

The most striking indication of the creature's strength is in his arms. They hang nearly to his feet when he stands erect, and with the long fingers are said to have a reach of nearly nine feet when he stretches to his utmost to get hold of something. His hands on the inside are smooth and almost white and are crossed and recrossed with the lines which are studied by those skilled in palmistry in reading the fortunes of human beings .-Boston Herald.

"Don't you get your grips confused sometimes?"

"No." said Mr. Markoe, "because I use the signs and grips of only three orders. It would take a man with two heads to remember 42 of them."-New York Mail and Express.

In this way they claim to be "older stock" than the Sons of the Revolution, who date back to ancestors who became prominent in and after 1776. There is also a Society of Colonial Dames.—Philadelphia Times.

THOMAS NAST OF LONDON.

The Remarkable Career That the Once Great Cartoonist Had In This Country.

The news that Thomas Nast has gone to making political cartoons on the Pall Mall Gazette in London caused a ripple of astonishment wherever artists gather in this town. The career that he thus brings to a close in America has indeed been a very remarkable one. About Nast's origin and early life very little has been made public, but it has always been gossiped among the artists that he is partly Italian, German and Jewish, and that before he came to America he was with Garibaldi in that patriot's army. As an artist he first went to work for Frank Leslie in this city. The most important work he did for him is said to have been the Heenan-Sayers fight in England. Soon afterward he began work upon Harper's Weekly. He did not at once develop the gift which made him the most talked of artist and the most powerful cartoonist in America. But from the first he made cartoons and little else. They were not humorous at the start, but, the year being 1864, were upon war subjects and were patriotic and sentimental. Toward the close of that year, when McClellan was nominated for president by the Democrats, Nast began his political work, which ended brilliantly in dition of strings. The inevitable sailor or pencil directly upon the wooden ought to be. Transparent crowns, transdifference of political opinion, but re- hat is trimmed with a soft crumpled markable. Moreover, he made artistic pictures, enhanced by the use of gay colors. Nast could not recover his old place the artistic faculty supplemented by artistic training. Nast never had either.

He drew very clumsily and crudely. Had he been able to keep pace with the artistic progress of the country, or had he stopped work in 1872, his fame would have been splendid. During the closing year of the war he was more detested in the south than the most rabid abolitionist in Boston, and in the same measure he was idolized in the north. The Union League club of this city gave him a pres-nt of place for what he did to a assistions and the northern Then he fought traced with his it was reported that his life was threatened and that great bribes were offered to him. Tweed was reported to have said that Nast's pictures worried him more than all that was written by his opponents.

Mr. Nast lived well in a pretty suburban home and had many warm friends around him. His personal popularity was very great all over the country. His lecture trips, when he gave blackboard talks all over the country, made him well known in even the smaller cities, and travelers say that today there is scarcely a clubhouse between this city and the Pacific coast wherein the visitor will not see Thomas Nast's bearded face drawn by himself, framed and in a place of honor. It was his ability to express a popular sentiment in a picture that gave him his vogue. Whether he can remodel to be seen .- New York Sun.

The pump will be operated by the engine, and it is calculated to suck up the mud from the bottom of the river and throw it on a sluice which runs the full length of the boat above the cabin and extends far enough over the stern to throw all the refuse back into the river. The pump is powerful enough to suck up a good many cubic yards a day, just how many the inventor could not say, but he expected that by running at full speed it should be somewhere near 1,000. If the new mining apparatus saved half the gold from half that amount of earth from the bed of the river near Redding, it should be a paying venture, say several miners who know the country, and they are watching Mr. Spencer's mining enterprise very closely.-San Francisco Ex-

Another form of Grecian netting is a simple continuation of the first and second rows only, by which means the large holes are produced one over the other in a straight line.

The Quality of Tone.

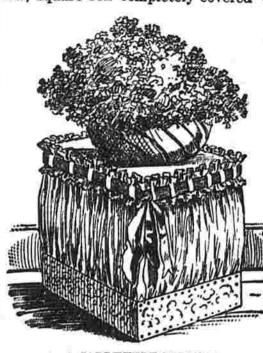

If we strike a pianoforte key with sufficient force to produce even a mezzo forte effect, a knocking sound is occasioned as the finger touches the key, and the hammer strikes the string in a way to jar it. In this case the vibrations cannot be those only which are necessary to produce a pure quality of tone, the effect changing as if it were trying to right itself. A steady pure tone results if we use a particular kind of pressure touch which is noticeable throughout Paderewski's playing, and the touch causes the strings to vibrate as they should. We can easily produce a poor quality of tone on a good piano-Steamship men and others posted on forte if we use a poor kind of touch, the Atlantic summer travel have been and we can readily change the quality estimating the number of American visit- of tone without touching the pedals. EFFECTIVE JARDINIERES.

A Homemade Support That Accentuates the Beauty of Both Jardiniere and Flowers. Jardinieres are especially effective in furnishing a room, whether they be used as receptacles for cut flowers, or for great masses of bloom in wild flowers, or as pots for the growth of choice plants. But jardinieres, to be seen at their best, should have an artistic table or other support on which to rest.

American Gardenias not only suggests that the jardinieres be placed on a suitable support, but gives an illustrated description of an artistic homemade affair within the reach of all.

This homemade support, which can be easily and cheaply constructed, is a low, square box completely covered on top and sides with cloth as bandsome and expensive or as handsome and inexpensive as one may desire, the imitation of china silk giving material that costs but a trifle, and that is really very handsome! The top is covered smoothly, while around the top of the sides is a double ruffle, with loops cut in the ruffle through which a handsome ribbon of harmonizing color is run and tied in long bows in one corner.

Below the double ruffle the material is fulled or gathered, while a plain strip of the covering material forms the bottom of each side. The cover can be fastened to the woodwork by the round headed brass tacks that can be had at furniture and hardware stores. When such a support is used, the jardiniere should be removed from it when being ers are to be changed to avoid soiling or wetting the dainty cloth cover.

The Best of Dishwashers.

Nothing, says a writer in the New York Times, makes a better dishcloth than no cloth at all, but a whisk broom. The practice of using any old rag, an old stocking cut open, which is a traditional country cloth, or any similar thing in sinks is well known to be foolish. Bits wear off and become added elogs to the drain pipes. If cloths must be had, those of coarse mesh, loosely imitted from a tightly wowen cord are the heat of the kind. A proof, however, is very much better, Select & short, stubby one, and a trial will show its superiority. scrape the bottom of sancepans and pots there is nothing so good. The wire cloth is not so cleanly. Bits of food will get in its interstices and will not easily get out, but nothing elings long to a whisk. Hold, it under the faucet for a moment after using, and it is quickly and thoroughly cleansed. Hanging over the sink in my kitchen are always two or three of these brooms, one kept for plates and any pottery dishes, the other for metal ware. Silver and glass are not washed there to begin with, and in any washing need no dishcloth.

And, while on the subject, cheesecloth makes the most satisfactory of glass toweling. Get the coarse sort that costs only 5 and 6 cents a yard, cut it in yard lengths, hem all around, and once tried they will never be missing from your butler's pantry outfit.

Strawberry Shortcake. Make the dough as usual. Instead of rolling out and placing on flat tins to bake, roll and then cut out with a large size biscuit or coffee cup, placing one on another and buttering between as you would the large cakes. When done, have the berries lightly crushed and sugared, pull apart the little cakes, laying the lower halves on a platter, butter and cover with the strawberries, then put on the top parts. Lay some of the finest berries on the tops of the cakes and sprinkle with sugar. Whipped cream poured over just before serving makes a handsome addition to looks and taste.

Fashion Echoes.

White and black gowns prevail at day receptions, those of last season being silks of narrow stripes, while the newest are checked in small squares or else of white ground finely cross barred with black.

A pretty fancy in the new checked silks is that of choosing white with mauve of the special rosy tint that is pink when in a gaslit room in the afternoon and clear lilao when the wearer emerges into the open daylight. A plain full skirt, extremely full in the back, is on most new silk gowns. If trimming is desired, it is very simp as a gathered ruche of the doubled silk two or three inches wide when finished.

A Louis Quinze dress is seen occasionally, though the style is not prevalent.

What are called "dressmakers' tailor gowns" differ from those that are "strictly tailor made" in being more elaborate.

Small round turbans of dark fancy straw or else black very simply trimmed accompany tailor gowns. There is also a fancy for ecru straw hats either in English walking hat shape or else with alpine crowns that are indented.

Light tan covert suiting has proved the general favorite for tailor suits that are to be worn throughout the summer on cool days when linen and duck will

and Pruning Trees. Who is not interested in seeing our streets lined with rows of beautiful trees? What a boon their shade! Trees in a town often have a hard time of it. Poor soil and little or no attention do not conduce to strong and luxuriant growth. But in many towns and cities trees are made to flourish, showing that it is not an impossibility. It is hardly necessary to say that trees will not thrive unless they are treated with an intelligent understanding of their requirements. While every property owner plants a tree or not in front of his property, as it suits him, and retains full control of it, chopping off limbs and otherwise mutilating it as he sees fit, the aspect of our streets cannot improve. The town should take entire control of the planting and pruning of shade trees, and under the direction of some person who has knowledge of their requirements in time long rows of verdure will border our thoroughfares.

Mr. Joseph Meehan, in a paper read before the Pennsylvania Horticultural society, made some useful suggestions as to tree planting in towns. He says: "As to spring or fall planting, it makes no difference. Unless in localities where the natural soil exists in its original purity it is better to dig out a moderate cartload of soil and fill in with fresh, good earth. Rank manure should not be used at all, but that a year or more old, well decayed, may be mixed with the soil moderately, but good planters think it better that it be not in direct contact with the roots, so annixed earth is first thrown in to cover the roots.

"It is well known good practice to do some pruning before planting. Just how much is determined by examining the roots. All trees lose more or less roots in digging. If but few are lost, but little pruning of the top is called for; if many are, a good deal of the top must come away. Nonattention to this is the cause of the loss of thousands of trees. Numerous branches make more mouths than the roots can supply, and the trees die. Do not be afraid of a good pruning of the top. There is another reason for pruning at planting. The trees may be unshapely, the branches too low or the top spindling. Pruning or cutting away of branches to remedy these defects aid the roots at the same time."

Whatever your occupation or calling may be, if it needs support from the public, advertise it thoroughly and efficiently in some shape or other that will arrest public attention. I freely confess that what success I have had in life may be attributed more to the public may be attributed at they are. Men, in business will sometimes tell you that they have tried advertising and it did not pay. This is only when advertising is done sparingly and gradgingly. "Whatever your occupation or calling

"Homeopathic doses of advertising will not pay: Perhaps it is like a portion of physic—making the patient sick, but effecting nothing. Administer lib-erally, and the cure will be permanent. Some say they cannot afford to advertise. They mistake. They cannot afford not to advertise. In this country, where everybody reads the newspapers, it will be seen that these are the cheapest and best media through which persons can speak to the public where they are to find their customers. Put on the appearance of business, and generally the reality will follow.

'The farmer plants his seed, and while he is sleeping his corn and potatoes are growing. So with advertising. While you are sleeping or eating or conversing with one of your customers your advertisement is being read by hundreds and thousasnd of persons who never saw you or heard of your business and never would had it not been for your advertisement appearing in the newspapers."-Holyoke (Mass.) Stable Nuisance In Cities.

The Ladies' Health Protective associyears it has concentrated its efforts to in thickly settled quarters of the city. Some of these have been abated locally, compelling them to seek other quarters. It has also been striving to have the knocked him down and was preparing baling of manare made compulsory. They have had the matter thoroughly son, his keeper, drove the big beast worked up by experts and are prepared to show that the pressing and baling of proved, and we do not have any trouble manure reduces it to one-third its loose bulk, in which state it can be removed disposition and simply treats him kindwithout filling the air with poisonous effinvia, and with a great economy of not to give the old fellow any chances handling, so that it will be really a say- to do harm, and he is never freed from ing for the stables to adopt the plan. They can also prove to the farmer who buys the manure that it is not injured, but instead improved for fertilizing uses by the compression. The society's memorial to the legislature is indersed by repairing one of the Anglo company's the highest scientific and medical authorities.

Loudon's Model Tenements. Model tenement houses have paid well in London. S. Sydney Waterlow made the first experiment of the kind in 1860 when he built at his own expense four blocks in Work street, Finsbury. The buildings accommodated 80 families, or 400 persons, and such was their success that in three years, in confunction with several friends, he started the Improved Industrial Dwellings company, of which he is chairman. That company has spent over £1,000,000 in the erection of dwellings on 45 estates in London. The dividend paid is 5 per cent, and the average rent of each room

LIGHTNING RODS OUSTED.

A Connecticut Agent Says the Barbed Wire Fence Has Done the Trick.

An Ansonia lightning rod agent has returned from Bunker Hill, a little hamlet several miles up the Naugatuck valley, in a most dejected mood. He had heard of a recent thunderstorm up there where considerable damage had been done by lightning, and priming himself with the alleged facts he drove off with his wagon loaded with rods, copper tips, insulators, ladders, etc., expecting to find business brisk. He found at the first place where he stopped that it was going to be a bad year for business in that section, because at nearly every house there were barbed wire fences, and the last storm had proved that there were no better conductors of electricity that a barbed wire fence.

The storm the agent heard of came up suddenly one evening, and its antics convinced him that he had better get out of the lightning rod business and go into the wire fence trade. The very first flash of lightning struck a tree at the southwest corner of the house occupied by Mrs. Willard Woodruff and her sonin-law, J. A. Hitchcock. The force of the concussion threw Mr. Hitchcock from his chair across the room and up against a sideboard. The bolt struck the tree about 20 feet from the ground and on the side toward the house, but a greater attraction was across the street, and the lightning went for it with considerable eagerness. It ricochetted over the intervening space, gouging big holes in the ground at intervals of several feet and throwing stones weighing several pounds about as though it were trying to drive chickens out of the flower bed. Its last leap was over a space of 20 feet, where it found what it was after.

As the electric ball struck the barbed wire fence it divided into two parts. One went north on the top wire and the other south on the lower wire. The north bound ball followed the wire for 100 feet to an open gate, splitting all the posts. Then it jumped to the roadway, tearing up the earth at every bound until it covered the gap made by the gate. It jumped back to the top wire for 200 feet more to the end of the section, throwing the last post flat on the ground and pitching into the earth, where it cut a V shaped hole three feet wide at the widest part.

After the shock those in the Woodruff house began to look about them. They found every pane of glass in the south side of the house but two broken. Every piece of crockery in the pantry had been displaced, some of it toppling off the shelves to the floor, but very little of it was broken. They believe, and so do their neighbors, that the barbed wire fence was their salvation, and if the electric bolt had not been drawn across the street the house would have been torn down.

The Ansonia lightning rod agent said he was forced to believe the same thing. for it was an awful bolt - Ansonin (Conn.) Dispatch.

WORSE THAN TIP.

Bollvar's Respectacy He is Nearly Twice as Big and Much More Victors The recent execution of the elephan Tip by poison in Central park, New York, caused the big crowd which visited the 'zoo' yesterday to view with more than ordinary interest the three huge elephants confined there. Few among the spectators knew, however, that in the enormous Bolivar they saw an animal said by experts to be more ferocions than Tip ever was. Bolivar seemed to be in a particularly ugly mood and swayed his great body from side to side, straining constantly at the heavy chains which fettered him. Head Keeper Manly said:

"I think the killing of Tip was a very queer section. Of course he was ngly and would do all the damage he could at times, but most male elephants will do that. I think it is safe to say that Tip was never in the same class with Bolivar as a terror, but we would not think of killing the old fellow any more than we would of killing an angry lion or tiger. The people want to see wild animals, and the men who handle them should know their moods well enough to keep out of their way when they are

"Bolivar has a most unenviable record, and he would probably not be here now if he had not got so vicious that he could not be handled by the circus men while traveling. He has, I think, ation is one of the most useful societies killed three men outright and has inin the city of New York. For eight jured many more. He weighs over seven tons and is nearly twice as large and do away with the nuisances of stables powerful as Tip was. He is a terror when once started. "He once nearly ended the life of young Adam Forepaugh. Bolivar had to crush his life out when Fred Johnaway. But here his disposition has imwith him. Keeper Harrison knows his ly. We are mighty careful, however, his chain."-Philadelphia Record.

Repairing the Cable.

The cable ship Minia has started from Queenstown on the difficult enterprise of defective cables in 2,800 fathoms of water in the mid-Atlantic. The cable will have to be overhauled for several hun dred miles, the defective sections cut out and new lengths spliced in. The Minia took 500 miles of new cable, half of which is expected to be used. Some people believe an entirely new cable would be found cheaper in the end.

A Montana Alarmist. Revolution is ripe and revolt is in the near future if something is not done quickly. The whole country seems to be in a wild state of picturesque confusion, and no one can tell what is going to happen. George Francis Train must have been reading The New Idea. He predicts a bloody revolution in the country.-Red Gulch New Idea.

A "CONDITIONING" HOUSE. An Institution Which Looks Out For

Square Deal In Weights and Measures. The state department has received from the American consul at Bradford, England, an account of the "conditioning" house owned and operated by the municipality, which is the only one in England. A conditioning house is an establishment in which the true weight, length and condition of articles of trade and commerce are scientifically determined. These are matters regarding which there has always existed a difference of opinion between British exporters and American importers.

Only recently one of the largest exporting houses in Bradford was compelled to allow an American customer a 5 percent discount because of the shrinkage in a large invoice of goods, though it was alleged by the exporter that it entirely obliterated the profit of the transaction. All this may be prevented by the import er of either raw material partially manufactured or wholly finished goods demanding that the product be accompanied by a certificate from a legally authenticated conditioning house.

The Bradford house being worked under parliamentary act, all certificates granted are legal evidence in a court of law and are accepted as absolutely correct as to weight, condition and designation of goods on the date they passed through the Louse. - Washington Post.

Sacrilegious Thieves.

The recent sacrilegious thefts in Paris, including that at Notre Dame, have been traced to the sect known as Luciferians, or worshipers of the devil. Their headquarters are near Freiburg, Switzerland, but a large branch live in Paris. They have a liturgy which is a parody of the mass. The consecrated elements are either stolen from churches or received in communion by female adherents. A serv ice of profunction then takes place, which is known as black mass. Mgr. Faya, bishop of Grenoble, has issued a circular to the clergy ordering special vigilance, as the Luciferians abstract the hosts from village churches in lonely districts without stealing the ciboriums and monstrances in which the sacrament is contained. At the ministry of public worship the subject has been discussed and instructions have been given to the prefect of police to increase his surveillance of one churches of Paris.—Paris
