A. J. Spencer and C. P. Montgomery represented Mt. Nebo Lodge, K. of H., at the annual convention of the grand lodge at New Haven yesterday.

The annual meeting of the Manchester W. C. T. U. will be held at the residence of Mrs. E. E. Hibbard, 65 North Main street, Friday at three p. m.

John McMenemy, who has been laid up with a broken collar bone for the past month, returned to his desk in the National Fire Insurance Co.'s office Monday.

Prof. Carpenter opened at Apel's Monday night with a fair house and gave an interesting exhibition. Tonight he will appear at Armory hall and will remain three nights.

Twenty guests were pleasantly entertained at the residence of Elisha Bryant on Parker street Saturday evening. Paxson's orchestra furnished music and dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

Postmaster Balch thinks he will have some of the old fashioned postage stamps next month. His patrons will be more than pleased, for the ungainly Columbian stamp with its poor perforation is a nuisance.

About 50 young people from the North street church went to Windsorville Saturday night to attend the religious services conducted there by the Crusade party filled one four-horse bus with double teams.

John, who has been living on the farm in Vernon the last four years, has just moved to the city. He is now engaged in running his milk route in Vernon after his milk in the morning.

Walter Elliott, of School street, has composed a stirring song entitled "Our National Game, Base Ball," which has been published and is for sale at Watkins Brothers'. Mr. Elliott has been out of work some time and hopes to realize a profit from the sale of this song.

The republicans of the second senatorial district unanimously nominated by acclamation Alben O. Crosby, of Glastonbury, for senator at their convention in Hartford Saturday. There was no other candidate. Mr. Crosby expressed his thanks for the nomination in a brief speech. The delegates from Manchester were F. E. Watkins, J. D. Pickles, R. N. Strong and James Tanner.

Residents of the Green have been much annoyed recently by the disappearance of fruit, wood, fence rails and other moveable property. The climax was reached the other day when a Center street man on visiting his potato patch found the contents of about four hundred hills missing. These marauders are known and if they don't cease their raids there will be trouble.

There will be an excursion to Boston Saturday. The great trotting match between Directum and Alix in the afternoon at Mystic Park should interest local horsemen. A special train leaves Manchester at 8.55 a. m. and returning leaves Boston 7.15 p. m. Round trip tickets at $1.50 are good returning Monday and include admission to the World's Food Fair in the Mechanics Fair building.

"Charley's Aunt," to be presented at Armory hall next Tuesday, is by Brandon Thomas, a graduate of Oxford university and an accomplished playwright. The characters in the scenes depicting undergraduate life at Oxford are well drawn and their actions, especially the antics of the pseudo aunt from Brazil "where the nuts come from," are very amusing. If you want to laugh, go and see it. It's being produced under the direction of Charles Frohman is a guarantee that it will be well done.

The alterations and improvements to the Porter district school are about completed. The building has been enlarged by the addition of a large ell and now contains two rooms. A cellar has been dug under the new portion in which a hot air furnace is now being placed. Reservoir water has been put in, blackboards have been added, and the ventilation much improved. A new fence has been placed around the grounds, which have been enlarged by the addition of a strip 25 feet wide on the east side donated by Cheney Brothers. The work will cost about $1,500. The committee in charge of the work is M. J. Maguire, E. C. Stanley and J. L. Barrett.

Hubert Tregaskis, son of Rev. James Tregaskis, who was taken to the Hartford hospital ten days ago suffering from a gunshot wound in his foot, returned Friday. He is now able to get about with the aid of a crutch.

The laying of the rails for the electric road on Main street was completed to the New England tracks yesterday. The men are now at work grading and bonding to that point. Most of the track layers will be laid off until Monday, when work will begin on the South Manchester branch. Work would have commenced on it immediately, but for delay in receiving rails. In the meantime the connections and switches will be put in. The erection of poles on the main line will also begin Monday morning.

Notwithstanding the bad weather of Saturday night a large audience gathered at Apel's opera house to see "Slavery Days." Those who attended were not disappointed for they witnessed one of the best performances that has been given there thus far this season. In the first act, the curtain rises on a very pretty plantation scene. The entire company, numbering nearly 20 persons, is standing in the rows of cotton, working and at the same time singing plantation songs. The company is all that it is advertised to be and it gave a creditable performance throughout. It is expected back again during this season and no doubt will be well received.

Teachers' Convention.

The 48th Annual meeting of the Connecticut State Teacher's Association, of which Principal F. A. Verplank of the South Manchester high school, is president, will be held in Hartford next Friday. It will be opened by a "general meeting" in Assembly Hall, Hartford high school building at 9.15 a. m.

At 11 a. m. there will be an adjournment to "section meetings" which will be held in different rooms in the High School building and in Jewell Hall, Y. M. C. A. building, respectively. Blish-Chaffee.

Dwight W. Blish and Miss Alice E. Chaffee, daughter of Mrs. Sanford M. Chaffee, were married at the home of the bride Saturday at one p. m. by Rev. Julian Wadsworth. Only the intimate friends of the bride and groom were present. Mr. and Mrs. Blish left for New York immediately after the ceremony. Many costly presents were received. On their return they will reside with the bride's mother on Main street. Mrs. Blish is teacher of the primary department in District No. 4. During her absence Miss Gertrude Albiston is supplying her place.

Mr. Blish is a native of Glastonbury but for the past two years has resided in Manchester. He is at present employed in Hartford.

Dr. Tower's Sermons.

Dr. F. P. Tower, president of Wesleyan college at Helena, Mont., preached two interesting sermons at the North Methodist church Sunday.

In the evening his text was "Remember thy creator in the days of thy youth" and his discourse was addressed particularly to the younger portion of the congregation. The church was filled. Dr. Tower is a native of Massachusetts and at one time preached in Meriden.

His mission in the east, is the raising of funds for the college which, since the panic of last year, has been in financial straits.

Called the Boys Young Toughs.

A man gave a magic lantern show in Armory hall Saturday afternoon, for the entertainment of the children of the South school. An admission fee of 10 cents was charged for children and 15 cents for adults. More than 500 children were present and some of them were accompanied by their parents. The views were few in number and commonplace in character, and the exhibitor was a poor speaker. The youngsters soon tired of the show and the boys began to cry when a picture was shown, "Take it away!" Finally the uproar increased so that the speaker could scarcely make himself heard. Then he lost his temper and denounced the boys as a lot of young toughs. The disappointed children were made happy by a small bag of candy presented to each one as they passed out.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

Mrs. Biddle Recognized as a Member of the Board—R. P. Bissell Re-elected Secretary—Board of Acting Visitors Increased to Four—Half Sessions On Stormy Days

The joint board, comprising the school visitors and the selectmen, met Monday afternoon and approved the appropriations made by the joint board in July. The school board then met for reorganization.

Mrs. Anna L. Biddle and Clinton W. Cowles were both present. Rev. D. A. Haggerty suggested that it might be well, before any business was transacted to ascertain whether all present were members of the board.

Chairman J. S. Cheney replied that he thought all the members of the board were present.

Fr. Haggerty said there was some question whether Mrs. Biddle or Mr. Cowles was entitled to a seat on the board.

Mr. Cheney thought there was no room for questioning the legality of Mrs. Biddle's position but he would give Mr. Cowles an opportunity to be heard.

Mr. Cowles said he thought he legally had a right to a position on the board. He had taken some pains to investigate the matter and had found legal opinion quite evenly divided. He quoted the constitutional requirement to the effect that only white males over 21 years old, under certain qualifications, could hold office; later the constitution was amended to permit colored men to vote and hold office under the same restrictions as white men. Still later the legislature, by statute, allowed women to hold the office of school visitor. In his opinion the law permitted only electors to hold office. It was a matter of delicacy for him to contest this place with a woman, but in view of the time-honored custom of having a non-partisan board he felt it his duty to do so. He added that since this controversy had come up he had received letters from various parts of the state urging him to carry it to the courts with the view of getting a supreme court decision. Mr. Cowles of the school board was especially anxious that he should do so and believed that his position would be sustained by the court.

C. K. Hathaway replied to Mr. Cowles in behalf of Mrs. Biddle. He held that the fact that the moderator of the election had declared Mrs. Biddle elected made her de facto a member of the board and competent to perform her duties as such until a court of competent jurisdiction should overrule the decision of the moderator. He held that the provisions of the law of 1893, allowing women to vote on school questions, do not make them electors in the legal sense of the term, but simply registered females. Mr. Cowles could contest her election by bringing a writ of quo warranto and proving his claim before the court.

As Mr. Hathaway ceased speaking Attorney H. O. Bowers entered the room, and upon request of Mr. Cowles stated the ground of the contestant more fully. He claimed that a statute does not supersede a provision of the constitution; that whereas the constitution provides that only males should hold office the legislative statute giving women a right to hold office was unconstitutional. He admitted that the school board had no right to decide constitutional questions, but asked that, as a matter of courtesy to the minority party, Mrs. Biddle withdraw for the present until the question had been decided.

Mrs. Biddle stated that, as a lady, she might be inclined to yield; but as an honorable woman elected by a large vote of the people of Manchester it was a duty to stand by her constituents.

Chairman Cheney here decided that any question of Mrs. Biddle's eligibility must be decided by the courts, but for the present she was entitled to sit on the board.

The business of the board was then taken up. John S. Cheney was re-elected chairman and R. P. Bissell secretary. Each received five out of six votes cast.

Before the election of acting school visitors, Secretary Bissell stated that the work of the board had been so increased by the growth of the schools that he thought the number of acting visitors should be increased from three to four. His motion to that effect was carried unanimously. The following persons were then elected acting school visitors: Mrs. Susan J. Cheney, Rev. D. A. Haggerty and Rev. Thomas Simms. Mr. Bissell is an acting visitor by virtue of his office as secretary.

On motion of Rev. Mr. Simms it was voted that on very stormy days the schools hold but one session, to continue not later than one o'clock. The board then adjourned and the acting visitors met and appointed the work of school visitation.

Systematic Charity.

The selectmen and the clergymen of the town are to meet next Monday to complete a charity organization by which means it is hoped the money given for charity in this town will be kept from the undeserving and placed where it is really needed.

The movement was started by Rev. J. A. Biddle, of St. Mary's Episcopal church. Mr. Biddle has written his ideas on the subject, and his plan is so well stated and so comprehensive that we print his paper in full.

"The Poor ye always have with you." What shall we do with them? A poor person is one who asks help to supply himself with the necessities of life. There are four classes of poor; our treatment of a poor person must depend upon the class to which he belongs.

1. Those who are born incapable of making their own living. 2. Those who make themselves incapable through their own vices.

3. Those who choose a life of beggary. 4. Those who are made poor by the disorders of society and the world.

The first class are objects of pity only and are a permanent charge upon the charity of the community.

The last class deserve pity also but their misfortune is only temporary. A little help will place them on their feet again and make them self supporting.

The second class are objects of pity also, but should be made to feel the pressure of their poverty that they may be reformed and made self supporting.

The third class should be treated as criminals and compelled to work or starve.

We should insist upon the following principles: 1. Each person must support himself.

2. Each family must support its own members. 3. Each employer should support his own employees.

4. Each parish should contribute through the parishes to those who belong to them, and through the town to those who do not.

5. Any person asking alms should be referred to the minister of his parish or to the selectmen, and the charitable people should be requested to give their charities to the parishes that thus the needs of all could be supplied.

The town should establish a work-yard in connection with the town farm and compel all wandering poor to work for what they receive.

Public opinion judges poverty a disgrace and public opinion is right: We must not make it easier for a man to live by vagrancy than by honest industry.

We must not permit the poor man to live as well as the honest, laboring man. If we do we pay a premium upon poverty and increase the class.

The Manchester Fraternal League held a social Monday evening in the basement of the North Methodist church. About 150 persons were present.

A fine program consisting of vocal and instrumental music, readings and recitations was given. Refreshments of cake, coffee and fruit were served and all present enjoyed a good time.

Mrs. Mary Topping, of Bridghampton, L. I., is the guest of Mrs. I. S. Seabury. Mrs. A. W. Cone is suffering a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

John L. Henry, of Manchester Green, has gone to Oswego, N. Y. for a three-weeks visit.

Mrs. Mary Cheney, mother of Mrs. R. W. Pitkin, has returned from a month's visit with relatives in Eastford.

Mrs. Dr. Taylor, of New Haven, spent Sunday with Mrs. Susan Bisell, riding from there on her bicycle Saturday and returning the same way Monday. She was accompanied by C. T. Bisell.

Mrs. C. S. Robeson, of East Longmeadow, Mass., is visiting her father, A. L. Clark.

QUARRYVILLE.

Services for the past week at the church have been conducted by a number of the Christian Crusaders. They also intend to hold meetings this week.

Ayer's Hygienic Coffee will be on exhibition at the Boston Health Food Fair during October. Don't fail to try it.

A DAY IN LENOX.

Hospitalities at "Curtis's"—Dr. Parkhurst's First Church—Ride Through Private Grounds—A Wealthy Congregation.

It was with some misgivings that we two wheelmen approached "Curtis's" hotel in Lenox. The house is patronized mainly by persons of wealth and position. Dukes and barons, and, for aught we know, princes and kings have been its guests. Millionaires are as common here as commercial travelers are at most hotels.

Whether in our touring costume we would be welcome guests and whether in case we passed inspection we would have money enough to remain were questions speedily answered. My companion remained outside and sent me in to run the gauntlet. The front door opened into a long hall. A closed door at the right of the entrance bore the word "Office" and through this I passed.

The office was a small, low room, very much like that of any other country hotel. A bright wood fire blazed on an open hearth. In one corner a woman presided over a small telegraph office.

A man whom I afterwards learned to be Curtis himself stood behind the counter smoking a cigar. With a pleasant greeting he pushed the register before me and when I asked the rates quoted a price so low that I lost no time in calling in my companion. Our room was a large one, with two comfortable beds and a fireplace with wood laid ready for the match.

We felt so well after our thirty-mile ride that we decided to pass the hour before dark riding about the town. Lenox is on a hill 1300 feet above the sea. Its famous villas are scattered over the broad plateau on the hill or located on spurs that overlook the valley on all sides.

The streets in the village are macadamized and are lined with well-made and shaded paths. Signs at frequent intervals forbid horses and bicycles the use of the paths. The streets are so hard and smooth that there is no temptation to leave them. On the highest point of land in the place is the Congregational church, built in the last century. It has an old-fashioned steeple with a huge clock dial on its front.

On a tablet inside the auditorium is inscribed a memorial to one of its early pastors who served the church continuously for fifty years. In this church Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, the famous New York divine, preached his first sermons. He came here after his ordination and remained until he was called to the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church in New York.

Mr. Curtis, the hotel proprietor, who served on Dr. Parkhurst's committee for many years, says he is a most gentle, lovable man and that nothing but an overpowering sense of duty would have led him to incur the notoriety which his crusade against vice in the metropolis has brought him.

Behind the church is a well-kept graveyard commanding an extensive view of the western hills. Fannie Kemble, the famous actress, who had a summer home at Lenox said she would be willing to sleep in this cemetery if only she could be permitted to rise in her grave occasionally long enough to get a glimpse of the fair land below.

Few of the Lenox villas are open to inspection from the street. Most of them are surrounded by spacious grounds and screened from view by forest or hedge. A walled gate with a porter's lodge guards the entrance to most of them. One constantly sees well-kept drives winding away from the gates until they are lost behind a mass of shrubbery.

Even the most unpretentious place has its winding drive of crushed bluestone, rolled as smooth as a floor and kept scrupulously clean by the gardener's constant care. The temptation to a bicycle rider to enter these drives is almost irresistible. But at each entrance is a sign, "Private—No Thoroughfare," and therefore we contented ourselves with such views as we could get from the street.

By nightfall we had bowled through at least ten miles of the most charming thoroughfares of Lenox.

After supper we met a New Yorker in the hotel who told us we had made a mistake in avoiding the private grounds. He had learned from experience, he said, that any gentleman was welcome to look over the grounds. Later we were assured by Mr. Curtis that what the New Yorker said was true, and, furthermore, he gave us a map of the place showing all the villas, on which he traced a route through some of the more notable places.

and several dwellings, themselves residences of no small attractiveness, in which attaches of the place are housed.

In the course of an hour and a half we wheeled through a dozen such places exhibiting a variety and elegance of architecture unequalled in a town of similar size anywhere on this continent.

The ride all the way was over faultless driveways and sometimes through magnificent forests which seemed out of place on grounds so carefully cultivated. Eleven o'clock found us at the Episcopal church, an elegant structure of stone with a large stone rectory adjoining it.

We stole in after the services began. Our rough attire was not in harmony with the elegant attire of the fashionable audience, but we took a back seat and escaped observation. Probably it would be difficult to find a wealthier audience, even in the fashionable New York churches, for this comprised the cream of New York society.

When the collection plates came back to us piled high with crisp bills my companion declared he was going to become an Episcopal minister.

After church we enjoyed another wheel through private grounds and strengthened our opinion of the beauties of Lenox. An easy ride of six miles after dinner took us to Pittsfield. It is a place rich in historical traditions and treasures, and I might write an article on the things we saw in our three-hours stay in that city.

An evening train took us to Springfield. The next morning we took a spin through Forest Park before turning our wheels toward home, where we arrived in time for dinner. We had been away but two days and a half, but in that short time had seen and learned much of one of the most charming regions in America.

Startling G. A. R. Story.

Capt. Geo. H. Davenport, the Popular and Well-known G. A. R. Veteran Relates an Experience. A Leader and Power in Grand Army Circles.

CAPT. GEO. H. DAVENPORT.

could not have done before I used Dr. Greene's Nervura.
 "I have often recommended this wonderful cure for disease to my friends, and shall be happy to answer any further inquiries from anyone."
 The experience of the gallant captain is the experience of everybody. All who use this great cure of disease this restorer of health and strength, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, report that it invariably makes them well.
 "The weak, nervous and ailing should try it on the strength of what everybody who has used it says of its wonderful curative power." It will cure you.
 Why waste time in trying uncertain and untried remedies, when here is a physician's prescription, a discovery made by the greatest living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 85 West 14th St., New York City. If you take this medicine you can consider yourself under Dr. Greene's direct professional care, and you can consult him or write to him about your case, freely and without charge. This is a guarantee that this remedy will cure, possessed by no other medicine in the world.
 Capt. Geo. H. Davenport of Barnardston, Mass., is a most popular and widely known man, especially in Grand Army circles. He is Pension Agent and everybody knows him. He is best known to the country through his discovery of "Davenport's Silver Pomade," probably the best article of its kind in the world.
 Capt. Davenport is a most entertaining speaker, and his relation of the following incident will be interesting to everybody.
 "I had been troubled severely for years with heart disease, and the effects of malarial poison contracted in the army. I was so nervous and weak that I was unable to do any hard work for years.
 I consulted many doctors but have found no good results from them. I finally used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and can say that it has done great things for me.
 "I have been helped in the heart trouble more than from any and all other things I ever used. I find that for weakness and nervous excitement it is a great help. For instance, on Memorial Day I addressed the G. A. R. at Northfield, and on the following day at Whately, I gave an address before their G. A. R. without any apparent fatigue, which I

HOW TO MEMORIZE MUSIC.

Study What You Would Memorize Both With and Without Your Piano.

"It is not enough to know good pieces with your fingers. You should be able to remember them to yourself without a pianoforte. Sharpen your powers of fancy that you may remember correctly not only the melody of a composition, but its proper harmonies also."
 These words of Robert Schumann should be impressed on every music student. Study what you would memorize both with and without your piano. Observe its character, the key in which it is written, its rhythm, meter and movement, its harmonies, with their relations—in fact, all its developments, melodiously and harmoniously. Analyze thoroughly, comparing passage with passage, tracing similarities and points of divergence, thus calling the law of association to the aid of that of attention. Imprint on your mental consciousness the full tonal worth of each note and each chord and see to it that your muscular training is of a kind to make your fingers obedient to the inner voice.
 When you can fully orient yourself in the composition, close your eyes, that you may look only within, and try how much you can recall mentally. Then, with eyes still closed, try how much you can play. If your fingers stumble over a passage, repeat this several times, first with eyes fixed on the notes, again with closed eyes, that the muscular sense may contribute toward fixing the impression. Repeated combined action of the inner and outer forces tends to produce clearness and accuracy of image and permanence of possession. Do not give yourself a greater task to memorize daily than can be accomplished without fatigue. To overstrain your powers is to enfeeble them. If you study intelligently, you can single out certain phrases, sentences or periods and know where it is proper to stop. It is a good plan to write down from memory what you have committed, even to transcribe it at times into other keys, both in writing and at the piano, says the author of the foregoing in Harper's Bazar. A child can readily be interested in music if taught intelligently. Let him build sentences, form chords and learn the why and wherefore of each step taken, and memory will be a matter of thorough comprehension. Youth is the time to begin to memorize, but a well exercised memory will continue to strengthen throughout active existence.

A Lamp Screen.
 A table screen for keeping the wind from a lighted lamp will be found very useful. The frame of the model, described by Modern Priscilla, is made of heavy millboard. Each panel is made in two pieces, which are covered separately with dark plush neatly glued in place. The Japanese crape pictures are then glued smoothly in place, and after all is dry the front and back of each panel are sewed together. The two completed panels are then joined by sewing to form a hinge, and large round brass buttons or gilded wooden balls are attached for feet.

 A screen of this kind would be very pretty with panels of painted belting cloth, or pressed autumn leaves could be used between glass panels. In the latter case the frame should be of wood, as the glass would be too heavy for a cardboard frame.

Preserved Plums.

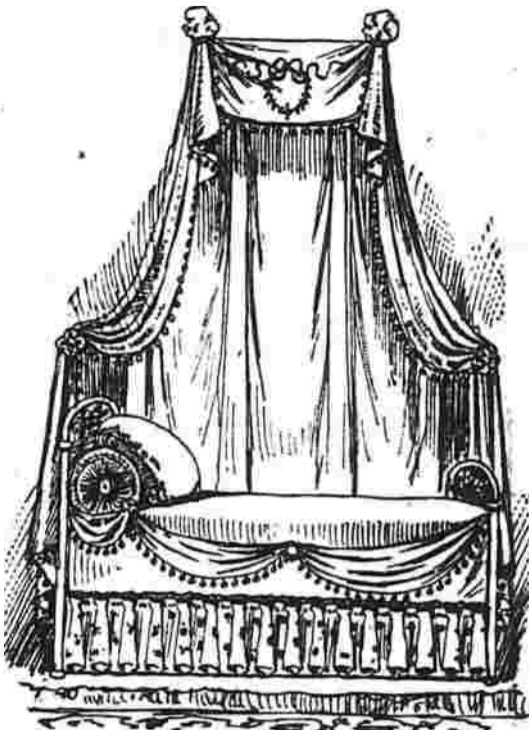

The following rule is equally good for either damson or green gage plums, the damsons being particularly nice to eat with meats: Make the sirup for all the plums to be preserved at one time, allowing a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit and a gill of water to a pound of sugar. Boil for 10 minutes; then put in the sirup only enough plums to fill two or three jars. Cook until they can easily be pierced with a straw; then can and put fresh fruit into the boiling sirup. If there is any sirup left over from preserving the plums, put in enough sugar to make it jell and cook a little longer. This makes a delicious

BED CANOPIES AND CURTAINS.

Recent Revival of a Popular Fashion of Bygone Days.

Fashions come and fashions go, and now we find the pendulum swinging back again, and a desire is shown for canopied beds. The popular expression of the present, however, does not run in the direction of the full tester, but is rather for that known as the half tester—i. e., a bed provided with a canopy at the headboard, from which the curtains are suspended.

The beds of brass are the ones most in favor for draping. The usual gray coloring of cretonne harmonizes with the high lights of the burnished brass. Decorator and Furnisher delineates a simple method of draping, a mode characteristic of the empire style now so much in favor, the beds of the Napoleon era having been usually placed in the manner here shown, with one side to the wall. As will be seen, the curtain is made in one long strip and is thrown over two projecting poles fastened to the wall. The front swag and jabots should be attached separately and may be omitted entirely. Sometimes one pole in the center is used instead of the two, or a canopy may be employed in the usual manner, from which to suspend the curtains.

The variations in methods of treatment are numberless. Artistic effects fortunately are not dependent upon expensive fabrics. Among low priced fabrics suitable are silklike chintz, plain and tamped muslins and dotted swiss. When muslins are used, ribbon trimming may be employed. Handsome spreads are in order, and those gifted in the direction of embroidering have here excellent opportunities to exercise their talent.

Ribbon Trimmings.

Ribbons play an important part in the trimming of youthful gowns; also on dinner and evening dresses for all ages. Ribbon 2 inches wide is required for this garniture. Moire ribbon is preferred, but satin is also used. The collar and belt are of ribbon to match. The ribbon is most used with black, blue or brown dresses, white with gray or beige, and delicate colors are chosen for white muslin and light lawn, batiste, etc. A popular garniture is in form of bretelles, starting from the belt in front under a horizontal bow, passing over the shoulders, where they are tied in fanciful knots, then down the back to meet two rosettes at the belt. This much is familiar. The novelty is in the continuation of the ribbons, two behind and two before, to the foot of the skirt, where each end is tied in a smart square bow.

A Novel Tomato Salad.

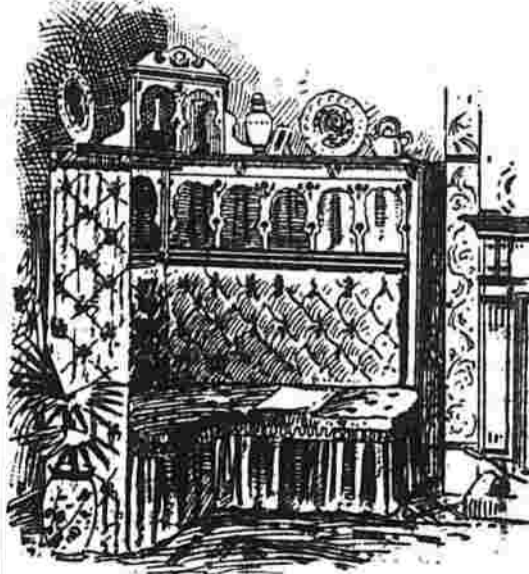

Numbered with the many other excellent recipes sent out by Good House-keeping is the following: Take as many firm, ripe, round tomatoes as there are persons to serve. Pour over them boiling water; remove the skins and place tomatoes on ice. Chop fine two onions and grate a cucumber. Mix these ingredients, after salting and peppering, with a small quantity of thick mayonnaise dressing. Scoop out the cores of the tomatoes and fill with the mixture. Place on lettuce leaves and pour over the red tomatoes the golden dressing. This makes a nice course served with wafers or cheese straws.

Recipe For Plum Preserves.

Make and classify a sirup of clear brown sugar and pour it, boiling hot, over the plums. Let them stand for two days, then pour off the sirup, heat it to the boiling point, skim and pour it over again. Let the fruit and sirup stand for a day or two, then put the whole in a preserving kettle over the fire and simmer gently till the sirup is thick and rich. A pound of sugar is to be used for each pound of the fruit.

Portable Cozy Corners.

A great deal has been said and written concerning cozy corners, and yet many readers are doubtless in ignorance of the fact that there are portable corners on sale—corners that may be shifted about to suit the changing mood of capricious persons.

 As a rule, these cozy corners are made to order, so that the cushions, enamel of the woodwork, etc., may harmonize with other furnishings of the apartment for which it is destined. A popular size for these corners is 4 feet by 2 feet 8 inches, outside measure.

The bertha, cuffs and turn down military collar are braided.

Hints For Amateur Glaziers.

Any one who wishes to insert ground glass panes into windows needed only to admit light can do so at the smallest expense by following these directions from The Housewife: A piece of putty as soft as dough must be tied very tightly into a muslin rag. This closely compressed ball needs then to be rubbed rapidly over the glass to be decorated until an even, delicate white film grows over it. When the film of putty so applied is beginning to dry, a coat of white varnish should be laid on, and in a few hours a wonderful imitation of ground glass will be the result. In case the amateur glazier wishes to work a pattern on the panes by marking through a cardboard stencil design before the varnish is laid on little patterns of stars, diamonds or dots can be clearly drawn out on the glass.

English Fruit Pie.

When he is desired to make a fruit pie, by all means adopt the English fashion of an abundance of fruit and very little pastry.

For such pies a deep dish, filled to the brim with fruit and with no lower crust, is the ideal. It far surpasses the usual plan of a thin layer of apples, berries or other fruit between two crusts. This, by the way, is not accepted in England as a pie, but is called a tart, no matter what its circumference may measure.

Recipe For Rice Pudding.

Here is a recipe from Good House-keeping:

One quart of milk to make it nice, Only nine teaspoonfuls of rice, Nine teaspoonfuls of sugar, too. Also a pinch of salt mixed through; Two teaspoonfuls of any flavor Of which you want the dish to savor. I, by my own idea possessed, Consider lemon is the best. Bake for two hours—not fast nor slow, But in a moderate oven—so When it is done, it ought to seem Thick as the richest kind of cream.

ONE WOMAN'S REWARD.

A GREAT SHOWER OF CONFIDENCE Such as Never Descended upon Any Other American Woman.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS]

The most famous physician wins it from a comparatively small number. One woman, and only one, has won it from tens of thousands during the past twenty years.

Loving confidences, heartfelt gratitude, loyal devotion, is showered upon her name because of salvation from a miserable existence, and the peace and joy of restored health through her wonderful skill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's name will go down the ages as the friend of all women. Her Vegetable Compound has saved thousands from the terrors of female complaints.

Backache, despondency, fainting, spinal weakness, avoiding society, bearing down, are all symptoms of trouble in the womb. The Vegetable Compound removes the cause of the trouble.

Read what Mrs. S. W. White, who lives at 816 Holly Street, West Philadelphia, Pa., calls a family blessing.

"This she writes to Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have suffered for ten years with female complaints of the worst form, accompanied by severe spinal trouble, causing incessant backache, weakness of the stomach, and nervousness."
 "I gave up all hope of ever being well again. Just then someone recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I followed your directions and treatment until I am now a perfectly well woman."
 "I gave it to my two daughters, aged fourteen and sixteen years, and they are fine, healthy girls."
 "It is surely a blessing to our family."

"I Owe My Life to You."

That is a strong statement. Yet exactly what Miss Gertrude Sickler, of Wilton, N. J., has written to Mrs. Pinkham.

"I suffered terribly with suppressed and painful menstruations. Doctors could only keep me from having fits each month by giving me morphia.

"My father at last got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I once gave me relief. It did what the doctors could not cure me. I never have any trouble now, and have no dread of the coming month.

"I owe my life to you. Oh! if only suffering women would try you, you would save them from the terrible sufferings they now endure."
