SINN FEIN HEADS PROCLAIM IRELAND A REPUBLIC

IRISH REBELS DECLARE ERIN REPUBLIC, NAMING PRESIDENT

Sinn Feiners Announce Independence—Peter Pearce Provisional President, James Connolly Commander-in-Chief of Army—News Sent Out by Rebels by Wireless—Revolt Now Petering Out—Over 500 Killed and Wounded in Insurrection

London, April 29.—Ireland has been proclaimed a republic by the Sinn Fein leaders.

Peter Pearce, head master of St. Endas Secondary school, has been named provisional president.

News of the action of the rebels in declaring Ireland free and independent of the British government was sent out from the revolutionary headquarters in Dublin postoffice by wireless.

The message follows:
"Peter Pearce, head master of St. Endas Secondary school, has been nominated president of the republic of Ireland.

"James Connolly has been nominated commander-in-chief of the Irish Volunteer Corps (the republican army)."

End of Revolt Near.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch received this afternoon says:

"There was every indication Friday night that the end of the revolutionary movement was fast approaching. Troops are arriving in Dublin continually. The fighting of the past twenty-four hours has been only intermittent."

Over 500 Casualties.

London, April 29.—More than 500 persons have been killed and wounded in the Irish rebellion, according to an unofficial estimate.

There has been fighting in at least seven Irish counties in the south-eastern and western parts of the island. Five hundred prisoners have been captured by the British forces, including some women. There was an abortive uprising in the city of Cork in which at least two persons were killed.

Part of the city of Dublin has been destroyed by fire and a big section has been looted.

From 10,000 to 15,000 Sinn Feiners and their sympathizers took part in the Irish revolt.

The military forces under General Sir John Maxwell are gradually restoring order and in Dublin, the seat of the rebellion, the fighting has been reduced to sniping.

The foregoing were the outstanding features of the situation in Ireland today.

An official announcement issued at midnight by Field Marshal Viscount French, commander of the home forces, put a much more optimistic complexion upon conditions in Ireland than had existed during the previous 48 hours.

Field Marshal French states that military operations are proceeding satisfactorily, but the report indicates that the general postoffice building in the Irish capital is still in the hands of the rebels, being used as their base of operations.

The cordons of troops thrown around the southern, western and northern parts of Dublin is being drawn closer and closer about the remaining forces of the rebels and it is believed they will surrender.

GERMANS RENEW OFFENSIVE AT VERDUN ATTACKS ON 15 MILE FRONT REPULSED

Assaults on Both Sides of the Meuse Repelled by French—Germans Use Gas, Grenades and Liquid Fire in Attempts to Gain—Fighting Most Violent—German Losses Heavy.

Paris, April 29.—German troops have resumed the offensive at Verdun. Attacks on a 15-mile front against French positions on both sides of the Meuse river have been launched during the last 24 hours. All these attacks were repulsed, the French war office announced this afternoon.

In their assaults the Germans tried all the methods with which they are wont to seek victory. Shells, grenades and liquid fire were pressed into service by the Teuton Crown Prince's army in their vain efforts to drive the French out of their positions.

The fighting was terrific on both banks of the Meuse, according to the war office communique. It opened on the west bank with a grenade attack on the French trenches protecting Hill 304. This attack was repulsed. Then came a violent bombardment of the defensive lines at Avocourt, Esnes and Hill 304. When the conflict extended to the east bank the Germans halted a violent bombardment of the French positions near Thiaumont farm to make an attack with liquid fire. Having prepared for this development the French were also able to repulse this assault.

A German attack on the Douaumont-Vaux front met with the same fate. Heavy losses were inflicted upon the charging enemy.

Zeppelins Destroyed.

Amsterdam, April 29.—Frontier reports state that a Zeppelin airship was destroyed at Zeebrugge early this week, all the superstructure being consumed by fire. The metal framework was sent to Germany to be used in the construction of another airship.

STRIKE LEADERS HOPE FOR VICTORY MONDAY

Say That Many Employers Are Raising Wages Voluntarily.

NO DANGER NOW IMMINENT

American Federation of Labor Engaged on Plan to Organize All Over United States.

Washington, April 29.—There will be no general widespread labor disturbances on Monday—May day—according to the reports received today at headquarters of the American Federation of Labor. There will be some strikes, of course, but the leaders say that developments of the last few weeks have changed the situation so that the general walkouts that had been feared probably will not take place.

The reason for this, it is said, is that in scores of industries where there was discontent, the employers voluntarily have increased their wages. This has greatly relieved the situation, especially in a number of the larger cities. Other employers are expected to announce before Monday that they will meet the increases in wages given by their competitors.

The American Federation of Labor, it was stated, at headquarters today, now is engaged on a comprehensive plan for organization of the unskilled unorganized workers in various sections of the country. Experienced organizers now are working in Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, and, according to Secretary Frank Morrison of the federation, who has the matter in charge, they are meeting with great success.

President Samuel Gompers is taking a personal hand in the lockout and strike in the garment working industry which went into effect in New York city. The entire strength of the federation is to be thrown behind the union workers there and federation officials declared they were hopeful that the union demands would speedily be granted.

The federation and the department of labor is closely watching the Pittsburgh strikes and the threatened tie-ups in various sections of the Mahoning valley of Pennsylvania, where there is much discontent. The department of labor also is trying to avert a tie-up of the anthracite industry. If everything else fails, it is understood that President Wilson will be asked either to mediate the differences in person or else to select another cabinet officer to assist Secretary Wilson in trying to prevent any tie up of so disastrous a nature.

CHICAGO WOMAN EXECUTED?

U. S. Officials Investigating Rumor That Reaches Washington.

Washington, April 29.—The state department today cabled Ambassador Penfield at Vienna to make informal inquiries to learn whether Miss Alice G. Mazzyrak, former University of Chicago settlement worker, has been executed in Vienna on a charge of treason. It was made clear that no formal representation will be made to the Austrian government as Miss Mazzyrak was not an American woman, although her mother was. Ambassador Penfield would do what he could in an informal manner, it was said.

Reports reached this country recently through "underground" channels that Miss Mazzyrak had been executed but no confirmation was obtainable.

TOWNSHEND AND 10,000 MEN SURRENDER AFTER LONG SIEGE

British Garrison, Trapped After Retreat From Ctesiphon, Besieged Since December—Desperate British Efforts at Relief Thwarted by Turks—Second Hard Blow by Ottoman Army Against Britain—Disaster Ranks Next to Gallipoli.

London, April 29.—The British army under General Townshend, which has been shut up in Kut-el-Amara, Mesopotamia, since early in December, has surrendered to the Turks.

Official announcement of the surrender of the army of General Townshend, which is estimated to contain about 10,000 men, was made today by the war office.

This is the second severe blow administered to the British by the Turks.

The first was the reverse administered at the Dardanelles; the second, at Kut-el-Amara, shatters the hopes of those who looked for an early resumption of the advance against Bagdad.

The chief stages of the defense of Kut-el-Amara and the attempts at relief by an army under General Sir Percy Lake, follow:

History of Tigris Expedition.

December 2—General Townshend's force reached Kut-el-Amara from Ctesiphon.

December 5—Turks advance column reached Sheikh Saad, 45 miles below Kut-el-Amara, completing the isolation of the British garrison.

December 8—Five days' attack begun. The Turkish losses up to December 18 alone being estimated at 1,000.

December 18—The British garrison's loss and up to this date were estimated at 1,127 men.

December 25—Pierce fighting lasted throughout Christmas day. Forts on the northern front of Kut-el-Amara were taken by the Turks but recaptured by the British in bloody counter assaults.

January 6—Advance of the relief force under General Nixon begun.

(General Nixon was afterwards relieved by Sir Percy Lake, chief of staff for India.)

January 7—An action of great violence fought at Sheikh Saad, on the Tigris river, fought. Followed by a retreat of the Turks.

January 21—British attack at Umm-el-Hannah twenty-three miles from Kut-el-Amara repulsed.

February 13, 17 and 19—Bombs dropped on Kut-el-Amara from aeroplanes moved to the front by Germans.

April 5—General Goring carries first and second lines of the Turkish positions at Umm-el-Hannah and Fellahieh.

April 9—Sanna-I-Yat position attacked in an effort to relieve Kut. General Goring defeated.

Ever since April 9 the British on both sides of the Tigris, east of Sanna-I-Yat have been trying to break through as wireless dispatches sent out of Kut by General Townshend said his position was getting desperate.

A relief ship sent out several days ago from Imam al Gherbi tried to get through to Kut but went aground in the Tigris and the attempt ended in failure.

The attempts of the British army to cut through was not only hindered by the fiercer attacks of the Turks, often led by German officers, but by floods caused by heavy rains.

The size of the garrison is not definitely known. General Townshend originally had only a brigade but these troops were reinforced. At Ctesiphon the army suffered 4,500 casualties and subsequent losses brought the total list of casualties up to nearly 7,000. These do not include the casualties suffered by the army since it has been shut up in Kut.

The objective of the expedition was Bagdad, the richest prize in the Per-

JOURNEYMEN PLUMBERS ASK FOR WAGE INCREASE

Serve Notice on Masters Today That They Want $21 Per Week On July 1.

Local No. 544, Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters, made a demand today on the master plumbers of Manchester for a weekly wage of $21 for a 44 hour week. The demand also included a demand for the junior mechanics for a weekly wage of $15 for the same number of hours per week. The raise is asked for on July 1. The notice served on the masters was signed by W. J. Wilson, the president of the local and D. McCann, secretary.

The masters will hold a meeting in the near future to go over the matter to see what can be done. Several of the companies, employing steamfitters and plumbers, will meet this evening.

The plumbers are now receiving a minimum wage of $18 per week. They give as a reason for their demands, the high cost of living.

The journeyman carpenters recently served notice on their employers asking also for a raise. This matter has not yet been settled.

Money there seems to be a tendency all through the town toward a raise in the present scale of wages because of the increased cost of living.

SUNDAY IN MISSOURI.

Kansas City, Mo., April 29.—Billy Sunday and his "team" arrived in Kansas City from the east to conduct a seven-weeks' series of revival meetings. The famous evangelist was met at the station by an enormous crowd who have him a rousing reception. More than 200 automobiles were in the parade that escorted him to his temporary home.

MORE CANADIAN TROOPS SET SAIL FOR ENGLAND

Eighteen thousand on transports from Halifax—Guard Against U-Boat Attacks.

Halifax, N. S., April 29.—Eighteen thousand Canadian soldiers sailed from Halifax for England on Wednesday. They were carried on the steamers Metagama, Calgarian, Empress of Britain and Lapland. The troop ships were convoyed by the British cruiser Suffolk, which for many months patrolled the United States coast to prevent the escape of interned German ships.

The liner Olympic, now an auxiliary cruiser and troopship for the British admiralty, arrived here on April 24 and will carry to England part of the next contingent that leaves Canada. On her last trip eastward the Olympic carried 9,500 men.

To assure safety from submarine attacks to the transports that make this their port, a chain net boom has been laid to block the entire harbor. The gate in this boom is opened only three times a day.

PITTSBURGH QUIET.

Westinghouse Strike Practically Over But Trolley Men Restless.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 29.—All was quiet in the Westinghouse strike today and attention was focused on the street car situation. The final conference between the union representatives and car company officials, in an effort to avert the strike threatened to go into effect Sunday at midnight unless the demands of the carmen are granted, was on this afternoon.

There seems little hope that a compromise can be reached and the police department is making ready for a strike. The railroads are preparing to run shuttle train service to suburban points Monday morning to care for the crowds.

A new strike was added to the labor troubles of the Pittsburgh district today when 400 repair men struck at the Kees Rocks shops of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad. The shops were closed, making 1,500 men idle.

PLACE NEW EMBARGO.

Restrictions on Freight Shipments Expected to Work Hardship.

New Haven, April 29.—A new embargo affecting practically all points on the New Haven road and one that promises to be of a serious nature for local manufacturers and merchants has been put into effect.

It was only about two weeks ago that the road announced a modification of its previous embargo and opened up shipping channels that had been closed for some time, and it was generally believed that the modified embargo would remain in effect and that normal conditions would eventually exist.

The new restriction places bituminous, anthracite coal, lumber, cement and all shipments less than cargo lots on the taboo list, with, however, a few modifying exceptions.

PRESIDENT TO ADDRESS WORLD COURT CONGRESS

Will Speak at New York on May 2, If International Situation Permits.

New York, April 28.—President Wilson has informed the committee on arrangements for the World Court Congress to be held here May 2-4, that he will address the meeting if the international situation allows him to leave Washington.

The congress will discuss means to bring about a federation of the world, with an international court, the decrees from which will be enforced by an international police force. It will be opened at Carnegie hall on the afternoon of May 2, with an address of welcome by Mayor Mitchell, followed by the annual address of the president of the league, John Hays Hammond and addresses by Ex-President William Howard Taft and Oscar S. Straus. Other speakers during the congress will be: Simon E. Baldwin, Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, Dr. James Brown Scott, Alton B. Parker, Dr. Tallcott Williams, Dr. John Wesley Hill, Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, Senator Albert B. Cummins, Senator Warren G. Harding, Professor W. B. Guthrie, Dr. Charles Thaddeus Terry, Bainbridge Colby, Dr. Joseph Silverman, and H. A. Powell, K. C., of Montreal.

Such subjects as: "The Supreme Court of the United States the Prototype of a World Court"; "The Composition of the Court"; "The Growth of Authority"; "The Progress Already Made"; "The Economic Aspects of a World Court"; "A World Court and Universal Welfare," and "The Next Step," will be discussed.

A woman's department of the league has just been organized, with Miss Mabel Boardman of Washington as president, and Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt, secretary.

The World Court League is not a disarmament movement. To the contrary, it stands for adequate defense pending the creation of a court for the settlement of international controversies by judicial decisions. Its object as set forth in its articles of incorporation, is to advocate and "by agitation and appeal to secure the support of all peoples in the establishment of a World Court for the settlement of all judicable questions of dispute arising between nations recognizing the right of every nation to adopt adequate measures for national defense."

Delegates to the approaching congress have been appointed by the governors of the different states, the mayors of cities, chambers of commerce, patriotic, religious, industrial and educational societies, and by various women's organizations throughout the country. There have been fully 3,000 appointments made thus far.

The Fallacy of Race Suicide Exposed

The play is a wonderful story of a plea for motherhood. It pictures a young wife enamored of social pleasures, whose very soul is wrapped in a whirl of gaiety and frivolity. She loathes the thought of coming motherhood, she visualizes its responsibilities; the necessity of giving up her social obligations. She confides in a "Social Butterfly" and under her sinister influence attempts to thwart the law of nature. The deplorable fallacy of race suicide is forcibly exposed and the beautiful thought of Motherhood as a Woman's Crowning Glory is splendidly portrayed

Milk must show 3.25 per cent of fat to be up to Legal Standard.
Bacteria below 10,000 per c. c. indicates milk of very good quality.
Bacteria from 10,000 to 50,000 per c. c. indicates milk of good quality.
Bacteria from 50,000 to 100,000 per c. c. indicates milk of fair quality.
Bacteria from 100,000 to 500,000 per c. c. indicates milk of unsatisfactory quality.
Bacteria from 500,000 to 1,000,000 per c. c. indicates milk of bad quality.
Bacteria over 1,000,000 per c. c. indicates milk of very bad quality.
When milk contains over 500,000 per c. c. it indicates that conditions are unsatisfactory and should be inspected. The milk is usually too warm or has been kept too long.
Refractometer reading under 36 indicates watered milk.
In reporting dirt by percentage an arbitrary scale is used in which 100 per cent clean indicates no dirt. Milk drawn and shipped under clean conditions should not grade below 90 per cent.
Tests for preservatives made only when especially requested.
During hot weather in the larger cities it is very difficult to keep the number of bacteria below 100,000, but they should be kept below 200,000.
The GENERAL GRADE is determined by combining the figures for bacteria, fat, refractometer and dirt, 100 being a perfect score, in which the fat is 4.5 per cent or above, the bacteria below 5,000, the refractometer 87.5 or above and the cleanliness 100 per cent.
BOARD OF HEALTH.

BELKNAP

Willis Strong has returned to Manchester from a visit with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Skinner. The rains have gullied out a bad place at the edge of the culvert near the schoolhouse. Mrs. Loren S. Maine is caring for Miss Hattie McVay at her home at the "Notch." Mr. Bidwell is boarding at W. H. Moffet's. Station Agent DeWolf is fixing up his yard, preparatory to making a lawn and planting a garden. He also plans to build a cement walk from the front steps of his new house to the street. Suckers are being caught in large numbers from the brook. Richard and Carlton Thompson speared some fifty pounds of fish Thursday night. The fish are good sized and make fine eating. For several reasons it has been decided to postpone the Sunday school concert until Sunday evening, May 7th. Several went from this village to Bolton Center last evening to the equal franchise meeting addressed by Mrs. Walter Bartlett. It is expected that the Neighborhood Methodist Ministers' meeting will be held here the 23d of May, and the meeting of the Tolland County Sunday School Association on the 25th of May, with the Quarryville Methodist pastor and Sunday school as hosts.

resources with the result that they are developing new and unthought of methods for supplying themselves with needed materials and machinery. Once adopted and perfected these new methods and materials will be of lasting advantage.

One advantage of going to and from New York by way of Waterbury is that the eye of the traveler is not smitten all the way by glaring signs advertising the merits of codfish, window screens, cercals, whiskies, cheap watches and a hundred other things. Sign boards line the main tracks of the New Haven road but the Waterbury division has attractive scenery which has not yet been disguised by signs.

NEW BALL FIELD ON HILLIARD STREET

Trumps Will Have Diamond Opposite Bon Ami Factory—Valley League Games There.

The Trumps are to have a new baseball ground in an accessible location. Through the generosity of E. J. Holl they will have a diamond on the Loomis farm opposite the Bon Ami factory. This is a level tract and will make a fine field. The work of removing the turf from the diamond was to start today. The ground will be used exclusively by the Trumps. No Sunday ball will be played there.

The Trumps have joined the Valley league, and to put them on a firm financial basis Judge W. H. Card, godfather to the nine, is circulating a subscription paper among the friends of the boys and has already raised a substantial sum. It seems certain that Manchester will see some good ball games this summer. The Trumps are a clean lot of local men who are in the game for sport and have made a fine record in past seasons.

A LOVE LETTER.

Accidentally Found on the Street in Manchester.

My Own Sweetheart:

Our wedding day is almost here. By this time next week I will be your wife. I am counting the days and hours until we will be together in our little home. It has been such fun to buy all the furniture and I can think of only one thing more which is really necessary and I have found a bargain in that.

Let me tell you, dear, what good luck I had this afternoon. While I was rummaging around in the garret I found an old sewing machine of mother's. I flew downstairs to tell her about it. She said I could have it and I know she will be surprised and delighted when she hears how much I will be allowed for it on a new machine. I had been reading the advertisements of the FREE sewing machine, saying they would trade in old machines and allow a full legitimate value for them.

Your devoted,

Helen.

P. S. Don't forget this machine is sold only by G. E. Keith Furniture Co.

MRS. THOMAS HERITAGE.

Mrs. Alice Heritage, wife of Thomas Heritage, of 10 Alden street, Hartford, died this morning in Norwich. The body was brought to Manchester by Watkins Brothers—today and will be taken to Rocky Hill Monday afternoon in an automobile funeral procession. The burial service will take place in the Rocky Hill cemetery at three o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Alling of that town.

Mr. and Mrs. Heritage formerly lived in the McKee homestead on Center street and Mr. Heritage is still employed in the local silk mills, although residing in Hartford. Besides her husband, Mrs. Heritage is survived by six daughters, Mrs. Harry Bobby and the Misses Lucy, Nina, Maude, Ruby and Eva Heritage.

TRIP TOO EXPENSIVE.

In the semi-finals for the state spring cup, the Glens soccer football team are scheduled to play New Haven at Ansonia Sunday, May 7. The locals, however, are not entirely satisfied with the arrangement, as the trip will cost them about $30, while the cost to the New Haven team will be only about $4. Manager Callis of the Glens has written to Secretary Booth to see if a change can be made or some arrangement made whereby the cost to the teams can be evened up.

SPECIAL WRITER'S THRILLING ARTICLE ON COLUMBUS, N. M.

City Sleeps With Its Boots On and Carries Its Guns on the Hair Trigger—Is in State of War—Indian Chiefs, Soldiers, Picturesque Natives, Wild Scenery, Camp Life.

Columbus, N. M., April 29.—Columbus sleeps with its boots on and carries its guns on the hair trigger. Columbus is in a state of war. One approaches the scene of Villa's murderous raid, which occasioned the invasion of Mexico by United States troops, with a feeling that thrilling scenes are to be witnessed. The visitor is not disappointed. It would require the pen of a Wallace or a Kipling, and the brush of a Remington to adequately portray the picture presented.

Aged but stalwart Indian chiefs who fought against Geronimo, stolidly view the scene. Tall, bronzed cowboys stalk about, aviators mingle with broncho busters, chauffeurs wrangle with mule drivers and pioneer settlers sell ham and eggs to the influx of eastern tradesmen. Instantly the train pulls out of El Paso the hills of Mexico are revealed seemingly but a stone's throw distant, so clear is the air—a great range of treeless crumpling mountains that slope ruggedly to the very edge of the Rio Grande river.

The mighty Rio Grande, you discover, is but an apology for a river. Its bed is wide and deep, but alas, the water is not there. You could jangle a piece of blotting paper on a string, sop it all up and take the river along with you. A pyramid of stones on the river bank marks the dividing line of Texas, New Mexico and Chihuahua. The train swings across a high trestle over the "stream" and plunges into the mountains. United States troopers, with guns slung on shoulders or dragging along by their sides, alertly pace the trestle and track.

A short tunnel is encountered, and troopers are noted at the entrance, with a cache of supplies just inside. The cars speed along. For a while white pyramids a few miles apart mark the federal boundary. Finally you note their absence. "Oh, the land is so useless no one gives a hurrah where the line is," a fellow passenger remarks. The rocks are lava, the soil powdered lava, the bushes sage and cactus.

A one-story yellow building is reached, with a sign on it indicating it is a station, and you note that the "city" is doubling its number of buildings two instead of one. A half mile or more away heavy winged black buzzards are seen flying above a heap of ugly black object on the desert sand the charred remains of some of Villa's bandits and their horses.

Columbus is reached. The railroad track is the main street. At the north lies the village of scattered frame, brick or adobe houses, stores and huts. At the south extends a square mile or more of the main base of supplies for General Pershing's punitive expedition against Villa (that's its official name). A thousand or more soldiers line the track. Picture postal card men storm the tourists. Half a thousand army mules bray. A glance at the town indicates that there is but one building big enough to be a hotel, and that looks to have about six or eight rooms.

If you are wise you jump from the observation platform, circle the water tank and rush for the "hotel." The late comer has to sleep standing up. The mild-mannered Mr. Hoover—it is the Hoover House—hesitates when you ask for a room and "allows he guesses" he can give you a bed, but he aims to put two people in a room so as to accommodate as many as possible.

The rest of the arrivals show up soon—mostly El Paso business men who are selling to Uncle Sam supplies from condensed milk to aeroplanes. "Quiet enough in Columbus," I ventured to the clerk. "Wasn't very quiet in this very room two nights ago," he said. "Fellow from El Paso said he knew Villa.

"Cattlemen from outside here a piece who'd been loading up on booze brought in by some bootlegger pulled a gun and turned on him. 'Stand up,' he said. 'El Paso chap knew his game, looked him in the eye and said, 'Pardner, what you doing with that gun?' 'I'm going to shoot everybody that ever knew Villa,' he replied. 'Pardner,' said the El Paso fellow. 'Let me tell you something. Round here when we pull a gun we shoot first and talk about it afterwards.'

"Just then a couple of soldiers who had slipped in grabbed him, gun and all, and the show was over." I crew a bed in a wooden lean-to, quite new and clean, across the particular piece of desert they call street.

An Eastern civilian in Columbus feels as out of place as would a lady in a bathing suit on Broadway. He is a foreigner in a strange land. Soldiers scrutinize him. Tall, lean Westerners, gaze down upon him from their varying heights.

He feels he is a tenderfoot. Alert young men in varying styles of national guard uniform pursue and inquire the business of all the arrivals. They are the war correspondents at the supply base.

A hasty trip around the village shows half a dozen frame buildings of various sizes, 20 or more "dobe huts"—Mexican bungalows some one called them—several corrugated iron sheds, a smattering of tents hastily put up to provide eating places for the influx of population and the moving picture house.

The latter is an institution. It is of corrugated iron, decorated with luring lithographs of cowboys and beautiful girls of the Golden West in desperate battles and various others hours of need.

The proprietor is the happiest man in the state. "Uster give one show a week," he says. "Four a day now and full house all evening."

A young lady of blonde inclinations and pinked cheeks smiles in regulation style just as in New York, as the boys buy their tickets. In this womanless town she passes as the reigning beauty.

The soldier boys prefer to stand outside to see her, rather than take a chance with the doubtful one-reel thrillers inside.

She has but two rivals, the postmaster's youthful aide, who passes out stamps with impartiality to all, and the dignified but polite little lady who helps her Eastern mother serve ham and eggs three times a day to the newspaper men and others, while father writes impassioned poetry to his country's flag and the like of that.

Electric lights blaze from the moving picture house, where a coughing, spluttering gasoline engine turns out the "juice" intermittently.

The newspaper men's telegraph office and headquarters, hurriedly established in a side tracked freight car, is also lighted from this doubtful power plant.

"Just think of it," said one, "one hundred million Americans have to depend on whether that old engine keeps on coughing to get their morning's war news."

Torches flare, candles are requisitioned and oil lanterns appear to light up the "Gay White Way" of lunch tents and sandwich counters. Everybody in town is engaged in providing food and shelter for those attracted here by the boys across the track.

All the regiments sent in to the front left their bands behind them, with the result that a daily concert is provided from six to eight. Troopers, machinists, auto truck drivers, mule handlers, horseshoers, aeroplane mechanics, cowboys, scouts and Indian chiefs gather around in a motley group.

The night I arrived in Columbus a friendly Mexican rushed into camp and said a band of Mexican miners formerly with Villa was going to raid the town again.

A courier had come in by mule train from Casas Grandes, Pershing's nearest base, with news that general somebody or other was leading 8,000 troops out of Sonora and threatening the precious line of communication.

The town seethed with excitement. At dusk a whole troop of cavalry was sent out to some vital pass through the hills. All outposts were doubled. Sentries were placed every 20 feet apart at important points. A squad of 20 was concealed behind an old adobe wall next the Hoover House.

Citizens were warned off the streets after 11 o'clock and asked not to come out in case of a raid, lest they be mistaken for bandits. A whole regiment was sent to bed with its boots on.

The newspaper men prepared to sleep in their box car and lamented that the car did not have the thick adobe walls which bullets will not penetrate.

Major Sample, commanding, issued passes to the newspaper men. This is the first time I ever had a written permission to stay out all night.

Along about 10 o'clock two rifle shots were heard.

The town, asleep with one eye and both ears open, jumped out of bed, bugles sounded and guards clattered by.

For 20 minutes there was suspense. The guards returned. A very much frightened negro sentry came with them.

He certainly had seen a whole "passel" of bandits creeping, creeping, creeping up all around him and he just up and shot at a couple of them.

"Well, that's one sentry we know wasn't asleep, anyway, remarked a facetious lieutenant.

There has been some criticism about the way the sentries let the Villa murderer's surprise the town, and just at present it would be a serious matter for a civilian to have anything to say about sleeping soldiers.

By sun-up the camp burst into action. Thirty auto trucks lined up and were loaded with candy, gold, Mexican silver, tents, alfalfa, biscuits, gasoline, tin cans and other things to be consumed by the army in Mexico.

Two machine gun crews, with guns, a squad of marksmen, several commissioned officers, and in this particular case Sam Dreben, former Villa machine gun operator, ammunition agent and secretary and now a United States scout, climbed aboard.

Broncho busters from the plains, leathery skinned, blue-eyed and mellow voiced, tackled a new invoice of horses, to get them used to army equipment.

Squads marched away to various points for camp cleaning. Signal corps motor cyclists shot past.

Orderlies in auto or on horse rushed here and there.

Carpenters began erecting machine shops.

Blacksmiths shod ponies which had never worn a shoe before.

Gangs dug trenches to put the water pipes underground.

Freight trains arrived and disgorged amazing attacks of queer looking boxes.

Members of the bands began to practice. An alkali covered mule train drove in from the south, six days out of Casas Grandes. Twenty Indian chiefs, 70 to 100 years old, roamed about and scrutinized the modern war material. A delegation of them waited upon Major Sample. They had just been brought out of the White Mountain reservation in the Roosevelt Dam district of Arizona, and they were scheduled to leave that day for the front. The venerable chiefs had scouted for Uncle Sam in the various chases for Geronimo in the district where Villa's fled. Despite their great age they were alert and tireless. The night before leaving the reservation they had danced the war dance all night. War head dresses that had not been worn since the Apache uprising were brought out. Bowie knives, 18 inches long, had been sharpened and strapped to their thighs. They were to scale the heights of Villa's mountain fastnesses. They were to read and interpret the signs in the desert sand where Villistas had passed. But today they had a complaint. After various palavering they came to the point. "No go," said the spokesman. Major Sample approached the matter from the rear and prefaced his "why" with many diplomacies. "No time on wrist," said the chief-tain. The Indians had seen the officers' wrist watches and wouldn't play without them. They were fitted out in uniforms, saddles, campaign hats and the good old-fashioned Colt revolvers. They brought the Colts back. They had seen the troopers with automatics, and wanted some like them. Sun goggles were obtained by the same tactics. As the chiefs solemnly started off to the mysterious south a spluttering was heard. Glasses were turned towards the distant mountains and a tiny but rapidly growing speck was found 5,000 feet above the ground scaling the mountains. In a few seconds an aeroplane swept over camp, and landed in the aviation section. Two lieutenant aviators, the same who were mobbed in Chihuahua City, had come from Pershing 350 miles away in four hours. In four hours they had traversed the desert, had traveled as far as the Indians could go in weeks, as far as the auto truck trains go in three days. They brought dispatches, mail and stories from the newspaper men at the front. They brought reports of Villa's rumored but doubted death, of battles, of the deaths of two Americans at the hands of Villistas in some outlying village. They brought stories and anecdotes galore, to the delight of the newspaper men, the joy of the telegraph company and the terror and despair of the genial but painstaking censor. Hardly had the sensation of their arrival worn away when a dust cloud on the desert warned the vigilant signal corps of the approach of new business. Another mule train pulled in, four mules to a canvas covered high-wheeled wagon, galloping troopers ahead and behind. The train bore the first of the Villistas captured—six men wounded and abandoned by Villa. As the auto truck men and mule drivers came in, dust covered, eyes bloodshot and with unquenchable thirst, they delivered gems of wisdom and observation. "That country is all upside down," said one. "You have to dig for wood and climb for water." The water being in the hills and the roots of the sage brush being about the only available wood. "There's not a man in Columbus would vote for Wilson and watchful waiting," said the village sage, as the mail was being sorted. "Nor in Texas," spoke up an El Paso man standing by.

MR. FORD SEES INVENTOR OF NEW AUTOMOBILE FUEL

Louis Enrich Explains His Mysterious "Gasolene" to Manufacturer, Who Made Special Trip From Michigan to Investigate Process.

Henry Ford the automobile manufacturer, went to Farmingdale, L. I., the other day to see Louis Enrich, the man who says he can make motor fuel out of water for two cents a gallon. Mr. Ford came from Dearborn, Mich., on representations made to him by his agents, who had been impressed by performances of Mr. Enrich's automobiles after they had received injections of the mysterious fluid.

No demonstration of the liquid was given to Mr. Ford. The inventor said he was just out of the chemicals necessary to make the liquid. Mr. Enrich had not been able to buy any chemicals for some time, he declared, because secret agents were trailing him everywhere to steal his invention.

Gift of a Ford.

But Mr. Ford had a few hours' talk with the inventor and was so well pleased with the personality of the aged man that he agreed forthwith to give him a new Ford automobile, which Mr. Enrich will prepare for a special demonstration for Mr. Ford. If this demonstration proves to Mr. Ford's satisfaction that a real substitute for gasolene has been found, he will buy the whole invention outright, and will give it to the world.

No price has been set upon the value of his invention by Mr. Enrich. He expresses the belief that if Mr. Ford is convinced he has solved the problem he will pay amply. There will be no stock-selling schemes, Mr. Enrich says, although numerous offers have been made to start companies capitalized at from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000.

No indication of Mr. Ford's real opinion of Mr. Enrich's invention could be obtained, the manufacturer contenting himself with making only this comment:

"While I did not see a demonstration of the new liquid on account of Mr. Enrich being out of certain chemicals, I am greatly interested in the man himself. I was much impressed by his sincerity. We will have a demonstration in Long Island City in the near future."

Mr. Enrich is a picturesque looking man, about 75 years old, very tall, very erect, and with a wide flowing mustache that would mark him in any crowd of thousands. He is more than six feet tall and towered high above the automobile manufacturer. Mr. Enrich gave Mr. Ford full and free information, told him the number of chemicals he used in his solution, just how it might be prepared, its properties, its effect on the motor, its combustion properties and how he had discovered his liquid. The automobile Mr. Ford is to give to the inventor will be the usual one, with the exception that it will be geared a little higher than the stock car. This is because Mr. Enrich says his chemically prepared water has much more explosive force than gasolene and hence can drive a higher gear with more ease.

Mr. Ford does not assume any responsibility. He is taking the position merely that if Mr. Enrich has what he declares he has, and can prove it, then he is willing to let the world at large have it. Mr. Enrich says the whole thing is so simple that any one can make it, and if a company should be formed to market the fuel, the man who bought the first gallon could make all the rest himself. Mr. Enrich frankly says he wants to get as much out of it as he can, and he believes the only way is to sell it either to some public-spirited man who can afford to give it to the world, or to sell it to the government.

Simple Matter To Prove.

"My invention is either a fake or it is genuine," said Mr. Enrich who talks affably and looks you square in the eye. "It would be a very simple matter to prove that it cannot operate an automobile if it cannot. I have been working on the chemicals for four years now, and I have been driving my cars on the fuel for a long time. I have not bought a gallon of gasolene since last Thanksgiving, except the other day when I ran short of my liquid. Then I simply bought some gasolene on the road and dumped it into the gasolene tank, on top of my liquid, and the car ran along just the same as ever."

Mr. Enrich has three automobiles, all of which he says he operates with the liquid. He can make his chemical solution, using four different ingredients, in a few minutes. This is merely dumped into the water and mixes quickly. Four ounces of the solution will be sufficient for five gallons of water.

"I have not made any changes in the cars to take the fuel," explained Mr. Enrich, "except in the case of one carburetor. In that one the jet had too small an opening to allow of sufficient water to come through. Water is not as fluent as gasolene. I had a special jet made for this carburetor. The other carburetors are the same as came on the cars. You may make all the inspection that you wish."

GARAGE GOSSIP

Smith Brothers of the Park garage are ready to show by demonstration that the Paige Light Six will give a greater mileage on a given amount of gasoline and oil than most four-cylinder cars. Their garage is equipped to give good service to their patrons. They stand back of the cars they sell. The purchaser, particularly if he be a novice with a car, will often find their advice and assistance of great value to him.

The Firestone people are getting out a new tire this year with red sides and black tread, for which they claim exceptional wearing qualities. Smith Brothers have been selling these tires for five years and have had good results with them. They carry a stock of standard sizes and if you will drive to the Park garage when you are in trouble they will fix you up in a jiffy.

Another Motor Fuel.

Motorzine, a substance invented by W. H. Stevens of St. Louis to supply a cheap substitute for gasolene, has been given exhaustive tests, during which it is stated that an average of 27 miles to a gallon was made. When mixed with crude oil or coal oil the new fuel clarifies it at once, and the heavier oil does not carbonize, according to reports. The inventor states that it will be possible to make it for about three or four cents a gallon in 1,000,000 gallon lots.

By authority of the Brazilian government the railways of that country and Paraguay will be connected, providing another transcontinental line for South America.

State Secretary Halted by Policeman.

The secretary of state, who has disciplined a good many automobilists, came near getting pulled himself the other day when he was held up by a policeman in Wooster square, Danbury, for failure to observe the traffic regulations at that point. The secretary, who was in a hurry to get to the county court house, failed to drive to the right of the policeman and was promptly halted and asked to explain. The policeman did not recognize him, as he appeared to be a stranger in the city, and permitted him to proceed after warning him.

Studebaker Growth.

Studebaker Corporation automobile sales for the March quarter were 16,800 compared with 9,400 for the first quarter in 1915, according to President A. R. Erskine. He said the gain was all from regular business, not war orders. Current production is at an annual rate, he added, of 96,000 cars, which compares with 46,000 cars produced in 1915.

ROOSEVELT IN CHICAGO TO COURT THE HYPHEN

Colonel Does Not "Pussyfoot" in Either, but Comes With Usual Dentigerous Grin.

Chicago, April 29.—Preceded by his unqualified endorsement of woman suffrage, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt arrived here today to court the hyphen in its natural habitat. The Colonel did not "pussyfoot" into Chicago. He came with the usual Rooseveltian enthusiasm and snap, and doffed his hat repeatedly in response to cheers from pedestrians. Simultaneously with his arrival, announcement was made of the opening of Roosevelt headquarters. From now until June 7 Colonel Roosevelt's friends will spare no efforts to convert the Sherman-pledged Illinois delegates to Rooseveltism.

A large committee from the Illinois Bar Association, whose guest he is here, met Mr. Roosevelt. The forenoon was spent quietly in the hotel. The colonel saw numerous political friends.

Tonight he will speak at a bar association banquet on "National Duty and International Ideals."

Colonel Roosevelt's announcement on the suffrage question aroused tremendous enthusiasm among suffragists.

"YOURS TRULY."

In Which Joyful Bob Ott Will Star at Park.

"Yours Truly," the new comedy by Matthew Ott, which is underlined for next Monday night, is a cleverly conceived, brightly written and entirely wholesome play. Its merits are all pervading, shining in a natural run of comedy, just often tipped with musical interpolations and frequently displaying itself in funny situations and complicated surprises that are a continual challenge and interest. An evening spent with Bob Ott is an evening of rare delight. Possibly the truest standard by which to judge a play is to note the impression it makes upon the audience. While the author naturally desires the approval of the critical few, it is the verdict of many which makes or mars, measured by the rule of the majority. Matthew Ott's "Yours Truly," which will have its first presentation in this town next Monday at the Park theater, is a successful play, and is destined to linger in pleasurable memory. Reserved seats are now on sale.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

When my throttle is at full retard it ordinarily permits enough gasoline to reach the engine to keep it running. Recently, however, my engine sometimes stops. Turning up the needle valve and allowing a little more gasoline to flow the engine would run all right throttled down even after the needle valve was returned to its original adjustment. What is the matter?

A number of solutions are possible. Your motor may not be running as well as it did formerly, with the result that it is more likely to stop when throttled down. It is also possible that the auxiliary air valve in the carburetor sticks occasionally, temporarily rendering the mixture inadequate. Valve trouble or any slight irregularity in operation frequently causes a motor to stop when turning over slowly. You should see that all of these points are checked up and also that the linkage between your throttle lever and carburetor is working properly; that there are no loose set screws permitting the lever to turn on the shaft, etc. Frequently a thorough cleaning and oiling will suffice.

Is it advisable when going down small grades or turning corners to throw out the clutch and let the car coast, or would the added wear on the clutch offset any benefit to the differential? My car has a cone clutch.

Excessively frequent engagement and disengagement of a cone clutch naturally increases the wear on the facing and operating parts, proportionately impairing their condition. It is very improbable that any possible degree of wear on the differential which would be avoided by throwing out the clutch and letting the car coast down small grades or around corners would be sufficiently great to compensate for the increased effort to the driver and the greater rapidity of wear on the clutch facing and linkage resulting from making this constant practice.

Is there more danger of fire from placing the gasoline tank in the coil than if located a greater distance from the engine?

No, because the tank is sufficiently remote from the ignition.

Is thermo siphon cooling as efficient as the circulating pump?

Yes, if properly designed, though there are limitations to the size of the engine to which it is adaptable.

Running at twenty to twenty-five miles an hour over level road, should I retard the spark nearly all the way or move the lever only halfway down as compared with the throttle lever? Would I get the same power or would the engine consume more gasoline than if the spark lever was slightly ahead of the throttle? When should the spark be retarded?

Running over level roads your spark should be kept at nearly full advance, for using a late spark under these conditions and particularly when running from twenty to twenty-five miles per hour tends not only to reduce the power output of the motor and to increase to a surprising degree the amount of gasoline consumed per mile, but also to increase the likelihood of overheating. For ordinary running the best position for your spark lever is two-thirds of the way up the quadrant. The only times when the spark should be retarded are when the engine is laboring under a heavy load, when pulling through sand, mud or other heavy going, when going up a steep hill, which slows down the motor's speed, or when idling. An expert driver has almost perfect control over his car simply by his manipulation of the spark and throttle levers, and more attention would be given to this feature of car operation by many owners if they realized to what extent it promotes efficiency and economy.

Can a steering wheel be changed from stiff to adjustable rack, and how? The steering wheel itself cannot be changed, but you no doubt refer to the column or post, which can be lowered or raised to any desired position.

When I start my car in the morning I have to crank it for several minutes before it will start. There is also a small charge being furnished by the generator. As soon as the motor starts it will throw a good charge and then drop back to a charge of about five amperes. The connections all seem to be tight. The battery is in good condition, testing about 1,250 to 1,275. At night when the starter is turning the motor the lights become very dim and flicker all the time that the car is going. Can you give some advice?

From the information you have given, the trouble would seem to be in the cut-out relay. When the engine is started and the relay is working properly the generator begins building up its voltage until it gets to about six volts. Then a current passes through the voltage winding of the relay, and a magnetic pull is set up. This overcomes the tension of the spring, which has up to this time held the armature of the relay away from the core of the coil. When the magnetism draws the armature down to the core the contacts on the front of the relay are closed, the act of pulling the armature down serving to bring the points on the other end of the armature against the terminals of the relay. When these contacts are made the circuit between generator and battery are closed, and battery charging goes on until the generator voltage gets below that of the battery. Then the battery current flows in the reverse direction, this going out through the coarse wire winding of the relay. Instantly the magnetic pull ceases, and the spring pulls the armature away from the relay contacts, thus breaking the circuit. Obviously, if the relay does not work as it should the generator and battery will not cut in and out as they should, and the trouble is likely to develop as you have outlined.

Please give me the strongest solution to place just in the cylinder jacket, not in the radiator. Would lye do, and how long should it stand to loosen rust and corrosion?

The best way to remove the rust would be to take the cap from the top of the cylinder and scrape the rust from the water jacket space.

Will a six volt starting and lighting battery give as brilliant a light with fifteen candle power bulbs as a lighting system operated through a battery from a generator driven by the engine, the same fifteen candle power bulbs being used?

Though a six volt starting and lighting battery will give practically as brilliant a light as a generator system for a short time the intensity of the light will naturally decrease in proportion to the amount of service which the battery is called upon to perform. On the other hand, with a generator system the battery is constantly being recharged and the lights are maintained at maximum brilliancy.

What is the average size, in cubic contents, of the combustion chamber of an internal combustion engine with relation to its horsepower?

The displacement of the motor is no exact measure of its power. As usually figured, it requires 8.5 cubic inches per horsepower at 1,000 r. p. m.

I have had trouble with my generator. The ammeter shows only a slight current. After I clean off the commutator with sandpaper it works well for a short time, but very soon the old trouble returns. What is the matter? The difficulty is probably due to a rough commutator. Cleaning with sandpaper, while it cleans the bars of the commutator, will leave the mica high, with the result that the brushes make imperfect contact, and the commutator bars soon burn black. The only way to correct this trouble is to remove the armature and have the commutator turned down in a lathe. There is also a possibility that the brushes which you are using are too soft.

LODGE MEMBERS HONOR CHARLES R. HATHAWAY

Odd Fellows Present Him With Gold Service Badge at Meeting Last Evening.

The Odd Fellows of King David lodge gave Charles R. Hathaway a pleasant surprise at the meeting of the lodge last evening. Just after the business of the meeting had been transacted, Noble Grand Ralph Cone called on some of the Odd Fellows for a few remarks and by a prearranged plan called on E. Martin Ogden, who in the course of his remarks eulogized Mr. Hathaway for his work in the upbuilding of King David lodge.

At the conclusion of the speech he stepped to where Mr. Hathaway was sitting and in behalf of the lodge presented to him a veteran's service badge. The badge is of gold and suitably inscribed. Mr. Hathaway was so surprised that for a few minutes he could scarcely find words to express his feelings. He thanked the Odd Fellows for the token of esteem extended to him and said that he would always have the kindest feeling for the members of the lodge for the many honors they had extended to him.

Mr. Hathaway was a charter member of the lodge and its first noble grand. He has always taken a lively interest in the work of the lodge and has been a regular attendant at its meetings.

Light refreshments were served in the banquet hall.

LOCAL CHURCH'S CHAPEL IN FAR WESTERN STATE

Supported By Funds From South Methodist Sunday School

WAS DEDICATED SUNDAY

Western Newspapers Publish Glowing Accounts of Memorial to the Late Rev. S. E. Ellis.

Copies of Washington papers received by members of the South Methodist church of this town give glowing accounts of the dedication of the memorial chapel at Rocky Hill, Skagit County, Wash., last Sunday. The funds for the erection of this chapel were furnished by the members of the local Sunday school to perpetuate the memory of the late Rev. Sherman E. Ellis, a former pastor. The published accounts give an interesting history of the chapel and how it was constructed. In one of the articles it told that even the girls helped by driving nails into the boards. The architect himself contributed 19 days to help in the construction work.

The new chapel is six miles above Rockport, and is Methodism's farthest outpost in that direction. It is 20 miles from any church of any kind. The chapel is 18 by 24 feet in size and stands on a plot of land 100 by 200. It is proposed to clear some of the land in the neighborhood to make tennis and baseball grounds.

PREPAREDNESS DEBATE.

Topic To Be Discussed in High School Monday Night.

Much interest is being shown in the debate on "Preparedness," which is to be held in the High school assembly hall Monday evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

The subject is of the greatest possible concern to every citizen at this time, when our foreign relations are under some stress, to say the least. Every citizen should endeavor to understand the question from all standpoints and this occasion affords an exceptional opportunity to hear able presentations for and against preparedness handled by able men.

Hon. George B. Chandler, of Rocky Hill, has given much study to the matter, and firmly believes in an ample and reasonable program. Dr. Hesselgrave is a most thorough student of history and the national life and aspirations of the nations of the world and is equally certain that even a considerable arming program is unwise and especially unnecessary at this time or in the near future.

These gentlemen have already met in debate on this same subject in Hartford, and the few from this town who heard them were much enlightened and entertained. It is expected that a party will come out from Hartford to attend the meeting. The officers of the Chamber call attention to the fact that all adults, men and women, are cordially invited.

PULSING HEART DRAMA.

"A Daughter of the City" To Be Shown at The Circle.

A brand new five-act photo play, "A Daughter of the City," will be shown at The Circle Theater on Monday evening. It is the old, old story of the lure of the city.

There is no melodrama, no killing, no hysteria. The photoplay is a cross section of life as it is today, and men are not killed as a general rule for plotting against the virtue of a girl. But the libertine is punished in a much more effective way than killing. He is stripped of his mask and revealed to himself for what he is in the light that his wife's contempt throws on him. And the girl and the boy are married and made happy.

Virtue is rewarded, not by riches, but by the consciousness of a hard fought won. "A Daughter of the City" is a powerful drama, told with photographic detail, and the lesson is pointed logically and convincingly.

HOLY NAME SMOKER.

On Monday evening at Foresters' hall the Holy Name society of St. James church will hold a smoker. State Deputy William J. Mulligan of Thompsonville will make the principal address of the evening.

The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Harry M. Burke, Charles McCann, John F. Miner, James F. Roach, S. L. Cheney, Stephen Horan and John McVeigh.

CLIFF KNIGHT PLEASED BIG CROWD AT ARMORY

His Pictures of Local Celebrities Make Decided Hit—Success of Bazar Assured.

Another monster crowd filled the Armory last evening at the military bazar of Company G. Within twenty minutes after the doors were thrown open the hall was filled and there was just a little space left for dancing. Only about half of those present were able to dance at one time. There was an unusually large number of children present and these got into the way of the dancers so that they could hardly move.

When Cliff Knight, the artist, appeared it was with difficulty that he was able to make his way to the stage. He was escorted to the hall by a squad of newspapermen, headed by Postmaster Thomas J. Quish, an old time scribe. The local reporters played host to the visiting cartoonist and before his act at the Armory he was shown Manchester in Judge Carney's auto. Knight had been brought up in this neighborhood but had not been in town for many years. He was surprised to see the improvements.

At the hall, after the return trip, the barker in front of the various booths were silenced by Captain Harry Blaisell for a few seconds while he introduced the cartoonist. With his crayons and easel, the artist lost no time in getting to work. In connection with his work he had a monologue that fitted in nicely with his pictures. The cartoonist started off by drawing portraits of local celebrities, Leo McPartland, Postmaster Quish, "King" Dougherty, Captain Blaisell, Judge Carney and others well known to the audience. This made a decided hit. He then drew a series of funny pictures which delighted the children.

When he drew the Kaiser the crowd started to yell and when the picture was completed it was torn up by those who caught it after it had been thrown to the audience. At the conclusion of his act, Mr. Knight received several encores. The act pleased everyone. This evening the bazar will close. There will be extra vaudeville attractions, dancing and the distribution of prizes. The success of the affair is already assured and the company will realize a large sum from the proceeds of the bazar.

INJURED AT MILLS.

Martin Pella of Laurel street, employed in Cheney Brothers' machine shop, is at the Hartford hospital as the result of a painful accident he suffered yesterday afternoon. He was turning a pulley in a lathe when the cutting tool caught and the pulley broke, a piece of which flew in the air, striking Pella in the face. He received bad gashes on the forehead over the right eye and down his right cheek. The nerves of the eye were injured and it is feared he may lose the sight of it. As Dr. Burlingame, the mill physician, was out of town, Dr. W. S. Gillam was called to render first aid, after which the injured man was removed to the Hartford hospital.

PARK THEATER.

A Sensational Problem Play Will Be the Feature Tomorrow.

The Miracle of Life with Margarata Fischer and Joseph E. Singleton as its stars will be presented at the Park theater tomorrow.

The play is a wonderful story of a plea for motherhood. It pictures a young wife enamored of social pleasures, whose very soul is wrapped in a whirl of gaiety and frivolity. She loathes the thought of coming motherhood, she visualizes its responsibilities, the necessity of giving up her social obligations. She confides in a "Social Butterfly" and under her sinister influence attempts to thwart the law of nature. The deplorable fallacy of race suicide is forcibly exposed and the beautiful thought of motherhood as a woman's crowning glory is splendidly portrayed.
