

AMUSEMENTS

WHAT'S WHAT AND WHO'S WHO
IN MANCHESTER MOVIE HOUSES

AT THE PARK.

As expected the Popular Playhouse was well filled last evening at the first showing of "The Great White Trail" and those who saw this famous feature film are today spreading the glad tidings all over town; telling their neighbors and friends to come around tonight to see this epic of the Arctic. The consensus of opinion was that no better film of adventure has been shown in Manchester in many months.

From the moment the title was flashed on the screen, interest in the story never lagged an instant until the final fadeaway. Here are some of the comments made by movie first nighters at the close of the show last evening:

"The film may be designated as a clean, ingenious and scenically perfect picture, calculated to satisfy and please the most exacting audience anywhere."

"Doris Kenyon, the star, made a decided impression on me. I have never yet seen a film of the northlands that impressed me as did "The Great White Trail."

"A well done melodramatic picture. It is as refreshing as a sleigh ride and has all the earmarks of a substantial success."

"This film is worthy of the reputation of the Whartons as producers of exceptional pictures. The play is of the highest quality."

And many other paens of praise were heard on all sides as the audience left the Popular Playhouse. There is little doubt that tonight will find another capacity audience at the Park as this is the last opportunity to see this masterpiece of motography.

Tomorrow, besides a bill of exceptional merit, Mr. Sullivan will distribute twenty dollars in gold as his patrons' share of the Park's prosperity. The feature of the bill will be Marjorie Rambeau in a tale of "The Debt".

It is a story in which love for a child conquers jealousy, and is fraught with dramatic situations.

If the Germans can claim the capture of 1,800 guns from the Italians in the past two weeks, the French can show over 1,100 guns captured from the Germans in that time.—Springfield Republican.

AT THE CIRCLE.

"The Honor System," conceded by critics, producers, film salesmen and exhibitors to be the greatest piece of screencraft the world has yet seen, comes to the Circle today direct from its sensational run at the Lyric theater, New York city, where it played to capacity for five hundred performances. Words could never describe this twentieth century marvel, but suffice to say that after tonight's showing it will undoubtedly be the talk of the town.

How many picture stories are there that are still vitally alive in your memory, that ever bring back to you all the emotional appeal of the first showing—all the romantic charm and the sense of reality? In other words, how many screened dramas are living, vital events with you, so real in their conviction that you accept them as a fascinating fact? Not one. Yet there might have been such a one that you unfortunately missed. In such an event the misfortune is not irreparable.

There is one as you may now anticipate, that will stay forever in your recollection, for it is more than a picture play, it is reality, the reality of human emotions, the reality of scene and action, the reality of the virtues that make the average intelligent human being. It tells the greatest human story ever told, a story that gets right down to the bed rock of human emotion. In its setting, in its wonderful portrayal of types, in its swift movement, movement that the spoken stage never can hope to approximate in its accuracy of character portrayal and in its intense modernity. Such a film is "The Honor System" and it is the sincere wish of the Circle management that every person in Manchester may see it, for it gives them the opportunity to see the greatest cinema achievement of the age.

CORNELL SHIFTS LINEUP FOR MICHIGAN GAME
Dartmouth Vs. Penn the Big New England Gridiron Scrimmage of Week.

Ithaca, Nov. 8.—Coach Sharpe has made several shifts in the Cornell line-up for the game with Michigan Saturday. Cary was placed at fullback today, while Cross and Hoffman were sent to the halfback positions. Sharp aims to present a heavy line and a fast backfield to the Wolverines.

Washington, Pa.—Coaching the Washington and Jefferson eleven in Pittsburgh plays has kept Sol Metzger busy the first three days of the week. Today hard scrimmage was the order. W. and J. hopes to stop Pitt's winning streak when they meet Saturday.

Pittsburgh.—Believing that overconfidence was the cause of Pitt's comparatively poor showing against Penn two weeks ago, Glenn Warner has taken measures to prevent any such thing happening with the W. and J. game at hand. Pitt has been given a new string of plays for the W. and J. game.

Philadelphia.—Penn's varsity squad took a last light workout on Franklin Field today preparatory to their game with Boston Saturday where they will meet Dartmouth Saturday. All of the players are in good condition it was said today.

Hanover, N. H.—The undefeated Dartmouth team was sent through its last hard workout of the week. They meet Penn at Boston Saturday. In addition to the Pittsburgh game Dartmouth will play Tufts and Brown before the season ends.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

THANKSGIVING, 1917
By the President of the United States of America
A PROCLAMATION

"It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for his many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. That custom we can follow now even in the midst of the tragedy of a world shaken by war and immeasurable disaster, in the midst of sorrow and great peril, because even amidst the darkness that has gathered about us we can see the great blessings God has bestowed upon us, blessings that are better than mere peace of mind and prosperity of enterprise.

"We have been given the opportunity to serve mankind as we once served ourselves in the great day of our Declaration of Independence, by taking up arms against a tyranny that threatened to master and debase men everywhere and joining with other free peoples in demanding for all the nations of the world that we then demanded and obtained for ourselves. In this day of the revelation of our duty not only to defend our own rights as a nation but to defend also the rights of free men throughout the world, there has been vouchsafed us in full and inspiring measure the resolution and spirit of united action. We have been brought to one mind and purpose. A new vigor of common counsel and common action has been revealed in us. We should especially thank God that in such circumstances, in the midst of the greatest enterprise the spirits of men have ever entered upon, we have, if we but observe a reasonable and practicable economy, abundance with which to supply the needs of those associated with us as well as our own. A new light shines about us. The great duties of a new day awaken a new and greater national spirit in us. We shall never again be divided or wonder what stuff we are made of. And while we render thanks for these things let us pray Almighty God that in all humbleness of spirit we may look always to Him for guidance; that we may be kept constant in the spirit and purpose of service; that by His grace our minds may be directed and our hands strengthened; and that in His good time liberty and security and peace and the comradeship of a common justice may be vouchsafed all the nations of the earth.

"Wherefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the 29th day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease upon that day from their ordinary occupations and in their several homes and places of worship to render thanks to God, the great ruler of nations.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done in the District of Columbia, this 7th day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1917, and of the independence of the United States of America the 142d.

"WOODROW WILSON.
By the President, ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State."

"ISAIAH'S VISION," TOPIC OF REV. MOORE'S SERMON

"Isaiah's Vision" was the topic of the sermon at last night's revival meetings. In developing his sermon, Mr. Moore said:

"We count time from some event in our lives. We say such and such a thing happened in the year that our mother died, in the year that our father came back from the war, in the year that our daughter was married. In the year that the king died Isaiah went to the temple and came away a different man. There are times when a man does not want to talk with his friends even. In such mood, perhaps, Isaiah went up to the temple to talk with God. When a man goes to see God he gets a vision and comes away a giant in strength.

"Many a man has gone through life without carrying in his recollection the song of bird, the laughter of child, the music of a woman's voice. But that is not to live. Many a man has gone to the temple and come away again without seeing God. But the infinite tragedy is to live without seeing and hearing God.

"In the day when his heart was heavy, Isaiah went to the temple. Because of what happened that day, though the king was gone, God was his forevermore. He might be helpless against the enemy, but God remained. All that had brought him peace might go, but God remained.

"The vision of God is always a call to labor. The man who sees God and goes forth the same man, to him the vision is a curse.

"Opportunity always spells obligation. The veriest vagabond, seeing a child imperiled, will risk his own life to save the child's. Seeing another man's house on fire, you will soil your hands, spoil your clothes, risk your life to extinguish the flames and save his property.

"Who sees God and does not see himself. He needs no one to tell his duty. It is an awful look upon the face of God, but we never know some things about ourselves until we do.

"The temple is gone. Isaiah is gone, Uzziah is but a memory. But the sons of men who will stay still have the vision of God. They may go to the temple with feet that drag with sorrow, and from the terror of the vision and the hope of the vision go out triumphant, purified prophets of the vision and bringing their brethren to him who is the master of all life.

"Impossible? No. What saves the world and what saves South Manchester from rotteness? Men and women who are the salt of the earth; men and women whose souls are stayed on the righteousness of the eternal God. It is the men and women of vision that have brought the world thus far along the spiritual way."

The noon meeting at Cheney Bros' mills was addressed today by Rev. Mr. Moore. Tomorrow this meeting will be addressed by Rev. Mr. Withee.

FIRE AT GARAGE.

Auto Truck Catches Fire on Maple Street—Small Damage.

Orford Hose Company's chemical truck was called out about 10.30 o'clock this morning by a still alarm for a fire at the Palace Garage on Maple street. The fire was not in the garage, fortunately, but in the yard. The automobile truck of the Central Market had just been towed into the yard, suffering from carburetor. Louis Fitzgerald started to crank the engine, to discover what the trouble was, the engine back-fired and in a jiffy the front end of the machine was afire. Fearing that the gasoline tank, directly back of the engine, would explode, he sent a hurry call for No. 3's truck. With N. B. Richards at the wheel and O. F. Toop at his side, the truck was soon on the scene and the contents of a hand extinguisher put an end to the trouble. The paint was scorched off the hood, all the wiring about the motor was spoiled and the wood work in back of the engine badly charred. The damage is estimated at about $100.

THE VIGILANTES

The following articles are written by the Vigilantes. Who are the Vigilantes? The Vigilantes is an organization of America's brainiest men and women, who receive fabulous prices for their contributions to magazines. When war was declared with Germany they banded together and decided to use their pens, absolutely free to the publishers, "to help make the world safe for democracy."

SILENCE THE ENEMY WITHIN.

By E. E. Harriman of The Vigilantes.

Now the Kaiser states that he is ready to give guarantees if peace can be brought about at this time. What are they? Scraps of paper of the same kind he tore up before? Does he intimate that he will give up preparation for another war. He does not. He would make mental guarantees if he did so promise. Guarantees that would be given by good horny knuckles, driven hard and straight, with prison cells, with heavy fines, with long terms as road builders under guard. Aye, even with the firing squad in the extreme cases, but stop it FOREVER!

their maudlin sentimentality will not work against OUR WAR nor their un-American propaganda irritate the true patriot. Every one of them carries a bottle of gasoline with which to dampen those cotton sheets against the day when the fire eats through. Put them out of business, make this affair of aiding Germany unpopular to a degree that carries terror to the breast of the propagandist. How? In any way that seems fitting. With good horny knuckles, driven hard and straight, with prison cells, with heavy fines, with long terms as road builders under guard. Aye, even with the firing squad in the extreme cases, but stop it FOREVER!

WHEN ALL IS RIGHT.

A Pretty Good Place to Be in is the World.

Did you ever sit out of an evening on the back steps by the milk house? (I am talking to your husband now.) Or perch yourself like some lord of all creation upon the fence and watch the autumn sun go down? And did you sit there, long after the sun had gone down, big and blood red, sinking back of Opperman's farm and the Widow Peaseley's orchard, way over on the ridge road? And did you wonder and wonder, about the whys and the wherefores and the whichness of the why, until it got dark, and even then you sat there, thinking and maybe listening once in a while to the young chickens who were roosting in the trees and old Dad Bailey's dog that always commenced to bark—a deep, mournful yowl—as soon as it was dark and kept it up half the night?

But after a time you would begin to feel cool and kind of damp and you humped your shoulders a couple of times and wished you had on your coat instead of sitting out there in your shirtsleeves. And in a little while you get really chilly, and you walk slowly through the dew-damp grass to the house. You feel sort of calm and rested and at peace with the world.

Now, what you were thinking about didn't amount to much, maybe. Your thoughts just swung here and there and everywhere, like barn swallows over a new mown field. But you had this pleasant little visit with yourself and you find that you are all right and the world is all right, and most of the people in it are average at least.

And somehow you feel as James Whitcomb Riley must have felt when he wrote that poem that began: "It's a purty good world, this is, old man— It's a purty good world, this is! All things jest At their best— It's a purty good world, old man!" And it is, and getting better. We like it, and we all want to stay and know each other better, and enjoy ourselves more. That's the way I feel about it, and that's the way I feel toward you.—Hiram Moe Greene, in Woman's World.

CUT-A-CORD CAMPAIGN. STOCK UP THE WOOD SHED.

Coal is in great demand all through New England, but, in spite of the best endeavors of the Fuel Administrator, the supply has fallen far behind the requirements. The situation is serious.

At the present time New England is several million tons of soft coal short of its needs, and while the hard coal supply was reasonably satisfactory two months ago there was a falling off during September and October, so that there is not enough now coming forward to meet the increased uses.

Every effort has been and is being made by the Fuel Administrator to facilitate shipments and to secure the economical utilization of the coal received. Many relatively unnecessary forms of use have been curtailed or even eliminated.

The fact remains that the outlook for any improvement in future deliveries for New England is unfavorable, and it has become the duty of the administrator to advise the public of these facts, and to urge that personal and community prudence and national patriotism require that New England should begin at once to utilize as fully as may be the native cordwood supplies.

At a recent conference of fuel officials, woodland owners, wood dealers, the Grange and others interested, representing all the New England states, the opinion was unanimously expressed that an organized effort should be made without any delay to provide a store of wood sufficient for immediate and future needs.

The reports from the several states indicated positively that the supply of wood now on hand is everywhere short even of normal requirements, and that there nowhere appears to be any danger of glutting the market through any activity that may be inaugurated. In view of the likelihood that there will be an even greater stringency in the coal situation later in the season, and with the possibility that the conditions may not be materially improved this year, the present or future market for good cordwood bears a most PROMISING APPEARANCE.

It was further recommended by the conference referred to above that an appeal should be made to local committees of Public Safety in all wood-producing localities, and to County Agents, as well, to take an inventory of all available supplies of cordwood stumpage that are situated within a reasonable distance of a market, and to endeavor forcefully to arrange for its cutting without delay.

It is therefore earnestly requested that the Granges and the Farmers' Clubs will immediately take an active part in cooperating with the local committees on Public Safety in this important matter. This work is being done in Connecticut under the direction of Thomas W. Russell, State Fuel Administrator.

EDISON AS A HUSBAND.

The Inventor's Wife Always Lets Him Have His Own Way.

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, wife of the inventor, never insists on his doing anything that he does not want to do. This is what Mrs. Edison said to Nixola Greeley-Smith, who has written of the inventor's life in the People's Home Journal: "You see, I like to think that he has everything just exactly as he wants it in the few hours that he is at home. Sometimes, when my daughter and I have been motoring with him, we have wanted to go the way and Mr. Edison has suggested another route. My daughter would sometimes be a little irritated. But I would think always, 'Well, whatever he shows us will be interesting, too, and we have so much more time than he has and can see what interests us especially some other thing.'

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

The war note is uppermost, of course, in the President's Thanksgiving Day Proclamation. Mr. Wilson maintains his usual high level of utterance, high in its spirit of polished dignity, in the simple humility that belongs to one of lofty ideals of public service, and in religious reverence.

"We can see the great blessings God has bestowed upon us, blessings that are better than mere peace of mind and prosperity of enterprise". That is a memorable sentence. More memorable still is this: "We have been given the opportunity to serve mankind as we once served ourselves in the great day of our Declaration of Independence, by taking up arms against tyranny that threatened to master and debase men everywhere and joining with other free peoples in demanding for all the nations of the world what we then demanded and obtained for ourselves."

Our best comment can only be further quotation: "The great duties of a new day awaken a new and greater national spirit in us". "We have been brought to one mind and purpose". (If we only were!) "Let us pray that we may be kept constant in the spirit and purpose of service".

These are noble sentences, and the proclamation, while of an unconventional sort—these are somewhat unconventional times—is still the more stirring on that account.

INDUSTRIAL HOUSING.

Industrial housing, an example of which is under way in this place in the developments which Cheney Brothers have undertaken in the west part of town, has, in the opinion of Contractor W. G. Lynch, come to stay. It had its origin in the exigencies of the war. When great war orders flooded the munitions centers two or three years ago, making necessary the immediate employment of thousands of additional workmen, it was found necessary to build a large number of homes for them and to build them in a hurry. Thereupon large construction companies were organized, employing hundreds of men, for the purpose of building and equipping whole villages of dwelling houses. The celerity with which these companies, once organized, turned out comfortable modern dwellings was amazing; better still, it was found that the cost of these houses was considerably less than of houses built under the old unit plan. When this discovery was made the big contractors had plenty to do. Wholesale developments of real estate sprang up all over the country. Several of the most notable were right here in our own state in Bristol and Waterbury.

The movement gained strong impetus when the government let the contracts for a lot of army cantonments, each a small city in itself, the construction of which was limited to a period of weeks. Now, we are told, the government is going into industrial housing on a large scale and that it proposes to spend many millions in providing homes for the vast armies of workmen who will be needed in the construction of ships, the preparation of guns and ammunition, and the manufacture of other supplies called for in the conduct of a great war.

A PAINTUP DAY.

Somewhere in the dim recesses of our mind we seem to recall a thing called a paintup day, something like the annual cleanup day which many villages and small cities hold annually. And this morning we were wondering whether Manchester's people were giving nature, which has done so much with the aid of tree-planters to beautify the town, a square deal.

Manchester's houses are as well painted as those of most towns or cities of its size, and we like to think a little better. They represent in most instances the personal tastes of their owners, which has made for variety without violent incongruity, generally speaking, and because of the large number of house-owners, this variety is unusually great. Besides all this, the number of new houses added yearly has been so big, that maintenance has not been as imperative as in many another community.

But granting all this, what a paintup day would mean to the town! Anywhere almost, in the best residential parts of the town as well as the fair and the worst, one can pick out a house which is an injustice to its neighborhood. Needless to say, we are strictly impersonal in this matter, and many a house-owner may be compelled to hedge his upkeep costs from necessity or to avoid having his valuation raised and with it his assessment, which is a matter that needs adjustment in thousands of communities. But, taking only the houses that owners occupy themselves, in whole or part, we surmise that a hundred gallons of paint properly distributed once a year would work a transformation that residents themselves would hardly think possible.

The number of houses that demand complete repainting is proportionately small. But one will see a porch here, or a front there, that is positively shabby, and a credit neither to the town, the vicinity, the owner or the tenant.

Tenants themselves do not contribute their share, many of them, toward preserving or even bettering the appearance of a house and grounds. It is foolish to judge them, and this is not a judgment seat,—the justifiable individual exception is too elusive and numerous—but everybody knows that the wrong sort of a tenant will undo the work of the best sort of landlord.

Often paint is unnecessary, and mere cleaning suffices. A dozen methods other than painting will occur to any one, and any seller of paint can supply cleansers galore, as well as advice.

Give the town a square deal, folks.

TAMMANY AND HUMAN NATURE.

The victory of John F. Hylan, the Tammany candidate for mayor of New York City, was a foregone conclusion almost from the beginning—an "I told you so" is always safe. The Tammany sweep was due to a clever consolidation of the German, Irish and various foreign electors. To say that that was not the only cause is unnecessary. There rarely is a single cause of an effect, or of its absence, except in theory and made-to-order laboratory experiments.

Add to the consolidation named what a New York paper calls the "irreducible minimum" of Tammany—and New York is a Democratic city and Tammany the Democratic organization. Add also the evident fact that Mitchel, if any candidate, obviously did stand for the forces of settled wealth, and remember that the average New York voter is a poor man and that the larger percentage of the population is foreign.

Then add to the foregoing the division of the vote, the fact that infamy in politics has its edge taken off by allowance made in the popular mind for political diatribe, by distance in time—Tammany long had been out of power—and by the attraction of a change, and the receipt for a Tammany victory is nearly complete.

The Athenians were tired of hearing one of their benefactors called "the just," and it is a queer human trait that the constant emphasis of virtue makes virtue lose its charm. Perhaps it is the pliability of human nature, which objects to the rigidity of ideals, of duty, etc.—we don't pretend to say. Hans and Patsey and Tony and Abraham for the same instinctive reason were moved by the extra two hours of imprisonment within school walls, rather than by any consideration of the merits of the Gary plan; and their parents, perhaps, were moved by the deprivation of their aid, at home or at work, for the same period.

Finally, the masses on the East Side were moved by the fact that Tammany was their friend the year around, and when they had no friends except a few countrymen, perhaps, and did not inquire into why Tammany was friendly. Tammany workers are largely of their own kind, and in late years Tammany has seen that this was as true as possible.

Also, there is the Tammany habit. It will not be many months before the masses will appreciate what a poor substitute for Mitchel Hylan is.

We may be wrong, but we should say that, in the East Side of Manhattan and in the Bronx, a certain New York newspaper is read, especially around election time, by two thirds of the families. That paper is the least admirable in New York City, but there is no mystery about the effect of newspapers in a metropolitan political campaign, when its circulation is compared with that of six or eight other papers, morning and evening.

Our hands to the Knights of Columbus. They have fought a good fight, and the fund will help to make the toll of the men at Camp Devens and elsewhere a lot more pleasant, besides providing that thrill down their backbones which comes from the realization that the folks back home care. The K. of C. fund is a general one, but that doesn't matter.

Gary, Ind., has little "on" South Manchester in rapidity and efficiency and beauty of growth. Cheney Brothers have done in a smaller way what the Steel corporation has done in the mid-west. Now the firm has put up a "stag" boarding house and is constructing 70 new houses. At least their contractor is. Like most of the silk concern's good works, it is a public benefit.

Those interested in the license question will watch the police court carefully during the next few weeks to see what effect no-license will have on the number of drunks. There was one in court yesterday but he came from out of town and was drunk when he struck this place. We understand that steps will be taken to keep intoxicated men off the cars running from Hartford and Rockville to Manchester.

John Purroy Mitchel, the most efficient mayor New York has had in years, has been defeated through the failure of his supporters to rally at the nominating primary. Had he received the regular nomination he would without question have been elected. Mr. Mitchel is a young man and can afford to wait for the higher honors which seem to be ahead of him.

Money raising campaigns follow each other in rapid succession. It should be remembered, however, that the two Liberty Loan drives made nobody any poorer, even though they decreased the supply of ready money. The Red Cross campaign was the only one which actually called for substantial gifts. Manchester can well afford to put $20,000 into the Y. M. C. A.

Teams Nos. 2 and 1 the Victors in Last Night's Games.

In the semi-weekly session of St. Mary's Bowling League at the Center alleys last night, No. 2 took two out of three games from No. 5 and No. 1 administered a like defeat to No. 3. Most of the games were close. In the first match, No. 2 won its first string by only six pins while in the second match, No. 1 snatched the first game from No. 3 by only two pins and No. 3 took the second game by four pins. Mathers of No. 1 made high single of 104 and Hyde, anchor man for No. 5, secured high three string of 281.

Facts and Near Facts of Interest to Evening Herald Readers

Should the Manchester Chamber of Commerce omit its annual banquet this winter because of the war? This is a question that is being asked in some quarters. The argument against the holding of the banquet is the fact that the banquet has in the past few years become a sumptuous affair, and that in these war times the conservation of food must receive continual attention. For our part we hope the Chamber will not give up the banquet. It has become an event in the affairs of the town that is well worth all its costs. It has been the source of much enjoyment as well as offering an opportunity to hear some of the best speakers in the country. At the present time the membership of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce is well over the 400 mark. What we would like to see is the price of the banquet brought down to a dollar a plate with a luncheon in keeping with the price and every member of the organization present.

Mr. Roosevelt said a mouthful in Hartford last week when he said that any man who was an enemy of Great Britain or in fact an enemy of any of our allies in this great war was an enemy of the United States. That is plain talk but it is the truth. We have altogether too many citizens in this state and not a few in Manchester whose loyalty to the United States is of the lukewarm variety. We have been told that there are men holding public office in Manchester who have not yet bought a Liberty Bond or contributed a red cent to the Red Cross fund. If this is the truth these men ought to be shown up. They cannot be considered among the loyal citizens of the town. They ought not to hold public office under a government to which their loyalty is divided.

Just at present the growth of Manchester is retarded because there are not houses enough to supply the demand. This is the case in about every section of the town. At the north end there is scarcely a single rent to be had. It is well known that there are dozens of families ready to move to Manchester but they cannot get houses to live in. The thirty or more houses that Cheney Brothers are now building will in part relieve the situation. The building of new houses in this town this summer has not been up to the record of some other year and this is not to be wondered at when the price of material and labor are considered. Manchester is growing steadily and from now on its growth will be on a larger scale than heretofore.

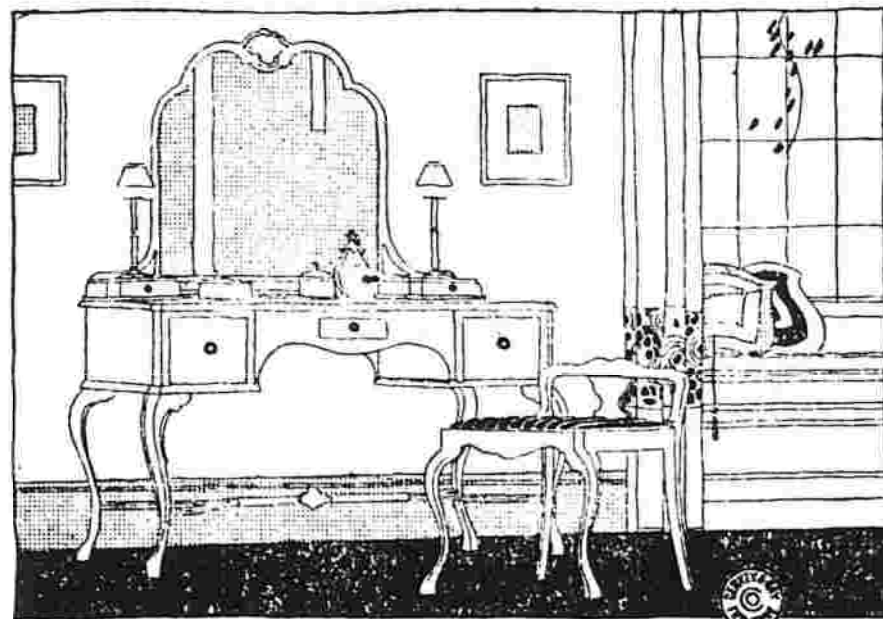

It is with more or less satisfaction that the people of the north end of the town witness the steady growth of the town their way. It is true that Cheney Brothers are building about 48 dwelling houses at the south end of the town, but aside from that there is very little new work going on south of the Center this fall. It is different at the north end where out of about $25,000 worth of new work authorized by the building inspector during the last month, almost $20,000 of it will be spent in the Eighth district. Of course there is still room for more dwelling houses at the north end.

It was not to be expected that The Hartford Times would entirely agree with Ex-President Roosevelt in anything he said at the big war rally last week. The Times has attempted to poke fun at Roosevelt in about everything he said or did for the last eight years. It was like coming into the enemy's country for Mr. Roosevelt to come to Hartford and speak almost within hearing distance of the editorial rooms of the Times. And to think that he attracted 15,000 people to hear him! It was

STATE TO GET CREDIT IN THE SECOND DRAFT

Because of Inaccurate Estimates of Population We Were Treated Unfairly.

DIFFERENT PLAN PROPOSED

Connecticut Towns and Cities To Be Credited for Excess of Men Already Drafted.

Hartford, Nov. 8.—Connecticut will receive credit on the next draft for the excess of men taken in the first draft because of the inaccurate estimates of population and will be assigned its second quota on a fair basis if it is possible for Provost Marshal E. H. Crowder to bring about the necessary changes in the draft system followed by the federal government. This was General Crowder's promise to Governor Marcus H. Holcomb when the state's chief executive saw him in Washington last week. In every particular, General Crowder conceded the justice of Connecticut's claim for relief from the excessive number of men taken in the draft under the estimates of population upon which it was based, according to a statement given out today by Governor Holcomb through the Connecticut state council of defense. This promise is for action which Governor Holcomb and the state council of defense have been striving for some time to secure.

Secure President Wilson. Governor Holcomb and Hon. Homer S. Cummings, a member of the Connecticut state council of defense, had a conference with President Wilson concerning the excessive quota assigned to Connecticut by reason of predicating its estimated population upon the registration figures. The President seemed somewhat familiar with the situation, in this state as a result of the protests which had already been forwarded by both the governor and the state council of defense, Governor Holcomb said.

Old System Discarded.

President Wilson told Governor Holcomb and Mr. Cummings that it is evident that the method of fixing population on the basis of the registration figures resulted in estimates that are not tenable, and said that Connecticut evidently had a population assigned to it in excess of what the figures should have been. He said that it was difficult to tell how to remedy the mistake and declared that similar situations existed elsewhere. He spoke of Akron, Ohio, where the first estimate of population of the federal government was made 94,604 and the second estimate based on registration was 258,348, and also of Detroit, Michigan, where the first estimate was 850,000 and the second was 1,521,942.

Visited General Crowder.

President Wilson suggested that Governor Holcomb and Mr. Cummings see Provost Marshal General Crowder in the matter. Governor Holcomb said today that he went with Mr. Cummings to a long interview with General Crowder lasting perhaps for an hour. General Crowder began the interview by assuring the Connecticut men that it was not necessary for them to show him any evidence that an injustice was done Connecticut in estimating its draft quota. He admitted the justice of the claims and explained the method that the government had followed in making the estimates of population. "General Crowder promised us that he would do what he could to have the injustice remedied and a proper assignment made in the next draft quota," without any of the usual excuses.

Interviewed Secretary Baker.

While he was in Washington, Gov. orator Holcomb also saw Secretary of War Baker and General Tasker H. Bliss. These officials he saw with other New England governors. The governors of all New England states except Rhode Island were present. The proposition submitted by the governors was that skeleton regiments left behind by the New England troops be filled up to war strength by drafted men. The information was given that this plan had been considered, but that it was not practical.

General Bliss Explains War Plan.

General Bliss explained carefully the organization of the battle lines in modern warfare and showed that no regiment could maintain its sectional personnel, but that, because of the need of constantly substituting fresh men from the reserve forces for tired-out or injured men in the front trenches, there would be a gradual change of make-up of the regiments. For this reason it had been decided that a plan such as was suggested to make up regiments with men filled from one locality was impractical.

Making a Soldier of the Seas

A Marine Corps Cantonment, Nov. 8.—"Chow" at this training camp is excellent. The bread is better than mother used to make. The stews and hashes, if not always to the liking of the marines, are extremely nourishing, as is proved by the splendid physical condition of the men in training here.

Some of the marines came here from a camp far down South, where they lived on bean soup of a very thin variety for three weeks. The cooking for the first week or ten days here was worse, but since then it has shown a steady improvement. Anyone who said he could cook was put in the kitchen in the early days. Experience showed they needed further training, and the commandant managed to get a couple of army cooks to take charge of the kitchen.

At each meal the marines are allowed to have all they want to eat. They are afraid this condition cannot last after they get to France, but today they are taking fullest advantage of it. If there is a shortage of rice each man receives a certain allotment, but is allowed to fill up on potatoes or cabbage.

The kitchen and dining rooms of the cantonment are spotless. All doors are screened and the cooks and waiters wear white over their khaki. The officers eat with their men at a separate table. There are places enough for all to eat at once and all meals are jolly functions.

As soon as the dishes after one meal are cleared away the long tables are set for the next. Table cloths are used, but the men do not have china dishes. White enamel dishes serve instead.

An effort is to be made when the marines are in France to keep up the same excellent fare. Since most of the food for American fighters will have to be sent from this country, the task will not be an easy one. German submarines will make special efforts to send ships carrying food supplies to the American fighting forces to the bottom. It is figured that the quantity of food now served to the marines could be cut in half without bringing actual suffering, but remembering Napoleon's words, "An army travels on its belly," officers will reduce rations only as a last resort. Any reduction in rations invariably decreases fighting efficiency.

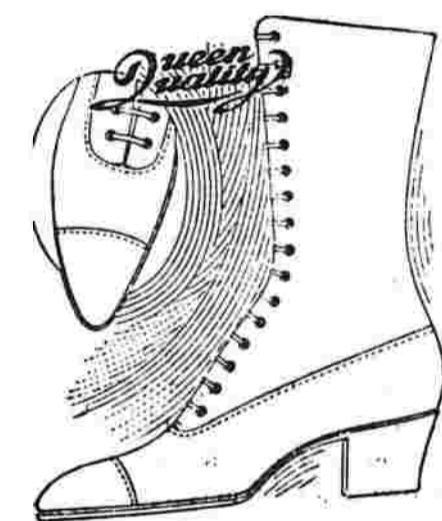

Slim Silhouette Is
the Decree of Fashion

Dame Fashion has decreed that clothes this season should give the wearer lines that are slim and that convey the impression of the silhouette. The creator of this suit has succeeded admirably in obeying fashion's behest. Though the style is usual, the suit itself is distinctively original. The gray soutache braiding on French blue serge results in an effect that is novel and at the same time military because it conveys a memory of the uniforms of the past. The model is further embellished by cuffs and a collar of seal.

"ROUTE STEP" DISCARDED.
Washington, Nov. 8.—Casting aside the old tradition that a soldier who marches at the "route step" will travel farther and with less fatigue than while at "attention," United States Marines have adopted the latter style of hiking, exclusively.

It has been proved that the old "go-as-you-please" method, so long in vogue in military units, will tire out the men much quicker than the correct military style, used at parades and drill. Marines, who have used the "route step" during long distance hikes in the Philippines, Haiti and elsewhere, have adopted the "attention" method to conform with the practice in vogue in Europe.

HEROES TO CHILDREN.

French Youngsters Admire Americans—An Impromptu Review on French Front.

With the American Forces in France, Nov. 8.—There were a lot of disappointed American soldiers in the first line trenches today.

Intense artillery activity on the part of the Germans for the past 36 hours had led the Sammies to believe another trench raid was to be attempted and they were waiting for the Germans, determined to avenge their comrades.

The American artillery gave the Germans back full measure for the shells dropped on the American side.

The artillery forces which have been at the front since the Americans first took to the trenches returned to their billets yesterday.

In a drizzling rain they marched up over the hills to a little village in a valley behind the lines where the population turned out en masse to do honor to the gun from which the first shot was fired.

Children Surround Troops.

The entire command was drawn up on a hillside and French school children surrounded them. One of the pupils hung a floral wreath over the camouflaged muzzle of the gun and another stuck a bunch of wild flowers in an empty shell case which hung from the caisson.

At the conclusion of the impromptu review on the hillside the regimental band played the "Star Spangled Banner" and the French national anthem, while the entire command stood at salute.

Officers with the artillery forces said that on the night of the German raid into the American trench that they kept their guns trained on No Man's Land and they were sure they kept the Germans from returning to their trenches for some time and also that they "got" some of the Germans when they did return.

MINERS EXONERATED BY COAL OPERATORS

Laborers Not Responsible for Shortage, They Say, But Blame Car Distribution.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Labor is now "doing its bit" in the coal mines and blame cannot justly be placed upon the miners for the coal shortage felt in all parts of the country.

Only a radical change in present methods of distributing car equipment and the elimination of non-essential industries, that now help to monopolize the use of cars, can remedy the coal situation.

ulate in that direction. The operators, he said, fully realized that many plants must be cut off in order to conserve coal for the successful prosecution of the war.

Cars Badly Wanted. "What we want to boost the output of the mines is cars and still more cars," Mr. Field said.

"Except for a few minor differences at scattered points no further labor disturbances of a serious nature are expected to interfere with production. The operators have been willing to meet the men more than half way and feel that the miners generally appreciated the treatment given them.

How to Save Foods, Labor and Gas by Planning.

DOUBLE PORTIONS THE IDEA

An Expert Tells Us How to Conserve Odd Ends Instead of Enriching the Garbage Pail with Leftovers—A Role for the "Tail End" of Steaks.

In these days when "thrift" is the housewives' national slogan it is well to consider methods which will enable the last fragments to be utilized.

In many homes a leftover is an accident, but the better way is to make a "planned over" which shall be put to really wider use.

In cooking rice for luncheon cook enough more so that there will be sufficient for rice cakes for breakfast, not merely a small saucerful with which hardly anything can be done.

In cooking vegetables it is easy to cook at one time a double portion, to be divided into two days' use.

Everywhere that the "double cooking" can be given and fuel thus saved there is economy.

If fish is used buy enough so that the second amount can be made into cakes or scalloped forms, etc.

BOXING TO BE DEAD NOV. 15 IN YORK STATE

Fraily Law To Take Effect On That Date—Results—Britton's Record.

New York, Nov. 8.—With the death of the Fraily law on November 15, legalized boxing in New York will be a dead bird, and the commanding position the Empire State has held in fistic circles for a number of years will be swept away.

Promoters of boxing are largely responsible for the death of the legalized game. The lax methods used in conducting boxing shows and the "public be hanged" spirit of a majority of promoters did more than anything else to upset King Pug in this vicinity.

The gents who depend on boxing for a living, at least many of them, will probably seek other fields. This goes for both boxers and promoters, but there will be a number who will stick around, and the promoters who do not go out of business will make an attempt to run boxing shows on the old club plan.

Middle West For Bouts.

With New York out of the field of legalized boxing the center of pugdom is bound to be moved elsewhere, and big bouts of the future will probably be shifted to the Middle West, or even to the faraway Southwest, where several promoters are figuring already on staging a series of championship bouts.

The ten-round no-decision game was all too soft for both boxers and promoters. The boxers took advantage of it and the promoters got all steamed up after they had accumulated a few dollars of the easiest coin in the world, and they simply let the game go to the dogs.

Legal In 23 States.

There are 23 states where boxing is legalized and under some form of state or local control.

Pennsylvania has six and ten-round bouts, but no decisions; New Hampshire, twelve rounds to a decision; Georgia, fifteen rounds to a decision; Connecticut, twenty rounds to a decision; Massachusetts, twelve rounds to a decision; Maryland, fifteen rounds to a decision; South Carolina, fifteen rounds; at Charleston only; Rhode Island, fifteen and twenty rounds; Tennessee, eight rounds to a decision; Ohio, fifteen rounds to a decision; Louisiana, twenty rounds to a decision; Maine, six rounds to a decision; Texas, twenty rounds to a decision; Minnesota, ten rounds, no decision; Kansas, fifteen rounds to a decision; Nevada, twenty rounds to a decision; Montana, twenty rounds to a decision; Oklahoma, ten rounds to a decision; Missouri, twelve rounds to a decision; Michigan, boxing only allowed at Elks' and Eagles' shows; Wisconsin, ten rounds, no decision.

Britton Is Wonder.

At the age of thirty two years, Jack Britton, ex-welterweight champion, is one of the wonders of the present day boxers.

Britton recently met Lieutenant Benny Leonard, the shifty boss of the lightweight division, in a ten-round bout in New York and stuck the limit.

Leonard hammered Britton in and out of all corners of the ring. He beat him to punches almost as he pleased, but try as he might, he could not put over a sleep-producing punch on the former Chicago stockyards boy, for Britton is one of the cageiest boxers who ever drew on a glove, and when it comes to defending his jaw he has few equals and no superiors.

Though Britton lost to Leonard he deserved a lot of credit for the fight he put up. He made the going last by trying to carry the fight to Leonard and came up with a mighty game rally in the late rounds, after taking a real lacing.

tional and world scope of the movement. Instead of Otis Stanchfield as the principal speaker, the local committee was notified this morning that Paul Nilson had been assigned to this town for this evening. Mr. Nilson has had much experience "over there," and he has a national reputation as an orator. After the meeting the Killies band will play selections.

War Time Lunches.

The executive committee in charge of the campaign announced today that the lunches to be served next week when the three days' drive for funds will be made, will be of Spartan-like simplicity. They will truly be war lunches, and will be paid for by the workers themselves. And in this connection it may be mentioned that not one cent of the funds received in Manchester will be paid for publicity. For this the publicity committee acknowledges indebtedness to the South Manchester News, The Evening Herald, and the Manchester merchants. The canvassers, the members of the bands, the Four Minute Men, the stereopticon operator, the ad writers, and all the others who are working to make this campaign a success, are serving without cost to the campaign committee.

Executive Committee Meeting.

The executive committee held a meeting last evening in Superintendent Verplanck's office in the High School hall, where further details of the campaign were perfected. It was announced after the meeting that the local committee will have the cooperation of Cheney Brothers' mill organization in canvassing the employees. Mr. Dougherty, in charge of the employment bureau at the mills, will direct this work. All employees who have not contributed to the Red Cross in the recent campaign will be approached by the canvassers in this campaign. The others will be solicited at their homes by the canvassers.

Noted Author's Statement.

Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey, formerly machine gunner and bomber in the British army, author of "Over the Top," "First Call," etc., said concerning the Y. M. C. A. Red Triangle War Work:

"The other day I had the question asked me, 'What does a soldier think of the Y. M. C. A.?'"

"What does a soldier think of the Y. M. C. A.? What does he think of his home? His reply to the second question will fully answer the first. To the men of the English army on the western front the Y. M. C. A. is home—the only home they have. In France the Y. M. C. A. does not do its work over the long distance telephone but it goes right into shell fire, right into the mud and grime.

Thomas Faketti of Homestead Park was in court this morning charged with destroying private property. The trouble arose over an argument with Fred Witofski who is building a house in Homestead Park for Frank Beneventi. Faketti accused Witofski of taking some of his lumber and the latter took hold of Faketti and led him out of the house. In order to get back at Witofski Faketti began hurling bricks at him. Instead of hitting the mark aimed at the bricks landed against the newly plastered wall and caused considerable damage. The judge found Faketti guilty as charged and made the penalty $5 with costs. He told Faketti to keep off the property of other people when requested to do so.

To begin to care for your eyes today is better than tomorrow. One eye, if not both, may be slightly defective, and defects can only grow worse if the eyes are left to grapple with them unaided. Come and get the benefit of my Scientific Method of Sight Testing and modern equipment. Let me give you an accurate knowledge of the condition of your eyes.

Electric Grinding Plant on the premises, the only one in Manchester, makes it possible for me to grind the most complicated lenses in an hour or two. You do not have to wait for them to be sent to a wholesale house in a distant city. Come in and see the work done.
