STAR BOARDER STARTS

LARGE KNITTING CLASS. Donora, Pa., Jan. 22.--When a star boarder at the house of Mrs. Alice Clendaniel picked up a half finished sock being knitted by Mrs. Clendaniel and finished the job with neatness and dispatch he started something. Other boarders became interested and a knitting class was started.

It now meets every evening. The men are mill workers and the story spread to the works. As a result, sweaters, socks and wristlets in big quantities are promised.

The new fire alarm department is now ready to be used at all times. Telephone cards have been sent to all subscribers of telephones within the district, and they should be kept ready for instant use at all times. To see that everything is in good order and to give the men who are expected to give the signals a chance to try out the new system, on Wednesday, January 23, between the hours of 5.30 and 6 o'clock p. m. a series of alarms will be sounded.

If any person who has a telephone has been missed or any one wants a card with the numbers and districts or if they should communicate with the president of the district.

The man on the corner says: Years change and new resolutions are made but human nature goes on the same as ever.

If Mr. Garfield only had control over the January thaw he might be able to bring about a quick adjustment of the situation.

three days at the Park and Manager Ascough in speaking to the Park's publicity agent said that this play and 'The Zeppelin's Last Raid' which the Park has also booked, were the season's greatest successes. 'I see hundreds of so called features,' said Mr. Ascough, 'but these two are regular features and it will not surprise me a bit if I am given orders to call back 'The Fringe of Society' by popular demand because of the comment it started in Hartford.'

Here is a picture which has been made especially to appeal to the taste of discriminating motion picture patrons. The story has to do with New Yorkers, the locale is in New York and the players are all favorites. Ruth Roland appears as the society-wife of a newspaper editor, Milton Sills has the role of the editor, and these two artists are costarred.

But the remainder of the cast is equally strong. Leah Baird plays the character of a society confederate of an undesirable man with political affiliations--a part which those who have seen 'The Fringe of Society' privately, say is played to perfection by J. Herbert Frank. The others in the list of principals are George Larkin, who has the role of a star reporter, Ollie Kirkby, Tammany Young and Jules Cowles. The story was written by Pierre V. R. Key, a new York newspaperman, and is said to have a dramatic theme of vital importance. It concerns the effort of a group of powerful men composing the so-called 'liquor-interests' to acquire a large amount of grain--illegally. The struggle between the newspaper editor and his wife with the political leader and his association form a series of events that provide an abundance of suspense and a climax stated to be powerful.

The settings were made under the supervision of George Backer, who just completed the Hotel Chatham called by architects the finest hotel in the world. Such a picture, with the photography and unique 'natural' lighting effects which have been secured, should interest all picture devotees who are more and more coming to insist upon the best only.

And yet it was only a few days ago that there was indulgence in talk about the conscription of labor.

indications point to a record-breaking attendance. The 'Bar Sinister' is a thirty two centimeter dramatic shot that has startled the world. It is a photodramatic cinema marvel that once again marks a further advance in the art of visualization. Thrilling in its dramatic moments, inspiring in its heroic tale, stirring scenes of the sunniest south in its balmy days and with the sweetest love story ever told, this picture attraction has no equal although it is not a spectacular production. It has already been placed far ahead of 'The Birth of a Nation'.

Other high class single reel subjects will be presented in conjunction with the 'Bar Sinister'.

The management wishes to impress upon its patrons that the picture will be shown tomorrow only.

On Thursday and Friday Mary Pickford comes to the Circle in her latest Arctcraft picture, 'The Little Princess.' 'A Milk Fed Vamp' another one of those Sunshine comedies will occupy a position on the same bill.

Saturday Alice Joyce will be seen in a Vitagraph Blue Ribbon special 'The Fettered Woman.'

ROOSEVELT ARRIVES IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

Indicates He Will Have Something to Say Later in Answer to Senator Stone of Missouri.

Washington, Jan. 22.--Colonel Theodore Roosevelt arrived in the capital today--at the height of the worst blizzard of the winter--ready and apparently eager to swing his big stick in the political Donnybrook. Senator Stone started with his speech in the Senate yesterday. The colonel was in high spirits when his train pulled in and manifestly enjoyed the impromptu reception accorded him by persons in the station.

He immediately proceeded to the home of his son-in-law, Representative Nicholas Longworth. The former president had no comment to make on the war that has finally broken out between the Administration and certain elements of Congress, but he indicated that he would have something to say later. He did not conceal his satisfaction with events in the Senate yesterday, and it was understood he was preparing a hot reply to Senator Stone.

LOCAL PHYSICIANS ANSWER THE SELECTMEN'S LETTER

Willing to Act as Town Doctors But Do Not Want to Furnish Medicine.

At an informal meeting of local physicians, held last evening to discuss the proposition of the selectmen relative to having the different doctors act as town physicians, the following letter was drafted and today was mailed to the selectmen:

To the Honorable Board of Selectmen of the Town of Manchester, assembled for the purpose of discussing and taking action in regard to a letter received from the Honorable Board of Selectmen, do decide, individually, to accept the appointment as town physicians on conditions as per your letter of Jan. 8, 1918.

We do, however, feel that it is unjust to require us to pay for medicines furnished on prescriptions to patients to whom we are rendering services for the town, and we ask your Honorable Board to reconsider the action that you have taken in that matter.

We realize that the amount of money involved is small, but feel that the principle is wrong, and especially so when we already furnish a very large part of the medicine to these patients without charge.

STATE TO URGE FAMILIES TO TAKE OUT INSURANCE

One Million Soldiers and Sailors Have Thus Far Neglected to Protect Themselves.

Hartford, January 22.—One million United States soldiers and sailors have thus far failed to take out the soldiers' and sailors' insurance provided for them by the government. Because of this condition, the Council of National Defense has asked the Connecticut State Council of Defense to undertake a campaign to reach families of the soldiers and sailors and through them urge action by the men.

The government insurance policy is not assignable, and payments under it to the insured or a beneficiary are not subject to claims of creditors of the insured or beneficiary. The insured may at any time change the beneficiary or beneficiaries.

thereafter, at the close of which period the policy will be converted, upon application, without medical examination into any form of insurance selected.

During the time the insurance is in force, the monthly premium to be paid the government increases at each anniversary of the policy to the premium prescribed for the attained age of the policy holder.

SNOW DELAYS TRAINS: WASHINGTON, D. C., ISOLATED.

Washington, Jan. 22.—With the heaviest snow fall of the year in Washington and the surrounding country the national capital is almost completely isolated so far as railroad traffic is concerned.

Train service from the South is nearly paralyzed and officials at the union station said they were unable to say when any trains from the South would arrive.

If the post office department was in better control of its business it might be able to offer some relief to the coal shortage by setting forth the advantages of parcel post.

MYSTERY IN ARREST OF BARON HASBERG

German Interned on Ellis Island Said to Have Been Aided by U. S. Officer's Wife.

New York, Jan. 22.—A cloak of mystery was today thrown about the arrest and internment on Ellis island of Baron Gustav von Hasberg, friend of former Ambassador von Bernstorff and himself a prominent German.

Baron Hasberg is declared to have made numerous trips to army camps in the vicinity of New York, accompanied by the American army officer's wife.

REV. E. I. LINDH MEETS CONGREGATION MEMBERS

Nearly 200 Present at Annual Meeting of Center Church—Officers Are Elected.

The annual meeting of the Center church last evening was an occasion of much interest because it afforded the members of the parish an opportunity to meet the new pastor, Rev. Eric I. Lindh, and his wife. Nearly 200 were present.

Rev. Mr. Lindh made a felicitous address and at the close of the meeting met in person all those present.

George H. Pinney, chairman of the finance committee, announced that with the Every Member canvass of Sunday still incomplete there was every indication that the fund would go "over the top."

JAPS WON'T INTERFERE IN RUSSIAN AFFAIRS

Warship at Vladivostok to Protect Japanese Interests—Foreigners' Passports to U. S. Being Vized.

Tokio, Jan. 22.—The municipal assembly of Vladivostok today protested to the Japanese government against the arrival of a Japanese warship in the harbor, without previous notification nor request for permission by the Russian authorities.

The Japanese consul at Vladivostok was instructed to notify the Russians that the visit of the warship was only to protect Japanese subjects and interests and that there would be no interference in the internal affairs of Russia.

The American regulation, stopping the vizing of passports of all persons traveling to the United States who are not American citizens, has caused much excitement here, especially among the shipping companies.

George A. Jones, vice president of the Standard Commercial Tobacco company, of New York, who left Petrograd on December 18, has just arrived here. He said today that many German shops have been opened in Petrograd and that many German officers in uniform are seen in the streets of the city.

London, Jan. 22.—So close have Anglo-American relations been brought by the war that a bureau for American affairs is being organized here. It was stated today that it will be located at Crewe House and will be presided over by Lord Northcliffe and Sir Campbell Stuart.

The men used to have the use of the showers and swimming pool from 5 to 6 o'clock on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, but these hours are discontinued by the new schedule. The women used to have these privileges on Wednesday evenings from 7.30 to 9.30 and from 5 to 6 on Monday and Wednesday afternoons, but the new schedule discontinues these hours.

School Children Affected. It also has been decided to discontinue all showers and swimming for the school children. This step alone will save the fuel necessary for heating water for at least 1,000 shower baths.

Reading Rooms Opened. The reading rooms at the Recreation Center are open to the public and those who are out of work on the Garfield holidays may feel at liberty to drop in and read the magazines.

A committee from the Ninth School District is today conferring with the state fuel administrator to find out if the Recreation building will have to close on fuelless Mondays. Superintendent Verplank holds that the Center is a part of the public schools up until 12.30 each day and since the public schools are not included in the order he believes the Recreation Center is not meant to be closed.

NEW LONDON GIRLS REJECTED AS ARMY COOKS.

New York, Jan. 22.—Miss Gladys Wirthelm, 22, and Miss Roberta A. Johnson, 18, both of New London, Conn., were among the applicants for enlistment as cooks today in the naval reserve force. They journeyed to New York at their own expense after being refused enlistment at recruiting stations in New London.

Both girls expressed deep disappointment when their applications were turned down. "Both my friend and I," said Miss Wirthelm, "are very good cooks and we want to cook our bit for the boys in the war."

TRY CZAR FOR TREASON.

Petrograd, Jan. 22.—Former Czar Nicholas and the ex-Czarina are to be brought to Petrograd and placed on trial for treason, it was reliably reported today. An order for the trial is to be issued by Leon Trotsky, the foreign minister. It was stated that the former monarch will be allowed to employ civil counsel and that the hearings will be public.

Home Garden Talk. At the business meeting that preceded the income tax talk several matters of importance were disposed of. The names of the members of the committee that is to have charge of the home gardens for the coming year were read. This list was printed in The Evening Herald some time ago and is headed by W. H. Card.

It was voted to appropriate the sum of $100 for the committee in its work. This is the same amount as was appropriated last year. John Cairns suggested that it would be a good thing for the chamber if it were possible to get speakers here to address the members on the home garden work.

Members of the chamber who live in the neighborhood of Buckland and get their mail at the Buckland post office complained that the Buckland post office was closed part of each day and that it was inconvenient to get the mail at all times. The secretary was instructed to call the attention of the postmaster to this complaint.

Some time ago the chamber voted to omit the annual banquet this year and as this banquet always came in February the next meeting will be one of the most important of the season. It is planned to have a public speaker here of national repute who will address the members and invited guests on a live topic.

The arrangements for this meeting have been left in the hands of the officers of the chamber. It will doubtless be held in the High school assembly hall. It was just eleven o'clock when the meeting adjourned.

THE EVENING HERALD, eager to gather every bit of news of our soldier boys, wherever they may be, invites its readers to contribute personals, portions of letters, and any information about them they may possess.

Another interesting letter has been received from Corporal J. A. Benson by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezekiel Benson of 456 Main street. The letter follows:

At School, Dec. 22, 1917.

My dear mother and family: Another Sunday is nearly over and all it is very near Christmas and I am still awaiting my box and pay day. These are big items to the soldier in the field and the important thing we have to look forward to.

Private Edward Mohr of Company C, 101st Machine Gun Battalion, writes the following letters to his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Mohr of 18 Gorman Place:

Dear Dad,

I have written to you several times since I got here but as yet I have not heard from you. I suppose you have heard about all those diseases that they tell about in France. As yet I have seen no one with any of them. Pop, they told us when we were in England that we were bound for "sunny France," but there seems to be plenty of snow and cold weather here. We are at present in a village of about two hundred people and it is about 400 years behind the times. They have no running water and a person stands no chance of taking a bath. The water we use for all purposes we get at the public fountain.

will perhaps give a clearer idea of the size of the order. Nearly eleven million yards of this material has been made up into 5,676,444 shirts.

The contracts for woolen uniform cloth reach the somewhat smaller figure of 22,856,958 yards. Over eleven million yards have been delivered and have been made into 2,378,511 complete winter uniforms and 455,856 extra pairs of breeches.

Washington, Jan. 22.—To get 100 per cent. fighting efficiency out of John Parsons you've got to give him his old carpet slippers after a hard day's work in the trenches. A good cigar and a piece of apple pie to round it out and you've got a satisfied man that will do anything you tell him.

According to the fuel order it is expected to save 30,000,000 tons of coal, but in view of the fact that the coal miners claim that they can produce a million more tons a day if there were enough cars, it is expected that a case of distribution.

THE VIGILANTES

The following articles are written by the Vigilantes. Who are the Vigilantes? The Vigilantes is an organization of America's brainiest men and women, who receive fabulous prices for their contributions to magazines. When war was declared with Germany they banded together and decided to use their pens, absolutely free to the publishers, "to help make the world safe for democracy."

TWICE HAVE I SEEN THE KAISER.

By D. L. Hanson of the Vigilantes

Twice have I seen the Kaiser; once a July Thursday in 1910 at the Norwegian Industrial Exposition in Bergen. He was kneeling on an outspread handkerchief in order to examine the under parts of a made-in-Norway automobile, from which he looked up at times and dictated brief sentences to an adjutant, who stood erect beside him, note book in hand. Such has been his custom, whenever his yacht, the "Hohenzollern," has laid into Bergen for supplies that summer, so I was told by a director of the Exposition. From that I, an American business man, drew high opinions of William of Germany's abilities as a leader of an efficient people.

Four days later the Kaiser was in Koenigsberg, dedicating his twenty-seventh palace. Of course he made a speech, which I, then in Edinburgh, read with avidity—hadn't I seen his royalship kneeling, etc? Of the many "Me unt Go" sentiments that remarkable harangue contained, I cull this gem: "To one only applause of his people, professors and ministers of the gospel alike shouting their approval in blasphemous phrases.

Megalomania? Yes, no question about it, and at the same time the most contagious and malignant that has ever afflicted this sorely smitten human race of ours. The cure is that prescribed by Doctor Woodrow Wilson—absolute extermination of the Hohenzollerns, root and branch!

But I saw the Kaiser twice; the second time, when a few days later his yacht, the "Hohenzollern," steamed bow to bow with my Newcastle-bound boat out through Bergenfjord towards the open Atlantic. It was a summer night, fair as ever God sent to this world, and the mountains looked down in serene approval as the royal yacht with her convoy steamed homeward to Germany, the Kaiser's vacation being over. At the fjord mouth our courses diverged, the Kaiser's to the south, to Swinemunde, while ours lay straight west. I turned my glasses on the "Hohenzollern" for a last look at royalty. On the bridge stood the well-set-up figure of the Kaiser, attired in blue coat and white trousers, looking the picture of a ruler.

restaurant, with a wink, "You know, Business as usual."

But he means, "pleasure as usual."

Go over upon Fifth Avenue. The press of limousines is as great as in any other December; perhaps even greater. Cars run in second-speed all the way from Thirty-third street to Sixty-third and there is a tremendous wastage of gasoline. What your business that there are 25,000 men—nearly ten full-sized regiments—today engaged in driving private pleasure automobiles in the city of New York; perhaps twice that number elsewhere in the country. Is that your business—or mine?

I rather think that is.

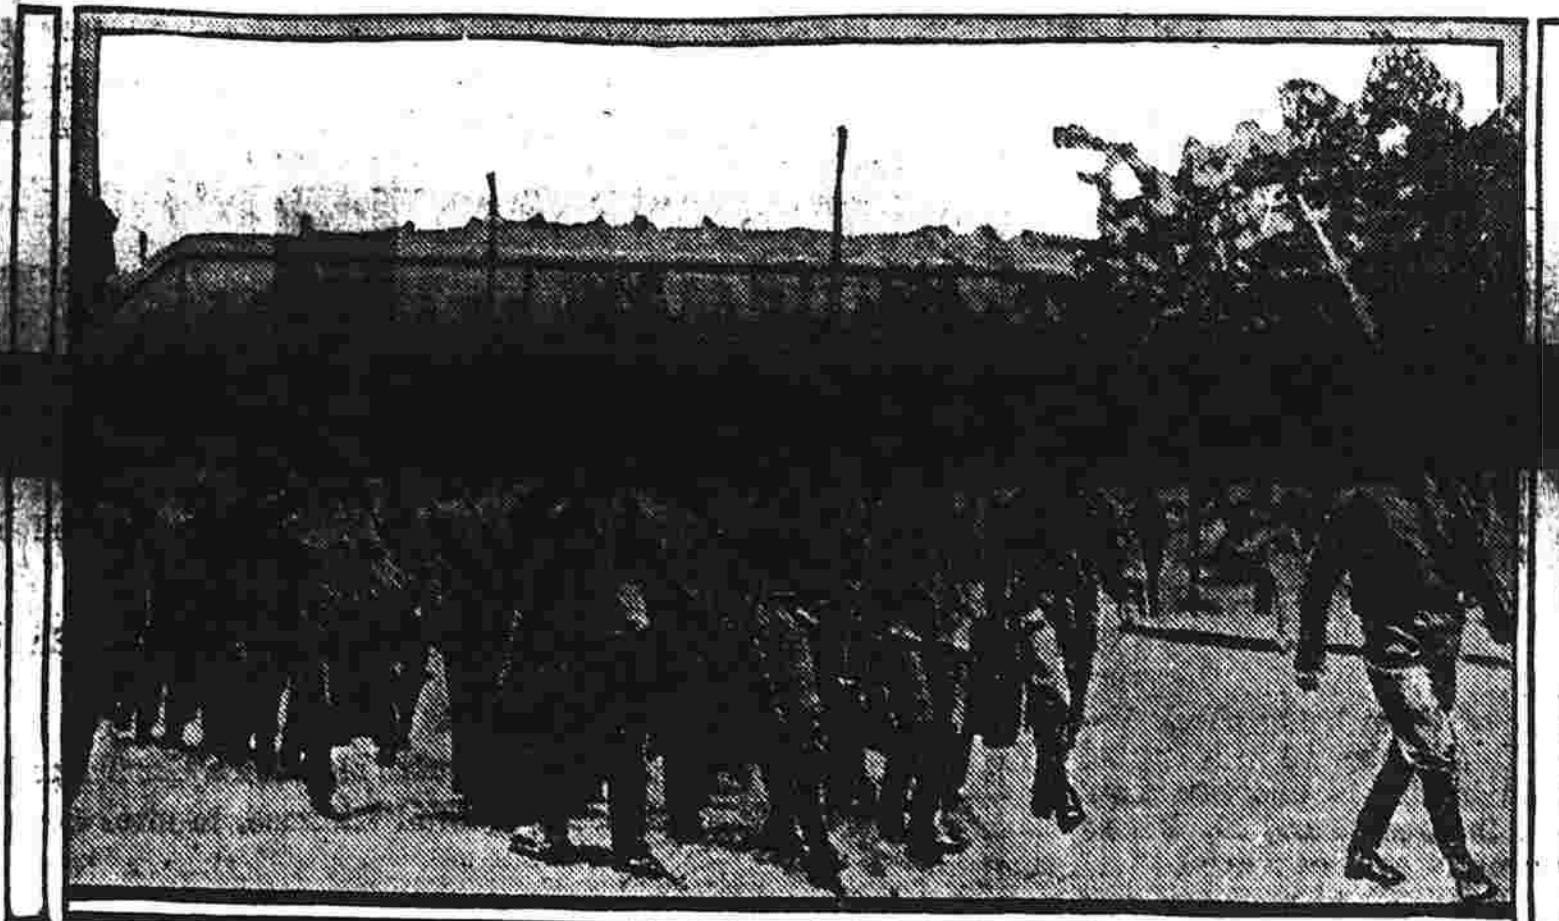

Is it any of our business that we cannot manufacture phonographs rapidly enough to fill the demand at this time; that it is a big season in furs; that florists never had a better year? Should we not rejoice that the non-essentials are doing so well in these bitter times?

Why not business as usual?

England can answer that question. She went through the same performance? She tried to stretch industrial productivity—despite a great shortage of man-power—into making an increased output of both essentials and non-essentials. And failed. What if we had not stop. England stopped it—in a large measure at least—by forbidding the employment of men between the ages of eighteen and sixty-one years in sixty-eight industries which she classified as non-essential. And when one of the manufacturers barred, or practically barred, from making his product protested, saying that he must keep his plant and organization together until the redo I owe any responsibility for my actions as Kaiser, to God Almighty and to him alone."

I joined in the laugh that went the world around at that sentiment, but wise men in Germany laughed not. In Hamburg many leading merchants hung crapes in their windows, while in Frankfurt am Main an indignation meeting was held, as was also done in various other cities. Nor was the press silent. The Chancellor of that day—von Bulow, was it not?—interviewed the loquacious and megalomaniacal wearer of the crown and afterwards handed out that this would positively be the last of all the bad breaks Wilhelm would make—a promise that was broken shortly after, resulting in the resignation of von Bulow.

Twenty-five years of peace, the "gift of the Kaiser" to the world, we were assured, was celebrated two years later, but Germany's keenest analysts, now doing prison sentence in Berlin, thought otherwise: "The speeches of the Kaiser, reflecting as they have, his frame of mind, will eventually precipitate Germany into the position of being the aggressor in a world-wide war," said Liebknecht. "And we as a people, are getting soft-headed by listening to these vapors," he went on to say. All of which meant six months for his majesty to this clear thinker and unafraid speaker.

There the explanation of the national psychology which enabled the Kaiser, the leader of the Junkers, not their tool, to pull off the invasion of Belgium, of Luxembourg, the rapine of Louvain, the sinking of the Lusitania, the violation of the women of Flanders and Picardy—why continue the infamous list!—amid the Suddenly out of the North Atlantic swept one of those storms for which that coast is noted. Darkness enveloped the Kaiser, the royal yacht and its convoy, the rain poured and the wind blew a gale for five minutes. Then the sky shone blue again but—of the royal yacht, its princely passenger and the convoy not a sign was to be seen!

Prophetic may that be of the immediate future, when there shall be no more Hohenzollernism on the face of this earth!

CUTTING DOWN ON THE NON-ESSENTIALS.

By Edward Hungerford of The Vigilantes.

A man coming into one of the large New York hotels today, for the first time in some months, would not gain a very vivid impression that the country was at war; involved in one of the very great crises of its existence. True it is that the dining-rooms are draped in flags, that Mr. Hoover's injunctions are solemnly spread upon the menu-cards, that officers in khaki are seated here and there and everywhere and that all rise upon the playing of the national anthem. These evidences of patriotism are not difficult. An effort, more or less successful, has been made to close restaurant and cabaret festivities at one o'clock in the morning. But that is about all. Jazz-bands still bang out their discordant melodies in the cheap places, with softer-toned orchestras for the more expensive ones. There is gaiety in the air. And prosperity to sign the check.

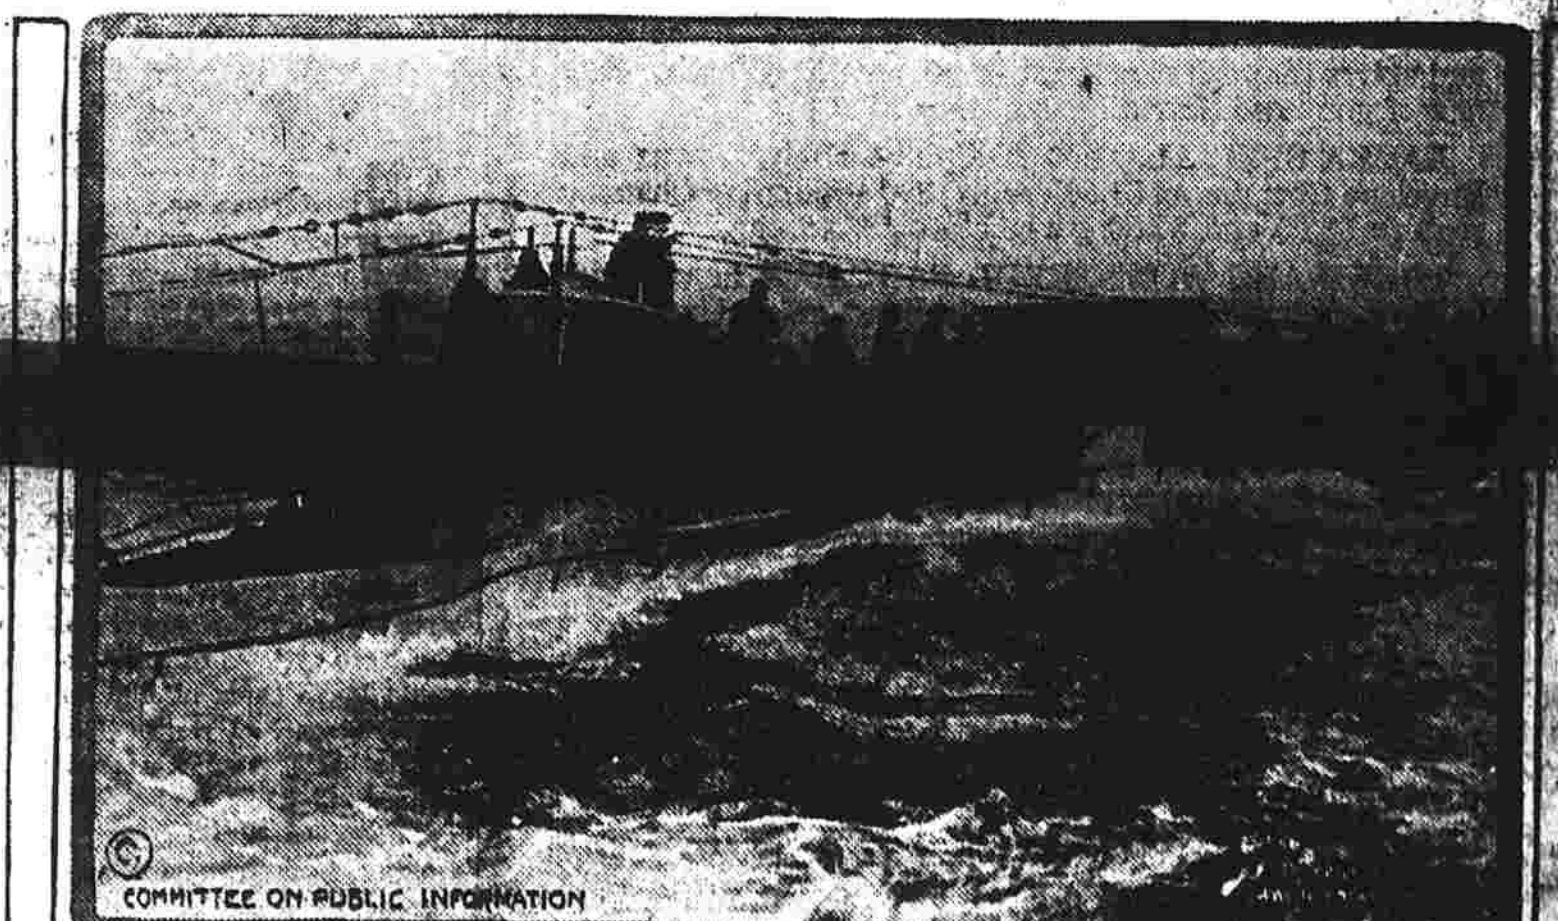

"We're keeping them cheered up," said the sleek proprietor of the matters it that the president of one of the very largest of our oil companies warns us that we are producing it, that there is less than five years' reserve remaining and that soon we will have to begin putting aside a large amount of the best product for that great new aviation fleet which is to be America's chief contribution to the war? Does that worry the men in any one of those cars? As for that matter does it worry you in yours? Is it any of

When we are our products of our industry—guns, powder, shells, planes, aeroplanes, motor-trucks, locomotives, railroad cars; and then the things in which to carry all these things overseas. Of money we have plenty; already we are giving generously of it to our Allies. Men we can supply and shall—but I am afraid, never in more than a comparatively limited number. But munitions we can and should supply—in almost unlimited quantities.

Yet these we cannot give plentifully unless we have plentiful man-power. And our man-power, like that of England's has been depleted by the drafts for our army. And even if we have learned from her mistakes and showed more judgment in picking men for the trenches and leaving the right types for our essential industries, the fact already has made great drains upon our industrial army. These drains we cannot now prevent. But we can prevent the drain of non-essential industries upon our work-men, to say nothing of our materials and our very limited supply of fuel. And this is the very thing that we must turn of peace, she found other work for him. Thus a factory given ordinarily to the output let us say of candy, suddenly might find itself manufacturing canned tomatoes for the Army, at a price which not only enabled the candy-maker to keep his business together but to gain a small profit from it. And if he was at all puzzled at the details of canning tomatoes the government smoothed out his problems. In Great Britain more than 10,000 plants large and small, in other Morale will win the war. So soon as our hopeful citizens discover them to be but of local effect, money, machine guns, aeroplanes, submarines, mustard gas, men, munitions, cannon, food, ships, sink, one by one, below the horizon of public interest as "decisive factors." New tactics, new technique, heralded as certain to overcome the innate strength of trench defense, are tried, only to be quietly abandoned when some serious military defect is discovered. The Tanks, perhaps the triumph of technique and material, lie wrecked in the path of the Tank cannon. Each new material element meets its match.

Not that the material elements do not constitute a vital and valuable proportion of war effort and effect. To be precise, such elements, constitute twenty-five per cent of the tactical value of any fighting organization. Add to the quality and range of the soldiers' rifle, the worth and weatherproofness of his shoes, the quality and regularity of his ration, the warmth of his clothes, the protection afforded by his gas mask, the technique of his rifle grenade; add to these the thousand and one articles furnished from Ordnance, Quartermaster and Commissary Stores; include the results of Liberty Loans, Food Conservation, Airplane construction and ship building—still 75 per cent of our war value is lacking. This arbitrary estimate is not mine—it is borrowed from Napoleon.

What selfish schemes to balk Mr. Hoover's plans have passed through your mind? Let no citizen think the food restrictions do not apply to him. If each of our hundred million inhabitants cuts down the amount of sugar he or she uses in the daily cup of coffee or tea by one-fourth one day, the National phase of morale is raised one degree for that day. If we simply think of the Food Agency demanded by the present emergency in terms of Lent, we solve the world's food problem. War is Lenten time; a time of fasting, resolutions—and prayer.

Does your morale weaken with the cold when the janitor reports the furnace out for lack of coal? Would you rather run your thousand dollar electric sign light after night than save the coal so but for generation plants? If so, remember the front line trenches are not steam-heated and that shell shortage means death to the men in those trenches. Yet, these are but the minor tests of morale. Small, indeed, the spirit that cannot rise above them.

So each sacrifice, on the altar of our country wounds our soul. Not only comfort, a warm home, a bounteous meal, must be foregone; but, with grave hearts, our mothers and wives must give all that is nearest and dearest to them. And yet the strength of their spirit in giving, so is the strength of the soul of the nation.

Thus morale is another word for strength of soul. And the war will be won by the nation with the greatest mine—it is borrowed from Napoleon.
