SEVEN WAITERS HELD AT DEVENS, FIRST "WORK OR FIGHT" ARRESTS

Taken in at Lenox by Agents of U. S. Department of Justice—Failed to Register—Inducted into Service after Facing Draft Board at Lee
—Citizens of England

Camp Devens, Mass., July 5.—The first arrests in the state under the new federal act requiring persons within the draft age to be employed in essential positions to help win the war were made at the Aspinwall Hotel, Lenox, by agents of the Department of Justice and the men brought to this camp under guard.

Seven negroes employed in the hotel as waiters were taken into custody for having failed to register, and were brought before the draft board at Lee and registered and then brought to the depot brigade and inducted into military service.

The men were all from Bermuda and citizens of England, but had been in this country prior to the registration act going into effect.

On arrival at camp the men reported that the English consul believed that they were in custody.

jority Leader Kitchin, Unlikely—Too Much Work Ahead.

Washington, July 5.—Administration leaders in Congress today tried to get prompt action on new laws authorizing the President to take over the wire lines. The proximity of the threatened strike of the union telegraphers employed by the Western Union Telegraph Company has alarmed many officials, who fear serious damage will follow to government interests. President Wilson had before him today all of the reports of the situation. He was

Pershing Speaks and Reads Telegram from Foch; Fourth In France Observed Quietly

With the American Army in France, July 4.—(Night).—The Fourth passed quietly on all sectors of the line occupied by our troops.
At Field Headquarters there was a parade of the children of the town, after which General Pershing kissed the little daughter of the French regional commander.

Replying to addresses from the French General, the prefect and the mayor, General Pershing said: Pershing's Address.

"I am deeply touched by the magnificent reception which this city has prepared in honor of the American army. I am touched but not surprised. Since we came to this city we have come to regard it as a corner of America and this can be said of every hamlet and village where we are together celebrating the fourth, of July. The act of France in making the Fourth her own national holiday attaches her more closely to the United States. In a way it constitutes a new declaration of independence and a solemn oath that the liberty for which France has long been shedding her blood and for which sacrifice America has begun to shed hers, will surely triumph throughout the world. This day will live forever in the memory of those who have had the pleasure of being here. I thank God I am permitted to be present.

"Today the same thoughts join the people of France and America.
American children are singing the same hymns as the French children.
I am deeply touched also by your idea of bringing school children to the celebration and I am sure that it will live always in their memories."

Foch Sends Telegram.

"Among the telegrams received by General Pershing was the following:
"It is for independence that we all are fighting.

(Signed)

"Foch."
General Foch is the generalissimo of the Allied armies in France and Italy.

General Pershing sent this reply:
"I am deeply touched by your cordial greetings. The Allies celebrate this anniversary of America's Independence Day with the certainty that their common victory soon will restore independence and liberty throughout the world."

FOURTH OBSERVED BY MANY LAUNCHINGS

Pershing, Etc.

The total number of vessels launched on the Fourth by the Emergency Fleet Corporation was not far from the 100 planned, but reports are not yet complete. The 52 vessels, 33 of steel and 19 of wood, do not include naval vessels built by the Navy Department itself or under its supervision.

The Union plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation made a world's record by launching 47,800 dead-weight tons in one day. Four ships took to the water. The biggest boat launched yesterday was the Indianapolis, 12,500 tons, at the Pusey & Jones yard in Gloucester,
N. J.

A message from the President, read at 76 yards, was part of the ceremony of the day. "We are all comrades in a great cause," said Mr.
Wilson. General Pershing also sent a message of thanks. Chairman Hurley distributed greetings among the yards. Secretary Redfield attended celebrations at two of the Philadelphia yards and Director General Schwab and Vice President Piez of the Corporation were guests of honor in San Francisco.

EX-CZARINA ALSO IS REPORTED ASSASSINATED

Killed at Same Time as Czar, Says Swedish Paper, Quoted by Exchange Telegraph of Copenhagen.

London, July 5.—Former Czar Nicholas, the ex-Czarina, his wife, and their daughter, Grand Duchess Tatiana, have all been murdered by the Bolsheviks, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today, giving the Swedish newspaper Politiken as its authority.

There is no confirmation of the reported assassinations from any other source.

According to the Exchange Telegraph advises a priest at Tazarskoe Selo on June 23 prayed for the souls of the dead, at the same time announcing that the assassinations had taken place. The audience wept.

Several unconfirmed reports have been circulated lately that the former Czar had been put to death, but this was the first time that the ex-Czarina and Grand Duchess Tatiana had been reported assassinated.

Credited with Victory.

Nine American aviators on July 2 worsted 13 of the German flyers, former members of the noted Baron

Chateau Thierry. The fight was the biggest in which American flyers ever have engaged. Six of the German planes were brought to earth without any losses sustained by our men.

The following American lieutenants are given credit for bringing down the six foe machines:

ALLIES CUT FURTHER PIECES FROM FOE'S WEST FRONT LINE

Americans Help Australians Capture Hamel in Push Forward of Mile and One Half, 1,300-1,500 Prisoners Captured—French Add Half Mile to Gains—Italians Still Battling Fiercely along Piva

That Americans are now helping the British defend the road to Amiens, down the Somme Valley, has just been revealed by the British War Office.

It was in keeping with the occasion that these Americans on the vital part of the Picardy front should be allowed the honor of attacking with Australians on the fourth of July—at a time when England and France were helping the United States celebrate the birth of American independence.

The Americans again gave a good account of themselves, for the Allies stormed the village of Hamel, sweeping on to the east of that place, where they repelled counter attacks last night.

Americans are brigaded with French and British in all of the important zones of fighting in France.

Troops from the United States are on the Marne front, before the Chateau Thierry, helping the French to defend the road to Paris; they are holding part of the line near Montdidier, where the Germans made such violent efforts to break through in March, and now it is shown that detachments have taken their place alongside of the Australians on the Somme front.

For some time a force of Americans has been drive towards the Channel coast.

From the great numbers of prisoners and German machine guns captured in the operation on the Somme yesterday, it is evident that the Australians and the Americans fighting with them carried out their assault with great dash and brilliant vigor.

French in Many Raids.
There have been no enterprises of importance on that section of the front held by the French. The French army command has confined its latest operations to raids and to harrassing the German lines with artillery and patrols.

Local fighting, in which the Italians have made further gains, has continued over a great extent of the southwestern front.
This has been most severe on the lower Piva, in the coastal district.

British Report.

The text of the War Office report follows:
"The total number of prisoners taken by us in yesterday's successful operation in the Somme region exceeds 1,300. One German field gun, in addition to over 100 machine guns, and a number of trench mortars have so far been counted. A hostile counter-attack against our new position east of Hamel last night was easily repulsed, a few prisoners being left in our hands.

"A successful raid was carried out by us in the Beaumont-Hamel sector. An attempted hostile raid in the neighborhood of Strazeele was repulsed."

French Drive Forward.
The French seized 1,066 prisoners after an attack on the German lines near Autrech, northwest of Soissons and added nearly half a mile of terrain on a front of several miles.
Yesterday's official report says:

North of Montdidier, between Montdidier and the Oise and on the right bank of the Meuse the French carried out several raids, bringing back prisoners.
Between the Oise and the Aisne at 7.30 o'clock last night French troops attacked the German lines west of Autrech (1 1/2 miles) and made an advance of about 800 meters.
Later in the evening a new attack was made in the same region, between Autrech and Moulin-sous-Touvent, at the moment when the Germans were preparing a counter-attack. The French made a further gain of ground.
The entire advance, which extended on a front of five kilometers (3.1 miles) reached a depth of 1,200 meters at certain points.
The number of unwounded prisoners taken in the course of these actions is 1,066, including 18 officers.
One of our battalions alone took more than 300 prisoners.

Australians Get Hamel.
Fifteen hundred prisoners and a gain of a mile and one half were the fruits of a surprise attack made by the Australians south of the Somme yesterday. The village of Hamel and the trench system beyond it were included in the advance. The British, by means of a strong artillery preparation, which the Germans combated too late, made the work of their infantry comparatively easy.

Under a barrage of smoke the tanks rolled forward, with the infantry as close behind as practicable.
Three divisions of Prussians and Rhinelanders, the 43rd, 77th and 13th, held the ground in this vicinity south of Vaux, including Vaire
Wood, as well as Hamel.

Mexican President Sends Greetings

Prosperity on Independence Day.

Washington, July 5.—Expressing the wish that "peace and justice soon will be reigning on both continents," President Carranza of Mexico forwarded a Fourth of July message from Mexico City to President Wilson. After congratulating the nation on the "glorious anniversary," Mexico's president says:

"I am pleased to express my most sincere and strongest wishes for the prosperity of the United States, with a wish that peace and justice soon
will be reigning on both continents."

"TEACH AMERICANISM" MESSAGE OF SECRETARY LANE TO INSTRUCTORS

Talks Convention of National Education Association Americanism is Intensified Nationalism, Because Thought It Mankind is to be Served —For Salary Increase.

Pittsburg, July 5.—America must teach itself what Americanism is and what it is not. And the burden of doing these two things must fall in greatest part upon the school teachers of America.

This was the message delivered by Secretary of the Interior Lane to the educators of America gathered here today for the closing sessions of the National Education Association convention.

"Americanism is not internationalism," the Secretary said. "It is an intensified nationalism because through this nation mankind is to be served. Americanism is an ordered system. It is a growth and a right to grow. It is not pacifism, but it is courage. Americanism is not a belief in the quick turned trick, but the expression of what freedom can do whose energies are guided by purpose, by thought and by physical and moral courage."

The secretary told the teachers that their work must be elevated in public esteem and their salaries must be increased, so that men of the superior classes would be drawn to it.
New Officers.

Dr. George W. Strayer, of Columbia University, New York, today was elected president of the association.
The other officers also unanimously elected are:

Vice Presidents—Mary C. C.

of Education, Montpelier, Vt.; John fority Leader Kitchin and his House lieutenants were insisting that the recess will be taken very soon. But the majority of the men in both houses declared that a recess of a month at this time would be a most unwise move.

Aswell Talks.
Telephone and telegraph rates will be reduced when the lines are put under government control and employees of the systems will be given increases in pay, Representative Aswell, author of the original resolution to take over the lines, so predicted today.

He corrected his earlier statement that the properties in question are worth $16,000,000,000. An accounting of the value has revealed that they are worth not over $1,000,- 000,000, he said. From the operation of the 500,000 miles of wire in the United States there is a gross income annually of $500,000,000 and a net income of $120,000,000. The reductions in rates would be possible, Aswell believed, through eliminating overlapping facilities and competition.

TEXTILE STRIKE ARBITRATION HANGS UPON ARBITRATORS

Lowell, Mass., July 5.—Progress toward settlement of the big textile strike in this city hung upon two chief questions today—whether the questions of the Massachusetts Public Safety Committee, would accept the invitation of the Lowell Textile Council to serve as arbitrator and whether the Cotton Mill Treasurers' Association which has agreed to accept representatives of the national War Labor Board as arbitrators, would accept Mr. Endicott instead.

The Lowell Textile Council awaited a reply today from Mr. Endicott.
Action of the mill treasurers was also awaited on the counter proposition of the operatives.

Strike leaders at Lowell said today, after the mills opened, that only 5,500 went to work. According to these figures there were between 16,000 and 17,000 out on strike or idle on account of work being tied up.

BIG TRADE EVENT

Coppers Again Strong—Maxwell Motors in Demand—Railway Steel Springs Up—Quotations.

New York, July 5.—Trading started after the holiday with a display of strength in nearly all the important issues at the opening of the stock market today, but business was quiet.

Fluctuations, however, after the opening were confined to narrow limits. Steel Common opened half higher to 107 with a reaction to 106 1/2.

Maxwell Motors was the most active of the motor group, moving up two points to 32 1/8. Anaconda made an opening gain of half a point which was lost in the next few minutes.

Reading moved in the same way, advancing 5-8 to 92 3-8 and then reacting to 91 7-8.

At the end of the first 15 minutes, the leading stocks showed only trifling changes from Wednesday's close.

Steel Common again rose to 107 during the forenoon and there was a good demand for many of the equipment stocks, with railway steel springs advancing 1-2 to 61.

Prices ranged higher at the opening of the cotton market today on the impetus of active Wall Street covering which was the heaviest in the October positions.

POLISH RESIDENTS HAVE PATRIOTIC CELEBRATION

Send Resolutions to President Pledging Their Support to the War.

About 150 of Manchester's Polish people held a Fourth of July celebration at Jarvis grove yesterday afternoon. A program of patriotic exercises were given and afterwards dancing was enjoyed.

The resolutions are printed below. Whereas, This free and democratic country has always extended its hospitality to the weak and oppressed of every nation, admitting all to share equally in the benefits of its great Constitution and the opportunities of its beautiful economic life.

Resolved, that we, American citizens of Polish birth or extraction, residents of the city of Manchester, State of Connecticut, assembled at a mass meeting on this 142nd anniversary of American Independence, hereby pledge our unbounded loyalty to the Government of the United States and our wholehearted support of all measures that have been or may be promulgated in the future for the most efficient prosecution of the war.

Resolved, that the Polish nation being one particularly interested in the defeat of Germany, since its national existence depends on wresting its territory from the Hun, we make our solemn pledge that every man of Polish nationality exempted from service with the American forces shall serve in or give his support to the Polish Army in France.

RED CROSS TOURNAMENT AT COUNTY CLUB LINKS

Many Members Spent the Fourth in the Open Air—Red Cross Gains $100. The Manchester Country Club held an all day golf tournament yesterday under the auspices of the American Red Cross.

The competing events were nine-hole handicaps for both men and women and a "tombstone" tournament open to all. In the last named event each player was given a certain number of strokes at the completion of which each put down a marker and died. The one whose marker was farthest to the fore won the prize.

Judge W. S. Hyde was the star player of the day. Although the handicappers would not let him win a prize, he played three times around, 27 holes, in 150.

THE PRESIDENT YESTERDAY. President Wilson's speech on the Fourth at Washington's tomb was a remarkable combination of the old and the new.

The fathers of the Republic, he said, intended this to be a country for all seeking freedom to take refuge in; and it was fitting now that America should reach out and take a more active part in securing freedom for the various nations that still lacked it.

The rest of the speech reiterated the principles and ends for which this nation was fighting: 1. The destruction or reduction of every arbitrary power, which can plot secretly to destroy the world's peace; 2. The settlement of territorial, political, sovereign and economic questions on the basis of the free consent of the people immediately concerned; 3. A due respect for international law and morals by all nations; 4. The establishment of an organization to ensure peace and justice for all.

"These great objects can be put into a single sentence. What we seek is the reign of law, based upon the consent of the governed and sustained by the organized opinion of mankind."

We hope every Russian, Slav, Magyar, Czech, German, Bulgarian and Turk who can read or understand will be given the opportunity to read or hear this speech.

BUY IT NOW.

Many, many years ago Ben Franklin put into his autobiography the words "Do not buy what you do not need."

one thing or another because this simple truth was not applied than for any other reason.

But the aphorism isn't quite exactly stated, for you may need tomorrow what you don't today. In many instances you know in advance that you certainly will have needs soon that now don't exist.

The wise thing to do, then, is buy ahead during some of the present sales. Men's suits, straw hats, shoes and many other articles won't be cheaper next year, but probably dearer. The same applies to women's clothing. Furniture has been mounting so that today the retailer has to pay for many articles what he charged you six months ago.

"A penny saved is a penny earned." That was another saying of Franklin's, and more truly spoken. Filling one's future needs in the present is only wisdom and common sense. The clothing market will stand a lot of hoarding, such as the food market has endured in too great abundance.

Large sales and small profits is the principle on which most of these sales are conducted, at least in part. Another is to keep stocks moving, so that capital always will be at work. Help the merchants to help you, by buying ahead. Get It Now.

THE CAMP LIBRARY FUND.

The report of State Librarian George S. Godard shows that Connecticut contributed a total of $63,737.45 toward the million-dollar camp library fund raised by the nation. The State, as usual, outdid itself. The following is the gist of the matter, taken from the report:

Eight towns raised twice their allotments or more; 30 towns 150 per cent or more, and 77 towns raised from 100 per cent to 150 per cent of their allotments, leaving 53 which raised less than their allotments.

Of the 20 cities in the state (included in the enumeration of towns above) only 8 secured their allotments. The three towns having less than 400 individuals in population, Marlborough, Union and Andover, raised respectively 132 per cent, 104 per cent and 120 per cent of their allotments.

Four towns secured the amounts by town appropriations, two by appropriations from library funds, one by the contribution of an individual.

The town of Warren with 282 per cent of its quota topped every other town in the State. Manchester with 147 per cent was just short of getting into the first class, and Tolland missed it by two per cent. Berlin gave 143 per cent of its quota, East Hartford, 140; Wethersfield, 138; West Hartford, 136; Newington, 131. New Britain only reached the 100 per cent mark.

ANOTHER COAL FAMINE.

New England is threatened with a shortage of hard and soft coal next January and February, if not before, similar to that of last winter. So says an authority whose article, reporting the results of an investigation, appeared yesterday.

An analysis of his facts shows that the railways cannot possibly distribute the coal which the country needs, because it still lacks equipment. Distribution is a worse problem than the actual mining, and that is bad enough. Household consumers probably will be slightly better off than last winter, but factories will be up against it.

It is curious the way the country has allowed this condition of things to overtake it. There is enough water power undeveloped or underdeveloped in the country to cut coal demands in two, while the establishment of power concerns in the coal regions and transmission of electricity instead of coal for heat, light and power, would cut another big slice off requirements. It is silly to allow the present condition of things to continue, when such a solution is possible.

It isn't a question of inordinate profits for the coal operators of Pennsylvania or anywhere else. It isn't a question, either, of swollen freight rates for coal charged by railways, which themselves control huge coal deposits. It is a plain and simple question of keeping New England's factories going and providing cheap heat and light for New England households.

And cheaper heat and light are demanded only less imperatively than cheaper food.

Says the Journal-Courier of New Haven:

It is a common saying in most communities that some first-class funerals are needed for the general good. It is beginning to dawn upon us that a few first-class resurrections might not be a bad thing.

We have had many first class resurrections of good old customs, such as conservation by drying. We even have had some awakenings of first class persons asleep to the march of the times. The State certainly has lost some live old people the past year, who would be mighty useful if they could be brought back.

Day was practical and spectacular alike. Incomplete reports give 52 launchings, 33 of steel ships and 19 of wood. The voluntary free labor of several hundred employees of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company in Bridgeport for three hours yesterday also is worth talking about in this connection.

A reader says he has broken the strike of his chickens by giving them plenty of green things, including weeds as much as anything else, and some "lay or bust." The latter is cheaper than scratch feed, which the hens take hold of all the better after a change.

The 33 nationalities represented by wreaths placed upon the tomb of Washington at Mt. Vernon yesterday demonstrate how cosmopolitan America really is, in spite of the work still awaiting the melting pot.

A parade of 110,000 is a big thing even in New York. Yesterday's event showed how patriotic the big town is at bottom.

Willimantic also is boosting the Chautauqua and its guarantors. Willimantic sometimes knows a good thing when it sees it.

NEGRO GOES TO JAIL JONAH TO BLAME

Stamford, July 5.—Odell Walker, colored, told James Winn, colored, that the Bible was wrong when it stated that a whale swallowed Jonah. An argument ensued and Walker pulled a knife. He didn't get a chance to use it, however, and today was sent to jail for 30 days not for disbelieving the Bible but for pulling the knife.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks for all the sympathy by words and flowers we have received from so many friends in this and other communities. Our Son has given all he could for his country and when it has fallen on our lot to give that sacrifice, we do it willingly. There are so many others who will be called upon to do the same and in the depth of our heart, we receive consolation from our heavenly Father. He knows what is best for us all and He will give strength to bear this burden.

The Open Forum

Editor of The Herald:

Grocers and the Food Administration. An article in a Hartford morning paper yesterday tries to make it appear that there is friction between the grocers and marketmen of Manchester and the local representative of the Food Administration.

The article is so thoroughly false and misleading from start to finish that in justice to Mr. G. H. Miller the man against whom reflection: are cast, and in justice to the grocers and marketmen of Manchester I would like it possible to set the matter straight before people of this town.

What furnished inspiration for the newspaper article was evidently the fact that there was so small an attendance at a meeting of the grocers called for last Monday evening. The theory advanced is that the evident lack of interest was due to friction between Mr. Miller and the local grocers.

Nothing is further from the truth. As a matter of fact Mr. Miller had nothing whatever to do with calling the meeting for Monday and the lack of attendance was due principally to the fact that the notices were sent out so late that many of the grocers did not receive them until Tuesday, the morning after the meeting was held.

The local grocers and marketmen have shown a desire to co-operate in every way possible with the Food Administration and so far as we have been able to learn there has been no objection whatever to Mr. Miller as local representative; on the contrary he has shown a disposition to do everything in reason and his relations with the local grocers have been without any friction whatsoever.

But His Wounded are Treated Well—In Mass Formation Foe is Bravest—Interviews.

Paris, July 5.—While openly praising the effective work of the German artillery, American wounded who are being brought to Paris hospitals declare that the German soldier is no equal to the American in hand to hand fighting.

"That's our meat—this open warfare," they say, "and if we haven't got down all the ins and outs of trench warfare, we can fight in the open."

"Traditions of the American army all center about the open warfare of which the German imperial staff boasts," said Reuben Tousley, of 2215 View Road, Cleveland, Ohio, who was wounded by a machine gun bullet through the left knee cap in the fighting around Thierry, on the Marne front.

"Turn Own Guns on Foe. 'The Hun can talk all he wants to about 'getting in the open,' but he knows now that we Yankees know a thing or two about that game," Tousley declared. "My company crossed a wheat field in order to drive the Germans out of a wood and when we came upon two of their machine gun crews, half of them fled while we accounted for the others. Then we turned the guns on the runaways."

"Two of the machine gun crew who kept up a deadly fire until we were upon them, finally threw up their hands, but I shot 'em both. We don't feel like taking that sort of prisoners, who, when they have killed our comrades, our wounded, then try to surrender to save their own skins."

Rev. Theodore Bachelier leaves July 12, for Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., where he will go in training for six weeks to prepare as chaplain in the National Army. He will be trained as a private soldier at first and during his training he will study International Law, Military Law and the many duties of a chaplain. The churches of Louisville are co-operating with the government and the prospective chaplains are required to preach, in addition to their other work, every Sunday in some church, and a board of officers will be present to hear them. At the end of the six weeks' training they are commissioned as first lieutenants and are subject to call at any time by the government. Mr. Bachelier will return to his parish in North Madison until he is called.

Rev. D. D. Marsh of Hartford will preach in the local church next Sunday.

The President's Speech

"Gentlemen of the Diplomatic Corps and My Fellow Citizens: "I am happy to draw apart with you to this place of old counsel in order to speak a little of the meaning of this day of our nation's independence. The place seems very still and remote. It is as serene and untouched by the hurry of this world as it was in those great days long ago when General Washington was here and held leisurely conference with the men who were to be associated with him in the creation of a nation. From these gentle slopes they looked upon the world and saw it whole, saw it with the light of the future upon it, saw it with modern eyes that turned away from a past which men of liberated spirits could no longer endure. It is for that reason that we cannot feel, even here, in the immediate presence of this sacred tomb, that this is a place of death. It was a place of achievement. A great promise that was meant for all mankind was here given plan and reality. The associations by which we are here surrounded are the inspiring associations of that noble death which is only a glorious consummation. From this green hillside we also ought to be able to see with comprehending eyes the world that lies around us and conceive anew the purpose that must set men free.

"It is significant—significant of their own character and purpose and of the influences they are setting afoot—that Washington and his associates like the barons of Runnymede, spoke and acted, not for a class, but for a people. It has been left for us to see to it that it shall be understood that they spoke and acted, not for a single people only but for all mankind. They were thinking, not of themselves and of the material interests which centered in the life of holders and merchants and men of affairs with whom they were accustomed to act, in Virginia and the colonies to the north and south of her, but of a people which wished to be done with classes and special interests and the authority of men whom they had not themselves chosen to rule over them. They entertained no private purpose, desired no peculiar privilege. They were consciously planning that men of every class should be free and America a place to which men out of every nation might resort who wished to share with them the rights and privileges of free men. And we take our cue from them—do we not? We intend what they intended. We here in America believe our participation in this present war to be only the fruitage of what they planned. Our case differs from theirs only in this, that it is our inestimable privilege to concert with men out of every nation what shall make not only the liberties of America secure, but the liberties of every other people as well. We are happy in the thought that we are permitted to do what they would have done had they been in our place. There must now be settled once for all what was settled for America in the great age upon whose inspiration we draw today. This is surely a fitting place from which calmly to look upon our task, that we may fortify our spirits for its accomplishment. And this is the appropriate place from which to avow, alike to the friends who look on and to the friends with whom we have the happiness to be associated in action, the faith and purpose with which we act.

"This, then, is our conception of the great struggle in which we are engaged. The plot is written plain upon every scene and every act of the supreme tragedy. On the one hand stand the peoples of the world—not only the peoples actually engaged, but many others also who suffered under mastery but cannot act; peoples of many races and in every part of the world—the peoples of stricken Russia still among the rest, though they are for the moment unorganized and helpless. Opposed to them, masters of many armies, stand an isolated, friendless group of governments who speak no common purpose but only selfish ambitions of their own by which none can profit but themselves, and those peoples are fuel in their hands; governments which fear their people and yet are for the time their sovereign lords, making every choice for them and disposing of their lives and fortunes as they will, as well as of the lives and fortunes of every people who fall under their power—governments clothed with the strange trappings and the primitive authority of an age that is altogether alien—speaking proudly and with confidence of the present and in deadly grapple and the peoples of the world are being done to death between them.

"There can be but one issue. The settlement must be final. There can be no compromise. No half-way decision would be tolerable. No half-way decision is conceivable. These are the ends for which the associated peoples of the world are fighting and which must be conceded them before there can be peace.

"I—The destruction of every arbitrary power anywhere that can separately, secretly, and of its single choice disturb the peace of the world; or, if it cannot be presently destroyed, at the least its reduction to virtual impotence.

"II—The settlement of every question, whether of territory, of sovereignty, of economic arrangement, or of political relationship upon the basis of the free acceptance of that settlement by the people immediately concerned and not upon the basis of material interest or advantage of any other nation or people which may desire a different settlement for the sake of its own exterior influence or mastery.

"III—The consent of all nations to be governed in their conduct towards each other by the same principles of honor and of respect for the common law of civilized society that govern the individual citizens of all nations in their relations with one another; to the end that all promises and covenants may be sacredly observed and that the rights of justice shall be made secure by the more secure by affording international readjustment that cannot be amicably agreed upon by the peoples directly concerned shall be sanctioned.

"These great objects can be put into a single sentence. What we seek is the reign of law, based upon the consent of the governed and sustained by the organized opinion of mankind.

"These great ends cannot be achieved by debating and seeking to reconcile and accommodate what stipulates many wish, with their projects for balances of power and of national opportunity, but are realized only by the determination of what the thinking peoples of the world desire, with their longing hope for justice and for social freedom and opportunity.

"I can but fancy that the air of this place carries the accents of such principles with a peculiar kindness. Here were started forces which the great nation against which they were primarily directed at first regarded as revolt against legitimate authority, but which it has long since seen to have been a step in the liberation of the peoples as well as of the people of the United States; and I stand here now to speak—speak proudly and with confident hope—of the spread of this revolt, this liberation to the great stage of the world itself! The blinded rulers of Prussia have raised forces that they knew little of—forces, which, once roused, can never be crushed to earth again; for they have at their heart an inspiration and a purpose which are deathless and of the very stuff of triumph!"

Caroline Thinks It Out

By Mona Cowles

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"To get up in the morning and make your own coffee and boil your own egg and make toast for yourself is all very well and good for a girl when she is single, but to have to do that sort of thing is quite different when one is married," Caroline had said with a very definite air five years ago on the memorable afternoon when Horace Blair had proposed to her. "I don't in the least mind living here in this two-room apartment now and I suppose you are quite comfortable in the boarding house, but to have to live in three or four rooms or to have to go to boarding after we are married would be really quite impossible."

Horace fondled the hand he held and looked dejectedly at the graceful finger that Caroline had just permitted him to measure for the engagement ring.

"You are a very sensible girl, Caroline," he said, "and I suppose you are right."

"Of course, I'm right," she agreed. "At twenty I might have been foolish and romantic. Then I might have supposed that I could be happy and make you happy on my thousand-dollar-a-year income and your salary of three thousand—"

"Twenty-eight hundred," Horace corrected with a sigh.

"With an occasional picture I could sell that would come to no more than forty-five hundred." She sighed and shook her head.

"I'm sorry, Horace, but it can't be done. I've seen other girls try to do it and—well, perhaps they are happy—but we couldn't live the way we do. You wouldn't want to try. It would mean living in a suburb somewhere with an incompetent maid and wearing ready-made clothes—yes, I know I have to now, but I won't always be young. At thirty I would look a mess in a ready-made suit—and we would have to keep eternally counting the money, and if we went to the theater we'd have to sit in the gallery—"

"We've had rather good fun that way, haven't we?" Horace murmured.

"Yes, Horace dear, but doing it now is one thing and doing it then is quite another matter. You'll thank me some time for the stand I am taking."

"Then—you mean you won't marry me?"

"Not in the least. I simply mean that I can't marry you till our income is doubled at least!"

Horace took out an envelope and must have about seventy-five hundred."

"I'll relent a little," smiled Caroline. "I'll marry you when you are making six thousand. You can work up to that."

"I may take five years," sighed the unhappy suitor.

"If it does? We love each other, and we can go on quite nicely this way. You know marriage isn't something to be entered into emotionally."

"You are a very sensible girl," said Horace accepting his sentence grimly. "I think I see your point of view."

And so it was settled and Horace and Caroline began their long engagement. There were never any quarrels—Caroline was too sensible for that and never once did she weaken from her wise decision that to make toast for herself was one thing, but to have to do it for two was another. Even in his most impatient moods Horace had to admire the lofty ideal that Caroline maintained toward marriage. It was something that had to be undertaken on a dignified, rather grand scale or not at all.

And a day or so ago Caroline was still making her own toast and drawing an occasional picture that sold, quite content on her small income and Horace was working on patiently with the concern with which he had begun ten years ago, grimly waiting for another chance ahead that would bring him the coveted six-thousand-dollar income. It did not seem then that there would be long to wait, for already he had reached the fifty-five hundred mark and he had saved enough to make possible the prospects of starting in life with a rather more pretentious abode than the suburban cottage that Caroline had held in such contempt.

Caroline worked at her drawing board as patiently and eagerly as ever and her ability as an illustrator had not become impaired but owing to war conditions, as the editors told her, there was less demand for her particular kind of talent than in years gone by. When she did get an order it meant a smaller check than formerly. She did not flinch at the economies this necessitated. Single poverty was one thing, she insisted, and married poverty another.

Then a day or so ago Horace came to spend his usual Sunday afternoon with her but instead of hurrying up the two flights of stairs to her apartment when he reached the house where she lived in spinster sedateness, he hesitated and then walked dejectedly around the block. Again he started to enter and with a heavy sigh retraced his steps around the block. "It took considerable courage finally for him to ascend the steps he had trod so many times and to give his accustomed knock at her door.

So well did Caroline know his every expression that it was in vain that he attempted to dissemble his depression. "I'll have to tell you some time," he began, when he had settled back in his favorite wicker chair with Caroline sitting opposite to him by the window. "If ever a man had reason to be discouraged I'm that man—after five years. Oh, Caroline, it is too cruel of fate—"

He buried his head in his hands, and if he had been anything but the every inch American man that he was he would have shed a tear or two.

Caroline was not the young woman to put caressing arms about his neck and assure him that everything was lovely whether it was or not, and Horace liked her better because she was not. She simply waited for him to tell the rest of the story.

"I have to tell you, Caroline," he said, "because I know you will feel the blow almost as much as I do. I am sure of your love; if I weren't, I couldn't endure this terrible calamity. I'm sure you'll wait—perhaps five years more." He winced as he thought of another long sentence of waiting.

"It's just our share of the war conditions, I suppose. The shipping tie-up has knocked our business sky-high. I've been hoping against hope we'd find a way out. But we've had to close down one of our plants—and that means that the salaries of men at the top will have to be cut in half. If I get out and start in some other line I'll have to begin at the bottom—every business in our line is crippled—it may mean two or three years after the war ends even before things are back on their feet."

Caroline was still calm. "That leaves you with just about twenty-seven hundred, doesn't it?" she asked, and the surprising bluntness of her reply served as a brace to Horace's wilting spirits.

"Now listen to the sequel. My income has been dwindling. My little home is all in K. and B. and that is worth about half what it was before the war. I've been meaning to tell you. I hated to—but I've got to tell you the apartment. I'd do more work but there's no market for it now."

Horace forgot his own troubles and was leaning over Caroline with two outstretched arms. "Poor, dear girl," he said. "How you must have worried—and now comes my tale of woe—and even now you aren't crying about it. Caroline, you've more pluck than any man I ever knew." He kept beside her, looking with infinite tenderness and admiration into her unflinching blue eyes. "Have you thought what you are—are going to do about it?"

"There's only one thing to do," she said slowly. "I'll have to give up this place and I suppose you'll have to live some place cheaper than the Hotel Bradford."

"Yes, of course."
"Well, why couldn't we both live in—"

"You don't mean—Caroline—how could you? You don't mean that we can be married? Don't you know what you said about making toast and fry-ing eggs for two—you've told me so often that you couldn't—Caroline don't let me hope if you don't really mean it."

"I've thought it all out," she said, resuming her calm manner that Horace thought the finest thing he had ever seen in any woman. "It is one thing for two persons to live separately on two small incomes—and it is another thing for those two people to live together on their joint incomes. Don't you see how simple it is. It's just a matter of plain arithmetic. We can pay rent for one apartment instead of two; we can read by one light instead of two, and we don't have to go out to the theater and places for amusement, because we'll be married and can just stay home. It's such a simple solution, Horace, that I'm surprised we never thought of it before."

Enemy Quickly Disappeared.

An official of a railway which passes through Philadelphia, I am told, was in the habit of expressing his war sentiments without restraint to his private secretary, Girard writes in the Philadelphia Ledger. These sentiments were derogatory to the allies and favorable to Germany. One day at the end of a particularly vehement tirade the secretary said: "I trust, sir, that what you have said does not represent your real feelings on the subject." "I mean every word of it," said his employer. It was just after a fire had taken place in a nearby city and the responsibility had been laid at the doors of German hirelings whose enterprise the railway man extolled. "Then I shall be obliged to arrest you," said the secretary, unwrapping open his coat and showing the badge of a secret service agent. The indiscreet official is now supposed to be in a place where what he may have to say in praise of kultur will reach a severely limited audience.

By Twists Teacher's Words.

A Greencastle young woman teacher in the Peru (Ind.) high school a few days ago had a vision of her job leaving because of a violent protest lodged against her by a patron. The teachers were at a meeting when the protest came up. The patron accused the teacher of calling her boy "a scurvy elephant." The teacher was dumfounded when she heard the charge, and could not recall making any such remark. The corps of teachers went to work to attempt to unravel the mystery. Finally it was solved. The teacher had told the boy "He was a disturbing element," and the boy mistook what she said for "A scurvy elephant."—Indianapolis News.

Peter McQueen is recognized as one of the world's great war correspondents. The Chautauqua Association of Swarthmore, Pennsylvania, is pleased to have secured him for Chautauqua.

He has won recognition everywhere as not only a war correspondent, but traveler, author, and illustrated lecturer. He spent over three months in the trenches gathering material for his lecture, "The Great World War."

He is not only a star instructor, but an entertainer as well. He is a live wire. Hear him. He is witty, eloquent, free from egotism, has a wonderful command of language and is a forceful speaker. Small of stature, baldheaded, he becomes a unique figure from the start and commands attention to the last. Many of his oratorical climaxes are profoundly eloquent and his pictures are beautiful and well illustrate his subject. It is a truly great and inspiring lecture, worth the price of a season ticket.

The first day of the seven joyous days will be as enthusiastic as the climax usually is and Chautauqua will start off with a whirlwind. So every Chautauquan who does not wish to miss one of the most important speakers of the week will be present on the evening of the first day to hear Peter McQueen.

A daughter, Barbara Doris, was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fish of North Elm street.

William H. Moore, who has been training in the Canadian Army, is home on a ten days' furlough.

Sergeant Allan I. Balch, who is stationed at New York city, spent the Fourth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Balch.

Rev. J. S. Neill of St. Mary's Episcopal church gave an address at the Fourth of July celebration in Ellington last evening.

Earl Wheeler of Oakland street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wheeler has joined the navy and is at the Newport training station.

Jerry Lovett, is visiting relatives in town. He has been in the army for over twenty years and is now a drill sergeant at Fort Slocum.

While the showers yesterday interfered with the pleasure of some of the pleasure seekers it was of great value to the growing crops.

Mr. and Mrs. S. McCourt of New Haven, formerly of Manchester, are celebrating their twenty-fifth anniversary with Mrs. Warnock and family of School street.

Mrs. James C. Daykins of Huntington street, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at St. Francis hospital, Wednesday, is reported to be getting along nicely.

The Manchester Kiltie band made a hit in the Bristol parade yesterday. The Manchester Country club will have a golf tournament with the Wethersfield club tomorrow afternoon.

Manchester hands were busy yesterday. The Silk City band played in New Haven, the Kilties in Bristol, St. Patrick's drum corps in Hartford and the Italian band in Windsor Locks.

Friends and relatives of Edith Mae McConnell, formerly of this town and now of Los Angeles, Cal., have received announcement of her marriage in that city to Charles F. Marpin. The wedding took place June 15.

The new flag pole was unveiled from the flag pole in front of the War Bureau on the evening of the Third Liberty Loan parade, was put in everyday service yesterday. The old flag had become weather beaten, so it was decided to replace it with the new one.

Washington Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 117, will hold a memorial service Sunday afternoon. The members are requested to meet at Orange hall at two o'clock sharp. They are to wear white gloves and bring flowers for decorating the graves of deceased members. Music will be furnished by the Center Flute band.

Work on the new flag pole on Educational Square was completed Wednesday and yesterday a new flag was unfurled from its top. The flag pole is 75 feet high and rests on a base of Indiana limestone, corresponding with the trim on all the school buildings on Educational Square. It is located near the corner of Main and School streets.

Chautauqua season tickets are meeting with a ready sale. Many of the district canvassers have oversold their allotments of tickets. If any season tickets are turned in by the canvassers tonight they will be placed on sale at the War Bureau, Magnell's Drug Store and Packard's Pharmacy in South Manchester and at Grant's and Balch & Brown's Drug Stores at Depot Square.

Forenoon classes will be held in Bible Studies, Social Service, Evangelism, Home and Foreign Missions etc. The leaders will include Rev. J. H. Nowland, Rev. W. H. Easton, Rev. F. M. Stocking, Rev. R. Bishop Hughes will preach on Friday afternoon and evening, August 23. Evening sermons will be delivered in the auditorium.

POLICE COURT. Drunks are becoming so scarce in Manchester that the police officials look at them strangely when they appear in court. There was but one case before Judge Carney this morning and that was Joseph Leggett, who was found very drunk in the Center Park about five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The prosecutor quizzed Leggett as to where he got his liquor and he said a man, a friend of his, gave him a half pint and that was all he had.

Leggett has been doing well for the last two or three years, working steadily, and for this reason he was let off with a fine of $3 and placed on probation for six months.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS. Unclaimed letters are held at the South Manchester post office for the following persons: E. J. CHAUTAUQUA GUARANTORS TO MEET TONIGHT. Superintendent Will Be Present to Explain Week's Plans.

The guarantors, and especially the committeemen, of this year's Chautauqua are urged to attend tonight's special meeting at Supt. Verplanck's office in the high school building. The superintendent of the Chautauqua, Harold G. Lawrence, came to town today and will be at tonight's meeting. The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock. The reports of the committees will be heard and it will be determined whether the town has gone over the top in the campaign for the sale of Chautauqua tickets.

FOLLOW-UP MEETING TONIGHT. A follow-up meeting of the Boy Scout rally of Monday evening will be held at the Recreation Center at seven o'clock this evening. At this meeting, plans for the summer, and future activities of the Scouts will be made.

MANCHESTER'S FOURTH WAS SAFE AND SANE

Patriotic Oration and Songs in Open Air

QUIET AS SUNDAY

Showers Drive Evening Entertainments Under Cover.

Never in the history of this town was a Fourth of July celebrated as quietly as yesterday. So far as explosives were concerned, the record was 100 per cent. perfect as not even the pop of a torpedo was heard. The only fireworks were nature's lightning and the only noise was the thunder from the clouds. The town itself was more quiet than some of the smaller places where the sale of explosives was not restricted and there were no ordinances against using them. But the night exhibition of fireworks were entirely absent. From the elevation of Green Hill, which commands an extensive view of the Connecticut valley, not a rocket or a Roman candle was visible throughout the evening. The only evidence of a celebration was a big bonfire on a hill in the east part of South Windsor.

Many parties went out of town for quiet picnics in the country. Others, seeking livelier diversions, went to amusement resorts and to Hartford where there was a thrilling exhibition of flying by aviators from the military field at Mineola, L. I.

The dream of a "safe and sane" Fourth of July was fully realized yesterday when Manchester celebrated that historic day with no booming crackers, no bursting toy torpedoes, no banging blank cartridges, but in the place of these dangerous and noisy things were singing, patriotic talks and free patriotic movies. The program of events evidently was not quite lively enough for a large number of Manchester people for during the afternoon Main street was like a deserted village.

shown at the Circle Theater and that the other part of the program would be finished in the high school hall. The theater was crowded with people. The children hurried to the place and obtained the front seats. The high school was well filled with those anxious to hear the Rev. Charles F. Carter of the Immanuel Congregational church speak. F. A. Verplanck was in charge of the program and he read the president's proclamation. He introduced Rev. Carter. The talk was a general comparison between the work of our forefathers in '76 and our work in the present war. The young colored men who are working on the plantation of the Connecticut Sumatra Tobacco Company were present and as a chorus they sang very acceptably twice during the program. The audience was greatly pleased with the singers. The young men come from Atlanta University and are working in this town for the summer.

The Italian Band played several selections in the hall. There was no dancing as had been planned.

FURTHER WORD RECEIVED FROM EDMUND G. BROWN

Gunner Touhy Writes to Local Man's Sister—Wounded in Battle of Marne.

Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson of Cross street, who received word a week ago this evening of the severe wounding of her brother, Edmund G. Brown of Company G, is in receipt of a letter from Gunner Harold L. Touhy of the Fourth Regiment, Eighth Company, Newport, Naval Training Station, a Connecticut young man who chanced to meet Brown in a hospital in France. As in previous reported cases of Manchester men being wounded, there seems to be a mixup in dates in Brown's case. The War Department telegram, received last week, said he was officially reported severely wounded on June 14. Gunner Touhy says he met Brown in a Red Cross hospital and was with him from June 9 to 13, when he sailed for the United States. He states that Brown was wounded in the battle of the Marne. Brown asked Touhy to write for him on his arrival in the States and the latter was quick to comply with the request. Touhy reached port Sunday and wrote the following letter to his sister and brother:

Dear Sister and Brother, Edmund G., has asked me to perform this favor for him, if I ever reached the good old U. S. again. I am a gunner on a destroyer and we reached here Sunday morning from foreign service. While in France we had quite a lot of land drill and while there in a little village hospital I made the acquaintance of Ed. I am a Connecticut boy and we were quite friendly. I was with him from June 9 to June 13. Then we set sail for the U. S. again. He was in a very bad situation when I met him first, but it seems he picked up wonderfully in a few days after. He was wounded in the battle of the Marne. He was a very brave little lad and his mates sure have shown their sympathy for him.

He told me to write and tell you if you had heard anything about his being injured, not to worry; that he would be all right again in a few weeks and be back after the Boches. I think he will be all right in a short time. The Red Cross doctor told me he may be a little crippled, though.

Well, I will have to close, hoping that Ed. will have a speedy recovery and be in the old pier in London to greet me when I go back.

Respectfully yours, Harold L. Touhy, Fourth Reg., Eighth Co., Newport, R. I.

P. S. We are in here for supplies until July. This will be my fifth time over since the war broke out. We will sail for foreign waters July.

MRS. ELIZABETH CHAMBERS. Mrs. Elizabeth Chambers, wife of Robert Chambers, died at her home on Clarke street early this morning, after a short illness with heart trouble. Mrs. Chambers was a native of Ireland and had lived in Manchester for the past 25 years. Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Anna M. and a son, Knight L.; a brother, William Taylor of Ohio and three sisters and a brother in Ireland.

The funeral will be held from the house at two o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. H. Bath will officiate. The burial will be in the East cemetery.

LOCAL FUNDS RECEIVED BY BRITISH RED CROSS

Daughters of Britain Circle Sent $355.

Miss Rachel Vickerman, secretary of the local Daughters of Britain Circle, has received a letter from the Central Prisoners of War Committee of the British Red Cross Society, acknowledging the receipt of £73.1.11. ($355.99), the proceeds from the benefit entertainment given by the local society some time ago. The letter is printed below:

June 11, 1918. Miss Rachel Vickerman, 62 Pearl Street, South Manchester, Conn., U. S. A.

Dear Madam: We have received from the British Red Cross society your letter enclosing an order for £73.1.11., proceeds of an entertainment held by the Daughters of Britain Circle in aid of British Prisoners of War in Germany, and our official receipt therefor is now enclosed.

The Central Committee desire to offer their sincere thanks for this generous and welcome contribution to their funds, firstly to the Daughters of Britain Circle, and also to all who took part in the entertainment. They are very glad to receive such valuable help, and wish that each one who has contributed to the result should note that his or her kindness is much appreciated. Yours faithfully, E. Heath-Jones, Financial Secretary.

MANCHESTER GIRL MARRIED IN BOSTON

Miss Zula Doane, Well-known Musician, Weds Lowell Man.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Zula Southworth Doane, formerly a Manchester girl, to Richard Stearns Sanders, son of Dr. Charles B. Sanders of Lowell, Mass. The marriage took place at three o'clock, yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Ascension, Boston, where the bride is organist and director, with Rev. Warner F. Gookin officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lula M. Doane. She was born in Manchester and lived here until she went to Boston several years ago to study music. She is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, a member of the American Guild of Organists and the National Association of Organists. She and her mother have made their home in Boston since her graduation from the conservatory.

The bridegroom is with the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation of Boston.

CHAUTAUQUA GUARANTORS TO MEET TONIGHT.

Superintendent Will Be Present to Explain Week's Plans.

The guarantors, and especially the committeemen, of this year's Chautauqua are urged to attend tonight's special meeting at Supt. Verplanck's office in the high school building. The superintendent of the Chautauqua, Harold G. Lawrence, came to town today and will be at tonight's meeting. The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock. The reports of the committees will be heard and it will be determined whether the town has gone over the top in the campaign for the sale of Chautauqua tickets.

THE DAILY GERMAN LIE AND HOW IT'S ANSWERED

A correspondent writes from St. Louis, Mo.: "I heard a man, a stranger, in the smoking car from Chicago the other night arguing that the French took Alsace-Lorraine from the Germans in the first place, and the Germans only took it back in 1870. Is this true?"

No, it is not true. The truth can easily be determined from the following documentary evidence:

Alsace-Lorraine is on the French side of the Rhine. In the year 52 B. C. the Scambrians, a German tribe, repelled to Julius Caesar: "The Rhine limits the Roman Empire. If Caesar deems unjust the incursions of the Germans into French territory, why does he pretend to give orders to us from the other bank 'of the river?' This reply is given in Caesar's De bello Gallico, IV, 16.

In the first century, A. D. Tacitus, the Roman historian, wrote, in De Moribus Germanorum, I, 1: "Germany is separated from the Gauls by the Rhine."

Alsace and Lorraine became part of the Empire of Charlemagne. After its dissolution they were in time incorporated in the Holy Roman Empire of the House of Austria. And on October 24, 1648, the Emperor of Austria signed the treaty of Munster by which he agreed: "The Emperor (of Austria), in his own name, as well as in that of the Royal House of Austria, and also in that of the Empire, cedes all rights, properties, domains, possessions, and jurisdictions, which have belonged up to the present as much to him as to Empire and to the House of Austria, on and over the town of Brisach, the Land-gravate of Upper and Lower Alsace, the Sundgau, and the provincial prefecture of the 10 Imperial towns situated in Alsace . . . and transfer them each and all to the very Christian King and the Kingdom of France . . . so that no emperor or prince of the House of Austria may or shall at any time claim or usurp any right or power over the said land."

Sixty years later the French allegiance of Alsace was so complete that on May 24, 1709, Baron de Schmettau, minister to the King of Prussia, confessed, in a memorandum presented at the conference of the Hague: "It is notorious that the inhabitants of Alsace are more French than the Parisians themselves, and that the King of France is so certain of their devotion to his service and his glory that . . . whenever it is rumored that the Germans intend crossing the Rhine they hurry in crowds to the banks to prevent or at least to dispute the crossing."

On July 7, 1789, the citizens of Strasburg, in Alsace-Lorraine, sent to the Estates General at Paris a congratulatory upon the establishment in power of that parliamentary body: "The citizens of Strasburg in the remotest part of the land share in the general rejoicings over the binding together of the representatives of the French nation of all ranks, classes, and dignities, into one body, full of power and light. We and our children will rest at ease in the shade of that majestic tree that can but take on new life."

After the Napoleonic wars, in 1815, the Rhenish Mercury reported: "The Alsations said that if their country were ceded to the Prussians they would leave it with their cattle after setting fire to the villages."

Bismarck himself said, in 1867: "We could not decently take Alsace for the Alsations have become Frenchmen, and wish to remain so."

"The annexation of Alsace-Lorraine," said the Frankfurter Zeitung on August 17, 1870. "is shrilly demanded by a section of (German) National Liberals and National Democrats. The powder acts as an intoxicant on the democratic parties. They invoke the brutal right of conquest and hardly trouble to dissimulate their claims. They do not ask, What do the Alsations and Lorrainers say?"

Moritz Busch in "Bismarck in the Franco-German War," quotes Bismarck as saying, on September 4, 1870:

"It is the fortresses of Metz and Strasburg which we want and which we will take. Elsas (he evidently referred to the strong emphasis laid on the German origin and the use of the German language by its inhabitants in the periodical press) is an idea of the professors." That is to say, Bismarck acknowledged that Alsace was not German—not properly called "Elsas"—in spite of the arguments of those German advocates whom he contemptuously called "the professors."

Against the annexation of Alsace-Lorraine by Germany the German newspaper, the Zukunft, protested on September 18, 1870: "They tell us that Alsace-Lorraine must be taken from France. There is no surer way of turning the coming peace into an armistice until the moment when France will have recovered sufficient strength to claim the restitution of the territory we are now taking. The most jingoistic Teuton will not dare to pretend that Alsations and Lorrainers are yearning for the joys of German rule."

August Bebel, the German socialist leader, in 1870, called the annexation "a fatal conquest, which would weigh heavily on all Franco-German relations, lead France into an alliance with Russia, and compel Germany to maintain greater and greater military forces."

Karl Marx in 1870, protested: "History will measure the chastisement, not according to the number of square miles conquered from France, but according to the greatness of the crime, which revived the policy of conquest during the second half of the nineteenth century."

The deputies of Alsace and Lorraine protested in the French National Assembly on March 1, 1871: "Delivered up to foreign domination in despite of all justice and by a hateful abuse of force . . . we declare once again null and void the treaty which disposes of us without our consent. Each and all of us retain forever the title to claim our rights. . . . Cut off at this hour from the common family, your brethren of Alsace and of Lorraine will preserve toward France, though she be absent from their hearths, the love of children, until the day when she shall come against to take her place there."

On February 18, 1874, in the German Reichstag, Edouard Teutsch read the following protest of the representatives to the Reichstag chosen by the people of Alsace-Lorraine: "In the name of the Alsations and Lorrainers, who have been betrayed by the treaty of Frankfurt, we protest against the abuse of power of which our country has been the prey. . . . Reason, no less than the most elementary principles, proclaims that such a treaty can not be considered valid. Citizens, possessing soul and intelligence; are not chattels in which it is possible to deal, and it is consequently unjustifiable to make use of them to negotiate a contract. . . . It was with the knife at her throat that bleeding, exhausted France signed our surrender. . . . In the name of the Alsations and Lorrainers, we wished to affirm their sympathies for their French patrie and their right to dispose of themselves."

And Bismarck, replying to that protest, said: "If we see among us the representatives of Alsace-Lorraine, it is not for the reason that we desire their company, but because we had need of the territory from which they come."

On July 10, 1890, the German Chancellor Caprivi confessed: "It is a fact that after 17 years of annexation the German spirit has made no progress whatever in Alsace."

In December, 1913, the Berlin Prefect of Police, wrote a letter to the Kreuz Zeitung, in which he spoke of German officers in Alsace-Lorraine as "stationed almost in enemy country."

In August, 1914, the general orders given to Baden troops entering Alsace-Lorraine said: "You are proceeding into enemy country, and you will treat the inhabitants accordingly."

In short, Alsace and Lorraine have been French since the beginning of recorded history; they were returned to France several hundred years ago; they remained French in allegiance through the French Revolution and the partition of Europe after the Napoleonic wars; they were annexed to Germany in 1871 by military power in spite of their own protests and those of the liberal leaders of Germany, and they have been treated as conquered enemies by Germany ever since.

The War Corner

News from Manchester Men Who Are Serving Uncle Sam On Land and Sea

THE EVENING HERALD, eager to gather every bit of news of our soldier boys, wherever they may be, invites its readers to contribute personals, portions of letters, and any information about them they may possess. Such portions of letters as are personal or which may give information to the enemy, will, of course, not be published.

Joseph McCann, of 102 High street, under date of June 7, has received the following letter from Dr. Hesselgrave, regarding Mr. McCann's two sons, Arthur and John, who are with the 101st Machine Gun Battalion in France:

Dear Mr. McCann:
It has been my great pleasure to be associated with your boys from time to time in the work of the battalion to which they belong. Only a little while ago your son John drove my helper and myself around, one beautiful Sunday afternoon in order that I might hold religious services for the boys at various places. It has a beautiful day and we enjoyed not only our services but our delightful trip together.

You will be glad to know that both your boys, also Henry McCann of the same battalion, are all well and seem to be enjoying their life at the front. I have no doubt they write you frequently and that you are kept well informed concerning their work. The long periods through which we are called upon to operate make it very difficult sometimes for the boys to write as frequently as they would. Sometimes they are in danger, and sometimes they are almost exhausted with their labor, and in either of these cases it is difficult for one to quiet down and write, even though he knows the people at home desire so much news from over here.

Our boys everywhere I have been, I have found doing the noblest kind of work and bearing their burdens with cheerfulness and courage.

With kind regards and best wishes for you and all your family, I remain,

Ever faithfully yours,
Charles E. Hesselgrave.

class mail can be sent from the States.

Pretty soon we won't be able to send a letter. But I suppose it is because of the rushing of troops over here.

Well, all the boys are looking well and are expecting to get paid today. We are at the front for five months now and it seems like a year to me! We are due to have a rest pretty soon, I think.

A few nights ago I thought we were in for a fight. The first thing you see is a rocket with a number of stars, that is a signal for a barrage.

Well, about three minutes later our artillery starts it and it is some racket. Pretty soon another signal goes up on our left. We thought we were going to be in it too, but it was just our luck not to. I found out later that it was a raid made by the boys of some of the other outfits. We are where the Americans had a battle not long ago.

Well, it is just a year since I got into the army and I have seen quite a lot of the world. I think I will close, hoping to hear from you soon. From your brother,

Lovingly,

Clarence.
P. S.—I will try and send you a few souvenirs that were made by French soldiers. I have one now, a small shell carved a little.

Editor, The Evening Herald:
I have been transferred from the U. S. S. Pennsylvania to the U. S. S. Indiana and I wish to have you send my daily copy of The Herald to the latter ship.

The Herald is a great friend of mine because it keeps me in touch with the old town and I wish to have my subscription renewed annually.

You will oblige me by sending me a bill for my subscription to date. Respectfully,

GIRLS ARE SUCCESS IN RAILROAD SHOP WORK.

Topeka, Kan., July 5.—The experiment of the employment of girl apprentices at the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway shops here has proven a decided success, the superintendent announces.

The force of thirty girls will be augmented from time to time. They are clad in overalls, with their hair done up and completely covered by a cap. The girls are working alongside men in the tool and upholstering departments of the shops. A rest room has been provided for them.

OUTSIDE OF THESE MINOR ILLS YOUTH WAS O. K.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 3.—The curiosity of Henry James who applied for enlistment in the U. S. Marine Corps here, remains unsatisfied.

James was taken before Dr. G. J. Hildebrand, the examining physician and, after the usual physical examination, was told that he failed to meet the requirements.

"What's the matter with me?" queried the prospective Hun destroyer.

"You've got scoliosis, phtists and synovitis," was the surgeon's reply.

The would-be Marine blushed to be told so frankly what prevented his becoming a Devil Dog and turned to go out when the doctor shot a few hot parting words after him.

"Not only that—you're troubled with slight astigmatism, otitis media and chronic furunculosis."

"Gosh," was all the lad could say as he fled in confusion.

HAS 8 SONS IN SERVICE.

Denver, Col., July 5.—Thomas D. Cain, Denver jeweler, holds the record for the Rocky Mountain region for number of sons in military service. Every one of his eight sons is in some branch of the military service. Five of them have gone to France, and the three others are in different cantonment camps.

THE FIRST TANK.

Who invented the tank?
"Easy," you say. "It was an American invention adopted by the British and then adopted by the Germans."

Wrong—you are thinking merely of the tractor machinery—the "caterpillar" arrangement by which it crawls over the ground. And the tank is chiefly and essentially an armored vehicle for use in warfare.

As every schoolboy knows, the ancient Britons dyed themselves blue and used a war chariot with curved knives attached to the hubs. These were armed vehicles. But the first armored vehicle used in battle was invented and perfected about 1420 by John Zizka, a Bohemian nobleman and follower of John Hus. Incidentally John's tanks also humbled a Hohenzollern.

You may never have heard of John Zizka, but he was undoubtedly the greatest military genius of his age and the father of modern tactics. Certainly nothing could be more modern than his idea for the tank. Indeed, he had some ideas, forgotten long ago, which might even be revived on the fields of France today.

Zizka was fighting the full power of Rome and, as it turned out, the whole of Europe joined a crusade against him. Zizka won. And that way he won was this:

Zizka's Novel Idea.
His fighting forces consisted almost entirely of townsmen, small farmers, and farm laborers used to the iron-mounted flail, the heavy club, and the short spear. With these forces he had to meet horsemen in heavy armor—the picked chivalry of Germany and Hungary. His answer was the armored wagon.

The German name for tank is as long as a snake—about 10 separately articulated syllables spoken like a burst of shrapnel. Zizka's tank also had a hard name—in several senses.

It was called the Hradba-zovova (pronounced as it is spelled), which means "wagon fort." The wagon fort was iron or steel clad and was drawn by horses. When the Bohemian tank corps was on the defensive, however, the wagons could be opened so that even the horses could find protection inside. Women and children, habituated to traveling with the Bohemian Army, also gathered within and often sent their arrows through the loopholes.

Used Artillery, Too.
Against an attack of horsemen the wagon forts were linked together by heavy iron chains, and in four-deep columns formed a practically invulnerable defense. On the offensive they were terrible engines, for they carried artillery. Zizka placed on the seats, next to the drivers, his picked marksmen, who soon became the terror of the Germans. Their pieces were the bombards then just coming into use. But the tank corps also carried a few heavy guns—unwieldy weapons which would be toys today, but which set up among the intrenchments of the iron wagons did great execution. When the wagon forts got to moving well across the smooth Bohemian fields Zizka used to direct his drivers on the end of the line to speed up, thus flanking the enemy—a maneuver which was considered extremely unfair in those days.

The Bohemian leader's greatest victory was at Zizka's Hill, near Prague. He had 10,000 troops arrayed on a steep slope and protected by wagon forts. Against him there were flung about 150,000 troops, led by a number of German princes, among whom the chief was Frederick of Hohenzollern, who had just become elector of Brandenburg. Frederick was a well-known robber baron of his period and the ancestor of the present overlord of Germany, Kaiser Wilhelm.

Well, Elector Frederick just walked up that hill and then walked down again. Incidentally great numbers of Germans were either killed or driven into the Vitava River by the Bohemians, who hurried down the hill after them in their wagon forts. Then, as today, the tank, properly maneuvered, proved irresistible.

HE'S 100 YEARS OLD, BUT HAS HIS REGISTRATION CARD.

Victoria, B. C., July 5.—William Cook, aged one hundred years, has his registration card on file here for military service. He says he is willing to do anything the Government requires to help win the war. As he believes he cannot be accepted in the military service he wants to go on the land and help raise food for the forces overseas. He came to the Coast from Quebec in 1848.

FEWER ARRESTS SINCE DRY.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 5.—Arrests have been decreased nearly 20 per cent since Indiana joined the ranks of the "dry" States on April 2 of this year, according to a statement issued by the local police department.

HURT BY MOTORCYCLIST.

Oakland Street Man Badly Injured at New London.

Charles Wheeler of Oakland street, who is employed at the Gmoton Iron Works at New London, met with a very serious accident last Saturday afternoon when he was run down by a motorcycle. He was returning from work and was about to cross the street when the accident happened. The motorcycle rushed past two or three automobiles and struck Wheeler, throwing him some 20 feet against the fender of another automobile. He was picked up semi-conscious and rushed to an emergency hospital where his injuries were attended to. It was necessary to take several stitches to close the cut over the left eye; his nose was broken and the left leg badly sprained. He was not able to return home until Wednesday night. He is planning to go to a Hartford hospital tomorrow to have the fracture in his nose reduced.

The motorcycle driver acknowledged that he was at fault and it is understood that he will pay the doctor's expenses, etc.

EVE AND SEPTEMBER MORN NOW WEARING 'HULA' GARB.
Denver, Col., July 5.—Eve and September Morn both had to don skirts before William Finneran, cow puncher, of Hudson, Col., could break into the American army. When Finneran applied at a Denver recruiting station for enlistment the examining officer rejected him because of a figure of Eve tattooed on one thigh and that of September morn on the other. Finneran told his troubles to a nearby tattoo artist, who by a few deft jabs of a needle put a Hula Hula garb on the offending figures. Finneran is now at Fort Logan.

CLASSIC EVANSTON, ILL., CUTS OUT ALL DOG MEAT.

Evanston, Ill., July 5.—Evanston has gone the Food Administration one better. The Food Administration has just decreed that one person may have but 1 1/4 pounds of beef per week; Evanston, which has just come out flatly against flats, has now decreed that Fido may have no steaks at all, for the duration of the war. Butchers have been told not to sell round steaks to women for Fido's food, whether Fido be an aristocrat, an autocrat, or even a "dog of war."

WEDDINGS BY TELEPHONES ARE NOT HELD AS LEGAL.

Chicago, Ill., July 5.—Swains in Illinois may not escape the throes of a wedding by the telephone. It may be easy and all that, and more pleasant than standing up before the parson while he ties the knot, but it is not according to the law, State's Attorney Hoyle told a Camp Grant youth recently, who sought to take a Chicago bride over the long distance.

CLEVELAND LAWYERS FORM CLUB TO DO FARM WORK.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 5.—The Farmhand Club is a new organization of Cleveland attorneys. Members have pledged themselves to go out and use a hoe and rake or other garden implement one whole day each week. And if farmers report a shortage of help the lawyers will lay down their books and go out and assist in the rush.

INDIANS PROVE PATRIOTISM.

Denver, Colo., July 5.—Denied a right to serve in the United States Army, one hundred Colorado Indians are doing their bit by working on the highways of this State. They are building modern roads over the trails blazed by their forefathers through forests of the Rocky Mountain region.

RECOVERS SIGHT AFTER 4 YEARS OF BLINDNESS.

Altoona, Pa., July 5.—C. D. Van Ormer, of Clover, Pa., totally blind for four years, has regained his sight. He has undergone twenty-two operations. While working in a foundry he lost his sight through an explosion of metal. Several weeks ago a cataract formed, upon removal of which he could see.

WOUNDED, HE GIVES BLOOD TO ANOTHER.

Paris, July 3.—A fine example of sacrifice has just been shown by Ethelbert Warfield, son of Dr. W. E. Warfield, of Chambersburg, Pa. Warfield, who is only 21 years old, was accidentally wounded upon June 21. While convalescent he learned that a wounded United States Marine needed blood to save his life, offered to submit to the transfusion himself. Luckily Warfield is recovering from the double shock.

NO DRINKS WHEN DANCING DRY CABARET DEFINITION.

Chicago, July 5.—In its war upon the cabaret, the City Council here has encountered what is known as the "dry" cabaret. After thorough investigation one of the Aldermen has given this definition for that variety: "A dry cabaret is one at which drinks are not served a patron while he or she is dancing."

PARTY FOR ENLISTED SAILOR.

John Moriarty, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Moriarty, who enlisted recently in the hospital unit of the navy, was given a surprise party by a number of his friends at his home at Main street and Middle Turnpike Tuesday evening. Twenty-six guests were present and a most enjoyable time was spent with games, music and dancing. Vocal solos were given by Miss Edna McCourt and Paul Clune and Miss Maude Moynihan favored with piano selections. Francis Miner and Philip Verplanck gave the other young people some lessons in the latest dance steps. During the evening Mr. Moriarty was given a wrist watch to take with him into the service. He will report for duty the first of next week.

NEW VERSE TO "AMERICA".

Los Angeles, July 3.—Ninety thousand school children of Los Angeles are singing a new verse to "America." It reads: "God save our noble men, Bring them safe home again, God save our men. Keep them victorious, Patient and chivalrous, They are so dear to us, God save our men."

NEW RIFLE PRODUCTION RECORD.

Washington, July 3.—New records in the production of both rifles and ammunition were announced by the War Department today. During the week ending June 29 plants manufacturing for the army turned out 55,794 modified Enfield and Springfield rifles and on June 27 all records for the production of revolver and rifle cartridges were shattered when 27,000,000 were turned out.

ASKED TO REGISTER BABY THO' IT LIVES IN GREECE.

Kansas City, Mo., July 5.—"I want to register my baby Helen," said Nicholas Kacgramus at the health registry office here. "Did your baby get skipped in the canvass?" asked the nurse. "No, she lives in Greece, but her mother will bring her over here as soon as I can get money to bring them to America. I am an American and want my baby to be one."

THE BABY GREEK GIRL IS THREE YEARS OLD.

FOOD WILL IN THE WAR

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT COTTAGE CHEESE?

Not as much as you should! Cottage, or "Dutch" cheese, is not a newfangled product. Our grandmothers knew it perhaps better than we do. Perhaps the reason why it has been so little appreciated is that it has been poorly made and unattractively served. There is nothing hard about the making of it, and in food value, it is superior to either lean meat or eggs. It is of wonderful value as a muscle, blood, and bone builder.

Why should our dairies throw away, or feed to stock, so much skim milk and buttermilk, which is available for human food if turned into cottage cheese. It is to be hoped that our local creameries will start the manufacture of this valuable by-product. It is certain to find a ready market.

Cottage cheese, combined with fruit, vegetables or nuts, may be made into very attractive and nourishing dishes. It will cut down your meat and egg bills. It is mild in flavor and blends well with highly flavored foods.

The plain, uncooked cheese may be combined with nuts, chopped pimientos, finely cut green peppers, diced cucumbers, or other crisp vegetables. Horse radish, onion juice, and parsley make a good combination. Salt the dry cheese, sprinkle with pepper, add the variations, and pack well into a buttered dish (earthen or enamel), chill, turn out on a platter, and serve in slices like veal loaf.

Mix with the cheese any left over ham or corned beef, finely ground; season the whole with made mustard, serve in slices or arrange in molded shapes on a border of lettuce.

Soups, to which cottage cheese has been added, are delicious, and more nutritious. Sauces taste less flat, when cottage cheese is added. Scrambled eggs, omelet, or scalloped eggs are improved by the addition of a little cottage cheese. It is useful as an "extender" of bulk for your dishes.

Meat-like dishes, such as cottage cheese loaves, sausages, cheese balls, croquettes, etc., are easily made and most palatable.

Salads, of any number of combinations of vegetables or fruits, are made most attractive with cottage cheese. Sandwich fillings, club sandwiches and pies, are other uses.

Even the whey is not thrown away, and is made into lemonade, and whey honey.

Try these dishes once, and you will be a faithful consumer of one of the cheapest, most palatable, and highly nutritious foods.

--OPENING--
Saturday JULY 6th and continuing until JULY 16th.

Most Connecticut people understand what this sale is but for the benefit of those who have never attended one we would say that these semi-annual events are our outlet for the great number of used Pianos accumulated in the course of a six months business.

Most of these Pianos are frankly second hand, having been taken in exchange as part payment toward new instruments. Some have been rented, some are just a little shop-worn. All have been thoroughly examined and where necessary have been repaired by our workmen. You can

Practice True Thrift

by buying one of these guaranteed instruments at the reduced price.

There is another strong reason for buying now. It is a very great question whether in six months there will be any pianos made. Owing to the shortage of all materials and labor the piano manufacturers have already reduced their output one third. In fact the only reason the factories are running today is that the government regards the musical industry as one of the essential industries in sustaining the morale of our people during the present crisis.

The people of this country cannot live without music. It is the joy, the means of relaxation and the only solace for many a lonely soul. No other means will drive away care so quickly. There should be a musical instrument in every home.

This Sale brings a good Piano within the reach of scores who otherwise could not afford a Piano of any kind.

As you know we will sell any of these Pianos on a monthly instalment plan if you prefer. If you are not quite ready for your Piano you can make a deposit on it and we will hold for future delivery. No extra charge for delivery anywhere in the state. No interest if payments are made as agreed.

An adjustable chair and scarf FREE with each Piano
