ACCIDENT ON TRANSPORT DURING TERRIFIC STORM

700 Iron Bunks Collapse During Gale—Outfit Aboard Sustained 1,000 Casualties in War.

Boston, May 14.—With the usual tooting of whistles and cheers of welcome from official committees and civilians the transport F. J. Luckenbach docked today at Commonwealth Pier with the 126th Infantry, less the third battalion. There were 25 officers and 2,308 men in the regiment commanded by Colonel W. T. Mollison.

N. C-4 STARTS FOR TREPASSY; HUGE NAVY DIRIGIBLE FOLLOWS

It was at this time that Colonel Joseph Westledge, who took the outfit across and led it through the war, collapsed and died of exhaustion. The mechanics toiled over the planes all night. The N.C.-3 was at the stern of the Aroostook until midnight while her engines were being inspected and every inch of her hull and wings examined.

C-5 STARTS.

New York, May 14.—The United States Navy dirigible, C-5, called "the Blimp" left at 8 o'clock from Montauk Point, L. I., for Newfoundland.

A message was sent to Commander Maxfield at Washington, informing him that the C-5 had started and that everything went off in tip-top shape. The station here asked Washington to report the departure to the United States cruiser Chicago, which is at St. Johns, awaiting the "Blimp's" arrival.

Every "Gob" at the naval station was ordered out at 5 o'clock this morning in readiness for the flight. Several men had been working on the balloon all night, following her test flight to New London yesterday afternoon.

At 5 o'clock the doors of the hangar were moved back and at 7:17 a blast from the siren signalled all hands. The men piled from their mess hall with a cheer and rushed across the grass to the hangar, where they lined up on each side of the dirigible.

300 "Gobs" Needed. Lieutenant, Junior Grade, Ralph Norris, of Chelsea, Mass., gave orders to the men as 300 "gobs" assisted at the launching. Ten thermos bottles, containing coffee and water and boxes containing sandwiches and the navy stand-by—beans—were first placed aboard.

At 8 o'clock sharp the balloon rose in the air, headed south, then headed directly north with the south wind at its tail, while a big shout went up from the hundred gathered at the station. She was flying at an altitude of about 500 feet when she disappeared to the northeast.

MAY START TODAY. Trepassy, N. F., May 1.—Unless all indications fail, the two American seaplanes, N.C.-1 and N.C.-3, will take the air late this afternoon in the first attempt to cross the Atlantic by air.

Day Long Awaited. This is the day for which the United States navy has been waiting since Secretary of the Navy Daniels approved the daring plan for the trans-ocean flight, and the men seemed to sense it as they worked quietly about the big airships.

At daybreak the wind was right. Unless there is a radical change in conditions the start is certain. Were it not for the notoriously tricky weather of Newfoundland it might be asserted positively that both flyers will jump off this evening.

From Captain Crenshaw of the flagship Aroostook, down to the stokers in the holds, every man in the American flotilla is praying for a westerly wind by evening and clear air over the ocean outside.

The mechanics toiled over the planes all night. The N.C.-3 was at the stern of the Aroostook until midnight while her engines were being inspected and every inch of her hull and wings examined.

Lieutenant Commander Bellinger was busy with charts in his cabin for his N.C.-1 was at her moorings with all arrangements complete and a naval guard keeping watch over her.

If the N.C.-4, which suffered from engine trouble last week on the initial hop to Halifax, arrives here from Chatham, Mass., immediately after the departure of the N.C.-1 and N.C.-3 she may follow across the ocean by herself, hoping to join her sister ships at the Azores.

The destroyers which have put to sea to mark the air route for the American seaplanes, must be refueled within six days and it is thought improbable that the navy will keep them all at sea for the attempt by one seaplane if the other two have completed their "hop" to the Azores.

J. HENRY SEEKS JOHN KING'S PLACE. New Haven, May 14.—That J. Henry Roraback is seeking the place of John T. King, on the Republican National Committee and will probably be named, was stated on what seems to be excellent authority here today. Mr. Roraback will step down as state chairman and will be succeeded by Colonel Robert O. Eaton, of North Haven, is the belief here.

PARADE. Another showing tonight of the play that has taken Manchester by storm. "The Squaw Man". TOMORROW—The famous WILIAM BERRON.

DIAMOND NOTES

Mike Regan is doing good work for the Reds.

Carl Mays never was in better trim in his life than right now.

Herb Hall, the Kansas City pitcher, is suffering from a bad arm.

Baseball pools will not be allowed to operate in Cleveland this season.

Ed Konetchy, formerly of the Braves, is now a member of the Brooklyn club.

Fabrique, the former association player, will play with the Seattle club this season.

McGraw thinks he has a great young pitcher in Jesse Winters. The youngster is quick to learn.

The McHenry who is pitching for Sacramento and doing it quite well is a California youth, a former collegian.

Southworth, former A. A. player, now with the Pittsburghs, will occupy the cleanup position for the Pirates this season.

Tim Hendryx, former big leaguer, now with the Colonels, will be a power for the club this season if early games are any criterion.

With the advent of Grover Hartley into the lineup of the Columbus Senators, he will be the only playing manager in the association.

Steve Yerkes has been appointed captain of the Indians by Manager Hendricks. Yerkes is one of the most brash ball tossers in the association.

The Colonels have an Italian in their lineup in the person of Mike Cerest. He has yet to learn the fine points of the game but is eager to learn.

Sunday baseball in New York state has stirred up some of the old spirit that kept the New York State league alive and there are hints of attempts to reorganize the circuit.

Baseball managers with stars back from the Shipbuilding league will be lying awake nights now trying to think of something they can put on the ball that will make it look like a rivet.

Nick Cullop, pitcher secured by the St. Louis Browns last year in the big deal with the New York Yankees, but who refused to report, has been heard from to the effect that he may come back.

Walter Leverenz, southpaw pitcher on whom the Salt Lake club was depending much for the coming season, has been discharged from military service, but does not seem inclined to return to baseball.

MAISEL GOES TO BALTIMORE

Player Once Hailed as Star Passes Out of American League With Short Paragraph.

Fritz Maisei, once hailed as a possible star, and with all the signs of being one, passed out of the American league with a three-line paragraph. Maisei's friends say he was ruined when Bill Donovan tried to make an outfielder of him. Others more harsh say his indifference and his money-madness finished his career as a big leaguer. Take your choice. Maisei figured in the big St. Louis-New York trade a year ago. Of all the players

Fritz Maisei.

Involved Shocker and Gedeon still are with the Browns and Pratt is with the Yankees. Plank and Cullop never reported. Nunamaker was shipped away by the Browns during the winter and now Maisei goes.

NEW UNIFORMS OF YANKEES

Do Not Differ From Toggery of Last Year With Exception of Stockings—Stripe Missing.

The uniforms of the Yankees in the 1919 championship race will not differ from the toggery of last year except in the stockings. The white stripe which has been in favor with the owners for some time past will be missing and there will be only one color, blue. The home uniform will be white, with a pin stripe, and the traveling suits will be of gray. Any player who was in either branch of the service during the war will wear a chevron on the left sleeve.

"KNOT-HOLE GANG" FAVORED

Community Owners of St. Louis Cardinals Strong for Plan of Interesting Small Boys.

The community owners of the St. Louis Cardinals are still strong for the original plan of interesting small boys in ball games and at a meeting held arrangements were made to continue the plan of admitting the "knot-hole gang" to a certain section of the Cardinal park on free tickets, with various boys' welfare organizations in charge of the distribution of the tickets.

School Frocks for Spring

The advent of Lent finds mothers devoting their time to spring outfitting for the children in addition to their own, which is a more difficult matter. But the quiet of Lent allows time to consider things. Spring has already been heralded, for weeks, in the shop, by displays of children's frocks made of wash fabrics, for school and other wear. Nothing startlingly new in fabrics has distracted attention from our old-time favorites for children's wear, but the season is distinguished by the unexcelled excellence in design of the new garments for the younger generation and by attractive and refined colorings in the materials used for making them. Plaid and plain gingham and chambrays still lead in the practical procession of cotton goods, followed by percales, poplins and other heavy weaves. It is a satisfaction to be told by buyers that these American goods are dyed with American dyes in colors that are permanent as well as soft and pleasing. A school dress, for a girl anywhere from twelve to seventeen, shown in the picture above, is a combination of a plain color with white in yoke, buttons and simulated button holes. The styles for girls of this age—the "flappers" that still like to romp, have run to plain skirts and overgarments more or less like the middie or sweater coat. Big flat pearl buttons may be considered a fad of the season and a very pretty means of simple ornamenting that may be allowed on dresses for school and play. With the serviceable, low-heeled, canvas shoes we can see in this outfit a garb that is all right for tennis, basketball, and various other pastimes, as well as for schoolroom and street wear.

DESTROYERS ON ATLANTIC AWAITING N. C. PLANES

Equipped With Star Shells and Signals. Eight Feet High—Expect Start to Be Made Today.

Ponta Delgada, Azores, May 14.—Twenty-five destroyers, consecutively numbered, starting from the west, are now waiting for the start of the trans-Atlantic flight from Trepassey, which is expected today.

The destroyers are equipped with star shells, radio apparatus and signals eight feet high. The number of each destroyer is painted on its side and outlined in electricity at night so the seaplanes can spot their location exactly at night.

Weather conditions at this end of the flight were entirely favorable today. The aviators are expected to rest aboard the Melville before re-

A SUCCESSFUL HOSPITAL.

Out in Rochester, Minnesota, there is the greatest hospital in the world.

This hospital founded by the world known Mayo brothers became famous, not because of the skill of the Mayos, for medical authorities agree there are a dozen surgeons as skillful as they and several, among them the late Dr. Murphy, of Chicago, head and shoulders above them; not because of its equipment because there are many smaller hospitals just as well equipped; not because of its location as it is miles from anywhere.

St. Mary's hospital in Rochester became world famous because of just one thing and that was its absolute freedom from favoritism.

Every train arriving this morning deposited large quotas of race fans. Weather conditions were just about right, but it is improbable that speed records will be shattered or the track record time—1:51—for the distance of the race—one mile and a furlong—will be equalled as performance examination shows that the course is not fast but in a condition that experts describe as "good."

More Americans here. In making comparisons of the character of the population of Manchester before the war with that of the present day it is found that the foreign shade is lighter and the American shade is deeper than it was four or five years ago.

During this period strong influences have been brought to bear upon those foreigners already here to Americanize them.

Interest is tense, hotels are crowded to overflowing. Hundreds of persons arriving during the night were unable to secure accommodations and the one best bet is that other hundreds that journey to the historic course will not even get a bird's eye view of the main attraction.

THE TALE OF A HAT.

Smooth Performance of Musical Comedy Makes a Hit With Large Audience.

"The Tale of a Hat," as presented at the Eighth District Assembly hall last evening by a company of nine for the benefit of Ever Ready Circle of King's Daughters, made a decided hit with an audience that filled the hall.

The play is a musical comedy with just a trace of a plot. It starts as a choir rehearsal and develops into a social affair with the action centering around a new hat which the leading soprano has just purchased.

The action in the play is fairly evenly divided between the eight members of the choir and opportunity is given for the introduction of a number of catchy solos and choruses, which were heartily received.

The company has been asked to repeat the play in a nearby town at an early date and it is probable that they will do so. Much of the credit for the smooth action of last night's performance is due to the careful drilling of Miss Harriet Treat.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS TO DECORATE NEW GRAVES.

At a meeting of the United Spanish War Veterans last night, it was voted to ask all relatives of those who died in the service of the United States in the war with Germany to send in the place of burial of such soldiers, so that on Decoration day their graves may be decorated with flowers, and a flag placed on each grave.

The names and cemetery where the graves are located should be sent any time before May 23rd to Commander Thomas E. Murphy, Ward Cheney Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, 24 West street, South Manchester, Conn.

It was also voted at last night's meeting to turn out in a body in Saturday's Welcome Home parade. Members of the camp should wear their company hats, dark suits and badges.

POLICE COURT

George Klotz of Hartford Road was in the police court this morning on a charge of non-support. He was brought to court on complaint of his wife. They have not lived together for five years and apparently Mrs. Klotz has been working and supporting herself and her child.

Mrs. Klotz said that the reason that she did not live with her husband was that he was cruel to her, and abused her repeatedly. Klotz was found guilty and ordered to pay his wife $6 a week or go to jail for 30 days. He declined to pay.

TO SELL DOUGHNUTS.

At a meeting of the local Salvation Army corps last evening, the women of the corps agreed to make 100 dozen doughnuts to sell during the Welcome Home celebration Saturday. Any other women, desiring to help in this work, may send donations of doughnuts to the citadel Friday night or Saturday morning.

Salvation Army workers will be on the job all Saturday afternoon and evening and it is hoped the public will buy generously. The price per doughnut will depend on the generosity of the buyer and all the proceeds will go to the Salvation Army Home Service Fund.

HOW JANE HELPED UNCLE SAM

By Althea Nightingale.

The writer of this story, a little girl in the Everett School of Boston, has worked hard to prepare something suitable for use in connection with the work of selling War-Savings Stamps. Her idea of raising flowers to be given to wounded soldiers, as well as the plan of a vegetable garden for the conservation of food, will doubtless be adopted by many other girls and boys.

Once upon a time there was a little girl whose name was Jane Clarke. She lived in a little village outside of Boston.

Jane was always trying to help her country. One day she was sitting on the door-step wondering what to do. She said, "I have bought Thrift Stamps and War Savings, but that is not enough." She looked around the yard. Just as she was going into the house, feeling very discouraged, a bright idea struck her. Jane jumped up, running in the house as fast as her little legs could carry her.

"Mother! Mother!" cried the excited child. Her mother came down stairs and Jane sat down by the fire-place to tell her story.

"Mother," she began, slowly and distinctly, "I have bought Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps. I think I can do more than that. I thought perhaps you would let me plant a garden in the back yard. Will you?" "Why, yes," answered her mother smiling.

The next afternoon Jane began working in the garden. There was one place in the yard which she had not used. Her mother told her that she might use that to plant some flowers.

It did not take long for the flowers and the vegetables to grow. Little Jane took them to the Food Conservation Club and gave them to the people there to can. After the people canned them they put Jane's name and age on the jars and sent some of them to Washington, and the rest Jane sold and bought Thrift Stamps. She took some flowers to the camp and gave them to the wounded soldiers who had been fighting "over there."

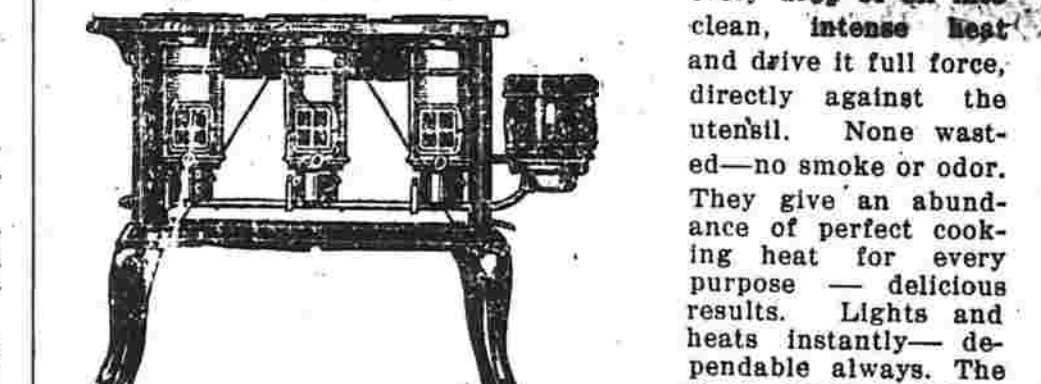

One day Jane received a letter from Uncle Sam, thanking her for her thriftiness, and along with the letter came a button which said, "Thrift is Jane Clarke, 12 years old, is a little patriot."

There is no better way to compound the interest on your Liberty Bonds than to reinvest the coupons in War Savings Stamps.

HAD CHILDREN ENOUGH GAVE FOURTH BABE AWAY

Strange things are happening these days and one of the strangest yet happened in one of Manchester's outlying districts recently. As the story goes, and it is said to be an absolute fact, there was a couple who had four children and they were expecting another arrival in their family.

The prospective father was telling a Hartford friend of the coming event. It so happened that the Hartford man and his wife had no children and he expressed a desire for a child. The Manchester man calmly told the Hartford man he might have his baby when it came.

In due time the baby arrived in the Manchester home. When it was three days old, the Hartford couple came out here, the local couple gave them the child and they took it back to Hartford with them.

EXPERT GIVES ADVICE TO LOCAL CHICKEN RAISERS

Professor From Agricultural College Tells Things to Do and Not to Do in Hatching and Raising Chicks.

At the last meeting of the Manchester Poultry Club, Professor Kirkpatrick of the Connecticut Agricultural College gave a timely talk on hatching and rearing young chicks. He said that brooding by artificial methods should conform as much as possible to nature's methods of brooding. For instance, darkened hoovers are best no matter what sort of a brooder is used. A little chick under a hen surely uses a darkened hoover under which he is secluded and can rest better than out in the open; therefore a curtain should be around the main hoover, low enough to darken the under part and high enough for the chick to readily find its way underneath it. This will not impair the ventilation at all and will give the chick the seclusion it craves. Brooders there are today that will brood from 25 chicks to 5,000 but the professor deems that from 200 to 300 should be the maximum under one hoover for best results. Such a hoover can be placed in a house 8 feet by 12 feet with preferably a coal burning heating apparatus, as they are perfectly safe from fire hazard, whereas oil burners are treacherous. Once gasoline burners were used but explosions soon put them out of commission.

Chilling Kills Many Chicks.
Chilling is one great cause of mortality among little chicks and with incubator chicks it happens generally during hatch or immediately after. As chicks die in numbers the caretaker attributes it to some disease when it is simply lack of care while hatching and while the chick is in its first stages of growth. The professor told of one case where 150 chicks died from 180 hatched, from no other cause than chilling at hatch which was occasioned by the opening of the incubator while the hatchings was in operation.

Green Food Necessary.
Another great mistake is not supplying green food from the start; away out in the country he found a flock of chicks dying like flies which were confined in a little barren yard without one spear of grass or green stuff anywhere to be found in this inclosure, while all around was fine pasture aplenty. Why these chicks were confined was because of a little 30 by 30 garden patch which garden patch was running out to free range and all one could raise on it wouldn't have amounted to as much as one good well grown chick. Moral: let the chicks on free range and fence the garden. Leg weakness, another trouble, is caused by keeping confined indoors. It matters not whether on a board, concrete or dirt floor, if chicks are not allowed out-of-doors on the ground they will develop leg weakness if confined indoors longer than 10 days after hatch.

Now soon rose bugs will be flying and it is advisable to keep chicks confined where they cannot eat these poisonous bugs as a crop-full of rose bugs will kill a chick of over two pounds weight and is especially fatal to chicks from two to six weeks of age. There are about ten days when these pests are active and fly and a poultryman should be observant and watch out for them.

The professor advised making as quick growth of the chicks as was compatible with good health and believes sour milk the best one feed

RED CROSS ROOMS TO CLOSE FOR SUMMER

Work on Refugee Garments to Be Resumed in Fall on Large Scale.

At a meeting of the executive committee of Manchester Chapter, A. R. C. it was decided to close the workrooms from June 1st to Sept. 1st. All sewing should be completed at once as well as all completed knitted articles. The present allotment of 1,000 child's undershirts, 200 girls' dresses, 200 women's aprons, 25 boys' blouse suits and 25 layettes will have been completed and shipped by June 1st.

The chapter appreciates the steady, untiring work of its auxiliaries and of many of its individual workers. It had been thought that this allotment would be the last to be received from the Atlantic Division, but new advices state that if chapters feel obliged to close for the summer, it should be with the full understanding that work will begin in the fall on a large scale. Refugee knitting is said to be most urgent and those in charge of the knitting department in this chapter are asking knitters to take out material for summer work to be returned about Sept. 1st.

The knitting to be done is all for refugee women and children, sweaters for children, shawls for women, and scarfs and stockings for children.

All service questionnaires should be filled out and returned by May 20th. Once more, all workers in any department are asked to fill out these blanks. If you worked 800 hours you are entitled to a certificate, but if the number of hours has been less, the local chapter still asks that the blanks be filled out that the names may be on record.

THREE MAN LEAGUE.

G. Rowsell of Come Backs the Star Monday Night.

G. Rowsell of the Come Backs was the star of the evening in the games of the Three Man League at the Rec Monday night. He rolled better than 100 in each game, making high single of 105 in the first game and finishing with a three string of 310. Joe Pettjean of the Comers, as since the opening of the Three Man league season, bowled all by himself last night. Joe is game, any way, and is deserving of much credit for sticking to the job without any partners. The Come Backs made a total pinfall of 865, against Joe's 216.

In the other match, the Don't Cares won three straight games from the Has Beens, the total pin-falls being 76 to 713. Straw made high single of 97 and Ferris, high three string of 266. The summary:

DEMPSEY EXPECTED TO HAVE STRANGLER LEWIS TEACH HIM WRESTLING TRICKS.

Toledo, Ohio, May 14.—Jack Dempsey is expected to arrive here today from Chicago and will immediately take up the task of conditioning himself for his battle for the world's heavyweight championship fight with Jess Willard in this city July 4.

Dempsey is motoring over from Chicago where he and his manager, Jack Kearns, have been dickering with Ed, (Strangler) Lewis, who is wanted in Dempsey's training group to teach Jack how to use his shoulders and elbows. Dempsey evidently expects the champion to hold on to rough things in the clinches, says he wants to master a few of the wrestler's tricks so he can shake the champion off—if necessary.

Work on the arena in which the fight will be staged and which will be an eight-sided affair with the last rows of seats about 300 feet from the ring, will probably be started the latter part of the week. A Toledo firm is expected to land the contract today.

HERO RETURNS TO FIND PARENTS DEAD OF FLU.

Mansfield, Ohio, May 14.—Lieutenant Edwin C. Richardson was duty sergeant in Company M, One Hundred and Forty-sixth Infantry when the soldiers left Mansfield. He went across and fought during the war with honors coming to him for his faithfulness and bravery. But while on a transport returning home his father and mother both died of the influenza at their home in Redlands, Cal. He came to Mansfield to enlist because of his close friendship with Captain A. I. Harrington, of this city.

PASTORS IN MASON CHAIRS.

Great Barrington, Mass., May 14.—For the first time in the history of any Masonic lodge in Western Massachusetts, all the chairs were filled with clergymen at the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary meeting of Cincinnati Lodge of Masons in this town. The lodge conferred a master's degree upon Rev. J. E. Eason, of Chatham, N. Y., and had on exhibition its original charter that bears the signature of Paul Revere, of Boston.

FATHERLESS SON AND SONLESS FATHER JOIN.

Rev. P. J. O. Cornell Takes Soldier Nephew Into His Family.

Joseph Hesselberg of New York, who served through the war with the 77th Engineers, has just been discharged from service and has come to Manchester to make his home with his uncle, Rev. P. J. O. Cornell of the Swedish Lutheran church. Both of Hesselberg's parents are dead and Mr. Cornell lost his two sons during the war. They expect to derive mutual comfort from making their home together.

TAGGING THE BASES.

While Grover Cleveland Alexander was worrying about what burglars did with $8,000 worth of Friend Wife's jewels, the Giants robbed him of nine hits and a 3 to 2 game.

With no missing jewels to keep him awake, Benny Kauff went sound asleep a mile off second, was tagged out and then bawled out by indignant Giant fans.

Ed Konetchy's big war club saved the day for the Dodgers in an eleven inning go with the Reds. Koney patted in the tying run for the winning tally.

The Browns met Mr. Robertson, a White Sox recruit, spanked him for five bingles and two runs in two innings and trimmed the Comiskeyites two to one.

The Braves bunched three of their four mis-plays in one round, giving the Cards an extra tally after which they hauled down the scrap by collecting hits off Nehf.

"RAINBOW BIRD" MYSTERY.

Boston, May 14.—A "rainbow bird" was brought to the fish pier here by the steam trawler Walrus. The bird flew aboard the fisherman exhausted off Sable Island. It has a black body, red bill, yellow legs, and blue-spotted head. The bird is about the size of a partridge and has long claws. It has mariners and naturalists guessing.

LATEST ENGLISH FAD.

London, May 14.—The latest fad among English society women is to be photographed in bed. The custom is being imported from France where fashionable women are accustomed to receiving visitors while in bed. "Boudoir calling" is expected to follow the fashion of having one's picture taken while in night dress, reclining in bed.

MAIN OFFICE GIRLS WIN AGAIN.

In a close and interesting bowling contest at No. 1's alleys last evening the Main Office Girls defeated the Velvet Mill Office Girls in four strings by 17 pins. In the early stages the Main Office Girls piled up a lead which was of a decided advantage later in the game for the longer they bowled the better the Velvet Mill Girls knocked 'em down and had the contest run another game the result may have been different. As it was the girls from the Velvet mill office threw scars enough into the Main Office Girls for one night, causing them to hold their breath in the last strings.

Miss Ruth Ballisep of the Velvet Mill Girls scored high single of 88 and also high four-string of 297. The summary follows:

HERO DIRECTS MEN FOR HOURS DESPITE WOUNDS.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 14.—The hero of the Thirtieth Division, but of the entire army in the eyes of the officers and men of the One Hundred and Seventeenth Regiment, was Captain David W. Lillard, of Etowah, Tenn., according to Colonel Cary F. Spence, of this city. Captain Lillard directed his men under fire for several hours after he had been hit by two magazines of fourteen bullets each which tore his side and abdomen horribly. After he was unable to keep his feet he directed the advance of Company L from a shell hole. His father, Colonel Lillard, commanded the old Third Tennessee, which was with Jeff Davis when peace was declared.

One of the hard luck stories of the future will be that of the man who neglected to buy victory notes when they were selling at par.—Washington Star.

GEORGE SISLER IS BETTER ALL-ROUND PLAYER THAN BABE RUTH, SAYS RICKEY

In an epoch of tottering thrones Babe Ruth, all-round monarch of the diamond, would better be looking after the props of his empire.

This player, Rickey avers, can out-hit, out-pitch, outrun and outthink Babe Ruth and play any or all of them better.

Sisler—yes, that's the fellow Rickey has in mind—a soft-spoken fighter, a velvet-powder tiger when roused.

It is in his opinion that Sisler is a player whose powers of concentration (according to Rickey) enable him to fill not only acceptably but in a masterly style any position assigned to him.

It Pays to Advertise. "Babe Ruth fills the public eye," Rickey said, "not only because he is a great pitcher and hitter, but because the fullest use has been made of him to advertise his strength in these two departments.

Look back at his record if you don't believe this. As a batter and all around player, I leave the records to show his ability as compared with Babe. He batted .287 last year to Ruth's .297; he led the league in stealing bases in an abbreviated season, distancing Cobb and the other stars of the American league.

Fourth in Fielding. "He was fourth first baseman in fielding percentage," as an outfielder he showed wonderful promise. His great covering ability, fine throwing arm and daring would make him a star at any position, where Ruth would be merely a defensive filler-in, tolerated because of his hitting.

"Why is it that Ruth is so much more prominent than Sisler, and draws twice as much salary as the St. Louisan? The answer is that Sisler has not been exploited beyond 50 per cent of his publicity value, and not more than 70 per cent of his playing efficiency."

HERRMANN CAN LEAVE GAME A WEALTHY MAN

Has Been With Major League for Seventeen Years.

Prexy of Cincinnati Reds Easily Can Take More From Pastime Than He Put In It—Was Regarded as Expert in Politics.

Baseball has produced some wealthy citizens among those who entered the game on what might be called the "ground floor," or on a "white check," as they sometimes say in racing circles.

If Herrmann lives and holds his job with the Porokville club until next August 9 he will have served 17 years in the toils of a major league.

Herrmann worked in the Cincinnati club when John T. Brush sold the outfit to George D. Cox and Max and Julius Fleischman.

"The difference between our eyes," he often told her, "would justify me in adopting you. But if I should, then some other lucky man would come along, marry you and I would be the loser."

Though sixty-two when he died and a man who unquestionably showed the effects of a long life on Broadway, Goodwin had not abandoned his life's determination to be the husband of a woman who loved him, and the father of a child by that woman.

But the desired combination failed to materialize. On the contrary, Goodwin dived again and again into the clouds of matrimony, only to emerge each time with a "never again" attitude.

The mention of wife No. 5, Miss Moreland, recalls most vividly the attempt of certain writers to convince the public that Goodwin's death was hastened by the news of the second marriage of his fifth wife.

"Nat always appreciated Miss Moreland," she told the writer. "In fact, in his book, he referred to her as 'all woman.' But he was wise enough to know that when two persons cannot agree, they should separate.

"Mr. Goodwin's death was due to the natural breaking down of a wonderful constitution which had been abused. Of course, the episode with his eye added to his weakened condition. But his health was simply undermined and not, as some writers said, that his broken heart led to his death.

It is said that Jimmy Burke, the manager of the St. Louis Browns, has discovered a real find in the person of Eugene Robertson, the recruit shortstop from the University of St. Louis.

The Giants have always been a singing ball club. They are still a singing ball club. But the old giant quartet of Fletcher, Schupp, Zimmerman and Robertson has been broken up.

GOODWIN THE MAN AND GOODWIN THE ACTOR WERE FOREIGN TO ONE ANOTHER, ACCORDING TO INTERESTING STORY TOLD BY SWEETHEART

Nathaniel Carl Goodwin, the man and author; "Nat" Goodwin, actor, good fellow and good for the press.

"Between the first and last half of the foregoing sentence there is, as we read, a semi-colon. To many it is but a mere bit of punctuation, but to those who knew him this particular semi-colon represents a deep and wide chasm in which lurk most interesting secrets in the life of one of the greatest comedians of modern times, the late Nat C. Goodwin.

The reading public knows a bit of Goodwin's nuptial matrimonial ventures and of how, when asked by the census taker whether he was married, single or divorced, he replied: "Yes, sah." But the "inside history," as some writers term the "human interest" part of a story, remained unrevealed until after Goodwin's death.

"Perhaps I would have resented such an attitude had not my affections for him been mingled with sympathy. For hours and hours he has talked to me about a home and what it would mean to him.

"I have been with him on several occasions when he was being entertained by friends while on the road. On such occasions when there were children in the family Nat would usually be found down on his knees of the floor or on the ground having the time of his life playing hobby-horse or some other childhood game.

"Each had a pocket bulging with candy and each had a seat' that afternoon at the matinee. Later, Nat again disappeared and we afterward learned he was 'doing the town' with his newly found friends.

"(To be concluded tomorrow).

Rhubarb's Acid Stalks Make Good Substitute For Fruit

The rhubarb in your garden ready for use now has many possibilities. In addition to the delicious rhubarb sauce and rhubarb pie, there are many other ways of serving it. For some of these ways recipes have been tested in the experimental kitchen of the Office of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. If you make use of them, they will lengthen your list of favorite spring dishes and afford your family more opportunity for saying "That's fine! You're a wonderful cook."

Half a dozen clumps of rhubarb, whose acid stalks make a good substitute for fruit, should provide a supply all summer for a family of average size.

Here are some tested recipes:

Rhubarb Souffle.
4 cups rhubarb. 1 cup sugar.
1 tablespoon fat. 1-2 cup milk.
2 tablespoons flour. 2 eggs.
2 tablespoons sugar.

Wash rhubarb and cut into small pieces. Add only as much water as is necessary to prevent burning. Add 1 cup sugar when rhubarb has reached the boiling point, and boil until well cooked and tender. Pour off the juice and put the pulp in bottom of greased baking dish. Melt fat, add flour, and gradually hot milk. When well thickened pour into yolks of eggs beaten until thick and mixed with 2 tablespoons sugar. Cool, cut, and fold in whites of eggs beaten stiff. Pour mixture over rhubarb and bake in slow oven 40 minutes or until firm. Serve at once with the rhubarb juice as sauce. This recipe will make 6 average servings.

Rhubarb Baked With Raisins.
Wash rhubarb and cut in half-inch slices. For a pound of rhubarb take 1-2 cup raisins and 1 cup sugar. Cover raisins with boiling water and let cook until the pulp is tender and the water evaporated to 2 or 3 tablespoons. Sprinkle rhubarb, raisins and sugar in a baking dish and let cook in the oven or on top of the range until rhubarb is tender but not broken. Prunes may be used instead of raisins.

Rhubarb Marmalade.
1-2 cups unpeeled rhubarb.
3-4 cup shredded pineapple.
3-4 cup ground carrot.
1-4 cups sugar.
1 lemon.
1 teaspoon salt.

Cook carrot in enough boiling salted water to cover. When tender, add shredded pineapple and rhubarb cut in slices 1-4 inch thick and lemon quartered lengthwise and cut in thin slices. Cook ingredients slowly, stirring as little as possible until thick. This recipe makes three glasses marmalade.

Rhubarb Gelatine Pudding.
2 tablespoons gelatine.
1-2 cup cold water.
2 cups rhubarb juice.
1 cup boiling water.
1 cup sugar.
1-2 teaspoon lemon extract.

Make rhubarb juice by cooking four cups of diced rhubarb with one cup of sugar until tender; then strain off the juice. Soak the gelatine in cold water five minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar and stir until dissolved, then add rhubarb juice. Strain into a mold dipped in cold water and chill. This amount will make six average servings.

This recipe is particularly useful as a means of using the juice when a dish requiring only the pulp of the rhubarb is made. If desired it may be served with diced fruit.

Rhubarb Bavarian Cream.
2-3 tablespoon granulated gelatine.
2 tablespoons cold water.
1-2 cup sugar.
1-2 teaspoon lemon juice.
1 cup cream, whipped.
1 cup rhubarb pulp made by boiling, until tender, 4 cups of rhubarb with 1 to 2 cups sugar, according to taste.

Soak gelatine in cold water. Add sugar to rhubarb pulp, lemon juice, and soaked gelatine; chill in pan of ice water, stirring constantly. When it begins to thicken fold in whipped cream, mold and chill.

This recipe will fix six average-sized individual molds.

Rhubarb Tapioca.
1-2 cup pearl tapioca.
2 cups water.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
2 cups sweetened rhubarb sauce.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Soak tapioca in water until soft. Put in double boiler and cook until clear, adding more water if necessary. Then add salt and rhubarb sauce. When cool, flavor with vanilla. Chill and serve with cream.

bread crumbs. If the crumbs are very dry, moisten slightly with water. Grease baking dish and put layer of crumbs sprinkled with cinnamon or nutmeg, then a layer of rhubarb and 3 or 4 tablespoons of corn syrup, together with the same amount of sugar. Dot with butter. Repeat until dish is full, covering the top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake for 20 minutes and brown on top. This may be served hot with or without sauce.

PAT MAKES A MISTAKE.
Akron, Ohio, May 14.—Sheriff Pat Hutchinson is known far and wide as a wide-awake officer; and always on the job, but Pat sometimes makes a mistake.

Someone called Pat in an excited voice and told of finding a skull where a house was being prepared. Pat rushed to the scene and sure enough there was the skull. Pat took it on the run to the office of the Prosecuting Attorney and after gravely inspecting the skull he said to the Sheriff:

"Pat, you take this home and use it for a tobacco jar."

Pat gasped: "But what about the finding of this?"

"Oh, never mind, Pat," said the Prosecutor. "Let's not say any more about it."

Pat had heard of "ivory," but had never heard of "plaster of paris."

SOUTHERN WOMEN LEAD IN FASHION EXTREMES, SAYS FIFTH AVE. FITTER.

New York, May 14.—The suddenly narrow skirts and the continued undress of evening dress led a woman to inquire from her fitter in a leading shop what part of the country the women were from who most indulged in the extremes of fashion. "From the South," said the fitter, with authority; "yes, I know it's supposed that Western women are most given to extremes, but they're not to be compared with the Southerners, according to my experience, and I'm sure it's the same with every other Fifth avenue shop. All our scantiest skirts, our most insufficient bodices are sent to addresses in Georgia and the Carolinas and the other Southern states. The Western women, even from the Pacific slope, have become almost as conservative as New Yorkers. At least, when they're in New York they shop as New Yorkers do."

HAS GORE HELD IN JAIL BECAUSE SHE LOVED HIM.

Waukegan, Ill., May 14.—To be held in jail two months and twenty-two days because a girl "loved him so" is the fate that befell George B. Sheldon, handsome young Great Lakes bluejacket. Arrested December 24 on charges preferred by Helen Truelson, a Highland Park girl, he was held in default of $1,000 bail. During his incarceration he steadfastly professed his innocence. Recently the case was heard in the County Court and when the girl took the stand before Judge Persons, she said:

"He is not the man. He is guiltless, but I loved him so. I wanted him to marry me, so I blamed him."

Sheldon was released immediately.

GRIDIRON HERO LEAVES A LEG IN FRANCE—GRINS.

Atlanta, Ga., May 14.—Captain Charles Brown, of Nashville—once upon a time Captain Charlie Brown of a famous Vanderbilt football team—is in the officers' ward at the Fort McPherson Hospital, and his football days are over and done—gone back "where youth is also" and not all because Captain Brown has outgrown the sports of his youth. He left a leg in France—that's why.

"I'm not kicking, however," said Captain Brown, with a little grimace as he made the pun. "It was a grand fight—and I learned to take an honorable licking with a straight face long before we sailed for France. The Heinies had us far outnumbered—but they had to kill or disable us all before we were through."

BOOZE "OKEY" WITH JOB.

Montgomery, Ala., May 14.—The following advertisement has just appeared in the want column of a local paper:

"Country printer who wants to come west can secure a good, permanent job here. Union man preferred. Eight-hour workday and no objection to tobacco, booze, etc. Write what you can do, come for, etc. W. H. Feather, editor, News, Broken Bow, Okla."

Circle Theater

The famous Dorothy Dalton, in "Vive La France" will be the feature at the Circle this evening. On the same bill will be a two reel Sunning comedy. There is hardly any use in telling about Dorothy Dalton as she has a host of admirers here. The story, as the title suggests, is a story of France.

For tomorrow and Friday a big feature comes to the Circle, "A Woman's Experience". In this play Mary Boland, the beautiful star of the play, displays some wonderful gowns made by a famous Fifth avenue modiste, and others, imported creations from Paris.

These will give the ladies of Manchester a peep at the new styles for 1919.

One morning gown is of white organdie, with an embroidered design of white and Nile green beads. The waist is slightly bloused, with panels of beaded design down the front and gathered around by broad green sash. The neck is V-shaped, with a soft rolling collar of white organdie, which lends an added graceful charm.

The sleeves are patterned after the latest kimono idea, and are of the popular three-quarters length, and beaded near the cuff.

The skirt follows along the lines of the latest Paris models in that it is full length, but the severity of this advanced style is somewhat relieved by the three-quarter length tunic, which also carries the beaded design.

One of the most exquisite evening gowns ever conceived is that worn by Miss Boland in the big ballroom scene. This gown is made of gold cloth, trimmed with tulle and rose-colored velvet, brocaded with two-tone spangles. It is one of the most beautiful and most artistic models ever seen, and would well repay any of our lady patrons to bring their pencil and pad to make notes of the famous Mary Boland gowns.

Being a man, it would be impossible for the writer to give you an accurate detailed description of these models in the language of the modiste, but suffice it to say, they are all very beautiful.

And "A Woman's Experience" is just the kind of a play you will like—it is extremely smart in every respect, and gives one a better insight into the doings of high society than any picture ever presented here.

Park Theater

No photoplay produced in recent years presents a better cast of screen players than that employed by Cecil B. De Mille in his superb production of "The Squaw Man," a picturization of Edwin Milton Royle's famous stage play, which was presented at the Park theater last evening and which will be shown again tonight.

From start to finish, the cast in this photoplay is made up of stars or players of stellar importance. Elliott Dexter is in the stellar role, with Ann Little playing opposite to him as the Indian girl. Katherine MacDonald, Theodore Roberts, Jack Holt, Thurston Hall, Tully Marshall and others have exceptionally strong parts. Nearly all of those named have been seen in many of the more famous Paramount and Artcraft picture productions.

Beulah Marie Dix wrote the scenario and she is said to have written a highly effective story. The plot may be familiar to many, but it is one that never grows old and which will bear repetition. The picture is a re-production of the photoplay which Mr. De Mille produced four years ago, but it has changed so extensively and its improvements are so marked, that it is in every sense a new production.

"The Squaw Man" is a drama of the most graphic character, with intense human interest, stirring heart appeal and unrivaled charm of character depiction. Sam Wood and Ann Bauchens aided Mr. De Mille in the direction and Alvin Wyckoff was the camera expert.

Tomorrow the famous William Desmond will be seen at the Park in a new release melodrama.

NO-BOOZE, JAMAICA GINGER.

Bahgor, Me., May 14.—The saloon-keeper's loss is the grocer's gain. That's how the dry laws are working out in the Pine Tree State. Men who cannot get booze fall back on substitutes. Grocers are making a lot of money handling "Jakes"—which is, none other than Jamaica ginger.

EXCELLENT TIP FOR BASEBALL MAGNATES

Better Results Obtained by Exhibiting More Interest.

When Ray Chapman of Cleveland Indians Was in a Rut He Went to Owner Dunn and Was Helped Greatly by Advice Given.

Baseball magnates might, on many occasions, obtain the greatest results from their players by exhibiting a bit of personal interest in the men. A striking example of the manner in which this system works out is the case of Magnate Dunn of the Cleveland team and Ray Chapman, the peerless shortstop.

In 1918 Chapman was deeply in the dumps. His batting average slumped way down, and his work in the field was at times quite rusty. He seemed to be working hard in every game, but he could not get results to satisfy himself. The jinx was on his trail, too, and during the season he suffered several injuries. Rumors were around that "Chapple" was to be sold or traded.

Being a sensitive lad, he went to Magnate Dunn and explained that he was in a rut. Dunn did not bowl him out, or threaten him in any way. He took the youngster to one side and talked to him like a father. Among other things he told Chapman he could rest assured he was a fixture on the Cleveland club, and that he had all kinds of confidence in him. He advised Chapman to keep on working the best he could, and the jinx would get discouraged and leave. Chapman left the conference light-hearted and determined to give up the best he had for the Cleveland owner.

SINGLE TURNED INTO HOMER

Funniest Play in Experience of John McGraw of the Giants Happened at Olean, N. Y.

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, says the funniest play of his experience happened when he was the left third baseman of the old Olean (N. Y.) team, the club with which he started his professional career.

The play was the climax of an exciting 14-inning Fourth of July game between the Olean team and its most hated rival, Bradford, Pa. With the score standing tied at 3 to 3 in the fourteenth with two out, Arthur Egan, the pony pitcher of the Olean team, dropped a single into left field. Owing to the holiday, a crowd surrounded the field.

As the Bradford left fielder was about to pick up the ball, a playful spangle left his master in the crowd and, picking the ball up, ran with it, the left fielder in pursuit. He caught up with the dog and tried to pull the ball out of his mouth, but the dog held.

While they were having their little tug-of-war in the outfield, Egan was dog trotting around the bases and scored a home run, winning the game for Olean, 4 to 3.

SUNDAY-BALL HELPS

Sunday baseball in New York will be a boon to the organized sport this season. With the legalizing of professional games in the metropolitan district the American League will have six clubs in cities that permit Sabbath contests, while the National will have five. Sunday games mean much to baseball, for while patronage fell to a low ebb last summer, expenses averaged to lofty heights and few clubs finished with a profit.

In Silk Attire the Flapper Goes

So far as clothes are concerned, the earth and the fullness thereof belong to the flapper. A few years ago she did not aspire to silks, or, if she did, her longings were likely to go unconsidered. But silks have been coming her way for several seasons, and the war let down all barriers in its way. This spring finds the younger flappers sure of new silk frocks, among them many taffetas. Everyone, for that matter, will wear taffetas—from morning to night—quite negligees are made of it as well as afternoon and evening frocks.

But silk is not the only privilege which grown-ups are willing to share with the younger folks. The tunic appears on a few dresses for girls and is very pretty for them when it is as cleverly managed as it is in the frock pictured above. Here it is slashed at each side of the front, forming an apron-tunic, with small, silk-covered buttons, set in prim rows on it. Two rows of these little buttons on the simple bodice are rather oddly placed at the sides of the neck opening, where a white crepe de chine collar shows a departure from the usual neck-finishing. The sleeves are plain, with turned-back, faced cuffs, and the skirt quite full and gathered into the belt. Organdie at the neck, with a

SAYS "MEESTER MCGARRY"

IS PRESIDENT OF U. S. Edgewater, N. J., May 14.—If you ever were an Italian laborer working under an Irish contractor you would realize that the Irish contractor takes up a large part of the horizon. It was so with Tony Maulko. Tony lives here and swings a pick for Contractor John McGarry. Recently he went before Judge Zabriskie, in Hackensack, and sought naturalization.

Tony answered all the questions creditably until Judge Zabriskie asked:

"Who is President of the United States?"

"Meester McGarry," said Tony, in the manner of one who feels a pain at being asked simple questions. And even if he doesn't become a citizen, McGarry says Tony is liable to get a raise in pay.
