GERMANS DENY WAR RESPONSIBILITY; ALLIES REJECT THEIR EVASIVE REPLY

"DRY" LEADERS ARE CONFIDENT WAR PROHIBITION WILL STAND

Political Leaders, However, Playing Safe Until Sentiment of Public is Sounded—President's Suggestion All Absorbing Topic at the Capitol Today—Great Differences of Opinion.

Washington, May 21.—President Wilson's proposal that Congress repeal that part of the war prohibition law affecting wines and beers was the all absorbing topic at the capitol today.

Until the Republican leaders of the Senate and House had an opportunity to thresh out the subject, it was stated, they would not be prepared to determine whether or not to follow the President's suggestion that the war time ban on the manufacture and sale of wines and beers be removed.

A widespread difference of opinion persisted among both Republican and Democratic Senators and Representatives as to the chances of Congress lifting the embargo on wines and beers.

"Dry" leaders professed the utmost confidence in their ability not only to prevent any amendment or repeal of the war-time prohibition law, but to force through stringent legislation for its enforcement after it becomes effective on July 1.

Those who favored the President's suggestion, including Democratic leaders, who expected to swing the Democratic minority in Senate and House almost solidly behind the President's proposal, admitted that, in view of the strong opposition already threatened by the "drys" it was doubtful whether the proposed "repealer" could be put through by July 1.

It was pointed out that Congress will have about all it can accomplish to rush through the pending appropriation bills before the end of the current fiscal year—June 30—without having more than one chance in ten of passing soon a measure, on which there is certain to be much protracted and acrimonious debate in both Senate and House.

Will Democratic Leaders be outspoken in their support of the President's proposal, Republican leaders remained chary of comment. Several of them frankly stated that they desired to "hear from public sentiment" before committing themselves one way or the other.

Such was the explanation of the situation created by the President's suggestion which was elicited from Republican leaders who were approached on the subject. Several of them stated that they wished they could find some way of avoiding it altogether.

Until several days had elapsed to study all aspects of the situation—including the political—they would not know just where they stood. At present, they were simply "up in the air."

An expert states that, except for salt and whale oil, the South African soap industry is almost entirely dependent on imported raw materials, but outlines the possibility of profitably producing some thereof in the union.

CHENEY BROTHERS GRANT 48 HOUR WEEK
Cheney Brothers posted notices in the mills this morning announcing that beginning June 9th their employees would be granted a 48 hour week schedule instead of 50. On the new schedule the mill folks will go to work at 7:18 instead of 7 as at present and on Saturday will quit for the day at 11:48 instead of 12. They will get the same pay for the 48 hour week as they now get for the 50 hour week.

HOSPITAL DRIVE NETS $31,860 FRST DAY

Five Teams Bring in $21,240 and Cheney Brothers Add Fifty Per Cent.

East Side Gets Credit for Largest Amount—Some of the Heaviest Contributors.

The end of the first day's drive in the canvass for hospital subscriptions, at noon today, showed a total of $31,860, not including the industrial contributions yet to be reported from the factories. When the workers assembled for the mid-day luncheon at the Recreation building today there was much rivalry between the four teams as to which one of the four had produced the greatest results.

Senator Jones Confident. Senator Jones, of New Mexico, retiring chairman of the Senate Committee on Woman Suffrage, succeeded in having the suffrage resolution placed well up on the Senate calendar.

Senator Jones, of New Mexico, retiring chairman of the Senate Committee on Woman Suffrage, succeeded in having the suffrage resolution placed well up on the Senate calendar. Senator Jones, who has twice brought the fight on suffrage before the Senate only to have it defeated, was certain that the measure would now be passed.

MARK HANNA'S WIDOW ILL. Lenox, Mass., May 21.—Mrs. Augusta Rhodes Hanna, widow of the late United States Senator Marcus A. Hanna, of Ohio, is seriously sick with pneumonia at the summer home of her son, Dan R. Hanna. She has been visiting there for the past month.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS ARE NOW CONFIDENT THEY'LL GET VOTE

Say That Congress Will Follow President Wilson's Suggestion.

RESOLUTION TO BE INTRODUCED TODAY

New Senators Have Changed Its Complex and Enough Votes Are Assured, Leaders Say—Resolution to Be Passed Before End of Week.

Washington, May 21.—Congress, despite its Republican majority, set to work today to follow at least one of President Wilson's recommendations read in his message—passage of an amendment to the federal constitution granting women the vote.

To Be Brought Up Today. Representative Mondell, floor leader for the Republican party in the House, promised that the resolution providing suffrage would be brought up in the House today and suffrage leaders were confident it would be passed before the end of the week.

Under the skillful leadership of Representative Mann of Illinois, the suffrage amendment was rushed through the committee proceedings and was given first position on the calendar of the House.

Success Assured. Suffrage leaders have been active during the interim of Congress and they declare that for the first time since the fight for suffrage was started, success is absolutely assured.

In the Senate, where the suffrage resolution has twice before been defeated, suffrage leaders declared they now have the necessary 15 votes to carry it. New Senators have changed the complexion of the Senate and, according to suffrage leaders have brought in the necessary votes to make the needed two thirds votes.

President Wilson's urge, in the message of yesterday is counted upon by suffrage cohorts to swing a few votes on the Democratic side of the chamber and pass the resolution with more than the needed 65 votes.

Although confident that success is now within their grasp suffrage workers are not retaining to their work which they have carried on in the capital for the past three years. Corridors and offices are still the hunting ground of tireless women workers who now are known by every Senator and Representative. One leader in Congress expressed the apparent sentiment of the majority, when he said, "let's pass it and get free of these women, if you are for suffrage they continually ask you to do things for them, and if you are against them they are after you every minute until they convert you."

Evidence of the roughness of the suffrage workers is shown by the fact that there were twelve Senators who were pleading to introduce the resolution providing for the suffrage amendment in the Senate.

TO ALLOW SMOKING AT CHURCH SERVICES. London, May 11.—(By Mail).—A movement to allow smoking in British churches has been started here and is being discussed in the press by clergy and laity. The proposal seems to be making headway and it may not be long before men and women may be seen smoking cigars and pipes, while listening to a sermon.

TEUTON PEACE DELEGATION REFUSES TO ADMIT RIGHT OF ALLIES TO ASSESS WAR INDEMNITIES

Memorial to Honor Flyer To be Erected in London

London, May 21.—A suitable memorial will be erected in honor of Harry G. Hawker and Lieutenant Commander MacKenzie Grieve, in commemoration of their attempt to cross the Atlantic, it was stated in aviation circles today. The fund will be started within a few days while the public memory is still alive to the heroic attempt of the two men to put the British flag first across the ocean by the air route.

THE FATE OF HAWKER MAY NEVER BE KNOWN

Like Gustave Hamel, another pioneer flyer, the fate of Harry G. Hawker and MacKenzie Grieve, who fell somewhere in the Atlantic, while attempting to fly to Ireland, probably will never be known.

LADY PAGET IS DEAD; LONDON SOCIETY LEADER

Paris, May 21.—Lady Arthur Paget, formerly Miss Mary Stevens of Boston, died at the Hotel Ritz last night following an attack of pneumonia. Lady Paget was the wife of General Sir Arthur H. Paget, her father at one time was the owner of the Tremont House in Boston. She was one of the leaders of London society but was known principally because of her benefactions. During the Boer war she maintained a hospital ship. She won praise even from the Austro-Hungarian government in the World War for her Red Cross work in Serbia where she was attached to the American Red Cross.

CASE PUT OVER.

Bridgeport, May 21.—The case of Arthur W. Pratt, of Darien, charged with theft of an automobile, owned by Charles Capola, of Norwalk, on the docket in the superior court here, has been put over till the fall term. Capola has been missing since the date of the theft of the machine in February and every effort to find him or his body has been in vain. Pratt was arrested in New York while trying to sell the car.

Note Argues That Envoys Had Several Times Said German People Should Not be Held Responsible for Acts of Their Government—Says Former Government Was Not Solely Responsible for Bringing on World Conflict—Text of Note

Paris, May 21.—The German peace delegation sought to deny Germany's major responsibility for the world war in their note regarding reparations, which was rejected by the Allies last night, it was made known today when the text of both the German note and the allied reply were made public.

The Germans refused to admit the right of the Allies to assess indemnities against Germany for losses incurred in the war, arguing that Allied representatives had several times said that the German people should not be held responsible for the acts of their government.

Text of German Note. The text of the German note follows: "His Excellency, Premier Clemenceau, President of the peace conference:

"Sir:—In the draft of the peace treaty submitted to the German delegates, part 8, concerning reparations begins with article 231, which reads as follows:

"The allied and associated governments affirm and Germany accepts the responsibility of Germany and her allies for causing all of the loss and damage to which the allied and associated governments and their nationals have been subjected as a consequence of the war imposed upon them by the aggression of Germany and her allies."

Germany Not Responsible. "Now the obligations to make reparation by Germany has been accepted by Germany by virtue of the note from Secretary of State Lansing, of November 5, 1918, independently of the question of responsibility for the war. The German delegation cannot admit that there could arise out of responsibility incurred by the former German government in regard to the origin of the war any right for the allied and associated powers to be indemnified by Germany for losses suffered during the war. The representatives of the allied and associated powers have moreover declared several times that the German people should not be held responsible for the fault committed by their government."

Did Not Will War. "The German people did not will the war and would have never undertaken a war of aggression. They have always remained convinced that this war was for them a defensive war.

No Proofs Furnished. "They cannot consider the former German government as the party which was solely or chiefly to blame for the war. The draft of the treaty of peace transmitted, (by you) contains no facts in support of this view; no proof on the subject is furnished therein. The German delegates therefore beg (you) to be so good as to communicate to them the report of the commission set up by the allied and associated governments for the purpose of establishing the responsibility of the authors of the war."

The Allies Reply. The reply of the allied governments and the United States, signed by Premier Clemenceau, pointed out that Germany, by failing to protest against the allegation made in Secretary of State Lansing's note of October 5, 1918, recognized the allied contention of responsibility for damages to be well founded, and stated that it is now too late to deny responsibility.

In answer to the German claim that the new German republic should not be held responsible for acts of the former monarchy, Premier Clemenceau pointedly observed that Germany did not act upon that principle after the proclamation of a French republic, following the war of 1871, nor in 1917, when she dealt with Russia after the autocratic government of the Czar had been overthrown.

MAY CHANGE TREATY.

Paris, May 21.—President Wilson, Lloyd George and members of the Big Five met this morning and considered recommendations for certain changes in the peace treaty, which will make it more acceptable to the German government. The recommendations were made by French economic experts and were submitted by Premier Clemenceau. They had to do with the demands for reparation made by the allies, and objected to by the Germans. The modifications were designed to make it easier for Germany to meet the conditions regarding indemnities imposed by the allies.

Make Terms Easier. The modifications were designed to make it easier for Germany to meet the conditions regarding indemnities imposed by the allies. These suggestions for changes were made following receipt of reports from secret sources that the chances that the present German government would sign the treaty would be greatly increased if certain modifications were made. It is expected that the recommendations will be adopted.

Germans' Final Notes. The Germans are completing the finishing touches on their final notes in anticipation of a possible advance reply from the allies to their request for more time and will have them in readiness tomorrow. Their arguments rest largely upon the economic sections of the treaty which the French experts propose to amend.

If the allies decline to grant any extension of time, the big five will begin considering the German counter proposals immediately and may give their reply Saturday or Monday. The issue will then be joined and the Germans will have to decide whether to sign the peace treaty or to renew hostilities.

Preparing Blockade. Elaborate preparations for an airtight economic blockade of Germany in the event that she refuses to sign, have now been completed. Not a single consignment of provisions will be permitted to enter while the allied armies advance and occupy various strategic centers. However, officials are confident that the minor concessions to be made Germany will be seized by the German government as a pretext for signing.

TRAIN WRECK AT MYSTIC. Mystic, Conn., May 21.—Passenger train No. 5, on the New Haven road, bound west for New Haven, was wrecked here at 6:28 this morning, a broken rail causing the train to leave the track. Two baggage and two mail cars were overturned, but no one was injured so far as could be learned. Two wrecking trains were sent to the scene.

CANADA FACES BIG STRIKE. Brandon, Man., May 21.—Industries of all western Canada are facing complete paralysis if unions in the various cities fulfil their present intentions to join in the general strike that has tied up Winnipeg.

Reports reaching here today declare that unions in Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary and other western Canada cities are ready to join in the general strike whenever their leaders direct them. The food situation in Winnipeg is becoming serious. The banks are keeping watch on their vaults and have worked in many special constables.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING HERALD

HUNS READY TO QUIT WHEN HIT BY U. S. MEN SAYS BARTON BROWN

Manchester Man Had Part in Hardest Fights of the War.

OVERJOYED TO RETURN

Declares He is Glad He Went But Manchester is Good Enough for Him.

Private Barton Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Brown of Elm Terrace, returned home last Monday night, after six months' active service in France. He took part in all the big battles, except Chateau Thierry, and came through without a scratch. He was gassed once but modestly says it didn't amount to much. Brown looks well but says he lost about 20 pounds while fighting in France.

Private Brown enlisted in Rochester, N. Y., in the Fifth Division, Sixth Infantry, but afterwards was transferred to the 82nd Division and helped drill some of the National Army men. He fought all through the St. Mihiel drive and in the Meuse-Argonne campaigns.

Huns Ready to Quit. Speaking of the fighting in the Meuse-Argonne sectors, Private Brown said, "We sure did give them hell. Some of the German troops put against us there had been brought on a four days trip from the Serbian front and then hiked for 20 miles. We took many prisoners there. They threw up their hands and cried "Kamerad". Some of them could talk pretty good English and I asked them why they were so "yellow" and they replied that they were disgusted with the whole thing. Being hauled on a four days' trip and then hiked for 20 miles and thrown into battle without any rest, they were ready to quit.

"I had some pretty tough experiences and I'm glad of it, but I wouldn't want to go through them again. They talk about going through hell, well, I've been through it all right. As one French soldier, who had served four years in the artillery, said to me, "The luckiest fellow is the one who gets kicked off at the start."

Glad to be Home. "I was a doughboy all the way through, but no one could stand four years of infantry fighting in this war. When you get into the fighting you get so tired and disgusted with the whole thing that you don't care whether you live or die. You pray that you will get through, but you don't care much which way it ends. Still I'm glad I got through safely and am mighty glad to get home again."

WAR BUREAU REQUESTS FACTS ABOUT OUR MEN

Information Needed to Bring Honor Roll up to Date—Records of 150 Not Complete.

The War Bureau has repeatedly requested the relatives of Manchester men to call and furnish with full information regarding relatives in service. We have at least 150 men whose records are not complete—either their residence has not been established or information necessary to complete their record has not been furnished. Names cannot be put on our permanent Honor Roll until those relatives are interested enough to call at the War Bureau and supply this information.

The following list furnishes the names of some men about whom we require additional information. If the relatives are interested enough to attend to this matter there will be less cause for complaint when the final Honor Roll is passed on:

7. Yeomen of the United States, who have met the conditions as described in Paragraph 3, shall go on the Honor Roll.

CAMP FLOODED.

Jack Dempsey, Could Do No Road Work Today.

Toledo, Ohio, May 21.—Jack Dempsey is a "prize fighter, not a life-saver."

He made that plain to his trainers when the waters of Maumee Bay swept up around the Overland Club, his training quarters and inundated the lowlands for miles.

"Swimming might be as good as a road workout," quoth Jack, "but I never could do anything with one of them life preservers on me."

As a result the challenger's preparations today to meet Jess Willard July 4 consisted of "three squares" a day and a walk around the porch. However, with the arrival this afternoon of Jack Geyer, "Bill" Tate, Lester Johnson, Stranger Ed Lewis and Dan Daly, Jack's program under the direction of "Timmy" Byrne, of the Toledo A. C., and Jimmy Forest, the veteran Plainfield, N. J., trainer, will not be so rosy.

SLEEPS EIGHT WEEKS.

Lenox, Mass., May 21.—Hosea Parker awakened today from eight weeks of continuous sleep, and asked: "Has peace been signed yet at Paris?"

That was his only question. He remained awake a half hour then fell back into easy slumber.

The peace question was uppermost in Parker's mind when he fell into his mysterious sleep eight weeks ago.

CARPENTERS' DEMAND FOR HIGHER PAY BOOSTS BUILDING COSTS

Fix Standard at Seventy Cents an Hour After July 1

JOURNEYMEN IN OTHER TRADES MAY FOLLOW

Real Estate Developers Must Utilize Waste Space to Get Returns on Investment—Higher Rents Coming.

The local carpenter's union notified the contractors last night that beginning July 1 they should demand a wage rate of 70 cents an hour or $5.60 a day. The previous standard was 60 cents an hour or $4.80 a day. The reason assigned for this demand is the increase in the cost of living.

The building industry in this town is in a demoralized condition. The last big building project here was the settlement on the west side built for Cheney Brothers by the Lynch Construction Company. This outside corporation paid higher wages than the prevailing rate and brought about demands on the part of local carpenters which have not yet in all cases been complied with. As there has been little building in town during the war many carpenters have left town to work in shipbuilding yards and on large housing contracts. Some, but by no means all, of these men have come back to Manchester.

Recent real estate deals would indicate that renewed activity in building is to be expected; but a prominent real estate man said today that there will be some surprises when the new purchasers obtain figures on their proposed building operations. He said that the cost of labor and materials was so high that no investor could get a sufficient return in rents at anything like the present rates to warrant his going ahead with building. The new demand by the carpenters would, he predicted, be followed by similar demands from masons, painters and plumbers. Building materials which have begun to fall slightly would, he predicted, again return to their former high level.

There is no question that imperative need exists in Manchester for more business stands and more residences. Recent Main street changes provide the opportunity for business expansion but if new construction work to meet this demand is undertaken rents will have to go higher and some people will have to be content with locations above the ground floor.

E. J. Holl's Views.

E. J. Holl, who lately bought the larger part of the Purnell estate including the Orford Hotel, the Park building and the Purnell building, has plans in view for the development of the property which will modernize it and utilize a good deal of waste space. Although Mr. Holl paid Mr. Burke, who bought the property a year or so ago, a handsome profit on his investment, he believes that it can be made to be worth much more than he gave for it by covering it with rentable buildings. The row of run-down dwellings in Keeney Court, he asserts is occupying land far too valuable to be used for tenement purposes and if he holds the property these buildings, which have long been an eyesore, will be removed to make room for business structures. Mr. Holl also has tentative plans for enlarging the Park building by the addition of one or more stories and providing elevator service for the upper floors.

It seems quite evident that to make Main street real estate profitable on the basis of new valuations it will be necessary to pack the tenants together closer and utilize all the vacant land in the business district.

WHEN HE COULDN'T GET LIQUOR HE WANTED IT.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 19.—"I am fifty-four years of age and I never took a drink of whiskey until West Virginia was dry."

This statement was made to the court by James W. Peters, real estate dealer of that state, who was indicted for carrying liquor into dry territory. "When I couldn't get it I wanted it," Peters said.

Park Theater

One of the most remarkable scenes that has thus far been shown on the screen, is in D. W. Griffith's new Artcraft photoplay, "The Greatest Thing in Life", with Lillian Gish in the stellar part which caused a genuine sensation at the Popular Playhouse last evening at its first showing and which will be shown again tonight.

The war has swept over a French village in which a young French-American girl, Jeanette Perot, the character portrayed by Lillian Gish, is living with her father. Hammered by the death storm from the great guns, they have taken refuge in an under-ground dugout.

As the French are leaving, pressed back temporarily by the Huns, a French officer shows Jeanette's father how the water jar opens with a secret spring and discloses a telephone.

"When the Huns come", the lieutenant tells the old man, "You can serve France by using it."

The old man tries his best to send the message but he is wounded and his daughter undertakes to send it. With the Huns pounding at the door, killing and slaughtering as they come, the girl takes up the field telephone. At first no one will answer.

At last, when it seems as though her heart must burst, a voice comes at the other end of the telephone. It is the voice of the fastidious, dandified young lover from America whom she had flouted. That far-off "Hello" heard through shot and shell, means more to her than the hope of rescue from the beasts who are beating down her door; it means that the man she loves has found his soul in the muck and glog of the trenches.

New honors await Miss Gish when this vivid and wonderful emotional scene is presented to the public. She is splendidly supported, her leading man being Robert Har-ron, an actor of ability and wide popularity.

Tomorrow will start a brand new serial called "The Silent Mystery" with Francis Ford, Mae Gaston and Rosemary They playing the leads. As told here yesterday to see the first chapter is to see every one of the fifteen. It tells so thrilling a story that you just must get interested.

Circle Theater

Charlie Ray, probably the most popular of screen stars. Among the patrons of the Circle, will be shown this evening in a special attraction called "Law of the North". A two reel Sunshine comedy will be on the same bill.

For tomorrow the big attraction will be Jane Grey, the Belasco star in "When My Ship Comes In."

Sylvia Sands (Jane Grey) has been "nicknamed" Silver by the inhabitants of the small seaport Hanleytown. Her father is a sea captain. During the summer McKay Hedden sails into the harbor on his yacht, and with him comes Paul Grayson, a young playwright. Hedden is New York's most successful theatrical producer, and he sees in Silver wonderful possibilities for a star. Grayson has submitted a play for Hedden's consideration. Hedden tells him that it is worthless.

Later Silver is induced to accompany Hedden to New York and rehearse for the play. Grayson is sent West to resume his profession as mining engineer, which he had given up to write plays. Silver becomes a star.

With these facts in mind patrons of the Circle theater, have a brief synopsis of Gouverneur Morris' greatest novel. If you have read this novel you know the wonderful romance and interesting mystery

Tagging the Bases

In a deluge of hits, runs and freak plays the Giants vanquished the Reds, 7 to 5. In the fourth stanza, Ross Young, after a nose-dive somersault catch of Kopf's drive, executed a double play from a sitting position.

Just when the Cardinals had put the game in the safe and were about to shut down business for the day the Phillies tore loose and crashed out six runs, annexing the contest 8 to 7.

Robinson used his reserves very freely in the eighth and ninth, but was unable to shake a 3 to 2 victory from the paws of the Cubs.

The Pirates got five bingles and three runs. The Braves tapped the ball for ten hits but secured only two tallies.

Four double plays at an equal number of crucial moments saved the bacon for the White Sox. They nosed out the Athletics, two to one.

Ruth got one hit. He drove the pill out of the lot and over the fence while the bases were choked, his red-hosed comrades scoring a 6 to 4 win over the Browns.

Heavy moisture prevented the New York-Cleveland and Washington-Detroit games.

National Tuberculosis Society Gives Out Some Startling Figures—To Care for Cases.

New York, May 21.—Sixty-two thousand men were rejected after being called for service in the national army, because medical examination showed they were suffering from tuberculosis, it was announced here today by the National Tuberculosis Association following final tabulation of draft rejection slips from every state in the Union. Approximately another 20,000 men, it is also stated, were rejected for the same reason at army camps and nearly 6,000 still in service, are now being cared for in the army's special tuberculosis hospitals.

To protect the nation's health by making proper provision for those rejected on account of the disease the National Association, in co-operation with the Surgeon General's office, is following up each case and through 1,500 state and local societies is providing for necessary care and treatment.

NOVEL MEMORIAL TREE.

Anniston, Ala., May 19.—Anniston is to have a memorial tree taken from the battlefields of France upon which Alabama soldiers fought and suitable exercises for the planting of the tree may be made a part of the welcome ceremonies incident to the return of the Rainbow boys during the next month.

John H. Wallace, Jr., secretary of the State Forestry Commission, has wired Mayor J. L. Winkle offering one of these memorial trees and the Mayor has forwarded his reply of acceptance.

FROM WAR TO PEACE.

The President in his message to Congress in effect lines up our hitherto war busy government and, as a commander to his men, shouts—Dismissed. Get out of your uniforms; hustle into your workaday clothes and get this nation onto a peace basis. Double time.

As first steps to this end the President recommends the return of the railroads and the telephone and telegraph lines to private hands, revision of the income and excess profits taxes, total repeal of the luxury tax, and the removal of the war-time prohibition of light wines and beers.

So much for the negative side of the Wilson reconstruction program, for such the message must be regarded from now on. When we come to examine the positive legislation urged by the President, two features of the message are at once evident; first the executive mind has again swung back to the path of restrained radicalism from which it was crowded by the surge of war and second, the President has offered very little ground for political sword play on the part of Congress.

Those who essay a passage at arms will find that he has rendered the arena extremely slippery. For this the public will breathe a sigh of gratitude. With the ineffective floundering of the Democrats in the last Congress as an example and now with the stabilizing effect of the President's message are we not entitled to hope for a little more wood sawing and not so much seasawing in the congressional halls?

Mr. Wilson recognizes a "community of interest between capital and labor" but declares that it has never been made evident in action. This may be done, he suggests, not so much by legislation as by "common counsel and voluntary co-operation" between capitalist, manager and workman. The federal government can and will create agencies of advice and information which may be resorted to by those seeking the best solution of industrial disputes.

Beyond this the President does not go except to lay down as a fundamental requirement that there must be a "genuine democratization of industry, based upon a full recognition of the right of those who work, in whatever rank, to participate in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare or the part they are to play in industry."

Perhaps Mr. Wilson has in mind the experiment, already successfully tried in some industries, of employee representation on the board of directors.

The momentous question of revenue is touched but lightly by the President. The tariff question leaves him cold. There is, he says, "fortunately, no occasion for undertaking in the immediate future any general revision of our import duties. No serious danger of foreign competition threatens American industries."

DEVELOP THE NEW PARK.

The fact that the outdoor fete at the old golf course Monday night was so much enjoyed that it was repeated last night suggests the thought that a permanent place for like forms of recreation would fill a want in this community. It brings to mind the possibilities of the Center dell as a summer night playground. With a pretty little lake for canoeing, a dance platform for outdoor dancing and a band stand for concerts and the other accessories of an outdoor amusement place, the whole to be illuminated by ornamental electric lights at night, this place would be a center to which on pleasant summer evenings thousands would flock. We have the land picturesquely laid out by nature, and at comparatively small expense it could be transformed into a recreation center even superior to the old golf course. Now that the war is over, the town authorities should get busy and put this new park into condition for use.

UNCLE WILBERT IS SIMPLY WORSHIPPED BY EVERY DODGER.

New York, May 21.—There may be some baseball managers more popular with the general public than "Your Uncle" Wilbert Robinson, pilot of the Dodgers, but it would take a Diogenes sort of a search to find one who is more worshipped by his men.

"The Brooklyn ball tossers who have started out this season so auspiciously simply rave about the round little leader when they talk about him. And they rave with praises, not censure. "Robby," as he is best known, probably gets more out of his men than any other leader in the big show. A good illustration of this was given the other day when the writer talked with a veteran who has but recently joined the Dodgers.

"I'll tell you the kind of a manager he is," said the veteran when Robinson was mentioned. "Remember that twenty-inning battle we staged in Philadelphia? You will recall that after we had gone out in the eighteenth inning and grabbed three runs the Phillies came right back and tied us up.

WILLS RELATIVES DIME EACH; $40,000 TO COLLEGE.

Burlington, Vt., May 21.—Former Mayor Harvey Herzy, of Barre, after cutting off his relatives, including his sister, with a dime each, left Tufts College, $40,000. His will has been filed for probate here.

Herzy died at Burlington April 10, aged eighty-eight years. Mrs. Clara A. Templeton, of Washington, D. C., his sister, and several nieces and nephews, are left ten cents each. Goddard Seminary, of Barre, gets $300.

CAT GETS HEAD STUCK IN SARDINE CAN; POLICE.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 21.—"Please send the police to Forty-second and Spruce streets quick; I am in distress," an excited voice over the phone cried into Police Sergeant Breitmayer's ear.

Half a dozen cops were loaded into a patrol wagon and hurried to the house. When they entered they saw a woman chasing a cat whose head was stuck in a sardine can. After many chairs and tables had been overturned the cat was finally made catless.

WHY A MEMORIAL HOSPITAL WHAT AN ARMY MAN THINKS

ARE YOU GUIDED BY YOUR HEART OR BY YOUR HEAD? HERE IS AN APPEAL TO BOTH OF THEM. HOW IT STRIKES A SOLDIER.

Reasons why Manchester should have a hospital as a memorial to those who served in the Great War:

1. There could be no better expression on the part of the public than an institution dedicated to the relief of suffering.
2. From the point of view of the Medical Fraternity in town, it will be a great incentive to the men for accomplishing better work. They will be able to keep in touch with their cases through their entire course.
3. Accidents will receive more prompt and better attention.
4. Maternity cases can receive much better attention and care in a hospital than in homes, and ordinarily at much less expense for nursing and care.
5. With a hospital in town, patients can have their own physicians if they so desire.
6. From an economic point of view, friends visiting their sick can do so at about one sixth the present cost in money and time.
7. At present all Hartford hospitals are crowded and unable properly to take care of Manchester patients.
8. Patients are more contented and improve faster when their families can be near them.
9. Hospitals in other towns in the State, of the size of Manchester and smaller, have proved a success.
10. Several noted Hartford surgeons who have been consulted have advised constructing the hospital and are willing to serve on its staff.
11. This movement for the construction of a Manchester Memorial Hospital has the unqualified endorsement of every local physician.
12. The recent influenza epidemic proved that a local hospital was the most effective means of combating such a situation.

Manchester You're Ace High!

I wish I had the nerve to get out on Main street with a soap box and tell how we men who have been in the service appreciate what you've done for us. There's not a city, town, village or hamlet in the union that has shown a better spirit of cooperation and cheerful sacrifice than you all, doggone it, in spite of the many calls at your pocket-book you're coming back as strong as ever with your dollars to build this much needed hospital. We fellows in the service swore by all the fowls in the air, and the fishes in the sea that should there be another war we would see them all in Rockville before we'd go again—but, how quickly this thought was changed! It made the blood in our veins tingle when we learned of the magnificent work you had accomplished during our absence—the ever ready and eager spirit to devote your time and money to help us boys, and that deep sincere welcome accorded us when we returned has placed us under a everlasting obligation to you. Manchester we are proud to call you our Home Town. Manchester you need this Memorial Hospital, and by Gosh Manchester is going to build it. Let's go, we're with you and for you all the way.

A Soldier.

BE A LIFE MEMBER.

Those giving five dollars shall be members of the corporation for one year and have a voice in the selection of the trustees; those giving ten dollars and less than twenty-five shall be members for two years; those giving twenty-five dollars shall be members for five years; those giving one hundred, shall be members for life. Cheque, Brothers will add fifty per cent to the amount subscribed by others. Every dollar becomes worth $1.50, every ten dollars becomes worth $15, every fifty dollars becomes worth $75, and every one-hundred dollars becomes worth $150.

WHAT N. Y. NEWSPAPERS SAY OF THE MESSAGE

Editors Comment on President's Recommendation for Repeal of War Time Prohibition.

New York, May 21.—The New York newspapers commented as follows today on President Wilson's recommendation for the repeal of the war time prohibition act:

Times—"If this Yankee nation has not lost its sense of humor it will be amused by Mr. Wilson's suggestion. It is for the President to determine whether demobilization has proceeded so far that this will be entirely safe."

World—"In urging Congress to repeal the war time prohibition act as it applies to wines and beers the President proves that he has not been too far away from the United States to feel the strong popular demand for an honest, consistent change of national policy in this direction to accord with actual conditions."

Herald—"President Wilson's recommendation that the war time prohibition act be amended or repealed in so far as it applies to wines and beers will appeal strongly to the sober sense of the country."

Tribune—"If adjustment must be made, July is as good a time to begin it as January."

EXPECT REPLY THURSDAY.

Copenhagen, May 21.—The German reply to the allied peace terms will be handed to the Big Four on Thursday, said a Berlin dispatch today.

Germany will say that she cannot accept the economic conditions imposed by the allies and will state that Austria, as her ally during the war, is equally responsible in making reparation. The German newspapers continue to assert that Germany will not sign the treaty if the counter proposals are rejected.

$5 RINGS BOUGHT BY MARY GARDEN.

New York, May 21.—Mary Garden bought ear rings that cost $7.50, and three rings at $5 each, along with wearing apparel totalling $2,078, according to a firm of dress makers which is suing the prima donna, for that sum, alleging that Mary forgot to pay. A pink under-slip and turquoise blue and mauve robe with head dress was listed at $691, a boy's costume of red broadcloth at $221 and a white grecian gown with head dress at $263.

SCHOOL KIDDIES MAY SAVE OREGON FROM SCRAP HAT.

Portland, Ore., May 21.—A penny a week for forty-five weeks from 75 per cent of the school children of this state will save the famous old battleship Oregon from a scrap heap fate. This is the plan as proposed by Monroe Goldstein, assistant to the selective service executive of the state and submitted to Mayor Baker.

Citizens of Oregon do not want to see the fighting bulldog of the navy junked. But some revenue must be realized by the Navy Department if the vessel is to continue to be kept up.

Whether the proposed plan will receive the sanction of the Governor is not yet determined, but little opposition is expected.

The penny-a-week plan will realize about $50,000.

CLINTON BROTHERS IN LIVELY AUTO MIXUP.

Coquille, Ore., May 21.—The movies would have given a lot to film this.

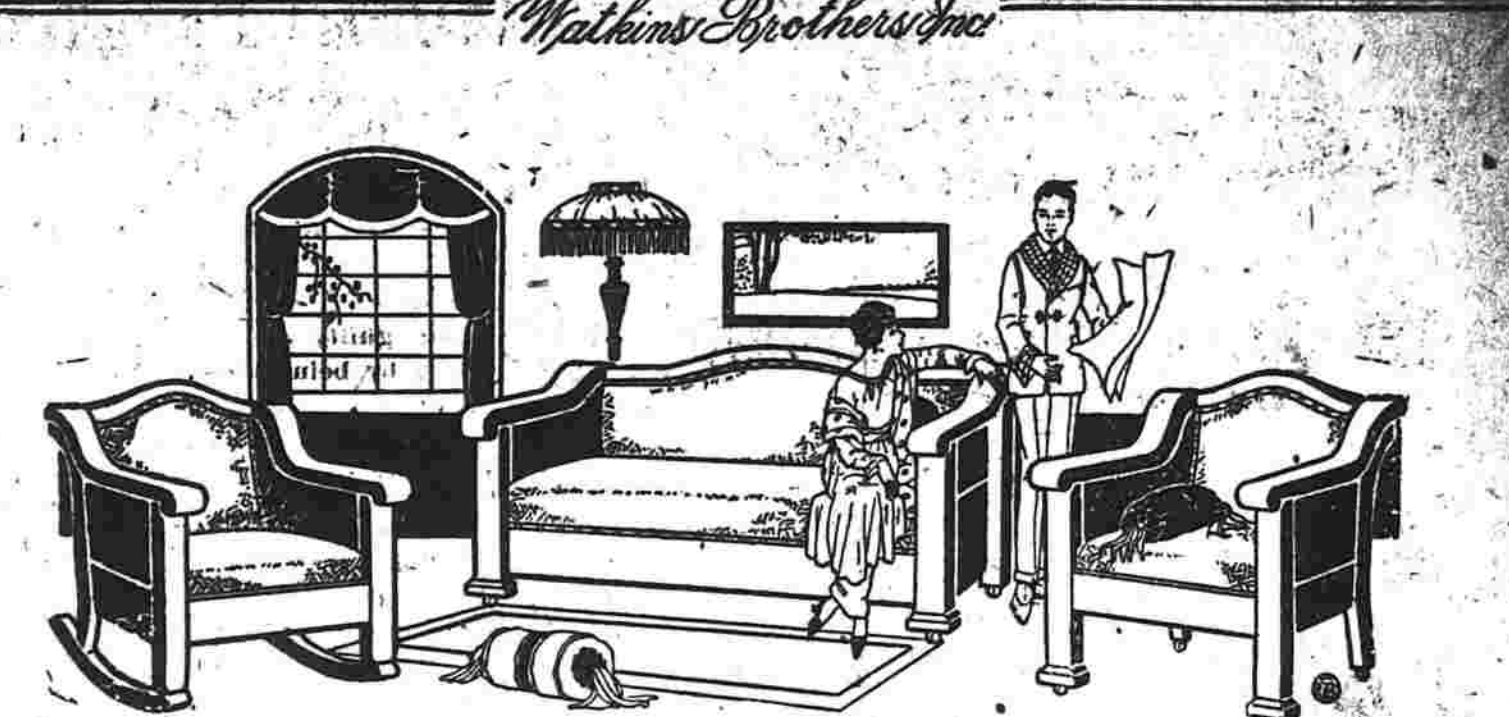

Clarence Clinton, lumberman, and family, were driving on a precipitous road. Clinton passed another car rounding a curve. Riley Clinton, his brother, coming in the opposite direction, struck the Clarence Clinton car head on, throwing the machine over a thirty-foot embankment. The car turned turtle without anyone being hurt.

Then a third Clinton, also a brother, drove along and rescued the other two Clinton families bringing them all home and towing one of the wrecked machines.

REFUSES TO STAY "DEAD", ALTHOUGH REPORTED KILLED.

Salina, Kan., May 19.—Homer Jewell, of Culver, near here, refuses to stay "dead". Although reported killed in action by the War Department he, turned up here and went home, after having been mourned for dead for several months.

Shortly after his arrival home he received a letter from a relative, sent to France and returned by his former officer, with the notation "killed in action"—and an "O. K." stating that investigation showed Private Jewell to be dead. Jewell was wounded and gassed and spent several months in a hospital.

AMAZINGLY DARING PLOT OF TWO HUN SPIES NIPPED IN BUD BY SCOTLAND YARD SLEUTHS

A prisoner who was charged at the Central Criminal Court on a serious charge of espionage was found guilty and sentenced to death by being shot. The sentence of the court was duly carried out by the military authorities this morning.

OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE.
London, April 28 (by mail).—Thus briefly, in the form of a cold official announcement, giving no details, the censor notified the British public on the morning of October 25, 1915, of the last act in one of the most astonishing spy dramas of the great war.

He did not trouble to disclose the identity of the distinguished German naval officer who, weeping and trembling like a child, collapsed before his executioners at the Tower of London.

Nor did the censor make any allusion to the spy's woman accomplice, who, in her despair and desolation, behind the walls of an English penal prison, appealed vainly for a last glimpse of the man she loved before he went to his doom.

The newspapers are now able to sketch the story and tell something about the record of two of the most remarkable figures in the German secret service.

The man was a fair complexioned, dashing young officer from the Wilhelmstrasse who came to England in August, 1914, and posed under the name of Reginald Rowlands.

The woman who was his associate in espionage was known as Lizzie Wertheim, the daughter-in-law of a naturalized German subject who formerly held an important post in the British Diplomatic Service.

She had lived in this country for some years, and long before the outbreak of war was engaged in international espionage and intrigue. Lizzie Wertheim was the queen of the German secret service, a gifted, accomplished, daring, subtle woman, and when Scotland Yard arrested her Herr Steiner, the directing genius of the German intelligence system, lost one of his most valuable and resourceful agents.

Lizzie Wertheim may be described as the mainspring of German espionage in Great Britain. Her record is sensational, and, with Rowlands, she went within an ace of bringing off one of the most thrilling spy coups of the war.

Lizzie Wertheim, a plain looking, sallow-complexioned woman about thirty-seven years of age, with distinguishing features, shared a small flat in the Hammersmith road with Miss Brandes, a German private secretary, who was recently deported.

It was at this flat, the top one in a large block close to Hammersmith Broadway, that Lizzie Wertheim received all her instructions from Steiner. She had a heavy mail every week and correspondence reached her from Berlin, Brussels, Antwerp, and various parts of Holland.

In the neighborhood she was a familiar figure. Her dress was distinctive, and she invariably wore the latest Parisian models. Several times a week she rode in Rotten Row, and once narrowly escaped serious accident when her horse bolted and collided with a motor car. In the evening accompanied by Miss Brandes, she dined at fashionable restaurants.

At certain intervals she left London and made excursions to different parts of England and Scotland. It was only when her flat in Hammersmith was raided that the police found a mass of evidence which showed that she was a very dangerous enemy agent.

Now for some of her exploits with Reginald Rowlands. This man was originally attached to the German Admiralty, and was recognized as an exceedingly able and clever officer. The German Government sent him to London to ascertain the dispositions of the British Grand Fleet and any other scraps of naval information which might be useful to von Tirpitz.

Lizzie Wertheim was informed of his mission and met Rowlands when he arrived in London. Rowlands had unlimited resources, and was thus able to stop at the best hotels in London.

They spent their time largely in moving among naval and military officers, and passing themselves off as tourists on an excursion of pleasure, made numerous friends.

During the day they made leisurely trips over all the munition areas in London, and in the evening dined at hotels which were frequented by Admiralty and War Office officials.

It was the naval bases, such as Harwich, Dover and Rosyth, which were the real objectives of the pair. Rowlands remained in London while Wertheim set out for the coast. She had no difficulty in reaching Dover, and while there she picked up some unimportant details respecting the Channel patrols. She made copious notes of everything she saw and overheard.

Scotland was her next goal, and she stopped for a short while at Edinburgh.

Then one morning she essayed the most daring enterprise in her career. She reached Scapa Flow, the base of the Grand Fleet. Without exciting any suspicion, she moved among the men on various battleships. In this way she obtained tidings of the Fleet, which she promptly flashed to Rowlands by means of coded letters and telegrams.

It was afterward ascertained that Wertheim had secured an accurate time table of the movements of certain naval units, and had the information reached Germany there might have been more than one disaster in the North Sea.

It was here that Scotland Yard took a hand in the game. There is no harm in disclosing the interesting fact now that every little move on the part of Lizzie Wertheim and Rowlands was carefully noted by detectives, whose duty it was to keep the pair under observation day and night. Scotland Yard men were always in their wake, and by a system which shows the perfection of the British intelligence service, practically every message sent by Lizzie Wertheim to Rowlands found its way into the hands of Rear-Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, who was in charge of the British Naval Intelligence Department.

Thus the British authorities were able to estimate the worth of the naval gleanings obtained by the spies. Scotland Yard was in no hurry to arrest Lizzie Wertheim and Rowlands. They were given all the freedom of activity which they sought till the moment came to place them under lock and key.

After an extensive tour round Scotland, Wertheim returned to London and joined Rowlands, to whom she handed elaborate sketches and plans of the naval bases she visited, together with codes indicating the whereabouts of dreadnoughts, battle cruisers and flagships.

Rowlands packed his bag, applied for a passport, which was granted to him, and prepared to leave London for Holland.

Scotland Yard was then instructed to act, and before Rowlands and Lizzie Wertheim could realize what had happened, they were in custody. Both spies were brought before Sir Reginald Hall. At this interview Rowlands stood in slovenly fashion before the cross-examiner. Admiral Hall seized this opportunity.

"How dare you stand like that in the presence of a superior officer!" he sharply demanded, whereon Rowlands clicked his heels and came smartly to attention.

The full story of his career and adventures with Lizzie Wertheim was subsequently related before three judges at the Central Criminal Court. Rowlands strongly protested his innocence, but the court found him guilty, and he was sentenced to death.

On the morning of his execution Rowlands completely broke down. He betrayed deep emotion and declared that he was ashamed to face so ignominious an end.

While being pinioned in the execution chair Rowlands fainted, and a merciful volley from the firing squad put the spy out of misery.

It was at the Central Criminal Court that Lizzie Wertheim was also tried. Extraordinary outbursts marked her trial. In a shrill voice that echoed throughout the Old Bailey she proclaimed her innocence and implored compassion from her judges. But the court found her guilty, and she was sentenced to ten years penal servitude, which she is now serving at Aylesbury.

The night before the execution of Rowlands she appeared for a farewell interview with the spy, but the military authorities refused this request.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE WORKS THIRD DEGREE

Large Gathering of Lodge Members at Odd Fellows Hall Last Night.

About three hundred Masons witnessed the conferring of the third degree at Odd Fellows hall last evening and passed an hour in sociability after the work. The degree was conferred by the officers of St. John's lodge, No. 4, of Hartford, who were assisted by the Hartford Masonic quartet and Robert H. Prutting, organist. The candidate was James McCaw.

About 100 members of St. John's lodge attended the ceremony, coming out from the city in automobiles. The degree was impressively conferred by Worshipful Master Frank L. McGee of St. John's lodge assisted by his subordinate officers. At the close of the work the guests adjourned to the banquet hall where refreshments were served and short speeches were made by visiting and local brethren. Past Master William S. Hyde officiated as toastmaster.

Thirty-three members of Manchester lodge were in the service during the war. Several of them were back in the lodge last night for the first time since their discharge.

BANDIT'S FAILURE WILL BE SHOWN ON SCREEN.

Tulsa, Okla., May 19.—P. J. Clark, a well-known moving picture operator here, has arranged to direct a photoplay depicting the life of Henry Starr, the famous bandit, recently released from the Oklahoma penitentiary by Governor Robertson. However, the play will differ from most of those of the lives of bandits, it will not show him as a hero, but as a failure.

The plot of the play will carry Starr from his early life to his release from the penitentiary, and will depict the folly of a life such as he lived, and will show his boyhood ambition to own a ranch.

MADE BARN TOO SOLD, ZEPHYR RUINED IT ALL.

Junction City, Kan., May 21.—There is such a thing as taking too great precautions against Kansas zephyrs, says L. Tully, a well-known farmer living near here. In years past the freakish Kansas storms have unrooted his barns and caused considerable damage. When he built a new barn last fall he used long iron bolts and fastened the roof to the sides, the bolts extending two feet into the timbers.

This spring came the usual wind-storm. When it found the roof would not lift from the barn it demolished the whole structure. Insurance adjusters estimated the damage at $1,500.

NC-4 WILL NOT RESUME TRIP TO EUROPE TODAY

Navy Department Learns One of
'Plane's Engines is Working Badly and Must Be Repaired.

Washington, May 21.—The N.C.-4 will be unable to hop off from Punta del Gada for the coast of Portugal today.

The Navy Department, at 7:23 today, received a message from Admiral Jackson stating that one of the engines of the plane, which had been expected to start the fourth leg of its trans-Atlantic flight today, was not functioning properly.

The necessary adjustments would keep Commander Read at Punta del Gada throughout the day, it was stated.

The following dispatch from Commander Towers, filed last night at 10:30, Washington time, was received by the Navy Department today:

"Have ordered Lieutenant Commander Lavender and Lieutenant Savenwater to take passage on government vessel for the United States and to report to the Bureau of Navigation. Have ordered Boatswain Moore to return to New York on the U. S. S. Melville, in charge of parts of NC-3. Recommend NC-3 be placed out of commission and that NC-1 be stricken from navy list. Commander of destroyer force has placed U. S. S. Stockton at my disposal. Request authority to proceed with remainder of personnel of NC-1 and NC-3 by Stockton to Plymouth, England, to join U. S. S. Aroostook as account and effects of personnel are on board that vessel."

The weather, according to Admiral Jackson, at noon, Azores time, was unsettled with a west wind of 20 miles an hour and frequent rain squalls. The sea was reported smooth and visibility good.

MADE 26,685 'PLANES IN LAST TEN MONTHS

In First Ten Months of War
British Turned Out
Just 530.

SOME ASTOUNDING FACTS

Aviators Between July 1915 and
Nov. 11, 1918 Dropped Nearly
7,000 Tons of Bombs.

London, May 21.—An amazing record of the work of the British air forces during the war has just been issued by the Air Ministry. It contains some astounding facts and figures, the most noteworthy being that, during the last ten months of the war, British airplane factories turned out 26,685 machines.

Between July 1915, and the armistice on November 11, 1918, British airmen destroyed or shot down over 7,500 enemy air craft, dropped nearly 7,000 tons of bombs, few over 900,000 tons—nearly 103 years—and fired 10,500,000 rounds of cartridges.

First 10 Months, 530.

During the first ten months of the war the airplane output was only 530.

Bombs weighing 20 pounds were dropped in 1914, but at the end of the war aerial torpedoes weighing 3,000 pounds were in daily use.

Marvelous development took place in the photographic reconnaissance branch of the royal air force, which, at the commencement of the war consisted of only two officers and three men. Their outfit consisted of two cameras and a portable box of developing chemicals. On the eleventh of last November the photographic personnel was 250 officers and 3,000 men.

Up to September, 1918, over 5,250,000 prints of aerial photographs, which proved of inestimable value during the great offensive, had been issued by the air service in the field.

Neither has it been confirmed that Senator Lodge is willing to accept the job of mandatory for the United States.—New York Evening Post.

MORIARTY CALLED GIANT, YOUNG PHYSICAL MARVEL

Manchester Youth Attracts Attention of Recruiting Officers—Fay
Also in Giant Class.

Manchester is becoming known far and wide for producing giants. The giants who are giving the town this reputation are Lawrence Moriarty and Leo Fay. Moriarty has enlisted in the Marines and Fay is playing first base with New Haven of the Eastern League.

A Hartford paper has the following to say about Moriarty.

"What local recruiting officers consider a physical marvel was discovered in the person of John L. Moriarty, 18 years old of South Manchester, when he was examined and enlisted in the Marine Corps, by Sergeant Wilson here yesterday afternoon.

Moriarty, although only 18 years old is 6 feet and 1 inch tall, weighs 195 pounds and has the remarkable chest expansion of 7 inches. He played guard and tackle for a season on the Major football team of the Wilmington, (Del.) High School baseball and football teams and played on the Manchester High School baseball team.

"He tried to join the marines last summer while only 17 years old, and upon being refused because he was under age he went to Wilmington, Delaware where he helped Uncle Sam in the shipyards. He remained there until the armistice was signed, after which he returned to his home in Manchester.

In company with five other recruits he will leave for the training station of the marine corps at Paris Island, N. C. Tuesday."

Fay is about 20 years old. He is six feet four inches tall and weighs over 200 pounds. He has been making a good showing so far in his work with New Haven. In yesterday's game he got one of five hits, being at bat three times. He had ten putouts, one assist and one error. In one game last week, he knocked a home run and a three bagger.

All the robins we have interviewed this spring are enthusiastic over the own-a-home movement.—Detroit Journal.

FLU NOT NEW DISEASE SAYS MEDICAL EXPERT

Same As the Grip Which First
Appeared in This Country in 1890,
Declares Dr. Steiner.

Bridgeport, May 21.—The Spanish influenza is not a new disease, but is practically identical with the grip as the grip first appeared in malignant form in this country in 1890, according to Dr. Walter Steiner of Hartford, reporting for the board of councillors at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Medical Society in this city today. While the bacillus of the influenza had not been isolated and identified, the report said, every condition pointed to the fact that the two epidemics were caused by the same disease.

NEW HAVEN MURDER TRIAL.

New Haven, May 21.—A vest, a club and a flashlight were introduced as evidence in the trial of Pasquale Valente, for the murder of Louisa F. Bradley an aged Derby woman who was struck over the head and fatally injured by a robber, who attempted to enter her home on the night of March 31. Valente's father-in-law identified the vest as the property of Valente. Evidence was introduced yesterday to show that the mask worn by the murderer was cut from the back of this same vest. The club and flashlight were likewise identified by Valente's father-in-law as the property of the accused and the state will attempt to connect them with the murder.

REV. N. J. SQUIRES.

Rev. N. J. Squires, formerly pastor of the North Congregational church of this town, died at his home in West Haven last night. The Rev. Mr. Squires was 78 years old and at the time of his death was pastor emeritus of the West Haven Congregational church. The funeral will be held in that town Friday from his home, 320 Elm street.

COLLECTING 'WAR TAXES'

LATEST IN CROOK SCHEMES.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 21.—It's here, boys. The latest "patriotic" confidence game is collecting "war taxes." M. E. Heldes is looking for the two smooth collectors who explained that his contribution to the national income under the "new revenue bill" would be exactly $10.20. Heldes paid and asked questions afterwards.

RECEPTION TO PORTERS AT NORTH CONG. CHURCH

Friends Bid Them Farewell as They Depart for Foreign Land.

More than two hundred friends of Rev. and Mrs. John S. Porter gathered in the North Congregational church last evening for a reception to them and their daughter Margaret. The Porters leave this country tomorrow for Prague where they will carry on missionary work in the Czechoslovak country and assist in the reconstruction of that newly formed nation.

The Rev. Mr. Peters presented Mr. and Mrs. Porter with a well filled purse as a token of the esteem in which they are held by the members of the church. To Miss Margaret Porter was given a gold C. E. pin, presented by the Y. P. S. C. E.

Rev. H. F. Studley and Richard Peters spoke of the services rendered by the Porters in this town and expressed the wishes of the congregation for their future success.

A feature of the evening was the singing of the Bohemian national anthem by Mrs. Paul. Miss McCormick of Hartford added to the entertainment with several readings. Musical selections were furnished by the Victor orchestra. The decorations were provided by Watkins Brothers and the Park Hill Florist.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Bridgeport, May 21.—Edward Bonini, was placed on trial in the superior court here today charged with murder in the killing of Joseph Callahan, 12 years old, in February, Bonini, a storekeeper, had been made very angry by the teasing of small boys. Finally he rushed into his house, got a rifle and fired at the first boy that he saw, the bullet passing through Callahan's heart. Callahan had not been among the crowd annoying Bonini, but was on a delivery errand for another storekeeper.

RUSH TO PURCHASE MAIN STREET LOTS PREVENTS AUCTION

E. J. Holl Takes Down Sign as Eager Buyers Race to His Office.

SMITH GETS FIRST PICK

Wilson Richardson and Fred Murphy Also Make Valuable Purchases—Dutton Farm Sold by Robb.

There was no public auction of the seven Main street business sites which were to be disposed of to the highest bidder by Edward J. Holl this noon. The large sign announcing the event was torn down last evening by Mr. Holl, he having disposed of his entire holdings on what is known as the Dugan tract, last evening. Yesterday morning there remained to be sold four lots, which were numbered 3, 4, 5 and 6. Lots number 3 and 6 were purchased late yesterday afternoon, the former being sold to Wilson Richardson, the coal dealer, and the latter to Fred Murphy of the firm of Murphy Brothers.

At eight o'clock last evening a realty race was staged between three prominent real estate men, the goal being E. J. Holl's office on Main street and the prize the remaining lots. Robert J. Smith beat the second man by thirty seconds, thereby acquiring lots 4 and 6. Mr. Smith purchased one of these lots for his brother George, who conducts the Park garage. Thus the realty ball which was started rolling by Harry M. Burke, completed another stage of its journey and according to present indications its destination is not yet known.

Mr. Holl purchased this property some time ago from William Dugan, intending to build a business block. The tract has a frontage of 148 feet on Main street and a depth of 114 feet on Pearl street. Mr. Holl decided to cut the tract into seven sections, each section having a frontage of about 20 feet on Main street and a depth of 114 feet on Pearl street. It was his intention to dispose of these lots to the highest bidder at a public auction to be held this noon but this was found unnecessary.

The building lots beginning at Pearl street and facing Main are now owned by the following: No. 1, Jacob Selwitz; No. 2, John F. Sullivan; No. 3, Wilson Richardson; No. 4, George Smith; No. 5, Robert J. Smith; No. 6, Fred Murphy; No. 7, Howard Murphy. If some architectural genius should come along and plan an arcade of Manchester's Main street and lay out his ideas in accordance with the respective occupations of the new owners here is what the building would look like. Starting at Pearl street going south would be a shoemaking establishment. This would be followed by a theater, a coal pocket, a garage, a real estate office, a bowling alley and a confectionery store.

Property Transfers. While the real estate transfers are being recorded on Main street, other property in town is also rapidly changing ownership. Many people are buying for investment, while others are acquiring property for future homes. Robert J. Smith reports the following realty sales made through his office during the last few days.

Amandus Friberg to Robert Clougher, an eight room house and one half acre of land on the south side of Russell street. Mr. Clougher is the state manager for the Atlantic and Pacific stores and is coming to Manchester to live.

Mrs. Catherine Cotter to Sven Linberg and wife, a six room cottage at the corner of Church and Myrtle streets.

Thomas Joyce to Lot S. Lahey and wife, a two family house on Winter street.

Tony and Frank Kraskie to Henry Bronson of Glastonbury, a two family house on North Main street.

Edward Seastrand to Alfred and Dorothy Maggs, two building lots on Hanway street near East Center.

Edward J. Holl, lot on Main street to Wilson Richardson.

Richardson Buys 10 Acres.

Wilson Richardson, head of the Richardson Coal company of the South end, yesterday bought from Arthur D. Hale, a ten acre tract of what is considered the most valuable railroad frontage in the north end.

The newly purchased tract extends from the east side of Apel place to the dam at White's pond. Several hundred feet of the last owners on the "New Haven" tracks. This mill road facility, combined with the fact that the track runs through a source of power if a factory were contemplated, makes this a most desirable piece of property.

Although Mr. Richardson refuses to divulge his future plans it is supposed that he will in the near future construct modern coal docks where by trucks will be loaded by gravitation. In addition to this there are still available, sites suitable for factories or warehouses. The transaction was made through the agency of Robert J. Smith.

Dutton Farm Sold.

The Dutton farm on Keeney street which has been in the hands of at least ten real estate agents for a number of years, was sold today to Maurice Horowitz of Hartford. The sale was made by Wallace Robb of the Robb Realty company, Main street. Prior to the sale the farm was owned by Ellery Dutton formerly of this town, but now of Hartford. Mr. Dutton having been forced to give up his agricultural pursuits owing to advanced age. The property includes about 17 acres, with barns, a two family house and farming implements. It is now occupied by Walter Palmer who will no doubt be forced to vacate as the new owner will occupy the property in the course of a month. The farm has been in the Dutton family for generations.

TRAINED BLUEBERRIES AND WILD ONES IN DEMAND.

Washington, May 21.—How about some trained blueberries? If you have any top notch wild ones, says the American Forestry Association, get in touch with Miss Elizabeth C. White, of New Lisbon, N. J., who is cultivating blueberries. She has them now as big as three-quarters of an inch through, but she wants to do better.

The blueberry is a peculiar fellow. Many of the new varieties are poorer than the parents and about one in a thousand turns out better than either parent, which is no nice way for the children to do if we are to get anywhere.

Then, too, the blueberry will not behave at all on a well-balanced soil. They require a sour or acid soil and are killed by fertilizer that would help most anything else along. Now Miss White has asked the American Forestry Association to help her find some wild, wild blueberry plants, so ask Miss White for correct shipping instructions at once.

ONE-LEGGED SYMPATHY MAY LEAD TO WEDDING.

Topeka, Kan., May 21.—A one-legged Chicago girl would correspond with Robert D. McGiffert, City Park Commissioner, with a view to "making a match." McGiffert who has a wooden leg with barometrical qualities, was written up recently by a local newspaper. He is a former marine and lost his leg in battle in France.

The Chicago girl, who says she lost a leg in 1918, wrote him, enclosing a clipping and expressed her sympathy with him and wants to correspond with him.

"I'm going to write and ask her which leg is missing," said the Commissioner. "If it is her left leg we might walk together very nicely. But if it is her right, our limbs would interfere with our strolls."

TEARS UP HIS HELL, TRIES TO SWALLOW IT.

Ayer, Mass., May 21.—Private Fred Greenburg, of Milwaukee, a member of the Thirty-second Division, was removed to the psychopathic ward at the base hospital after tearing up a $50 bill and attempting to swallow it.

ABOUT TOWN

C. M. Allison of Torrington was in town yesterday renewing acquaintances.

The White Sox management announced that the opposing team for Sunday's game at the Adams street grounds will be the Dodgers of Hartford.

Motorman Morris Quish of the city line resumed his duties yesterday after a week's absence. Mr. Quish sustained a severe injury last week when a wagon ran over his foot.

Edward Moriarty of Birch street, formerly employed as a painter at Cheney Brothers, has left the employ of this firm and in the future will conduct a painting and decorating business of his own.

The Hudson A. C. has completed arrangements with the management of the fast Viking A. C. of New Britain for a baseball game to be played at the West Side grounds on Sunday afternoon. The Vikings are rated as being one of the Hardware City's fastest aggregations.

Patrolman William Fitzgerald of Birch street was assigned to the new West Side beat last evening. The board of police commissioners at a recent meeting voted to assign a patrolman to this section of the town in response to a request from Cheney Brothers, which stated that the West Side was in need of a guardian of the law.

The baby tank which was used during the Welcome Home celebration of Saturday and Monday was loaded on a flat car at the South Manchester depot yesterday for shipment. The officers in charge of the machine stated last evening that they were awaiting orders from Boston regarding their destination. In all probability the tank will be sent to New Haven to participate in a gala event which will be staged in the Elm City on Saturday.

There is a great demand for Monday's edition of the Evening Herald which contained a complete description and carried photos of Saturday's parade. Last evening the south end office was swamped with local residents who desired copies.

The Athletic A. C. will meet the Annex A. C. of New Britain at the Mt. Nebo grounds on Sunday afternoon. The visiting team's roster is composed of some of the fastest semi-professional men in the state and it represents the Hardware City's best in baseball circles.

Two postoffice inspectors have been at the South Manchester postoffice yesterday and today, going over the proposed changes in Routes, for which Postmaster Thomas J. Quish has made application. It is proposed to extend the city delivery, so as to take in Clinton street and vicinity on the east side and the so-called West street tract on the west side. An extra delivery in the business section is also requested. After their inspection of the situation, the inspectors will make their recommendations to the postoffice department.

Miss Mildred Robshaw, employed at Hanover, N. H., is spending a two weeks' vacation at her home on Center street.

The American tank which was used in the Welcome Home parade Saturday and at the celebration Monday night, was shipped to Camp Merritt today.

The official board of the South Methodist church will hold a special meeting at the close of the mid-week service tomorrow evening. The canvassers in the Centenary Movement also will make their final reports at that time.

Rev. H. N. Brown, the newly appointed pastor of the Pentecostal church in Hartford, will speak at the mid-week service in the local Pentecostal church at 7.30 this evening. He will make his home with Mr. Clougher while he is pastor of the Hartford church.

AT THE COURT OF HONOR.

Dancing Draws Crowd—Searchlights and Fireworks.

Despite threatening skies there was a goodly attendance at the golf grounds last evening. The court of honor, illuminated by giant searchlights came in for a great deal of attention, while many enjoyed the dancing on the green. A concert and dancing program was furnished by the American Band of Manchester. There was also a minor display of fireworks. The stand of the concessionists resembled a country fair's midway on the closing night and the fresh hot dogs soon found a resting place.

The ladies' evening gymnastic classes at the Recreation Center have been discontinued for the summer months.
