

LEGAL ANGLE OF PROHIBITION SITUATION STILL UNCERTAIN

Congress Has Failed to Enact Enforcement Legislation— Few Direct Violations of Law—Whiskey, With Few Exceptions, is Not Being Sold Throughout the Na- tion.

Washington, July 5.—The end of the first week of war time prohibition today found the legal and legislative angles of the situation in a maze of uncertainty. Congress has failed to enact enforcement legislation with indications that no code could be put before the both houses for perhaps a fortnight and in the meantime Department of Justice, while planning wholesale prosecutions for direct violations of the law, will be making haste very slowly with respect to the situation as it affected 2.75 beer.

No Whiskey Sold.
Officials of the department today said that they were convinced of the opened sale of so called "hard liquor" was discontinued generally all over the country on July 1. Reports reaching the department from all sections, indicate, they said, that distillers and saloonkeepers as a whole are complying with the requirements of the war-time prohibition act as regards beverages containing alcohol content about which there is no controversy. There have been some isolated violations and these cases are being vigorously prosecuted, it was stated.

That 2.75 Beer.
As regards 2.75 beer over which a controversy still rages, Attorney General Palmer announced on the day the act went into effect, that the course of the department would be governed by the disposition of certain test cases that were then in the courts and others that would be brought.

Several Exceptions.
Today department officials said that while one or two courts have held against the department's contention that beverages containing more than one half of one per cent alcohol are illegal, these cases are not conclusive, but have, however, determined the department immediately to bring cases in every jurisdiction against both manufacturers and sellers of the controversial beverages.

One Case on Appeal.
The majority of these cases will be brought by information, as the department already has an indictment case on appeal to the United States supreme court. The basis of the government's contention in each case merely will be that the beverage contains more than one half of one per cent of alcohol and that no beverage itself is intoxicating. The future course of the department, officials pointed out, will depend somewhat upon the ruling obtained in each jurisdiction.

BRADLEY-BRANNAN.

William T. Bradley, of the firm of Brannan & Bradley, electricians, was married early this week to Miss Marguerite Brannan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brannan of 9 Ridgewood street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Dillon of St. Peter's church Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley will reside for the present with the bride's parents. Miss Hetta Brannan, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Thomas Bradley, brother of the groom, was best man.

JITNEUR FOUND GUILTY.

New Haven, July 5.—Scoring jitneurs who, he declared, roeklessly through central streets of the city with no apparent care except for the multiplication of fares, deputy coroner Kenneth Wynne today found Tony de Martino, a jitneur of 210 Wall Street, this city, criminal responsible for the death of John McVey, 48, who was struck and killed in the street by de Martino's jitney car on June 28 last.

ARMENIA AND ADRIATIC NOW UP AT CONFERENCE

Next Will be the Near East Problems Affecting Bulgaria and Turkey.

The council of five met this afternoon to consider the opening of the Danube to commercial traffic and the disposition of Armenia. The hope to get other matters out of the way so that the Adriatic problem can be taken up at the beginning of next week.

The peace delegates hope to be free soon to take up the final phases of problems in the Near East affecting Bulgaria and Turkey and the spread of Bolshevism.

The Ex-Kaiser's Trial.

Conference circles are greatly interested in Lloyd George's announcement that the ex-Kaiser will be brought to trial in London. Americans had hitherto assumed the attitude that it was not known what would become of the former German emperor. Even the French took a passive attitude.

Belgium Don't Want Trial.

It was first suggested that the ex-Kaiser be tried in Belgium, but opposition arose in that country on the ground that Belgium had a king and did not want to take the responsibility of putting another monarch on trial.

It was generally supposed in some quarters that the clauses of the treaty providing for the trial of the former Kaiser probably would never actually be carried out. Even now it is doubted by some whether Premier Lloyd George will ever be able to fulfill his promise, admitting that the United States, France, Italy and Japan are willing for the trial to proceed.

NOT HARD TO GET HARD LIQUOR IN THIS CITY

So Says Rev. E. G. Richter, of Stamford—All the Saloons Wide Open There.

Stamford, July 5.—The Rev. E. G. Richter, a Methodist, minister who has been doing press work for the Prohibition interests today sent the local newspapers a copy of a letter he had mailed to Chief of Police Brennan in which he complained of the "wetness" here and threatened, unless some action was taken to close the local saloons, to call for volunteers among his congregation on Sunday, to visit saloons and take samples of the liquors sold here and send them to United States District Attorney Crosby at Hartford. Chief Brennan had not received the letter at 10 a. m. He said he had complied with every request made of him by the district attorney and had forwarded him information requested. Practically all local saloons are open.

VON HINDENBURG RETIRES IS HAILED AS WAR HERO

Enthusiastic Reception Given Marshal at Kolberg—Distributes 200 Iron Crosses.

Copenhagen, July 5.—Field Marshal Hindenburg, former commander in chief of the German armies, has arrived at Hanover to spend the closing days of his life in retirement, said a dispatch to the Politiken today.

Minister of Defense Noske sent a telegram to Hindenburg thanking him for his military services and hailing him as a "glory crowned general whose leadership of the German army in enemy countries will live on unforgetably in history."

An enthusiastic reception was given the retiring general while passing through Kolberg. Three military bands played patriotic music in the public square and Hindenburg was the guest of honor at a banquet. The former commander in chief distributed 200 Iron Crosses.

N. Y. SALOON KEEPERS VIOLATING THE LAW

Number of Warrants Issued Today by U. S. Commissioners.

BONDS AT $2000 FIXED

Dealers Who Are Selling 2.75 Beer Will Not Be Bothered Until Decision is Handed Down.

New York, July 5.—The United States commissioners in this city today issued a number of warrants for liquor dealers in this city charging them with dispensing liquor in violation of the war time prohibition law.

Three in this city and James H. Carney of Shelton were ordered to appear before the commissioners here on Monday for a hearing. There seems to be a disposition on the part of the federal authorities to withhold prosecution of dealers for the sale of 2.75 per cent beer until a decision is obtained by the department of justice on the question of the legality of its sale.

Bonds, by order of the United States District Attorney are being fixed at $2,000 for those arrested.

MANCHESTER HUNTING FOR THE NORTH POLE

Thousands Leave Town in Quest of Cool Breeze—Rockville Draws Large Crowd.

Manchester spent the Fourth out of town. From the early morning hours trains and trolleys leaving this town, were jammed with persons leaving for lake and seaside resorts. At noon there were hardly a hundred persons on Main street.

The parks were well patronized, but most of the people spent the sweltering day at home. In the afternoon the thermometer at Quinn's drug store registered 101.

None of the movie houses had very large audiences and nobody but the ice cream vendors did much business.

Once in a while a man or boy would forget the ordinance and discharge a revolver but that was all the noise that disturbed the stillness of the day.

Of course the big fight was the main topic of conversation among the men and they gathered early around the Herald's bulletin board in the south end.

The conductors on the Crosstown and Green lines said that nine tenths of their passengers went to Rockville yesterday.

The Night Before.
The night before the Fourth at the north end of the town was one of the most quiet in history. There was no display of fireworks and very little noise of any kind. The merchants were busy as the people were buying for the Fourth. Manchester has been dry before but never before was it so dry on the third of July. It was impossible to get any liquor or beer in town.

Main street in the south end presented a deserted appearance last night after supper. Practically every one of the regular "hangouts" was either in Rockville or Hartford. The movies were the only attraction left in Manchester. These were sparsely patronized.

About eight o'clock there was a crowd at the Globe Hollow swimming pool. The Recreation was open but very few cared to remain indoors during the day. A large number however took advantage of the showers. A most popular place for the younger men was the veranda of the new Army-Navy clubhouse. Very few were ambitious enough to enjoy the indoor sports of the club but preferred to remain on the cool porch.

PRESIDENT TO PAY A VISIT TO NEW YORK ON TUESDAY.

Revision Made in His Plans—
To Make Brief
Address.

TO BE MET IN HARBOR BY BAKER AND DANIELS

Message to Congress Practically Completed—Wants Open Discussion by the Senate.

Enroute to the United States with President Wilson on board the U. S. S. George Washington, July 5.—(By wireless to New York)—A revision was made in President Wilson's plans today which will enable him to pay a brief visit to New York city when he lands at Hoboken next Tuesday. The President expects to go ashore shortly after noon and will prepare to Carnegie Hall in New York where he will be formally welcomed by Governor Smith, of New York state. After a brief response Mr. Wilson will go to the Pennsylvania station and board a train for Washington.

Secretary of War Baker, Secretary of the Navy Daniels and other officials will go down New York bay on the battleship Pennsylvania and be transferred to the George Washington before she docks.

Message Complete.
The President has practically completed the outline of the message which he will deliver to the joint session of Congress next week.

It is understood that he will not attempt to reply to the allegations of the opposition which do not apply directly to the treaty. It is likely that he intends to outline exactly what the treaty and the appendices actually mean and then allow the Senate to proceed with its consideration of the act.

Wants Open Discussion.
So far as the administration is concerned it can be said that the President is hopeful that the pact will be discussed in open sessions of the Senate.

President Wilson witnessed an elaborate program of games on the shipboard yesterday with soldiers and sailors participating. In the afternoon he delivered a patriotic address to a large gathering of officers and men of the ranks by the after hatches of the George Washington.

ENGINE TROUBLE FORCES BIG PLANE TO GIVE UP

Handley-Page Which Started for New York Comes Down Near Halifax, N. S.

Roosevelt Field, Mineola, L. I., July 5.—The giant Handley-Page biplane, Atlantic, which started from St. Johns, N. F., for New York, was forced to come down early today about 60 miles from Halifax, according to word reaching officials at the government field here.

Engine trouble forced the big biplane to descend, it was stated. The advice did not state whether the trouble experienced with the motor would force the abandonment of the flight.

YES, IT'S HOT.

New Haven, July 5.—The mercury began soaring again today and at 11 a. m. had risen to 94. About noon a sea breeze tempered the heat, the thermometer dropping to 91. Weather observer Tarr said there was every indication of a duplication of yesterday's maximum of 98 degrees, the hottest early July day on record. With factories closed over the week-end thousands sought relief along the shore. Up of noon there had been many prostrations, over a score being reported by some of the central stores.

SELECTMEN TO REFUSE TO CALL TOWN VOTERS

Will Try to Show Court Why Meeting Should Not Be Called.

DATE CHANGED TO 21ST

Absence of Judge Arnett Leads to Extension of Time—Board to Stand by Guns.

At 10 o'clock on the morning of July 21 the Selectmen of this town or their representative will appear before Judge Edward Smith of the Court of Common Pleas and endeavor to show him why a special meeting of the voters of the town to consider the building line controversy should not be called.

A writ of mandamus has been served on the Selectmen by William S. Hyde representing Messrs. E. J. Holl and John F. Sheridan. The writ ordered the selectmen to call the town meeting, or show sufficient reason why it should not be called, on or before July 10. This date has now been extended to July 21 because of the absence of Town Counsel Alexander Arnett. Mr. Arnett is away with his family on a vacation trip at Bethlehem, New Hampshire. He expects to return July 15 and the hearing will take place the following Monday.

The Board of Selectmen are standing pat on the advice of their legal adviser, Alexander Arnett, and will not call the special town meeting unless compelled to do so by the Court.

Should the lea of the Selectmen before Judge Smith fail to convince him, the Court will then issue an order stating a date on or before which the meeting must be called.

WILLARD STILL DAZED FROM AWFUL BEATING

Jack Now Proclaimed the Miracle Man of the Fistic World—Day After "Dope."

Toledo, O., July 5.—The yellowing pages of pugilistic history chronicle many battles replete with sensational, breath checking and weird moments—but nothing that even remotely approaches the clash of yesterday afternoon.

A new day has been born since Jack Dempsey battered Jess Willard into a crumpled, gruesome looking human, but even now the thousands who witnessed it are still in a daze; still unable to put into sequence every movement of that fact; still bewildered by the dramatic incidents of that spectacular, yet one-sided bout.

But, though they cannot connect clearly every action in those three hysteria producing rounds, they are a unit in this expression:

"Jack Dempsey sizes up, as the greatest punching heavy weight of all time—the miracle man of the fistic world."

And they are venturing the prediction now that Dempsey probably will hold the throne longer than any other king that ever reigned in pugilism.

R-34 Was on Last Lap of History Making Trans-Atlantic Flight—In Few More Hours Would Have Landed at Mineola, L. I.—Asks for Assistance.

Roosevelt Field, Mineola, L. I., July 5.—Within sight of American mainland and with victory almost won, the giant British dirigible, the R-34 is reported this afternoon to be stalled between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, over the Bay of Fundy. She was on the last lap of her history-making trans-Atlantic flight and within a few more hours would have made Mineola, where thousands of persons were waiting to receive her.

First reports that the dirigible was in trouble came to officials here through American naval wireless stations far up on the North Atlantic coast.

The naval wireless station at Otter Cliff picked up this message from the ship:

"Could destroyer proceed to south end of Bay of Fundy to take his majesty's airship, R-34 in tow?"

The naval wireless station here picked up another message from the R-34 as follows:

"Flying over Nova Scotia. Strong head winds. Petrol running short."

In Serious Trouble.
The need for a tow could only mean one thing, officials here declared, and that is that the ship is in serious trouble. They believe that either her petrol has run clear out—its shortage being indicated in the last message—or that serious motor trouble has been experienced.

Officials were satisfied that the lives of the crew are in no danger. They believe the big ship is floating lazily over the waters of the bay unable to move.

The south end of the Bay of Fundy lies approximately 400 air miles from New York, so that the big dirigible completed practically seven eighths of her journey.

It is roughly estimated that she must have travelled 3,000 miles.

Motors Strained.
The strain on the motors of the ship have been terrific. Experts waiting for her arrival here pointed out that the motors have been run continuously well over 72 hours under trying conditions. The R-34 has been buffeted by strong winds all the way across and some of these have driven her far out of her course so that the actual distance travelled is very great.

This, it was pointed out, would also make a material difference in the petrol supply which Major Scott had estimated necessary for the trip.

Hope Given Up.
The messages from the ship eliminated the last faint hope that she would be able to make Roosevelt Field today.

The news of her mishap spread like wildfire among the thousands gathered here to see her arrival. Saturday half-holiday crowds pouring into the field were met with the news and turned back. There was a general exodus from the field as it became apparent the big ship could not possibly reach here today.

Message Picked Up.
Montauk Point, L. I., July 5.—The Montauk wireless station picked up indirect messages from the R-34 early this morning, indicating that the big dirigible was at the head of the St. Lawrence river.

The R-34 was making about 40 knots an hour at that time, a speed that would bring her into Mineola around noon.

Operators Listening.
Two men were constantly on duty at the radio stations here today listening intently for a direct message from the giant. Officials were momentarily expecting to catch the snapping of her wireless, and were wondering at the delay.

If the R-34 continues to make 40 knots an hour she will reach Mineola before noon, some officials declared. So soon as the R-34 nears Long Island, word will be flashed to all radio stations and the C-3, American naval dirigible, will go out from here to meet and guide the big Briton to Roosevelt Field. The C-4, her sister ship, will go out from Rockaway Point for the same purpose.

Along Main Coast.
Portland, Me., July 5.—Thousands at the beach resorts along the Maine coast watched for the British dirigible this forenoon but failed to sight the big air craft. Weather officials report off shore will be hazy. Naval officials said that if the R-34 took the course followed heretofore by aviators to and from Long Island, New York and Nova Scotia, the dirigible would pass out of sight of land at the tip of the Nova Scotia coast and would not sight land again until she reached Cape Cod on the Massachusetts coast.

The Last Lap.
Roosevelt Field, Mineola, L. I., July 5.—The dirigible, the R-34 now on the last lap of her trans-Atlantic journey from England, is expected to reach here about noon today. Last direct word from the dirigible stated that she was off Sydney, N. S., at 8.45 o'clock last night, and naval air men figured today that, allowing an average speed, the big balloon could make the field by noon.

200,000 Watching.
Thousands of persons, gathered at the field and in the surrounding small villages, were watching at dawn this morning for first sight of the balloon. It is estimated that 200,000 persons will see the history making machine anchor to her moorings here.

Radio men sat at their instruments here all last night, straining their ears for the first message from the R-34 but this morning there was still no word, other than that reporting her position last night.

Hope All is Well.
While the experts here were slightly worried at the continued silence of the dirigible's wireless, they have no doubt that everything is going well with the ship. They believe that after striking the Canadian mainland, the R-34 probably turned straight down the coast.

It is possible that something may have gone wrong with her wireless, but if that be true there would still be no cause for alarm, as the weather is well-nigh perfect.

Mineola and the surrounding country looked like circus day in the pale morning light.

Auto Parties Galore.
Auto parties have come for miles to see the ship land. All the hotels of Mineola, Westbury and other small towns are filled to overflowing.

A notable gathering of American airmen are here to greet the British crew. General Charles P. Menoher, chief of the army air service, arrived from Washington early today, heading the army contingent. Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, commander of the Third Naval District, represented the navy. It was reported about the field that secretary Baker and Secretary Daniels would be on hand to welcome the fliers, but they were not present this forenoon.

Heard from R-34.
Radio stations far up on the coast reported today that they had caught faintly the R-34's wireless signals. The reports, however, did not state her position.

Lieutenant Frederick W. Lucas of the British Royal air force, was anxiously awaiting an answer to his message sent by wireless to Major G. H. Scott, commanding the R-34, but no answer had been received up to 8 a. m. He had asked Major Scott for a report on his position and probable time of arrival.

TOWN COURT OFFICIALS TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Raymond Johnson Takes Place of John M. Shewry as Assistant Prosecuting Attorney.

The town court officials have all taken the oath of office for another year. The fiscal year begins July 1.

Deputy Judge Carney administered the oath to Judge Arnot and he in turn administered the oath to the other officials. The only change in the officers is that Attorney Raymond Johnson becomes assistant prosecuting attorney in place of John M. Shewry.

ORAL NEGOTIATION START. Paris, July 5.—The first oral negotiations with the Germans regarding the carrying out of the treaty terms are expected to begin on Monday or Tuesday.

The German government has sent a note asking that the question of reparations be considered immediately which apparently disposes of doubts that the Germans would wind up the ratification of the treaty.

TWELVE DROWNED. Sioux Falls, S. D., July 5.—Search is being made today in the waters of Lake Madison, forty miles from here, for the bodies of more than a dozen persons believed to have been drowned when an excursion boat capsized. Thirty persons reported to have been aboard the boat and only fifteen are known to have been rescued.

Reversing It. "Queer, wasn't it, those jousts of chivalry?" "What was queer?" "Why, every knight made a day of it."

Always at It. "I know a man who is at the turning point of his life every night." "How can that be?" "He tends the big revolving light."

Naturally. "My brother's business is going to the wall." "Dear me, how did that happen?" "He is selling decorative vines."

Their Way. "Motorists are always speaking contemptuously of pedestrians." "Yes, I notice they have a way of running them down."

Perceptible Result. "Confound the luck! The front door has just been painted." "Yes, it is easy to see you have been up against it."

PROFESSIONAL

Life and Death were growing tired of the struggle. "Look here," said Life, "we'll never get anywhere at this rate. I know I could put you out if I wanted to, but why should I? When I finish you I finish myself."

"Just what I was thinking," responded Death. "Why not quit and call it a draw?" "You're on," said Life.

In that moment some of the world's greatest medical reputations were made.

Workless Affluence. "You don't sell gold bricks any more." "No," replied the wily citizen. "Money is so easy to get nowadays that there's no use of going to all the trouble of hunting up a brick and gilding it."

Place Hunting. "Some day," said the high-browed youth, "I shall have a place in the hall of fame." "Well," replied Senator Sorghum, patiently, but absent-mindedly, "may be I can help you. What kind of a place do you want and what salary do you expect?"

Deductive Analysis. "How did you know the relative Mr. Bipps is entertaining is a masculine one?" "Because Bipps remarked in the course of conversation that his visiting relative was very closemouthed."

Queer. Chick: It's funny. Turtle: What is? Chick: You say you're 80 years old, and you're not out of your shell yet.

Real Literature. I scorn the magazine design. I scorn at books so neat. I love to read the little signs Displayed on every street.

Mean Hint. "Are these flannel cakes, Mrs. Jiggers?" "No, sir, they are not flannel cakes. Why do you ask?" "I merely judged they were by their taste."

Magnate's Expenses. Crawford—Since he became a mag, his expenses are enormous. Crabshaw—No wonder. He hires a doctor to keep him out of bed and a lawyer to keep him out of jail.—Life.

Odd Happenings. "Pa, do they have lots of snow and ice in Panama?" "Of course not, son." "Then how can they have those slides on the canal?"

Pointless. "The man is a pinhead!" exclaimed the exasperated person. "Not at all," replied the soothing citizen. "Even a pinhead leads to some sort of a point. He never does."

Details. "Her father struck me very forcibly." "As a man of thought?" "No; as a man of action. He kicked me out."

Delayed Vindications. "Truth crushed to earth will rise again," said the hopeful person. "Yes," replied the cynic; "but it's liable to have to go with a crutch for some time after."

Metallic Natures. "Bliggins has an iron will, but he is behind the times." "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "That's the trouble with an iron will. It's liable to get rusty."

"Oh, father! call Adela, quick! quick!" cried his mother. "We gave you up as dead, and oh, Wilfred, the angel who came to bring tender love into our lives, your wife—" "My wife!" repeated Wilfred.

"Yes. She came to us directly after it was supposed you had perished in the river accident. She has been our solace—our comfort Adela."

Blanche Tyson, never knowing why she had been summoned, entered the room, stared bewilderedly at Wilfred, and fell to a chair in a swoon. Father and mother rushed for restoratives. Blanche opened her eyes.

"Forgive" she whispered brokenly. "I was hungry and thirsting for love, and they have given me their hearts' store. Oh! must I go back to the drear, chill old life!"

"You brave woman!" he whispered, "true as steel to my dead wife, an angel in the household here. If I am worthy, your love give it also to me. Hugh! they are coming."

Wilfred Marsh made an excuse to meet a friend and Blanche went with him. Two hours and a discreet clergyman sufficed to cement the marriage tie, and the fond mother and father, calling Blanche "Adela" to the end, never knew the secret of her imposture which had brought lasting happiness to all.

Suspicious. "I regard investment in an irrigation company as suspicious." "Why?" "Isn't apt to have water in its stock?"

From the Dead

By OTILLIA FRANCES PFEIFFER (Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

He had made the mistake of his life, but was facing it manfully. Estranged from his family, stubborn pride held him in continued alienation. Wedded to a mere doll of a woman, who had become a hopeless invalid, Wilfred Marsh closed every past chapter of his life and devoted dreary hours to her care, and worked like a slave to provide her with luxuries she demanded as wittlessly as though he had a royal fortune.

He had married under an impulse urged on by loneliness and had accepted a position on a river steamer as clerk, because nothing better had come along. He was gone four days a week on his trips, the other three he was at her side, ministering to her illness and her whims. He tried to hide from himself that he had ceased to love her, but the conviction caused him to make even greater sacrifices to emphasize his loyalty.

Finally Adela became so hopeless an invalid that it was necessary to provide her with a nurse. There came in answer to an advertisement a young woman, whose very loveliness was accentuated by eyes that told of sadness and firmly compressed lips that indicated that her path in life had not been a flowery one.

"It will not be the pleasantest of homes for you, and your cares will be heavy," Marsh told her frankly. "I have had neither home nor friends for five years," answered Blanche Tyson smilelessly. "I will do my duty."

She kept her word. During two months her efforts to please and add to the comfort of the invalid were incessant. She lifted many a burden from the oppressed shoulders of her employer, and her presence in the house calmed and encouraged him the few brief days of the week he remained at home. Adela Marsh sank rapidly. The doctor had told Miss Tyson that the end might come at any time. It was dawning when terrible news came to the cheerless home. The river steamer had collided with another craft one dark night, the lives of fifty persons were sacrificed and listed among the dead and missing was Wilfred Marsh.

Blanche did not tell Adela of her widowhood, under instruction from the attendant physician.

The end came within the same week. Blanche saw to all funeral and other arrangements. The sale of the furniture in the house barely covered expenses. Alone in the stricken home, gathering up its belongings for sale, Blanche came across some letters. One she read to learn of the past of Wilfred Marsh. It was from his mother, beseeching him to return home. Even if he had married, she implored him to bring his wife with him—loving, forgiving hearts were ready to welcome both. The next day she came across the marriage certificate of Marsh and Adela Bortell. She passed a troubled night. Wealth—home—mother—these seemed to cry out to her to seek repayment for the long, lonely years of the past. Who would ever know?

Six months to a day after the departure of Blanche the man the world had supposed to be dead appeared at the dismantled home. Wilfred Marsh had escaped from the river disaster by being picked up on a piece of wreckage, badly injured and insensible. He had not been recognized and had lain in a hospital, practically devoid of memory and reason. Pale, attenuated, he had come back to his former home to find it tenantless. It would take many further months to recuperate. His soul longed for home and his own people. He had barely enough to pay his fare back to his native town. It was just as dusk that he stood at the threshold of the home of his happy childhood. He quivered with fear as he reflected that his father or mother, or both, might have died during his absence.

But no! With a joyous cry his aged mother folded him in her eager arms, welcoming him as one restored from the grave, while his father embraced him, weeping with compassion and delight.

"Oh, father! call Adela, quick! quick!" cried his mother. "We gave you up as dead, and oh, Wilfred, the angel who came to bring tender love into our lives, your wife—" "My wife!" repeated Wilfred.

"Yes. She came to us directly after it was supposed you had perished in the river accident. She has been our solace—our comfort Adela."

Blanche Tyson, never knowing why she had been summoned, entered the room, stared bewilderedly at Wilfred, and fell to a chair in a swoon. Father and mother rushed for restoratives. Blanche opened her eyes.

"Forgive" she whispered brokenly. "I was hungry and thirsting for love, and they have given me their hearts' store. Oh! must I go back to the drear, chill old life!"

"You brave woman!" he whispered, "true as steel to my dead wife, an angel in the household here. If I am worthy, your love give it also to me. Hugh! they are coming."

Wilfred Marsh made an excuse to meet a friend and Blanche went with him. Two hours and a discreet clergyman sufficed to cement the marriage tie, and the fond mother and father, calling Blanche "Adela" to the end, never knew the secret of her imposture which had brought lasting happiness to all.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

ROUND ONE—Willard opened the engagement by pumping his legs left twice into Dempsey's face. The challenger missed a swing, and slipping into a wince landed three body blows with his free left hand, carrying but little force. Willard had him easily in a clinch, and partly turning him around used his rapier-like left again, once to the head and once to the body after the break.

Dempsey swung a parring left to the jaw, followed by right and left to the body. The champion rocked on his heels, but he pulled himself together and as Dempsey crowded in again he shot a left to the mouth and repeated to the eye. Dodging past the outstretched left as it snapped for the third time Dempsey whipped over a right and left almost simultaneously, the blows landing flush on Willard's jaw, and for the first time in his championship career Willard was dropped to the floor. He was up at the count of six, only to be sent to the canvass with another right as he rose slowly to his feet. The blood began to pour from his mouth.

Willard turned away from his opponent, who struck again twice with his right, Jess falling on his hands and knees. When he arose Dempsey crowded him into a corner and with a right and left to the face sent him to the floor again. As he arose a fullblow of body blows dropped him in a corner, where he sat when the bell terminated the round.

ROUND TWO—Dempsey started where he left off and Willard, with a big cut under his eye, appeared to be in a bad way. He managed to snap a left to Dempsey's face and a puny right uppercut to the chin. Dempsey replied with several body drives and Willard fell partly through the ropes. When he regained his feet he stumbled into a clinch, but Dempsey easily tore loose and proceeded to batter him almost at will, the champion retaliating with but three feeble stabs to the face as the bell rang.

ROUND THREE—Dempsey hit Willard twice with lefts to the jaw. Dempsey sent right to jaw and left to body. Dempsey peppered lefts to Willard's jaw without a return. Dempsey backed the champion to the ropes, and hammered him with lefts and rights to jaw and body. Dempsey put a right and left to the head and had the blood streaming from the champion's mouth. Willard landed a stinging uppercut to Dempsey's jaw and Dempsey retaliated with a left to the jaw. The challenger, although unmarked, was covered with blood, which poured from Willard's mouth. Dempsey hit the champion with right and left to the jaw as the bell rang.

ARMY AND NAVY CLUB IN MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Present Members Divided Into Teams Which Will Round Up All Ex-service Men.

The Army and Navy Club will start a campaign for members next Monday. The aim is to have every ex-service man in Manchester join the Club. There is now a splendid club house and all the furnishings that a first class gathering place for men should have and it is felt that the time has come for an expansion in the membership list. The present members have been divided into ten teams of eleven members each and they will make a thorough canvass of the town.

Final plans will be made at a meeting of the teams and their captains at the clubhouse Monday evening.

Circle Theater

Vitagraph brings to the screen another popular novel of the day in "Miss Dulce From Dixie", which is adapted from the charming romance of the same name written by Lulah Ragsdale. Gladys Leslie has a role decidedly suited to her personally and dramatic versatility in that of Miss Dulce, in this Vitagraph picture, which will be seen in the Circle theater tonight.

Miss Dulce, Southern bred, is left a legacy of $5,000 contingent on her ending an estrangement between her father and a Northern uncle dating back to the Civil War. Dulce invades the hostile atmosphere of her uncle's home in New York City and in spite of all obstacles thrown in her path wins not only the legacy but a husband and a fortune. The picture is full of action with many flashes of humor and none of the heart interest of the novel has been lost in the screening.

The supporting cast is of exceptional strength, including the following popular Vitagraph players: Charles Kent, Arthur Donaldson, James Morrison and Julia Swayne Gorden. Joseph Gleason directed the picture.

On the same bill will be the Pathe News, "The Tiger's Trail" and a two reel comedy.

Tomorrow "Blackies" Redemption" will be the feature.

Remember that the Circle is the coolest spot in town. With all the windows and doors open and electric fans whizzing, it is just as cool as under the trees in the Park.

On Monday that great serial "The Perils of Thunder Mountain" will begin. Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway are the stars. This is the most thrilling story of adventure ever filmed. Just see the first chapters and you will have to admit the truth of this statement.

THE CHRONICLE SPEAKS.

London, July 3.—"Clearly it is not impossible that we may yet see Prof. De Valera, president of the Sinn Fein organization proclaimed in London as the first prime minister of a contented Ireland," said the Daily Chronicle today in its leading editorial.

Park Theater

Wm. Russell, Manchester's most popular screen star, will play the leading part in the feature at the Popular Playhouse tonight. The title of the picture is "Where the West Begins" and it is just as its name implies, a story of the western plains. On the same bill will be the serial "The Red Glove" and a comedy.

For tomorrow, Elaine Hammerstein will be shown in a Pathe melodrama "Her Man."

Almost the entire action of "Her Man" is laid in the Hill country of Kentucky—the Cumberland Mountains—that "land of yesterday" where primitive passions over-ride civilized laws, where "might is right", and where the deadly vendetta is as much in vogue today as ever it was in Cicely. To this land of feuds proceeds Juanita Holland, a highly intellectual New York girl, in accordance with a promise given to her grandfather that she would go down there to help his people.

Juanita steps instantly from 20th Century culture and refinement in New York, from an aimless and butterfly existence, to the stern and forbidding atmosphere of the feud country. The call of the clan is too strong within her to be stifled—she feels her duty is to help and assist her own people.

A bloody feud is in progress at the time of her arrival, between the rival clans of the McBriars and the Haveys, and Juanita concentrates her attention upon "Bad Anse", the ringleader of the Havey faction, and sets up a school in a region which has never before enjoyed the blessings of liberal education.

Northern ideas are not quickly assimilated in the Kentucky mountains, but gradually Juanita's influence is felt. "Bad Anse" agrees to a truce and temporary peace ensues. But the rival clan don't play fair and the war breaks out afresh. Once more Juanita intervenes, and at her suggestion "Bad Anse" instructs his henchmen to let the law take its course. The assassin is duly convicted of murder in the first degree and is hanged. This should have concluded the feud, but the McBriars hunger for revenge and decide to "get" the Havey leader, wrongfully condemning him for the law's just sentence upon their murderous clansman.

By this time Juanita has learned to love "Bad Anse" and when the McBriars go out in force to "get" her man, this Northern girl, whom it had taken over a century of generations to refine, falls back to her type at the first real call of her clan and fights like a tigress for "her man", defying the McBriars although "Bad Anse" is wounded severely and she is outnumbered six to one. When these men, skulking in the shadows outside her cabin, threaten to come in and take him within three minutes, her cry of "Come in and get him—Damn you!" is a sub-title which will bring forth rounds of applause.

CHAUTAQUA PIANIST CARRIES STEINWAY GRAND.

Violinists travelling from town to town carry their violins with them; so do cornetists, futeists, and even bass-drummers, but who ever heard of a pianist travelling to a different town every day, carrying his piano with him?

And yet that is exactly what Gabriel L. Hines does. Gabriel L. Hines is the famous musician and composer, who gives one of his popular piano lecture-recitals of Tuesday afternoon at the Chautauqua tent.

Of course Professor Hines doesn't actually "tote" his own piano on his back from town to town. He is most too up to date for this and besides his piano is a regular grand piano, a "Steinway grand." The Chautauqua Association has provided for Professor Hines a special auto truck and an expert driver and mechanic. After each afternoon's program the piano is loaded on the truck and driven to the next town on the circuit where it is placed on the platform and tuned ready for the afternoon program.

The Association is willing to go to this expense and trouble because the recital by Professor Hines is the finest piano work of the week. His rendition of the various types of music and his exposition of each type illustrated by his own compositions has proved popular and entertaining as well as instructive, wherever he has appeared.

He will give his recital on the second day of the Chautauqua week which is the "music day" being featured by Professor Hines and the concert of the Corella-Bonelli Company at night.

THE SENATE GETS THE TREATY

The Senate is coming into its own. For a long time it has announced to the world that it would never be happy till it had the treaty. It discovered a preliminary copy a few weeks ago and had a glorious time tearing and snatching at it like a puppy with a rat.

But soon the treaty—the real treaty—will be in the hands of the Senate and it is theirs to handle as they see fit. A good many persons have had a lot to say about the ignoring of the rights of the Senate in the treaty making.

The treaty making power of the President is explicitly stated in section 2, Article II of the Constitution—"He (the President) shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur."

When once the treaty is delivered to the Senate there is no power on earth that can prevent them from doing what they will with it. It is about to be thus delivered and the nation is awaiting the result.

A FARCE

It used to be the custom of Mr. Jess Willard to strut about the ring of his personally conducted circus and offer a large sum of money to any man who could successfully carry on a fistie encounter with him for a limited number of minutes.

Forty-five thousand persons, including about five hundred women, sat in the great unfilled arena and gaped through the afternoon of one of the hottest days on record to see one of the cheapest exhibitions of so called championship boxing ever staged.

CROWDS "SEE" BIG FIGHT ON HERALD'S BULLETIN

Story of Championship Contest Is Told to Hundreds—Cheers and Hisses Greet News.

The only excitement in Manchester yesterday was before The Evening Herald's bulletin board. In the South end. The sidewalks were jammed and the shady spots across the way were filled by hundreds of fight fans who watched the progress of the shortest championship battle in history.

HOMES WANTED FOR FRESH AIR CHILDREN

Applications for Children Should be Sent in Early—Party to Come July 15.

These are oppressively hot days even in the country, but think what they must be in the crowded tenements of New York where large families live in two or three rooms and the children are forced into the street to play.

Last summer nearly 100 of these children were brought to Manchester by the Tribune Fresh Air Fund and were entertained in homes in Manchester and vicinity.

The Fresh Air Fund wants to send another group of children here a week from next Tuesday and a good many of the same children who were here last year want to come back. Those who are willing to take children for two weeks from July 15 should send their names to Mr. Ela of the Evening Herald or to Mrs. P. Hannon at the Universal Market as soon as possible.

ONE HUNDRED AT WORK ON PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

Men of St. James' Parish Volunteer as Cellar Diggers—Shovel Sells for $50.

The men of St. James' parish are making good progress on the cellar for the first unit of the new parochial school to be built on Park street. They started the work yesterday morning, spending the whole forenoon digging and the work was continued today, as the mills have been closed since Thursday night and the men did not have to resume their usual duties.

At eight o'clock yesterday morning, Rev. W. J. McGurk conducted a short service and then the first ten shovels to be used were sold at auction. P. J. O'Leary bought the first for $50. Father McGurk took the second himself, the third sold for $25 and the remaining ones brought $10 each.

The number of men working today was much smaller than yesterday. Some had hay and other work of their own to do and some, who worked yesterday were unable to continue today because of sore backs. But the work is progressing and the men seem to be having a good time at it.

HOLDS ANNUAL SERVICE TO KEEP CHURCH TITLE

Petersburg, Ind., July 5.—The cornerstone is all that is left standing of the Flat Creek Church at No. 12, twelve miles east of here, which was burned almost thirty years ago. For more than two score years it has been necessary for services to be held on the site at least once each year in order to hold the property for religious purposes.

League Holds Protection Shield Before Labor of All Countries

On this page The Herald is printing a series of letters touching every angle of the plan for a League of Nations proposed by the Paris Covenant, now awaiting ratification by the United States Senate.

They are written by: William H. Taft, Ex-President of the United States. George W. Wickersham, formerly United States Attorney General. A. Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University. Henry W. Taft, of the New York Bar.

The labor article in the original Covenant (Article XX) merely bound the parties to the establishment, as a part of the League organization, of a permanent Bureau of Labor, in furtherance of an effort to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor in the countries of the League and those with which they should have commercial and industrial relations.

Subject to and in accordance with the provisions of international conventions existing or hereafter to be agreed upon, the members of the league (a) will endeavor to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor for men, women and children both in their own countries and in all countries to which their commercial and industrial relations extend.

LETTER TO GOVERNOR FROM SUFF PRESIDENT

President of Suffrage Association Thinks "Special Emergency" May Be Shown by Monster Petition.

The following open letter in reference to the calling of a special session of the Connecticut Legislature has been sent to Governor Holcomb by Miss Katharine Ludington, president of the Connecticut Woman Suffrage Association.

My dear Governor Holcomb: I may send you a word of comment on one or two points raised by your statement to the citizens of Connecticut in regard to a special session of the Legislature?

You further say that you "cannot conclude that the desire of a few women—be they more or less in number—to have a vote upon said amendment taken prior to the next state session of the General Assembly" creates the special emergency which would justify calling the Legislature together.

When the Legislature was considering the suffrage bills, which were under consideration this winter, a petition of 98,000 women's names was presented to it. The canvass of women has now grown to 103,000. It represents women in the state who favor woman suffrage and is, I believe, the largest number of names ever gathered on any petition presented to the Connecticut Legislature.

DENIES DEATH OF LOVE BECAUSE OF HIS WOUNDS

St. Louis, Mo., July 5.—"If Gustave wants a divorce he can have it, but there is no truth in the assertion that I ceased to love him because he is permanently crippled by wounds suffered in battle," Mrs. Almeda H. Hunnicke, of this city, declares. Mrs. Hunnicke, wife of Private Gustave F. Hunnicke, blamed her matrimonial troubles on the soldier, and said he came to see her only three times while being treated at the reconstruction hospital here.

PUPILS TO SHOW "CHICKS"

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 5.—When Cincinnati has her annual poultry show this year one of the most interesting exhibits will be from the various schools of the city where the boys and girls have established poultry clubs. An entire section of the exhibit will be turned over to the "kiddies."

League Holds Protection Shield Before Labor of All Countries

They are written by: William H. Taft, Ex-President of the United States. George W. Wickersham, formerly United States Attorney General. A. Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University. Henry W. Taft, of the New York Bar.

The labor article in the original Covenant (Article XX) merely bound the parties to the establishment, as a part of the League organization, of a permanent Bureau of Labor, in furtherance of an effort to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor in the countries of the League and those with which they should have commercial and industrial relations.

LETTER TO GOVERNOR FROM SUFF PRESIDENT

President of Suffrage Association Thinks "Special Emergency" May Be Shown by Monster Petition.

The following open letter in reference to the calling of a special session of the Connecticut Legislature has been sent to Governor Holcomb by Miss Katharine Ludington, president of the Connecticut Woman Suffrage Association.

My dear Governor Holcomb: I may send you a word of comment on one or two points raised by your statement to the citizens of Connecticut in regard to a special session of the Legislature?

You further say that you "cannot conclude that the desire of a few women—be they more or less in number—to have a vote upon said amendment taken prior to the next state session of the General Assembly" creates the special emergency which would justify calling the Legislature together.

When the Legislature was considering the suffrage bills, which were under consideration this winter, a petition of 98,000 women's names was presented to it. The canvass of women has now grown to 103,000. It represents women in the state who favor woman suffrage and is, I believe, the largest number of names ever gathered on any petition presented to the Connecticut Legislature.

CLIPPINGS FROM THE GEORGIA STATESMAN, PUBLISHED IN 1827

Interesting Items Culled from Old Newspaper—John Adams President—Slavery and Lotteries Lawful—How They Celebrated the Fourth—Low Cost of Living.

The Evening Herald is in receipt of a bound volume of the Georgia Statesman and the Georgia Statesman and Patriot, year 1827, a weekly newspaper which was published in Milledgeville, Ga., on Wayne street, opposite the Eagle hotel. S. Meacham was the editor. The paper was brought to the Herald office by E. T. Ferris. The following notice as to terms appears on the front page:

Terms: Three dollars in advance or four dollars if not paid in six months. No subscription received for less than one year, unless the money is paid in advance, and no paper discontinued till all arrearages on subscription and advertisements are paid.

N. B.: Notice of the sale of land and negroes, by Administrators, Executors, or Guardians, must be published sixty days previous to the day of sale.

The sale of personal property in like manner must be published forty days previous to the day of sale.

Notice that application will be made to the Court of Ordinary for leave to sell land, must be published nine months.

Notice that application has been made for letters of Administration, must also be published forty days.

All letters directed to the editor on business relating to the office, must be post paid.

John Adams, President.

John Adams was president of the United States at the time this paper was published and J. C. Calhoun was vice president. Under the heading, "Congressional," the business transacted by Congress is minutely reported. These reports are signed by J. C. Calhoun, vice president of the United States.

England and the United States. From a Liverpool Paper of Jan. 6. Under this heading, the following article appeared on Monday, April 2, 1827:

In another part of our paper we have given the Message of the President of the United States. We are sorry to perceive that any circumstances exist, by which the good understanding between England and the States is likely to be endangered. We hope that both England and America know too well the consequences of any hostilities between them to allow the question of war to arise. And we have little fear that either the discussion respecting the North Western Boundary, or the intercourse with the West India Islands, will remain for a very protracted period without satisfactory adjustment.

Since writing the above, we have received (by last night's post), a communication from London, containing the following passage on this subject, which we are sure will be perused with pleasure by every friend to the best interests of both countries, on either side of the Atlantic.

"As some notice has been drawn to these passages in the American President's message to Congress, which relates to certain points in dispute between the two countries, it may be desirable that the public should know that a commission for the adjustment of the whole of them, has, for some weeks been sitting in London. Its members, Mr. Gallatin and Mrs. Hutchisson, with Mr. Abercrombie, Jr., as secretary, and the whole affair, it is confidently affirmed, have nearly arrived at a conclusion, likely to be thought satisfactory by both countries. On that part of the question which regards the commercial intercourse with our Colonies, it is said that even the American merchants have nothing to allege against the conduct of the English government, but are even disposed to throw the blame on their own."

Slavery in Full Swing.

Slavery was in full swing in the South at the time this paper was being published and many advertisements appeared in its columns about the sales of slaves and runaway slaves. The following advertisements are samples:

Will be sold at the Court House door in Swainsborough, Emanuel Co., on the first Tuesday in July, next between the usual hours of sale the following property to wit:

One tract of land, containing 250 acres more or less, adjoining land of William Pricess and others, taken as the property of Wilson Draw, to satisfy one fine in favor of John Perce, vs. said Draw.

Also—Two negroes, one negro man named Gim, 27 years old, and George, a boy, about 19 years old, taken as the property of James Wales, to satisfy sundry executions in favor of John S. Draw, all levied on and returned to me by a constable, this second day of May, 1827. Elopéd.

From the subscriber on the 15th of December, 1825, two negro fellows, one a black fellow named Nathan, generally called Nace, about 25 years of age, about five feet ten inches high, well made, pretty artful, plays well on the violin, he formerly run away and passed through different sections of the State of Alabama as a freeman, he can do smith-work tolerable well, and I think he has a scar over one of his eyes. Clothes at present unnecessary to describe; the other rather of a Yellowish complexion named Jessy about 21 or 2 years of age, about 5 feet, 10 or 11 inches high, tolerably well made, I think one of his knees a little bent in, his mother is living with Capt. Jeremiah Sanders, of Alabama. He was raised to the farming business. Any person apprehending the aforesaid fellows and confining them in any jail so that I can get them I will pay them $20 a piece or if they will deliver them to me living 14 miles below Washington Wilks County, Georgia, I will give them $50 a piece.

Abner Wellborn. February 21st, 1827.

$20 Reward.

Ran away from the subscriber on the night of the eighth inst. Four negroes, viz: Phil, a man about 35 years old, five feet 10 or 11 inches high, round shouldered, bald headed, sharp nosed, carries his head down and has a sly rogish countenance—Mary, his wife, about 20 years old, of common size, her hair extends very low in her forehead, has a scar on her right hand, occasioned by a burn, and their two children, both boys, one about two years and the other five months old. I am apprehensive that the said negroes were inveigled away by some white person and may probably be offered for sale and the public are requested to be on their guard.

Any person delivering said negroes to the subscriber living near Fortville, Jones County, Ga., shall receive the above reward or half the amount if lodged in any safe jail and information so that I can get them, and all necessary expenses paid.

Jeremiah Mullens. Jones County, May 14, 1827.

Jailor's Notice.

Brought to Clinton jail, Jones County, the 29 Nov. A negro woman by the name of Clary. About 30 or 31 years of age, 5 feet 2 inches high, dark complexion who says she belongs to Thomas Jones of Elbert County, Georgia. Elberton, the owner, is requested to come forward, pay charges and take her away.

James Jordan, Jailor. Clinton, December 24, 1826.

Runaway Horses.

In those days, horses had a habit of running away. Apparently, they were not properly housed or fenced in and would wander away. Such advertisements as the following were common in the paper:

Stray Horse.

Captain Duncan's district, Joseph J. Carson, tells before me one red chunky horse, with a small star in his forehead, blind in the left eye, near five feet high, about ten years old, appraised at $55, Zachariah Hester and William Nothern.

Peter Nothern, J. P. December 22, 1826.

How They Celebrated.

The following article, an announcement by the committee of arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration in Milledgeville in 1827, give a good idea how they celebrated the day in those times:

Fourth of July.

The committee appointed to make arrangements for the celebration of the approaching anniversary of our Country's Independence, would respectfully inform the community that a procession of the citizens will be formed at the hour of 12 o'clock, in front of Major Hudson's Tavern, and will then proceed to the State

House, where the Declaration of Independence will be read and an oration delivered—at 2 o'clock, a dinner will be furnished by Major Hudson.

In discharging the duties assigned them, the committee have not been unmindful of that economy which should characterize Republican Principles, and afford to every one in society the privilege of a free participation of its privileges. They hope that a Festival consecrated by many endearing and important considerations, will not be marred by the collisions of political prejudices. Surely if there be any gratitude in a nation so eminently blessed as ours is, the altar of Public Patriotism will not be polluted by an unholy sacrifice. And if we be a nation of Freemen, though divided in some of those internal regulations that characterize different local interests, we will never forget that "to this day we owe even this privilege—that is the starting point from which all have journeyed—and like the collected parts of a scattered family we should meet around the paternal board with feelings of kindred affection. The committee invites those who, reside in the country, to commune with the citizens of Milledgeville and thus in a general celebration the political acrimony may be allayed by the interchange of social civility, and our country be restored to public tranquility and private harmony.

Committee of Arrangements.

Low Cost of Living.

In looking through this old paper, the following hotel advertisement showing the low cost of living at that time, was found:

Union Hotel.

The subscriber having added much to the comfort of this New Establishment at Decatur, DeKalb county, Ga., respectfully solicits his friends and the public, who may be desirous of comfortable accommodations on the lowest terms, for a share of their patronage.

Circus Costs the Same.

A circus advertisement appearing in the paper shows that the prevailing prices were the same for such entertainments as they have been down through all the years. Here is a sample advertisement.

Washington Circus.

The citizens of Milledgeville and the public generally are respectfully informed that the company intends to perform at Milledgeville for a few days, commencing on Saturday, March 31st, 1827, when a variety of equestrian performances will be brought forward.

To open at 2 o'clock and performance to commence at half past 2 o'clock.

Tickets to be had at Mr. McComb's Hotel and at the place of performance. Admittance, 50 cents, Children under 10 years, 25 cents.

Plain Talking Advertisers.

The advertisers talked right from the shoulder in those days as is shown by the following ad:

50 Dozen Lemon Syrup, made with Lemons, not lime juice, as it usually is. Sedlitz Powders, Soda do., Lemon Acid, etc.

Lotteries Flourished.

Lotteries were run in accordance to the law in those days. The following is a sample of the advertisements appearing in the paper:

LOTTERY for the benefit of WRIGHTSBOROUGH ACADEMY.

1 Prize of	$5,000
1 Prize of	$2,000

Some Speller.

In one issue of the paper, the following article appeared:

CHAUTAQUA TICKET

HUNT FOR CHILDREN.

The Junior Chautauqua will hold a ticket hunt Monday morning at nine o'clock. The ticket hunt will be the opening feature of Junior Chautauqua and will interest all children between the ages of 6 and 14.

Those who wish to take part in the hunt should meet at the Main street baseball grounds where the big tent will be located. From here the gathering will march in parade procession to another field—that is now a secret—where six junior season Chautauqua tickets will be hidden. At a given signal the young folks will break ranks and a lively scene will ensue as they search for the tickets. Each child finding a ticket will be permitted to keep it and attend all the Chautauqua sessions free of charge. He or she will be also eligible to take part in the junior work and perform in the junior play on the last night.

The Chautauqua guarantors' meeting, announced to be held in the big tent Sunday night will be held instead in the town hall. It will convene at 8:30. Mr. Hunt Cook, the superintendent will be present so it is urgent that a full quota of guarantors be on hand to meet him and give him a welcome.

BOLTON

Miss Sarabel Pinney and Charles Davison were married at the Congregational church last Saturday evening by Rev. Frank K. Abbott.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Pinney are spending the week end with friends in Webster, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Browning and daughter and husband Mr. and Mrs. William Arnold of Brooklyn, N. Y., are visiting at Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Sumner's.

Mr. and Mrs. Louise Keller and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Roberts and children of Chicago have rented Mrs. Eliza E. Daly's cottage for the summer. They moved in Thursday.

Guests at Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Finley's over the Fourth were Mr. and Mrs. John Page of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. William Legate of Hartford and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lloyd of East Hartford.

PRETTY BOSTON CO-EDS ADMIT ENGAGEMENTS.

Boston, July 5.—Engaged? That was the interesting question to which several affirmative replies were received at the senior banquet of the class of 1919 of the College of Liberal Arts at Boston University.

Professor Dallas Lore Sharp prophesied that the majority of the class of 1919 would be married within a year or so. "This is the best looking lot of girls that I have ever stood up in front of," said Professor Sharp to the feminine majority of the seniors. "I believe in getting married early, and the sooner the better."

STRIKE QUARTZ LEDGE.

Nevada City, Cal., July 5.—Road workers employed by Fairbanks & Hunt, contractors, unearthed a quartz ledge bearing free gold and heavily mineralized white grading for the new highway south of this city. A company has been organized here and $30,000 already has been raised for the development of the property.

LIGHTNING STRIPS GIRL.

Herrington, Kan., July 5.—Miss Mary Harness, while helping her brother, John Harness, in the alfalfa field during the early evening, in an attempt to save the hay from the coming storm, was struck by lightning and all of her clothing torn from her body. She was painfully but not fatally burned.

A Waiting Game

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH.

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

It was his first law case; it promised length and strenuous difficulties; the fee in any case must be contingent, for his clients had no money. For all that Rodney Wallis undertook even to advance the costs, willing, ambitious and hopeful at the outset of his professional career.

Old Judge Martell, who had been guardian and preceptor through his two years' study, shook his head slowly and dubiously when Wallis told him of his decision.

"You've got only about $500 to carry you through the next six months," he said, "and unless you get some other business where are you? Your clients are poor as church mice, the other side has money to burn. If it wasn't for the costs, which are bound to quickly dissipate your little capital, I might say take a try. I plainly see, however, that you stand a chance of starving to death before the matter is decided."

"But my clients are in the right, Judge," declared Rodney with the emphasis of conviction and enthusiasm. You don't quite understand, I think. Sooner or later, rich, selfish, cruel old Jacob Lusk will be compelled to award them their just dues. Then, again, this poor girl, Ellice Vane, and her mother strongly appeal to me in their utter helplessness. I don't like to go adverse to your opinion, but I am willing to make considerable personal sacrifices to help them to their rights."

Clearly it had been the purpose of the Wharton estate to give to the Vane a large share of the fortune, which was placed under control of Jacob Lusk. The latter refused to construe it that way. Technically, he insisted, they could lay claim only to a residuary interest. He declined to consider compromise or settlement, believing that expensive litigation would soon wear itself out.

Rarely had the young lawyer met so winning and appealing a being as Ellice Vane. It was by mere accident that she and her mother had come into his office one day. Their ingenious trustfulness and their direful poverty interested Wallis, and acting upon a generous impulse, accentuated by the earnest, anxious eyes of the beautiful girl claimant, he promised to secure herself and her mother their rights if it was at all possible.

It took only a brief period to realize that Jacob Lusk was intent on playing a waiting game. Every crook and turn of the case was utilized and perverted to delay action. Somewhat downhearted, at the end of 60 days Wallis made a call at the humble home of the Vane to advise them of the dilatory methods of their opponent and the fear that it might be a year or longer before the case was heard. Mrs. Vane looked hopeless, Ellice sighed, but was patient. There was a certain compensation for his expenditure and loss of time on the part of Wallis in having the confidence and companionship of his clients.

Already the action had more than half depleted his little capital. He had begun to economize closely. He hid his true financial condition from these friends, secured some copying that kept him up half the night, and at the end of a few more months arrived at a point where he had not only exhausted all his original capital, but was in debt besides.

There followed a period during which Rodney Wallis passed through deep and troubled waters. On account of his shabby attire, instead of those former cherished calls, he advised them by letter of the progress of the case. On many occasions he went to bed cheerless, cold and hungry. He grew thin, pallid and forlorn looking. One day a spell of weakness overcame him and he had to sit down on a doorstep and rest. That night he retired with a burning fever. The following morning he was delirious. He was in arrears with room rent to his landlord, who sent him to a public hospital. He was not aware of it then, but for three weeks he was consumed by a serious illness and helpless as a child.

He was conscious that two persons sat by his cot in the half darkened room as he aroused to full sensibility. A firm hand grasped his own, but with gentle fervor. His blurred vision made out the judge.

"Just as we hoped and prayed for, dear boy!" spoke his visitor heartily. "When the nurse says you are strong enough to hear it we have a long story to tell you."

"We?" repeated Rodney in weak bewilderment, and strained his glance to make out another form just beyond the judge.

"Yes, Miss Vane and myself," Judge Martell drew aside and the eyes of the invalid glistened as he made out Ellice Vane. He noted that her attire, was changed, giving her a certain elegance. He quickly traced an expression of gladness in her fair face, mingled with an anxiety that related solely to himself.

"I must tell him," breathed Ellice. "It will give him new heart of hope. Oh, Mr. Wallis! Your case is settled. Mr. Lusk died unexpectedly, and all of the estate goes to my mother and myself."

She had taken his wasted hand in her own. She did not release it, even when with a rare smile of gladness and content Rodney lapsed into brief unconsciousness, overcome by the announcement and reading in the glowing eyes of his beautiful client the rapture of dawning love.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING HERALD

ABOUT TOWN

Judge Alexander Arnott with his wife are away for a ten day automobile trip.

James Fogarty of the west side left today for a two weeks' stay at Fisher's Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin of 348 Center street spent the Fourth with friends in New Haven.

G. C. Sandusky of Pensacola, Fla., is spending the week end as the guest of Kenneth N. Mills of East Center street.

Not a single arrest for intoxication was made in Manchester over the Fourth. It is true too that there were no drunks seen in town over the holiday.

Percy Symonds of Ridgewood street and Raymond Hunniford of Center street are enjoying a two weeks' vacation with relatives in New York and New Jersey.

The Maccabees had a good attendance at their anniversary celebration in the Brown lodge hall Thursday evening. Following the usual business meeting there was an entertainment program and refreshments.

The Oak Street Cafe reopened today with a full assortment of cooling temperance drinks, cigars and cigarettes, pool, cards and social diversions. The proprietors say everything will be the same as before, except that the hard stuff will be cut out.

There were numerous wagers on rounds in the big fight made in Manchester and last night there were endless discussions on what the fight would be termed in sporting history. Today comes the announcement from the experts that the fight will read like this: "Willard knocked out in fourth round."

Sergeant Arthur Starkweather, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Starkweather, has arrived at Camp Mills, N. Y. He reached there Thursday. Sergeant Starkweather was in one of the first outfits to leave Camp Devens for France. He has now been in France for over a year. He is expected home within a short time.

Season tickets for Chautauqua will be withdrawn from sale at the opening of the week's session next Monday afternoon. Those who wish season tickets should buy them before that time either of one of the canvassers or at the stores where they are on sale. The Dewey-Richman Company and the drug stores of Packard, Grant, and Balch & Brown.

Sherwood Grimes, employed by the United States Automatic Sprinkler Company of New York, of which his brother Lester is president, is spending the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grimes of Wells street. Before going to New York, Mr. Grimes was a student and assistant instructor in the trade school and it was the training at the school which enabled him to take the position he now holds.

PEDDLER MINUS LICENSE PAYS $5 FINE IN COURT

Herman Wineburg Changes Plea After He Hears What Law Has to Say On Subject.

Herman Wineburg, a dry goods merchant of Hartford, charged with selling goods without a license, paid a fine of five dollars with costs in the local police court this morning. Judge Carney was on the bench. Wineburg was placed under arrest by Officer Crockett last Thursday evening on North street. He had a Ford car from which he was delivering the goods and when asked for his license he said that he did not have one as he believed it was not necessary. The officer thought differently and told him to appear in court this morning. Wineburg was represented in court by Attorney Solomon Berman of Hartford. He pleaded not guilty at first to the charge.

Attorney Berman had the town bylaw which relates to this matter. He claimed that his client took orders for the department stores in Hartford and that occasionally he would bring his customers any article of goods that they ordered. He did not consider this as being against the law of the town. However, upon reading the town bylaw more carefully, he changed the plea of his client from not guilty to guilty. The fine was paid and Wineburg took out a peddler's license at once.

PENTECOSTAL CHURCH REDEDICATED JULY 13

Mortgage Also Will Be Burned—Rev. A. C. Goldberg's Pastorate Here Most Successful.

The Pentecostal church, which recently was thoroughly renovated and remodeled, will be rededicated Sunday, July 13, and at the same time the mortgage will be burned. Special services will be held over the week end, beginning Friday, July 11 and continuing through Sunday evening, July 13. There will be three services on Sunday. The rededication and burning of the mortgage will take place at the afternoon service at three o'clock. Rev. A. C. Goldberg of Everett, Mass., will be the special preacher at these services.

The work which has been done on the church includes the plastering and refinishing of the auditorium and the building of a Sunday school room in the basement of the church. The ceiling boards taken from the auditorium were used for the walls and ceiling of the basement. All the work, except the plastering, was done by members of the church, including the pastor, Rev. A. C. Goldberg. To encourage the men and help make their work pleasant, the ladies of the church served coffee and sandwiches on different evenings.

Rev. A. C. Goldberg, while one of the youngest ministers in town is one of the oldest in point of service. He is now starting on his seventh year as pastor of the church. His pastorate here has been most successful, the church experiencing a steady growth in every way. The recent improvements on the church property amounted to about $1,000 but this expense was cut nearly in half by the members doing so much of the work themselves. When Mr. Goldberg came here, there was a mortgage of $1,500 on the church property. That has been reduced to $800 and the mortgage for that amount will be burned at the rededication service, as told above.

CROWD KNEW WILLARD HAD NOT LOST FIGHT

False Report Finds Many Believers as Herald Flashes True Account of Ring Battle.

The branch office of the Herald at the south end was besieged yesterday afternoon after the bulk of the crowd had left when Dempsey was named champion. The believers stated that they had heard that the news the Herald had, bulletined was not true. They claimed that the Western Union wires had received the report that the fight had not yet started and that the fake report was sent out for betting purposes. It was next to impossible to tell the crowd that such was not the case. The north end operator for the Western Union said that such a report had, in fact, come over the wires.

TWO CHILD WELFARE HEALTH CENTERS OPEN

Work Starts in Eighth and Ninth Districts—Manchester Medical Society Co-operating.

The Child Welfare committee has established two health centers for the summer. Miss Isabel Moore, the Eighth district school nurse, is in charge of one in the domestic science room of the Eighth school building. Miss Helen Morin, school nurse for the Ninth district is in charge of the other one in the cottage of the fresh air school. Both nurses for the Ninth district is in their school work look after the health of several thousand school children. In the past winter the child welfare committee, upon their recommendation, paid for medical attention for a number of defective children and also furnished milk to a limited number of undernourished children. During July and August Miss Moore and Miss Morin will devote a large part of their time to home visiting. They will also conduct mothers' meetings, health conferences and little mothers' classes at the health centers. The card catalogue registration of children made by the committee last summer is of great service to the nurses in their work. Mothers who wish to have their babies weighed and measured or who wish advice from the nurses may visit the health centers in the afternoon. The Manchester Medical society has agreed to have one of their members present at several health conferences to be held during the summer.

TAKES TIME TO DEVELOP A SODA THIRST SAYS HE

Optimistic Patron of the Modern Drink Offers Hopeful Counsel to Friend with Parched Throat.

Two men, evidently of the class called regular drinkers, stopped at an ice cream store yesterday. One called for a soda and the other said he would have the same. They drank with little enjoyment. "Have another," said the treating one as he pawed in the air with his foot seeking a foot rail. "No more, thank you." "But can't you see we just must get used to this stuff. It's just like eating olives. After a week or two we'll like this stuff." Then both drained another beaker and departed.

THE HERALD WAS RIGHT.

During the past four days, all of the sporting writers supplying The Evening Herald with advance "dope" on the big bout, came out flatly for Jack Dempsey. On Thursday The Evening Herald published a first page article by "Tad" which told how all indications pointed to Willard's defeat. Many papers faulted for Willard or kept on the fence.

QUALITY AND PRICES ARE WHAT COUNTS

We believe in giving a square deal to all, which means perfect vision, highest quality goods and low prices.

As we sell six times as many glasses as anyone else in Manchester we can afford to sell them cheaper. If you want good, yet extra good glasses and don't feel that you can pay the high prices charged by some, then you should call at our South Manchester office and receive a square deal and get your glasses at the right price!
