

SHERMAN DENOUNCES WILSON AS CROWNED MONARCH OF QUITTERS

Refers to President as "Cru- sader in Bloody Chaos of Internationalism."

ROB ONE FRIENDLY ALLY, BETRAY, DESERT ANOTHER

"All Must Pass Under Yoke of Pres- ident's Epithets Who Will Not Respond to His Flight Into Own World of Wilsonian Dreams."

Washington, Sept. 16.—The President denounces all who do not follow him as contemptible quitters and vacillating time servers, as ostriches with their heads in the sand, Senator Sherman, Republican, Illinois, said in the Senate this afternoon, when debate on the treaty with Germany was resumed.

Monarch of Quitters.

"The President is the crowned monarch of quitters without a rival in the western hemisphere," he continued. "No man in public life ever quit quicker or oftener. His silence and speed when escaping from his imperishable principles of yesterday is as abyssmal and swift as primal chaos or a fallen angel sweeping to his predestined doom. His echoes lacking the agility and silence of their chief make a considerable exhibition of themselves in the subterranean role of beating a more vociferous retreat.

"Why are we charged with desertion and poltroonery when we declare it is time to safeguard our own country?" inquired Sherman.

Denounced as Poltroons.

"We must spend our substance to resurrect and redeem peoples stunted by racial feuds and vices and schooled for generations in chronic revolt and general insubordination against the tranquility of peaceful life. When we decline to ruin ourselves, wreck our government and destroy our country by a mad crusade around the world as the guardian angles of mankind and knights errant of oppressed humanity everywhere, we are denounced as quitters and poltroons by the Senator from Nebraska, (Hitchcock) and by our executive who avows that he thinks more of the League of Nations than his oath to protect the United States government."

Sherman referred to the President and Colonel House as "the two crusaders in the bloody chaos of internationalism."

"The President's Yoke."

All must pass under the yoke of his, (the President's) epithets who will not respond to his flight into the dim world of Wilsonian dreams," Sherman continued. "A chief magistrate of this republic, an accomplice of the receiver of stolen territory, the betrayer of an outraged, plundered people, associated with a cut-throat of empires in a coalition to divide and share three continents. Having picked their defeated enemy of the last available pound of flesh, they turn and rob one friendly ally, (Italy) and betray and desert another, (China.)"

"Scholastic Gabble."

"And," added Sherman, as he criticized the President for the Shantung and Fiume settlements "this cavern of counterfeit moralities and cock lofts of scholastic gabble has the sublime assurance to asperse senators who refuse to abase themselves before the tottering throne of the chief rhetorician, whose metaphysical thunder no longer inspires either respect or fear.

"Let the swarm of satellites basking in the sunshine of patronage and sniffling the fragrant trade winds of administration favors gratify him with their anthems of incredible perfection. The louder their hallelujahs now, the more fervent the maledictions at the inevitable end."

Washington, Sept. 16.—The release of J. M. Smith, an American who was captured when Mexican bandits held up a train for Santa Eulalia Saturday, will be effected today, upon the payment of $6,000 ransom, according to advices to the State Department this afternoon.

Arrangements for the exchange were completed Sunday with the leader of the band, it was stated. An effort was made by the Carranza authorities to secure the release of the American at that time, but failed "because of the activity of troops." Definite arrangements were made for the transaction at noon today.

E. Monson, a Swede, who was taken prisoner at the same time, was released and returned to Chihuahua with the bandits' message that the American would be freed upon payment of $6,000.

Smith is employed by the Potots Mining Company, Chihuahua.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Surgeon General Ireland will be the principal speaker at the "ether day" celebration at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, on October 17, it was announced at the War Department today.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Post and family returned yesterday from a week's visit with Mrs. Post's father in Bridgeport.

Reporters are Still on Strike Papers Come Out as Usual

New Haven, Sept. 16.—There was no change in the strike of the news writers of this city this morning, according to the members of the News Writers' Equity Association. The publishers likewise declined to make any statements as to conditions. The news writers are busy today with the second edition of their paper, "The Reporter", which appeared yesterday afternoon with a statement of their side of the controversy and all the focal news that the workers could crowd into four pages.

The members of the Equity Association claim that the edition of 5,000 was disposed of during the afternoon and evening.

The local publishers are getting out their papers as usual with a force made up of managing editors and such other help as can be obtained. The newswriters claimed today that three men who were at work as reporters on the Register quit work today. The two News men who deserted the news writers' association yesterday remained at work.

LANSING TO RETIRE FROM CABINET; UNDER SEC. POLK TO TAKE HIS PLACE

LIBERIA'S HAPPY LAND; EVERYBODY IS WEALTHY.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 16.—Liberia is a happy land, according to President elect C. D. B. King of the Negro Nation, who is visiting here today.

"We have no need for policemen," he said. "We have no unions, no strikes, no rich class and no high cost of living. Everyone of the 2,000,000 peoples makes a good living. Almost every man owns his own home in Liberia, for we make it a condition of citizenship.

"So almost the entire population might be considered capitalists."

Secretary of State in Poor Health, Report Says—No Friction Between Him and President Wilson.

On Board President Wilson's Special Train Enroute to San Francisco, Sept. 16.—Reports that Secretary of State Robert S. Lansing plans to retire from the cabinet within a very short time and that he will be replaced by Frank Polk, under secretary of state and now head of the American Commission to negotiate peace in Paris, were current in Seattle and Portland while President Wilson was here.

It has so far been impossible to secure any confirmation of the report.

His Health Poor

However, there is a belief here that Mr. Lansing may decide to leave official life before the end of the year because his health has not been so robust and also because he is said to be anxious to resume his practice of international law. Whether he will do so is known only to himself. Reports of friction between the Secretary and President Wilson have been strenuously denied.

So far as the designation of Mr. Polk to be Secretary of State should Mr. Lansing decide that he wants to take a well earned rest, is concerned, that is practically a certainty. While the Secretary was in Paris, Mr. Polk handled the Department and he did it well.

President Wilson uttered a new creed today in a few short addresses at points along the route between Portland and San Francisco. The President said:

Extracts from Speeches.

"Let us, every one of us, bind ourselves in a solemn league and covenant of our own, that we will let no man stand in our way of leadership and that in leading we must lead not along the paths of national advantage, but along the lines of human rights and the salvation of the world."

PROFITEERING NOT SOLELY THE CAUSE OF HIGHER PRICES

But Five Per Cent is Due to Hoarders, Good Says.

INCREASE IN SALARIES AND TAXES THE REASON

Increase in Circulating Medium Loss of Man Power and Decreased World Production Also Help to Boost Prices.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Practical relief from the high cost of living through the prosecution of profiteers and hoarders of the necessities of life must come through the activities of the Department of Justice, said Representative Good, chairman of the House Appropriation Committee today in presenting to the House the deficiency appropriation bill which carries a total of $14,184,704.

Hoarding Not to Blame.

"It was pointed out very clearly by the representatives from the Agriculture Department," said Good, "that the cause of the high cost of living is founded primarily on the increase in our circulating medium, and that but a small per cent of it, five per cent, as I recall, is due to hoarding and profiteering. The committee feels that it should give to the Department of Justice all the money that is required to enforce the laws to prevent profiteering and hoarding. Some of the money allowed will be required to enforce the prohibition law, but a great deal of it necessarily will be expended in prosecuting profiteers and hoarders of the necessities of life if any practical relief is to be given from the present high cost of living."

Commenting upon an estimate by the Department of Commerce for $75,000 for the purpose of demonstrating methods of preparing and cooking fish, which was not allowed by the committee, Good said:

Experiment a Failure.

"In 1916 this Department was given $25,000 to conduct investigations and experiments with regard to dogfish. The Department gave the results of its investigations to the canners. A great many canners of fish canned dogfish on instructions given by this department. The result was not satisfactory. After these fish had been canned and disposed of, the cans commenced to explode, and last year the Department of Commerce came before Congress with an estimate of $60,000 to reimburse these canners. A great many of the estimates for reducing the high cost of living are of the dog fish character and if granted would give just about as much relief. The people want relief from high prices—not dogfish demonstrations."

The Real Causes.

"Admitting that living costs are high, in some cases, oppressively so," Good said this was due primarily to these principal causes: Increase in the circulating medium which has practically doubled since the outbreak of the war; increase in wages and taxes and decrease in labor efficiency; excess of exports; war losses to the world in man-power and property and decreased world production.

The increase in the wage schedule in many industries, said Good, is more than 100 per cent, and labor is only from 50 to 65 per cent efficient. A tax of about five billions on the American producer is in the long run passed on to the consumer for it is computed as a part of the cost of production. In 1914, he said, the total of exports of foodstuffs of all kinds was $430,713,357, while such exports increased in 1918 to $2,604,895,554.

DONOVAN RENOMINATED.

Norwalk, Sept. 16.—Jeremiah Donovan was renominated for Mayor last night by the Democrats of this city. The Republicans at an adjourned convention last night nominated Leo Davis for Mayor.

SALLMON ENDORSED.

Westport, Sept. 16.—The Democratic probate convention of the district of Westport, including the towns of Westport and Weston, last night endorsed Frederick M. Sallmon, the Republican nominee. Mr. Sallmon, who was formerly a state Senator, was nominated by the Republicans Saturday. The election is a special one to be held on town election day.

Ministerial Crisis in England; Premier Faces Political Problems

London, Sept. 16.—Premier Lloyd George returned from Paris today to face political problems almost as tangled as any that confronted him during the war.

The Manchester Guardian, leading liberal newspaper outside of London, which has been supporting Mr. Lloyd George, in summing up editorial opinion at the time of the President's arrival, says:

"The approaching end of the Russian war is to be read clearly in the changed attitude of the various organs of the British press."

That Bullitt Speech.

Significantly, the paper is printing "disclosures" made by William C. Bullitt before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Washington.

(Mr. Bullitt was a member of the American Peace Delegation in Paris and was sent into Russia to make an investigation, but this report was not published. His account of his conversations with Premier Lloyd George were yesterday branded by Lloyd George in Paris as "a tissue of lies.")

It was declared in certain political circles that the allegations of Mr. Bullitt may constitute the final material necessary to enable the Premier's opponents, including the Labor Congress, representing five million organized workers, to render the tenure of office of the coalition government critical.

New Magazine Appears.

But with characteristic energy Lloyd George has jumped into the political fray already with a political propaganda magazine called "The Future", which made its initial appearance yesterday.

A large part of the press interprets this latest move by the Premier—he had an appeal to the people in the first issue of "The Future"—as an effort to identify his name with social reform.

Ministerial Crisis.

"The air is full of talk of a ministerial crisis" and "election." But for the hostile attitude of the labor congress the general conclusion is that Premier Lloyd George would be ready to force a general election this autumn at the same time endeavoring to form a progressive party composed of liberals and laborites.

Hoarding Not to Blame.

"It was pointed out very clearly by the representatives from the Agriculture Department," said Good, "that the cause of the high cost of living is founded primarily on the increase in our circulating medium, and that but a small per cent of it, five per cent, as I recall, is due to hoarding and profiteering. Strange Case of M. Alleroid Who Lived at No. 18 Spring Street.

WORKED ALL DAY IN MILL HAD FRACTURED SKULL

Started for Hartford Saturday Night But Head Ached So That He Returned Home—Case Under Investigation.

Martinio Alleroid of 18 Spring street had a fall at his home last Friday. He paid no attention to the matter until Saturday afternoon when he was seized with a severe headache while on a trip to Hartford. He returned to his home and Dr. T. G. Sloan was summoned.

On Sunday Mr. Alleroid's condition became more serious.

Yesterday morning Dr. Sloan in an examination found that Mr. Alleroid's skull had been fractured by the fall. He ordered his removal to the Hartford hospital. The injured man was taken there and was operated upon in the afternoon.

He died at 7.30 o'clock last evening.

The body is being held in Hartford during an investigation to more clearly establish the cause of death.

Mr. Alleroid, who works in the Cheney mills, felt well enough to work Saturday and was on his way to Hartford that night when his head first began to pain him severely.

Thousands Homeless—Report That 600 Killed in Arkansas Pass, Not Verified—Nearly Every Vessel Along Texas Coast Destroyed—All Wires Down.

San Antonio, Texas, Sept. 16.—That portion of Texas along the gulf was recovering today from the effects of the hurricane which late Sunday swept along the gulf carrying death and destruction in its wake.

Between 100 and 150 Dead.

While no accurate estimate of the number killed could be made today, owing to the crippling of wire communication, estimates place the number at from 100 to 150. So far the only official estimate of the number of the dead to reach here, told of the finding of 25 bodies at Corpus Christi, and the death of three others in small towns scattered along the coast.

Relief trains, bearing army physicians, nurses and great quantities of food and clothing are being sent into the tornado swept district from several points today.

Railroads Tracks Destroyed.

In many instances the task of getting relief to the affected districts has been made extremely difficult by the destruction of railway tracks. To reach these isolated spots relief parties are travelling overland in automobiles.

According to word reaching here early today 125 bodies were found on a reef a short distance from Portland, where 23 of the bodies are said to have been taken. The majority of these are said to have been identified as residents of Corpus Christi.

Meanwhile 100 Unions Are Voting on Strike Question Today—Only 11 Out of 20 Men Qualify for New Police Force—Firemen Decide Not to Quit—To- day's Developments.

Boston, Sept. 16.—There will be no general strike in Boston, in the opinion of Guy Oyster, secretary to President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor.

"I don't think that things will be allowed to go that far," said Mr. Oyster. "I have been to see the Mayor and Governor Coolidge and talked over the situation. I will make a report of my findings to Mr. Gompers at Washington, leaving here today. I am looking up matters which I do not care to discuss."

Meanwhile, however, nearly 100 Boston unions are balloting on the question of a general walkout in sympathy with the striking policemen. Four thousand telephone operators today were voting and sentiment among them was said to be 100 per cent for a sympathetic strike.

TODAY'S DEVELOPMENTS.

Boston, Sept. 16.—Announcement that the United Hebrew Trades numbering 25,000 workers had voted to strike at a call from the Central Labor Union in sympathy with the striking policemen and reports that sentiment in other unions where voting is in progress show that organized labor is about equally divided on the question, were the outstanding developments today at the opening of the second week of the policemen's strike.

Labor leaders opposed to radical action acknowledged that telephone messages from President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, who is in Washington, indicated that he might come here to handle the situation and perhaps exert his influence to prevent a general walkout.

A Referendum Vote.

Influential labor leaders, it was stated, propose to refrain from extremes if all unions line up in favor of a general strike by a referendum vote now being taken. Workers whose activities are regarded as vital to the health and the general welfare of the community—such as the food, pumping station, hospital and a few other workers—would be exempt from a general call.

Today's Developments.

Other developments were: Absolute calm on the streets with guardsmen on patrol duty. Situation between striking policemen and police commissioner Curtis at a dead lock.

Establishment of a force of policemen to replace strikers meets snag when only 11 of 20 men qualified by civil service commission report.

Six of these, it was reported, plan to join the union once they are sworn in. Commission certifies 139 more.

Vermont authorities ship to Boston 400 riot guns and 20,000 rounds of ammunition.

Five men Won't Strike.

Captains and lieutenants in Boston fire department voted not to go on strike, but directors of firemen's union holds secret meeting.

Mayor Peters announces that minimum pay of policemen and firemen raised to $1,400 a year.

Organizer F. H. McCarthy, of the A. F. of L., issues a statement blaming Curtis for riots and saying: "The policemen are struggling for right, justice and Americanism in their employment and shall so continue to fight until victory is theirs on their banner."

Declares rules against policemen joining union was made after union had applied for a charter.

HONOR TO S. A. MEMBERS.

Commandant and Mrs. Edward Atkinson Will Have Charge of Hartford Corps.

A host of Manchester friends will be pleased to learn no doubt, that Commandant Edward Atkinson and Mrs. Atkinson of New Haven have been appointed as officers in charge of the Salvation Army work of the Hartford Corps in the first division. They will succeed Captain Sherwood and Lieutenant Anderson, who have been transferred to Meriden by Brigadier William Andrews, commanding.

Both Commandant and Mrs. Atkinson are well known to local Salvation Army folk. Mr. Atkinson is the son of Mrs. Frances Atkinson of Center street. His brother Joseph, holds the rank of lieutenant-colonel and is the General Secretary of the New England province. Another brother William, is a member of the local Salvation band.

Commandant Atkinson has also three sisters who are prominent in Salvation Army circles. The fame of Myrtle Turkington, who is still overseas, is widespread. Mrs. Maria Turkington, secretary of the local corps is another sister, as is also Mrs. Thomas Hopper, wife of Sergeant Major Thomas Hopper.

In coming to Hartford, Commandant and Mrs. Atkinson are returning to their old field. It was in that city that Mr. Atkinson made his start. Mrs. Atkinson was at one time the commander of the Hartford division. Both Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson are excellent cornetists, while their daughter Ruth, plays the trombone.

SPENDTHRIFT STARTS YOUNG.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 16.—John Camino, eight, gives promise of developing into a spendthrift. John found a $100 bill on a recent morning. Before noon he had a $40 bicycle, several airguns and his arms filled with candy and nuts. Of the $100 bill 42 cents remained.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The call for candidates for the track team resulted in about 45 reporting to Mr. Olson at the Recreation Building. Mr. Olson will have charge of the weights and of the jumping while Mr. Whiting will take charge of the runners. Mr. Olson has had much experience in this line from his connection with the Swedish Gymnastic Club. The School has a number of fine runners.

Gustavson has proved himself to be a runner of no small merit by his "starring" in local track meets. He was a member of the relay team that took third prize at the Rockville Fair last week. Proctor is another runner that has been on the cinder track before.

First Assembly.
 The first assembly was held yesterday afternoon. Much time was devoted to placing the students after which several songs were sung.

A. A. Meeting.
 Mr. Knapp set the time for the Athletics Association meeting for next Thursday afternoon. Gilbert Wright, who was vice-president last year of the association, will no doubt be elected president this year. The managers of the athletic team must be Seniors and Harold Turkington who was assistant-manager of the basket-ball team last year will in all probability be elected manager this year. Kenneth Ringrose who was the assistant manager of baseball last year will doubtless be selected to fill the manager's position this year.

Class Meetings.

The different class meetings for the election of officers will be held tomorrow. Last year Harold Turkington was president of the present Senior class. Fred Rogers of the present Junior class and James McVey of the present Sophomore class. Many of the recent alumni were at school renewing acquaintances before leaving for college. Lincoln Hanke was a visitor at school yesterday. Hanke was a Junior in the High School when he went to Pequa, Ohio to live. He graduated from the high school in that place last June. He leaves town the latter part of the week to take up his studies at Philadelphia, Penn.

The list of speakers up to November 20, 1919 and the dates on which their talks come due is posted on the bulletin board in the upper hallway.

It is as follows: September 25—Hazel Johnson, Gertrude Berggren, Helen Lahey, trainer, Miss Craig.

October 2—Martin Alvord, Anna Anderson, Elizabeth Bayne, trainer, Miss Goding.

October 9—Grace Bergeron, Ruth Bjorkman, Helen Burke, trainer, Miss Cadle.

October 16—Genevra Burr, Lehman Bushnell, Mary Dilworth, trainer, Miss Spafald.

October 23—Ernest Doellner, Robert Dwyer, Ethel Campbell, trainer, Miss Barlow.

November 6—Ruth Caseo, Russell Crawford, Samuel Crockett, trainer, Miss Olson.

November 13—Edith Finley, trainer, Miss Solmon.

November 20—Florence Fox, Earle Goslee, Hannah Jensen, trainer, Miss Hewitt.

The Somanhis staff has held a meeting and started an advertising campaign on the boards in the school. The school paper is nearly four years old now and is doing better each year. Last year under the direction of Sherwood Bowers it cleared $25. This is noteworthy considering the high cost of materials.

This year the paper is under the direction of Business-Manager Ringrose and it has a brighter outlook than it has ever had before. The first issue will be put out about the last of October.

Mrs. Callista Shurtleff of South Manchester is spending a week with Mrs. E. Jane Finley.

The dance given in the Bolton hall last Saturday evening was well attended. There is to be another next Saturday evening.

Quite a number of Bolton residents were in Rockville last Friday to attend the funeral of Miss Frances J. Sperry.

Miss Winnifred G. Carpenter of New Rochelle, N. Y., who was in Rockville to attend the funeral of her cousin, Miss Sperry, came to town to make a short stay with local relatives.

Julius L. Strong of Danielson spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Strong.

PRISON SUNDAY.

October 26 is Prison Sunday in Connecticut and a special appeal is being sent out by the Connecticut Prison Association to all clergymen of the state to direct the minds of their congregations on that day to the problems connected with the maintenance of our penal institutions.

In the letter sent to the clergy the Prison Association says that the probation service, organized in 1903, has proved its value many times every year since.

The general purposes of the association are as follows:

- 1st—To benefit society by the reformation of criminals.
- 2nd—To assist prisoners in the work of self reform.
- 3rd—To promote reformatory systems of prison management.
- 4th—To aid discharged convicts in living honorably.
- 5th—To co-operate in the prevention and repression of crime.

BOBBITT MARRIAGE

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, a pretty military wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's P. E. church, Haledon, N. J., Wednesday evening, Sept. 10, when Miss Sarah A. Minich, formerly of this town, became the bride of Ernest T. Bobbitt, of the U. S. Army and of Zowle, Louisiana. The Rev. Wm. H. Watts officiating.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white pussy willow taffeta. The bride was given away by John E. Saik of the U. S. Navy. Miss Deborah Tedford, a cousin of the bride, acted as bride's maid, and Paul Robinson of the U. S. Army, acted as best man. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. David Tedford at Haledon, N. J. Dancing and singing were enjoyed by those present and at a late hour a bounteous supper was served. Many beautiful and useful gifts were received by the bride and when the guests departed they left behind them many good wishes for the young couple for a happy life.

PAULINE IS "SOME CHICKEN."

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 16.—Pauline has not only been a popular heroine on the stage and in the movies, but is "some chicken."

She is now queen of the feathered flock.

Offers of $2,000 for her have been refused by her owners because of her egg-laying record, among other things.

She laid 141 eggs in six months, including the severe Winter months last year; it is claimed. Her record for the entire year was 285 eggs.

KEEP YOUR HEALTH.

Each of the thousand natural shocks that human flesh is heir to has its particular effect on the body and its own peculiar method of causing discomfort and a condition of greater or less helplessness.

And each requires its particular and certain treatment; some hot water, some cold, some do best with rubbing and others better only under the application of a salve or ointment.

But though man is thus beset with a host of evils which can only be overcome by a particular antidote, if any one of them once get established in the system, yet it is possible to render oneself immune to all by a simple and easily followed system.

New York physicians have recently issued a set of fourteen rules which they urge the public to follow with special alacrity to avoid a recurrence of the influenza epidemic.

For years all medical authorities have been preaching this gospel of health and trying to impress people with the truth that while it is quite a task to cure a sick man it is within the power of all of us to maintain a measure of good health which will add to our comfort, save us a lot of money, and make us all more efficient members of society.

A GRAVE PROBLEM.

The Boston policemen who recently deserted their sworn duty and turned the city over to a period of lawlessness in which thousands of dollars worth of property was destroyed and several men lost their lives are now indignant because the Police Commissioners will not take them back on the force.

There is no analogy between a strike of policemen and one conducted by organized labor working for a private employer or corporation.

If the policemen are taken back in Boston the only penalty which they will have suffered is that of failure and the only thing that the leaders of this deplorable and dishonorable business will have to regret is that they did not succeed.

Reinstating the men who deliberately gave up their city to gunmen, thieves and thugs will be a tacit recognition that the right to strike extends to officers of the law and will be simply planting the seeds of future trouble.

Governor Coolidge receives nearly 1,000 letters and telegrams regarding his course in police crisis. With three exceptions these commend the governor's attitude toward strikers.

A state grange, representing 40,000 farmers congratulates Governor. Will Take All Blame.

In statement Governor said he had no authority to call out troops until there had been actual disturbances. "Perhaps I am culpable in this respect," he added. "If I am then I will take the blame."

City Councilman James T. Moriarty member of the A. F. of L., issues statement claiming state guardsmen on strike duty "shot up" his home.

Charges guardsmen with shooting at cats in streets.

Possibility of policemen taking grievances to courts looms up.

100 Unions Voting.

Nearly 100 Boston labor unions, all that have not as yet balloted, are now voting on the question of a general strike in sympathy with the striking policemen, it was stated today.

Officials of the Boston Central Labor Union announced that every affiliated union will be ready to report at a meeting to be held next Sunday.

The Boston Typographical Union and the Pressmen's union will meet tonight and the Newspaper Writers' Union will meet tomorrow.

According to Miss May Matthews, of the telephone operators' union, that organization is practically 100 per cent. in favor of a general walk-out.

Need 51 P. C. Vote.

The Central Labor Union cannot call a general strike unless it is voted by 51 per cent. of the unions which are affiliated with it.

OLIVER F. TOOP SELLS HIS GROCERY BUSINESS TO ABRAHAM PODROVE

Hartford Man Purchases One of Best Known Stores in Town.

TOOP IN BUSINESS HERE TWENTY YEARS

New Owner Has Conducted Grocery Store in Hartford—Was Forced Out of Business to Join Army.

Oliver F. Toop's cash grocery and meat market, one of Manchester's oldest and most prominent stores, was sold last evening to Abraham Podrove of Hartford.

Mr. Toop started in business twenty years ago with John Porter who now owns a chain of restaurants.

Mr. Podrove has had several years of experience in the grocery business. He conducted a large store on Park street, Hartford, and was given five days to sell out when he was drafted.

Mr. Toop's son, Rand, will remain with the new owner for a short time. William Clegg, who has been employed in the store for eleven years will remain about two weeks.

Mr. Toop is undecided as yet as to what business he will engage in. When asked why he had decided to sell his business, Mr. Toop replied that twenty years in the grocery business was enough for any man.

PROHIBITION PARTY WILL WATCH OTHERS A WHILE

E. L. G. Hohenthal Intimates That There May Still Be a Lot for His Party to Accomplish.

The Prohibition party is going to sit tight and watch the two major parties handle the prohibition situation for awhile, according to E. L. G. Hohenthal, well known leader of the dry forces in this state.

The issue now is how the prohibition laws already in force are going to be carried out by either the Republicans or Democrats," says Mr. Hohenthal.

We are going to wait until it becomes evident that the dominant parties are willing to support the laws or are going to try and side step them.

Mr. Hohenthal intimated that if a man was nominated for President by either of the other parties who was not firm and dependable in his opposition to booze, the Prohibitionists would again enter the field and campaign against him.

Regarding the local ticket, named last night, Mr. Hohenthal stated that he had a good deal of confidence in Herbert McCormick as a vote getter because of his splendid war record and general efficiency.

At a caucus of the Prohibition party held in the Town Hall last evening the following candidates were nominated on the party ticket for the annual town election.

Selectmen—Arthur E. Bowers, William C. Cheney, John Cairns, E. L. G. Hohenthal, John Jensen, Louis St. Clair Burr, William E. Keith.

Town Clerk—Sanford M. Benton. Town Treasurer—George H. Wadell.

Tax Collector—Herbert W. Robb. School Visitor—James Shipman. Registrar—Herbert W. McCormick.

Auditor—J. Howard Keith. Assessor—E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr. Constables—Clarence L. Taylor, Samuel G. Gordon, Stephen R. Beebe, Otto J. Johnson.

CAPITAL INCREASED. Hartford, September 16.—The directors of The Bristol Brass Corporation of Bristol notified the secretary of the state this morning that they would soon issue 20,000 additional shares of the company's stock, thereby increasing the capital stock to $1,500,000.

Nearly All Boats Destroyed. Practically every boat in the Gulf waters along the Texas coast was either totally destroyed or seriously damaged.

Word from Port Lavaca received here today said that while property damage would run high, no lives had been lost.

It is believed the property damage throughout the state will run well into the millions as there was great damage to property and crops in a section extending at some points to 100 miles inland.

RELIEF TRAIN STARTS. San Antonio, Texas, Sept. 16.—A special train carrying 100,000 army rations, 1,000 tents, 15,000 blankets, and 10,000 cots left here early today for Corpus Christi, Tex., for relief of sufferers in the areas devastated by the storm.

The train was dispatched at the order of Major General Joseph T. Dickman, commanding the southwestern department. It is an army train under the direct supervision of Lieutenant Colonel J. A. Porter and carries a large staff to distribute supplies.

In addition to the food and clothing carried, the train also took sufficient medical supplies to treat 1,000 persons. The medical detachment was headed by Colonel C. L. Davis and included four doctors and a small corps of enlisted men.

General Dickman said today that another train will be dispatched if conditions in the devastated area are found to warrant such action.

Reports reaching headquarters stated that the suffering is intense among the people in the district. Thousands of women and children are reported homeless.

The little towns through which the special passed did their best to show the President that he was welcome.

GOV. HOLCOMB NAMES

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Calls Attention to "Abnormal Conditions"—Asks Co-operation of Press, Schools and Public.

In a proclamation designating Thursday, October 9, as fire prevention day, Governor Marcus H. Holcomb calls attention to the "obvious necessity for concerted action to maintain peace, the preservation of property, and the maintenance of law." The governor also says that "the abnormal conditions which now prevail must impress every thinking person with the alarming dangers."

The proclamation reads:—

State of Connecticut.

By His Excellency

MARCUS H. HOLCOMB, Governor.

A PROCLAMATION:

The abnormal conditions which now prevail must impress every thinking person with the alarming dangers occasioned thereby, and the obvious necessity for concerted action to maintain peace, the preservation of property and the maintenance of law.

Existing conditions suggest the possibility of an increase of the fire hazard. It is the duty of everyone to do all which can be done to prevent destructive waste, of every nature and none is greater than that caused by destructive fires.

In compliance with the mandate of our General Assembly, I hereby designate Thursday, October 9th, as and request the press, the teachers in our schools, and all the people of our state, on that day to give special consideration to the best means of safeguarding against destructive fires.

Given under my hand and seal of the state at the Capitol, in Hartford, this 15th day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and nineteen, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-fourth.

MARCUS H. HOLCOMB, Governor.

By His Excellency's Command:—

FREDERICK L. PERRY, Secretary.

WHITE SOX-REDS AHEAD IN LEAGUE PENNANT RACE

All Over But the Shouting—Among Players It Is Thought World Series Will Begin Sept. 30.

New York, Sept. 16.—The major league pennant races are all over but the shouting today.

The White Sox have a lead of eight games over the second place Indians in the American League, and the Reds by the virtue of their victory over the Giants are now nine games in the van. It is only a question of time when the pennant race is over.

As the teams stand today the Sox must win four of their eleven remaining games to win the flag, providing Cleveland should win twelve straight.

The marathon in the national league is a little farther advanced for the Reds have won more games than the Sox. Should the Giants win all of their twelve remaining games, Pat Moran's boys would have to win three of the nine they must play to finish a nose ahead of New York. McGraw has already conceded the pennant to the Reds.

If the world's series is to commence September 30, which is rumored along the local baseball Rialto the Sox will have but one day to rest up for their battle against the Reds. In addition to their series with the Yankees, which opened at the Polo Grounds today, they must play three games in Boston and then return home to meet the Browns and Detroit Tigers in playing out their schedule which closes September 28.

NO MORE HYMNS OF HATE FOR THE GERMANS; CHILDREN TAUGHT DOCTRINE OF ETERNAL PEACE

Berlin, Sept. 15.—The doctrine of eternal peace and universal brotherhood is to be the fundamental idea of education in Prussia hereafter. The idea of revenge and hatred preached by the conservative element of Germany will not be tolerated in the classroom. Germany's youth will be taught that the redemption of the fatherland is to be achieved through useful work, not through another bloody war.

These statements were made to me by Herr Haensch, Prussian Minister of Education, author of the educational articles in Germany's new constitution and a reluctant partner to the school compromise exacted by the Catholics in the third reading of the constitution.

"With these objects in mind I have just ordered a sweeping revision of text books," said Herr Haensch. "The old chauvinistic teachings will be expunged from our school books. That does not mean, however, that the children will not be brought up in a spirit of nationalism. On the contrary, our policy will be to teach them to be Germans and to be proud of their country's achievements in art, literature and culture."

"The writings of the German League of Nations Society are to be introduced into the public schools in the form of lectures. That will help the children to a better understanding of the rest of the world."

I reminded Herr Haensch of the proclamation of revenge and hatred published by certain professors of the Berlin University, including Dr. Kuno Meyer, some time ago. The said proclamation, it will be remembered, was a pledge to sow the seed of hatred in the breasts of Germany's youth for untold generations to come. Herr Haensch replied: "I did not interfere with this proclamation because to do so, even in the case of men who technically are working under me, would have been an infringement on the right of free speech, which you as an American must readily realize. But I can assure you that any teacher who attempts to scatter such notions in the classroom will be dismissed."

I asked Herr Haensch to explain the salient features of the constitutional school articles, including the somewhat complicated compromise between the socialists and clericals. "The constitution," answered Herr Haensch, "prescribes compulsory education for a period of twelve years. The first eight years are spent in the public schools; the remaining four in institutions corresponding to your high schools, also at the expense of the public. The young men and women will finish their education at eighteen, unless they desire to enter a university. There will be no more class schools; all schools are to be open to the poor."

To my suggestion that poor parents with many children to support might find it a hardship to be compelled to keep the bigger children at school when they could be working and adding their share to the family income, Herr Haensch responded that social improvement would go hand in hand with education, and that in the new Germany none would be too poor to give his children a proper education.

"Political economy and readings of the German constitution will figure prominently in the curriculum," continued Herr Haensch. "The children will tackle these subjects at an early age. The earlier the better. They cannot begin too soon to learn the duties and privileges of good citizenship."

Herr Haensch spoke bitterly of the compromises forced through by the Catholics, upsetting the socialist programme of separating religion from the schools. "I fought hard against these compromises," he declared.

"The Catholics scored two distinct victories. They secured the right for congregations to found private schools, though the teachers must be approved by the state. They also obtained the right for parents to demand separate instruction for Catholic and Protestant children. In the smaller towns and villages that simply means separate schools. In the larger cities it means a double system of class rooms within the schools. Both are cumbersome and entail extra expense for the state."

"Religious instruction will be given in the public schools when a man in the public schools when a majority of the parents demand it. But no child is compelled by the state to attend religious instruction."

Here the interview was interrupted by the unannounced entrance of a bright flaxen-haired boy of four or five who threw himself across the Prussian Cabinet Minister's knees with the exclamation: "Papa, mama says you must come in to lunch immediately. There are pancakes with jam for dessert."

Thus Herr Haensch, Jr., brought the interview to an agreeable end.

SERVICE MEN WITH WHITE PLAGUE ATTENDING COLLEGE IN ARIZONA

From Two to Four Soldiers With Tuberculosis Will Enter University There This Fall—Are Carefully Watched by Physician—Trained in Occupations Which Will Enable Them to Support Themselves When Well.

Hartford, Sept. 13.—There is in the United States a university which has for its chief entrance requirement the provision that all students must be arrested. "Arrested," in this case, however, does not imply that a deep voiced minion of the law has placed his weighty hand upon the shoulder of the student and said—"Come with me. Yes, I know, but tell that to the Judge in the morning." It does indicate that the student contracted tuberculosis while fighting Uncle Sam's fight "Over There" and has taken up the battle on the disease so successfully that its progress has been arrested.

The institution in question is the University of Arizona at Tucson. When the fall term begins between two hundred and four hundred soldiers who have developed the disease while in the service of their country and who have responded to treatment to the point where the progress of the disease has been halted, will begin their studies there. The movement is supported by the Federal Board for Vocational Training.

When the plans were in process of formation experts from the National Tuberculosis Association were called in and acted as members of advisory committee. The work of these experts is but another manifestation of the far reaching influence of the National Tuberculosis Association, and its thousand or more affiliated organizations which are scattered throughout the country. For years the N. T. A., as it is sometimes referred to, has conducted relentless warfare upon tuberculosis. Financed chiefly by the proceeds of the annual Red Cross Christmas Seal sale, the Association has been able to carry the fight into practically every corner of the country and to awaken civic interest in the tuberculosis problem.

A New Policy Now. Until the period of the great war it had always been the practice of the government to send a disabled soldier—whether his disability was caused by wound or disease—home. He was left to work out his own economic salvation largely unaided, save for his pension. The result was not profitable to the country and the individual suffered accordingly. With the new and enlightened order of things that policy has passed beyond. In its place is one which recognizes a continued responsibility for the disabled soldier.

The Federal Board for Vocational Education recognizes tuberculosis as a major disability and provides accordingly for soldiers who have fallen victims of the plague. The University of Arizona is the first educational institution with which arrangements for the training of these men have been made.

The arrangement is an ideal one for the tuberculous soldier and the success of this practical demonstration will probably result in an extension of the program. The soldier student pays his way—but the fees are nominal and leave a balance from his allotment sufficient to keep things moving smoothly at home. The Government allows soldiers with major disabilities eighty dollars a month if single and up to one hundred and fifty dollars each month if they are married men with families.

From this he is required to pay four dollars per month for his lodging and twenty-two dollars and fifty cents per month for food. Two buildings have been provided for the housing of the men. The food will be prepared by expert cooks and will be the kind most needed by the students.

U. S. to Pay Tuition. Experience has shown that a percentage of all arrested cases suffer breakdowns. To meet this emergency a sanatorium will be provided with a resident physician and an expert nurse. Text books and special instructors will be provided. The matter of tuition fees has not been decided upon according to the most recent available reports, but if any fee is charged this will be carried by the Government.

In many instances an arrested case cannot return to his former occupation. At the University of Arizona he will be trained to follow some other vocation more suited to his physical condition. In selecting the various courses many things will be taken into consideration. Of first importance is the ability of the student to stand up under the training course and to continue the work in after years.

Then, too, his mental capacity will be given careful consideration. None of the men will be permitted to aim too high. On the other hand there is no limit placed upon his ambitions. If qualified for the regular college course he will be encouraged to take it. The courses will embrace all lines of university training as well as vocational work. Those qualified to take up the university course and those whose university training has been broken off by the war may continue their studies. In the cases of men whose early education does not qualify them for the regular university work they will be accepted as "specials" and given special instructions so they may work off their conditions while going along in their other work.

The Courses.

It is expected the majority of the soldier students will take up the vocational instruction. Auto repairing, electrical engineering, telegraphy, all lines of commercial work and power plant operation are a few of the courses open to them.

Those qualified to mount higher on the ladder of instruction have open to them courses in civil engineering, mechanical engineering, chemistry, mining engineering and irrigation engineering. The courses are from three to nine months in duration and are arranged for by the men on that basis. No official pronouncement has been made as to the duration of this plan of instruction as yet and any attempt to predict what the policy will be next year is pure conjecture. However, the United States recognizes tuberculosis as a major disability and has entered upon a widespread plan to rehabilitate the disabled soldier.

While the students at the University of Arizona will be given every advantage along education lines the work will not stop there. The resident physician, who will be an expert on tuberculosis, will carefully watch the physical condition of each man and care for him accordingly.

SOLDIER'S INVENTION ADDS COMFORT TO FARM HOME.

Comfort, cheeriness and cleanliness in heating farm houses at a nominal cost has been made possible by an invention announced recently by a soldier-engineer who has given much thought to the heating of hospitals, barracks and temporary quarters which have no cellars. It is really a complete miniature hot-water heating plant, built on the idea of a sectional book case, so that as much or as little of it as is desired can be used at any time, and parts taken off or put on at pleasure. It is called a radiator-boiler, and combines the uses of the old-fashioned stove, the hot-air furnace, and the elaborate hot-water heating systems used in large mansions.

This radiator-boiler is not as large as many base-burning stoves. It can be set up in the parlor or living room just as a stove, and is more attractive. The trimmings are in nickel, and the body can be painted or enameled in any shade desired—as a stove cannot.

From the radiator-boiler runs the piping, either in view or hidden in walls and partitions, to as many rooms as are to be heated. The radiator-boiler itself has a heating surface, so that it heats the room in which it stands—but unlike a stove, it cannot overheat a room.

One very attractive feature to country dwellers is that the new heating plant does not have to be set in cellar or basement. It can stand on a level with the rooms it is to heat. In the past, farm houses have been heated either with stoves or hot-air furnaces. In the case of stoves, these was either a stove for each room, with a fire to be kept up in each; or one stove was expected to heat several rooms, which it did by making one too hot and leaving the others too cold. The hot-air furnace, of course, had to be in the cellar.

This new radiator-boiler, the standard future heating plant of the farm home, requires no cellar at all but one fire, which takes no more fuel than the ordinary base-burning stove—and heats all the rooms in the house to the same temperature.

MOVIES' ETHICAL VALUE DISPUTED AT WELLESLEY.

Wellesley, Mass., Sept. 15.—Wellesley will not have the movies. Their ethical value is disputed by Wellesley College, although more than three-quarters of the town would like to beguile away the evening hours at a movie show.

The boys of the town have to get rid of their superfluous energies that easily could be satisfied by watching the movies and are now prowling around raiding the melon patches.

Many of the ethical objectors to the movies have now lost melons from their patches and are wondering whether movies are better than melons.

GOAT CALLS OUT FIRE DEPT. Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 16.—Billy Goat gave the firemen a useless run recently.

Goat wandered off his own premises and became lost in one of the fashionable sections where there were no tin cans or other such edibles available. He just had to get a meal, so he began feasting on the insulation of a wire that ran down an iron post to the fire call box. The bare wire striking against the pole made a short circuit and caused the bell to ring.

Corporal punishment was inflicted on Billy. He probably will call no more fire engines out.

HOME MADE PORTFOLIO.

By Eleanor S. Moore

Instructor in Handicraft, Elgin, Ill.

When mother rents a house the closets are the first thing she thinks about. A closet is a place to keep things. Naturally, every school girl wants one, too. A portfolio is only a little closet. It is a place to keep notes, themes, clippings, and all the other papers that accumulate on a school desk or study table.

Think first where you will want to keep your portfolio and what you will keep in it. Then decide on the size—10x15 inches is good.

First Portfolio.

If it is to be 10x15, cut two pieces of tough, durable cardboard that size, and three more smaller pieces for flaps as shown in the diagram below.

Bind all outside edges with strips of linen book-binding or cotton cloth 1 1/2 inches wide, fastened on with flour paste or trimmed library paste, making a 3/4-inch binding on all edges.

Now cut four 5-inch strips of durable cloth for hinges. Paste these on the outside of the five pieces of

HOW TO MAKE A BOW TO CARRY ON THE WARPATH

By Grant M. Hyde,

Instructor in Journalism,

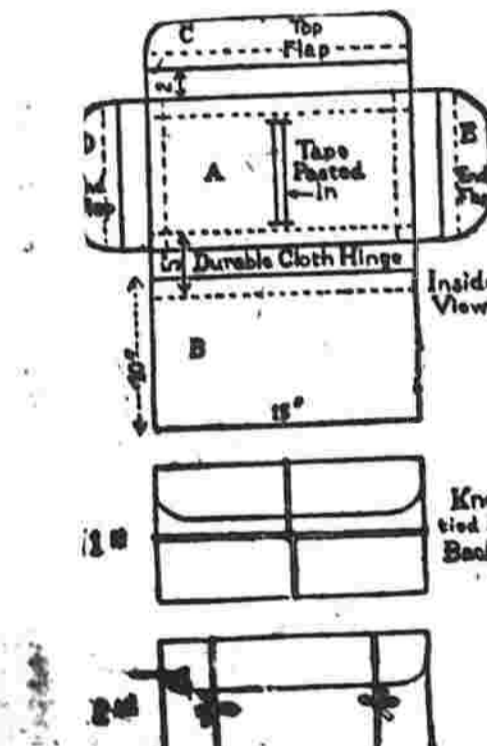

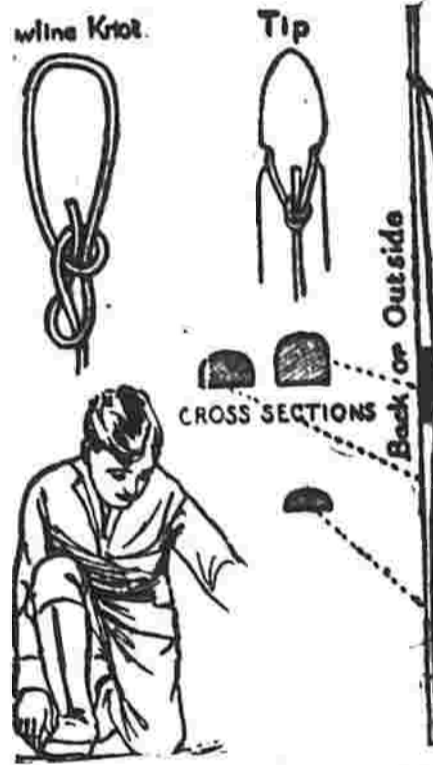

The University of Wisconsin.

Make your bow just as long as you are tall and you can shoot an arrow as fast as George Washington threw the dollar. Most boys make their bows too short.

Get a solid, straight-grained, well-seasoned piece of hickory or ash, 1 1/2 by 1 1/2 inches and about 6 feet long.

Examine carefully the drawings below. Notice that the inside of the bow is rounded, but that the outside, or back, is perfectly flat. In making the bow always whittle all wood off the inside and the two sides but do not touch the outside. A bow made this way is hard to break and shoots even harder. Why?

Using a saw, draw-knife and vise, shape the bow roughly. Allow in the center for a 6-inch hand-hole about as big as the handle of your favorite ball bat, but more square in shape. Each tip of the bow will be about 3/4 inch wide and about 1 1/2 cardboard, as shown below, making 1 1/2 inch laps, and leaving 2 inches of free cloth between boards.

Next cover the outside. Leave about 1/8 inch binding showing on the edges. Wall paper makes a good cover. Pretty cloth is neat and wears well. Decorate to suit your taste.

With a sharp knife cut through the coverboards from the outside and insert a long linen tape, pasting it on the inside. These ends should be about 30 inches long each.

Cover the inside, using paper of a lighter weight and color.

This portfolio is folded and tied. When untied it opens up and lies flat.

This portfolio is made more like an envelope. The end flaps (D, E) are omitted and the cloth pasted right onto the back of the piece B. There are four short linen tapes instead of two long ones.

Circle Theater

Acting Manager Doc Sullivan of the Circle theater did not exaggerate when he announced that he had another splendid Tom Mix picture opening at his theater yesterday. The play, a William Fox production, called "The Coming of the Law", and taken from Charles Alden Seltzer's book, is perhaps the finest piece of work this popular star has done. And when one recalls his previous William Fox photoplays, it will be realized that this is saying a good deal.

The new picture is a full-blown western story of the days before the law had reached its hand into the far corners of that section. Dry Bottom, New Mexico, is a town typical of the wild and woolly days. Big Bill Dunlavy, leader of the rustling gang, is ruler until Kent Hollis (Tom Mix) arrives from Denver. Hollis is not in any sense a two-gun man, but he is a lively two-fisted chap, and he accomplishes more in a couple of months with his strong right arm than all the guns could accomplish in that out-of-the-way town.

He gets sterling help from Judge Graney and from Nellie Hazelton, a pretty cowgirl.

Mix does some remarkable stunts in the picture—real hair-raisers.

The famous Pathe News, a comedy and "The Perils of Thunder Mountain" will be shown on the same bill tonight.

Tomorrow's feature will be "The Girl Dodger."

Park Theater

The real Bill Hart—hero of every small boy from Maine to California and from Canada to the gulf—beloved of all who care for red-blooded action on the screen—will be seen in the new Arcraft picture "Square Deal Sanderson", which will be shown at the Park theater tonight and tomorrow.

In several of his recent films, Mr. Hart has donned chaps and six-shooters, appearing as a convict in one, and in another leaving the western plains for the asphalt of the city streets. But now he's back in harness, astride a trusty horse and with his wide-brimmed Stetson atop his head. He riots through a picture that is full to the brim of action, excitement and heroic deeds. There are lively scraps, quick shooting, all the characteristic incidents of life as it was lived in the yesterday of the Southwest.

Those who care for action piled on action, true love and the code of honor of the far west; who revel in scenes which show the overlasting hills and the deserts that stretch into miles in every direction; for the strange and strenuous life of the cowtowns, the communities where men live and die hard and are either very honest or very evil—will find it all in "Square Deal Sanderson."

Ann Little is leading woman and the only woman in the cast. Lambert Hillier wrote the scenario from Charles Alden Seltzer's story in Argosy. He and Mr. Hart directed.

BRITISH WAR DEPT. FOUGHT USE OF TANKS; INVENTOR HAD HARD TIME TO GET A TRIAL

London, Sept. 15.—So many celebrities have claimed to be "the inventor" of the wonderful tanks that played so great a part in the winning of the war that even most people have but hazy notions concerning the origin and development of the weapon so dreaded by the German soldier.

Now Sir Albert Stern has lifted the veil and has told the story of how the tank was born, and of the uphill fight with the authorities which was necessary to secure its adoption. In the course of a striking article in the September Strand Magazine, Sir Albert traces the history of the land ship.

It was at a supper at Murray's in 1914 that the idea of a great land ship capable of crossing the Rhine was discussed. Then came plans for a super-armored car, and Mr. Churchill became interested. The result of his interest was the appointment of a land ship committee. No government department would consent to house the new organization, however, and so Sir Albert, then a lieutenant in the R. N. V. R., took office himself and thereby made mortal enemies at the Admiralty. Mr. Sustace D'Eyncourt was the chairman of the committee, and he had as his chief lieutenants Major Hetherington and Colonel Crompton. Sir Albert Stern was secretary.

So rapidly did the committee work that in August, 1915, Mr. Tritton and Lieutenant Wilson had ready a full-size model of a tank afterward known as "Little Willie."

Then came a series of setbacks. Manufacturers were no more favorably disposed to the new machine than the Admiralty and War Office had been, and there was great difficulty in securing the necessary parts.

Sir Albert tells the interesting story of the evolution of the name tank. In 1916 it was suggested that the name "land ship" should be changed for secrecy's sake. Mr. D'Eyncourt suggested "water carrier." In government offices committees and departments are known by their initials. For this reason I considered the proposed title wholly unsuitable, and in our search for a synonymous term we changed "water carrier" to "tank."

The first tank, "Mother", was finished on January 26, 1916, and was tried in Hatfield Park.

"Colonel Swinton, who was acting as assistant secretary to the Committee of Imperial Defense was interested with the task of raising and training a corps to man the tanks. The first tanks were sent to France in September, 1916, and were in action seven months after the order for them had been given."

Sir Albert tells a good story of a Tommy's impression of the tanks expressed in a letter to his family. Here it is:

"They can do up prisoners in bundles like straw binders, and, in addition, have an adaptation of a printing machine, which enables them to catch the Huns, fold, count, and deliver them in quires every thirteen minutes being thrown out a little further than the others. The tanks can truss refractory prisoners like fowls prepared for cooking while their equipment renders it possible for them to charge into a crowd of Huns, and, by shooting out spikes like porcupine quills, carry off an opponent on each. Though 'stuck up', the prisoners are, needless to say, by no means proud of their position. . . . They can chew up barbed wire and turn it into munitions. They turn over on their backs and catch live shells in their caterpillar feet, and they can easily be adapted as submarines."

Even after the appearance of the tanks in action the War Office was by no means favorably disposed toward the new-fangled weapon, and an order for a thousand tanks was countermanded.

Then followed a dramatic incident. Sir Arthur went at once to Mr. Lloyd George, then Secretary of State for War. He declared that he had heard nothing of the instruction, "I told him," says Sir Arthur, "that I could not stop the order now. He could cancel my appointment, but he could not possibly get me to cancel the order."

"Sir William Robertson, Chief of Staff, then appeared, and Mr. Lloyd George told him that he could not understand how the order could be cancelled without his knowledge. Next day the order was restored."

Sir Arthur's troubles were not over, however. His fight with the War Office was to go on. How bitter that fight was is shown by the fact that three generals demanded his dismissal for presuming to press for more and more tanks. Sir Arthur and his colleagues won the day—and helped to win the war.

CIDER APPLE SAUCE IS DELICIOUS IN ANY SEASON.

When the apple crop is abundant, and a large quantity of cider is obtainable, the housekeeper will find it to her advantage to put up a generous amount of boiled cider. Boiled cider greatly improves the flavor of mince-meat, and it can be used at any time of the year to make cider apple sauce.

Cider for boiling must be perfectly fresh and sweet. Put it in a large, open preserving kettle and boil until reduced one-half. Skim frequently while boiling. Do not have the kettle more than two-thirds full. When the cider has boiled until it is fairly thick, put in bottles, cans, or stone jars which have been thoroughly boiled.

Put eight quarts of pared, quartered and cored sweet apples in a large preserving kettle and cover with five quarts of boiled cider. Cook slowly until the apples are tender and clear. To prevent burning of the apples, place the kettle on an asbestos mat. It will require from two to three hours to cook the apples. If you find it necessary to stir the sauce be very careful to break the apples as little as possible. When the sauce is cooked put it in sterilized jars.

In the late spring, when apples have lost much of their flavor and acidity, an appetizing sauce can be made by stewing them with diluted boiled cider, using one cup of cider to three of water.

Cooking pears may be preserved in boiled cider the same as sweet apples. To make the sauce less sour, one pound of sugar is added to each quart of boiled cider.—United States Department of Agriculture.

HOSE CO. NO. 2 TO GIVE SUPPER TO SERVICE MEN

Welcome Home Celebration Planned Last Night—Company Had Five Men in Service.

Plans for a welcome home reception for their ex-service members were discussed at a meeting of Hose Co. No. 2, held at headquarters at the Center last evening.

It is planned to give the ex-service men a supper at the Hillside Inn on Monday evening, and also a reception at the hose house later in the evening.

A committee composed of James Rogers, Joseph Chambers and Edward Nelson were appointed to make all the arrangements for the affair.

Hose Company No. 2 had five members in the service. These men were: James W. Holloran, Joseph Fay, Joseph Wilson, Robert Curran and Frank Quish.

TIGER FOOTBALL TEAM PLANS ACTIVE SEASON

Massey and Chambers Will Pilot Well Known Eleven—Team Has Good Record in Town.

That Manchester will have a fast football team in the field this season is indicated by the fact that the old Tiger A. C. has re-organized. At a meeting held Sunday morning, Sammy Massey was elected captain of the team, and Thomas Chambers who managed the team for many years was elected treasurer and manager.

For many years the Tigers were acknowledged to be one of the fastest elevens in this state. In fact the team passed through one season without being scored upon, facing many of the strongest pigskin aggregations in this part of the state. The team was broken up when practically all of its members entered the service.

The team re-organizes this year with an abundance of material and the line-up will include many of the stars that made the Tigers famous. Manager Chambers announces that any young man in town who feels that he can make the team is entitled to a try-out.

The men who have reported this year are: Jerry Fay, Peterson, E. Anderson, R. Rood, Chambers, T. Brennan, S. Massey, W. Rau, E. Ballsclper, T. Waddell, H. Benson, F. Damico, Herbert Bissell and Leo Fay. Eight of these men are old Tiger players. Bissell and Fay were members of the famous Devens team which handed defeat to Harvard and Brown.

TO MAKE McLEAN HILL SAFER FOR AUTOISTS

Dangerous Grade That Has Caused So Many Wrecks to Receive Attention from State.

State Highway Commissioner Bennett's attention has been called to that section of the state road on McLean hill which has been the scene of a large number of automobile accidents during the past two months. The new strip of road, although considered one of the best in this state, has a surface that is dangerous in wet weather.

Mr. William C. Cheney, a spectator at yesterday's accident when Gordon Brothers five ton truck turned turtle at the foot of the hill, was given another thrill when a truck owned by J. H. Crozier of Hartford came zig-zagging down the stretch and side-swiped a trolley car. Had it not been for the cool headedness of the truck driver the Crozier truck might have duplicated the performance of the Gordon truck.

Mr. Cheney called up the State Commissioner's office and suggested that a man be sent out to look over the road to see if conditions could not be remedied. Mr. Nichols, assistant to Commissioner Bennett informed Mr. Cheney that a man would be sent out from the state office and that an investigation would also be conducted.

It was suggested when the highway was built that provision be made to have the surface extended to the full width of the road. It was maintained however, that similar roads had been constructed throughout the state and had proven satisfactory.

Mr. Cheney informed the officials at the Commissioner's office that it might be well to have an expert study the conditions and arrive at a plan whereby the danger to autoists might be eliminated. An extension of a rougher pavement to the trolley tracks and to the opposite side of the road, might help matters if it is thought.

Mrs. Thomas Collins of Center street underwent an operation at St. Francis hospital yesterday on one of her eyes. The operation was performed by Dr. Thomas F. Gallivan of Hartford.
