

BILL WILL NOT BRING A PEACEFUL IRELAND

British Newspapers on Both Sides Denounce Home

Rule Law.

IMPUDENT AND FUTILE

Lloyd George Professions of Good Will Carry no More Weight Than Russian Rouble Says Daily News.

London, Nov. 12.—Many newspapers united today in the opinion that the Irish home rule bill, which was passed by the House of Commons last night, will not bring peace to Ireland.

"Premier Lloyd-George dissembles
his love with such notorious persistency, that his professions of goodwill carry no more weight than a Russian rouble, and now he offers a piece of legislation (the home rule bill) which is impudent in its ful-lity," said the Daily News, a newspaper owned by Lord Northcliffe.

The newspaper added:
"Nobody believes that the measure will work out and nobody wants it."
"The bill is not wanted in any quarter," said the Morning Post. "It will maintain no tenable position between union of the empire and separation by Ireland. It is an experiment."

Some of the newspapers termed the new home rule law an armistice between England and Ireland. Only three of the morning newspapers commented upon the passage of the bill. The Times, in addition to its comment, printed a statement by Cardinal Bourne.

Cardinal Bourne reveals that in 1914, he urged the Duke of Norfolk to support the cause of the self-governing of Ireland. "I was then a young man," he said.

Under the maintenance of the British empire, the essential defenses of the empire. The Cardinal further expressed the belief that most Englishmen view the maintenance of vast numbers of troops in Ireland as a shame and desire their withdrawal.

The archbishop of Tuam, was quoted as saying that the black and tan police had instituted a reign of frightfulness in the region of Tuam,
adding:

Scourging Ireland into Obedience.
"If servants of the crown were now to reciprocate the peoples' longing for peace, it would be possible to establish peace at once. But the first move must come from the government."

The Times supported this contention. The newspaper charged the government with engaging in an effort to scourge Ireland into obedience. The Archbishop of Tuam is more likely to be better informed on Irish matters than any member of the cabinet, the Times said.

"Former Premier Asquith urged
only yesterday that a concerted effort to be made towards peace," continued the Times. "We hope that his earnest words were not spoken in vain. The only other alternative is for the government to outrun the tolerance of the British people."

Lloyd George's Plea to Ireland

Implores Nation to Remain Within Empire She Helped To Build
And Adorn.

London. —Premier Lloyd George
made an impassioned plea in the House of Commons just before the final vote was taken on the home rule bill.

"I implore Ireland to remain within the empire which she has helped to build and adorn," said the premier. The premier outlined three "impossible conditions" of the government:

1.—That Ireland should not be an independent state.
2.—That Ireland should not runken the strategy of the United Kingdom by depriving the English government of complete control of the Irish harbors.

3.—That north and central Ireland should not be under the anti-home rule district.

NEW HOSPITAL IS DEDICATED WITH IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES

Touching Memorial Service
for the 45 Manchester Men
Who Died in the Service—
Thousands Line Streets
During Parade—Speakers
Pay Glowing Tribute to Our Brave Boys.

Under sunny skies, with flags flying, with bands playing and a procession half a mile long marching through lines of buildings decked with the national colors, Manchester celebrated yesterday the second anniversary of Armistice day. The crowning event of the day was the dedication of the Memorial hospital, Manchester's tribute to its representatives in the great war and coupled with this ceremony, which took place
as the sun was sinking in the western hills, was a touching memorial service to the 45 men who went away
never to return alive.

Those in the Parade
The participants in the parade included those most closely connected with the great war, the returned service men clad in their uniforms of khaki and blue, the Red Cross workers and the War Bureau. Escorting them were other patriotic organizations, veterans of the Civil and Spanish wars, Daughters of the Revolution, State Guard, Boy Scouts and a truck load of the female auxiliary to the Spanish War veterans. All the bands in town contributed their share and there was an abundance of

under the direction of Captain Philip Cheney, marshal, the proce-sion got away from the Army and Navy club about two o'clock. Long before that hour main street was lined with spectators and automobiles blocked the entrance to every side street. It was not a noisy crowd; rather it was a thoughtful crowd for
of the past, of the long and anxious days of the war, of the friends and relatives in peril, of the dead and wounded, and of the memorable day
two years ago when all were stirred by the news that the war was over and the danger passed.

At the Hospital
The air was crisp and clear, just right for marching, and the paraders at a brisk pace covered the route to Depot Square and back to the hospital where they massed on the lawn
in front of the main entrance.

The dedication exercises were quite informal. No speaker's stand had been erected. The speakers stood on the steps of the front entrance. C.
Elmore Watkins, chairman of the board of hospital trustees, presided.
The Salvation Army band played the Star Spangled Banner while all the soldiers and sailors stood at salute
and the civilians bared their heads.
Then Rev. W. J. McGurk offered the invocation in which, in the name of "one who went about doing good,"
he asked the blessing of God upon this institution of mercy. The Manchester Male quartet then sang "Lead Kindly Light."

The Address of Welcome
Mr. Watkins then gave a brief address of welcome. He told how the Memorial hospital project had its inception, but modestly refrained from mentioning the fact that himself was the first to propose it. But he did say that the proposition met with instant favor. Although Manchester had readily exceeded its quota in all the war drives it sprang to the new task with even greater avidity and in less than a week subscribed $190,000. While the hospital was built as a permanent memorial to those who served in the war, he felt sure that it would be the wish of those to whom it was especially dedicated that it should serve humanity in general and added that so long as the present management was in control its doors would be open to all who needed its ministrations whether rich or poor, and regardless of race or creed.

LAX BUSINESS METHODS OF SHIPPING BOARD

Left Loopholes for Graft and Waste
in Conduct of American Merchant Marine.

New York, Nov. 12.—Sufficient
testimony of lax business methods, leaving loopholes for graft and inefficiency in the conduct of the American government built merchant marine, has been adduced to show
the need of overhauling the Shipping Board, it was declared by the congressional probers before resuming their investigation today.

"Chaotic," Say Probers.

Unless a system of bookkeeping and accounting is installed to permit a daily balance of books, it will be impossible to know what ships are making or losing money, it was declared, unless there is a purchasing agent for all government owned ships there was likelihood of graft
in supplying vessels for voyages;
unless shipping companies are prevented from giving preference to their own ships over vessels leased from the government, the government vessels will be handicapped in showing a profit or in building up trade routes; and unless there is a co-ordination and a better personnel in direction of Shipping Board departments, the present conditions, described by Commander Abner B. Clements, assistant to Chairman Admiral Benson, of the Shipping Board, as "chaotic," will not be remedied; the probers declared.

Three Naval Flyers Missing In Storms on Great Lakes

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Belief that three naval aviators in a seaplane, which has been missing since Wednesday, from the Great Lakes naval training station, have perished was growing today as searchers failed to obtain any definite trace of the man or the plane. Storms that have repeatedly driven back rescue ships are declared by experienced Lake Michigan seamen to be growing more violent.

Rescue ships that put out have been driven back into port, damaged
and covered with ice.

Commander Wilson and other officers of the Great Lakes station have not given up hope. They say that the aviators may have volplaned to some isolated point on the Wisconsin coast or may have been carried by the wind over to the Michigan shore of the lake.

The revenue cutter Tuscarora and a submarine chaser from Sault Ste.
Marie, are continuing the search today. If weather conditions permit, a fleet of airplanes will be sent out
this morning from the Great Lakes station.

The names of the missing flyers
are Clarke, Barr and Caesar.

French Delegate to Leave League Meeting if Germany is Admitted

Paris, Nov. 12.—The French foreign office has instructed the French delegate to withdraw from the League of Nations meeting at Geneva immediately if steps are taken for the admission of Germany into the League, it was revealed today by Fertinax, the political editor of the Echo de Paris. It is believed that a special commission will be appointed by the League of Nations to examine the request of Germany and Austria for admission and will report at a future meeting.

The meeting will open on Monday.

SEARCH FOR WOMAN MISSING FOUR YEARS

Subsequent Disappearance of Husband From Langford, N. H., Leads To Present Inquiry.

Langford, N. H., Nov. 12.—The county solicitor Henry M. Hardy, of Claremont, dug up a filled-in well
well on the farm of William B.
Whitney today in search for the body of Whitney's wife, an Ohio woman,
who strangely disappeared in June, 1916. The search for the body was begun following the disappearance of Whitney, as told by his 15 year old son, John, who is now employed in a box factory in Walpole.

Whitney had lived in the vicinity for the past seven or eight years. On October 30, when he disappeared, it was alleged that he owed local tradesmen about $1,000. No sooner had he gone than ugly rumors which have been current in and about Langford since his wife's disappearance were revived. Whitney's son, it is claimed, made several damaging statements against his father to officials. It is on the basis of the boy's story that the alleged well, filled up in 1917, was reopened.

Missing Woman Age 40.

The missing woman who is about 40 years of age, was Whitney's second wife. She has not been seen since June 30, 1916. After she had gone, Whitney told neighbors and town officials that his wife had gone to Ohio to visit her family.

A week or two after she left, the police of Ohio requested Chief of Police Corbin to investigate. Chief Corbin went to see Whitney. The Chief claims Whitney reiterated his former explanation that Mrs. Whitney had gone to visit her family.

The relatives of Mrs. Whitney say that she did not reach Ohio.
Chief Corbin said it was his recollection that Mrs. Whitney told neighbors that she was going to visit her brother, who was in the insurance business in West Jefferson, Ohio.

Chief Corbin said that following his investigation in 1917 he reported all facts in the case to Henry S.
Richardson, who was then county solicitor of Sullivan county. Richardson in turn presented the facts to James P. Tuttle, of Manchester, N. H., former attorney general. Chief Corbin said Tuttle evidently did not think that the facts warranted further action
for nothing more was heard of it until Whitney disappeared.

POLICE FIND DRIVER OF BOMB WAGON IN WALL ST. EXPLOSION

MEXICAN PLEASANT WITH PRESIDENT-ELECT

Gratified At His Friendly Reception
of a Delegation From Across the Border.

Point Isabel, Tex., Nov. 12.—A Texas "norther" blew the vacation
plans of President-elect Harding ashore today. The 35-mile gale which blew in from Laguna Madre, ruined tarpon fishing for the President-elect and made his thoughts turn to his old sport, golf.

A fine mist, known as Lluvia Temperata by the Mexican fishermen here, has accompanied the "norther" and may even interfere with the Senator's golf.

Meanwhile, Mexican leaders along the border were gratified today by the fact that Senator Harding had received Consul Vasquez and a delegation of Matamoros businessmen.
While the President-elect was exceedingly careful to say nothing concerning recognition of Mexico by the United States, the Mexican leaders feel certain that he holds a friendly feeling toward their government. The Mexican delegation invited Senator Harding to visit Matamoros, but he declined, promising however, that he would visit the quaint old Mexican city in official capacity if he comes to Texas after his inauguration.

The President-elect congratulated
the delegation on the good feeling that exists between the Mexican city and the American city officials.
Senator Harding invited the Mexican leaders to call upon him in Washington.

Investigation Into Shocking Outrage That Cost 30 Lives and a Property Dam- age of Millions is Again in Full Swing as Result of Re- cent Disclosures and Al- legations by Newspapers and Other Sources.

New York, Nov. 12.—Investigation into the shocking Wall Street explosion, which cost more than 30 lives
and a property damage of millions, was again in full swing today as a result of disclosures and allegations by newspapers and other sources.

Following the sensational story advanced by the Evening World, that the explosion was a direct result of a war between rival labor unions, the police revealed that some progress has been made in their investigation of weeks.

The driver of the wagon, which contained the huge dynamite bomb, has been found, the police said, although they declined to make known his identity or any other details. The blacksmith who shod the "mystery horse" also is known to them, the police said.

New York's "Labor Omen"

According to the Evening World,
the explosion was caused by a war
between the house wreckers' union,
Number 95, headed by William A.
Zaranko, and other building trades organization headed by Robert A.
Brindell. New York's "Labor Omen"

While not accounting for the Brindell's coercive measures in the building trades particularly against Zaranko's union had earned him enemies in the labor world according to the newspaper version.

Labor Men Subpoenaed.

Zaranko was questioned last night
by federal agents. He was positive that no man of his had had any hand in the explosion.

"We fight," he said, "but we fight clean; several of our men were working on the building at the time of the explosion. It is foolish to assume that a member of our union would plant explosives when our own men were working there."

District Attorney Swann today issued subpoenas for a number of men actively identified with the labor unions mentioned. He planned to question them on the details of the newspaper story.

If these examinations result in anything tangible, Swann said, the evidence would be placed in the hands of the grand jury.

English M. P. Released in Bonds

Colonel Malone Charged with Making Seditious Utterances in Speech.

Colonel Cecil L'Estrange Malone
Liberal member of the House of Commons, who was arrested on the charge of making seditious utterances during a speech at Albert Hall,
was arraigned in Bow Street police court today but the case was postponed for a week. Lieutenant Colonel Malone was released in bonds of 1, 000 pounds. The presiding magistrate ruled that Lieutenant Colonel Malone should not make any speeches except in the House of Commons pending
the outcome of the case.

The attorney for the prisoners claimed he had not been advised of the exact charge until the arraignment and the postponement was granted to allow him to prepare the defense.

Lieutenant Colonel Malone was cheered by a large crowd as he left the court room.

THE FOURTH RED CROSS ROLL CALL

With the lessons of Armistice Day fresh in their minds people will be more inclined to pay heed to the forthcoming appeal of the Red Cross and probably with a better realization of the value of that organization to the community and to the nation than they have had generally since war times. The fourth annual roll call now in progress in this town will begin in other places in this state next Sunday and will continue throughout next week.

The self-sacrificing devotion and exaltation of spirit that carried America through the ordeal of the war with such wonderful unanimity also made capture of the Red Cross and of its principles of service. Standing with all their strength behind the boys they had sent to the battlefields of France the American people, eagerly seeking for ways and methods to give practical effect to their intense desire to serve, found the Red Cross ready to their hands. They made it their own. No other organization ever was so identified with the hopes and fears, the ideals and patriotism of a people. No other organization ever commanded such a wealth of untiring service, ever tapped such an immense fount of altruism and charity.

The terrible suffering endured on the battlefield of Solferino was the inspiration of the Red Cross and the reason for its long close identification with service to the wounded and dying in war. In the interval between conflicts the Red Cross has been numbers, in the dollars of the many rather than in the larger subscriptions of the few.

The American Red Cross has greater ramifications, and always for good, than any national body in the world ever had. It is typically American. It exists and carries on through American support alone. Every American should be proud of the privilege of adding one to its strength, of extending its widespread beneficent influence, of identifying himself or herself with one of the great movements that stand for America and for its true greatness.

BOUNTIFUL NATURE.

Nature has shown extraordinary beneficence this year in most parts of the world as if in realization of the fact that there is still much suffering in Europe and other places from insufficient food. Notwithstanding the comparative failure of crops to come anywhere near measuring up to their pre-war yield in Russia and central Europe reports from other parts of the world disclose a high measure of production. American farmers broke all records with corn, tobacco, rice, sweet potatoes and pears, while they closely approached records with oats, barley, rye, potatoes and apples. America produced 75 per cent. of the world's output of corn, reaching the enormous total of 3,199,126,000 bushels, or 75,000,000 bushels more than ever grown in any one year. With the drop in price, however, the value of this year's crop will not come within a billion dollars of the value of last year's crops.

The tobacco crop this year, placed by the Department of Agriculture at 1,476,444,000 pounds, is 87,000,000 pounds more than was grown last year, notwithstanding that Kentucky's production this year has fallen away 36,000,000 pounds.

Pears are put at 15,559,000 bushels, or 3,300,000 bushels more than the previous largest crop in 1917.

Canada also has had a remarkable year, her total agricultural production being estimated at over 2,300,000,000 in value, her grain crops alone exceeding a billion dollars in value. That country is looking forward to the biggest trade year in her history based on her steadily increasing exports of manufactures to the United States. With her basic

PRINCETON AND YALE CLASH TOMORROW

Backers of Tigers Are a Little Timid Although Betting Odds Are in Their Favor.

New York, Nov. 12.—The tenacity of the bull dog will be pitted against what is admittedly a superior football team when Princeton and Yale clash tomorrow afternoon, in Palmer stadium, Princeton.

Betting odds have followed the performances of the Princeton team this year. Yale gave West Virginia University a sound drubbing while Princeton had plenty of troubles subduing the mountaineers. Still Yale lost a game to Boston College, which, preponderance of betting opinion indicates, proves that Yale is not so strong as Princeton.

The fact, however, that Princeton, year in and year out, prepares for both Yale and Harvard by perfecting a defensive machine rather than one of offense, has made bettors a little timid, so the best anyone had to say for the Tigers was 3 to 2 and Yale money was in evidence.

Both Coaches Busy
Bill Roper, head coach of the Princeton team, has drilled his men strongly at forward passing this week and has given a great deal of attention to perfection of signals. "Follow the ball," always had been a slogan for Tiger eleven, a fact which Roper has not forgotten in the constant drilling on signals.

The same things have been gone over at New Haven. Tad Jones has worked long and faithfully trying to make a scoring machine out of his material. Forward passing has come in for a lot of attention. The indications are, therefore, that spectators at this second game among members of the "big three" will witness an overhead attack by both teams.

Yale Backfield
Yale coaches are admittedly puzzled in their efforts to send the best backfield possible into the game.

Thorne Murphy and Kempton have each been tried and worked hard at the quarterback position with chances favoring neither on the eve of Yale's first big contest of the year. Jones, himself, leans to Murphy, because of his adeptness at maneuvering plays.

FARMS MUST BE PLACED ON A BUSINESS BASIS

Greater co-operation between farmers and bankers so that the business of producing farm products can be financed along the same lines as the business of manufacturing and selling merchandise of all kinds will cut the cost of food production and increase farm profits, asserts George A. Woodford in an article on "The Relation of Banking to the Business of Farming," in the current, November issue of Farm Mechanics magazine.

In the fifty years from 1864 to 1890, the development of farm machinery enabled four men to do the work that required fourteen," says Mr. Woodford. "Today we are faced with the problem of so equipping the nation that one man can produce as much as the four in 1890 or the fourteen in 1864."

More than that, we want to reduce the day's work of that one man

Pure bred live stock, with proper care and feeding, will bring more than proportionately increased returns. "But you may say all of this costs money, a great deal of money, and the average farmer cannot afford to make use of the advantages."

DEPOT SQUARE

States, with the devoted guidance and example of Clara Barton, did the Red Cross make an imperishable name for itself in its work of relief for stricken humanity.

Gradually its organization was enlarged and extended until now it has an intimate acquaintance not only with the needs of America but with the necessities of much of the world. The call of suffering is an irresistible touch to the battlefield of service. The Red Cross has pity and aid for "all poor souls in sorrow." No national boundaries, no differences in creed limit its activities nor circumscribe its sympathies.

The home organization of the American Red Cross probably is the most perfect of its kind and has been designed to confer the greatest benefits compatible with the funds at its disposal and with the least overhead expense. The vigilant supervision exercised through the medium of its district organizations prevents waste or duplication of service.

This home organization reaching into each community enables it also to assume burdens and undertakings not contemplated by its founders such as its valuable efforts toward the prevention of disease, the conservation of infant life, the care of mothers and children and other activities that are of great economic value to the community, the state and the nation.

During the war the value of the Red Cross in the daily life of the nation was a commonplace. Since the war ended and in its gradual adjustment to the peacetime demands upon its resources and the new fields of social service it has developed the Red Cross has become less obvious, its present needs less apprehended and understood.

What should never be forgotten is that it represents, and indeed personifies, the American character of generous response to the calls of sickness, poverty and disaster. It is a powerful and keen weapon already forged and tempered for the expression of American ideals and the translation of American desires into achievements that bring Heaven's blessing with them. It strengthens America while relieving the woes of humankind. It is a weapon that should not be permitted to be dulled by indifference.

The Red Cross asks little in this fourth annual roll call. Principally, it seeks a renewal of the ordinary membership at an annual subscription of $1. There are other degrees of membership and the strength of the Red Cross always will be in its optimism that with country now that the scientific tariff regulation that will prevent the waste and dissipation of our enormous resources.

X-RAY SHOWS VITAL ORGANS AT WORK.

The inner workings of the human body are revealed by a new instrument, termed the "fluoroscopic unit," the invention of Frank Richer, electrical engineer and son of Professor C. H. Richer, of the University of California. The instrument, a development of the Roentgen ray principle, is declared to be an important scientific invention and trials here have proven it successful. Richer leaves this month for New York to explain his findings and give a demonstration of the instrument before an Eastern scientific society.

"Homo-vision" is the accomplishment of the instrument. The patient is strapped to a table with an observation screen at the back. When the instrument is operated, it gives out pale light which throws an image of the human frame on the screen. Variations of the power enables the observer to watch the action of the various organs. The heart actions can be studied easily; the inner workings of everything but the human soul are laid bare.

At his demonstration in the East Richer will explain his system for applying the unit as an amplification of the Bertillon identification system, by means of organ and skeleton photography, which investigation has shown to be equally accurate with finger print photography.

Richer's instrument is so small that it can be carried in a grip and may be plugged into a house lighting circuit and be ready for instant use.

New York, Nov. 12.—Advances were recorded in the early dealings of the foreign exchange market today, sterling advancing one cent, francs five centimes, 20 points in lire and four points in Belgians. Quotations are: Demand sterling, $3.36 3-4; franc cables 5.74; checks 5.73; lire cables 3.44, checks 3.43; Belgian cables 6.08, checks 6.07; marks 1.15; guilder cables 29.70, checks 29.55.

New York, Nov. 12.—Opening Liberty Bond quotations: 3 1-2s, 94.70; 4 1-2s, 97.00; 5s, 98.54; 4 1-2s, 97.30; Victory 3 1-2s, 98.08; Victory 4 1-2s, 98.10.

A Tough Battle

Coach Roper is not one of those who believe the Princeton team is so much stronger than Yale that the contest will be one-sided. He expects determined opposition, outwardly at least, and has prepared his men for a tough battle.

The Yale team will reach New York tonight and will leave for Princeton on an early Yale special. Arrangements have been made at Palmer stadium to seat 50,000 spectators.

TOMORROW'S FOOTBALL GAMES.

There will be much interest in the Brown-Harvard contest at Cambridge and the Pennsylvania-Dartmouth game at Philadelphia.

The Harvard-Brown affair promises to be little more than a work-out for Harvard and, therefore, several regulars will go to Princeton to watch Yale and Princeton. Harvard plays Yale a week from tomorrow.

Pennsylvania is finding many supporters on the eve of her struggle with Dartmouth, because of the fine showing a week ago against Pittsburgh.

Penn State believed by many to be the best team in the East, will tackle its ancient foe, Lehigh, but the result is not in much doubt. Lehigh stands little show.

Pittsburgh takes on Washington and Jefferson, an assignment which is causing no little worry to the Panthers.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, Nov. 12.—A renewal of selling was noted at the opening of the cotton market today and after yesterday's reduction in the short account there was little demand to absorb the pressure which came from Liverpool and spot house interests. Prices fell 20 to 47 points on first sales. A very cold weather may exert little influence probably because of reports that the spot basis in the south Atlantic states was easier again. Following the start, there was some scattered covering by the room which gradually took up the supply and held the list fairly steady at about 60 points under last night's close.

SUB-TREASURY REPORT.

DEFEATING A HUGE SHIPPING DEAL

Investigator Tells Congress Probers of Attempt to "Put Over" Gigantic Transaction.

New York, Nov. 12.—Fresh revelations of attempts to cheat the United States Shipping Board out of huge sums by "padding" contracts were made at today's hearing of the congressional investigation committee. John T. Meehan, chief deputy investigator for the board, told on the witness stand how a contract involving millions of dollars for surplus lumber, with heavy loss to the government, was almost "put over."

Used Dictaphone.
By the use of a dictaphone, Meehan said, his investigators ascertained that a bid for 139,000,000 feet of lumber by the Chicago House Wreckers Company, owned by Harris Brothers, ostensibly for $3,900,000 actually was for only 2,400,000.

E. S. Tiger, then an employee of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and J. K. Fawcett, of Pittsburgh, former employee of Harris Brothers, but at the time head of the lumber department of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, were concerned in making the bid, Meehan testified.

Alleged Collusion in Bid.
Fawcett and Tiger, according to the witness, had agreed to divide $2,500 if the deal went through. The bid was rejected after Meehan's investigators had learned of the alleged collusion.

The lumber finally was disposed of at a saving of 1,600,000 to the government, Meehan said.

Tiger, according to the witness, was being sought by the post-office officials at the same time that Shipping Board investigators were trailing him. He said Tiger was now out on bail and faced an old charge of using the mails to defraud.

"Tiger came to New York from Detroit," the witness continued. "Within a short time he became a lumber inspector for the Emergency Fleet Corporation, doing some really good work."

CAP. STAYE'S AUTO WAS BORROWED FOR JOY RIDE

Lost and Recovered, All in One Night—Policemen of Three Cities Watch All Roads.

Altogether Cap. Staye of the Print Room had a rather bad night last night and although he feels well enough this morning, he still has a lingering hankering for a few minutes of conversation with the gentlemen who borrowed his car last night and after a joy ride through the surrounding country left it alone and gasless early this morning near McKee street.

For a while Cap had visions of his big Chandler, wrecked by some cow path, if he ever saw it at all again. But this morning he guided it into the Old Mill yard, none the worse for its experience. As far as can be made out, the total loss is four gallons of gasoline.

The machine was left outside of Le Tabarin in East Hartford last night and when the party came out of the hall to go home, about 11.30, the car was gone. The police of Hartford and East Hartford were notified. Chief Gordon, as soon as he was informed, had the local police on the job and so thoroughly did they work that not a machine was able to pass through Manchester without being stopped and investigated.

Another machine was brought from Wethersfield to take the Staye party home and when this automobile started out for Hartford the Chandler was found at McKee street, where it had been abandoned, the gas tank empty and the engine in low gear.

As the car was not there when the Wethersfield machine came to Manchester, the police concluded that it had been left not more than a half an hour before. So they started out in pursuit. Anyone who had been found walking toward Hartford at that time of the morning would have been out of luck and would have had a difficult task of explaining. But no one was found and the Chandler was brought back to Manchester.

This morning Cap Staye had nothing but praise for the Manchester police and the thorough way they detailed the roads. The East Hartford police pursued a suspicious looking machine to Willimantic and could not catch up with the car until it reached that city and there they found their suspicions were unwarranted.

MISS BENSON TO LEAVE FOR WINTER IN FLORIDA

Chief Operator of the Mill Telephone Switchboard Will Return With the Warm Weather.

Miss Alice Benson, chief operator of the mill telephone exchange at the Main Office, has been granted a leave of absence and tomorrow she will begin a vacation that will take her to Florida for the remainder of the winter.

The trip to Jacksonville will be started Tuesday from New York City on board the Clyde Line, Comanche. Miss Benson is to be accompanied by Mrs. S. Frances Wood, of Boston, but formerly a resident of this town.

When Jacksonville is reached there will be another fine sail up the St. John River to St. Augustine where Miss Benson and Mrs. Wood will stay. In the spring Miss Benson plans to return by train and visit the southern states en route.

Mrs. Mildred Wasley will substitute at the board during the absence of Miss Benson.

PRISMATICS PUNISHED BY PRINT ROOM BATICKS

Capt. Staye and Behrend Have a Warm Tussle for High Single and Three String.

The Baticks of the Print Room put it over on their Prismatic brethren the other night at Conran's alleys and although Capt. Staye tied with Behrend for the high single of 121 and although he took the high string of 319, it wasn't enough and his men lost the match both on games and on total pinfall.

CLEAN TEETH TAUGHT BY DENTAL HYGIENIST

Importance of Good Teeth as a Means to Health Recognized by the Medical Department.

All employees of Cheney Brothers now have, in addition to other medical services, those of a dental hygienist, Miss Alice Talcott, who was recently placed in charge of the splendidly equipped dental office, adjoining the medical department. Miss Talcott's work consists of cleaning and examining teeth and when necessary the use of the X-ray to determine the internal conditions of the roots and gums.

No oral surgery is done by Miss Talcott and she can fill no cavities or extract teeth. Her work will be confined to prophylaxis to insure the patients a clean and healthy mouth. In other words, Miss Talcott will devote her attention to the prevention of tooth ailments which cause suffering, and which are detrimental to the health and efficiency. Instead of filling cavities her task will be to prevent them and instead of extracting teeth she will take such precautions that they may be preserved.

The services of the dental hygienist are open to all employees of Cheney Brothers and free to the members of the Benefit Association. Appointments for examining and cleaning the teeth may be made in the customary way at the medical office.

BOWLING STANDINGS TO-MORROW

A complete standing of all the members of the men's bowling league will be published tomorrow. The scores are unusually high and Parsons of the Velvet Mill leads them all with an almost perfect score for twelve games. The standing of the various teams, the percentages and the total pinfall will also be included in this standing.

Riddle of Spirit World Was Once Guest in Town

The Mysterious Mr. Home, Driven from Norwich, Followed to Fame a Path that Led Through Manchester—Later He Was Idolized by the Crowned Heads of Europe—His Career Without Parallel in History.

As a result of the breadth of tolerance which the original members of the Manchester settlement had for new ideas and doctrines, the early history of Manchester has been enriched with anecdotes which, altogether, mark it quite apart from the other New England communities of that age. No mob in Manchester ever burned a witch in the days of the ducking stool. No Manchester audience ever silenced a speaker because his message was new and his plan contrary to the established custom. And because of this spirit of free mindedness, the town may look upon its youthful days with some pride because it fostered then ideas which today are written as the best practices in the arts and sciences.

The story of Cheney Hall has been told, and of its platform from which the greatest advocates of woman suffrage spoke in a day when that creed was ridiculed, despised and condemned as dangerous in most parts of the country.

E. Howland, writing in Harper's Magazine in 1872 turned the country's attention to South Manchester because of the humanity found in its mills. "An Industrial Experiment" it was called fifty years ago—experiment because the rule in textile centers at that time was brutality, dirt and obscenity. And to all of this South Manchester was a clean, healthy contrast.

As the Cheney papers in the conpartment of the mills, having read while they worked all the available books, petitioned for more and this request was granted by Cheney Brothers with a gift of a small library, the nucleus of the present one.

All of these instances give us of 1920 some conception of the attitude of liberality which the early residents maintained toward what then were the radical and much frowned-upon ideas of a hide-bound tight-laced age. And this practice of giving, now thought or discovered a fair investigation and a chance to demonstrate their merits barred practically no scheme, whether it was the invention of the hand or of the mind. This habit, it seems relevant to say, has done more, perhaps, for the encouragement of progress than any other.

Considering this, it does not seem particularly surprising that The Mysterious Mr. Home, one of the most fascinating of the human riddles in the history of spiritualism was at one time the guest at the Cheney home—stead and while there he gave an exhibition of his ability—an ability which in later years brought him to the court of St. James, confounded the English royalty, that brought great wealth and a noble Russian wife. His peculiar power, if such it may be called, of communication with the other world has never been satisfactorily explained, even though such men as Sir William Crookes, William Cullen Bryant and David G. Wells tried to do it.

This was in the early fifties of the last century and at that age communication with the other world was synonymous with communication with the devil. Evidently the early Cheneys had sufficient faith in good deeds for they feared neither and one of the first seances held by Mr. Home was at the invitation, it is believed of Ward Cheney. How it came about is told in "Historic Ghosts and Ghost Hunters" by H. Addington Bruce, a copy of which is at the South Manchester Free Library.

"So you've brought the devil to my house, have you?"

"No, no, aunt, no! It's not my fault."

With an angry gesture the woman, tall, large boned, hump shaped, pushed back her chair and advanced threateningly toward the pale, anemic-looking youth of seventeen, who sat cowering at the far end of the breakfast table.

"You know this is your doing. Stop it at once!"

knocks. "It is not my doing," he muttered. "I cannot help it."

"Begone then! Out of my sight!"

Left to herself and to silence, for with her nephew's departure the noise instantly ceased, she fell into gloomy meditation. She was an exceedingly ignorant, but profoundly religious woman. She had heard much of the celebrated Fox sisters, with tales of whose strange actions in the neighboring State of New York the countryside was then ringing, and she recognized or thought she recognized, a striking similarity between their performances and the tumult of the last few minutes. There could be only one explanation—the boy—however unwittingly, had placed himself in the power of the devil. What to do, however, she knew not, and fumed and fretted the entire morning until upon his reappearance at noon the knockings broke out again. Then her mind was quickly made up.

"Look you!" said she to him. "We must, rid you of the evil that is in you. I will have the ministers reason with you and pray for you, and that at once."

This was in Norwich, Connecticut and the aunt summoned three of the most powerful and efficient clergymen of that city to shoo the devil out of Daniel Douglas Home. But the louder they prayed the louder were the knockings; and presently to their astonishment the very furniture appeared bewitched, dancing and leaping as though alive." After that Daniel was told he must leave the home.

"Do you mean this, aunty?"

"Mean it, Daniel? Never shall it be said of me that I gave aid and comfort to Satan or child of Satan's. Pack, and be off."

In this way was Daniel Home launched on a career that was to prove one of the most marvelous, if not the most marvelous in the annals of mystification. His health was poor, his pockets were empty, he was without friends. Cast upon his own resources under such conditions, it seemed but all too probable that failure and early death would be his portion. Two things only were in his possession. From his aunt's house it was, it must be remembered, an era of wide-spread enthusiasm and credulity the heyday of spiritualism. So soon, therefore, as it became known that young Home was at liberty to go where he would, there were invitations to him to visit homes at various places.

In Willimantic in the early spring of 1851 young Home frustrated all attempts of spectators to discover what it was that moved tables and chairs through the air at Home's command. Furniture moved even though men held them. On one occasion Home was able, through communication with the spirits to trace he whereabouts to missing title deeds to a tract of land in litigation; and on another the spirits were able to prescribe through this sympathetic medium, the medicine that was successful in the cure of an invalid for whom no hope was entertained.

Home refused to accept any payment for his services. "My gift," he would solemnly say, "is free to all, without money and without price. I have a mission to fulfill, and to its fulfillment I will cheerfully give my life." Of course this attitude led to converts and Home's power was greatly increased when in 1852 William Cullen Bryant and the Harvard professor, David G. Wells, heading a committee of investigation, announced that they had attended a seance, had seen a table move in every direction and with great force, and had, in vain, tried to prevent the motion by sitting on it, and finally, that they were absolutely certain that they had not been imposed upon or deceived.

"A little later," the story continues, "occurred the first of Home's invitations when at the house of a Mr. Cheney in South Manchester, he said to have been lifted, without visible means of support to the ceiling of the seance room. To quote from an eye-witness's narrative: Suddenly, and without any expectation of the part of the company, Mr. Home was taken up in the air. I had told of his feet at the time, and I and others felt his feet—they were lifted a foot from the floor. Again and again he was taken from the floor, and the third time he was carried to the lofty ceiling of the apartment, with which his head and hand came in gentle contact."

A little later Home was seriously threatened with tuberculosis and his only hope lay in a complete change of climate. So he sailed for England. He once over labored more earnestly and successfully in behalf of spiritualism than any other man of his ism that did. Daniel Douglas Home from the moment he set foot on the shores of England in April 1855; and so on all the history of spiritualism achieved such individual renown, not in England alone, but in almost every country of the Continent."

"Overcoming with astounding ease the handicaps of his humble birth and lack of education, his life was one continued round of social triumphs of the highest order; for he speedily won and retained to the day of his death the confidence and friendship of leaders of society in every European capital. With them, in castle, chateau, and mansion, he made his home, always welcome, and always trusted, and in his days of greatest stress, days of ill health, affliction, and legal entanglements, they rallied unflinchingly to his aid. And again that Kings and Queens avied with one another in entertaining and rewarding him, and it is possible to gain some idea of the heights reached by this erstwhile Connecticut country boy. He held seances with the third Napoleon and his empress, with the King of Prussia, and with the Emperor of Russia. In Russia he was married to the daughter of an noble Russian family, and for groomsman at his wedding had Count Alexia Tolstoy, the famous poet, and Count Brobinaki, one of the Emperor's chamberlains."

Home continued to demonstrate his unbelievable powers. He could pass out through an open window, remain suspended in the air and come slowly back into the room. He was able to elongate himself to make himself almost a foot taller than his natural height. Sir William Crookes attempted to test Home by certain instruments that were mathematically infallible, but "these registered results that seemed inexplicable to any natural law; a latch, cast carelessly upon the table, rose in the air, nodded gravely to the astonished scientist." So Sir William, the famous scientist, became one of Home's strongest converts.

All of the story of The Mysterious Mr. Home cannot be told here. He was and he has remained one of the riddles in the study of spiritualism. Among those in town who remember Mr. Home well, is Mrs. George F. Rich of East Center street who saw him frequently in Norwich where he lived there and who was able to recall considerable of his remarkable history.

DEMOCRATS WILL WAIT REPUBLICAN PLANS

Congress Leaders Will Not Decide on Reorganization at the Present Time.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Congressional Democratic leaders are expected to take the count, following their defeat in the elections, and await development of Republican plans and policies before determining their scheme of opposition and reorganization.

Congressman Claude Kitchen, of North Carolina, who will be the House Democratic leader in the new Congress, favors this plan.

"We cannot re-organize," he said today, "on the Bryan scheme of giving to the foreign countries the ten billions they have borrowed from us and adding that to the tax burdens of our people."

"Neither can we re-organize on the Governor Cox plan of repealing the excess profits tax and substituting for it a general sales tax to raise over a billion dollars from the people."

"I think it better that these so-called meetings to consider plans for reorganization, now being held or to be held, should be postponed for four months. We could see by that time what the Republicans are going to do with the great problems that confront them, and what is to be their policy."

Kitchen will give up reluctantly active work on the ways and means committee, where tariff and revenue legislation is framed. He will take no committee assignments. Although improved in health since his breakdown last summer, he is fearful of the strain of committee work.

He said today he did not anticipate legislation at the opening short session of Congress except appropriation bills for the fiscal year 1921, and the usual list of minor measures.

The important new legislation will be carried over by the Republicans to the extraordinary session President Harding is certain to call immediately following his inauguration March 4, next, he believes.

Repairing Fences.
Congressman Henry D. Flood, of Virginia, chairman of the House Democratic congressional committee, is expected to keep in touch with the committee and with the congressional leaders.

He has sent to each a letter of confidence, with a promise of better luck in 1922, and redemption of the country by the Democratic Party in 1924.

Burglar Tried to Choke Woman

Captured by Two Ex-service Men
After a Chase and Lively Battle

Meriden, Conn., Nov. 11.—Two ex-service men, Gerald McGrath and Walter Brys assisted in the capture of a fleeing burglar here this morning after the man, who gave his name as Kohn Kulsh, 35, of New York had been surprised by Kate Kaznor ransacking a bedroom in her home at 122 Willow street and had escaped to the street after choking Mrs. Kaznor.

Kulsh was surprised in the woman's bedroom. He was in the act she says, of taking a fist full of bills which were funds of a local church of which she was treasurer. After freeing himself from Mrs. Kaznor's attempt to grapple with him, he was seen coming from the house by a passer-by who heard the woman's screams. The man gave chase and McGrath and Brys joined in the pursuit, effecting the man's capture after a lively battle in which Kulsh tried to use a weapon. He was finally subdued and turned over to the police.

In Kulsh's pockets was nearly $100 in stolen cash and five gold watches and burglars' implements. He also had a roll of money in one stocking, which he said was his own.

CONTRACTORS OVERCHARGED SHIPPING BOARD.

New York, Nov. 11.—Commander Abner B. Clements, assistant to Admiral Benson, chairman of the United States Shipping Board on the witness stand before the congressional investigators here today declared he had "found nothing definite to show that there was corruption of Shipping Board officials," but admitted that contractors have been overcharging the board.

Commander Clements further admitted that his investigation had disclosed that it was true contractors had been listing laborers at $0 and 90 cents an hour and then paid them only 40 cents an hour, pocketing the difference.

Circle Theater

"It's a highly involved story which Alice Joyce has in 'The Prey,' a story which provides her ample acting opportunities which she takes care of with her customary vitality and charm. But it is not a sympathetic role by any means. A woman who sells herself to the highest bidder, even after he is condemned in her heart cannot command sympathy, even though she is forced into matrimony to save her brother from jail. The dance is of a heroic mould—a figure who would bring unhappiness to his beloved through sheer determination of living up to justice, and sympathy cannot be extended to him either."

This character is represented as the district attorney whose ambition is to break up a gambling syndicate and punish its leader. He will not listen to the entreaties of the girl's father who is involved. Realizing his plight he commits suicide. And fuel is added to the fire. The misunderstanding grows deeper, with the result that the distressed woman marries her hated nemesis. Once in his power, the scoundrel adds insult to insult, taunts her on every occasion, until, becoming desperate, she flees to her erstwhile fiance. Such a course is just what her husband desires, since he can compromise her and humiliate her more deeply than ever. Most of the scenes comprise this game of "give and take" and while the action is fairly interesting at times it doesn't bear a very healthy quality. The evil man's day of reckoning comes when he conveniently dies of apoplexy.

This figure is really the most convincing in the picture. He plays his game with cool, calculating deliberation. The cards are all stacked in his favor. He has forced the girl to become his prey through the indictment of her brother. And he, seemingly, has the district attorney at his mercy until he is eliminated for the sake of bringing light out of darkness. "The Prey" is complicated, but due to a good continuity the scenes are easy to follow.

"The Prey," which made a big hit at the Circle last night will be shown again this evening. Baby Osborne is on the same bill.

Park Theater

time, vaudeville acts in addition to his program of moving pictures.

The vaudeville, directed from the Keith Circuit in Boston will consist of Oddy and Watkins, premier singers and dancers. They will appear as black face comedians and do a singing, talking and dancing act. Flynn and Howard are Irish comedians. They are in a class by themselves and as funmakers they can be depended upon to amuse all who attend the performance this evening. Billy Collins has a novelty act that is a thriller. It is a bit of everything and is most spectacular. Anna Russell, a prima donna, will sing classical and popular selections. The movie feature on the bill will be Blanche Sweet in "Simple Souls" a special production.

HARTLEYS WIN

Defeat Brunswicks in a Series of Games by But Ten Pins

Hartleys Five beat the Brunswick Five by a total of ten pins in the roll off last evening. The last game of the series was played on the Brunswick alleys. W. Murphy had high single of 114. Parton's high three string of 311 almost beat the north end team.

In a special match, Conran and Hayes beat Stratton and Murphy by one pin.

Following are the scores:

JOE WELLING TO FIGHT LEONARD.

New York, Nov. 12.—Joe Welling, Chicago lightweight will be Benny Leonard's opponent, when the lightweight champion defends his title in Madison Square Garden, November twenty-sixth, it was announced today. Tex Rickard, promoter, declared Welling was the only first class lightweight he could find who did not have any ridiculous weaknesses, and was together to Benny Leonard.

HARDING POLLED OVER

17,000,000 VOTES

Socialists With 2,000,000
Their Record While 15,000,000
Women Cast Votes.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Officials at headquarters here of the Republican party, the Democratic party, the Farmer-Labor party, the Prohibition party, the Plumb Plan League and other parties and organizations, including the American Federation of Labor, were still speculating as to the total number of votes cast by the American electorate on election day.

Until the vote had been officially tabulated and reported to the Secretary of State of each and every one of the 48 states, William Tyler Page, clerk of the House, and a recognized expert on election statistics, pointed out, that all computations must be guess work.

Republican and Democratic leaders apparently agreed with those of lesser organizations that President-elect Harding polled between 17,000,000 and 18,000,000 votes. They do not expect official figures for another two weeks.

Miss Alice Paul, leader of the militant suffragists, figured that 15,000,000 women had voted. It was figured that Cox's vote was between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000.

Socialists Big Vote

In all political camps, the big showing made by Eugene V. Debs the imprisoned Socialist candidate for President was conceded to have been a "record breaker" for the Socialists. It was generally agreed that Debs polled approximately 2,000,000 votes.

Christensen, the Farmer-Labor candidate for President, was generally estimated to have received between 500,000 and 700,000.

The Prohibition cause was said to have only given Watkins about 200,000 because of the number of "drys" who voted for Republican or Democratic "dry" candidates for Congress or other offices.

McCauley, the State Tax presidential candidate, made the poorest showing. It was generally conceded, his vote being estimated at between 25,000 and 50,000.

of $63,174.10 and expenditures of $51,088.25 and remaining in the treasury $1,185.85.
The report shows that about two-thirds of this sum was expended for printing and the remainder largely for office expenses and salaries.

THE QUESTION OF LIFE INSURANCE

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company commenced business in 1858 for the benefit of humanity. While not the biggest it is one of the very best. Modesty forbids me to say "The Best."

During 1919 it wrote $297,102,565, a larger amount than during the first 13 years of its history.

In 1909 they wrote an average of only $300,000 per day. In 1919 $1,000,000 per day and along the same conservative lines which have always characterized their writing. Quality, not quantity, has been their aim.

Of the amount written last year, in the U. S. 49.40 per cent., in Connecticut 55.82 per cent., and in New York State 57.81 per cent. was written on lives of men already insured with the company.

No institution has a greater asset than satisfied customers. Such has been and is the Northwestern, a Company of satisfied policyholders.

Men today as never before are alive to the value and benefits of the greatest saving institution "Life Insurance."

The policy contract issued by the Northwestern always has been and always will be one of justice, fairness and mutuality. With its splendid history of 62 years the Northwestern has a reputation excelled by none of the many splendid companies. During 1919 the Northwestern not only maintained its very liberal dividend scale but increased its surplus. It is known as the dividend paying company of America.

And when you think of Life Insurance, do not forget that one great company in 1919 rejected 15,873 applicants and the amount applied for was over sixty millions. The time to take Life Insurance is when you can pass the doctor.

The Northwestern writes thirty different plans. Sample policies and premium rates furnished on application. There is but one Northwestern Mutual Life.

ARMED TROUBLE IN ARMING ULSTER

The great and probably the most serious argument against giving self-government to Britain's north-west is in Ireland. Englishmen say in the event of the British army being withdrawn Ulster would immediately refuse to recognize the National Parliament in Dublin and immediately a reign of terror would commence if not the whole of the country at least the province of Ulster.

But war is being openly organized here already. Carson's followers in the whole of Ulster are being organized into special constables. The Government, arms are to be distributed and everyone enrolled. They will be equipped with a rifle, bayonet, revolver and truncheon. Further, the Government has guaranteed every one of them ten shillings a day, or two dollars, according to the present rate of exchange. While this one section is being armed in the North by Dublin Castle the authorities are shooting and deporting the Southern political section for doing exactly the same.

A Northern Nationalist told me that the outcome of this alarming state of events is that the Catholics who live in the northeast corner about Belfast are clearing out of house and home. As soon as the new police force is on a firm footing a Nationalist's life won't be worth an hour's purchase.

Orangemen Immune

Already in the towns where sections of "specials" have been raised the Orangemen have become immune from punishment. In Lisburn the Magistrate sentenced a score of hoodlums to three months' imprisonment with hard labor for smashing, burning and looting Nationalist homes. The "specials" in a body refused to serve the warrants, and the guilty allowed to go unpunished. Furthermore, trials had to be withdrawn against other Carsonites on similar charges.

In the borders of Cavan and around Cootehill the Carsonite policemen, I am told, are raising trouble for their Nationalist neighbors whose houses are fired into and their crops burned.

I have the very best authority for saying that the prominent officials at Dublin Castle tried to persuade the British Premier from adopting this course. In a very clearly worded telegram dispatched to him at Switzerland the Castle chiefs told Mr. Lloyd George that should the Unionists in Ulster be armed hundreds, if not thousands, of inoffensive Nationalists in the province who had no connection with any revolutionary organization would lose their lives.

The Premier immediately cabled his acknowledgement and said there was no truth in the suggested formation.

Project Against Idea

The Ulster leaders following these exchanges of messages dropped the project for a week or two and soon after Mr. Lloyd George's return to London accepted the idea.

The more thoughtful and farseeing of Ulster Unionists have advised against the step, and all well-wishers of English rule in this country, such as the followers of Lord Midleton, have equally well-voiced their protests. The consequences may be as bad if not worse than my Ulster Nationalist informant says, but there are people here who think that in organizing such a force the Government has put a stick to beat itself. The order following the Carsonites to arm in 1918 is an instance of this occurring before.

PASSES BAD CHECK AT BRISTOL

Bristol, Conn., Nov. 11.—William A. Konotaski, of Terryville, is held here on a charge of passing a spurious check for $50 at the Bristol Trust Company. The check was drawn on the Riverside Trust Co., of Hartford. Konotaski was first arrested at the instance of John O'Donnell of Terryville, who said he had passed a check for $25 on him which was worthless, also drawn on the Hartford Bank. O'Donnell pursued Konotaski and got his money back and turned the prisoner over to the Terryville authorities, who held him in bonds of $300 for a hearing later. He was later arrested on the charge here. He had a number of checks made out on the banks of the Riverside Trust Co., and the police are investigating to ascertain if he had passed others.

BENNY LEONARD TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

New York, Nov. 11.—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, has signed articles agreeing to defend his title in Madison Square Garden, here. His opponent has not been picked, but he probably will be Richie Mitchell, of Milwaukee, or Johnny Dundee, of New York.

The United Lutheran Church plans to devote half a million dollars the coming year to the advancement of Christian education for women. A part of the plan is the providing of trained women assistants for Lutheran churches in college towns.

WILL GO TO GREENLAND IF ANOTHER WAR STARTS

London.—"If another war comes along while I am alive the first thing I'm going to do is to take a boat for Greenland—I've never heard of an Eskimo being accused of espionage, and neither have I heard of a war there—I'm off wars for life."

This is just a part of what Johann Mah, a British-born subject, said when he consigned Mars to the proverbial canines after his release from an English jail after having served five years of a seven year sentence on a charge of espionage. The reduction in the length of his incarceration was because of his good conduct while in the jail.

Hahn and two companions by the names of Muller and Kupperfeldt are said to have been the originators of the writing between the lines system of getting war information out of England in letters addressed to various parts of Europe. The writing, which was done in invisible ink between the lines of the visible ink writing, could be decoded by the use of lemon juice. The letters bearing the invisible writing were traced to Hahn's bakery, in South London.

Muller was shot in the Tower of London in June, 1915; Kupperfeldt committed suicide in his cell during the trial, and Hahn received the seven-year sentence. Hahn protested his innocence at the trial. He will be recognized as a British subject.

ABOUT TOWN

The Ladies Aid society of the North Methodist church will hold a Christmas sale at Hibbard's store in the north end, on Wednesday, Dec. 8.

Rockville had a celebration yesterday though it did come up to expectations. A good many local people went up in the evening to see the display of fireworks.

Manchester will be well supplied with amusements tonight. Vaudeville at the Park, dancing at Cheney Hall and in the Assembly hall of the Eighth District school building.

The Princess Candy Shop was well patronized all day yesterday. In the evening the management had an orchestra render selections. The new store presents a pretty appearance.

Music lovers should not fail to hear the concert to be given by the Wesleyan University Musical Clubs on Friday evening Nov. 19, at High School Hall. These singers have made a reputation for themselves for group singing and will also offer several novelty attractions.

Judge Card has just returned from a three weeks' trip to South Carolina, where he has been attending the State fair at Columbia. He is enthusiastic over his reception at the hands of the southerners. Viewed through his artistic eye, he says the country is a study in black and white—mostly black.

MR. CHANDLER TO SPEAK MONDAY BEFORE C. OF C.

Secretary of State Chamber to Tell About His Recent Trip to London and Paris.

Every member of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce who possibly can, ought to attend the annual meeting of the Chamber which is to be held in the Recreation Building next Monday evening. The meeting will be called promptly at eight o'clock.

In addition to the routine business, officers are to be elected for the coming year. At the close of the business session, the members will have the pleasure of listening to a talk by George B. Chandler, secretary of the State Chamber. Mr. Chandler will talk about his trip to Paris and London and will give a vivid account of conditions over there as he saw them. He attended the conference of secretaries of the International Chamber which was held in Paris and London last summer, and this conference will be the basis of his talk Monday night.

Mr. Chandler gave a similar talk before the State session held this week in New Haven and the Manchester members who heard him were highly pleased. President N. B. Richards saw Mr. Chandler and induced him to come to Manchester next Monday night.
