Belfast Murders Record. Belfast, April 27.—There have been ninety seven murders in Belfast since February, fifty-seven attempted murders, 150 cases of house breaking, 130 robberies, Lord Chief Justice Moore announced today in opening the new court sessions.

He declared that 800 criminals were responsible for this reign of disorder.

Dublin Disorders. Dublin, April 27.—The De Valera-Republican party will try to force a test vote in the Dail Eireann today on the issue of Republic or Free State government for Ireland.

Miss Mary MacSwiney today announced her intention of demanding a vote on a resolution rescinding ratification of the treaty of peace with England which established the Free State.

Intervention of the Catholic hierarchy has been very effective in turning public sentiment against the militant factions and it was freely predicted in advance of the Dail session, that the Griffith-Collins party will win every test vote.

Disorders continued during the night. Armed men entered the municipal baths, locked up the attendants, commandeered towels and soap and bathed undisturbed by any municipal regulations.

The breach between Michael Collins and Premier Sir James Craig in the negotiations with Ulster has strengthened Collins position here but it has caused fears that border disorders will reopen.

British Neutral. London, April 27.—The British government will not intervene in the latest and most serious breach between North and South Ireland, it was officially announced today at the Colonial Office.

The government takes the view that both North and South Ireland have their established governments and must settle their own difficulties.

London, April 27.—Three were killed today in a battle which occurred at Dunmanway, County Cork, when armed bands attacked the town, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch this afternoon.

London, April 27.—The first outbreaks of violence that had been considered inevitable along the Ulster border, following breaking of negotiations between Northern and Southern Ireland, were reported today.

Incendiaries burned Hibernian hall at Lislea and a business building and dwelling house at Annalong in County Down.

The police seized a land mine at Newry.

PRESIDENT PRAISES GRANT'S SPIRIT OF PEACE

"He felt the assurance of the nation preserved and yet the sweeping utterance from his great heart was 'let us have peace.'"

"Undoubtedly the task of reconstruction was lightened because of Grant's moderation. At the height of the struggle he would accept the capitulation of Fort Donelson only on conditions of 'unconditional surrender'; but when the fighting was over, he changed from severity to moderation and generosity.

"He saw union follow disunion, but it was not his to live to see complete concord where discord had flourished. Geographical sectionalism is only a memory now.

Sectionalism Effaced. "I do not mean to say that everywhere in our land we are all in complete accord about fundamentals of government or the basic principles upon which society is founded. But the sectionalism of Grant's and Lee's time has been effaced, and the geographical divisions which hindered the formation of the union, and later threatened its disruption have given way to the far less divisions which have challenged all civilization, and which make the ferment out of which all progress comes.

"The contentions which beset us are not ours alone, they are the irritants to civilization throughout the world. They are not to be ignored, and will not hinder the progress of this firmly founded republic.

American Opportunity. "Grant was himself the example of American opportunity. Standing before his humble birthplace, amid the surroundings of his obscure boyhood life, one doubts if three quarters of a century ago any one should have sought here for the military chieftain of a century. We have not a few, even today, who think small town vision to be pitifully circumscribed.

"Grant had even less of likelihood to eminence than his unpromising and unpropitious beginning. But there was the inheritance of quality and he dwelt and grew rugged in the freedom of a century.

"He believed in union and the nation supreme. He brought to the armed service preparedness to command, sturdiness of purpose, patience and forbearance, great generosity of soul, and a confidence never to be shaken. All conquering in command and magnanimous in triumph, the world saw the soldier and the man, the soldier adored and the man beloved.

Craved Peace Restored. "Other military leaders hitherto had mounted to lofty heights in the annals of history. It is useless to contemplate, but it is befitting to recall that Gen. Grant was no making conquest of territory or expanding empire. He was only seeking to preserve. He did not fight to enslave; he only battled to sustain Lincoln, whom God inspired to bestow freedom. He did not seek to punish or destroy. He was fighting to save and re-union. In his heart were no drastic terms of surrender; he craved the blessings of peace restored.

"I wonder sometimes if the magnanimity of Grant, the dogged, persistent, unalterable Grant in warfare—the unconditional surrender Grant—would not be helpful in the world today. The great world struggle, in which we see creditably and helpfully participated, left peoples and nations prostrate.

His Spirit Would Help. "I cannot help but believe that something of the spirit with which Grant welcomed victory, something of his eagerness to return to peaceful ways, would have opened the restoration and hastened the return to prosperity and happiness, without which there can be no abiding peace. We clung to his vision of union restored, and believed the shortest route to peace to be the surest way of lasting triumph.

"Many an incident of the war, many a revelation of his sturdy character showed that his face was set on the one supreme achievement—union and the preserved ark of the American covenant of liberty. No warring heart, no rivalry, no triumph of leaders among men put the country's good above personal and political advantage.

"It is not to be said of Grant that he sought to preserve a political or social order, or even a government, which had especially favored him. Nor can it be said that he sought personal or political popularity.

This ordinary American boy yearned for no star, dreamed of no destiny. He intended to do his duty, face ever forward ready to quicken his step when opportunity called or responsibility summoned.

Righteous Defense. "We know he wished the republic to go on. His twenty years of public and private life, following the war, gave proof enough. Though he proclaimed the doctrine of moral disarmament at Appomattox, he believed in a nation equipped for righteous defense, but no aggression was in his breast.

"I can well believe he would have approved all that the republic has so recently done in joining other nations in lifting the burdens of armament and promoting understanding which make war less likely. I know he would have approved because we have no independence, we have no peace of mind, we have no security of life.

"It is fifty-seven years since Grant paraded victory with magnanimity. His fame is so widely known that it has not forgotten and will not forget. "What of the republic itself? It will not be unseemly to say that American example and American conception of justice and liberty since then have influenced the world little less significantly than Grant's service to the Union shaped the course of our own land.

"A score of new republics have unfurled their flags, and democracy has opened new avenues of liberty and made justice more secure. Civilization meanwhile has made such advances that there has seemed a divinity pointing the way. And yet that very civilization more advancing than entrenched was threatened by the World War, and in war's aftermath established order has been assaulted and revolution has threatened throughout the world. In our own land the enemies within have been more threatening than those without. Greed and anarchy have menaced. But a calm survey gives every reassurance. Twenty centuries of modern civilization could not have been founded on foundations which are false. A century ago, a half of crafty American achievement dates from the sacrifices of the founding fathers, and their firm structure was preserved by the patriots whom Grant commanded, and will be held secure by the patriotic citizenship of the republic today and the grateful Americans of the morrow."

LYOYD GEORGE TO MAKE FIGHT OF HIS LIFE

Even the British premier himself, a confirmed optimist to the last minute in an international disagreement, is described today as holding little hope that the Russian problem can be settled at this time.

Russian Mobilization. Attention was centered today upon the fact that Russia has less than forty-eight divisions concentrated upon the Polish border.

The Russo-Polish friction, due to Poland's alignment with the allies in the present controversy, and Russia's contention that Poland by the Riga agreement has formally recognized the Soviet government, has been of apparently unimportant technical diplomatic quibbling. But the question must be judged by its future possibilities.

A War of Vengeance. If France marches upon the Ruhr May 1, as threatened by Premier Poincaré, observers here can probably expect that Russia will seize the opportunity created by the Polish ally's preoccupation with Rhine military operations, for a war of vengeance against Poland.

Shameful George, according to a noncommittal French source, does not intend leaving Genoa for at least a fortnight. He wants to stay until the broad outlines of the proposed pact pledging European nations against aggression for a period of ten years has been worked out.

The first French reaction since it became apparent the British probably would sidetrack the unsolvable Russian puzzle for the broader question of general European accord, has been statements from French delegates demanding that any such pact be backed by "sanctions." This constitutes a revival in a new form of the three year French campaign for binding military alliances which will guarantee France the fruits of the Versailles treaty and guard her against a war of revenge.

Avowedly an alarmist for the first time in his tempestuous career Lloyd George, the only premier who has sat through all the critical conferences since the armistice, had succeeded today in shocking the delegates and their constituencies in the various countries into some realization of the dangers threatening Europe.

Speaking to newspaper men he painted a picture of a new and terrible warfare laying all Europe in ashes, and menacingly drawing the United States into its vortex.

Russian language cannot now be so freely used. The problem and that of Germany, threaten the peace of the world war "within his lifetime" the English premier today began to concentrate all his forces and influence upon his proposed peace pact. For it, he is preparing to make one of the greatest fights of his life.

Premier Lloyd George, the International News learns, is considering demanding that sessions of the conference beginning Monday, be open with a view to giving the world clear understanding of the responsibility for obstructive tactics. This is a move considered likely to be bitterly fought by France which recently declared for pre-war diplomatic methods.

No Ultimatum to Russia. An official statement today denied any intention of the conference to deliver an ultimatum to Russia, but declares the allies are determined to bring the Russian delegates definitely to the points at issue.

Unless progress is made quickly it was announced, all general conferences and commission consideration of Russia will be suspended, but this will not break up the conference which would, presumably, proceed with Lloyd George's pact pledging nations against acts of aggression.

It is essential to point out that Lloyd George's proposed pact has nothing to do with disarmament. It involves a pledge not to attack without sanctions.

Other leaders, eager to steal the British premier's thunder, are working out a similar scheme of their own and flooding the conference with projects for the insurance of world peace.

Genoa, April 27.—"If negotiations break down it will be over Article Three of our draft agreement," M. Tchitcherin, the Russian foreign minister and chief of the delegation to the Genoa conference, declared in an exclusive interview with the International News today.

"We cannot go further than what is offered in that article. To demand more means that we surrender Sovietism, which we will never do.

"But let the world heed this warning: 'If negotiations break off—and it will not be our fault if they do—we shall withdraw the entire draft agreement with its important concessions, and it is very doubtful whether we shall be able ever to offer such terms again.'"

Article Three of the Russian provisional draft was submitted to the commission of experts, on the Russian question Monday night and resulted in such a wrangle that the British representative finally moved adjournment of the session.

In Article Three Russia declared itself "disposed" to restore to foreigners enjoyment of their former properties in Russia, "in cases where this is possible in view of the social and economic system and fundamental law of Russia."

The restoration was to be by according foreigners "primary right of concession" or preference participation in societies or trusts in cases where their former properties are part of such trusts.

Allied delegates charged this did not amount to restoration of seized property at all, but left adjustment of claims wholly in Russia's hands.

Norwalk, Conn., April 27.—Mrs. William Meredith, of Westport, golf enthusiast, was today sued for $4,000 by Mike Gilbert, of Westport, a caddy at the West Golf Club. Gilbert claims that he was permanently injured last summer when Mrs. Meredith's club struck him on the head as she swung for the ball. He was caddy for her at the time.

BERRY CONCERT LAST EVENING.

For the third time within the past few years music lovers of the North End had the pleasure of listening to a recital by Benjamin Berry, a New York tenor, last evening. The recital was held in the auditorium of the North Congregational church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and drew a fair sized audience.

Mr. Berry was assisted by Mrs. Virginia Vredenburg, soprano, and Mrs. Dorothy McCormick, reader. Mrs. Charles J. Strickland of this place officiated as accompanist.

On former occasions when Mr. Berry has sung here, he has been assisted by his wife, a pleasing mezzo-soprano. Mrs. Vredenburg is lyric soprano with a somewhat lighter voice, but her solos were artistically sung, and in the duets her voice blended pleasantly with Mr. Berry's. Miss McCormick who was here for the first time gave entertaining selections but in a voice that hardly filled the auditorium. She had an attractive stage personality. Mr. Berry, as usual, was thoroughly pleasing and all his selections were heartily enjoyed. The platform was decorated with flowers from the Manchester Floral store.

GOSPEL MEETINGS. Special Gospel meetings are being held in the Swedish Congregational church on Spruce street every night this week at 7:30 p. m. Next Sunday services will be held at 10:30 a. m., 3:30 p. m., and at 7:00 p. m. These meetings are conducted by the Rev. G. A. Lund of Auburn, R. I., and A. E. Englebrook of Providence, R. I.

All who understand the Swedish language are invited to attend these meetings.

GIRL SCOUTS' BENEFIT. "Oh Mr. Sullivan Come out and play with me Bring your dollies three And climb my apple tree."

That is what the happy girls of Troop 3, Girl Scouts sang last evening at their benefit performance given at the Circle Theater. Over fifty girls sang scout songs and impersonated the different nationalities in a vaudeville entertainment. The entire troupe gathered on the stage and serenaded Manager Jim Sullivan with songs.

A picture which showed the work of the Girl Scouts was shown followed with interest by the members and their friends. It carried the work from the forming of a troupe to the successful close of a campaign trip. The many varied uses to which the girls can adapt themselves is remarkable. The entire personnel of the Circle had a night off for the girls acted as ushers. Miss Ruth Norton presided at the piano. The only Circle attaché working was the machine operator. The girls contributed the troupe a tidy sum of money.

GIRLS' CONFERENCE. Friday and Saturday are the days when the County Girls' Conference will convene at Cheney Hall. It is hoped many town girls will be helped by these sessions. Ladies who have agreed to entertain visiting girls will please be ready to receive their girls at 9 o'clock Friday evening and make it possible for the girls to be at Cheney hall at 9:30 Saturday morning. The chairman of food committee is Mrs. W. E. Hibbard, and Friday sent to Hale's or A. L. Brown's stores before 4 p. m.

Saturday morning food is to be left at Hale's store and the home of Mrs. W. E. Hibbard, not later than 10 o'clock.

BOBBED HAIR EFFECTED. Maudie Muddink burred her mother's hair earlier today and at recess her and Lila Grimes tried it in the girls' room, heating it in the gas. They got one side of Lila all curled and then the curler got too hot, and when they hitched it on the other side it burned all the hair off, so's Lila now has a kinder lob-side effect, which ain't half as much as the fear that Willie Payne'll stop being her boy, now she's lost her krownin' glory, she calls it.

FATTY'S FEAR. Fatty Bellows stepped on a rusty nail & thinks he is going to have lock-jaw. Gen Hicks telling him it ain't happenin'. Ex Brigham said if he did then he would probly starve to death because that curler got food threw his mouth, & Fatty began to cry. Miss Palmer consoled him by telling him mabe if he got it he would get it with his jaws locked open instead of shut. Fatty is quite anxious to have it that way, as he thinks they mite kepe on feeding him & even if he couldnt get his teeth together to chaw his food it wouldnt be so bad.

ANDY'S PRACTICING. Several times lately, our friend

Andy Anderson has been seen up in a tree standing on a limb bearfooted. Andy says he is practicing to hold on like the birds do, so the next time he goes to live in a tree he can spend the nite there. He says the only trouble is his toes seem to be a littel short to close around the big limbs & the littel limbs hert the soul of his feet. Ex Brigham says next thing you know Andy'll be trying to lay an egg. He admires birds so much.

A PLEASANT TIME. This afternoon Lila Grimes mother had the sowing circle to her house. Lila & Gen Hicks set up a lummunda stand down by the gait & sold lummunda to all the ladies which came till Lila's mother found out about it. Lila says no, she didnt get a liking, that being undignified, but those which was in the neighborhood set it sounded like it.

A MIX-UP. Torp Stebbins' folks are moving today down to Lanco Bogerts & Lanco's are moving up to Torp's. Torp says that makes his name Torp Bogert & Lanco's Lance Stebbins. Torp says he has got the best of Lanco, anyhow, there old house being rite next the school, which dont give a person any excuse for being lat.

GOSSUP. Hen Van Ness says who took his willer whissel out of the water bucket today whare he put it to kepe it moist? It whas his favorite whissel & he wants it.

Park Theater

Thomas Melghan, athletic Paramount star, is a brawny sailor's mate in his latest starring vehicle, "Cappy Ricks," which will be the feature at the Park Theater for Thursday and Friday. As Matt Peasley in this refreshing picture of the sea, Mr. Melghan is said to have one of the best roles of his stellar career.

Mr. Melghan loves the sea and boats, and "Cappy Ricks" gives the star rare opportunities in sea scenes. The sea scenes were made in and near Boston and off the rocky Maine coast, where three sailing vessels and a tug, chartered by Paramount, were employed.

One scene of "Cappy Ricks" reveals a boat propelled toward the treacherous rocks by heavy seas and a high wind. A great risk was taken by the actors of this scene, as it was necessary to brave rough water and the possible danger of being stranded on the rocks.

Mr. Melghan and his crew learned something of navigation in "Cappy Ricks," for in the storm scenes the star was obliged to pilot the tug which went to the rescue of the distressed vessel. Agnes Ayres is leading woman and heads a strong supporting cast.

Mutual Friend" is the most perfectly acted picture of the current season. To transplant the quaint and quizzical atmosphere and the environment of Dickens' time into the realities of today requires fine capacities and understanding. The millions of persons who have revelled in the Dickensian wit and fun will now be tremendously enlarged and many persons who merely tolerate screen drama will feel that their attitude has been a mistaken one.

"Our Mutual Friend," as is doubtless recalled, is a story of mysteries and misers, of intrigue, plotting, of greed and goodness. It is, at times, frankly melodrama and at all times is a deeply sentimental love story for lovers of all ages. The chief female personality in an irrefragable cast is a little blonde beauty, Rosemary Marlin, with a personality all her own, yet reminiscent of Blanche Sweet a few years back in the unforgettable "Judith." Silas Wegg, the "literary man with a wooden leg"; Mr. Venus, the frowsy maker of skeletons; Mr. and Mrs. Roffin, the miserly couple; and the most villainous of villains, are characters that always keep their places in one's memory. In "Our Mutual Friend" they step into actual existence. You'll never forget them.

INSTRUCTING THE POLICE

Two officials from the State Motor Vehicle Department came to Manchester yesterday to give members of the local police force instructions along the "No Accident" campaign which has just been begun by the state. Among the things taught the policemen were the demonstration and explanation of all forms of traffic violations of motor vehicle registration. The officer to familiarize the officer with the law and its interpretation and also to explain the facilities of the motor vehicle department which are at his command and the assistance the motor vehicle department can give him in the enforcement of the motor vehicle law.

Assistant Deputy McDonald, and Major McMurtry were the men who came to Manchester. Officers from the Motor Vehicle Department will go all over the state and by doing so will look for the enforcement of the law in regard to motor vehicles.

NUXATED IRON

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two or three tablets of NUXATED IRON three times a day for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Many people have made this test and have been astonished at their increased strength, endurance and energy. Nuxated Iron is guaranteed to give satisfaction. Money refunded. All good druggists.

MAINE COUPLE MARRIED

DURING APRIL SHOWER: Lee, Maine.—Maine's first outdoor bride of the season was Miss Susie D. Tucker, of this town.

Standing in a pine grove beside George W. Seams, she was married to the young man, and although a brief April shower attended the affair the young woman was as radiant and happy as if the ceremony had been performed inside a church.

Eight Months of Nervous Misery

Mrs. Adams Tells how Less than One Bottle of Sanatol Ended the Nervousness by Removing the Cause.

"I had been suffering terribly from nervousness for more than eight months. It was caused by bad condition of my stomach, which came so gradually that almost before I realized it I was suffering from intense headaches and spells of dizziness that were simply terrible. My kidneys and liver were both badly affected and I suffered intensely from backache." Thus says Mrs. Carl Adams, whose home is at 455 Main St., Gardiner, Mass. She adds:

"I have not yet finished my first bottle of Sanatol, but it has wonderfully improved my condition. The nervousness has almost gone, my stomach has been greatly helped, kidneys and liver are working better, and already I am convinced that Sanatol is true to name as 'Sanatol the Sensitive Tonic.'"

"I purchased Sanatol through the recommendation of Dr. J. C. Smith, of Gardiner, and would not have been able to get it had it not been used by the people of New England for many years. Most reconstructive medicines containing iron and arsenic, which I had tried, failed to give me any relief. Sanatol is the only medicine that has done this for me."

"LET US HAVE PEACE"—PRESIDENT GRANT

With a sorely stricken world trembling on the verge of more wars in Europe it is timely to recall to memory for a moment the great soldier and intense lover of peace who was born on this day one hundred years ago.

The greatest war in history has made the ordinary people of the world sick of war as was expected but the same effect is not particularly noticeable among the rulers and leaders of Europe.

America's greatest war produced an outstanding military leader whose after life was largely devoted to the preservation of peace. There were times in his presidency when war was averted only by his uncompromising stand for peace so far as it was consistent with national honor.

Grant resigned from the army in 1854 after seeing service in California and Oregon. For the next five or six years he was engaged in making more or less of a failure of farming and real estate.

Grant returned from the army in 1854 after seeing service in California and Oregon. For the next five or six years he was engaged in making more or less of a failure of farming and real estate.

He was then 39. Two years later, victor in the remarkable battle of Vicksburg, he was the most discussed man in the world.

Grant did not succeed by accident. He was a man of extraordinary self-reliance in war and unusual fertility of resource. He developed to a remarkable degree a skill and boldness in moving large armies that is the characteristic of only the greatest military leaders and his moral and physical courage was unassailable.

As a West Pointer with a distinguished war record his rise was rapid in the first few months of the war. Starting as a recruiting clerk he was soon colonel of volunteers and brigadier-general commanding the southern district of Missouri where he found his war footing and rendered valuable service during the latter half of 1861.

In the winter of 1862 he was assigned to the command of the Department of the Tennessee and immediately began to plan the reduction of the great Confederate stronghold of Vicksburg. His fame was assured by the success of the movements that ended in that great victory and was confirmed by the order he issued after the capitulation of 31,600 men under Pemberton.

"Unconditional surrender" were the terms offered to the enemy at Donelson and Vicksburg. The coincidence of his initials led to his popular title of Unconditional Surrender Grant and added considerably to his increasing prestige.

In March, 1864, he was appointed commander-in-chief of the armies of the Union and soon announced that his only objective would be the Confederate armies in the field. He would waste no time in futile marches and barren captures. The brilliance of the campaigns which opened at the Wilderness, when he proposed "to fight it out on this line, if it takes all summer", and ended at Appomattox Courthouse astonished the world.

Grant's two presidential terms have been somewhat obscured in American history, mainly by reason of his towering military fame. Yet the work he initiated and developed during those eight years was of the utmost benefit to the country.

Following his vacation of the presidential chair, Grant toured the world in 1877, 1878, 1879, meeting with receptions everywhere of a magnitude that has seldom or never been surpassed in world honors paid to an individual.

A few short years and these triumphs availed not to preserve him from bankruptcy, agony and death. One who knew him well said that where Grant placed his trust he reposed rare confidence. The bludgeonings of fate followed quickly on each other.

Ill and hopelessly bankrupt he was still the great captain. He accepted a contract to write the story of his life and never relinquished his pen until four days before his death on July 23, 1885. Often, in fact almost all the time, he worked in intense suffering for cancer had seized upon the root of his tongue. But he was unconquerable in the great struggle to die clear with the world.

Grant, the man, has been obscured by Grant, the soldier. But he was an all-around American, thoroughly racy of the soil, and one of the very greatest. A kindly, unassuming, frank and cordial gentleman he left an example of splendid courage, both moral and physical, and of patriotic devotion to the true interests of the country that will not be readily forgotten.

"Let us have peace". How different from the clamorous, militant warriors of present day Europe who would prefer to lead the world back into chaos rather than abate one jot or tittle of impossible demands. Is there anything to-day in the world to match the instructions of President Grant to the American ministers to China and Japan, when both those countries possessed little strength? Deal with them, he ordered, as "we would wish a strong nation to deal with us if we were weak." How little of that noble, generous spirit is to be found among the quarrelling nations to-day.

THE PASSING OF THE PEN

Penmanship is rapidly becoming a lost art, with the multiplication of mechanical means for recording and transcribing thought. Typewriters are almost universally used in correspondence and are rapidly coming into vogue for bookkeeping in connection with modern card indexes and loose leaf systems.

The vast volume of matter prepared daily for newspapers is almost exclusively written on the typewriter. By the recently effective telegraph such as used in the Herald office, messages written on the typewriter in a distant city are at the same instant reproduced on the typewriter at the receiving office and then they are handed along to the compositors, who instead of setting them up letter by letter play a key board like that of a typewriter and the lines come from the machine cast in one solid piece.

All large business houses and many small ones now write checks and notes on the typewriter. About all a business man has to do with a pen these days is to sign his name, and whatever dexterity he may have had as a penman when a boy is almost forgotten.

The typewriter has not yet been adopted for love letters or other forms of intimate personal correspondence. But for all other letters, aside from those requiring the intimate personal touch, the mechanical machine is in general use.

Among other winged things which Spring has brought and which are preparing to lay their eggs are mosquitoes. Nobody is especially interested in preserving these eggs. In fact if we wish to decrease the number of pests this summer, it is well to begin now by destroying their eggs.

SOLDIER BLUEBEARD HAD ROUGH TIME

Le Claire, Young French Indian in Jail at Poughkeepsie Says Women Flocked Around Him.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 27.—The trial of love making of John Lawrence Le Claire, 25-year-old French-Indian, in jail here, today led to other states and other cities than the eight eastern cities where "wives" have already appeared to claim the young man's affections.

Did Le Claire, in his extensive traveling, as shown by a pocket diary found by the police today meet and marry women in more of the eighty cities in twelve states he has visited? For all Le Claire knows and cares he may have a wife in every city.

He admitted that every place he went the women just naturally seemed to flock around him. He did not remember even his proposals of marriage to them, but the celebrity with which alleged "wives" have come forward in the East leads police to believe many more may yet appear on the scene.

Through all of his difficulties, which he said are the results of "just a few worthless checks" Le Claire has maintained that Bertha Maud Hayes, a widow whom he married here a few days before his arrest, "is my woman."

He failed to recall how long he knew Bertha before he married her but thought it might have been two or three weeks. Bertha is now in Albany, he said, waiting for him and trying to get a trunk which belongs to her from a local hotel where it is being held because Le Claire owes the hotel a large bill.

"Who was the girl you went with in Watertown, N. Y.?" Le Claire was asked.

"Which one?" was his rejoinder. "If it had not been for this I would be back in the army now," Le Claire said. "I was going to re-enlist. I was in the army from the time I was 14 until three months ago."

Le Claire charged all his troubles to the "dope" habit, which he fell into while with the army on the Mexico border in 1913.

Le Claire claims Fort Worth Texas, as his home although he said he lived in Hartford, Conn., and his mother in New York.

WORRY THE ENGLISHMEN

Various Schemes Put Forward on Way to Shift Burden of War Obligations.

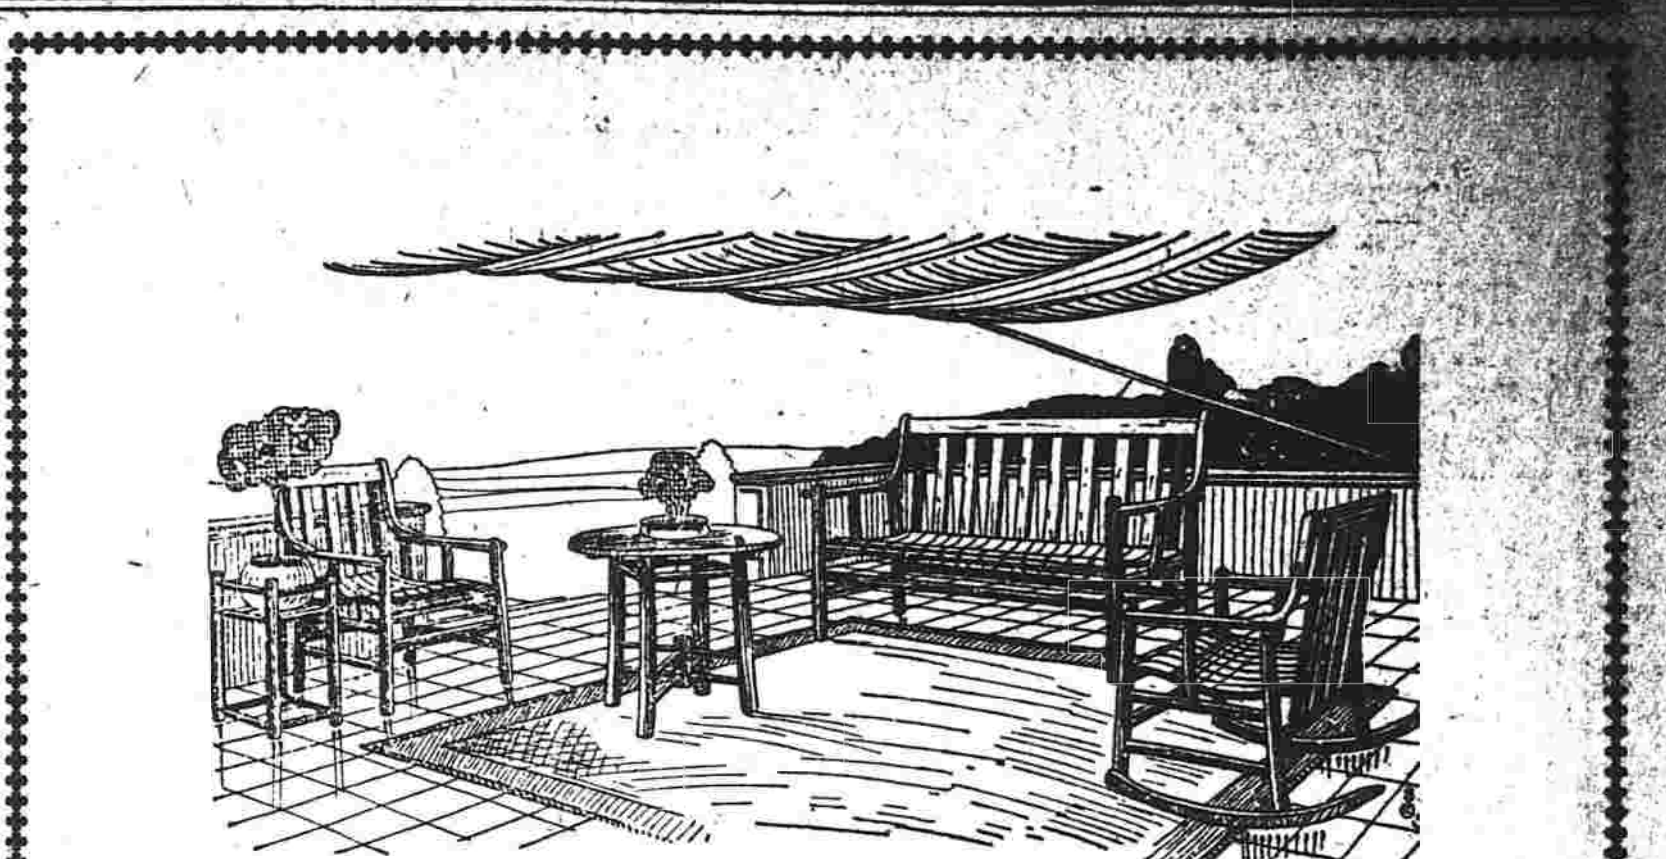

London.—Although British officialdom is apparently reconciled to the fact that the war debt to America must be paid there continues to be a considerable agitation about this matter from the public.

The latest scheme to be put forth by which the British debt to America would be scaled down is that the United States should accept liability for all bonds issued by the various states of the Union which are now held by British owners.

"Should Be Acknowledged." "Surely the time has arrived when the debt of the United States (through its subsidiary states), amounting to 200,000,000 pounds sterling, should be acknowledged by that great republic and set off against the 900,000,000 pounds sterling due to them from the people of Great Britain.

Hartley Withers, a financial writer, puts forth still another debt scheme. "If America were gifted with farseeing financial statesmanship, which is hardly to be expected owing to her hitherto isolated position, it would be an obvious and simple matter for her to express to her European debtors willingness to take payment for them in German indemnity bonds, with the stipulation that they should in return for the indemnity consent to a modification of the indemnity terms," Withers declared.

"If we wrote off the whole of our Allied debt and any further claim upon Germany beyond the handing over to America of bonds sufficient to repay our debt to the United States a very long step would have been taken toward the reduction of the fantastical structure of international indebtedness which would threaten Europe with bankruptcy if anybody believed that it had much real meaning. But since, as has been shown, there seems to be little or no possibility that America will take the opportunity that fate has put in her hands of acting as a savior of the international financial position it remains for this country to do what it can, though the scope of its action is naturally much more limited."

These are but a few of the suggestions which are being set forth daily, but all hope has gone in official quarters that the debts to America can ever be cancelled. And this last hope is a sore point, as was recently evidenced when Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced rather defiantly in the House of Commons that he would be the last to ask the United States for a further extension on the debts.

dropped the spoon into a tray strong. At the time it was said the pig weighed 325 pounds and was the father of thirty pigs.

In spite of his seven-fold engineering qualifications the applicant did not get the job. Every business man conversant with the mania of the moment will realize where the poor fellow made his mistake.

Instead of applying for the job and calling himself seven different kinds of old-fashioned engineers he should have rubbed himself an efficiency engineer and then walked in to take possession of the advertiser's entire business.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

During the last few days Mr. Walton has been taking his classes out on field trips through the fields in the rear of Charter Oak street. The weather has been excellent for these trips, and Mr. Walton is taking advantage.

Manager Saunders has arranged three more games for the second team. The first will be played on Friday night after school at the West Side playgrounds and the Hartford high school team will be the opponent. The local team has held some stiff practices this week and will strive hard to defeat the main rival of the school. The second game will be played on Monday afternoon with the Cloverleaves of the north end and on Wednesday the second team will play the Trade school team from this place. No admission fee is charged for these games. It is expected that Manager Saunders will make out a schedule of games as he is expecting a number of returns from out of town teams.

Stanley McCormick a freshman, has been confined to his home the past week with the scarlet fever. Saturday will bring about the first real opening of the track team's season. There will be a meet at which all those who have been qualified for the team will be entitled to enter, and those who win a position in one or more of the events will probably be on the team to represent the school at the annual triangular meet and also at the meet with the high schools that have games scheduled with the locals.

The varsity baseball team goes to Willimantic on Saturday afternoon to play a scheduled game with the high school team from that place. The men who will make the trip will travel by auto and there will be no room for the students who want to see the game. Practically the same lineup will be put on the field as that of last week's game with New Britain, but the pitcher who has not been announced yet by Coach Clarke. It is expected that Sammie Thornton will do the twirling and Carlson will do the catching.

The tennis courts will be fixed up next week for the students who are anxious to start the popular summer sport and the nets will be put up at the same time. Many of the pupils took advantage of the courts at the rear of the school and they were filled at all times during last season.

FRANCE IS STIRRED BY LOW BIRTH RATE

Government Report Expresses Fear Country May Become Forgotten Nation.

Paris.—Figures published recently showed that the population of France is yearly diminishing in alarming proportions. An accompanying report suggested that the government take all measures necessary to put a stop to such a state of affairs lest the nations which at one time were great, but which today only exist in memories.

Before any measures could even be considered French mothers and fathers came forward to prove how hard it is to have children when the high cost of living high taxation and ridiculous regulations made by landlords refusing to allow children in flats they own still exist. Others point out that the government promises aid after the birth of the fifth child, but that when such help is due grouchily bureaucrats reveal in "considering the case" for several months. Even then the aid given would not keep a youngster going three months. The following are typical examples of letters received by the authorities from mothers and fathers and express their views on repopulation and depopulation.

"You Want More Children." "You want French women to have more children," writes a mother, "but you laugh at those with large families. You want children, but what do you do to protect, save and safeguard them? Of what use are speeches, laws and medals? You cannot create life with them. It is with air, bread and security that you can create pure and healthy children."

A young married couple write: "We have no home. We cannot find a flat. Do away with the house shortage. We live in one room, which does not belong to us. How can we have children?"

A father wants to know "why the presence of two or three children is an excuse for a landlord to refuse to rent his flat."

"Should Have Preference." "Why shouldn't a good citizen who creates soldiers for his country's army and daughters to perpetuate the race have preference over a single person? I have five sons, and I have to live in a four-roomed flat. My neighbor, a bachelor, has one of six rooms. I fought in the war; he didn't. If a war breaks out in the next few years my sons will have to fight, and my bachelor neighbor will remain at home."

"I have ten children," writes a working man. "My wife was given a medal (thirteen babies in fifteen years of married life), but I wonder what would happen to us if we hadn't relatives to care for us. My wife earns thirty francs a day housecleaning. I earn thirty francs a day. The present cost of living is such that we are up and have to go to bed at 10 o'clock. Nevertheless, same taxes as a friend, with no children."

SNOW PLOWS PURCHASED FOR CAPITAL PATHWAYS

Washington.—Congress will not be caught napping again when the next blizzard hits Washington. During the past winter's terrific storms Senators had to dig their way to the Capitol and on one occasion several Senators missed roll calls by being unable to climb through the drifts on the Capitol grounds. It will all be different next winter.

SMELL OF BLOOD SETS BULL ON WILD RAMPAGE

Medina, Ohio.—A bull, which escaped from the L. May slaughter house, near Akron, went on a rampage after smelling the blood of a butchered companion. It gored three dogs, snapped off a hundred, or more, saplings and broke down three barbed-wire and two rail fences. Deputy Sheriff Scotty Ingerton and Edward Hutchinson worked over two hours before they subdued and then killed the bull. The animal didn't die until after three shots had been fired into it.

RISE OF FRANC CUTS FRENCH BUSINESS

Reparations Loss and Trade Decline May Come from Buoyant Money.

Paris.—"Beware of Economists" warns Le Matin. The rising franc doesn't necessarily mean that with it will come a return to the good old days of normal business and cheaper prices. On the contrary, the question is raised whether the improvement in the international value of French currency isn't as much of a curse as a blessing.

The franc has improved one-third in one year. But prices in France have not only not followed the rate of exchange, as according to all good economists they should, but, on the contrary, the cost of living has gone up. "But what is more serious," warns Stephane Lauzanne in Le Matin, "is that as the franc improves the number of francs we get for reparations diminishes."

Decline in Reparations. "When the reparation total was fixed France's share represented 218,000,000,000 francs. Today, because of the improvement of the franc, it amounts to only 180,000,000,000. But if the franc continues to improve and returns to normal, France will have due her from Germany only 86,000,000,000 francs instead of 218,000,000,000."

"Recently a distinguished French statesman, who has since become Treasurer of France, de Lesteyrie wrote, 'The improvement of the franc's exchange will mean only a feeble reduction of our costs, but will mean, on the contrary, a considerable reduction in the values to be received from Germany.'"

Lauzanne goes on to point out that France by the return of Alsace-Lorraine has become the second iron and steel country in the world, instead of fourth, as before the war. France must export huge quantities of these products or face tremendous unemployment and economic disaster in these industries, he says.

"If France rests at the present level," asserts Lauzanne, "exportation is possible because the foreign buyer is attracted by the advantageous price—in francs—of the metal. But if the franc continues to climb, do you think that foreign purchasers will present themselves in crowds?"

"All this must be considered. If we were only a country of debtors and importers our joy would be to see the franc improve rapidly. But we are a country of creditors—the greatest creditors in the world—and of exporters. It is not good to have a money too high, surrounded by countries with cheap money—ask England."

"We are also a tourist country. Our money is as high as its mountain peaks. The truth is that the more slowly and consistently our franc rises the better it will be for us. The franc is like virtue, it should be kept within reason."

SOUTH AMERICA RICH IN UNDEVELOPED OIL

Virgin Fields Hold Thirteen Billion Barrels, Geologist Asserts.

Washington, D. C.—Oil resources to the extent of more than 13,000,000,000 barrels, or about one-fifth of the world's total supply, await development in the practically virgin fields of South America, according to Dr. David White, of the United States Geological Survey.

With the possible exception of North America, Dr. White declares, the South American continent is richer in petroleum resources in proportion to its area than any other section of the world.

"Geologic explorations have as yet advanced only a little way in South America," said Dr. White. "Thus far only a few regions have been tapped. Geologists have secured evidence, however, of the existence of high-grade petroleum deposits in the continent, and these deposits apparently are very widely disseminated."

American Statistics. The American oil experts place the figures for the South American oil deposits at 13,000,000,000 barrels though he admits that this is a very conservative estimate. Provided the same methods of drilling were employed as those used in the United States, Dr. White believes the southern fields would produce 15,000,000,000 barrels.

The world's petroleum resources are estimated by Dr. White at about 60,000,000,000 barrels, and with these figures most of the other eminent geologists agree. It therefore appears that approximately one-fifth of the world's estimated supply of petroleum awaits the exploitation of the South American fields.

Not Aware Of Deposits. In many South American countries the inhabitants are not generally aware of the existence of the oil deposits, according to Dr. White. This is due to the fact that the work of exploration has been done for the most part by geologists retained by the great oil companies and that they have reported only to their employers.

Some indications of the presence of oil in paying quantities have been found in practically every country of South America, the doctor says, and he predicts that the whole continent is on the verge of an unexplored era of development.

PRESIDENT'S TRIP TO HIS NATIVE OHIO

Enjoyed Himself Mightily After Long Night Ride Through the Cumberlands.

Aboard President Harding's special train enroute to Point Pleasant, Ohio, April 27.—President Harding is in high spirits this morning after a long night ride through the Cumberlands to find himself back in his native Ohio. The President's first glimpse of the state since he left Marion more than a year ago was secured shortly after daylight a few miles east of Chillicothe.

President Harding is to deliver a memorial address this afternoon at Point Pleasant at centennial ceremonies in honor of General U. S. Grant.

At two points on the trip from Washington the President greeted towns people from the observation car. At Martinsburg, W. Va., he took advantage of a brief delay while en route being switched to tell the welcoming crowd of 200 or so that at one time during his early career he had contemplated the purchase and operation of a newspaper at Martinsburg.

At Cumberland, Md., the President accompanied by Mrs. Harding and Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McClean, of Washington, went to the observation platform and in answer to the shouted salutation of several hundred who had gathered at the depot, asked the crowd if the employment situation was satisfactory at Cumberland. There was a momentary silence until a more assertive man in the throng replied: "Mr. President, the employment situation is not very good." The President lifted a baby from a platform from the arms of its mother, fondled it a moment and handed it to Mrs. Harding.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

There will be a hike for all Scouts who wish to go Saturday, if the weather permits. The start will be made from the Center Congregational church at eight o'clock in the morning and the return will be made early in the afternoon.

Scouts wishing to take the second class cooking test should bring two frankfurts to roast. It is suggested that every Scout bring something that he can cook for lunch, but that can be cooked without cooking utensils, also rolls.

There will be a Scoutmasters meeting this evening at seven o'clock at the School street Rec. room No. 3.

LESSONS IN BASEBALL

by J. B. SHERIDAN
AUTHOR OF "BASEBALL FOR BEGINNERS"

Copyright, 1922, by the International Syndicate
LESSON NO. 23.

PITCHING POINTS TO REMEMBER.

Young pitchers should remember first of all that they should acquire a good pitching motion. We recommend the over-hand but do not disapprove of the side-arm or under-hand for those to whom these styles come naturally.

WALTER JOHNSON REMEM.

A good motion saves labor, arm, makes pitching easy, assists control, is pleasing to watch and gives a pitcher confidence in himself.

A bad motion weakens the pitcher, detracts from his control, makes his team in hot water and spoils the game. Bad motions have ruined thousands of pitchers who have had fine natural abilities.

Having got a good motion the pitcher should be careful to secure a LEGAL POSITION ON THE RUBBER. Many star pitchers do not take a legal position on the rubber. The legal position on the rubber is the best work when he has a legal position on the rubber. If his position, or step, is not legal and he is compelled to change them after he becomes accustomed to them, he will find his effectiveness largely destroyed. Many pitchers have been driven out of the profession through having acquired an illegal position on the rubber or an illegal delivery.

Remember that rules permit but one step to be taken in the act of delivering the ball to the batter. Any extra skip, hitch, hop, shift, etc., makes the delivery illegal.

Let the pitching step be straight towards the batter, directly in front of the heel of the pivoting foot, neither to the right nor to the left. Remember that "cross-stepping" greatly interferes with control and ease of motion.

Take your time while pitching to the batter. Be deliberate but not so slow as to displease spectators. Try to acquire a regular schedule of breathing, wind up and delivery when the bases are unoccupied.

It is important that a pitcher shall hold runners as close to bases as possible, so that his catcher may throw them out on attempts to steal and infielders have time to make. Field runners close to bases are more likely to be caught than those who are far from the bases.

NEXT LESSON—Batter's Position and Covering Bases.

ATLAS TO PLAY WAPPING.

Basketball Teams to Meet in Post Season Game Tomorrow.

Tomorrow evening the Atlas A. C. basketball team will meet the fast Wapping quintet, winners of fourteen out of fifteen games played this season in a post season game at Wapping. The game will be played in the Center school hall and will be followed by dancing.

This game will not count as a victory or defeat on the schedule of either team as both teams have already closed their season. It will, however, of considerable importance to each club. Owing to a crowded schedule the teams were unable to hook up during the season and after some difficulty the game was finally arranged.

Boasting of a record of fourteen victories out of fifteen games played, and not a single defeat on her own floor, the Wapping five should prove a hard nut for the Atlas team to crack. The team will throw out its best array of talent against the locals, all of the first string players being on hand for the battle. Wapping bases its hopes of victory mainly on the fine work of Captain Hills at forward. Hills has been the star of every game this season for the Wapping team and his work tomorrow evening will be watched with much interest. The Atlas will have to keep Hills under cover if they expect to come home with the bacon.

The Wapping quintet will meet a most worthy opponent in the Atlas, who also have a good record on the chalked court. The impressive victory of the locals over Baltic a few weeks ago has not been forgotten by the Atlas. In this game the Atlas gave the Baltic team its worst drubbing of the season and this on the Baltic floor.

With the exception of Wright, the Atlas will toss out the same lineup that beat Baltic. Couch, star of last year's team will fill out the gap in the locals' lineup. "Rabbit" Hunt and Stovewill, the diminutive forwards, are expected to cause the Wapping guards no little worry. Couch, who was the main factor in the Atlas victory over Wapping last year, will jump at center. Thornton and Captain Stowe, husky guards, will round out the Atlas lineup.

A neutral referee has been engaged to handle the game and the players and fans are all primed for the contest.

The game will be called at 8:30 o'clock sharp and dancing will follow in the auditorium until midnight. How the teams will take the floor: Wapping Y. M. C. A. Atlas A. C. Hills (c) Stevenson

KIDDIES FORM LEAGUE.

As expected, nearly all the kiddies in town were at the South End Herald office last evening to form a juvenile league. The office was jammed and the noise the boys made could be heard a block away. There was much discussion over electing officers, averages and everything else that could be thought of. After much confusion among the managers and captains all arrangements were completed and the officers were elected as follows:

President—Edward Post. Vice President—Salvatore Vendrilla. Secretary—Mike Goldsander. Secretary of the Board of Directors—John Burke.

The captains of each team will act on the board of directors with the president of the league as chairman.

The kiddies are enthusiastic over the idea of having a league of their own. They have entered the league for the purpose of winning the handsome cup offered by The Evening Herald for the lucky nine. All the by-laws and rules which will govern the league will be drafted and acted upon by the officials.

It was astonishing the way the youngsters handled the meeting. After the officers were elected the president, Edward Post, called the meeting to order and it was carried on smoothly until adjournment was taken until Friday night. Eleven teams will be in the league and it is regretted that the kiddies from the North end have not entered.

The league will be officially known as the Cosmopolitan League of Manchester. A schedule committee is working hard to get the dates arranged so that opening of the league will take place as soon as possible.

HOW LONG WILL CAKE OF ICE LAST IN SUN?

Wooner, Ohio.—How long will a 300-pound cake of ice last when fully exposed in a comfortably heated room?

The Minglewood Coal & Ice Company, which just opened a new ice manufacturing plant here, placed a 300-pound cake of frozen water in the front window of a downtown business place where the sun beat in upon it.

The cake of ice disappeared in 56 hours and 50 minutes. Guesses made by passersby ranged from 24 hours to 500 hours.

SPORT BRIEFS

MORVICH TRIALS.

New York, April 27.—In an effort to establish definitely whether Morvich can go beyond a mile at top speed, the Kentucky Derby favorite is to be given a time trial at a mile and a furlong on the Jamaica track today. It has been decided also to ship Morvich to Churchill Downs on May seventh, instead of May ninth, so that the colt can be given a trial over the full Derby distance of a mile and a quarter on the track where the Derby will be raced, May 31.

BASEBALL SUIT.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 27.—Oscar "Happy" Felsch, former star outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, who was dropped from organized baseball after the 1919 world series scandal, has brought suit here for back salary and bonus money alleged to be due him from the Sox. The amount involved was not specified in the suit.

GIBBONS AND FOLEY.

Chicago, April 27.—Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight boxer, passed through Chicago today on his way to New Orleans where he will meet Harry Foley Monday night. It will be Gibbons' first bout since he lost a 16-round decision to Harry Greb in New York and his first battle in his campaign to regain the prestige he lost in the Greb encounter.

$150,000 FOR RACER.

New York, April 27.—It is reported about the Jockey Club headquarters here that an offer of $150,000 for a Kentucky Derby entry, has been declined by Jim McClelland, the horse's owner.

TAGGING THE BASES

Just by way of making things interesting, the Athletics waited until the ninth inning to spring a three-run rally on Sam Jones and the Yankees' winning streak of eight games came to halt without further notice. Ed. Rommel, one of the many so-called Yankee jinxes, was the frock-coated villain of the piece.

The Pirates in ten innings. "Lookout for us now," says Pat Moran. The Reds finally won a ball game after dropping eight in succession, the St. Louis Cardinals being the victims. Rixey, brutally manhandled in other starts this season, held the Cards to three hits and shut them right out.

Another scandal! Cobb gets a well pitched game from a member of his careworn staff and a left hander at that. Bert Cole confined the free swinging Browns to six hits and scored a shut out while the fans blinked in amazement.

The Giants winning streak also came to parade rest when the Phils pounded out a victory over Jess Barnes and Causey. Art Fletcher was a big factor in the defeat of his former mates, driving in four runs with a single in the second and a homer in the sixth. George Kelly, Ross Young and Cy Williams also blinged with home runs. It was Jimmy Ring's third straight victory.

The Indians and "Sliding Billy" Watson are doing very well these days. Cleveland's slide toward the 400 mark was continued yesterday when the White Sox won easily behind the pitching of young Robertson, who was as strong as venerable cheese in the pinches.

Messrs. Pennock, Karr, Dodge, and Fullerton spent a merry afternoon but Dodge was the only one who had the right idea. The Senators assaulted the Braves. Both hit the ball and made a clean sweep of the series with the Red Sox.

A pair of Southern Association graduates, Dazzy Vance and Barney Hungling collaborated in winning the second straight victory for the Dodgers over the Braves. Both hit the ball vehemently and Dazzy pitched winning ball all the way.

CRACK ARMY AND NAVY SHOTS TO TRY SKILL.

Washington.—The crack shots of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and National Guard will begin shortly to select from their ranks the picked rifle and pistol shots who will compete in the National Matches to be held at Camp Perry, O., in September.

The early start is necessary, as rivalry for places on the competing teams of the services is most intense, and elimination will be a hard-fought and long-drawn-out affair. The Marine Corps begins its elimination trials at Guantanamo, Cuba, May 1, the test matches to be held throughout other West Indian stations of the Marines and at all their other posts in the country.

Rivalry in this branch of the service is especially keen this Spring, because fully 50 per cent of the representatives of the corps will be chosen from new material.

Yale's Only World's Championship Won With H. O. Bowers as Captain

Noted Sport Writer Renews Famous Team of 1893—Every Player on It Was Good Enough to Play With Major Leagues—Interesting Story Clipped from New York Sun.

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

On some particularly cheerful and bright afternoon when the sun shines blue out of a blue sky through the blue shades of the Yale Club casually mention the Yale Law School nine of 1893 and mark the satisfied smiles and the knowing grins that stretch in a complacent manner along a blue background, particularly if any one from the Law School happens to be at home.

While Yale athletes and Yale athletics were being discussed the other day some one happened to mention that the Yale Law School nine of '92 was the best nine, take it collectively, conjointly and purely as a humanitarian study, that Yale ever had. "Not a player on it," spoke up the "Old Grad, who is ever the arbiter of "what's what," "but was good enough to make the major leagues, and some of them did."

That wasn't a boast about ability to absorb professionalism but ability to play baseball. The team had its origin because a mass meeting of the academic and "Sheff" undergraduates voted that all members of the university in graduate departments were ineligible for Yale University teams.

When this decision became public the varsity color of Yale, so far as the graduate departments were concerned, became red. Sister's fire alarm skating toque had nothing on the Yale grads, and one of them, young and a spellbinder, a member of the Yale Law School, called a meeting of the school and Marc Antonelli the populace so successfully that he raised $5,000 within an hour to back a team from the budding lawyers. That orator was Harry Durant, who is now a resident of this city. In view of present athletic history in college circles it is interesting to note that a lot of money that was subscribed for that team came from professors in the Law School.

Durant was elected manager and H. O. Bowers captain. Bowers had been a Yale pitcher and a good one. When the Law School team became a fact it challenged the varsity, but the varsity wouldn't pick up the glove that had been tossed into the quadrangle.

Successful Law Team. The varsity nine went South and felt the birch and so the Law School heard an imperative call to go South also and it didn't feel the chastising rod of hazel or whatever grows most pliant below the Mason-Dixon line.

The law went back to New Haven superbly self-satisfied and read to ride to quarters in Cuba, where its majesty might be looked upon.

The Yale News, it is recorded, vented vitriolic criticism upon the law, and the Yale Record caricatured the law as unseemly as if it were the days of a public election with honor, the President of the Republic, in retaliation the law school visited the press, as represented by the Record, and upon its exit the Record office was as if the automobile, invented on the spot, had backed through all the windows at once. Any academic man who was found within the vicinity of the Law School knew that he had been to Yale.

It was impossible to get Yale Field for more than a single home game, so the Law School nine played away from New Haven most of the time, the sum total being thirty-two games, of which it won twenty-six. Lon Stagg liked the exterior of the law boys so well that he invited them to go to Chicago to play in the world's championship open to all American college teams. The Yale lawyers went to Chicago and battled against fourteen other college teams, and licked them, and won the only world's championship that any Yale baseball nine ever won.

The Yale players were Dutch Carter and Bowers, pitchers; Keddie and Beljelman, catchers; Denny O'Neil, first base; William Norton, second base; "Tot" Murphy, shortstop; Billy Lauder, third base; G. F. Parsons, left field; George O. Reddington, right field; Harmon S. Graves, center field.

Harry Durant says "Dutch" Carter is the greatest college ball player who ever lived. "Dutch" pitched the deciding game in that world series affair against Amherst. Yale won it, of course, and Carter struck out twenty-one men.

Tribute to Carter. The first game of the series he struck out twenty-two men. As a matter of fact, for the information of posterity and the general good of records, "Dutch" Carter should really compile statistics showing how many men he did strike out while he was a college pitcher. It would be a Levittian record. In addition to being a good pitcher, never overlook the fact that he was a first class catcher in his freshman year and some first baseman as a sophomore. He batted nearly .500 and he couldn't be induced to play professional baseball.

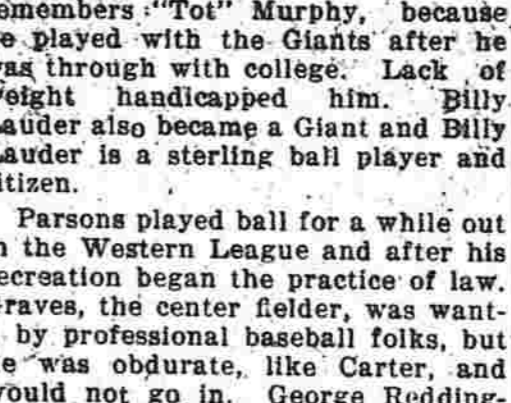

O'Neil, the Yale Law first baseman, went to the St. Louis Browns for a while. Norton, who had been a "Y" man, before he went on the Law School nine, died before his time at Rock Lodge, Fla. New York always remembers "Tot" Murphy because he played with the Giants after he was through with college. Lack of weight handicapped him. Billy Lauder also became a Giant and Billy Lauder is a sterling ball player and citizen.

Parsons played ball for a while out in the Western League and after his recreation began the practice of law. Graves, the center fielder, was wanted by professional baseball folks, but he was obdurate, like Carter, and would not go in. George Reddington, the right fielder, is a lawyer in this city. He could have been a "pro" had he listened to the voice of the calliope—pardon, siren.

Harry Durant says he took that team 19,000 miles before its year's career ended and defies any college nine to show a better record. The beautiful Spalding trophy which was won at Chicago is now in the Yale Law School library at New Haven. Durant has two Durant juniors at Yale and one of them is Tim, who is first baseman this year on the varsity.

And not the least interesting part of this overlooked Yale club of the past is that it won a world's championship before the big leaguers introduced their orthodox world series in 1905. The college men and Lon Stagg were not so slow after all. It also appears that there were inter-collegiate college contests prior to the renaissance.

MARRIED PEOPLES' LEAGUE

Friday evening the final games of the Married Peoples' Bowling League will be rolled at the West Side Recreation Center. There promises to be the most exciting session of the season when Teams 6 and 7 meet. They are tied for first place having passed through the season practically knotted all the way. They will meet, according to the schedule, at 8:30 on alleys 3 and 4. The schedule for the final games follows:

|             |      |
|-------------|------|
| Team 2 vs 3 | 8:30 |
| Team 6 vs 9 | 8:30 |
| Team 5 vs 7 | 8:30 |
| Team 1 vs 4 | 8:30 |

OLD BOYS' LEAGUE

The Old Boys' Volley Ball League wound up its season last night at the West Side Recreation Center with H. B. Cheney's team out in front. All the games were close and exciting. Olson's team was leading until it met the winners and was forced to bow to defeat. The winners will be given a chicken supper next Monday evening.

The following are the teams and the final standing:

WARSHIP LOWERS BIG GUN FROM DECK TO LAND.

Gauntanamo Bay, Cuba, April 15.—Anchored in Gauntanamo Bay, opposite the naval station, the U. S. S. battleship Florida successfully lowered from her decks and landed on the beach a 155-millimetre gun on a massive mount and tractor.

The big field piece, completely set up and in readiness for action when it reached land, was swung over the side to a platform built on two large motor boats making a pontoon that would, with its own power, carry the gun to shore. This was followed by the landing of two seventy-five field pieces and tractor tracks for ammunition and the train of a landing party.

The action was done with great dispatch and without a hitch and all equipment landed without an accident. These guns and tractors are a part of the equipment of the advance base of the Marine Corps. The guns are now at the Marines' post here in the Gauntanamo station, where they are manned by a detachment which has recently arrived from Quantico, Va. The men are to be drilled with the gun and especially with a view to its use in landing parties, as was demonstrated in the landing by the Florida.

This special practice of the Marine is being directed by Lieutenant Colonel Richard M. Cutts, U. S. M. C., and will be a part of the training schedule of the Atlantic Fleet, which is here with its commander-in-chief, Admiral Hilary P. Jones, U. S. N., on the flagship Columbia.

MILL POND WON'T DO FOR NEXT NAVAL SCRAP.

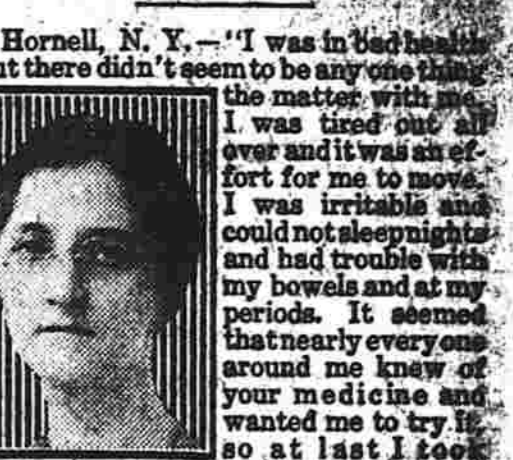

Washington.—The world's next great naval battle if there ever is one will not be staged in a mill pond, so to speak. Figures presented to Congress by Secretary of the Navy Denby show that the future naval battles of "civilization" will be Garantuan in proportions. The opposing fleets, to an observer high in the air, will resemble two monstrous, toothy bodies hundreds of miles long, lashing at each other and whirling about in the sea.

The modern fleet, in battle formations, extends for about 300 miles over the sea and is about eighty miles broad. Obviously an engagement between two such columns, turning and winding around each other over the ocean, will require a considerable fairway, with lots of room for the bystanders to run for cover.

NOW DO MY WORK WITH EASE

Because Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Hornell, N. Y.—"I was in bed for three days but there didn't seem to be any sense in the matter with me. I was tired out all over and it was a relief for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly everyone around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it. So at last I took Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Finkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like."—Mrs. CHAS. BAKER, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N. Y.

In almost every neighborhood there are women who know of the value of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound. They know because they have taken it and have been helped. Why don't you give it a trial?

LOCAL SPORT CHATTER

On Saturday afternoon, the Atlas baseball team will open its 1922 season. They will meet their most bitter rivals, the Rockville Rosebuds in the first of a three game series. The game will be played on the Four Acre diamond and will start at three o'clock promptly. It is expected that a large crowd will witness it.

The Atlas will present a strong lineup against the Windy City nine and should pull through a winner. It is expected that Cervini, ace of the locals' pitching staff, will toe the rubber for the Atlas. Captain Stevenson of the local team has not announced his lineup for the game but it is expected that they will take the field in the following order: Stevenson or Wiganowski, catcher; Cervini or Edgar, pitcher; Robb, first; Wright, second; Edgar, short; Stevenson, third; Parsons, left; Stowe, center; Mantelli or Wiganowski, right. Manager Stowe is attempting to bring the fast Wetherfield team here for a game Sunday and it is probable that it will be played. If so, the game will be staged on the Four Acre lot.

One more game of basketball and the season will fade away. The Atlas and the Wapping quintets will hook up in a past season contest tomorrow evening in Wapping. The Wapping boys have not been defeated on their own floor this season and a little excitement is due to take place when the teams take the floor. "Soby" Vendrilla, mascot for the Montauks, will lead the Atlas on the floor. "Soby" was mascot for the Atlas last year when they made such a fine record. Vendrilla will take the place of Barrabee, regular Atlas mascot who will be unable to make the trip tomorrow evening.

CONTRACT FOR SCHOOL GOES TO LOCAL FIRM

Hayes and Hayes to Construct Buckland School—Building Committee Purchases Additional Lot.

The building committee of the Seventh, or Buckland School District, yesterday purchased a lot 150 by 250 from E. F. Peckham, just east of the present school site, for additional room for the new school soon to be started.

Hayes and Hayes, local contractors, got the contract and G. H. Olmstead, civil engineer of East Hartford will supervise all the construction work.

It is understood that the lot cost $900 and the building will cost $24,000.

The new school will be built of pressed brick and have a slag roof, composed of five ply felting with steel screenings between. On the first floor will be the assembly hall and stage. The walls will have a sand finish and will be painted white. Also on that floor will be a playroom, kitchen, bathroom, boiler room and coal bunkers.

On the next floor will be situated four large class rooms with cloak rooms for each. A wide corridor will pass between the rooms. A teachers' room will be on this floor in the front part of the building. The fittings will be up to date in every particular.

The school will have a very attractive front entrance with granite steps leading to the large doors. Fire escapes will be placed where needed and everything will be done according to the State Building Inspector's rules.

The work on the new school will be started immediately, the building committee announced today.

FIRE ON WOODLAND ST. DOES DAMAGE OF $4,000

Sullivan Residence Guttled—Grass Fire Starts Blaze—North End Department Does Good Work.

The house occupied by the Sullivan sisters at 74 Woodland street and owned by the Mary Sullivan estate, was badly damaged by fire at noon today. It started from a grass fire which was burning across the street. While Daniel Sullivan, a brother, was busy putting out the fire at the east side of the house the sparks ignited the roof of the "L" part. The high wind soon had the southern end of the structure a mass of flames. After a hard fight the flames got the fire under control. The damage is estimated at about $4,000 and is fully covered by insurance.

A grass fire which started from an unknown source was the cause of the blaze. Daniel Sullivan was working in his shop located in the rear of the house when his attention was called to the fire across the street in a vacant lot. It had jumped across the street and was spreading close to the house. It was while Mr. Sullivan was fighting the grass fire that the flames reached the house.

The alarm was sent in and the Manchester fire department responded, laying a stream of hose from the nearest hydrant. By this time the roof was a mass of flames and rapidly gaining headway. The wind was blowing from the northwest and aided the efforts of the fire fighters by blowing the smoke away from them. Volunteers carried most of the furniture to a place of safety. The roof of the house is burned

'Tis Stylish to Be Comfortable

Pointed toes are no longer fashionable. Even the style magazines are illustrating properly-shaped shoes for all except the formal social functions. Many women have found great comfort and happiness in Cantilever Shoes. You will like them, too, because they look so well and because they harmonize so naturally with the shape of your foot. You get real enjoyment out of Cantilever Shoes.

There is no crowding of the toes, no pressure, no restraint. The shoe is modelled upon the lines of the foot and the flexible arch of the shoe is like the flexible arch of your foot. The great comfort in Cantilever Shoes is simply the perfect freedom they allow.

The freedom of the muscles to exercise and keep strong safeguards you against weak or fallen arches. The free circulation helps to keep your feet in condition, and cool in summer, for feet swell from restriction of circulation.

Graceful in appearance, well made, of fine leathers, Cantilever Shoes will give you economical service and a degree of foot comfort which you will appreciate best after you are wearing them. Sold in Hartford only by

NEWS FROM SURROUNDING TOWNS

COLUMBIA

Clayton E. Hunt has purchased a new and very substantial auto truck to be used in carrying the United States mail to Willimantic and the pupils to the High school, besides the transportation of freight. It was delivered and used for the first time on Tuesday afternoon.

A forest fire which occasioned considerable anxiety, was raging in Hop River on Monday and Tuesday on the Collins' land, by the state road from Hartford to Willimantic, and opposite the road which leads to Coventry. Fire Warden Rowland Cobb, of Columbia; George Merritt, of Andover, and Henry Schell, of Coventry, were on the ground with a large force of men and succeeded in extinguishing the flames after several cordings of wood had been burned. The origin of the fire is unknown and the woods are not near enough to the railroad to have taken fire from a locomotive spark. Fortunately, no buildings or animals were burned.

The household effects of the late Denison Avery will be held at his late residence on Pine street on Friday, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mitchell whose goods have already arrived on the premises, will move in their goods and take possession immediately.

The winners in the spelling and speaking contests held in the district schools recently, went to the Normal school in Willimantic on Tuesday afternoon and engaged in a contest with pupils representing ten other towns, two from each town. The winners in the speaking contest were Natalie Burrham, of Hampton, first; Ernie Neuffer, of Columbia, second; Eva Tardiff, of Scotland, third; Israel Abrahamson, of Colchester, was the winner in the spelling contest. Several supervisors were present, including Levi T. Garrison, former supervisor of this school district, and A. B. Conrad, the present supervisor. Miss Marion Holmes, Miss Fleurette G. Benzie, Miss Esther Granstrom and Miss Florence Jones, district school teachers, were present as also were Miss Mildred Latham, Mrs. Edward La Bonté and Mrs. A. W. Nordlund from this town.

WAPPING

Wapping's last basketball game of the season will be played in Center School hall tomorrow night when the Atlas team of South Manchester will meet a quintet of the best local players. The game should be fast and close as the Magister team is a good one while the Wapping boys have the advantage of playing on their own floor. After the game there will be dancing.

HARRY GREB WILL MEET GENE TUNNEY

Interesting Bout Expected in Madison Square Garden on May 26.

New York, April 27.—According to the best advice, everything but the chromographic operation on the dotted line has been arranged for Harry Greb and Gene Tunney to meet in Madison Square Garden on the night of May 26 for the America lightweight-weight title. The young men, they say, are a bit at variance over the slight difficulty of splitting the customers' money on a anticlimax basis; otherwise the stuff is on like a hot rivet.

Reading between the lines, one can see that Greb is making ready to smoke himself very thoroughly before he proceeds further in his campaign to get Dempsey into the ring in an eight or ten round sprint in some town where decisions are taboo. If he beats Tunney—and he should do just that—he will have an American title to add lustre to his claims.

As for Tunney, it is a question of fighting for an opulent purse at some early date or going to work for the rest of the boys in the early morning of the day since he won the title from the decrepit Levinsky and the austerity of promoters has begun to realize it but the fact of the matter is this: he is not a good bet to retain his title in a bout with Greb. The present champion may be a first class hitter but, if so, he has kept the fact carefully concealed. Also, he is hardly fast enough to outpoint Greb, although a right smart workman, at that.

Therefore the match, if any is really on, figures as a bit of pocket money for Tunney and a stepping stone for Greb to a bout with Dempsey. It only serves, however, to make the situation more involved. Despatches from abroad today inform you that Dempsey and Greb are being warmed over, so to speak for a return engagement. Several days ago, Harry Willis, the well known brunnete, announced his intention of setting out for foreign climes here to pelt the champion with challenges and verbal razzberries. Prior to that interesting announcement Greb was pleased to state that every thing was set for an eight round, no decision buck and wing with Dempsey in Philly July fourth.

There you are. You pay your money and take your pick. It all narrows down gentlemen to a question of whether the eye is faster than the hand. For our next essential part we venture that Dempsey will meet somebody abroad even if they have to send Joe Beckett, the horizontal champion, into the ring with a meat axe in either hand. Obviously something will have to be done to keep the spike down on that expensive European trip.

SHADES OF THE LAUNDRY

A San Francisco lady was training a new and inexperienced Chinese house-boy, and among other things found it necessary to teach him how to receive a caller. "Now, Wing," she said, "When I come home this afternoon I shall ring the bell, and you must pay attention to what I tell you to do when you open the door." When the boy did this on her return, she handed him her visiting card and had him show her into the drawing-room. Before long a caller appeared. Wing took the proffered bit of pasteboard and gravely compared it with his mistress's card, which he produced from his sleeve. At the end of his scrutiny he remarked, "Tickle no same; no can come in."

MOTHER SENDS BOY BY MAIL; DAD ASKS DIVORCE

Rockland, Maine.—Because his wife is alleged to have sent their four-year-old son by parcel post, Bertie Brodis, of Rockport, petitioned for divorce. The divorce was denied by Judge Charles C. Dunn, not because he believed that the mailing incident was not sufficient cause, but because of a technicality in the writ. The boy, according to the husband's strange plea, was tagged, shipped and rode in the baggage car along with the parcel post and the rest of the mail.
