

DROP HOLMES AS MINISTER; WILL APPEAL

Committee of 15 Sustains Charges Against New Bedford Pastor—10 of Jury for Discharge.

Rev. Guy Willis Holmes, former pastor of the Pleasant street church of New Bedford, Mass., was expelled from the New England South Conference and the Methodist Episcopal ministry this morning by a vote of the special committee of 15 ministers chosen to investigate charges against him of immorality and unministerial conduct. Pastor Holmes immediately made a statement to the press in which he said that he had filed an appeal with the judicial conference, the church body which hears appeals from decisions of the annual conference.

Not unanimous.

Libel suits may follow, he intimated, but the nature of these will depend on the outcome of his appeal. He would not mention the names of any whom he blames for his dismissal from the church, but hinted that he knew who they were. The committee reported to the annual conference this morning at its final session and its report was accepted. It was said that the vote was 10 to 3, two members not being present when the ballots were taken.

The decision is the result of more than 30 hours' deliberation since last Wednesday when the special committee first went into session. Absolute secrecy prevailed over the meetings and guards were stationed at the doors to keep out all but committee members and witnesses. The meeting room was at first in the front of the church on the second floor but after a few sessions the committee changed to the second floor of the belfry, accessible only through a flight of narrow, winding stairs.

The witnesses.

Most of the time taken in the trial was given over to hearing testimony. The church case was presented through Rev. Albert Roberts, superintendent of the New Bedford district, the principal witness for the prosecution. Other witnesses were Rev. Harold H. Critchlow of the Howard church, New Bedford, Rev. Raymond Hill, assistant pastor of the Albert street church, and Mark Ritchie, an official of the New Bedford Y. M. C. A. The woman who was said to be the star witness for the church, Mrs. Fred Sawyer of New Bedford, did not appear and the most of the evidence for the church was presented in the form of affidavits.

Witnesses for the defense were Fred Reynolds, a plumber of New Bedford, Ernest Laycock, Mr. Holmes' counsel, and Mr. Holmes. The defense witnesses were not called in until Saturday morning and the session then going on did not wind up until 2:30 Sunday morning.

Testimony was concluded at 9 o'clock last night and the jury was locked in the room for the purpose of examining testimony that had been offered. It is understood that several ballots were taken between 11 and 12 o'clock but members of the committee said on leaving the church that they had not yet decided the case.

Mr. Scrivener Justice.

Rev. George G. Scrivener, former pastor of the South Methodist church, acted as judge of the court and his prosecuting attorney was Rev. J. I. Bartholomew, another former pastor of this church. Defense counsel were Rev. F. W. Coleman and Rev. C. E. Spalding.

Others on the committee were Rev. William H. Bath and Rev. John E. Duxbury.

Further precautions were taken last night while the jury was in secret session when a policeman was called in order that any eavesdroppers who might have been near the church would not have an opportunity to overhear the discussion of the committee. Reporters were asked to leave the church.

Before Grand Jury.

Boston, April 12.—The ecclesiastical trial of Rev. Guy Willis Holmes, pastor of the largest Methodist Episcopal church in New Bedford and valiant battler against vice, followed the hearing of charges against him by a Suffolk County grand jury.

Those who testified before the grand jury, which has not yet reported, were Miss Antoniette ("Tony") Fortin, 19, a New Bedford tea room waitress, her sisters Simone of New Bedford and Rev. Robert Roberts, superintendent of the New Bedford Methodist Episcopal district.

Sued Minister.

Previous to the grand jury hearing, Miss Fortin had brought action against the minister, had attached his automobile but had subsequently withdrawn the action and the attachment. Her lawyers said a settlement had been arranged and added that Ku-Klux Klan leaders arranged to pay something in the neighborhood of $1,200. Pastor Holmes was said to have been active in Klan work and his wife, who has announced that she and her five children will stick by

WOMEN BACKED BY COOLIDGE IN DRY LAW DRIVE

Get Letter of Approval as They Invade Wet-and-Dry Hearing to Fight for the Volstead Act.

Washington, April 12.—An army of women invaded the senatorial wet-and-dry hearings today to defend prohibition, oppose its modification and demand stricter enforcement by the federal government.

The feminist drys, here to attend the convention of the National Women's Committee for Law Enforcement, sent 65 witnesses to the hearings. They were headed by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly, Mass.

One of their first acts was to present a great petition to the committee, carrying 16,396 signatures of New Jersey women, urging a strengthening of the dry law. Most New Jersey congressmen are wet.

The women witnesses, accompanied by a large crowd, swarmed into the corridors of the Senate office building where the hearings are held, and virtually "captured" the committee.

For Constitution.

Mrs. Peabody explained their purpose in defending the dry law. "We hold the Constitution inviolate," she said.

"We are opposed to modification of the dry law but rather we want it strengthened. We want strict enforcement and the removal of all men from office who do not strictly enforce the law."

Senator Reed, (D. Mo.) a wet, questioned Mrs. Peabody, to the evident annoyance of the other witnesses who wanted to take the stand.

"How do you want the law strengthened?" asked Reed.

"In a few states," Mrs. Peabody replied, "like New York and Maryland where there is no state enforcement act and where the dry law is very seriously broken."

Content With Brew Clause.

"Are you content with the present Volstead act?" asked Reed.

"We will gladly accept it, if it will be enforced rigidly," said Mrs. Peabody.

What do you think of Section 23?" Reed persisted.

"I am not acquainted with it, but if you read it I can tell you how we feel about it," she replied.

Senator Harrell, (R., Okla.) prompted her.

"We are satisfied with it," Mrs. Peabody added. "We leave the

HELL AND WAY OUT PROPAGANDA, RULE

League of Nations Film Not Entitled to Tax Rebate as Educational.

Hartford, April 12.—"Hell and the Way Out" is propaganda in film form, and therefore is not exempt from the state tax on motion pictures, according to an announcement made here today by William H. Blodgett, state tax commissioner, and film censor.

Mr. Blodgett last week refused a plea for abatement of the tax on the picture.

He-Parte, He Says.

He followed his refusal today by a letter in which he declares the film, which treats of the League of Nations, does not point out dangers that might come to the United States if this nation joins the League and that it does not give arguments against joining the League.

The film is ex-parte and propaganda, Mr. Blodgett ruled, and therefore is not entitled to be exempt from the ground that it is educational.

WHITTEMORE'S WIFE ALLOWED TO GO FREE

Released Without Bail Though Robbery Indictment Still Hangs Over Her.

New York, April 12.—Mrs. Margaret Whittemore, wife of Richard Reese Whittemore, leader of the "Candy Kid" bandit gang, was released from custody by Judge Francis X. Mancuso, in General Sessions court, without bail. She agreed to answer any call of the authorities.

The indictment charging her with first degree robbery in connection with the $170,000 Goudvis robbery on January 11, remains in effect.

MAINE GIRL'S RETURN IS END OF TRAGEDY

At End of Year in New York Her Sain Body Goes Back to Old Home in Bangor.

New York, April 12.—The body of Louise Murphy, whose brief life at Broadway night life came to a tragic end when she was kicked and beaten to death in her room at 165 East 115th street, was shipped today to her home in Bangor, Me.

About a year ago, Louise, a slim blonde, came to New York. She had grown tired of "Main street" and wanted to make her own way in the world and to enjoy the gaiety of Broadway.

She soon was forced to give up the idea of making her own way, however. A step-brother who chanced to visit Louise found her living with a man known only as "Frank," who was being sought by police today as the man who brutally killed Louise, threw her battered body on the bed and fled.

NEWLYWEDS OUSTED BY GREINA GREEN FIRE

Hotel Goes in Big Blaze That Threatened Whole of Elkhon, Md., Marring Town.

Elkhon, Md., April 12.—Fire which originated in the Howard House, a favorite mecca for newlyweds, destroyed a large portion of the business section of Elkhon early today. The town was saved only after a hard, all-night battle, in which the fire fighting apparatus of a half dozen nearby towns was called as the "Greina Green" of Maryland. Thousands annually come here from New York, Philadelphia, Washington and other metropolises to take advantage of the easy marriage regulations.

One person was reported missing, an unidentified bellboy in the Howard House.

About sixty guests in the hotel, most of them said to be bridal couples, were compelled to leave most of their belongings behind.

Excellent Talk.

Bishop Titus Lowe of Singapore, Mayhew, addressed a full church last night on his work in that peninsula. His straightforward manner of presenting his words made his talk all the more

BURBANK, KING OF THE PLANT WORLD, PASSES

Greatest of All Horticultur- ists, Dead at 77—Life Shortened by Controversy Over Religion.

Santa Rosa, Calif., April 12.—The world today mourns for Luther Burbank. The beloved plant and flowers scientist, who during his life time probably created more beauty in this world than any other man, is dead. He passed quietly and peacefully at 12:13 Sunday morning. He was 77 years of age.

Death came to him in his sleep. The "plant wizard" probably will be laid to rest in the soil of his garden, beneath a simple grave stone, surrounded by his flowers, his trees and his plants.

To Lie in Own Garden.

A public memorial service for Mr. Burbank will be held in the Doyle Memorial park on the outskirts of Santa Rosa at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

At this memorial Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, life-long friend of the great scientist, will speak.

Burial of Mr. Burbank will take place at an hour which will not be announced, probably late in the afternoon, and will be strictly private, only members of the family and a few intimate friends being present.

The noted horticulturist passed on to the great adventure of a hereafter in which he had no faith. Only a few weeks before the end of his life he had declared that he could not believe in life after death. And as life ebbed away and he stood at the brink, he did not falter in his convictions.

Infirm and worn after years devoted to developing and the guiding plant life, the controversy started by his pronouncements on religion and reincarnation contributed to his last illness.

Storm of Protest.

A storm of protest came from religious leaders after Mr. Burbank gave out his statement declaring himself to be an infidel.

His home here was swamped with letters and telegrams condemning his stand. All hope for him was given up Saturday night after a two weeks' struggle by physicians to prolong life.

At the bedside were his wife and his sister, Mrs. Emma Beeson of Healdsburg.

In compliance with Mr. Burbank's wish, Judge Lindsey will read at the funeral the famous tribute of Robert Ingersoll delivered at the grave of the great agnostic's brother.

Dr. Joseph H. Shaw, his personal physician, said Mr. Burbank's death was due to an overstrained nervous system.

First of All Time.

Luther Burbank was rated by scientists as the first horticulturist of all time. He performed more seemingly wonders with plants than any other man who ever lived. Several hundred growths that had

25 DIE IN TANKER BLAST IN TEXAS

Gasoline Leak and Smoke- Stack Spark Cause Horror Aboard Ship at Dock.

Port Arthur, Tex., April 12.—The toll in the worst refinery ship disaster in the history of the Sabine district of Texas stood this morning at twenty-five known dead, two missing and ten injured in hospitals with five of them expected to die.

In a terrific explosion aboard the Gulf Refining Company's tanker, Gulf of Venezuela, at 2:40 a. m., Sunday, these men lost their lives and great destruction was wrought aboard the vessel.

Overflow of Gasoline.

The tanker was in the process of loading and the cause is attributed to the overflowing of a gasoline storage tank aboard the ship, the gasoline running over her steam pipes, creating a highly inflammable vapor which was ignited by sparks from the smoke stack, according to the officers of the ship.

Today twenty-three bodies lie black and charred on piers in the Grammer-Diamerker wharf here. Only two of these had been identified early today, and it is likely that the remaining ones will go to graves with markers simply reading "unknown."

Two of the injured who were taken to the hospitals had died this morning. They were Frank Tyler of Port Arthur and Charles Kosher of Collingswood, N. J.

The two identified dead at the morgue are Frank Petty and Rudolph Pusegger, a dockman, both of Port Arthur.

TWO TOWNS RENEW DRIVE ON LOTTERIES

Stamford and Darien Police, Failing Once, Again Arrest Agents.

Stamford, April 12.—Two arrests were made here today and announcement of a previous arrest at Darien was made public as police in both towns started a campaign to end traffic in lottery tickets.

William Whitehead, a Yale & Town employe, was arrested at that plant, while Thomas Reedy, a local resident, was arrested at his home by Detective-Sergeant George McCarthy. Both were charged with selling lottery tickets and were locked up while arrangements were being made for their release on bail.

The arrest at Darien of George Fisher on Saturday May 3, on the same charge, was made public by local police today for the first time. Fisher was released on his own recognizance pending a hearing at some future date.

Police here say that since an effort they made two months ago to stop sales of lottery tickets bore no results they are determined to wage a new crusade and expect to make many more arrests.

GREAT QUAKE FELT, PERHAPS AUSTRALIAN

New York, April 12.—An earth shock of tremendous severity was registered on the seismograph at Fordham university early today. Observers estimated that the earthquake was 12,000 miles away. Tremors lasted for two hours and twenty minutes. Prof. John S. O'Connor said that in his opinion the quake occurred on the south-west coast of Australia. Mauna Loa Erupts. Honolulu, April 12.—Mauna Loa, Hawaii's famous volcano, was quiet today after a 48-hour rampage marked by earthquakes by a flow of glowing lava and by a four-foot tidal wave in Hilo bay. It was the great crater's first activity since 1921.

COL. WILLIAMS FIGHTS CHARGE HE WAS DRUNK

Marine Officer Accused by Butler Pleads Not Guilty Before Court; Course Con- trary to Expectations.

San Diego, Calif., April 12.—Accused of drunkenness, punishable by a maximum penalty of dismissal from the service, Col. Alexander Williams, distinguished Marine Corps officer, upset previous reports of his intentions by pleading not guilty before a general court martial here today.

He was charged with both drunkenness and incapability to perform his duties. He entered a plea of not guilty to both.

For the first time since he was placed under technical arrest and relieved of his command of the Fourth Marines following his appearance March 6 at the fashionable Hotel Del Coronado, where he is charged with having been intoxicated, Col. Williams was expected to come face to face with his accuser, General Smedley D. Butler, firebrand of the Marines, but Butler was not in court as the case opened.

May Bring in Dinner.

While semi-official announcement has been made that the sole attempt of the prosecution will be to prove that Col. Williams was intoxicated the night of March 6, 1926, at the Hotel Del Coronado, the way was opened for the introduction of what may prove sensational testimony when it was learned the prosecution may introduce witnesses to tell of the famous "cocktail" dinner in the colonel's home the same evening he was said to have visited the hotel and excited the wrath of General Butler.

The dinner was given in honor of General Butler and it was reported by high naval officers at the time that "good luck" toasts were drunk to celebrate the general's arrival here to succeed Col. Williams as commandant of the Marine Corps base.

Capt. Leo Hermle, judge advocate, announced the defense probably would use almost entirely the same witnesses as the prosecution.

NORGE TUNING UP FOR BERGEN JUMP

Amundsen Blimp Safe at London— Will Do Job, Says Scott, British Expert.

London, April 12.—The dirigible Norge, which the Americans-Russians expedition will use for its dash to the pole, was being carefully inspected today preparatory to a continuance of its flight to Oslo, Norway, later in the week.

The Norge arrived at Fulham, Norfolk, late yesterday afternoon, from Rome after a 29 hour battle with high winds.

The dirigible will be given a careful examination and thoroughly tuned up before she leaves her hangar for the Norwegian capital.

Major G. H. Scott, who twice crossed the Atlantic in the R-34, expressed himself enthusiastically in commenting on the merits of the airship.

Good for Job.

"The ship is as good as could be built for this particular job," Scott said. "She behaved magnificently on the flight to Pithulham. The difficulties she encountered in landing were merely incidental and were consequence. There is no reason why Amundsen shouldn't achieve his object."

Commander Noble, the Italian aviator who has charge of the Norge until it reaches Spitzbergen, declared that the flight from Rome had proved the air-worthiness of the dirigible and he predicted that her trip to the polar regions would be successful. He pointed out that the flight which ended yesterday covered more distance than the proposed flight from Spitzbergen to the pole.

CAMBRIDGE JUDGE FINDS "HATRACK" STORY WICKED.

Boston, April 12.—Disagreeing with the opinion of Judge Parmenter of the Boston municipal court, Judge Arthur P. Stone, of the Cambridge district court today held that the story "Hatrack" tended to corrupt the morals of youth. Falls Garagliano, newsstand proprietor, who sold 35 copies of the April issue of the American Mercury, to Harvard professors and students, was fined $100 and sentenced,

"STATE LEASED" FISHING THURSDAY

New System of Trout Angling Lets Rods Go Onto Stocked Streams Then.

Although the trout fishing season opened in this vicinity April 1, the entire state has not been open for fishing. Special state acquired streams in Hartford, Litchfield and Windham counties, will have their ban lifted Thursday, April 15. This will permit local anglers a much wider area.

The chief reason for closing the state leased streams in northern counties fifteen days longer is the fact that Massachusetts does not open its trout season until the 15th. As Connecticut charges only $3.25 for non-resident anglers' licenses, it was feared that the whole tribe in the Old Bay state would rush down on the streams recently stocked and clean them out.

Careful of Short Trout

Fishers are urged to be careful about the fish which may be caught under the legal length and which, of course, must be put back. When hooked allow them to remain in the water as much as possible and be sure the hands are wet for the handling. Handling trout with your bare hands removes the thin film of "shime" which is the protection against the chill of the water, and causes a disease comparable to pneumonia.

Have consideration for the farm or upon whose land you may be going. Do not leave gate bars down. Never cut a piece of wire fence. Recognize hospitality when it comes along.

Special warning is given concerning fires. Those who go into the woods often forget as they throw away a lighted match that it may do serious damage. Those who build fires for coffee making or lunch warming are apt to forget that a spark left may start disaster.

Fishers are warned to have their license buttons ready for inspection. If any person knows of violation he will aid in protecting the fish by sending word or writing to the game warden. Fishermen should give warning if they see signs of fire and help to put fires out.

SURPRISE FOR

Anthony Agostinelli of 136 Oak street is confined to his home with blood poisoning in his right hand. He is employed at the Orford Soap Co. plant and a few days ago sustained a small cut. It is thought that some of the chemicals used in making Bon Ami got into the cut and affected the wound.

SILVER WEDDING PARTY FOR MR. AND MRS. WALTZ

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Waltz of Hollister street were the guests of honor at a party given at their home Saturday evening in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary. More than thirty-five of the relatives of Mr. Waltz were present, as well as the bridesmaid and best man at the wedding twenty-five years before—Mrs. Waltz's sister and Robert Seidel of this town. The guests were from Holyoke, Rockville, Vernon, Hartford, Boston, New York and Long Island.

The evening passed merrily. Mr. Waltz himself contributing to the entertainment with violin solos. A bountiful repast was served, the tables being attractive with a profusion of cut flowers of the season.

Yesterday more than twelve of the relatives from Mrs. Waltz's side of the family came to felicitate with them on the happy event. They came from Short Beach, Newington, Hartford and Rockville.

Mr. and Mrs. Waltz were not only showered with good wishes but received a great many valuable articles in silver, including fifty bright, new silver dollars, twenty-five from each group of relatives; a supply of table silver, some with ivory handles, a silver salad set, a coffee percolator and other articles too numerous to mention. Mr. Waltz's gift to his wife was a handsome diamond ring.

Gustave Waltz and Miss Annie Schultz were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Fred Brown in Hartford, April 10, 1901, by Rev. Ives, a Congregational minister. Practically all of the time since their marriage they have made their home in Manchester and Mr. Waltz has been in the employ of the Connecticut company.

TROUT ON EXHIBITION.

A handsome display of speckled trout is on exhibition in the show windows of the Blish Hardware Company today. Twelve in number, the trout vary from six to eight and a half inches in length and are real plump. They were caught by L. J. Richman and a youth who accompanied him. The catch was made in Coventry.

Mr. Richman says the brooks have returned to normalcy and fishing conditions are much easier now than they were a few days ago when the water was high. He said he found the trout prefer a large worm, one between the size of an ordinary one and a night crawler. Mr. Richman and his friend caught eighteen in all but six were taken home for dinner instead of display.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us at the time of the death of our dear mother and sister. We wish to especially thank the employees of the Spinning Department and others who contributed flowers.

FIGHT ON TROLLEY HOLDS UP TRAFFIC

Drunk and Conductor Battle
It Out While Autos Have to Stop on Main Street.

A battle between a trolley car conductor and a drunken man last night caused considerable excitement on lower Main street in the South End late last evening and delayed traffic for about 20 minutes.

The car leaving the South End terminus at 10 o'clock in charge of Conductor Howard Carpenter and Motorman James Walker picked up a man at Oak street. He had evidently been drinking. He refused to pay his fare and the conductor told him he had to get off the car.

Then the trouble started. The stranger swung at Carpenter and both men fought all over the car while the passengers, mostly conference delegates, looked on. The car was stopped while Carpenter was forcing the man to get off. Just as the trolley started, a man with a supply of autos coming from the conference which had just been dismissed. When the trolley stopped all of the autos had to stop. As a result Main street was jammed for four or five blocks.

The police were notified by the conductor but when they arrived the stranger who caused all of the trouble had disappeared. It is thought that he was whisked away in a passing automobile.

Carpenter said that one of the passengers recognized the man as one who is on probation in East Hartford so the police of that place have been notified and are looking for him. Carpenter will prefer a charge of assault against him as his uniform was ruined and he received several bruises in the scuffle.

POLICE COURT

Four motor vehicle law violators were before the Manchester police court this morning. Oswald Weir of Pearl street was found guilty of reckless driving and a fine of $40 and costs was imposed. He was in an accident Saturday afternoon when the car he was driving struck Miss Florence Buckminster on Lewis street. According to the testimony of the young lady and her two companions, Mariette Donahue and Myrtle Johnson, Weir drove his car too far to the right on the street and the rear mud guard struck Miss Buckminster on the left shoulder. She was knocked down and received a cut on the head. The young man stopped, went back and offered to take the girls home but they refused to get in the car.

Officer R. H. Wirtalla investigated the case. Thomas Kehos of Burnside, who was driving an automobile with improper brakes was fined $15 and costs. He was arrested by Sergeant John Crockett Saturday night. Neither his hand brake nor his emergency brake were of any use whatever.

Everett R. Peterson of Bloomfield came to town yesterday and at the Center passed to the wrong side of the silent policeman. He was in court this morning and paid a fine of $5 and costs. He was arrested by Officer Roberts.

Itallo Camolla was fined $2 without costs for parking his car improperly yesterday afternoon on the East side of Main street.

BURBANK.

Luther Burbank is dead. If he had possessed a soul less courageous and less committed to truth for truth's sake he would probably be alive today, as well as most men of 77 and as happy as his deserved to be.

But because in his old age he declared his disbelief in the Christian faith as interpreted by the organized churches he was harried into his grave by a storm of criticism, the onslaughts of indignant correspondents, a very blasting sirocco of controversy and enmity.

Yet if there ever was a man whose life was religion exemplified that man was Luther Burbank. He lived out his span in one long, ceaseless striving to make this earth a better place for the human race to sustain itself happily.

He was so much closer than the rest of us to the plan and objectives of nature, read so much more clearly the language of the Supreme Power, as he termed God, than it is read by those of us who get it through the word of tradition or history, and was so habituated to drawing his deductions from what he saw and not from what he was told, that it was inevitable he should form his own ideas concerning the vast mystery of creation and destiny.

To rest after life's labors, and yet to live on in the active memory of millions upon millions of grateful fellow creatures of on-coming generations because of the good that one has done, here on earth—that was the kind of future existence that Luther Burbank believed in. There might indeed be something else—he said he did not know about that and could not believe that other men knew; he could not visualize or codify the Supreme Power that he felt and recognized, could not accept the visualization or codification of other men, ancient or modern.

He was no aesthet, Burbank. He merely could not and did not subscribe to the Christian faith or to any other formal faith. And for this he was treated by many, who did not understand, like an enemy of his people and of humanity.

Yet to no human being who ever lived on this globe does the race owe more than to Luther Burbank, who lived to make the earth yield more abundantly and more graciously, so that all mankind might struggle less and enjoy more—and who blazed the trail to that physical betterment of existence that must be followed, before man can reach the goal of spiritual and cultural maturity.

QUEBEC LAW.

When Sir William Stawert told the Senate committee that the "Quebec law took cognizance of the perversity of human nature, which makes men drink more when they are denied it and less when they can get it," he put his finger on the crux of the prohibition blunder. Prohibition of the Volstead variety is a theory which leaves human nature out of consideration altogether. It had its origin in the same misconception that made Germany believe, in 1914, that she could and ought to bring the world under German rule.

It caused England and France to pour out blood like water. It sent the flower of American manhood cheering into the jaws of death. It stopped the rolling of the marvelous German machine at Verdun. It animated the impossible achievement of American soldiers at Chateau Thierry. It has broken the spearhead of Prohibition.

Men and women are not puppets, to be managed by strings. German junkerdom sincerely believed they were. The Anti-Saloon league sincerely believed they were. One was as wrong as the other.

It is an enormous pity that instead of committing the devastating error of prohibition America did not adopt a law like that of Quebec, which as all honest testimony will show, makes for sobriety, respect for authority, decency and good order.

Because sooner or later it is to pretty much that solution of the liquor problem that we shall come—a solution based on the existence of human qualities in the human being instead of on the puppet theory.

Unfortunately it will take a long time to repeal the eighteenth amendment and adopt another, giving Congress, as this one should have done, power to regulate the liquor traffic of the nation. It will take a long time no matter how preponderantly the people of the country see the error of the present way, for the process is an essentially slow and cumbersome one. And the country cannot and will not wait for that relief.

It is for that reason that shift must be made with modifications of the enforcement law, with freer definitions of "intoxicating" liquor, with patchwork methods of loosening the intolerable enslavement of Volsteadism.

Once the strain is thus removed the knot can be untied, the deadliness untangled and the way cleared for sane, sober, effectual regulation of the liquor supply—honestly, under honest law.

OIL FIRES.

Many years ago Ida Tarbell, in her long famous history of the Standard Oil Company, made bold to more than intimate that the frequent burning of oil tanks and refineries in the earlier days of the petroleum industry were often anything but accidental, but that competing corporations did not hesitate to employ incendiaries to destroy each other's plants and stores of oil.

The mind, flies back to these allegations automatically, as there comes an unparalleled series of disasters to the oil industry in this country. Two enormous conflagrations at the same time in California, two separate tank ship disasters at New Orleans on the same day, one of them involving two vessels, and now another tanker catastrophe at Port Arthur, Tex.—all these within a week and involving the destruction of a staggering amount of petroleum—can hardly fail to suggest those departed days about which Miss Tarbell once wrote.

Yet there is not the slightest question of the validity of these present oil disasters. Lightning, fearfully enough but unquestionably, caused the California conflagrations—and nobody suspects Jove of being the gunman of any oil factory. The marine disasters can be attributed, doubtless, to the enormous expansion of sea traffic in fuel oils and the accompanying carelessness and increase of danger incidental to any growing traffic congestion.

The point to be made is that much of the evidence of criminal intent in the many oil and refinery burnings in the old days lay in a frequency then incredible on the ground of accident, and yet here we have oil destruction on a scale then undreamed of and in even greater frequency, which everybody knows to be not only accidental but universally deplored. More than ever is doubt cast on the theory that some of the oil fortunes were built on crime.

WIND.

Again in Tripoli Padrone Mussolini has been bragging to his subjects about "force," "power," "triumph." It would be interesting to know, first of all, how, in the words of the streets, he gets that way. Always and forever this fanatical blower is blustering over these three things—the force, power, and triumph, of Rome. What on earth is he talking about? Over what or whom has Rome, in many a hundred years, triumphed? To whom, with the slightest chance of success, can she apply force except to Matteotis and Amendolas and through the beating up in back alleys of any Italian who dares to question the godlike attributes of Fascism? When is derived the "power" of a country that has no coal, no iron, no social solidarity and no freedom?

The Italian people possess many of the potentialities of a great nation. They are industrious, intelligent, often highly intellectual, have plenty of adventuresomeness in either war or business. But they are economically handicapped and geographically not extraordinarily blessed. Italy would do well indeed to cultivate most assiduously the advantages of profound peace and internal development, especially of her economic position for at least a hundred years. At the end of which time, if in the meanwhile her civilization has not completely blown up, she might be justified in talking about power and about triumph over her own disadvantages, but still be better off without threatening to use force on anybody.

It is one of the most aggravating features of the Mussolini braggadocio that there is nothing but wind back of it all. Italy could not maintain herself a month without outside help. She couldn't win a war against Coney Island without allies.

It is with very sincere regret that the Herald finds itself in the position of being compelled to bid good-by to Rev. Russell E. Watt, retiring associate minister of the South Methodist church. During the period of Mr. Watt's service here the relationship that he maintained with the press, while far and away from being of the kind that seeks personal "boosting," has been of uncommon cordiality and kindness on his part. It is not always that ministers possess just the adaptability, in their dealings with the newspapers, that makes them not only valuable to their church in one important particular but genuinely helpful to the papers as well. That is just what Mr. Watt has always been.

The Herald is sorry to have this most pleasant association come to an end, and it is very sincere in wishing the hardworking and unusually endowed young clergyman a future as useful and happy as his too short period of work in this community promises.

Senator Dill, while agreeing with Copeland as to the financial outlook, doesn't feel so sorry for the debtor countries. He isn't disposed to say, "Don't mention it," when they announce that they can't or won't settle.

"When Italy got this money" he complained, "she agreed to repay it, with 5 per cent interest. Now we're to take a very small part, and Senator Copeland tells us that even a large part of that won't be paid."

"That's my judgment," nodded Copeland. "Mine, too," rejoined Dill, "and that's why I'm against this settlement."

The British debt certainly is the best of the lot, but it came out that even that isn't considered any too good a thing. "From the campaign which has been begun in England," said Senator Borah, "I think the program of cancellation or repudiation."

During all this conversation Senator Smoot, one of the principal influences in fixing up the various agreements which so many senators don't expect to be kept, never chirped. Evidently he didn't care to concede that they're waste paper but he gave no sign of having any reason to advance why they're not.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART. Washington, April 12.—What goes on in Congress is about 90 per cent bluff. It's pulled off for its effect on the voters—or what the politicians believe will be its effect. They don't expect it to accomplish anything else.

For example, take all this war debt settlement talk. To listen to it, one would suppose the talkers really think the United States will get a good deal at least, of its "money back." It's safe to say that mighty few of them think any such thing.

Confidentially they admit it. Publicly it isn't political good form to let the cat out of the bag. Once they're in a very long time, however, by some accident, the cat escapes and then we find something out. That's what happened the other day, during a Senate discussion of the so-called Italian debt settlement plan.

Senator Copeland, who isn't much of a politician and consequently is always making some remark that a good politician ought not to make, revealed the fact that to his opinion, precious little of what Italy owes to America ever will be repaid, settlement or no settlement.

That Copeland harbored this idea surprised nobody, but his candid expression of it did—so much so that, before they could stop themselves several other senators blurted out the information that they thought the same thing. Copeland favors giving the easiest possible terms to America's war debtors, partly because he's sorry for the debtors, partly because he considers that, if we get anything at all, we'll have done well.

Some of the specific complaints which have come to the Chamber during the past week are the continued activity of the salesman for a certain brand of shoes sold to be manufactured in Providence. As in previous cases the salesman has collected a $1.00 on each pair of shoes and has failed to deliver the goods. Inquiry of the Providence authorities discloses user fact that this concern has changed hands three times within a few months and the present owner is a man of very small means and with no business experience.

Another lady reports a salesman for kitchen and oven ware, who calls with samples, takes an order, gets a deposit, promising delivery at a certain date. The housewife in person, but it turns out that it comes by parcel-post collect, and when she checks up she finds that she has paid fifty or sixty cents more for the consignment and cartage than she could have bought the same goods for in the local stores.

Uses Child. A third reports a woman, evidently an epileptic, who comes out from Hartford, usually with a small child. Her story is that she has six small children and she is selling baskets and brushes from house to house to support them. It has been learned that brushes which had been bought by her in Woolworth's Five and Ten Cent Store, have been offered for sale by her for 75 cents. A similar case is of a man with a small yellow sack of selling toilet articles. He is charging 25 cents for cakes of soap purchased at Woolworth's Five and Ten Cent Store for 5 cents, and 35 cents for a jar of cold cream purchased at Woolworth's for 10 cents. The man's story, of course, hinges on a long sickness and a large family and like the woman's, is simply an appeal to the sympathy as a means of collecting a 300 per cent profit on his wares.

A silk stocking salesman called at the Chamber of Commerce to protest against the articles appearing in the "Herald." He was told to go to a certain place of business and square himself with two young ladies who were not satisfied with the goods he had delivered to them. He did go, and is reported to have given the two girls a "call down" because they reported the matter to the Chamber of Commerce. This man was only living up to reports which the Chamber had had of him from several other communities.

SOLICITORS USING OLD METHODS IN NEW DRESS

"Bellringers" Duping People in Manchester Consistently Despite Warnings.

This is the sixth article in a series exposing house-to-house canvassers prepared for The Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Each week that the Chamber of Commerce campaigns against fraudulent stock and merchandise sales continues, law and surprising projects for the separation of the unwary from their dollars come to light. The remark has been made in connection with the Chamber of Commerce stories that they are old stuff and that no one would be deceived by solicitors employing such methods. They may be old in principle but they are always new in detail and dress, and the calls which the Chamber receives as each succeeding story appears prove conclusively that Manchester people are being approached daily by solicitors who are getting away with that "old stuff" and with many good dollars.

The surprising part of most of the plans which are presented is their simplicity. This demonstrates conclusively the fact that they are carefully studied and skillfully presented by someone who understands the part of business psychology and how the average human mind reacts toward a simple, apparently honest and straightforward story.

Some of the specific complaints which have come to the Chamber during the past week are the continued activity of the salesman for a certain brand of shoes sold to be manufactured in Providence. As in previous cases the salesman has collected a $1.00 on each pair of shoes and has failed to deliver the goods. Inquiry of the Providence authorities discloses user fact that this concern has changed hands three times within a few months and the present owner is a man of very small means and with no business experience.

This man was only living up to reports which the Chamber had had of him from several other communities.

Burns Agency reports two clever frauds which are being worked in this section. One outfit consists of a man and his wife. The scheme consists in talking property owners into allowing him to subdivide a piece of real estate, building homes thereon and selling them on the installment plan. His latest scheme provides a contract to build houses, furnish them, erect a garage on each place, put a Ford machine in the garage and give a $1,000 insurance policy, all for $4,500, down payment to be $500 and the balance on monthly installments.

In one of the cases reported, he secured a buyer, then resold the house to another man collecting $800 from him, then when the second party proceeded to move into the house he found it occupied by the previous buyer. Smooth Talker. This man works quickly and is a smooth talker and many people have been victimized. Anyone hearing of this man or his operations should report to the police or the Chamber of Commerce at his last criminal record in Kansas and in California, but has recently been reported as working in the East.

The second story is in the language of the Assistant Manager of Burns Investors' Protective Department. Obviously, the names used are fictitious. "A man by the name of Brown who was prominent in Methodist circles and a man by the name of Smith prominent in the Y. M. C. A., at one time, are promoting an oil company through the sale of stock in New York and Massachusetts. They call their name the 'Halleluia Oil Company.' They are so filled with religious fervor that using this as a lever they have succeeded in steaming up Methodist preachers to such an extent that some of them are exuding oil from the pulpit and I am told that they are even offering early prayers—I suppose if I were a native New Yorker, I would also announce that 'oil'—for the early recovery of oil and the early payment of rich dividends."

Use Any Cloak. Those two illustrations are for the purpose of showing that swindlers will, without hesitation, use any cloak for their nefarious practices. The only safe course is to place no confidence in any sales project until it is thoroughly investigated through reliable agencies unless the salesman are personally known to you.

The Chamber of Commerce asks you to bear in mind that they have contact with many outside organizations through which bed-rock facts concerning any stock and merchandise sales propositions can be definitely determined and this service is at your disposal for the asking, absolutely free of charge. Your report to the Chamber of Commerce of any case which comes to your attention may be the means of saving both your own and your neighbor's money.

AN INQUIRY ABOUT THE TOWN'S HISTORY

Editor, The Herald.—Kindly allow Very Sincerely Yours, as one interested in the history of Manchester and claiming the honor of ice-breaker for the preparations for the centenary, to make an inquiry. March 27, 1920, or over three and a half years before the celebration, I had the esteemed honor of having a communication in The Herald suggesting an observance in 1923 and this communication followed an earlier one in the same paper. Prior to these nothing seems to have appeared as prophetic of the coming date.

Will you kindly inform several in East Hartford as to the printed volume which is to carry a history of Manchester and a story of the centenary? When is this to appear? The town clerk of East Hartford and several of the officers of the town have subscribed for this volume and are eagerly anticipating adding it to their libraries. Will you kindly inquire of Matthias Sless or who ever is in charge as to the probable time of its appearance?

Very sincerely yours, DANIEL D. BIDWELL. East Hartford, Conn., April 12, 1926.

Bubble, yea, bubble—then bubble some more. Flow ever gently, and kind. Now we all know right, what you're standing there for right, where the tired folk can find. Jacob Zemanek, of Hartford Road, and employed as a linesman for the Hartford Electric Light Company, was instantly killed at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in Hartford when he came into contact with 2,400 volts of electricity. Zemanek was working on Hudson street with other linemen. They were repairing wires. The local man discarded his rubber gloves and donned a pair of leather ones. A little later, apparently unaware he had made the change, Zemanek attempted to pick up a live wire. As a result he was electrocuted. His hands were horribly burned. Zemanek is survived by his wife and two small children. The funeral service will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock at his late home.

Soon he was placed in charge of one of the trucks and later he went from the delivery work to receiving clerk. Despite his advancement Zemanek continued attending night school and later was promoted to salesman in the office and eventually on the road. From this work, he entered the employ of the Hartford Electric Light Company.

"THE SEA BEAST" NOW PLAYING AT THE STATE

"The Sea Beast" opened yesterday at the State Theatre for a run of 3 days, and justified in every way all the glowing heaps of golden adjectives that have been piled up about this supreme effort of the Warner Brothers.

John Barrymore is the star, but even with Barrymore, the one actor who brings to the screen the full of that indefinable quality called genius, the drama of "The Sea Beast" is the thing. For "The Sea Beast," in its suggestive power, in its overtones of surging life, is more than a photoplay; it is an epic of the heroic lives of the American whalers when, in their swift clipper ships, they carried their whale hunts through the seven seas. It is a picture of rich, colorful beauty; of heart-searing pathos; of poetry that sings in action of courageous deeds; of emotions as violent and eternal as the terrific storms that sweep through the picture.

The sea dominates, and even Barrymore, superb actor that he is, is less, as any human would be less, than the epic that flashes tumultuously across the screen; the epic of the American sailors of 1840.

Nevertheless, the picture gives Barrymore the opportunity for the biggest and most impressive characterization that he has given to the screen. As the New England whaler on the hunt for the great white whale, Moby Dick, he is so breathlessly fine that he makes even his own stirring performance in such pictures as "Beau Brummel" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" fade from memory insignificantly.

The beauty of the scenes in Java, the magic way in which the atmosphere of the East has been captured, the never-quelled thrill of the surging storms at sea, the anguished suspense of the battle with the whale, are some of the things that stand out most vividly. But it is in the massing of detail that "The Sea Beast" achieves its total effect. Such things as the titles by Rupert Hughes, the photography, by Byron Haskins, the scenario, by Bess Meredyth, are exceptionally fine; and dominating all, the magnificent direction of Millard Webb. The cast is long and perfectly chosen, the outstanding performances in addition to Barrymore's, being those of Dolores Costello and George O'Hara.

"The Sea Beast" is founded upon Herman Melville's novel "Moby Dick."

"The Dakota Farmer" figures that the average farmer's tax for county agent work will pay for driving his car five miles.

The Ideal Home Garden—No. 7

Of All Flowers, Sweet Peas and Zinnias Are Likely To Give the Beginner Best Results

This is the seventh of a series of 10 articles explaining preparation, seeding and care of a backyard garden.

Keep a corner of your backyard garden for the beautiful. Plant there one or two varieties of your favorites among these flowers:

Sweet peas, Zinnias, marigolds, poppies, gladioli, petunias, cannas, foxglove, cosmos, Canterbury bells, verbenas or Shasta daisies.

Of all these, sweet peas and zinnias are likely to give the best results, especially to the one who is embarking on the venture of his first garden.

Sweet peas will grow almost anywhere. They thrive in sunlight and in shade! They should be planted early, but frequently they thrive well even after late planting. They grow rapidly and blossom over a long period.

Zinnias are cheap. For 15 cents invested in zinnia seeds the floral dividends will be quite as great as for $25 worth of roots of a more expensive flower.

The gladioli variety is very attractive measuring four to six inches across and offering a wide range of beautiful colorings as well as diverse beauties of form.

Marigolds are hardy and grow almost anywhere, but the planting of poppies requires some care. The seeds of the poppy should be sown early and the seeds must be thinly distributed. The great danger in planting poppies is congestion, as sprinkling the seeds too thickly is a common fault.

Poppies may be sown even on the snow or frozen ground. The most important thing to remember about them is that early sowing is essential.

The gladiolus offers an endless variety of pleasing form and color. Here is a really worthwhile flower. It will grow in almost any kind of soil but earth that contains some sand gives best results.

Planting Gladioli. In planting gladioli spade the soil to a depth of about a foot. If blubs are used do not use fresh manure because this often produces disease. Five or six inches is the proper depth for planting, in sandy soil an inch deeper. The flowers should have plenty of sunshine. Water the plant plentifully before it begins to flower. In cutting leaves at least four full leaves on the bulb.

Petunias need some special attention, but the reward justifies the trouble. Mix leafmold and sand with the soil in preparing the seedbed, unless the earth already is sandy. The seeds should sprout in the seedbed in about two weeks if kept in a temperature of about 60 degrees. Then the transplanting can be undertaken, spacing about an inch apart.

General rules for the beginner to follow are: You cannot go wrong if you decide to grow the hardy annuals. Otherwise stick to seedbeds. Mix leafmold and sometimes sand with the soil. Protect against the sun and pests.

At the Luther Burbank flower farm, flowers of all varieties are crossed and improved upon in an endeavor to grow more beautiful blossoms. This spring, one section of nine beds is to be devoted to purple and black double pansies. Each bed is to be planted with a different type of especially crossed seeds. And to enable Mr. Burbank to obtain the most nearly perfect flower every type of seed is numbered, and every bed is numbered accordingly.

After he had planted seeds number eleven, the gardener was called away, but he left his planting chart. According to this chart the seeds are to be planted so no two rows of three-seed numbers shown above (down, across or diagonally) give the same total.

Can you complete the planting of the flower beds?
 Last puzzle answer:
 Here is the note as Mrs. Daley should have written it, "Please save twelve dyed Easter eggs for my children. I have sold all mine." Obviously the note must have contained some reference to Easter eggs. Find this first. Then start at the first word and join letters until you form a word, do the same with the next group of letters, and also the next, until you have discovered the first five words, the rest will come easily.

WHERE'D SHE GO?

What has become of the old-fashioned gal, who was daintily and sweet and a regular pal? Whose complexion was natural, whose voice was low, And who wasn't eternally on the go? Whose hair was real and was worn just right, And who kept her legs well out of sight; Who lover her, home and obeyed her pa And thought it her duty to help her ma. Aye, what has become of this maid I pray? And why did we let her get away?

CLOSE NEAR EAST WORK INSIDE OF TWO YEARS

That officials of the Near East Relief, meeting last week at a conference have decided to make a serious effort to bring the work of money raising in this country to a close at the end of two years, is a report that has just been made to W. W. Robertson, chairman of the local committee, through the state office at Hartford.
 To close up the work at the end of this period will mean that the care of all the younger children will have to be underwritten for a period of years, and special efforts made to communities all over the country toward this end. Of the youngest now in the orphanages in the Near East 87 of those whose ages range from five to seven, have been provided for by gifts of about $1000 from individuals. There are still 800 of these very young children. The remainder of the 35,000 still in the care of America are for the most part still under twelve, and will need care provided for a few years more. Moneys received for the underwriting of the younger children through "sponsorships" extending over a period of years, are put in a trust fund and will be drawn out at the rate of $100 a year, the sum necessary for "the food, shelter, vocational training, and medical care for one child."
 H. F. Kazmier, state director of the Near East Relief, who spoke here recently at a meeting of the local committee, attended the conference and was one of those instrumental in putting through the resolution for the effort to bring the work to a close within this specified time. The success of the plan will depend upon the cooperation of the country, but it is believed that it can be brought about by special effort.
 Responses to mail appeals made here by the local committee have assured ten children in Near East orphanages their care and training for the next year from individuals. In addition there have been sent to H. C. Alvord, treasurer, in response to the sum sent, two gifts of $50; two of $25, twelve of $10

"You take that call," Jimmy shot at O'Day. "No one on God's green earth is supposed to know where I am!"

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Gracedon. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.
JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN, because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.
Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY-LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and disappears.
Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.
With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy and Olga, on one night, see a man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but he identifies him by his police photo as IRK JENSEN.
Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness causes her to break their engagement. Mary writes Jimmy a letter, telling him about it. The office boys stick it in his pocket and forget it.
Jimmy gets a phone call late at night from Olga, saying she has found the stub. Her voice ends in a gasping cry.
Jimmy calls police and rushes to her apartment. She is gone. He and O'Day search the place and find a picture which she sticks in his pocket without showing Jimmy.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLII
JIMMY awakes suddenly to the face O'Day as the latter was buttoning his coat. The police lieutenant colored guiltily and tried to hide his confusion behind a sudden fit of coughing.
But if he had noticed anything peculiar in the other's demeanor, Jimmy did not betray it. Instead, he asked, as he looked anxiously, inquiringly, at O'Day: "Where do you suppose—how can we even begin to look for her?"
O'Day, relieved to find that his action of hiding the picture in his pocket had been unnoticed, said loudly: "Give me time, Rand, give me time."
"These women," he added, half dolefully, half humorously, "are always causing trouble. It's a chertle-femmie-or-what-ever you call it in your fancy French—for sure now."
The policemen that O'Day had sent out to search the neighborhood came straggling back.
"Nothing doing, Lieutenant," they reported. "We've been to every house in the block. No rooming houses in the neighborhood, and they all swear they never even saw any one like Jensen hang around."
O'Day turned to Jimmy. "What time was it you got the phone call?"
"I don't know exactly. It must have been about midnight. I called you immediately afterward."
"Well, it was just midnight when you called." He turned to his men. "Of course, Jensen wouldn't dare to be livin' in this neighborhood. I didn't expect you to find anything."

And then he addressed himself again to Jimmy. "We showed poor judgment in not keepin' this Olga Maynard locked up when we had her. We should have kept an eye on her all the time."
Jimmy's anger flared. "I didn't think you'd say I told you so at a time like this. You're talking like that about her and the poor girl might be dead for all we know. Why?"
"There now, ind, don't take it to heart. I didn't mean anything. But I think it might have been better for her if she'd been in jail."
"Of course," said Jimmy hotly. "Lock the barn door after the horse is stolen."
"Well, how do you know she hasn't taken this way of flyin' the coop?" O'Day challenged.
"You seem to take it for granted that she has," retorted Rand.
"If I do, you'll understand why later. In the meantime we're not gettin' anywhere standin' here and arguin'."
"Have you got any theory as to what took place?"
"Theory, and that's all. Here it is. She called you, you say, to tell you that she had seen Jensen go in the house across the street. Her hat and coat aren't there, at least, not a hat that's ordinarily worn on the street—so we'll take it for granted she was out some place and had seen Jensen just before she came in the house."
"At any rate, she evidently wasn't watchin' from the window, or her coat would be here."
"Well, say, then, that she was comin' home from downtown—maybe from a theater or something—and that Jensen was hangin' around the neighborhood and trailed her home."
"Well, say, that she shadowed her from the other side of the street, an' she got nervous or something an' turned around an' saw him just as he passed under that street lamp on the other side of the street."
"She said she had gone in the house right across the way. All right, that's the one opposite the lamp. See?" He led the way to the window.
"Then we'll say that Jensen, seein' her turn an' look at him, tried to cover up by turnin' into the yard of that house. By walkin' up on the porch, he could give the impression that he was goin' inside."

He paused. "Followin' me?" he asked Jimmy.
"Go ahead," Jimmy begged. "It sounds plausible enough so far."
"All right. Just a theory, mind you, but good as far as it goes. There's nothin' better to go on yet."
"Now then, she has seen Jensen an' recognized him. Maybe she jumps or betrays herself somehow so Jensen knows that he's been recognized. Maybe she starts runnin' into the house after seein' him. At any rate, we'll say that Jensen thinks he's been recognized, an' that Olga doesn't know that Jensen has shadowed her."
"Now then, what does she do? She runs right in the apartment an' goes straight to the phone without closin' the door. We'll say she doesn't even turn the light on, because, in the first place, she knows the lay of the land in here an' she doesn't need it. In the second place, she's in a hurry an' got her mind on phoanin' you. In the third place, the light from the window might betray her to Jensen across the street."
"All right. Now it's my opinion that Jensen, if he's got any dirty work on his got someone with him, maybe the other guy's followin' in an automobile."
Jimmy nodded. "That's reasonable. There were two of them, you know. The night he and I—"
"Exactly," broke in O'Day, and Jimmy felt a sudden admiration for the shrewdness the other revealed in his clear, straight thinking.
"Well, say, then," O'Day continued, "that Jensen had someone with him. On that theory, we'll say that he signalled for the other fellow to catch up with him an' then the two of them came in this building."
"The girls at the phone. Maybe it takes her quite a while to get your number."
"Now, she's got you on the line an' she's tellin' you she's seen Jensen, an' for you to hurry up an' get here. Just about that time Jensen an' the other one with him 'tpeen in when an' grab her. That'd be when you heard her holler."
"Or maybe she hears them an' turns around an' then gives out a yell when she sees them. At any rate, we'll have to suppose that they clapped a hand over her mouth, or hit her on the head, or did some thing to keep her from screamin'. If they hadn't, an' she had yelled, she'd have aroused everyone in the building."

"My own opinion is that if they came in here at all they chloroformed her. If they had been bent on killin' her why would they take her away?"
"Unless," put in Jimmy, "they wanted to question her to see how much we had on Jensen."
"Perhaps," admitted O'Day. "Now what's your opinion about the affair?"
"I can't imagine anything different from what you have described. It looks very much as if Jensen had himself been with him did chloroform to keep her from screamin'."
"It's just a theory, mind you," said O'Day. "There's nothin' here to give us any kind of clew to what happened. The only thing at all was that mussed-up rug. Looks as if she might have kicked it when they grabbed her."
"And," O'Day added, "that's just one theory. Do you want me to tell you there was a mysterious ring to his words, Jimmy thought, and a quizzical expression about his eyes.
"Yes, go ahead," Jimmy answered.
"Now suppose she thinks it's time for her to do the disappearin' act? What could be better, or more convenient, than to frame a little thing like this here?" He waved his hand about him. "Let me finish now."
"Exactly," broke in O'Day, and Jimmy felt a sudden admiration for the shrewdness the other revealed in his clear, straight thinking.
"Now, that's every bit as reasonable as the other theory, an'—"
An interruption came from an unexpected quarter. It was the telephone bell ringing. O'Day waved the others aside as he picked up the instrument in his hands.
"Probably from headquarters," he grunted, and said, "Hello."
He pressed the transmitter against his chest. "It's for you, Rand."
He held out the telephone to Jimmy and the latter, about to take it in his own hands, abruptly stopped. A queer expression came over his face.
"For me?" he repeated. "That's funny."
He raised his hand, checking O'Day, who still held the phone extended.
"You take that call," he shot at O'Day. "No one on God's green earth is supposed to know where I am!"

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

My Say-So!
An Ohio man confesses killing an 80-year-old woman for the reward of a gallon and a half of moonshine. Another lad once sold his birthright for a mess of potatoe, proving that human appetites continue to be potent things throughout the centuries. This famous potatoe, scholars tell us, was of red lentils, for mourning. Abraham had died that day, and custom decreed the food of lentils.

The arrival of Charlie Chaplin's second boy reminds us that no picture has ever been seen of Charlie's first boy, now more than a year old. Charlie is the only one of the many famous parents who assist that their children remain out of the limelight, and refuse permission to photograph them. Gloria Swanson is another. So zealously does she shield her child from the public that few are aware of its existence.

Comes yet another college beauty to declare that iniquitous powder, paint and lipstick have never touched her physiognomy. We'd like to take a dozen or so of these beauty winners to a creek and scrub 'em and see for ourself, quite atune with the well-known truism that "seem's believin'."

Just a Quote.
"I wonder why veteran educators like Dr. Charles W. Elliot feel it necessary to urge college women toward matrimony. From my experience with them, I should advise them to get hitched as early as possible. The desire to marry and the fear lest one fail to do so is in my opinion the principal reason why getting is so prevalent, and so unshamed on the campus today." —Wembridge.

The Pretty Home!
A few days ago I took my pen in hand to write of the beauty of the theatrical gauze for window curtains. Comes this boomerang: "Theatrical gauze is not one bit prettier than plain mosquito netting dyed with one of the dye spots. You should see my 'arty' living room curtains of soft green with a scalloped border of black, all made in my little dishtpan with dye and six yards skeeter netting."

Bridge Party.
We've been hearing a lot of chatter about perfumes to match dress colors, moods and personalities. Now it seems we must have foods to match the season. At least I have done one "Bride" years for knowledge as to a bride party food that will "match the spring." My offering would be mint jelly. Brewed and concocted thus: Two tablespoons granulated gelatine, 2 1-2 cups boiling water, 1-2 cup cold water, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup lemon juice, 1 bunch fresh mint, mint leaves in boiling water 20 minutes. Add sugar and gelatine dissolved in cold water. Cook and add lemon juice. Strain and let harden in molds. Serve with whipped cream.

The Book.
All women are bad, unfaithful cheaters and liars. So Tom Stratton taught his son, Torquay, because Torquay's mother had run away. He drove the lesson home by giving a handful of apples against the fences until they got smashed to show their rotten core. The first words baby Torquay ever said to a woman were "go to Hell." A GIRL OF TODAY

THE SHOCK OF REALIZATION

Keeping Baby Healthy

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING, Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

Another menace to health during the summer months is temperature. High temperature alone has a harmful influence upon very young children. Babies cannot readily adapt themselves to extremely hot weather.

Most children must be protected from heat at home during the summer. Very light clothing should be taken to prevent chilling at night and exposure to drafts. The baby should receive a daily tub bath and one or two extra sponge baths may be given to promote the elimination of heat. The amount of pure drinking water given a baby should be increased during hot weather.

It is important for you to remember that usually, unless there be very good ventilation, the temperature inside a dwelling during very hot weather may be considerably higher than the outdoor temperature. This is especially true during the late afternoon and during the latter part of the summer. Whenever possible, a baby should be out of doors several hours each day. He should not, however, be exposed to the direct rays of the sun.

Another danger which is more to be feared in summer is the partial intolerance for food which occurs in very hot weather. If a baby is being fed from a bottle there is great danger of ever feeding during periods of excessive heat. At such times it is wise to reduce the quantity of food one-half at each feeding making up the deficiency by the addition of cooled, boiled water.

Baby should also be offered cooled, boiled water between feedings. Changes in the baby's diet when made necessary on account of depressing weather should always be carried out under a doctor's orders. You should remember also that not only is there a lessened desire for food but also that the digestive power of the infant is lowered. This change allows fermentation of food to take place. It favors stagnation of the contents of the intestine with the result that such germs as are taken in with food increase and multiply.

A small amount of fresh orange juice, strained through cheesecloth, to remove pulp and fibre, diluted with an equal amount of cooled, boiled water, should be given each day one-half hour before the second feeding. This usually will have a regulatory effect, provided, of course, proper food is being given.

Begin with one teaspoonful for a baby one month old and gradually increase the amount to the juice of a whole orange for a baby six months old.

The gain in weight of the baby during the very hot months is necessarily less than during the same period under more favorable conditions of temperature, but you should watch your baby's weight carefully. There should be no loss of weight. Breast-fed babies stand the hot weather much better than those fed artificially.

Household Suggestions

MUCH CHEAPER
Dried apricots, washed and chopped fine may be substituted for citron in cake and pudding making, and the difference in price justifies the situation. The taste is practically identical.

PLEASE THE EYE
Jellies and salads served in the new crystal or colored glass dishes are much more attractive to the eye than in any other type of container.

SAVES YOUR TIME
There is a new type of orange squeezer with a large cup space so that preparing the morning orange juice becomes a very simple matter.

BUYING GRAPE FRUIT
When shopping for grape fruit, select those with thin skins that feel heavy. The weight indicates a full juice content.

It was quite a pleasure to fix up the Colonel, and Mister Rubadub said so. He shook a lot of persimmon perfume all over him, get here, was finished and put prickly-pear perfume on his handkerchief.

"Ah shuh an' evah so much obliged, suh!" said Colonel "Possum when he was ready to leave. "Ah shall recommend your habbeshop to all my friends. Good-day to you also Mistah Hah and to you Miss Nancy and to you Mastah Nick." With that he lifted his hat and was gone.

"Good-bye," called the others.

Mister Rubadub turned all his cans and bottles and jars upside down. "Empty—every one of them!" he declared. "Now we can have a clean-up party, then I'll lock the gate of Scrub-Up Land until next year."

Nancy and Nick rolled up their sleeves and they all pitched in. In no time at all Scrub-Up Land was as spick and span as a new spot.

Mister Rubadub then closed the gate and locked it.

Then all four of them went down the little secret path that led to the Land-Where-Spring-Was-Coming.

When they reached the little bush that marked the place where Scrub-Up Land ended, and Meadow Wood Valley Land began, they all stopped in surprise.

The grass was as green as paint, the bushes and trees were covered with tiny green and pink fuzzy buds, the willows were out, violets were peeping up here and there, and on the edge of the woods they could see little blue hepatica flowers, and the white stars of the blood-root, Marsh-marigolds were ready to burst into bloom over by the pond. # MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL STARTS TOMORROW

Harris Banks On Nats Winning Third Pennant

STANLEY HARRIS, WASHINGTON—My ball club was good enough to win last season. It is a much better team this year. The added punch lies in its better reserve strength. We have one or more good substitutes for every position. My pitching could be more formidable but that is a weakness of every club in the majors.

CONNIE MACK, ATHLETICS—I feel this is an Athletic year. My team proved its ability last year, being a runner-up until the home stretch was reached. It lacked poise that only comes with experience. The tough breaks of last year are lessons which will be well remembered this summer. I am figuring on a pennant.

TY COBB, DETROIT—I feel I was better satisfied with my pitching I believe I would start bragging about winning the 1926 pennant in the American League. In all other departments of play I am of the opinion that the Tigers are better fortified than any other club in the majors. If we get consistent pitching we will come close to winning.

GEORGE SISLER, ST. LOUIS—The Browns have been threatening for several years, always just a trifle shy of delivering. I am hopeful that the faults of the team have been so corrected that this will be a St. Louis year. Added infield strength, better pitching, plus the drive the club has always had, are the three things on which I am banking.

EDDIE COLLINS, CHICAGO—The White Sox surprised them last year and I am hopeful that we can continue along those lines this season. My club has pennant possibilities, but there are several ifs. One of them is shortstop, another is the condition of my injured leg, the third, getting an outfielder to fit in with Mostil and Falk. We are able to win the pennant and might be as low as sixth if the breaks go against us.

MILLER HUGGINS, NEW YORK—Despite the fact that the experts are calling my team a joke, I am perfectly satisfied and feel that I have a club that will play interesting baseball and provide stiff competition, regardless of where we finish.

TRIS SPEAKER, CLEVELAND—While there will be few if any changes in the Cleveland club that finished sixth last season, I am naturally shooting at a higher rating for 1926. I am basing my hopes on better spirit, improved physical condition and far more efficient pitching.

LEE FOHL, BOSTON—The Red Sox are hoping to kiss good-bye to last place. I am rebuilding the club with young material and feel that the team should be 25 per cent. stronger than last year when we just managed to stick in the league.

Three Pennant Contenders In National Race

BILL McKECHNIE, PITTSBURGH—I see no reason why the Pirates shouldn't repeat. It is a much better ball club than last season. It has profited by winning a pennant and a world series. The experience gained should be very helpful in strengthening the confidence of the ball club. In addition, we have picked up several likely recruits.

JOHN McGRAW, NEW YORK—Pittsburgh is the biggest obstacle in the path of the Giants to a National League pennant. The Pirates are a twirling staff club. If the team has a weakness it is pitching. The Pirates' twirling staff may falter if hard pressed. The St. Louis Cardinals stand out as the other pennant menace.

ROGERS HORNSBY, ST. LOUIS—I figure the Cardinals are better than five other clubs in the National League. That means I believe we will finish as good as third. The two teams I fear are Pittsburgh and New York and I have more respect for McGraw's club than the world champs.

JACK HENDRICKS, CINCINNATI—I figure my club a first-division team. Any club able to stick around in the first division is always within striking distance of the pennant. If our shortstop play is up to the high standard a contender must have, then we will be in the running all the way. My pitching is the best in the league.

DAVE BANCREFT, BOSTON—I am not claiming any pennants but I am positive my club will have considerable to say as to who will win the National League flag. The Braves are the "dark horse" of the league, a young club that feels it is going somewhere, therefore should prove very troublesome.

WILBERT ROBINSON, BROOKLYN—I am not satisfied with my infield but hope to be able to get the problem settled before the race gets too far advanced. I figure my pitching as good as any club in the league and we also have plenty of power at the bat. A pennant winner, however, must have a star infield.

ARTHUR FLETCHER, PHILADELPHIA—I am not all concerned about the National League pennant, simply because it would be foolish for me to think my club rated a strong pennant contender. However, it is a much improved club that should play interesting ball and offer keen competition to the rest of the league.

JOE MCCARTHY, CHICAGO—The National League is all new to me and I want to get properly acquainted before making any predictions. Of course, I want to make a better showing than the Cubs of last season, but regardless, am sure the team will play an aggressive type of ball that will at least please the fans.

The national calamity predicted by crystal-gazers has arrived. . . . Mollie Mallory says she will not play tennis with the American team this year.

What's become of the old-fashioned wise-cracker who used to throw the living room into a laugh panic by saying, "So's your old man."

We are told whippet racing was originally sponsored by English royalty, but this is hard to believe. . . . Who ever heard of a prince being thrown by a whippet?

The man who held the quash championship 12 years has retired and Mr. O'Goerty writes to ask if he held it all that time standing up or did he sit down once in a while.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

There is no real transfer of weight from the right to the left foot, as in the tee shot; therefore there is little need to stand far from the ball. By hitting down on the ball a trifle the club-head is almost sure to go forward straight after it in its line of flight.

Take the club up quietly and smoothly, having decided how hard to hit, then come down smartly, just as you would hit a nail with a light hammer. Do not be afraid to hit the ball and a bit of the turf at the same moment, but avoid digging down. Do not try to scoop the ball; the loft on the mashie will cause it to rise off the ground.

Many players nowadays take a nibble and hit the ball into the air, but they would be a good deal safer with the mashie if only they would put in a little practice with this club.

Again, keep the feet on the ground. Many players lift the right heel before the club-head has reached the ball. This action shows that they are swinging the body with the club. That is unnecessary.

Stand easily and make the arms do the work, with just a little pivoting with the hips and shoulders.

SHAMROCKS HOLD FIRST WORKOUT

Stevenson and Oakes, Newcomers, Join Ranks—Special Meeting Tomorrow Night.

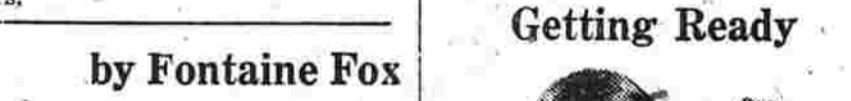

The Shamrock baseball team took the field at Hickey's Grove yesterday afternoon for its first workout of the season. Several new members including Stevenson of the St. Marys and "Babe" Oakes. The team went through preliminary practice which included light fielding and batting.

"Dutch" Keller was missing because of illness with the grip. Coach McGonigal has ordered the boys out for another workout next Sunday and any player in town is eligible for a tryout. A meeting of the team will be held in the Community Club tomorrow evening at eight o'clock. Coach McGonigal will give his charges a short talk regarding the prospects for the approaching season.

OPEN SEASON ON GRANDMAS GETS STARTED TOMORROW

Unless Action Is Taken Shortly Town Is Doomed to Die Insofar as Baseball Is Concerned.

By Davis J. Walsh
New York, April 12—The National Habit again will confront the populace in eight major league baseball cities tomorrow and the mortality rate among elderly females will be quite appalling. Full many a fictitious grandmother will die in agony before sundown, this being as much a necessity to the success of opening day ceremonies as the throwing out of actors, chests and first balls.

Upward of a quarter of a million customers, weather willing, will view the proceedings and the chances are excellent that there will be considerable loss of life at the turnstiles. The boys simply cannot take their opening day or let it alone.

Where They Play
The inaugural schedule calls for the following:
American League
St. Louis at Chicago.
Cleveland at Detroit.
Philadelphia at Washington.
New York at Boston.
National League
Pittsburgh at St. Louis.
Chicago at Cincinnati.
Brooklyn at New York.
Boston at Philadelphia.

That, at least was the program as outlined some months ago by Barney Dreyfuss and the schedule committee. But the best laid plans of mice and men often run into rainstorms. The opening in Chicago, for example, has been a doubtful project until recent days. Comiskey Park having lost its identity under a blanket of snow. They dug the park out of a drift several days ago but the first batch of customers are liable to arrive on dog sleds.

The Weather
The late arrival of spring has made the whole proposition a rather dubious undertaking and, even if the fickle sun does happen to shine on all and sundry, a standing rule of the house demands that you bring your own horse blanket.

The general uncertainty extends even to the possible performances of the ball clubs. The world's champion Pirates do not look so natty at this moment, what with injuries and illness. They are to step out with the Cardinals who have been running wild with a lot of speed. Until several days ago the Giants were in a slump but snapped out of it as they neared home and now are moving at top speed again. They will not need it tomorrow, if the Dodgers' performances against the Yankees have any lasting significance.

So did the Athletics and Senators a week ago, but, since working north, they appear to have lost some of their speed. Anyhow, they lost several games at the end of the week to the Phillies and Giants respectively.

Little Significance
The Yanks, if their recent run of victories means anything should prosper in Boston at the expense of the Red Sox. The Tigers, another dangerous outfit, have

HARTFORD TRIMS MANCHESTER 5-1

Locals Fall to Pieces in Second Half—Game Played in Sea of Mud.

After playing on even terms with their opponents in the first half yesterday afternoon at Charter Oak Park in Hartford, the Manchester soccer eleven fell to pieces badly in the final period and lost a 5 to 1 decision to the Hartford Thistles in the second round of the Protective Cup play. The game was played in a sea of mud, the players being greatly hampered by the slippery conditions.

The game was fast and furiously waged during the first half and for ten minutes in the final chapter. Then the Manchester defense crumpled completely allowing the home team to score practically at will for a short while in which five goals were tallied. During the last part of the game the Manchester eleven made a belated rally. The line-up:

Hartford	Manchester
Watt	J. Pratt
McQuade	goal
Marshall	right back
Williamson	right half back
Cunningham	center half back
Wright	outside right
S. Pratt	inside right
Taylor	center
Lindsay	inside left
