LONELY GUARD CHASES OFF 18 SILK PIRATES

Blocks Raid on a Million Dollar Cargo at N. Y. Pier—Wounds One in Battle With Pistols.

New York, April 13.—Martin Carroll, customs guard, known as "Go-get-em Marty," frustrated a gigantic robbery early today when he surprised a boatload of river pirates in the act of stealing part of a $1,000,000 cargo of silk and automobile tires from a pier on the North River and in a pistol duel wounded one of the band.

The pirates escaped in a 38-foot motorboat in which they had crept up alongside the pier. They carried no lights. The pirate vessel was painted gray and was very fast, according to Carroll. The pirates succeeded in escaping with several bales of silks and packing cases.

The Up Access Pier. On the south side of the pier is the French liner De Grasse which arrived yesterday. The north side of the pier is untenanted and it was here that the pirates hid up. The cargo was in the upper level of the pier and was guarded by a special watchman who later told the police he heard no noise on the end of the pier. He was in the farther end when the pirates broke into the left. The cargo had been shipped from the Orient to San Francisco and brought overland by railroad to the French line pier for shipment to Paris.

Carroll heard a commotion in the loft and went out on the string-piece to investigate. Tackles 18 Alone. He saw the pirates' vessel lying alongside the pier. Eighteen men were lowering bales and cases into it from the loft above. Carroll called on them to throw up their hands. Instead they tumbled into the boat, pulled down the ladder and shoved off, one of them engaging in a pistol duel. The pirates escaped in a motorboat in which they had crept up alongside the pier.

NOT LEGAL OATH, J. T. KING ASSERTS

Counsel to Move for Quashing of Perjury Indictment on Technical Ground.

New York, April 13.—William E. Leahy, counsel for John T. King, former Republican National Committee member from Connecticut, has filed notice in the federal district court here that on April 13 he would move to quash the indictment for perjury returned by a federal grand jury against his client.

The motion will be based on the grounds the oath, under which the alleged perjury was committed, was illegally administered, and that the indictment itself was barred under the statute of limitations.

The perjury indictment was one of the developments in the federal grand jury investigation of the return of German corporations of stock seized by the alien property custodian's office during the war. The investigation revealed, it was alleged, that King neglected to declare his income tax for the year 1921, and that he swore falsely regarding the extent of his income during that year.

VAST GOLD DEPOSITS IN MEXICO REPORTED

Engineer Says Big Lode Runs Three States and Into Guatemala—Costly to Mine.

Mexico City, April 13.—Indications of vast gold deposits in the Mexican states of Guerrero, Oaxaca and Chiapas have been discovered, according to E. J. Chippendale, mining engineer who returned today after an extensive exploration of the region.

Chippendale expressed the opinion that his discoveries confirm the existence of large deposits in Panama. The engineer said that the mother lode runs through the three states and continues down into Guatemala. Getting the gold out, however, he said, presents serious difficulties owing to the lack of water.

Chippendale reported that even the poorest natives possessed necklaces of gold nuggets. Chippendale said years would elapse before the gold of the region could be mined, elaborate financing and exploration operations being first necessary.

MISUNDERSTOOD WAR STAMPS, DIED OF WANT.

Cambridge, Mass., April 13.—The final chapter of a tragedy at once pitiful and cruel was written today when Mrs. Ellen O'Brien, 63, who was found dying of starvation beside the dead body of her husband, James J. O'Brien, 66, passed away at City hospital.

With the husband out of work and their money gone, the aged couple had faced death together. In their apartment was found twenty dollars in war saving stamps, which they could not redeem and kept the wolf from the door. Undoubtedly, however, they thought the stamps were mere receipts for gifts to the boys in service.

YOUTHFUL GANG LEADER IN COURT

Merwin Brace, a young man of seventeen, was before Judge Johnson in the police court this morning on the charge of breaking and entering. The young man admitted that he had, with two other boys, broken into the store of Frank DeCiantos on Middle Turnpike on the night of February 4. They stole a quantity of cigarettes, candy, cards and other goods which they carried away. It is said that a number of breaks could be laid at the door of this trio.

The case was investigated by Sergeant Barron and the goods were identified by DeCiantos as being his property. Was in Boston. Brace has been wanted by the police for several weeks. It was learned that he was in Boston and requisition papers were made out. He came back to Manchester Sunday and was placed under arrest.

The young man on the witness stand gave a detailed account of how he had stolen the store and what he had stolen. Commandant Charles M. Abbott of the Salvation Army appeared in the boy's behalf and made a plea before the judge for leniency, asking that the young man be given a chance to make good. He told the judge that he had not had a good start. His mother had died early in life and left him without the care that only a mother can give. He said if the boy was given a chance he would be taken care of by the Salvation Army and he would do his level best to have the young man see the folly of his ways and live an upright life.

Juvenile Court Case. The other two boys, being under sixteen, will have their cases heard in the juvenile court on Saturday, and for this reason the court here today placed him in charge of Commander Abbott.

ST. LOUIS SALESMEN TRAVEL BY PLANE

Six Making Business Trip to New England in a Twin-Motor Sikorsky.

Westbury, N. Y., April 13.—Six St. Louis clothing salesmen, the first ever to "cover" their territories by airplane, were to hop off from here today in a big twin-motor Sikorsky biplane for Boston and Portland, Me.

The passengers received an unexpected thrill when the plane "lost itself" in a blanket of smoke over the mountains of Pennsylvania, finally landing at Bellefonte, Pa. Captain Roscoe Turner, the pilot, was forced to go 75 miles of his course after climbing 12,000 feet. Despite this delay they covered their territory in one-third the time it takes by train.

"CAKE EATERS" PLEAD SECOND DEGREE GUILTY

New York, April 13.—Four members of the "Cake Eater" bandit gang pleaded guilty to second degree murder in Queen's County court today. They are Richard Dant, J. Greer, Gustave Fisher and Frank Kerremann.

FIND GIRL DEAD IN A BAY STATE BYWAY

Fairhaven, Mass., April 13.—Mystery surrounds the finding of the body of a well-dressed young woman on a pathway off East Coggeshall street here today. All marks of identification had been removed from the clothing. Except for a few scratches on her face, no marks of violence were found on the body. PEGGY TO WED FLORIDA REALTOR THIS TIME. Miami, April 13.—Stanley Comstock, wealthy Miami real estate man, today formally announced his engagement to Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Peggy was present and confirmed the announcement.

MRS. JOHN D. CHIDES WOMEN AS SCOFFLAWS

Appeals for "Square Deal" for Children—Wille- brandt Says Dry Law Doesn't Cause Graft.

Washington, April 13.—An appeal to American parents to set their children an example in law observance was made today by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. in a speech before the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, in session here to combat the efforts being made in Congress to modify the Volstead act.

"The turmoil and upheaval of the last twelve years have brought to the mind of the world to an almost chaotic state," said Mrs. Rockefeller. "New ideals are struggling with old conventions and habits. In this country the situation is complicated by our unprecedented prosperity.

Little of Sacrifice. "More people than ever before are able to give their families good food, clothes, education and many of the pleasant things of life; there the willingness to give seems in many cases to end, and readiness to make sacrifices for a cause seems strangely wanting.

"There are two points of the value of which all Americans agree, the welfare of their children and the justice of the 'square deal.' I should like to make a plea that the children of the United States be given a 'square deal' by their parents.

"Why not be honest with ourselves and admit that our children will not be the high-minded, fine people that we want and expect them to be unless we, their parents, set them an example of being just and law-abiding citizens. Pretended Christianity, but how few of Christ's commands do we really obey? We are a republic; we make our own laws, and yet so often treat them with scorn and contempt."

Women, in many instances, have relaxed their vigilance for righteous aims of civil life and have, as a consequence, lost political influence, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, told the conference. Mrs. Willebrandt defended the 18th amendment, declaring that mistakes of the first six years of enforcement give birth to better methods of application. "Look to whether your community is a good market for liquor," Mrs. Willebrandt warned.

"Self-indulgence, evasion, hypocrisy and graft are not caused by prohibition but are revealed by the efforts to enforce it. Bribery, once harbored in low dive saloons which most citizens never looked, are now turned out into the searchlight of popular view and scorn."

4 STRATON TRUSTEES DISLIKE "STUNTS", QUIT

Declare New York Pastor Neglects Spiritual Matters for "Hippodroming."

New York, April 13.—Four of the nine members of the Board of Trustees of the Calvary Baptist church, of which the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton is pastor, tendered their resignations yesterday. The resigning members, who have been hostile to some of the policies of Dr. Straton and have been in litigation with the majority members of the board, are Benjamin J. Miller and A. B. Miller, brothers and business men; W. A. M. Martin, a publisher, and Robert B. Buzbee, a lawyer, of 60 Broadway.

The resigning trustees made a detailed explanation of their reasons, which concludes: "In our opinion the true purpose of the Calvary Baptist church would be better served if, more attention were devoted to its spiritual side and to making it an effective force through real service to its neighborhood and the city at large and less attention were paid to futile challenges to debates and other hippodroming stunts connected with everything on earth except the true work of Calvary Baptist church."

SARGENT ADMITS 300 CASES PRE-WAR FADED

Washington, April 13.—Official confirmation that 330 cases of pre-war whiskey "disappeared" after its seizure by prohibition agents from the Squibb distillery, Lawrenceburg, Ind., was given today by Attorney General Sargent. In a letter to Rep. La Guardia, Republican, of New York, who made grave charges concerning disappearance after seizure in a recent speech, Sargent said "the department has not yet been able to fix responsibility for this shortage, but is still investigating."

Manchester Boy on Western Ranch

Robert Russell (left), son of R. LaMotte Russell, president of the Manchester Trust Company, and David Swope, son of Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, are working together on a ranch in Santa Ana, Calif. Both boys were chums at Loomis Institute in Windsor, and went west in a diver last February. They are working for money enough to buy a second hand car to make the trip back east in June.

DOUBTS BROWNING MARRIAGE VALID

County Prosecutor Investi- gates It—Pair Will Face Children's Court.

Cold Spring, N. Y., April 13.—Edward W. Browning, millionaire "Cinderella man," hand-in-hand with his 15-year-old bride, Frances (Peaches) Heenan, will face the Children's court in New York City next Thursday.

Browning, from his honeymoon retreat, today declared the will of the court must be respected and that the romantic details of his elopement with "Peaches" would be revealed. The scheduled hearing originally arose from charges of improper guardianship brought against Mrs. Catherine Heenan, mother of "Peaches," by Vincent T. Pisarra, of the Children's society, but the validity of the marriage of Frances to the eccentric millionaire is likely to occupy the center of the legal proceedings.

Another show slanted across the humble honeymoon abode of the Brownings today when James Bailey, county prosecutor, said that he would investigate the legality of the marriage. The law requires that six months of residence in Putnam county is necessary for the granting of a marriage license to a girl, according to Bailey. Mrs. Browning was never in Cold Spring until a few days ago, as far as can be learned.

Both Parties Split in Vote. Sixteen regular Republicans, led by Mr. Brookhart, who had remained away from the Senate since debate on his case was opened early last week, declined to comment on the result. It is generally accepted in political circles here, however, that he will seek to win the nomination as Senator on the Republican ticket in the Iowa primaries, making his fight against Senator Cummins, who will have the backing of the Coolidge administration.

Defeat of Coolidge Man In Senate Today Scented

McKinley in Danger of De- feat in Illinois Primary; Opposed on World Court and Bonus Record.

Washington, April 13.—The politicians of the capital—and their numbers are legion—riveted their eyes on Illinois today where the first big primary battle of the current campaign is being decided. Illinois voters are passing judgment on the stewardship of Senator Wm. B. McKinley, one of the most consistent administration supporters in the Upper House, and if he is defeated it will cause a distinct chill of apprehension among some two dozen other Republican Senators who are facing opposition for re-nomination.

The chief opponent of Senator McKinley is Col. Frank L. Smith, and if in advance information reaching party leaders here is correct, McKinley is slated to become the first major casualty of the 1926 campaign. The Smith people are very confident. They have already sent word to Washington that they are "in."

See a Funeral. McKinley's supporters, however, assert that flowers are being strewn on his political grave prematurely. They contend with sincerity and confidence that the fight will be close, but that McKinley will win through by a small margin. A factor of prime significance in the Illinois contest, and one that is causing apprehension among some of McKinley's colleagues, is that

English and all the British colonies increased their purchase of American corsets, while considerable numbers went to Cuba, South America and China. French flappers alone scored American models, not a single American corset going to France in February. Nine million dollars worth of silk hosiery, mostly for feminine use, were exported in the eight months. Exports of women's skirts and dresses were a third greater than last year, with a value of $785,000.

HUGE JUMP IN ARRESTS UNDER VOLSTEAD ACT

Increase of 378 Per Cent. in Hartford Among Fig- ures Cited by Statistician at Senate Hearing.

Washington, April 13.—The wets came back to the witness stand in the Senate prohibition hearing today to controvert the claims made by the army of women yesterday concerning the effects of the Volstead law.

Whereas the women told the committee that prohibition had been a blessing, Stanley Shirk, research director of the New York Moderation League, declared today it had been "curse" and that drunkenness had enormously increased under Volsteadism. In New York alone, he said, there is twice as much drunkenness now as formerly.

Child Drunkenness. "When we consider that drunkenness generally has already increased to the pre-prohibition level, and that drunken drivers and drunken children have increased far above anything ever known before in this country, we cannot escape the conclusion that the Volstead act has utterly failed to do what it was intended to do, namely, promote temperance and sobriety," said Shirk.

"We are of the firm conviction that a policy of wide restriction would have the advantage of eliminating almost entirely the scandalous corruption and bribery of public officials, would stop the growth of the bootlegging millionaire class, would check disreputable law, and would in addition produce a handsome national revenue."

Shirk placed before the committee the records of a recent survey made by the Moderation League in 457 representative places. Between 1920 and 1924, the records show, child drunkenness has increased from 250,000 to 550,000.

Figures. Between 1916 and 1924, the survey showed arrests for drunkenness in New York increased 484 per cent; Chicago, 440 per cent; Washington, 1,062 per cent; Boston, 364 per cent; Scranton, 713 per cent; Hartford, 378 per cent; Minneapolis, 516 per cent; Milwaukee, 2,554 per cent.

Arrests in former wet states remained about the same, according to the records, while dry states showed a high increase. In 1924, Shirk cited conditions in Atlanta as an example of how drunkenness increased under prohibition. He produced a chart showing the annual number of arrests for drunkenness had dropped from 7,000 in 1907 to 2,000 in 1917, during which time Atlanta could import beer and wines. From 1917 on, when the state bone-dry law became effective, he added, arrests steadily increased to a maximum of 8,000 in 1924.

Maine in Old Days. Although Maine was known as a "bone dry" state, Shirk declared, it never had prohibition until the federal law went into effect. In the pre-Volstead days, he said, the people in the cities could import all the liquor they desired from points outside the state while the Constitution specifically permitted farmers to make cider.

And Maine is an apple state," he added. "There were only eleven real bone-dry states before national prohibition," he added. "I mean, where men were breaking a law by getting drunk."

Wet Oklahoma. Harrell protested against Shirk listing Oklahoma as a wet state. The witness pointed out that the state law in 1917 permitted citizens personally to carry liquor into the state. He added that prescriptions were also issued by physicians for whiskey. "I don't think Oklahoma should be classed as a wet state," said Harrell.

"Well, you could get a drink," said Shirk. "You can get a drink there now," Harrell countered. "But you've got to tell a lie to the doctor," Shirk retorted.

Friess Draws Picture. A dark picture of prohibition destroying the morality of a small town was painted by Father Francis Kasaczum, pastor of the Holy Family Catholic church at Sugar Notch, Penn., near Scranton. "Drunkenness is on the increase, the insane asylums are crowded, wives are unfaithful and school children carry flasks to school," he said. "Saloons in some larger towns have been closed but in the smaller towns, I don't recollect any saloons being closed," said the priest. "None of the saloons were closed in my little home town. Now they have opened candy stores, groceries, cigar stores and pool rooms where hard liquors are sold. You can get it everywhere as nearly every home has a still and

LURE OF FIRST GAME MAKES BOYS BURGLARS.

New York, April 13.—Lacking both the price of admission and the annual grandmother alibi with which to gratify their desire to witness the opening game at the Polo Grounds between the Glants and Dodgers, two youths were arrested early today charged with robbing a candy store. They said they were Edward Gibbons, 14, and Arthur Polan. The boys' pockets were bulging with packages of cigarettes, candy and about 70 cents in pennies. They told the police they hoped to get enough money to pay their way into the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

JAIL ALL LEADERS OF PASSAIC STRIKE

Bergen County Sheriff "Breaks" Labor Revolt by Strong Measures.

Passaic, N. J., April 13.—Seventy Bergen County detectives, Deputy Sheriffs and Garfield police dispersed a crowd of 5,000 strikers at the Gaffield gate of the Fortmann & Huffman mill last night, after Sheriff George P. Nimmo of Bergen County had the riot act.

Seven arrests were made, including Robert W. Dunn of the American Civil Liberties Union, Esther Lowell, New York representative of the Federated Press, a labor news agency, William Winstone, a prominent official of the Workers (Communist) Party in New York; Nancy Sandowsky, sometimes known as the "Joan of Arc" of the strikers. Ten other arrests of strike leaders had been made during the day.

Refused to Obey. The crowd, led by Nancy Sandowsky and a large group of sympathizers from New York, insisted on continuing its picketing demonstration at the Fortmann & Huffman mill gate, the company having announced that it was to open the mill this week.

Sheriff Nimmo and his deputies and the entire Garfield police force met the picketers at the mill gate meeting at Belmont Hall, Garfield, and had been addressed by Dunn, Weinstein and others. The speakers had exhorted the strikers to stand firm despite the arrest of Albert Welschord, leader of the United Front Committee.

Miss Sandowsky refused to obey the instructions of the sheriff as to the exact manner in which the line of pickets was to continue its march. The sheriff jumped on an automobile, read the riot act and ordered his men to "go to it." They did, chasing the crowd with riot guns and clubs. Men and women tumbled over each other in their efforts to escape.

Then the sheriff sent officers to the saloons, where loungers were ordered to depart. Strike signs were torn out of windows. Citizens who gathered on the streets in the excitement were ordered indoors. The sheriff closed Belmont Park hall, the Garfield meeting place of the union.

In half an hour Garfield looked like a deserted village. The only signs of life were the persons in their windows and the police in the streets. Call Strike Broken. The Sheriff and his men were confident that the backbone of the strike had been broken by the arrest of the leaders, and particularly by that of Dunn, who was regarded by them as the successor of Welschord.

Strikers were disheartened because earlier in the day, Welschord, former school graduate and active strike leader, was held in $30,000 bail by Judge Davidson and remanded to the County Jail in Paterson. Another damper on the textile workers, who have been on strike twelve weeks was the arrest of Jack Rubinstein and Clarence Miller, picket leaders, and eight others who tried to picket the mills. In all, seventeen arrests were made, and nearly all the leaders and their possible successors are in jail, bail in the cases of Dunn and his associates having been fixed at $10,000 each.

ESCAPED BAD MAN RETURNS TO SHERIFF

Lyons, Ohio, Desperado, Says He Got Away Just to Show That He Could.

Norwalk, O., April 13.—Chuckling grimly that "he had shown them the could do it," James Lyons, notorious bad man of Huron county, was back to the county jail here today, under extra guard, after having voluntarily returned last night to Sheriff Edward Gregory's custody. Lyons escaped early yesterday a few hours before he was to go on trial for his life for the killing of Frank McGrath, a special agent. Lyons walked into Sheriff Gregory's house and surprised the sheriff as he had never been surprised before. "Hello, folks! I was the bandit's greeting, 'well, I am back.'"

WILLIAMS TO USE LIST OF 15 WITNESSES

Plan of Court Martial De- fense Does an About Face; "Drunk," Butler Asserts on Stand.

Marine Base, San Diego, Calif., April 13.—Contrary to earlier reports that the defense of Col. Alexander Williams, on trial before a court martial on drunkenness charges, would be brief, and that only prosecution witnesses would be used, Captain Leo Hermle, Judge Advocate, was furnished today with a list of fifteen defense witnesses.

Shortly before the morning session got under way, the defense handed the prosecution the list and included among the witnesses' names was that of Mrs. Williams, wife of the accused officer. Butler's Only Serious Evidence. Although four officers testified for the prosecution at the opening session, only the testimony given by General Butler, who came here from a hectic career as vice crusader in Philadelphia to relieve Col. Williams as marine base commander, was regarded especially adverse to the colonel.

Positive declaration on the witness stand by the general that Col. Williams was "drunk," with "flushed face" and "about to fall over," the night on March 6 in the fashionable hotel, the Coronado was the chief evidence confronting the defense. Butler Refused to Drink. Charges that Colonel Williams endeavored to force drinks on Gen. Butler, the famous Williams "cocktail party" were made by General Butler in the court-martial yesterday.

When General Butler refused to take the drinks, he testified, Colonel Williams sank them, ultimately becoming so intoxicated that it was necessary to assist him out of the public rooms of the Hotel del Coronado. General Butler took the stand in the afternoon and gave his first testimony on the incident in the hotel. "I was standing outside the ballroom," he said, "and chanced to look over my left shoulder and saw standing about fifteen feet from me Colonel Williams, Colonel Williams was apparently about to fall. His face was slightly flushed and had an unusual color. Then I glanced away with a feeling that he was drunk."

"In a few seconds I turned around again and saw him assisted through the doorway. As he left he was staggering and his feet were not under his body." Describes Incidents. Regarding incidents at Colonel Williams' residence, where the colonel was given in honor of General Butler, he said: "About 7 p. m. I entered Colonel Williams' home at Coronado. I saw the guests holding glasses in their hands, Colonel Williams being one of them. "I did not see Colonel Williams drink from the glass in his hand. As soon as the hat was taken from my hand, cocktails were passed to me.

"Later Colonel Williams came around to me and asked me if I would have one. I replied, 'No, thank you.' 'Here's one,' he said. 'It is very mild,' and he held the glass in his hand, but when I put my hand to the glass, Colonel Williams said, 'Well, here—' and drank the cocktail. "I realized the position was uncomfortable for me, and so moved to another position. I put my plate on the table near the door. I realized this by the conversation and by the look in his eyes. He talked loquaciously of the civilizing influence of radio in the home. Then he turned his attention to a pistol and talked about that, too. I saw he was getting full, so I went out on the porch with Major Rowell, so that I wouldn't see anything.

"Later the guests brought my coat and hat and we went to the Hotel Coronado, but before we drove away I glanced over my shoulder and saw Colonel Williams come out from his home and stagger across the lawn, and I hoped some one would put him to bed so he wouldn't come to the hotel. "From the hotel I returned to the base at 10:30, and thought all night on the matter."

Captain Charles E. Rice, one of the guests at Colonel Williams' home, testified that drinks had been served at the Williams home. "Was there liquor in the drinks?" asked the court. "I think there was a small amount. I drank four," he replied. At the end of the Colonel's appearance unsteady on his feet and like a man under the influence of liquor," he testified. On further questioning he said he had not seen Colonel Williams take a drink at any time during the evening.

"Hello, folks! I was the bandit's greeting, 'well, I am back.'"

BOUYS FEATURE KIWANIS DINNER

Club Members Enjoy Preliminaries to Main Fights; to Return Feed.

About every member of the Kiwanis club who was in town last evening attended the dinner at the School street Recreation center at 6:30. The dinner was the windup of an attendance contest which has been going on for the past four weeks.

The menu included vegetable soup, roast venison, mashed potato, boiled onions, rolls and numerous side dishes, winding up with apple pie and ice cream.

The meal was cooked and served by the members of the losing team and to say that they did a good job does not tell the whole story.

Immediately following the dinner, Walter Olson put on several athletic events. James Dowd gave an exhibition of tumbling and four young fellows, members of the classes at the Rec, trained by Mr. Olson put on a real scrap.

The musical numbers on the program included songs by Miss Gertrude Berggren who was accompanied on the piano by Miss Eva Johnson. Harry Boland sang two songs. Both of the singers responded to an encore.

At the close of the entertainment President Charles Ray called on Louis Talcott of Pittsfield, Mass. Mr. Talcott is a member of the Kiwanis club of Pittsfield and is visiting his father, M. H. Talcott of Talcottville. He told of the work the Kiwanis club was doing in Pittsfield and invited any of the local Kiwanians who happened to be in Pittsfield on Wednesday night to attend their luncheon.

Rev. W. P. Reidy gave a brief talk on the Kiwanis spirit and complimented the Kiwanis on the wonderful work they have done in the membership since he became head of the club.

F. A. Verplanck also said a few words on the work of the Kiwanis organization. Both captains of the teams in the attendance contest, George Glenney and L. C. Clifford, made witty remarks.

Because the "Hello Girls" the losing team did such a good job on the upper, the "Lumberjacks" are planning to return the compliment before long.

INCREASE IN ARRESTS UNDER VOLSTEAD ACT

"Before prohibition," the priest said, "a man got drunk and may have been his wife but the children were not the victims as they are today under prohibition."

Father Kasaczuk also declared immorality was on the increase to a "deplorable extent."

"When there are grass widows home, get drunk and become unfaithful to their husbands," the priest said. "They run away frequently with star boarders, leaving their children behind."

"When there are grass widows who make liquor, sell it and themselves at the same time. There has been an increase of immorality everywhere. The women don't mind putting on parties at home while their husbands are in the mines."

Baby Got Moonshine. "Why I even saw a baby, four years old, crying for moonshine. I asked the mother whether she ever gave her child moonshine. She said that the child might have been given some at parties."

The wave of immorality, he added, has ruined young girls. "The young girls nowadays hunt a thrill," the priest said. "They think prohibition is restrictive. They love to go on a wild party. Six or seven boys will get six or seven girls and go out to a cottage and put on a week end party. They have all the liquor they want and in fact, the girls won't go unless the boys do get liquor and they put on 'Fatty Arbuckle' parties."

BALLOON IN SOUTH END ATTRACTS ATTENTION

A novel scheme of advertising was resorted to today when a garage concern at the south end sent up a big balloon bearing its name.

The balloon attracted much attention from residents all over town and one person who lived in the outskirts of the town, thus being unable to read the letters on it, called The Herald to inquire the nature of the balloon.

BROOKHART OUSTED, STECK IS SENATOR

by Senator Butler of Massachusetts chairman of the Republican National Committee, joined with twenty-nine Democrats in administering defeat to Mr. Brookhart. It became known several days ago that Mr. Butler, who was reported at one time as favoring the retention of Mr. Brookhart, had turned to the Democrats.

Thirty-one Republicans, including nine who are considered more or less "irregular" voted with nine Democrats for the retention of the Farmer-Labor member, to keep Mr. Brookhart in the Senate.

Senator Bingham of Connecticut voted for Brookhart and Senator McLean for Steck.

COOLIDGE MAN MAY BE DEFEATED TODAY

this is the first major primary engagement in which the World Court has been prominently injected as a political issue. McKinley voted for the anti-court resolutions adopted by Chicago Republican organizations admonishing him to oppose it. His political opponents have capitalized it heavily.

The court, in fact, has been a big issue in Smith's primary campaign. Other administration supporters who voted reluctantly for the court and who themselves are facing trouble in the primaries, have watched Smith's campaign uneasily and with misgivings.

An Old Figure. Senator McKinley is one of the oldest legislators in Washington in point of service. He is completing his first term in the Senate, but prior to his coming in on the crest of the riding landslide in 1920 he had served fourteen years in the House. He has been a regular of the regulars. Very rarely has he ever strayed from the Administration reservation.

His real political difficulties at home began three years ago when he switched his vote on the soldier's bonus, at the behest of the White House. He voted first for the bonus, and then when President Coolidge vetoed it he voted to sustain the veto. This brought the "soldier vote" upon him. His vote for the World Court against the wishes of the anti-court Republican organizations in his state only added further to his political woes.

On the Democratic side of today's primary, leaders here expect George Brennan, the retund "big" of Chicago, to breeze home an easy winner for the Senatorship nomination. Brennan has had no formidable opposition. He has boldly taken a stand for modification of the Volstead Act, and the loyal legion of Chicago's Democratic wards are expected to see to it today that his vote is of substantial proportions.

HOOT GIBSON STARS IN FAMOUS NOVEL

Circle Shows Adaptation of B. M. Bower's "Chip of the Flying U."

When "Chip of the Flying U," the latest Universal production, starring Hoot Gibson opens at the Circle Theatre today and tomorrow, motion picture fans here will have an opportunity to see a screen version of one of the most popular western novels ever written.

"Chip of the Flying U" was written about fifteen years ago by B. M. Bower. It is a semi-humorous story, set on a western cattle ranch, with "Chip" Bennett, a cowboy and amateur cartoonist, as the hero.

Romance had made Lover's Island a tradition. Before each marriage the girl and her husband to be bowed there together and made their prayer to the god of love.

Clemmy, ward of old Captain Dawson, longed to make her prayer to the island god alone in the hope that it would bring romance into her life. But the island was forbidden to all but couples about to be married and Clemmy knew Captain Dawson too well to attempt anything of which he would disapprove.

This cast was supplemented by talent from the Throwing mill, the latter including a snappy exhibition of the Charles-Oso dance by Martha Reimer, Mary Nader, Kessie Angelo, and Eugenia Bycholsky.

The Men's Friendship club held its monthly supper and program. The entertaining committee, consisting of Archie Haugh, Joseph Lytle, William Black, Herbert Hutt, with the aid of their wives, put on a dainty supper of ham, scalloped potatoes, rolls and butter, coffee and cake and a goodly number of the men made merry. The Centre Flute band played several selections both at the supper and in the meeting upstairs. In the absence of Arthur Gibson, who was detained through the illness of his mother, George Ferris, the vice-president, took the chair. Report of the lecture by Bishop Anderson was given which netted the club about $55 after all expenses were paid. The principal speaker of the evening was Gustav E. Boehman, the agent of the Connecticut Temperance society, whose topic was "The Cost of Lawlessness and Who Pays the Bill." A general discussion took place in which many of the men participated. It was a very pleasant and profitable discussion. About thirty men were there to enjoy the good things. The treasurer reported all bills paid and money in the treasury.

The Ideal Home Garden—No. 8

Here Are Sixteen Good Rules for You In Planting and Care of Garden

This is the eighth of a series of 10 articles on preparation, seeding and care of the backyard garden.

In making your garden here are a few things to remember.

1—Plan your garden before you ever start the planting, so you will get the greatest possible benefit from the space that is available. Measure it and arrange your layout as a carpenter would build a house.

2—Provide for as large a variety of vegetables as possible. You will have more pleasure out of your garden and more vegetables for your table by a large assortment rather than putting in your garden one or two articles.

3—Start planting indoors in boxes or cold-frames, then transplanting to the garden, for the best results.

Escaping Pest Troubles.

4—Be sure to get the very best seeds obtainable. In this way you will escape troubles with pests and diseases and your production will be greater.

5—Elaborate or expensive tools are not necessary. For the small garden all you will need are a spade or spading fork, a hoe, a steel rake, a line with two stakes, an atomizer-sprayer, a trowel and watering can.

6—Visit your garden early every morning while the dew is hanging on every plant. Perhaps some insect attack has started or some injury been inflicted which requires immediate attention.

7—The frequent stirring of the surface soil with a steel rake, especially during dry weather, will stimulate the growth of the plants and keep away the weeds.

8—Frequent light sprinkling of the garden is injurious. The proper method is to soak the soil thoroughly about once each week, preferably during the evening, and to loosen the surface the following morning by cultivation.

9—Early cabbage plants, kale, onion sets, smooth peas, potatoes and radishes should be planted two weeks before the average date of the last killing frost.

Beets, Swiss chard, carrots, lettuce, wrinkled peas, spinach and cauliflower may be planted about the date of the last killing frost.

Beans, parsnips, salisly, melons, cucumbers, tomatoes and sweet potatoes may be planted after the last killing frost.

12—Heat-loving plants, such as peppers, eggplants, lima beans and squashes, should not be planted in the open ground before it has thoroughly warmed, about four weeks after the last killing frost.

Arrangement.

13—It is essential that the garden be so arranged that the tall-growing crops will not shade the smaller ones.

14—In planting, leave sufficient space between the rows to provide for tillage. From 12 to 18 inches is a good average between rows, and 2 to 4 inches between plants.

15—Foliage crops, such as lettuce and spinach, are likely to do better in partial shade than the fruit crops, such as tomatoes and beans.

16—Keep busy in your garden. Cultivate. Watch for pests. An ounce of prevention beats a pound of cure.

Rules for Watering.

Summer watering should be done in the evening, giving the water all night to reach roots.

Spring and Fall Watering should be done in the morning so that the foliage is dry before night.

Reach the Roots with the water. Sprinkling the surface is useless.

Wet Foliage is subject to sun scald on bright days. Never Displace or Pack the Soil. Water evenly and without force.

The Soil should be moist, not wet.

TOMORROW: Roses and Other Flowers.

REAL BUTCHER SHOP ON STAGE AT STATE

Innovation Tomorrow Night; Last Showings of "The Sea Beast" Tonight.

To night will be your last chance to see the most wonder picture ever made with America's greatest actor, John Barrymore, in "The Sea Beast." If you miss this picture you will never see it again as it is the picture that every one is talking about. "The Sea Beast" will be shown at two performances tonight, one at 7:00 and the other at 9:00. This production has never been shown anywhere at these prices—30 and 40 cents.

Tomorrow night the State has a surprise in store for you and that is a real butcher shop night. There are going to be real butchers on the stage and order as much meat as you want for your next day's dinner.

If you want a roast, you get a roast. If you want a steak you get a steak. Every thing in the meat line will be of the very best furnished by Robert Kittle. Don't miss it. There is going to be a lot of fun. With the butcher shop night there's also going to be a double feature bill; Lou Tellegen in "With This Ring," and a super cast in "Rocking the Moon."

A marriage vow is the same, no matter where or under what conditions it is said, if the sentiment which prompts it is sincere. This is the theme of "With This Ring," the B. F. Schulberg picture, which comes tomorrow to the State theater. How can there be conventions on a South Sea island when the only living persons there are a man and a woman? That argument causes a lot of misunderstanding and a lot of interest in this unusual picture. Alvie Mills, Lou Tellegen, Forrest Stanley and Donald Keith, head the all-star cast. The other feature is "Rocking the Moon."

What a surprise the average film fan will register when he or she sees the screen version of Barrett Wiloughby's novel, "Rocking the Moon," booked to show at the State Theater, tomorrow. Not the Alaska with its ice and snow and driving sleet storms, but the Alaska of sunshine, with its flowers and summer temperature, with its great blue fox farms and wondrous natural scenery.

Director George Melford, with his company of players, spent six weeks in and around Juneau, Sitka and other Alaskan cities where the picture was filmed. He has secured some of the most beautiful scenes ever filmed.

Lilyan Tashman, John Bowers, Rockliffe Fellowes, Luke Cosgrave, Laska Winter, Eugene Pallette and Evelyn Selbie will be seen in the production which is said to be one of unusual interest and photographic quality a gem.

CAMP PIONEER RALLY.

There is a big time in store for every scout as well as his father, mother and friends at the High School hall Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Fredrick C. Hill, scout executive will be present with motion picture reels as well as slides of Camp Pioneer. You will recognize many Manchester scouts in these pictures.

Certain sections will be reserved for each troop and scouts are requested to come in uniform and sit with their individual troop. Every boy who attended Camp Pioneer will enjoy every minute of this program.

Help State Forester Plant Trees.

The following scouts have been appointed from the Manchester district to assist in planting trees in the Mohawk State Park, under the direction of Assistant Scout Executive Edward Machol, from April 28 to May 2:

Troop No. 1—Franklin Smith and William Johnson.

Troop No. 2—Francis Haraburda
Troop No. 3—Elliott Knight
Troop No. 4—Ruthven Edwell
Troop No. 5—Carl Hallongren
Troop No. 6—Eric Modean
Troop No. 7—Francis Burr

The party will be organized as a troop with patrol leaders in charge of patrols and Mr. Machol acting as scoutmaster.

There will be plenty of time for fun and recreation and some new stunts in camp cookery and camp-craft will be shown. They say there is good trout fishing in the streams. Evenings will be spent around the camp-fire, with story-telling and stunts.

Scouts wishing to work on their Forestry M. B. will have an opportunity at this time.

Food will be furnished by the State and transportation by headquarters and the State. There will be no expense to the scouts.

Bring three heavy blankets, toilet articles including towels, scout knife and axe, fishing tackle, rubber boots if you have them, good rubbers and shoes, poncho or rain coat, camera, flashlight and other articles you may choose. Also

DRY WOMEN.

There is something utterly naive in the complaint of those women who sought to testify at the wet-and-dry hearings in Washington yesterday, on the dry side, that they were unable to properly present their testimony because Senator James B. Reed, the only wet on the committee, unfairly consumed much of their allotted time in cross-examining a few of the witnesses.

We have no love for Jim Reed. He is, in our way of thinking, an odious person. As for being unfair, why, he never was fair about anything in his life. And he probably did take a mean advantage of his position to annoy and embarrass these women, who went before the committee in good faith, full of their purpose of telling what they thought about prohibition.

But there is humor in the situation just the same. Here we have some sixty or seventy militant female crusaders, come to Washington to tell the country what to do about rum—to insist not only that there be no loosening of the restrictions on liquor but instead better and stouter and more air tight enforcement—and we find them balked in their very first move by the perfectly legal, perfectly respectable and altogether customary parliamentary device of a single individual acting entirely within his rights. And they cry out that the fight isn't fair.

These are the people who propose to tell how to enforce prohibition.

What would they do, one wonders, if they were allowed to take over the whole business of prohibition enforcement? If they got up against not little Jim Reed—a mere senatorial wasp—but against the whole, sinister institution of moonshine, smuggling and bootlegging, with its tens of thousands of unscrupulous and dangerous human units, its hundreds of millions of money, its enormous intrigue utterly beyond the comprehension of these sheltered souls, its hundred ardent supporters for every one of theirs, its ruthless violence—and what is its fact sanction by a society that, in many an instance, embraces the bread winners of these feminine zealots, beyond doubt?

Frankly, since nothing could be worse than the present morass in which we are mired, we should like to see the prohibition women of the United States given absolute sway in the business of drying up the country. We should like to see Congress pass and the President sign any and every law that the women reformers of the country could agree on, even to providing death on the gallows, if necessary, for the mother who gave her child a teaspoonful of whiskey in a pneumonia crisis, or drawing and quartering for the grocer who sold a bottle of Jamaica ginger. We should like to see a woman at the head of the entire enforcement service, women federal judges by the hundreds appointed, women given carte blanche to build more jails and electric chairs.

We should like to see these things because we believe that out of them would come realization. And with realization the women's uplift organizations of the country could be depended on, very quickly, to turn in and help do something real about the liquor problem—rapidly becoming the most serious one with which this country has ever been confronted.

COL. WILLIAMS.

Colonel Williams, Marine officer accused by Gen. Smedley D. Butler of drunkenness and incapacity for duty, seems to have solved an exceedingly delicate problem.

Colonel Williams, it will be remembered, was host at a dinner given in honor of General Butler when the latter, having been bounced from his job of "cleaning up" Philadelphia during a long leave of absence, arrived at the Pacific coast Marine base to take command. The dinner was followed by a dance at a hotel and it is at this dance that Colonel Williams is alleged to have been drunk and incapacitated, though it has also been frequently asserted that at the dinner which Butler attended there were cocktails and that a toast was drunk to him.

Now if the charges against Williams were made of whole cloth there would be nothing simpler than for him to plead not guilty before a court martial and call in as many officers and their wives and daughters from among the guests as might be necessary to disprove that there had been any drinking.

But of course no such situation existed. It never does exist in any army or navy social affair. Let dry theorists and others deplore the fact as they may, neither arm of the military establishment pays the slightest attention to prohibition, or to prohibitory regulations of its own department, in its social life. The only time that an army or navy dinner or dance goes on without the enlightenment of liquor of some sort is when, if ever, it can't be got.

So that if Colonel Williams undertook to disprove Butler's charges of intoxication he stood, on the face of it, in the position of letting his associates and their women folks in for admissions which might, in turn, break all of them. And it would not be according to the chivalric traditions of the service to do a thing like that.

On the other hand an officer of the military service, of long standing and with an honorable record, owes something to himself, and to his family and friends. To lie down under an accusation at least unusual and perhaps so exaggerated as to be in effect untrue, would be to acquiesce in a possible grave injustice. So that to plead guilty to a charge of which he might be wholly innocent or at worst only technically guilty would be just about as abhorrent as to fight the case by calling deuce witnesses.

This puzzling knot Colonel Williams has cut by the device of denying the charge and then adopting the unique plan of depending entirely on cross-examination of prosecution witnesses for the making of his defense.

Naturally this is risky business. It may mean that Colonel Williams will lose his case, that he will be beaten. But he will at least have saved his self respect.

STECK.

That the decision of the Iowa senatorial contest between Brookhart and Steck was arrived at strictly on considerations of the legality of the latter's election is possible. So is it possible, but highly improbable, that the first mundane aviator to arrive on the moon will find it to be made of green cheese.

It may be that a senator here and there voted, in the matter of this contest, solely according to his idea of the merits of the balloting in Iowa, without regard to political effect. If so he is a rare senatorial bird.

There is no cynicism in this view. We do not believe that the United States senate, as at present constituted, would commit the egregious wrong on a decisively elected candidate of callously ignoring the ballot box and throwing him out regardless. But this Iowa case is a different matter. The election was so close and the technicalities so tenuous that the situation was, to all intents and purposes, a tie. There had been no definite expression of the will of the Iowa voters. It took no straining of conscience on the part of a senator to vote either one way or the other.

In view of this it looks as though the Republican members of the Senate who voted to seat Mr. Steck, Democrat, and to displace Brookhart, radical Republican, had let their enthusiasm for conservatism run away with their judgment. Steck will be conservative enough, no doubt, and he probably will, for a time, vote with the Republicans' oftener than Brookhart would. But at the first good opportunity he will, of course, line up with his own denomination. And Brookhart will now be an active opponent in the Iowa primaries against Senator Cummins, a really valuable Republican, and will probably defeat him. The G. O. P. has made a bad play.

McKINLEY.

If United Senator William B. McKinley is defeated in today's Republican senatorial primary in Illinois it is going to be gleefully asserted by anti-administration partisans that his downfall is tantamount to a repudiation of Calvin Coolidge by his party in that state.

His opponent, Col. Frank J. Smith, has campaigned vociferously as an anti-World courtite. He has had the eager assistance of Senator Borah, who has made speeches throughout the state, assailing the administration's attitude toward the court and doing his best to bring about the defeat of McKinley, whose chief claim to celebrity is his reputation for consistently supporting the administration.

In view of this situation the quite possible victory of Colonel Smith is certain to be hailed as the outcome of revolt in the party against the Coolidge leadership. And quite as certainly it will be nothing of the kind.

Senator McKinley's weakness as a contestant in a serious primary fight in Illinois lies in himself, and not in his regularity. He lacks color. He is not showy. He does not make loud enough or long enough speeches, or enough wisecracks, to command the enthusiastic admiration of a middle-west constituency. He does not attend enough dedications of Bohemian and Bulgarian and Greek and Albanian churches and lodge rooms and Jewish synagogues, and doesn't sing Deutschland Uber Alles loud and often enough to establish himself in the loving hearts of Chicago's polyglot population. He is too much of a plain American and not enough of a mixer and a pander to European prejudices and clannishness.

The appeal made by Smith and his associates has been to the less intelligent elements in the Republican party in Illinois. And it has been made on specific issues of minor importance, cleverly chosen for their effect on the bias of each one of a dozen groups. That one voter in fifty in Illinois who today casts a primary vote—with the exception of the sopping wets who vote for George Brennan, Democrat—does so with any thought of rebuking the administration or of repudiating Coolidge is extremely improbable. In Illinois a senatorship is a local job and the fellow who can best please the mob with his personality is likely to get it.

IN THE SPRING

"Tis only the tale of a poor married man—a thing that has happened to me. Just try and recall the same thought, if you can. If married, you'll quickly agree.

Most any day starts and you're all full of punch. At the office you're plugged away. The sun starts to shine and, while eating your lunch, ya long for the end of the day.

I'll hie me out homeward, ya think to yourself, and I'll get out the rake and the spade. I'll get all the seeds and the bulbs off the shelf, 'cause a garden has got to be made.

You manage to plough through the long afternoon. Then ya grab up your hat and your coat. You're whistlin' a tune. Yea, the springy air's getting yer goat.

"Oh, goody, you're early," the wife loudly cries. (Now, ain't this the luck of a feller?) The thought of the garden work rapidly dies. She's planned on your cleanin' the cellar.

It seems funny to think of Alaska as a farming country, but Sutherland says it is—potentially. "And a very attractive one," he added, "because of the abundant wild meat, which was what made Kentucky and Ohio so popular with settlers in pioneer days.

"The growing season is short, reckoning by the calendar, but the 20-hour summer days make growth extremely rapid."

Now, mind. The soil in that part of Alaska which Delegate Sutherland recommends for its agricultural possibilities never thaws out except at the top.

It may not strike the uninitiated that vegetation can do well on a farm in a perpetual state of refrigeration underneath.

On the contrary, that's just what does make it do well. "The rainfall's rather scant, but plants get their moisture," says Dan, from the perpetually frozen stratum underlying the cultivated surface.

"Any crop will mature that states like Minnesota or the Dakotas can produce."

Sutherland's a Republican and he gives the impression, to listen to him, not perhaps of a radical, but a pretty progressive one. He doesn't like monopolies, at any rate.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, April 13.—If Secretary of Commerce Hoover dislikes monopolies as much as he appears to in declaiming against the monopoly of British rubber interests, why does he stand for them in Alaska on a scale that enables them to ride the territory half to death?

The question is Dan A. Sutherland's. Sutherland's the Alaskan territorial delegate in Congress. "It really is a spectacle for people to behold," he observed in a recent speech—"the high priest of American monopoly twisting the British lion's India-rubber tail."

Alaska's also together, too much in the hands of entirely too many government bureaus and hasn't nearly voice enough in its own affairs, according to Dan.

If a decline in population's any proof that a territory's being mismanaged, then Sutherland appears to have made out a case, for Alaska's population has declined in the last few years. The delegate, however, doesn't entirely blame monopolies and government bureaus for that.

"The war started it," he explains. "We had an unusual proportion of adventurous, young, husky, unmarried men—just the soldier type. They began leaving, with the Canadian forces, long before the United States went in."

"Neither did they very generally come back," he continued. "A great many were killed. Placer mining was about played out, too, so, of the survivors, large numbers once away, scattered to other fields.

"When the falling off had reached bedrock, the territory, for various reasons, didn't immediately begin to fill up again.

"It will however, Low grade mineral workings are taking the place of the placers. And, in my judgment, the cityward movement away from the farms has nearly reached its peak. I believe Alaska's agricultural development isn't far in the future."

It seems funny to think of Alaska as a farming country, but Sutherland says it is—potentially. "And a very attractive one," he added, "because of the abundant wild meat, which was what made Kentucky and Ohio so popular with settlers in pioneer days.

"The growing season is short, reckoning by the calendar, but the 20-hour summer days make growth extremely rapid."

National GLENWOOD WEEK APRIL 12 to 17

One week each Spring is given over to the featuring of the famous Glenwood cooking ranges by the thousands of Glenwood dealers throughout the country. April 12th to 17th are the days selected this year, when Glenwoods will be given prominence in our stove department. Here can be seen the large Glenwood line, which includes ranges for every type of fuel, sizes for every home, and finishes to meet the requirement of every housewife.

Come in this week and let us explain the many new Glenwood features—the new Glenwood Insulated gas range—the Glenwood Robertshaw Oven Heat Control for gas ranges—the Glenwood black enamel finish—and the dozens of others.

GLENWOOD Gas Ranges $34 up

Today Only Ruffled Curtains $1

Plain or flash voiles, hemstitched, with ruffled tie-back to match. A $1.59 value. The Drapery Shop.

GLENWOOD Coal Ranges $83.50 up

The impression that still remains with a few—that Glenwood ranges are high priced—is far from correct. Glenwoods are as low—and in many cases lower—than the price asked for inferior ranges. There are sizes to meet every home need, in plain black, black enamel or pearl gray enamel. Any Glenwood can be had on Watkins' Plan of Easy Payments—a small sum down and the balance weekly, or monthly.

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 13.—Dozens of music students in New York who are fortunate enough to have sufficient room in their studios to house a piano make neat pin money from their less fortunate fellows. On the bulletin board of almost any Greenwich Village book store or restaurant may be found a little sign reading as follows: "Piano for rent to those wishing to practice . . . 50 cents an hour."

One young lady of my acquaintance makes most of her studio rent by hiring out her piano.

These Village bulletin boards, by the way, give further evidence of the "small town" cross sections to be found within the "greatest city."

Just as Sam Hawkins posts his notice in the Punkinville postoffice, so do the dwellers of certain districts in Manhattan pin up little cards on bulletin boards in book stores and cafes. These boards are watched as religiously as the weekly issue of the Punkinville Blotter.

Anyone with an apartment to let or an Alredale to sell announces it from the board and no true "wily-lager" carries on his affairs in any other way.

Sometimes the bulletin board transactions are amusingly "small town."

The other night, in a Waverly Place eating place, I saw an appeal for a certain issue of a magazine which, it seemed, had been quickly sold out at the newsstand.

The sign read that the party wished "merely to borrow" the magazine. At least 200 persons appeared on the following day with copies.

And the advertiser, I learned, was none other than Miss Ruth Suckow, the distinguished young author from Iowa who writes tales of her homeland.

Any neighborhood event, which gets no place in the metropolitan newspapers, is announced. I sometimes gasp at the great number of "little theater groups" hidden in garrets and in cellars and unheard of outside of one or two little circles. But for the bulletin boards I should never have heard of one-tenth of them. "Where do all these 'art-seeking' youngsters come from? I talked with half a dozen in a cafe one night. More than half of them were from small towns in the hinterland where, they said, "esthetic effort thwarted."

Is it that I grow old? There's something strangely familiar about their remarks.

—GILBERT SWAN.

At the Old Price!

The Burton exclusive compartment type of construction is, we believe, the only practical way to build a silk floss mattress. This method, as shown above, keeps the silk floss in pockets, preventing it from moving about. It also makes it possible to build the mattress in a scientific manner, using the most material in the center where the most weight and wear comes.

The makers have recently announced a price advance, but we will offer them for the balance of the month at the old price, $39.75—on unusually easy terms, $5 down, $5 monthly.

He'll be the YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints when she learns she is wanted for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, secretly lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police photo as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness causes her to break their engagement. Mary writes Jimmy to tell him about it, but the office boy sticks the letter in his pocket and forges it. Jimmy gets a phone call from Olga, saying she has found the Jensen. Her voice ends in a gasping cry. Jimmy calls police and rushes to her apartment.

She is gone. While he and O'Day are trying to reconstruct the scene the phone rings. O'Day answers it and tells Jimmy it is for him. Jimmy tells O'Day to take the call. O'Day is supposed to know where he, Jimmy, is.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XLIII

"WHAT had the—" O'Day spluttered, but Jimmy Rand laid a finger over his mouth.

"Go ahead, answer it, Lieutenant. It's for me, it must be from some one who knows what took place here tonight," he urged.

And O'Day, still greatly puzzled, did as he was told.

"Hello," he called into the telephone, trying to disguise his voice. "This is Rand talking. Who's speaking?"

"Then, while he stood there with the receiver clapped to his ear, listening, Jimmy saw his face slowly color until it turned nearly purple. O'Day looked like an infuriated bull, but he, somehow, managed to keep himself under control.

He uttered a monosyllable into the mouthpiece. "Yeah." Then, "Say, who is this? Who the—"

He turned to Jimmy, the phone still clutched in his two hands, his face still red with rage. "Well, I'll be damned," he roared. "Of all the 'why's' he roped helplessly for words that would do his feelings justice.

"Who was it?" Jimmy asked. "I don't know, damn 'em. They hung up on me."

"Well, what did they say—who ever it was?" Excitement had laid its hand on him. He was trembling with it.

"Here's what they said," answered O'Day, regarding some of his composure. "It was a man's voice. He said, 'Hello, this you, Rand?'"

"I said, 'Yes, this is Rand,' and he said, 'All right, this is absolutely the last warning. The girl's out of the way. You're next.' I never—"

"My God!" Jimmy broke in, "have you heard the voice before, to my knowledge?" O'Day finished. Then answering Jimmy's question, "Lord knows what they've done to her. I give up. It's got me beat."

He picked up the phone again. "Wait a minute. I'm going to try to have that call traced. Not a chance in a hundred of getting anywhere, I guess, but I'm not going to be kicking myself later for overlooking a bet."

Jimmy said, after O'Day had finished talking to the operator, "You still think—that phone call—that there's anything in that second theory of yours, that Olga might have framed this?"

O'Day hesitated a moment before answering. "Lord, Rand, I'd forgotten about it for the time being."

He frowned. "Still, if the whole thing was a stall, there'd be nothing to prevent her having this egg you and try to throw a scare into you. In fact, Olga would be the only one to know you were here at this time, unless Jensen—if he really did follow her here—heard her mention your name while she was talkin' to you."

He said, rather mysteriously, "Jimmy thought: 'I've got pretty good reasons for thinking the way I do, Rand. I'll tell you about them later. I just want to do some checkin'.'"

"All right, go right ahead. My own private opinion is that Jensen kidnaped that girl because he wanted to find out what the police were after him. He wants to know how much she's told about him. The whole thing's a mystery to him, for I believe he knows nothing whatever about the ticket stub."

"My God!" Jimmy exclaimed, aghast, "Have they killed her too?"

O'Day also had thought it wise to turn the full glare of newspaper publicity on his search for Ike Jensen.

Accordingly, he had told reporters about Olga's telephone call to Jimmy, without, however, mentioning the fact that Jensen was wanted on a charge of murder.

To his utter embarrassment, Jimmy was besieged by a steady stream of reporters, who sensed, in the fact that O'Day and Jimmy were somewhat reticent about Jensen, that a good story was to be had from the digging up.

"They want him for assault," Jimmy told them in answer to their eager questions. "He waylaid me one night as I was going home. That's all I know about it."

Then how, they wanted to know, was Olga Maynard involved? "I don't know," he persisted.

So they insisted on photographing Jimmy, and running his picture in connection with the city's latest thrill.

And Jensen's, too.

SEARCH FOR HIM AS KIDNAPER

And then some enterprising city editor, who had known that Jimmy Rand had come from Grafton and was doing nothing, apparently, in Cleveland, sent a reporter to Grafton and dug up the story that Jimmy had come to town for the express purpose of running down his father's murderer.

There was a new sensation then. The papers sensed that Jensen was somehow involved, and allusions were made to that fact in their columns, although they were somewhat guarded allusions, due to the fact that the most the police would do was hint.

O'Day made public the telephone call for Jimmy which he had taken in Olga's apartment, and told about the several mysterious warnings Jimmy had received.

As he explained to Jimmy when the latter wistfully demanded why, "It will protect you, my boy."

"How do you figure that?" "Why, it stands to reason that with all this publicity they're giving to those threats the man behind them isn't going to take any chances by trying to carry them out."

"But can't you see we're spoiling our chances of ever catching Jensen? He'll sneak out of town now, sure."

"Maybe. Still, we didn't get anywhere by keeping our mouths shut. Besides, the first job we have is to find Olga Maynard."

O'Day hinted vaguely that he was thinking of "letting something else out to the papers," but when Jimmy asked what it was he refused to be drawn out.

The telephones at police headquarters and in the newspaper offices were kept busy answering calls from anxious persons who insisted they had seen Olga Maynard or Ike Jensen.

These were run down and, as is usual in such cases, they led nowhere.

Jimmy encountered Sam Church on the street one day and fanned that he looked preoccupied and not a little worried.

He thought: "If you've any conscience at all, the things you've done to Olga Maynard must make you worry. This could never have happened if it hadn't been for you."

He clenched his fists, thought wildly, for a moment, of assaulting Church on the spot, but snatched on.

When he got home he was sorry he hadn't punched Church's head for him. Then he thought: "In a sense I'm to blame myself for whatever may have happened to her. If I'd followed O'Day's advice, she would at least be safe."

The more he thought about her the more agitated he was at her probable fate. His eyebrows were as drawn curtain in front of his eyes.

"A black curtain, heavy, with a ghastly hand holding it together."

"My God!" he cried, over and over. "Have they killed her too?" (To Be Continued)

Let No One Kiss Your Baby on the Mouth

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING

Surgeon, General, U. S. Public Health Service

How to keep the baby well is a problem that is particularly pressing during the hot summer months. To keep a baby well is much easier than it is to cure him when he becomes sick.

When you are not feeling up to the mark you not only know the region in which the pain is located but often you are reasonably certain of the cause of the trouble. You can make your symptoms and wants known to those about you.

Baby Can't Tell Not so, however, with baby. It is not such an easy task to cure that helpless, inarticulate, suffering, bit of humanity. Every mother should, therefore, take precautions against exposing her baby to disease and should take the time to familiarize and simple preventive measures.

In a room crowded with strangers there is always likely to be someone who is suffering from a contagious disease or who may have come from a home where such a disease is present. It is for this reason that he may be protected from exposure to disease, that a little baby should be kept away from crowds and from crowded places.

Grown persons carry disease germs in their mouths. They are very serious invaders when they get into the system of a baby.

Against Kissing Kissing a baby on the mouth even by his own mother should not be permitted. If you allow your baby to be kissed on the mouth these mouth germs may be transferred to baby's tender mouth and may make him ill or even cause his death.

The first rule of health, therefore, is: allow no one to kiss your baby on the mouth.

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

Bit O' News!

The pallid manions which "even such countries" as Siam or Siam give their ambassadors, are cited to Congress as reasons why our own representatives abroad should be better housed "to uphold the dignity of the nation." This is the "keeping up with Lizzie" game, then, which there is no whither game in America, played in the seats of the mighty.

"It's a Woman!" Whenever the populace sights an automobile accident, this cry arises in a mighty breath! "The woman driver" has been synonymous of all that was careless and plain-darn-foolish in motor piloting. But this popular belief is even worse darn-foolishness according to a national survey just completed. With a mighty breath, state registrars of motor vehicles, insurance companies, police commissioners, declare that "women are much safer drivers than men!"

Coal miners' strikes, carpenters' strikes, plumbers' and street car conductors' strikes, and now we are about to have husband and wife strikes! A forerunner, possibly, of children and parent strikes! In Russia an entire village of wives congregated in the town hall where they wrote up their terms. "We demand we live under harsh conditions," they wrote. "Our men beat us, treat us like cattle. We shall not return until they agree to no longer lift their fists against us." The husbands promptly signed.

Color In Homes The "lady" of the older vintage who was raised to believe that no "lady" wore colored underwear, is the same who believes that no decent table is covered with aught but a primly starched white tablecloth. Too bad! I have seen the entire trend of homes change when mother dared spread orange linen on her lunch table and frost it with a bowl of color of sapphire.

Clothes "The successful business woman" spends something like $525 a year on her clothes, according to a budget table in a current woman's magazine. And even then the winter coat is but $85! Eighteen pairs of stockings a year contrasts with another magazine article quoting factory girls as saying that "a new pair every week are none too many if you keep your legs looking right."

What Women Are Saying "Twenty years in the practice of medicine gives a real opportunity to see humanity in the raw. The warmer of social life is worn very thin when sickness overtakes the home. When I retired from practice I realized that among all my patients of 20 years there was only one married couple whom I knew to be entirely happy," said Dr. S. Josephine Baker of the U. S. Department of Labor.

HER OWN WAY A GIRL OF TODAY ILLUSIONS SHATTERED

BY BEBE DANIELS

Movie Star.

"Look here," said Miss Lawrence to me as I looked her straight in the face, "I want to tell you something. I may be a sap but I almost believe that you really are innocent. We'll give you the benefit of the doubt anyway, but remember that I've warned you. If you don't watch your step and get all out of Buddy Tremaine that you can, the moment he sees some other girl that pleases him more than you, you will have to bid good-bye to all your ambitions."

"Of course you know he's married?"

"Julie, I thought I would faint. I evidently grew so white that even Miss Lawrence thought, I would drop and she helped me to a chair."

"It was then that I, who had thought she was so vulgar and horrid found out that there is good in all of us, for she immediately became kinder to me after that."

"I can see that you're not to blame in all of this," she said, "but I'm warning you. You will only be on the town in a few months if you go on the way you are going. Your reputation will be gone and even Madame Sera will let you out of the shop. Just now she is making a good thing out of you and that is the reason she is chaperoning you all over town."

"Buddy Tremaine is perhaps the most fascinating man in all New York," but his attentions are like poison to any girl who is seen with him. She is marked after the first contact.

"Everyone knows that wife of his married him for his money. Just as everyone knows that he was crazy about her and when he found out that she turned down the man she loved and married him for the grand things he could give her, he became another kind of a man entirely."

"Up to this point in his career, he had been a quiet, rather artistic sort of a man who had never paid much attention to any woman but the one he had married. Now, he became a rouser of the worst type. He seemed to want to take it out on all women as well as the woman he married for her betrayal of him."

"Naturally when his intentions got across Broadway, he had a whole regiment of gold-diggers like myself after him and he has paraded them in front of his wife in every possible way but she goes on calmly as though she had not a care on earth, not seeing him at all when he's with some other woman. She will not give up her position and that's that."

"It certainly was 'that.' I, of course, was heartbroken over it all."

Flavor is everything in breakfast oats

WHEN you find a person, especially a child, who "doesn't like oats," chances are they haven't tried the right kind. Get Quaker Oats. Once you taste "Quaker" flavor, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That rich and tasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 30 years milling experience. No other oats approximate it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. Thus those who eat Quaker Oats find laxatives seldom needed. Combines protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and "bulk" in excellent proportions.

"My Beauty Beliefs"

By BEBE DANIELS

Movie Star.

It is not difficult for a woman to have a good complexion if she will only pay a little attention to the care of the skin. Many women, on getting up in the morning, dab a little powder on their faces and a little rouge on their cheeks. This is harmful to the skin and shows a decided streak of laziness.

Cleanse the skin every night before retiring, with a good cream. I do.

In selecting a powder, one should always consider her color. Don't pay any attention to fads unless they lend themselves to your type.

Many times standard colors of powders will not suit you. You may get the desired color by blending.

Diet and exercise are vital factors in a girl's health and beauty. Beauty, as it is often said, is more than skin deep. Live outdoors as much as possible. Exercise above all. Play golf or go horseback riding. Live a healthful life and beauty will take care of itself.

WITH MACARONI Macaroni, coked and chilled is excellent combined with celery, hard boiled eggs, olives and mayonnaise dressing to form a luncheon salad. If you serve it with brown bread or whole wheat bread your luncheon is well balanced and adequate.

FOR DAY FROCKS The combination of taffeta and georgette crepe becomes daily more popular, particularly in black and navy blue for day frocks.

IRREGULAR HELMINE The scalloped helmine is, not only smart for evening in pastel colors, but for day in black or navy blue frocks that have simple lines.

Feather Daisies The high crown of this black gros-grain hat, and the four feather daisies of red, blue, yellow and green are new notes from Paris.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Nobody was working the radio. Nobody was even thinking of it. The Twins were looking for their kites to fly.

But suddenly the radio went, "Whoo! Wheel! Whoo! Wheel!"

"The idea!" said Nick. "What in the world's wrong with the crazy thing?"

"I wonder!" said Nancy staring at it.

But they were soon to know, for in a minute they heard a voice say faintly, "I've met it! Mister Tingling! Look for the magic shoes. They're right beside you. Look and see! I'm Mister Tingling."

ble of even taking a step, right through the house and down the steps and down the path to the garage where the two tall bushes stood.

Underneath the bushes it was quiet and dark and green—a sort of bowyer, you know. Exactly the place you would expect to find a fairy!

And pushing the leaves aside and stepping into the mysterious dark space, that's exactly what the Twins did find.

Not a beautiful gauzy fairy, like Silver Wings, but a fat jolly little fairyman, as round as a barrel and with a face like the moon. He wore an ice cream saucer hat with a feather in it, and he carried a very large pocketbook and a very large pencil and book.

"Howdy, folks," said he amiably. "I'm Tingling, Mister Tingling. I got that name from 'ringing doorbells. But you remember me, don't you?" he asked anxiously.

"Sure we do," said the Twins together. Who, indeed, could forget the dear fat jolly little fellow if they had once seen him! "We helped you one time before. It was loads of fun," they added.

"Fun! Is that what you call it," almost shrieked Mister Tingling. "Trying to get the meadow people and wood people and all the other people of Out-of-Door Land to pay me money when they don't WANT to."

But all the time one could see that he was secretly delighted at being remembered. That is one thing about fairies, children. They do hate to be forgotten, even fat fairies.

Another thing that pleased him was to know that the Twins had had a good time.

"We had a perfectly splendid time," said Nancy. "And I don't think people dislike paying their rents. It's just that the Out-of-Door people, the squirrels and rabbits and woodchucks and all the others like to think that they are smarter than fairies, that's all."

"Oh, you really think so?" beamed Mister Tingling. "I certainly hope that's it, for I dislike being disliked. I always collect my rents on the thirty-second day of the month and this is the thirty-second day of the month in Fairyland."

"Fairyland!" cried Nick. "Are we going to Fairyland?"

"Tush!" said Mister Tingling. "Of course we are. Isn't the meadow and the garden and the whole world Fairyland in the spring?"

The annual election of officers of Cheney Brothers Athletic Association supplemented by a classy four-hour smoker will be held tomorrow evening at Cheney hall and a real exciting evening is looked forward to.

The local High school baseball team is working out daily in preparation for its first game of the season which will be played Saturday, May 1, against Middletown High at the McKee street stadium.

So far the Shamrocks and C. B. A. A. are the only local amateur baseball clubs that have shown any real inclination to have a ball team this season. However, it is understood the St. Mary's will blossom out with one of the strongest clubs it has ever sported.

The Washington Trip party from the local High school will probably witness the Syracuse-Cornell regatta during their trip. The itinerary has the local party scheduled to pass the scene of the race about the same hour it starts.

The High school track team is working out steadily under the guidance of Coach Wigren. A tough slate confronts them with the opening match against Chapman Tech. of New London.

A PUZZLE A DAY

I am composed of ten letters. Each letter is numbered consecutively from 1 to 10. My 7, 1 and 3 form a wooden club; my 2, 4, 5 and 10, a heavy volume; my 9, 1, 3 and 10, tardy; my 7, 4, 8 and 9, a pus tumor; my 9, 4, 6 and 5, a weaver's frame; my 9, 2, 3 and 10, a pear-shaped musical instrument; my 5, 6 and 7, a crowd; my 5, 2, 9 and 10, a hybrid beast of burden. What am I? Last puzzle answer.

9 8 13
10 12 7

Here is the completed pansy garden at Mr. Burbank's flower farm. The middle bed was planted with purple seeds and numbered eleven. The other eight varieties of seeds were planted around it, each type in a different bed. By this arrangement every row of three numbers has a different total. There are eight rows, three down, three across, and two diagonal. 9 plus 14 plus 10 equals 33; 8 plus 11 plus 12 equals 31; 13 plus 15 plus 7 equals 35; 9 plus 8 plus 13 equals 30; 14 plus 11 plus 15 equals 40; 10 plus 12 plus 7 equals 29; 9 plus 11 plus 7 equals 27; 13 plus 11 plus 10 equals 34. A variant of this answer is possible.

HELPFUL HINTS GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO. CECIL LEITCH—THE SWING.

The word "swing" implies an action that is smooth and regular, and calls to mind the movement of and fro of a pendulum. This smooth rhythmical movement is what the beginner must try to acquire, and to do so, she must look upon her arms as an extension of the shaft of the club. The club-head is going to do the actual hitting of the ball, and it is to be propelled by a twisting action of the body.

In order to accomplish this action the player must plant her feet firmly on the ground and feel that her weight is thrown onto her heels. Falling forward onto the toes at the beginning of the swing throws the whole machine out of gear, and any mistake made at this stage of the shot cannot afterwards be rectified.

The first thing to move must be the club-head, and this must be done by a slight tightening up of the wrists, chiefly the left. The left arm must be kept as straight as possible during the backward and downward swing.

It is an utter impossibility for a player to jump at the ball without moving her head, a very common fault with beginners.

KING BASEBALL ON THRONE TODAY

Expect Quarter of a Million Fans to Attend Opening Games in Eight Cities.

King Baseball will resume its reign over the world of sports today in eight major league cities. With a flare of martial music, the fluttering of flags, the throwing out of the first ball and other ceremonies contiguous to the occasion, opening day will be observed this afternoon in New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Boston, Washington, Chicago and Detroit.

It is the day for which millions of fans throughout the country have waited with patient impatience since that dark October, in Pittsburgh when Cuyler's double down the right field line marked the end of Washington's hopes in the World Series.

Upward of a quarter million fans will witness the opening games in the various cities, with the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers due to play to the largest turnout. It is likely that more than 45,000 will crowd the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

Another sizable throng is expected at Griffith Stadium, Washington where the Senators and Athletics, two of the leading American League contenders, will hold forth. The Senate has declared a recess for the occasion in order that Vice-President Dawes may be present to throw out the first ball. This honor usually is reserved for President Coolidge but he was forced to absent himself from the game owing to the recent death of his father.

The Herald sports department will gladly publish all scores of juvenile baseball games this season and will furnish score sheets but these sheets must be filled out accurately. All names and figures must be easily readable and the totals of the summary must be compiled accurately. It is also necessary to state where and when the games are played. Otherwise, it will be impossible for The Herald to print the scores.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Three clubs, Washington, St. Louis and Chicago, waged a great fight for double-play honors in the American League last season.

Washington finally won with 156. St. Louis turned in 164 and Chicago 162. Washington was high, despite the fact it played two games less than its rivals.

The poorest record was made by Detroit. The Cobblers in 156 hits, chalked up but 143 two-ply killings. The lowly Boston Red-Sox tied with the Yankees for fourth place.

RUMOR SAYS THAT JACK KEARNS HAS LEONARD BOUT ARRANGED

May Match Benny With Mickey Walker—Offer of $200,000 Made to Champion.

(BY DAVIS J. WALSH)

New York, April 13.—Jack Kearns, that famous collector of rare and well-done coins, will arrive in town this morning, hard upon the heels of the annual rumor that Benny Leonard soon will announce that he has retired from retirement, so to speak. It may be only a coincidence that Leonard also is due in town before the end of the present week but everyone is entitled to his own opinion on that point.

Anyhow, they have the Leonard-Walker welterweight championship match on the stove again and Kearns is supposed to pour oil on the troubled flames.

Money Talks They say he piled Benjamin with a lot of slick, city talk when both were in California recently and it now is intimated that the young man is about ready to forget maternal objections and remember that he once held a title that was worth rather serious money. In brief, the story is that he has decided to take the match, at least $200,000 in cash money and perhaps a pinch on the nose. Richard intimated as much today when he declared he had reason to believe that Leonard would break down and confess his disinclination to ignore all that unchaperoned money. Richard seldom talks out of turn. He probably has the match in the bag, provided it ever gets beyond an oratorical contest.

No Change in Situation It still stands much as it was several years ago when Leonard's retirement threw the thing out of the window and into the ash can. A certain amount of natural depreciation might have been expected in view of the fact that Walker definitely has gone back and Leonard hardly can be as good as he was, after two years in the camphor.

However, as long as the Bronx has buttonhole makers and Broadway its cloak and suit men, a Leonard match will be worth at least a half million dollars at any rate. There is, in fact, only two things that can kill the goose prior to the laying of the golden egg. First, Leonard may decide to remain, as is Second, Walker may be knocked off by Pete Latzo in a title match at Scranton, Pa., in May. Some good judges of boxing regard this as being far from an implausible contingency.

Either of these developments would break Jack Kearns' heart, if any. He already has lost one champion and can't stand to lose another. In fact, he is doing his earnest best to overcome Dempsey's defection by shouting Napoleon Dorval into the title. In announcing his impending arrival, he refers to Dorval as "the next heavyweight champion and the man who demands a match with Harry Wills."

This may be swallowed very readily with tincture of applesauce.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS.

At New York—Jack Bernstein, former junior lightweight champion, outpointed Tony Vaccarelli, ten rounds.

Carl Dunfee, bantamweight, won from George Baldu, ten rounds. At Scranton, Pa.—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, featherweight champion, received the decision over Mike Chapin, Scranton, ten rounds.

At Syracuse, N. Y.—Referee Mike Hyla declared the fight between Dave Shade, of California, and Frank Moody, of Wales, "no contest" at the end of the fifth round. Both boxers had been warned repeatedly for stalling.

At Buffalo, N. Y.—Solly Seeman, New York lightweight, knocked out Ray Romney, Niagara Falls, in the seventh round.

At Pittsburgh, Pa.—George Levine of New York outpointed Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh welterweight, ten rounds.

STRICKEN DUMB.

"You say Cohen was so badly injured that he lost his speech?" "Yes, both his arms were broken."

The Manchester Community club are planning an Old Folks concert to be held at the Harding school on Wednesday April 21. Mrs. R. K. Anderson is heading the musical features assisted by Miss Mary McGuire. The event promises to be an unusual treat for the lovers of the old time songs of years ago.

Maurice Wallen, tenor, will be an added soloist on the program. Mr. Wallen needs no introduction to the Manchester public and his appearance alone should be more than assurance of a fine evening's program.

The April party of the Country Club will be in the nature of a supper dance to be held next Saturday evening at the club house.

The entertainment committee will have a chicken pie supper ready promptly at seven o'clock. All members attending are especially requested to be on hand at that time.

At a recent meeting of the committee a program of activities was outlined including a monthly affair such as the coming supper dance. One party will take the form of a treasure hunt which is rather an innovation but at the same time sure to be successful. Another will be a bridge party alternating perhaps with a supper dance. It was proposed that each Thursday afternoon and evening will be an open day at the club house with some one of the committee in charge. Light refreshments will be served free of charge and a general good time is assured.

Fewer Autos This Year Than Last, Is Report

Gasoline stations all over town are reporting a dropping off of the number of cars being used at this time of the year compared with the number last year.

"It cannot be the weather," said a garage man last evening, "for as I remember it, the weather was about the same last year. We expected that many more cars would be used after April 1 but we have been disappointed."

"It might be that the owners are only running the cars on Sunday to save expenses."

"Last year at this time the streets were filled with cars but now even on business nights, there are very few in comparison."

EASTERN STAR SOCIAL

A social and entertainment will follow the regular business meeting of Temple Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, tomorrow evening in Odd Fellows hall.
