

DOG ATTACKS BOY AND MAN; WRECKS STORE

Canine, Presumably Mad, Causes Panic on Middle Turnpike— Boy Bitten on Face— Given Pasteur Treatment.

Snarling and snapping, with froth dripping from its jaws, a dog, apparently mad, spread havoc at Main street and Middle Turnpike yesterday afternoon among school children; bit one boy and one man, wrecked a store and was finally shot. The boy was Tony Obright, of Congress street, Homestead Park. The man was John Howard, of Main street and Middle Turnpike. Both are under treatment.

Shepherd Dog.

The dog, a large Shepherd, came from nowhere, various accounts said. At any rate, Earl Campbell, owner of the filling station noticed it first at the time when the children were being dismissed from the Harding school. Who owned the canine, no one seems to know. It had no license tag around its neck.

Attacks Children.

A crowd of youngsters were standing in front of the Pinehurst Soda Shop. The dog coming up Main street sprang among them. There was a scurry and as the crowd of boys and girls ran in every direction, it was seen that one of the boys was lying on the ground with the dog snapping at his face.

The door of the Pinehurst Soda Shop was opened and the dog, seemingly blind, and weaving from side to side, rushed through the door. There were some children in the store and they rushed to the rear. Richard Bryan, the proprietor, saw the dog and realizing that it was mad, herded the children to the rear. The dog, for no apparent reason, turned about and ran out into the street again.

John Howard, a delivery clerk in the Pinehurst grocery was in front of his store. The dog in passing snapped at his leg. His shoe saved him but he sustained a slight laceration.

Calls Dog Warden.

While the dog was continuing on its rampage, Earl Campbell had telephoned to Dog Warden Fred A. Krahn. Men who saw the dog bite the boy, who is about nine years of age, picked him up and rushed him to the Memorial hospital a few blocks distant. Here Drs. Caldwell and Burr cauterized the wound. In the meantime the dog continued on its flight. A customer had just emerged from the Economy Grocery store, three doors south of Middle Turnpike, and left the door open. Louis Breen, the manager, was behind the counter in the rear of the store. The canine then began to jump onto counters. Groceries were thrown right and left. It dashed into one of the show windows and scattered all of the goods displayed there.

Dog Exhausted.

Breen grasped a broom and forced it into the rear of the store and locked the door. The dog then rushed to the front of the store and by this time was almost exhausted. It got its head caught in the meshes of a wire display stand and there it lay growling.

Dog Warden Krahn arrived.

With him was Former Patrolman Lester McIntosh, with a piece of heavy twine lassoed the animal. Another piece of cord was bound about its jaws and its feet also were bound. Then the animal was dragged to the rear of the Economy store where it was shot by the dog warden.

Head Cut Off.

Dr. Caldwell, as soon as he realized the nature of the case, ordered the dog's head cut off.

TOWN FATHERS AND ASSESSORS IN CONFERENCE

Discuss Linder System and Best Means of Carrying on Work—Regular Meeting of Board Held Last Night.

Manchester's Board of Selectmen called into conference after the regular monthly meeting last night the town's Board of Assessors. The Linder system of property assessment was the topic of the long discussion.

It seems that the Board of Selectmen has fears for the duration longevity of life, or sustenance of the new system if it is not properly handled and kept at times up-to-date. The value of the system to the town, now that it is installed, is almost entirely in the hands of the Board of Assessors. If the assessors are not in accord with the principles which the Linder idea follows the work that has been done the past year could easily be overlooked or ignored.

Discusses All Angles.

In order to arrive at some understanding of the present Board of Assessors' attitude toward the system and how it intends to carry on the work instituted here by Mr. Linder last night's conference was arranged. All angles of the difficult assessment problems were discussed. Errors that have come to the attention of both the selectmen and the assessors were threshed out.

The selectmen and assessors arrived at an agreement that the Linder system must be given time before it is judged. The assessors feel that it is a competent system and are willing to adopt it and follow closely the principles of it. Last night's meeting proved a most friendly one and a fuller understanding of the needs of the town and what use will be made of the costly assessment was arrived at.

Routine Business.

The regular monthly meeting which opened at 9 o'clock was a routine business meeting. The town's bills for the month of March were approved and paid. They will be found elsewhere in The Herald.

At the request of a property owner on Hill street it was stated that sidewalks would be laid there within a few weeks. Clinton street is now ready for curbing. The sidewalks will be installed there soon after the curbing is set and the contractors will go to Hill street.

SMITH LEAD OVER MCKINLEY 110,000

Defeat of Senator in Illinois Primaries Was Complete; Brennan a 3-to-1 Winner.

Chicago, Ill., April 15.—With more than a million votes accounted for in all but approximately 500 of the Illinois' 6,053 precincts, Col. Frank L. Smith today had a majority over Senator William B. McKinley for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, of more than 110,000 votes.

George E. Brennan, chosen by the Democrats as their standard bearer in the race for United States Senator at the November general election, on the face of incomplete returns led his two opponents three to one.

Late returns failed to change the early standing of congressional aspirants, and Congressman Frank H. Funk, of Bloomington, who went down to defeat along with Senator McKinley, remained the only incumbent who failed of re-nomination.

THIS COOL APRIL NO GREAT FREAK

Temperature Conditions in 1926 Much Like Those of Several Recent Years.

New Haven, April 15.—April temperature conditions in Connecticut this year have been duplicated on several occasions in recent years, according to Federal Weather Bureau statistics here.

April 15, 1926, had a temperature of 32 degrees as compared with a minimum of 34 degrees registered early today.

April, 1920, had an average temperature of 45.4 degrees as compared with the normal of 47 that covers a range of over a half century.

Only three times in the last ten years has an April developed much over a normal temperature.

3 Years Ago—B-r-r

DRUGS OR RUM QUESTION IN WILLIAMS CASE

Defense Hinges on Testimony of Doctor That Remedy He Gave Colonel Made Him Ill.

Marine Corps Barracks, San Diego, Calif., April 15.—Drugs vs. cocktails.

That was the question to be decided today by the court martial of Col. Alexander Williams, distinguished soldier of the sea, charged with drunkenness in a public place by Gen. Smedley D. Butler, Marine Corps firebrand and dry crusader.

Following arguments of prosecution and defense counsel, the fate of the colonel was to be determined from the effects of a drug used to counteract a bladder infection.

Expect Butler Again.

Before the opening of what was expected to be the final session of the court martial, a persistent rumor was in circulation that General Butler would again appear before the board, coming as a rebuttal witness to tell more in detail of his investigation of the colonel's "cocktail" dinner party and later his visit to the hotel.

The court martial board desired to hear a more complete statement from the general's lips regarding his obtaining signed statements from the accused's brother officers who were guests the night he was alleged to have been intoxicated, it was reported.

Butler Excited.

Testifying that brother officers of the accused had given testimony contrary to signed statements handed him by General Butler, Colonel Williams attacked the defense of Col. Alexander Williams.

Coming back to the court martial as a rebuttal witness, the general, his face flushed and evidently greatly excited, declared several officers had told him point blank that the accused officer "was drunk" the night of March sixth at the Hotel Del Coronado.

Drug for Bladder Trouble.

Acquittal of Colonel Williams, seemed possible late yesterday when the defense closed its case unexpectedly after physicians had testified that the colonel was drugged and not intoxicated on March 6.

Lieutenant John Henry of the Naval Hospital in Balboa Park testified that he prescribed the drug for Colonel Williams to "off set an infection" of the upper urinary tract.

Says Butler was unfit introduced after the defense had put Commander E. C. White of the Marine Medical Corps on the stand in an effort to prove that General Butler, the witness who testified to having seen him drunk, was physically unfit to observe whether or not Colonel Williams was intoxicated or sober.

Dr. White said General Butler was unfit to observe because of near nervous breakdown, and that the visibility of one of his eyes was slightly impaired.

NORGE IN FOG ON WAY TO LENINGRAD

Amundsen Dirigible Believed to Be Feeling Way Slowly Over Baltic.

Leningrad, April 15.—Absence of advice from the dirigible Norge caused some uneasiness here this afternoon, particularly so since weather reports showed that a dense fog is spreading over the northern Baltic.

Although the Norge was not expected to arrive here before evening at the earliest, it had been expected that radio communication would be established during the afternoon.

Officials at the Trotsky hangar here said that probably the Norge is feeling her way through the fog over the Baltic, making bare headway.

Giant searchlights have been set up at the hangar in order to guide the dirigible in making a landing after nightfall.

Flies at 1:05 A. M.

London, April 15.—The dirigible Norge, of the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar expedition, was observed passing over central Sweden, headed in the direction of Helsingfors, at six o'clock this morning, according to a central news dispatch.

Col. Umberto Nobile, taking advantage of the fine weather, cut short his stay at Oslo, setting forth for Leningrad, the next halting place, at 1:05 this morning.

Shortly after leaving Oslo, the airship ran into a heavy fog, rendering navigation extremely difficult, and compelling the Norge to proceed at quarter speed.

At 5:40 the airship established radio communication with the station at Washholm, Sweden, which informed Col. Nobile, in command of the craft, that the fog was apparently nation-wide. Nobile however, insisted that he had his bearings and was certain he was on the course.

Nobile, a dispatch from Copenhagen stated, said he would keep moving, getting his bearings from time to time from various wireless stations.

WOMAN M. C. SAYS DOPE IS DRY LAW FRUIT

Rep. Norton Charges Volstead Act With Murder; Beer, Wine Legal Now, Asserts Rep. Hill.

Washington, April 15.—A stinging indictment of prohibition was presented to the Senate sub-committee today by a woman—Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, one of the three women members of Congress.

Differing with other women who have upheld and praised conditions created by the Volstead law, Mrs. Norton told the committee today that prohibition is corrupting the youth of the country, destroying home life, increasing the drug habit, and "killing people" with its poisons.

"It is a disastrous failure, it cannot be enforced, and it should be modified," said Mrs. Norton.

Sincere prohibitionists "I believe a great many men and women endorsed prohibition when it became a law of this country with the absolute conviction that it would promote temperance," said Mrs. Norton.

"Many of these same men and women are now working for a repeal of the law they then advocated, because they realize it has been a failure and has not done the work accomplished through many years to make our country temperate. Prohibition and temperance have no relation to each other. You must have public opinion behind a law to make it effective," said Mrs. Norton.

"Therefore, it would seem that there is but one solution to the horrible condition in our country today—a condition which causes every thoughtful father and mother to wonder what will become of their children if the condition is not remedied. The solution lies in a referendum to the people and allow them to decide definitely whether or not they are in favor of prohibition."

Once Drunk Now Crazy

"The woman who used to suffer from a drunken husband, now suffers from a crazy husband, who turned to drugs because he cannot get good liquor," she said. "That was true in three cases out of fifteen which I personally investigated."

She also declared the morals of America's youth were being destroyed by prohibition. She also told of liquor being sold in government veterans' hospitals.

"I have a letter here from a veteran which says that poisonous liquor was sold in his hospital and wounded veterans died from it."

Can Do It In 10 Minutes

Congress has the power to legalize "in ten minutes" the sale of cider and wines, containing from 2.7 to 11.68 per cent of alcohol, Rep. John Philip Hill, (R., Md.) chairman of the House "beer bill" told the committee.

The act of a Baltimore federal jury in acquitting him on a charge of violating the dry law, after he had "home brewed" thirty gallons of cider and 25 gallons of wine, Hill said, was tantamount to legalizing his sale, if Congress would enact the necessary legislation.

The Baltimore jury, Hill declared, fixed cider and "non-intoxicating" liquors although the alcoholic content of his home brew ranged from 2.7 to 11.68 per cent. General Andrews, Hill added, subsequently approved the jury's verdict.

"Today, the Volstead act permits and legalizes cider and wine containing possibly from 2.7 to 11.68 per cent of alcohol," said Hill. "Today, Congress has the power to permit and legalize the sale of beverages to be sold under proper restrictions for use in the home. Congress has the power to pass such legislation in ten minutes, if it desires."

Referring to his "test case," Hill said: "The United States district judge defined the word 'intoxicating' as used in section 29 of the Volstead act as follows: 'Intoxicating in this section of the law means what you and I ordinarily understand, as average human beings, by the word 'drunkenness.' If this wine was capable of producing drunkenness when taken in sufficient quantities; that is to say, taken in such quantities as it was practically possible for a man to drink, then it was intoxicating."

"The jury under this definition, of 'intoxicating,' after seventeen hours of deliberation, rendered a verdict of 'not guilty' on all counts, and thus legalized beverages of different descriptions having alcoholic contents of from 2.7 to 11.68 per cent alcohol."

"Such beverages are not intoxicating in fact and are legal when made in homes," Hill added. "It is absurd to say that similar beverages are not equally legal and equally not intoxicating in fact it made and sold."

Andrews Returns
Rep. Royal H. Walter, Democrat of New York, and Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat of Illinois, followed Hill

The Ideal Home Garden—No. 10

There Is Some Kind of Flower for Your Garden

This is the tenth and last of a series of articles explaining seedling, cultivation and care of the backyard garden.

Raise some kind of a flower no matter how limited a space you have for your garden. There are so many varieties that you surely can choose some type that will fit into your garden and add a touch of beauty that will repay your efforts.

There are flowers that will grow in sunshine, others that thrive in shade, some that need lots of room and many climbing varieties that require no room at all but go straight up. Then other kinds thrive best when somewhat crowded.

In any angle or corner of your garden some group can be arranged. Along fences, walls or porches a boundary of flowers gives a touch of prettiness that your garden ought to have.

Hardy Perennials.

Plant hardy perennials to be on the safe side. They are easy to cultivate. If you want to fill some little shady nook use ferns, pansies, lilies of the valley or violets. These need partial shade. Pack geraniums or salvias into a little massed bed. Asters, verbenas, poppies and pansies should be planted so, too.

For hedges American arbor vitae is very attractive. Exposure and dirt do not seem to hurt it and it is free from insects or disease. A few pointers on general care of your flowers follow:

Grow asters from seed. They are easily transplanted to the open ground about May 10. The soil must be rich. A mulch of manure will help. Spray with hellebore tea or slug shot. Tall-growing varieties should be helped with stakes.

Nasturtiums also are grown from seed. There are two varieties, dwarf and climbing. Sow in a shallow box, water and set in a sunny place. Be sure warm weather is settled before placing in the open ground. Moderately rich soil is best.

Lily of the Valley. Plant lily of the valley bulbets in early spring, six inches apart. This flower needs rich soil and part shade. The bed will soon become dense and goes on from year to year.

Clematis is especially well adapted for the screening of porches and must be given a wire netting on which to climb. They rise from 12 to 20 feet. They may be grown from seed, but to save time it is well to buy plants two years old. The best location is the north side of a building, where soil is moist. Build a little mound in the bottom of the hole when planting and let the roots spread out on all sides of this.

Study that backyard and the front yard for the nooks and crannies that a few bright flowers will beautify. Your work will be well worth the while.

Alex Goni who lives near the Marlborough line met with an accident while loading hay at Hewitt's barn at Hebron Center. The pile with which he was binding the load broke and he fell from the top of the load striking the hay floor with his head. He was taken to Dr. Pendleton in Colchester but it was found that beyond bruises and a general shaking up his injuries were not serious.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was held Sunday evening by Walter C. Hewitt.

A number from here attended the Easter cantata given in Colchester Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ward and daughter, and Miss Eunice Porter of Hartford spent the week end at the home of Mrs. Ward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Clinton Porter.

Mrs. Emily J. Rathbun who has spent some months at the home of her son Clarence Rathbun came Sunday to make a visit with another son, Frederick A. Rathbun, at his home near the Green.

Mrs. Sherwood Miner has a new radio, the gift of her son Charles.

Harry Tomchin has returned to Hebron after an absence of several months. He is back at his old boarding place at H. C. Porter's.

Monday morning a temperature of 12 above zero was reported from F. A. Rathbun's place.

A working squad composed of seven pupils of the Center school upper grades met at the school rooms a day or two ago and took hold of school room improvements in a practical manner, under the directions of the teacher, Miss Goodwin. They varnished the chairs and desks, painted the stove jacket with aluminum enamel, and made other repairs. Members present were Harriet Hough, Anna Mosny, Mabel Porter, Gazella Stanek, Howard Porter, Sam Bernstein, and Daniel Clark. The boys mentioned have made a strong, serviceable stand and library table for school-room use. They have also put in library shelves. In this way they have received practical training in the line of hand work and have saved expense for the town by doing themselves work which would otherwise have had to be paid for.

Miss Edna Latham of Columbia was the guest on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Waldo at their home on the Green.

Sherwood Miner who has been seriously prostrated by the grip is just able to be about the house.

Joseph A. Schmidt of Amston was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic on Tuesday, suffering with jaundice.

The library bridge whist parties have been given up for the rest of the season. Bad traveling and grip and the measles epidemic have interfered with their success for the last weeks.

Mrs. Della Porter and her son Roger of Springfield were here for the week end. Miss Dorothy Foster accompanied them on Sunday to the Porter cottage at Giant's Neck, Niantic, where they spent the day.

The Easter cantata, "The Risen Christ" which was presented at Colchester by the combined choir of that place and Westchester, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. William O. Seyms and Miss Marjorie Martin of this place, will be given at the Congregational church here next Sunday evening, the 18th. Mrs. Seyms will play the organ and Miss Martin will be one of the soloists. The time of opening will be 7:30 p. m.

This is the month when the dog taxes are due. Prices have been increased one dollar.

VAUDEVILLE TONIGHT AT THE STATE THEATER

By the looks of the line up at the State theater for today, tomorrow and Saturday it's going to be some vaudeville show. First on the bill will be Peters and Miller, versatile comics. Then Bell and Leclair in an act you will long remember—"The Check Room". For the third act

Mills Ivy and Company, the premier American dance duo. Next to closing Morgan and Ott in a comedy act "A Gentlemanly Mixup." For the final act comes Nellie Arnaut and Brothers. "The Bright Gems of Variety." For the feature picture for today, tomorrow and Saturday, the State theater is presenting Ann Pennington, the dancer of dancers in "Madame Behave."

A big buxom and sometimes bearded woman, "Madame Behave" is visiting friends in this city. She will be seen at the State theater this afternoon, Friday and Saturday, when the new Al Christie comedy, "Madame Behave" will be shown. So that you may not be disappointed, we will add that the two are one.

"Madame Behave" may be no "lady," for she is impersonated by Julian Eltinge, for twenty years the most famous impersonator of women's roles, but she's all there from the standpoint of genuine screen entertainment. The comedy is said to be a fit successor to "Charley's Aunt" and "Seven Days," both Christie comedies, which are recognized classics in their field.

Ann Pennington, the celebrated Follies jazz dancer, she of the syn-copating knees, plays opposite Mr. Eltinge and in the course of the action, dances the Charleston in the latest approved fashion of Terpel-chors art.

OPEN FORUM

QUERY: FRANK C. COOPER.

Editor, The Herald: The Chamber of Commerce has received a letter from the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal church, New York City, asking us for information regarding Frank Cyril Cooper, who formerly resided in South Manchester.

This name does not appear in the Manchester directories. I am wondering if you will print this letter asking anyone who may have known or has any knowledge of the present whereabouts of Mr. Cooper, to communicate with the Chamber of Commerce so that we may answer the inquiry.

Yours very truly, GEO. E. RIX, Executive Secretary, Manchester Chamber of Commerce, April 14, 1926.

Romance that is lyric in its plot, a locality that is made for spooning—and two of the most enchanting lovers on the screen!

That's "The Girl From Montmartre," a new First National offering to be shown at the Circle theater today and tomorrow.

Barbara La Marr, the idyllic, the sensuous, the alluring, is reported to be more attractive in this new release than ever before, while Lewis Stone is the last word in gallant adoration. These two artists are co-featured.

The play is laid in the supremely beautiful Balearic islands of Spain. It was adapted from the Anthony Pryde novel, "Spanish Sunlight," by Eve Unsell and directed by Al Green. An excellent cast is promised in support of Miss La Marr and Mr. Stone.

Also a comedy feature "The Cave Man," the Warner Brothers Classic of the screen. It proves that women are the same the world over and to be won by caveman tactics at all times. Matt Moore and Marie Prevost are co-starred in this film version of the gay Glette Burgess story, which races along at a merry rate of speed.

Moore has stepped out of his customary screen character as a poor trampled upon worm, and tramples all over the place as Mike Smagg, a husky coal heaver. Miss Prevost is lovely to look at and skillful in her impersonation of a bored society girl, who tries to tame the cave man and succeeds in falling in love with him instead.

Director Lewis Milestone has handled this comedy-drama with a light touch, and "The Cave Man" also boasts an excellent supporting cast. It includes John Patrick, Myrna Loy, Hedda Hopper and Phyllis Haver, who all gave highly diverting performances.

If you want real screen entertainment, you must not miss "The Cave Man."

PLAYGROUND NECESSARY FOR MORAL UPBUILDING

This is a good time of the year to remember our debt to those unselfish and far-seeing men and women who have made play the regular thing for boys and girls, and placed playgrounds on the list of a city's necessities. Our industrial pace was so swift for years that we were almost forgetting the prerogative of the younger citizens. The top and the marble, the harmonica and swing and sled, the games beloved immemorially of boys and the outdoor pastimes dear to the heart of girlhood were in danger. The mild mannered persons who wrote and spoke about the importance of these things to citizenship and health were not taken seriously.

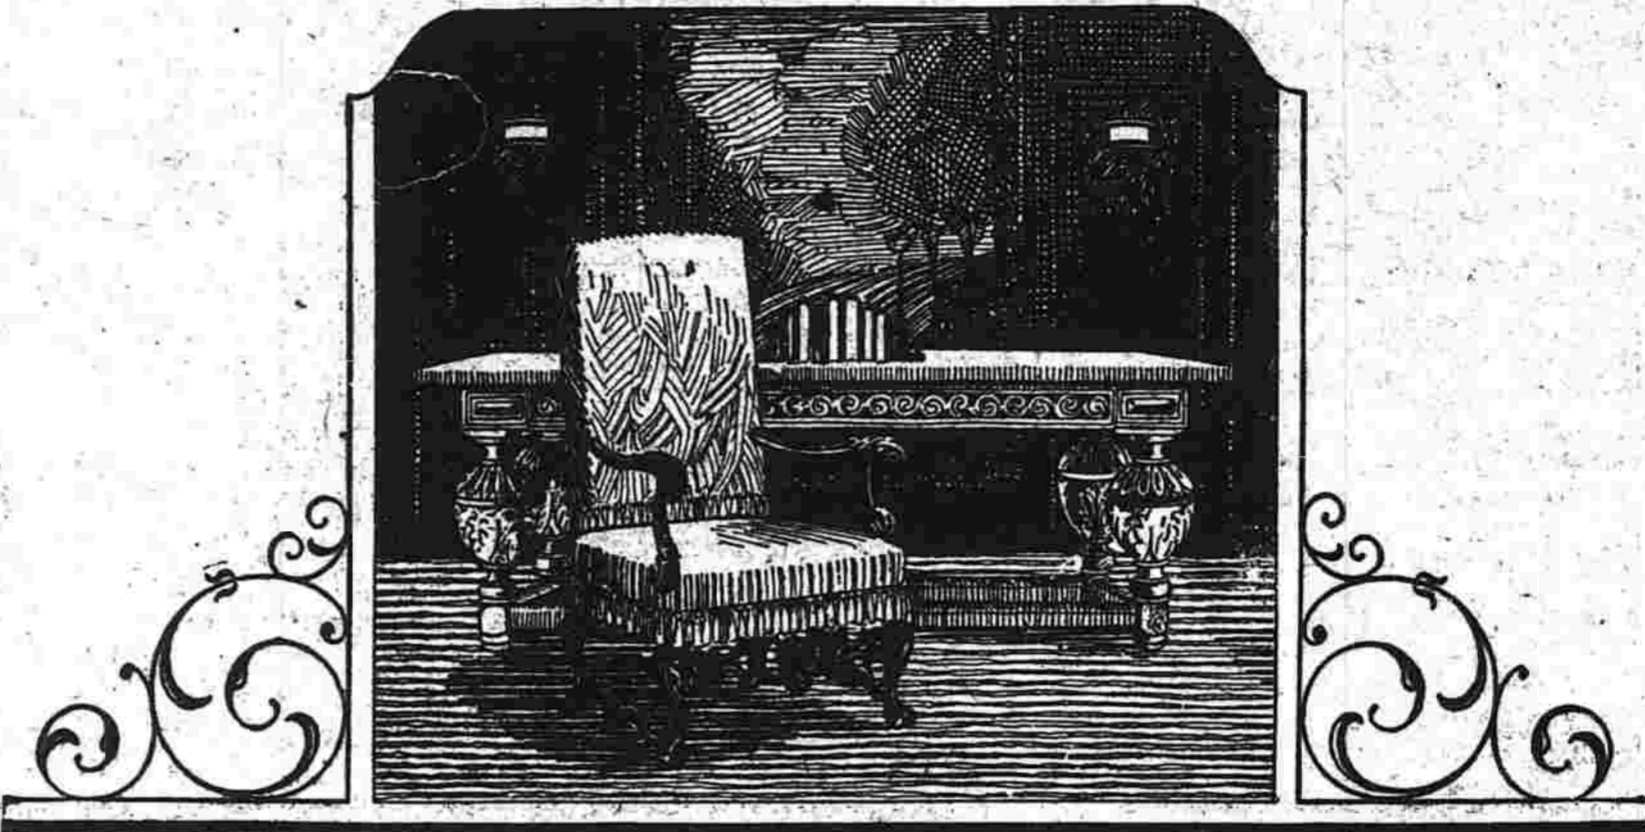

Whether boys or girls flower into upright useful citizens or degenerate into useless diseased or dangerous human wreckage depends more upon any other factor is their lives, or whether or not their play time has been spent in clean, wholesome recreation. This is the unanimous conclusion of probation officers, juvenile court judges, reformatory officials and all who have charge of protection or salvage of our nations' youths.

That is why they are unanimous in declaring that every community which does not provide the right sort of play for its young folks through establishment, maintenance and steady expansion of a year-round playground and recreation system is directly and inescapably responsible for the moral and physical destruction of every boy and girl who comes to ruin within its bounds.

NEW BRITAIN.

Gardner C. Weld, a "home town boy," has been elected mayor of New Britain by the Republicans of that city simply because the voters of that party abandoned the defeatist attitude which they had allowed themselves to assume, and went out and got back what belonged to them.

They did not even have the advantage of a vulnerable candidate in opposition. Mayor Poenness had given the city a fairly honest and decent administration. There was nothing to stir up concerning him, nothing especial to get hold of, excepting that subtle thing which does not make campaign material, that his social attitude is just a little inclined to be demagogic.

So that the New Britain fight had to be made through the strengthening of the party organization, oiling up the machinery and getting out the vote. A particularly good job along this line was done by the vigorous town chairman, W. H. Judd—and the result was a victory.

It has done no harm that the erstwhile Republican city of New Britain was for four years under democratic control. It might easily have done harm if it had continued so. There were increasing signs of a tendency during Mr. Poenness's regime to play the game as Curley played it in Boston—which is the Robin Hood method: "Take it away from the rich and give it to the poor." Just the germ of it, no more. That sort of thing is all right enough for a while and within limitations. Permitted to grow it can become dangerous, even ruinous. Under young Mr. Weld New Britain will not be administered for the sole benefit of any class. The change is timely.

OPEN MIND.

It is now up to the radical dries to whet their scalping knives and start on the war path after the hair of General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement.

General Andrews has committed the unpardonable sin. He has found fault with the Volstead law. He has admitted, on oath, that he believes its treatment of beer interferes with the development of temperance and the enforcement of the law with relation to bootleg liquor.

Obviously General Andrews has become impossible, from the standpoint of the radical dry. He has allowed himself to be influenced by his experience with facts. That is something that must not be done if one is to escape being listed with the forces of evil, the cohorts of the devil.

Yet General Andrews, out of the amplitude of his contact with facts of which the average dry knows nothing at all, has only followed the course of a very great part of the American newspapers which are now insisting that the Volstead type of prohibition cannot be enforced and that it is making matters worse than before we had any prohibitory laws at all.

It would be only fair on the part of the dries to remember that there was no such fight against the adoption of federal prohibition as is being made for its amelioration. There was, on the part of the press, a very general appreciation of the gravity of the liquor problem and of the demoralizing influence of the saloon. A few of the newspapers foresaw pretty well what was likely to eventuate, and vigorously opposed the 18th amendment and the Volstead law. More of them either kept out of the discussion or adopted the policy of so many of their readers—"It can do no harm to try it."

Well, we have tried it. And it has done harm—enormous, incalculable harm. It was openness of mind, rather than conviction, that led the newspapers, and millions of individuals, in the United States to default serious opposition to the dry experiment. It is openness of mind that enables them to realize the mistake and prompts them to advocate abandonment of an erroneous and injurious adventure.

It is openness of mind on the part of the chief liquor law enforcement in this country to acknowledge that the sale of good beer by the federal government would make for sobriety, respect of law and all around sanity and good order.

But openness of mind has no place among the virtues of the Anti-Skoon league and its associated allies. A storm of demands for the official libel of General Andrews is in order.

PUNCTURED.

A little baby blimp, a sort of five-and-ten-cent store affair compared with the Los Angeles or the lamented Shenandoah, is going along in a most business-like way on a trip from Rome to Spitzbergen, preparatory to carrying the explorer Amundsen on a try for the North Pole.

She hits it up to about fifty miles an hour—land speed—and she stops at each point on her way just about long enough to get her breath, so to speak.

There is a competence and a sureness about the proceedings of the Norge, so far, that inspires the expectation that she will hop over to the pole from Bergen, some of these fine days soon, with a little fuss as the crossing of a river by a ferryboat.

Our own Los Angeles was proposed as a candidate for polar honors some months ago, and the proposition was vetoed on the ground that the trip would be too hazardous for her—which it undoubtedly would be.

Here we have the extraordinary spectacle of a cheap little contraption costing possibly a fiftieth part or may be a hundredth part as much as one of our outlandish great copies of the Zeppelin idea, doing quite effectively things which probably none of the "giant" dirigibles could hope to equal.

And yet there is a considerable military party in this country which wants the government to "build 'em bigger and better" yet. Secretary Wilbur is back of a proposal to construct an airship several times the size of the Shenandoah at the cost of goodness knows how many millions of public money.

To what end? For what purpose? If a little gas bag with an engine and a propeller, costing a few tens of thousands, can go to the North Pole or pretty near it, and a big gas bag costing some millions not only can't even look toward the pole, but has to stay in the house and be coddled for nearly a year at a time, where does the "giant dirigible" get off?

Amundsen may not reach the North Pole, but his Norge is driving her blunt nose clean through the huge hoax of the over-size airship. Good luck to her.

FOLLY.

Whatever else the police of the little towns around Passaic are accomplishing by wholesale arrest of labor agitators in connection with textile strike demonstrations, they are giving a lot of conspicuous radicals an opportunity to make martyrs of themselves and stirring up class animosities that had been dying down in this country very rapidly since the war.

That the situation in New Jersey is extremely aggravating to the authorities is unquestionable. They are dealing with a difficult lot of people. But it looks from this distance as if, in trying to maintain order, they had laid themselves wide open to allegations of rank favoritism toward the manufacturers and of extraordinarily oppressive measures toward the strikers and their advisers.

There is a bad smell about demands for $10,000, $20,000 or $30,000 bail for persons accused of little if anything more than exhorting factory hands to stay away from their jobs.

The professional strike agitator is very often a sheer pest. He is a difficult sort of nuisance to deal with. But whatever form the dealings take, they must be constitutional and genuinely legal, or the agitator, in jail, will do a hundred times more injury to the social order than he could ever do outside of it.

BERGDOLL.

Having succeeded in giving Dodger Bergdoll a good scare and having shown him that he is neither forgotten nor forgiven in this country, it would seem as if the American Legion might call it a day, as far as this overplayed individual is concerned. Of course this on the assumption that the Legion had something to do with his prosecution in Germany on a charge having nothing to do with his war exploits, which it doesn't admit and doesn't have to.

Bergdoll made himself extraordinarily offensive, but he was no worse than plenty of others, after all, and it will contribute nothing of value to history to assume that America had only one disgusting draft dodger in the Great Adventure.

After all there wasn't such a tremendous difference between Bergdoll, a thorough Prussian who happened to be born in America, and one Jack Dempsey, who has not suffered greatly in pocket or otherwise, as the consequence of his war record.

If Bergdoll ever shows up in the United States again it will be time enough to give him some further thought. As long as he stays in Germany, where he belongs, the Legion and all other Americans might as well leave him alone. He is a poor creature, and poor game.

KING.

The Republican party of Connecticut is not likely to forget, in its future bestowal of condonation or choice of leaders, that John T. King of Bridgeport, when indicted for perjury by a federal grand jury, resorted to the defense that the oath which he is accused of violating was not properly administered.

There is no room in the councils of that party for individuals whose word can only be made good by a double-entry check on the phraseology and circumstances of a solemn declaration, let alone an oath.

DAILY POEM

VACATION.

"Well, where are we going, this summer vacation?" The family's all thinkin' of that. Of course they might visit some country relation—and yet, the thought kinda falls flat.

Big sister decides that a summer resort, with dancin' and swimmin' and such, is just the right place for a real spell of sport, but father's reply is "no much!" Young brother prefers that they get out the bus, and tour fer a couple of weeks, but mother objects, and she starts in to fuss—"I can't stand the rattles and squeaks."

Says she, "I'mma see—I guess that I'd pick the mountains, if I had my wish." And father admits it would be kinda slick—except that there's no place to fish.

The arguing lingers for week after week. They all KNOW the best place to roam. If peace and real quiet's the thing that they seek—they'd best spend vacation at home.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

Washington, April 15.—Herbert Janyrin Browne, the weather prophet who declared last fall that the summers of 1926 and 1927 wouldn't be any summers at all, but that we might expect to shoot our Fourth of July fireworks in the snow, got himself pooh-poohed for his assertion.

But just look at the spring we've had! Browne himself is not a scientist and doesn't pretend to be. For the strictly scientific information he requires, to enable him to peer into the meteorological future, he relies on specialists.

Originally Browne's interest in the weather was purely incidental to other activities he was engaged in.

He began his career as a newspaper man—a Washington correspondent.

Now there are undercurrents in Washington—changing undercurrents—which it pays "big business" throughout the country to know all about. Early knowledge—if possible, advance knowledge—of the changes enables "big business" to avoid losses and make more money.

A good Washington correspondent becomes sensitive to these changes. Browne did. So presently he became a purveyor of such "inside" information to a select list of "big business" clients.

"Very early in this game of trying to read the future, with a view to enabling business men the better to shape their policies, I discovered," says Browne, "that few business calculations are worth much which fail to take the weather into account."

"I turned to the weather bureau. What good did that do? The bureau insisted that a few days was its maximum limit ahead. A building contractor has to make his plans in advance of a whole season. A grain dealer must look forward a full year. Suppose you're a dry goods merchant—you've laid in your stock expecting a normal winter, and it's unusually mild throughout—are you helped by having the weather bureau tell you, so, a day or two at a time?"

"Well, it can't be helped," said the weather bureau, went on Browne. "By no means known to science can we make a seasonal forecast."

"I had my doubts, and looked into the matter, not as a scientist, but for strictly utilitarian purposes, to make my business predictions as good as I could."

"That's how I became a long-distance forecaster on my own account."

Browne's theory was that the earth's weather depends on the sun.

He went to Sol's observers for advice. The sun's heat varies, they said—not by very many degrees, but perhaps enough to make a great deal, translated into terms of terrestrial temperature.

However, with a cool sun, sometimes the earth was warm. The scientists had noted that. And it often happened, with the sun getting in its best ticks, that the weather here was cold. They'd observed that, too.

Browne was a sailor as well as a newspaper man.

All for himself, he evolved the idea that the ocean warms up and cools off, as the sun's heat varies, and that the ocean's currents spread the difference around.

It takes three years, he estimates, knowing the currents as he does.

There's the concentrated essence of the Browne-ian hypothesis of earthly weather changes. The weather bureau doesn't think much of it, but some scientists of very respectable reputation do.

Decline of Epidemics Is Gauge of Health Work. BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING, Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service. The evidence of success in health work consists in the absence of epidemics. How we have learned many of our communicable diseases and were health authorities not given the means of accomplishing this, our population would be swept from time to time by epidemics which would make those which have occurred in the past seem mild in comparison. With present facilities for the rapid transportation of human beings, a person may be exposed to a communicable disease in one state and reach any other state in the union before developing the disease. Vigilance at Ports. Constant vigilance at all our ports of entry is maintained by officers of the Public Health Service to prevent the introduction of disease from abroad. Through many cooperating agencies, and by means of its own officers stationed in foreign countries, the Public Health Service keeps in constant touch with health and disease conditions abroad. One of the most important events in recent years in the field of international health relations, was the signing of Havana, Cuba, on Nov. 14, 1924, of the Pan-American sanitary code, which provides for the collection and dissemination of information concerning the incidence of communicable diseases and prescribes and standardizes the measures necessary to prevent their transmission from one country to another. By its terms, when ratified by the signatory powers, the Pan-American sanitary code, of which the surgeon general of the Public Health Service is director, is made the central co-ordinating agency of the various member republics of the Pan-American Union. The importance of this international sanitary treaty as a health measure and as an aid to commerce in the avoidance of costly delays to ships in quarantine can hardly be over-estimated.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

If all the young girls are going to hell as fast as the preachers would have us believe, we're inclined to believe that hell isn't going to be such a bad place, after all.

As a rule, a golf widow's weeds do those her husband neglects in the garden.

If you have dollars the world thinks you have sense.

7. A noble thought—perhaps a text recalled.
8. A good deed—not left undone.
9. A brief prayer—for a friend in trouble.
10. A moment of thankfulness—for blessings enjoyed.

Ring of Prunes. One pound of prunes, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons gelatin, 1 cup whipping cream, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt. Wash prunes well and let stand over night in cold water to cover. In the morning stew slowly in this water until tender but not mushy or broken. Drain and measure juice. There should be two and one-half cups. Soften gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water for ten minutes. Combine prune juice and granulated sugar and bring to the boiling point. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Remove from fire and let stand until cool. Remove stones from prunes, keeping the fruit as perfect as possible. Dip each prune into liquid and arrange in rows in the ring mold. When firm to the touch pour in jelly and let stand until "set" and chilled. When ready to serve unmold onto large plate. Whip cream until solid, adding powdered sugar and vanilla when cream thickens. Fill center of mold with whipped cream and serve. Candied cherries and strips of citron can be used to garnish the dish if desired. This recipe will serve eight persons.

Last year about this time the markets were flooded with potatoes at a very low price. I rather expected that as the planting season approached and new potatoes were shipped from the south they would become more plentiful as possible. My thoughts to one of the chain store managers. He assured me that nothing of the kind would happen this year. Perhaps I looked incredulous, anyway he speedily produced a confidential letter from headquarters urging all managers to influence housewives to use the substitutes, giving as their reason for doing this that there was absolutely no supply to be had at any price. The price per peck is now around the dollar mark, some stores charge over it, some slightly less, and even at this high price the managers are cautioned to sell in half peck lots, except where the family is large.

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

BEGIN HERE TODAY HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing she is wanted for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland and later is attacked by two men but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mrs. Jensen's promise to marry him. Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as one of his assailants, he as the man who got the stub. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police photo as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. She breaks her engagement and writes Jimmy a letter, explaining, but the office boy forgets to mail it. Jimmy gets a phone call from Olga, saying she has found Jensen. He rushes to her apartment to find her gone. While he and police are in the apartment a mysterious phone call comes for him, threatening his life.

The papers are full of Olga's mysterious disappearance. Police Lieutenant O'Day then tells Jimmy he found a picture of Henry Rand, taken when a boy, in Olga's apartment. The thought that Olga may have been implicated in the murder, after all, comes to torture him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLV THE next morning there was a letter for Jimmy from Detective Mooney. He was still in New York. It said, and he had found Marie Rellane.

She was living in an apartment in New York, alone, still unmarried, and wealthy. But the amazing part, to Jimmy, was this:

"Twenty years ago she ran into Thaddeus Rand, down in Mexico City. He was living there. Had changed his name to Tommie Ruff. He came one night to hear her sing and recognized her. Asked her if she knew whereabouts of Henry Rand.

"She did, but she hated old Thaddeus and didn't tell him. She had never seen Henry Rand since she gave him the ring. That was years ago when she was making an appearance in Grafton. She never wrote to him again, not even to tell him about seeing Thaddeus.

"She hadn't read about your father's murder and was broken up when I told her. I think with her it was one of those romances that never die. I'm writing you in full and we're looking up Thaddeus Rand in Mexico City."

"Well, can you beat that?" cried

Barry. He looked at Jimmy in blank amazement. "O'Day told me," said Jimmy, "that Thaddeus Rand had said something about not being worthy of the name of Rand any more. It's not surprising to learn that he changed his name."

"He kept the name initials. Isn't it queer how people do that when they change their names?"

"Not so queer, when you realize how often they have clothing and jewelry and different things marked with their initials."

Jimmy showed his hands in his pockets and strode over to the window, to gaze thoughtfully at the street below. "I wonder if old Thaddeus Rand is still alive. Lord, Barry, this thing might be cleared up before we know it if we continue to make type herself, you know, that harbors a grudge for a long, long time. All she could see was old Thaddeus eating his heart out—it he could possibly relent that much—for his son. And why should she, with so much to hate him for, try to make him happy?"

"Oh well, it takes all sorts to make a world, I suppose. But if she had only told my father, things might have turned out so differently. All this—with a vague wave of his hand—"needn't have happened."

He sighed. "If Thaddeus Rand—my grandfather—had, he must have died very unhappy."

Barry stood up and signaled for the waiter. "I've got another confab on this afternoon. About that damage suit. I suppose I'll have another interview with your friend, Sam Church."

She grinned. "Shall I give him your regards?"

"Yes," Jimmy said grimly. "With a piece of lead pipe."

"By the way, Jim," and Barry tried to appear casual, "have you heard anything lately from Mary Lowell?"

"Why no," Jimmy looked at him keenly. "What makes you ask?"

"Nothing in particular," Barry shifted the subject. "I wish you'd take me up on my proposition of staking you to a little money until you get on your feet again."

"Nothing doing, Barry."

"Well, let me be your financial manager, then."

Jimmy laughed. "I'll agree to permit you to keep me from starving, old socks. When I'm up against it hard, I'll call on you."

Knowing that Lieutenant O'Day's rising hour was somewhere about noon, Jimmy hastened to call him by telephone and apprise him of the latest news from Mooney.

"Fine!" said O'Day. "He's a smart lad, that Mooney. Tell him if he ever needs a job there's a place waiting for him in the detective bureau here."

With Barry, O'Day agreed that it was not so strange—Marie Rellane's refusal to disclose to Thaddeus Rand the whereabouts of his son.

"If you ask me, Rand, I think the old boy had it coming to him. Punishment, you know. . . . And I think we're coming along fine now. Something tells me we're going to get at the bottom of this before very long."

"This thing might be cleared up before we know it if we continue to make had the notion, Jim, that you were in love with Olga Maynard. But she had never ever loved me."

"But Church—?"

"I just learned today that she had broken off with Church, and it was before I told her about you, too. Jim, she's crazy about you. But you're such a pig-headed fool. She wondered why she hadn't heard from you."

"Why didn't she write to you and you never answered?"

"Barry seized Jimmy's sleeve. "Come, let's move along. We'll get pinched for blocking the sidewalk."

Jimmy said: "She never wrote to me, Barry. I'll swear it. God! If I'd only known—"

They walked along briskly. Days later, when Jimmy had time to reflect, he wondered that Jimmy Lowell should have appeared just as they were talking about her.

It was Barry who first attracted his attention to her. "Speaking of angels," he sighed, "here she is now."

And then Jimmy saw her. The light of recognition was in her eyes. Words formed on her lips. And just as he was about to lift his hat and greet her he spied a familiar figure about to board a street car.

He wheeled suddenly and ran like a mad man, leaving a surprised Mary Lowell and an equally flabbergasted Barry Colvin.

HER OWN WAY A GIRL OF TODAY

Despair Of course I know now, Julie, I said Mamie, somewhat hysterically, "that both these notes were very 'high-hat,' but I did not know as much about the life of 'a poor walking goli' as I do now."

"Sometimes I think that it is all the bunk to try to keep straight. Here I am all broken up because tonight at the restaurant I saw Buddy Tremaine, well dressed among charming people, eating the most expensive viands on the menu."

"I thought to myself, if I had not been so grand and virtuous, I might have been for the last two years in all places where Buddy Tremaine could be found. I could be reveling in love and luxury."

"Beside all that I might be almost ready for grand opera instead of without hope of ever taking another voice lesson."

Mamie could not speak for paroxysms of sobs. I let her cry for a while and then she raised her tear-stained face to me and said:

"Julia, do you think it's worth it? Up to date I've not found any great reward in being strictly virtuous."

I, Julia Dean, sat there stunned. For the first time in my life I realized the temptations a girl had to face. I was almost sure I would not have come through Mamie's unscathed.

Poor, poor Mamie! I truly wondered if she were not right when she said that she had made a great sacrifice and had not even got out of it the satisfaction of feeling that she had made herself a martyr to a particularly good cause.

"What am I now, Julie?" she asked despairingly.

"I'm just a hat-girl in the Beaux Arts Restaurant in Chicago. Who cares what I am or who I am? Who cares, beside myself, whether I am virtuous or not? I will probably hold this position until I grow old and ugly and then what is there for me for the rest of my life?"

"Every night I see women come into the restaurant, eat the finest food, laughing and seemingly happy. They are covered with jewels, and the men beside them see no one else but them, and yet I know in my heart that these women are not what the world calls 'good.'"

"I'm getting sick of that word 'good.' I am sure if I had not run away from New York and come out here to Chicago, I could have held Buddy Tremaine's love and some day I could have given to the world a glorious voice and added to the pleasure of thousands of music lovers."

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Summer

My Say-So I found this in a book—not such an old book, either, called "Talks to Business Girls."

"In receiving a woman caller a man in his office should always rise. He should not wear a hat nor have his coat off. He should offer her a chair and remain standing until she is seated. Then rise and open the door for her when she leaves."

And if more women who have nothing to do but write books upon subjects of which they know nothing would learn the golden beauty of silence, those who must be business women could earn their livings would be far better off!

When you were a little kid and read the pink and yellow fairy tale books, what fun you thought it would be to be a prince or princess and suck lollypops all day long when you weren't eating chocolate cake! It seems, however, that among other woes of a prince is the woe of diet. Eddie Windsor, Prince of Wales, fearful that his torso may grow to resemble that of his late grandfather, King Edward, pleads for lighter luncheons and banquets, with dancing after each course.

"Gossip" "Before I knew how cruel just common talk can be, I thought that words were singing things With colors like the sea. But since I've felt their caustic lash, And know how they can sting, I hold my head when words go by For fear they will not sting."

Your Child "My neighbor called yesterday with the worst-mannered child I have ever seen." Mrs. B. writes me. "Although my little girl is only 2, I decided it was none too early to begin. Can you recommend a good book on child manner teaching?" Ask your librarian for "Everyday Manners for American Boys and Girls," also Hall's "Manners for Boys and Girls."

The Book It is not lover-and-lover problem that battles its way through the pages of the new books, so much as parent-and-child problems. Elsie Singmaster gives us another of her delightful rural Pennsylvania stories with "Keller's Anna Ruth."

Anna Ruth's father nipped her love affair in the bud so that he could continue to make money from her services. When he dies Anna Ruth is too old, too set, for future joy.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Mrs. Bunney wasn't a bit cross because Mister Tingaling and the Twins had broken into her house, as you might say.

Indeed she and Mister Bunney and her sister-in-law all had a good laugh, and it ended up in the visitors being invited to stay to lunch.

Mrs. Bunney set three more places, and that made six of them. The Twins thought they wouldn't care for carrot-pie, but really it tasted almost like pumpkin-pie. And as for plantain-seed cookies, you hardly could tell them from caraway.

They talked about the bad little goblin, Snitcher Snatch, and his relations, the Gazookumses.

"I tell you what, Mister Tingaling," said Mister Bunney as he lighted a cigar after lunch, and tilted his chair back comfortably, "you'll have to watch out for those young rascals. That Snitcher Snatch would do almost anything."

They all rushed to the window of Mrs. Bunney's house in the pine-tree stump and peeped from behind the curtains.

And this is what they saw and heard. Biddy Hen was saying, "Cluck-a-luck! Cluck-a-luck! I'm looking for a new house, so I can make a nest that Farmer Greenway won't find."

"I know the very place you wish, addam!" Snitcher Snatch replied, not knowing, of course, that anyone except Mrs. Hen was listening. "I know a fine place for a nest. I have a house in a big hollow log, behind some bushes, that is for rent right now, and you can have it if you pay me two eggs a week."

"Is it your house? Are you the landlord?" asked Biddy Hen happily. "I'll be most happy to look at it."

"Yes, these are all my houses," said the bad little goblin, waving his hand around in a wide sweep. "I am the landlord and you may pay me your rent in eggs. I'm very fond of eggs. Do you leave home often, Mrs. Hen?"

"No, not when I'm setting," said poor Biddy Hen. "I'm afraid my eggs will get cold and hatch. I just leave my nest about three times a day for a short time, to scratch around for bugs and food."

"Just when do you leave home?" asked the bad little goblin. "Maybe I could come and look at your eggs while you're away, so as to be perfectly sure they're safe."

"That's very kind of you, I'm sure," said Mrs. Hen. "If you'll just show me the place now, I think I'll rent it."

But just then a gust of wind came along and blew off the little goblin's hat. And Mrs. Hen saw his pointed ears!

"Cluck-a-luck! Get out of here!" she cried crossly. "You're a cheat!" And she made a dive at him with her beak.

But Snitcher Snatch scooted off and disappeared among the bushes. "Well, the very idea!" exclaimed Mister Tingaling. (To Be Continued.)

JACK KEARNS INTRODUCES ONE NAPOLEON DORVAL

Heavyweight Contender May or May Not Live Up to His Advance Publicity— But He Has Caused a Stir.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, April 15—If there is anything in this theory of transmigration of souls, Jack Kearns is due to be born again in the guise of P. T. Barnum. Making a vest out of an arm hole, he achieved the headlines in nearly every New York paper today with a heavyweight specimen known as Napoleon Dorval, who may or may not have an agate line's worth of fighting ability.

Napoleon is the same young man who, as Jack Dorval, left town about a year ago without so much as a regretful semi-colon being printed in lamentation. He virtually is in the serious money now, provided he has anything beyond a large foot and a little intelligence. Kearns has talked the young man into a position where the boys are taking him seriously enough to make unflattering references to his ability and anything of that sort usually is sufficient to cause the cloak and suit men to form hurriedly to the left of the nearest box office.

He came into town challenging Mills and Tunney, which is not as silly as it sounds. Napoleon gets credit for the challenge and somebody else gets the punch on the nose.

May Fight Paulino
The direct result of this impet-uous deft is that Dorval can have a match with Paulino for the asking as soon as the latter's foreign representatives make delivery on the imported pachyderm. This bout will be worth quite a lot of somebody's money. Another in the making is with Arthur De Kun, who has been knocking a lot of them flat footed in these parts.

The funny part of it is that Kearns has lashed the boys into a lather with a line of publicity which was so absurd as to be quite effective. He wrote that Napoleon was tougher than Jeffries, faster than Corbett, a better hitter than Sullivan and gamier than the guy who took a bite out of the wildcat's neck. It was so bad that it just couldn't be kept under cover.

Kearns Means It
Kearns seems to be sincere about his fighter, at that. He says the boy is extremely good and so does the other member of the menage, Mickey Walker, although asking the latter anything about Kearns' business is of durable value.

One might just as well ask Heinz if he likes pickles.

WIN PRO BASKETBALL BUNTING

Presenting the Cleveland Rosenblums, winners of the American Professional Basketball League championship. They came into the title by defeating Brooklyn in the circuit's first world series. Brooklyn, it will be recalled, won the first half honors, and Cleveland the second, the play-off for the pennant being the result. Cleveland skipped through the second half with 13 wins against one defeat. Washington was the only quintet to trip the Fifth City tossers in the latter section.

Cleveland was coached by the veteran Marty Friedman, Hickey and Husta were the regular forwards; Deighan, center, and Russell and Kerr, guards. Sheppard and Guenther played substitute roles with Friedman also getting into the game at various intervals.

MURPHY AND ECCELLENTI BOUT DECLARED DRAW; OTHER RESULTS

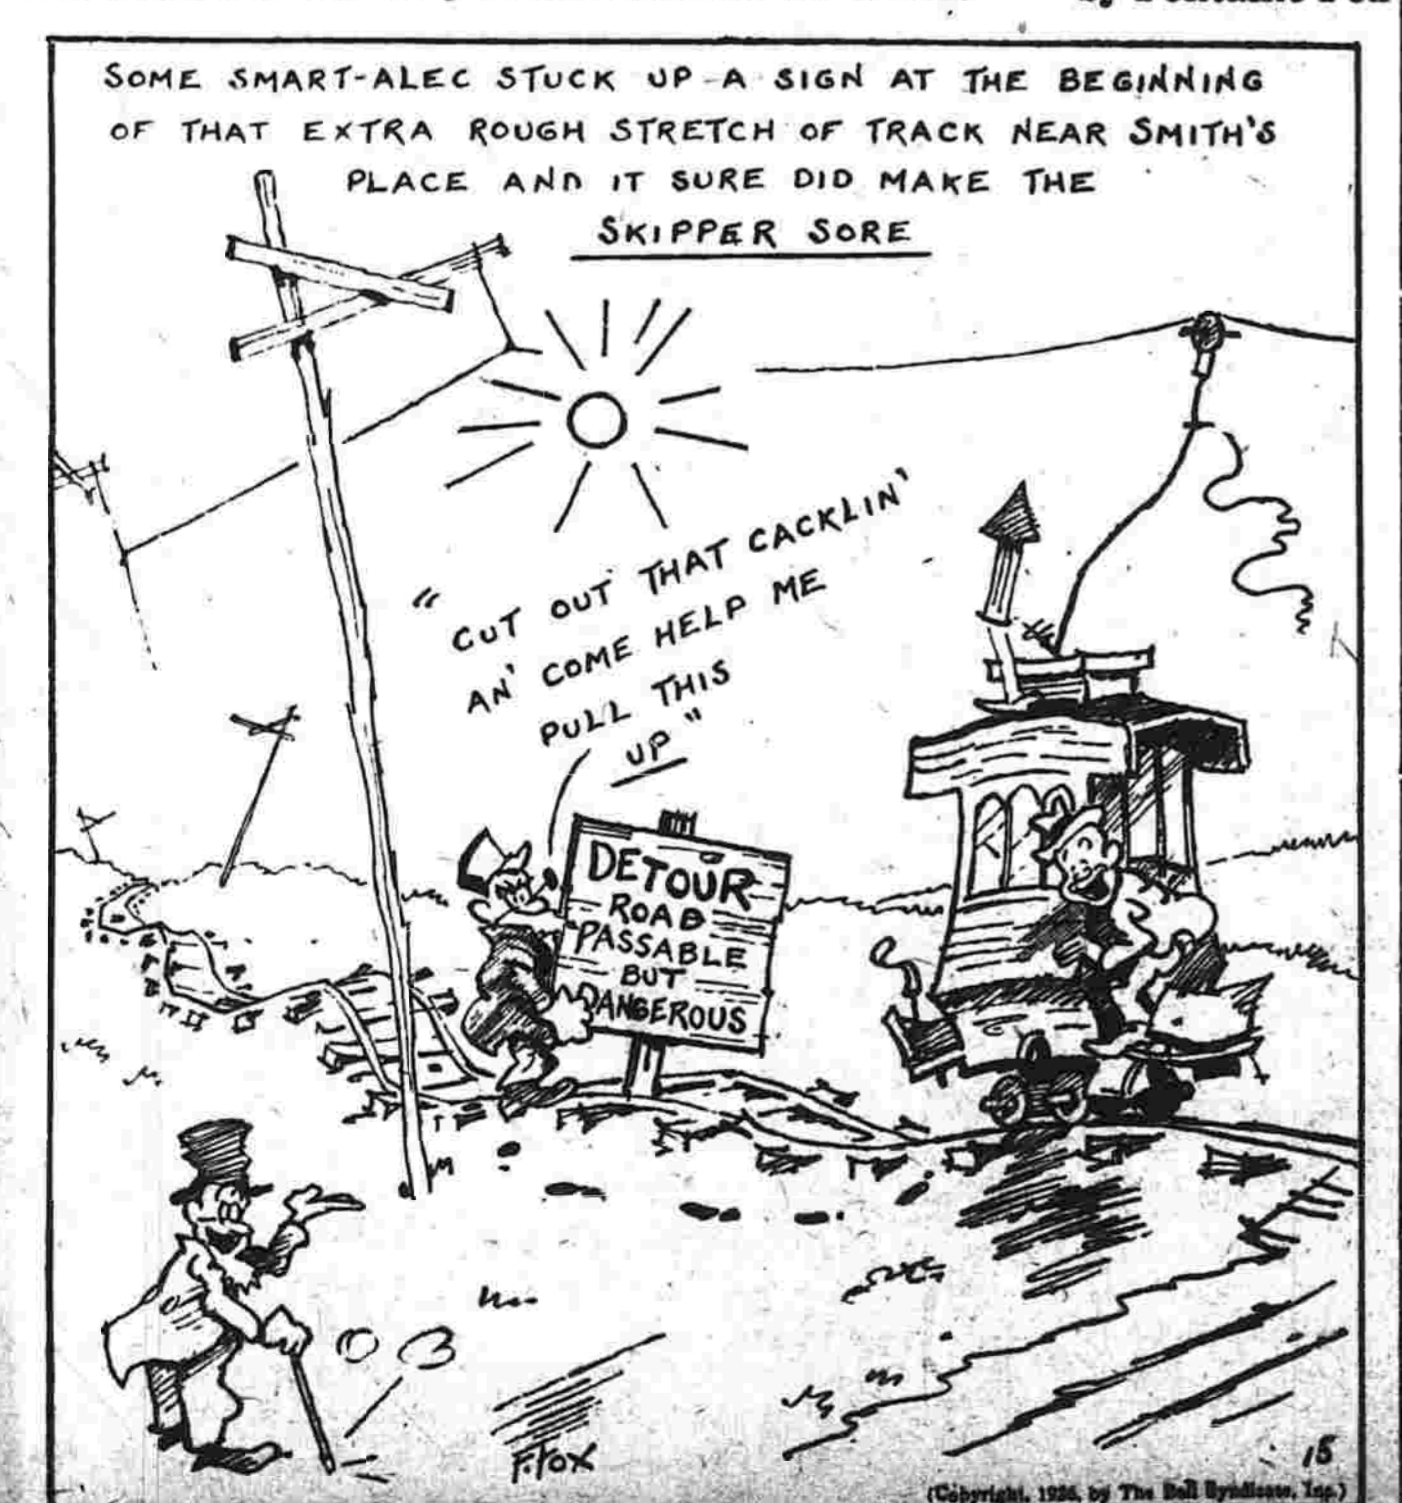

Danny Murphy, of Rockville and Dominic Eccelenti, of this town fought to a four round draw in the main bout of a smoker held at Cheney hall last evening by Cheney Brothers Athletic Association in conjunction with the annual meeting.

Eccelenti injured his back severely in the opening round when he tumbled into the ropes with Murphy on top of him. The bout was delayed for two minutes but at the expiration of that time the plucky local lad insisted on continuing. Eccelenti won the first three rounds but lost the final by a decisive margin. The judges decided the bout a draw.

go on with the bout. The referee's decision was questionable. The Second Bout
In the second fight of the card, "Pop" Reggetts and "Young" Doyle, the latter from Rockville, fought a draw. This bout was purely an exhibition and there were few hard blows struck despite the fact that Doyle's face was covered with blood at the end of the bout the result of a blow on the nose.

The opening bout of the evening produced the most fireworks. Joe Neve, of the Velvet Mill, was awarded the decision over Tom Pagan, flyweight champion of Company G. There were many at the ringside who thought Pagan earned at least a draw.

C. B. A. A. ANNUAL REPORT BIG REVELATION TO TOWN

Although Season Was a Poor One, Association is Practically on Even Basis Now.

Although financing the Manchester Baseball Club last season resulted in a deficit of approximately $5,000 to Cheney Brothers Athletic Association, it was revealed in the treasurer's report at the annual meeting of the association held in Cheney hall last evening that all but $385 of this debt has been paid and that the remaining will be crossed off the books within the next two weeks as a result of funds obtained from new membership dues. The bulk of the $5,000 deficit was contributed by Cheney Brothers but the Athletic Association also contributed.

The Report
The report shows $2,405.60 in the profit column against a loss of $3,258.34 which leaves a total deficit of $852.74 for the year. These figures include the expense involved in operating the baseball team. A survey of the treasurer's report also shows that only one sport netted the association a gain. That was basketball in which the silk mill representatives won the town championship, earned $67.46 for the treasury fund.

A Severe Blow
The blow the athletic association suffered as the unexpected loss in financing a baseball team was a severe one to the association and it was only by remarkable work on the part of the association officials in planning ways of defraying expenses plus special contributions that the huge expense was reduced. The two hundred members of the association who attended the meeting last night were surprised when they learned of the work which had been accomplished.

Public donations in the subscription campaign which was conducted totaled $232.15. This amount plus $500 from Cheney Brothers and $709.62 from the Athletic Association totaling $1,598.77 was deducted from the baseball deficit of $1,937.74 which existed at the close of the baseball season, October 1, 1925. This left the $385 remainder.

Fresh Fish

If we could just "get across" to you what we know about this Forty Fathom Fish—the quality and the freshness of it—you would do like about half of our customers—call 2000 and say "Send me some of that fish."

A couple of weeks ago Ed. Laking went over to the Forty Fathom plant on the Fish Pier in Boston and here's what he wrote us: "You can believe every word of the Forty Fathom ads. They have their own fishing boats and what impresses me most is the care they use to market the fish immediately upon receiving it from the boats. They have a rule—which is strictly enforced—that no fish shall be carried over and they never freeze any. When I get back on the job at Pinehurst this Summer you will hear me recommend Forty Fathom Fresh Fish."

590 TICKETS GONE FOR THE CONCERT

Only 200 Tickets Left for Men's Choral Club Program—Superb Local, New York and Boston Talent.

As a result of combining extraordinary local, New York and Boston talent in their brilliant concert to be held in the High school hall, April 26, the Men's Choral Club of Manchester finds eager demands for tickets for the notable musical event. The demands of the public and of associate members of the Choral Club have already exhausted three-quarters of the seating capacity of the hall.

There are 265 associate members co-operating with the Choral Club, and each of them requires two tickets for the concert. As a result, 530 tickets were turned over today to the associate members, all bought and paid for, and no longer available to the public. Previous requests for additional tickets brought this number up to 590 by the time all wants were supplied, and therefore there are now barely 200 tickets left for the public—and the concert is eleven days off.

The remaining meager supply of tickets has been divided equally between Watkins Brothers' store and the Kemp Music house, and will be disposed of to the first applicants, impartially and without favoritism, so long as they last. Only prompt action will avert disappointments.

Director Sessions to Boston Jarle Johnson of the Choral Club, will leave here for Boston tomorrow, where they will rehearse with the Boston Symphony Ensemble. As already announced, the Ensemble will be here April 26 as assisting artists at the Choral concert. This group has an enviable reputation in musical circles throughout New England, and quite necessarily in order to secure their appearance a heavy financial responsibility must be assumed.

The Boston Symphony Ensemble will reach Manchester by motor bus on the day of the concert. There will be a special rehearsal at 5:30 p. m. that day, and the Ensemble artists will of course be here for the rehearsal. After the concert, they will return to Boston by motor bus.

Miss Gladys Hahn, Soprano Miss Gladys Hahn of New York, soprano soloist at the concert, has a beautiful voice, and Manchester will be delighted with her singing at the High school hall April 26. She will sing this group: "April, my April" Milligan "One Fine Day" (Madame Butterfly) Puccini "Ennide" Fox "Song of the Open" La Forge Concerning Miss Hahn's singing the following press comments are self-explanatory: Jersey Journal:—Although one of the younger artists, has already had wide experience and gained an enviable reputation. Voice of wide range and of much sweetness and beauty. Manchester Herald:—Voice is fresh and appealing—made a most distinct impression—compelled to respond to double recall. Nyack Daily News:—Miss Hahn's tones were a delight, being as clear as crystal, and the simplicity of her manner and general understanding of her made her numbers enjoyed by all. Hudson Observer:—Voice of remarkable sweetness.

The prizes for the setback which was held at the West Side Rec last evening were won by Mrs. A. Anderson and A. Carlson, first prize; Miss Anna Symington and G. Darling, second prize. Tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 there will be a setback party for ladies.

The members of the pinochle tournament at the Army and Navy Club will hold a special meeting at the clubhouse this evening at eight o'clock. Plans for the banquet will be discussed.
