

CHURCHES JOIN IN PROTEST ON BEER AND WINE

Federal Council Pleads for Stricter Law Enforcement; Fight in Senate Led by Methodist Board.

Washington, April 16.—Waging war against modification of the national dry law with all the fervor of a middle-age crusade, Protestant churches today stormed the Senate Judiciary sub-committee with a plea for stricter enforcement of prohibition, and a barrage of protests against enactment of beer and wine legislation.

All the Protestant churches were represented in the dry plea through the Federal Council of Churches, which claims to represent 48,000,000 adherents. The hearing, however, was conducted under the auspices of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Can Be Enforced.

Prohibition has generously improved the health, wealth and morals of America, the churchmen said and it can and will be enforced. All efforts to modify it are attacks upon the Constitution they declared and will be swept aside.

At the opening of the session, an announcement was made that Senator Harrell (R., Okla.) had been appointed chairman of the "prohibition" committee in place of Senator Means (R., Col.) who is ill at a Washington hospital.

A vigorous appeal to America to "give prohibition a chance" was made to the committee on behalf of the Federal Council of Churches by Dr. W. E. Haven, of New York City.

The Council declared the "call of the hour" is for church people all over the country to obey the dry law and use such "moral suasion" on their neighbors as to "give the policy of prohibition an adequate opportunity to demonstrate its full value to the nation and the world. Any modification, the Council contended, would make "bootlegging more menacing."

Attitude of All.

"Since the adoption of the national prohibition act, the Federal Council of Churches has continued to sustain it constantly and with unflinching loyalty. At every annual meeting of the executive committee since that time this position has been vigorously maintained. This was a definite rejection of the attitude taken by the various denominations separately," said the Council's report.

"The support of national prohibition by the Federal Council of Churches rests upon four fundamental considerations:

"First, the belief that in dealing with gigantic social evil like disease or crime, individual liberty must be controlled in the interest of public welfare.

"Second, the belief that the liquor traffic is beyond question such an evil.

"Third, the conviction that no plan less thorough-going than prohibition is sufficient to eradicate the evils of the liquor traffic.

"Fourth, the evidence of history that other methods of attempting to control the traffic have failed and that prohibition, despite inadequacies of enforcement, is succeeding better than any other program."

The Council declared a "limitation upon individual freedom" is the "price any people must pay for the progress of civilization."

"The reasons which led to prohibition not only remain today but have been reinforced by the experience of other nations," the Council declared.

Return of Saloon.

"The proposal to modify the Volstead act so as to permit the sale of wines and beer presents insuperable objections. It would make enforce-

OFFERS HOME TO YOUTH WHO KILLED HIS BOY

Newark, N. J., April 16.—Mrs. Sophie Niemiec's young son, Ben, was slain by his chum, Boleslaw Dumbeck seven years ago. Dumbeck was sentenced to life imprisonment. His health failed in confinement. His family had moved away and apparently quite abandoned him. It was Mrs. Niemiec who visited him, taking cake and cookies. It was Mrs. Niemiec who wrote to Governor Moore the other day begging for a pardon. "I will be a mother to him," she said. "I know he will go straight. I have prayed to God to help me and He has shown me the way."

WILL PROBE CARE OF MAD VETERANS

Inquiry Into Guardianship Frauds Asked for by Committee of House.

Washington, April 16.—An investigation similar in scope to the probe that resulted in the imprisonment of Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, appeared likely today following the action of the House Veterans' committee in asking a national investigation of the guardianship activities of the Veterans' Bureau.

There have been repeated charges that insane veterans of the World War have been victims of frauds by those appointed by the courts to conserve the interests of the former soldiers.

Many Charges.

For weeks charges have been made on the floor of the House concerning guardianship activities of Charles A. Fenning, district commissioner, who is the guardian of scores of incompetent veterans. Fenning has received fees exceeding $100,000, according to charges by Rep. Blanton, (Dem. of Texas), and other congressmen.

MOORE WON'T INTERVENE IN JERSEY STRIKE

Governor Refuses to Mix in Bergen County Row; No Wish to Remove Local Officials He Says.

Trenton, N. J., April 16.—There will be no state intervention in the strike of textile workers in Passaic and vicinity at the present time.

In a statement given out by his secretary here today, Gov. A. Harry Moore expressed full confidence in the ability of the local authorities to cope with the situation in the affected places.

Gov. Moore said he had no desire to remove officials of the cities or counties involved.

"They should be encouraged in every lawful effort to do their duty," the statement said.

Gov. Moore quoted from a statute explaining that the governor of New Jersey does not have the power to remove or supersede local officials.

Textile workers prepared in Garfield to defy the riot act in an attempt to resume picketing. Football bloodshed was feared as 400 deputy sheriffs patrolled the "war zone" armed with shotguns.

Call For Mass Picketing.

The strikers' committee has issued a picket call to the 16,000 mill strikers for mass picketing of all the mills today. Sheriff Nimmo, of Bergen county, has vowed he will break up any demonstration.

Albert Weisbord, youthful strike leader, held incommunicado in Hackensack jail, obtained a writ of habeas corpus and was released in $30,000 bail for arraignment Saturday.

The Rev. Norman Thomas, New York Socialist, was released for $10,000 bail for Grand Jury action after testing the riot act by addressing the strikers.

Chance of Settlement.

Possibility of settlement of the textile strike was seen with the announcement by the United Front committee today that a special committee had been chosen, representing the strikers, to meet with the conciliatory board of six members named at a meeting of clergy-men and laymen last night to ascertain the mill owners' position toward a basis for industrial peace.

"The strikers are ready and have always been ready to negotiate," Miss Margaret Larkin, representative of the United Front committee, said.

Why Bingham Backed The Radical Brookhart

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington, April 16.—When Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut declared himself on the side of Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa in the latter's fight to keep his seat, against the claim of his contesting Democratic rival, Daniel F. Steck, it was quite a surprise.

Bingham's a conservative to the core. Brookhart has a record as one of the deepest-dyed radicals in the upper house.

Among the regular Republican senators, of whom Bingham is reckoned, he stands out as a conservative, which automatically aligns him with them, in one, there was a pretty general inclination to favor Steck's kind of Democracy over Brookhart's kind of Republicanism.

Master of Justice.

"Bingham, however, didn't allow his conservative preferences to influence him. He believed Brookhart had the stronger case."

Examination of the Brookhart-Steck ballots seemed to indicate that a majority of the electors meant to vote for Steck, but an unusual number of those cast for him proved to have been incorrectly marked. The low law doesn't permit an incorrectly-marked ballot to count. Subtracting such votes from Steck's score left Brookhart ahead.

The Stecksites in the Senate were taking in account solely the voters' intent. The Brookhartites stood pat on the law.

Bingham's position on the Brookhart-Steck question, despite the way he undoubtedly felt, was extremely wise for the quality of his integrity. He didn't pretend to be enthusiastic over

Sen. Hiram Bingham

Brookhart, but he was for giving him what he considered him entitled to, nevertheless.

Not of Old Guard.

Not but that there are other equally conscientious members of the House and Senate, but their name isn't legion, so to speak.

The fact is that Bingham isn't really one of the Old Guard. The Old Guard's conservative and so is he, but the Old Guard's conservatism is political as well as personal. Bingham's a conservative simply because that's what he is.

A regular's a regular through thick and thin.

Bingham's personal beliefs generally coincide with the regular's policies, but when he happens to dissent, as he did in the Brookhart-Steck case, I can imagine him in the role of an unmanageable insurgent as Norris or Frazier, La Follette or Nye.

This brand of conservatism is something even a radical can respect.

Bingham's conservatism is easy to account for.

Conservative Antecedents.

He's a product of one of the most conservative communities on earth. He was born at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, a descendant of one of the small group of missionary families which now own said islands.

Anywhere you find a little bunch of six or eight families in practically sole control of an entire "whiplago of islands"—dare I say rich ones at that—with everybody else working for 'em, at whatever they're willing to pay, you can bet it's a conservative little bunch.

It's got things fixed about the way it wants 'em, and it wants 'em to stay put.

From an individual brought up in such an atmosphere, what are you going to expect?

If Bingham weren't a conservative he couldn't have been born in Hawaii—that is, not unless he'd been born a native or a Chinese or a Portuguese or a Jap.

Better be thankful he evidently is an honest one.

BRITAIN PLANS FAR REACHING "DRY" TREATY

Confers With U. S. on Pact to Ban Contraband on All Ships Leaving Ports or Possessions.

London, April 16.—Negotiations are now in progress between the United States and Great Britain, aimed at the consummation of a new and far-reaching treaty which virtually will stop the flow of liquor from Britain and her possessions to American shores.

The negotiations are already well under way and point to successful conclusion, it was learned today from British official sources. Sir Esmé Howard, the British ambassador at Washington, has held a number of conversations with Secretary of State Kellogg in the matter, and it is possible that special American commissioners will come to London within the next few months to conclude the negotiations.

No Papers to Ships.

Under the treaty, a projected, Great Britain would agree not to allow ships to clear from British ports for American ports carrying "contraband." Under American laws liquor falls in this category, as its manufacture, sale and distribution is forbidden by the American constitution. In return the United States would make a reciprocal agreement not to permit clearance of American ships to British ports with articles which the British government deems contraband.

Under the terms of the treaty, liquor would constitute virtually a death blow to the profitable business of smuggling liquor to America, in which many Englishmen have engaged since America went dry. Not only would the shipment of liquor from Great Britain proper stop, but from British possessions as well.

Such a treaty as is now projected, will make every British port officer virtually an aide of the American prohibition department in preventing the clearance of "contraband" to a friendly foreign shore.

Washington Confirms.

Washington, April 16.—Confirmation was obtained here today from the state department that negotiations have begun with the British government for a drastic new treaty which "will put a damper on the extensive smuggling of liquor from British possessions."

General Lincoln C. Andrews, prohibition enforcement head, and William R. Vallance, assistant solicitor of the state department, officially will go to London during the summer to confer with British officials, it was learned.

Officials were reluctant to discuss the negotiations, but it was learned that in addition to each government's undertaking to prevent the shipment of contraband, each to each other's territory, permission will also be granted for American customs ships to "enter" West Indian waters in their task of protecting American shores.

ILLINOIS LEADS IN RADIO SETS ON FARMS.

Washington, April 15.—Illinois led the United States in the number of radio sets on farms January 1, 1926, with 27,434 sets, the Department of Commerce announced today, in its first radio census of rural districts. New York's total was 24,620.

New Mexico tallied the list with 236 radios on farms.

SILK WORKER DIES FROM AN EPILEPTIC FIT

Drops to Floor Just Before Starting Work This Morn- ing—Leaves Wife and Four Children Here.

Stricken with epilepsy in the Dyeing and Finishing department of Cheney Brothers early today, Domenico Quaglia, aged 38, of 125 1/2 Eldridge street, died two hours later in the Medical department despite the efforts of three mill doctors to save his life. The sad part of the case occurred several hours later when friends went to the Quaglia home to break the news to his wife, who is the mother of four small children. She is expecting another.

His Daily Habit.

As far as can be ascertained, Quaglia came to work shortly after six o'clock this morning. He had been in the habit of coming early in order to prepare his machines for his day's work. He was noticed by another workman when he came in this morning and was apparently in the best of health. Quaglia then went upstairs and changed his clothes, donning his overalls and jacket. When he came back at about 6:50 he went to the time-card box but it was not open. Quaglia went back to his machine in the Piece Dye room. As he walked down a slight incline which leads into the room, John Rady, of Eldridge street, a fellow workman, saw Quaglia stagger and then collapse on the floor.

Calls For Assistance.

Rady yelled to two of his fellow workmen for assistance. They were Joseph Forbes and Angello Gatti. A pillow was placed under the man's head and then Rady telephoned Dr. Charles Goff. Soon afterwards Julius Winkler, foreman of the department, came to work. He ordered the man taken into his office. Here he was given first aid treatment and later removed to the Medical department where three mill doctors worked in vain trying to save his life. Quaglia died at 9:05. He never regained his senses.

Examiner's Report.

Medical Examiner William R. Tinker pronounced death due to epileptic convulsions. He gave permission for the removal of the body and it was taken to Holloran Brothers' morgue.

Burial arrangements are incomplete pending the arrival of relatives from New York.

Quaglia was born in Italy May 15, 1888, and came to this country in 1913 and to Manchester, the Cheney Brothers in July, 1916.

Quaglia was a full member of the Benefit Association.

About three years ago Quaglia was badly injured when he fell from the tail-end of an automobile on Oak street. He was out of work for several months at that time due to injuries to the back of his head. It is possible that this injury may have been the cause of the epilepsy.

ACCUSE NURSE OF SLAYING SURGEON

West Virginia Tragedy Due to Jealousy, According to Prosecutor's Theory.

Morgantown, W. Va., April 16.—Jealousy probably was the motive of the slayer of Dr. William B. Borrer, 47, noted West Virginia surgeon, who was slain in his office here with a butcher knife, County Prosecutor W. F. Hunt declared today, as authorities prepared to hold an autopsy.

A formal charge of murder will be filed against Mrs. Georgia Ridgeway, 38, a nurse in Dr. Borrer's office, who was arrested immediately after the murder was discovered. Prosecutor Hunt said, "Hurt has in his possession a long-bladed knife with which the crime is supposed to have been committed."

Office Girl's Story.

Authorities planned to further question Rose Hastings, office girl who told of an unidentified woman calling at the office to see the physician and Mrs. Ridgeway ordering the visitor to leave. Mrs. Ridgeway, the caller and Dr. Borrer finally went into an apartment in the rear of the office to discuss their differences, the girl said.

Shortly afterwards the physician was found stabbed to death.

COLONIAL EXPRESS 50 YEARS OLD IN MAY

New Haven Road Announces Anniversary of Train Estab- lished in 1876.

New Haven, April 16.—Attractive posters in blue and gold, displayed in the stations of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. today announced that on May 8, next, the Federal Express, one of New England's famous trains operating over the New Haven and Pennsylvania railroads, will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary.

The Federal Express made its first run on May 8, 1876. On the posters attention is also called to the Colonial Express, originally operating between Boston and Hartford, which, and later to Washington, both making its first run four days after the inauguration of the Federal Express.

NEW YORK TUG STRIKE AFFECTS 400 BOATS

Won't Tie Up Liners, Which, Will Use Non-Strike Vessels, Say Ship Owners.

New York, April 16.—Despite a general strike order affecting 300 workers and 400 tugboats, issued by the Associated Marine Workers, the movement of incoming and outgoing liners will not be affected, officials declared. The strike followed a controversy involving the wages and working hours of tug workers and was issued for the purpose of demoralizing ocean traffic from this port, it was said.

The Olympic is scheduled to leave at midnight and will clear on time, White Star officials stated. Other companies will employ, if necessary, tug owners by non-strike companies.

TEACHER AND PUPILS FIGHT FOREST FIRE

Springfield Suburb Schoolma- Sends 'Pots Home, Then Helps Men Save Building.

Spring, Mass., April 16.—More than thirty small children were sent to their homes today when a forest fire threatened to destroy the West Street schoolhouse in the Feeding Hill district.

When the flames had reached the brush near the schoolhouse and had destroyed a portion of the fence surrounding the building, Teacher Ruth Ripley sent the smaller children to their homes.

Then, with the assistance of older pupils in the school, the teacher aided local firemen in fighting the flames. Seven acres of woodland and brush were destroyed by the fire.

BLAME CANADA FOR LACK OF BALMY DAYS

Is Hogging All the "High Pres- sure" from the Pacific That Ought to Pass to South.

New Haven, April 16.—Failure of the usual "summer type" days to develop in April as usual in other years is explained by Leonard M. Tarr, head of the Federal Weather Bureau office here.

"Summer type" weather comes when low pressure areas move across Canada and high pressure areas across the south, causing warm air to flow into the low areas.

"The movement usually starts in April, but this year the high pressure area has hogged all the 'high pressure' from the Pacific that ought to pass to South."

For the fifty-three years New Haven has had a weather bureau office, the average minimum temperature has been 48 degrees for April 15. This year the mercury dropped to 31 on that date.

Other Aprils which have had much colder days than this month have also had days much warmer, and that, according to M. Tarr, is usual.

RIDES COWCATCHER AS TRAIN WRECKS TRUCK

New Haven Man Has Miracle Escape in New York Crash That Kills Companion.

Bedford Hills, N. Y., April 16.—One man was so badly injured he may die, while his companion was carried 600 feet by the cowcatcher of a locomotive when a heavy truck was hit by a fast milk train here today.

Solomon Teveloz of New Haven, who was driving, suffered a fracture of the skull and other serious injuries. James Doran, 30, New York, was killed when the truck was crushed by the front of the locomotive, and was uninjured. He told police he had no recollection of the actual crash whatsoever, as he did not awaken until the impact.

The truck was owned by Teveloz Brothers of Danbury. It was demolished.

Hartford, April 16.—Stockholders of the Automobile Insurance Co. of Hartford, meeting in special session here today, adopted the recommendations of directors by voting to issue 50,000 additional shares at $200 a share, thus making $10,000,000 available to rehabilitate the company and assure an adequate surplus.

Howard P. Dunham, state insurance commissioner, approved the plan which originated with the Aetna Life Insurance Co., the owner of three-fourths of the stock of the Automobile Insurance Co.

DARTMOUTH HEAD RAPS POOL BETTING

Pres. Hopkins Says Gamblers Who Lured White Sox Had Eye on Grid Teams.

Greenfield, Mass., April 16.—"If betting on intercollegiate athletic contests, particularly football games, becomes rampant it will eventually get into the hands of professional gambling pools," President Ernest Martin Hopkins, of Dartmouth college, said today.

Two crooked gamblers who tampered with the Chicago White Sox in a world series a few years back attempted to start a pool at Hanover, President Hopkins said.

The college head was en route home from New Britain, where he spoke on over-emphasis in college sports before a civic meeting.

No Objection to Backing.

President Hopkins said that he does not object to "backing" a team but he pointed out its evils. Several years ago, he said, a college football team came to Dartmouth. Telegrams said the other college had fifteen thousand to "back its team," and asked "has Dartmouth any money?"

Dartmouth authorities, said Pres-

NORGE ARRIVES AT LENINGRAD SAFELY

Difficult Voyage Through Baltic Fog Accomplished Without Accident.

Leningrad, April 16.—The Amundsen-Ellsworth polar dirigible Norge landed in a suburb of this city at 7:30 last evening, after a successful flight from Oslo, Norway, whence she started at 1:30 yesterday morning.

The Norge made this leg of her voyage to Spitzbergen through baltic fog which made the following of her course difficult and at times impossible, but the ship performed excellently and her engines functioned perfectly throughout the long stage.

Having undergone her first severe test in the air, the Norge is being overhauled here, preparatory to her flight to Spitzbergen, whence she is to take off for the North Pole and Alaska.

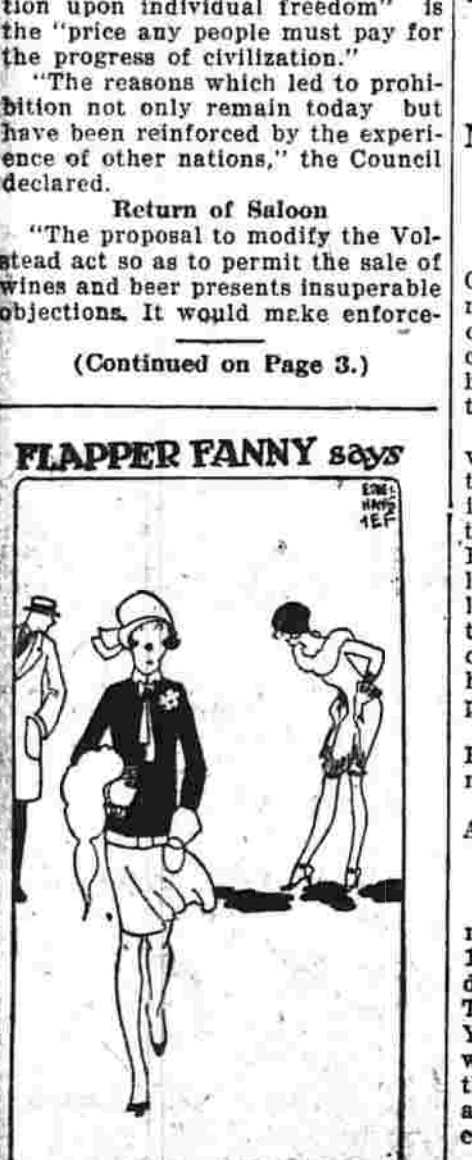

Commander Noble of the Norge declared himself entirely satisfied with the flight of the Norge yesterday and her performance in a thick and heavy fog.

Three of the motors of the Norge are being replaced and the supply of hydrogen is being replenished.

Commander Noble and the crew of the Norge will be guests of honor at a banquet given by the Academy of Sciences tonight.

The Norge is not likely to leave here for Spitzbergen for some time as her hangar at King's Bay is not completed. She may be here a week or perhaps two.

PEKING IS IN CHAOS, AWAITING INVADERS

Peking, April 16.—Peking was in chaos today as it awaited developments attending the sudden flight of the People's army, which had been defending the capital against the besieging armies of General Wu-Pei-Fu and Chang Tso Liu.

Ten thousand heavily armed police under command of a group of Elder Statesmen were doing their best to maintain order. The gates of the city are locked and the population is in a state bordering on terror.

The president of China, the premier, and half the cabinet are hiding in houses in the Legation quarter. The future is extremely uncertain, much depending upon the attitude of the invading generals.

The general belief is that the allied forces will enter Peking today.

Foreigners Unmolested.

London, April 16.—All foreigners in Peking are safe, the foreign office was advised today. There have been no disorders in the foreign quarter of the city, the dispatches said.

OUTSIDE REPUBLICANS URGE N. Y. REFERENDUM

Report Pressure Is Brought to Obtain Will of Voters on State Alcohol Formula.

Albany, N. Y., April 16.—It was reported at the capitol today that pressure is being brought to bear on the G. O. P. leaders in Albany Monday to confer with the legislative leaders on referendum measure.

United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., who is looked upon as the real Republican leader of the state, is expected to leave Monday to confer with the legislative leaders on referendum measure.

If the referendum is approved by the voters at the fall election Congress would be asked to modify the Volstead law to permit each state to determine what shall constitute the alcoholic contents of intoxicating beverages. The wets claim the proposal would be approved by three or four to one.

GARLAND, JAILED, MAY GET WIFE BACK AGAIN

Boston, April 16.—A reconciliation between Charles Garland, "free love crusader," and his wife is scheduled to occur as Garland's two month term is completed in a Pennsylvania jail and Mrs. Garland has recovered from a tonsil operation. This was the prediction of friends today. They understood that the Garland would try wedded life once more on their Capt. Cad farm. Philip W. Wrenn, of Dedham, father of Mrs. Garland, said that he knew nothing of a reconciliation. The charge against Garland in Allentown, Pa., centered around a child born at April farms "love colony" to Miss Betina Hoey.

Colonel William C. Cheney left for Washington, D. C. last night where he will spend a few days with his brother Colonel Sherwood Cheney, who is aide to President Coolidge.

CONN. RESIDENTS HOLD $15,000,000 WATER CO. STOCK

Connecticut Citizens Have Invested Heavily in Securities of State's Service Firms.

Close to $15,000,000 worth of stock in Connecticut water companies is now held by residents of this state, according to the Connecticut Committee on Public Service Information, which describes in constant demand by conservative investors and gives the following reasons for the demand:

The indispensable nature of the water business is such as to insure continuity of service and demand. The growth of service is sure to coincide with the growth of any community. The money invested in water works goes in property of great durability, having long life and not subject to changes in the art of production and distribution. Since a water works plant provides an indispensable necessity to the people, its earnings are perhaps less affected by business depression than any other form of public service. The ratio between earnings and operation expenses is fairly constant in all cases where equitable rates are in vogue due to the fact that the costs entering into operation are not subject to violent fluctuations, for while there is a large industrial use of water in Connecticut, by far the larger part of the water is used for domestic purposes.

Like other utility securities, water company stocks and bonds are issued only under the supervision of skilled executives. Reasonable rates based upon a fair return upon the value of property used and usable are enforced by the Public Utilities Commission.

ABOUT TOWN

A Red truck driven by Tony Carabino was damaged by fire on Center street near Church last evening. Just how the automobile caught on fire is a mystery. People in the neighborhood brought pails of water and Tony used his overcoat in beating out the flames with the result that the fire was extinguished before any serious damage was done. Some one sent in a still alarm and one of the chemical trucks was sent to the scene but it was not needed.

Miss Julia McVey of 72 Church street returned home today from the Memorial hospital where she underwent an operation for the removal of adenoids and tonsils.

WOODSTOCK CAMP BOYS AT DINNER

Thirty-five boys attended the supper and reunion at Center church last night of boys hereabouts who have enjoyed the privileges of Camp Woodstock, the County Y. M. C. A. camp for men and boys conducted by Hartford, Tolland Windham, county Y. M. C. A's.

A substantial roast beef supper prepared and served under the direction of Mrs. Elita Gaylor was enjoyed at 8:30.

Among the speakers were the Rev. Elmer Thienes, secretary of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A.; Frank Condon of the Tolland County Y. M. C. A. and Charles W. Holman of Summit street who is prominently connected with the work locally. Mr. Holman extended to the boys present who had not enjoyed life at Camp Woodstock a cordial invitation to make use of the camp at any time, or parties of men or boys may have the privileges of the camp in the early spring or fall if they will make arrangements through Mr. Thienes. The camp is there for them to use, he said.

Harry Anderson of the J. W. Hale company and cartoonist for the Herald entertained the boys with his crayon drawings, keeping up a rapid-fire talk as he drew each picture.

The sagging springs resulted from a load of eighty-eight gallons of alcohol. Benoit furnished bail of $1,000 for a hearing next Monday night.

ident Hopkins, investigated and found that the money did not come from the college whose team was at Hanover, but from a group of professional gamblers. "Two of the gamblers," he added, "had tampered with the Chicago White Sox in the world series."

End of Sport.

"Backing" a college team with pools will eventually lead to the betting getting into the hands of crooked professionals and then sport for sport's sake will be ruined, warned President Hopkins.

Intercollegiate athletics, said the Dartmouth president, has reached a critical stage. This is due, he said, to public interest and over-emphasis in all college sports.

Betting on intercollegiate sports he thought ought to be confined to individuals.

Head Coach Skeptical

Chicago, April 16.—Jesse Hawley, head coach at Dartmouth, declared today that he did not believe gambling pools in any way influence the result of football games in which Dartmouth teams played, and that this is true of any other college in the country.

He was commenting on the warning of President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth that intercollegiate athletics made during an address at New Britain.

WILLIAMS COURT QUESTIONS BUTLER

General Asked for Further Details and Quizzed as to Coerced Witnesses.

San Diego, Cal., April 16.—The court martial of Col. Alexander S. Williams approached its final stage today, with arguments of counsel expected to be finished before night.

There is a strong expectation here that the court will not find Col. Williams guilty as charged, of drunkenness and incapacity to perform the duties of his rank.

Wants to Learn More.

A Rear Admiral seized the helm of the court-martial just as it was being steered into the port of final arguments yesterday and swung the case back into the stormy waters of testimony bearing on Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler's alleged attempts to browbeat his subordinates into saying that Colonel Williams was drunk at the Hotel Del Coronado on the night of March 16.

The Rear Admiral was Thomas Washington, commandant of the Twelfth Naval District and President of the court.

Admiral Washington brought Brig. Gen. Butler back into the case, a few moments after the Judge Advocate announced that he had no rebuttal witnesses and was ready to proceed with the arguments.

When court adjourned until today it was announced that the Admiral and his colleagues of the court-martial board had still other questions to ask of witnesses yet to be summoned.

Denies Coercion.

General Butler denied categorically that he had coerced or attempted to coerce his subordinates into making statements that Colonel Williams was drunk. But he was followed by other officers who swore they had changed essential portions of previous statements as a result of the General's warning that they "must come clean or you'll all get into trouble."

One of these officers was Captain Clifton B. Cates, a member of Colonel Williams' staff and of the Colonel's defense counsel.

Captain Cates said he made one written statement of the Coronado cocktail episode at the request of General Butler in which he asserted he had seen nothing unusual in the Colonel's behavior except that he was "unsteady on his feet," but that after having been reprimanded by the General for "equivocating" he had prepared another statement containing the phrase "unsteady on his feet," which was caused by being drunk, sick or "doped."

"The General called me into his office after reading my first statement," Cates testified, and said:

"Don't you know Colonel Williams was drunk? Well, I know he was drunk, I saw him take four or five drinks.

"Now I want you to know you youngsters will have to come clean or you'll get into trouble.

"If I know you are trying to be loyal to Colonel Williams and I respect you for it. But I want the truth about this."

Declines Statement Changed.

Second Lieutenant Beverly S. Roberts, said he saw several other statements called for by General Butler and told their statements were highly unsatisfactory.

"So, in my second statement," said Roberts, "instead of saying 'the colonel's walk was unsteady,' I wrote the colonel had the appearance of being intoxicated or otherwise bewildered."

"I told them they were a lot of boys running around in circles," General Butler on the stand, declared. "I said to them: 'Go out, now, and tell the truth, or you'll get into trouble too.'"

DAYLIGHT SAVING
 Editor, The Herald:
 We notice that in your issue of Thursday, the 15th, you state that Cheney Brothers will operate during the summer on a schedule conforming to the railroad practice, which means that clocks are operated on standard time but that working hours are advanced one hour.
 We regret to state that this is a misunderstanding as it is not our intention to operate the plant in that manner during the coming summer. We shall observe the same schedule as has been in effect ever since the Daylight Saving plan was first adopted and there will be no difference this year from the practice which has been in vogue heretofore.
 The notice which will be posted in our plant will read as follows:
 "Cheney Brothers' Plant will be operated on Daylight Saving Schedule from April 26th, 1926 to September 25th, 1926, inclusive.
 "All clocks will be advanced one hour to conform to this schedule."
 Yours very truly,
CHENEY BROTHERS,

 ment more difficult, it would inevitably mean the return of either the saloon or something equally undesirable.
 "The one path of advance is for all good citizens personally to observe the law and support the great enterprise. Both of the idealism of the people, of completely ridding the nation of a demoralizing business as the liquor traffic has always proved itself to be. Least of all should our prohibition law be changed in response to the cry of those who by their own disrespect for the law are preventing it from receiving a fair trial or who, because of their special interest in the return of the liquor traffic, are artificially stimulating an agitation for changing our present law."

 Liberty a Delusion
 Dr. Charles MacFarland, general secretary of the council, declared the plea of wets for personal liberty was "a delusion and a snare."
 "Just the other day the government forced a great combine of bakers out of business," said Dr. MacFarland.

SEES CHARLESTON DANCE GETTING OUT OF STYLE

"Charleston dances are rapidly becoming a thing of the past," said a prominent local dancer today in speaking about future dancing styles. "I think that this summer will find but little evidence of the Charleston," he added, "as it is already rapidly dying out. I look for a comeback of the tango," he concluded.

"If personal liberty does not prevail for bakers, who should it prevail for brewers and drinkers?"
 Doctor MacFarland read a number of messages from Canadian ministers declaring the Quebec and other systems of government sale of liquor had brought "increased crime, less temperance and less prosperity."

Lee W. Beatty, superintendent of the Madison Square settlement, declared prohibition was a success in the tenement districts of New York. "In pre-prohibition days," said Beatty, "we used to spend $315 a month in buying shoes and clothing for poor people and now we can't spend $15 a month for that purpose."

ANDREWS PROMISES

Now Says Liquor Sources Can Be Dried Up in Year.

Washington, April 16.—Practical extinction within a year of the present large sources of liquor supplies was promised today by General L. C. Andrews, dry chief, provided Congress passes legislation already recommended and approves an additional appropriation of $3,000,000 for enforcement purposes.
 Andrews proposed to increase the prohibition forces by 370 men and to create a division for collecting taxes from bootleggers on their sales of liquor the new scheme has the approval of President Coolidge.

Boy Scouts Interested In Textile Pamphlet

An interesting pamphlet on "Textiles" was recently issued by the Boy Scouts of America. So many requests for this have been received from the scouts and scout leaders, that a special merit badge has been issued by the Boy Scouts of America for boys who wish to specialize in the subject. The pamphlet on textiles is to help them to win the merit badge in this subject. It has considerable value to those in the trade as well, and will be especially helpful to factory owners who wish to distribute educational material of this sort to their employees, to boys and girls in the community schools and to scout troops.

Code of Ethics
Under this head, the pamphlet publishes the following paragraph: "This may be developed to the working out and adoption of a Code of Ethics, which is a direct by-product and a correct understanding of the importance of the industry to the community, the nation and the world in its interdependence, first as referring to each part of an operation in a factory, and second as to each individual in relation to the whole group constituting the mill force."

"If the work has been properly done the members of the troop will see more clearly their relation to one another, in the community, in the state and federal government. They also will see more clearly the opportunities for them in the cotton industry or the various business programs."

"No factory or business house can possibly succeed without having the several parts as a contribution to the successful whole. To produce a piece of cloth you must have inventors, tradesmen, mechanics, machine tenders, engineers, repairmen and back of it all finances and brains with which to do the work. All this, however, may fail to produce results and profits unless we have acquired skill, management and the proper overhead direction and supervision."

Silk, artificial silk, woolen goods and worsted are also taken up in detail.

There are sections on adulteration of fabrics and a glossary and bibliography.

Requirement Badges
To obtain a merit badge in textiles a scout must:

- Identify a piece of woolen cloth.
- Identify a piece of cotton cloth.
- Identify a piece of silk cloth.
- Identify a piece of artificial silk cloth.
- Submit a collection of samples. State how he would distinguish each of the above.
- Know the physical properties (appearance), in the raw state of wool, worsted, cotton, silk and artificial silk.

Know how yarns made from these fibres differ in their character and state the means by which he would distinguish them.

Distinguish between a woven fabric and a knitted fabric, and state which wears the better and why.

State how wool, cotton, and silk are grown, and name the principal sources of supply of each.

Outline the different operations that would be used in converting some fibre into cloth. Name the machines that would be used and the kind of cloth that would be made. Report whether data for this test are gathered from visits to a factory or from tests.

Produce a sample and tell what properties a good piece of cotton or woolen wearing apparel should possess.

State what size numbers of yarns signify. Illustrate with at least two samples.

State which fibres are easier to dye and which are harder, and explain why in each case.

Name the two principal sources of dyestuffs.

Not Just Fun
It may come as a surprise to some who think of the Boy Scouts of America as an entirely recreational movement, that takes boys camping in the out-of-doors, to learn that scouts are encouraged to work along technical lines as well, as a matter of fact, vocational training through its merit badge system is an important feature of Scouting.

Over 70 pamphlets similar to that on Textiles are issued, so that a boy may become proficient in a good trade that appeals to him, such as plumbing, automobiling, carpentry, electricity or printing. About 150,000 badges for merit in these subjects were issued last year alone. The total number runs into the millions.

Scouts and Textiles

This is fine training of a practical sort. Since the demand for the merit badge in textiles was so great that the National Headquarters has issued this pamphlet, it is clear that there are many boys in textile centers who are also scouts. Indeed, some of the most successful troops are organized in industrial centers and actually in connection with factories. The scout activities appeal to all boys, and to boys in congested sections of cities. Camp, hikes in the open, building a fire without matches and cooking dinner over a forked stick, those things all boys like, whether they go to school or go to work. Such healthy fun keeps them well, too, builds firm muscles and sends red blood dancing to their pale cheeks. It does them more good than mere gymnastic work or formal drill, because the boys enjoy it more.

Investing in Boys
As an investment in boyhood, this movement has proved a success. It is the idle boy who patronizes the pool parlor, and perhaps bootleggers, who gets to drifting with the wrong gang and ends up with petty larceny and a jail sentence. But keep him happily amused, with plenty of activities that he likes, and that train his character and that same boy will grow into a thrifty and an industrious citizen, an asset to his employer, and the community where he works.

FORD TURNS OVER, DRIVER IS UNHURT

Car Rambles Along After Crash But Other Auto Is Wrecked.

In a collision between a Ford and a Chevrolet yesterday afternoon on Chestnut street, the Ford turned over twice, the driver was uninjured and the car drove away under its own power. The other car was completely wrecked and its three occupants injured.

Local Man in Crash
The Ford was driven by George Armstrong of 272 Oak street. It was going south on Chestnut street. The other car was driven by Walter Kirchsleper of 19 Digner avenue, Stonington. With him were Manuel Travis of 17 Devine street, Stonington and Clara Travis. Mr. Travis was the owner of the car.

Car Turns Over
As the cars met, the Ford turned over twice, eye witnesses say, and when they rushed to the scene they thought Armstrong was dead or badly injured but he crawled from the cab as the auto was a coupe, smiling. However, all the glass was shattered.

All Slightly Hurt
The occupants of the Chevrolet did not escape so fortunately. Their car was so badly wrecked that it had to be towed away. All of the members of the party were injured but not seriously and after being treated by Dr. Weldon they proceeded on their journey in a hired car.

PINE FOREST

HARTFORD'S AND SO. MANCHESTER'S NEWEST AND MOST BEAUTIFUL SUBURBAN DEVELOPMENT.

We shall soon announce the completion of the first of our Class A GOEBEN-BUILT houses, a beautiful seven room English house, in a setting of pines.

There are only two ways of acquiring a house of this type; one is to engage an Architect at 6% commission, to design and supervise the building, specify and detail double door and window frames (waterproof), breakfast alcoves, mantels, staircases, trim; hot water heat with 100% excess radiation; special built-in plumbing, brass roughing, plenty of electric outlets, with Meriden fixtures; imported papers, etc., etc., together with the best of high grade workmanship throughout. The other way to obtain such a house is to buy a "GOEBEN-BUILT" Class A house, and these are only to be obtained in West Hartford, and now at PINE FOREST, So. Manchester, Center street, west of Adams.

Inspection invited at all times.

Comfortable Oxfords for Early Spring

Those who are "fashion-wise" tell us that oxfords will be smart for Spring. And for real, all day comfort, combined with trim good looks, you will probably find nothing better than the well made Cantilever oxfords pictured here. They have all the Cantilever features that make walking a pleasure.

Think of the easiest pair of shoes you own. Then slip your feet into a pair of these oxfords. Chances are you'll prefer the new Cantilevers. You will like the close-fitting heels and the modishly rounded toes that give your own five toes room. Above all, you will enjoy the snug-fitting, flexible arches which give you restful support while allowing your feet to exercise. This flexible freedom builds up stronger arches and gives you a springier step with the

Jilted

Miss Hazel Pilcher of St. Louis is suing August C. Naert, rich young real estate man, for $50,000 for breach of promise, and is asking $25,000 of his parents for alienation of his affections. Meanwhile, it has been announced Naert will marry another girl next month.

A PUZZLE A DAY

The two white tiled tables in his small experimental laboratory were too small, so bacteriologist, John Mazur, decided to have one large table built to take their place. On a large table he figured he could watch several experiments in synthetic plant life at once. The carpenter called in told Mr. Mazur that because the table tops were constructed of small glazed tiles, they could each be cut along the cemented lines into two pieces. These parts could then be re-mentored to form a larger square table top and the legs of one table could be used as supports. In this way a new table would cost very little. The carpenter then proceeded to draw plans showing his exact method.

Can you duplicate these plans? Last puzzle answer: There are, according to Mr. Ritchie's figures, 280 electric railway lines using motor coaches. This number may be divided into five parts. The first and smallest part is 4. The second part is 5 times the first part or 20. The fourth part is 24 times the first part or 96. While the fifth part is 25 times the first part or 100. The total number is 4 plus 20 plus 60 plus 96 plus 100, or 280. The sum of the digits in 280 is (2 plus 8 plus 0) 10 or 2 1/2 times the first part.

There will be no rehearsals Thursday, April 15. Thursday, April 22 there will be a rehearsal at the School Street Recreation Center of the songs for the May Review. This rehearsal will be in the auditorium from 7 to 8 p. m. The next dance rehearsals will be Tuesday, April 27, at the usual time and place. There will be no Brownie rehearsal Saturday, April 17. The Brownies will meet for their next rehearsal at the Community Club at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 24.

NEW JERSEY'S MUSSOLINI.

Sheriff Nimmo of Bergen county, New Jersey, is an American Mussolini.

His backers and supporters are American Fascists.

There is a practically exact parallel between the proceedings in Garfield, and to a less extent those in Passaic and other abutting communities, and the doings which led up to the establishment of the dictatorship of Il Duce in Italy.

The Italian workers, it is true, put a different interpretation on their rights from that of the New Jersey textile hands. The Italians got the notion that in order to live it would be necessary for them to seize the factories and run them on a communal basis, and they made a feeble attempt to do so. The New Jersey textile workers, on the other hand, conceived the notion that they could get better terms for themselves by going on a strike—which they did.

Italian Fascism grew out of the idea that it was all nonsense to try to deal legally with people so unreasonable as the Communists. New Jersey Fascism has sprung into being out of the idea that it is all nonsense to deal legally with people so unreasonable as strikers.

The Italian communists interfered with business. The New Jersey strikers are interfering with business.

Fascism in Italy brushed away all such idle, useless things as legal measures. "The law?" it said. "Of what use is the law? Poo! nonsense! We will be the law, glorious and triumphant. We shall set the house in order, chase these cannibals back to their jobs and rule, because we are fit to rule!"

New Jersey Fascism—ably represented by Sheriff Nimmo and his justice of the peace who fixes $30,000 bonds for breach of the peace and holds untried and unconvicted and quite respectable citizens incommunicado in jail—copies the Italian Fascism so closely as to almost create the belief that it is following a printed Mussolini manual.

How long the state of New Jersey is going to countenance such performances nobody seems to know. But it is going an extraordinary long way and at lightning speed in re-establishing the far faded danger of redism.

Fascism cannot survive anywhere. It will not survive in Italy. It certainly will not in America. If American law could not destroy it, a new kind of redism would—a kind of redism that would have the support of nine-tenths of the American people. But American law can and will, without any such revolutionary necessity. The sooner it does it in New Jersey the better for everybody concerned, even for the Bergen sheriff and his puppet justice.

HAMILTONISM.

In a speech delivered in the House in opposition to the appropriation of $1,252,000 for the welfare and hygiene of maternity and infancy, Rep. Tucker of Virginia recently called the attention of Congress to the Hamiltonian plan of government as submitted to the federal constitutional convention in 1787, but which was not even considered by the committee appointed by the convention to bring in a form of constitution. The outline of the plan is very brief, as follows: "The supreme legislative power of the United States of America to be vested in two different bodies of men; the one to be called the Assembly, the other the Senate, who together shall form the legislature of the United States with power to pass all laws whatsoever subject to the negative hereafter mentioned (the executive to have a negative on all laws about to be passed)."

Now there are a good many people in this country who believe that Alexander Hamilton was a great man and that his ideas on government were better ideas than those of his associates in the constitutional convention. But the fact remains that the founders of this government absolutely rejected his theory and established, instead, a system of strictly defined delegated powers which the central authority might employ, the source of these powers being the states themselves.

And whenever, through supreme court decisions, or otherwise, the country has drawn away from the decision of the constitutional convention of 1787 and toward centralization of power at Washington, it has drawn nearer to the theories of a single individual whose ideas were repudiated at the beginning.

Hamilton was a monarchist, a believer in kingships and in orders of nobility. Compelled by circumstances to become a participant in a republican form of government he was nevertheless contemptuous of the idea of democracy and sought to erect a government in which the people at large would have no part. He was keen enough to know that if he could bring about the adoption of the kind of constitution he had in mind there need soon be little fear of an overdose of democracy in this nation—that it would be government by the "best minds" and in the interests of the "best people."

He and his little party were overwhelmed by the preponderance of the spirit of democracy in the convention and in the country.

Yet there are millions of people in the United States today who, lacking all acquaintances with the theory and history of our government, think of the federal government as Hamilton thought of it—the proper and unrestrained source of all law and all power. It was that idea that led to the passage of the 18th amendment, a purely Hamiltonian proceeding. It is that idea that leads to demands for federal coddling of the farms, for federal censorships, for a federal department of education, for federal paternalism of every sort.

All flagrantly in opposition to the theory of government as manifested in the turning down of the Hamilton plan a hundred and forty years ago.

UPSHAW.

That whirling dervish of morality, the Hon. William D. Upshaw of the lily white state of Georgia, who walks on crutches until he gets excited over matters of purity, when he prances around without them, is father of a federal censorship bill now before Congress and calculated to make the movie all that it should be in order to be good enough for Upshaw and for Georgia. He is precisely the person of all persons who ought to be sponsor for a movie censorship bill. He is as fantastic as the idea, and quite as ridiculous.

The country is to be congratulated on the presence of Upshaw in Congress. He is needed there as a terrible example of venomous virtue, of the shrunken, warped, malicious soul which finds its only delight in life in destroying some other soul's fun.

There are so many people who come just within shouting distance of Upshaw, and they are usually so industrious in self promotion and so thick of hide, and have such an appetite for power to use to the disconcertion of the rest of mankind, that there is always danger of some of their sort getting into the national legislature. And it is there that the extraordinary usefulness of Upshaw comes in.

He is so utterly revealing, such an exceptional example of his type, that to have him in Congress, where the people can see him, is almost a positive guarantee in itself that no constituency, anywhere in the whole country, will ever allow itself to run the slightest risk of electing anyone else in the remotest degree resembling him in any particular.

Upshaw is the dead crow in the Congressional cornfield. May he stay there, and keep the rest of the crows away, for a hundred years!

BOY OARSMEN.

A 17-year-old boy student in a New York high school, member of a school rowing crew, was drowned when a racing shell upset. It develops that he could not swim. It further develops that the boy's father had withheld permission for his son to engage in rowing until he had learned to take care of himself in the water, and that the boy had deceived the school authorities in the matter of parental consent.

That there was slovenliness in the school management in not ascertaining for itself whether its crew members were swimmers—which the most elementary common sense would demand—would seem to be apparent.

But since when and how frequently have high schools gone in for rowing, anyhow? This would seem to be really a more important question than just who was to blame for the death of the New York lad, other than himself.

Boys of sixteen or seventeen years have no more business in a racing shell than they have in armaments in time of war. There is no other athletic game in the whole world which imposes such a tax on the physique as rowing. There are plenty of parents who would permit their sons to play college football but would yet wisely refuse to allow them to enter a shell. The list of former university oarsmen in this country who have died at 40 to 45 from heart disease directly attributable to their rowing days is a long one. And yet most of these men never had an oar in their hands until they were nineteen or twenty at least, and very near to physical maturity.

To put a young, immature, boy in a school barge or shell and tell him to row to victory, willy nilly, is to tell him to inflict permanent injury on himself and to shorten his life by many a year. If he escapes without heart damage it is sheer luck.

REVEALED.

It is at last stated on authority of the pastor of St. Justin's church, Hartford, who is superintendent of Mount St. Benedict cemetery, that Gerald Chapman was buried in consecrated ground.

The Catholic Transcript, an authority of course, declares that Chapman could not have been buried in consecrated ground if he had not "made what seemed to his confessor of sincere acknowledgment of his guilt, his sorrow, and of his desire to lead a better life."

If there are any who have still retained a lingering suspicion that Gerald Chapman was not guilty of the crime for which he was punished it would seem as though the circumstances of his burial should dissipate it.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

Washington, April 16.—Determined as it was, the effort made, earlier in this session of Congress, to head off any more senatorial investigations during the coming summer failed to accomplish much. The "husher" didn't work as "hushers" should.

Perhaps there won't be quite as many investigations this time as there were during the epidemic of them in the last Congress, but such as there are promise to be first-class.

To begin with, prohibition! The pending investigation was scheduled to be limited to two weeks but it won't be surprising if it stretches.

Prohibition can't be adequately dug into in two weeks. The inquiry once opened, will be hard to choke off arbitrarily. Congress can extend it if it likes. Public opinion may force it to do so even if it doesn't like.

The investigation into the tariff commission probably will string along all summer.

The contention is that this was a highly meritorious commission but somebody hamstringed it, so now it's no good. That—if it happened—was wrong. Well, who did it? If he hopelessly crippled a useful commission, he ought to be called to account.

His adverse critics says the President did it. Really it's an investigation of him. Investigating the president is "going some."

Colonel James A. Owenby, former confidant of the late J. P. Morgan, is hot after an investigation of what he says was a denial of his federal constitutional rights, by which the Morgan estate deprived him of property he estimates as worth millions.

This investigation, if Owenby gets it, will sidestep Supreme Justice Stone, since he was one of the estate's lawyers.

The colonel has considerable congressional backing.

Finally, there's the impeachment case, against Federal Judge George W. English of the eastern district of Illinois.

Strictly speaking, this isn't an investigation, but a trial. In effect, it's an investigation of Judge English, however, with the judge's removal as its sequel, if the Senate finds him guilty.

That this hearing will be hot stuff may be judged from the fact that Speaker Longworth, shocked to see out of the bad words, as he submitted the articles of impeachment in the lower house—they weren't the kind of language the ladies in the gallery ought to hear.

The senators, generally speaking, aren't too well pleased at being tied up in Washington with investigations and impeachment proceedings just as the congressional elections are coming on.

Still, the situation has its compensations. The Democrats will get lots of good campaign material out of the tariff commission inquiry. The Republicans won't shed any tears over a chance—if they get one—to throw the boots into a Democratic appointee to the federal bench.

There's no politics in it, of course, (they won't.) But the prohibition investigation's a curse to everybody except the genuinely dyed-in-the-wool wets. The straddlers would give it rat poison if they could.

LUCKY.

The curious passer-by paused and addressed the lone fisherman sitting at ease on the shady bank. "Any luck?" he asked. The fisherman looked up and smiled. "Any luck?" he repeated. "Rather, my friend; it's house-cleaning day at home."—Kansas City Star.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc.

FLORIDA BRANCH — THE WATKINS-LIMBACHER CO. — ST. PETERSBURG.

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 16.—Union Square, locale of so many colorful O. Henry tales in this spring, the scene of daisy tag games between sidewalk catch-penny salesmen and the police.

Warm weather, attracting throngs, the weary and the loiterers to the benches, also calls out this vast army of vendors whose wares are carried in a little satchel and who, within a few seconds, can gather a small-sized mob around them.

Their bags contain cheap wrist watches, trick fountain pens, memorandum books and trinkets. Their methods of crowd catching are as varied and obviously bunk as the things they sell. A favorite and sure-fire stunt is to tie several $10 bills on a string and, placing them at various distances on the sidewalk let them flap up and down in the wind—while making sure, of course, that they can't escape. The sight of loose money is too much for the average bench warmer, or passer-by.

Half a dozen operators in various parts of the square and a "capper" keeps an eye out for approaching policemen. A signal sends the salesman around the corner with his bag, there to start up trade again.

Loud speakers which carry radio programs to the bench-fauners might have intrigued O. Henry's imaginative mind more than a little. The other day, while listening to the clashing of sound, I heard a radio appeal given for a missing youth. As the description was being given and the tale of a heart-broken mother recited by the announcer I glanced around at the group of assorted derelicts.

Anyone of them might have been the missing youth. I wonder....

Speaking of radio broadcasting, this latest form of entertainment is bringing fat returns to artists who otherwise take to the road for concert tours at this season of the year.

The money offered is considerably better than that which might be earned from a tour and is more easily made.

One station recently paid a famous tenor $250 a night and a popular band, which receives $1000 a week in vaudeville, was able to pick up $800 for a single performance in a radio studio.

A wise crack that is going about Broadway just now and getting chuckles goes something as follows: "Yes, I'm eating an apple a day now. You see, I'm in love with the doctor's wife."

DAILY POEM

TRUST.
What an unhappy hangout this old world would be. How filled we would be with disgust, if never the bright side of things we could see, and no one had stood in real trust. What pleasure would come, if you doubted all men, and felt every transaction, you'd worry again. Would life, after all, be so sweet? Each man is entitled to standing that's high—at least till he's fallen from grace. The man who never trusts is a queer sort of guy. What fun can there be in his place? There really is pleasure in feeling each man is honest, straightforward and true. Try building that feeling, whenever you can. Most men, after all, will come through.

DAILY ALMANAC

Today is feast day of the eighteen martyrs of Saragossa and St. Engratia, virgin and martyr. The Illinois and Michigan canal was opened April 16, 1848. Today is thirty-fifth birthday anniversary of Charles Chaplin.

IRELAND STARTS ON BIG SHANNON PLAN

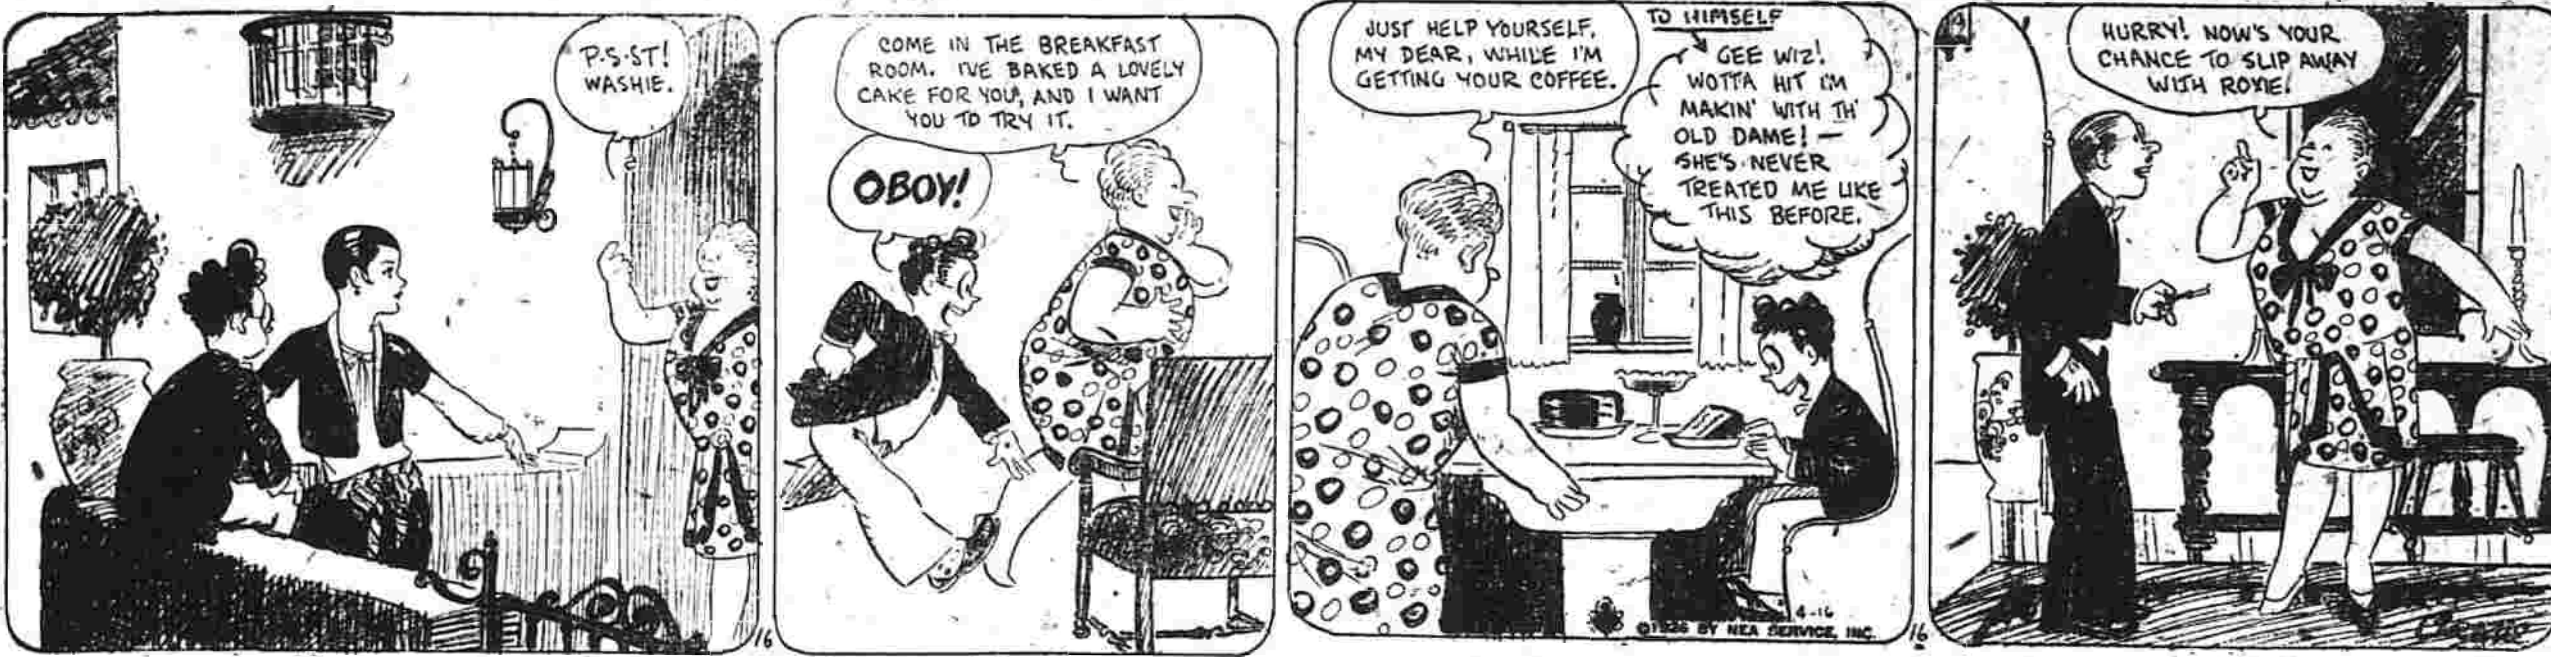

Dublin—With the announcement of operations on a large scale on the Shannon electrical barrage scheme, a district famous for its sylvian beauty and quietude has been turned into a hive of industry. The array of modern machinery, hundreds of acres of brown soil up turned, newly erected buildings of all kinds, and hundreds of workers everywhere, all give the district the appearance of a recent setsmal upheaval. A few months ago the districts of Parteen and Ardacnasha, where the major operations in connection with the scheme are taking place, were just sleepy, peaceful country villages and hamlets. Today, wonderful scenes of the progress that has been made may be seen. Sights seen from all over Counties Clare and Limerick daily visit the scene of operations, and try to visualize the barrage which, it is hoped, will eventually solve the fuel problem of the Free State. Hundreds of small huts have been erected for the Irish and German workmen. The huts are spotlessly clean, and the food provided for the men is wholesome and in liberal quantities. The headquarters of the undertaking, which is expected to cost $22,000,000 before it is finished, are at Limerick. From Limerick huge motor trucks constantly ply to the outposts of the scheme carrying cement, concrete, steel and various other things necessary to the work on hand. At Longport, about one and one-half miles from Limerick, the first tangible sign of the ramifications of the huge scheme may be seen. The distributing depot has been established at this point, and a light railroad runs to almost every part of the area of the barrage, which at present is about two square miles. Near Ardacnasha the excavation of the canal to be used in connection with the barrage is being excavated by powerful steam draggers, while a massive temporary power station is also being erected. This will be replaced later by a more permanent structure.

TOM SIMS SAYS

Newest grand opera star is only 20. No doubt due to bad environment. Turkish women are bobbing their hair. Sheiks may smoke cigarettes soon. It's a funny world. There are people who can worry about bridge. Blizzard in China. Bet they stuck their shirt tails in them. Many of the young men who are going to be married this spring know about it already.

WASHINGTON TUBBS II

AVERAGE DAILY RUN OF TROLLEY OVER 180 MILES

Operates Only 40 Miles With Capacity Load — Few Passengers Aboard During Other 140 Miles.

The average trolley car used by the Connecticut Co. on city lines, runs approximately 180 miles every day in the week, but runs only about 40 miles of this total with a capacity load aboard, according to figures of the Connecticut Committee on Public Service Information. During the other 140 miles which the car travels each day, it carries only a very small number of passengers in comparison with the morning and evening rush hours. On many of the 140 miles which the car travels outside of rush hours, the number of passengers carried is not sufficient to cover the cost of operating the car, yet the service must be maintained continually throughout the day in order to care for those passengers who seek transportation between the hours of 10 in the morning and 4 in the afternoon, and between 7 and 12 at night. During those hours, it often happens that a car carrying only one of two passengers.

Obviously, not as many cars are needed to care for the traffic between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. and 7 p. m. and 12 m. as during the rush hours, but the number of cars that are needed is far in excess of the actual number which would be required to carry the passengers who seek services during those hours. The reason for this is that the passengers do not seek the service all at once, but are spread in small numbers throughout these periods.

MOTOR BULLETIN GIVES ADVICE ABOUT DRIVING

The April number of the state motor vehicle department bulletin, just issued, is devoted entirely to a resume in simple language of many salient features of the motor vehicle law with especial reference to driving rules.

Such sections of the law as deal with the right of way question, the carrying of objects on running boards, the leaving of a car with the engine running, the adjustment of tail lights, headlights, markers and other equipment, the use of windshield stickers, parking, the less common forms of registration, and general information on operation are discussed in the issue.

This type of bulletin, it was considered, would be helpful at this season of the year, when general motor vehicle traffic is resumed, as compliance with the sections mentioned can be expected to lessen friction between motorists and enforcement authorities. "From day to day," the introduction says, "questions of procedure arise and are determined by us and it is thought that the issuance of this bulletin will partially forestall similar inquiries." The publication does not enumerate all of the "Don'ts" in the law-book but advice about some of the matters which are a little out of the ordinary.

Among other things the bulletin points out that there are thirty-six places in the state where the state police give examinations for operators' licenses.

Copies of the bulletin are to be had by application to the motor vehicle department.

WAPPING

Mrs. George Hills has gone to be the week end guest of her cousin, Mrs. Frank Laird of Farmington avenue, Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Seeley and little son Junior have returned to their home in Cleveland, Ohio, after a month's visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Tuttle of Flower street, Manchester, but formerly of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Woodward have returned to their home in Staffordville, after spending the week with their son Rev. Truman H. Woodward, while attending the conference meeting at the South Manchester Methodist church.

Tonight is the "good time" at Wapping school hall, when the Federated Workers will serve a good supper, between the hours of six and eight, then at 8:15 a party of young people from the Fourth Congregational church of Hartford, will present the five act comedy drama, "The Country Minister", which comes very highly recommended. It is earnestly hoped there will be a large audience to greet them.

The condition of Mrs. Wade Snow remains about the same, she is seriously sick at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter N. Battery.

FOUR GENERATIONS. Concord, N. H.—It was the unusual privilege of a merchant to outfit four generations of the same family. Mrs. Sarah A. Pethic, her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Jewell, her granddaughter, Mrs. Sadie Leonard, and her grandson, Robert Purdy Jewell were all fitted to shoes on the same day.

HERE'S STYLE TIP.

CATHOLIC NIGHT BIG SUCCESS; ST. JAMES WINS SPORTS 15-10

Over 1,000 Persons Attend Big Church Affair at Rec; Results of Sport Contests.

"A complete success from the start to the finish." That is what officials termed Catholic Night which was held at the Rec last evening. Director Walter Olson said the gathering broke all attendance records for church nights. In his opinion close to 1,200 persons were in the building during the evening.

Members of both local Catholic churches were present and in the sporting contests the St. James church, of the South End triumphed over its most worthy competitors, the St. Bridget's church of the North End. The score sheet with the returns of the five events compiled showed the South a 15 to 10 winner.

In addition to the sport contests dancing, both old-fashioned and modern, was enjoyed in the gym. Many of the members took advantage of the opportunity to enjoy a swim in the pool which was open for the visitors. Refreshments were sold in the buffet by the ladies of the two churches and a substantial fund was realized.

Following is the list of points as they were scored by the two churches (five points being awarded for winning each event):

Point Scoring	St. J.	St. B.

Bowling (ladies)	5	0

Basketball
Thanks to "Peggy" Boyle's five field goals, the St. Bridget's won the girls basketball game after trailing 6 to 4 at halftime. The final score was 10 to 5 which shows that Miss Boyle accounted for every point her team tallied. Miss Rose Woodhouse was best for the losers.

Basketball a Farce
The men's basketball game was a farce. The South End team triumphed 47 to 4 allowing its opponents only one field goal, that being made by Vincent Moriarty late in the second half. At halftime the St. James representatives were leading 15 to 1. Billy Burke led the assault with eight twin counters. Practically every one of the winning team took part in the scoring. The summary:

Dad Looks Him Over Rogers Hornsby "Sizes Up" His Young Son During Spring Practice.

ROGERS HORNSBY AND SON, WILLIAM.

Some day you may be talking about Billy Hornsby being just as great a ball player as was his dad. Of course, it wouldn't be for quite a few years, for Billy, you see, is only 10 months old now. Then, too, his illustrious parent may decide on a different sort of career for him—fathers usually do. Here we see the manager of the St. Louis Cardinals "looking over" his young son during training camp practice.

DIAMOND DUST

Cy Williams, pinch-hitting in the ninth with a runner parking on every base, smacked his second homer of the season, enabling the phenomenal Phillies to again take the Braves over the rapids, eight to four, and retain the league leadership. Harry Alconda, Boston third baseman, broke his left leg sliding home.

The Athletics turned on the Senators like a snapping turtle, pounding out a nine to three victory while Pat, Connie Mack's star rookie, held the champions to two hits in seven innings. Washington made five errors.

Chicago continued to set the pace in the American League by lacing the Browns again, eleven to four, driving Zachary to the showers. Helpless before Blankenship's pitching in seven of the nine innings, Sisler's sluggers folded up like a Paris hat in a shower.

Vic Keen, former Cub making his first appearance for the Cardinals, white-washed the Pirates, 2 to 0. Hornsby collected half of the six hits the Cardinals got off Johnny Morrison.

Due to a shortage of Eskimo suits, no games were played between the Giants and Brooklyn, the Cubs and the Reds, the Yankees and the Red Sox, and Detroit and Cleveland.

RICKARD LEAVES FOR WEST.
New York, April 16.—Tex Rickard was scheduled to leave today for Chicago on a trip that is expected to throw some light on the tangled heavyweight situation. The promoter has made little secret of the fact that he is concerned over the possible loss of two feature attractions—the Berlenbach-Delaney and the Willis-Tunney bouts.

Jimmy De Forest, matchmaker for the Polo Grounds, declared today that Gene Tunney had accepted terms for the Willis match and that the colored heavyweight would be brought into the early next week. Paddy Mullins, manager of Willis, has given Floyd Fitzsimmons until Monday to make good on the terms of the Dempsey-Willis contract, after which he said he would sign for the best match available.

COLD WEATHER CUTTING DOWN BASEBALL CROWDS

In Several Cities It Snowed Yesterday — Has Bad Effect on Players, Too.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, April 16.—Some of the die-hards thought Judge Landis went too far when he had a week amputated from the major league schedules in order to avoid the possibility of playing the world series in a snow drift. Apparently, he didn't go far enough.

Jointly shuddering through three days of frigidly that would put a chill on Mount Vesuvius, the ball players and fans today would gladly make the judge a present of the first week of the 1926 season and call the deal a bargain. There has been no comfort in the situation for anybody, not even the magnates, who pay the bills regardless of what happens to the turnstile, or anything.

Crowds Not Big.
Except for opening day, the boys have stayed away in droves whenever a ball game could be played, which was not too often. All the clubs managed to flat-wheel through the inaugural, in view of the fact that the fans would turn out if they scheduled the opening day for Christmas eve.

Once it was out of the way, however, the situation had to get by on its merits, of which there were, unfortunately, none. On Wednesday, two home clubs, the White Sox and Tigers, were forced to call the thing a misdeal because the mercury was being sold short in a bear market. Just by way of emphasis and for good measure, the Tigers had a little snow for a change.

Horrible Example.
It remained for yesterday, however, to furnish the horrible example. Eight games were scheduled; four were played. Detroit again reported cold and snow. Cincinnati said it was too cold. So did Boston and New York. The games that were played easily could have been omitted without bruising anyone's fine sensibilities. You could have kept the milk from turning sour on almost any diamond yesterday. Add to this the fact that the White Sox had to dig themselves out of a snow bank before they could start at all and you have the whole postposterous story. The club owners decline to give up the uncertain revenue accruing from that extra week, although it just about covers expenses in some cases. But it doesn't cover possible depreciation of rolling stock or ball-player-on-the-flat-foot. The owners take their ball teams into the south and California, get them thoroughly baked and loosened in the warm sun and then bring them north to play in weather that would discourage a Siberian. If that is smart business, then I'm for playing the shell game at the county fairs.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

- Rogers Hornsby, manager and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, has not only led the Nation at League in batting six straight seasons, but has hit .400 and above in three of the last four campaigns.
- In 1922 Hornsby turned in a swatting mark of .401, the first time in his big league career he got in the .400 class. In 1923 he fell to .384, only to come back the following season with a .424 average, the greatest ever compiled in modern times.
- Last year Hornsby kept up the gait by batting .403, thus hanging up an unusual record.
- The presence of a great ice cap lowers the temperature of a region about 50 degrees.

MANCHESTER IDLES IN PREPARATION FOR STATE CUP FINAL IN HARTFORD

The Manchester Soccer team is idling on the coming Sunday, probably gathering up reserve strength for the state cup final which will be played in Charter Oak Park, Hartford, next week against the Daners of Stamford. All other games will be called off on that day so that players and fans alike may attend the classic at Hartford.

This year the Daners team is better than ever, and that is saying something for the Stamford combination has been a thorn in the flesh of the State league teams for years. Manchester has been going smoothly for its first games and expects at least an even break in the game. Andy York of Torrington will hold the whistle while Wilson Faulkner and Kilgour will act as linesmen. The game will be called promptly at 3:15.

ANNIE SCRANTON IN TITLE GAME

Manchester fans will watch the outcome of the Traveler-Aetna Life girls' basketball game in Hartford tonight with interest for the simple reason that Miss Annie Scranton of the North End, will appear at one of the forward berths for the Aetna five. The game will be played in the Hopkins street Gym.

Miss Scranton, who was one of the stars on the Manchester Community Girls' team during the past season, is also one of the leading performers on the Hartford team and the Aetna Life employees expect her to shine brightly tonight. She has many friends here and all are anxious to see her team emerge with the Hartford City championship.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS.
At New York—Italian Jack Herman, Yonkers, N. Y., heavyweight, knocked out Johnny Grosso of Mount Vernon, N. Y., in the seventh round of a scheduled twelve-round bout.
At Akron, Ohio.—Eddie Shea of Chicago, knocked out Phil Verdi, of Rochester, N. Y., in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout.

Sitting pretty and no mistake!

LIKE the chap in the song, I'm sitting on top of the world. And it's not a bad world when you look at it from all sides. I've hit some rough spots, but managed to keep my seat. I want to let it be known that the road has been a heap smoother since I discovered Prince Albert. Here is tobacco!

My old jimmy-pipe and Prince Albert and I go along just singin' a song from morning to midnight. Whenever I get to feeling low, I take out my pipe, tamp a load of good old P. A. into the muzzle and light up. Old Man Trouble takes French leave the minute that wonderful smoke starts up the stem.

Prince Albert is friendly in spirit and friendly in fact. It never bites my tongue or parches my throat. They tell me the Prince Albert process fixed that for me and millions like me. I only know that P. A. is cool and satisfying as spring-water on a hot afternoon and that it suits me to a T.

You're welcome to this leaf out of my book. If you're not smoking P. A., you're not getting full enjoyment out of your pipe. Just get yourself a tidy red tin of Prince Albert. Load up your old jimmy-pipe and light up. Nothing complicated about that, is there? Well, that's my formula. It always works for me.

PRINCE ALBERT

—no other tobacco is like it!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and gusto removed by the Prince Albert process.

Homing Pigeon Flies Over Town; Is Shot by Boys

Severely wounded from buck-shot from a gun, believed to have been fired by two local young boys, a handsome homing pigeon fluttered its way onto the back porch at the home of Edwin T. Ferris of 298 Oak street Tuesday evening.

Mr. Ferris took the pigeon into the house and examined it. He found that the bird had been wounded under one of its wings and that its beak was injured and one of its claws nearly severed.

From the band on the pigeon's leg, Mr. Ferris learned that it was a Homing pigeon. He communicated with Chief Gordon, giving him the number on the band. Later he learned the pigeon came from Boston and was probably on its way home when it was shot.

The killing of a Homing pigeon is against the law and a severe penalty is inflicted when offender are apprehended.

Mr. Ferris said he saw two boys, apparently sixteen years old, pass his home earlier in the evening. Each had a shotgun. Later

Industrialism has not made life easier for women in France. The peasant who formerly worked in field is now employed by the factory. Here is one with a 200-pound bag of flour.

Mr. Ferris heard two shots in rapid succession and soon after the pigeon fluttered onto his porch, wounded.

Mr. Ferris cared for the pigeon and yesterday attempted to let it loose but the bird was still too weak to fly. He will retain it a few days longer and then will attempt to turn it loose, providing it is not claimed in the meanwhile by its Boston owner.

Mr. Ferris is of the belief that the local game clubs should take actions to prevent happenings of this sort.

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the yellow stub of a theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he finds Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—he as one of his assailants, she as the man who got the stub. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police photo as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. She breaks her engagement and writes Jimmy about it but the office boy forgets to mail the letter.

Jimmy gets a phone call from Olga, saying she has found Jensen. He rushes to her apartment to find her gone. Her disappearance becomes a newspaper sensation. O'Day then tells Jimmy that he found a picture of Henry RAND in Jensen's apartment.

Barry Colvin tells Jimmy that Mary Lowell has broken with Sam Church. They are walking along the street. They see Mary Lowell approaching. Just as Jimmy is raising his hat he spies a familiar figure running for a street car. He wheels suddenly and runs like a mad man.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVI

THE smile died on Mary Lowell's mouth. She bit her lip and stared, uncomprehending, at Jimmy's washing-iron.

Barry Colvin, his hat in his hand, called crazily, "Jimmy Oh, Jimmy!" He mumbled words vaguely at Mary, not realizing she was not near enough to hear. "He's crazy. I'll catch him—see what's the matter with him."

But Jimmy was not crazy. He had recognized, in the man who was boarding the street car, none other than Kid Divis.

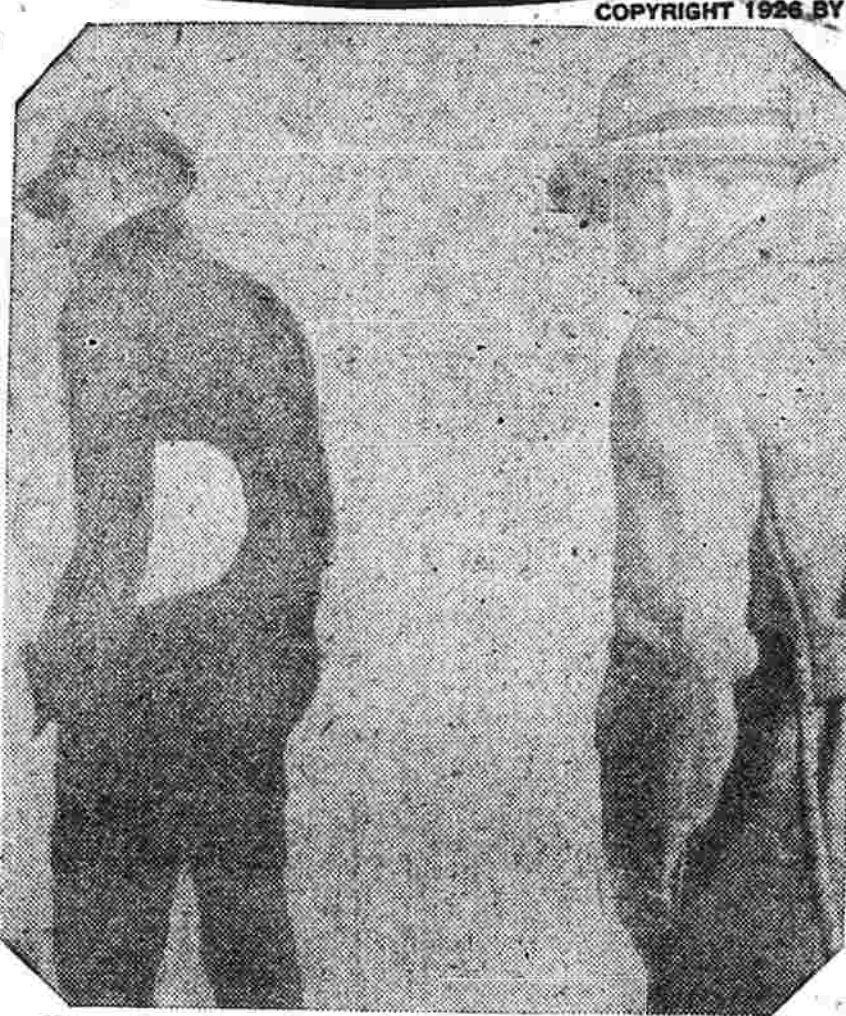

There was no time for explanations. Everything else could wait—would have to wait. "I'll not let him get away this time," he snarled.

He swung aboard the car, just as the conductor was closing the door. He glanced swiftly about him, his head lowered, his eyes peering. . . . He thought, "I mustn't take any chance of being recognized."

Jimmy had moved up in the car. He saw a newspaper lying on the rear platform. He picked it up, slid into the seat nearest the conductor, from where he could observe Divis' back, and shielded his face with the paper.

He wondered what he would do—what his plan of action would be—if Divis should see him and leave the car. "Grab him, that's all," he told himself, and sat, hoping that there would be no such action needed.

It wasn't Divis he wanted, he told himself. It was Jensen. Divis, if arrested, would only tie again about

Then, keeping a safe distance between them, Jimmy followed the dim figure up the street.

Jensen's whereabouts. Perhaps he was going to see Jensen now. . . .

Once Divis glanced nervously toward the rear of the car. Jimmy, his face exposed, shifted the paper quickly in front of his eyes, striving for an outward show of nonchalance that he did not feel.

But Divis had not seen him—or, at least, had not recognized him—for he turned slowly around again and stared out of the car window.

The car rolled on—block after block. Passengers left at nearly every stop, and now a new fear struck Jimmy—that if they rode much further he and Divis would be alone on the car. In which event, he knew, he must be recognized.

Minutes passed—go on Jimmy, nervous, apprehensive, they seemed like hours. The car, with fewer stops to make, rushed along at swaying, dizzy speed.

Jimmy, still behind his newspaper, saw the passengers gradually thin out until there were only three remaining besides himself and Divis. "Good night!" he said to himself. "Is this man going to the end of the line?"

Another passenger left. The car moved on. "End of the line," sang the conductor. "All out."

Divis had risen from his seat, was walking down the aisle toward the rear platform. Jimmy saw that Divis would pass him.

He thought, "I can't follow him out. What can I do? If I trail after him he's bound to recognize me."

Struck with a sudden inspiration he closed his eyes and gently tilted his head back, letting the paper fall against his face and completely hiding it from Divis' view. The other two passengers preceded Divis out of the car. Divis, with an amused glance at the sleeper in the rear seat, swung down off the step.

"Hey in there, end of the line," yelled the conductor. He gave Jimmy a none too gentle push. "Want off here?"

"Huh?" Jimmy was acting for the benefit of Divis. If he were still within earshot, he thought, his ruse might work. He said, in a voice disguised and husky, "Hell, I rode past my stop. I'll stay on an' ride back."

A fog had been gathering. It was thick, for which he thanked his lucky

Stars, but he could see Divis as he rounded the front end of the car and crossed the tracks.

The conductor lifted his hand to ring the bell. "Wait a minute," cried Jimmy, checking him. "I've changed my mind. Let me off here. Just thought of a man I wanted to see that lives out here."

"Your friend might as well live at the north pole as out here," observed the conductor. His humor was none too good. He opened the door with a bang and let Jimmy out.

The fog had closed so densely that Divis' rapidly walking figure was an indistinguishable blur up the street. Jimmy saw that he was in a sparsely settled district. Houses—those that could be seen in the foggy murk—were few and far between. . . . No paved streets. . . . cinder paths instead of sidewalks.

Ahead of him, just barely discernible, was Divis, still walking. Then, keeping a safe distance between them, Jimmy followed the dim figure up the street.

If the car ride had seemed to Jimmy to last for hours, the walk seemed like ages. Stretches between houses grew longer and longer.

Another passenger left. He shivered, and buttoned his overcoat tight around his throat. But he was cold not alone from the chill atmosphere but from his surroundings. . . . To be trailing Divis down this lonely path. . . . What was to be the outcome?

He walked noiselessly, on rubber heels, but unconsciously he lengthened his stride. A minute or two later he checked himself, seeing that the distance between him and the man he was following had narrowed. . . . He was afraid that Divis might suddenly turn around and wait. . . . But Jimmy had said she had written him a letter. What could have happened to it? . . . And Barry said she still cared for him. . . . He felt singularly uplifted—and then he came down to earth again.

He shook his head, muttered: "Must keep my mind on what I'm doing. That can all wait. . . . Wonder where in the devil this Divis is going. He's taking me way out in the country."

The disconcerting thought struck him that perhaps Divis might have recognized him, after all, and was merely leading him on. . . . to some trap.

He said, trying to allay that sudden fear: "That's a crazy idea. Mustn't lose my nerve. This fellow would be scoundrel than I am if he knew I was following him."

And still Divis walked on. The fog grew thicker. Jimmy allowed himself to approach a great deal nearer. Once Divis stopped, and Jimmy had a horrifying moment. He dropped suddenly to the ground, flattened himself out on the cinder path.

But Divis did not turn around. He had only stopped to shift a bundle from one arm to the other. Jimmy noted with relief that he was striking out ahead once more.

Along a parallel street a block away Jimmy could see dimly an auto-omobile shooting along at a furious rate and bumping crazily over the uneven road. He wondered what mischief its passenger or passengers could be on to warrant such reckless speed.

Divis observed the auto, too. The rear of its motor seemed strangely far away in the fog, although only a short block separated them. Jimmy saw Divis stop again, his head moving slowly as he followed the car with his eyes.

Jimmy thought: "Wonder what Mary thought, seeing me run away like that? Looked as if I was trying to avoid her. . . . Must clear that up soon's I get back. . . . Wonder what Barry thought? . . . Good old Barry. Wish he were here."

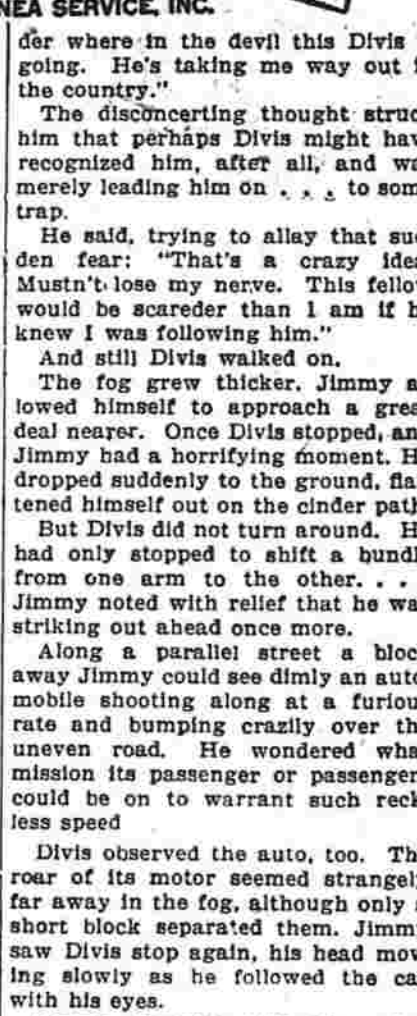

He felt the need of someone near him. . . . Not help, so much, as companionship. He debated briefly as to the advisability of entering one of the houses that he passed so infrequently, explaining his plight and asking for someone to come with him—with a gun.

"Might as well put the thought aside," Jimmy told himself. "Only thing to do's to stick to him to see where he's going. Thousand dollars to one now he's going to see Jensen. Maybe they've got Olga. . . . God, what a lonely place! . . . Here anybody here. Nobody within hailing distance all day long."

Again Divis stopped and again Jimmy flattened himself on the ground, but again it was only to shift a bundle. . . . "Must be heavy," Jimmy said. "Wonder what's in it? Lord, if only somebody were here—Barry, O'Day, anybody."

Straight ahead, some distance back from the street, a light glowed dimly. As he drew nearer, Jimmy could see that it came from the basement of a house whose outlines he had barely made out in the screeple fog. There was no glint to the light, as there had been to those in some of the houses he had passed. Jimmy concluded it must be shining from behind a drawn shade. . . . anybody.

And then he saw his man turn sharply to the left. Dropping down to the ground once more, he saw Divis, head still straight ahead walk toward the house with the dim light. Growing a little bolder, he got to his feet and trotted, sure that he was unobserved.

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

HER OWN WAY A GIRL OF TODAY AN OFFER OF HOPE

Ladies of Europe are gliding their teeth and bespeckling their tongues with gilt to match. Fashion decrees that only darkest red lipsticks shall be used with the gilt teeth and tongues. Such is the circle of life! Time was when good form demanded that one laugh ribaldly at gold teeth.

An eastern city charitable organization was recently dissolved because woman can no longer sew. The charity in question gave work to poor seamstresses and milliners. When the supply died out, the charity stopped. Men, we suppose, will deplore this passing of a womanly art just as they deplore the passing of the home-kneaded loaf. But it's men and their "ready mades" that turned both tricks.

Too much petting around Bunker Hill monuments has led to a bill seeking a $1500 appropriation for a lighting system about the monument. Shades of Priscilla and John!

The Queen of Persia rides through the streets everyone meeting her must turn away. Plain Susies and Janes are less apt to have backs turned upon them if they keep themselves worth looking at. Beautiful eyes of make a beautiful face. Bathe the eyes night and morning with a solution of 10 grains boric acid to 1 ounce distilled water.

In ancient days the little flower girls of a wedding preceded the bride with sheafs of golden grain in their arms. The symbol of a wish for abundance in the new married life. This year's cutest little flower girls will wear long-skirted, high-waisted, greenaway frocks in pastel and high shades.

When an ancient Roman damozel was married, she wore a heavy bridal crown in order to escape a bewitching spell. When the wedding cake was broken over her head in order that the shower of crumbs might be a symbol of plenty. Try this recipe for a modern wedding cake: One-half cup powdered sugar, 6 egg whites, 2-3 cup butter; 2 cups flour; 2 tablespoons milk; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1 teaspoon almond extract. Add stiffly beaten egg yolks to sugar, milk and extract. Mix butter and flour and baking powder and add. Bake 50 minutes and frost with boiled white frosting.

FASHION HINTS

CONVENIENT AND SMART. Fashionable sports dresses are of Chinese damask with a skirt which unbuttons and reveals a matching pair of bloomers. For the golf course or tennis court it has the admirable combination of utility and style.

EVENING TAILORMADES. The two-piece evening frock of lame or brocaded silk often has a V-neckline and a suggestion of a tie—all very attractive because of its incongruity.

HAND-PAINTED POSIES. At the recent Paris openings one of the most startling evening gowns was of silver velvet, hand painted with gold flowers, and worn over a petticoat of silver cloth.

FOR THE YOUNGER SET. Boyish looking coats with white plique stocks are appearing on the market in large numbers.

LAW ON AVERAGES. It is one of those strange, feminine contradictions that the more one contracts and severs the haircut becomes, the more feminine and clinging the frock is.

COLOR COMBINATIONS. The combination of citron and rose, or citron and certain more conscious shades of green is extremely smart.

"Honestly," said Mamie to me, "you may be shocked at me, but at this moment I think that had I stayed in New York, I would be more self-respecting, as Buddy Tre main's sweetest, than I am now as Mamie Riley, the check-girl at the Beaux Arts."

"Hush, Mamie, hush," I said to her. "You are not yourself tonight. You have always been so self-reliant. Why, do you know what would have happened if I had not had you that first night at the restaurant? Just as sure as you are alive, you saved me that night from a prison cell."

"Don't despair. You must know that for anyone who wants to sing as you do, a way will be made for her to sing. You say Buddy Tremain looks unhappy. I wonder if it would be any consolation for you to know that he is lonely for you? You are the one woman who brought him back to the knowledge that there are good women in the world. You are the one woman who gave him back what he lost when he found his wife was not what he thought she was. The only girl who showed stamina enough to leave a life of ease for a principle. Why, even his own wife who said she would give up love for luxury. . . . don't think she's any better than the rest of the gold-diggers, do you?"

"Perhaps not," said Mamie disconsolately, "but she's got him, Julie, she's got him. I don't see that she's getting punished for what she did."

"Oh yes she is, dear. She's not happy. She's not any happier than you are."

Well, she didn't show it last night, looking out from under her diamond tiara. I will say that, she didn't smile very often but I thought it was because she was comparing Chicago with New York."

"Well, let's not talk about it any more, dear. You're much better than either of them and I'm going to get your reward on that earth, too. I'm going out to look for a place tomorrow and if I can get one, you'll see that we'll start some voice lessons very soon. Besides, I've got a lunch that I'm going to get my two hundred and fifty dollars back and if I get it, we'll have an interview with the best vocal teacher in town."

"You dear girl," said Mamie, "I don't believe you'll ever get your money back, but if you do you must not spend it on me."

"But, I want to do something for you, Mamie. I will say that you will let me come to your room and sleep to-night. I am so unhappy, and I do not think I can sleep."

FRUIT FOR DESSERT. Fruit is highly recommended as a dessert since it contains an acid that stimulates the flow of an alkaline saliva which helps prevent the decay of the teeth.

ORANGE JUICE DIET. When you have overeaten and consequently are feeling rather low, miss a meal or so and substitute orange juice for solid food. It will be excellent for your system, and will bring you back to normal in no time.

LUNCHEON LINEN. For luncheon napkins select small sizes and you may have them as decorative as you like. The dinner napkin should be large and of heavy, good-as-you-can-get linen.

THAT FESTIVE AIR. It gives a more festive and ceremonial air to a dinner if you serve the after-dinner coffee in the drawing room instead of the dining room.

BEAUTY SUGGESTIONS. Your electric iron has many uses besides its original mission in life. Turn it upside down, put several layers of wet cloth over it and you can give yourself a face steaming second to none offered by an expensive beauty parlor.

FOR POP CORN. The old-fashioned corn popper has become a tradition. The modern electric popper, if in an electric fire with a cover, restraining its ambitious tendencies.

"MY BEAUTY BELIEFS"

By THYRA SAMTER WINSLOW Author of "Picture Frames" and "The Show Business."

Once upon a time a show man told me that a woman's secret of real beauty was to stress her one good feature and forget all the others. My eyes, for instance, happen to be less homely than any other part of me. They are big, but awfully light. I wanted to bring out my best feature, so I consistently use mascara on them; a light brush over the lids, and a medium beading on the lashes. Hair can be kept glossy and silky by rubbing warm olive oil into the scalp about an hour before the shampoo. And I believe in frequent shampoos. I do mine twice a week. Rub dry with heavy towel until the scalp glows.

NOT VERY DIFFICULT. European countries own more than half the tropics.

Rich in flavor... that's why Quaker Oats entices youngsters

THE way to make children like oatmeal is to give them the kind they like.

Thus millions of mothers insist on making Quaker Oats an excellent food balance.

Quaker flavor is due to exclusive milling processes which took some 50 years to perfect. Processes, too, which retain much of the "bulk" of oats, which makes laxatives less often needed.

This protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and "bulk" are combined in making Quaker Oats an excellent food balance.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. Thus makes the richest breakfast the quickest.

The price is the same as for ordinary oats. When a substitute is accepted, you alone are the loser.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"It's just lovely!" chuckled Mrs. Hen.

Mister Tingaling got the rent money from Mister Bunny, then thanking Mrs. Bunny for their lovely lunch and the good time they had, the fairymen and the Twins took their departure.

The first thing they did was to take poor Biddy Hen to the house in the log behind the bushes—the very one that the bad goblin had tried to rent to her.

"It's just lovely!" chuckled Mrs. Hen. "The very place I'm looking for to house out a family. How much is it?"

"Ten cents a month in fairy money," said Mister Tingaling. "I'll be coming in thirty days to he said, shaking hands with the fairymen. "I see you are in good company. Hello Nancy and Nick! Hello out as usual, I see. Come right in, all of you. I guess I know what you're after, as it is the thirty-second day of the month."

"You guessed right, Daddy Cracknuts," said Mister Tingaling. "I'll pay you as usual, I see. My pocket-book is still as empty as a balloon, almost. Twenty-five cents in fairy money is all I have."

"Well, you'll have mine pretty soon, Mister Landlord. I have it all ready for you."

And digging down into his pocket, Daddy Cracknuts pulled out a brand new bill, which he slowly unfolded and laid on the table.

Mister Tingaling's eyes nearly popped out of his head. "Ten dollars," he gasped. "I'm afraid I can't change it."

"That's too bad," said Daddy, folding it up again and putting it into his pocket. "Just wait and I'll see if Ma has the amount. Ma! Oh, Ma! Here's the landlord. Have you any money?"

"The landlord!" called Mrs. Cracknuts. "I'll be right in. I want to see him about some new wall paper for the dining room."

And in she bustled. "Wall-paper!" said Mister Tingaling in a worried voice. "Is it very bad? Are you sure your walls need papering, Mrs. Cracknuts?"

"Yes, they're all brown," said the squirrel lady. "The walls are maple wood, you know, and the syrup has soaked through in spots and made them all brown."

"Why, I should charge you extra for having maple syrup free!" exclaimed Mister Tingaling. "I—I really don't think I can put new wall-paper on any of your rooms this year, Mrs. Cracknuts. Money's so expensive just now and I haven't much. Besides I need a new hat and a pair of shoes. I mean the price of food is up so."

"Why, Mister Tingaling! Making us do without wall-paper just to make a duke of yourself! I'm surprised," said the lady. "Let me see. You want your rent money, don't you? Well, I have a dollar bill about some place. I suppose I'll have to go and get it. Excuse me for a minute, please."

OHIO SHIPPING CLERK IN NOW LORD ALLGOOD

Akron, O.—Fired from his job as a shipping clerk in an Akron rubber factory, Albert Webster thought the world was just a place to worry. Then came a letter and Albert changed his mind.

But his name is no longer Albert. The letter changed all that.

He is now Lord Allgood of Durham, England, and he is master of an English estate of 3,000 acres.

He was a shipping clerk here six months ago. Then his uncle, Lord Allgood died, and the aunt offered to adopt the Akron man and permit him to assume the title.

He was summoned to Washington in connection with the arrangements and in his hurry forgot to notify his foreman of his absence. Negotiations in Washington lagged and he returned to take his old job. His job was here all right but another man had it. His time card read: "Dismissed for being absent without reporting."

He explained the circumstances and was reinstated.

But now he won't need the rubber company's semi-monthly pay envelope and is on his way to his estate and dignities.

BOLTON DANCER WINS CHARLESTON CONTEST

Milton Lashway came in from Bolton last night to show the city hicks how to dance the Charleston. And show 'em he did.

Lashway simply frolicked away with the championship cup at last night's finals staged at the State theater. The audience was the judge and they voted with their hands. At no time was there any doubt as to the championship. Milton had it when he skidded out on to the stage, registered that betrayed-at-the-footlights expression and started his stepping. He had it when he turned and threw the audience a kiss.

There were nine others in the contest. Milton's steps were clever and his sincerity made them all the better. His feet didn't fall him—but if he had taken of his tortoise shells and concealed the fact that he was native of Bolton, he might be an uncrowned king.

The contestants in the order of their appearance on the stage were as follows: Eric Crawshaw, Manchester; Betty Dimow, Rockville; Milton Lashway, Bolton; Cam Cooper, Manchester; Martin Kuhler, Hartford; Elizabeth Ellis, Rockville; North Hazel, Burnside; Katherine Reno, Bristol; Alfred Gordon, East Hartford; Anna Koreo, Manchester.

Miss Katherine Reno of Bristol ran away with the second prize as easily as Lashway captured the first one. It was a good contest and the audience, which was made up of about 200 Red Men, guests of the State, seemed to enjoy it immensely.

FILIPINOS HAVE MORE LIBERTY THAN IN U. S.

Indianapolis.—The personal and political liberty of Filipinos today is equal to that of residents of the United States.

This statement was made in an address here by John W. Houssermann, vice-president of the American Chamber of Commerce of the Philippine Islands, and for many years a judge of the insular courts.

If anything, he declared, Filipinos enjoy a larger personal liberty and more extensive political privileges than do Americans.

Houssermann cited four reasons in support of his assertions:

(1) Filipinos do not have to pay a Federal income tax;

(2) They are not subject to draft in time of war;

(3) They are exempt from American laws except those specially applying to the Philippines;

(4) Their own legislature, which they themselves elect, is empowered to enact tariff, immigration and coinage legislation subject only to Presidential veto within sixty days.

No State in the Union enjoys the latter privilege, he declared.

The constant agitation in this country for Philippine independence does not represent the voice of the millions of the Filipinos profitably employed under American protection, he continued, but reflects the attitude of a minority of "mixed-blood politicians," numbering between 30,000 and 40,000 out of a total population of 12,000,000.

We don't need an army. Let our bootleggers sell the enemy.

STATE VAUDEVILLE BILL ALL FEATURES

Ever Act on Week End Program Is Good—"Madame Behave" the Film Feature.

(By Member Herald Staff)
From Mile. Ivy through Nettle Arnaud and her brothers, the five "Madame Behave" acts at the State for the last half of the week are all features. Each act is worthy of praise and the five combined with the film feature, "Madame Behave," make one of the best bills ever presented here.

Mile. Ivy is a champion toe dancer. She is the girl who walked three miles through New York's congested streets on her toes. She feels just as much at home high up on her toes as another body would feel standing normally. Mile. Ivy gives a beautiful dance exhibition and she is ably assisted by an accompanist and another dancing couple. Her act is the headliner, and opens the bill.

Peters and Miller, with their banjo and uke and dancing feet, come next. They have a clever line of patter, some good songs, and they sing and play their instruments well. They are some stagers and make an entertaining team.

Those Red Curls
Bell and LeClair took the house down with their act. Bell is a most attractive girl with a mass of prettily curled red hair. LeClair is a clever dancer, and they put across their act with a lot of pep. Their jokes are clean and snappy, and their finale is the stunt that takes the prize.

Morgan and Ott, an old burlesque team, are just as good as ever. They get terribly hot trying to "keep cool" with Coolidge. They do a lot of arguing about nothing at all, but give the audience a good laugh in doing it.

Personality
A most attractive act is that which rounds out the vaudeville bill. It presents Nettle Arnaud and her brothers in an acrobatic, singing, dancing and instrumental revue. Miss Arnaud simply means personality and her dancing, singing and violin playing are of the best. Her two brothers are clever, and their ideas of presenting their act is original and clever.

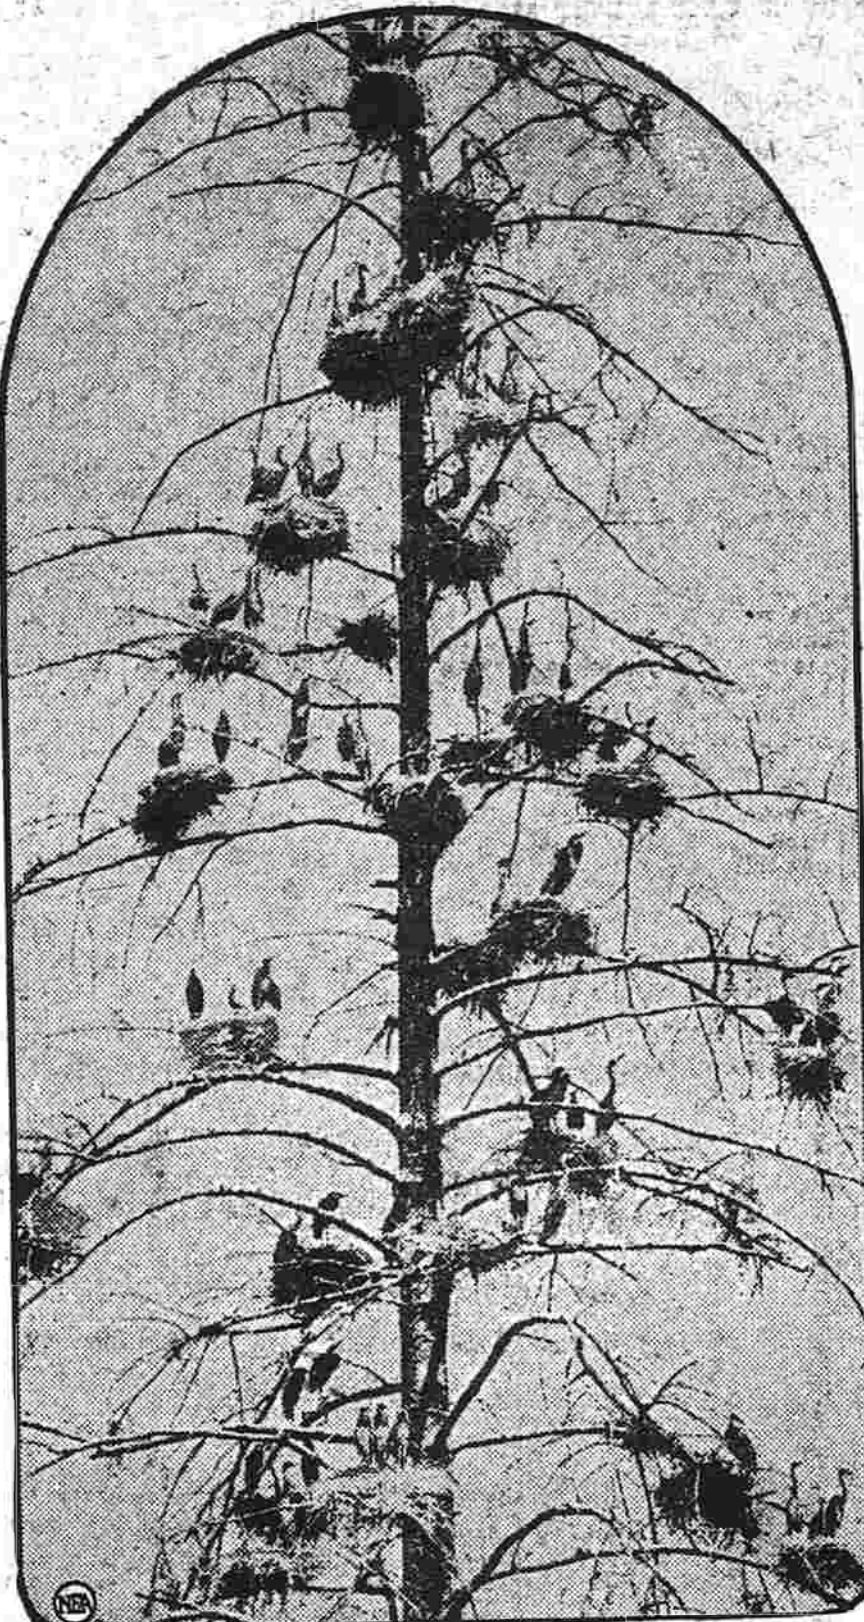

The film feature is good. Any-act of dancers' and for good measure to must be good. She demonstrates ably why she is billed as the "dancer of dancers" and for good measure, the clever acting of Julian Eltinge is thrown in. The result is an unusual picture that is unusually good.

McCreery Introduced
Mr. Sanson introduced Sherwood McCreery, the boy who won The Herald's baseball contest, and Sherwood got a good hand. He thanked The Herald publicly for the opportunity given him to see Ty Cobb play ball.

Mr. Sanson also announced that the State would show two big feature pictures on the same bill on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. They are Harry Langdon in "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" and "Three Faces East." Both pictures are playing in Hartford now but one is at the Strand and the other at the Princess. Manchester people will see both pictures on the same bill.

Tomorrow afternoon the Kiddies Charleston championship will be decided at the State. Cups will be given the prize winners.

Fifty-Two Herons Nest in This Tree

Here is one of the most remarkable pictures ever taken—a picture of a colony of shy green herons, showing fifty-two nests in a tree in Cameron parish, Louisiana. The green heron is one of the few web-footed birds that lives off the ground.

WESTON IS PLANNING NEW HIKE TO COAST

Weston, 37, the "Grand Old Walker," is contemplating his second walk to the Pacific Coast. He told visitors this recently after he had just returned from his daily three-mile "stroll" from his home to the post-office.

Weston lives in this city and he said he is kept busy as an author and answering queries on hiking he receives from all over the country.

Weston's most famous "hike" was from Portland, Me., to Chicago in 1897. Then he started to make a business of making pedestrianism popular and he walked from San Francisco to New York in 104 days and 7 hours.

Weston said he has not changed any of his "young habits"—except perhaps he has stopped smoking. Not because he considers nicotine injurious, but because he doesn't like it. Nor does he drink—but, he says, he is no prohibitionist.

Seems to be around election time in Spain. King over there picked up a laborer and drove him home.

RUSSIA LAYS CLAIM TO UNKNOWN ARCTIC

Declares Possessive Rights in All Lands North Unless Already Owned.

Moscow, April 16.—Soviet Russia today laid claim to all land in the Arctic Circle from the northern boundary of Russia to the Pole, excepting land already recognized as belonging to other powers.

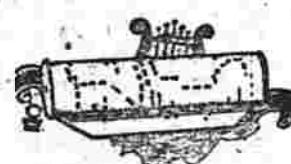

The claim took the form of a law enacted by the Central Committee. The spokesman for the committee pointed out that Great Britain already had claimed the same privileges for the Antarctic regions.

As further explanation for the law, it was charged that the numerous Polar expeditions now under way were prompted by a desire of the "imperialistic powers" to annex

Arctic territory, thereby obtaining military access to Soviet Russia.

Timely Tips For Prudent Housekeepers

How Modern Measures Ward Off Plagues

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

Bubonic plague has been widespread throughout the world for years. During 1924, reports of this disease were received by the public health service from 49 countries or dependencies, including cases at many important ports and shipping points.

More than 400,000 deaths from plague were reported during 1924 and there is little doubt that many more occurred. Nine countries in the western hemisphere (including the United States) reported plague. Bubonic plague, formerly called the black death, has existed in the United States for more than 25 years. At one time or another, since 1900, plague has been found in the states of Washington, California, Florida, Louisiana and Texas.

Ships Quarantined.
An epidemic focus of this disease has existed in the ground squirrels of California for nearly twenty years. Two plague-infected ships arrived at ports in the United States during the fiscal year 1925 and were treated in quarantine.

Rodent plague reappeared for a short time in New Orleans, La., and in Oakland, Calif. In both instances the public health service was asked to assume measures for its suppression and did so at once, no human cases having occurred in either of these cities. Thirty-five cases of pneumonia plague with 31 deaths and eight cases of bubonic plague with three deaths occurred in Los Angeles, Calif., during the fiscal year.

Both rat plague and squirrel plague were also found in Los Angeles and vicinity and squirrel plague in various counties in California. It must not be supposed that these varieties of plague constitute separate diseases. It is all the same disease whether in man or rodent. Upon the request of the local authorities, the public health service assumed direction of the plague suppressive measures in Los Angeles and vicinity shortly before the close of the fiscal year.

Length of Life.
The average length of human life in the sixteenth century was estimated to be between 18 and 20 years. At the close of the eighteenth century, it was still less than 25 years, and as late as 1900, it was between 45 and 48 years in the United States.

Comparing with these figures the present average length of life in the United States of a little more than 56 years, and remembering that approximately 15 years has been added to the span of life since 1870 in the United States, and considering that in India and China, for example, at the present time the average length of life still remains about 25 years, we can in some measure appreciate the value of modern methods of preventing disease and of conserving health and life.

France established its metric system of measures in 1799.

GORGEOUSLY GOWNED GLORIA AT CIRCLE

Romance, brightened with humor, spiced with thrilling action, set amidst magnificent society backgrounds and rendered into a thing of film delight by a gorgeously gowned Gloria Swanson and a surrounding cast of ample merit—that, in brief, describes "The Untamed Lady," playing at the Circle Sunday and Monday.

This new vehicle was written for Miss Swanson by Fannie Hurst, and presents Gloria as a lovely, alluring society heiress, with twenty million dollars, whose only liability is an uncontrollable temper. What happens when her fiancé—the fourth, by the way—decides to break her spirit, provides most of the comedy, drama and genuine heart appeal that make this photoplay as stimulating and refreshing an entertainment as one could possibly wish for.

Gloria never looked more beautiful nor acted with greater zest. Lawrence Gray, as the cavalier lover, plays his role with commendable zeal and vigor, and Joseph Smiley gives a capital performance as the easy-going Uncle George.

Frank Tuttle, who directed the production, based on James Creelman's adaptation of the story, has staged it with an opulence in keeping with its multimillionaire background. Scenes of the Yale-Princeton football game, of a fashionable Long Island country club, of a hunting lodge in the Catskills, of a lavishly outfitted yacht and of the interiors of a wealthy mansion give the photoplay a society authenticity.

Just for good measure, there is a thrilling horseback chase as well as a raging storm at sea, during which Gloria is forced to shovel coal in the boiler room of the yacht.

The co-feature with the "Untamed Lady" will be William Fairbanks in "Fighting Youth."

Today the Circle presents the last showing of Barbara La Marr in the last picture that was made of the star supported by Lewis Stone in "The Girl from Montmartre." Also Matt Moore and Marie Prevost in "The Cave Man."

YALE ART HOME WILL EXCEL ALL

To Have Finest Plant of Kind in the Americas If Not in the World.

New Haven, April 16—Yale University's School of Arts will reach its one hundredth anniversary five years hence and by that time the school will be housed in the finest plant of the sort in the Western hemisphere, if not in the world.

The recently announced gift of one million dollars for a Yale art gallery will build but a portion of the new art school, according to an announcement here today.

The building that officials hope to have ready in 1931 will cover the entire Chapel Street block front between High and York streets, with the museum at the High street corner and extending one-third the way to York street.

Hidden from view

A portion of the new art school home, erected a year ago, stands hidden behind buildings on the site chosen for the gallery. A good sized campus, entirely hidden from public view and reached by a winding alleyway is now the realm of architecture students but eventually will become the center of the whole art school.

The eventual art school plant is to have Egyptian, Greco-Roman and Assyro-Babylonian galleries, a hall of casts and a long gallery of sculptures on the ground floor.

Above these will be galleries devoted to Renaissance European art, eighteenth century and American art, the Jervis collection, a Belgian loan art, the Trumbull collection, a gallery of miniatures, two large galleries for prints, and two for modern paintings. The entire space will total over a half mile.

"CAKE EATER" SLAYER SENTENCED TO DEATH

New York, April 16—Herbert Koerber, 18 year old leader of the "Cake-Eater" bandit gang, was sentenced today to be electrocuted in Sing Sing prison during the week of May 16 for the murder of Angelo Maharis, Jamaica restaurant owner. He received the pronouncement of his doom in stolid silence.

Jacob A. Viskel, attorney for Koerber, moved to set aside the verdict and for a new trial, both motions being denied.

The four other "Cake-Eater" bandits, sentenced to 20 years to life imprisonment are Richard Daunt, Fred Kellerman, James Green and Gus Fischer.

FORMER WOMAN SPY OF CEAR IS ON TRIAL

Moscow, April 16—A spy for the czar when she was young and lovely 60-year-old Anna Serebrakova, haggard and bent, faces for the second time a court composed of revolutionary leaders, many of whom she had betrayed and caused to be exiled when she was in her hey-day. The trial opened yesterday.

FEMINE BOWS.

Never have bows been so important as today, they are apt to be found at any point on the afternoon or evening gown, but usually defining a sash that ties directly in front.

URGES SOUTH TO CURB ITS COTTON ACREAGE

Oklahoma City—Still hammering away at his theory that "too much cotton" has kept the South down during the last half-century, Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, is out with his annual plea to farmers of this and other Southern states to reduce their cotton acreage.

Dr. Knapp is known as the dean of agricultural leaders in the South and formerly was director of farm extension work in all of the Southern states.

In the face of $100-a-bale cotton the last few years, he has consistently stuck to his assertion that it is unsafe and unsound business for the farmer to plunge on this crop in the hope of continuing high prices. Until the South gets away from the policy of planting cotton and nothing but cotton its farming system will not be stabilized or standardized, he believes.

It is his theory that the Southern farmer who first grows his own food and feed, and then plants cotton on what land is left, makes money whether cotton is 5 cents or 30 cents.

NO FEAR OF RABIES

SAYS STATE'S REPORT

Man and Boy Bitten by Dog in No Danger as Animal Was Not Mad.

All fear of any serious trouble resulting from the dog bites two local persons, received Wednesday afternoon was discarded today with a report from Fred A. Krah, local dog warden who announced he had received a report from the Connecticut State Health Department stating that examination of the dog's brain revealed that he was not suffering from rabies.

The report that the dog was mad when it bit Tony O'bright, of Congress street, and John Howard, an employe of the Pinehurst grocery at Middle Turnpike, caused much excitement in that neighborhood. The two victims were taken to the hospital and were treated. The dog was killed by the dog warden and the head sent to the state department of health for examination.

The dog was owned, it was learned today, by Alexander Tedford, of Main and Flower streets. It was six months old.

NO DOUBLE TRACKING

ON LINE TO HARTFORD

Rumor Denied by Local Superintendent—At Least Will Not Go Through This Year.

There is little possibility of double tracking the Connecticut Company's lines through from Hartford to Manchester this year in view of the fact that the company expects to spend between $99,000 and $100,000 on the proposed re-laying of Center street from Adams street to the Center. It was said this morning by Supt. H. A. Nettleton of the local office.

Several surveys have been made he said, but it is improbable that the double tracks will go through until next year or later. It will cost the company considerable money when the state starts the Center street project for new ties and tracks will have to be laid all the way along the new pavement.

The double tracks have been considered in the past by officials of the company but it is said that they have been waiting for Center street to be improved.

TO PLAY BRIDGE FOR HOSPITAL LINEN
Tuesday afternoon, April 27 at 2:15 is the date for the bridge and whist at Odd Fellows hall to be given for the benefit of the Hospital Linen Auxiliary, the members of which are making up tables to insure a large attendance.

Both pivot and progressive bridge and whist will be played and prizes will be awarded the winners in each section. Light refreshments will be served at the close of the evening.

The committee in charge will be the leaders of the four groups of women who meet to sew for the hospital on the different Mondays in each month, namely: Mrs. Frank Wolcott, Mrs. E. A. Lettney, Mrs. E. O. Cheney and Miss Mary Hutchinson. Mrs. Carl Bangs will also act on the committee.

The object is one that will commend itself to all—that of raising the wherewithal to purchase new linen for the Manchester Memorial hospital, all card players who desire to help in the work are cordially invited.

WOMAN OF '96 OBSERVES BIRTHDAY.
Mrs. Edgar Scranton of Straff street and Mrs. Carrie Taylor of Woodbridge street have received letters this week telling of a birthday celebration last Sunday given in honor of their aunt, Miss Luena Mathews of New Haven who had attained her ninety-sixth birthday. A dinner was given by her niece, Mrs. Charles Douglas of Whalley avenue which was attended by twenty relatives, including three brothers and a sister of Miss Mathews, whose ages ranged from 73 to 90 and constituted the survivors of a family of twelve children all of whom lived to mature manhood and womanhood, except one who died when a child.

Miss Mathews received many gifts of flowers and other articles and while now somewhat of an invalid retains all her mental faculties and her nieces here marvel at the beauty of the letters which she is still able to write them.

PICKED UP TURTLE ON HIGHWAY.
While returning from the fire in East Hartford last Saturday night, Winston Turkington and William Sperber noticed a dark moving object on the highway near Woodland. They stopped to investigate and found it was a large snapping turtle. They loaded it into their automobile and young Sperber now has it at his home on Pearl street. The turtle weighs a little better than forty pounds. The young men are planning to give a turtle supper.
