

UNWED MOTHER IS ACCUSED OF SLAYING CHILD

Rockville Girl Smothered Three Months' Old Infant, Detectives Say — She Denies Accusation.

(Special to The Herald.)
Rockville, April 23.—Accused of murdering her three-months-old child, Miss Julia O'Hara, young, unwed Rockville mother, who lives at 57 Brooklyn street, will face a hearing in the local Police Court tomorrow morning following the result of the coroner's inquest being conducted today. The body of the child, with discolorations which may prove it was smothered to death, was found in a small satchel in a shed at the rear of Miss O'Hara's home Sunday by Chief of Police Stephen LaTobin.

No Marks on Body.
According to Medical Examiner Thomas F. Rockwell, of Rockville, the infant's body revealed no injuries and had apparently been well cared for up until the time of its death. There was, however, a discoloration of the child's lips which tend to show that the child was smothered. The child's body just fitted into the satchel and the face of the child faced up toward the top of the satchel which was tightly closed. The coroner is investigating the case today and following the inquest it will come up for a hearing in court before Judge John E. Bailey tomorrow morning. In all probability the young mother will be bound over to the Superior Court on a charge of murder. The full charge which Miss O'Hara will face tomorrow morning is: "abandonment of a feeble child under six years of age and murder."

In the police court this morning Miss O'Hara pleaded not guilty before Judge John E. Fiske. At first she denied she was the mother of the infant but later admitted she was. She claimed the child died of natural causes in Hartford on March 23 and that she put it in the satchel and took it to her home where she secreted the body in the shed. She said, to complete arrangements for the child's burial.

Chief's Clever Work
The credit for detecting the crime is due Chief LaTobin, the latter with his own officers and other detectives having concluded a thorough investigation during the past week which resulted in the startling revelations. It develops that the child was born in St. Francis hospital in Hartford, February 25, Dr. Herbert Bailey of Hartford was the attending physician. At that time Miss O'Hara filed her marriage name as Mrs. William Burke, and her maiden name as Julia Broder. Date of Child's Birth
The point on which the date of Miss O'Hara's death depends the most is a statement made by Medical Examiner Rockwell, claiming the child had not been dead over twenty-four hours prior to the time it was found in the shed.

Miss O'Hara's brother John testified in court today that he went into the shed Saturday and that the satchel containing the child's body was not there at that time. These statements tend to disprove the date of the death of the child as given by Miss O'Hara.

The young mother, who is only twenty-three years old, has not revealed the name of the father of the child. She claims, however, that several men are implicated.

LIKE CASE IN WORCESTER
Worcester, Mass., April 23.—Charged with murder after the body of an infant body only a few hours old had been found in Curtis Pond here, Miss Edna Deedy, 22, was arrested today and arraigned in court. A sharp instrument had been driven into the infant's head, according to the medical examiner.

Frank E. Boyle, who works in the same shop as the girl, was taken into custody.

OTTAWA MENACED BY ITS WORST FLOOD.
Ottawa, Ont., April 23.—Ottawa is menaced today by the worst flood in its history.

A spring freshet has forced scores of families to desert their homes in South Ottawa. The flood waters have completely submerged the courts and greens of the exclusive Ottawa club and bowling club, and Eastview suburb is largely under water.

Games were played and singing followed by light refreshments, rounded out an enjoyable evening.

Wellesley, Mass., April 23.—A leaky old rowboat, warped and ready for the kindling woodpile, stood in the yard of William Diehl, a liverman. "Take five dollars for it?" asked William Taylor, representative of Henry Ford, searching for an ancient sign for the famous Wayside Inn. "Sold," replied Diehl, pocketing the five dollar note. The ancient boat will go with Mr. Ford's antique collection at Sudbury.

WIRTALLA TO FIGHT FOR HIS JOB ON FORCE

Policeman Withdraws His Enforced Resignations; To Have Hearing Before Board Thursday.

Officer Rudolph H. Wirtalla who on March 26 resigned from the Manchester Police force, last night withdrew his resignation. The Board of Police Commissioners at a regular meeting was informed of Wirtalla's desire to remain as a policeman here. A hearing will be given to the officer by the commissioners on Thursday night.

Early in March Officer Wirtalla was before the board for an infraction of department rules and at that time he was given a chance to resign. He tendered his resignation effective April 1, and later asked for an extension of time to May 1.

His letter withdrawing his resignation was dated April 19. Wirtalla's action means, evidently, that he intends to fight out the case that he has broken department rules. When reached by phone today by a Herald man he admitted he had withdrawn his resignation, but he did not feel that it was right for him to discuss the matter prior to the hearing on Tuesday.

The resignations of Officer Joseph Foley and Supernumerary Officer Fred Brousseau which had been received at a previous meeting were accepted effective May 1.

Rading New Officer
One supernumerary officer was appointed to the force last night and the applications of four others were received. The officer appointed by the board is Aaron Radding of Lydall street. He is a tobacco farmer, assisting his father, Louis Radding.

The applications received last night were those of Harold C. Risley, electrician, 34 Delmont street, Morris J. Jobert, employed Hartford Rubber Works, 187 Maple street; William F. Shaw, employed Glanbury Knitting Company, 176 Court Oak street; William Corder, employed Cheney Brothers, 52 Mt. Nebo Place. The applicants will be given a hearing Tuesday night.

WANTED TO SCARE HIM, BUTCHER CHASER SAYS

Ax Wielder Guilty of Assault; Admits He Was Angry When Wife Was Asked to Pay Up.

John Tymboulak, the man who chased Harry Chores, local butcher, with an axe, the other day was found guilty of assault in the police court this morning by Judge John E. Fiske. A fine of $15 and costs was imposed. Tymboulak admitted that he became angry when Chores dunned his wife for a bill of two or three dollars for meat. He said he did not want to kill him but just wanted to scare him a bit.

Must Not Speed.
Traveling salesmen and others who have occasion to go through Manchester by automobile will learn in time that it does not pay to speed their cars. Israel Goodwin of Worcester was the third man to appear before the local court this week on the charge of speeding.

Every one of the three men pleaded guilty.

Goodwin was driving north on Main street and according to Sergeant Barron speeded his car at the pole over all the way over, past the numerous side streets at a rate of from 40 to 45 miles an hour. Judge Johnson imposed a fine of $10 and costs which was paid.

Bridgeport, April 23.—Dominick Cicco, shot to death on Hamilton street last Saturday night, was an innocent victim of a feud between Louis Roberto, who is locked up as a material witness, and Frank Rotonda, known as "Crazy Frank," a local resident who is missing. Police today announced for the first time the facts in the case. Roberto and Rotonda, they say, had a quarrel over a watch. Rotonda went gunning for Roberto and Roberto struck Cicco who was standing nearby. Police have been searching for Rotonda ever since the slaying as a once traced him to a camp near camp at North Branford but he is not located.

DEPEW TELLS HOW TO BE 100

Ninety-two Today, Active Rail- road Head Has No Idea of Getting Old.

New York, April 23.—Chauncey M. Depew, ninety-two years old today, expects to live to be 100—at least.

There's no great trick in living to a ripe old age, according to Depew, who is hale and hearty and getting quite a "kick" out of life. One of the secrets is "moderation"; Depew emphasizes that.

Here's how to live to be a good old age, as revealed today by the vigorous "young" president of the Board of Directors of the New York Central lines:

- 1.—Observe moderation in all things, keep in the middle of the road.
- 2.—Think only of cheerful things, as far as possible.
- 3.—Cultivate the society of young people; try to live their lives.
- 4.—If certain foods disagree with you, give them up. Too much peaches and cream will make any one sick.
- 5.—Be an optimist. Realize that the world is getting better, that the young folks are just as good or better than ever before, and that auto rides and petting parties are not as bad as painted.
- 6.—Marry young.
- 7.—Trust in God. Be convinced there is a response to prayers.

TELLS OF DEATH THREATS BY SWAMPSCOTT GANG

Boston, April 23.—Threats against his life were made if he "squeaked" about the run-running activities in Swampscott, George Maccia, former special guard at several Swampscott estates, including White Court, last year's summer's White House, testified today when he took the stand as government witness in the trial of former police chief, William L. Quinn and 15 others, charged with violating the tariff and prohibition laws.

In the Days of Ivanhoe

The brave days of Ivanhoe have been brought to life with a series of storied drawings by Lawrence Redner, starting today in The Herald. You will find in this story the glorious medieval romance of Sir Walter Scott restored, with all its knightly glamor, the clash of lances as a bold rider is hurled from his charging mount, the call of the knight to his lady behind a latticed window—castles and caparisons and good stout cudgels.

Start it, on page 6 today in The Herald.

ROOSEVELT IN SPEECH LASHES VOLSTEAD ACT

T. R. Jr., Out for Modification; Declares Dry Law Has Bred Law Violation on a Gigantic Scale.

New York, April 23.—Theodore Roosevelt said that he would vote for modification or repeal of the Volstead act if he were a member of Congress, in an address at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association at the Waldorf last night.

"This reform was necessary, he asserted, to check the murder, corruption and other crime that have followed in the wake of the Volstead act. At the same time he urged strict enforcement of the law while it remained on the statute books, declaring that what this country needed was less law and stricter enforcement of the law that existed. Attacking 'sloppy sentimentality' in the treatment of criminals, he advocated 'certainty of punishment' and 'justice unswayed by fear or favor.' In order to curb the wave of crime throughout the country.

Once backed by Dry League. When Mr. Roosevelt was a candidate for Governor of New York in 1925 he was endorsed by the State Anti-Saloon League as its hope against the wet sentiments of Governor Smith.

"The cornerstone of our American Government is obedience to the laws we ourselves have made," said Colonel Roosevelt. "By the same token, should a law that has been enacted prove wrong, and the majority of the people wish its repeal, the means are established whereby it may be repealed. Our laws, therefore, are in our own hands, both to make and to repeal. We are fouling our own nest when we flout and disobey them."

"Widespread law violation is sweeping our country. In its wake are crimes of every sort and destruction. There is nothing more contagious than crime and license. The murders in Berlin and the last burglary in New York City spring from the same source and are bred by the same conditions."

So Many Escape.
"Should this continue our government will become a mockery. The liberty which is so grandiloquently proclaimed in patriotic orations on our national holidays will cease to exist and America will go into the discard. "One of the causes of this law violation is the fact that so many escape the penalties of the law. This is true both as a major and minor crime. "Perhaps one of the most potent influences for law violation are those law-making bodies which seem to believe that they can justify their existence only by passing additional laws, and which pass after law without regard to either its fundamental soundness or its

GREAT NEW JERSEY FIRE IS UNBEATEN

Hundred Houses Gone as People of Many Villages Battle Raging Forest Blaze

New York, April 23.—With almost a hundred dwellings destroyed in the New Jersey villages of Pleasant Plains, Silverton and Osborneville, the fire which started Wednesday was spreading westward with slightly diminished vigor in the direction of Barnegat Bay.

The fire, which has cut a path eleven miles long and five miles wide, this morning had approached the outskirts of the village of Cedar Ridge, Laurenton, West Mantoloking and Adamstown. One death was reported. Gen. John C. Visser, who fought in the Boer war against England, dropped dead of heart disease, while fighting the fire at Pleasant Plains.

Seen from Lakewood
The flames were visible at dawn above the trees in Lakewood, but it is believed the fire will be checked before it reaches that town, famous as a winter resort. Hundreds of volunteers were aiding the fire-fighters by throwing up embankments and pounding flaming brush and weeds with blankets, and by backing. Sixty sailors and marines from the Lakewood naval station have been sent to assist in combating the flames.

Two isolated fires, one near Toms River and one on the outskirts of Ocean Gate, also were being fought desperately by the inhabitants of those towns.

Near National Capitol
Washington, April 23.—A disastrous forest fire, which already has swept over 7,500 acres of timber in Prince George's county, Maryland, near the capital, was still burning fiercely this morning and eating its devastating way toward Marlboro, the county seat. A number of homes of farmers have been destroyed, but there have been no serious casualties reported.

ARREST BRUSH FIRES
Altoona, Pa., April 23.—With one dead and several under arrest, rain today brought temporary relief to Central and Western Pennsylvania wooded sections in which both brush and forest fires were reported raging within the last twenty-four hours.

Six-year-old Elizabeth Lange was burned to death in a brush fire at Canonsville, Pa., this morning. There was away fighting another blaze. Strict orders from the state fire marshal's office requested that all persons caught firing brush be prosecuted. Two arrests have been made here.

SUSPECTED MOTOR DITCHES POLICEMAN

Darien Cycle Cop Dumped by Automobile With Truck in Convoy.

Darien, April 23.—William E. Bowman, a local motorcycle policeman, was taken to Norwalk hospital just before noon today with one foot badly crushed and probably suffering from internal injuries and declared he had been deliberately forced from the road by one of two automobiles he was attempting to halt as they were going westward through the town.

Attracted by the unusual combination of a touring car that appeared to be piloting a motor truck the policeman pursued and ordered the touring car down to halt. As the policeman was pulling up alongside the touring car its driver suddenly swerved the machine and upset the policeman. A passing motorist rescued the policeman and carried him to Norwalk. Every effort is being made to locate the cars involved in the affair.

NEW YORK 4-YEAR TERM PASSES LEGISLATURE

Albany, N. Y., April 23.—Two constitutional amendments recommended by the Hughes re-organization commission were passed in the Senate and Assembly just before final adjournment was taken today. One provides for a four-year term for governor and other elective state officials, the election to be held in presidential years. The other provides for an executive budget along the lines recommended by Governor Smith.

Both proposals will have to be approved by the 1927 legislature before they can be submitted to the voters.

RUM QUESTION IS POISONING ALL POLITICS

Chicago Mayor, Asserting Law Is Enforcible, Is Convinced It Is Ruining Government, He Says.

Washington, April 23.—Prohibition is slowly destroying good government in the United States, Mayor William E. Dever, of Chicago, declared today before the Senate prohibition committee in a plea to Congress to end the nation-wide agitation over modification of the dry laws.

"The public welfare is ignored," Dever said, when wets and drys clash over prohibition without any thought for good government. The result has brought "pandemonium" to public life, he added, because prohibition has become a football of politics. Dever was continuing his evidence of yesterday when he appeared as a neutral witness and declared that it was Chicago local authority that "cleaned up" a scandalous bootlegging situation there, not the federal authorities as had been asserted.

Has No Remedy.
Dever declared he had no remedy for the situation but he urged the committee to give the subject careful study. "Who is going to win in a Chicago mayoralty campaign?" Dever demanded. "The man with best and longest experience in public affairs? Or no, not at all. "The man elected will win solely on his attitude on prohibition. That is a desperate situation. It affects cities all over the country just as it does Chicago. It affects judges, our courts, our other officials all down the line. They go in and out of office on their attitude toward prohibition and their attitude will be dominated by their political prohibition.

Cannot Succeed.
"We can't have successful government in Chicago or in any other city or in any other place if we impose laws upon the people, which they don't want. It brings about pandemonium in public life," Dever said. He wanted "intelligent conservation" of prohibition and the "ballyhooing and blab" driven out. He was critical of Federal District Attorney Olson's claim that 5,000 stills were operating in Chicago and could be "torn out by the roots in 12 hours."

"Mr. Olson spoke thoughtlessly," said Dever. "His mind was not operating while his tongue was clamoring." Enforcible
The national dry law can be enforced throughout the United States if public officials adopt the enforcement program carried out by the Chicago city administration, Mayor Dever declared. While enforceable, he said, the dry law would remain unpopular. The enforcement drive in Chicago, Dever explained, while enforcing the law, "simply drove the criminal and bootlegging element out into the adjoining towns and countryside, where it flourished unhampered by the local authorities."

Can Be Done Everywhere
"We can enforce this unpopular law in Chicago," Dever declared. "It can be done in other cities of America, if all the officials—federal, state, county and local—would co-ordinate in a real purpose to enforce the law. It can be enforced under such conditions, and by enforcement I mean to bring about a decent respect for the law such as we should have for all laws." Dever began by repeating that his visit to Washington was to "vindicate the reputation of Chicago."

He said the city's reputation twice had been attacked—once, by the Better Government Association and later, by United States Attorney Edwin A. Olson, before the prohibition committee. "The Chicago newspapers said Olson had accused us of being derelict in our duties," Dever declared. "That was untrue and I came here to deny it." Says Olson Pussysfoot
"The newspapers this morning quote Mr. Olson as saying I was the only city official who attempted to enforce the law. That recommendation comes too late—I am sorry to say that his pussysfooting now, his soft-pedaling, is another outcome of the Volstead Act. He condemns my administration on a nation-wide scale and then retreats in a small way." Dever too exhorted Olson's statement that the Chicago democratic "political machine" did not favor law enforcement. "That is not true," said Dever. "When I took office, the head of the machine came to me and said: 'Mayor, you must clean up Chicago no matter whom it hits nor how much it hurts us. That was the machine's attitude and I did clean up Chicago.'"

Suburbs Lawless
The result of the cleanup, Dever declared, was to drive the resorts into the nearby towns, where no

TWO BURNED IN FIRE AT GARBAGE CREMATORY

Bridgeport, April 23.—Salvatore Latte, 51, was probably fatally burned, and Stephen Leonetti, 30, less seriously hurt in a fire at the city garbage disposal plant here today. Firemen summoned by telephone put out the blaze with a hose and sent the men to a hospital for treatment.

Hats Off! Depew Is 92 Today

Today our hat comes off in honor of Chauncey Depew. There are plenty of reasons for it. Here are a few—

Because he is celebrating his 92nd birthday today by continuing to take an active part in the realm of business.

Because he is one of the few after-dinner speakers who can talk as long as he likes and still find his audience awake at the end.

Because he has retained his sense of humor despite his advancing years.

Because he recently announced that he didn't begin to do his best work until he had passed the age of 75.

SENATE CALLS ON JUDGE TO PLEAD

Issues Summons to English to Appear at Bar for Impeachment Trial.

Washington, April 23.—The Senate today resumed its role of a high court of impeachment to issue a summons for Federal Judge George W. English, of the Eastern Illinois District, to appear before its bar to answer charges of "high crimes and misdemeanors."

He is called to appear on May 3. This preliminary move, calling Judge English to appear to enter a plea of "guilty or not guilty," will pave the way for the tenth impeachment trial in the history of the government.

If Judge English declines to respond to the subpoena, a plea of "not guilty" will be entered in the court's record in his behalf and a formal date set for the trial.

James was convicted by a jury last night of the murder of Special Agent Frank McGrath at the Lyon home near Havana, O., February 18.

His brother Leonard, who fled to Michigan after the McGrath shooting and on March 11 shot and seriously wounded Chief of Police Dougal McKenzie of Alpena when recognized there, pleaded guilty this morning.

'CANDY KID' TRIAL MAY END TONIGHT

Eight Witnesses of Alibi Squad Swear Whittemore Was in Philadelphia.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 23.—With testimony written into the record which means either that Richard Reese Whittemore is innocent of the Bank of Buffalo hold-up and the Clifford murder, or that nine defense witnesses are in danger of perjury charges, today saw resumption of the Baltimore bandit's trial and prospect of its conclusion before night.

Opinion around the courtroom appeared to be that District Attorney Guy B. Moore must break the Philadelphia alibi, must rip it to pieces, or the "candy kid" will stand the electric chair, which means that the case is as good as closed since, if he does, he must go to Baltimore to face another murder charge, killing a prison guard, and the prospect of a prison term.

Word Against Word

Stripped to its elements, the case this morning stood a conflict between the word of eight Philadelphians who positively swore Whittemore was with them at a party in the home of Mrs. Dora Jansen, at Philadelphia, on the morning of the day of the crime and therefore could not have reached Buffalo at the time of the hold-up, and that of four Buffalo men who positively swore that Whittemore is the bandit who shot Clifford and seized $24,000 loot which he later dropped, apparently shot in the arm.

ATTACKS ALIBI

A counter attack was flung at the alibi of Whittemore by District Attorney Moore today.

The close friendship existing between Mrs. Dora Jansen of Philadelphia and "Jack" Kramer, alleged member of the "Candy Kid" gang, was the weapon used by the district attorney.

Under cross examination, the woman at whose home eight witnesses declared Whittemore attended a birthday party up to four hours before the bank messengers were slain in October, was stricken mercilessly concerning her interest in Kramer.

When Morino was named champion last Saturday here the fact attracted attention throughout the state, and immediately Miss Potts was heralded as a better kiddie Charleston exponent than Lewis Morino. San Quentin, Cal., April 23.—Clara Phillips, "tiger girl" and "hammer murderess," serving a term of from ten years to life in San Quentin prison for the slaying of Albert Meadows, who once staged a sensational fight from the Los Angeles county jail to Honduras, will not be permitted to go to the death bed of her mother in San Diego.

Warden Smith of San Quentin declared today that despite a court order issued in Los Angeles directing the sheriff of Los Angeles to take her to San Diego for a last visit with her mother, Mrs. Phillips would not be permitted to leave the prison.

GOVERNOR CALLS OFF PARLEY AT PASSAIC

Jersey City, April 23.—Gov. A. Harry Moore "called off" today the proposed peace conference between mill owners and striking textile workers scheduled to be held in Passaic this morning.

The governor explained his action was caused by the refusal of Albert Weisbord, strike organizer, to stand aside and permit actual mill workers to conduct the negotiations.

It was reported today that arrangements were being made for a spectacular demonstration by the strikers on May 1, widely celebrated in Passaic by Labor as May Day.

In a recent address Weisbord predicted a "one hundred per cent victory which we will celebrate on May Day."

"Weisbord is an outsider and is not interested in a real settlement of the strike," said Governor Moore, "and I must decline to have any dealings with him in this matter."

WITHOUT FAITH, TO ATTEND PARLEY

U. S. Will Not Withdraw from Geneva Preliminary Conference.

Washington, April 23.—Reports from London today that the United States is considering withdrawing from the preliminary arms conference at Geneva, set for May 13, were vigorously denied today at the State Department.

Members of the American delegation, it was said, have their trunks packed, their passports in order, and passage booked on a ship leaving New York one week from today.

Much Pessimism.

There is however, a considerable amount of pessimism in official circles here concerning the success of the gathering. Few officials believe that the preliminary conference will get very far along the road to a new armament conference because of the conflicting interests and jealousies of some of the major powers prominent in the undertaking.

Despite this conviction, it was said, the United States would not withdraw, as this government has no desire to be put in the position of rupturing the conference. While officials believe a rupture or stalemate is inevitable, they do not desire that the onus for it should attach to the United States.

Mrs. Armand Poitras, 23, had been found by her husband with Constable Bellemur of the Villery station, according to police. After chasing the constable from the house, Poitras upbraided his wife. She retorted, police said, with a confession of love for the policeman. Then Poitras drew a pistol.

He is called to appear on May 3. This preliminary move, calling Judge English to appear to enter a plea of "guilty or not guilty," will pave the way for the tenth impeachment trial in the history of the government.

If Judge English declines to respond to the subpoena, a plea of "not guilty" will be entered in the court's record in his behalf and a formal date set for the trial.

either directly or indirectly with Dr. Weldon. They were: William C. Cheney, G. E. Keith, Aaron Johnson, Howell Cheney, Dr. W. R. Tinker, Thomas G. Faulkner, Thomas Ferguson, Arthur Corbin, Raymond A. Johnson, Samuel Nelson, Howard I. Taylor, Dr. F. A. Sweet, G. H. Waddell and W. B. Rogers.

Mr. Rogers was the last speaker and his talk, in a humorous vein, was reminiscent of the strenuous times he had while on the Board of Selectmen with Doctor Weldon and the other members. He recited some inside facts about the system that the "Big Four" used in the conduct of town affairs. Becoming more serious as he ended his talk, Mr. Rogers said gatherings of this character tended to wipe out almost entirely the social life which was in among the men of the town who were called upon to administer its affairs.

generously shown this evening, and you may be sure that it will echo and re-echo through my heart and I will ever hold a large part of it no matter what may be the stores of pleasure reserved for me in Europe during my absence from Manchester and home.

Those Present. The party was closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." Those present were: H. C. Alvord, W. E. Alvord, Herbert H. Bissell, J. Frank Bowen, Louis Breen, James M. Burke, N. A. Field Classes as Present. In presenting Doctor Weldon a pair of field glasses as a gift from the party, Mr. Rogers paid a high compliment to the doctor for his faithful work as a town official, and in behalf of those present wished him a pleasant trip and a safe return. The doctor, with feeling, responded as follows: "Gentlemen: I thank you from my heart for this kind and much enjoyed reception. And the most endearing element of it all is the expression of friendships, early made and long enduring, in so uncertain a sea as anything like political life, its interests and occasions of misconception of one's best motives."

"Laws that for one reason or another do not meet with the approval of the majority of a community are particularly perilous. It may be that they are too strict. It may be that they are on some subject which the average individual believes is one that should not be regulated by law, but should be governed by the innate decency and honesty of the individual. Whatever the reason, however, these laws lay themselves open to careless violation, and careless violation of one law breeds contempt for all laws. In this category no law in the country has contributed more to the breakdown of the respect for law.

Not only is there a considerable body of our citizens engaged in making a living by violating this law, but there is another considerable body who live by preying on them, for corruption always breeds magots. I have never been for the Volstead law, primarily because it always seemed that this would be the result. The only time I could legally express my opinion thereon was when the so-called 'Beer Bill' was before the Legislature when I was a member. I voted for the Beer bill. "Of course, I am opposed to the

DANCING ACT IS STATE FEATURE

Unusual Company of Syncopators Could Not Appear Last Night—Fine Picture.

(By Member Herald Staff) The feature act of the State's select vaudeville program was not presented at last night's show, because the members of the Seven Syncopators had not arrived in Manchester. The act was missed on last night's bill, but the other numbers worked hard to make up for the void.

The Seven Syncopators will play at the State tonight and tomorrow. They are colored dancers and have their own jazz band with them. They reached the theatre just as the show was closing last night. The substitution was necessary because of the sudden illness of Bud Snyder, the Hippodrome clown who was billed for the last three days. Manager Jack Sanson apologized to the large audience and introduced Miss Mae Archer who sang two solos.

Though the Seven Syncopators haven't been seen at work here they carry enough good press notices with them to prove that they are good. The feature on last night's show was the motion picture, Lionel Barrymore, Henry Walthal and Marceline Day were starred in Rex Beach's famous Arctic drama, "The Barrier." Beach, an inimitable story teller, did his best work in "The Barrier." It has all the necessary elements for a big movie and the production at the State does it justice. Parish and Peru present a stunt act for the opener of the vaudeville bill. They can do about everything any vaudeville act ever attempted and they do all the tricks well. Furman and Evans have a piano and singing act that introduce a number of new popular songs. Both sing well and their songs are really new.

Jean Phillips presents a pretty dancing act assisted by two young men. They offer the usual thing in stage dancing, but Miss Phillips has the edge on a lot of them in looks. Rose and Hays put on a good comedy dancing and singing skill. The lady of the act is in line for the world championship for snappy comebacks.

A good comedy and news reel are on the program. The Manchester Chamber of Commerce and Sunset Rebekah Lodge attended last night's performance.

CALIFORNIA SCHOOL SEEKS GRID HONORS

Los Angeles—University of Southern California wants to succeed the University of Nebraska as the western nemesis of Notre Dame's famous football team.

Coach Howard Jones, it was reported today, is going to "point" his eleven all season for the Notre Dame game here December 4 and will attempt to have the Trojans fill the shoes of the Nebraska Cornhuskers, who defeated Notre Dame three times during the past four years.

Southern California has a heavy schedule for 1926, climaxing with the clash against Coach Knute Rockne's eleven.

Games against the powerful Stanford and California elevens are expected to put the Trojans in superb shape for the severe test they will face in Notre Dame. Coach Jones will lose only five veterans of his extremely large 1925 squad. Most important in his losses will be Earle, Adams, and Starke, ends.

This year's Trojan eleven will probably be built around Lareneta at fullback and Morton Kaer, veteran quarterback. Drury and Boren, veteran halfbacks, will complete the first string backfield. Last season the Southern Californians were rated particularly weak at tackle. A condition entirely opposite was expected to prevail this season, as Jones will have a wealth of new and old material to whip into shape for the tackle berth.

At the University of California Southern Branch Coach Bill Spaulding, romer mentor at the University of Michigan, was reported optimistic following spring football practice. Spaulding has a stiff schedule for this fall climaxing November 27 in a game here against Iowa State.

MOSES ROOSEVELT.

Theodore Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, it might be well to remember today, not so long ago declared that he intended to make politics his life's work; and therein he was franker than some others who hold the same ambition. His statement and his purpose are of especial significance at the moment for the reason that he took opportunity yesterday, in an address to newspapermen, to make a full and unequivocal declaration against the Volstead law, advocating the New York idea of state option as to alcoholic content of beverages while asserting that the return of the saloon can, at the same time, be prevented by enactment.
It is not to be assumed, of course, that young Mr. Roosevelt has a monopoly of all the wisdom in the country, but it is to be borne in mind that he has a political career in prospect; that he has hope of some day succeeding his illustrious father in the Presidency is wholly probable. It is, then, with an eye to the trend of public opinion that he seizes the opportunity to place himself on record as the first presidential possibility in the Republican party—a presidential possibility say in 1932 or 1936—to have the courage and the foresight to openly oppose the bone dry theory of prohibition.
It was precisely that sort of perspicacity that made his father the great leader that he was. Theodore Roosevelt, senior, was no creator of issues. He never in his life originated a cause. But he had an uncanny understanding of the surge of public feeling toward or away from any new issue or new cause, and an unparalleled audacity and genius in leaping to the leadership of a movement already germinated and only awaiting stirring up to spring into full flower and importance.
The younger Theodore has taken a leaf out of his father's book. He sees, just as the latter would see if he were still alive, the opportunity for influence and power in the Republican party open to leaders who have courage enough to defy the boggy of the Anti-Saloon league and the bone dry vote—which has been demonstrated to be less than one-fourth of the vote of the country, and at that largely confined to the Democratic South.
That there will soon be a great scrambling of Republicans of influence to get into the modification band wagon is certain, for the party is not going to commit suicide for the sake of continuing the professional salaries of Dr. Dinwiddie, Mr. Upshaw and other dry mercenaries. But young Mr. Roosevelt will always be able to claim the honor and consideration of having been the first national leader of the G. O. P. to blaze the path out of the prohibition wilderness.
Wise son of a wise father, he shows in this course both courage and wit.

WAGE PIRACY.

It is much to be hoped that the Chicago builders will stick to their resolution to fight the latest demand of the Plasterers' Union, even to the point of tying up the city's building program indefinitely.
This is said in no spirit of opposition to the principle of the best wages that the traffic or the business will bear, but in the firm conviction that the building trades unions in the large cities are creating a condition that must eventually lead to a ruinous period of depression throughout the country.
By their limitless demands the building trades craftsmen have increased the cost of housing to the point where nearly half of the ordinary city worker's pay is confiscated in the form of rent. To meet the extraordinary sums—it is ridiculous to use the terms "wages"—which the building trades compel employers to hand over to them, practically every other kind of breadwinner is compelled to contribute. The extent to which the purchasing power of the public is curtailed by this everlasting tribute to the bank accounts of the bricklayers, plasterers, iron workers and the like, has become a serious economic problem. It is hurting general business. It compels the ordinary citizen to buy fewer clothes and to scrimp on his household budget.

If the condition is permitted to grow worse, the economic consequences of it must, of course, grow worse in turn.
A showdown in the building trades is imperatively necessary. The country cannot go on indefinitely following the lead of these insatiable demanders of more and more and more. Either the building trades unions must be made to understand that not every person can be a millionaire, and must not insist on being one, or we shall have a crash that will last long enough to put some of these potentates of industry on the bread line.

SIDEWALKS.

New York city has begun to raid its sidewalks for the behoof of the roadways—in other words to take from the pedestrian and give to the motorist. Central Park West, a promenade potentially and a river of automobiles in fact, is to be the scene of a clipping of fifteen feet from the walks for addition to the carway.
And so it goes. The sidewalk, once a major factor in urban life everywhere and a gauge of the state of advancement of any city or town, is falling into a class with door knockers and footscrapers.
Whether the change is a permanent one or not a human being can tell. It is not at all inconceivable that the time may arrive when motoring will not be as relatively inexpensive as it is now; when a car of some kind will be no longer within the reach of practically every family; when the oil pools are used up and the shale rock not only costs more to reduce but in turn may become scarce; when the prohibitionists forbid the distillation of fuel alcohol—when people again ride to work on the cobbler's ponies and legs are once more used for something besides props in subways and street cars.
But not only is that day probably more or less remote; the roadways can always be re-converted in part into sidewalk again. And in those days perhaps some of the folks who now spend most of their time chasing about the pavements in automobiles will be glad of jobs helping to provide a place for themselves, their fellows and their children to walk.

OSTRICH BOOZE.

The Bostonian who, under the influence of strong waters, climbed a seven foot iron fence in order to go to bed in the midst of a Franklin park Zoo compound where was imprisoned a belligerent ostrich, and who, when he was attacked by the feather biped, slew the creature with his bare hands after a Homeric conflict, has been acquitted of cruelty to animals but fined for trespass.
His name is McIntyre and he lives in Roxbury. In Roxbury there is a government depot where are stored the fruits of many a raid by prohibition officers. Throughout all that territory the air is pregnant with the suggestion of booze. For blocks around bleary eyed individuals loiter, some of them most unsteadily. Perhaps it is for the stimulating atmosphere of the locale, though cynical natives look sideways at you and grin if you inquire if any of the stored treasures ever leak. Incidentally the price of a half pint is said to be lower in that neighborhood than anywhere else in Greater Boston, and in Chelsea—so we have the sworn testimony of a bottlelegger—a dime buys a drink with an iron-shod kick.
It would appear that Boston, for the protection of its ostriches, is putting its fences in the wrong place. Instead of fencing in the Zoo compounds it should fence out the rest of its territory against the influence of that Roxbury storage place. That would add to the security of ostriches, feathered and human, tigers both visual and blind, and of young men, named McIntyre and otherwise, who cannot stand the effects of the kind of booze that comes out of United States warehouses.

ALIBIS.

Now that the criminal has become gregarious and flocks in gangs, no longer hiding in secret dens and in holes under docks but maintaining a considerably ramified social existence, with acquaintances outside of as well as on the fringe of the underworld proper, the alibi is mounting in importance.
If a dozen eye-witnesses identify a man as the individual they saw shoot a policeman and rob a bank in San Francisco on a certain day, two dozen persons who have never been fingerprinted appear to swear that the prisoner at that particular day and hour was dancing at Atlantic City.
If Ike the Blood anticipates pulling a little turn in Pittsburgh next Thursday he can rig up Gyp the Kid in a suit like his own, send him to Boston with instructions to visit a few night clubs and introduce himself as Ike, and if the Pittsburgh affair eventuates in a pinch, twenty Bostonians will be ready to swear a hole through a brick wall, if necessary, that they spent delightful hours in Ike's company at the very time of the crime. A name, a suit of clothes, a few paralyzing drinks and a shot or two of dope perhaps will do wonders in the establishment of an alibi—to say nothing of the complaisance of district attorneys in submitting to the testimony of known crooks.

DEPEW.

Chauncey M. Depew is ninety-two years old today and intends to make it a hundred. Advising others as to how to become a centenarian, he says: "Think about cheerful things. Always be an optimist. Don't brood or be morbid. Don't be angry and hate things." And so on.
The debonaire nonagenarian is always as interesting as he is blithe. Yet it is to be wondered if his recipe for a long, gay and unworried life would not be still more interesting if he could and would give out to a yearning public a workable plan for getting into a soft snap early in life and sticking to it. The beloved Chauncey ought to know quite as much about that, or more, than about smiling though hungry.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS.

By Charles P. Stewart.
Washington, April 23.—Placing a guard over the unknown soldier's grave at Arlington has pretty well put a stop to the previously frequent tourist performance of sitting on it, lurching on the slab which marks it and otherwise treating it with the lack of consideration characteristic of a certain class of people who'd scratch their initials on the pearly gates themselves if they knew where they were and could get at 'em.
But it hasn't put a stop to the activities of shrews of petty celebrities who make a business of leaving wreaths on the tomb purely for purposes of self advertisement.
An occasional individual deposits his wreath in a spirit of real reverence.
On formal occasions, and as a sincere tribute, it's also a perfectly proper ceremony.
But when the whole idea is to get a photograph of some movie star or one-horse politician or other publicity seeker in the act of leaving a wreath where he thinks it will get him talked about, it's about as cheap a proceeding as it's easy to think of.

NEW YORK.

New York, April 23.—The clown who hides behind his merry mask some sorrow or tragedy and yet goes prancing through his antics has ever been a favorite with the tale spinners.
Many such tales are hidden behind the grotesque make-up of Broadway capers.
There is one musical comedy clown who peculiar quality of voice is his stock in trade.
Because he can utter certain rasping and guttural sounds the audience laugh and applaud his songs and recitations of lines.
His ability to create such sounds began when he was gripped by an incurable throat ailment.
It is only a matter of a short time—a year, perhaps two at the most—when the ailment will kill him, the doctors say. There is no hope. Yet night after night, as long as he has the strength, he plays this grisly role. The thing that is eating away his life is the thing that makes him the amusing clown. In his caperings he can forget for the moment he can hear the laughs and the applause and then go home to walk—and wall. Some night the voice will not come at his bidding and he will leave the stage.
Not long after the world will be told that he is dead. Then I can tell you his name. But you will know it already. Perhaps you will be one of the millions who have laughed at him.
The Garbage Man: Down in the dumps.—Wisconsin Octopus. Another clown lay critically ill.

DAILY POEM.

LITTLE PROWLER.

It's maybe two or three a.m., when solid slumber's sweet. You partly wake to sense the pitter-pat of tiny feet. It's in a cautious whisper that you hear somebody call, an "oarse you know some tiny tot is comin' down the hall.
Your room door is open and there's someone peekin' through. Just kinda hesitat'n' and awon't 'd'rin' what to do. It's only for a moment that the nightly prowler stands, and then your bed is jolted by the youngster's little hands.
Another timid whisper, as the three-year-old grows bold, "Over, dad, I'm crawlin' in with you and mom. I'm cold." And then the youngster snuggles down. You never hear a peep, and see, before you know it, little prowler's fast asleep.

YOUNG LOOKING.

Host: And that is a portrait of my great-grandfather.
Guest: Wonderful. Why, he does not look any older than you.
—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

His ability to create such sounds began when he was gripped by an incurable throat ailment.
It is only a matter of a short time—a year, perhaps two at the most—when the ailment will kill him, the doctors say. There is no hope. Yet night after night, as long as he has the strength, he plays this grisly role. The thing that is eating away his life is the thing that makes him the amusing clown. In his caperings he can forget for the moment he can hear the laughs and the applause and then go home to walk—and wall. Some night the voice will not come at his bidding and he will leave the stage.
Not long after the world will be told that he is dead. Then I can tell you his name. But you will know it already. Perhaps you will be one of the millions who have laughed at him.

CONCERT TICKETS
GOING IN BLOCKS

Men's Choral Club Reserves 35 Seats for Swedish Glee Club—32 for High School Orchestra.

Two large blocks of tickets for the concert of the Men's Choral club of Manchester next Monday evening at the High school hall were withdrawn from the main supply today. The Beethoven Glee club of the Swedish Lutheran church has decided to attend the concert in a body, and has made application for thirty-five seats. Accordingly, a section has been reserved for the club, and thirty-five tickets set aside for the members.

Another block of seats set apart today consisted of thirty-two tickets reserved for the members of the High school orchestra. This action was the result of the decision of the Men's Choral club to invite the school orchestra to be present as the club's guests at the concert Monday evening. The Choral club desires to offer all possible encouragement to the young musicians of the High school orchestra, and has taken this generous and careful way of doing so.

Elaborate Program.
Not only will the musical program for the concert be elaborate, but the printed program for distribution Monday evening will be elaborate as well. It will consist of a generous-sized twelve-page booklet, neatly printed, and will go into unusual detail in the information given. Besides containing a complete program of the fourteen numbers to be given, it will give the words of the principal songs. There will also be a complete list of the active and associate members of the Choral club of Manchester.

One of the early numbers which will add zest and fire to the program will be the ringing Cornish Marching Song commencing:
"A good sword and a trusty hand,
A Merry heart and true!
King James's men shall understand
What Cornish men can do!"

The program will be in two parts, and the various numbers are on the same high plane which has characterized the four concerts already given by the Choral club. And for variety's sake there will be a rousing negro spiritual:
"I got a harp, you got a harp,
All of God's children got a harp,
When I get to heaven goin' to play
on my harp,
Goin' to play all over God's heaven.
Everybody talkin' about heaven
ain't goin' there,
Goin' to play all over God's heaven."

Singers in Boston
Director Archibald Sessions and Jarle Johnson, of the Choral club, left yesterday for Boston, where they planned to take part in rehearsals with the Boston Symphony Ensemble, assisting artists at the concert Monday evening. One of the strongest numbers will be "The Farewell of Hiawatha," with solo by Mr. Johnson, accompanied by the Boston Symphony Ensemble. Lovers of Indian lore will hear once more the noble Hiawatha in his farewell to old Nokomis:
"I am going, O Nokomis, on a long and distant journey,
To the portals of the sunset,
To the regions of the home-wind,
Of the Northwest-wind Keewaydin;
Many moons and many winters
Will come and will have vanished
'Ere I come again to see you!"

Hartford Visitors Coming.
Several Hartford music lovers who are associate members of the Choral club have signified their intention of attending the concert. Those who are still without tickets will find them at Watkins Brothers store and the Kemp Music House.

—yes, we are different—

Said an enthusiastic shopper to us recently, "You have all the good points that certain stores claim for themselves—and you say nothing of it—they say it all but do nothing. And besides, I find Garber Brothers so different from all other furniture stores." Yes—we do what others only talk about—and we ARE different. We believe this to be the most unique furniture establishment in America. We are in an out-of-the-way location—we have no display windows to attract passersby—and our huge factory building is even unattractive in appearance and we NEVER have sales. Apparently, every advantage in favor of other stores located in the heart of the city—with attractive display windows and beautiful buildings. And yet the good people of New England are making a beaten path to our door—the rapid growth of our business is the marvel of the furniture trade. What is the reason for this? You answer it for yourself—Would you rather pay "high-rent" prices or go a little out of the shopping district and save the difference? Are you buying "window atmosphere" or home atmosphere? Do you mind shopping in a factory building where you can buy direct from the manufacturer without paying the middleman's profit? Do you believe in "sales"—or would you rather pay Garber Brothers' always lowest in the city EVERYDAY PRICES and know that you have received utmost value for your money and not an imaginary reduction? Intelligent, clear-thinking, thrifty folks are answering these questions every day at Garber Brothers.

FRANCE MAKES A NEW DEBT OFFER

Berenger Appears Before Commission; Terms of Tender Are Not Disclosed.

Washington, April 23.—A fresh proposal for the settlement of France's $4,000,000,000 war debt was officially submitted to the American Debt Funding Commission today by Henri Berenger, the French ambassador.

The new offer was set forth in a seven page memorandum, which M. Berenger personally read to members of the commission in French and then delivered each member a copy in English.

France is now understood to be prepared to undertake the discharge of her obligation to the United States in payments over 62 years, beginning with a modest annual installment of $25,000,000 and gradually increasing to a maximum of $100,000,000 in later years.

to any agreement whereby if Germany falls down on her reparations payments, the agreement will be revised in France's favor.

Compromise on Safety. It is hinted, however, that a compromise is in the making on the safeguard clause, under which if Germany does fall down, and France requests it, a short moratorium will automatically go into effect which will allow France time to meet such a condition, without nullifying the agreement as a whole.

Both governments are today more keenly desirous of settling the five-year controversy than ever before—France because of her falling franc and the restrictions placed on her credit in this country, and the United States because of a desire to wipe the slate clean of the big war loans.

FOREIGN TRADE TO BEAR DOWN ON RUSS CREDIT

Economic Pressure Now
Forcing Change in Ideas of Soviet Government.

London.—Economic pressure is steadily forcing a change in the attitude of the Russian Soviet government toward foreign capital and her private creditors, both American and British, according to the opinion in well-informed financial circles here.

Claims of foreign companies against the Soviet for plants and equipment seized and diverted to the uses of the government by the Communists will continue to exercise an important influence on the policy of other countries toward Russia so long as compensation is not forthcoming, but it is now seen Russia's creditors, since they can virtually control the outside financial assistance which the Moscow government requires, are being placed in a position where they can compel their demands to be given more serious consideration than in the past.

Change Is Due.
Among British business leaders who believe that a change is due shortly in Russian policy is Leslie Urquhart, the oil operator, who is one of the largest claimants against the Soviet for property confiscated in the Revolution. Urquhart sizes up the situation thus: "Under present economic conditions in Russia, the Soviet government is finding itself in a vicious circle. Its only source for the necessary development of industry is its exports, of which preponderance must be given to agricultural products, but to be able to get possession of these products the government must supply to the agricultural population the desired manufactured goods of industrial enterprise, by the import of the needed equipment from abroad.

Paying For Goods.
"The only possible way to break this vicious circle is to obtain the necessary funds for paying for the goods coming from foreign countries in these countries themselves."

It is Urquhart's opinion that the anticipated change in the Soviet attitude would have taken place earlier had not adventurous business men in foreign countries undertaken to deal individually with Russia.

Manchester's Great Public Pantry!

"Why, Mrs. Jones! Are you driving another new car? How can you do it with everything so expensive; foodstuffs especially? It takes most all our money to buy groceries."

"Mrs. Smith, you will probably be surprised when I tell you this, but since I've started selecting my own groceries and meats at Hale's Self-Serve I've saved so much that Mr. Jones decided to put a little more to it and bought me this car; so I can take my groceries home with me instead of having him call for them, or having them delivered. It's real fun and very profitable. "I'm going to invite you to come with me tomorrow and select your foodstuffs."

HISTORY OF TOWN TO BE READY SOON

Frank Cheney Jr. Explains Delay in Publication--To Be Printed by Schieldge.

The following letter will answer several inquiries The Herald has received regarding the publication of the History of Manchester. Editor, The Herald.

From the time of several letters which have recently been published in the Herald, I feel some information is due to the public as to the Manchester History. This work, which was undertaken at the time of the Centennial, has been found to be more of a task than was realized.

We regret the long delay but feel that the History will be far more complete than it would have been if published more hurriedly. The book will contain over 400 pages, of which the equivalent of about 75 pages will be illustrations.
