LASH CROWE AS UNFITTED FOR CICERO PROBE

Civic Leaders in Chicago Declare His Grand Jury Quiz Will Be Investigation of Crowe by Crowe.

Chicago, May 1.—With Coroner Oscar Wolf's inquest into the murder on Tuesday night of William McSwigin, "hanging prosecutor" of Cook county, set for today, the political phase of the investigation into the gang murders in the county grew more complex.

Demand for a special grand jury session with a "special prosecutor" still is being made, despite the fact that State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe yesterday brought about the calling of a special grand jury for Monday to delve into the causes in the murders of twenty-nine men this year by gunmen in gang warfare in Chicago and its suburbs.

Tied Up By Politics
Those demanding a special prosecutor for the inquiry—leaders in civic and business organizations of the city—declare that Crowe, because of his political affiliations, is not in a position to conduct a fair inquiry into the case. His petition for a special grand jury, granted yesterday by Judge William Brothers, is declared to be an effort to forestall attempts to bring about a full investigation and was characterized as an "investigation of Crowe by Crowe."

Meantime Alex. V. Korecek, hardware dealer, "remembered" he had sold not only one, but three of the deadly Thompson sub-machine guns of the type of gun used in killing McSwigin and two companions, James Doherty and Thomas Duffy, gangsters in Cicero, Korecek, however, defied all efforts to persuade him to tell the names of the purchasers.

Threat To Kill
"If I tell I'll die," Korecek declared last night. "I sold those fellows one gun and then they said they'd kill me if I didn't get the others. Then they got the gun they swore they'd 'take me for a ride' if I ever squawked about them."

Crowe announced that he will call hundreds of persons, among them many leading citizens of Chicago, during the general investigation into gangster slayings.

Great Crowd at Funeral
The largest funeral assemblage since the burial of Dean O'Bannon, bootlegger whose spectacular career caught the public interest, turned out today to view the body of and later attend funeral services for McSwigin, the slain assistant states attorney.

Thousands passed through the home of the deceased prosecutor's parents where the body lay, and at one time the waiting line extended more than a block down the street.

Suspects in Detroit
Detroit, May 1.—Robert Burns, 35, alias Moran, and Henry Karl, 27, alias Brooks, were being held by police today as fugitives from justice at the request of Chicago authorities, investigating the murder Tuesday night of William McSwigin, Cook county prosecutor.

'SUN' GOES BACK TO THE OLD 'ROW'

New York Newspaper Buys Former Tribune Home in "Printing House Square."

New York, May 1.—Ogden Reid, editor of the New York Herald Tribune, has announced the sale of the building at 154 Nassau street, occupied by The Tribune for many years before its purchase of The Herald and removal to the present modern plant on West Fortieth street. The purchaser was the Frank A. Munsey Company with The Sun.

The sale was arranged with the late Mr. Munsey and was carried out after his death by William T. Dewart, Mr. Dewart is now president of the Frank A. Munsey Company and The Sun.

The old Tribune building, like the whole block, is deeply fraught with the traditions of newspapers and newspaper making. Twice The Sun has occupied buildings in the block, the first on part of the site at 154 Nassau street, and again in the old Tammany Hall building, which stood so long at 170 Nassau street, the Frankfort Street corner.

FUNDS ARE NEEDED FOR OUR HOSPITAL

Service Men Take Responsibility for Annual Collection of Money.

The hospital trustees announce that Captain Clarence Bissell has been secured to take charge of the annual collection of funds for the Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Having in mind the thought that the hospital was originally built as a memorial to the service men, the first thing Captain Bissell did was to put the proposition up to them themselves. The result was that at Thursday night's meeting the American Legion voted unanimously to assume responsibility for securing the necessary money.

Captain Bissell's plan is unique. There will be no teams, as in former years, but chosen men from the Legion will make a complete canvass of the town so that everyone will be given an opportunity to contribute what they can afford to our hospital.

It seems singularly appropriate that the men themselves should this year undertake this work, and they will no doubt meet with a cordial reception.

The money needed this year is entirely for replacement of worn out or obsolete equipment and to make up for the difference between what the patients are able to pay and the actual cost of caring for them. When it is remembered that it costs at least $4.50 a day to take care of each patient and that a ward patient pays only $2.00 of this, it is clear that a deficit is bound to occur. A careful estimate of the probable expenses has been made by the trustees and after deduction from this the average amount paid by the patients, the amount contributed by the state and the amount received from endowment, there still remains about $35,000 to be raised by the generosity of the people.

The Lecture men will make the canvass during the early part of May.

SAYS NAVY MAN PUT HORSE TO BED PAJAMAED

Drunken Freak, Declares Accuser—Just Bandages Insists Officer—May Be Another Court Martial.

Washington, May 1.—Whether dressing up your favorite horse in pajamas and attempting to give the animal a good night's rest between clean sheets is a matter that requires court-martial consideration, is put up to the Navy Department.

Commander Robert G. Heiner, executive officer of the Navy Hospital at Norfolk, believes the act was the vagary resulting from alcoholic excesses. Captain Charles M. deValin, chief medical officer of the hospital, whom Heiner accuses, declares that the animal was sick and of great value, and the swathing of its limbs and even entire body in bandages, which may possibly have two other complaints, is a prejudiced and carelessly observing executive, was merely a remedial measure approved by the latest up-to-date veterinary practice.

Adds Two More Charges
In addition to the supposedly humanitarian act to De Valin's horse, two other complaints are advanced by Heiner against his chief. They include the alleged conversion of government property into a hunting lodge for private use, and the use of medical liquor for improper purposes.

Heiner and two members of Congress early this month had attempted to submit charges against De Valin, but it took some time to get the case to the attention of Secretary of the Navy William B. Dix, who later he accepted Captain de Valin's hospitality on a trip to the West Indies on the transport Henderson.

Admiral Stitt said it was true that he had made a trip of inspection to Cuban waters on the surgeon general's division of the naval service as an officer of the highest type against whom no complaint has ever been registered prior to the present incident.

Explains House
Commander Heiner asserted that Captain de Valin took down a house which belonged to the government, caused it to be shipped into North Carolina and there reconstructed as headquarters for a little duck shooting club of which he is a member.

Congress Elephants and Mules Battle on Baseball Diamond

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Republicans and Democrats of Congress carried their never-ending fight to the baseball diamond today.

Amid a setting reminiscent of a big league opening, the Republican Elephants and the Democratic Mules met at 2:30 o'clock in a renewal of their annual baseball contest.

The House closed shop to be at the game. Speaker Longworth was selected to toss out the first ball. Representatives Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader, and Garrett, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, are the partisan umpires. Extra police were ordered to the park.

There is one real baseball player in the Democratic ranks. He is McMillan, of South Carolina, catcher. While playing for Charleston, he led the South Atlantic League in hitting and stolen bases in 1913. But that was many years ago, the Republicans retort.

Here is the startling line-up:

Goodyear Entry in National Race Lands in Virginia 815 Miles from Take-Off.

Akron, May 1.—A record distance of 815 miles was covered by the Goodyear balloon piloted by Wade T. Van Orman and Walter Morton, a message received by officials of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company at noon today.

The bag made a safe landing at 1:15 a. m. today eight miles north of Petersburg, Va., which is about 815 miles from the starting point at Little Rock, Ark.

Dictator Rule for Britain; General Strike is Ordered

Signs Extradition for Whittemore

Bandit to Go to Baltimore Today—New Hope for Recovery of Loot.

Albany, N. Y., May 1.—Extradition papers which will return Richard Reese Whittemore, bandit leader, to Maryland, where he will be tried for the murder of a prison guard, were signed shortly after 9 o'clock today by Governor Al Smith.

Whittemore, who is now in the Tombs prison, New York, will be on his way to Baltimore, the city in which he was arrested, it was said here early today.

The request for the extradition papers, signed by Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, was brought to Albany last night.

New Loot Searched
New York, May 1.—With Richard Whittemore, the bandit, scheduled to be taken back to Baltimore this afternoon to face a murder trial for the murder of a prison turnkey, detectives redoubled their efforts to locate the $1,000,000 loot believed to have been acquired by his gang in robberies here.

The search began after Anthony Palladino, one of the gang, who already has pleaded guilty to robbery indictments, became convinced free and decided to reveal a secret cache where a large part of the stolen jewelry is hidden.

Although two alleged fences have been arrested since the roundup of the gang, this is the first time the police have had definite clues to work on and the recovery of about $100,000 worth of loot was believed to be imminent.

NEWSPAPERS HIT BY BIG BRITISH STRIKE

London, May 1.—The population of Great Britain will be kept at home and unadvised of news by the general strike which becomes effective Monday mid-night. Trains and boats will stop running and the printing trades employed on newspapers have been ordered to cease work.

The following trades have been ordered to strike: Transport workers, including railway, sea-transport, dock and harbor, wharf, canal and river transport workers; railway repair shop men; employees of contractors for railways; aerial transport workers; the printing trades; orn and steel workers; chemical workers, metal workers; all workers engaged in installing plants to take the place of coal; building trade workers except those engaged on housing or hospital projects.

The trade unions connected with the gas and electric services will undertake to cease the supply of power.

CRAZY WHEN BAD, YOUTHS' DEFENSE

Jekyll-Hyde Plea to Be Made at Trial of Murderers of Boston Policeman.

Boston, May 1.—Insanity will be the chief defense of Albert Deshon and Robert Sambursky, held for the murder of Patrolman Frank J. Comeau. Alienists, it was learned today, will examine the boys in Charles Street jail. Stanley M. Toothaker, another member of the youthful band, also will be examined as to his sanity.

Investigators have found that all three lads led Jekyll and Hyde lives. During the day they were faithful and loyal workers. Deshon, who confessed to firing the fatal shot, was intrusted with $700 by his employer a few days before the slaying.

Criminals At Night
At night, however, prohibition enforcement agents in Newark, N. J., were due to their "general inaptitude" for the work. Frederick Baird, newly-appointed administrator for Pennsylvania and New Jersey, declared here today, in making a report to Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, Baird said he expected to thoroughly reorganize the enforcement personnel in Pennsylvania and New Jersey "within thirty days."

He said he found few evidences of "flagrant graft" in the Philadelphia district, but rather "a general laxity."

King Proclaims State of Emergency as All Coal Mining Stops, Labor Unions Retaliate by Calling Out All Workers on Tuesday—Soldiers and Summary Courts to Control—Unions to Permit Food Supply—District Dictators Will Run the Country.

London, May 1.—Great Britain today faces what amounts to an industrial revolution.

King George declared a state of emergency to exist as the result of the national coal strike. This in effect places the kingdom under martial law.

The Trades Union Congress, in reply to the King's proclamation, called a general strike, although agreeing to maintain supplies of food and a minimum of transport.

The Trades Union Congress earlier in the day had taken notice indicating that they contemplated no immediate general strike.

Picked up Gauntlet
Despite this action the King's proclamation of a state of emergency was issued in a special supplement of the London Gazette, declaring that the King had decided that the coal strike, which began at midnight, alone constituted a state of emergency.

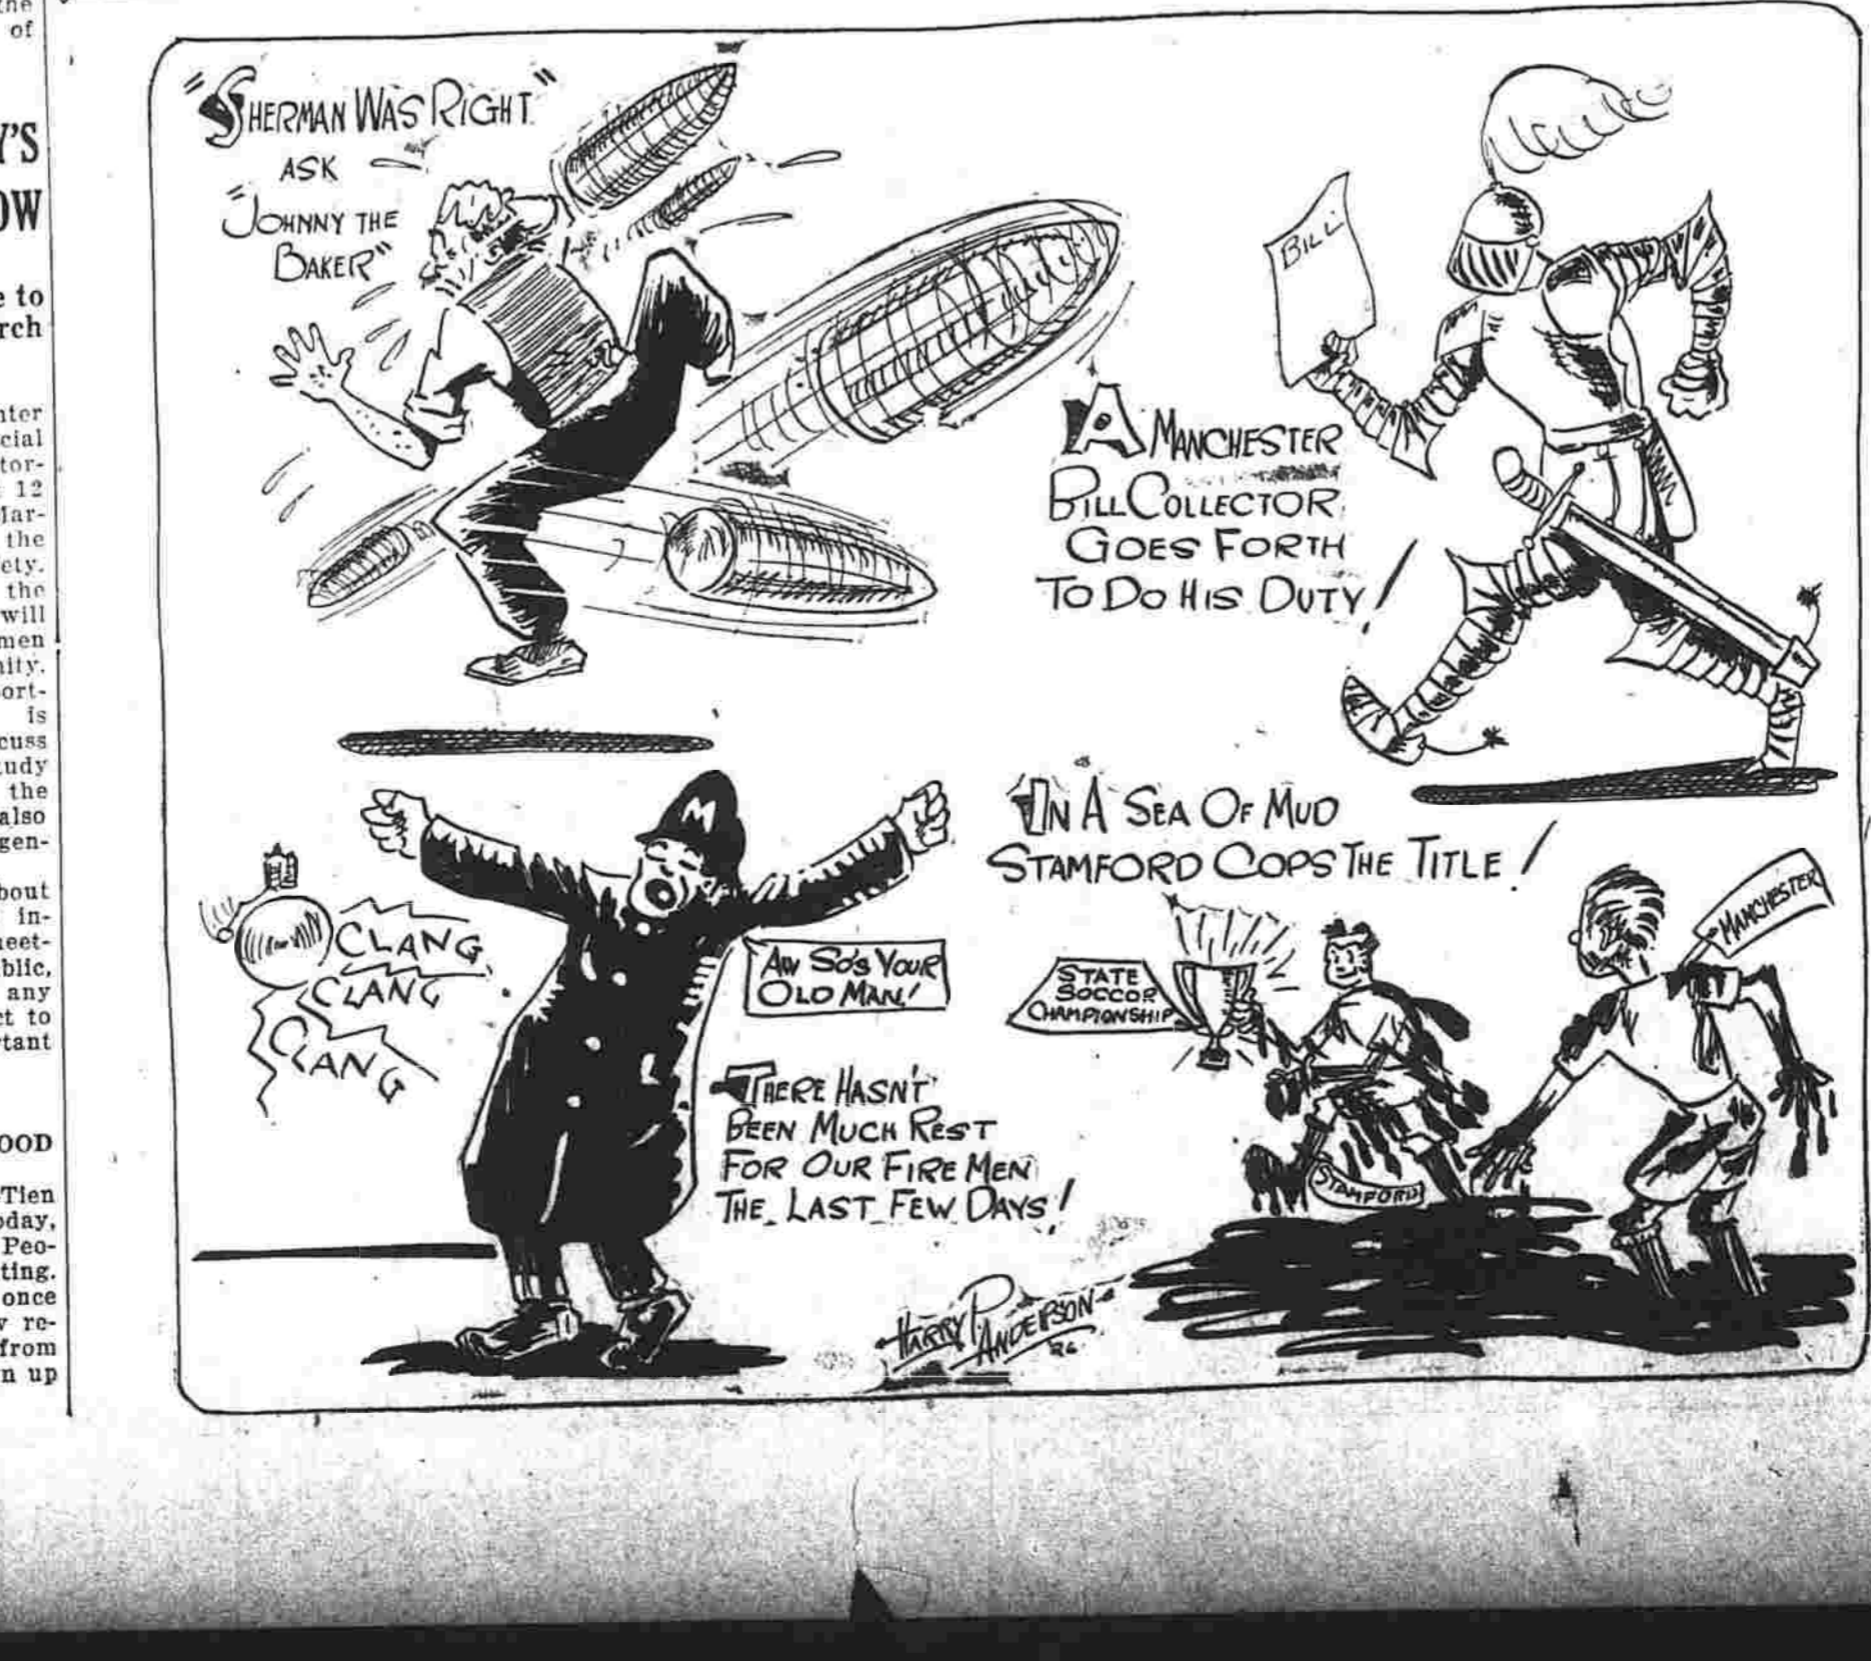

The Trades Union accepted the gauntlet which seemed to be thrown down. The order for a general strike was immediately issued, though leaders were careful to point out that they would maintain food supplies and a minimum of transport.

Thus the government and organized labor find themselves in the long and trying test of strength. The Trades Union Congress' general strike order would seem to be so carefully arranged as to make it incumbent upon the government to force any offensive action.

Control of Supplies
Under the emergency powers act the government may take over control of the essential supplies, but the Trades Union Congress' general strike order appears to make it possible to avert a clash in view of its directions to maintain food supplies and minimum transport.

The general strike will start on Tuesday.

UNUSUAL DEATH TAKES LITTLE ALFREA GILMAN

Little Alfreia Gilman, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gilman, of 402 Tolland Turnpike, died shortly after noon today.

Death was caused by embolism. Three days ago Alfreia developed an abscess in her left ear. The affected organ was treated by Dr. A. E. Friend, a local specialist. Just after noon today the girl's condition grew worse, and Dr. E. L. Salvin, a relative of the Gilman family, was called. He ordered the girl removed to the hospital. She died there before anything could be done to relieve her.

Embolism occurs when a clot of fibrin or an organism that becomes lodged in a blood vessel prevents circulation.

CHILD AID, MISS CHENEY'S SUBJECT FOR TOMORROW

Manchester's Representative to Speak Before Center Church Men's League.

The Men's League of the Center church has arranged for a special meeting to be held in the auditorium of the church tomorrow at 12 o'clock at which time Miss Marjorie Cheney will speak about the work of the Children's Aid Society.

This meeting, unlike most of the meetings of the Men's League, will be open to both men and women of the church and the community.

The topic is one of great importance to all, and the speaker is especially well qualified to discuss this subject, having made a study of not only the activities of the Children's Aid Society, but also the subject of child welfare in general.

TO ORGANIZE PERPETUAL MEMORIAL DAY BOARD

A citizens' meeting will be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the School street recreation center, for the purpose of organizing a perpetual Memorial Day committee. The speakers will be members of the Memorial Day committee which has been operating in Hartford for some time. They will explain its workings, how the registration of graves of veterans of all wars is being held, and answer questions that may be asked.

An urgent invitation is extended to all patriotic organizations and citizens in general in Manchester to attend this meeting and express their views, as well as to elect a board of officers. Drake Post, G. A. R. members have been the leaders up to the present time in Memorial Day observance. Their numbers are few and it is imperative that the work be carried on by younger men and women.

An additional charge preferred by Heiner against his chief is that meat belonging to the medical stores was requisitioned by Captain de Vallin for the maintenance of his hunting dogs.

Only Change in Turkey Is the Style of Hats

Judge H. O. Bowers Gives His Impressions of European Countries — Londoners Polite.

Fedora hats instead of foses; no veils for women. That is about all the change that the government in Turkey amounts to. Although a republic in name it is run along more autocratic lines than a monarchy.

Spain and Portugal are the same as they were hundreds of years ago. They will never be modern. The people seem all to be asleep.

A revolution was planned in Lisbon on the day our party arrived. A truce between the rival factions was declared until our party left, as the members wanted to make some easy money gouging us.

Great is prevalent all over the Near East countries.

One thing Mussolini did for Italy was to cut out the beggars. This class bothered us every time we landed in other countries than Italy. There is more courtesy shown in a half hour by the average Englishman in London than one experiences in this country in a year.

The British Museum is far better than the Egyptian Museum as to its Egyptian treasures even though the latter has the treasures in its own back yard.

The most cordial feelings for the United States prevail in England. They do not make fun of our prohibition.

If a resident of Manchester lived for a week in Europe he would never again complain of our high tax rate. The people are burdened heavily with taxes.

American cars of all makes can be seen in the most isolated corners of Europe.

The world wide plan of the Jews to make a home for their countrymen in the Holy Land does not seem to me to be a success. The idea of taking men and women from the slums of big cities and expect them to become farmers overnight is not feasible. The jealousy of the Arabs will tend to handicap the perfection of the plan.

These are the impressions obtained by Judge H. O. Bowers, recently returned from a two and one half months' trip in Europe. With Mr. Bowers were Mrs. Bowers and C. E. House.

The local residents were of a party of nearly five hundred. Most of the stops ashore were of one and two days' duration although in some places the party remained longer.

Turkey was the most interesting to Mr. Bowers. He said that in other parts the members of the party were left free to choose their own guides but in Constantinople guides hired by the government took charge of the tourists. There is a lot of politics behind this, Mr. Bowers believes. The guides, very intelligent and well educated Turks lectured to the tourists so plausibly that most of them went away with a totally different opinion of Turkey than is really the case. One Texas editor in the party, "fell" so hard for the stories told by the guides that he wrote a lengthy article for his newspaper telling his readers how much liberty the Turks enjoyed under the new regime and what a glorious republic it was. However, from other sources it was learned that conditions are not one whit better than formerly. It is just a change in parties and the present party is even more autocratic than the former.

As to Taxation. Mr. Bowers said that he cannot imagine how the way he is taxed all over Europe. He bought a tin of American tobacco that is sold here for 15 cents for 65 cents wherever he stopped. The governments, the dealers told him, get 32 cents of this amount. And so it is with other articles.

Beggars a Menace.

In the Near East countries, beggars are a real menace to tourists. They are so bold that one can hardly walk a step without a half dozen hanging to one's coat tails. The police and guides beat off these beggars with clubs.

"Somehow or other," said Judge Bowers, "that is the only way to make those people behave. You cannot talk to them or reason with them. Club them and they will respect you. We had daily demonstrations of this."

In Egypt, the speaker said, that in Luxor, the party which was composed of 50 wished to engage donkeys to take them out to see some of the sights. In a half hour there were 200 donkeys in front of the hotel. It was a regular riot. The man in charge had to literally club his way between the donkeys to get near the tourists.

King Tut's Tomb.

The work of excavating at King Tut's tomb had been stopped but the party saw all the treasures so far recovered in the Egyptian Museum. They are most wonderful, especially the golden coffin. It is composed of beaten gold.

The Holy Land is inhabited by people who are very poor. They just exist. They work in the same primitive way as they did centuries ago. Any effort to make them take up modern ways would start a revolution.

"We visited the Plains of Esdraham where the Jews are planning a country especially for the Jews and were not much impressed with it. There are several thousand cheap houses erected and the residents were trying to farm but making a sorry job of it. Most of them had come from the big cities and knew little about farming and cared less, it seemed to us."

London is a revelation to the Manchesterites. Traffic problems mean nothing to the London bobbies. Everything is run perfectly. Streets are wide, that is the main thing. There are no electric cars and buses take the place of these. They are trying out a plan now of making auto travel in a circle at intersections to cut down the risk of cars taking corners at sharp angles and it is working wonderfully.

"But our best impression," continued the speaker, "was the courtesy of the Londoners. If we stopped at a corner to get our bearings a man would step out from the crowd and ask us where we wished to go. He would not only give us implicit directions but would accompany us part of the way. If a man approached us that way in New York we would keep our hands on our watches. Even the conductors would climb to the upper decks of their cars and tell us we had arrived at our destination and wonder of wonders they would thank us for our fares.

"Of course there is not the rush one sees in New York. The people go about more sensibly. Then again they do not give anybody a license to run an automobile and the high price of gasoline cuts down the number of cars. Still at that the traffic on London's busiest streets is handled better than in small cities in this country."

Americans Everywhere.

Monte Carlo was filled with Americans, Mr. Bowers said. In fact everywhere the party stopped they met Americans. They are swarming all over Europe.

Venice, of course, is in a class by itself because of its canals and the local residents were charmed by its beauties.

In ending the interview, Mr. Bowers said, that with the exception of England, he found that grat in high and low places prevailed everywhere. If a guide called a certain carriage he had to get a shilling or two from the driver and that made the tourist pay double or triple what the price really was.

GYM FILLED TO SEE EXHIBITION AT REC

Miss Marjorie C. Geary Directs Women's Classes in Dances and Drills.

Interested spectators from all sections of the town filled every available seat in the School street Recreation Center gymnasium last night. The occasion was the Spring Gym exhibition which for the first hour consisted of a variety of dances and drills under the direction of Miss Marjorie Geary, associate director of the Recreation Center.

This is the second affair of the kind given this season and it proved even more delightful than the previous exhibition. Miss Geary has been ably assisted in its preparation by the costume committee consisting of Mrs. R. Barrett, Mrs. A. R. Woodbridge and Miss Lucile Cheney, and when it is remembered that some of the children appeared in three or more changes of costume an idea may be had of the work involved.

Planned For Outdoors.

When Miss Geary started rehearsals she had an idea of having an outdoor Mayday performance as they do in old England, but the "samples" of weather furnished by New England would not permit it.

Miss Marjorie C. Geary

A program of nine drills and dances was given, with Miss Grace Hood as the piano accompanist, and the participants were tiny tots of a few years to mature women of ample proportions.

The flag drill by the women's gym classes was the first number and well executed, the women wearing middy blouses, black knickers, flowing red ties and each carrying two flags, which they wielded much as they would Indian clubs, all with a snappy, quick movement. They were recalled as were every one of the groups of performers.

Very pretty and colorful was the Japanese fan dance by the beginners' dancing classes, the little maids all in cretonne kimono and chrysanthemums adorning their heads.

Classical Dance Hit.

The Misses Lucile Cheney, Martha Wolfe and Rose Woodhouse appeared in a classical dance, polka miniature. Miss Cheney was in green, Miss Wolfe in yellow and Miss Woodhouse in orchid silk with flowing draperies. Their graceful movements throughout the dance and encore made this one of the most enjoyable numbers of the program.

The Highland Fling was remarkably well danced by a group of little girls from ten to fourteen. They evidently belonged to the same clan for each wore red and white plaid, black tams and jackets. Nine different steps were used in this dance. It is essential to keep balance but the work of the children in this difficult number was a credit to their teacher.

The folk dances by members of the children's rhythmic classes were as much enjoyed by the tots themselves as the spectators. They were all in dainty white dresses and made a very pretty appearance on the floor.

Slovak Folk Dances.

Slovak folk dances were given by the Women's classes, the women wearing red kerchiefs and skirts, white blouses and aprons and red headbands. Their partners wore blue bloomers, white waists with frills decorated and caps with upstanding quill. Several of the same group reappeared in the Irish dances, wearing emerald colored gowns and headress and white aprons.

Four of the juniors gave a very beautiful poppy dance. The little dresses were made of red tulle with red and green crepe paper hats.

The outstanding number was the Maypole dance, the girls winding and unwinding twice with hardly an error. The pole was wound in yellow and green, each girl dressed in yellow or green grasped a streamer of the same color, the whole producing a very beautiful effect.

Flowers For Workers.

Miss Geary at the close of the exhibition was presented with an exquisite bouquet of roses and mixed flowers by the classes in appreciation of her untiring work in drilling them.

Little Valerie Miller, the tiniest tot on the floor, presented an old-fashioned bouquet of sweet peas to Miss Hood, the efficient accompanist.

Many remained after the dancing to witness the volley ball game between the town team and Norwich Y. M. C. A.

ONE HOUR PARKING ON MAIN STREET NOW

On Tuesday and Saturday Evenings Hereafter You Must Stay But One Hour.

The new 'one hour' parking restriction on the east side of Main street will go into effect tonight, it was learned today. This new ordinance passed recently by the Board of Selectmen will limit the time for parking Saturday and Tuesday nights between the hours of six and nine o'clock. At all other hours of the day there will be no restrictions as to the time allowed for parking.

Today a small army of workers from the local State Trade school were busy installing the new signs on the exterior light posts on Main street. The work was expected to be completed before night. The new signs are red.

The police are planning to make a strict enforcement of the new ordinance. They will duplicate the chalking system which is used in Hartford. This method will be worked out in the following manner: An officer will make a chalk mark on the wheel of an automobile and the curb. He will take notice of the time. An hour later he will return. If the mark is still intact, this will prove the automobile has not moved from its mooring. The car will then be tagged.

The purpose of the new regulation is to relieve the congestion of traffic on shopping nights.

MOSUL AND NOAH'S ARK.
It has been of absorbing interest to develop the theme that all the great events of human history have what now we know as Bible Lands. Even today, political signs are converging which indicate this as the scene of the next world struggle. Right here in Arabia has arisen a conqueror and leader, Ibn Suleiman whom many persons affirm holds the master word for the times. Where human history began, in Arabia, it would seem as if it is still to carry on decisively.

Genesis locates the Garden of Eden in the Arabian Peninsula. Abraham's home was here. Israel wandered over its sands. Down the Tigris and Euphrates rivers a visitor catches many little glimpses of the verisimilitude of the Scripture story. The common form of craft is the coracle, or "guffa"—which is "pitched within and without" even as was Noah's ark, with the crude petroleum from the Mosul oil fields!

It was in Babylonia that the famous "deluge tablet," written before the time of Moses on clay in cuneiform characters, was discovered. It contains a story startlingly similar to the Genesis narrative. All the great races of earth, excepting only the blacks of Africa, have a kindred tradition of a deluge. All agree in regarding the flood as a divine punishment for human sin.

Northwest of the Tigris-Euphrates Valley, amidst the mountains of Armenia rises Ararat, the snow-capped mountain on which the ark rested. The peak is seventeen thousand feet high, of indescribable beauty. Armenians call themselves the "people of Ararat"; and the head-quarters of Armenian monks, and the temples of their churches, are made in the form of Ararat. As a trifling illustration of the way in which the people of Bible lands link up yesterday and today, I may mention that in the Caucasus I found a town which tradition says was founded by Noah's grandson! At any rate, this is the old, old world.

Is the Book of Genesis True?
As I range over the territory where the Bible Story was lived before it was recorded, I find myself more and more impressed with the fact that the Scriptures fit the scene and fit the local life. Light thinking moderns, who are inclined to dismiss the first book of the Bible as a fairy tale, need only to read it on its own ground to discern how deeply the record and the region interpenetrate each other. Here is the only setting for the deluge story that fits the facts. Such a flood in the Tigris-Euphrates Valley would be an overwhelming of the earth as then known; for this is the cradle of the race.

From Arabia the families of mankind spread out naturally, quite as the Bible and the secular histories show. And the geography makes logical the first emergence of the Mountain of Ararat; even local pride did not prompt the Hebrew writer to place the scene of the ark's resting place in his own country.

This is a time for cautious minds to await the latest news from Bible Lands; for archaeologists and geologists and anthropologists are on the qui vive over recent finds here and over others anticipated. And I see no reason to do otherwise. And accept American School of Archaeology in Jerusalem, Dr. Albright, who told me, a few weeks ago, that every new discovery that touches the Bible is recorded in the Bible is real corroboration of the historicity of the Book.

Two Mountain Messages
A certain type of mind will find this Lesson a shining occasion for quibbling. It is argued that the Bible was written first of all for its spiritual significance. The whole import of the Deluge story is that a holy God cannot look upon human sin unmoved. Because men had become rotten in their hearts, the Greater had to clean them off the earth.

WHERE HUMAN HISTORY BEGAN

*The International Sunday School Lesson for May 2 is "God's Covenant With Noah"—Genesis 9:8-17.

If I could transport bodily all the readers of this lesson over to Bible Lands, (they would make a multitude mightier than the Moslem pilgrimage!) I would scarcely need to do more than say, "Behold!" More than any pen will ever record in the explanation and confirmation of the Scripture, lies on the surface of the life and the land. The book that I am writing has become a terrific task in trying to omit all for which there is no room. All unreasonably of the Bible when one wanders about this peninsula; for, after all, Syria and Palestine and Mesopotamia are but the outer fingers of a larger, a religious atmosphere persists. The Arabic-speaking world utters few sentences without invoking the Divine Will. God is the Arbitrator who is appealed to in every transaction. Skepticism such as is practiced in the Occident would horrify a dweller in the Near East. Faith of the simplest and most credulous sort is the common intellectual characteristic. In Mecca is the grave of Adam, near by, in Jiddah, is the grave of Eve. "Early all of the patriarchs and prophets have their shrines. This is the very soil of the Bible Story; it does not occur to the natives, I suppose, that there are other parts of the earth without any such sacred associations."

MISS KEITH WEDS SPRINGFIELD MAN

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Keith Bride of Lawrence R. Clark.

Miss Mary Josephine Keith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Keith of 19 Lewis street, and Lawrence R. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Clark of Springfield, Mass., were married this afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the parents of the bride. The artistic decorations included palms, ferns and cut flowers.

Previous to the ceremony Miss Estelle Keith, cousin of the bride, sang two contralto solos, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Archibald Sessions. Assisting musicians were Mrs. Laura Wheeler Ross, violinist, and Mrs. Katherine Halliday Howard, cellist.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the South Methodist church, the single ring service being used.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of flesh-colored georgette over flesh crepe madame, with pearl trimmings and rods of silk chamois. Her veil of tulle fell from a cap of Duchess lace and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Marjorie and Helen Keith, sisters of the bride, the former wearing changeable green and gold taffeta with arm bouquet of yellow Pernet roses. Miss Helen Keith was gowned in flowered yellow chiffon over flesh silk and the flowers she carried were Madame Butterfly roses.

The best man was William Clark of Springfield, brother of the groom, and the ring bearer, Master David Keith, nephew of the bride. The little flower girl was Miss Charlotte Sage, cousin of the bride. She wore a dress of pink crepe de chine and carried a basket of sweet peas.

The reception which followed the ceremony was attended by more than a hundred guests from Boston, New York, Springfield and Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark will leave this evening on an unannounced motor trip. On their return they will live in their newly furnished home at 139 Acorn street, Springfield.

The bride is a graduate of the local high school and of Simmons College, Boston, class of 1923. The groom was graduated from Tufts College, class of 1925 and is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. He is with the Hampden Glazed Paper & Card Company of Holyoke.

THE RAINBOW

By GEORGE HENRY DOLE.
International Sunday School Lesson Text—May 2.
I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.—Gen. 9:13.

What, no rainbow until after the flood! Not the effect of natural law, and made possible arbitrarily for a sign of a covenant! What prevented the rainbow from the beginning of the sun and the clouds? Were natural laws suspended until then? The story is unbelievable in this age of science. Thus we have heard it said.

He who created the world knew all about science. He uses the phenomenon of the rainbow scientifically, yet most scientifically in every detail, to make clear marvelous facts concerning the mind, the spirit, so that the more science we have, the more clearly and deeply we can see, understand, and the mind penetrate the invisible things of the soul.

What, then, is the rainbow? Look at it in the mind. There it is more resplendent than in the clouds of the earth. We do not get truths now as did those before the flood of falsities inundated the mountains of spiritual vision, when the heavens were open, when angels appeared to instruct and guide, and man walked and talked with God in the Garden of Joy. Then the first love was unperverted. It naturally went straight to the Lord and His angels. Far different is our first love now. It first tends straight to self and the world. Before we can become heavenly, we see the image and likeness of God, before we can become heavenly, we must acquire truths, learn of duty and God, and form the life anew. The story of the rainbow accurately, grandly reveals how this is done. Precisely as the sun shines into the clouds, and particles of water act as prisms and reflect the colors in the sun, so light comes from God into the clouds of our minds and reflects His glory in the particles of truth, the "living water," that we gather into our minds.

Dreary and dark days come to the spirit. Loneliness, defeat, despair, depression, weigh heavily. Dire temptations assail. Clouds shut out the shining sun. Then we turn to the Lord and recall some of His promises, that He will go with us and give us peace, that He will give us victory over darkness, that He will crown our faithful endeavors with His joy. Then strength and a sweet gladness come. What is that new strength so silently given? Whence came that gladness? They are from the truths that we have learned made to shine from the inflow of light from God. They are the beauty and glory of the rainbow in the Mind. They are sign of the covenant that God will not let the flood of despair overflow us. Behold this glorious rainbow in the mind, and know that it is God's covenant with you, that He will give you victory and peace.

LAST MINUTE RUSH FOR DOG LICENSES

Another owner had a still better scheme for the dog warden. He had a great big dog that was eating him out of house and home. He proposed to Krah to swap the big dog for a small one. Since he had to shoot the dog anyway what difference did it make how big it was?

But the dog warden could not see this at all, at all. "Dig a great big grave, large enough to bury a mule for that big one? Just a shovelful of dirt for that tiny one. No difference? Good night!"

All dogs found without the 1926 licenses after today will be placed in the pound and if not claimed will be shot.

Some odd stories are being told about the dog situation here. One owner approached the dog warden and told him that sooner than pay for a license he wanted the dog shot. Krah told him that it would cost him $3. So the owner suggested that they go into a scheme whereby Krah would pretend that the dog was running loose and that he did not know the owner. The town would then have to pay the license and Krah could not see that of all

Still Number Falls Short of What It Should Be—Owners Have Queer Plans to Evade Tax.

A last minute rush of dog owners to obtain licenses was made yesterday and today at the Town Clerk's office. But still the number falls short of what it should be. The exact figures have not yet been prepared by Clerk Turkington.

Some odd stories are being told about the dog situation here. One owner approached the dog warden and told him that sooner than pay for a license he wanted the dog shot. Krah told him that it would cost him $3. So the owner suggested that they go into a scheme whereby Krah would pretend that the dog was running loose and that he did not know the owner. ## Happy Gets Initiated

Well, sir, I just doped it out, and I didn't want to get off on the wrong foot with all you folks, after announcin' last week about how I was goin' to write this advertisin' for you—and then droppin' out of sight again—like I'd been fired on the spot, or the newspapers had refused to print it, or I'd been reported to the Chamber of Commerce or somethin',—so I thought I'd sort of explain, you see; I've been gettin' initiated.

Anyway, that's how I figure it. I came 'round here week ago like I told you, lookin' for a job, and I certainly found it. Where I made my mistake was in bein' too willin'. But the boss says, "we don't have any of these specialists 'round here for decorative purposes,"—and I says, "Guess I can take a crack at most anything." Well, sir, most everything's been takin' a crack at me ever since.

You see, I was just gettin' acquainted with the boys when one after another they began reportin' on the sick list. First Will Keith layed off, and the boss says, "Happy, you better so some advertisin'." Then John Gill turned up missin' and I was shoved out on the floor to wait on trade and make myself agreeable. Got along all right, too, till Bob Sanderson went under, and then I had to get out the orders and handle the freight in between times. Well, sir, one or two more slipped away, leavin' things piled on me, but I didn't have time to notice it,—not till finally the boss himself was drawn for jury duty—by gosh, I'd a quit myself right there if I'd had time to let go.

"Happy," he says, "you'll kind o' have to find yourself somethin' to do for a couple o' days. When you ain't busy, there's sixty-four new couch hammocks need settin' up." And then I tumbled that something was stirrin'. First I thought of the baseball season openin', or trout fishin'. I hadn't brought in any epidemic on me,—nor the boys didn't show any hard feelin's,—but I finally made up mind that I was just gettin' initiated, that's all there was to it.

Well, anyhow, if I have struck it rough, I've got one thing to be thankful for—that I'm doin' the advertisin' instead of collectin' the bills. I may get cracked up some, but it won't be with a meat axe. Still, you can't blame the fella—it's different in the butcher business,—when the bills aren't paid it's pretty tough takin' the goods back.

But I sort o' got straightened out now, I guess,—anyway, I promised to do a little advertisin' in here every Saturday night—and maybe in between times, and I just wanted to let you know I was still on deck when the firm stopped, if somewhat submerged in the meantime.

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1926.

BRITAIN'S STRIKE.

There should be no confusion between the significance of a coal strike in the United States and a coal strike in Great Britain, such as that which began at midnight last night.

A cessation of the production of anthracite in America is, as we have lately learned, a mere minor inconvenience.

The shutting down of all British coal production constitutes a calamity of the gravest kind.

Of course the ultimate disaster would be the general strike already declared if it should be at all effective.

The mere words "general strike" fall to carry a realization of the situation that would ensue.

It must be remembered, too, that in Great Britain labor is organized to an infinitely greater extent than here, and that the workers by millions regard their trades affiliations as a religion.

Yet it must not be supposed that Britain has permitted herself to come face to face with this grave danger without some sort of preparedness.

Promptly the government has acted to forestall the horrors that otherwise might be expected to grow from the almost appalling situation.

This means just one thing—there will be no fully effective general strike, even if the attempt is made to create an airtight one.

For the first time in modern times organized government is to have a test as against the strength of organized individualism.

Nobody can ever tell, in advance of the decision, what a court's ruling on such a subject may be.

issue. It quite follows that, in case the control of parking be taken away from the police, it must be reposed in some other authority, for a condition where anybody could leave an automobile anywhere at all and for as long as he pleased, is manifestly impossible.

Perhaps they intend to have the city council take direct charge and pass ordinances prescribing parking places, prohibitions and time limits.

It is distinctly a problem of administration and not of legislation. Or perhaps they will get a special control commission created.

They may vote the power to the Rotary club or the Anti-Saloon League. Whatever they do, they are pretty sure to hearily wish, within three months, that the job had been left in the hands of the police.

That the latter do not always use perfect judgment is probable. That their judgment is liable to be better than that of anybody else is just as probable.

If Norwalk has a very especially underhanded police force or police commission it would do better to make the change there rather than by splitting automobile control into two different parts under two authorities—for certainly nobody but the police can take charge of the moving motor traffic.

And if through this lily considered proceeding in Norwalk, police authority over parking throughout the state should be upset by a court ruling, nothing is surer than that the other cities and towns would proceed at once to re-establish that authority by legislative enactment.

Here in Manchester we are very glad to have so competent a control over parking as that demonstrated by our police.

And we suspect that Norwalk must be pretty nearly alone among Connecticut communities in squabbling with its own law officers. But then, Norwalk is a queer sort of town.

It would be a sad thing, to be sure, if Patrick Garland, ostensible New Yorker, who is to be tried for treason to the Irish Free State in conspiring to overthrow that government, should face a firing squad as the result of his activities.

Whether the ultimate destiny of Ireland is to be that of an absolutely independent political entity or whether it is to continue as an associate of the British commonwealth is a matter which the Irish people themselves, living on their own soil and doing the actual work of nation building, may be depended on to determine justly in due course.

Garland has not been tried. He may be absolutely innocent and so proven. But if he is guilty he is only one of a number of agitators of strife among the Irish in Ireland who deserve whatever fate may await the instigators of fratricide.

There appears to be some law besides the law of force and martial control still existing in the state of New Jersey.

The courts are to be called on to determine, through proceedings following a temporary injunction, whether the police of Norwalk have any right to withhold from parking on any subject may be.

nothing to do with it. The outstanding fact is that the methods employed in breaking up strikers' meetings and denying to them absolutely inalienable rights under the American system of government have been outrageous and well calculated to destroy the workers' faith in all law and all justice.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES F. STEWART

Washington, May 1.—Let a member of the House of Representatives have something really important to say, in a speech on the floor, and the time for him to say it is doled out to him by the management as grudgingly as if there weren't enough of it to go around.

Indeed, that's just the case, the leaders say. If statesmen were allowed to run oratorically wild, no time would be left to pass laws in. Fifteen minutes is a liberal allowance for a speech.

"Can't I get a little more time?" he begs, and if it's good stuff he's getting off and he's a popular member, maybe he gets an additional five minutes or two or one, by unanimous consent.

Inasmuch as the representatives' rules are so inelastic even when highly important questions are up for consideration, one might naturally infer that short work would be made of a congressman who undertook to talk pure piffle for the mere fun of hearing himself do it.

For instance, Representative Tillman of Arkansas got the floor one day recently and talked four solid pages into the Congressional Record. Nobody ever interrupted him.

He discussed war debts. He discussed immigration. He discussed national parks. He discussed federal taxation reductions and the federal inheritance tax.

He read a number of newspaper clippings, testifying to the merits of the Arkansas delegation in Congress, himself included; also some complimentary letters from constituents of his own.

He recalled the Civil War battles of Prairie Grove and Pea Ridge, otherwise known as Elk Horn Tavern. He recited two poems and commended the style in which Marmon called down Douglas, when the latter refused to shake hands with him.

Undoubtedly it was a good speech for home consumption, but it was pretty long and a trifle disconnected, for a speech in the House of Representatives, where members are expected to talk fast and to the point even on subjects that the whole country's interested in.

Representative Tillman having Ellis of Missouri was given a time allowance to discuss an important question of water rights on the Canadian border—an international proposition and quite a delicate one.

Ellis' allowance was five minutes and he apologized for taking that much. Inconsistency, thy name is the House of Representatives.

Each week end, when your work is done, you plan on havin' heaps of fun. You'll take the family out somewhere, and just drink in the open air.

Only by pride cometh contention, but with the well advised is wisdom.—Prov. 13:10.

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 1.—Just before dawn comes creeping warily from behind the skyscrapers a certain breakfast resort in the early Fifties is jammed with the survivors of the rough night club voyage.

The cry of "bacon and—" comes echoing from the swinging kitchen doors. But for the fogged eyes and the weary slouchings it might be any busy restaurant in mid-day.

In the midst of plate clattering and buzzing chattering, comes sudden, dramatic interruption. "The cops!" someone comments.

A new game for Broadway—this periodic seamy breakfast, smelly and armed suspects in the breakfasting places of the night world's people.

For the present day crook may be the best dressed man in the crowd and the most modestly groomed.

The bored people of the night life come to welcome these moments of a pleasant break in the usual round of things.

A rest of unreal game it seems, "aged in the half-light, when all the rest of the city turns in its bed and smoke blues the restaurant, and the call of sleep blurs the eyes."

Most of Million Is Being Divided Between State, Towns and Railroad Company.

Projects for the elimination of eleven grade crossings in Connecticut are now in various stages of fulfillment, the state highway department announced yesterday.

One of the projects is nearing completion, three are under contract, three have been approved and four are yet in the preliminary survey stage.

Following is a list of the crossings scheduled for removal in the immediate future:

1—Bishop's Crossing, Plainfield; Yellow Tavern Crossing, Windsor Locks; Beckley's Crossing, Berlin; Boston Post Road Crossing, Old Saybrook; Andover, Falls Village; Reynolds' Bridge, Thomaston; Castle Bridge, north of Thomaston on Torrington highway; Scott's Swamp, Bristol-Farmington road; East River Underpass, Madison-Clinton highway.

The eleventh project is in the town of Washington where the work is practically completed.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

The Flower That Hides Its Beauty by Night

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

Some sing the praises of the rose or the orchid, and properly so, but what can be more beautiful than a water lily opening at dawn its close-folded blossom.

Water lilies are of many and various sizes and hues. From the gigantic Victoria regina of Brazil and Galana, with floating leaves several feet in diameter, down through all the varying sizes and colors, the result of breeding and hybridizing various species collected from the far corners of the earth, down to the tiny few petaled dwarf of the Himalayas and the Canadian Highlands, all re beautiful and betray a certain relationship.

Many whose experience lend authority to their utterances believe that none of the water lilies, for sheer beauty and purity, surpasses the favorite of our own northern lakes.

It often grows in water several feet deep, and each season from those dark oozy depths sends up its long stemmed leaves and flowers to the surface. Its flower is normally the palest of white, but occasionally a slight tinge of pink is found.

The Water Lily

But for those who crave variety of tint, there are many shades of blue, and rose, and yellow, large and small, gathered, as we have said, from the lakes and swamps of all the continents and blended with the skill and patience acquired only by those whose lives and hearts are bound up in the pursuit of beauty's perfection.

PICKETT BELIEVES HE HOLDS RECORD
Charles J. Pickett of the Pickett Motor Sales company believes he has established a sales record for one month in Manchester. During April his agency has disposed of twenty-eight new cars. Mr. Pickett holds the sales agency here for the Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles.
Mr. Pickett is fortunate in having an efficient sales force. He has disposed of a number of the cars through sales of his own and his salesmen have never failed to follow up every prospect closely.
The Pickett agency is a direct from the factory representative. Every Willys-Knight and Overland car sold here comes direct to Pickett's. There is no state or regional salesman over him. This assures service of the best kind and has proved a boon to the Pickett agency business.

DAVIS' FIVE MILLION LIBEL SUIT QUASHED.
Topeka, Kan., May 1.—The $5,000,000 libel suit of former Governor Jonathan M. Davis against the Kansas City Journal-Post, growing out of the paper's reports on charges of accepting a bribe in connection with the issuance of a pardon, today was ordered removed by Judge Otis Hungate.
Former Governor Davis and his son, Russell, were acquitted of a charge of conspiracy to accept $1,250 for a pardon.

DICTATORS FOR ENGLAND; GREAT STRIKE ORDERED

ten geographical sections and under the state of emergency each one of these sections will be under a virtual dictator so far as the question of essential services is concerned. This dictator will have the support of the courts, the military and naval forces.
O. M. S. Ready for Job.
The O. M. S., an organization for the use of civilians to carry on essential services, is already in action, prepared to carry on public services.

Some satisfaction is found in the fact that the strike situation has passed out of the control of A. J. (Emperor) Cook, the fiery red-headed leader of the miners.
With the general strike called, Cook becomes a more or less minor power, as the general strike will be operated under the direction of the Trades Union Congress, dominated by such men as J. H. Thomas, who are often attacked by extreme labor partisans for their moderation.

The effects of the situation created today are impossible to forecast. The result of this strike may determine the whole future of British politics, for it seems that the Labor party may either establish or ruin itself by the conduct of the strike.
Conditional Transport.
The locomotive engineers and firemen will permit the transport of food and milk, but they will stop all transportation if the government makes any effort to take over workers' functions or act against the strikers. J. Bromley, head of the locomotive engineers and firemen's union, said, "After an afternoon session the Trades Union congress council announced that after the general strike becomes effective that it will undertake to provide only necessary light, food, milk, medical and surgical supplies and sanitary services."

"Fight for Soul of the Nation."
The announcement of the general strike made by Ernest Bevin, head of the transport workers' union. Bevin said that no transport workers will be permitted to work after they complete their shifts on Monday night, except those necessary to maintain the "minimum of transportation" promised by the general trades congress.
"In the name of the general council I appeal to every man and woman to fight for the soul of labor and the salvation of the miners," said Bevin.

Miners throughout the country attended May day mass meetings and were reported in a cheerful frame of mind. Although there were innumerable speeches attacking the operators there were no reports of any disorders.
When the Trades Union Congress took a vote on the general strike question delegates representing 3,850,229 men voted in favor of the strike while delegates representing 49,911 workers voted against the strike.

MacDonald Blames Government.
"The miners did not draw the sword, the government did, and it is said that those living by the sword perish that way," declared J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor party and former premier in a speech before the trades union congress today after the vote for a general strike had been taken.
MacDonald still holds out the hope that there may be some sort of a settlement before the general strike becomes effective on Monday night.

Troops to Mines.
The third sensational development of the day came when the war office announced that orders have been issued for the movement of troops into the coal fields. Some troops have already started for the mining regions.
This action came as another shock to the labor leaders, inasmuch as there have been no indications yet of disorder. It was believed that the government may be intending to use troops to produce coal.

Detachments of troops have been ordered to South Wales, Lancashire and Scotland.
Troops in the London area have been assigned to guard duty over the food distributing area, gas works, electrical plants, and water works.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR WALLACE JONES.
Wallace Jones of Washington street was completely surprised last night when a party was arranged in honor of his birthday by his niece, Mrs. Walter Walsh. Mr. Jones, who is a native of Stafford and has a farm there, spends his winters with his sister, Mrs. Walter Tracy of 63 Washington street. Yesterday afternoon he and his sister went to visit another relative. When they returned they found the home all ready for the party, the dining table gay with streamers of pink and white and laden with good things, and many of his relatives heretofore already gathered. Mr. Jones said he never remembered having a surprise party given in his honor before, but he thoroughly enjoyed this one.

SEEK GUNMEN AFTER WOONSOCKET BATTLE.
Worcester, May 1.—State troopers and local police of Massachusetts and Rhode Island were engaged in a combined search today for two gunmen, fleeing in an automobile, who exchanged shots with police of Woonsocket, R. I.
The exchange of shots came after the desperadoes had held up a gasoline filling station in Manville, R. I., and had attempted another filling station hold-up in Woonsocket.

In Dimes

Mrs. Capper

Patricia Avery, third cousin of John D. Rockefeller, was a stenographer for a Los Angeles movie firm for several months. But now she's signed a contract to appear as an actress for the same concern. And since her noted relative has such a fondness for new dimes, her first week's pay is to be given her in shiny ten-cent pieces.

150 DROWN IN WRECK OF JAPANESE STEAMER.
Tokyo, May 1.—Latest reports today placed the loss of life at 150 when the Japanese steamer Chichibu Maru went on the rocks and broke up off the Saghalien coast. Ninety-nine persons were rescued. The Chichibu had aboard a large number of fishermen.

PIRATES REPEAT POOR START OF LAST YEAR
Bill McKeehan and his Pittsburgh Pirates have started the present campaign in much the same manner they did a year ago. In 1925 the Smoky Town boys got away to a poor start and this spring they've done likewise. The disastrous beginning didn't prevent the Pirates from copping the National League flag and world series last season, however, so there's still plenty of hope for a Pittsburgh success this year.

UNHURT WHEN TRAIN SMASHES THEIR CAR

Millis, Mass., May 1.—Two automobilists escaped unhurt early today when a freight train from Walpole to Framingham smashed into their automobile at Murray's crossing of the New Haven railroad. 2 BROTHERS, BOYS, KILLED BY LIGHTNING BOLT.
Bowling Green, O., May 1.—The bodies of Ralph and Glenn Barr, 11 and 12 years old, were found lying side by side in an open field two miles south of this city today. They were apparently killed by a bolt of lightning yesterday evening and had lain in the field all night. Clarence Barr, the father, found the bodies after he started a search this morning. He had believed his sons stayed with relatives over the night.

N. Y. BOXING HEAD IS WELL KNOWN HERE

James A. Farley Has Frequently Paid Friendly Visits to Manchester Acquaintance.

Few Manchester people who have been reading the news stories about the New York State Athletic Commission's fight over the Dempsey match realize that the chairman of the commission is well acquainted here and a frequent visitor in Manchester. James A. Farley, the chairman, is a personal friend of Dr. Edward G. Dolan, local dentist, and frequently visits at the doctor's home on Cambridge street.

George E. Phair, humorist and writer on the New York American, has this to say of Jim Farley: "When not sitting on his throne as Archduke of Knucklebump or presiding over fistic fetes in Madison Square Garden, Jim Farley is easy to approach, even if one approaches with a cigarette in one's mitt."
"We had a haunting fear as we neared his office by the East River, having heard rumors of a dual edict against persons addicted to nicotine."

"Once inside, however, we learned that one may smoke a pipe or a cigar or a pipe or chew snuff without fear of Jim Farley's displeasure. The anti-smoke ordinance is confined exclusively to Temples of Swat."
"When assured that we were a simple scribe and not a member of the knuckle profession, he spoke freely and said he was born in Grassy Point, N. Y., and entered politics as soon as he was old enough to vote."

"Since then he has held a wide variety of public offices, including a term in the Assembly at Albany. Today he is chairman of the State Athletic Commission, the supreme court of the cauliflower trade."
"When not archduking, he is chairman of the Rockland County Democratic Committee, Past Exalted Ruler of the Haverstraw Elks and a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Edmen and the Blue Hill County Club."

"When we accused Jim of being a golfer he defended himself stoutly and swore he had never had a golf mallet in his hands."
"Jim's athletic activities are purely academic. He likes boxing and baseball—as a spectator."

"THE FAIR" BANKRUPT
Hyman I. Shapiro, proprietor of "The Fair," a dry goods store in the Jettie Rodove building, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. The first meeting of the creditors will be held at the office of Saul Bernbaum, referee in bankruptcy, 750 Main street, Hartford at 2 o'clock May 12.

SEEKS RELEASE FOR EX-GOVERNOR MCCRAY.
Washington, May 1.—Another appeal for executive clemency in the release of Ex-Gov. Warren McCray, of Indiana, from Atlanta prison was made to President Coolidge today by Rep. Will Wood, (R., Ind.).
Wood expressed confidence, after seeing the President, that such clemency would be forthcoming sometime in the future, although he admitted that Mr. Coolidge had not committed himself in this respect.

WIFE OF GOVERNOR LOSES $50,000 BAUBLE
Boston, May 1.—A reward was offered today by Governor Alvan T. Fuller for the return of a diamond and emerald bracelet, valued at $50,000, lost by Mrs. Fuller while stepping from her automobile to enter a theater. A doorman at the theater said he saw a man pick up a shiny object a few minutes after the governor's wife stepped from her car.

RIFF TRUCE TO END ON THURSDAY, KRIM IS TOLD
Oudja, Morocco, May 1.—Caid Azerkane, chief Rifian peace delegation, left today to consult with Abd-El-Krim and promised to return within five days to resume the peace negotiations with the Franco-Spanish delegates.
Azerkane carries to Abd-El-Krim a document giving the minimum peace terms the Allies will consider and notifying the Rifian leader that the truce now existent will terminate on May 6, unless the peace terms are accepted.

MYSTERY WOMAN IN LONG SWOON IN CHICAGO
Chicago, May 1.—Police today are trying to solve the mystery centering around the finding of a young woman late yesterday in a room at the Morrison hotel. She was in a coma from which she had not been aroused today. She was registered at the hotel in Mildred E. Furst, Philadelphia, but there is nothing to certify this identification.

SPANISH NAVAL SHIP BROADCASTS SEDITION.
Hendaye, France, May 1.—The Spanish police have discovered a secret radio outfit, which has been broadcasting anti-government propaganda on board the seaplane carrier Eldedale, in Barcelona harbor. It was reported here today.
Three officers of the vessel have been arrested.

BADLY BURNED WHEN AMMONIA EXPLODES.
Albany, N. Y., May 1.—Two men were painfully burned about the face when a bottle of ammonia exploded at the capitol today.
The injured men are laborers. It was feared John Hughes might lose the sight of one eye.

Cause and Effect

Above is shown the ruins of the church. Below is the family of the slain fighter. On the left is Mrs. Hannah Carroll, Carroll's mother, holding Loretta, 5, his daughter. Seated is Mrs. Carroll with John, 14 months, and Florence, 4.

JOHNSONS STILL LEAD IN NEW DIRECTORY.

There are 159 adult persons in Manchester by the name of Johnson according to the 1926 edition of the Manchester Directory recently delivered.
The Andersons rate second with 106 names while the Smiths are third with 79.
These figures do not include the little Johnsons, little Andersons and little Smiths. It is probable that if the children's names were included the figures would be more than double.

ABOUT TOWN

All the members of the Cloverleaf football team of 1925 are requested to meet at Louie's "White House Lunch" on next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Plans for the season of 1926 will be a main factor of the meeting.

Colonel Joseph Atkinson, divisional commander of the Pittsburgh division of the Salvation Army will conduct the holiness meeting in the local citadel Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.
Mrs. Ina C. Bunce of Hartford Road with her daughter, Mrs. Frik of East Hartford, is visiting another daughter in Wollaston, Mass.

William Moore of Adams street left town a few weeks ago in a new Essex coach for Portland, Ore. A card received from him a few days ago from Wyoming said the Essex was going strong.

Mrs. Clarence Peterson of 47 Hoil street entertained with a birthday party yesterday afternoon for her little daughter, Dorothy who was eight years old yesterday. Ten of her little friends were seated around the dining table which was prettily decorated in pink and white. Cap favors were provided for all. Games were played with prizes for the winners and Dorothy was well supplied with pretty gifts. Guests were present from Hartford and Burnside.

Equip Your Present Heating Plant With A

SUPER

Automatic Oil Heater

It Eliminates Smoke, Soot, Coal Gas, Ashes, Irregular Heating, Cold Rooms, Work and Worry.

Just what is heating comfort? To really have a comfortably heated home the heat itself must be kept at a certain comfortable temperature all the time.

Secondly you must have absolute freedom from labor and anxiety in connection with the heating system.

Neither of these requirements can be obtained with coal, yet both of them can be obtained with perfection with the SUPER OIL HEATER.

Fuel Oil is about 2c a gallon cheaper than furnace oil. The SUPER OIL HEATER burns fuel oil efficiently, due to the arrangement of its burner, which produces a more intense heat than any other type of burner, thus making the most economical HEATER in existence.

The thermostat regulates the automatic control of the burner. It is placed at a convenient point on the wall of the hall or living room. Whenever the temperature of the house drops below the point for which the regulator is set, the burner immediately begins to function, producing heat and vice versa.

The SUPER OIL HEATER is most simple in construction. It requires no changing in your present equipment and no attention to operate.

Nearly every other type of oil heaters have ugly projections outside the furnace. The SUPER OIL HEATER is entirely enclosed in the fire box.

No Oil Burner is absolutely silent, but the SUPER OIL HEATER is by far the quietest. It's like the purr of a kitten.

The carburetor outside the furnace vaporizes the fuel and the motor pump forces the emulsion of oil and air to the burner. There is practically no oil inside the furnace.

The burner of the SUPER OIL HEATER is so arranged that it produces a more intense heat than any other type of burner, eliminating all smell, soot and smoke.

The SUPER OIL HEATER burns Fuel Oil and burns it with a clean, odorless, sootless flame. This oil is about 2c a gallon cheaper than Furnace Oil.

This Burner Is Now On Demonstration At Our Display Room.

IVANHOE— Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

THE STORY THUS FAR—The scene is laid in the England of Richard I, when the Saxons were smarting under the Norman rule. Gurth, a swineherd, and Wamba, a jester, are accosted by a party of knights seeking the castle of Cedric the Saxon. The knights are coldly received, and their leader, Brian, the Templar, rouses Cedric's wrath by his admiration of Rowena, Cedric's daughter. The incident is smoothed over as a Jewish stranger is admitted to the hall, and the knights discuss with Cedric the champions fighting for the cross in the Holy Land.

TO WHOM? SPOKE SIR BRIAN THE TEMPLAR, "BE SIDES THE KNIGHT TEMPLARS, CAN THE PALM BE ASSIGNED AMONG THE CHAMPIONS OF THE CROSS?"

THE ENGLISH MONARCH DID BRING GALLANT WARRIORS TO PALESTINE, SAID SIR BRIAN, "SECOND ONLY TO THE KNIGHT TEMPLARS."

A BITTER SCOWL OF RAGE PASSED OVER THE GOLDEN BRACELET OF THE TEMPLAR, CEDRIC, NOT NOTICING THE ANGER OF HIS GUESTS, OFFERED HIS GOLDEN BRACELET TO THE PILGRIM IF HE WOULD TELL THE NAMES OF THE MEN WHO SO GALLANTLY UPHELD THE RENOWN OF MERRY ENGLAND.

FIRST IN HONOR AS IN ARMED, SAID THE PALMER, "WAS BRAVE KING RICHARD, THE EARL OF LESTER WAS SECOND, SIR THOMAS MULTON THIRD, SIR FOUZ DOLL FOURTH, SIR EDWIN TURNEHAM FIFTH, AND THE SIXTH," AFTER A PAUSE, "WAS A YOUNG KNIGHT OF LOWER RANK; HIS NAME DWELLS IN MY MEMORY."

THESE WOMEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After supping at a night club with a beautiful girl called NORA, who is jealous of his friendship with other women, HARRY MORTON, middle-aged, rich, attractive, returns to his city apartment, to find that the daughter of AUDREY, awaiting him at two in the morning. She says she wishes he were not wealthy, so she could enjoy more of his company.

Morton, whose business is unknown, has been a center of curiosity in Rochester for fifteen years. On his return there with Audrey, he finds a shabby stranger awaiting him, whom he throws out of his house. He orders a private detective to trace the man, saying that the stranger claims to be Audrey's stepfather, and has attempted to collect money. He gets word that the stranger has been arrested.

Morton looked at the number, on the little slip of paper, and frowned. "Something worrying you, daddy?" asked Audrey.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER III

"ARRESTED!" Morton snapped.

"Are you sure he said the man was arrested?"

The young man nodded.

"Did that detective ask to talk to me?" Morton demanded.

"I told him you were busy," the youth said.

Morton quickly struggled into his overcoat, and took his hat and stick.

He stopped a moment, with his hand on the door-knob, for a final address to his secretary.

"Young man," he said, "a good secretary ought to know automatically whom his employer wants to talk to, and whom to put off. You are usually wrong."

He banged the door as he went out, and ran down the stairs, with only a short distance to the police station, and there Morton found the man called George awaiting him. The detective was standing on the front steps.

"What went wrong?" Morton wanted to know.

The detective bit reflectively at the end of a cigar.

"I hadn't even gotten started," he said. "It appears this fellow of yours showed up at your house, about the time you were in my office. He went up to the back door and banged on it. Your hired girl saw him, and I guess she recognized him. Anyhow, she telephoned to the police, and an officer went around and arrested him. They've got him in a cell here now."

Morton nodded. "That's not so bad. You wait here, and I'll go in and talk to him."

The officer in charge of the station knew Morton, and greeted him pleasantly.

"This fellow you picked up in my yard," Morton said. "He had no business there, but I know him. Mind if I go in and talk to him?"

The officer assented. "All right with me. Come on, and I'll take you back there."

He left Morton in the corridor, outside the cell in which the stranger was locked. The man stared at him impassively through the bars. Morton went down the hallway, picked up an ancient kitchen chair that stood against the wall and dragged it to the cell door. Sitting down, he surveyed his late visitor.

"Just like a rubber ball, aren't you?" he asked, "throw you down, and you bounce right up again."

The other man did not reply. Morton resumed: "I rather thought you'd come back, but I didn't think it would be so soon. You seem to have you locked up as a suspicious character. No other charge against you?"

He waited. The other man considered for a time, and at last answered: "They haven't got anything against me—yet."

"They won't have," Morton assured him. "Are you willing to leave the country, if I get you a job that will give you a living?"

The stranger went back to his bunk and sat down. He dropped his chin to his right hand, and rested his elbow on his knee. There was silence for several minutes. At last he spoke again.

"I haven't got any money to go to a foreign country," he said.

Morton gave a short nod. "I thought not. I'll take care of that. I'll take care of the job, too, if you will go there, and stay on it, as long as the job lasts. Is that fair?"

The man came forward to the bars of the door again. "You treated me pretty rough, over there at your house."

Morton came close.

"You had it coming to you, rougher than that," he said, his tone very low. "You had it coming to you for a good many years."

The other man pulled a dirty handkerchief from his pocket, and wiped his mouth with it, nervously. "I had it pretty rough, for the same number of years." He inspected Morton's trimly set overcoat, his hat, his sharply creased trousers, and his hand-made shoes. "You're rich, well dressed and comfortable. Just look at me!" He waved his hand at his own ragged clothing.

Morton said: "It isn't your money I'm spending here. I'm spending my money on you. You had it coming to you, rougher than that." He said, his tone very low. "You had it coming to you for a good many years."

Morton returned, his face stern.

to take my place," he asked, at length.

"Yes, I was," Morton said briskly.

"Young fellow named Parrish. He'll be here in about a week. Don't worry, though; I'll get you another job."

The young man, his head hanging, retreated through the door. Morton heard the latch click, but immediately the door reopened.

"I'm sorry I'm going," the young man said. "I'm going."

"Thank you," Morton said. "Most men who are failures, have failed because they started in the wrong job. I'll try to put you in the right one."

The young man again withdrew.

Morton took a small account ledger from his desk, and busied himself a while in making up a check, copying from the stubs of a small pocket check-book. This done, he reached for the telephone, and called the number of his bank.

"Give me the president's office," he ordered when the operator at the bank responded. "This is Mr. Morton talking—Harry Morton." There was a pause, and then he spoke again: "Hello, John—is that you?"

"Pretty well, thanks. Say, John, did you get a report on that young fellow Parrish?"

"He listened as his friend talked rapidly for a minute or two, and nodded his head with satisfaction.

"That's good, thanks. Sounds like a first-class young chap. I'll be ready for him as soon as he is clear of his other job. Send word to him to come on over, ready to start in."

"When Morton and Audrey arrived at the railroad station, that evening, the detective and the man Smith were waiting up and down the platform. Smith acknowledged Morton's greeting with a jerk of his own head, and stood still, studying Audrey with curious, narrowed eyes. The detective stopped, took off his hat, and restored it to the corner of his head.

"Is that awful man going with you?" Audrey asked.

"On the same train," Morton answered. "We are acting as his escort committee."

The girl shivered. "I won't have to talk with him, will I?"

Morton smiled. "I won't even let you talk to him."

Morton had taken a lower berth for himself, and a drawing room for Audrey. He sat with her in her room, and together, through the open door, they watched the detective and Smith, sitting in the far end of the car. At first the men had taken their seats facing the man and girl, but at a terse order from the detective, Smith had taken the opposite seat, turning his back to the drawing room. Before his companion seated himself, he looked with a grin toward Morton, and received the latter's wave of approbation.

A telephone message was awaiting Morton in his apartment when he reached it the next morning. He looked at the number, on the little slip of paper, and frowned.

"Something worrying you, daddy?" asked Audrey, taking quick note of his expression.

He held up the slip of paper to her. "Ever see that telephone number before?"

She shook her head.

"I'm glad of it," he said. "I just wanted to make sure. Would you do me a favor, and step into my room for a moment? I want to telephone, and I don't want you to hear."

The girl went away, and Morton seated himself beside the telephone.

First he called his own New York office, and dictated a cable message to an interior town in the Argentine Republic. This done, he ordered a steamship ticket to be prepared for the man Smith, for Buenos Aires.

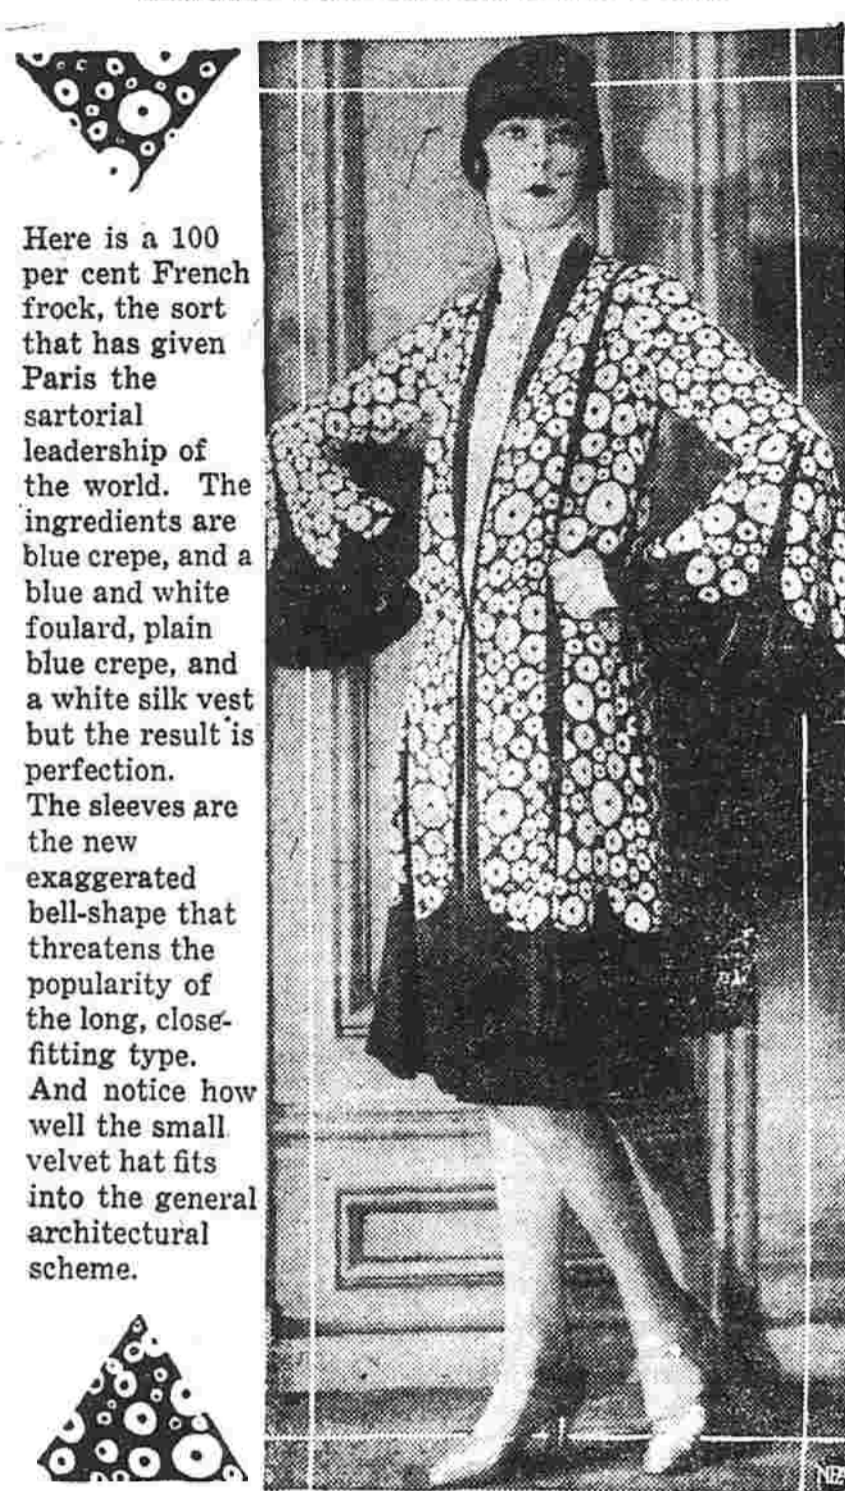

This attended to, he called the number that was on the slip of paper before him.

"Hello, Nora," he said, when a sleepy voice finally answered. "This is the wrong time in the morning to wake you up—but what do you mean by calling me at my apartment?"

Knock-'Em-Deader from Paris

Here is a 100 per cent French frock, the sort that has given Paris the sartorial leadership of the world. The ingredients are blue crepe, and a blue and white foulard, plain blue crepe, and a white silk vest but the result is perfection. The sleeves are the new exaggerated bell-shape that threatens the popularity of the long, close-fitting type. And notice how well the small velvet hat fits into the general architectural scheme.

CHILDREN OR CAREERS?

Career—For Children—Says Mrs. Root.

Views of some of America's best known women about children and careers are given in a series of articles written for this newspaper, of which this is one.

By AIDA DE ACOSTA ROOT
Director of May Day—Child Health Day.

There are careers and careers. Many of the women interested in the work of perfecting plans to observe May 1 as National Child Health Day have children of their own.

Yet they work many hours a day outside their homes to the end that every woman's child shall have a chance to grow up healthy and strong.

They have what I call the real mothering instinct. They cannot be happy to know that while their own boys and girls are getting the best of care, other boys and girls are getting none.

There are some stupendous facts which influence women to take up a career of child saving. Here are a few:

Forty thousand school children die each year from causes which are preventable.

Diphtheria, which is considered preventable, and for which there has been a curative for thirty years, takes the largest toll of death among children of any five common communicable diseases.

Of the crippled adults, one-third receive their injuries during the first six years of life and a very large percentage are needlessly handicapped.

One hundred per cent of all mental defectives are recognizable during the first six years of life.

A survey of eighty-six middle-size cities recently made by the American Child Health Association shows that for every 1,000 babies born, seven mothers give up their lives.

Other scientists have discovered that for the past seven years, an average of one baby out of every eleven born alive was lost. A baby born under conditions as they are in this country today has only slightly more chance of living a week than has an old man of 90.

Is it any wonder we mothers feel that here is one career which is its own excuse for being?

And as for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn. Something that will end your foot troubles forever.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils—with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

North End Pharmacy, South Manchester agents Magnell Drug Co.—and every good druggist guarantees Moore's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.—Adv.

This And That In Feminine Lore

There is something good in all weathers. If it doesn't happen to be good for my work today, it is good for some other man's today, and will come around to me tomorrow.—Charles Dickens.

The girl who is oftentimes asked "Who does your hair—it's so attractive?" is most apt to answer, "Mrs. Robinson of the Lily Beauty Shop upstairs in the House and Hale building."

A happy purchase for the traveler or any woman contemplating a sea trip would be one of the reversible coats, one side in plaid, the other a plain blue or other shade intended for dress occasions.

Flower printed chiffons are repeatedly seen over foundation slips of tulle. Its pretty stiffness offers smart contrast to the soft sheerness of chiffon. There is every indication that it will be continued through the summer season.

The new color, a warm yellow, introduced in china and glass ware has won instant popularity.

The scalloped hemline, one of the newest spring fashions, while used on prints and all sorts of fabrics, it seems to me would be especially pretty for graduation dresses for the High school miss who usually prefers some soft silk material to the dress of white or gray or other sheer cotton material. The bound scalloped effect settles the trimming question for the skirt and very little elaboration is needed for the bodice portion. It also depends for its simplicity upon line rather than ornamentation.

The new color, a warm yellow, introduced in china and glass ware has won instant popularity.

"No, he's been lovely to me." And then I stopped, for I knew he would wonder why I had been to see his father. However, I rushed along.

"But, Jerry, I just met that man Sellers in the hall and he said to me in a threatening tone of voice, 'Watch your step, girl, watch your step,' and it frightened me almost to death."

I had not realized that I had called the man still holding my hand "Jerry" until I heard him say: "Don't you worry about him, Judy, I'm just going up to Dad's office now to settle his case for him. I've known for a long time that many irregular things have been going on at the Beaux Arts and this will give me a chance for an investigation. I'm glad you went to see Dad, but I might have known you'd always do the right thing. I'm sorry though that Sellers saw you in the hall, Judy. He will think that it's your that's made all the eruption. I'm glad you told Dad all about losing your money, didn't you? I was just going to tell him myself."

"Jerry, I'm awfully ashamed, but when I got that bag this morning, I thought you were taking the easiest way out of things and had sent me the money and bag yourself. If and that you didn't intend to do anything more about it. Of course I didn't want to accept the money and bag from you so I went to your father with the whole story, for I knew I could not get the right of it from anyone else."

"Of course I sent the money and bag to you. I'm glad you got a lot of fun I had picking it up. That part of it was mine. But I intend to get all the money I paid out and sent you, from those thieves."

I smiled.

"Then I expect they'll get what's coming to them, for your father just said he was going to do the same thing, in almost the same words."

"Good for Dad. He's a little piece of all right even if he doesn't always approve of me, isn't he?"

TOMORROW: Heart Palpitation.

"I Lost"

The hard-boiled egg and sliced tomato diet seems to have arrived to take the place of the once popular lamb chop and pineapple reduction diet. Others favor orange and milk. Nothing but milk one day, nothing but oranges in one form or another the next.

Walking Is Form of Outdoor Exercise Which Benefits All

This is the first of a series of two articles on Exercise and Health, Tomorrow—Riding, Swimming, Tennis.

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING, Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service.

Primitive man got all the exercise which his body needed in obtaining food and in defending himself from savage beasts.

As civilization advanced and living conditions changed, specialization began and now there are an ever increasing number of people who get very little exercise in their daily tasks.

Without exercise certain muscles and organs of the body become weak and flabby and this condition reacts unfavorably on mental and bodily health and vigor.

Increasing Circulation.

The general increase in circulation resulting from exercise benefits all parts of the body. In every movement there is a destruction of certain cells of the body.

Nature replaces all such normal waste of tissue and usually does a little more than was destroyed.

The WOMAN'S BREAD

By Allene Sumner

"We Clean Yet!"

Miss "Audie Royden, famous English preacher and essayist, tells the story of a charwoman and two well-dressed women of means standing together, before an exhibit of a poor, badly-managed home, and a model home."

The two women were making "isn't-it-terrible-some-people-live" comments upon the poor house, which was probably much like the charwoman's own abode.

She endured it for a time, then wheeled and snapped, "And I wonder how clean you'd be if such women as me didn't clean yet!"

"At Home"

Tea, small cakes and cinnamon toast are served on "at home" days. The tea service is arranged on a cart, and candles and open fire add to the coziness. The stranger, attending an "at home" for the first time, wears her gloves until her tea is offered, and drops a card with her address as she leaves.

Cried for Burnt Toast

Imagine a man feeling badly because his toast is always perfectly browned on both sides! Yet such is the plight of Gandie, hero of the season's outstanding classic, "Gandie Follows His Nose."

Gandie obtains everything his heart desires—palace, dog, wife, child, simply by rubbing a lamp and summoning a genie.

The wife, brought in this manner "from the shelf where the keni keep gifts for mortals," is unable to make burnt toast, and Gandie years and years for this little touch with ordinary mortals.

But we doubt that even poor Gandie struggling for "the common touch" would have smiled upon his lady Azartha had she burned this cheese biscuit, made with 1 egg, added to 2 cups flour, 2 tablespoons butter worked into flour, 5 even teaspoons baking powder sifted into flour with pinch salt, mixed with scant cup of milk, more added if too soft. Cut in rounds and baked in very quick oven.

"Nize Baby"

"While Wolf WILL rule his food, Though his mother calls him Rude," Though his brother hides his eyes— And his sister almost cries! Oh, the dreadful bites he takes! When he's eating pies and cakes!" Any youngster who likes to eat animal crackers, and those who do not, like animal stories. Manners can be pleasantly and painlessly taught by Helen LeCron's "Animal Etiquette Book."

Stella Dallas, mill town girl wife of the novel and movie by the same title, dresses like a striped zebra. Plumes, rosettes, buckles, pines, trains, veils and flouncings flutter up every possible pretty line of her anatomy.

The woman to whom the husband finally turns, looks like a Parisian model. Not an unnecessary lickety-doo on her cheeks. Beautiful material, beautiful lines. Diagnose well-dressed people for yourselves. You'd note the absence of roses on their hats and sashes at their belts.

HERE'S INSTANT RELIEF FROM BUNIONS AND SOFT CORNS

Actually Reduces the Swelling—Soft Corns Dry Right Up and Can Be Picked Off.

Local Druggist Says Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness, and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your bunions may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moore's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes all the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

SHORT CUTS
Things to Know in Building and Operating a Receiver.

A high-pass filter, made of two 5 mfd. fixed condensers and a .25 henry coil choke, may be used to eliminate power-line noises in a receiver. The condensers are put in parallel in the aerial lead-in and four inches apart and one end of the coil is connected to the lead-in midway between the condensers, while the other coil end is hooked to the ground wire.

Make a radio-frequency coil of a 75-turn honeycomb. Take off the coil 15 turns of wire, recoil these turns around a vaseline bottle and slip the new coil inside the honeycomb form to act as a primary to the 60-turn honeycomb secondary.

Connecting wires in the set may be bunched in cables if Litz or some other good insulated wire is used and tinfoil, copperfoil or copper tubing is used to shield the cable.

To revivify weak tubes, turn them on an hour or so with the battery disconnected. In case of the 199 tubes, a 4 1-2-volt C-battery may be used to light the filament.

Ordinary pipe-cleaners are handy in cleaning parts of a set, especially of condensers, if the cleaners are folded in half.

Chrysler "70" Roadster, $1655, f. o. b. Detroit.

Chrysler "70" Means 70 Miles Per Hour Plus

Chrysler model numbers have a special significance and are an actual index to Chrysler performance and value.
Motor car model numbers up to the present time have meant little or nothing to the public.
They have rarely expressed horsepower and almost never miles per hour.
In the case of Chrysler you know what you are buying in miles per hour and all that miles-per-hour implies as soon as you see the model and know the number.
Chrysler "70" for instance is a 70—in other words it delivers 70 miles an hour.
The model number is not the maximum—Chrysler "70" delivers 70 miles per hour and more.
Comparatively few people, it is true, care to ride as fast as 70 miles an hour; but the power which is indicated by 70 miles plus represents the utmost in acceleration, in smooth performance, as well as in sheer speed.
We are eager to demonstrate its outstanding superiorities to you.

CHRYSLER "70"—Phaeton, $1305; Coach, $1445; Roadster, $1655; Sedan, $1695; Royal Coupe, $1795; Brougham, $1865; Royal Sedan, $1995; Crown Sedan, $2095. Disc wheels optional.
CHRYSLER "58"—Touring Car, $845; Roadster Special, $890; Club Coupe, $895; Coach, $935; Sedan, $995. Disc wheels optional. Hydraulic four-wheel brakes at slight extra cost.
CHRYSLER IMPERIAL "80"—Phaeton, $2645; Roadster (wire wheels standard equipment; used wheels optional), $2885; Coupe, four-passenger, $3195; Sedan, five-passenger, $3395; Sedan, seven-passenger, $3595. Sedan-Imperial, $3695.
All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.
All models equipped with full balloon tires.
Ask about Chrysler's attractive time-payment plan. More than 4500 Chrysler dealers assure superior Chrysler service everywhere.
All Chrysler models are protected against theft by the Fictio patented car numbering system, pioneered by and exclusive with Chrysler, which cannot be counterfeited and cannot be altered or removed without conclusive evidence of tampering.

DODGE BROS. REPORT HEAVY CAR DEMAND

Detroit, May 1—Figures given out here by President E. G. Wilmore of Dodge Brothers, Inc., show that retail buying of the company's cars and trucks throughout the United States is not only exceeding production but has reduced available stocks of cars available for delivery to the low average of less than three per dealer.

"As of April 24, the Dodge Brothers' dealers in the United States had on hand 29,921 new cars and trucks against which they held 17,593 signed orders from customers," said Mr. Wilmore. "Spread the difference of 12,328 between the organization of 2,300 dealers and their selling customers and you realize how small their stock really is.

"Even this small surplus is rapidly being reduced. During the week ending April 24, for example, total domestic shipments from the factory to dealers in the United States and Canada were 8,264 cars and deliveries to retail customers were 9,566 cars.

"The present record production of 1,650 cars daily compared with 1,500 cars daily a month ago and 950 cars daily a year ago dealers recall deliveries have exceeded factory shipments each week for the past two weeks."

WOMEN LIKE BALLOON EQUIPPED AUTOMOBILES.
A new reason for the popularity of balloon tires was given today by Mr. Hansen, of the Depot Square service station, Firestone dealer, who declared that women motorists are, to a great extent, responsible for the ever widening demand for this new type of equipment.

"The fair sex," he pointed out, "has had a big influence on the refinements and improvements made to motor cars and their judgment is always taken into consideration by car manufacturers before new models are brought out.

"Women who do considerable driving are quick to notice the improvement in car control when using Firestone balloons. Indeed, the occasional driver appreciates the relieved strain of apply brakes and finds that what formerly required all the strength at her command has been reduced to a mere movement of the pedal, with instant response.

"Women are keen on appearance and know what these big, luxurious-looking tires mean to the car and they don't overlook the economy of Firestone balloons in road or mileage, longer car life and reduced gas consumption.

"It is but another sign of the keen intelligence of the fair sex."

PARSONS' THEATER "KID BOOTS" ZIEGFELD'S FINEST PRODUCTION

Comes to Parsons' Theater, Hartford, May 6—Eddie Cantor and Mary Eaton in the Cast.

At Parsons Theatre, Hartford for three nights commencing Thursday, May 6th, Florenz Ziegfeld will offer what he considers his best production, "Kid Boots." Eddie Cantor is the scintillating light, assisted by Mary Eaton, clever comedienne and nimble dancer.

"Kid Boots" is sometimes described as a musical comedy of Palm Beach and golf. William Anthony McGuire and Otto Harbach are responsible for the book. Harry Tierney composed the music and Joseph McCarthy furnished the lyrics and it has been staged by Edward Royce who is undoubtedly the greatest artist in his line in the country.

Jobyna Holland

"Kid Boots" is a monster production with big scenic effects, gorgeous settings, beautiful costumes and crowds of pretty girls, such as only Ziegfeld can secure. The cast is also a large one and includes among its members such well known players as Jobyna Holland, Ethelind Terry, Marie Callahan, Beth Bert, Harland Dixon, Paul Everton, Kenneth Leane, Paul Stevens, Kenneth Barratt, Phil Ryley and Horton Spurr.

"THE BIG PARADE", FILM SENSATION, AT PARSONS' JOHN GILBERT, SCREEN'S GREATEST LOVER, PLAYS LEAD IN BIG PRODUCTION.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in announcing they are starring John Gilbert in "The Big Parade" which will be presented at Parsons Theatre, Hartford, week of May 10, suggest Gilbert as likely candidate for the surfrages of the fans as the "greatest screen lover of 1925-26."

They point with pride to his Prince Danilo ("The Merry Widow"), his James Apperson ("The Big Parade") and his Rudolph Valentino and Ramon Novarro, please take notice. There are a pair will certainly enter the all-Cupid sweepstakes to contest the Gilbert claim!

However, John Gilbert in this year's studio work has exhibited a larger virtuosity in the gentle art of inspiring romance than any other idol of the time; witness his dreamy poet of "Wife of the Centaur," his courtier of "His Hour," "The Snob" lover, the dashing eastern European prince, the war hero and the Montmartre artist. The Gilbert hair, eyes, profile, smile and figure are equally fascinating in all his protean changes.

A real surprise awaits the Gilbertian fan in "The Big Parade." His makeup is the "mud pack" of the trenches. All the disfigurements of "active service" are realized. Those who have seen the picture say that begrimed and dirty he is just as easy to look at—and just as compelling—as when dandified.

It might be mentioned that this new—and probably greatest—screen lover was born in Logan, Utah. He didn't leap to fame. He began his acting career at a tender age with Eddie Fox. He was a juvenile lead after that in Western stock companies. Then he went into business. Then he took up motion picture acting. He was a scenario writer for Maurice Tourneur, and later was a director.

McKEE STEALS HONORS IN PICTURE AT CRICLE

Is the Shining Light of "The Speed Limit"—Anna Q. Nilsson in Co-Feature.

It is most refreshing for the seasoned movie-goer to at last witness the influx of new personalities to the silent art. One of the latest "comers" and one who will bear watching is Raymond McKee who is the bright shining star of "The Speed Limit," the latest Gotham Production which is the headliner at the Circle Theater today and tomorrow.

Raymond McKee is not an unseasoned amateur but has been appearing in films for some time but in this picture he comes into his own. He is the good-natured, humorous auto mechanic to the life. In this lively picture he keeps the smiles coming every minute and while due credit must be given to Ethel Shannon and the supporting cast for excellent performances, Raymond McKee "steals the show."

As to the picture itself, it comes under the category of what is known as "sure fire." Just imagine a young man in love and his sweetheart one evening passes up to go out with a stranger in a limousine. Later our hero discovers his rival on the road—stuck. Our hero is an auto mechanic and what he does to his rival's car is plenty. He fixes it so no one else will ever fix it again. It may not sound half as funny as it looks but it's a scream.

The co-feature for today and tomorrow will be Anna Q. Nilsson in "Her Second Chance." For Monday the Circle presents an all star cast in "Miracle of Life," and Bob Custer in "Beyond the Rockies," also Gold Night. Gold will be given away.

NORMA TALMADGE'S "KIKI" AT THE STATE

THIRD in the World

—and Sales still mounting

During the first three months of 1926 Dodge Brothers, Inc., built and sold more motor vehicles than any other manufacturer in the world, except Ford and Chevrolet.

71,189 retail deliveries were made by Dodge Brothers Dealers in the United States and Canada between January second and April third. This represents a gain of 37 per cent over the same period last year and 69 per cent over the first quarter of 1924!

Third largest in the world! And sales CONTINUING to mount week after week to new record breaking levels.

In fact, during the week ending April 24th retail sales reached the remarkable total of 9,566—the greatest single week in Dodge Brothers history!

These figures are all the more significant when you realize that the gain of the industry as a whole over last year is only 12 per cent.

There could be no more convincing evidence that today's product is regarded as better than ever before and that the present prices make it the most impressive value Dodge Brothers have ever offered.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"We shall go to Scooty Lizard's house next," said Mister Tingaling, the fairy landlord, to the Twins. "Where does he live?" asked Nick.

"Don't you know?" said Mister Tingaling in surprise. "He lives over in the meadow under a big gray stone."

"Then he won't have to pay you any rent, will he?" asked Nancy. "If he just lives under a stone."

"Why, of course he will," said Mister Tingaling. "The stone is just his roof. When his cold he wiggles down into the ground ever so far to keep warm. Besides it's a nice stone. I guess, so it is! And if he didn't live there, most likely someone else would."

"So he went tap, tap, tap! with his knuckles on the big stone and before a frog could catch a fly, there was Scooty Lizard looking at them with his 'tiny black beady eyes."

"Hello here, old fellow!" said Mister Tingaling in surprise. "You don't make any more noise when you walk than a bunny that comes out of a silk hat in a trick show. You must wear rubber shoes!"

Scooty smiled and blinked his black beady eyes. "I guess I'm getting pretty good," he said. "That's what Ma always tried to teach me. She said to be quick and quiet. All lizards learn that lesson first. But what can I do for you, Mister Fairyman?"

"Why, you see," said Mister Tingaling, looking at Nick and Nancy. "It's the thirtieth day of the month and it's rent day."

Nancy opened the big pocket-book and held it out. "Yes, we came for your rent," she said. "Put it in here and I'll give you a receipt for it."

"But suddenly Nick cried out. "Why, he's gone! You're just talking to the air, Nancy."

"So he has! Where do you suppose he went to?" said Mister Tingaling in a worried voice.

But they did not have to guess very long, for they heard Scooty say, "Aha! I'm getting pretty good I think! How was that for 'quick and quiet'?" You never saw me go even."

"Where are you?" said Mister Tingaling sharply. "Come here this minute, Mister Lizard, and pay me your rent. It's ten cents in fairy money."

"Catch me if you can," called Scooty. "I'll bet you don't even know which stone I am under now."

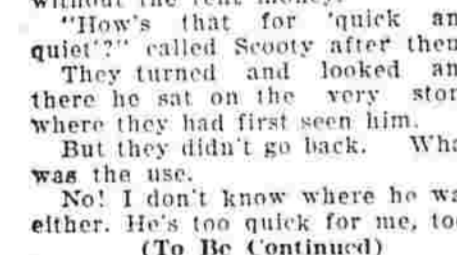

Mister Tingaling and the Twins looked hard. There were five stones all alike. "We'll find you!" shouted the fairyman. "We'll turn every stone over until we find you."

But although they turned every stone over, there was no lizard to be found, and they had to leave without the rent money.

"How's that for 'quick and quiet'?" called Scooty after them. They turned and looked and there he sat on the very stone where they had first seen him. But they didn't go back. What was the use.

No! I don't know where he was either. He's too quick for me, too. (To Be Continued)

A PUZZLE A DAY

Let us perform a few mental operations on four-letter words, save the deleted members, and arrange them in their given order. They will form the name of a large American City. 1. Behead a clasp for letters, and leave a portion of the month. 2. Behead a passage, and leave everything. 3. Behead an image, and leave to commit to memory. 4. Behead an outer garment, and leave a grain. 5. Behead to border, and leave a conjunction. 6. Behead a precious metal, and leave ancient. 7. Behead a gem, and leave a chum.

What is the name of the city formed by the deleted letters? Last puzzle answer:

Because the book was on statistics, the sentence must have contained a number. This was either 2 or 21. As it was about a baseball player, it probably contained the word baseball. If you discovered these two facts, the rest of the sentence would not have been very difficult to find. Following the way line you read this sentence, "Tyrus R. Cobb played baseball for 21 seasons."

INTERNATIONAL AUTO RACES BEING RUN THIS AFTERNOON

Expect Records to Fall in 300 Mile Event on the Atlantic City Speedway.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

Hammon, N. J., May 1.—The break-a-record-or-break-a-leg brigade will go out for an airing this afternoon in a 300-mile international automobile race at the formal opening of the Atlantic City speedway and, beyond a doubt, a large time will be had by one and all. You don't have to be crazy to be a race driver. But it helps.

Two of Europe's best, Baron De Rachewsky, champion of Russia, and Count De Marquand, runner-up for the French title, will be aligned against the American field, including Peter De Paolo, national champion, and the veteran Ralph De Palma, who is by way of being Peter's best pal and severest critic in fact, his uncle.

Other good ones include Bennett Hill and Bob McDonogh, who has been running amuck in practice; Harry Hartz, Peter Kreis and Eddie Hearne.

To Smash Records. They say the record for the distance hasn't the chance of a mill in a Florist's window.

The mile and a half track has been constructed with record-breaking in view and, according to all accounts, the boys can't miss.

Twenty racing pilots, incensed in form-fitting cars, will go to the mark, the No. 1 position having been achieved by De Paolo with Hearne, Hartz, McDonogh, Ralph Hatten, Cliff Woodbury, Fred Comer and Peter Kreis following in the order named.

De Palma No. 13. Hill will be No. 11 on the starting line, with De Palma No. 12 and Count Marquand and Baron Rachewsky listed at Nos. 15 and 16 respectively.

The foreigners will drive Buick cars and the tip was that neither figured to compete too strenuously with the Made-in-America machines. Of the latter, eleven will be Millers and the Dusebergs will have three pilots. The only other imported car in the race will be a Mercedes, handled by Frank Farmer.

All in all, it will be quite an occasion, furnishing this particular portion with its first view of real auto racing since Philadelphia's Fairmount Park event was discontinued some years ago.

SHAMROCKS PRACTICE TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Manager Coleman has called another practice session for the Shamrock baseball club for tomorrow afternoon at Hickey's Grove beginning at two o'clock.

The following are requested to report: Keller, Kelley, J. McLaughlin, W. McLaughlin, Farrand, Walcott, Long, Brownell, Massey, Clemen, McCarthy, Brennan, Pitt, P. Genovaese, "Breck" Wilson, Stevenson, J. Benny, Graff and Bowser. Coach McGonigal will be in charge.

SWIMMIN' TIME HERE EVEN THOUGH IT'S COLD.

Swimmin' time is here! And if this isn't a sure sign of spring, what is? A girl who lives on South Main street and who is well known in that vicinity, was seen swimming about in the icy waters in Globe Hollow today.

She says the water wasn't cold and concluded with, "Gee, it was great."

"POOL ROOM GRADUATE"

Johnny Risko Got Start in Fistic World by Whipping Pair of "Toughs" in Pool Room.

Cleveland, May 1.—A man who is fearless and revels in the drama of fistic is always dangerous. Such a man is John Risko, "Em Risko," the young Ohio heavyweight, who held his own with Gene Tunney and Jack Delaney and knocked Paul Berlenbach down and almost out.

These exploits, coming in quick succession, have advanced him from the janitor's quarters in the heavyweight division to the president's suite.

Risko, an Austrian, is a curious combination of stolidity and impetuosity. Outside the ring he is phlegmatic and unimaginative. He reminds you of the Al Patzers, Bull Youngs and Jim Flynn of the old white horse days. But in the ring he is all fight, and action and fury, possessing in a crude way many of the qualities of Dempsey and Walker.

Risko is a product of the amateur rings of this city. His start as a fast-throver dates back to an afternoon four years ago when he cleaned out a tough pool room on the west side.

Kayoed a Pair. Risko, a mere youth, was sitting in a chair watching the progress of a game of French pool. A couple of strong-arm gentles showed him. Words followed. Then fists. Sock! Sock! Two knockout wins for the Austrian, who was then a baker boy enjoying an afternoon off.

Danny Dunn, New York heavyweight of the George Dixon-Terry McGovern period, learned of the episode, took Risko into his gymnasium, entered him in the amateur tournaments, and eventually piloted him to the state championship. In due time they returned to the professional game.

Risko's first big shot was against Tunney. Fresh from knockouts over Carpenter, Gibbons and Madden, the ex-marine was an odds-on favorite to win by a knockout. Not only was Risko there at the finish but he gave Tunney the hardest fight he ever had.

Next came Delaney. It so happened Delaney had scheduled a fight at Canton, O., not far from Cleveland, two weeks ahead of his engagement in New York with Risko. Dunn wanted Risko to go down and look at Delaney and learn something of his style. It took considerable persuasion to get him to go.

"Well what do you think of him?" asked Dunn the next day.

"He's all right," answered Risko monosyllabically.

"Do you think you can take him?"

"Maybe."

"Did you learn anything about that right-hand knock-out of his?"

Risko's answer to this was a paralyzer. "I didn't look at it," he said.

The day of the fight with Berlenbach Dunn wanted Risko to go to bed after he had weighed in. "Why should I go to bed?" he demanded.

Dunn told him the sleep would rest his nerves and do him good.

"Phooey!" exploded Risko. "I slept last night! Whereupon he gathered his sparring partners and rubbers around him and started a pinocchio game. The game didn't end until 20 minutes before time for him to appear in the ring at Madison Square Garden against the hardest puncher and the most widely advertised fighter he had ever faced.

Risko is a slashing, tearing-in type of fighter. Against a boxer he does not show at his best; against a slugger like Berlenbach he looks the pattern of a great fighter.

He sheds punches with astonishing unconcern and indifference. Nobody has had him down for an extended count. He is always trying something himself. I'd say his best punch is a left hand which he hooks to the body and to the head. He has a shift, too, that is effective when Tommy Ryan, the old middleweight champion. It has won quite a few fights for him.

Billy Evans Says

Similar Fate. There was a rather strange coincidence in the 1925 pitching debut of Joe Bush and Tom Zachary.

Last winter Washington traded the veteran southpaw, Tom Zachary, to the St. Louis Browns for the experienced right-hander, Joe Bushers to do with.

The two pitchers made their first start for their new clubs on the third day of the season. Both were knocked out of the box.

Zachary opposed the Chicago White Sox. He failed to last out the first inning. He was relieved after allowing four hits, giving two bases on balls and making an error.

Chicago made eight runs before the inning was over, winning the ball game then and there.

Bush lasted three innings against the Athletics, four runs resulting in five hits and four bases on balls.

So in the debut of the two veteran pitchers the trade was all even.

Two things are certain to make Shortstop Everett Scott far more valuable to the White Sox than it seemed when he was signed to a Chicago contract.

Unquestionably the ball has been slowed up over the one used last season. The lively ball was tough on infielders beginning to lose some of their speed afoot.

The new ball in use this year will lack some of the speed with which the ball traveled through the infield and will permit a footwork.

In addition, the infield at Comiskey park is one of the slowest in the American League. The condition of the soil is responsible. The New York American infield is at least 30 per cent faster.

Working on a slow infield, with a less lively ball, is certain to make the Veteran Everett Scott a much more valuable ball player to the White Sox.

Helps Collins. The presence of Scott in the White Sox infield should also help the second base play of Manager Eddie Collins.

The Chicago leader admitted that much to me when I discussed the possibilities of his club at the Shreveport (La.) training camp.

"For several years I have had recruit players at shortstop. That made it necessary for me to assist them in every way possible. In a position, none on most every man that came to bat.

"Watching the other fellow keep you from concentrating on your own work, so that at times I felt my play suffered because of the attention I had to give the various recruit shortstops tried out by the club.

"With Scott at shortstop all I will have to do is take care of second base. It will take a lot of work off my shoulders."

While it is hard to see how the play of Collins could be much improved, there is no doubt as to the logic of his statement.

Delayed Debut. "This fellow Joe Pate is going to win a lot of ball games this summer for us."

The speaker was Cy Perkins, backstop of the Philadelphia Athletics; the place, Ft. Myers, Fla., the club's training quarters.

"None of the experts figures Pate in doping our chances but he is sure to be a big help. He has good stuff and knows how to pitch."

It didn't take long for the judgment of the veteran catcher to be verified.

Joe Pate, making his major league debut at 33 years of age, a time when most pitchers are still rising, scored the first victory of the season for the Mackmen over Washington.

After Baumgartner had been knocked out of the box, Pate relieved him, holding the American League champs to two hits and no runs in six innings, the Athletics finally winning, 9-3.

DEMPSEY FIGHT ARRANGED.

New York, May 1.—Having played his long-delayed "joker" in forcing the New York State Athletic Commission to disclose the battle Jack Dempsey has been in good standing here since July 17, 1925, Tex Rickard today serenely began active preparations for putting on a Dempsey-Tunney bout in September.

The promoter continued to evade direct acknowledgment of this match as his premiere of the 1926 season but it was common gossip today that Harry Wills had been again shunted into the background definitely, perhaps for all time.

The NUT CRACKER

By JOE WILLIAMS

Tex Rickard went down to the state of wild steers to sign Dempsey and here's hoping he didn't get the wrong steer, as the boys say.

If the little sister will annoy the ivories for a few minutes we'll have a solo number from Mr. Babe Ruth, entitled, "Too Many Parties, Too Many Pals."

Short story: Bases filled, Rookie pitcher, Hornsby by being. Fast ball. One way ticket to Tulsa, Okla.

Next heavyweight champion will be Jack Delaney, the middleweight, predicts Harry Greb, who has always been eccentric.

Any baseball team is liable to have its ups and downs but the Pirate fans are wondering when the ups are coming.

Smith and Jones form a battery in the Western League. It's probably that universal battery automobile men are always advertising.

Charlie Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter, refuses to let movie men take pictures of him, fearing secret of his success may be exposed. Indeed it is a matter about which Hoff seems to be getting unduly huffy.

But he turned out to be such a human being and so thoroughly normal that Americans, accustomed to bending the knee to foreign peculiarities, ignored him entirely.

Continuing to be profoundly serious, we'd like to know just exactly what would happen if an American pole-vaulter visited Norway or Denmark or Finland or some such place and adopted the regal attitude that nobody could take his picture?

Spring football practice having ended at Harvard, it would be interesting to know what the boys are doing for their laughs now.

Modern definition: Turfman, any bird with a cap, a copy of Racing Form, a speaking acquaintance with a stable swipe, an unsatisfied appetite and an infinite knowledge of what the horses can't do.

- Fidel La Barba, world's flyweight champion, engaged in nine bouts in 1925.
- He lost one, being defeated by Jimmy McLarin, coast sensation, on points in 10 rounds. Newsboy Brown held the champ to a draw over the same distance.
- The other seven battles La Barba copped. He beat George Rivers twice, Frankie Genaro and Lowell Peretti among others. All other clashes were 10-session affairs.
- La Barba chalked up just one kayo, handing that to Ray Poe in the first stanza.

MECHANICS WIN OVER SCHOOLBOYS BY SCORE OF 5-2

Chalk up No. 2 for the Mechanics. Yesterday afternoon at Mt. Nebo grounds the local State Trade School scored a 5 to 2 victory over Simsbury High school in a fast and well played game.

Manchester took a three run lead in the opening stanza when hits by McChuck, Pospisil and Thura coupled with two free passes, earned Manchester three tallies.

Manchester put the game on ice in the fourth inning when two more hits, an error, and a wild pitch sent two more pair of feet clattering over the home plate.

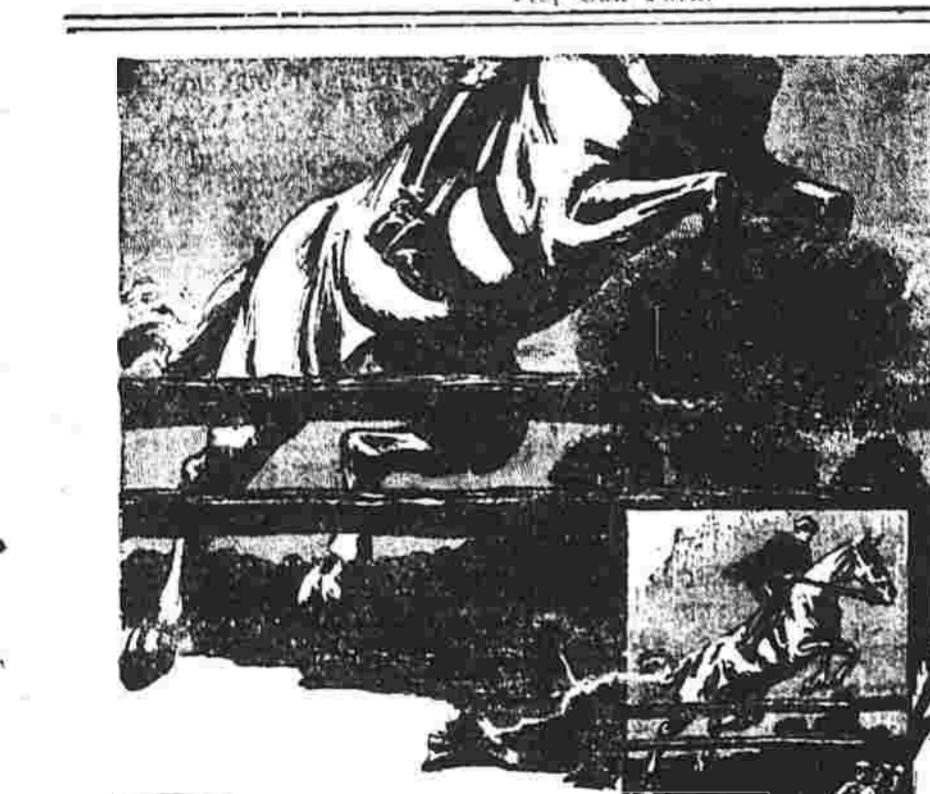

Simsbury scored only twice. Pospisil fanned fourteen batters and Eno struck out thirteen.

DIAMOND DUST

The Robins won their sixth straight, beating the Phillies 8 to 4, and now roost in first place for the first time since good Scotch sold at three dollars a quart. The batting of Maranville helped Burleigh Grimes win his first game of the season.

The Giants, who appear to be falling under the spell of the Boston jinx again, lost out to the Braves in the tenth, 5 to 4. New York threw the game away, Jackson making three of the team's five errors.

Chicago nosed out the Cardinals in the eleventh, 10 to 9. Percy Jones winning his own game with a double. By losing, the Cards yielded their first division berth to Chicago.

The wayward Pirates hit the sawdust trail and slugged out a 13 to 4 victory over the Reds. Pittsburgh made seventeen hits, Glenn Wright contributing two homers and a single.

Ruth's fourth-homer of the year was the big gun in the Yankees' daily dynamiting act, Covelleski of the Senators being the victim. The score was New York 7, Washington 2, homers by Rice and Judge representing the sum total of Washington's offensive against Shocker.

Chicago nosed out Cleveland in the ninth, 3 to 2, and came within a whisker of knocking the Indians out of second place.

Although Sisler and Williams hit homers, the Browns succumbed to the Tigers, 7 to 6. Cobb's slugger mauled four St. Louis pitchers.
