

EAST HARTFORD MAN DROWNS IN COVENTRY LAKE

Lester C. Sampson Falls from Boat—Body Does Not Come to Surface—Recov- ered Later by Local Men.

Unusual circumstances surrounded the death of Lester C. Sampson, of East Hartford, who was drowned, several yards from shore at Coventry Lake late yesterday while fishing. Although Sampson was only twenty-one years old and was a man of apparent good health, he was unable to swim. He fell into the water at the surface after he fell out of the boat. The body was recovered by Manchester persons who rushed to the scene.

The Fishing Party

It appears that Sampson, Arthur Cooley and Howard Moore, all of East Hartford, went to the lake early yesterday afternoon on a fishing trip. Moore went off by himself to fish leaving Sampson and Cooley in the boat.

Suddenly Sampson toppled over backwards into the water. Cooley believed that his companion had caught a big fish at first because Sampson was gripping his fishpole. Sampson did not utter a sound as he fell into the water. He failed to come to the surface.

Yells For Help

Cooley yelled for help. He was unable to swim himself. There were a number of persons about, but in boats fishing. Others were working about their cottages on shore. Upon hearing the cries for help, they rushed to the scene. Among those from Manchester who lent their assistance were Harry Saunders, Frank Brown, Joseph Irons, John Korss and Charles Mallon.

Body Rescued

After twenty minutes of grappling with hooks, the body was recovered. Medical Examiner Higgins was summoned. He signed the death certificate following his examination as "accidental drowning." Dr. Higgins told The Herald today that in his belief the man may have been overcome from the heat of the sun. He died of the not due to any disease. The medical examiner said the whole affair was somewhat of a puzzle considering the fact that the young fellow was able to swim and yet did not even come to the surface once. He said the water at the point was between eight and ten feet deep and that it was eight rods from shore. It is possible that Sampson was dead when he fell into the water, he said.

The Body was Taken to the Whitney Chalmers and Woodbury morgue in East Hartford. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Sampson had been living with his sister, Mrs. Howard Moore, of 22 Green Terrace, East Hartford. In addition to her, he is survived by his father, Charles Sampson, of Medford, Mass. The young man also has two sisters and a brother living in Medford. They are Misses Hazel and Gladys Sampson and Sidney Sampson.

KIWANIS CLUB PLANS GO-TO-CHURCH-SUNDAY

Mothers' Day Chosen for Ob- servance—Prize for Club with Largest Per Cent At- tendance.

Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 9, has been selected as "Go to Church Sunday" for members of Kiwanis clubs all over the New England district. This is the hope and desire of District Governor Philbrook and the trustees of the organization who some months ago designated this day as the one upon which every Kiwanian in New England will attend his own or some church of his choice. Promptly after attending church on Sunday, May 9, each Kiwanian is to report the fact to the secretary of the club of which he is a member. The club having the largest percentage of church attendance will be declared the winner and receive suitable recognition from the District Governor.

The luncheon and meeting Wednesday noon at the Hotel Sheridan will mark the last day of the international contest and the beginning of the Hartford-Manchester attendance contest. Members are urged to help the club average by being present Wednesday. Wilbur Messier will furnish the attendance prize and it may be an auto top.

HIPPOLITO VILLA NOT EXECUTED AS REPORTED.

New York, May 3.—Hippolito Villa, brother of Pancho Villa, has not been executed in Durango as erroneously reported in Mexico City dispatches, according to the latest advices received by the Mexican Embassy in Washington and the Mexican consulate here today.

Hippolito, these advices say, was captured by Mexican troops and taken to Durango last Friday where he will have to stand trial as a bandit.

A MAN'S NEVER TOO OLD TO CAST ANGLER'S LINE

Among the local men who have taken out fishing licenses is Charles Gustafson, 53 Chestnut street. Charlie is an enthusiastic fisherman despite the fact that he is 80 years of age. And rest assured he has the heart to play in the gamiest fish in this part of the country and he weighs 204 pounds.

METHODISTS NAME PASTOR'S ASSISTANT

Miss Mabel M. Pollard Comes Here This Week from Brockton Church.

The South Methodist Episcopal church has secured the assistance of Miss Mabel M. Pollard as Director of Religious Education and General Church Work. Miss Pollard has been the pastor's assistant at Central Methodist Episcopal church at Brockton, Mass., and has done an outstanding piece of work there in every department of the church. She comes recommended most highly by all who know of her work.

Miss Mabel M. Pollard

Young People's Worker

For four years she has been superintendent of the Central Girls' League of the Methewson St. Methodist church, Providence, R. I. For the last four years she has been Director of Religious Education and pastor's assistant at the Central church, Brockton, Mass. All who know her and the character of her work are ready for the highest terms which have been done for the young people especially.

In her letter to the pastor she says: "I come to South Manchester with the earnest desire to give myself wholeheartedly to the work among the young people and to be an influence for good. I count it a privilege to serve the Christ and I shall serve to the best of my ability among your people." Miss Pollard enters upon her work about Friday, May 7 and will be present at the Sunday school and church next Sunday.

Fitted For Work

It is fortunate that the church has been able to secure the services of such a competent woman thoroughly trained for her work. She has held special study classes for young folks and training classes for teachers during the summer months and conducted vacation school during the weeks of summer. Being also a local preacher she is also ready for any speaking work that necessity may thrust upon her or the open door of opportunity makes possible. She is absolutely consecrated to her work and fitted for it by character and training.

MISS MELLON TO WED SON OF A DEMOCRAT

Secretary's Daughter Engaged to D. K. E. Bruce, Whose Father Is Senator.

Washington, May 3.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today formally announced the engagement of his daughter, Alisa Mellon, to David K. E. Bruce, son of Senator Bruce, (D. Md.) Miss Mellon is 23 and Bruce 28.

Miss Mellon is one of the richest of American heiresses. With her brother, Paul, she will inherit the vast wealth of her father, who has been estimated as the second or third richest man in the United States.

Bruce is now attending the State Department's school for foreign service here, in expectation of taking a diplomatic post abroad some time this year.

P. O. BUILDING DECISION IS UP TO SEC. MELLON

Deal on Bill Gives Congress Veto Power But Secretary Must Pick Towns to Get New Buildings.

Washington, May 3.—Violently approaching primary campaigns, administration leaders today began whipping Congress into a mad spurt through the "stretch" run of a jammed legislative calendar in the hope of adjourning June 1.

Holding out threats of night sessions or an abandoned program Republican leaders centered their immediate efforts of enacting the $165,000,000 public buildings bill in the Senate before midnight. They sought to avert a threatened Democratic filibuster by compromising all differences, which were given chiefly around the powers given Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to select cities which a $100,000,000 fund will be expended.

Bank Acts Next

With this measure out of the McFadden National Bank act with the Senate will consider the eight other bills, including the Watson-Parker railroad mediation measure and farm relief legislation, in the House.

ILLINOIS LAW HEAD RUNS DEATH PROBE

Atty-General Takes Charge of Jury Quiz—Citizens In- sist on Demands.

Chicago, May 3.—Attorney-General Oscar Carlstrom of Illinois, having assumed supervision of the special grand jury investigation into gang warfare in Cook county, today began making his plans for a probe to the roots of the situation which in two and a half years has caused ninety-three murders in the war over illicit beer, whiskey and alcohol.

It was announced that Coroner Oscar Wolf, who is conducting an investigation into the shooting to death of Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggin and two companions last week, specifically, will be among the first witnesses called before the special grand jury.

To Ask For Evidence

He, with Harry Eugene Kelly, president of the Union League club, will be asked for evidence to support a charge credited to them jointly, that an alliance between gangsters, politicians and officials is responsible for the breakdown in law enforcement.

Kelly, supported by other business and civic leaders, has demanded a special grand jury and a special prosecutor to conduct the inquiry, and despite the fact that the attorney-general has taken over the direction of the grand jury probe, will continue to ask for a special inquiry, it was said this morning.

Crowe's Request

Carlstrom said he was assuming direction of the probe at the request of State's Attorney Crowe. Crowe said he asked the attorney-general to take charge because he is the chief law enforcing officer of the state.

ARCHIE HAYES BUYS RICHARDSON COAL CO.

Business of Over $10,000 Changes Hands—Hayes to Keep Up Livery.

Archie H. Hayes, now Manchester's only livery stable proprietor, today purchased the coal business conducted for the past several years by Wilson Richardson on Center street. The deal, which involves more than $10,000, was consummated this noon through James Foley.

Mr. Hayes will continue to run his livery stable as well as the coal business. He does considerable business in hay, grain and feed and has quite a large number of customers among the farmers who live in the outlying sections of Manchester.

It is understood that Mr. Richardson, who has been doing trucking as well as selling coal, will go into the trucking business on a large scale. It is also understood that he has purchased a $10,000 drogue which he will use in reclamation projects in this section.

He has a large fleet of heavy trucks which can be used for carrying sand for construction purposes and filling.

ENGLAND "SETS" FOR SHOCK OF GENERAL STRIKE TONIGHT

"England First!" Cries Alfred Noyes in Strike Poem That Raps Aliens

LONDON, May 3.—Alfred Noyes, eminent British poet and at one time professor of literature at Princeton University, published a strike poem today entitled "England First."

The poem concludes as follows:
Self at blind war with self, today she stands;
As her Shakespeare, his heart on fire,
Foretold her; while those eager alien hands
In the outer dark prepare her funeral pyre.
In such a war, the very victors lose!
Each for defeat; or all for England—choose!
The phrase "Those eager alien hands" was said to be a direct reference to plotters from Soviet Russia.

SARGENT IS GUILTY, FINED OVER $100

Barely Escapes Jail Sen- tence—Trial Result of Accident in Talcottville.

Joseph H. Sargent, of 186 Center street, was fined $75 and costs amounting to $100.27 today in the Rockville Police Court after he was found guilty of evading responsibility, by Judge John E. Fisk. He automatically had his automobile license suspended for a year.

The hearing, which had been postponed several times pending the recovery of the victim, was the result of an accident in Talcottville several weeks ago.

History of Crash

Sargent was operating a Ford sedan and was driving towards Rockville. He was alone. At a point near Talcottville Sargent's general store, he claims he was blinded by the headlights of an approaching automobile. As he turned out to pass the approaching machine, his car struck Mrs. John Monaghan and Florence Greene, who were walking near the tracks. The force of the impact caused Sargent's car to cross to the other side of the road. The local young man became excited, however, and failed to stop instead he sped towards Rockville. He was later apprehended by Mr. Monaghan who pursued him in a car driven by Mr. Kibbe, of Ellington.

Taken to Hospital

Mrs. Monaghan was taken to the hospital where it was found necessary to confine her for several weeks. She sustained a severe laceration on one of her arms which required thirty stitches to close. Meanwhile Sargent's case was repeatedly postponed to await the sufficient recovery of Mrs. Monaghan to testify.

Escapes Jail

In the Rockville court this morning, Sargent, who is employed by Watkins Brothers, was represented by Attorney William S. Hyde. Those who testified for the State were Mr. and Mrs. Monaghan, Miss Greene and Mr. Kibbe. They related the facts connected with the case. Although Lawyer Hyde put up a good argument, he was unable to upset the evidence which the State had gathered. He did, however, save Sargent from a possible jail sentence inasmuch as during his pronouncing of the penalty, Judge Fisk said he was unable to serve of a jail sentence but that owing to the good reputation of the Manchester youth he would not impose it.

TAXI RESCUE MACHINE IN A BOSTON FIRE

Saves Family in Apartment House Blaze that Cost Lives of Three Persons.

Boston, May 3.—A rigid investigation was being conducted today into a fire which swept the five-story apartment building at No. 571 Columbus avenue, resulting in the death of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Addario and their five-year-old son, Joseph. Jacqueline Devine and Bertha Cashman, vaudeville performers, were injured in trying to escape.

As apartment dwellers were fleeing George E. Byars drove his taxi onto the sidewalk and with Robert Cook, another taxi driver, rescued Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lee and their two babies by standing on the roof of the cab and reaching to the second floor window.

FEEDING PLANS ON HUGE SCALE BY BOTH SIDES

Hyde Park Becomes Vast Ration Dump—Unions Organize Their Own Com- missary Arrangements.

Mobilization Centre, Hyde Park, London, May 3.—Great Britain is prepared to feed her citizenry, general strike or not.

Here, where the government has concentrated its motor-transportation and where the general distribution campaign is being planned, there is great confidence in the ability of the government to maintain an unending stream of food from the country districts into the great centers of population.

Huge Ration Dump

Hyde Park, the haven of London's unemployed and the one spot in London where the public has been given every privilege, running the "Amut" from free speech to actually walking on the grass, is today closed to the public. Long lines of motors, ranging from the great lumbering steam wagons that served so valiantly in the World War, to the tiny private motors known as "bugs," are marshalled here ready to begin tomorrow the distribution of food.

Offices have been created for the division and rationing of food supplies and it is anticipated that many cargoes of food will be di- rected enroute, while other food cargoes will be brought to Hyde Park for the creation of a central store which can be drawn on when- ever a shortage arises in any given what is in effect a clearing house here.

There need be no food short- age, if the public exercises sound judgment and there is unselfish purchasing of food supplies," said an official statement issued today. Soldiers, constables and volun- teers are concentrated here to do the necessary work of food distri- bution. Hundreds of volunteers appeared at the gates of Hyde Park today to offer their services. and many motor car owners drove up ready to give their cars for service.

Troop Activities

The work of protection of property is being directed from the war office. Troops have been barred in the coal fields and others are being held in readiness for dispatch to areas where trouble may develop. All aeroplanes have been concentrated in the aviation fields around London. Large bombing planes will be used for the transportation of mails and food if necessary. Small single-seated fighting planes have been ordered to patrol the railroads.

At the Trades Union Congress headquarters plans are being made for food supplies. The labor lead- ers maintain that they are going to put a transport system of their own into operation. They have also appealed to the owners of private cars to volunteer as drivers and dispatch runners to keep open labor's lines of communication. Recruiting offices are being opened throughout Britain today and the government is enrolling volun- teers.

Not since the days of August, 1914, has there been as complete mobilization of Great Britain's manpower as is under way today.

THOMPSON, FORBES' ASSOCIATE, DIES

Millionaire Convicted of Hospi- tal Contract Frauds, Dodges the Penitentiary.

St. Louis, May 3.—John W. Thompson, St. Louis millionaire railroad contractor, convicted with Col. Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, in connection with hospital contracts for the bureau, died at his home here today.

While he had been ill for several weeks at St. Luke's hospital, he was to his home a few days ago apparently in an improved condition. A sudden attack of the heart this morning brought death.

With Forbes he was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with veteran hospital contracts and sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary. Col. Forbes recently entered the federal prison to begin serving his sentence.

Shortly after his conviction, Thompson underwent a series of operations.

CALLS OUT VOLUNTEERS TO CARRY ON SERVICES

Walkout of All Trades Believed Inevitable as Attempts to Re-open Negotiations Fail—Government Refuses to Treat With Labor Congress Unless Strike Is First Called Off; Stock Market Paralyzed — Newspaper Plants Tied Up by Premature Strikes—Premier Sees Country Nearer to Civil War Than for Centuries.

LONDON, May 3.—British industry and transportation will cease functioning abruptly at midnight tonight in obedience to the order for a general strike issued by the Trade Union Congress.

The last possibility of a settlement vanished at 3:30 this morning when negotiations definitely broke down.

Troops are already marching into the trouble areas, particularly the coal regions where most trouble is feared.

Thousands, comprising Britain's emergency army, were awaiting the signal today to take over the labor of supplying the nation its food and fuel, to keep the trains running, and generally to keep the nation's industrial life from complete paralysis.

Premier Baldwin, who last night terminated negotiations with start- ling suddenness, today faced bit- ter debate in Commons where lead- ers of the Labor party announced their intention to obtain a full account for his handling of the sit- uation.

Government Statement

The government this morning issued an official statement reading:

"The country must be prepared for a general strike in many industries and public services tonight. The government has taken all steps to maintain the supply of food, fuel, light and power for the protection of those engaged in these services and for the preservation of law and order.

"Recruiting stations for volunteers will be opened. Loyal citizens should hold themselves in readiness to assist the government."

Negotiations broke down at 3:30 this morning when the government issued an ultimatum that it would not continue discussions until the Trade Union Congress withdrew its general strike order.

The Congress executives in a letter to Premier Baldwin shortly before the breakdown, declared they were astonished at the government's abrupt termination of negotiations.

Last night printers employed in the plant of the Daily Mail, walk- ed out in protest against the pro- jected publication of an editorial viciously attacking the Trades Union Congress.

Stock Market Dazed

The first drastic effect of the general strike order was felt in the Stock Market.

Financial circles were at a loss to know which way to turn and there was virtually no trading. Excited silk-hatted brokers thronged the curbs of Threadneedle and Leadenhall streets, discussing the situation, and there were some suggestions that the exchange should be closed during the period of emergency.

Scotland Yard ordered all re- served policemen to duty.

The War Office issued orders for further movements of troops.

King George and Queen Mary left the quiet of Windsor castle and returned to Buckingham Palace to be at the centre of activities.

The Evening News suspended publication. Directors of the newspaper ordered that it reprint the Daily Mail editorial, "for king and country," which caused a strike of Daily Mail workers last night and caused suspension of that newspaper. The Evening News employees when ordered to prepare the editorial for publication in that organ, walked out and the newspaper was unable to get out its afternoon editions.

Newspapers "Struck"

The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, failed to appear on the streets with its noon edition, while the publishers and printers negotiated concerning an editorial which the editors desired to carry. The printers were disinclined to allow the editorial to be published, maintaining that it was an anti-Labor article.

"The government is fully prepared to carry on essential services after tonight," said J. C. Davidson, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, in a statement to the press this afternoon on behalf of the government.

"Reports throughout the country indicate that the people are calm and there has been no panic.

"Food stocks are normal.

"I wish to deny reports that the government broke off negotiations for the settlement of the strike abruptly. Premier Baldwin's patience was sorely tried by the miners' attitude and the stoppage of the Daily Mail was the last straw."

"War Declared"

J. H. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, commenting on the strike, said: "War is declared."

Baldwin will explain the government's position in the House of Commons tonight. He will be followed by former Premier Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader, and Lloyd George.

The Bishop of London has appealed to the nation to remain calm and "be as self-controlled as you were at the outbreak of war."

The third day of the coal strike finds the English, Scottish and Welsh mines completely idle with the strikers orderly.

Describing the situation in Wales, the Daily Express said that the miners were restless, "their Celtic nature providing human tinder that may burst into flame at any moment."

Cook Active.

"This is labor's greatest effort and the whole Trade Union movement will prove to the government the solidarity of labor," said A. J. Cook, leader of the Miners' Federation today.

Cook, who is blamed by many opponents of labor for the present situation, is no longer in control of the situation, which has passed under control of the Trades Union Congress. The fiery little red-headed Welshman, known as "Emperor" Cook, is, however, one of the most enthusiastic leaders in the strike movement.

MacDonald Peace-maker

J. Ramsay MacDonald, former premier and leader of the Labor Party, assumed the role of peace-maker today and conferred separately with the members of the Trades Union Congress and the Miners' Federation in an effort to find if there is any possible basis for resumption of negotiations and the aversion of the general strike.

He stated at 3 o'clock that there had been no intimation of intent by the mine owners to resume negotiations.

Trades Union Congress leaders were today frankly worried over the independent unauthorized strikes which have already developed in the newspaper offices, fearing that this may indicate that the situation is getting out of hand.

May Arrest Reds

Rumors were circulated that the government is planning to arrest a number of outstanding communists on account of inflammatory speeches they made during the week-end.

Not since the declaration of war against Germany has there been such a tense atmosphere in the House of Commons as prevailed this afternoon when the members began to assemble.

Labor members from the Clyde-sides entered wearing red rosettes. There were great gaps in the labor benches, many labor M. P.'s being tied up at conferences of the Trades Union Congress.

Common: Backs King

P. O. BUILDING UP TO SECRETARY MELLON

meantime for early action on the French debt settlement, the proposal to lease Muscle Shoals to the Associated Power Companies and the Copeland Coal control bill, giving the president authority to seize the mines in a national emergency.
The public buildings bill will be the first of its kind enacted since before the war.
Its provisions include authorization of a $100,000,000 fund for the erection of buildings "wherever emergencies exist," authorization of $50,000,000 more to erect new government buildings in the District of Columbia and a further appropriation of $15,000,000 to complete a long list of federal buildings, authorized in 1913, but never erected because the cost of construction exceeded the appropriations.
Because of Democratic opposition, administration leaders were willing to accept a compromise providing that Congress will have the power to "veto" any projects under the Secretary Mellon under the $100,000,000 provision. In any event, while Mellon can select the projects, the bill provides that Congress again must pass upon them before contracts can be awarded.
Early Start
Under the $15,000,000 list however, work will be started as soon as the funds are made available. The new buildings, thus assured of erection and the additional appropriations authorized, include one Bradford, Conn., $15,000 and one at Putnam, $50,000.
Any project not in that list must be constructed out of the $100,000,000 and the approval of both Postmaster General New and Secretary Mellon must be obtained. If Mellon does not give his approval the project will not be built, and it was this provision of the bill which aroused the Democratic opposition.

PRITCHARD "KING" OF BARDSEY ISLAND, DIES

London, May 3.—Love Pritchard whose rule as "king" was supreme over the tiny island of Bardsey, off the coast of North Wales, until a bad season last year forced all of his "subjects" to seek new homes on the mainland, has died in exile at Aberdeen whither he retired when the exodus of all his people dictated his own abdication. He was 84 years old and long was famous as an original character of very kindly instincts.

STARTS FAD FOR MASK PORTRAITS IN RUBBER.

London, May 3.—Miss Ella E. Johnston, an American artist, has started a new fashion for portrait masks in rubber, and London society women are inundating her with requests for sittings in the fashionable little studio she has set up in her Savoy suite. She first makes a clay cast of the features of her sitters and pours this cast the molten rubber is put into.

DIDN'T GO HUNTING, BUT HE BAGS A FOX!

Manchester Man Does His Big Game Shooting from Seat of Fivver.

Jim Gilligan of Middle Turnpike East didn't go hunting last night, but when he returned from an auto trip he had with him a good sized silver fox.
Jim was pushing his machine over the New London turnpike in the Ten Curlew section when he saw two animals start in front of his car. He thought they were police dogs. He struck one of them and the jolt sent his machine up the bank at the roadside.
When Jim got out he discovered he had hit a fox and that it wasn't yet numbered among the dead. It was showing its teeth in a way that Gilligan didn't like. At a nearby farmhouse Jim secured a sack, and he brought the animal home. Gilligan put an end to the suffering of the fox, and today gave it to Ronald Hillman of Highland Park to be mounted.

ENGLAND ALL SET FOR SHOCK OF STRIKE

action in proclaiming a state of emergency in the face of a general strike.
Premier Baldwin presented the King's proclamation to the House of Commons and moved that parliament reply to the King, formally approving the proclamation. Gilligan put an end to the suffering of the fox, and today gave it to Ronald Hillman of Highland Park to be mounted.
The premier then moved the adjournment of the House and it was turned into a statement bearing in the strike situation.
Government Newspaper
The London Gazette, a weekly journal usually devoted to the recording of official announcements, was to be turned into a daily newspaper during the period of the general strike, it was learned today.
The government will also broadcast news several times daily.
The Trades Union Congress tonight informed Premier Baldwin that they are willing to re-open negotiations for the settlement of the coal dispute, but did not, however, indicate that they are willing to accept the conditions laid down by the government for the re-opening of negotiations.
Earlier today Premier Baldwin had stated that there would be no resumption of negotiations on the part of the government unless the Trades Union Congress called for the general strike and accepted responsibility for the independent strikes which have already gone into effect in a number of newspaper plants. When this statement was made the Trades Union Congress rejected the conditions.
Effects No Change
In their announcement tonight they failed to indicate any change in attitude towards the government conditions, and the general opinion is that despite this last minute effort at peace that the deadlock will not be broken.
While the Trades Union offer of resumption of negotiations was being dispatched, Premier Baldwin was stating the government position in the House of Commons.
"It was impossible for the government to continue negotiations when it learned on Sunday night of overt acts affecting the freedom of the press," said the premier.
"The position was that the government found itself challenged with an alternative government."
"All settlements of coal disputes effected by previous governments have contained the germs of future troubles."
"The miners and the owners are very human, but they are stubborn hodies moving in a horribly vicious circle."
There was a dramatic movement at this juncture of the premier's speech, when he turned to the opposition benches and looked at S. Saklatvala, the parse communist M. P., who sat smiling at the premier.
Dream of Years
"I can understand Mr. Saklatvala smiling, because this is what he has dreamed of for years—the premier, injecting for the first time into his speech any intimation that the present situation is a class struggle."
"It is not wages that are in peril, but it is the freedom of our constitution," the premier declared.
Near Civil War, Says Premier
"If the worst comes, whatever the result the same economic facts will be aggravated," the premier continued. "It is only a blind idiot who would think otherwise."
"I have worked for two years to the utmost of my ability in one direction."
"So far I have failed. Everything I have cared for is smashed to bits. Only faith and courage remain."
"I don't think that all the leaders when they assented to a general strike realized that they were threatening ordered government."
"We are going nearer to civil war than we have been for centuries."
Not Revolt, Asserts Thomas
"This is not revolution but a plain economic dispute in which only justice is wanted," declared J. H. Thomas, former colonial secretary in the MacDonald Labor cabinet, replying to the premier.
"If a ballot were taken I don't believe that two per cent of the people would vote for revolution."
Troops for Coal Fields

LOCAL DRUGGISTS ORDER NEW BEER "TWICE"

Local druggists, seeing the trend of things, have been ordering the beer called "tonic" that the brewers have been a lower to make under a special order from the Revenue Department. The trouble is, is that there local druggists say, is that there has been such a rush all over the country, that it may be weeks before the "tonic" reaches Manchester.
"A druggist gets a case," said a local man yesterday. "He takes it home and tastes it. Immediately he returns and orders a case. That has been the rule so that the company which has headquarters in Chicago, is always behind in filling its orders."
equipment and were immediately ordered into the Lancashire and Welsh coal fields.

BILLION A DAY

Loss to Britain Through Strike a Staggering Prospect.
London, May 3.—The general strike which goes into effect at midnight, will cost Great Britain at least $1,000,000,000 a day, according to conservative estimates.
The effect that such a strike will have on Britain cannot be estimated, but fears are openly expressed that it may plunge the national industry back into the depression from which it has just begun to emerge after six years of struggle.
Estimation of the cost of the strike is most difficult, but a basis may be secured through consideration of the loss in wages of strikers. There will be approximately 1,000,000 coal miners on strike, whose wages average $3.00 a day, making their daily loss in wages $3,000,000. There will be approximately 4,000,000 other workers on strike at an average daily wage of $2.50 a day, making their daily loss in wages $10,000,000. At least another $2,000,000 in daily wages will be lost by workers, who though not on strike are unable to work due to the tie-up caused by the strike. Fifteen million dollars a day in lost wages seems a conservative estimate.

YANKEE HANDS OFF

American Labor Will Ignore the British Strike.
New York, May 3.—American labor will have no active participation in the British industrial crisis, John J. Coughlin, secretary of the Central Trades & Labor Council, said today.
"We will not refuse to hand good or raw materials to be shipped to the British Isles," said Coughlin, representative of 70,000 workers in this city.
Coughlin predicted that if the British tie-up continued for a week, more than 60,000 workmen here would be affected.
Secretary Coughlin spoke in the absence of Joseph A. Ryan, president of the council, who was summoned to Washington to confer with the State Department on the British strike.
"We have always held aloof from European labor troubles," he said. "The labor secretary believed that 40,000 longshoremen, 15,000 stevedores, 3,000 pilots and other marine workers and 3,000 repairmen and checkers might be thrown out of work if the overseas crisis were not averted."

SCORES MINE OWNERS

English Clergymen at New Haven Backs Strikers.
New Haven, May 3.—"The English nation is in full sympathy with the striking miner, and patriotic motives cannot be appealed to until the mines are nationalized," according to Rev. Paul B. Bull, of Yorkshire, England, in a statement published here today by Yale News. Rev. Dr. Bull came here to deliver a series of addresses.
Dr. Bull declares that the miners are the worst paid body in Great Britain and risk their lives daily to earn a small stipend under conditions that are not fit for human beings. The coal owners, he said, have been condemned as an incompetent body of men.
Tourists Unafraid
No Cancellations But Most Will Avoid England.
New York, May 3.—In answer to hundreds of anxious inquiries, passenger agents of the leading British shipping firms here told tourists that prospects were for an uninterrupted trans-oceanic service. The Cunard and International merchant marine offices said that the prospective British general strike had not resulted in passage cancellations.
It was expected that if the overseas general strike materialized, the majority of American tourists would disembark at French ports and remain on the continent until British situation was again normal.

BRITISH IN DARK ON STRIKE SITUATION

No Newspapers and Only Few People in England Have Radio Outfits.

London, May 3.—London is in the dark as to the strike situation. No evening newspaper was able to publish Premier Baldwin's state ment on the strike situation in the House of Commons tonight.
There is little promise of morning newspapers being published tomorrow and the United States newspaper readers are far better informed concerning events in Great Britain than are the British themselves.
The British broadcasting company is expected to broadcast a brief summary of the day's events for the benefit of the small minority of citizens who have wireless sets.

J. T. KING'S CASE IS PUT OFF AGAIN

Attorney Not Ready to Argue His Own Motion to Quash Perjury Indictment.

New York, May 3.—The motion by William J. Leahy, attorney for John T. King, former national Republican committeeman, from Connecticut, for an argument seeking to quash the indictment against the politician, charging perjury, was called in federal court today. On Leahy's request, however, the case was put over for another week.
King is alleged to have sworn falsely to his income tax in 1921. A second indictment, charging evasion under the revenue act, has been handed down to supplement the original one.
Twenty four thousand pine trees were set out during the week. The boys worked every day but one and doubtless would have planted four or five thousand more trees if it had not rained on that particular day. All together the expedition was an entire success. It was the first work of its kind to be done by the scouts. Now that the results are satisfactory the State Forester will probably enlist the services of other troops to do this work next spring.
Under the instruction of Assistant Scout Executive Machol and a registered Forester, the boys were taught some of the art of Forestry. All of the Manchester scouts qualified for the merit badge in Forestry and will appear at the next Court of Honor on May 12.

PILSUDSKI MAY BE DICTATOR OF POLAND

London, May 3.—Possibility of a dictatorship for Poland under General Pilsudski, the Polish hero, was being discussed in diplomatic circles here today.
Inability of any cabinet to muster enough power to remain in office for an appreciable length of time has given rise to what is described as "a real need for a dictator."
The Polish cabinet resigned last week. Efforts to set up a new government have been unavailing.

SPANISH AVIATOR AT MACAO, CHINA.

London, May 3.—Captain Gallarza, one of the two Spanish aviators now en route to Tokio from Madrid, arrived today at Macao, China, according to Macao advices. Gallarza, who was flying from Hanoi, France, to Indo-China, damaged the wing of his plane slightly in landing.
Captain Loriga, his companion flier, was reported on his way from Hanoi.

TEXTILE MILL OWNER KILLED IN A CRASH

New Bedford, Mass., May 3.—John Neild, 55, owner of the Neild textile mill and general manager of a Bristol mill, was killed and two other men were slightly injured today when their automobile crashed through a fence and into a tree.
The two injured were Rowland N. Mackay and Henry L. Mackie, both of New Bedford.

JUDGE ENGLISH PLEADS NOT GUILTY OF CHARGES

Washington, May 3.—Facing his accusers for the first time since the House impeached him, federal Judge George W. English, of the Eastern district of Illinois, this afternoon pleaded not guilty when arraigned before the Senate's high court of impeachment on charges of high crimes and misdemeanors.

Senator?

Mrs. Rose S. Barrett of Portland, Ore., has entered the race for Republican nomination to the U. S. Senate in that state. She was formerly city manager of Warrenton, Ore., and is one of the foremost Republican women on the west coast.

Yesterday was the big day of the week's tour of duty for the twenty-four picked scouts who planted trees for the State Forester on Mohawk Mountain, a state reservation. After a wonderful chicken dinner the scouts broke camp and started on the homeward trip. Five of the Manchester scouts, namely: Russell Remington, Francis Burr, Reuthven Bidwell, Eric Modean and Carl Hallegren with all the luggage returned in the automobiles of Mr. William Remig and Scout Commissioner Irvine, arriving in Manchester at nine o'clock.
The other scouts, namely: Raymond Mercer, Franklin Smith, Willam Johnson, Herbert Brandt and Elliott Knight arrived in Manchester at ten-thirty o'clock. They were compelled to ride on the scout truck on account of the shortage of automobiles. The other passengers on the truck were several Hartford scouts and Executive P. C. Hill. On the way home they had an opportunity to do their daily good turn as well as use their knowledge of scouting. On the Nepeaug Reservoir the lightning had struck a tall pine tree setting it afire and starting quite a conflagration in the forest. When the scouts discovered this they immediately started to work putting out the fire. This was a matter of three quarters of an hour of hard work, but it was all very good experience and in line with the scout program, helping the State Forester again, this time by putting out a fire.

RAISES DOLLAR SHIP OFFER BY $100,000

Washington, May 3.—A new proposal to buy the five Admiral-Orleans mail ships from the shipping board at a figure more than $100,000 higher than the recent bid of R. Stanley Dollar, which the board accepted, was made today by W. B. Keen, representing Pacific-Northwest interests.
This offer was disclosed by Senator Jones (Rep. Wash.), chairman of the Senate commerce committee, when the committee opened hearings on the recent unsummarized sale of the Admiral ships to Dollar for $4,500,000.

SOLICITORS GET FUNDS WITH FICTITIOUS NAMES

Often Use Title of Some Patriotic Organization to Extract Money from Sympathetic Givers — Two Pose Here as Legion Men.

This is the ninth in a series of articles prepared for The Herald by the Chamber of Commerce.

What governs your giving, sentiment or judgment?

You expect to receive something tangible in return for any money which you pay over the counter of a local tradesman. You expect to receive something for your money, in fact you expect and usually do receive full value for your money in merchandise.

When salesmen unknown to you, and selling merchandise of unknown value call at your door, do you apply the same rule? If you did, there would be less house to house solicitors. This applies particularly to solicitations by individuals purporting to represent charitable, benevolent, philanthropic or welfare organizations.

Play on Sympathy

Some of the most dangerous solicitors are those which use the name of some well-known public service or patriotic organization. The post office department, the railroads, the express companies, and labor organizations are continually issuing warnings to the public in regard to imposters operating in their name. It is the easiest thing in the world for an unscrupulous individual to present himself as representing some organization with a misleading name which suggests the American Legion or other patriotic organizations some well-known charitable organizations, the postal clerks, or the "knights" of labor, trusting to the general public sympathy and loyalty and indisposed to investigate.

At the present time the local Post of the American Legion is trying to stop the operations of men representing themselves to be disabled World War veterans, who are collecting money by means of small flags and printed cards. This is nothing but organized beggary. American Legion and are discouraged and forbidden by the American Legion to pursue any such practice, as the Legion has funds and organization to take care of their needy members. These men are collecting money for their own benefit, and the public who give to them are warned that they are giving to shiftless imposters who prefer begging to working. Business men are warned against advertising in a disabled veterans' journal, or in any publication issued by railroad trainmen or other railroad organizations, as this is simply a means adopted by individuals to pick up an easy living, for no magazine is ever printed. A few months ago nearly every building contractor in Manchester gave money to two men who represented themselves as soliciting for a magazine in the interest of disabled World War veterans. They collected about $400 and that was the last ever seen of them.

One-Legged Crook
Recently, in a nearby city, a one-legged, husky, well-dressed individual blew into a large office distributing cards with a printed verse on each. After leaving the card on each desk he would then come back and pick it up, in most cases getting a sum of money from ten to fifty cents. He was detected before he left the building and questioned. Investigation showed that this man had never been in the service, that he lost his leg in a drunken automobile accident, and when searched by the police, he had nearly a thousand dollars in cash in his possession. This man was commercializing an infirmity brought on by his own vicious habits. In this particular case, the graffer had accepted from one of the clerks in the office, a contribution of fifty cents. The clerk in question who gave him the half dollar had two wooden legs and was working eight hours a day at a typewriter supporting his mother.

Men representing themselves as members of broad organizations for years, reftauded the business men of the country by collecting money for fictitious organizations, using as a club, the argument that those who advertised or contributed to the fund would receive better treatment from the freight handlers and that their merchandise would be handled more promptly and with less damage. This is nothing less than blackmail and organized labor has denounced it and warned the public against the operators.

There seems to be a general feeling among business men that it is bad form to ask a solicitor for references or to question his honesty. This well-known fact is used by unscrupulous solicitors as their principal stock-in-trade. Everyone should insist upon knowing what they are giving to and should not be content with the mere statement of the one who is asking for money. The easiest way to learn whether they are honest or not is to refer them to the Chamber of Commerce, where their credentials can be investigated and if they are genuine, a letter will be given them to that effect.

Tradesmen Warned
Tradesmen are especially warned against representatives of any organization who come to them for advertising or prices or who convey the impression that those who give money or merchandise will receive the patronage of the members of the organization. This is only an indirect boycott and is illegal, and it is a well-known fact that the members of an organization of this kind do not know or care who advertises in their program or who gives the prizes and any merchant who is "held up" by this argument is being imposed upon.

Anyone has a perfect right to do as he likes with his own money. The Chamber of Commerce is not questioning any individual rights, but it does question the wisdom of encouraging dishonesty and organized theft on the part of individuals who misrepresent themselves and their mission.

There are numberless worthy causes. Why not pick some worthy cause and refuse those that are unknown to you? Why be "held up"? Why be a sucker? The Chamber of Commerce is glad to investigate anyone that is sent to them. But remember this: that the dishonest solicitor will never voluntarily apply to the Chamber of Commerce.

POLICE COURT
Tony Pantaleo paid a fine of $10 and costs for opening a window. He was arrested by Sergeant William Barron Saturday evening. According to the officer Pantaleo speeded his car on Main street from School to Bisell street at a rate of about forty miles an hour, passing a number of other cars.
Julian Wileszeski pleaded guilty to speeding his car and paid a fine of $10 and costs. He was arrested by Officer Frank Quish on Oakland street Sunday night. The officer trailed the man for some distance as he noticed him driving at an excessive rate of speed.

NEW PARKING RULE OBEYED BY MAJORITY
Although no arrests were made as the result of the new Main street parking regulation which went into effect Saturday night, there were few opportunities as the majority of the motorists obeyed the new law. The few who did leave their automobiles parked on the East Side of Main street longer than an hour between six and nine o'clock were cautioned by the policemen and will doubtless be more careful tomorrow night.

With one night already spent in warning the motorists and the large red signs on every electric light pole, the automobile owners will have only themselves to blame if they neglect to obey the new ordinance effective on Tuesday and Saturday nights. One result of the new parking rule noticed Saturday night was the increased number of cars parked on the west side of Main street and on the side streets.
The Board of Selectmen, who recently passed this new parking regulation, believe that it will do away with shopping hour congestion.

FORMER KAISER HAS ANOTHER MOVING IDEA.
Madrid, May 3.—The former Kaiser is planning to move to Palma, Balaeric islands, according to El Sol.

This newspaper states that one of the ex-Kaiser's sons is now at Palma arranging for a residence for his father.

ABOUT TOWN

Edward Hess, Main street business man, reports that it was not a washing machine leak which caused the flow of water from his store last week, but a broken radiator on the second floor.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Connell and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheridan have returned to Manchester from Florida where they have been during the winter months. Byron Darling has returned to Manchester from St. Petersburg, Fla., where he spent the winter. Mr. Darling went south for his health, and he feels greatly improved.

A large crowd attended the Salvation Army services yesterday when the meetings were conducted by Colonel Joseph Atkinson of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Captain and Mrs. Harry Turkington, of Tampa, Florida, who were visiting relatives here in town.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Fifth District Parent-Teachers' Association will be held in the Keeney street schoolhouse this evening at eight o'clock. Refreshments will follow the business. All members are urged to be present.

Today, the first real summer day sees great activity among the local ice dealers. Ice trucks are seen today for the first time this year, in most of the streets in town, making deliveries.

The May meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Buckland will be held tonight in the school hall at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time. The election of officers will take place.

Manchester Lodge of Masons will have a double session tomorrow evening. The first session will start at 8:15 when the entered apprentice degree will be conferred. At 7:30 the regular session will take place and at this time the Master Mason degree will be conferred.

Captain and Mrs. F. H. Turkington and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Newell of Baltimore, who have been visiting relatives in Manchester during the past week, returned to their homes today. They attended the welcome to General Randall Boob of the Salvation Army in New York last Sunday.

Chauncey B. Ellsworth of Marble street has sold a tract of land to Thomas F. Sullivan of Main street. The plot is situated between McCabe street and Stockhouse road, near the Valvoline Oil station, and contains several sheds but no dwelling house.

FINDS MISSING PURSE AFTER SEARCHING YEAR

Loren A. Keeney, of 210 Keeney street, a farmhand employed on the Stenberg farm on Keeney street, is $26 richer today.

Over a year ago Keeney lost a pocketbook containing twenty six dollars in bills and some change. All efforts to find the missing purse proved fruitless until—

Saturday while he was ploughing. As the plough opened up furrow after furrow, he suddenly noticed a small moulder, weather-beaten article lying under a piece of sod which had just been overturned.

Picking it up, Keeney discovered it was his missing pocketbook. The money was intact except for small holes which had been made by insects. The money will be exchanged at the bank for new.

Miss Eleanor Hansen of Vernon, and well-known in Manchester will broadcast through the radio from station WVIC in Hartford this evening. Included in her selections will be: "Romeo and Juliet" by Gounod and "Long, Long Ago" by Bayley.

C. Ely Rogers, who is employed by Cheney Brothers, has bought the Albert S. Chapin place on Spring street. Mr. Chapin is father-in-law of Mr. Rogers.

SURPRISE PARTY
A surprise party was given Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Shorts of South Main street on Saturday evening by a number of their friends brought together by Mrs. W. Humphries of Florence street. Music was provided by Samuel Anderson, local violinist. He was accompanied by Miss Francis Hansen on the piano. Frank McKeechie entertained the company with some Scotch ballads. Dancing and games were also enjoyed. Joseph Hadden on behalf of the guests presented Mr. and Mrs. Shorts with a beautiful bridge lamp.

OSCAR STRAUSS DIES SUDDENLY

First Jew to Become American Cabinet Officer; Was Diplomat and Author.

New York, May 3.—Oscar S. Strauss, former United States Ambassador to Turkey, and secretary of the department of commerce and labor in President Roosevelt's cabinet, died today of a heart attack in his home at 1010 Park avenue. He was 76 years old.

Strauss, a Georgian by early adoption, came to New York when he was fifteen years old and has been one of the most prominent citizens. He was a graduate of Columbia University of the class of 1871 and of the Columbia Law School two years later, finally taking his master's degree in 1874.

Son of Immigrants
This was an unusual achievement for a Jewish immigrant, for Oscar Solomon Strauss came here with his parents, Lazarus and Sara Strauss, when he was a small child and moved to Talbotton, Ga. with them shortly after their arrival. They lived there and at Columbus, Ga., until 1865.

Strauss was twice United States minister to Turkey and afterward ambassador and was the first Jew to become a member of the cabinet. He was a colleague of President Roosevelt in the formation of the Progressive party and in 1912 was its candidate for the governorship of New York state.

LESS MOVING HERE THAN IN 15 YEARS

May first has from time immemorial meant moving day. But this year in Manchester it means hardly anything for the first time in ten or fifteen years.

Heads of moving firms in town, interviewed this morning said that there has been less moving since

Saturday than in any year that they can remember. Asked for the reason, they said: "The reason for moving generally is that the head of the household has lost his job and gets a job in another city or town. Even though some of the men at the mills have been laid off they have discovered that conditions are no better in other towns than here so they have decided to remain here to await better conditions." "Then again, most of the men who have been laid off here own their own homes and have a little laid aside for the proverbial rainy day. They cannot move so easily."

Whatever the cause, there has been less moving in town than in many years.

Traffic signs made of cloth letters stuck to the pavement with adhesive are found to be unusually durable.

A Delightful Little Price on This Charming Little Group

Home-Outfit Groups Complete Very Modestly Priced—in Our Special Offerings for Spring.

$190
For the suite in three pieces,—bed, dresser, and dressing table—with spring, mattress, pillows, and a 9x12 rug.

The suite alone would have to be marked close to $300—for its genuinely good furniture in walnut and gumwood combination, attractive in style and finish, and just as pictured above except that a dressing table is used instead of triple-mirror vanity.

Included with it is a fine sagless spring, a high-grade felt mattress, pair of feather pillows and durable tapestry rug—as a feature special from our Home-Outfit groups.

$257
For the suite in six pieces,—with large wardrobe, chair, and bench included in addition to the equipment in the $190.00 group.

BETTER BEDDING VALUES
We pride ourselves particularly on making our bedding department a special value line. Take mattresses, for example—not cheap mattresses, but good mattresses reasonably priced.

A pure white cotton, layer felt mattress, full weight and full measure, covered in the old reliable gold medal ticking—a wonder for service at $22.50.

Then there's the Derry-Made line. The Springtime silk floss is a real luxury mattress—sells at $37.00, and you know it's worth every cent of it when you see it.

Another Special Outfit Living Room in Impressive Style $297.75

An overstuffed suite of three pieces, covered all over in taupe moirai—davenport, arm chair and wing chair. An excellent style and thoroughly good quality.

9x12 Seamless Axminster Rug in wide range of distinctive patterns, and of a quality worthy of the suite.

Davenport table in combination mahogany of appropriate design.

Metal base floor lamp with pleated silk shade.

And a darling little end table.

All for $297.75. The suite alone would have to be marked over $300.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

Washington, May 3.—When Major L'Enfant laid out Washington, he evidently meant Pennsylvania avenue to be his show street.

MONDAY, MAY 3, 1926.

BRITAIN'S STRIKE

Great Britain faces a general strike tonight because the coal miners, despite the fact that the fuel cannot be mined there as cheaply as in any competing country...

There has never been a successful general strike save in Russia nor one of more than nominal duration.

For many years the idea of a general strike as the ultimate weapon of labor has been at the back of the head of every union enthusiast in England.

Now the point has been reached where this recourse is to be put to the test.

With the problem of decreasing the dangers of the highways become one of the most puzzling of our civilization...

To plaster road warnings all over with business ads would not only be to ruin the lucidity and effect of the warnings...

HERO MEDALS. For a good many years the Carnegie Hero Commission has been making its periodic awards of medals and pensions.

Perhaps the general strike will be brief—in the interest of humanity it is to be sincerely hoped that it will be.

Because, as sure as anything can be in this world, Great Britain's big majority is going to lick its organized labor minority in this fight.

Back of all written law is the unwritten law of force. If it were not for the existence of the latter there could be no such thing as the former.

It might be as well for those who are so quick to hold up their hands in horror at the words "lynching" or "vigilantes" to give some consideration to the value of this postulate.

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 3.—Quite by accident I came upon this sequel to a strange and tragic story.

A few months ago, in this column, I told the tale of one Bensman—Matteo Bensman, the great Polish composer who thrilled Paris...

It was a story of that little slice of Manhattan's East Side where, for many years, the Jewish culture of America gathered about plain board tables to drink coffee and weave dreams.

One would have to put in a good many minutes of steady hard thinking to conjure up a more illogical proposition than has been incorporated in a New York state law authorizing the display of business concerns' advertisements on certain motor signs along the highways.

Gov. Smith is given credit for being a pretty good governor. If he is as good a governor as he is supposed to be he will probably veto this measure.

Say, what's the diff if your plans go smash, an' a thought turns out as a heap of trash? It can fret you a lot, but it won't a bit, if the stuff you've got make you never quit.

Without precisely being a slum, the district east of the capitol distinctly is a second and maybe even a third-rate neighborhood.

Government buildings are scattered hither and yon all over town and out into the country, without the slightest regard for "ensemble" or harmony or convenience or anything.

Then they clapped on the most unholy prices—for those days.

The government ought to have condemned property on the "avenue," as it needed it for public buildings. It didn't, however. Probably the real estate folk were pretty influential.

As for the swell people, they were even less inclined to be stung than the government. Inasmuch as they couldn't get into the capitol, they moved into its backyard, Washington's tony residential district of today is to the westward, not the eastward.

All this came up in connection with the proposal, in this Congress, to spend $50,000,000 on a public rebuilding program in Washington.

Beaver Cuts Mark in World's History.

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

In Exercising Always Remember Not to Attempt Too Much

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service.

Riding on horseback is a good form of exercise and is especially beneficial in stimulating the gastro-intestinal tract. The rhythmic vibration seems to be of benefit to muscles and internal organs. Swimming is also a good exercise. It brings into play nearly all of the muscles of the body. A temperature below 65 degrees Fahrenheit is usually too cold for swimming. One should swim easily and slowly and breathe regularly.

The breast stroke or a slow trudgeon are good strokes to use. The crawl stroke, while it is perhaps best for speed, should not be used for any length of time, except by trained athletes. Half an hour is quite long enough to remain in the water and one should not stand around in his wet bathing suit after he has been out, but should dress immediately after coming out of the water.

There are many outdoor sports which can be indulged in as recreation and used as exercise. Golf, tennis and handball are familiar and popular games. One can get much or little exercise from golf, according to the rapidity with which he covers the course and the number of holes that are played. Tennis and handball are much more vigorous games. For the average man, three sets of singles in tennis or three games of handball are generally sufficient exercise if taken daily. After 45 years of age, the average man should not play singles in tennis or handball. Doubles, however, can be indulged in up to very much later in life. One should differentiate between the foregoing and similar games when employed as a healthful exercise and when played in sharp competition. Do not attempt too much.

"OLD GOLD" MYSTERY MAN IN TOWN TODAY

"M. Sunshine" Rivals Captain Kidd Stories — Has Clever Parrot.

A real mystery man, one of the strangest characters that has been seen in this city for many years, arrived in town yesterday, bringing with him a weird tale of buried treasure that rivals the stories of Captain Kidd and Treasure Island. The visitor, who declined to disclose his identity, other than to say he might be known as "M. Sunshine," was accompanied by a parrot with, like his eccentric owner, was a most peculiar sort of bird.

The mystery man first attracted attention by the squawking of the parrot—a bird which his owner claims is the only cigar-smoking parrot in captivity. The bird's shrieks of "Old Gold, Old Gold" and its refusal to be quiet during the wee small hours of the morning resulted in "M. Sunshine" being asked to dispense with his plumbeous companion or else leave a well-known local hotel, where other guests were complaining that they could not sleep.

"M. Sunshine" protested in vain that in Egypt, where he claimed to be a character of no small prominence, though he would give no details of his personal history, parrots were welcome in any hostelry. He demanded that his bird be allowed to remain in his room and raised all sorts of a fuss when he was informed that either the parrot must go to the basement or he must leave the hotel. Hotel employees sought in vain to convince him that it just wasn't done in American hotels but the mysterious stranger was obdurate. And when an ultimatum was delivered "M. Sunshine" wrapped the plumed case of his shrieking bird in a green baize cloth, paid his bill and indignantly left.

To reporters who talked with him he announced that he is a well known philanthropist and that he has plans for spreading "Old Gold" all over New England. Asked to explain his rather rambling assertions, he said, "I cannot say who I am or where I come from. But in good time you shall know. And when my secret is out there will be old gold for every man in this city." Hotel employees said he appeared to be plentifully supplied with money, but was eccentric in many ways. He talked ramblingly of "guineas," "bags of old gold," "My treasure chest" and such things and appeared to be a harmless sort of old gentleman.

While reporters talked with him, he lighted a cigarette and after taking a puff calmly handed the weed to the reporter. The bird proceeded to take it in his claw, puffing away at it and then blew smoke from beneath the bird's still.

The last seen of the old man boarded a car with the bird still from beneath the green baize cover.

FOUR DROWNED AS GIRL STANDS UP IN BOAT.

Montreal, May 3.—Caught by a sudden squall while fishing from a boat, two men, a woman and a boy were drowned in the Richelieu river.

The men are Max Epstein, 25, of this city and Michael Astorff, 25, of West Mount. The woman is thought to be Margaret Smith, a waitress, of Montreal. The boy's identity is not known.

Epstein, rowing in a blinding hailstorm, had reached within sixty feet of shore when the woman stood up and the boat capsized.

ALL STARS IN CASTS OF CIRCLE'S FEATURES

The Circle will present two all star cast features tomorrow and Wednesday, an Allen Dwan production starring Jack Holt, Florence Vidor, William Powell and George Bancroft in "Sea Horses".

Picture-goers who read Francis Brett Young's sensational best seller, "Sea Horses," and are looking forward to seeing Allen Dwan's screen version of it at the Circle Theater, Tuesday and Wednesday may be sure that the best available talent was assembled to portray the characters which the author's imaginative genius developed.

Florence Vidor is the lone woman in the picture—the lovely, charming girl-wife whose search for her missing husband takes her to an out-of-the-way port on the east coast of Africa and plunges her into a stirring series of adventures.

Jack Holt has the villain role of the captain of the freighter—a part that gives him an opportunity to fight and love in his characteristically vigorous style. George Bancroft, who scored a distinct personal triumph as the smiling killer in "The Pony Express," is ideally cast as the semi-brutal second mate.

William Powell, noted screen heavy, impersonates the sinister character of the degenerate beach-comber husband, from whose clutches Miss Vidor is saved through the courage of Holt and the sacrifice of Bancroft. These featured film favorites are admirably supported by several well-known players, including Mack Swain, famous screen comic, Allan Simpson, the original Arrow Collar model, Frank Campeau, and many others.

Then comes the other all star cast picture, Monte Blue and Marie Prevost in "Other Woman's Husband's".

Motion picture teams may come and go, but the one of Marie Prevost and Monte Blue is the reigning couple of today. Those who have seen them in "Lover of Camille," "Recompense," "Kiss Me Again," and several others, will welcome them again in "Other Woman's Husband's," the Warner Bros. production. Through their popularity, gained while playing together, each was given a separate unit at the Warner Studios, and each made several pictures.

Tonight the Circle presents Gold Diggers.

feature pictures for tonight are, Mas Bush, Nita Naldi and Percy Marmont in "The Miracle of Life" also Bob Custer in "Beyond the Rockies".

Trousered negligees made a bit more fluttery feminine by the use of floating wispy sleeves are Fashion's latest. I saw a lovely one of salmon chiffon and silver lace. The undergarment with the trousered skirt and the coat and flowing sleeves of silver lace softened this severe line.

WIFE OF A FRENCH DIPLOMAT MURDERED.

Paris, May 3.—Madame Reynault, wife of the former French ambassador to Japan, was found dead at her bedroom door yesterday. She had been shot and several bullets were found embedded in the wall.

The police believe that thieves were ransacking the Reynault home when Madame Reynault disturbed them and they shot her down in order to make a get-away.

IVANHOE— Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

—By Redner

THE STORY THUS FAR—The story is laid in the England of Richard I. Gurth, a swineherd, and Wamba, a jester, are accosted by a party of knights seeking the castle of Cedric, the Saxon. The knights are coldly received, and their leader, Brian the Templar, incure Cedric's ire by his admiration of Cedric's daughter, Rowena. A Jewish stranger enters the hall, and the knights discuss the war in the Holy Land. They comment on the brave deeds of the crusaders, and Brian announces that he will name the knight "whose luck occasioned my falling."

THE TEMPLAR THEN SPOKE, "IT WAS THE KNIGHT WHOSE LUCK OCCASIONED MY FALLING. YET YOU IF HE EVER RETURNS FROM PALESTINE... I WILL PROCLAIM HIM A COWARD!"

FORMER NORWALK WOMAN IS SLAIN

Mrs. Eva Thelen, Divorcee, Shot Dead When Escort Flees from Murderer.

Portchester, N. Y., May 3.—Unrequited love was believed by police today to be the motive for the murder of Mrs. Eva Thelen, 38, divorcee, who was shot to death as she sat on a wall with a young man.

Vito Silio, 23, of this place, is held in connection with her death. Silio asked Mrs. Thelen twice a few hours before her death to meet him but was rebuffed, according to Dr. Amos O. Squire, medical examiner of Westchester county. Silio is reported to have "kept company" with Mrs. Thelen for a year. He denied being near the scene of the crime.

Vita Summa, 23, of Portchester, is held as a material witness. Summa was seated on the wall before Mrs. Thelen when she appeared out of the darkness and ordered him to "beat it!" The man had a revolver in his hand, Summa said.

Summa ran for help and shortly afterwards heard five shots. Mrs. Thelen was found dead with bullets in her head and chest.

Mrs. Thelen was employed as a nurse in Rye, N. Y. She was divorced six years ago from William Thelen, of Norwalk, Conn., on a charge of desertion.

ACES DEFEAT NEW BRITAIN; PONGRATZ FANS FOURTEEN

The local Aces traveled to New Britain yesterday afternoon and defeated the Speed Boys of that place 11-10. The game was fast and mostly a slugging affair. Von Deek kicked a triple with three men on and started the scoring.

Pongratz pitched a fine game fanning 14 and only giving 4 hits. The Aces will play New Britain at Mt. Nebo next Sunday at three o'clock.

AGED FARMER DIES AFTER CARD GAME

Death believed to be due to heart trouble, claimed Jeremiah Donovan, aged 62, North Coventry farmer, in his home Saturday night.

Donovan had spent the early hours Saturday evening playing cards with Joseph Fredericks, Rockville man who lives with him. Later Fredericks retired leaving Donovan sitting in the chair. Yesterday morning, Fredericks says he found him in the same position and apparently dead. County Coroner John E. Fahey was summoned. He said death was due to heart disease.

THESE WOMEN

©1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY HARRY MORTON, wealthy, middle-aged, attractive bachelor, Rochester for 15 years. The gossip has been unable to learn exactly what his business is. He has an adopted daughter AUDREY, who tells him she wishes he were poor, so he would not be sought so much by other women.

He maintains an expensive home in Rochester and an apartment in New York. A man called SMITH, claiming to be Audrey's stepfather, appears after 18 years' absence, and Morton sends him to South America with the promise of a job there. Morton and Audrey go to New York, where Morton receives a telephone call from NONA, beautiful young woman who is in love with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER IV "Till be out to dinner, dear."

Morton said, when Audrey descended the stairs. "Is it with that woman who telephoned you?" Audrey asked, quickly.

Morton eyed her with interest. "How did you know it was a woman?"

The girl hung her head, and thought, "I guess it was just instinct. It was a woman, wasn't it?" Morton assented. "I wish women didn't call you up," she went on. "I wish you didn't know any women, except me."

She sank into a chair, twisting her hands together. "You're too fine a man to be going around with women like that."

"What makes you think they are women like that?" "I don't know it. I just feel it," she said. "Anyhow, they aren't women that you take me to meet."

He crossed to where she was sitting, and stroked her hair. "Dear little kid! Of course, I don't let them meet you. They can't hurt me. But I don't want them to hurt you."

She took his hand and pressed it against her cheek. "It hurts me to have you with them at all," she said, softly. "Why do you see them?"

Morton shook his head. "Do you know, child, that the question 'Why' is the hardest question there is in the world to answer?"

"Nobody ever can tell, really, why he does anything. There are so many reasons behind every movement in life. No man can answer truthfully when you ask him 'Why?' Things that happened to us when we were little, careless, when we first started to know the world, the shape of our brain, transmitted to us by our ancestors for ten thousand years, our health, the things we read, the people we met, all of these things act together in causing the things we do. 'Why?' It's a question that no man can answer."

She patted his hand, and looked up at him shyly. "Maybe I can answer it, myself," she said. "I think you see those women because they run after you. I believe it is always the women who run after the men, and not the men after the women."

Morton laughed, and vigorously tousled her hair. "Don't gossip about the ladies, sugarplum," he admonished. "They'll be sure to get back at you." He continued, his voice graver. "I've got to go out to dinner, but I'll promise to be back early in the evening. Is that all right?"

The girl sighed, but agreed. "I'll wait for you," she said.

Morton was thoughtful as he left the apartment, and he was still in a reflective mood when he met Nona that evening in the waiting-room of their appointed dining-place.

This was an old-fashioned, made over into a restaurant by an enterprising Frenchman. Tables, lighted by discreet rose-colored lamps, filled the apartments that once were the two drawing-rooms, the dining-room, the library, and a long, glazed sun porch that ran along one side of the building. The glass on the porch had been painted, to screen the guests from outside observation. At one end of this room, Nona and Morton were seated.

"Didn't have time to dress for dinner," Morton said. "But I see you've dressed for both of us."

"Are you girls going to quarrel this evening, or am I going to be disappointed?" he asked, mockingly. Nona frowned. The other girl laughed. "I never quarrel," said she. "In the presence of gentlemen, I don't quarrel with anybody."

"You're always sweet. Lois—to gentlemen," she said.

Lois settled herself comfortably. "Of course," she confirmed. "Aren't we all?" She considered a moment, and added: "But not to anybody else."

"I always love to see the ladies hostile," Morton said. "If they were at all, they would be more so."

Morton looked amusedly at Nona, awaiting her reply. Her face was white beneath its rouge. "Do you want me to go home?" she asked Morton, her voice very low.

Morton grinned teasingly. "No, indeed. I'm a fight fan, you know. You girls go ahead and amuse yourselves."

Nona started to her feet, shaking with anger. "I'm going!" she snapped. Morton lazily arose also, and walked around the table. Putting his hand on her bare shoulder, he slowly forced her to her seat. "Fight fair," he advised, still smiling. "You mustn't hit the referee."

Nona remained in her chair, staring at her plate. Her hands twitched, and her cheeks and throat were flushed. Lois looked at her critically. "I'll bite and scratch as well as any other woman," she said, "but I hate to do it in front of a man."

Morton turned toward the girls, and added earnestly to Morton's invitation to have another.

"You know," Morton said, generally, "every time I go out with Nona lately, there is a battle. Sometimes it's with me, and sometimes it's with some woman, but she has surely declared war, for keeps."

He paid the waiter, as the three of them arose.

"Sure she's in love," Lois said. Nona gave her a venomous glance, but was silent as they passed through the house, and down to the reception-room.

Morton's car was waiting, and the three of them entered it.

They drove to Lois' home first. When Morton helped her from the car, she stood on tiptoe and kissed him on the chin. He was rubbing the spot reflectively when he re-entered the car.

"I believe there is more kissing being done here and there," he observed, "than there ever was in the world before."

Nona remained wordless. She crowded into her own corner of the thickly cushioned seat, her hands clasped together on her lap. Morton clasped a light remark or two, but she turned from him.

Accepting the situation philosophically, he lighted a cigarette, and gazed out the window at the brightly lighted theater district through which they passed.

At her apartment house, he walked with her to the door. With her face set, her lips compressed, and her eyes wide and blazing, she avoided his hand, and entered the door without saying good night. As she walked toward the elevator Morton glanced at her hands rigidly, clenched, and her arms rigid.

any other way, I'd know there was something wrong."

The waiter was standing at his elbow, and conversation ceased while Morton ordered dinner for the three of them. Considerately, he avoided starches and sweets in his order for the girls, as being productive of fat.

For himself, he selected only half of a broiled chicken, and a grapefruit. "And bring three bottles of water," he added.

The girls accepted as a matter of course his offer of liquor from the silver tray he carried. He took none for himself.

"Don't you ever drink any more?" Lois asked.

"Seldom," said she. "It's still too easy to get to address my interest."

The girls addressed their remarks to him, each carefully ignoring the other. His eyes twinkling, Morton led them into an indirect debate on Johnny, any more? That is, except for a few young kids up from college, and a fat old man or two?"

"And do you girls really show so much of yourselves, in order to lure the men?"

She ran her forefinger around the service plate that lay before her, and looked at him with the dawn of an idea in her eye.

"Do you know, I believe that pretty nearly every thought a woman has is in connection with a man," she exclaimed. "I never thought of it before, but I believe it's so."

She was starting a new and animated sentence, when her voice dropped abruptly, and her eyes hardened. She stared toward the entrance of the room. Morton turned in the doorway stood a young woman, alone. She was strikingly attractive, though somewhat older than Nona, and shorter, and a little heavier. Her eyes, like Nona's, were large and dark, and they swept anxiously over the room. As they fell upon Morton, they lighted in recogniton. She waved her hand, and hastened toward the man and girl.

"Hello Harry! and Nona, dear! How lovely!" Her voice was low and throaty. Morton rose to his feet, took the soft evening cape the girl had carried, and draped it over the back of her chair. After she was seated, he sat down, and leaned forward, smiling.

"Are you girls going to quarrel this evening, or am I going to be disappointed?" he asked, mockingly. Nona frowned. The other girl laughed.

"I never quarrel," said she. "In the presence of gentlemen, I don't quarrel with anybody."

HER OWN WAY BY A GIRL OF TODAY

HEART PALPITATION

"I've been trying to get a hold of you all morning by telephone, Judy," said Jerry Hathaway. "I want you to go to dinner with me and then we'll go somewhere and dance."

"How do you know I can dance?" "Don't kid me, girl, don't kid me. I knew you could dance the moment I saw you. I'll bet you danced before you could talk. And besides that, Jim Costello said you were the best dancer in your own home town and he informed me he was going to take you out very soon. I'm trying to get my work in first, you see."

"Sorry, but you haven't done it. I certainly love to dance and I'm going to tonight, but not with you. I promised Jimmy that I would go with him."

"Well, Judy, I'm not going to be cut out of this that way. Ask your friend Miss Riley and we'll make it a foursome."

"That'll be fine. I think it's Mamie's night out and I think she'll like to go. She's rather down in the dumps today."

"Then that's finished and put away. Where'd you like to go?" "I'd like to go to the 'ayest and smartest place in town.'"

"That's the Beaux Arts, you know, Judy."

"Oh, I don't want to go there tonight. Let's go to one of the smart hotels where they have dancing."

"All right. I'll get reservations and come after you about half past seven. Now, good-bye. I'm going to give Sellers a bad quarter of an hour. Until tonight, Judy," Jerry Hathaway took his hand, and holding it he looked straight into my eyes.

I felt my self blushing, for I knew what Jerry expected me to say. For once I thought I'd do it.

"Good-bye, Jerry. I'll see you tonight."

The man beside me gave a sigh of satisfaction.

"I want always to be Jerry to you."

I drew my hand away quickly and fairly pushed out to the sidewalk. And then, I stopped suddenly. I couldn't understand what made my heart beat so fast.

He is good looking, I thought to myself as I hurried toward the telephone. I wanted to catch Mamie before she went down town and ask her to be sure to get off that night.

TOMORROW: Miss Cleaver's Sad Eyes.

BRILLIANT AFFAIR The red umbrella has suddenly become the vogue, leaving the more conservative green and purple models wondering just how they got pushed out of the lead.

FANCY STITCHES Many of the smart new chambray and washable leather gloves are sewed together by hand sewing, the stitches being the only concession to decoration.

SO VERY FLATTERING The Pierrot collar is returning, usually in organdie or chiffon, though it has actually been seen in starched linen.

Here are the latest modes in hair dressing offered by Paris. The French bob is frequently set off by combs of arresting designs, as the pictures on the left and right show. In the center is a very popular French cut.

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

"Singing in the Rain"

That's the name, up above, of a new volume of essays for the most part on modern woman problems, by Anne Shannon Monroe. Chapters called "The Woman Who Should Marry," "Shall I Marry This Man?" "When Shall a Woman Divorce?" and "Self-Bound," give an inkling of the scope.

"Doing Double Duty." The little essay titled the above seems to me the most poignantly necessary, in view of the modern business woman's problems, of all the sane, clear-thinking chapters. Listen to a little of it.

"I ran into a neighbor's kitchen on a sunny Saturday morning, and I found there, standing at an ironing board, a young woman who on other days taught school and maintained the small bungalow she and her mother occupied. Why in the world isn't Myra at the picnic? I asked. And Myra's mother, at her late breakfast replied, 'Because I suppose, she knew the ironing was to be done.'"

"Then, the irony and comedy of it, Myra's mother poured out on me her wrath at her new daughter-in-law who hadn't the faintest idea of a man's need of recreation. 'Think of it!' she flared out, 'expecting Hal to help her about the house on Saturdays, his one day off, when she knows I never asked anything of Hal Saturday afternoons!' And Myra, the earning daughter, ironed right on!"

Why It Is! Myra's mother is only one of many mothers who have not rallied to changed economic conditions. They cling to that ancestral slant—women for domestic routine, men for freedom. The slant of mind traces back to a time when all the females who could, got married, and all the others lived on them.

And all that greatly concerned the female mind was the upholding of the male in his effort to support his numerous females."

Breadwinning Female. "This early-feminine mind readily acknowledged the unwritten law that the bread-winner is entitled to personal care from those whom he supports, whereas the bread-winner is a male. But when the bread-winner is a female, what then? Daughter always as she grew up, stepped in under and carried the domestic load, leaving mother to a sitting sort of life that contributed to an early old age."

Not So Bad Then. "This wasn't so bad for daughter when she married. But there came the economic change, and daughter stepped out into an office. But while she changed her ancestral slant, the mother, as a rule, didn't change hers. She thought it was fine for daughter to have her own spending money, but she still continued to regard daughter as belonging to the domestic side of the household. No conception of her as needing the same up-keep as any male bread-winner."

The Ultimatum. "Until the earning woman is as free of domestic details as the earning man, she will never be his equal in business. Earning women must fight for perhaps this last unwon right of a woman, the right to be a business woman without the burden of domesticity!"

COPIED FROM PEASANTS. Very wide balloon sleeves are seen on the new frocks in soft materials, but they are closely confined at the wrists.

John Phillip Sousa was a teacher of music at the age of 15 and a conductor at 17.

CHILDREN OR CAREERS?

Thrill of Motherhood Greatest, Says Gluck.

I don't have to hesitate a moment when it comes to a question of choice between a career and children. Moreover, I am very sure that this choice must always be made. Women are so constituted that they cannot give their best to any work except homemaking when they have children dependent on them.

"But," the feminists will say, "children no longer are dependent upon their mothers. It is possible to get nurses who know more in a minute about how to bring up a baby than most mothers know in all the years of their lives."

Perhaps the feminists have facts on their side. I am not prepared to dispute that. I only know somewhere deep inside me that no nurse can ever take a mother's place. She may be ever so modern and up-to-date and stuffy starched. And the mother may be ever so old-fashioned, behind-the-times and dowdy. Still, I am quite positive she will be better for her child than the nurse.

The time to have a career is when you are young and free. The time to have babies is when you feel the urge to settle down. I am sure I must sound old-fashioned, but I happen to know that applause and fame and the temporary success of the stage can never equal the thrill of motherhood.

I think a National Child Health Day, such as the American Child Health Association proposes, more important than any other celebration or memorial I ever heard about. Motherhood, the greatest of careers, needs all the help it can get.

NORMA TALMADGE PUTS A NEW KICK IN "KIKI"

Norma Talmadge puts a new kick in "Kiki." Any one who saw the Belasco stage play and who happened to be among the crowds which packed the State Theatre last night will vouch for this fact.
 From now on Norma Talmadge and "Kiki" should be synonymous, for never has a motion picture star been so aptly fitted for a role as Miss Talmadge for the title character in the gay story of modern Paris life. The First National picture fairly bubbles over with delightful situations, yet throughout the story runs a highly dramatic theme—the adventures of a little street gamine who aspires to stage fame and the luxurious life of a "great lady."
 Miss Talmadge, as "Kiki," who is always ready for a fight or a frolic, reveals herself as a comedienne of the first water. It is difficult to envision this harum-scarum miss in "Kiki" as the same Norma Talmadge who created those immortal screen roles in "Smilin' Through," "Secrets" and "Graustark." Who could have imagined the lovely Norma engaged in fist-cuffs with her rival in love or hurling breakfast dishes at any one who dared disturb her beauty nap? Ronald Colman, as Victor Renal, a Paris theatre manager, makes an ideal leading man for Miss Talmadge. It is the handsome actor's first appearance opposite Norma. Others in the large cast who do credit to their roles are Gertrude Astor, Marc MacDermott, George K. Arthur, Erwin Connelly, William Orlamond, Frankie Darro and Mack Swain.

 The skillful direction of Miss Talmadge's greatest picture produced by Joseph M. Schenck for First National is another feather in the cap of Clarence Brown.
 Norma Talmadge will be presented today and tomorrow for three shows matinee at 2:15 evening at 7:00 and 9:00. Do not miss this wonderful production.

NO motor car built today offers more sheer downright dollar-for-dollar value than the new Paige Brougham at only $1295.
 That's a sweeping statement, but check it up. See this car—examine, compare and drive it. Its overwhelmingly greater value is everywhere evident.
 Think of it! Only $1295! And for a Paige—with all of the beauty, all that delightful ease of handling, that quick acceleration, that safe and positive braking, that roadability and comfort for which Paige cars have long been famous. The engine in the Brougham is ultramodern, highly perfected and Paige built. It develops tremendous power and speed, with utmost economy.

 The Brougham body is larger than most sedans. Its interior is roomier. Passengers enter or leave the rear without disturbing front seat occupants. The finish is a polished lacquer, in two tones of gray—the upholstery is soft, lustrous and long-wearing.
 Drive this Brougham soon—for this you'll know that you simply can't buy more automobile for your money anywhere else. A demonstration places you under no obligation.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"We'll go and call on Mrs. Woodchuck next," said Mister Tingaling to the Twins. "I saw her husband go away this morning, but I suppose he has left the money with her. He knows that I always come around to collect my rents on the thirty-second day of the month. So off they went to the Woodchuck's house between the potato-patch and the fence.

Tap, tap, tap! they went on her front door.

Now Mrs. Woodchuck was baking bread when she heard the rap on her door. And she knew pretty well who it was.

She had been thinking as she worked. She was thinking, "Oh, dear! I wish I had a new silk dress! I'm so sick of my old gray wool! I wish I had a lovely dress like Mrs. Bluebird!"

And she was wishing more than that. She was wishing that she had a new hat. A new hat with lovely red on it, like Miss Yellowhammer's!

And she was wishing also that she had a shawl. A shawl of black and white, like Mrs. Woodpecker's.

Besides clothes, she was wishing that she had a new rug for the hall, and new dining room curtains, and a new set of bedroom furniture.

That's what she was thinking about as she kneaded her bread and made it into loaves to put into the oven.

When she heard the knock on the door, she said to herself, "Oh, dear! I could use the money that Wally left in the tea pot on the mantel! I could have such a lot of things!"

Tap, tap, tap! came the knock again.

Time Mrs. Woodchuck took down the tea pot and shook out the money. It fell right into the soft bread dough and sank in. You couldn't see it at all!

That gave Mrs. Woodchuck an idea, and she had to laugh.

She went to the door and opened it, wiping her floury hands on her apron.

"Why, how do you do, everybody," she said. "Come right in. I suppose you are after the rent money, aren't you, Mister Tingaling?"

"That's—that I am! You're a very good guesser, Mrs. Woodchuck. It's rent money I'm after, sure enough."

"Well, do you know, Mister Tingaling," said Mrs. Woodchuck with a twinkle in her eye. "Wally left me the money this morning, but it's disappeared and I can't see it anywhere."

"You don't say so, Mrs. Woodchuck," said the fairyman, making such a wry face that the Twins felt sorry for him.

"Yes, sir!" said Mrs. Woodchuck. "That's a fact! The money has disappeared completely."

"Well, I'm sorry," said Mister Tingaling. "Someone may have taken it when you were upstairs or somewhere."

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Woodchuck, going to the oven to see if the bread was baked. It doesn't take woodchuck bread long to bake you know.

"Won't you take a loaf home to your wife, Mister Tingaling?" she asked. "It will be all nice and fresh for your supper."

"Thank you! I'll be delighted," said the fairyman.

Now, my dears, I suppose you think that Mrs. Woodchuck kept the money that fell into the bread to buy her spring clothes with.

But you're wrong. She never thought of such a thing. She gave Mister Tingaling the loaf with the rent money in it, and he found it that evening when the bread was cut.

Mrs. Woodchuck was only playing a joke.

(To be continued)

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The "pen" is mightier than the county jail.

A PUZZLE A DAY

Once upon a time, there was a wise old king, who was visited by 24 of his subjects. They asked the king to give them jobs in the palace. Only 12 positions were open and the king knew that half of the men were loyal subjects, while the other half were not. So he told them that they would be chosen by count. The subjects were arranged in a circle, and starting with the cross, every eighth man counted out secured a job. The king arranged the men so cleverly that only loyal subjects were employed.

Can you discover where the loyal subjects were placed?

Strength of Organization

The French have a fine term expressive of the will or spirit of an organization, as a whole. When a body of men or an organization is working well together to attain a certain result, they speak of its "esprit de corps"—the spirit of the corps. It is the "esprit de corps" that makes the CABLE-NELSON the outstanding piano it is. For every person in the great CABLE-NELSON organization prides himself upon the high character of his work. He has the will and inclination to make better and still better pianos. The net result is that the corps, as a whole, make a most beautiful and trustworthy instrument.
