

KILLED AS HE STEPS BEFORE TROLLEY CAR

James Shaw, 60, of 46 Adams Street, This Town, Meets Sudden Death in Rockville; Leaves Family.

James Shaw, 60 years of age of 46 Adams street, an employee of the Connecticut company maintenance of way department, was instantly killed at 8:25 this morning when he stepped in front of a trolley car driven by Motorman William Mertens near the Burke Greenhouse at Station 69 in Rockville.

Shaw, who was working with a gang of repairmen on the trolley tracks near that place, had gone to a tool box some 800 feet west of the spot where the other men were working. He was returning to the gang as he was according to Motorman Mertens, was on the left of the east-bound trolley car, in safe territory. For some reason or other, as the car drew near to him he stepped to the track and the front of the car struck him.

Body Dragged By Car
He was run over by the front truck and dragged about a car length. When the car stopped his body was lodged at the rear truck. According to Medical Examiner Rockwell, he was killed instantly. The car which Motorman Mertens was driving is the so-called school children's special which carries pupils of the Rockville schools to the city. Motorman Mertens says that he was proceeding at about 20 miles an hour and that his power was off. He stopped the car after the accident within a little more than its own length.

His Survivors
He is survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter. They are Robert, who is employed at Colt's in Hartford; John, a member of the United States Coast Guard, stationed at New London and Miss Margaret Shaw, who is employed at the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford. They were notified this morning.

The body was taken to White's morgue in Rockville and then to the undertaking rooms of Mark Holmes at the north end. Funeral arrangements are not yet complete.

Harold Germaine of the Connecticut Company, the department of the Manchester office investigated the accident for the company.

LA GUARDIA IGNORES RUM CASE SUBPOENA

Says Indiana U. S. Attorney Can Trace Stolen Booze Through Own Department.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 5.—United States district Attorney Robert A. Ward made it known today that he has written to Attorney-General Sargent at Washington asking his aid in getting Congressman La Guardia of New York, before the federal grand jury which convened here this morning to probe the disappearance of 330 cases of the W. P. Squibb liquor from the basement of the government building in Indianapolis.

Washington, May 5.—Rep. La Guardia (R., N. Y.) said today that he has no present intention of complying with a subpoena to appear before the Indianapolis grand jury to testify regarding the disappearance of 330 cases of liquor from the Indianapolis federal building.

"If Ward, the district attorney, wants to, he can find from his own department all about the disappearance of the liquor," said La Guardia. "Attorney-General Sargent wrote me that his investigation showed that the 330 cases were missing."

WOMEN SUFFER BY THE STRIKE

Housewives, With Food and Fuel Scarce and No Wages Coming in, Bear Burden.

London, May 5.—The British housewife is bearing a good deal of the burden of the general strike.

With food supplies and fuel on a restricted basis, and with millions of strikers' wives faced with the difficulty of running a household without wages, the British women are feeling the pinch of the strike.

Margaret Bondfield, former M. P., and member of the Trades Union Congress, has already created a committee, of which she is the head, to provide necessary relief for the wives of strikers or workers who have been thrown out of employment by the stoppage.

None of the forty thousand women trade unionists have yet been ordered on strike and according to Miss Bondfield there is no present intention of calling them out.

Women of the upper classes were also being seriously inconvenienced by the tie-up. Shops everywhere were deserted and shop-keepers dejected that they were doing little business.

The price of milk has already increased and housewives report that they are finding some difficulty in securing fresh vegetables.

SITS UNHURT AS TRAIN SMASHES HIS CAR TO BITS

Meriden Man Has All the Luck When He Disputes Crossing With Locomotive—Unscratched.

Middletown, May 5.—By what seemed a miracle, Daniel F. Moriarty, of Meriden, escaped without a scratch when a Berlin-bound train on the New Haven railroad demolished Moriarty's automobile at the Johnson street grade crossing here today.

Moriarty was driving to his work in the Remington Typewriter plant and was on the track before he realized the train was near.

He attempted to swing his car parallel to the track but failed. His machine was whirled north thirty-five feet and completely demolished, while the driver remained at his wheel.

The impact knocked the steps on one side of the coaches on the train.

BASEBALL STAR GETS A WOMAN BANDIT

George Uhle, Cleveland Pitcher, Captures Girl After Holdup of a Filling Station.

Cleveland, May 5.—Captured after a thrilling chase by George Uhle, crack pitcher of the Cleveland Indians, a pretty 20-year-old girl claiming to be Mary Stanley of Kansas City, Mo., was being held by police today as an accomplice in the hold-up of a filling station at Lakewood, a suburb. Her male companion escaped.

Uhle, driving, witnessed the hold-up and pursued the bandit car. In the machine police found a pair of bloodstained shoes bearing a St. Louis trademark.

SOVIETS LEAP TO ENCOURAGE LABOR STRIFE

Officials and Organs Urge Boycott of English Orders for Supplies—Hail First British "Class War."

Moscow, May 5.—Appealing to all communists to aid the British general strike, M. Zinovieff, head of the International Executive, launched a bitter attack upon the English labor leaders who are in control of the strike.

The Baldwin government, "with all its bombs and aeroplanes," does not represent such a danger to the workers as "the liberal laborites, Mac Donald, Thomas & Company," said Zinovieff.

"The English strike is the peak of this year's catastrophes for capitalism," said Zinovieff.

"The Communist International was right when it declared that present civilization is unstable and trembling."

"Deeply Political"
"The English strike began purely as an economic struggle, but from the very first it has taken a deeply political character."

Nationalization without compensation is the only solution for the British coal industry, Zinovieff said.

"Iscefta" in commenting today on "the greatest strike of all time," urges American communists, with those of the whole world, to give immediate and material aid to the English workers.

The Trade Union International issued a call to all led workers throughout the world to aid the English strikers by refusing to supply England with goods and to boycott all English orders for coal.

Urging Red solidarity, the proclamation orders Red workers "to face the gigantic struggle, when for the first time in England's history class fights class. All workers must give their unreserved support to the strikers. Not one ton of coal must go to England. All English orders given in foreign countries must be boycotted."

News of the strike situation was tardy in reaching the Russian public as the newspapers had been suspended for a period of three days during the May Day and Easter celebrations.

In official circles there was no disposition to regard the English strike as the beginning of the long heralded world revolution. Officials declared their belief, however, that the English strikers would win decisive victories over capitalism and that their successes would encourage others and that the world revolution might eventually result.

FIRE DEPARTMENT JUST GOES A. W. O. L.

Bay State Chief Shows Up in Albany, Only Truck Driver Is Still Missing.

Avon, Mass., May 5.—Carlton Harold Pierce, newly appointed fire chief, missing since Monday, was found today in Albany, N. Y., according to a telegram from him received by his wife stating that he went away for a rest and was staying at the home of his sister, George A. McCarthy, college graduate, a driver, the only man in town who knows how to handle the fire truck, who also disappeared, was still missing today.

Pierce and McCarthy disappeared mysteriously following a fire at which a man lost his life.

WELSH MINERS IN MOOD OF HOLIDAY

Having a Fine Time With Cricket and Football in Period of Leisure.

Stey, South Wales, May 5.—Strikers in the Welsh coal fields are making a real holiday out of the strike situation.

Cricket pitches are crowded with miners who are enjoying their absence from work, and hundreds of others are engaged in football. Prayer meetings are still being held.

SAILORS' STRIKE ADDS TO BRITAIN'S TROUBLES

Radio brought across the Atlantic this striking picture of British war-like preparations for a general strike. With the British cables tied up, along with transportation and industry, the strike is bringing radio into greater practical use than ever before. The helmeted cavalrymen, with guns slung across their shoulders, were photographed marching past the London law courts a few hours before five million workers laid down their tools. The troops were ordered out to maintain order and perform any other public services imposed on them under King George's "state of emergency" proclamation.

QUISH AND HASSETT RESIGN FROM FORCE

Both to Return to Trades; Quish Wants to Better His Position.

Traffic Officer Frank J. Quish and Supernumerary Officer Thomas Hassett gave their resignations to the Board of Police Commissioners this morning. Officer Quish was in conference with the board at the Hall of Records when it held a short session. Officer Hassett did not appear before the board but sent in his resignation.

Return to Trades.
Specific reasons for resigning were not given by either Officer Quish or Hassett. It is understood, however, that both men will return to the plumbing trade which they followed before becoming policemen.

Officer Quish has served a number of years as a Manchester policeman. He resigned once before to go into the plumbing business but returned to become a motorcycle patrolman. He has been a popular officer, makes an excellent appearance and is courteous. He desires to better himself and feels that he cannot do so in the police department. Officer Hassett has been on the force but a short time, but has decided he prefers his trade as a plumber.

RADIO COMMUNICATION WITH ENGLAND SAFE

Not Affected by Strike, Says Corporation Man—Workers Not in Unions.

New York, May 5.—The general strike overseas will not interfere with radio communication between New York and London, W. A. Winterbottom, Radio Corporation of America, said today.

"The entire staff is composed of workers unaffiliated with the labor movement," said Winterbottom, "and the stations, generating their own power, are independent of all outside sources of electrical energy."

CHILDREN LOSE X-RAY'S HELP

Killing of London Power Plant Hits Hospital Where Many Little Ones Are Treated.

London, May 5.—X-ray and electrical treatments had to be suspended at the Royal Free Hospital in the King's Cross district today when current was cut off from the St. Pancras power plant.

The hospital, in the heart of a thickly populated district, is chiefly for the relief of poor families and has a large number of children as patients.

THREATENS LIFE OF GOVERNOR'S WIDOW

Man Who Has Pursued Mrs. Curtis Guild for Years Sought by Boston Police.

Boston, May 5.—A man who has tried for eight years to force his attentions on Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of the former governor, was sought by police today as the writer of a letter ordering her to leave $100,000 at a designated spot or suffer death.

ASK FOR LIEN ON SALTS' PROPERTY

New Hearing to Be Held in Textile Receivership on Securing of Claim.

New Haven, May 5.—Judge Edwin S. Thomas will hold a new hearing in the receivership case of the Salts Textile Co. of Bridgeport, at Norwalk on May 17. Frederick Victor and Achelis, of New York, as that their claim against the Salts Company be "impressed as a lien" on the Salts' property and Judge Thomas today issued an order to show cause why the lien should not issue.

TREASURY BALANCE.

Washington, May 5.—United States treasury balance as of May 3: $339,002,330.49.

RAILWAYS GAINING, SPOKESMAN SAYS

Naval Forces Run Power Plants, Sir Joynson-Hicks Tells Parliament.

London, May 5.—"The food and milk supply of London are satisfactory," Sir William Joynson-Hicks declared in response to a question in the House of Commons today.

"The electric power in the London hospital has been cut off during the day."

"The emergency powers are necessary in the interest of the life of the nation."

At this point, Sir Williams was interrupted by Laborites, and the speaker jumped in rebukes to the unruly opposition members.

Railways Gain

"The railway service is improving and the electric light and power stations are in operation to one-third of their capacity, with naval forces in London on duty in those plants," said Sir William.

"I want to keep you informed of what the government is doing, but under the emergency powers it is quite simple for the government to act without telling the House of Commons."

"And that will be the end of you!" howled David Kirkwood, the fiery Scottish Laborite.

The Laborites greeted Kirkwood's interruption with wild cheers while the government members tried to howl down the Laborites, with pandemonium reigning for a few minutes, the white-wigged speaker pounding on his desk without effect.

"I don't desire to minimize the fact that the country is in a very serious condition," Sir William Joynson-Hicks told the House.

"The docks, food, electric, gas and transport services must continue to operate if the whole state is not going to dissolve into dire confusion," said Sir William.

FIRST NEGRO DIES IN MASSACHUSETTS CHAIR

Boston, May 5.—Recovering from a state of collapse, Richard Stewart, convicted slayer of William James, of Wilmington, both negroes, calmly went to his death in the electric chair at state's prison early today declaring he was "going to die bravely."

Ordering Out of Seamen's Union Threatens to Close All Sources of Supply by Sea—London Lightless as Midnight Fog Darkens Second Day of Great Strike—Taxis Quit, Ending Wheeled Transportation—Some Disorders Reported—Meat Scarcity in Nottingham—Food Spoils for Lack of Transportation Facilities—Government Plans for Full Month of the Struggle.

London, May 5.—"The British government can not yield to the general strike."

Premier Baldwin made this definite statement in the House of Commons this afternoon, in a dramatic response to pleas from Lloyd George and others that the government resume negotiations with the strikers.

"We can never yield to the general strike," the Premier said. "I am prepared to resume negotiations only if the general strike is called off unconditionally."

Liverpool, England, May 5.—British shipping was menaced today, when the sailors and firemen's union was ordered to strike.

This brings ocean and cross-channel services effectively under the general strike order and may result in a complete tie-up in all British ports.

The government is prepared for a long fight against the nation's strikers.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, this afternoon, formally asked Parliament to approve the State of Emergency, proclaimed by the King, for a period of one month.

Sir William said that the government hoped that the emergency would not extend beyond this period.

In asking for approval of the state of emergency powers for a period of one month, Joynson-Hicks declared that the present government is merely following a precedent established two years ago by J. Ramsay MacDonald, when he was premier and when a railroad strike was threatening.

"In a speech two years ago, Mr. MacDonald established the precedent for the government undertaking to maintain public services," said Sir William.

There were poignant scenes in the House of Commons, with the Prince of Wales and Duke of York, leaning over the gallery absorbed in the tense scene below.

Members of the ministry failed to lounge upon the great red-leather benches as usual, but they were on their feet in reply to any criticism of the government's anti-strike policy.

End of Second Day
Nightfall and the end of the second day of Great Britain's general strike finds the nation still in chaos.

No signs of peace are evident, and both sides appear to be prepared for a final fight. The government has asked Parliament for approval of the state of emergency for a period of a month.

Lord Birkenhead declared in the House of Lords that there will be no resumption of negotiations until the general strike is called off.

Ugly disorders have been reported from widespread centers throughout the country. Naval vessels, troops and police reserves are stationed at strategic points.

Incoherence has been reported in London.

Minor train wrecks have occurred due to the lack of signals and the inexperience of volunteer crews.

Food supplies are rotting on the London docks.

London's electric power has been reduced to one-third of normal and the city is with only limited illumination.

Railroads are attempting to operate partial service, with limited success.

Gloom Everywhere.
The second day of Britain's general strike found gloom everywhere.

With London fog-swept and a downpour of rain threatening, there was nothing in the strike situation to bring cheer.

The nation's paralysis appears to continue complete.

Violence continues to increase in some unruly areas.

The Civil Commissioner for the London area declares that "the general situation throughout the country is favorable and nothing can be described as rioting has taken place."

This statement appeared to be highly optimistic in view of the fact that additional police had been sent into the Poplar district, eight arrests had been made there, and two policemen were sent to the hospital in a critical condition after an encounter with the strikers, who had previously thrown an automobile and two motor trucks into the Thames.

Police Use Clubs.
The situation in the East End dock area is reported as "ugly" and mobs continue to hold-up drivers of automobiles in Gunpowder Square.

MANCHESTER CLUB TO MANAGE CAMP AT COVENTRY LAKE

Kiwanis Members Will Probably Take Over Community Camp This Summer; Dudley Harmon Speaks for New England.

In all probability the Manchester Kiwanis club will take over the community camp at Coventry Lake this summer. A committee organized by the club some time ago and headed by N. B. Richards recommended to the members at the meeting today the advisability of so doing, stating that if managed properly the camp would be a good thing for the children of Manchester. The land and buildings were owned largely by members of the Cheney family. Frank Cheney, Jr., who is a member of the Kiwanis club, voiced the sentiments of the committee and endorsed Mr. Cheney's plan for the camp, which for the past two seasons has been practically abandoned.

The opportunity to do good and to give the under-privileged children of Manchester an outing is a sentiment of the members of the committee. It means an expenditure of about $3,000 but if the Kiwanis club takes hold of the project they will doubtless be able to raise the money to carry on the work. The owners of the community camp stand ready to turn over their interests to the Kiwanis club or any other responsible organization that will take over the management and care of it properly. Because of its nearness to Manchester, the camp, if properly managed, could be made of great value to the town.

Those who spoke in favor of the camp included Frank Cheney, Jr., Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, R. La Motte Russell, F. A. Verplanck, and N. B. Richards.

The principal speaker at the meeting today was Dudley Harmon, secretary of the New England Council. He proved a most interesting speaker. The trouble was that the time allotted to him was insufficient. No doubt he will come back to Manchester and probably be heard at greater length. We print below a synopsis of his talk today.

In addressing the Manchester Kiwanis club today, Dudley Harmon, executive secretary of the New England Council said: "The New England Council is the answer of the business interests of New England to the suggestion of the governors last year that something be done to develop comprehensive views of New England problems and coordinated effort in promoting New England development and prosperity. The members of the Council were elected by the delegates from agricultural, industrial and commercial organizations assembled in the First New England Conference at Worcester last November. They will render a report to a similar gathering of representatives of organizations in New England in a second conference to be held next fall.

"The New England Council has accepted as basic fact the proposition that in many respects New England is a single area of production and distribution. Smaller in its total area than many single states, its division into six political entities has tended to prevent recognition of its many common interests. The Council is committed to the task of demonstrating to the people of New England that economic forces are not confined to political boundaries, and of demonstrating to the rest of the United States that New England interests can come together and work together for their common good. It is well known that elsewhere in the United States little distinction is made between the several New England States—all are lumped together in thought and speech as 'New England' and the section as a whole is tagged with prevailing impressions, good or bad, about any one state. The Council is endeavoring to lead New England into capitalizing this important fact by developing thought and action in terms of all New England. This is truly constructive for it can readily be shown to anyone with an open mind that the cumulative benefit to New England of efforts of the six states working together will be far greater than the total result obtained if each works by and for itself alone.

"In this situation Connecticut has a special interest. As one who was born and brought up in Connecticut, and who for some years was associated with one of the most important organizations in this state, I feel privileged to mention an impression about Connecticut which I have encountered in all the other New England states. I regret that such an impression about any state exists anywhere, because as a son of Connecticut I know it is not true, but at least it is important that its existence should be known to you. As I go about New England, when our state is mentioned, some such remark as this often follows: 'Of course you cannot expect much cooperation from Connecticut. These people consider themselves more a part of New York than New England.'

On every occasion I have insisted that such is not the case, and we here today know it is not true. Even if Connecticut wished to consider herself apart from New England, she cannot do so, geographically, economically or politically. But the impression prevails, nevertheless, and among men who should know better.

The New England Council, therefore, offers Connecticut an unparalleled opportunity to demonstrate that not only is this state an important part of New England, but that also her people are as keenly aware of their state in New England as those of any other New England state. By joining wholeheartedly in this New England movement by giving generously of their leadership, their brains, and their money, to make effective the principles for which the New England Council stands, the business interests of Connecticut cannot only put an end to the false impression that prevails, but also acquire for this state a position of prominence in New England affairs which cannot but redound to the benefit of all Connecticut interests."

MODERN METHODS USED FIGHTING FIRES HERE

In olden days and not so far back as that, if a fire occurred in Manchester, the firemen would first break in all the windows, throw out all the furniture and then chop holes through the roof. After these preliminary operations had been attended to the men started to find out where the fire was located.

It's different now. A chimney fire occurred last night at 10 o'clock at the home of Timothy O'Brien of 27 Locust street. Not a drop of chemical was used by the firemen under Chief Poy. A chain dropped from the top of the chimney brought down the burning embers to the open fireplace where they were beaten out.

Another still alarm brought out No. 3 to a brush fire yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock to the Middle Turnpike West, near the tracks of the South Manchester R. R. Boys from the Homestead Park aided the firemen. Three tanks of chemicals helped to extinguish the blaze. Little damage was done except burnings over a large area of brush on property owned by the Eldridge Estate.

fore, offers Connecticut an unparalleled opportunity to demonstrate that not only is this state an important part of New England, but that also her people are as keenly aware of their state in New England as those of any other New England state.

ABOUT TOWN

Catherine, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Beaupre of Center street, is ill with the measles.

The walks on Clinton street have been closed at the contractor is now working on Monroe street. The backward season has delayed somewhat the sidewalk jobs in town.

Mary C. Keeney Tent, Daughters of Veterans will meet tomorrow evening at eight o'clock at the Lincoln school kindergarten.

Memorial Temple Pythian Sisters degree team will have a rehearsal Friday evening at 7:30 at the Lincoln school. The temple has received an invitation from Damon Temple of Rockville to attend its anniversary celebration next Monday evening. Those who plan to go should take the 6:45 trolley at Depot Square.

The Salvation Army are planning special services in connection with Mothers' Day. Next Sunday evening the speaker will be Rev. Gilbert Lake of Pasadena, California, who is visiting relatives in the East and will be in this locality next Sunday. Monday evening a special program entitled "Mothers of Men" will be given in the cathedral at 8 o'clock. This will include special music, singing and sketches.

At the Highland Park Community clubhouse Thursday evening the regular meeting will be prefaced by a short entertainment, which will include an amusing sketch entitled "The Courting," banjo and vocal music and a pageant, "Girls of America." On Saturday evening an entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. lecture course will be given at the clubhouse. Miss Isabel Kilby, the well-known Hartford reader, will entertain.

YOUNG MOTHER DIES

Six days after the death of her six-day-old baby boy, Mrs. Ernest Fricke, of 349 South Main street, died at the Manchester Memorial hospital at two o'clock this morning. The mother was but 24 years old.

Mrs. Fricke is survived by her husband and her parents, the latter residing in East Hartford. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

MR. AND MRS. GATES ENTERTAINED FRIENDS

Contractor and Mrs. Edward L. Gates entertained a large and merry party of friends and relatives at their home on North Elm street Monday evening. The affair was a triple celebration of the birthdays of three of their guests. Mrs. Grace Long of Belknap whose birthday was yesterday, Wilbur C. Hills of Wapping, Sunday and Miss Eunice Gates of Highland Park. The latter is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Gates and her birthday occurred last Friday.

The hostess had made and decorated three birthday cakes and these were placed on the table in front of the honored ones with the required number of upstanding tapers. The table decorations were in yellow and all present did justice to a beautiful supper.

Mrs. Long and Miss Gates were further remembered with hand-made dress patterns and Mr. Hills received a fine silk shirt.

Today is feast day of St. Plus V. whose name was Michael Ghislardi and who rose from the rank of Dominican friar to the highest office in the church.

Today is the birthday anniversary of Bancroft, the historian.

England Tries a Dictator

Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain, who holds powers almost equivalent to those of a dictator by virtue of the king's emergency proclamation during present strike.

SAILORS' STRIKE ADDS TO BRITAIN'S TROUBLES

smashed several automobiles in a rush to prevent distribution of a copy of the Newcastle Journal, a newspaper employing non-union printers.

The mobs in London, police reported, attacked several automobile parties, hurling one automobile and two motor trucks into the Thames.

Strikes Army Officer. Another instance of disorder was reported on a train bearing soldiers northward from Portsmouth. The engineer was reported to have struck an army officer with his fist, stranding the train in an isolated spot. The train was gotten into motion after a delay of some hours.

Six buses were overturned at Hammersmith today. The police rescued the busmen and arrested one striker.

Although skeleton train services had been resumed on some lines, it is a very sketchy skeleton that is being maintained and as far as the general public is concerned the strike is fully effective.

The government announced today that 38,500 persons were enlisted for volunteer services throughout the nation yesterday.

Fog Helps Strikers. Railroad officials were hampered in their efforts to resume service by the dense fog which made it dangerous to attempt to use volunteers.

Officials of the London subways announced that they have been able to run a few trains during the day and that by night they hope to be operating a "partial service."

Eight of the leading West End theaters today definitely closed and it is now expected that others will follow suit. The audiences last night were sparse, due to people fearing they would be unable to obtain transportation to take them home after the performance.

More than a hundred thousand office and shop workers tramped to their tasks in London, Manchester, Liverpool and other cities this morning. Today it wasn't quite as much a joke as yesterday when the majority, lacking authentic information on the situation, thought the strike would be over within 24 hours.

Taxi Men Out. Difficulties were increased in London when union taxi-drivers walked out. Taxis were the last available means of transportation wheels left to Londoners.

Milk supplies have been reduced because it was impossible to bring in the usual stocks from the rural districts making it necessary for many households to use condensed milk. All milk is now concentrated in Hyde Park, where the retailers are obtaining their supplies. Smithfield markets, which since Monday had distributed approximately 10,000,000 pounds of meat, today had large stocks on hand.

Advices from the mining districts stated that the strikers and their families were being provided with food normally and on the same basis as city dwellers. Food consumed during the first two days of the strike consisted largely, however, of stocks laid in last week.

Food Spoiling. "There is some doubt as to whether motor truck convoys will be able to maintain supplies, as reports have already reached London that large stocks of fish and meat are deteriorating at Hull and other ports for lack of transportation facilities.

The government's effort to raise the community from "the level of Africa, natives dependent only on rumors" found expression in the British Gazette, issued at midnight under the editorial supervision of Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer.

The first edition carried fourteen columns of reading matter, typed and printed in the plant of the Morning Post, while mounted police patrolled the surrounding streets keeping back a crowd which protested vocally against the newspaper's publication.

Makeshift Newspapers. Notwithstanding these precautions, one of the objectors, representing himself as a printer, managed to slip into the plant and succeeded in smashing the first page form just before the first edition was ready for the press.

It is stated that the information lent heart to the Daily Express and the Times, both of which went to press with small sheets at one o'clock this morning.

The Daily Express was handed set for the first time in a quarter of a century, and the sheets were pulled from the proof press. The Times was typewritten and mimeographed on sheets nine by four-and-a-half inches.

These three newspapers succeeded in epitomizing the situation but showed clearly that the information American newspapers were getting through their foreign correspondents was better and far more complete than England's.

Canadians Aid Strikers. News that the Canadian trades and labor congress was prepared to provide financial assistance for the British strikers was welcomed at strike headquarters, where money for carrying on the strike was one of the chief concerns of those in control of the national walk-out.

It is stated that funds now available are not likely to last longer than a week, as the Trade Unions Congress is forced to feed approximately 12,000,000 persons, including wives and children of the strikers.

As a counterblast to the British Gazette, the Trade Union Congress ordered the Daily Herald, the Labor organ, to resume publication as soon as possible.

Despite the dense fog, which is hourly growing worse, the government has ordered all gas and electric street lights turned off to save power. The only street illumination is the pale shaft of light that falls here and there from some window.

A disjuncting rain adds to the gloom and discomfort. Most Londoners remained in their homes and in comparison to yesterday's mobs the streets were comparatively deserted.

Power House Must Quit. In the midst of the fog, making London almost pitch dark, the Electrical Union workers of the London power stations went on strike. The government immediately issued a ban on all drivers of motor cars.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mirror, published a new sheet today, containing a five-line editorial urging the public to "support the government and stand fast."

London, May 5.—The situation in the East End of London quieted down this afternoon when the strikers were advised that the government has a large number of troops, equipped with ball cartridges, prepared to go into action if the mobs persist in violence.

The government this afternoon broadcast a statement that the strikers are interfering throughout the country with volunteer motor truck and bus drivers.

The government, it is understood, is considering action to prevent the publication of a strike newspaper from the plant of the Daily Herald, under the regulation giving the police power to seize any printed matter which is calculated to interfere with transit or locomotion or cause sedition or mutiny.

Two Train Wrecks. Two train wrecks were reported tonight, as the result of the use of volunteer crews and the lack of proper signals.

An empty milk train was wrecked at Burton-on-Trent. A passenger train crashed through crossing gates at Delphinton, Scotland, but proceeded on its journey undamaged.

Strike Not Breaking. The general strike is not breaking down, it is not even cracking, Tom Shaw, former minister of labor in the MacDonald Cabinet, declared this afternoon in denying reports circulated in the United States that the strike is beginning to crack.

"Our greatest difficulty to keep the strike from spreading to undesired extents," said Shaw. "We are finding it difficult to keep men, who have not yet been called out, at their work."

Shaw also denied reports of secret peace negotiations. Standing Pat. The government still stands on its original ultimatum that there can be no negotiations until the general strike is called off and the labor leaders are standing pat on their insistence that the strike must go on until there is a definite promise of successful negotiations.

Police Riot Sticks. Four thousand riot sticks have been sent to the police in the East End.

The Daily Mail, the first newspaper forced to suspend by the strike, issued an edition of two single sheets this afternoon. One page was mimeographed and the other was printed. The paper contained an editorial urging the government to immediately arrest the strike leaders.

RAID STREET CARS. Leeds Mob Hurls Brick and Injures Passengers. Leeds, Eng., May 5.—An ugly situation was created here today when several thousand strikers attacked street cars operated by non-union workers. The mob smashed the car windows with bricks and injured several passengers.

Police reserves were called out and rushed the strikers, who returned the attack and the police were forced to use their batons.

BLOCKS STRIKE ORGAN. Government Turns Off Power, Will Seize Typed Issue. London, May 5.—The government this afternoon took drastic steps to prevent the publication of a strike newspaper from the plant of the Daily Herald.

Government officials turned off all electric power from the Daily Herald plant, and it is understood, is prepared to seize any mimeographed or typewritten issues that may be put out.

STRIKERS FINED. Ragging the Bobbies Costs London Printer Ten Dollars. London, May 5.—James Mills, a striking printer, was fined $10 today in Bow street court for "insulting behavior towards the police." Mills was charged with having attacked the driver of an automobile carrying the "British Gazette."

Three leaders of a mob of 500 which attempted to storm the West Ham police station were arraigned, charged with interfering with traffic. The police witnesses declared that after the arrests had been made that a mob had attempted to storm the police station, demanding the release of the men.

One of the men, who was charged with inciting the mob, was fined $10, and the magistrate observed that his conduct was "silly but dangerous."

MEAT SHORTAGE. Supply at Nottingham Falls, Transport Inadequate. Nottingham, Eng., May 5.—The first food shortage as the result of the general strike was reported here today. A scarcity of meat has arisen and supplies coming in by train and road are inadequate to meet the demands.

MAJESTIC SAILS. Has Full Crew But Clerks Loaded the Baggage. Southampton, Eng., May 5.—The White Star liner Majestic, bound for New York with a full crew today, the baggage had been loaded by clerks in the company's office.

STRIKE LAW INVOKED. Man Jailed Under Special Power of Proclamation. Manchester, Eng., May 5.—Richard Stoker was today sentenced to two months' imprisonment under regulations issued under the authority of the King's proclamation of a State of Emergency.

Stoker was charged with acts calculated to cause disaffection among the military. He was arrested while en route to Glasgow with alleged seditious literature.

DENY PEACE PARLEYS. Meetings of Thomas and Hogg Without Significance. London, May 5.—Reports that secret conferences are under way to bring about a general resumption of negotiations to end the general strike were denied today both in labor and government circles.

These erroneous reports are probably based on the fact that J. H. Thomas, labor leader, and Sir Douglas Hogg, attorney-general

READY TO NEGOTIATE SAYS TRADE CONGRESS

London, May 5.—"The door is open for negotiations so far as we are concerned," said an official statement issued by the Trades Union Congress at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. "Meanwhile the strike is very efficiently in being."

The Congress announced that offers of financial assistance have been received from American, Dutch, German, French and Irish labor organizations.

have been meeting daily informally and in a friendly fashion to discuss the general situation and report any change in attitude on either side. Thus far no progress has been made at these conferences, which are entirely unofficial.

Reports were circulated that Premier Baldwin and J. H. Thomas were to hold a secret conference. No secret is made of the fact that Thomas did see the premier today informally, as he has seen him on several occasions since the strike began. These conversations can in no way be characterized as peace negotiations.

Thomas is the liaison agent between the strikers and the government, and furthermore he has not abandoned his close friendship with members of the Cabinet, simply because he is on the opposite side in the strike dispute.

Canadians Promise Aid. Ottawa, May 5.—The Trade and Labor Congress of Canada, in a statement made public today, promised financial support to the British strikers through the medium of an appeal to members if such action should become necessary.

Ships Guard Newcastle. Newcastle, Eng., May 5.—A destroyer and a submarine have arrived here for guard duty.

Navy Aids Liverpool. Liverpool, Eng., May 5.—Two British warships docked here today and started discharging large cargoes of food supplies.

Stock Market Inactive. London, May 5.—The stock market today had another day of inaction. Business was on a negligible scale and was largely the completion of transactions ordered prior to the general strike call.

Riot at Stoke-on-Trent. Stoke-on-Trent, England, May 5.—Seven thousand persons assembled here this afternoon and attempted to stop vehicular traffic, throwing rocks at buses and cars used for transport. The police charged the mob with their riot sticks and arrested five.

Scatter Manchester Crowd. Manchester, Eng., May 5.—A huge unemployed demonstration here this afternoon was dispersed by the police.

ENGLISH PUBS TO BE CLOSED, IS REPORT. Government to Shut Up All Drinking Places After Tonight. London, May 5.—The general strike will extend to the Englishman's thirst tonight, it is reported. The government is understood to have prepared an order for the closing of all public houses after tonight.

This will be a severe blow to the working men, many of whom consider beer and stout a part of their daily diet.

COMMITTEE APPROVES LAKE-IN WOODS PACT. Washington, May 5.—A House bill carrying into effect the provisions of the "Lake in the Woods" treaty between the United States and Canada, was approved today by the Senate foreign relations committee. The bill would regulate the flow of water in the "Lake in the Woods," which lies along the border between Minnesota and Canada.

3,000 ATTEND FUNERAL OF OSCAR S. STRAUSS. New York, May 5.—Three thousand persons gathered in Temple Bethel today to attend the funeral services for the late Oscar S. Strauss, philanthropist and former diplomat.

More than two thousand other friends and acquaintances, unable to enter the church because of the crowd, stood in the street during the services.

FRANC SINKS AGAIN HIT BY BRITISH CRISIS. Paris, May 5.—The franc dropped to a new low level today, being quoted at 31.72 franc to the dollar. The sharp decline was attributed to the British strike. Premier Briand today called a special cabinet meeting for tomorrow to consider measures against the "abnormal and excessive fall of the franc."

STAMFORD MAN HURT BY ROCK FROM BLAST. Stamford, May 5.—Samuel Ippolito is in a serious condition in Stamford hospital after being hit in the back with a rock during a blasting operation here today.

AWNING BURNS. An awning over the entrance of the Manchester News Shop at Depot Square caught fire at three o'clock this afternoon, just when one seems to know. It set fire to the sign but the chemical soon had it under control.

G. O. Case is improving rapidly at the Hartford hospital following a temporary setback last week. Mr. Case is now able to receive his friends.

INDIANA SENATORS LEAD IN PRIMARIES

Indianapolis, Ind., May 5.—Senator James E. Watson held a lead of approximately two and a half to one over Claris Adams, young Indianapolis attorney, for the Republican long-term senatorial nomination, on the face of unofficial returns from more than one third of all the precincts in Indiana this morning.

Reports from 1,275 out of the state's 3,551 precincts give Watson 66,822; A. G. Graham of South Bend, 21,800; Oswald Ryan, of Anderson, 12,000 and Ward B. Hines, of Indianapolis, 1,200.

No Democrat Chosen. Unofficial returns from 1,049 precincts all over the state indicated that the contest for the Democratic long term nomination for senator would be settled by the party's state convention here on June 3, since none of the candidates seemed able to gain the necessary majority of all votes cast in yesterday's primary.

Although returns from the 13 congressional districts were tardy in being reported, indications were that all incumbents seeking renomination would be victorious. J. Clyde Martin, of Palmyra, who recently was "convicted" of "recalcitrant heresy" by the Church of Christ at Palmyra, apparently had clinched the Republican nomination for Congress from the third district.

N. Y. PAYS $846 PRICE FOR VOTING MACHINES. State Contracts for 3,000 Jamestown Devices for Which the City Must Settle. Albany, N. Y., May 5.—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state, today signed a contract with the automatic registering machine company of Jamestown, N. Y., for three thousand voting machines for New York City at a cost of $846 for each machine.

Last year, Mrs. Knapp purchased 75 machines from the same concern for use in New York.

PRESSER'S PAROLE REVOKED BY BOARD. Ossining, N. Y., May 5.—The State Board of Parole today dashed Izzy Presser's hopes for liberty. The board decided to revoke its previous decision to release the so-called "Czar of Sing Sing prison" May 29, on parole.

Seven Troublous Years For the British Empire

Critical Problems at Home and in Colonies Have Racked the Commonwealth Ever Since the War, Culminating Now in Industrial Chaos.

BY MILTON BRONNER

London, May 5.—The great general strike comes as the climax of seven of the most troublous peace-time years in the history of Great Britain.

The struggle into which the British Empire has been precipitated has been brewing since shortly after the armistice. In rapid succession, the government has faced crisis after crisis, both within the compact British Isles and among far-flung colonial possessions.

Cabinets have fallen, with the people groping for a solution of the paralyzing problems by trying out liberal, labor and conservative administrations.

The present situation is admittedly the most serious in the history of Great Britain since the war.

Obviously, the troubles of the last several years have not tended to strengthen the solidarity of the British Empire, and the present crisis may go far towards weakening still more this unique international structure.

At present Premier Baldwin has said that both the coal miners and the coal operators are to blame for the present situation.

Colonial Problem. A general strike is in effect and the government must step in and protect the public.

The British troubles began with the coal strike of 1919. This strike shook the nation only slightly, in comparison with the present one.

The miners won their fight against restoration of pre-war scales, but the country was left a trifle shaky.

The present strike was a symptom of the situation in all British industry. The war has dislocated the wheels in too severe a manner for immediate repair.

To meet the growing discontent of the working man the government was forced to adopt a system of unemployment "dole."

Another coal strike was called. Workers in other trades announced they would strike in sympathy.

But extended patient negotiations by the government averted the peril. The coal miners struck but the other workers finally agreed not to follow them.

Side by side with this was the Irish problem. Alternately fanned into flames and checked, for the past two decades, it broke out afresh with civil war in all its bitterness.

Throughout 1922, 1923 and 1924 the trouble continued, with native leaders being executed, British officials being murdered, and mobs being "dispersed" with machine gun fire.

This strife had its corollary in Egypt, which blazed into the flame of revolt in 1924. There was an armed uprising in the Sudan that was quelled by British troops.

A British governor was killed and British battleships were sent scurrying to the scene. It ended with Britain agreeing nominally, at least, to an independent Egypt.

Then, last year, came mutual growing back and forth between England and Turkey over the Mosul oil region in Mesopotamia. Turkey massed troops on the border and for a time it looked as though war were inevitable.

The present strike of the coal miners was scheduled originally for last July. The government, in a frantic effort to gain time, nationalized the mines to maintain wartime wage levels.

How To Treat Shock

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING, Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service. The word shock, like many other English words has various meanings. A very commonly accepted meaning is a sudden and violent sensation such as produced by a plunge into icy cold water.

Electric shock is still another form of this often serious and even dangerous condition. Signs of Shock. When a person is suffering from shock, his face is pale and he has an anxious expression.

Usually he is perfectly quiet and will not move unless disturbed. Breathing is shallow and feeble; the pulse is rapid and weak.

When the conditions of shock is observed send for a doctor at once. Place the person in a comfortable position with his head low.

Remove from the patient's mouth all foreign bodies, such as false teeth, tobacco or gum. Wrap him in warm blankets or in warm clothing.

Stimulating Heart. A light hot-water bottle, applied in cloth or paper and placed over the heart is a good stimulant.

If the patient is unconscious do not give him anything by mouth, but pour aromatic spirits of ammonia on a cloth and place it under his nose.

Although shock is dangerous and commonly follows injuries, it must not be forgotten that the person suffering from shock may require treatment for something still more dangerous.

WAPPING. Mrs. Reginald Cone and two children Philip and Harriet who have been spending a week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Collins, returned to her home in Windsor last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Knapp of Manchester, but formerly of this village, who have been spending the winter in Mount Dora, Florida, have returned and have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Byron West for a few days.

Mrs. George Hills was the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Pauline Lehman of Steel Road, West Hartford, the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Strong were the week-end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Platt of Hartford, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. George Hills.

The Federated Workers will hold their meeting this week Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred H. Adams instead of with Miss Etta Stoughton as Miss Stoughton is just recovering from a grip cold.

22 WET AUTOISTS LOSE THEIR LICENSES

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are twenty-two names on the list. The case of one was appealed. Two were Connecticut operators arrested in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

ANOTHER TWO FEATURE BILL FOR THE CIRCLE

Jacqueline Logan in "White Mice" and Tom Tyler in "The Arizona Struck" come to the Circle tomorrow and Friday. Jacqueline Logan takes the role of a flashing Spanish senorita in the Associated Exhibitors' production of "White Mice," which comes to the Circle tomorrow and Friday.

It is a role she professes to find more than usually agreeable and in which she is aided by the fact that she is opposite to Ernest Hilliard, Lucius Henderson and Harlan Knight in principal parts.

The Arizona Struck. Tom Tyler's latest Western vehicle is an original story by F. A. E. Pine. Mr. Pine is best known, however, for the many musical compositions he has written for many of the best London musical revues.

Today the Circle presents Jack Holt in "Sea Horses" and Monte Blue and Marie Prevost in "Other Women's Husbands."

OLD FASHION DANCE CONTEST TOMORROW

Manchester people who enjoy Old Fashion dances will have a feast tomorrow night at the State theater here when a set of six couples from the Williammantic meets a set of six couples from Manchester for the championship.

The winning set will get prizes given by the State theater management. Judges of the contest will be principals from the vaudeville teams that will be playing the State tomorrow night.

The contest tomorrow night is the result of a challenge sent to The Herald by one of the Williammantic dancers. It was accepted by John McConville in behalf of the set in which he dances. The contest will be given in conjunction with the regular vaudeville and picture program at the State.

WILLIAM FERGUSON HEADS COMMITTEE

Chosen Honorary Chairman of Permanent Memorial Day Board.

Comrade William Ferguson of Drake Post No. 4, G. A. R., has been chosen honorary chairman of the permanent Memorial Day committee. Stephen Beebe of Edvich chairman. A committee of seven was named for the permanent committee, as follows: William Ferguson, representing the Civil War veterans; Stephen Beebe, Sons of Veterans; Michael Spanish War Veterans; McDonald, World War veterans; Town Treasurer C. H. Waddell for the Board of Selectmen. They were also empowered to draw up a set of by-laws at the citizens' meeting held at the Recreation Center Monday evening.

It is the understanding that the permanent committee will not take charge of the coming Memorial Day observation, a committee having been appointed previously for that purpose. It was also the desire of those who attended the citizens' meeting that as long as any veteran of the Civil War lived he should be named chairman of the permanent committee.

Three members of the joint Memorial Day committee of Hartford, which is incorporated, were present at the recent meeting. They answered questions and gave advice as to how to proceed with the work in Manchester.

A kitchen shower was given in honor of Miss Alire Wehr by Helen Fitzgerald and Mazie Vanderweg at the home of the former on Monday evening. Miss Wehr was the recipient of many useful gifts.

Bankruptcy Petition. New Haven, May 5.—Roderick G. Dion, a Williammantic butcher and grocer, today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court here. Liabilities are $23,505 and assets $23,484.

Miss Wehr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Wehr of 128 South Main street and will be married in June to Dr. John J. Allison of this town.

NORGE LEAVES ON FLIGHT TO BERGEN. Leningrad, May 5.—The dirigible Norge of the Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar expedition hopped off for Spitzbergen, the Arctic base of the expedition, at 10:35 this morning.

Hops Off at Leningrad at 10.35 on Last Leg of Her Preliminary Voyage. The high winds which had held the Norge in its hangar for the past week, after it had been prepared to leave, died down this morning and only light breezes prevailed.

Red Army Aids. The hop-off was accomplished without difficulty, about two hundred soldiers of the Red army assisting the airship's crew. There was no ceremony. Several Soviet government officials were present and after they had shaken hands with Commander Umberto Nobile and other officers of the ship the signal was given.

Forecasts indicated favorable weather promised for today. Advice from Spitzbergen stated that all was in readiness for the arrival of the Norge.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1926.

BLUNDERS.

"She blunders, and she blunders, and she blunders, but—she always blunders victoriously in the end."

It was in 1917 that Rabbi Wise, speaking in Hartford with the purpose of combatting the flood of insidious anti-British war propaganda then flowing through the country, thus very truthfully described an historic characteristic of Britain.

There is in the British character a certain serene faith that things will come out right, somehow—so serene that there is no consciousness of any faith at all, merely tacit recognition of something that with the growth of time has come to take on the aspect of unchanging and unchangeable fact.

Perhaps it is this sublime confidence that has caused most of Britain's blunders—that has kept her from seeing, on more than one historic occasion, pitfalls in her path that would have fairly howled with warnings to any other people.

She blundered into Lucknow. She blundered into Spion Kop and Mafeking. She blundered into Khartoum, she blundered into Ypres and into that ghastly horror Gallipoli—all because of that curious will-blindness that refuses to recognize that England is subject to the same set of mathematical laws that rules the rest of the universe.

And calmly and unsurprised—and it is much to be suspected because of the same curious inability to recognize defeat as to recognize peril—she blundered serenely out of all these disasters and every other disaster in her long and brave history.

Now, because she has blundered consistently for six years in her post-war policy, because she has shut her eyes as usual to the stern fact that the road she was following led deeper and deeper into the morass, because she has paltered with an economic mess instead of crystallizing and molding it into stability, she has blundered into a situation which would bring white faced panic to any other nation in the world, our own by no means excepted.

CENTER STREET.

Redemption of Center street, west to Twin Hills, from the condition of devastation which it now presents for the negotiation of the motorists of Manchester, Hartford and the rest of the country, seems now to be a matter of the immediate future instead of a dream of years to come. The deal has been made, the Connecticut Company and the State Highway department are prepared to do their part and nothing remains but for the citizens of Manchester to put their O. K. on the agreement by authorizing the $80,000 bond issue which is to be the town's contribution to the cost of the enterprise.

There would scarcely seem to be room for discussion as to the wisdom of the proceeding. A good deal more money than the interest on the bonds plus the sinking fund installment could be spent on that stretch of much-traveled highway, every year, during the life of these bonds, in patchwork repairs merely to keep the road passable. And at the end we should have nothing but the job to do permanently after all.

There is only one way in which to handle these important paving propositions, and that is to do them permanently—to build the best possible roads which will practically keep themselves in repair, or on which, at least, comparatively insignificant sums need to be spent for maintenance; and spread the first cost over a period of years, instead of using the same money; a bit at a time, in an everlasting struggle to just keep the roads open.

The difference in the two systems is the difference between the best of roads, with all the advantages to the town and all the economy in vehicle upkeep to its people, and bad roads that cost, in the end, quite as much or more.

Manchester can have only one word on the bond issue, and that word is an emphatic "Yes!"

GIRLS' CAMPS.

A Brooklyn young woman has achieved publicity by writing to President Coolidge, protesting against the "favoritism" to young men involved in the system of military training camps through which the government fits a certain part of its youth to become army officers in the event of national mobilization.

Girls, too, ought to have the advantages of similar training—taught to shoot and hike and live in camp, etc., this advanced young woman declares. Of course at government expense.

Oddly enough, the idea has attracted a deal of attention and a good many persons who ought to know better have smiled brightly at it and said: "Good; that's the spirit!"

If any state in the Union sees fit to establish a system of outdoor training for its young women—blessings be upon it for a wise and progressive commonwealth. There isn't the slightest doubt that if every girl in the country were to have the benefit of a month of disciplined outdoor culture every year for three or four or more, in her adolescence and later, the result would be of incalculable advantage to the physique and moral fabric of the nation.

But it is decidedly and absolutely none of the affair of the United States government to engage in such an enterprise.

Only one justification exists for the national military training camps, and that is the justification of national defense. The camps train men for soldiering, for fighting in the country's need. It is a matter of national necessity that they should be so trained and prepared. And right there the duty and the power of the federal government cease—unless we are to give ourselves over utterly to a mawkish and independence-sapping paternalism.

There are already a thousand propositions each calculated to increase the evil of leaning on the government. We are in no need whatever of this one as the thousand and first.

RADIO CONTROL.

The very evident determination of the Senate to create a radio commission for the national control of this essentially national activity, and to make that commission a quasi-independent body answerable to Congress, like the Interstate Commerce Commission, seems to be a logical one if it is ever logical to take administrative functions out of the hands of the administration and repose them in the legislative branch of the government—which a good many people doubt.

It is at least probable, however, that the logic of the proceeding has less influence upon senators than a very definite determination to knock Brother Hoover off the driver's seat of the wireless wagon.

There is a wide, deep and dark suspicion in a great many quarters that Hoover would very much like to keep the mechanism of the nation's broadcasting in his own hands, lest he might, perchance, decide to definitely aspire to his chief's position in the White House.

know whether he will still want to, two years from next month. And if Coolidge should decide to call it a day, in 1928, Hoover would have as good a right as anybody to seek the Republican nomination—which at this time looks like nothing but the presidency itself.

In such event, the usefulness of absolute control over the whole broadcasting function of the country to any candidate so placed might be very great indeed, and put all other candidates at a decided disadvantage.

Congress may not be overstocked with statesmen but it is full of good politicians; and not many of them are particularly Hoover men.

By reason of which it is probable that any chance of radio control remaining with the Department of Commerce is about big enough to be perceived under a very high powered microscope.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

"I eat what I like. I drink what I like. I am a worry."

Washington, May 5.—If Hammond worries, it's safe to say it's because he peculiarly so constitutes that he enjoys worrying and worries voluntarily, for the fun of it, thereby helping to keep himself young.

The impression I got, from a series of talks I had with him some time ago, is that he has his worries under admirable control. He eats what he likes but I don't suppose he eats too much. Having a thirst to slake, he slakes it, but I've no idea he's excessive in his addiction to lemonade or sarsaparilla or pop, or whatever it is he drinks. Just so with worry. I'll bet he does exactly enough of it to get the right kick—and no more.

Probably not another individual alive has had the amazing range of personal contacts with his fellow-men that John Hays Hammond has had.

Others may have had more. Chauncey M. Depew estimates that he's had 10,000,000. He's had 21 more years than John Hays Hammond to have them in. But Chauncey's have been largely with the upper crust. They haven't all been "sassy" contacts, to be sure. As an old railroador, he must have had acquaintance with hard-fisted working-men, too—but respectable working-men.

John Hays Hammond's contacts have ranged all the way up or down the line, as you prefer to reckon, from kings, like George V of England, and residents, such as any you could name, from Count Coolidge, to common like Wild Bill Hickok or bandits, like Jesse James.

When was Chauncey M. Depew ever sentenced to dangle at the end of a rope, as Gerald Chapman did? Never, will say, John Hays Hammond was. He didn't dangle, he had the excitement of hearing the sentence pronounced.

A snappy career.

John Hays Hammond, physically is a little multimillionaire. His manner is mild. He has a shaggy, gray mustache. He speaks with an occasional peculiar little click which suggests a few teeth.

You seldom see him at a revolution, albeit an unsuccessful one, for a man who has faced death, on the scaffold and otherwise, on every continent.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK, President, The American Nature Association.

The sucker, most despised of fishes, has lent its name to a class of people who are supposed to be devoid of sense that they form the legitimate prey of whoever desires to obtain their money.

But though we must admit that the sucker's method of making a living does indicate a low type of sportsmanship, yet it surely understands conservation, for it subsists on food that is disdained by the more sporty fishes, and has other traits that mark it as a fish by no means devoid of intelligence nor understanding of praise.

In the spring most suckers run up the brooks from the deeper waterways where they have wintered, for the season has come when they must lay their eggs, and for this they seek the gravelly shallows of the tributaries.

Here they seek a mate and prepare a nest for the expected eggs. After selecting a site usually at the head of a shallow riffle they make a mound of small stones. The peculiar mouth of the creature is particularly well fitted for this work.

Sallying out from the nest site the fish selects a pebble which by suction can easily be lifted from its bed, and it bears it to the selected spot where it is dropped.

No, you wouldn't, until you catch his hard, cold resolute eye. When you do—in to get a more accurate estimate of him—here's a remarkable old-young man.

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 5.—See-sawing up and down Broadway I did stop at a combination shine parlor and hat cleaning emporium. And in a great glass case there were many hats which, the proprietor did tell me, were left by folk who never came back after them. And since many of them had been there upward of a year, and since the cost of salvaging is but 25 cents, I am led to wonder whether befall the people who left them to be cleaned?

Suggestions of mystery and romance seem to lie at every hand. Fifty men and women leave hats to be cleaned and never come back. Were they suddenly stricken? Did such ill-fortune come upon them that they seemed a real sum? Or did they merely decide to get new hats? Then why leave them in the first place?

Another mystery: I scan the want ads in the newspaper and read "Lost, between night club and residence, a jewel-handled dagger. . . . A jewel-handled dagger. . . . And why should one carry such a weapon to a night club? . . . Suppose I should pick up another paper and read of a mysterious crime. . . . And a jewel-handled dagger found beside the body!—Yet someone tells me there is a dearth of detective stories. . . .

Suckers

Numberless similar trips are made, each adding its product to the pile until a mound of gravel, a foot or more high and two or three feet broad, is reared in mid-stream.

On this the female deposits her eggs and watches over them until they hatch, driving away any fish that seeks to devour them. This is one reason why the tribe of suckers is so numerous.

IVANHOE— Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

THE STORY THUS FAR—The story is laid in the England of Richard I. Gurth, a swineherd, and Wamba, a jester, are accosted by a party of knights seeking the castle of Cedric, the Saxon. The knights are coldly received, and their leader, Brian the Templar, incurs Cedric's ire by his admiration of Cedric's daughter, Rowena. A Jewish stranger enters the hall, and the knights discuss the war in the Holy Land. They comment on the brave deeds of the crusaders, and Brian announces that a knight named Ivanhoe "occasioned my falling." He added that he would seek to joust Ivanhoe on the latter's return. The Jew flees the castle as Brian plans to seize him.

TRAVELING RAPIDLY, THE PALMER AND THE MONEY LENDER SOON REACHED THE OUTSKIRTS OF SHEFFIELD. HERE THEN WE PART," SAID THE PALMER. "NOT TILL YOU HAVE HAD MY THANKS," SAID ISAAC. "MONEY AND RECOMPENSE ARE REQUIRED, NOT OF ME, BUT OF THE KING. GO THEE THY WAY AND I GO MINE." "STAY, STAY," SAID THE PALMER. "I WOULD ENJOY THE TOURNAMENT, ACCEPTING THE SCROLLS. THIS MOMENT IS FOR A HORSE AND ARMOR!"

WHAT FIEND PROMPTED THAT GUEST? ASKED THE PALMER HASTILY. THE OTHER INFORMED THE PALMER THAT HE KNEW OF THE KNIGHT'S CHAIN OF GOLD CONCEALED IN THE PALMER'S COAT, AND PROCEEDED TO WRITE A SCROLL, WHICH ON PRESENTATION TO A CERTAIN RICH MAN IN LEISURE, WOULD ENTITLE THE PALMER TO STEED AND ARMOR FOR THE TOURNAMENT. ACCEPTING THE SCROLLS, THE PALMER AND THE JEW PARTED.

STOP DANDRUFF!

BEAUTIFY HAIR WITH DANDERINE

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments. Try this!

Hair stops coming out and every particle of dandruff disappears.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can find a single trace of dandruff. One application dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stops itching and falling hair.

Furthermore Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It gives life to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow strong and beautiful.

Bobbed hair has made the girls aware of the dangerous effects of unsightly dandruff which is now more apparent than ever since the hair is short.

Danderine is a sure way to get rid of dandruff and immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and keep that dandruff out of your hair and off your shoulders.—Adv.

RELIABLE TIRES MAKE FOR SAFE MOTORING

"Upon the tires of an automobile rest a large share of the responsibility for motoring safety."

This statement was made by Mr. Hansen, Manchester Firestone dealer, who gave a brief explanation of the part played by tires in braking an automobile.

"Unless the tires are so constructed as to transfer the action of the brakes to the road surface, the braking will be largely nullified and the car will slide, skid and skid."

TRADE SCHOOL SCORES 24 TO 4 VICTORY; THURZ IN LIMELIGHT

To Play Centerfield

Latter Pitches Great Game Besides Getting Four Hits, One a Double With the Sacks Loaded.

"Lefty" St. John, slugging outfielder, will pasture in centerfield for the Shamrocks Sunday afternoon at Hekey's Grove when the New Departures of Elmwood appear here.

Instructors and students at the local State Trade school are in a jovial mood today. And they have every reason in the world to be in that state of mind when one stops to think of the overwhelming victory which the school baseball team scored over the Kingswood school in West Hartford yesterday afternoon. Kingswood, it must be taken into consideration, holds an 8 to 3 victory over the New Britain State Trade school. Manchester's greatest rival, but Manchester trimmed the Kingswood school to the tune of 24 to 4—a game that had to be called off in the seventh inning on account of being one-sided.

Thurz was given his first test of the season on the mound yesterday and he acquitted himself in a commendable manner. Had his support not wavered at times, Thurz might have scored a whitewash victory. In addition to pitching a masterful game, Thurz had a big day with the willow, smouting out four hits, two singles, a double and a triple. The two-bagger came with the sacks loaded. Pospisil also whaled out a triple. Piccin and Connelly rapped out doubles. The score by innings: Kingswood 205 345 5—24 Batteries: Manchester—Thurz and Ball; Kingswood—Williams and Buell and Burr.

GREAT TRACK SEASON PREDICTED BY EXPERT

Ohio and Drake Relay Results Bear Out Coach's Prediction.

(By Art Carlson)

"You can look for a record-breaking track and field season this year. Unless I'm badly mistaken, many present big carnival marks will be erased—and possibly a few world records."

Those were some of the remarks made to me by a prominent middle western college coach the night before the recent Ohio relays at Columbus. And the very next day the cheering commenced. Not only in the Buckeye games but in the Kansas fiestas as well.

One world record was broken, another tied, while several meet marks fell. All this in the inaugural clashes in this section of the country.

New World Mark Nebraska's half-mile relay quartet established a new world record at Lawrence by running the event in 1 m. 29.8 s. It clipped four-tenths of a second off the previous figure made by Illinois last year.

Roland Locke, sensational Nebraska sprinter turned the 100-yard dash in "9.3", swalling the mark held jointly by Charley Padock, Dan Kelly and Howard Drew. Five record meets also tumbled at the Kansas fiestas.

At the Ohio get-together any number of startling performances were chalked up. Anson of Ohio State leaped to a new mark in the high jump, clearing the bar at 6 ft. 3 1/8 in. He barely failed to get over at "6.4."

Guthrie, another Buckeye brilliant, shattered the meet record in the 120-yard high hurdles, taking them in 15 seconds flat. Guthrie, incidentally, whipped his arch-rival, Werner of Illinois, by three strides.

In the mile team race Wisconsin trimmed Ohio State and Chicago. Chapman, the Badger star, was clocked in 4 m. 26.2 s., a new record.

Illinois hung up a new mark in the distance medley, while Michigan did the same thing in the mile relay. In the former event I was much impressed with the performance of Stelman of Illinois. He ran a thrilling race, coming up from the rear to pass Kennedy, Ohio State, and Little, Indiana, on the final turn.

Several other records were smashed, despite the fact that regular football weather prevailed, a cold penetrating wind sweeping across the enclosure during the festivities.

Spirited Races While Deifart Hubbard's time for the 100-yard canter was not lowered, Hester, of Michigan, ran a nifty race, winning in 10.1. The Wolverines, by the way, capped all three places in this event, Kelly getting second and Leschinsky third. The result gave other Western Conference schools something to feast in future meets and Big Ten followers much to talk about.

"What'd I tell you," essayed the middle western mentor, as I passed him on my way out of the main stand. "Michigan's a power, isn't it? Did you hear the records fall?" (I readily admitted I had.) "Well, that's just a starter," was his parting shot.

And what an auspicious start it was!

Elmo Mantelli Off HIGH SCHOOL NINE Turns in His Suit After Middletown Game—The Reasons.

Elmo Mantelli will not play with the South Manchester High school baseball team this season, it was given out yesterday by Coach Breckenridge. The popular athlete who starred so brilliantly in basketball, has turned in his baseball suit.

It is understood that Mantelli did not report for practice at some of the sessions held at the Stadium. As a result the coach informed Mantelli he would not be used in the game against Middletown last Saturday. Mantelli did not even show up for the game and later turned in his suit.

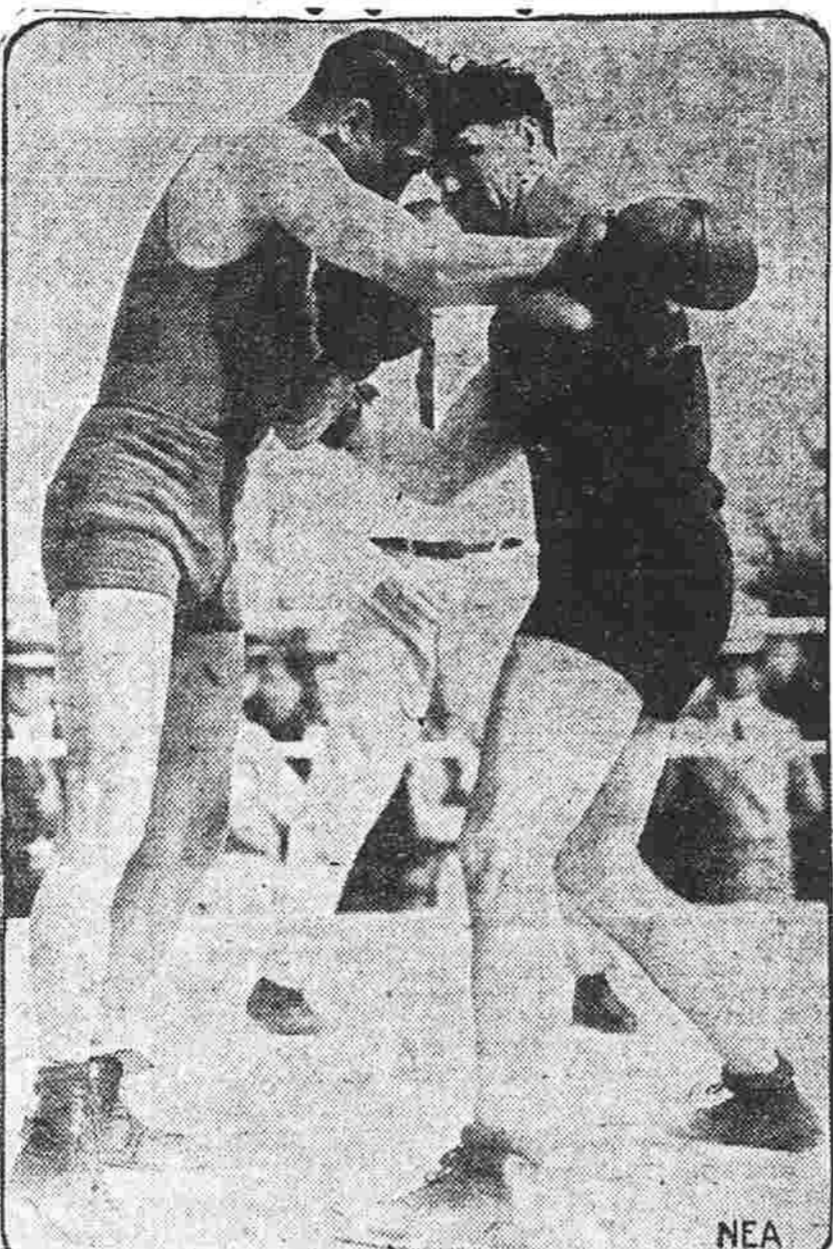

Mantelli's knee has not fully recovered from the effects of the injury at Tutts and at the practice sessions he did attend, he did not join with the rest in sliding practice.

His decision to quit the baseball team, however, should only strengthen his knee for the next basketball season, providing he does not play ball with amateur clubs.

THE REFEREE

Did Bill Johnston and Peck Griffin ever hold the national doubles title in tennis?—G. H. L. Yes, in 1915 and 1920. What was Joe Bush's pitching record in 1924?—F. D. W. Won 17, lost 16. Did McDonald Smith finish next to Hagen in the 1924 British open golf championship?—G. H. L. No, Smith was third.

We Hope He Means It

Jack Dempsey is taking his training at Hendersonville, N. C., seriously, this first and exclusive picture would indicate. Here he is warming up his in-fighting tactics to the doubtful amusement of a sparring partner, Tillie "Kid" Herman.

ALL THEY NEED NOW IS MONEY TO MATCH HAGEN AND MITCHELL

Side Bets Are All Right in Their Place But the Golf Stars Themselves Must Eat.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH New York, May 5.—Aboard the Aquitania as it rode the seas England today was a check for $2,500 that will make the world's match play golf championship affair between Walter Hagen and Abe Mitchell an official and finite proposition, provided the promoters find something they can use for additional money. This will be quite essential if the British desire Hagen to be a party to the proceedings, he having become somewhat averse to the use of money through long experience.

The check was posted by Albert W. Wallace, Detroit sportsman and will ride with the idea that Hagen is destined to win. This will be a great thing for Mr. Wallace but practically without satisfaction to Mr. Hagen, unless someone crosses his palm with silver.

How About the Boys? The British half of the $5,000 side bet has been advanced by the London publication known as Golf Illustrated but the boys must have something for the poor box. Therefore, it will be suggested that an admission be charged for the hole match and that the proceeds be divided equitably among Hagen, Mitchell and what have you. Under these conditions Hagen will play golf until they tell him to stop.

He will "go" for $1,000, cash money, the writer has been given to understand, and the promoters can keep the rest, if any. That's the kind of a loose-leaf specimen our Mr. Hagen is.

He, further, will agree to any and all conditions, which at present call for 36 holes in London, 36 holes in Glasgow and let the best man win. He thinks he can't go wrong. And why not?

Best We Have He has proved himself the greatest match player on the American continent by virtue of his victories in the P. G. A. championships during the last two years and his 12-up-and-11-to-play gallop against Bobby Jones in Florida. He already holds one decision over Mitchell, gained after the latter had stepped out to a lead of four up.

The latter easily is the best of the foreign crop at match play, so the thing really is a championship to every intent, purpose and demand.

Originally, the thought to involve the principals themselves in a side bet but Hagen was looking out the window with marked absorption, perhaps he was thinking of that night in Florida several years ago when he doctored $3,000 on the roulette table at a single sitting. Anyhow, Hagen has got to the point where he wouldn't bet you that Barnum had a circus.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT, WITH GOLFERS' MAGAZINE, CHICAGO. WALTER HAGEN—WATCH FOOT ACTION.

Be sure that you are set properly before attempting to hit the ball. The feet play an important part in the address of the ball, in the back swing, the top of the swing and at the finish. Some pros have gone so far as to say that the action of the feet is everything. This is not all, of course, but without the proper foot movement there is no chance for the beginner to get very far in learning the game.

Foot action is not only essential in golf, but in every line of sport that I know of. I used to play baseball in my youth and reached the point where I had to decide between professional ball and golf.

I learned the game thoroughly. My specialty was pitching and I soon discovered that my feet had almost as much to do with hurling the ball as my hands. At bat I found that there was everything in the way I handled my feet.

The fielders find this true, too. The first thing a shortstop or baseman is taught is how to stand to receive the ball.

JOHN DUNCAN DUNN—VALUE OF PRACTICE. Generally speaking, if a man is off-his game he may come on again without any other treatment than going out to some quiet part of the course and playing half-shots with the mid-iron, beginning at 25 yards from the hole and working back steadily 25 yards at a time until he comes to the point where he does not do quite so well.

That is the breaking point. Then he must drop back 25 yards and do some more work at that range, remembering all the time how well he had done previously at that distance.

Never think about trouble; only think about your good shots. After, say, another couple of dozen shots, add 25 yards and try it again. By this means you will gradually work back through the three-quarter swing to the full swing with the mid-iron; then you may try your driving iron and perhaps a few shots with your brassie.

If you fall down on your brassie don't go on fighting it, because that is not the way to overcome the difficulty, as you are then destroying confidence, and, when you have lost confidence, you have nothing left.

West Hartford High school, which turned out one of the greatest schoolboy baseball lines in the state last season, will appear at the Stadium to meet the South Manchester High team tomorrow afternoon. Play will start at four o'clock daylight saving time.

Three Veterans Although West Hartford has had an exceptionally fast team for the past two seasons, the team suffered heavily through graduation in June and at present there are but three veterans in the ranks. Nichols, their great pitcher, also graduated. To date the West Hartford team has won only one game in four starts but that does not mean the visitors will prove easy picking for the local team.

West Hartford lost to Loomis Institute 10 to 5 and to Westminster by the same count. The other two games were against Meriden High. Each team won one game on its opponent's field.

Seek Revenge The S. M. H. S. team is not over confident. On the other hand they can well afford not to be in view of the past reputation of the West Hartford beat Manchester 3 to 1 last season in West Hartford and the locals are anxious to even the score. Hartford High also fell prey to West Hartford last season.

Manchester will take the field with the same lineup which faced Middletown here last week resulting in a 14 to 10 victory for the locals. Johnny Wright may be called into service to split the catching assignment and Gauditis or Hand may be summoned for mound duty but otherwise the lineup will remain unchanged.

Coach Breckenridge is saving his ace, Eddie Boyce, for the game against Winsted in that city Saturday and the star twirler will not be called into action against West Hartford unless Gauditis, Hand, or Charter fall to go the route.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS. At Reading, Pa.—Young Buck Doyle, Allentown lightweight, knocked out Willie Ritchie, Newark, in the second round of a scheduled ten round fight. At Union City, N. J.—Sam Sanchez, Mexican bantamweight, out-pouted Joe Clifford, Hoboken, N. J., ten rounds. At Los Angeles.—Fidel La Barba, world's flyweight champion, defeated Emil Paluso, Salt Lake City, 12 rounds.

DIAMOND DUST

The Athletics handed the Yankees another stiff jolt, shelling Sam Jones off the hill and romping home to a ten to five victory. For the first time this season the Yanks have lost two straight.

Chicago crept closer to first place by downing the Tigers, four to two. Sheely starred at bat with four hits.

The Senators got off to a good start against the Red Sox but just lasted to win, eight to seven. Cleveland again whipped St. Louis, eleven to five, the Browns helping out with three errors. The hitting of Spurgeon and Uble supplied the big punch.

Jess Petty, Brooklyn's sensational southpaw, turned back the Braves three to two, for his fifth straight win. The Dodgers won out in the last two frames when all seemed lost save the gate receipts.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
The town gossip of Rochester has speculated for 15 years about the origin and business of HARRY MORTON, rich, attractive, middle-aged bachelor, who dwells with his adopted daughter, AUDREY, in an expensive household in Rochester, and who maintains an apartment in New York, which he visits nearly every week.

A man whom Morton calls SMITH, and who claims to be Audrey's stepfather, appears after an absence of 18 years. Morton hurries him off to a job in South America.

NONA, a beautiful New York girl who is in love with Morton's quartet, with LUIS, whom she is jealous, and is in a rage at Morton. She asks Morton to call on her the next night. He finds a strange young woman there, apparently alone. A man rushes in, denounces him for being with the girl, and demands money. Morton laughs at them; finds Nona hiding in the bedroom. She confesses that she planned the "badger" game. Morton starts to leave.

her in the chair she had just left. Then he returned to his own stool, and leaned back, his fingers clasped around his knees.

"Better tell me all about it," he suggested.

It was a little time before the girl could speak. At last, in halting sentences, she told him what had happened. Jealous of Lois, and of his

"By the way, that girl who tried this badger game on me didn't look any too well fed. Are she and that partner of hers really hard up?"

"Yes," Nona said dully.

Morton drew forth a bill fold, and rapidly flicked from it a little sheaf of bills. "Give this to them," he said. "I'll take them to London. And tell them to do a better job over there than they did in here tonight—and vice versa. I'll stick to their own profession."

Nona took the money, and watched him with heavy eyes as he went out the door, and closed it.

The telephone rang when Morton was at breakfast the next morning. His butler answered.

"There's a lady downstairs, who has telephoned four or five times now," he said. "She's been waiting there since seven o'clock. She wouldn't give her name, so I told them to wait until you were up, and had your breakfast."

"Is Miss Morton up?" Morton asked.

"I'll see, sir."

The butler went slowly into the stairs, and up the steps. Presently he returned.

"Miss Morton's maid says she is nearly dressed."

"Take word to Miss Morton not to come down stairs until I send for her," Morton ordered. "Tell her there will be someone here whom I do not wish her to meet. When you have done that, tell the woman downstairs that she may come up."

The butler went away upon his mission. A few minutes later, as Morton was taking his final sup of coffee, he reappeared.

"The lady is here," he said.

Morton nodded, and followed him. As he went into the large room, there was the crinkle of a smile about his eyes. He betrayed no astonishment when he saw Nona standing in the center of the room. The butler withdrew as Morton nodded cheerfully.

"A little early for your morning calls," he said. "You'll find this chair comfortable."

"Don't treat me like that, Harry," she said earnestly. "I don't want to sit down. I haven't slept since I left me last night."

"There were deep dark circles under her eyes, and lines of fatigue had drawn themselves from her nostrils down past the corners of her mouth. She had used her lipstick and her rouge, but the effect was ghastly against the pallor that edged the carmine spots. There was a droop to her figure, too, an inexpressible weariness in her voice."

"I want you to forgive me, Harry," she said. "In the name of heaven, can't you forgive me? Don't be so cold to me! Don't keep that shell around you—you're killing me, Harry."

Half automatically, she obeyed his gesture, and took the chair he offered. Her eyes were not on him now, but were fixed vacantly on the floor. She went on, her tone monotonous, as if all hope had been withdrawn from her.

"You don't understand what you're doing to me," she said. "You wouldn't do it, if you did know. You aren't cruel, but you are being cruel to me."

Morton made a quick gesture. "I haven't said an unkind word, Nona," he said.

She nodded, slowly. "No, you haven't," she said unhappily. "I

"I just wanted you for myself."

Morton turned.

Nona was on her feet, now holding to him with both hands. The other girl, still in her thin kimono, was picking up her fur coat. Her man companion, edging unobtrusively, had retreated to the far corner of the room.

"You two prunes got out of here!" Nona cried, furious, looking at the girl and the stranger.

Morton set down his walking stick, and took Nona's hands from his coat. He started to speak, but the young woman in the kimono interrupted, shrilly:

"Who told us to come up here? Who're you calling a prune?" She advanced toward Nona, her arms crooked as she prepared to scratch.

Nona crouched, and moved toward her with the motion of an animal about to spring. Morton noted her likeness to a black panther, and blinding dark eyes. There was no time for contemplation, however. The girls were within an instant of physical attack upon one another in one rapid stride. He thrust the strange girl back, and turned to Nona. "You sit down," he said, quietly.

She looked at him, still blazing with wrath. Then obediently she sank into the arm-chair that Morton had occupied a few minutes before. She seemed to shrink as she sat there, and her eyes gathered a look of fear as she rested upon Morton.

"I suppose your clothes are in that bedroom?" he asked the other girl. She shook her head. She still was snarling, and casting vicious side-long glances at Nona. "I live up stairs," she said.

Morton stepped to one side, and waved his hand toward the door.

"Then take your coat, and your young man, and GO upstairs," he instructed her.

With the man tagging sheepishly at her heels, she obeyed, and Morton closed the door.

Going over to the piano stool, he sat down.

"Well?" he inquired.

Nona slipped off her chair to the floor, and on her knees she hitched her way across to where Morton was sitting. Clasp her hands as it she were praying, she lifted her white, drawn face.

"Oh, my God, Harry! For God's sake, forgive me! I didn't know what I was doing! You'll believe me, won't you? Won't you forgive me? Oh, Harry, Harry, Harry!"

Her voice choked until her words barely were distinguishable. Morton took her two hands in one of his, and raised her to her feet. He led her back across the room, and seated with you had. I wish you had struck me—beaten me.

"Oh Harry—Harry! Don't you know that there is nothing so killing to a woman as indifference?" She held up her arms toward him. "Best me! Do anything you want to! Anything in the world is better than to have you cold and hard like this."

Morton took one of her hands abruptly, gave it a single pat, dropped it, and began pacing the room, thoughtfully. She twisted herself until she could lay her arm across the back of the chair. Then she dropped her head upon her breast and sat there, quiet, and drooping. There was a long silence. Morton, walking up and down, glanced at her from time to time.

She did not stir, but sat with the air of one who has been utterly defeated.

"Nona," he said at length. "You can't win a man's love, or hold it, by keeping him in hot water. Mighty few women know that. Most of them, I think, do the way you're doing. A man may be fond of a woman who is always exploding emotional dynamite under him, making scenes, and keeping him acutely uncomfortable, as he is going to wander around."

She nodded, without replying, and without lifting her head from her arm.

He took another turn around the room. Then he resumed:

"I suppose there are men who will stand that sort of thing. I doubt if any man has ever loved. I don't believe the women even want them, after they get them."

"Nona, my dear," he said, slowly, pausing before her. "I am simply not going to permit any woman on earth to do the sort of thing to me that you've been trying to do the last day or so. You quarrel with your friends, and you lay a trap for me—a ridiculous one, I admit, but you intended it to be a trap. I understand what was in your mind, but your motive is beside the question. For the moment, a child might play with a box of matches, with the best of intentions, and set your house on fire. You understand my intentions, but you take matches away from him thereafter. I want you to—"

There was a stir on the balcony that ran across the end of the room on a level with the second floor.

Morton looked up.

Audrey was standing there, looking intently at him, and at the girl who sat in the chair before him.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Velvet Ear Muffs
The usual story-book absent-minded professor, riding in a train abroad, dons ear muffs on a hot day in order to be un-moyed by questions and remarks of fellow travelers, as he wishes to concentrate on the thesis he is writing.

But—ear muffs or no ear muffs—a fair traveling maiden in distress makes him take the ear muffs off and list to her tale of woe. All this in a new story called "Velvet Ear Pads," by Edith Wharton, which only proves that the colonette's hubby and Joekie O'Grubby are brother under the skin!

How She Did It
The lady who performed this feat of talking and looking velvet muffs off the scholarly brow of the prof must have been attired nattily.

If it had happened this summer she would have worn a big black milan hat with wide band of snake skin, and black and white check cape coat of simple line, untrimmed.

Mary Yowls
Her Royal Highness, Princess Mary, the Lady Lascelles, is all upset because the rumour started that she had bobbed her locks and thus set a pernicious example to the feminine faction of all the Britains.

"Please, please," begs Mary to the proper authorities, "tell them that my hair is not bobbed and that it just looked that way in the picture!"

I myself, as an American gal not subject to the block and tackle in the tower if I speak my mind even about royalty, opine that if Mary and her mama, the queen, did bob their hair, their hats might cover the pates instead of perch atop 'em!

The Actress
Many miles of white paper have been eaten up with black ink of late, as critic after critic has told why all the world and his wife have come mad over the Castilian actress Raquel Meller.

Perhaps this is not far off—"She is one in whom all men see all women they have loved, and in whom all men have ever loved."

Perhaps we who cannot pay $25 a seat may have "Mimosas" and "Violet" on our phonographs and radios.

Beauty Through Ugliness
"Charm is probably that intangible asset which makes Raquel Meller the lodestone she is. Foreign women acquire charm," this said, through a gasping into unconsciousness her ugliest features. They explain that it makes them "a type." A small mouth, they say, is pretty, but a large mouth is interesting.

I know a very ugly woman who has learned to wear cunningly baited—old earrings her ugliness is transformed into exotic quaintness. Try it. Also try sleeping without a pillow, if we must blend the practical with the sublime.

Wives and Coal
It is no cruelty for a wife to be forced to light the furnace fire and carry coal, if she is physically fit. This from a ruling of an eastern divorce judge. Which makes it hard on the married girls who have taught the husband class that no one but a brute makes a wife tend the furnace.

The Cookstove
And judges still opine that a wife's place is by the cookstove where she shall stir such vials divine as strawberry mousse. One quart strawberry juice, 1-3 cups quarts cold water, 2 tablespoons lemon, 1 cup evaporated milk, 1 cup whipping cream, few grains salt. Chill milk and cream mixture.

Cover quart berries with sugar and let stand 1 hour. Rub through fine sieve. Add gelatin softened in cold water and dissolved in boiling water. Set berry mixture in pan of cold water and stir until it thickens. Beat cream and salt till stiff and fold in berry mixture. Pour into mold, pack in salt and ice, let stand 3 to 4 hours.

'Peaches' and 'Daddy' At Home

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS
Bronxville, N. Y., May 5.—Buying a new hat constitutes a problem for many girls, but to 15-year-old "Peaches" Browning the problem is finding closet space for her millinery.

"Daddy—my husband—likes large hats. I must have 50 of them. Where can I keep them all?"

The bride of a few weeks stopped fondling a large pink hat with enormous pink roses, and raised a troubled face. She admitted she had lost all track of her buying and spending. She couldn't remember how many costumes she had bought, but she thought 40 a low estimate.

"Every outfit complete," commented Edward W. Browning with pride. "Girls now must have everything complete from tip to toe. Show your white ermine wrap, Peaches, and your white evening dress that is so wide the elevator has to take you upstairs in two installments when you wear it."

Imagination Outdone
Peaches complied. She donned the wrap and smiled at her reflection in the mirror. She has outfits that Cinderella never could have imagined back in the old days before gold and silver slippers supplanted glass ones.

"I suppose you will be through with your clothes-buying before long now, won't you?" I suggested to Peaches.

"Never," she replied.

A brand new costume at every social appearance—that's "Daddy" Browning's ambition for his girl-wife.

And of social appearances she makes so many! Peaches leads a full life. Breakfasts, luncheons, teas, dances—every day.

"She can't accept a fifth of her invitations—it would wear her out," this millionaire husband explains. "I can stand the pace better than she because I've never required much sleep. Besides she's still nervous from the shock of her burns."

Peaches still wears a bandage on her arm and a patch on her chin, reminders of the mysterious acid burns which led to the first revelation of the romance between Peaches and "Daddy."

Unlike many husbands, Browning finds his wife's shopping expeditions no bore. He loves to

And when will this modern Cinderella stop buying clothes? "Never!" says she—never, at least as long as "Daddy" Browning is so willing to pay the bills.

hear her say, "I'll take that—and that—and that."

"She goes shopping every day," he laughed. "No one could keep up with her. Our machine has become a delivery truck. Sometimes it is so full of boxes there is no place to sit."

Flair for Color
But he cheerfully goes along with her, and selects many of the costumes. He wants Peaches to get the feminine, fussy, colorful outfits he loves instead of conservative models. And let the bills come as fast as they may!

The Brownings have no intention of "settling down" in the conventional sense. Peaches confesses she would take no interest in buying frying pans or kitchen utensils.

"We'll not bother with house-keeping for a while," Browning explained. "We don't want to be tied down. We'll take a suite in a New York hotel—if we can find one with at least five closets for Peaches' clothes—and we'll spend half the time in New York and the other half motor-ing about the country, staying at country inns and clubs."

"A home is nice," Peaches mused— "but servants are a great problem."

HER OWN WAY
A GIRL OF TODAY
IN LUCK—PERHAPS

Without paying any attention whatever to Miss Cleaver's frown, we went past to the elevator and on up to the business office. The man she had called Mr. Robinson was still piloting.

He went into one of the offices without being announced, and I followed.

"Where is Mr. Armstrong?" he asked.

"Right here, Mr. Robinson," said a voice behind us. "I saw you from the general offices and hurried over."

"Armstrong, this is a young lady I want put at the lace counter down stairs. Keep a careful eye on her sales and the moment she knows a little more salesmanship, I want her promoted—if she deserves it. This seemed an afterthought. "She comes highly recommended."

Mr. Robinson left abruptly without noticing me further.

The moment he had gone Mr. Armstrong said to me:

"What do you know about selling goods, Miss—Miss—"

"My name is Dean, Mr. Armstrong, and I don't know a blooming thing about selling goods."

"You are honest, at any rate. Where did you meet Mr. Robinson?"

"I met him downstairs as I came through the store."

The man gave a low whistle.

"Yes, that is when I met him. Who is he anyway?"

"Good Lord! Is it possible that you do not know that was the Store Manager?"

"No, I never saw him before until this morning."

"Well, that is queer. Mr. Robinson was never known to take any personal trouble with any employe, male or female before."

"You are in luck—perhaps."

I really wondered what he meant by the keen look he gave me before he added that word, perhaps, after a slight hesitation to his exclamation of surprise at my good luck.

He shook hands very cordially with me as I left, telling me that Miss Cleaver would probably initiate me into my duties the following morning.

I was so excited that I had gotten to the street before I noticed that I had left my wonderful new bag behind me. When I reached the employment office again, I found Miss Cleaver there. She had the bag in her hand and was examining closely and rather scornfully its beautiful fittings. I thought this very strange, as Mr. Armstrong had

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

After Mister Tingaling and the Twins got Mrs. Brown Bear's rent money, they went down the hill and across the meadow to the buttonball tree on the edge of the woods.

Colonel 'Possum had rented quite a large, beautiful apartment in the buttonball tree, and they were going to collect his rent.

So they went "tingaling-aling" at his doorbell. And a little sharp-eyed lady in a white lace cap answered the door.

"How do you do, Madam," said the fairyman landlord, tipping his ice-cream saucer hat and making a grand bow.

"I'm pretty well," said the little old lady. "All except for my rheumatism, and a cold in my pipes, and a tooth-ache. Just come in."

"Is Colonel 'Possum at home?" asked Mister Tingaling when they all stepped inside.

"No, sir! He isn't!" said the lady. "Can I do anything for you? I'm his old aunt from the country."

"You don't say so!" said Mister Tingaling in surprise. "Why, I never knew he had an old aunt. I never knew that Colonel 'Possum had any relations at all. He comes up here every summer, from the south, and I thought he lived all alone."

"Oh, did you?" said the lady. "Well, here I am. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"I suppose there isn't, Madam," said Mister Tingaling. "Unless you can give me his rent money. It's his rent money I am after. He owes me a dollar in fairy money for this beautiful apartment he rented, with sunporch, awnings, screens, hot and cold water, electric lights, electric ice-box, electric stove, elevator, and everything. It's cheap at the price."

"It does sound like a lot of money to a poor old lady like me," said Colonel 'Possum's aunt with a loud sigh. "You poor dear children must be tired. Aren't you?"

"Oh, no! We aren't tired," cried Nancy and Nick, thinking what a kind old lady this was. "We're not tired a bit."

"Well, just sit down," said their hostess. "The Colonel will be in soon. If I just knew where to get it, I'd give you the rent money myself. But I don't know where he keeps his money."

Mister Tingaling looked at his watch. It was getting later and later.

"Why he keeps it in the silver pudding-dish on his sideboard," said he. "At least that's where he always kept it last year when I came around to collect his rent."

"Why, that's so! How forgetful I am!" said the nice old lady. "I suppose he did tell me it was there and I just forgot. I'll get it at once for you."

So Nancy and Nick and Mister Tingaling sat down. And they waited and waited and waited.

After a while Colonel 'Possum himself walked in.

"Your aunt has gone to get the rent money," said Mister Tingaling. "She's been gone a good while. I told her where you kept it!"

"What! My aunt! Why, I have no aunt!" cried the Colonel.

"They all rushed out to the dining room, and there on the floor lay a little pile of clothes—lace cap and all!

On the empty pudding dish lay a note. It said:

Police chief of Racine, Wis., has announced young couples may park their cars and spoon—but one-arm drivers will be prosecuted. Two-arm driving and two-arm spooning is his motto.

What is the motto on the pin? Last Puzzle Answer The square patchwork quilt, donated to the White House for use in the redecoration, contains 7744 small squares. That is, it is an 88x88 square. If increased 1 row, it would be an 89x89 square and would contain 1921 small squares. This square is 177 squares larger than the original square quilt. (7744 plus 177 equals 7921). To solve a puzzle of this type, divide the difference between the two squares by 2. The answer without the remainder (1-2) is the size of the smaller square.

A PUZZLE A DAY

Willie, the young Canadian jockey, was exceedingly proud of the horse he rode. Whenever possible he boasted of his horse's speed and skill. Most of the jockeys in the stable grinned at his tirade, but his room-mate could not endure it. So he presented Willie with a small printing outfit in hopes of giving him a new interest. For a while all was well, but when the jockeys arrived in Tia Juana, Willie was seen wearing the above circular pin. "What's that?" his room-mate asked. "Why, can't you see?" said Willie. "That's my horse's name and motto." "Yes, it's there all right," was the answer, "but some of the letters are backwards and upside down. It takes a puzzle fan to read it."

"MISS MANCHESTER" APPEARS IN FILM

Tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, the State theater will present "The American Venus," the big photoplay which was made at the last Atlantic City Beauty Pageant and which is based on the annual show at "America's Playground." Miss Fay Lanphier, who was named "Miss

"Miss Manchester"

She is the first of the inter-city beauties to be thrown on the screen.

"The American Venus" is photographed largely in colors. The story deals with the attempt on the part of a beauty cream manufacturer to get publicity. Miss Rolston enters the contest and the scene shifts to Atlantic City. Glimpses of the boardwalk are shown and the big crowds are seen watching the pageant in progress.

acts will be presented at the State in addition to the showing of "The American Venus." Joseph Rich and Pals will be seen in a bright, flashy display. Boudina and Bernhardt, musical wizards, are next. The third act is Ramono and Clark in "As You Like Them." Then comes Ernest Pollock and company in "A Bull Dog Sampson." The fifth act is Creighton and Lynn in "Fast and Furious."

POLICE COURT

Two more violators of the motor vehicle laws were before the Manchester police court this morning. Daniel Domini of Providence, R. I., paid a fine of $10 and costs for driving an automobile without registration. He was arrested on Center street yesterday by Officer R. H. Wirtalla.

Joe Strang of Hartford, a truck driver, was fined $15 and costs for driving a car with improper brakes. He too was arrested by Traffic Officer Wirtalla. The officer tested his brakes and found that his foot brake was absolutely worthless and had not been in use for some time. The emergency brake was very little better. He admitted he was using his reverse to brake the car.
