

BRITAIN IS BACK AGAIN TO NORMALCY

No Need of Higher Taxation, Says Churchill, and Public Breathes Sigh of Relief.

London, May 17.—The British public breathed in relief today when Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, announced in the House of Commons that there is no reason for increased taxation to meet the government's expenses in opposing the recent general strike.

Churchill said that he did not anticipate that the current financial year estimates would be seriously disturbed by the strike costs.

First Reports
London began getting its first complete reports of the strike this afternoon when evening newspapers resumed publication.

Churchill said that he did not anticipate that the current financial year estimates would be seriously disturbed by the strike costs.

BACK TO NORMAL
London, May 17.—Slowly and haltingly, like a convalescent invalid taking his first careful step, Great Britain went back to work today. The wheels of commerce and industry, rusted by a fortnight of idleness, began to grind again.

Normal service promised by the railroads, did not materialize immediately but a steady improvement is evident. The street cars, omnibuses, docks and electric plants, however, took up where they left off on May 3, scarcely any change being perceptible.

The evening newspapers came to terms with the striking printers early today and announced that they would resume publication tomorrow.

Many Jobless
Industry is rapidly absorbing as many men as it can but thousands of strikers have no jobs and may remain unemployed for an extended period due to the fact that the strike caused a nation-wide depression, reducing the demands of all businesses.

With the main features of the general strike out of the way, the cold dispute again loomed large. The miners' executives meet in London tomorrow and will later confer with Premier Baldwin.

A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners' union, has appealed to miners of other nations to contribute to the support of the miners and their families, totaling $3,000,000. Cook indicated that 1,500,000 had been offered.

Reds Smashed
London, May 17.—If there ever was a Red menace in Great Britain it has been smashed during the general strike, according to a statement made to the International News Service from official quarters today.

During the general strike under emergency powers the government placed 500 leading Communist leaders under arrest. It was stated, "One thousand other Communists were either detained or placed under surveillance. Two hundred and fifty others were deported."

Reds made no Communist headquarters brought about the capture of complete Communist documents.

JAMES GRIMASON DIES
NOT LONG AFTER WIFE

Well Known Local Resident
Never Recovered from Shock
Following Her Sudden Passing Away.

James Grimeson of 185 Eldridge street died at his home this morning about 10:30. The immediate cause of death was enlargement of the muscles of the heart. Mr. Grimeson never fully recovered from the shock of his wife's death by asphyxiation about four months ago. It will be recalled that Mrs. Grimeson arose early one morning and while making preparations for dress and lay down on a couch. It was believed she had turned on the gas and that she had failed to apply a match, or it had been extinguished in some way, for when members of the family arose they found her lifeless.

SNOW IS REPORTED TODAY IN BRITAIN

London, May 17.—Cold north winds, with snow in some sections, gave Great Britain real winter weather today.

The temperature in London averaged 45 degrees while in northern cities reported much lower temperatures. At Cotswold the snow is six inches deep.

The chilly weather, compelling Britishers to keep fires going, together with strike conditions, is causing the authorities to continue coal rationing.

NEWLY NAMED POLISH LEADER TAKES OFFICE

Charles Bartel Assumes Pre- miership Pending Election; General Haller Continues to Talk War.

Warsaw, May 17.—Charles Bartel, newly named Polish premier, today assumed office as acting president, pending the election of a president by the National Assembly.

The government has released all of the members of the Witos Cabinet who were arrested, and five generals who were arrested on charges of conspiracy.

Expected Recognition.
The new government anticipates early recognition by foreign nations, and the Polish ambassadors have been instructed to work to this end.

The Senate has sent a delegate to Posen to negotiate with General Haller, who has been reported to be raising an army for a counter-revolt.

HALLER SPEAKS.
Posen, Poland, May 17.—"Terror reigns in Warsaw and where terror reigns legality and law cease to exist," declared General Joseph Haller here in an interview, as he indicated that he has not yet decided his plans for a counter-movement against the Pilsudski coup.

General Haller declares that Posen troops are ready to march on Warsaw and indicated that this movement may have started.

Even newspapers and the published editorials urging the creation of a directorate for provincial Poland to oppose the Warsaw government.

Reports are current here that the president has not resigned and that he will rally his forces around him and make an effort to regain control of Warsaw.

HAYDN'S 'CREATION' THRILLS 1,500 HERE

Patton at His Best — Miss Gustafson and Davis Sing Marvelously.

At the South Methodist church last evening, a capacity audience of 1500 assembled to hear "The Creation," Haydn's masterpiece. The church choir, augmented to 40 voices, was assisted by Miss Lillian Gustafson soprano, Ernest Davis, tenor and Frederick Patton, all of New York. The choir work, as the result of Archibald Sessions' most remarkable training, left nothing to be desired. His adaptation of accepted standards from the orchestral score is especially noteworthy.

Miss Gustafson's lyric voice has a beautiful appealing quality and she sang her two arias with distinction. Of Mr. Patton's singing, no more need be said than that he surpassed all his previous achievements here.

Mr. Davis's heroic voice will soon be heard at the great Westchester County Musical Festival, in conjunction with outstanding players of the great orchestras of New York and a chorus of 2000 voices. He possesses unusual fine high notes with suavity, and smoothness of tone. The solo trios are long to be remembered.

Here is a recent picture of Marshal Josef Pilsudski, who marched into Warsaw at the head of an army in a revolt against the government of Premier Witos.

CREW OF NORGE TELL OF TRIP OVER THE POLE

Big Dirigible Being Dismantled— To Be Sent Back to Italy—No Sleep During Journey.

Nome, Alaska, May 17.—The big dirigible Norge which successfully explored the North Pole and the Polar regions, is now being dismantled and the members of the crew are telling of their experiences during the 72-hour trip over the frozen north.

Lieut. Ohmdahl said today: "We had lost our bearings near Point Barrow and found that if we attempted to drift to Nome we would be lost in the storm."

Ohmdahl badly burned his hand when a severe storm rocked the Norge. He grabbed a small stove with his bare hand to prevent it from falling over and setting fire to the dirigible.

It required but thirty minutes to let the gas out of the Norge when it landed at Teller.

No Sleep.
"No sleep and lots of hardship," was the personal aside of the story of the flight over the Pole. "But, well worth it."

"I'm glad to be here," said Captain Amundsen today.

"Hungry as a horse," was the typical American assertion, which came first from Lincoln Ellsworth, only American aboard the dirigible on his arrival here.

The flight over the Pole was accomplished under ideal flying conditions, members of the party declared here today.

But on this side of the pole, snow, fog and storms were encountered which made flying hazardous.

No Land Sighted.
The outstanding observation of the expedition, aside from the successful reconnaissance of the North Pole from the air, was the fact that no land was sighted between the Pole and Point Barrow, which is the northernmost part of Alaska.

A heavy fog made observation difficult, however, so that it is probable that land escaped the notice of those on board the dirigible.

OUR RISING GENERATION NO SO VERY BRILLIANT

Two youngsters, about nine years of age, were conversing today on Main street in the South End.

Said one: "All these flags on the stores. What does that mean?"
Said the other: "Look up your books, you bonehead. It's Decoration Day."

"What's Decoration Day?"
"It means when all the stores are decorated with flags and things."

GAS CHAMBER MADE READY TO KILL TWO

Nevada's Method of Inflicting Capital Punishment To Be Tried Again on May 21.

Carson City, Nevada, May 17.—Nevada's lethal gas chamber in the state reformatory here was being made ready today to snuff out the lives of two convicted murderers—Stanko Jukich, 28, sentenced for the killing of his 16-year-old sweetheart and John Randolph, 56, sentenced for the slaying of his mother.

The double execution has been ordered for Friday, May 21.

Escapes Penalty
A third convicted murderer sentenced to die by gas with Jukich and Randolph escaped the supreme penalty when he was found to be insane. He is Guadelupe Acosta, a Mexican, who shot and killed a deputy sheriff in Elko, Nevada.

The death chamber is a one room building located in the prison yard. It was first used two years ago when an aged Chinese, the first murdered to die by lethal gas in the United States, paid the penalty for his crime.

Prison officials, newspaper men and relatives—if they wish—may watch the death scene through an airtight glass window.

Of the two condemned men Randolph's trial attracted more attention. Randolph, according to testimony brought out at his trial, crazed with "moonshine" liquor and "dope," attacked and beat his 72-year-old mother when she refused him money. He was arrested and charged with assault. When his mother died two days later the charge was changed to murder.

Killed Sweetheart
Jukich was convicted of slaying his 16-year-old sweetheart, Jennie Madek, at Ruth, Nevada.

On the morning of the day the two men will be executed they will be led across the prison yard to the gas chamber and inside will be strapped to heavy stationary chairs.

Then—with a sizzling sound of death, the gas will rush forth from a pipe and asphyxiate them.

"40-8" THUNDERS ITS OWN WELCOME

Makes More Noise in Parade Than Has Been Heard Here Since Centennial.

The "40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux" crew didn't need any welcoming committee when it arrived Saturday night for the Hartford County promenade and initiation. It thundered its own greetings with cannons, machine guns and revolvers. Such noise hasn't been heard on Main street since the town's Centennial in '23.

A parade with nearly 200 ex-service men in line was the biggest attraction for the townspeople. It formed at the Army-Navy club after the shower subsided and made its noisy way north to Depot Square and back to the Hartford County promenade and initiation. It thundered its own greetings with cannons, machine guns and revolvers. Such noise hasn't been heard on Main street since the town's Centennial in '23.

SHEAN GETS 1 TO 5 YEARS AS ACCOMPLICE OF CHAPMAN

KILLS EMPLOYER, CAUGHT IN CHURCH

Demented Man Found Praying Before Altar—Puts Up No Resistance.

Derry, N. H., May 17.—Shattered in mind and body, and raving that he had "killed the King of the Jews," Joseph Daniel Owens, farmer, for whose capture in connection with the slaying of Louis Jacobowitz, Atkinson farmer, a reward of $100 had been offered, was arrested early today as he knelt at the altar of St. Thomas' catholic church here.

Owens was captured by Chief of Police George E. Dunning, who was warned by Rev. Father Belfar that a half-starved and demented stranger entered the church at daylight to pray.

Weak from exposure after his five days wandering through torrential rains and with his left hand fearfully burned and swollen he submitted to arrest without any show of resistance, although he carried an old-fashioned straight blade razor.

While unable to recall anything connected with the death of his employer, Owens kept repeating "I am the man who killed the King of the Jews."

He was taken to the Portsmouth jail by Sheriff Spinney.

HOLD THREE MEN AS SUSPECTS IN GUN FIGHT

Back Bay Policeman Shot, He Sees Man Flee and Shoots Him.

Boston, May 17.—Three men were held by the police today while an investigation is being made of the gun battle in which Patrolman Jacob Grosberg of the Back Bay police station and James Blunt, an apartment house janitor were both wounded in the shoulder.

Conflicting Stories.
Many conflicting stories were told by witnesses of the shooting, one of which declared there was blood between the two because the officer had reprimanded Blunt several times for throwing dirty water into the street.

Gosberg declared he was shot while approaching an automobile looking for accessory thieves, while another story placed the shooting at the door of a house where an alleged drinking party was in progress.

Blunt was shot in the back as he was running away after the policeman had been struck in the shoulder with a bullet.

Shoots Blunt.
After he was shot, Gosberg jumped into a taxicab and chased Blunt for several blocks, firing one shot from his gun from the window of the machine which caught Blunt in the left shoulder.

All witnesses to the shooting were quizzed today by the police to determine where the battle actually started and the motive behind the gun play.

NEARLY 300 PASSENGERS LEAVE SHIP SAFELY

Not a Life Lost in Transfer- All on Board to Cutters Off Miami.

Miami, Fla., May 17.—The 280 passengers taken off the Clyde line steamship Seneca early yesterday morning when a leak threatened to sink the vessel were nearly all on their way north today by train. Not a life was lost in the transfer of the passengers which took place two miles off Miami after the ship grounded.

Pleads Guilty to Two Counts, Breaking and Entering and Carrying Concealed Weapons — Courtroom Crowded as Sentence is Pronounced—Has Been Confined in County Jail for Past Nineteen Months.

Hartford, May 17.—Walter E. Shean, accomplice of Gerald Chapman in robbing the Davidson & Leventhal department store in New Britain on October 12, 1924, was today sentenced to state's prison for a term of one to five years. Shean pleaded guilty to two counts, one of breaking and entering, and one of carrying dangerous weapons.

Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, of the Superior court, after hearing at length from Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and from William Grantfield, of Springfield, James P. Curry and Josiah Peck, of Hartford, pronounced sentence, one to three years for breaking and entering, and not more than two years for carrying dangerous weapons.

Shean Pleads Guilty.
"Guilty as charged," said Shean in a low voice when presented before the judge in a crowded courtroom after his lawyers had waived the reading of the long complaint. This charged breaking and entering and carrying burglars' tools, and had been charged on the accusation of first degree murder on which Shean had been held in the Hartford county jail for the past nineteen months.

Not Shean's Car.
The first is that Shean did not go in his own car or equipped for the murder. Chapman removed a screw from the lock on the front door of the department store so he could make a quick get-away. Then they went to Waterbury and later to Meriden. The next morning Chapman handed Shean the .45 Colt automatic which Chapman himself later admitted belonged to "our crowd." Chapman went into the store and worked unaided for about a half an hour. Then he came out and got Shean, who was sitting in the Lincoln. When Shean saw what Chapman was doing in the rear of the store, he said to Chapman: "This is too much for me." Chapman answered "What are you getting, dinky?"

"Well, the police arrived and while Shean was under arrest outside at the Lincoln automobile, Chapman killed Skelly and escaped. Shean promptly surrendered, his companion was and the search was on both here and abroad. Captain Fred W. Pickett, then head of the detectives in Muncie, Indiana, who sits here in court today, took a chance on getting Chapman alive and won. It was a very brave act of a very brave officer.

Praises Shean.
"Shean has performed a real service to the state; there is no question about that. Unless we want to protect the criminals credit must be given to persons who tell the truth about them. For several months Shean was in close confinement and altogether has been in jail for nineteen months. The maximum on the two charges against him is eight years in prison and $1,000 fine. I think he should be sentenced to prison and at the same time I think due consideration should be given for time served and services rendered."

In Hard Straits.
In imposing sentence, Judge Marvin said he was trying to access Mr. Alcorn's recommendations but one feature had not been mentioned. "Shean was identified by the dying policeman. He must have realized he was in hard straits. On the other hand the Chapman trial's notoriety attached great interest to this case; to be confined in state's prison one to five years, one to three on the first, and not more than two on the second."

Immediately after Shean was removed from the courtroom to the cell in the basement in which Chapman spent many hours during his trial for murder, Judge Marvin began hearing testimony on which to award the money offered for arrest and conviction of Chapman.

Shean was neatly dressed in a dark brown suit, tan shoes, a silk striped shirt with collar to match and a rich dark brown tie. He had acquired a heavy close-clipped mustache since his first day in jail and his hair, nicely barbered, was permitted to extend slightly toward "sideboards."

Among the many lawyers in court were Joseph Freedman and Frank Murphy, of Hartford, both associate counsel for Gerald Chapman tonight for the murder of Policeman James Skelly of New Britain.

Prosecutor Alcorn who for weeks has been recuperating at his home in Sheffield from the nervous strain of the Chapman case, opened the proceedings in court today. He said that breaking and entering and carrying dangerous weapons were the only proper charges that could be brought against Shean

Walter E. Shean who was unfortunate enough to become acquainted with "the late Gerald Chapman and the late George 'Dutch' Anderson" in the summer of 1924.

"They deceived Mr. Shean who thought their activities between Indiana and Massachusetts concerned illegal liquor traffic. They purchased a house in South Hadley, Mass., which I am convinced was for counterfeiting and also as a base for safe blowing and burglary. Chapman left Shean in Springfield about two weeks before the Skelly murder and about two days before the murder he drove back from Parkersburg, West Virginia, where he had robbed a safe. He brought along a .45 Colt automatic revolver and unknown to Shean under lock and key in a compartment of his big Lincoln car, Chapman had a 30-30 rifle loaded with dum-dum bullets and two sawed-off shot-guns.

Fred Patton.

Miss Lillian Gustafson.

Ernest Davis.

Archibald Sessions.

Manchester music lovers were thrilled last night by the solo work of the above artists and by the magnificent organ accompaniment played by Director Sessions when Haydn's "Creation" was presented at the South Methodist church. It is estimated that 1500 heard the oratorio.

WEEK END GIVES 8 COURT CASES

(Continued from page 1.) were returning from a dance at Coventry. Madden has been before the court on several occasions and the judge reminded him that it was about time he cut out his foolishness. He gave in a sentence of 30 days in jail and suspended the sentence with the warning that if he came before him again for a similar cause he would certainly go to jail.

LAWRENCE BOLENSKI OF BUCKLAND STREET WAS FINED $5 AND COSTS FOR PASSING THE SILENT POLICEMAN AT DEPOT SQUARE ON THE WRONG SIDE SUNDAY. HE WAS ARRESTED BY OFFICER ROBERTS.

HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY FROM STATE LAST NIGHT

S. R. O. Sign Was Up Early; First of Anniversary Program Proves Big Hit. Manager Jack Sanson estimated today that over two hundred patrons were turned away from the State theater last night because the local show house was already jammed to capacity. The attraction was the first of the anniversary week program, an unusual double feature bill.

87 YEARS OLD, HAS A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Years mean nothing to Mrs. Johanna Schultz when there is a party to be enjoyed. Mrs. Schultz was 87 years old yesterday and her daughter Mrs. Charles Sievert gave her a party at 82 IRidge street. Friends and relatives of Mrs. Schultz were present from Hartford, East Hartford and Manchester. About 30 in all attended.

ABOUT TOWN

Benjamin W. Loveland of Hartford, who was director of the Manchester Choral Union when Haydn's "Creation" was given many years ago in Cheney hall, was an enthusiastic listener when the oratorio was sung last evening at the South Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Crowell of Highland Park will sail Thursday on the S. S. Homeric for a tour of Europe. During their stay there they will visit the Rev. Julian S. Wadsworth, former pastor of the South Methodist church, who is now in Chateau-Thierry, France.

Miss Clara Wells of Cheney Brothers' medical department who was severely injured in an automobile accident last week is progressing favorably at the Polyvalent hospital in Philadelphia. Miss Wells with two companions was in a Chevrolet coupe when they collided with a truck. In addition to minor lacerations and bruises she sustained a compound fracture of the left leg. The other occupants of the car were uninjured.

COMMERCE CHAMBER AND GET TOGETHER CLUB TO HOLD JOINT MEETING

All indications point to a most successful joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the Get-Together Club of Cheney Brothers in Cheney hall Thursday May 20. One particularly noticeable feature is that nearly every Chamber of Commerce member has made reservations for from one to three guests.

It is certain that those who attend will have a most enjoyable evening as the speaker, Rev. Ashley D. Leavitt of Hartford church, Brookline, has "a well-deserved reputation as a most pleasing speaker. The Deerfield Academy Glee Club is well-known to both the members of the Chamber and the Get-Together Club and all who have heard them will be looking forward with pleasure to another evening of entertainment by them.

The orchestra has been engaged and Chef Osano gives us assurance that the dinner, roast chicken and strawberry shortcake will be good enough to eat. Those who have not sent in their cards and checks are urged to do so as reservations must close Wednesday morning, May 19th.

THREE NEW YORK CROOKS CAPTURED IN STAMFORD

Stamford, Conn., May 17.—A pair of Stamford policemen today captured three New York youth, who later admitted they had burglarized the Kent service station at Darien, and recovered the loot taken from that place, including tires, tubes, cigarettes and gum. The men are Ralph Maccarello, 18, Louis Marceline, 20 and Ralph Targo, 23, all living on the upper West Side. They were turned over to the Darien police.

STARTS ON 43RD DAY WITHOUT WINK OF SLEEP

New York, May 17.—David Katz, Russian, today began his forty-third consecutive day without a wink of sleep. Physicians and nurses in the hospital for joint diseases, where Katz is a patient, admit they are puzzled. Katz is suffering from a gangrenous infection in his foot. The limb is being eaten gradually away and the patient is in severe pain at all times. The protracted period of insomnia has left its mark on Katz, who is emaciated, hollow-cheeked and weak. Doctors have tried every method of inducing sleep without success.

SWINDLER SENTENCED

Stamford, Conn., May 17.—Only recently released from a long term in the county jail at New Haven, Edmond Williams, alias Nelson, of Middletown, was taken to Bridgeport jail this afternoon for a two months' sentence. He pleaded guilty in City court here to a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses by using the name of Davis Waterbury, a local merchant. Prosecutor Max Spelke, in presenting the case, asked for leniency. He declared that so many other cities were waiting to try Nelson on similar charges that the young man might spend the rest of his life in jail.

MILKMEN FINED

Stamford, Conn., May 17.—Two local milkmen paid ten dollars and costs in City court here this afternoon after being convicted of selling Grade B milk as genuine Grade A milk. Thomas Page, assistant city health commissioner, pressed the charges.

BIG FUR THEFT

New York, May 17.—Leaving behind them $150,000 worth of mink pelts, robbers today made their escape with furs valued at between $75,000 and $100,000 from the warehouse of Sold Dicker furrier. The thieves cut their way into the fur loft.

STRUCK BY A BULLET DURING PARADE HERE

Member of Flute Band Now in Hospital With Wound in His Leg.

Struck by what is believed to be either a 45 caliber bullet or a pebble, Albert Lennon of 30 Bank street, was the victim of an unusual accident Saturday night during the parade.

Lennon was marching with the Center Flute band and suddenly felt a sharp pain in his left leg. He had been struck either by a bullet which rebounded from the pavement or by a small stone which leaped up from the street as the result of discharging a blank cartridge close to the pavement. Lennon dropped out of the parade and was taken to a doctor's office where first aid was rendered. Later he was removed to the Manchester hospital where an operation was to be performed this afternoon. The bullet or stone, whichever it may have been, entered the calf of the leg and pierced it for a distance of six inches. It lodged in both of the knee in the lower part of the thigh, the doctor said.

OFFICERS PRAISED BY JUDGE MARVIN

Hears Testimony of Men Who Aided in the Capture of Gerald Chapman.

Hartford, Conn., May 17.—"The gratitude of the state is certainly due these brave officers," declared Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, in Superior court here today as he heard testimony which will aid him in deciding how the state's reward for the capture of Gerald Chapman will be divided. Judge Marvin took the matter under consideration this afternoon after an hour's hearing and will issue his decision later.

William C. Hart, chief of New Britain's police force; Edward J. Hickey, Hartford county detective; and Captain F. W. Puckett, of the Muncie, Indiana, police, related to Judge Marvin various phases of the search for and the capture of the bandit. William Mangan, New Britain attorney, represented the New Britain police, while Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, examined Captain Puckett.

JOHN T. KING BURIED WITH UNUSUAL HONORS

One Time National Figure in Republican Party is Laid to Rest in Bridgeport. Bridgeport, Conn., May 17.—John T. King, one time national figure in the Republican party, was laid to rest here today after what probably was the largest attended funeral service ever held in Bridgeport. Official business came to a standstill for the day. Every city worker from the mayor down, who could find the opportunity, attended either the church services or the committal service and thousands lined the streets as the casket moved to the cemetery.

GOVERNOR'S FOOT GUARD IS RECEIVED BY FOCH

Members of State Military Organization Given Reception in Paris. Paris, May 17.—Members of the Richmond Blues of Richmond, Va., and the Governor's Foot Guard of Hartford, Conn., had a busy day here today. At ten o'clock they placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Warrior and then hastened off to the Inter-Allied club where they were given a reception by Marshal Foch, Ambassador Herriot, who was also present at this reception. This afternoon the American ambassador is giving a reception at the embassy.

surely avoid trouble in the future. Justice Carroll's letter is written as an old friend to Shean's father, saying Walter was never vicious or cruel and his mistakes come from being easily influenced and deceived.

"A Good Lesson." "It is a bad lesson but a good one."

"Sentences are supposed to be a deterrent to crime and as such Shean does not need much punishment. The slayer of Officer Skelly would still be at large if the accomplices had held his tongue." Attorney Peck said Shean was unfortunate in falling under the influence of such a desperate criminal as Chapman—"about the most desperate criminal Connecticut has seen since Mr. Alcorn became state's attorney."

"When Chapman told Shean to put the gun in his belt it was not an easy invitation to decline." In moving for sentence and making his recommendations, Mr. Alcorn said "I am very much pleased to hear Justice Carroll's letter which comes as a surprise to me. This act by an honorable and able jurist of Massachusetts promotes justice and makes it easier for me to offer my recommendations. The picture which Justice Carroll draws of Walter Shean is one which squares exactly to my estimate of him. He is not a murderer or a burglar. He has not the courage to commit these crimes. Two things might be overlooked in this case.

AMERICAN INJURED. London, May 27.—Major G. H. Putnam, New York publisher was the only American "casualty" during the recent general strike. Major Putnam was knocked down by a motorcycle during the strike traffic chaos. He has recovered from his injuries sufficiently to permit his proceeding to Oxford where he is to be given a degree.

ABOUT TOWN

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bronke, of Hamlin street, last night at the Manchester Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Daniel Hill and son Frank, of 21 Lee avenue, New London, were the week-end guests of Mrs. Nellie Hayes, of 11 Vine street.

Mrs. C. L. Mahoney, president of the Gibbons Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, attended a meeting of the state officers and board of directors at the Hotel Garde, Hartford, yesterday afternoon.

There will be a meeting of the Manchester Fire Department to-night in the department quarters at Main and Hilliard streets. An attempt will be made to organize a department baseball team.

E. W. Atwood of Lake street is being congratulated today upon being a grandfather. A daughter, Elizabeth Jane, was born Friday at the Niles street hospital, Hartford, to Mr. Atwood's daughter, Mrs. William Weltner.

The local Salvation Army band visited Norwich yesterday where it gave a series of concerts. Owing to the wet weather the band was not able to play out doors as planned, but gave two concerts to the patients of the Tuberculosis hospital and also to the inmates of the State hospital which were greatly enjoyed.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Mary's Young Men's club will be held this evening at 8 o'clock. Changes in the by-laws will be voted on.

Beronica Staskvech, nine-years-old, of Broad Brook, was rushed to the Manchester Memorial hospital late Saturday night where an operation was performed at midnight for acute appendicitis.

Miss Hanna Malngren, superintendent at the Manchester Memorial hospital, left yesterday to attend the National Nursing Association convention which is to be held in Atlantic City this week.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Muttie, of 33 Garden street Saturday night.

Hose Company No. 2 answered a still alarm at the home of Mrs. Sarah Hayden of 25 Winter street at 5:45 yesterday afternoon. The chimney of the house was on fire. Two small chemical tanks were used.

JUNIOR SCRANTON'S FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services for Clifford Scranton, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Scranton of Spruce street, who died Friday at the Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore following an operation was held this afternoon at his late home.

Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the South Methodist church, officiated and burial was in the family plot in the East cemetery. The bearers were four boys, all cousins of "Junior." They were Philip Bergstrom and Henry Rockwell both of New Britain and Herbert and Roy Frazier, both of Spruce street, this town.

MAJOR THOMAS SEAVER COMING TO MANCHESTER

Major Thomas Seaver, the divisional officer of the Southern New England division of the Salvation Army, will visit Manchester next Tuesday night. The major will be accompanied by the divisional staff including Adjutant and Mrs. Mehling who have the oversight of the young people's work, and Captain George Noel, the divisional cashier. Besides doing the semi-annual audit and inspection, they will conduct a service in the cathedral at 8 o'clock, to which the public is invited.

NOVEL DISPLAY.

George H. Williams has a novel underwear display in his window which has attracted considerable attention and brought out much favorable comment. It consists of a large gold frame with a black background. On the background are pinned two suits of underwear and in the middle is a mirror. A little caption at the bottom says, "Look at your underwear." George says it does the trick.

Piles Disappear

No painful cutting or greasy salves now needed to cure piles in any form. Dr. Leonhard's HEM-ROID frees the blood circulation in the lower bowel and removes the cause. It's brought quick and lasting relief to thousands—it must do the same for you or money refunded by Packard's or Murphy's Drug Stores—and druggists everywhere.—Adv.

MOTHER IN HOSPITAL, GOCHEE CHILD DIES

Two Year Old Succumbs to Pneumonia — Misfortune Seems to Follow Family.

Stricken with pneumonia a week ago while her mother was in the hospital, little Ernestine Gochee, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gochee of 19 Hilliard street, died at 6 o'clock this morning. Her mother gave birth to another child on Thursday.

Hardship has followed the Gochee family during a period of years. Ernestine is the third child to die and there are five others.

Last Monday the little girl became ill. Her mother thought that the child had eaten something which contained poison and so she was taken to the hospital. Pneumonia developed and the child's condition grew steadily worse. The case was not one of poisoning, according to the doctor who was in attendance. He said that no symptoms of poisoning had been found and that death was caused by severe congestion of one lung.

NO INFRINGEMENT.

New Haven, May 17.—The Mattatuck Manufacturing Co., of Waterbury, today was awarded a decree in the suit brought against it by Frederick W. Lincoln and others for the alleged infringement of a patent on an anti-friction tip for furniture known to the trade as "domes of silence." The decree, issued by Judge Edwin S. Thomas, in United States District court here "dismisses the bill with costs to the defendant."

A similar suit brought against the Waterbury Button Company some time ago also was won by the Waterbury concern.

Our Students Praised by Prison Warden

"Those 123 students from the South Manchester high school who visited the prison Saturday morning were the best disciplined of any that ever went through," a warden at the prison told a Herald man during the baseball game between the St. Mary's and the prison team Saturday afternoon.

"It certainly was a credit both to the teachers and the students. All during the tour the students behaved themselves. There was no loud talking or laughing. Manchester ought to be proud of a group like that."

Mr. and Mrs. William Shearer of Wallingford visited relatives in town yesterday.

planned. Nome frankly was disappointed over the ending of the Norge's epochal journey 73 miles short of its expected goal. Some individuals went so far as to remove decorations displayed in honor of the expected coming of the Norge when they learned that the landing had been made a "Teller."

It is probable that the Norge cannot be shipped back to Italy before June, although the work of dismantling it is well under way at Teller and is expected to be completed there shortly.

A thrilling dash was under way today to get the first picture of the Norge to the United States. Two planes which flew here from Fairbanks were en route to Teller with camera men and they will fly back to ship the pictures on the first boat to the United States.

Happy's Own Sale

Yes Sir!--I've Got the Job of Selling These Bedroom Outfits And I'm Going To Be Hard At It All Week

You see, the boss came to me th' other day and says, "Happy, I got to do somethin' with all these Chamber Suites. Here 'tis almost June—we ought to be spreadin' out our summer goods all over the place—and here's all this space still filled up with Chamber Suites."

"What's the matter," I says, "ain't they any good?" "Good, why they're absolutely good, every one of 'em. Best display we ever had. And the prices are right. Got too many, that's all. Regular line has been stringin' in late, meanwhile we bought a lot o' new stuff in Chicago—and on top o' that everything else seems to sell right 'round the Chamber Suites, and they sit there.

"Tell you what I want," he says. "I'll cut 'em and you advertise 'em. Move 'em out in a hurry. Think you can do it?"

And gosh, the way he did cut 'em, I'll say they ought t' move. So I fixed up this Sale of Bedroom Outfits, to let you know about some real, genuine bargains, if you care about 'em—and I'll tell the world they're here. There's more than fifty different combinations, and every one has been marked way down—the regular ones we been sellin' right along. Course I can't advertise 'em all, but I'll go as far's I can.

Here's One Nifty Little Feller For Only $139.00

A Three piece set, includin' dresser, vanity, and bed—and remember you get the spring, the mattress, and pillows with it, too.

What Do I Mean, A Bedroom Outfit?

Well, sir, I figure that a bedroom ain't a bedroom without a bed, or that a bed ain't a bed without the part you sleep on. But when you put in a spring, a mattress, and a good pair o' pillows, then you got a real bedroom outfit and you're ready to hit the hay.

So I put 'em in. You got to have 'em anyway, and you might's well know the whole story at once, 'stead of havin' it pop up afterwards.

You Get Your Spring, Mattress and Pillows with Every Suite I'm Advertisin'.

FREE? NOTHIN'—NOT A THING

You pay for what you get. If you don't want it, you don't have to take it, and o' course we take it off the price. But here's what we're offerin'.

A Chamber Suite

All accordin' to the one you pick out.

A Mattress

Our Imperial Felt—the one we sell for a real mattress—best thing we can find, outside of hair fillin'. 50 pounds of fluffy white cotton, felted in layers, in the old familiar Gold Medal tick.

A Spring

The sagless kind, that everybody seems to want now-a-days, made up to fit the bow-end beds. It's a hummer, for comfort and for wear. Guaranteed for 20 years.

A Pair of Pillows

Full size, and chock full of clean, new, sterilized feathers, in the best grade o' ticking. And there you are.

And Here's Another—A Big One, $219.00

Looks just like the picture here, and it's nice. Walnut, too, but in a kind of a light golden-brown finish, with a little gold line to set it off. You don't want it unless there's plenty of room, though, for the pieces are all full grown. Put it in a big bedroom and it will show up pretty fine.

The ticket on this one used to read $262.50, just for the four piece set alone.

The twin brother to this one, only in the dark walnut color—almost the same identical thing—sells for the same price as the other one, only the wardrobe is gone. That leaves the bed, dresser, and vanity for $179—with the spring, mattress, etc.—and other pieces if you want.

TERMS?

Sure.—Absolutely! None o' this Dollar Down stuff. But if you want time, we have this Profit-Sharin' Club—I been learnin' about it, and it's a real business like arrangement. You get your furniture, and a whole year to pay for it, a regular Club Deposit book to keep track of things, and a dividend comin' to you at the end of the year. So there's the whole story.

Happy Holmes

Now We're Gettin' Into Real Class

Here's one number that looks like furniture enough for anybody—and is, too. No gold platin', four-wheel brakes or balloon tires or dewdads, but it's the quality stuff all thru, quiet and refined you know, but elegant. I picked it out of the whole lot for a real fine article, so you want to appreciate it to be in style.

Big roomy dresser, full length vanity, and a bow-end bed—all fitted up fine and rich lookin'—with the spring, mattress and pillows as usual—$275 for the whole works, and just the suite alone was marked $357.

IVANHOE—Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

THE STORY THUS FAR—The scene is the England of Richard I. A party of knights, en route to a tournament, visits Cedric the Saxon and their leader, Brian the Templar, becomes enamored of Cedric's daughter Rowena.

and beauty. He then removes his helmet and it is seen that he is Ivanhoe, Cedric's disinherited son. A strange knight in black armor, who helped him win the passage at arms, wanders through the forest and saps with a Friar Tuck, of Robin Hood's band, in a lonely hut. This knight is really King Richard, disguised while he marshals his forces against his usurping brother, Prince John, who thinks him in the Holy Land. As the two sit in the hut they are joined by Locksley, the woodsman, who had won the archery honors at the tournament.

—By Redner

WITH LOCKSLEY WERE DURT AND WAMBA, BOTH OF WHOM HAD MANAGED TO ESCAPE WHEN CE... AND ATHELSTANE AND THEIR PARTY, TOGETHER WITH THE LADY ROWENA, HAD BEEN SEEN UPON BY A MERRY OUTLAW OF ROBIN HOOD, BUT THIS WAS NOT THEIR TRUE IDENTITY. FOR LOCKSLEY WAS ROBIN HOOD.

WHEN THE TWO LEADERS OF THE BANDITTI... WERE SPEAKING, ONE WAS BRIAN DE BOIS-GUILBERT WHO HAD DEvised THE SCHEME FOR DE BRACY. "IT IS TIME THOU SHOULDST LEAVE US, SIR MAURICE," SAID HE TO DE BRACY, "AND PREPARE THE SECOND PART OF THE MYSTERY, THOU ART TO ACT THE PART OF KNIGHT DELIVERER."

YOU HAVE THOUGHT BETTER OF IT," ANSWERED DE BOIS-GUILBERT. "I WILL NOT TAKE THE PRIZE IN FRONT OF BOEUF'S CASTLE. THE TRUTH WAS DE BRACY THOUGHT BOIS-GUILBERT MIGHT MAKE OFF WITH ROWENA. BUT I CARE NOT FOR ROWENA," SAID BOIS-GUILBERT. THEN HE TOLD DE BRACY THAT HE PREFERRED REBECCA, THE BEAUTIFUL DAUGHTER OF ISAAC, WHO HAD BEEN CAPTURED, ALONG WITH HER FATHER.

BUBBLING OVER GREATEST RACER SINCE MAN O' WAR

Walsh Says Bradley Colt Showed That He Is in a Class All by Himself.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 17.—The greatest horse since Man O' War—this was the tribute bestowed upon today's Bubbling Over, winner of the Kentucky Derby and I am not at all certain that the boys aren't a bit "hardly" with their comments at that.

The cold and unrelenting statistics of Saturday's race merely revealed the fact that the son of North Star Third and Beaming Beauty won by five lengths. They do not show where Bubbling Over gave every evidence as far as the eye could reach, of being able to run that way all day. The further he proceeded, the faster he went, and at the end, a lot of good horses were made to look very bad.

Probable Champion In consequence, a once skeptical east came to the belated conclusion that Kentucky had the probable three-year old champion of 1926. Indeed, many of the New York crowd freely predicted that the Bradley colt would win the Belmont and the Travers, barring a modern miracle.

This belief was not so much influenced by the fact that Bubbling Over ran the mile and a quarter in 2:03 4-5. Horses have made great time before without proving anything in particular except that they happened to be in a hurry on the day in question.

Bubbling Over wasn't forced to run that fast. He was just so full of running that he had to get some of it out. He missed the Derby record by a fraction of a second, while he was experimenting with this idea.

Others in Race Meantime he was making a holy show of about every candidate that might contest his three-year-old honors this year. Pompey, the colt that had New York kidded, was in a position to show all he had and it wasn't much.

Rock Man also had his chance to show something. He couldn't or didn't. Canter, Blondin and Display, simply were outclassed. In the race there was only one horse in the race.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE MEETING TONIGHT

Managers of St. Mary's, Sons of Italy, Shamrocks and Cheney Brothers to Again Try to Organize Circuit.

In final effort to organize a twilight baseball league here the managers of the Shamrocks, Cheney Brothers, Sons of Italy and St. Mary's will convene again tonight at six o'clock at the Oak street office of The Herald.

At the last meeting, which was replete with excitement, it was voted that the managers secure the written signatures of the players they intended to use in the proposed league. This action was taken last Thursday and since that time, the four managers have been busy securing the John Handcocks of their players. The so-called contracts will be shown just what teams the various players in town really intend to cast their lots with.

It is probable that unless some manager has been doubly successful and has signed a whole phalanx of players, the league will be "erected" tonight.

ALL STARS WIN. Chicago, May 17.—The International supremacy of the famous Hakoah soccer team of Vienna, was still a debatable question today following their defeat at the hands of the Chicago "All Stars" by the score of three to two.

A record crowd of 18,000, most of whom cheered for the Jewish stars, turned out for the Sabbath pastime at Comiskey park. The Hakoahs suffered their first defeat since invading the Middle West.

MARYLAND GIRL WILL ATTEMPT TO SWIM THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

HERALD GIRL WILL TRY WHERE EDERLE FAILED

Lillian Cannon, Backed by Manchester Evening Herald and Other NEA Clients, to Start Training for Attempt This Summer—Swimming Since 10 Years Old.

Baltimore, Md., May 17.—Lillian Cannon, 23, blond, and a whale of a swimmer, as they say down here in the Chesapeake Bay country, is going to match her skill and strength against the 20 miles or so of treacherous water between Cape Gris-Nez and Dover.

Miss Cannon in other words, is preparing to swim the English Channel—the supreme test of a swimmer. If she is successful, she will be the first woman to turn the trick. The channel conquered Gertrude Ederle last August. It has conquered every other woman who has dared it, and out of hundreds of men who have tried it only a very few have been successful.

Herald Backs Swim Miss Cannon will make the attempt under the sponsorship of NEA Service, the world's greatest newspaper feature service of which The Manchester Evening Herald is a client. She has been training rigorously for several months.

She sailed Saturday for France, where she will undergo a training period of eight weeks before diving off the rocks at Gris-Nez for the distant shores of England. Bill Burgess, one of that small group of famous athletes who have swum the channel, will be her trainer.

Lillian was born in Baltimore, and has spent most of her years playing around the waters of Chesapeake Bay. She is regarded as one of the greatest long-distance swimmers in the world and the greatest ever to be developed in the Chesapeake Bay country.

No one outside Baltimore had heard of Lillian Cannon. She was 12 at the time, and Miss Dorfner and Miss Becker, as well as the half dozen other contenders, were full grown women. Yet Lillian's performance was such that Miss Dorfner and Miss Becker were pushed to finish ahead of her. And right there the Philadelphia swimming enthusiasts began to take notice of the little girl from Baltimore.

Swam 22 Miles The next summer she ran away with the swimming meet at the Potomac basin in Washington, and in 1921 she won the South Atlantic championship. Her next summer she became the only woman life guard at Bay Shore, a beach near Baltimore, and lost her amateur standing.

Last year, in order to test herself to determine whether she dared make the channel attempt, she swam the Chesapeake Bay from Swales to Bay Shore, a distance of 22 miles. She was in the water 11 hours, under the most trying conditions. And when she clambered out of the water she announced right then and there that she would make the channel attempt this summer.

The distance is approximately the same as that across the channel. But that swim across the bay is another story, as they say in the books. The details of that famous crossing will be told in another story later.

In the four hundred forty track run Bray was up to his old tricks again. A big, long legged runner was King of Lewis, and one whose one stride was more than equal to two of "Lefty's", but this supposed advantage availed him nothing. Bray had a perfectly delightful time in making his short sprints travel equally as fast as King's for a lap. Then "Lefty" decided it was time to stop fooling and "stepped on it" and left King away back in the mire wondering what had happened. In the mile run Joe McCluskey and "Mike" Shannon of Manchester had a merry little fight of their own to decide which of them was superior to the other. They failed to come to a decision, as they say when there's a coal strike, and both ran a dead heat for first. Not satisfied with merely winning the hundred yard dash, Bray stepped on it, stepping the rest of the field in the two hundred twenty yard dash. As usual, Bray copped the half mile run, and as usual he had an easy time of it, beating his fellow tracksters, Chambers, by a comfortable margin.

The Field Events In the field events, the locals copped everything in sight, with the exception of the high jump. In the shot put "Bub" La Cass just missed setting up a new mark. Kilbourne won the high jump for Lewis. Incidentally this was the only event which was taken by Lewis High. Kittel, the up and coming track star, gave some of the boys a mild surprise by outthrowing everyone else in the discus. Lewis didn't even try for the javelin throw, and Manchester took nine

DAHLQUIST FACES EAST HARTFORD ON THE MOUND TODAY

Turned Into a Pitcher After Erratic Showing at Short-stop—Local High Loses to Willimantic 13-6.

When South Manchester High school baseball men took the field at East Hartford this afternoon, "Yump" Dahlquist was on the mound opposite the East Hartford High school batters. Yump has been playing shortstop, but has been followed by a flux, so to speak, and he has made an abundant collection of errors. Saturday against Windham High, he added four more to his total. As a result of his erratic playing at short and the fact that Eddie Boyce is not yet available for pitching duty, Dahlquist has been turned into a pitcher. "Chip" Chartier was at short this afternoon in the league game in East Hartford.

An Off Day Saturday's game at Willimantic which Manchester lost by a 13 to 6 score was a disappointment from the start. It was simply an off day for the Silk City nine which was outplayed, outsmarted, and out-guessed all the way. Gudaitis pitched the whole game but was hit hard. In addition to this, he received poor support by his mates as the error column will show.

Willimantic put the game on ice in the second inning when the home team collected five of its eleven hits while Manchester was contributing five of its nine errors.

Tommy Melkie starred for the winners. The summary:

RAIN STOPS TENNIS MATCH AT HARTFORD

S. M. H. S.-St. Thomas Match Is Cancelled Because of Downpour at Last Minute.

The tennis match between the Local High school and St. Thomas Seminary scheduled to take place in Hartford Saturday afternoon was called off at the last minute when rain intervened.

The players of both schools were on the courts practicing and were just getting ready to start the match when a downpour spoiled the court.

Homeers by Pop Edgar and Lefty St. John aided materially in the trimming the Sons of Italy handed the Colored Stars of Hartford in the Sons' first game yesterday at the West Side. The game was called in the eighth inning when it began to rain heavily and the Sons at that time were ahead 10 to 6. The game was called during a drizzle of cold rain which at times descended so heavily that the players were drenched to the skin in a short time. A good crowd turned out even though watching the game in the rain was rather unpleasant.

They registered first in the second inning and not again until the fifth. While they were idle the Sons piled up four runs in the first inning and three more in the fifth. In the fifth inning Edgar popped out and would have been a three base hit but the local man beat the throw home.

Lefty St. John

Then, to round off a good afternoon, Lefty St. John made a mighty swing at a ball with one man on and lost it in right field. He trotted around the bases and was home before the start. He had commenced to throw in. Smith, catcher for the negroes, was one of their batting stars. With a man on in the eighth inning, he hit a three bagger and was scored soon after when a past ball allowed him to go home. This rally in the eighth was the last game of the colored boys and the game was called a few minutes after this.

Outside a few ragged plays the Sons did good work, considering the condition of the field and the balls. Burkhardt was effective while he remained in the box but was allowed to retire in favor of Hewitt. The latter was also good but good pitching was impossible yesterday.

SCRATCH HIT ROBS BOYCE OF NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME

St. Mary's Whitewash State's Prison Team 4-0—Boyce Pitches Greatest Game of Career—Whiffs Eleven Batters—Passes None—Allows One Hit—Only Twenty-Nine Men Face Him.

One solitary single, and that a scratch hit that nearly resulted in an out, was all the State's Prison baseball nine could register off the mystifying assortment of curves served by Boyce Saturday afternoon on the prison ball grounds and the local St. Mary's scored a 4 to 0 white wash victory.

Whew! What Speed

Boyce's speed and baffling assortment of curves was too much for the State's Prison team. Only one scratch hit was made and only twenty-nine batters faced him.

TEDFORD FOURTH IN PIGEON RACE

Wisk, of New Britain, Cops First Honors in Trenton Race—Wilmington, Delaware, Next Week.

Flying at an average speed of 1228.99 yards per minute, a pigeon owned by Wisk, of New Britain, was the winner of the 150 mile race conducted by the Capital City Concourse Saturday from Trenton, N. J. Wisk also had a pigeon place third. Walter Tedford, of Manchester was the winner of fourth place, one of his birds traveling 1196.33 yards per minute.

The heavy rainstorm interfered with the race to the extent that the birds from Hartford and Manchester were delayed when they were caught in the downpour. The New Britain birds made their home lofts before the storm broke.

The homers were released from Trenton at 10 Saturday morning and began to arrive at their lofts shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon.

Next Saturday the pigeons will fly over a 200 mile course from Wilmington, Delaware. Following is the velocity of the pigeons competing in Saturday's race in the order of their speed:

ST. JOHN SIGNS CONTRACT.

From the action of Lefty St. John, who signed a contract to play exclusively with the Sons of Italy this season, it may be gathered that the popular outfielder will do his part with the Sons for the remainder of the season. A number of other players affixed their signatures to the same contract, which has been placed in the keeping of a member of the Herald staff.

Tunney Tougher Than Wills Dempsey Tells Joe Williams

This story is the first of a series of five articles on Champion Jack Dempsey in training at his Hendersonville, N. C., camp. These intimate and up-to-date yarns are written by Joe Williams, fistie expert of the Manchester Evening Herald and other NEA clients. Williams is well known for his accurate accounts of fistie battles and his dispatches from the training rinks are well worth reading.

(By JOE WILLIAMS.)

Hendersonville, N. C., May 17.—Jack Dempsey had just finished an hour's work out in a warming spring sun, high up in the Blue Ridge Mountains that roll thunderously against a purple skyline, like giant elephants in stampees.

He lay on his back on a rubbering table in the little white cottage he uses for a home here, while Jerry the Greek, his idolatrous trainer, kneaded his muscles and massaged his loins.

Like the gentle swell of the sea at low tide, the heavyweight champion's chest rose and fell and tiny rivulets of sweat cascaded down his bristly face.

News had come that day from New York that the eastern commission had formally sanctioned his September fight and either Harry Wills or Gene Tunney would be his opponent.

"Which would be the harder to whip?" I asked Dempsey as Jerry the Greek sprayed his lean-limbed form with alcohol.

"That's not easy to answer," replied the champion. "Off-hand I would say that Tunney might give me more trouble. He is younger and faster. I might have a harder time hitting him on the 'button.' But I'm not sure."

Rolling over on his side at the request of the Greek, who never calls him anything else but "champion"—pronounced as if the mouth were filled with steaming potatoes—Dempsey added: "This fight game is funny. Whenever you look for an easy fight you draw a tough one. I imagined Jess Willard would give me my hardest fight; it was the easiest. I thought Luis Firpo would be my easiest; it was my hardest."

I asked Dempsey how he planned to fight Tunney, if Tunney ultimately drew the assignment.

"This may sound ridiculous to you," he answered, "but I haven't the slightest idea right now how I would fight either Tunney or Wills. Not only that but I won't have any set ideas concerning an attack or defense even when I climb between the ropes. I never do. I just get in there and start throwing fists."

This is probably true, in a degree, for Dempsey is one of the most impetuous fighters that ever advanced to the higher levels of the nose-spreading racket.

It is undoubtedly true as it concerns Tunney, for he has never seen the ex-marine in action.

Hidden back in his noodle I rather imagine Dempsey has a preconceived idea of how best to battle Wills, for he has seen him in two of his winning fights—against Fred Fulton, whom he stopped in short order, and against Firpo, whom he did not stop.

"The only reason I haven't seen Tunney in the ring," explained Dempsey, "is that I have never been around when he was boxing."

DIAMOND DUST

Every able bodied man, woman and child in Cincinnati who is not in jail saw the Reds whip the Giants, three to two, for the third straight time. Thirty thousand straw hats bit the dust in the eighth inning when Pitcher Red Lucas, acting as pinch hitter, got his revenge for being knocked out of the box on Saturday by clouting a triple with two men on bases. Pipp got a homer earlier in the game.

The Cardinals got four home runs and slaughtered the Braves, thirteen to two. Rhem, who pitched for the winners, hit one of the homers.

Seven pitchers were disillusioned as the Cubs got a ten to nine verdict over the Phillies in an old-fashioned batting bee. Both Al-eader and Nun, the starting pitchers, were given the afternoon off before they could complete an inning.

Detroit nosed out Boston in the eleventh, six to five, in the only game played in the American League. The winning run drifted in when Carlyle, trying to locate a fly in the sun, sneezed and lost his bearings.

An auto is a necessity unless you want to get run over by one.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Today's chapter opens at a crisis in AUDREY MORTON'S love for her guardian, HARRY MORTON. He is rich, attractive, middle-aged and unmarried, and much courted by women.

For 15 years he has lived in Rochester, while Audrey has grown from little-girlhood, but the gossip there never have learned about his past, nor what his business is. He maintains also an expensive apartment in New York, which he visits almost weekly.

NONA, a New York stage girl, also loves Morton. After an effort to interest Audrey in his young secretary, JOHN PARRISH, Morton tries another tack, and sends for Nona to come to Rochester. Audrey meets her, but the two evade her. After a night of jealousy and heartache, Audrey learns that at least Morton and Nona were not together the previous night. They all return to New York, where Audrey overhears Morton make an appointment to be at the Bon cabaret the following midnight.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The next chapter continues in this story are fictitious.)

fans. A little group of men, in evening clothes, sat at a corner table, by the door. From time to time, at a signal from one of the waiter-captains, one of these men would slip out the door, returning presently to pass an object to the captain who had summoned him.

This object invariably turned out to be a small flat bottle of liquor. As in many of the night resorts, alcoholic supplies were kept outside the building, as guard against disastrous effects from a possible prohibition raid.

Just inside the entrance, the manager and an assistant stood away, except when called away on some brief errand about the room. They seemed carefully watching every guest. This precaution is considered necessary, in nearly all cabarets, since dry agents first began wandering abroad.

It was into this scene, with its attendant din of saxophone music, and high voices, and the laughter, that Audrey and John Parrish entered a little before midnight.

Audrey was in an evening gown. Parrish wore his accustomed brown sack suit. He attracted no attention though; fully half the men were dressed much as he was.

Both of them looked around, a little uncertain in manner. To the bowing captain who greeted them, they asked for a corner table. He led them around the room, to a nook where there was room for only two, closely squeezed together. The table was scarcely larger than one of those stands that are used to hold a single pot of flowers.

It was almost in whispers that they selected their supper. After they had given their order, the waiter stood a moment, as if expecting further requests. Then, as if disappointed, he moved away. His motions were slow, and full of a high indifference. Non-drinking patrons are not profitable to the Bon cabaret.

Audrey's eyes looked over the crowd, time and again. Apparently disappointed, she turned to Parrish, with light now to which he made only jerky retort.

He was evidently embarrassed. Once when a youth, passing by them with a girl, seized his companion and kissed her on the lips, Parrish started as if to shield this scene from Audrey's view. Her eyes, though, were quiet as she watched the young couple.

"This is a terrible place," said Parrish. "Wouldn't it be better if I took you away?"

Audrey shook her head. "I had a special reason for coming here," she said. "Please stay."

After a long wait, they were furnished with oyster cocktails, containing two small oysters each. Parrish took his at a gulp. Audrey merely inspected hers, and pushed it away.

After another lengthy delay, they were served with tiny portions of soup. Again Audrey pushed the dish from her.

"What does this mean?" said Parrish, looking at the menu card before him. "It says 'Coevert—$2.00.' What is Coevert?"

Audrey smiled.

"That means we have to pay two dollars and ten cents for sitting here," she said. "They charge for the supper besides that."

Parrish was agitated. "But Miss Morton!" he cried. "That's four dollars and our two suppers besides!"

She looked at him inquiringly: "Will you please excuse me for about half an hour?" he asked.

He was rising to his feet, when she put her hand on his arm. "I have the money here," she said understandingly.

He was starting to stutter a protest, when her attention suddenly left him.

Her eyes, directed across the room, saw Morton entering with a party of women, and another man.

(To Be Continued)

CHAPTER XVI
YOUNG John Parrish arrived at Morton's New York office next morning, his face filled with gloom.

Morton looked up quizzically as the young man marched into his presence, his overcoat still on, his briefcase in one hand and his hat in the other. He dropped the case on the table, and stood surveying his employer.

"You've had hardly any time at all for guitar lessons, or dancing," said Morton.

"No sir," said Parrish shortly. "I've just been riding up and down on a railroad train. I didn't see you yesterday at all, sir."

Morton tilted back in his chair and crossed his feet on the table.

"I see there's something on your mind," he said. "Better relieve your self of it early so you won't spoil your day. Why all the gloom?"

Parrish stood on the other side of the polished desk, his hands nervously on the wood with his knuckles.

"I do want to say something, sir, but it's hard to say."

"Go ahead—don't mind me," Morton urged.

Parrish sat down. "Mr. Morton, you told me to talk, and I'm going to." He shifted the inkwell nervously, moved the briefcase further away, and went on. "Mr. Morton, I don't believe you are the right man to be Miss Morton's guardian."

He traced himself, as if to resist an expected shock. Morton, however, did not blink. He kept his clear eyes fixed steadily on Parrish.

"Proceed," he ordered.

The young man hesitated, and then continued: "Everybody in Rochester is talking about you going to the theater, and to a hotel, with that black-haired young woman. She's the one I took all that money to!"

"Yes?" Morton's tone was encouraging.

"Well, I thought I'd say this, and then resign my job. I don't think that you're the right man to be guardian of a beautiful girl, and a good girl, and a girl like Miss Morton. I'm through now, sir. You'll have to get another secretary."

Parrish had risen, but his employer motioned him to sit down.

"You have been quite frank with me," Morton said. "May I be quite as frank with you?" He removed his feet from the table, and leaned toward Parrish, on his elbows.

Parrish waited.

"May I remark, in passing, that you're an egotistical young ass?" There was no heat in Morton's voice. Parrish squirmed in his chair, but did not reply.

"I think you're even a bit of a blockhead," Morton continued, comfortably. "Just how do you expect to improve Miss Morton's condition by quitting my service? Do I understand that you think highly of Miss Morton?"

"Of course I do," said Parrish clearing his throat.

"Then hasn't it occurred to you that as virtuous a young man as yourself should remain near her, to protect her from any contamination that she might receive from me?" Morton's words were icy, but his eyes were twinkling a little.

Parrish moved restlessly.

Morton went on: "In your story books, did the saintly young knights run away from the dragon, or did they stay and rescue the maiden?"

Parrish was one of those men who blush easily, and now his face was brick red. He gulped once or twice, but produced no reply.

"As a matter of fact, Parrish," Morton went on, with a quiver of a smile at the corners of his mouth. "You really did not want to quit your position at all. You simply wanted to do what little boys do—throw a rock, and then run away. Isn't that so?"

Parrish found his voice. "Why—well—maybe that's so. I guess it is so. I didn't want to quit, but I wanted to tell you what I thought, and I didn't think you'd keep me."

"So you decided to run away," concluded Morton, dryly. "Now suppose we have no more of this piffle. You go ahead and attend to your work. If you think Miss Morton needs rescuing, go ahead and rescue her."

He swung around in his chair again, and once more elevated his feet to the table. And you say the people in Rochester were much interested in my young lady friend?"

Parrish was very earnest in his answer. "Indeed they were, Mr. Morton. They all said it was terrible that you should bring a woman like that to Rochester, when Miss Morton lives there, and all."

"How do they know she was a woman like that?" asked Morton

"People do like to be plaintiff, judge, jury and executioner, all at the same time, don't they? You tried it yourself, Parrish. It must be nice, isn't it?"

The young man confusedly arose, took his hat and briefcase, and stood uncertainly at the door. "Was there anything you wanted me to do?"

"Go ahead and attend to your regular affairs," said Morton. "Get started on those guitar and dancing lessons. Now clear out!"

After Parrish had gone, Morton sat, a look of sincipit satisfaction on his face, drumming with his fingers on the arms of his chair. He attempted a little work that morning, but would stop now and again for long pauses, looking out the window with a contemplative smile.

Toward noon, Parrish came in again. "I feel it's only right to tell you that Miss Morton called up and asked me to come to your apartment this evening."

"Do you want to go?" asked Morton.

"Of course I do," the young man said, "but I haven't got my new clothes yet."

"Hang your and your clothes!" snorted Morton. "Go in the clothes you've got on. Do you suppose she cares anything about your clothes?"

Parrish again retired, and Morton, donning his hat and overcoat, went out to the elevator, and down into the street.

The Bon cabaret was crowded with after-theater patrons that night. It was a curiously mixed crowd. Sober, plump citizens, with their alert, plump wives, joggled solemnly around the dance floor, bumping elbows with little flappers whose low-cut gowns were far too décolleté for their thin forms. Some of the flappers were with elderly, purple-faced men, who whispered heavily in the girls' ears.

Reserved, sophisticated-looking women, in evening clothes, sat with sleek boys, half attentive to their escorts' rapid chatter.

The ceiling was hung with strips of glistening silks, that away lazily to the draught created by the suction

HER OWN WAY A GIRL OF TODAY GREATER THAN LOVE

"Judy," said Mamie Riley to me, "when Buddy Tremaine asked me if I thought he could ever have loved a woman like Lola Lawrence, I turned rather sick."

"While I did not think that he could have done this, yet I was also sure that he had tried to make himself satisfied with that counterfeit thing which men sometimes call love."

"Everyone, I expect, even Buddy's wife, thought that Lola Lawrence was Buddy Tremaine's mistress and here I was toying with the same idea about myself. I was thinking that possibly everyone might at some future time suspect that I was his mistress."

"Judy, I love him. Love him so much that I will be his, soul and body, if he asks me, and what will I get for it? Only what he has given Lola Lawrence and a score of others. Buddy Tremaine has nothing of himself to give to me. He has thrown it all away. Oh, the waste of it!"

"I know that will sound queer to those who know him. He has the reputation of lavishing jewels and furs and every material gift on the woman that pleases his fancy for the time."

"I want none of those. But, oh, Judy, I do want his real love, his tenderness, his sympathy, and I do want the knowledge that I have someone to turn to for these and that someone will not fail me."

I looked at Mamie in surprise. Did she expect to get these things from a man who was buying her just as he had bought many other women?

Before I could ask the question she answered it of her own accord.

"Of course, Judy, the first thing Buddy said to me was that I had no right to throw such a thing away as my love."

"Mamie," he said, "there are some things in this world that are of more account than even love. The poet who sings to the world of his broken heart gives a poignant beauty and consolation to many other hearts which would be much sadder if he had not sung his song."

"I may break your heart, dear, but I do not think I will, and it really will not matter about your life or mine. We are after all only pawns on checker boards of destiny."

Judy, he made me understand that his voice was worth more than either himself or myself."

WAPPING

Next Tuesday, May 18th, there is to be an auction at which the home of the late L. Judson Grant will be sold besides several other pieces of land.

Mrs. Willard Cornish, of Gloucester, is ill at the Francis hospital. Mrs. Cornish was formerly Miss Audrey Elmore of Pleasant Valley.

The dramatic club of Wapping Grange is rehearsing for the play which it is to present the twenty-first of May in the Wapping Center school hall. The title is "Always in Trouble."

Mrs. Henry Grant is sick at her home and under the care of a trained nurse.

FRANCIS DROP.
New York, May 17.—French and Belgian francs dipped to record low quotations today, in continuation of their downward movement in the foreign exchange markets. French francs were quoted at 2.99 1/2 cents for demand and Belgian francs at 2.97 1/2 cents.

Italian lira was quoted at 3.52 cents for cables, a week-end loss of 14 points, but recovered to 3.57 in the first period. British pound sterling was steady.

A Vacation Warning

This is the last of a series of four articles on vacations.

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service.

If you are going camping on your vacation, you should be prepared to deal intelligently with hurts and accidents. You should know what to do in case of sudden illness.

If you are going some place far from a doctor you should provide yourself with a first aid kit and a few simple medicines. A useful kit should contain something like the following articles:

Two gauze bandages 2 1/2 inches wide, two cotton bandages 3 inches wide, one roll adhesive plaster 1 inch wide, one dozen safety pins, one ounce absorbent cotton, one yard of plain sterile gauze, one ounce tincture of iodine, one dozen compound cathartic pills, two ounces bicarbonate of soda, one drachm permanganate of potash, four ounces castor oil, one clinic thermometer, one hot water bag.

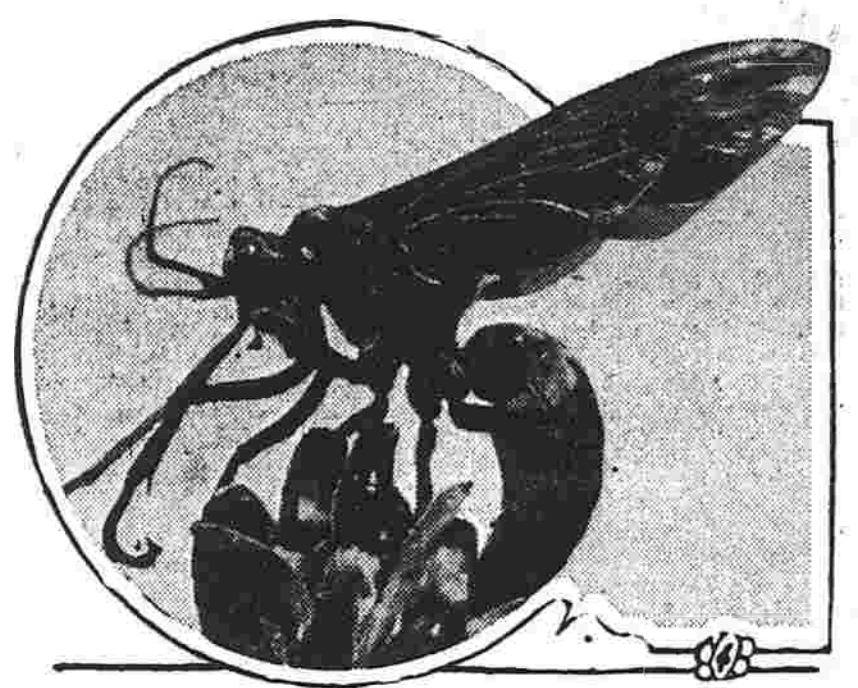

It should be remembered that only the necessary first aid treatment should be given by one who is not familiar with the practice of medicine. In case of sudden illness see that the patient is put to bed and if the condition appears serious send for a doctor at once.

Pains can often be relieved by hot applications. In some cases, however, especially when fever is present, ice cold applications may be more serviceable. Headache may be relieved by cloths wrung out in cold water and frequently changed.

Pain in the abdomen is often the result of constipation and this condition should therefore be treated. On the other hand, colicky pains often accompany diarrhea. In all cases of diarrhea it is imperative to stop all food at once and give the patient plenty of water to drink. A twenty-four hour fast will frequently effect a cure.

If the patient is feverish and especially if the fever continues for more than a day be sure to call a doctor. In the meantime it will be well to keep the patient by himself for the disease may be catching. If he is hungry feed him nothing but milk until the doctor comes.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Fighting Wasp
BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, The American Nature Association

Flying low, with plenty of noise of the three-inch wings, these large wasps, in fact the largest of the wasp insects, the tarantula hawk or tarantula killer may be seen all during the summer in the southwestern part of the United States.

This interesting insect, with a blackish body measuring from three to four inches in length, with wings a deep orange red measuring from four to six inches from tip to tip, flies over the fields and pastures, lighting only on the milk weed.

It feeds entirely on this weed. If the insect is approached in flight it will buzz around as if in doubt whether to attack or not, and will then usually rise in the air and fly rapidly away.

One of the habits of this wasp is to catch the deadly tarantula. This spider, often reaches a size equal to the tarantula killer, and the battle between the two is then deadly and fierce.

The final outcome in most cases is undecided, one fighting to kill with the bite, the other with the sting.

If the tarantula killer is successful, it will drag the spider to its nest, which is a hole in the ground. If the tarantula is successful, it will devour the wasp.

SPLIT OVER CABINET.

Pekin, May 17.—Chang Tso Lin and Wu Pei Fu have split over the creation of the Yen cabinet.

The WOMAN'S DAY
by Allene Sumner

"Hello, Kink and Queen!"

One of the mighty tragedies of the great British strike, we were told, is the waste of all the brocade and velvet and gold and silver-spun court dresses ordered for the May Royal Courts when a few cullid bits of the world's feminine factors were to be represented at court. The strike has cancelled the Royal Court.

Preparation for this ordeal is bad enough even when one actually goes through with it, bows low

White Curtains

Home decorators now seen agreed that only the small quaint colonial house with braided rugs and painted furniture can stand ruffled white curtains, and they frown at any kind of white ones for average homes. They are breaking away from the old idea that curtains are protection from the curious with-out, and must completely cover the window. A color, we learn, casts its reflection downward, but brings out its complementary color above. Thus, a rose facing on a hat would cast a rosy hue over the face, but a rose dress would bring out its complementary color, green, on the face, making it a bad choice for the sallow woman.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE RAIN BARREL FAIRIES.

The Twins and the Whiffet trudged along and along and along, and pretty soon they came to the water-trough under which the toad lived.

There she sat under a toadstool umbrella, to keep the drops off that splashed over.

"Did you see a little lost shadow around any place?" asked Nancy. "This poor little Whiffet lost his shadow when he was crossing the stile."

"No," said the toad. "That's a silly thing to do. But since it's done, there is only one thing left. That is for him to keep out of the sun for the rest of his days. Then he won't miss it."

"Well, I didn't come for advice," said the Whiffet. "I came for my shadow, thank you. I for one don't care to sit under a watering trough and do nothing but get fat. Good-bye."

"Good-bye!" said the toad. "The life suits me. You might ask the rain-barrel fairies."

The rain-barrel fairies were floating around on the top of the rain-barrel in little leaf boats. They and nets and were fishing for skippers.

The Twins and the Whiffet climbed up on the edge and watched them.

"Did you see a stray shadow around anywhere?" asked the Whiffet.

"My goodness!" cried one of the rain-barrel fairies. "Your suit's all shrunken up. Did you fall in?"

"Did?"

"You?"

"Fall?"

"In?" sang out the other tiny creatures.

"I asked you a civil question and I expect a civil answer, not a question like a step-ladder," said the Whiffet.

"Yes, I fell into the drain and my suit all shrank up. But that makes no difference. I would know my shadow anywhere even if I am different."

"Oh, look!" cried Nancy as a shadow fell over the rain-barrel and passed on swiftly. "Maybe that's your shadow, Whiffet?"

But when the Whiffet turned to look, he lost his balance and fell splash! down, down and down, right to the bottom of the barrel where he settled and lay still.

The rain-barrel was deep, and fishing a Whiffet out of the bottom of it was no easy task.

But Nick had a happy thought. "We'll pull out the bung and the water will run out," he said. "Hurry, Nancy, help me pull."

"How about us?" shrieked the two rain-barrel fairies.

"About?"

"Us?" shrieked all of them.

"Yes, and how about us?" called out all the skippers. "We can't swim without water."

"You'll all have to hunt another rain-barrel," said Nancy. And out came the bung. And out rushed the water.

The Whiffet was saved, but his purple bombazine suit was shrunken more than ever.

"Your shadow will never know you now," said Nick. "You look more than ever like a fat little sausage. I think you'll have to get a new shadow."

"I can't," wailed the little fellow. "Don't you remember! The fairy-man said that no person in the world could have two shadows."

"That's so," said Nick. "Let's follow the shadow that passed over the rain-barrel just now. It went that way over the top of the hill!"

(To Be Continued.)

American people are buying goods on credit at the rate of $5,000,000,000 a year.

FLAPPER FANNY says—

All the slickers aren't seen on rainy days.

LITTLE JOE

TO KEEP AHEAD = USE IT.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

What this country needs is more parking spaces.

Nowadays when a man comes in to an extra $1,000, he buys a new $2,000 car with it.

If only a man could pass you on a hall without that derisive grin.

The Repair Man Speaking "What's wrong with the old bus?"

"Everything," said the auto repair man.

"Is that so? I suppose you can even find something wrong with the license tag?"

"Sure. It needs tightening a little."

If she hits a stone while learning to drive and he doesn't get sarcastic, they have been married only five months.

So? Joe's awfully absent-minded, isn't he?

Omar: Why? "Why, the other night he was driving his parents over a lonely road and they came to a particularly lonely spot and before he knew it he had parked the car."

Ownership Doubtful Traffic Cop: "Hey, you! Is that your car?"

"Well, officer, since you ask me, considering the fact that I still have 50 payments to make, owe three repair bills and haven't settled for the new tire, I really don't think it is."

Half the world doesn't know how the other half supports a car, and neither do we.

Rhymes of a Pedestrian I'll build me a house in the safety zone

Where the race of men go by; They are rich, they are poor, they are quick or they're dead, They are busy, and so am I. But I can walk out in my white-lined yard.

Now ever run or stop; I'll build me a house in a safety zone

And be a traffic cop.

The hand that rocks the steering wheel is the hand that muzzes up the scenery.

"Can I interest you in automobile insurance?"

"I haven't an automobile on my place."

"Well-er-what of that? You have burglar insurance, I presume, and yet you have no burglar on your premises."

The trouble with the intoxicated motorist is that he is not only full but running over.

Pointing to a splendid painting, the millionaire said:

"I want you to tell me whether that's a Renault or a Renault. You see, I was over in France last month, and I bought some pictures and some autos, and I've kind of got the names twisted."

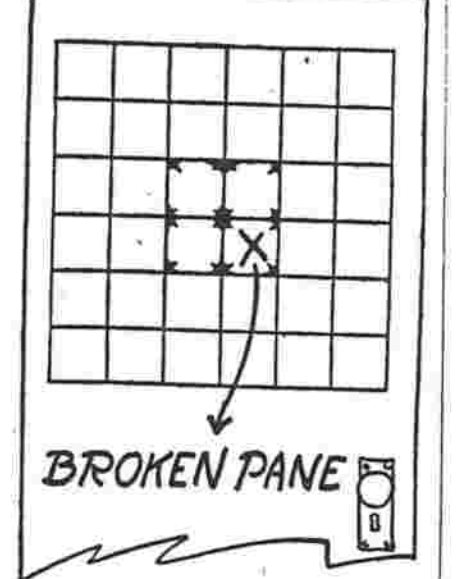

Strong man in Germany lifts an automobile. That's nothing, Jesse James used to hold up a railroad train.

Still, the new driver has that same supercilious cough as it goes by on a hill.

Obeying a traffic signal is often troublesome. But paying a fine is more so.

Several local men have been walking down town these mornings indicating that their children have come home from college and have the car.

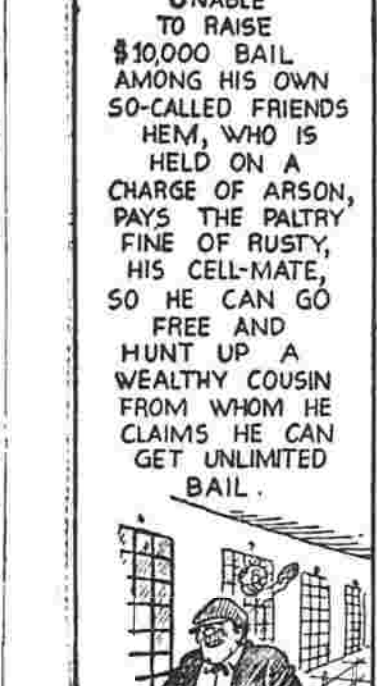

A PUZZLE A DAY

A tanker of oil exploded in Beaumont (Tex.) harbor, and 30,000 barrels of oil were destroyed. The explosion was so violent that it smashed window panes for miles around. And poor George Dane, who had just had the glass in his leader front door repaired, found that the explosion had broken the same panes. Twelve panes out of the thirty-six were broken. Every row up or down had two broken panes. If you counted the broken panes diagonally no more than two in any row were broken. Here is a sketch of the windows showing the only broken pane of the fancier four central panes. Can you locate the 11 other broken panes?

Last Puzzle Answer: The easiest way to solve the Mother's Day puzzle is to work it backwards. The known number in the puzzle is 48. If 5 is subtracted from 48 it will leave 42. This quantity is twice as many more, and one-half as many more than the actual amount. The actual amount is 1. This added to 2 1-2 is 3 1-2. 42 therefore equals 3 1-2 times the actual amount. Dividing you get 12 or the actual number of children the old lady had.

GAS BUGGIES or HEM AND AMY—Out of Jail and Into What?

UNABLE TO RAISE $10,000 BAIL AMONG HIS OWN SO-CALLED FRIENDS, HEM, WHO IS HELD ON A CHARGE OF ARSON, PAYS THE PALTRY FINE OF RUSTY, HIS CELL-MATE, SO HE CAN GO FREE AND HUNT UP A WEALTHY COUSIN FROM WHOM HE CLAIMS HE CAN GET UNLIMITED BAIL.

JUST A MINUTE MISTER—WHAT DO YOU WANT TO SEE HIM ABOUT? MR. SMART'S BUSINESS IS JUST AS IMPORTANT AS YOURS—YOU CAN'T COME IN HERE AND JUST CRASH THE GATE.

IT'S ALL RIGHT, MISS PRATTLE—THIS IS MY COUSIN FROM THE COUNTRY—COME IN, RUSTY—LET'S HEAR WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND.

YOU FOOL! HAVEN'T I TOLD YOU NEVER TO COME HERE? DO YOU WANT TO QUEER ME? WHY DIDN'T YOU STAY IN JAIL, WHERE YOU WERE SAFE? THOSE COPPERS FROM THE STICKS ARE STILL COMBING THIS BURG FOR YOU.

LISTEN—I GOTTA END—JUST THE BIRD YOU'RE LOOKIN' FOR TO PUT OVER THAT PHONEY GAS DEAL—THIS GUY WAS JUST MADE FOR YOU—EVERYBODY IN TOWN KNOWS HIM, AND HE'S DUMB ENOUGH TO SWALLOW CARBOLIC ACID IF YOU TELL HIM IT'S GOOD.

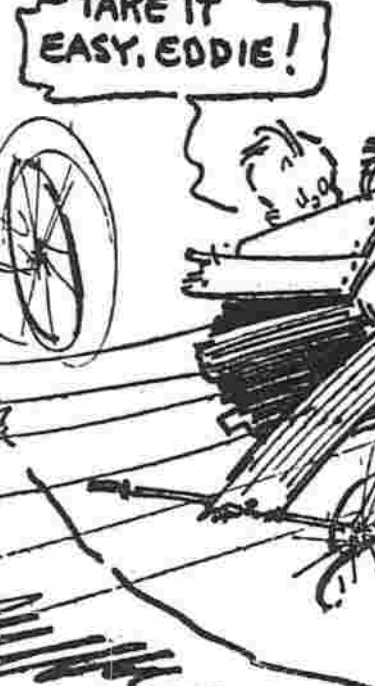

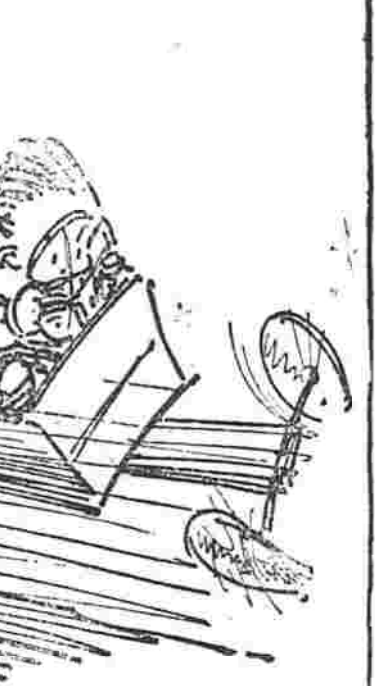

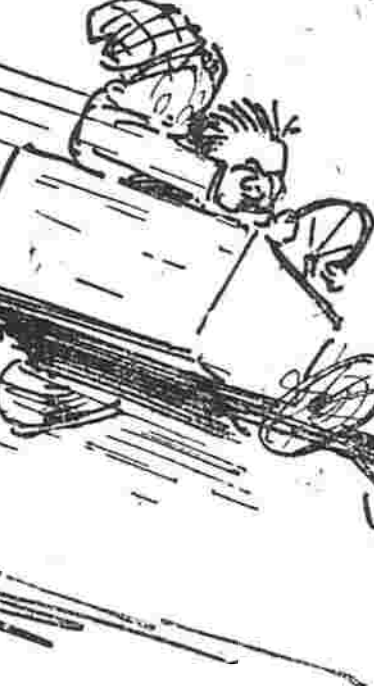

FROM WHAT YOU SAY I GUESS HE'S JUST THE BIRD WE WANT-- IF THIS WORKS, RUSTY, WELL BE RIDING IN YACHTS AND LIVING IN MANSIONS-- BUT FIRST WE'VE GOT TO BAIL HIM OUT-- YOU SAID $10,000 DIDN'T YOU-- HOW'LL WE WORK THIS-- WILL YOU TAKE IT OVER?

SURE—I WANT TO GIVE HIM A CHANCE TO SAY, 'WELL, RUSTY, I'M SURE GRATEFUL, NOW WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU?' SEE—THAT LEAVES AN OPENING SO I CAN COME BACK AT HIM WHEN WE'RE READY.
