

COMRADE DAY DIES SUDDENLY THIS MORNING

Civil War Veteran, Caretaker of Cheney Hall for 54 Years, Victim of Stroke of Apoplexy at 3.30.

One less veteran will be counted in the ranks of Manchester's Civil War heroes when the little group that's not departed rides in Monday's Memorial Day parade. Charles Allen Day, one of the town's best known veterans, died this morning at 3.30. Death was sudden. Mr. Day suffered a stroke of apoplexy at 11.30 last night, and grew gradually weaker to death.

The same cheerful spirit that carried the boy of 17 through the struggles of '61 to '65 remained with the veteran of 61 until death. Mr. Day worked in his garden last evening and yesterday went riding with his comrade Lucius H. Pinney. At the recent Chamber of Commerce-Get Together club dinner in Cheney Hall Mr. Day was present to greet his host of acquaintances and his cheerfulness and hearty "hello" were as spirited as ever.

Charles A. Day was well known to a great many people not only through his Grand Army of the Republic connections but through his services as caretaker at Cheney hall for nearly 54 years. Cheney Brothers retired Mr. Day to the pension list on January 1, 1925. He had served the firm for 55 years.

Mr. Day was born in New London on February 14, 1845. His father was a sea captain and was lost in a storm at sea when Charles was seven years old. The Day family moved to Old Lyme and Mr. Day himself took to the sea. He was employed on the United States mail steamer when the Civil war broke out. Mr. Day and a chum came to Hartford and on August 16, 1862 he enlisted with Company C, 26th Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers. It was a short term enlistment since no one at the time believed the war would last long. He was discharged on August 17, 1863 and re-enlisted with Company A, Connecticut Volunteers, Heavy Artillery on December 10, 1863. He saw the war through to the finish this time being discharged on September 25, 1865 as a corporal.

His Services.
During his war service he attained the rank of sergeant and took part in the battle outside of Petersburg and the fiercest battle he fought in was the Peninsula campaign under McClellan. Mr. Day, though modest, always expressed great pride in the fact that he was one of those who defended the nation's capitol during that battle of six days and nights.

For a short time after the war Mr. Day was employed at a saw and grist mill in Mansfield Depot, Conn., and soon came to Manchester seeking work as a carpenter at Cheney Brothers. He entered the employ of the firm in December 1870. He helped in the work of constructing the present spinning mill and next winter was assigned to Cheney hall as an assistant to the janitor. He remained as Cheney hall's caretaker until January 1, 1925. What he thought was to be a temporary job was his for 54 years. He prized old Cheney hall as though it were his own so long had he been attached to it.

His Wife.
Mr. Day lived his entire married life on the street on which he died, Elm street. His wife who was Miss Harriet Russ Rich, had been a schoolmate. She died on April 10, 1916. After her death Mr. Day continued to live at Elm street and Hall Court employing a housekeeper.

On Thursday evening, December 18, 1924 Frank Cheney, Jr., then president of the firm of Cheney Brothers announced that at Mr. Day's request and consent he would be placed on the firm's pension list. At that time he expressed the gratitude of Cheney Brothers for the veteran's services and presented him with a check. Mr. Day responded with a fine tribute to Cheney Brothers and said he felt he should rest although he hated the thoughts of letting go. Even after retirement he was a regular attendant at Cheney hall affairs—almost as regularly as when he was the caretaker.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete today.

I. C. C. TO INQUIRE INTO BUS TRANSPORT

Washington, May 25.—The Interstate commerce commission today took cognizance of the growing competition of motor trucks and buses with railroads by ordering an extensive investigation into motor and rail transportation competition. The inquiry will embrace the legality and propriety of motor bus operation, rates and fares, and the extent to which the railroads have been affected by motor competition.

All railroads of the country were made a party of the investigation.

MASONIC TEMPLE CONTRACT GIVEN

To Cost Nearly $90,000; Local Concern Gets the Job—The Details.

The Manchester Construction Company was last night awarded the contract for building the Masonic Temple at the Center. This action was taken by the lodge building committee which met with Walter T. Arnold, Meriden architect, at the Recreation Center on School street. The amount of money included in the contract is approximately $90,000 which is less than the bid made by the Industrial Construction Company of Hartford, the only competitor of the local concern. Five other construction companies were eliminated previous to this meeting.

Work will be started at once. William A. Knoth, president of the Manchester Construction Company informed The Herald today. "The ground will be staked out tomorrow morning and work will proceed at once," he said, "and the temple will be ready for occupancy by May 1."

The new home of the Masons on Center and Main streets directly opposite the Lincoln school, will have a Center street frontage of 50 feet. It will extend 120 feet back. The temple will be two stories high and will include a large basement. The basement will be arranged as a social parlor. Banquets will be held there.

The First Floor.
On the first floor there will be a lodge room, a fine dining room, billiard rooms, including pool and billiard rooms. The second floor will contain the main lodge room plus numerous ante-rooms.

Splendid Exterior
Outwardly the Masonic Temple will present a fine appearance. It will add to the beauty of the Center and is something the lodge members have looked forward to ever since their former Masonic hall was destroyed by fire over fifteen years ago. The new building will be of brick structure with cast-stone trimmings. Ornamental columns will ornament the front entrance on Center street.

The cornerstone will be laid in October and the lodge is planning appropriate ceremonies for this time as it will mark the 100th anniversary of the Manchester Lodge of Masons.

FUNDAMENTALISTS LAY MODERNISM TO J. D.'S CASH

Baptists in Convention in Array for Fight—Fosdick and Non-Immersion Are Bones of Contention.

Washington, May 25.—A sharp fight over evolution, modernism and fundamentalism was brewing today as the Northern Baptist convention met for a six-day session. A clash also centered about the Standard Oil and Rockefeller millions. Fundamentalist delegates charged that modernists have gained the ascendancy in church control because of the influence and money of the Rockefeller family.

Some delegates predicted that a split in the church would result if the convention passes a proposed resolution by which a person may become affiliated without baptism. The trouble over this issue arose when the delegates of the Park Avenue Baptist church, New York, were seated at the last convention. Harry Emerson Fosdick agreed to take the pastorate of this church if

MILITARY HONORS FOR DR. HIGGINS

Escort and Firing Squad from American Legion; The Pall Bearers.

Besides the other honors to be bestowed on Dr. Joseph A. Higgins, who died early Sunday morning, the military branch of the U. S. government will pay tribute at his funeral tomorrow. An escort from the American Legion will be in the cortege and a firing squad will be at the grave.

Requiem Mass.
At 9:30 a solemn requiem mass will be chanted at St. James' church. The celebrant will be Rev. Dr. Higgins, brother of the deceased, with Rev. C. T. McCann, as deacon, Rev. James P. Timmins, as sub-deacon, and Rev. W. P. Reidy, as master of ceremonies. From present indications there will be visiting priests from various parts of this state and Massachusetts with the altar rail during the mass. The choir arrangements had not been arranged at a late hour this afternoon.

Pall Bearers.
The pall bearers will be: Dr. E. C. Egan, Edward F. Taylor, John T. Hayes, James H. Quinn, Dr. Hugh F. Flaherty, of Hartford, and Dr. Patrick Brennan, of Waterbury. At a meeting of Campbell Council, K. of C., held last night, these officers were chosen: E. J. Murray, Francis Miner, P. J. Hutchinson and John H. Gill. Delegates to attend the funeral were: G. H. Williams, A. Wilfred Messier, Frank L. Doyle, Daniel J. Renn, Frank Balkner and Robert J. Campbell.

A delegation from the Hartford Lodge of Elks will also be present at the mass and at the funeral.

Doctors Meet.
At a joint meeting of the Manchester Medical Association and the staff of the Memorial hospital held this morning it was voted that all of the local doctors to the number of fourteen with members of the visiting staff of the hospital, attend the funeral in a body. President Dr. T. G. Sloan appointed a committee of two, Drs. D. C. Moore and N. A. Burr, to draw up suitable resolutions and arrange for a floral tribute to do honor to the memory of their colleague. Two of the local physicians, Drs. Weldon and Knapp, are abroad.

The sudden death of Dr. Higgins still remains the sole topic of conversation on the streets. Many stories are told of his devotion to his patients. That he will be missed by not only those in the medical profession but among his friends goes without saying.

As to his devotion to duty a prominent resident said this morning that he heard the late Dr. Harry R. Sharpe tell a friend that when Dr. Higgins volunteered for service at the beginning of the war he told Dr. Higgins not to do so as he feared he would never come back alive. Dr. Sharpe said at that time that Dr. Higgins had a weak heart. Dr. Higgins replied:

"Heart or no heart I have to help my country."

Was Unselfish.
Men and women in all walks of life remembered how unselfish the dead physician was during his life time. Night or day he was always at the call of the sick, they said.

This morning the flag in front of the Memorial hospital was hung at half-mast. This was the third time the flag had been lowered for the death of a local doctor. Dr. Higgins died after the passing on of Drs. Sharpe and Whitton.

Check Up 11th Time Mulhaley Has Cheated Navy Jones' Locker

Saugatuck, May 25.—John Mulhaley, town constable and fisherman, here, today made his eleventh rescue of a drowning person when he dived into the harbor behind his home and pulled Jack Reef, a sailor, of Southport, N. C., from the water, and worked over him on the shore until he revived. Reef is a deckhand on the yacht Omar, outfitting here. Reef was lowering a dory from its davits when it upset and pitched Reef into the harbor. Mulhaley rowed to the spot and dived from his boat when Reef had gone down for the third time.

FIREMAN MAKES MARVEL RESCUES

Six Times Leaps Safely Across Face of New York Building, Saves Three.

New York, May 25.—By a feat of heroism seldom equaled in the history of fire fighting in this city, fireman Frederick Revelliello rescued a mother and her two small children from the third floor of a blazing tenement yesterday, though the rescue proved later to be largely if not altogether futile. When Revelliello's company arrived, windows of the two lower floors were spouting flames and on the floor above, Mrs. Maria Bessana stood behind a barred window screaming for help with a two-year-old baby in her arms. Revelliello ran up a ladder, but it was several feet short. Grasping the sill with his hands, he swung upward, gaining a hold on the bars which enabled him to climb upon the window ledge. He attempted to wrench out one of the bars but failed.

Dessinate Leap.
His comrades below next saw him take a flying leap across the face of the building, landing safely on the ledge of the adjoining window. In a few moments he appeared with the baby, repeated his daring jump and handed the child to a fireman at the top of the ladder. Once more jumping from window to window, he re-entered the burning building and carried out the unconscious woman, again negotiating the leap, despite his burden, and handing her down to firemen on the ladder.

Mrs. Bessana recovered consciousness as she reached the ground and cried out that another child was in bed in the room, from the windows of which flames were now visible.

Third Trip.
The mother and older child were found to be seriously burned. Revelliello insisted upon being given only first aid treatment for his burns and remained to fight the fire, which destroyed the interior of the building.

Today Mrs. Bessana is not expected to die, while both children are dead of their burns.

PITTSFIELD SHIES AT HAVING JOYCE THERE

Boat Club Which Had Engaged Bathub Girl to Dance Closes Under Storm of Protest.

Pittsfield, May 25.—Joyce Hawley, heroine of Earl Carroll's new musical comedy, "The Merry Widow," was scheduled to dance for the Pittsfield Boat Club on June 2, but she's not going to. Pittsfield is split into two camps over the youthful Joyce.

A furor of criticism descended upon the heads of the club officials after they had announced the coming engagement. These officials straightway got together in executive session and decided to cancel the engagement.

COOLIDGE SIGNS BILL FOR NEW POST OFFICES.

Washington, May 25.—President Coolidge today signed the $165,000,000 public buildings bill.

Looks Like "Baron's" 49th Wife Would Be the Last for Some Time

New York, May 25.—New York authorities were preparing today to extradite the alleged "Baron Beaverbrook," charged with swindling forty-nine wives of sums totaling $1,000,000, held without bail in Philadelphia.

The "baron" was quite a light in the night life of Broadway. He also was mentioned in police reports in Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, San Francisco and London.

The bogus baron is said to have as many aliases as wives during his career, and twice as many disguises.

Police throughout the country have been pursuing the "baron's" shadow for more than a year. Mrs. Ray Burken, of New York, his last victim, charged he swindled her out of $125,000 in jewelry. William A. Ruzner, one of the New York Edison company managers, turned amateur detective, and after a trailing expedition in Atlantic City, N. J., caused the arrest of the "baron." "Beaverbrook" is held in Philadelphia on a $50,000 grand larceny charge.

CITE MARSHALL DECISION AS IN NEW DRY ORDER

Senators Declare U. S. Supreme Court Rule, 1819, Shows Badge Ukase for Policemen Is Illegal.

Washington, May 25.—The storm of dissension over President Coolidge's order pinning federal prohibition badges on state officials, from governors down to village constables, spread to the House today while the Senate prepared to launch an investigation to determine its constitutionality.

Although the Treasury Department declared the order would be confined to California for the present. The demand for its entire abolition grew by leaps, with Republicans and Democrats alike protesting against letting it stand as a precedent. West and dry joined in endorsing the King resolution, calling on the Senate Judiciary committee to investigate the legality of the order.

The wetts organized a little offensive of their own to smash down the President's order. Under the direction of Senator Edwards, (D., N. J.), they were preparing a bill to prohibit the use of any state officials in enforcing the national dry law. It may be offered as an amendment to the Goff enforcement bill, if not called up for enactment as a separate measure.

In the House, the clamor against the order drew protests from both the wet and dry camps. Rep. Douglas, (D., Mass.), denounced it as an invasion of state's rights and an attack on personal liberty, while Rep. Crisp, (D., Ga.), a dry, termed the order an "act of folly."

U. S. GENEVA PLAN GOES INTO DISCARD

Agenda Board Takes French Attitude of Arms in Proportion to Security.

Geneva, May 25.—France scores a victory and the United States gets a rebuff in the report of the drafting commission of the League of Nations disarmament preparatory commission, it was learned today.

The drafting commission submitted its report to the full commission this afternoon and it approves the French thesis that "disarmament is only realizable in proportion to security."

The report ignores the proposal of the United States that the questions of naval and military disarmament be separated.

The report also recommends a number of questions for the consideration of the technical military sub-committees.

The French thesis has scored almost a complete victory in the drafting commission and there are indications that it will find considerable support before the full commission.

RUSSELL SCOTT BEGINS NEW FIGHT FOR LIFE

Relieved Murderer Battles in Court Against Order of Return for Hanging.

Chicago, May 25.—Russell Scott, the man who was snatched from the gallows two hours before the scheduled execution, on a writ ordering a test of his sanity, was back in Chicago today prepared to renew his fight to escape the seemingly inevitable noose.

Scott's first bout with the law will come today when he appears before Acting Chief Justice William V. Brothers, of the Criminal court, who is expected to rule the legality of the proceedings adopted by the state in declaring Scott sane and ordering his release from the Chester State Insane Asylum so that the sentence of death might be carried out.

Scott was committed to the asylum when a jury found he had become insane after he had been sentenced to hang for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a young drug clerk, during a hold-up. He was returned to Chicago yesterday after a commission of state alibiists declared he had recovered his sanity.

Judge Brothers is expected to rule that another jury will have to pass on Scott's sanity before the court's sentence can be executed. The slayer's attorney, William Scott Stewart, will be present to argue for a jury trial.

BUT WILL SIGNATURES BE BONES OR MEAT.

Paris, May 25.—Desirous of achieving a greater celebrity for their culinary works of art, the more exclusive French cooks are now demanding that they be permitted to sign their work, just as a writer autographs his canvases and a writer the children of his brain.

JOYCE REALLY DID, SHE SAYS; NOT PAID

Admits She Wore Nothing in Bath tub; Was to Have Had $1,000; Cobb a Witness.

New York, May 25.—After keeping the court waiting for an hour today, beautiful Joyce Hawley, the "wine bath" girl, tripped unabashed to the witness stand to reveal the tale of the tub at the Earl Carroll party to the jury in the Carroll perjury trial.

Dressed in her Sunday best, Joyce seemed unperturbed at her narrow escape from a bench warrant, due to her tardy appearance. The pretty showgirl, who, so half a dozen witnesses have testified, stepped undressed into a bathtub of more-or-less champagne at Carroll's recent Broadway party, calmly possessed her self of the witness chair and crossed her slicked ankles.

The "bathtub fans" who had succeeded in crowding into the federal court room cupped their hands behind their ears. A silence as tight as the cork in a bottle prevailed as the Titan-haired Joyce began testifying.

Says She's Seventeen.
Speaking in a low voice, Miss Hawley testified she was a chorus girl, seventeen, born in Chicago, and that her real name was Theresa Douglas.

"Were you ever employed by Earl Carroll?" she was asked.

"Yes, at a hotel fashion show," she answered from under the brim of her peacock hat.

"Did you go to the party at Earl Carroll's theatre on February 22?"

"Yes," Miss Hawley said a "Mr. Juan Tamatelli" invited her to the party. She told the court she had seen Carroll drinking at the party and they "made her drunk."

Miss Hawley was asked to tell about the bath she took in the tub wheeled out on the stage.

All About It.
Her voice dropped lower as she said:

"I wore a chemise and a pair of shoes. Mr. Carroll held a cloak for me when I came out of the wings. I dropped out what I had on."

"I did not step into the tub?"

"What happened after you got in the tub?"

"Carroll lifted up his glass and said 'let's drink to this beautiful girl!'"

PROPOSES U. S. FORESTS IN ALL THE STATES

Berger Declares Timber Is Cut Many Times Faster Than Replaced by Growth.

Washington, May 25.—The establishment of a national forest reserve and migratory bird refuge in every state in the union was proposed today by Rep. Berger (Wis.).

The $22,000,000 acres of forested land originally contained in continental United States, Berger declared, has been reduced to 138,000,000 acres because of "waste caused by American carelessness." Remaining timber of the softwood species, he estimated, is disappearing eight and a half times as fast as the new growth is replacing it, while hardwood saw timber is disappearing three and a half times as fast as it is being replaced.

"One can almost predict a China-fled United States—barren of forest and brooks, but subject to periodic inundations," Berger declared.

VOLCANO BLAST BRINGS DEATH, RUIN IN YEZO

Scores, Perhaps Many Hundred, Die in Lava and Flood as Mountain Lake Tears Loose in Japan.

Tokyo, May 25.—Fifty persons are dead and 200 homes have been destroyed by an eruption of Mount Tokachi, according to an official communique issued by the governor of Hokkaido prefecture, in which the disaster occurred.

The communique admitted, however, that the casualties were likely to increase as more detailed reports were received. Dispatches from the scene to the Asahi here said 150 were dead and other vernacular papers estimate the dead much higher.

Many who are reported missing are probably safe, according to advices here.

Broke Mountain Lake
The eruption of Mount Tokachi occurred Sunday afternoon. The volcanic action was apparently inconsequential but caused a mountain lake to break its embankments.

A fifty-foot wall of water swept down and wiped out hamlets and farms and Tomitanomura village was entirely destroyed.

It was estimated that two thousand refugees had been driven to the hills.

Maruyama Hot Springs, a famous resort, was flooded and bathers drowned.

The Biiji farm, famous all over Japan, was destroyed and much live stock lost.

The crop damage throughout the stricken district will be large. Japanese troops have been sent from Sapporo to the scene of the disaster to rescue the marooned and carry relief to the homeless.

200 Drowned, London Hears
London, May 25.—Two hundred persons have been drowned, 2,000 are still missing and hundreds of homes have been obliterated by an earthquake from Mt. Hokkaido, according to a dispatch from "Hokkaido" Japan today.

Two "distinct" eruptions occurred, the second taking place at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

There were two violent eruptions. They came without warning. The Tokachi range is 8,200 feet above sea level and the speed and fury of the lava was such as to sweep all before it into the waters of the sea of Okhotsk, which lies at the northern base of the mountain.

Rescuers Blocked
Rescue parties, coming from other parts of Hokkaido, known popularly as Yezo, have thus far been unable to get near enough to search for the missing. They are badly hampered by the lava flow and the fumes which are still rising in clouds from the crater.

Rough estimates place the number of missing at 2,000 but in many cases the bodies were as far too conservative a figure. The slopes of Tokachi were thickly populated. Among the missing are hundreds of fishermen whose homes were situated directly in the path of the lava rush.

A Central News dispatch declared that the Tokachi eruption are continuing and that 4,000 persons were forced to take refuge in the hills when a mountain lake overflowed.

Hokkaido, more commonly known as Yezo, is an island in the Japanese Archipelago having an area of 20,340 square miles and a population of 1,817,700.

The Tokachi range reaches its highest point in Mount Tokachi, which has an altitude of 8,200 feet. The slopes of the mountain and the valley at its base are thickly populated.

PERSHING DISCHARGED FROM DOCTORS' CARE

Much Improved in Health After Period of Treatment at Military Hospital.

Washington, May 25.—General John J. Pershing has so far recovered his health that he has been discharged, from the observation of physicians, it was learned today. After his recent return from South America, General Pershing reported to the Walter Reed hospital here for treatment. Illness caused by high blood pressure and infected teeth is understood to have largely disappeared, and he has improved greatly in appearance.

The illness has not kept him from making frequent trips to his office nor visiting his son in Massachusetts.

MEN'S CHORAL CLUB ENJOYS ROAST LAMB

Annual Business Session Held in Cheney Hall Last Night—Officers Relected.

About thirty-five members of the Men's Choral club gathered at Cheney hall for their annual meeting last evening. They enjoyed an excellent roast lamb supper, enlivened with frequent bursts of song. The business session followed the dinner.

The treasurer's report showed a balance at the beginning of the season of $260.15. The total receipts from all sources were $1581.25, and the expenses incidental to the two concerts, $1,655.44, leaving a balance to carry over to next season of $185.94. This shows conclusively that the Choral club is in no sense a money-making proposition. It has always been its aim to give to the public the best procurable talent at each concert considering the estimated receipts. The expense of the last concert were heavy and in spite of generous patronage the deficit was considerable larger than at the first concert of the season.

The entire list of officers was relected for the ensuing year. They are:

- President—Fred J. Bendall.
 - Vice President—Harry Boland.
 - Secretary—T. Walter Reichard.
 - Treasurer—James Stevenson.
 - Librarian—James Hutchinson.
 - Musical Director—Archibald Sessions.
 - Executive Committee—Edward F. Taylor, C. Elmore Watkins, Fayette B. Clarke.
- Following the business session the members of the club accepted Manager Jack Sanson's invitation to visit the State theater where they enjoyed the excellent program.
- HARTFORD COUNTY LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS' MEETING
The annual meeting of the Hartford County League of Women Voters will be held Friday, June 4, at the Windsor Congregational Parish House, Windsor. The program is as follows:—

SALVATION ARMY BAND CONCERT THURSDAY

Senior Band to Give Musical for Band Fund.

The local Salvation Army Senior Band will give one of its popular concerts next Thursday evening beginning at 7.45 o'clock. The proceeds of the musical will go entirely to the band fund, for the purchasing of new instruments.

The band has been practicing for some time in preparation for the concert, and a very fine program has been arranged. It will be made up of band selections and marches, instrumental quartets, cornet duets, vocal selections and other novelty numbers. The entire program will be given by members of the Senior band.

The band has given a great many concerts in the past and always have a good sized audience to play to. A reputation for high class band concerts, is held by the local band, and they have prepared the coming concert for Thursday evening in keeping with those previously given. The band is under the direction of Bandmaster David Ady, who has been a Salvation Army bandsman for about eighteen years. The assistant bandmaster is William Hanna, who has been a member of the local band for about twenty years.

Tickets are for sale by members of the band, at twenty-five cents each. Already a good sale has been realized, and a packed house is predicted for Thursday evening. The program of the concert will be printed in the Herald Thursday evening.

MYSTERIOUS ILLNESS OF LOCAL SALESMAN

T. Roy Carpenter in Hospital in Semi-Conscious Condition; Specialist Called.

T. Roy Carpenter of 49 Flower street, well known local automobile salesman, is seriously ill at the Manchester Memorial hospital. It was learned today. The exact nature of his illness has not been definitely decided but it is a form of meningitis. A brain specialist from Hartford has been treating the patient in addition to a local physician. Carpenter is a Spanish War veteran.

The first symptoms of Carpenter's illness was in the form of severe headaches. These lasted for a few days and when a doctor was summoned he advised the removal of the sick man to the hospital. This was done Saturday. Since that time, Carpenter has been in a semi-conscious condition. Dr. Otto G. Wiedman, noted Hartford brain specialist, was called in on the case.

After the doctors had attended the patient this morning, a bulletin was issued that his condition remains unchanged. He is making a strong fight for life, but his condition is still serious.

SELLING FOR FARMS INEVITABLE NEED

Jardine Tells Credit Men Solution of Marketing Problem Is Unavoidable.

New York, May 25.—More than anything else, the farmer needs at this time to find a solution of his marketing problems to put American agriculture on its feet, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine today told the National Association of Credit Men.

The hope of the future, Jardine said, lies in the development of orderly marketing, particularly through cooperative marketing of farm products.

This program best can be met, Jardine declared, through the $100,000,000 Tincher bill, which the administration has approved. The measure was withdrawn last week just before the House defeated the $175,000,000 Hausen price stabilization bill but this has not lessened his hope, Jardine added, that Congress at this session would enact helpful farm legislation.

Need Still Exists
"The defeat of the Hausen bill in the House last week has in no wise changed the agricultural situation nor the need for sound and reasonable legislation," said Jardine.

The Tincher bill, Jardine declared, "would be a long step toward solution of the agricultural surplus problem, helping powerfully to stabilize the prices of farm products but offering no threat to consumers nor to efficient private enterprises. I am hopeful of action along this line by the present Congress."

Redirection Inevitable
"We have reached that point in our national life when we must recognize by acts as well as thoughts that some redirection of agricultural policy toward the field of distribution is inevitable," said Jardine.

"Let us have sound, constructive support of such policy in order that the great national groups whose interests are so closely interwoven may all go forward together. There is no other way."

MAN'S LEG BROKEN IN THREE PLACES

X-rays taken of Jacob Leecher of 73 Martin street, Rockville, a laborer who was injured in a blasting accident yesterday morning at the North end, reveal that the man sustained a broken leg.

The X-ray pictures showed that the femur, the large bone in the thigh about a foot above the knee, was broken in three places. The injury will confine the Rockville man to the hospital for two months.

CALLIOPE SOUNDS HEARD ON STREETS THESE DAYS

Within a week the streets have been resounding with notes that seem to be a cross between a steam calliope and a piano accordion. Until pedestrians became accustomed to the sounds there will be much speculation.

The explanation is a simple one. A new triple note horn is being used on autos instead of the harsh notes that usually warn pedestrians. The new horns have become quite the rage in town.

MILLER GIRL HOME; WAS WITH FRIENDS

South End Youngster Was On Visit to Hartford, Mother Says.

After a week's absence during which she is said to have been staying with a girl friend in Hartford, little Mildred Miller, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Miller, of 23 Furrnell Place, has returned to her home.

The first clue to her whereabouts came when several Manchester persons saw the runaway girl in Hartford on Friday evening, the story of which was told in last night's Herald. The party took notice for the number of the automobile near which Mildred was standing and this led to her discovery.

However, Mildred returned to Hartford. The party took notice of her own record, it was said today by the girl's mother.

KIWANIS CLUB WILL MEET WITH COMMUNITY CLUB

Tomorrow will be Manchester Community Club day with the Kiwanians. The weekly luncheon will be served at the White House, 79 North Main street. The meeting will be held at the same time as usual, in the assembly hall of the clubhouse. The Community club is scheduled to furnish the eats as well as the entertainment.

Up to date the Hartford Kiwanian club has the advantage in the attendance contest by a very narrow margin, and it is possible for Manchester to win if there is a real good attendance tomorrow.

John Olson has agreed to furnish the attendance prize and as he is in the painting and paper-hanging business, he may decorate a room for the lucky man.

SILENCED.
 Intimations from Washington to the effect that the government is to quietly abandon the device of turning local police officers into federal dry enforcers before ever having put it into effect may be entirely true without in the least affecting the value of the gesture as an object lesson to those who criticize the administration's enforcement of prohibition.

The executive order, by bringing home to the people the intimacy of their partnership in the eighteenth amendment, has presented the whole matter of prohibition in a new and disagreeable light. It is undoubtedly especially disagreeable to those enthusiasts who figured that, once the suppression of the liquor traffic was made a part of the constitutional law of the land, the states would thereafter be relieved of all responsibility in the matter. They now discover that it is not the purpose of the general government to be made the goat. They had forgotten the factor of concurrent responsibility, and have been forcibly reminded of it.

There is reason for shrewd suspicion that this was the whole purpose of the order. Whether or not it was, the undertaking has so worked out that it has had the effect that might well have been intended if it was not.
 The President and the Treasury department, sharing as they must the onus of the criticism, have smitten the critics mightily and we shall probably hear very much less indeed from those rabid drys who, seeing the lamentable failure of their prohibitory legislation, would have been entirely willing to crucify the President or anybody else if it would divert the blame from their own shoulders.

ROAD TRAGEDY.
 The car in which a Long Island man and his wife were driving home left the road and went down a thirty foot embankment. The woman was pinned under it. The man could not move the wrecked machine. There was no house near. It was night. Automobiles came along the road, one after another. The man, frantic, tried to stop first one then another. Not a single driver would take the chance of halting his machine at the behest of a grotesque gesticulating shadow by the roadside. They were all too sophisticated, too wise in the ways of stickup men and road pirates. Away they sped, one after another—all through the night.
 The despairing man, badly hurt, climbed up the bank to stop cars and down again, to strive to minister, somehow, to his grievously wounded wife, time and again. By and by he collapsed. When daylight came somebody found him lying insensible beside his ruined car. His wife was dead.
 Tragedy such as this sears the souls of its participants. Nobody who drove past that frenzied figure on that Long Island road Sunday night with a wise crack about trying it on George is ever going to quite let over it.
 There is such a thing, even in an automobile and on a lonely road at night, as overdoing the matter of personal safety. We are far from a cowardly people. But sometimes we are oversmart.

OVERALLS VS. KNICKERS.
 A certain amount of authority attends the utterances of Roger Babson, foremost of American statisticians, on matters economic. So that when Babson declares that Florida has a fine potential future, as he did before the Orlando Realty Board, there is more of encouragement to investors in that considered opinion than in a world of professional hallelujah from realty promoters.
 Also, there is just as much of authoritative and responsibility in the economist's warning that, in order to realize that fine future, Florida has got to "swap knickers for overalls"—in other words, to put trying to prosper by speculation and to establish a foundation of industry and production.

That Florida in the course of time—and not such a tremendous long time either—will prove to be the richest of our agricultural states, the home of many substantial industries favored by its climate, besides enjoying a permanent business of catering to northern guests on a very large scale, is a rational and justifiable expectation.

 Those who foresee for the state nothing but collapse and the condition of a deflated balloon are as unreasonable in their pessimism as those who, a few months ago, imagined that a Florida lot could be sold every week for a century, always at a profit, were unreasonable in their optimism.

IRRATIONAL.
 That a single idea, too closely pursued, can lead easily to fanaticism has another demonstration in the necessity of the United States supreme court to pass on the contention that bootleggers should be compelled to record their transactions and report them to the government under the system of regulations formed for the control of legitimate dealings in alcoholics.
 Only a sheer obsession could have caused laymen, let alone lawyers, to hold the hope that the court of last resort would countenance a theory that the federal government, or any other government, should establish regulation of criminalism, should in fact enter into a partnership in the commission of acts criminal under its own laws.
 There was never the slightest chance that the contention of the government in this connection would be upheld, for its position was utterly irrational.
 Yet so keen for some measure of success are the dry forces that they rasp at every straw, regardless of its nature or of consequences.

THE COHEN STORY.
 Over the New York municipal radio Fire Commissioner Dorman told this joke:
 The Cohen children were playing with matches in the street. Cohen, looking from the window, beheld them. "Don't play with matches out there," he shouted; "Come into the house."
 Whereupon certain young Jews of the city met and resolved, demanding that the mayor forthwith fire the fire commissioner for an outrageous libel on their race. Their leader declared that they resented the "imputation that arson was the characteristic crime of their race."
 It speaks well for the good sense and the appreciation of humor among the Jewish people that the first element to rally to the defense of the fire commissioner, after this attack, was that race. Also it adds peculiar piquancy to the incident to be told by them that the original author of the little story was Al Jolson—who is a Jew.

PICK YOUR DICTATOR.
 The Polish political situation has taken on a form almost unique in modern times. Declaration of dictatorships have been common enough, but invariably the dictator has been provided first and the assumption of unlimited authority has been subsequent to his seizure of the government. In Poland, however, we have the spectacle of a provisional government establishing the principal of government by a dictator and then telling the people to go ahead and pick their own boss.
 This is a novel and interesting proceeding. It ought, at least, to have one especial effect—that of arousing the electorate and calling out a full vote. Possibly a similar enterprise in the United States might induce the stay-at-home element to go to the polls. However, it wouldn't be safe to bet one's very last dollar on that.

EXIT KRIM.
 In the Arabic has a word equivalent to the English "compromise" we do not know what it is; nor, apparently, does Abd-El-Krim, gallant but sorely mistaken Rif chief. A month ago Krim sat almost "in the driver's seat," so to speak, in the matter of obtaining terms with France and Spain. But he would not trade, would not yield a hair. As a result he is now beaten and discredited. His usefulness to his people, which might have been enormous—for he is a man of brains, education and resourcefulness—has been destroyed.
 Krim had too many European soldiers of fortune in his train. Too many German officers, for whom peace in Morocco meant nothing but continued war meant a continued livelihood.
 The Rif rebellion has been a brave and in some ways a rather magnificent thing. It is possible to admire the spirit of these haughty and liberty loving people while execrating their judgment.

REAL CITY.
 Having arrived at the point where hijackers and bootleggers go a-gunning for each other on its streets and where its shopping crowds are treated to the popping of pistols, the acrid odor of gunpowder and the sight of wounded men tumbling about in their midst, Hartford may be said to have arrived at last at the full and proud estate of a real American city.

 Over here we are content to remain in the humbler smokeless, banditless, hijackerless class.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
 Washington, May 25.—You'll hardly know whether it is money or a merchandise coupon after the treasury's committee on redesign of the currency gets through.
 Their plans for revamped paper money are expected to save about $4,000,000 a year and to provide much handier currency. Their problem is to take care of the paper money and let the coins take care of themselves.
 The proposals, in brief, are to reduce the size of bills by about one-third, to eliminate the yellowbacks and make other color changes, to simplify and standardize design and to stop printing some of the little-used denominations. These proposals are not yet official. They are revealed now directly from the committee, however, and are believed to be virtually assured of adoption.
 Mellon Has Authority
 Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has authority to make such changes in the currency without consulting Congress. The committee on redesign has been making exhaustive studies for nearly a year and is expected to report within a few months. After the secretary orders the changes, nearly a year will be required for engraving the plates and for printing and distribution.
 "The department is convinced that our present paper money system can be made more economical and efficient and is committed to improving it," says Assistant Secretary Charles S. Dewey. He is the official directly in charge of the expert committee on redesign.
 The change in size is expected to be most radical. Ever since the first greenbacks were turned out during the Civil War, paper money has been approximately 7 23/32 inches long and 3.04 inches wide. The new bills, it is planned, will be 6 inches long and 2 1/2 inches wide.
 These dimensions are copied from Philippine money. When the islands came under American control a consignment of paper money, in pesos, was ordered from the bureau of engraving and printing. Elihu Root, then secretary of war, insisted that it have a distinctive form.
 Our money is printed eight bills at a single impression on large sheets. The Philippine currency was printed 12 bills to the sheet. It is proposed now to adopt this size of bill.
 When it is considered that the government uses about 1200 tons of paper a year for printing money, it is apparent that such a cut in size will affect a tremendous saving.
 Furthermore, the smaller-sized bills will not be folded so much and will give longer service. Tests already made by federal reserve bank tellers show the smaller bills can be handled faster.
 Changing Patterns
 There are in circulation now 11 different denominations of bills: the $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500, $1000, $5000 and $10,000. Four of these probably will be withdrawn. They are the unpopular and hoodoo 2 bill and the $500, $5000 and $10,000. There is little demand for these.
 For the 11 denominations now in use there are 39 different kinds of $10 bills, for instance. The committee is expected to recommend one distinctive pattern, and no more, for each denomination.
 This simplification will limit the use of any portrait to only one denomination. At present the face of Washington is on both the $1 bill and the yellowback $20.

The portrait, being a steel engraving, is the surest protection against duplication and the feature most easily detected in a counterfeit. To use the same portrait on two bills is considered an opportunity for raising the lower one.
 Colors are to be changed also. Yellow ink can be bleached off with comparative ease and it is to be discontinued. It is proposed also to print the backs of bills in two colors instead of one as at present.
 By selecting a combination such as dull green and dull brown, it will be made exceedingly difficult for a counterfeit with an engraving camera to pick out the two different colors for making separate plates.
 The money problem is big business with the government. A count recently disclosed that it had outstanding 421,000,000 bills of the $1 denomination alone. Printing just the $1 bills cost about $5,000,000 a year. A ton and a half of them are turned in for redemption every day.

IN NEW YORK

New York, May 25.—They rang down the curtain the other night on the old Academy of Music.
 To the younger generation it's just another old building getting out of the way to prepare for a new sky scraper. To the white-haired generation it's the passing of an aristocratic old friend; landmark of tradition and culture. And, irony of ironies, it makes way for a gas company office.
 Mme. Alda sang "Home Sweet Home" at the farewell. And there was much nodding of heads and here and there a handkerchief brushed hastily against a face. Just yesterday, it seemed to the grey-beards, Patti was singing the heart-song of America and carrying herself to triumph.
 In the audience were many who boasted regular patronage when Patti sang.
 When the song ended eyes were drawn to a box where sat a very old lady, whose age dulled eyes contained only embers of the divine fire that once had burned. It was Emma Thursby, whose name was writ large in the world of song "when Patti was a girl."
 She is 85 now, is this diva of yesterday. For 20 years she has been prisoner to her wheel chair. But she could not miss the farewell of the old house.
 And in the audience I saw John Pfeiffer, who now is aged attendant in a magistrate's court. But then—he was a symphonist, playing for the artists. And nearby sat one who had been belle of the opening ball. Everywhere were the "best people of the late seventies and early eighties."
 As the years have passed the East Side has crept in and captured the neighborhood of the Academy of Music.
 Year by year this fine lady of yesterday became a little bit more run down at the heels. But one or two of the surrounding landmarks have refused to give way. Nearby is a cafe that heard the clicking glasses and the toasts of all the famed ones of the Academy. Its huge roomy ways and marble pillars are undisturbed, and scores of the "old timers" come driving up in the carriages to this day—an incongruous picture in a cluster of shooting galleries, cheap movies, dollar shirt shops, colorful immigrants and fire sales.
 Only a few years ago this neighborhood became the center of one of New York's bitterest gang wars. Gradually it grows into a brisk business section, a mid-town between east and west sides.
 A few minutes after the curtain had been rung down I listened to a group of gray-beards, chatting in the lobby.
 "Yes," one was saying, "there is no taste left. No gentility. It is blasphemy to let a great landmark like this pass."

 This new piano costs only $495 on easy terms, starting with a small deposit and then easy payments extending over a period of two and a half years, if you wish.
 Why not add this fine piece of furniture—this excellent piano—this aristocrat of musical instruments—to your home today? Come in tonight and hear it.
Ask for a paper pattern
 Write or phone for a paper pattern giving the exact size of this new instrument. Spread it out on the floor of your living room and prove to yourself how easily this grand will fit into your home.

DAILY POEM
 COME ON IN!
 You all have heard that wee white lie that everybody's told. It has to do with water that is very, very cold. Along the bank of any stream where bathing folk run loose, the first one in shouts, "Gee, it's fine." He's abbin' like the deuce.
 A bathing party gathers and they rush down to the sand. The girls are kinda backward, so the fellas take their hand. "Come on," they shout out loudly, "Let's be hoppin' in, pell mell. Aw, golly, watacha 'fraid of, girls? the water's really swell."
 And then some fella dips a toe, quite bravely, in the lake. Most anyone would surely know 'twas cold to see him shake. Goose pimples show quite plainly, and quivers at the knee, and yet he'll tell the rest of them, "it's warm as it can be."
 No wonder people hesitate before they go keeplunk! They know, when someone says it's warm, it's just a lot of bunk. The first real shock is what's so hard, and makes a person stall. But, after you've been in a while, it isn't bad, at all.

PRONG-HORNED ANTELOPE
 BY ARTHUR N. PACK
 President, The American Nature Association
 What would you think of a person who came into possession of Nature's most beautiful works, unrivalled in its class and who neglected, and persecuted, and punished it until it seemed likely to disappear forever?
 This is what we have done in the case of the American antelope, one of the most graceful and beautiful creatures in the world, and the only member of its family. Other antelopes there are, it is true, but none closely related to our own Prong-horn.
 When our explorers first crossed the plains, it has been estimated that the prong-horned antelope equalled or exceeded in number the myriad bands of the bison.
 And as we wasted those great cattle of the plains so did we destroy the graceful and dainty antelope, one of the finest creatures ever delivered into the hands of man. Successively they were killed for meat, for "sport" or even wantonly, and worse than all, to save the forage for sheep and cattle.
 Then almost at once, it was realized that the antelope had disappeared from great areas of its once wide range, and was yearly growing scarcer in others. Steps were taken to estimate the numbers remaining—foresters, sportsmen, wardens, and ranchers throughout the west being appealed to.
 As far as possible each occupied area was charted and the number ascertained. As a result it was found that most of the states formerly inhabited by the animal still have few individuals, and some a few thousands.
 In all, some thirty thousand are supposed to be surviving. The remnant is being protected, and hopes are high that the species may be saved.
 Send a stamped addressed envelope and questions of fact having to do with nature will be answered by the consulting staff of Nature Magazine of Washington through arrangements made with this paper.

WIN $1,000

THIS is the second of a series of five educational advertisements, written by The Veteran Motorist for the Standard Oil Company of New York.

Each advertisement contains a definite question on lubrication, and the Standard Oil Company of New York will award $2,500 in cash to the 79 contestants who write the best answers to the whole series of five questions.

At the bottom of this column you will find Question Two. Question One was published in this paper two weeks ago today. If you missed reading it send your name and address, and The Veteran Motorist will be glad to mail you a copy.

The third advertisement of this series will appear in this newspaper two weeks from today. Watch for it.

Rules of the Contest

Table with 2 columns: Award level and Amount. 1st Award: $1,000; 2nd Award: $500; 3rd Award: $250; 4 awards of: 100 each; 20 awards of: 25 each; 50 awards of: 5 each; 79 awards, totalling: $2,500.

Any one may compete in this contest, except those connected directly or indirectly with the Standard Oil Company of New York.

The answers to the five questions may be typewritten or written with pen and ink—one side of the paper only—one answer to each question.

No single answer may be longer than 150 words, and each answer must be numbered to match the number of the question. All answers must be written in the English language, and are the property of the Standard Oil Co. of New York.

All five answers should be sent in together and the contestant's name and address should be plainly written on the first page of answers.

No answers will be considered which are received later than Saturday, July 17th, 1926. The awards will be made to those who write the BEST answers to the five questions. That is, to those whose answers, in the opinion of the judges, indicate that they have given most thought to the subjects covered by the questions and have learned most from The Veteran Motorist's instructions in the Standard Oil Company of New York's advertisements.

Address all answers to "The Veteran Motorist," c/o Standard Oil Company of New York, Room 411, 26 Broadway, New York City.

Question Two

"Of what service has a Lubrication Chart been to you?"

THE motor oil requirements for the various makes of cars vary widely. Cylinder bores vary in size and there are differences in the type of bearings and in the types of oil feed systems. Changes in motor specifications may require a change in oil specifications.

Socony Motor Oil is specifically refined and graded to meet these varying requirements.

From my studies I have also noted a great variety of temperatures in the motor. The explosion generates about 3000° F. The exhaust manifold is about 1000° F. Piston walls get up to 450° F., bearings as high as 250° F., and the underside of the piston head up to 700° F. One can readily picture the need of not only a superior motor oil but also the need of the proper grade.

A SUPERIOR OIL—OF THE PROPER GRADE

A grade of oil that will properly Lubricate one motor may be too thick or too thin for another. If too thick, it acts sluggishly and may not flow to the bearings; power is wasted in internal oil friction. If it is too thin, it will flow too freely and will allow bearing wear; oil will be wasted and the car may be ruined.

Socony Motor Oil and the Socony Chart are your protection. Why trust to luck?

In cooperation with motor car manufacturers, the Socony laboratories, by shop and road tests, have determined and CHARTED the best consistency or grade of oil for each individual motor. A careful check of this data is made annually.

Therefore, I say, Chart Your Way to Safety by following the recommendations of the Socony Chart.

IVANHOE Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

THE STORY THUS FAR—The scene is the England of Richard I. A party of knights, en route to a tournament, visits Cedric the Saxon and their leader, Brian the Templar, becomes enamored of Cedric's ward Rowena. One of the party, disguised as a palmer or wanderling friar, wins the tournament and crowns Rowena queen of love and beauty. He then removes his helmet and it is seen that he is

—By Redner

Ivanhoe, Cedric's disinherited son. A strange knight in black armor who helped him win the passage at arms, wanders through the forest and saps with a Friar Tuck, of Robin Hood's band, in a lonely hut. This knight is really King Richard, disguised while he marshals his forces against his usurping brother, Prince John, who thinks him in the Holy Land. As the two sit in the hut they are joined by Robin Hood in disguise. Meanwhile Bois-Guilbert and De Bracy, with other knights, capture Cedric, Rowena, Isaac, a Jewish money changer, and his daughter, Rebecca. Bois-Guilbert threatens to kill the prisoners and the Black Knight arrives to besiege the castle. Wamba, a jester, enters the castle and changes clothes with Cedric, who escapes. The Black Knight leads 500 men to the assault.

ARROWS FLEW THICK AS CLOUDS, AT THE DEFENSE. BUT DID ONLY SMALL DAMAGE, AND THE BE- SIEGERS SUFFERED THEMSELVES FROM CROSSBOW FIRE. IVANHOE, ON HIS COIT, INQUIRED OF REBECCA HOW THE BATTLE WAS GOING. "I SEE NOTHING BUT THE CLOUDS OF ARROWS," SHE REPLIED. "AND THE SOUNDS OF THE FETTERLOCK," HE ASKED.

"SEE HIM NOT," SAID REBECCA. "FOUL CRAWEN," HE SAID HE. "DOES HE BLENCH FROM THE HELM WHEN THE WIND BLOWS HIGHEST?" "HE BLENCHES NOT," EXCLAIMED REBECCA. "HE LEADS A BODY OF MEN CLOSE UNDER THE OUTER BARRIER OF THE BARRICADE. THEY PULL DOWN THE PALISADES; THEY MOW WITH THEIR AKES. HIS HIGH BLACK PLUME FLOATS ABOARD!"

"OLY PROPHETS OF THE LAW!" REBECCA EX- CLAIMED AFTER A PAUSE. "FRONT-DE-BŒUF AND THE BLACK KNIGHT FIGHT HAND TO HAND ON THE BREACH. HE IS DOWN!" IVANHOE CRIED. "WHO IS DOWN?" "THE BLACK KNIGHT ANSWERED RE- BECCA. "BUT NO HE IS ON FOOT AGAIN AND FIGHTS WITH THE STRENGTH OF TWENTY MEN. HIS SWORD IS BROKEN."

"E SNATCHES AN AX FROM A YEOMAN; HE PRESSES FRONT-DE-BŒUF WITH BLOW ON BLOW. THE GIANT STOOPS AND TOTTERS—HE FALLS!" "FRONT-DE- BŒUF!" EXCLAIMED IVANHOE. "FRONT-DE-BŒUF," ANSWERED REBECCA. "HIS MEN DRAG HIM WITHIN THE WALLS." "BY ST. JOHN OF ACRE," SAID IVANHOE. "ME- THOUGHT THERE WAS BUT ONE THAT MIGHT DO SUCH DEEDS."

COVENTRY

HIGHTER—NIELSEN.

A very attractive home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nielsen of Silver street on Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, when their daughter Cam- illa was united in marriage to Lewis Highter of Hartford. The double ring service was used and the officiating clergyman was Rev. J. N. Atwood, of the Second Con- gregational church, Coventry.

At the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. Walter Ha- ven, the bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in mar- riage. The maid of honor was Miss Nilsine Nielsen, sister of the bride. The best man, Mr. Kent, of Hart- ford, a friend of the groom.

The bride was attractively dressed in light blue georgette over silk and carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore blue silk and carried pink carnations. Relatives were present from Hart- ford and Manchester. The home was very prettily decorated with apple blossoms and white lilies.

Directly after congratulations the bridal party took a car to Man- chester to a photographer, and on returning a buffet dinner was served to the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Highter will spend a week with the parents of the groom at Coventry, Vermont, after which they will take up housekeep- ing in Hartford where the groom is employed.

COVENTRY

Paris, May 25.—"Abd-El-Krim is in flight" and France will not negotiate peace with him, Premier Briand announced today, following a cabinet meeting, under the chair- manship of President Doumergue.

"Abd-El-Krim is in flight and represents nothing," said the premier. "We can't negotiate with him."

"We will negotiate with the tribes which are still revolting."

A cabinet communique predicted that there may be an early end to the Moroccan war, now that Abd-El-Krim is eliminated and many tribes continue to submit.

Rapid Successes.

The cabinet received a full re- port on Abd-El-Krim's letter to President General Steeg, opening the way for peace, and also had a report on the rapid military suc- cesses which the French are registering.

War Minister Painleve was au- thorized to send cabinet consular- izations to the Moroccan troops for their "rapid and humane opera- tions." M. Painleve stated that the losses in the recent French ad- vances were extremely light.

The cabinet issued the following communique:

Abd-El-Krim's letter to Gen- eral Steeg lacks precision and guar- antees.

"The authorities cannot modify the present conduct of operations."

"A cessation of operations under the actual circumstances would have the consequences of retarding and making more costly, rather than facilitating, the Moroccan pacification."

"Submission of the Rifian tribes continues so rapidly that the end may be expected soon. This impres- sion is confirmed by the recent communication of Abd-El-Krim, who is believed to be fleeing to the north."

Invisible Power

LINKED together by a vast network of electric lines threading their way from city to city, the manufacturing interests of the State could not exist without an ever-available power supply.

The Connecticut Light and Power Company, with general offices in Waterbury, supplies power to many of these widely scattered communities.

"To do this without toll telephone service would be difficult," writes Mr. C. L. Campbell, treasurer of the Company, "Further," he adds, "it is of the highest importance that the business in these various communities be kept in close touch with headquarters at Waterbury. To do this with speed and accuracy involves constant use of the toll service. In my opinion, it is extravagant to consume time in traveling back and forth when the telephone accomplishes the work practically as well."

Contact with widely scattered communities, whether of a business or social nature, is instantly established through just such intelligent use of toll service. The invisible power of the telephone is ready to serve you at a minute's notice, just as it is used day in and day out to control the Connecticut Light and Power Company's service.

Our local Exchange Manager will gladly explain to you the various classes of toll service and their adaptability to your particular needs.

3 FEATURES TOMORROW AT THE STATE THEATER

"The Police Patrol," "Two Can Play," and the Famous "Country Store."

James Kirkwood, Edna Murphy and Edmund Brees head a cast of film favorites in the new Gotham production entitled "The Police Patrol," which will be the headline attraction at the State Theater tomorrow.

This picture is said to be a most interesting and exciting story of a complicated case which mystified police authorities for some time. The locale of the story is New York and ranges from the launts of the under world to the heights of society.

The picture was produced under close supervision of the New York Police department and shows, among other interesting scenes, the famous New York Harbor Police Games, the inner workings of the city burglar alarm system, and many unusual and thrilling scenes. The story is based on actual fact and is an adaptation of the well known play by A. Y. Pearson. The other feature is Clara Bow in "Two Can Play."

Two's company, three's a crowd in Associated Exhibitors new and dashing melodrama, "Two Can Play," which is playing at the State Theater tomorrow.

The main difficulty confronting the puzzled three, is the choice which will eliminate one, and leave the companionable two.

Clara Bow, of course, is the center of the puzzle, with Wallace MacDonald and Forrest Stanley as the two aspirants to her favor. To add to the general excitement, George Fawcett does all he can to mix things up as her gruff old uncle, with the result that she and the lovelick two are marooned on a desert island.

"Two Can Play" first appeared as a Saturday Evening Post story by Gerald Mygatt, Nat Ross directs the picture.

Don't miss the Country Store with more fun tomorrow night. Today the State presents the last showing of Harold Lloyd in "For Heaven's Sake," and May McAvoy in "The Road to Glory."

Is falling health making you uneasy and unhappy? Are you tired, weak and dispirited? Suffer daily backache and stabbing, rheumatic twinges? Then look to your kidneys! Mrs. Wm. H. Moffett, 575 Parker St., says: "I had pains across the lower part of my back and at times I could hardly get in and out of bed. I had such dizzy spells I staggered and had to take hold of something to keep from falling. I also had severe headaches. Doan's Pills relieved those attacks."

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

A group of factory buildings on the United States Rubber Company's plantation at Kisan, Sumatra, including four Sprayed Rubber Producing Units. More of these plants for producing Sprayed Rubber are being built throughout the Far East by the United States Rubber Company.

Answering some Questions about the New "Sprayed Rubber"

Q—What is Sprayed Rubber?
 A—It is an entirely new form of crude rubber produced from rubber latex without the use of smoke or chemicals.

Q—Who produces it?
 A—The United States Rubber Company.

Q—Where?
 A—In Java and at its rubber plantations in Sumatra and on the Malay Peninsula, by means of a special patented process discovered by its technical staff and by means of special patented apparatus also designed by United States Rubber Company technicians.

Q—What are its advantages?
 A—It is used in just the same manner as any other form of crude rubber—but being produced without the use of smoke or chemicals, it is cleaner, more uniform in texture and has a higher tensile strength.

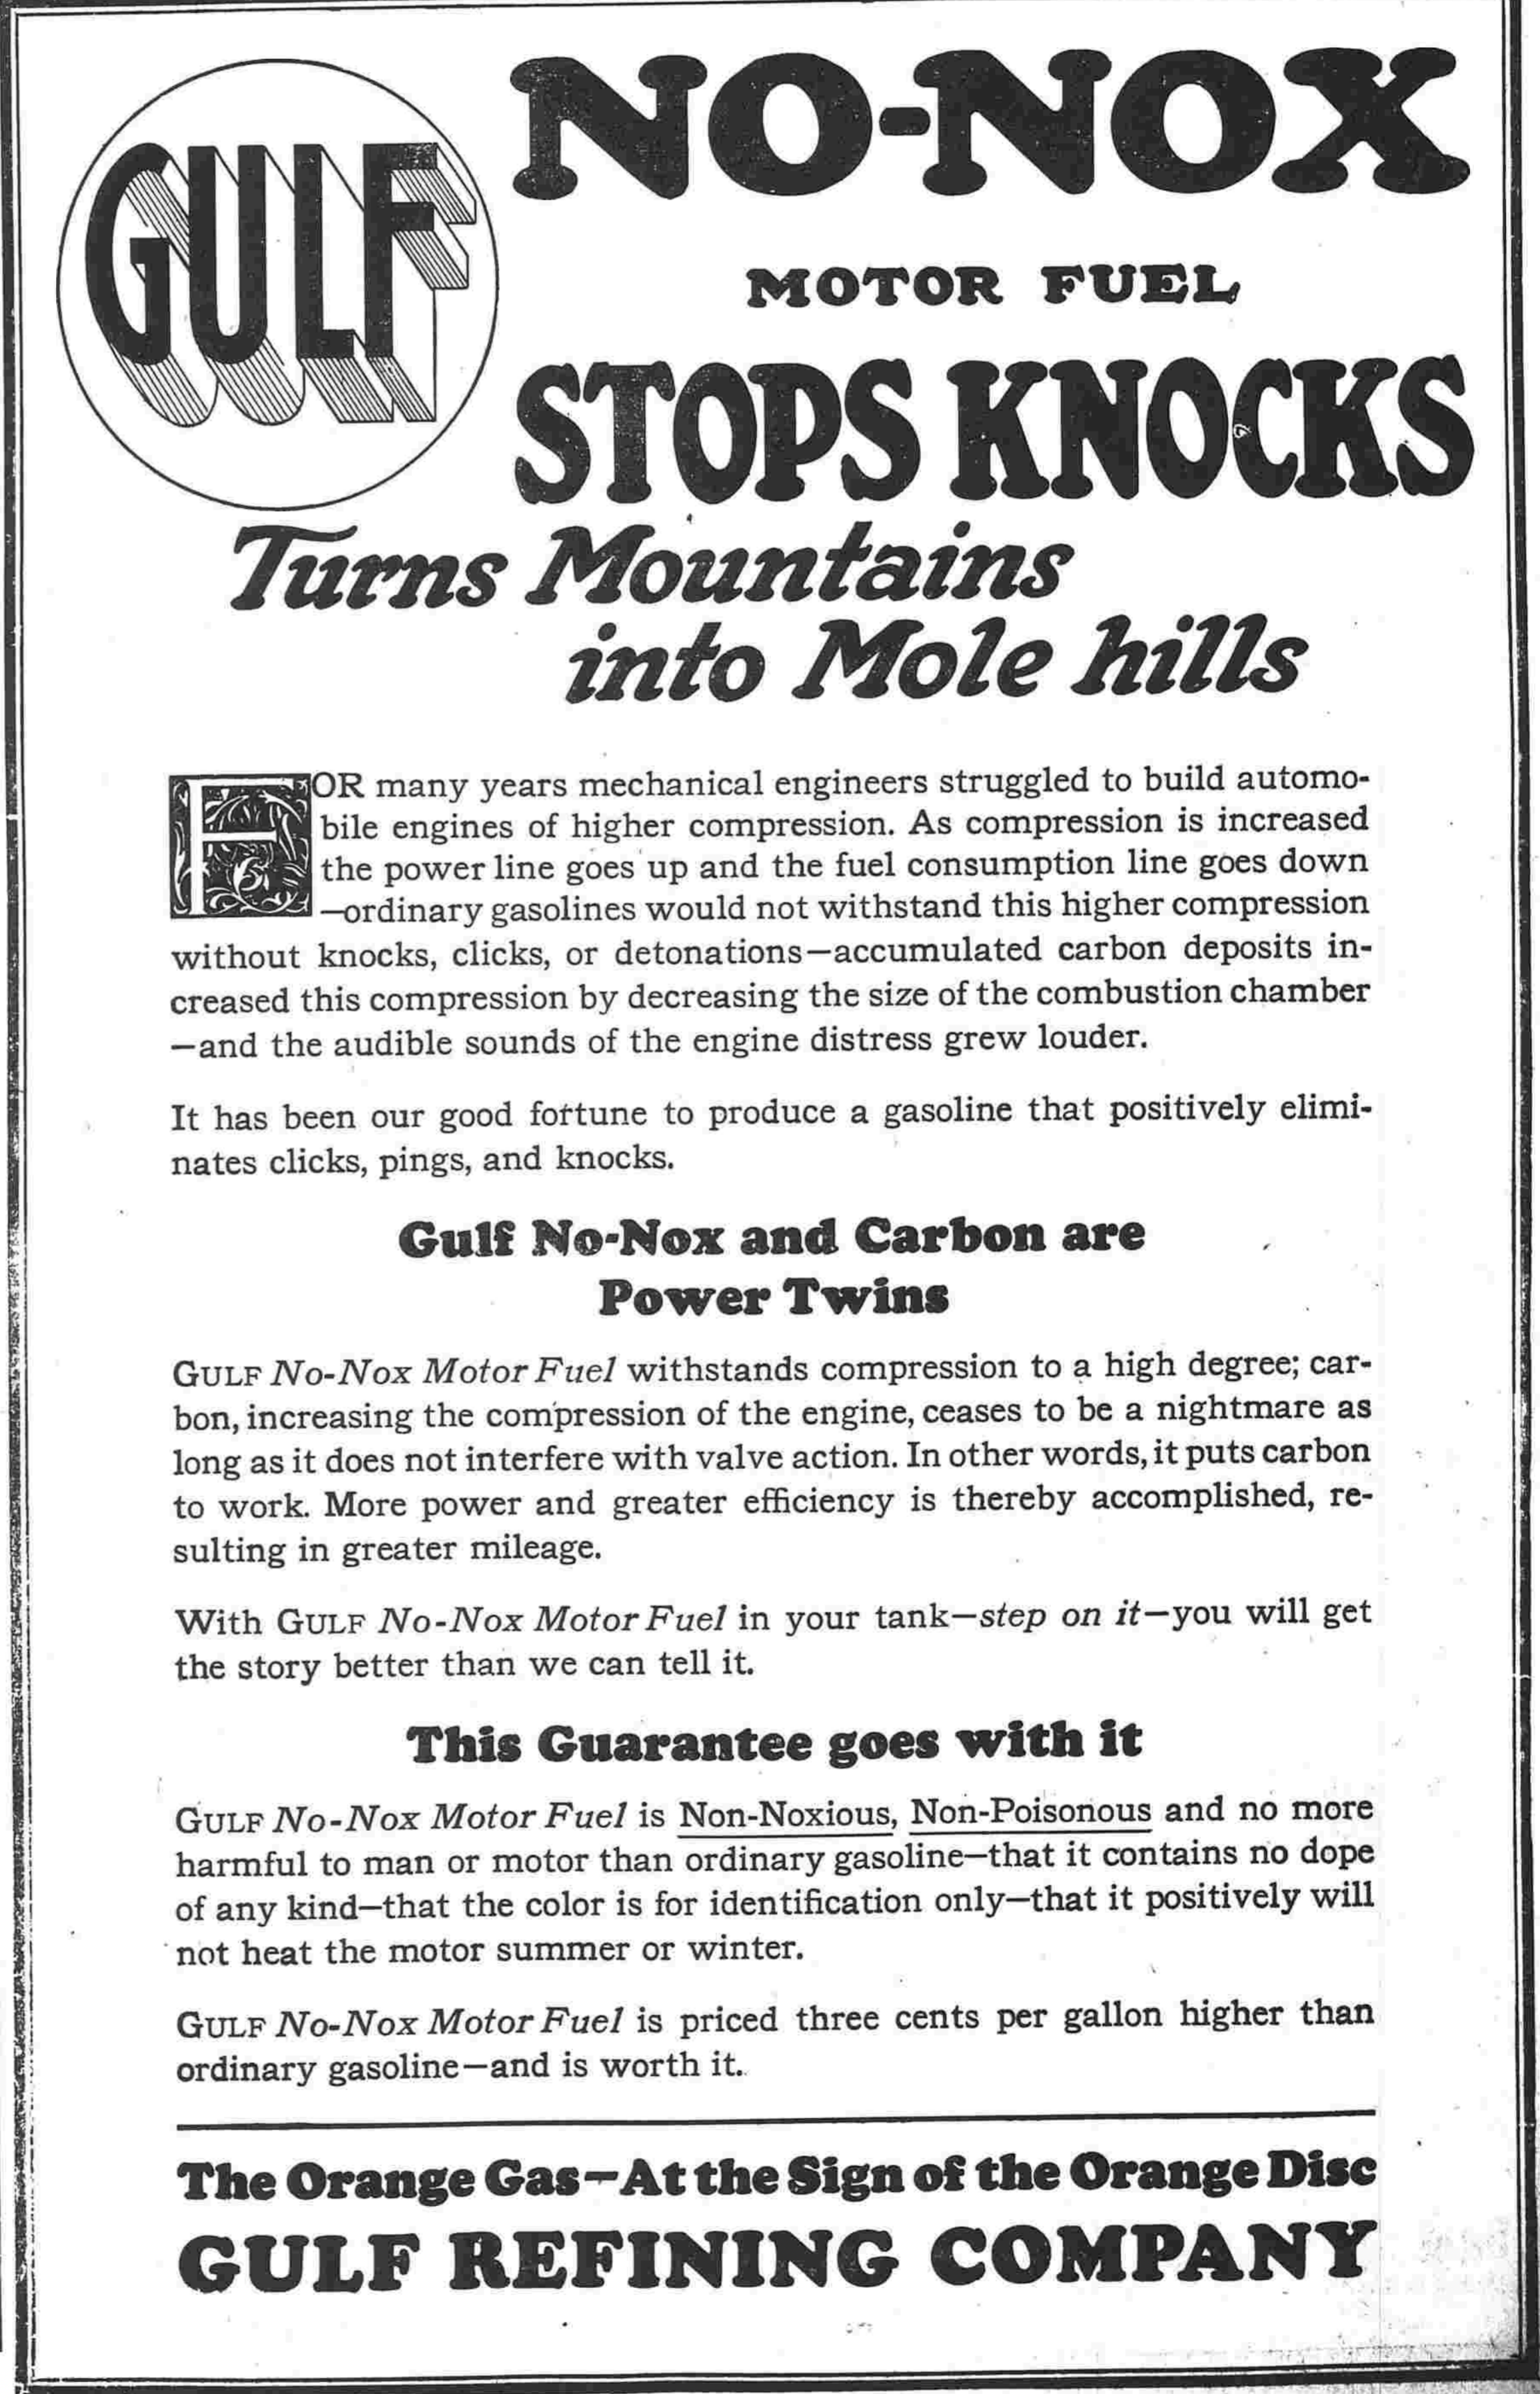

Q—Is it used in building United States Tires?
 A—Yes. Millions of pounds of it have been used, and more and more will be used all the time as new plants for producing it are completed by the United States Rubber Company in the Far East.

Q—Does the United States Rubber Company make Sprayed Rubber only from rubber latex from its own plantations?
 A—No. The Company considers that Sprayed Rubber is markedly superior to rubber derived from latex by the old methods. Therefore it has located factory units for producing Sprayed Rubber in various rubber producing areas in the Far East, thus supplementing the supply made from the latex from its own trees.

GULF NO-NOX MOTOR FUEL STOPS KNOCKS Turns Mountains into Mole hills

FOR many years mechanical engineers struggled to build automobile engines of higher compression. As compression is increased the power line goes up and the fuel consumption line goes down—ordinary gasolines would not withstand this higher compression without knocks, clicks, or detonations—accumulated carbon deposits increased this compression by decreasing the size of the combustion chamber—and the audible sounds of the engine distress grew louder.

It has been our good fortune to produce a gasoline that positively eliminates clicks, pings, and knocks.

Gulf No-Nox and Carbon are Power Twins

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel withstands compression to a high degree; carbon, increasing the compression of the engine, ceases to be a nightmare as long as it does not interfere with valve action. In other words, it puts carbon to work. More power and greater efficiency is thereby accomplished, resulting in greater mileage.

With GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel in your tank—step on it—you will get the story better than we can tell it.

This Guarantee goes with it

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is Non-Noxious, Non-Poisonous and no more harmful to man or motor than ordinary gasoline—that it contains no dope of any kind—that the color is for identification only—that it positively will not heat the motor summer or winter.

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is priced three cents per gallon higher than ordinary gasoline—and is worth it.

JENNINGS' "EYAH!" MISSED ON GIANTS' COACHING LINE

By M. W. Corum.

New York, May 25.—"Eeyah!" That rallying cry of the old New York Giants is heard no more and the Giants have just about ceased to rally.

Some of the spark went out of the four-time champions when the echo of the old "Eeyah" dwindled and died day by day in every way they miss it more and more.

From that short staccato battle cry has sprung many a ninth-inning victory. In itself it didn't mean a thing. It was the spirit that counted.

"Eeyah, Pepper. You can do it," Jennings, right knee high and fists flailing away like a shadow boxer's, would bark, and somehow, Pepper would do it. And so would Frankie and Kelly and Pancho, and the Giants would go riding on to victory, while Hughie harvested the last blade of grass and danced his solitary waltz along the coaching line.

Two gentlemen out, "the car-topped graduate of the old Orioles would announce. "Now we'll make five runs!"

It was a great Hughie. The Giants didn't realize how good until he was missed from his post this spring. Jennings had what the Polo Grounds patrol needs worse than anything just now—pep and optimism.

The Scranton barstooler was never licked until the last man was away in the ninth, but when he was licked he refused to let it get his goat. This spring McGraw's team has battled grimly enough in the face of adversity on the field, but off the diamond it has been taking its losses too seriously.

Roger Bresnahan, who has taken the place of Jennings, is absolutely disconsolate when the team loses. Alongside Roger on these all too frequent occasions, Gil Doble, the weeping willow of Lake Cayuga, is the incarnation of sunshine and laughter.

When Bresnahan does a Hamlet in the corner, Jennings would be in the middle of the gang telling them how he made six hits and handled 22 chances against Brooklyn in '24 or how one of the Orioles pitched a no-hit double-header in '22 with a broken arm. Take it from Hughie, those Orioles were plenty hard; but when pressed he would admit that by and large they were quite a baseball club.

"You can't get it, you can't get it," Jennings would sing out with his best English accent as a foul would soar over the grandstand. That goes for the Giants' pennant race unless they try and never stop trying.

If they do that, win or lose, Hughie Jennings will call to them from somewhere, "Eeyah!"

BIGGEST POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA THIS YEAR

New York, May 25.—With nineteen crews already registered for the annual Poughkeepsie regatta, this year's inter-collegiate rowing event on June 25 will be the greatest ever staged on the historic Hudson river course.

The entries were boosted to nineteen with the application of the University of California Junior varsity crew. The expected entry of the University of Wisconsin freshman boat will make certain of an even score of starters, according to Maxwell Stevenson, chairman of the stewards and Reynolds Benson, executive secretary of the Inter-collegiate Rowing association.

The varsity entries are Pennsylvania, Columbia, Syracuse, Cornell, Wisconsin, California, Washington and Navy. In the junior varsity will be California, Washington, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Cornell and Columbia and in the freshman event Wisconsin, California, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell and Syracuse will compete.

Last year's regatta with seventeen crews set the record which has now been broken.

The Referee

How old is Georges Carpentier, the French fighter?—D. F. G. He's 32.

Is Jimmy Austin, former major leaguer, coach of the St. Louis Browns this season?—F. G. K. Yes.

Who is track and field coach at Princeton?—F. D. E. Keene Fitzpatrick.

The white grub, one of the worst enemies of corn, is parent of the common June bug.

The most neglected part of a sprint race is the stride. After a man learns to start, to make his feet hit the ground fast, to be sure, but his mental problems are all over, some people seem to believe.

As a matter of fact, they are just commencing. The stride is perhaps the most vital part of the race. Let me explain: Suppose the reader was anxious to get to a particular point in a great hurry. The one thing he would be certain of doing would be to make his feet hit the ground fast. It is simply instinctive for one to do that.

You know the story about the colored gentleman who was in such a hurry to leave the ghost behind him that he ran up and down in the same spot and never gained a yard. His feet were moving fast enough. There was no doubt about that. But he wasn't getting anywhere.

The same thing is true of the average sprinter. When he is anxious to increase his speed he moves his legs faster. But he is cutting down his stride and so not gaining. In fact very often he is retarding his progress.

But if a man will practice lifting his knees while running along and exaggerating the length of his stride, when he comes to a race, after a few weeks of such training, he will find himself stretching his steps perhaps six inches farther on each stride, which means several yards even in a sprint distance, and his feet will be hitting the ground almost as fast as before.

That was the thing which was responsible for increasing my speed and bettering my time. I had improved my start and my finish and still was without a record.

But when I increased my stride I gained several yards.

Joe Loomis of Chicago, a tall muscular sprinter of a few years back, was the man who first proved the real importance of the stride, and he helped to revolutionize this part of sprinting.

There is nothing more graceful to watch than a man coming down the track in full stride, lifting his knees high and pulling his arms up and down in perfect unison with his leg action.

ITALIANS BOOK FAST WINDSOR LOCKS TEAM

Game Scheduled for Thursday Evening at West Side—Hewitt Benefit Next Week.

Manager Pete Vendrillo of the Sons of Italy has booked the fast Windsor Locks team to play on the West Side diamond on Thursday evening. This is the second in the series of twilight attractions that Manager Vendrillo will present throughout the summer.

The Sons have won four games in as many starts and feel confident that they will keep up their winning streak. The visitors will bring with them a fast team that the Sons will have to go far to trim.

Next week the Colored Stars of Hartford will make their second appearance in Manchester in a benefit game for Sam Hewitt who has been ill for many months. This game will be played on a winner take all basis as the visitors have plenty of confidence and expect to win from the Sons.

HAGEN SAILS TODAY.

New York, May 25.—Walter Hagen, who is expected to be America's best bet in the British open championship matches next month, sails with three other American golfers on the Aquitania today.

With the two-time winner of the classic will be Al Watrous, a promising young professional from the northwest, Tom Armour, who made a good showing in the southern tournaments last winter, and Joe Stein, his latest protege.

With Rixey pitching hitless ball for four innings, Cincinnati apparently had the Cardinals beaten to a frazzle, but the Cards peppered Epps and his successor, Carl Mays, and won out by a score of eleven to six. A seven run rally in the eighth was the finishing touch.

The Cubs advanced to within a game and a half of first place in the National League by stopping the Pirates, 3 to 1. The winners were outbatted nearly two to one but Blake was effective in the pinches.

EDDY BOYCE TO PITCH AGAINST CHENEY BROTHER CONQUERORS

Tonight's Battle Should Draw Large Crowd—Play Starts at 6.15.

Intent on scoring a victory over a team which holds two wins over Cheney Brothers, the St. Mary's ball tossers will take the field at the West Side tonight with that grim determination when they face the Meriden Insilcos. Coming here as they do, undefeated, the Silver City nine should prove a magnet for local fans and there should be a large audience present when Umpire Dwyer calls, "Play ball."

Manager Bulla stated today that Eddie Boyce, former High school pitcher, who has been going great guns for the Saints ever since he was declared ineligible at school, will be on the mound for his team. "Pat" Carlson, the Saints reliable backstop, will be back on duty again this evening. Carlson, it will be remembered, was injured by a foul ball in the game a week ago with the Windsor Locks team and was rendered hors de combat. His right knee was badly sprained and he was unable to play in the games over the week-end. Carlson is a snappy little catcher and with him in their lineup the Saints look far stronger.

It is hardly necessary to say much in connection with the ability of the Meriden team. The undefeated Insilcos have played four games and won all of them. The Meriden Recreation Center team was the first to bite the dust and they were whitewashed 4 to 0. Then came the New Haven Folding nine, a department team, and again the Meriden nine triumphed. The score was 7 to 2.

Next in line was Cheney Brothers who fell a 12 to 2 prey in a game at the Stadium and again Saturday in Meriden by a 3 to 1 score. In each case, it was the brilliant fielding of the Meriden team that was directly responsible for the victories. In the Curlyo brothers, Lunderville and Dahlke, the visitors have a great set of inner works that are hard to paste balls past. This was shown time and time and again the series with the mill team when the Meriden fielders robbed Manchester batters of hits.

Either Harry French, Meriden's veteran pitcher, or Kroeber, will be on the firing line for the invaders tonight. French is drawing all kinds of favorable comments from sport writers all over the state for his fine performances in the box. He has allowed but few hits in the three games he has pitched and has fanned over a score of batters. Kroeber is also a pitcher of first water. If he is sent in to face the Saints tonight, it should also make the going hot for the home club.

To date the Saints have experienced a successful season. They lost the opening game to Rockville and then came back and defeated the State's Prison nine. Windsor Locks and New Britain Rangers while Kensington gave them their only reversal.

Urban Shocker pitched the Yanks to a four to two victory over the Red Sox, boosting the team's winning streak to thirteen games. The Yankees now lead the league by seven 1.11 games.

Everyone knows, the tire that is the most economical to own and operate is not always the tire that sells for the lowest price.

The tire with "grit" and "backbone" to stand every knock and grind of the highways must be the best tire money can buy. It is only natural that this tire should be Firestone, the only tires made with Gum-Dipped cord construction.

This truly unique blend cannot be copied ~ or even imitated

The taste you find here you can't find elsewhere

THAT spicy, rich mildness and that satisfying fullness which distinguish Chesterfield are secured by the most exacting balancing of one tobacco against another, to tone down heaviness or over-richness, and to bring out in fullest measure those subtle "over-tones" which set it apart so definitely from all other cigarettes.

The natural methods by which this "balance" is achieved are unique. And when we say that the Chesterfield blend cannot be copied, we mean it literally—not because it is patented or legally protected, nor even because it is a secret closely held, but because without detailed knowledge of every step, the rare delicacy of the tobaccos themselves is inevitably lost.

No—there is only one cigarette that combines so fully the aroma of Turkish and the "body" of Domestic tobaccos; there is only one blend of which men say, "They're mild—and yet they satisfy!" For men who want natural tobacco taste at its smooth and mellow best, there is only one cigarette—and that cigarette is Chesterfield.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Early in the story HARRY MORTON (middle-aged, handsome, rich, unmarried and the guardian of AUDREY MORTON) has thrown out of his house in Rochester a shabby stranger whom he called "SMITH." Smith claimed to be Audrey's step-father. To get rid of him, Morton sent him to a job in New York.

Audrey took the letter from Morton's hand and looked at it again. "Isn't he horrible?" she cried. "Does he really know all those things?"

At the end of the last installment Audrey has just received a letter from Smith.

Audrey is wildly in love with her guardian. So is NONA, a New York stage girl. Morton, to turn Audrey's mind from him, has let her see him with Nona and other women, and also has thrust JOHN PARRISH, his secretary, into her company. In addition to his Rochester home, he maintains an apartment in New York.

Audrey slaps Parrish when he says Morton is not the proper man to be her guardian.

To learn how other women fascinate Morton, Audrey has just started exercising in a gymnasium, where girls' muscles are stretched for stage dancing. Discussion of this career is interrupted by receipt of the letter from "Smith."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXIII

"I'd never mistake that penmanship," commented Morton.

Audrey looked at him with a gasp of interest. There was a note in his voice that she never had heard before.

"You hate him?" she exclaimed.

Morton turned the letter over and inspected the signature.

"P. H. Smith," he read aloud, without answering her.

The handwriting was singularly clear and beautiful—the writing that is peculiar to architects, and engineers, and accountants, and others who make precision their life's work. Morton turned to the beginning, and read, half aloud:

"At Sea, the 21st.

"I expect to mail this at the first port we touch. There is something that I know of deep interest to you. The knowledge is worth money to you—and to me. I am willing to sell my knowledge. You have access to your guardian's funds. He is wealthy. Upon receipt of five thousand dollars from you, in the form of any negotiable paper, I will give you information that I am quite sure you never had had. What do you know of yourself, and of your guardian? Do you know who your mother is? Do you know who I am? Maybe you will not care about this last item—until you have received word from me, in return for your five thousand. Then you will be much interested. Knowing something of women, I am quite sure you will show this letter to Morton. Knowing something of him, I am sure he will give you no explanation. Again drawing upon my knowledge of women, I am fairly assured that sooner or later you will transmit to me the sum I have mentioned. Curiosity in this case is legitimate. From time to time I shall inquire at the office of the International Express Co., in Buenos Aires, for a letter from you, addressed to the undersigned."

Audrey took the letter from Morton's hand and looked at it again.

"Isn't he horrible?" she cried. "Does he really know all those things?"

Tossing the envelope on the table, Morton paced rapidly up and down the room for a few moments.

"Audrey," he said, abruptly, "you are a rich woman. I have made over to you half of all I have. You may send him the money he asks, if you wish."

Audrey leaned back against the desk.

ish to begin his new role as Audrey's assistant guardian.

After her conversation with Morton the girl slipped away to the washroom, and when she returned, the rouge was gone from her lips and her lashes were innocent of the mascara they had worn when she came.

Parrish entered Morton's office by one door as Audrey came in at the other.

Morton held up an admonitory hand.

"Don't hit him again, Audrey," he warned, his eyes crinkled in a quiet smile.

The girl drew herself up stiffly and then glanced as she caught her guardian's eyes.

"If it were—if it were any other day, I WOULD slap him again," she said, turning her shoulder conspicuously toward Parrish.

"Coast is clear, Parrish," commented Morton. "Make your peace with the young lady."

Parrish made a defensive gesture. "Only did you two hoots in—right and she attacked me." Plainly his grievance had not wholly died away.

"You deserved slapping," she said. "How can you say anything against my daddy when he's treated you so well?"

"Oh, tut, tut, tut!" Morton got up, and placing his hand on Parrish's shoulder, took the girl by the hand. "I don't see two hoots in—hereafter what anybody says about me! Parrish is a good young man and he thinks I'm a bad old one."

"That doesn't worry me. He means well when he tells you to beware of me. We ought to encourage people who mean well. They are needed in the world."

"Although—" he turned to Parrish—"some well-meaning people make idiots of themselves. Parrish?"

The young man hung his head. "I don't admit I'm an idiot."

"You are, though," interposed Audrey, briskly.

Morton moved his hand to her shoulder, and still holding to Parrish, gave them both a brief shake.

"Hush!" he commanded. "Don't act like two children putting out their tongues at one another."

Parrish, you are instructed to take Mrs. Morton wherever she wants to go, each afternoon and evening. Audrey, he'll be along to see that you're not harmed in any way. Now behave yourselves at Audrey's. Well, come on!" he said, turning to the door.

"Do I have to go with him?" she asked Morton.

"I'd rather you had somebody to go with you, sweetheart. It's this new career of yours isn't a bit too safe, you know."

She kissed him, and with a pout, followed Parrish out the door.

The letter from Smith still lay on the desk. Audrey picked it up and read it again, carefully. Then, turning to his desk, he unlocked an inner drawer and took from it a packet of papers. It was the one he had unfolded before the letter carrier delivered it to the house.

Drawing from the package two yellowed sheets, he laid them side by side with the letter Audrey had received. Laying back and forth, he compared the handwriting.

"It hasn't varied a hair's breadth," he commented to himself, as he folded the documents and put them away. The new letter from Smith was carefully folded with them.

This done, he picked up the telephone directory and leafed over it. Finding the number he wanted, he called a theatrical agency.

"This is Harry Morton speaking," he said to the girl who answered. "Let me talk to Abe."

He waited until a man's voice gave a grunt "Hello."

"This is Harry Morton," he said. "The voice at the other end promptly became cordial. "Are you putting on any new revues this spring for the jazz restaurants? . . . I thought you would. . . . Well, I want you to do me a favor. I'll drop in and see you in half an hour."

(To Be Continued)

(Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

went on. "There is a kink in the minds of men, sometimes, that makes them a danger to everyone with whom they come in contact. He is like that."

Swinging around in his chair, he looked at Audrey, his lips twitching, as if he were about to weep. She put her arm around his head and drew it to her bosom, crooning over him.

He went on speaking, in the same dead, colorless tone. "He did a great wrong to you, sweetheart. It—you were too young to know about it—you were a little baby. I hope you never WILL know about it. I've tried to keep it from you. I always shall try."

"There, there!" She smoothed his cheek. "Don't worry about him any more."

Morton shook his head. "I am not worrying about him. Whenever I desire I can put him where he can harm no one else. But Audrey—if I do that I'll hurt her."

She held him closer to her.

"I guess he knows that," she murmured, with a wise little nod. "That's why he didn't care if you saw his letter."

"I suppose so," he assented. "Evidently he feels that if he has five thousand dollars he can be independent of me and the job I gave him in the Argentine. The money would be gone, though, before long."

He gave a short laugh. "He never was skillful with money. They kept him for two long terms in the penitentiary because of his—well, carelessness. That was why we didn't get to see him at our house for eighteen years or thereabouts."

The girl shivered. "A jailbird?"

"Worse than that," he supplemented. "A disease—a walking small-pox—a plague!"

It was an auspicious time for Parrish to begin his new role as Audrey's assistant guardian.

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

Another "Main Street."

Want a new book "which is for to be read" on spring evenings, with an apple-blossom breeze cooling you on the front porch and imbuing you with enough energy to make you feel that "you ought to do something," but not the mendacious "Well, 'The Pride of the Town,'" by Dorothy Walworth Carman, is the book you want. About Hypatia and Christopher who, much in love, marry and expect to conquer the world. She with her poetry. He with his mind. But Main Street gets 'em! The Ladies' Aid societies, Better Babies' campaigns, cranky relatives with whom they live who "don't like music in the house when we're trying to read the paper"—well, read it!

The Cook's Sandwiches.

In the book is Rainbow, the cook who is plump and dour on the day of Hypatia's announcement luncheon because she was not allowed to make the sandwiches. "But Mrs. Jarde had known how to form for service and not thin elegance."

Not Like This!

Rainbow believed in "fillin' sandwiches." Hunks of spiced ham, for instance, with the rind left on, and the bread thick-sliced. Really dainty sandwiches for engagement parties "in sich" should have the crust cut off and the sandwiches cut into triangles, little squares, or fancy shapes with special cutters.

Try This!

Cream cheese and minced apricot sandwiches, for instance, would not have registered with Rainbow at all! Made like this. Mix equal parts cream cheese and the pulp made from pressing stewed or canned apricots, well drained, through a sieve. Add mayonnaise and finely chopped nuts and spread between buttered thin slices of bread.

Queen Mothers-in-Law.

Queen Mary of all the Britains must not be a had sort of mother-in-law even if her hats do leave much to be desired. This is deduced from the story of the queen asking that her very first little grandchild be named after the mother. Lady Elizabeth, wife of the queen's second son, the Duke of York. All Britain expected that the child would be named "Mary" for its queenly grandmother, but grandmamma spoke up and sweetly asked that the child might be named for its own mother. Thinking of children we know who bear such cognomens as Prunella and Cruller and Iphigenia (after grandmamma spoke up and sweetly asked that the child might be named for its own mother. Cal and Grace Spat!

Mr. and Mrs. John Blank of Main Street who did not kiss each other for the first time when John went to work because they quarreled at breakfast over the price of cheese, may be relieved to hear that the president of the United States and the First Lady quarrel too. In the presence of White House guests to boot!

"The New Yorker" tells the story of Mrs. Coolidge entertaining members of the Symphony orchestra whose concert she had just attended. The president, she has it, slurred at his wife's husbans, finally growling something to the effect that he didn't see why with five pianos in the house, she had to keep traipsing around to all the concerts in creation. History has it that the First Lady, blushing with embarrassment, smiled at her glowering lord, shook her finger at him and said, "Oh, tut tut!" just as she should have done!

"THOU SHALT MIX LOVE WITH BRAINS"

New Decalogue for Parents Begs for Intelligent Zeal.

George A. Dorsey.

New York.—"Thou shalt love thy child with all thy heart and with all thy strength, and thou shalt not neglect at the same time to love him with as much mind as thou hast."

Such a phrasing as this would constitute the first and great commandment for parents, one gathered from the new Decalogue for the mothers and fathers of America, prepared by George A. Dorsey. Dorsey is author of the popular work, "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," and he formulated his commandments for the United Parents' Associations here.

A child's needs, Dorsey says, are health, fearlessness and guidance. The chief faults of parents, he thinks, are vanity, irresponsibility and selfishness. If the parent combines intelligence with love, the coming generation will behave much more like human beings.

The Decalogue:

Here are Dorsey's ten "thou-shalt-nots":

1. Don't be a parent unless you are willing, as father, to provide for and protect mother and offspring for 12 to 15 years; as mother or to make care of offspring your primary duty—self-respecting gorilla parents do no less.
2. Don't be a parent merely from a sense of duty to the human race—there will always be plenty of people in the world.
3. Don't be a parent merely to perpetuate your own ego or your own personal fortune—there is no inherent value in your ego or merit in your fortune.
4. Don't forget, as a parent, that a man's business is to conquer Nature—circumvent her, beat her at her own game.
5. Don't throw the fear of God into the child, or any other fear, but train the child in such habits of uprightness that it need fear no one.
6. Don't provoke the child to anger—it will never exhibit anger unless restrained; it can be so trained that it will learn such restraints as must be put on it to make it a useful member of society.
7. Don't teach the child to resort to tears, pouts or tempers to get what it wants—keep it away from harmful things and situations until it can learn to distinguish.
8. Don't teach the child any bad habits which must be broken later or break the child; good habits are as easily formed as bad.
9. Don't dam up the child's curiosity, but guide it, nor underestimate its capacity to learn.
10. Don't forget that sound and rational conduct depends on a sound, healthy body; health is primarily an affair of food and freedom for action. The child grows by what it feeds on, not only physically, but mentally and spiritually.

HARD FAMILY

The maid-of-all-work gave notice. "But," protested the mistress "haven't we always treated you as one of the family?" "You have," replied the girl, "and I've stood it as long as I'm going to."—Tit-Bits.

Plague, Disease of Rats

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING, Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service.

Plague is primarily a disease of rats and certain other rodents, such as the ground squirrel in the United States and the marmot, a burrowing rodent of Russia and China.

The disease occurs in human beings in three forms. The bubonic is the most common form so far in recent times.

The septicemic usually occurs side by side with the bubonic type. The pneumonic, about the most fatal of all types, which spreads rapidly from one person to another occurs particularly among persons who are poorly fed, poorly housed and huddled together in overcrowded, insanitary places or abodes.

Contagion.

The bubonic and septicemic types can hardly be said to be directly contagious—the pneumonic type under bad sanitary and poor economic conditions is very contagious.

If the bubonic and septicemic types are not contagious, how, it has been asked, do human beings get the disease? The answer is—through infected fleas—usually certain very definite species of fleas that have fed on infected rodents, particularly rats, sometimes by human fleas.

The chief manifestation of the bubonic type is the bubo or enlarged tender swollen gland—hence the name, bubonic.

The septicemic type is the one in which the plague germ enters the blood stream directly and the patient is overwhelmed and dies usually in a very short time, in from 24 or less to two or three days.

Hard to Recognize.

Such cases are often difficult to recognize except by laboratory examinations of the blood or more often bacteriological examination of the tissues of the body after death, from which tissues the germ of the disease may be obtained.

The pneumonic type is recognized by the symptoms of pneumonia and the blood tinged sputum which is teeming with plague germs. These germs can easily be recognized with the microscope and by certain other well-known laboratory tests.

FOR WINDOWS.

An extremely satisfying polish is given to windows by rubbing them with a cloth dipped in vinegar.

BACON SUGGESTION.

Before you fry the breakfast bacon soak it in cold water for four or five minutes. This will prevent the grease from running, and it improves the flavor of the meat.

TO AVOID LUMPS.

You will never have lumpy soups or sauces if you mix salt with the flour before moistening it. Stir with a fork instead of a spoon.

JUDY WONDERS WHY

The stern lips of that man behind the desk took on a thinner line as he looked me over. Some way he reminded me of my father. I felt sure I had seen him somewhere.

"I didn't know that an applicant for a position in a department store had a choice," I explained. "However, since that seems to be your policy, I would like to be in the men's gloves or handkerchief department."

The man raised his eyebrows. "I am afraid, Miss Dean, that you have not made a very good choice—under the circumstances." He looked at me so meaningfully, that again I felt myself growing red. I still looked him straight in the face, however, until his eyes fell and he said: "However, I will put you at the men's handkerchief counter. Miss Atley is quite ill and will not be back for a long time."

Again I raised my eyes, this time to intercept a queer kind of an expression on his face. One moment I thought it was pity and the next I almost felt that he was angry.

In the meantime Mr. Armstrong, who had gone back to his office, returned and he brought with him a paper which he passed over to Mr. Smith.

After reading it the man seemed almost flabbergasted.

"So you were recommended by Mr. Hathaway, Sir," he observed looking up from the paper.

"I don't think I went so far as to say that Mr. Hathaway recommended me. Mr. Smith, Mr. Hathaway knows nothing about what I can do. Mr. Robinson that Mr. Hathaway would probably say that I was

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

At last the Whiffet and the Twins reached the corner of Sand avenue and Shell boulevard on their sea-horses. And there stood Cap'n Pennywinkle at the corner with a Stop-and-Go sign beside him.

They rode right up to him and the little policeman started to shout. "Hey, there! Don't you see the sign? It says 'stop' and when it says 'stop' you're supposed to—why, hello there! If it isn't my friends Nancy and Nick. What can I do for you?"

The Twins introduced the Whiffet and told about his losing his shadow. "The stork said he saw a shadow run into the sea," said Nancy, "so we decided to follow it. Did you see a strange shadow about?"

Before Cap'n Pennywinkle had time to answer, there was a loud bang and everybody jumped. "Oh, dear! There's been a collision!" cried the fairy policeman. "I forgot to watch my signs."

The sword-fish had run into the balloon-fish and punctured him. "I'll have to take your number," said Cap'n Pennywinkle to the sword-fish, writing in a little book. "You must appear at court in the morning and pay the costs."

"It was his fault as well as mine," said the sword-fish. "We both started across the corner at the same time."

"Anything you say will be used against you," said Cap'n Pennywinkle. "And if you keep on talking, I shall have to put you in jail."

The sword-fish swam away and Cap'n Pennywinkle went to the corner telephone. "Give me Shad-roe 9578," he said. "Hello! Is that the repair shop? Send someone over at once to help move a wreck. It's causing a traffic jam. Tell them to bring a tire-pump along."

"What's all this got to do with shadows?" said the Whiffet. "I'm getting pretty wet, too, I tell you. Not that my beautiful purple bombazine suit can shrink any more, but the salt may fade it. And then what'll I do? My shadow gone, my suit spoiled, and half my buttons spent!"

"Well," said Nick, "we're doing the best we can, Whiffet. And it's all our fault the wreck happened. Here comes the repair truck now."

The repair truck stopped and a fairy merman got out and swam over to the punctured balloon fish with his tire pump. Then he pumped the balloon fish full of air and put a patch over the hole. "There you are! Good as new," he said. "Ten shells, please."

"Send my bill to the sword fish," said the balloon fish, swimming away.

"Come along here, everybody," said Cap'n Pennywinkle, turning his "Stop and Go" sign again.

A big whale who was the bus and carried forty passengers on top, and a black fish and a porpoise swam past. The porpoise had to turn a somersault every now and then, which held things up a bit, but what could you do?

Really there were so many fish passing that corner that the sunlight was shut from the white sandy bottom of the sea entirely. It was as bad as a rainy day when clouds cover the sky.

"There are no shadows here," said the Whiffet with a pout. "I mean it's all a shadow. I'll never be able to find mine."

I wish to thank the city authorities for quarantining my family and me for three weeks recently because one of them had the small-pox. During that time my wife caught up with her sewing, we had three square meals a day, as no one came in and she was not permitted to leave; we enjoyed three weeks of good nights' sleep, and best of all, a cousin with four children who had arranged to visit us, saw the smallpox sign on the door and left town so scared she will never come back again. So for these and other blessings we are very thankful for the quarantine.

A PUZZLE A DAY

At the top of a hill near Nilands lives an old time prospector. He heard that some gold bearing silt had been washed down and could be found in the main street at the foot of the hill. He walked down the steep path to investigate traveling at the rate of five miles an hour. Just as he reached the foot it began to rain. So he turned around and climbed up the same path traveling at the rate of one and one-half miles an hour until he reached his home.

If it took him five and a fifth hours to make the round trip how long is the path up the mountain?
