EVANGELIST IS HELD IN PLOT, NEW SUSPICION

Aimee Semple McPherson, Believed Drowned, Now Subject of Sensational Searches on Coast.

San Francisco, June 3.—Developments during the last 24 hours in the mysterious disappearance of Aimee Semple McPherson, woman evangelist, centered the investigation in San Francisco, where Detective Captain Herman Cline, of Los Angeles, today was seeking Kenneth G. Ormiston, former pastor of the Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, founded by Mrs. McPherson. Cline said he was anxious to see Ormiston in connection with an entry found on the register of the Andrews hotel, San Luis Obispo. The register read: "Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gibson, Los Angeles." It had been entered early last Saturday morning, Cline said. Captain Cline's efforts to locate Ormiston in either San Francisco or Oakland have thus far been in vain.

Seek $25,000 Reward.
Another factor which centered the investigation in San Francisco was the arrival here of District Attorney Asa Keyes of Los Angeles. Keyes admitted he was checking up reports that Mrs. McPherson was being held by kidnapers for the $25,000 reward offered for her safe return.

BOLTON MAN ORDAINED AS EPISCOPAL DEACON

Lawrence Rose Presented at Middletown Ceremonies by Rev. J. S. Neill.

Among the six deacons ordained at the Church of the Holy Trinity in Middletown yesterday was Lawrence Rose, of Bolton Center, presented by Rev. J. S. Neill, of St. Mary's church. Rose is a member of the local parish. Also of local interest was the fact that present at the ceremonies was Rev. Dr. Edward Coley, suffragan bishop of central New York.

Lawrence Rose, the young man who was ordained, is about 25 years of age. He has lived in Bolton Center for the past five years.

Returns to Seminary. Mr. Rose will return to the seminary to act as a tutor. He was one of eight picked out for this post, a signal honor. His school records show him an unusually bright student.

The ceremonies yesterday in Middletown were part of the commencement exercises of the Berkeley Divinity School. The congregation which filed the church was composed mostly of clergy of the diocese, alumni and commencement guests.

The procession included students and alumni, faculty, Rev. Horace Fort, Dean William P. Ladd, Rev. Percy L. Urban, Rev. Dr. Charles Hedrick the clergy of the diocese, the candidates for ordination, Rev. Dr. Edward Coley, suffragan bishop of central New York; Rt. Rev. E. Champion Acheson, bishop coadjutor-elect of Connecticut; Right Rev. George A. Oldham, bishop coadjutor of Albany; the preachers and Right Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, bishop of Connecticut.

Bishop Oldham preached the sermon from the text, "Ye Are My Witnesses." He stressed the necessity and value of the ministry to the church and closed with counsel for those about to be ordained.

The candidates presented to the bishop were: Walter County, by Rev. J. R. Alton of Seneca, L. I.; Norman Paul Darr, by Rev. Percy M. Blinnington of this city; William Kernan, by Rev. William Baker of New Haven; Arthur J. Melbourne, by Rev. George Wilcox of Stafford Springs; Lawrence Rose, by Rev. J. S. Neill, of South

TEACHER, GRIEVING FOR FATHER, TAKES LIFE.

Norfolk, Va., June 3.—Miss Virginia V. Anderson, 23, high school teacher, committed suicide last night by drinking carbolic acid, it was learned today.

It is believed that grief over the recent death of her father, Dr. William E. Anderson, was the cause of her act.

MILLARD ESTATE FINALLY SETTLED

Long Litigation Over Property Left by Local Man; Trust Co. Correct.

A legal case of more than usual local interest was settled yesterday in the Superior Court in Hartford when Judge Wolfe handed down a decision holding that the account of the Manchester Trust Co. in the estate of the late Almon Millard, of Lydallville was correct. This ends a litigation that has lasted for a long time. The court room was crowded with Manchester people testifying for both parties in the lawsuit.

From the great mass of legal documents which have accumulated since the suit was started, these facts were gleaned:

History of Case.
Almon Millard died in 1923. The Manchester Trust Co. was named as administrator of the estate. Almon was one of a family of six children belonging to the late Solomon Millard who owned a farm of about 80 acres in Vernon. There are three children living. Burt, who lives on North School street, this town and his two sisters, Mrs. Martha Nevers of Springfield and Mrs. Addie Geiser of Rockville.

Father Dead.
Solomon, the father, died in the late 70's and distributed his farm in parcels to his wife and children. His wife died in 1906. William, one of the sons, died in 1901 and Nelson, another brother, died two or three years ago. Almon, over whom all the trouble arose, died in 1923. Before that time, however, Almon had bought the parcels of land that Nelson and William owned, the portion owned by his mother and also acquired a three acre tract south of the Pleasant View property being developed by R. J. Smith on Woodbridge and Mather streets, this town.

Increased in Value.
At the time Almon bought this property it was not valuable. It was bought for $300 but has increased in value since then until now it is worth about $4,300.

In 1911 Almon was badly hurt in a trolley accident in Springfield and as a result he was confined to a hospital for a long time and was unable to work. He was employed at the time in the Lydall and Foulds Paper Mill. His illness mounted up and the trouble gave a mortgage of $450 to his sister, Mrs. Nevers who took care of him. In 1920 he took up the first mortgage and gave another which amounted to $1,253.40. This was done because Mr. and Mrs. Nevers took care of him at their home in Springfield and paid all his expenses up to the time of his death at the Memorial hospital here after several years of illness.

The First Will.
Before Almon died he made a will leaving his property to the Town of Manchester for the erection of a monument for his father and mother and providing perpetual care for the graves.

Later, in 1920, he made another will drawn up by Judge Wood, which gave the property to his sister. When that will came up for probate, Burt Millard contested it on the grounds that his brother was not capable and succeeded in having this will thrown out. This left the matter intestate and the Manchester Trust Co. was appointed as administrator. That company settled the estate by having the land that Almon owned, sold under an order from the Probate court. W. Harry England of the Green bought the Woodbridge street piece of property for $4,300. Stephen D. Pearl of Woodland street bought three pieces of land on the farm for $1,625.

Another Contest.
When the Manchester Trust Co. rendered its final accounting, Burt Millard again started a contest, when the accounting was allowed by Judge William Hyde. Burt then appealed to the Superior Court, claiming that England had bid $4,350 for the Woodbridge street property and that Pearl had bid $1725 for his three parcels of farm land. He also claimed that the mortgage made to his sister was not made properly and that portions of the items of expense were outlawed. Also that Almon was not mentally capable of making out a mortgage.

The case came up last week before Judge Wolfe. There were many witnesses from this town, with the result noted at the start of this article.

Judge H. O. Bowers appeared for the Manchester Trust Co. in the suit.

THRILLING SCENES IN BOATMAN FILM

Quiet night at a village on the Volga River, Russia, is shattered by a twentieth century Paul Revere, who shouts from a motor-bomb "revolution, we are free," immediately the town awakes, cartloads of mixed, ragged uniforms, offized and antiquated guns are passed out—and a Red Army composed of peasants takes the field.

Such is one of the striking, colorful scenes of Cecil De Mille's production, "The Volga Boatman" which is his second independently directed offering for Producers Distributing Corporation and which will be shown at the State Theatre today, tomorrow and Saturday. It is part of the colorful dramatic fabric of the most remarkable revolution of modern times against which plays a thrilling, virile love story between a rough Volga Boatman, a human mule pulling craft along the river and a high-born aristocrat, a princess of the blood, De Mille declares it "the greatest screen romance I have ever done."

"The Volga Boatman" was adapted by Lenore J. Coffey from Konrad Barcovici's story. Featured players include William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Victor Varconi, Julia Faye and Theodore Kosloff.

Added attraction for tomorrow night, the old fashioned dancing contest for the championship of the State of Connecticut between Manchester and Willimantic. Don't fail to see this contest as there will be a lot of good dancing and loads of fun.

"The Unknown Soldier" Coming
Tears and laughter abound in "The Unknown Soldier," a war picture produced and directed by Renaud Hoffman for Producers Distributing Corp., which comes to the State theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Charles Emmett Mack plays the title role of "The Unknown Soldier," with Marguerite De La Motte as the war bride and Ethel Wales in the sympathetic role of war mother. Other players include Henry B. Walthall, Claire MacDowell, George Cooper, Jess Devorska and Syd Crossley. This picture comes direct from the Strand theatre, Hartford at no advance in price.

BIRTH HEADS GLEE CLUB

Carl Brath was chosen head of the Beethoven Glee Club at its annual meeting last night. Helge Pearson, director for the past year was re-elected. Other officers are Leonard Johnson, vice president; Evald Matson, secretary; Elmer Swanson, treasurer; Arthur Anderson, financial secretary; Clarence Anderson, manager; Victor Johnson, Sherwood Anderson, assistant managers; Milton Nelson, Elmore Anderson, librarians; Herbert Johnson, Raymond Erickson, Albert Pearson, trustees.

GIL WRIGHT AS CAPTAIN.

Gil Wright of this town was accorded more honors at Springfield Y. M. C. A. college last night when he was chosen captain of the baseball team for next year. He was recently elected manager of basketball at that college.

This is Gil's second captaincy at Springfield for in his freshman year he was leader of his class team on the diamond. He has played for the past two years on the varsity team and is one of the mainstays both in batting and fielding.

KIWANIS TAKES OVER THE COMMUNITY CAMP

Club Members Hold Meeting at Coventry—Kiddies to Have Vacation.

Between forty and fifty members of the Manchester Kiwanis club went out to the Community camp at Coventry lake last evening where the weekly luncheon was held. Most of the men went out in the early afternoon and a ball game was played between the "Lumberjacks" and the "Telephone Girls." The batteries for the latter were Olson and Morgan and for the Lumberjacks Ray and Lupton. The Lumberjacks won 20 to 12, their second victory over the Telephone Girls whom they beat decisively in the recent attendance contest.

Herbert B. House umpired the game yesterday afternoon and he was in danger of being mobbed several times for his decisions. Following the luncheon and business session the Kiwanis club voted to take over the management of the Community camp for the first of July. The plan is to keep it open for about eight weeks. The Community Camp Association will furnish the material for the erection of dormitories, and the Kiwanis club will do the work. The club will also secure a director who will be in charge of the camp at all times. Manchester kiddies who would not otherwise be able to enjoy a vacation will be taken out there in parties for two weeks at a time. The details will be worked out and announced later.

—yes, there must be a good reason for this

AID an enthusiastic shopper to us recently, "You have all the good points that certain stores claim for themselves—and you say nothing of it—they say it all but do nothing. And besides I find Garber Brothers so different from all other furniture stores." Yes—we do what others only talk about—and we ARE different. We believe this to be the most unique furniture establishment in America. We are in an out-of-the-way location—we have no display windows to attract passersby—and our huge factory building is even unattractive in appearance and we NEVER have sales. Apparently, every advantage in favor of other stores located in the heart of the city—with attractive display windows and beautiful buildings—and yet the good people of New England are making a beaten path to our door—the rapid growth of our business is the marvel of the furniture trade. What is the reason for this? You answer it for yourself. Would you rather pay "high-rent" prices or go a little out of the shopping district and save the difference? Are you buying "window atmosphere" or home atmosphere? Do you mind shopping in a factory building where you can buy direct from the manufacturer without paying the middleman's profit? Do you believe in "sales"—or would you rather pay Garber Brothers' always lowest in the city EVERYDAY PRICES and know that you have received utmost value for your money and not an imaginary reduction? Intelligent, clear-thinking, thrifty folks are answering these questions every day at Garber Brothers.

and Here's Further Proof that Garber Bros.' EVERYDAY prices are less than so-called "sale" prices elsewhere. If you need bedroom furniture, this is YOUR opportunity to buy QUALITY bedroom furniture at LOWEST prices!

No More Piles
Thousands Bless Dr. Leonard, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy.
If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonard's HEM-ROID.
This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.
Dr. Leonard wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, Packard's or Murphy's Drug Stores and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.
On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonard's HEM-ROID today.—Adv.

THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1926.

"NEW ENGLAND."

The Review of Reviews, in its June issue, presents a "New England" number of very real interest to every dweller in this thrice-blessed region as well as to the benighted outlanders whose homes are elsewhere in the American union and whose envy must be excited by the picture of "New England in Transition" which five separate articles constitute.

Lacking space to go into the subject matter of any of these articles, it may be said that the broad survey in brief of "What New England Is Doing," by Prof. Thomas Nixon Carver, packs about as much New-Englandiana into a few pages as anybody has ever succeeded in doing; while Owen D. Young makes out a very clear cut case for the proposed water power pool which financial opinion in this territory is beginning to flirt with quite seriously.

If Connecticut people get only a moderate amount of kick out of the Review of Reviews number, however, it is because that publication, following the trail of pretty much everybody who has ever undertaken a similar job, has approached the subject with the preconception that to stand in the shadow of the sacred cod is to survey New England—in other words that Massachusetts is it and the rest of these little northeastern states mere tails to the Boston kite.

Somebody, some day, is going to deal with this "New England" subject on a basis of true values. When that is done there will be a better understanding of how it comes that New England, in spite of her geographical, climatic and soil disabilities, keeps at the head of the procession. Some day somebody will make it clear that it is neither the feudal-system cotton mills of the Bay State, the Gloucester fisheries, the witches of Salem nor Harvard university that has kept New England where she is, but the sheer mechanical genius and manufacturing ability of the workers and inventors and executives of Connecticut and Rhode Island. When that is done Connecticut will be ready to get excited over things written about New England.

REBEL WATERBURY.

That the appetite for law defiance grows with what it feeds upon may be as true of a community as of an individual. Many years ago the city of Waterbury was enjoined by a Connecticut court from emptying its sewage into the Naugatuck river after a certain date. It paid no attention to the injunction, continued its method of sewage disposal—a horrible one—and got away with it.

Now, with that precedent no doubt in the back of its head, Waterbury sets at defiance the state traffic rules giving right of way to vehicles entering a main highway from roads to the right and adopts what it is pleased to call the boulevard system, which requires that traffic from both directions shall halt before debouching upon certain specified highways.

Waterbury's Board of Safety declares that the charter of the city gives it the right to control its highway traffic and that such charter law takes precedence over any regulation by state authority.

Well, we shall see about that. A way was found to show the city of Bridgeport that the power of the state is superior to that of any of the municipalities it has created. No charter provision exists in Connecticut except by grace of the legislative power of the state. None has ever been conferred that cannot be abrogated. If it becomes necessary for the state to discipline Waterbury it is entirely competent for the state to do so.

There is enough and to spare of traffic confusion, everywhere, without having every town and city create its own code to the bewilderment of all outsiders.

DESCENT.

Perhaps more or less inadvertently and merely as an incident of its commercial purposes, or perhaps by design, the Saturday Evening Post has created for itself the position of guide and mentor of the rather callow artistic instincts of the average American. Saturday Evening Post covers have come to constitute the most generally studied and certainly the most largely attended art gallery in the world. If the Post's art public is an unsophisticated one and unschooled in technical appreciation of drawing or color, that does not alter the facts in the case. It knows what it likes, now that the Post has made it clear, and it is tickled by the purpose and execution of the Post's covers.

This being so, the Post has taken over a certain rather overpowering responsibility. And in the current issue it has fallen down on that responsibility with a resounding thwack.

The cover picture is, presumably, a representation of a village traffic officer on a hot day. Never in all the world, surely, was there such a traffic policeman in any city, town, village hamlet or great open space in America or out of it. Costuming his model, the artist has slopped over at almost every conceivable point. But his crowning sin is in putting "Congress gaiters"—shoes with elastic gorges in the sides—on an American citizen of not over fifty years of age. We would bet the artist or the Saturday Evening Post editor that no such phenomenon can be discovered from Florida to Vancouver, from Aroostook Junction to San Diego.

Let the Post be warned against descending from the subtle humors of everyday life, in portrayal of which its cover artists have achieved so marvelously, to the gauziness of cheap vaudeville—for it is certainly a stage cop and not a real one that looks out at us from the cover of today's Post.

HARD CIDER.

A dental expert yesterday told a Massachusetts convention of his profession that cocktails of today injure the teeth because of their ether content. Perhaps this may account for the traditional lone tooth of the old fashioned New England hard cider tippler, because there is a form of ether in hard cider—and it doesn't have to be artificially introduced, either; it comes along with the alcohol.

Perhaps, indeed, it comes before the alcohol, for there is considerable reason to suspect that it is present in the windfalls that Bossy picks up and munches, to the extent of a barrel or so, whenever she can manage to break into the orchard. The celebrated buns achieved by cows from eating too many apples—and pretty much every farmer will testify to having witnessed one at some time in his life—are believed by some scientists to be straight-out ether jags, having nothing to do with the alcoholic content of the apple juice, if any, in the bovine stomachs.

Hard cider—the good old stone fence variety—has probably committed more murders, caused more suicides and worked more all-around demoralization, in this country, than cocktails ever did. But it is the favorite tittle of a number of hundred thousand of sturdy, straight prohibition voters in states on which the Anti-Saloon League depended for ratification of the eighteenth amendment, so it is strictly legal and praiseworthy and all right, while beer—well beer is an invention of the devil.

However, we never knew of any beer so bad that it would loosen the teeth as well as tighten up the conscience. And hard cider, stuck to as a regular thing, will do both besides making a rum-dum, no-good crank and grouch out of its victim, drunk or sober. Aside from being booze it is dope. And the Volstead law doesn't touch it.

HOPPING METEOR.

"Meteor falls from sky in East Hartford. Narrowly misses Mrs. L. E. Swett after landing in meadows near Pitkin Street."

Thus do Hartford Courant headlines tell the story of the hopping meteor. It is not necessary to bother with the text of the story. The spectacle of the meteor, alighting in the East Hartford field just long enough to get its breath, and then, with a spit and a hiss, putting after Mrs. Swett for all it is worth, is too clearly and lucidly told in that ingenious clause. Perhaps if the meteor had waited just half a second longer before jumping at Mrs. Swett, so as to better orientate itself, it would not have missed her at all, which would have been tragically sad for Mrs. Swett and her kin even if it had given the Courant some still more thrilling head lines to write. Just as well, indeed, that the meteor started after her in a kind of blind rage and scored that miss instead of a hit.

Unfortunately neither the headlines nor the story tell us whether Mrs. Swett did anything to the meteor, after it landed, to make it mad—like poking it with a stick or criticizing its color. All we know is that the meteor came down, like any good aviator, in a perfectly good landing place where it interfered with nobody—and then all of a sudden started missing Mrs. Swett. Really, the more we think about it the more we are inclined to believe that the lady must have annoyed it, somehow. We have never known a meteor, yet, that took to chasing people around the lot unless it had been teased.

However the fact of the post-landing miss is the main thing and a proper reason for congratulating Mrs. Swett—even if she may have been somewhat at fault.

CUTTING THE DEBT. This administration is galloping through the national debt at a most inspiring rate. During the year ending May 31 the total of the indebtedness was reduced $835,536,000, representing a saving of $33,400,000 in interest, and cutting the sum of our national obligations to $20,063,300,000, whereas at its peak in 1919 it was $6,533,400,000 more than that.

Going on at this rate the whole of our vast debt, piled up during the war, will have been discharged in twenty-five years more, unless we yield to the ever increasing demand for federal expenditures for matters that are none of the federal government's business.

If there was anything for which there was outstanding need in this country at the time when Calvin Coolidge attained to the Presidency it was the simple determination, in high place, that this country should stick to the job of reducing expenditures and shrinking its debts. Of how effective the President's leadership has been in this direction the imposing figures above quoted are an eloquent demonstration.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

Washington, June 3.—Never came lawmaker to Washington who was more generally beloved than Senator Underwood.

And Underwood, liked by everybody, quits for good when the 69th Congress ends.

Nominally Underwood is retiring voluntarily from public life. He announced some time ago that he wouldn't be a candidate this year or later.

But nobody's fooled. It isn't much of a secret that he knows he couldn't get a renomination. He can see the writing on the wall in letters a foot high. Such being the case, the wise policy for him, naturally, is not to try.

Underwood has convictions that don't go down, in these times, in his state and he refuses to compromise. That, in itself, stamps him as an individual of honesty and nerve. You may not agree with him in all respects but you've got to recognize him as a character who stands or falls by what he thinks right.

He's a wet southern Democrat, which is a paradox. He's an ultra-conservative, which would be all right, since it makes him solid with Alabama's multiplying "big interests," only he ought to make a demagogic bluff at a certain amount of radicalism as an appeal for mass support and he won't.

It's natural to think of a conservative as narrow and hidebound, and of a liberal or radical as a believer in the maximum of freedom for all and sundry. But, in practice, the more radical a man is, the more intolerant he's likely to be. He's apt to want everybody else to be radical, too, in his own particular way and to favor extermination of all who object. And a conservative can be extremely tolerant.

Underwood is tolerance itself, and it's a beautiful quality. The senator has been in Congress a long time—20 years as a representative and nearly a dozen in the upper house. He's been a strong defender for the Democratic presidential nomination more than once.

He isn't a mere politician. He's a statesman, in the real sense. It's true, undoubtedly, that he has grown away from him, not from him. But it's a melancholy thing to see such a career fader to a close under what can't be described otherwise than as a cloud.

Still, there's this to be said—Underwood's finish has dignity. Senator Pepper disappears from the picture to a chorus of ill-concealed snickers. He tried to hang on and was trimmed. Underwood draws the curtain of his couch around him and lies down to pleasant dreams, and Congress has tears in its eyes.

Broadway, which caters to the "easy spender" trade, models its amusements to what the fabled appetites.

A leading theatrical publication, in a recent check, found that the vogue was about at an end and predicted a return of favor to the hotel dining rooms and the established cafes.

The summer's innovation is "a floating night club." Shrewd promoters have secured a five-masted barkentine to cruise in the waters about Long Island and, if the vogue persists, in Florida waters when winter comes. Dance floors, dining rooms, tea rooms, equipment for swimming, bathing and all see subjects are provided. The old square rigger, with Here Comes the Bride!

THE wedding—the honeymoon—and then the home! Happy are the days spent in planning the new home and in the selection of furnishings. Here at Watkins we help hundreds of brides every year in decorating their homes in the most up-to-date manner, keeping within a certain budget. To give an actual example of fine furnishings one can find here at a nominal sum, we have arranged these Home Outfits in groups on our floors.

They can be purchased complete as described, or in any combination of pieces you may desire. And they were not planned for brides of this year only, for brides of other years who are refurnishing, or furnishing for the first time, will find them equally interesting.

The Economy Home 4 Room—27 Piece Outfit $398

The Economy Home Outfit offers four rooms of home furnishings in good taste at an unusually low price. The bedroom includes a full size bed, dresser and chest in silver oak, decorated, with spring, mattress and two pillows; the living room has a davenport, arm chair and wing chair in velour, with library table, end table, bridge lamp and table lamp. The dining room includes a buffet, table, arm chair and 5 side chairs in American walnut; and the kitchen a 3 burner gas range, refrigerator, drop leaf table and 2 Windsor chairs. The kitchen table and chairs are unfinished.

Leonard $29.75

Our most popular size refrigerator—a genuine Leonard—holding 75 pounds of ice. A front icer model as sketched, in golden oak finish with white enamel lining.

Other genuine Leonard models range in price from $13.75 for the smallest top icer to $138.75 for the finest Leonard with porcelain interior and exterior.

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 3.—Easy spenders, like spoiled children, weary quickly of their toys.

Hence the feverish activity of recreation inventors in Manhattan. Anyone with a new toy can make easy money for a period and, when the easy spenders have tired of it, the vogue is established and the circus sheep who have heard about it come trailing along.

Broadway, which caters to the "easy spender" trade, models its amusements to what the fabled appetites.

Last winter it was the supper club, and they appeared and disappeared like mushrooms in the spring. Summer came none too soon to rescue them from the hotel, which would have led to quick failure.

A leading theatrical publication, in a recent check, found that the vogue was about at an end and predicted a return of favor to the hotel dining rooms and the established cafes.

its ghosts of hardy seamen and hazardous voyages, will now carry a cargo of pretty maids in sport clothes and young men with full purses.

The recruits for membership will come largely from the Park avenue belt and, I am told, Vincent Richards, the tennis champion, will be a leading membership getter.

The fee will pay $200 a year and $50 additional membership dues—a very nominal sum for a floating club. But no mention is made of what the charges for eating and tea sipping will be—to say nothing of ginger ale and vichy water.

One of the more rustic pastimes of enured playboys is riding about in the late hours of the night or early hours of the morn, in one of the horse-drawn hansom or phaetons which rent for various sums per hour.

In the daytime these are employed largely by tourists seeking something new, but Broadway claims most of them when the hour grows late.

They tell me of one rich man's son from the west, who insists on changing places with the Jehu, and putting on the silk top-hat of the caddy, sits the driver comfortably in the carriage and goes driving about the white lights belt—perhaps in some hope of recapturing a bit of the ranch life he left behind.

DAILY POEM

GARDENING. A dandy spade from the store one came, and daff, of course, was the one to blame. He bought the thing so's to make his yard look mighty nice, by workin' hard.

A rake and hoe were the next things bought. Ah, pop was sure in the spirit caught. Hard work, thought he, is the thing that brings the beautiful flowers, and a lot of things.

A man worked hard every afternoon and seeds all over the place were strewn. The richest dirt for miles around was hauled and dumped on his clay-packed ground.

The rain came down and the sun came out, and after a week there came a sprout. And was pop pleased? Oh, yes, indeed—until he found it was just a weed. He watched and prayed for 10 days more and then things started to grow galore. And just when his work was about to pay—the rent came due, and they moved away.

—That was YESTERDAY. "Somebody told me today I was good looking." "When was that?" "Today." "No, I mean when you were good looking."—Manchester Evening News.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK, President, The American Nature Association.

As we see bees burrying from flower to flower, sipping here and there a taste of nectar, we are apt to think of them as carefree robbers, sipping their living from the blossoms, taking all, and giving nothing.

As a matter of reality, however, the flower possesses its bright color and pleasing perfume, and its delicious nectar, for the very purpose of attracting this buzzing wanderer. But do not think that the plant furnishes this entertainment for nothing. Its reward consists of assistance in its most important function, that of reproducing its species.

The relations between plants and insects form some of the most interesting chapters of Nature's annals. In the case of the milkweed, here pictured, we have a plant which is practically dependent on the help of insects, to insure its fertilization. However, several classes of insects, bees, beetles, flies, and perhaps others, can each perform the necessary office.

Bee and Flower.

The pollen is carried on discs, joined in pairs, which are concealed in pockets around the center of the flower, and so placed that they cannot be removed except by some such instrument as the foot of an insect. In the course of his search for the nectar, the foot of the visitor slips into narrow slits in the flower. In some cases the unlucky insect is unable to withdraw its member, and is held until it dies.

Numbers of bees meet their death in this manner, and it has sometimes been necessary to destroy a field of milkweed to prevent the extermination of a valuable colony of bees.

Send a stamped addressed envelope and questions of fact having to do with Nature will be answered by the consulting staff of Nature Magazine of Washington through arrangements made by this association.

WAPPING

Mr. and Mrs. John Grizolat moved their family from the tenement house of the late L. J. Grant to Woodland, on Wednesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Thompson of the New York City, were guests at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Stoughton and Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Collins over the holidays.

Mrs. Thompson was formerly Miss Norma Stoughton, of this place.

The Pleasant Valley Club held its regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Henry Johnson, with Mrs. Grisel as assistant hostess.

At the Federated church service last Sunday evening there were patriotic songs illustrated on the screen while being sung by the pastor, Rev. Truman H. Woodward. Case's orchestra was also present and played several patriotic selections.

Next Friday evening, June 4, the Y. M. C. A. will give an entertainment in the Wapping school hall. Two short plays will be given by the Elmwood Girls' Club and dancing will follow the entertainment.

Mrs. Mary Foster from Westfield, N. J., is visiting at the home of her son, Walter N. Foster, of Foster street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Nevers had as their guests over the weekend and also Memorial Day, Mrs. Grace Tuttle McCann and her son Edward, from South Manchester.

There was not as large a crowd out for the Memorial Day exercises as usual on account of the rain.

The Boy Scout drum corps of Hartford, led the procession of Sons of Veterans and about sixty-five children who marched to the cemetery, where the graves of the G. A. R. men were decorated. Dr. McCord of So. Windsor spoke in the hall following this service. The Federated Workers served luncheon at 11 o'clock for the Boy Scout Drum Corps.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Johnson had as their guests on Memorial Day Mrs. Emma Booth of Albany, N. Y., Mrs. James K. Shields and Marshall Shields of Maplewood, N. J., Miss Edith Mack of Rockville Center, L. I., and Mrs. James Weeks of Hartford.

Walden V. Collins went to Niagara Falls over the week-end.

London's longest thoroughfare is Harrow road, more than three miles in length, while the shortest street is Shorter street, only 44 feet long.

You're behind the times if you don't know that Cod Liver Oil is the greatest flesh producer in the world.

Because it contains more vitalizing vitamins than any food you can get.

You'll be glad to know that Cod Liver Oil comes in sugar coated tablets now, so if you really want to put 10 or 12 pounds of solid healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong—ask any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Only 69 cents for 60 tablets and if you don't gain five pounds in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.—Adv.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Miss McGuire's room of the Franklin school will have charge of the second of the Freshman assemblies being conducted by the different Freshman home rooms. This assembly will be held tomorrow afternoon in the School street Rec auditorium, and will consist of a one-act comedy entitled "Station YYY". The play was written by Booth Parkington, and as its title suggests, it concerns radio broadcasting.

The cast follows:
Herbert—Edward Dziadosz.
Mr. Winsted, his father—Everett Moore.
Mrs. Winsted, his mother—Claire Fairbanks.
Roger—Norman Campbell.
Anita—Genevieve Eddy.
Caroline—Gladys Abbott.
Chauffer—Venanzio Boggnini.
Radio Singer—John Johnston.

The Boys' Glee Club is practicing hard for its forthcoming recital to be broadcast from Travelers WTIC on Thursday evening, June tenth. The local singers, who are the inter-scholastic boys' glee club champions, will broadcast a program that evening in conjunction with the Girls' Glee Club of West Hartford, who are the champions among the girls' glee clubs. The program has not yet been announced, but it is quite certain that the local club will sing the "Shadow March" by Protheroe, which was their prize song, and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" with the West Hartford Flowers, as two of the numbers. The complete program will be announced later.

The different classes are working on the class cheers to be given on Class Day, which this year will be on the eighteenth of June. The Freshmen are especially active in this respect. They have already their cheer leader, Salvatore Squatrito.

Compare this loaf

with any you have ever tasted

FIRST for flavor. The rich, nut-sweet, satisfying flavor of White Rose Bread will bring to your memory those fragrant home-baked loaves your childhood knew.

Then for texture. Its firm, solid, even grain makes White Rose the ideal bread for toast. See how smoothly it slices—how evenly it spreads. Wafer thin, it makes the daintiest sandwiches imaginable.

And last—for real nutritive value. White Rose has been perfected with the help of leading food authorities. The nutrition experts of two great universities, the heads of two famous cooking schools, and the food editor of a leading magazine. These are the experts whose advice, combined with the utmost in baking skill, has produced a bread packed full of nourishment.

Only the finest and purest ingredients are used in making White Rose. The very ingredients you yourself would use.

Compare White Rose, today, with any other bread you have ever tasted. Your grocer has it fresh twice a day. It comes in an immaculate blue and white checked wrapper like a fresh tea towel.

IVANHOE— Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

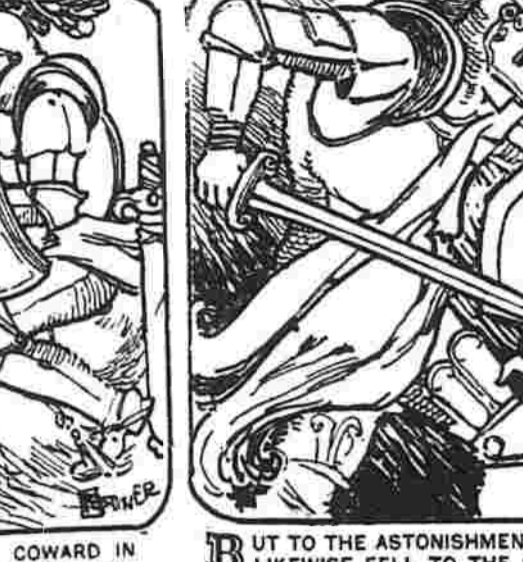

THE STORY THUS FAR—The scene is the England of Richard I. A party of knights, en route to a tournament, visit Cedric the Saxon and their leader, Brian the Templar, becomes enamored of Cedric's ward Rowena. One of the party, disguised as a palmer or wandering friar, wins the tournament and crowns Rowena queen of love and beauty. He then removes his helmet and it is seen that he is Ivanhoe, Cedric's disinherited son. A strange knight in black armor, who helped him win the passage at arms, wanders through the forest and sups with a Friar Tuck, of Robin Hood's band, in a lonely hut. This knight is really King Richard, disguised while he marshals his forces against his usurping brother, Prince John, who thinks him in the Holy Land. As the two sit in the hut they are joined by Robin Hood in disguise. Meanwhile Bois-Guilbert and De Bracy, with other knights, capture Cedric, Rowena, Isaac a Jewish money changer, and his daughter, Rebecca. Bois-Guilbert threatens to kill the prisoners and the Black Knight arrives to besiege the castle. The castle falls and the prisoners are set free. The Black Knight exacts a loan from Cedric and disappears. De Bracy tells Prince John that Richard is back in England and the prince orders his capture. Bois-Guilbert flees with Rebecca and Lucas de Beaumanoir, grand chief of the Templars, orders her burned as a witch. If a knight will duel with Bois-Guilbert, however, she may be freed, and Isaac goes in search of Ivanhoe. Richard, in disguise, beats off an attacking party and seizes their leader, whom he discovers to be Waldemar Fitzurse. He reveals his identity, orders Fitzurse out of the country, accepts the fealty of Robin Hood's outlaws and goes to visit Cedric whom he tells to forgive Ivanhoe. Cedric agrees, and he learns that the story of his kinsman Athelstane's death is false. Rebecca, meanwhile, is bound to the stake by Bois-Guilbert. Believing no champion is coming to fight for her.

A HUNDRED VOICES EXCLAIMED, "A CHAMPION! THE RIDER, WEARY, REIGNED IN HIS HORSE AND SAID, "I AM A GOOD KNIGHT COME TO THE SUSTAIN WITH MY LANCE AND SWORD THE QUARREL OF THIS DAMSEL REBECCA MY NAME IS IRLAND FOREEEN. IVANHOE WAS SO WEAK HE FELL BEFORE THE TEMPLAR'S LANCE

WILL PROCLAIM THE TEMPLAR, A COWARD IN EVERY COURT IN EUROPE. SAID IVANHOE, "UNLESS THOU DO BATTLE, AND SO THEY MADE READY. IVANHOE TOOK HIS CHARGE. THE ISSUE ALL HAD AND THE KNIGHTS FLED. FOREEEN, IVANHOE WAS SO WEAK HE FELL BEFORE THE TEMPLAR'S LANCE

HE JUDGMENT OF GOD," SAID THE GRAND MASTER, "AS THUS DID IVANHOE CHAMPION REBECCA, DAUGHTER OF ISAAC, AND SAVE HER FROM THE STAKE. SHORTLY AFTERWARD, KING RICHARD, ACCOMPANIED BY THE EARL OF ESSEX, APPEARED ON THE SCENE, AND PLACED SEVERAL OF THE TEMPLARS UNDER ARREST, THE OTHERS THEY DISPersed.

CHAPTER XXX

A MOMENT or two later, Nona said: "Look now! Quick!"

Audrey looked in the direction that Nona indicated. She saw a fat, heavy-faced man, sitting with a thin girl, who was lighting a cigar.

"Who are they?" Audrey asked, turning back to Nona. "I never saw them before."

"Why," Nona said, "I thought you met that girl Anyhow, she's the girl from whom Joe gets his money."

Morton had been watching the little drama. "Not so hard to guess," he said. "You are with me, and Nona. She knows us, and she has found out from Joe that I am your guardian. It's like adding two and two."

Nona was rising. "Wait here a minute," she said of a sudden to the man who had been watching the little drama. "Not so hard to guess," he said.

Morton touched her on the arm, and again addressed the girl. "I've been so scared, and worried, by that girl, and by her dancing partner, that I'd like to go home."

"You folks won't mind coming up to the apartment, will you? We can have some music, and play cards, and something. You'll forgive me, won't you, for not going to the theater?"

"All right," Morton said. "We'll wait—wait for a fine night, and we ought to enjoy it."

Nona had swung to Parrish's side company, Audrey, but the latter had slipped her hand under her guardian's arm. Reluctantly, Parrish moved forward with Nona beside him.

"I adore society. I love to dance. I love Paris and Washington and Rome, and have a marvelous time in each city—but I must have something that really amuses me—and writing does."

As Audrey began to sing, Nona carefully dropped her arm across the back of her chair, and rested her hand lightly on Parrish's shoulder.

"Please let me alone," he hissed, turning his head.

She leaned closer and answered, softly: "Come down to the other end of the room; I want to tell you something."

He did not move, until she took him by the arm, and drew him to his feet. Hanging back, he followed her looking at the street below, as if hesitating to the music.

"Listen here, you fool!" Nona said to him. "I know that you want to marry Miss Morton. Do you want to know how to win her?"

Morton touched her on the arm, and again addressed the girl.

BORED, ONLY 23—SHE HAD TO WRITE!

Now Nancy Hoyt's Novel May Be Best Seller.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

New York, June 2.—"When you feel that first fine rapture of youth slipping away, you make a desperate effort to capture something of its glamor before it is entirely gone—and you just write a novel or something—"

That was the naive explanation of 23-year-old Nancy Hoyt, Washington society girl, for her gay and impudent novel "Roundabout," which is getting into the best seller class.

The explanation was naive, but Miss Hoyt herself seems to be so. She is a very frank, quick, and responsive young woman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoyt, of Washington, and the beautiful sister of the beautiful Ethnor Wylie, who has already distinguished herself in literary circles.

But it was no desire to compete with her sister, or to express her ego as a challenge to her sister's brilliance that prompted her writing. Not at all.

"Play Not Enough." "You have to do something these days," she asserted, "just playing society isn't enough. Most of the society girls have jobs or do some sort of work to take up that deadly part of the day before you can begin your dancing."

"I adore society. I love to dance. I love Paris and Washington and Rome, and have a marvelous time in each city—but I must have something that really amuses me—and writing does."

"Actually I worked only about two hours a day on my book during the three months I was writing it."

"But," she tapped her cigaret reflectively, "I probably thought about it for eight hours a day. And during that time, all the bright remarks I might have made in conversation, I carefully withheld and wrote into my book—so there was no duplication of effort."

"I'm terribly lazy," she confessed. "Not a flapper."

Miss Hoyt does not consider herself a flapper—or does she suggest one. She is a girl of poise and charm—and much sophistication.

She wears her clothes like a Parisienne and talks with the ease and nonchalance of a cosmopolitan.

"Heavens, I'm years beyond the flapper," she exclaimed. "I'm getting on in years. But I can still understand the flapper. Beneath her pose and her highly enameled surface I see her as an unsentimental young person with lots of energy and ability, not hindered by much imagination or romance. Very good sport, very capable—and much more interesting than her brother in college. She really has ideas and wants to do things. He just starts selling bonds after graduation."

Regarding the American generally, she finds him a bit bulldozed by his women, and a bit confused and uncomfortable.

"The American man doesn't get the amusement he should from his women," she observed. "He is much more amused by his business or his golf than by his wife or his sweetheart."

"That's strange, too," she became thoughtful, "because foreign men find the American girl highly amusing and charming. But then, they make her so. They really enjoy her society and know how to bring out her charm, and to please her vanity."

The Latin or Nordic sheik, she admitted, might not be as good a husband as the less intriguing American swain, but he does give more glamor to her life.

Miss Hoyt's book deals with the doings of the younger generation in Paris, New York and Washington. Her life has been divided about equally between Washington and the continent and she knows her backgrounds.

She is leaving again for Europe, to write another novel, and this makes her eleventh trip abroad.

"It will be a better work—less sentimental—and much more mature," she assured me. "By the time I'm 25—and old—I may be pretty good."

How Plague Travels

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING

Many people suppose that plague spreads like wildfire, as we say, once it appears in a given locality. As said before, the pneumonic form may, and sometimes does, spread with great rapidity among people who live under overcrowded and other insanitary conditions—that is, where there is close personal contact.

Under favorable conditions pneumonic plague spreads along the lines of travel by human beings, by rail or any other mode of travel. This is not true of the bubonic type, which goes where the rat goes and reaches human beings from the rat.

Even epidemics of the pneumonic form of plague are of animal origin in so far as we can tell. The small outbreak in Oakland, Calif., several years ago started in the following way: A hunter of ground squirrels in shooting these which was evidently obtained one which was sick of plague.

It is probable that a flea from this animal bit him, most likely on the arm, and he developed the bubonic type of the disease. Before he died, however, he developed a secondary pneumonic pneumonia.

During his illness he infected others, possibly by coughing or sneezing in close proximity. Or a very small, an invisible quantity of secretion from the lungs of the patient might have reached their fingers and from the fingers been transferred to mouth or nose. This is sufficient to cause the disease.

After the pneumonic form developed from this first case, it was passed on from one person to another until 14 people died before the epidemic was checked. Two of those who died in Oakland at that time were doctor, and two were nurses.

What is the future of plague in the United States? This is hard to predict. The disease is present in 40 countries at the present time. Approximately a quarter of a million cases of human plague were reported from all countries last year.

Rats readily carry the disease from one country to another on board ship and there are very few ships built that do not harbor rats in large numbers.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Ruth Elizabeth Tea Room. 79 North Main street. Noon luncheon 12 to 2. Afternoon tea. Demi-supper.

Have you tried the new summer cereal, rice flakes? It comes all ready to serve and deliciously flavored. The idea of rice flakes is not new of course, it has been used in puddings and desserts for decades. It will be another change in the list of breakfast cereals for the summer months. Puffed rice as a cereal has always been popular and this new preparation will be a rival of that as well as corn flakes.

White on the subject of cereals, if you have never tried the combination of bananas and strawberries with a "shredder" (shredded wheat biscuit) you have a delightful surprise in store for you. The midness of the banana and the tartness of the strawberry are perfect together. Served as a dessert, bananas are a good "extender" if the berries are in short supply.

Fire authorities recommend the use of asbestos pads as a protection against fire and accidents when using the electric flatiron. Often when ironing housewives are called to the telephone or the front door and forget to turn off the current. These specially prepared stand covers will be appreciated by both the housekeeper who does her own work or her maid.

The new sleeves possess infinite variety. Some of them have a trick of being wide at one part, narrow at the shoulder line and fitted at the cuff. The long plain sleeve is still good, of course.

The bride should keep a complete record of all her gifts in a card index or note book, particularly in the case of a large wedding. If preferred those that arrive some days before the wedding may be acknowledged. A printed card is not in good taste, a short cordial letter, with a specific mention of the gift is preferable. Whether before or after the honeymoon every gift must be acknowledged by the bride herself. The time limit for these letters is one month after the bride is at home.

Why not stop at O'Leary's New London hotel next time you are motoring through the shore town and sample their well-cooked and served dishes. They are at Green and Golden streets.

The new white sport coats fashioned of knitted fabrics or well tailored flannels with clipped wool collars are very attractive with the light summery dresses.

Piquant asparagus is prepared by adding six chopped hard-boiled eggs and one cup of cheese cubes to the creamed asparagus and served on toast triangles. This is for a large quantity.

The wise housewife while supplying her table with as much fresh fruit as possible, will not neglect to supplement this with a liberal use of dried fruits, which are less expensive and just as wholesome. Some make the rule to spend as much for fruit and vegetable as they do for meat. Most people serve about half as much fruit as they should.

Border planting either of shrubs, perennials or annuals has taken a firm hold on popular fancy. It does away with the task of laying out formal beds and planning color combinations. The first year it may be an annual border while the perennials are getting a start, the annuals arranged or set out with an idea of their height, color combinations and season for blossoming.

There are some flowers that are not very decorative in the border but are good for cutting. Bachelor buttons, for instance, with their foliage do not make much of a show, but cut the blossoms and combine them in a bowl with, say, California poppies, and the result is most satisfactory.

It is quite important from a health standpoint, to eat plenty of green vegetables during the early summer months especially this year because the fruit season will be delayed, which means of course, that prices of fruit will be quite high until toward the end of the summer. Almost everybody likes vegetables—that is every one should like vegetables but there are children and men who refuse to eat these very necessary foods and therefore the wise homemaker will combine vegetables with meats that are especially appealing to the appetite.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Plain Woman Speaks.

All females of the species raised to believe that virtue is its own reward and that happiness awaits the good girl, will appreciate the irony of Roxana B. White's "A Plain Woman to Her Rival."

"Yes, you are beautiful. I, who would rejoice at any show in the perfection of your loveliness, admit your beauty. They told me, 'character and soul are all that count.' And so I cultivated soul."

"But when I smilingly perform some sacrifice he passes it unnoticed, while your demure pout entrances him. And when I suffer, I smile and leave unshed the tears that sting against my lids. He does not notice. But you weep and with his handkerchief he dries your eyes and kisses them!"

"Yes, you are beautiful. But you will weep when time threads gray into your hair and weaves your cheek with wrinkles. And I shall laugh! For plain women save no fear of Age!"

Salad in Rhyme. Two boiled potatoes, strained through a kitchen sieve. Softness and smoothness to the salad: A mordant mustard takes a single spoon— Distrust the condiment that bites too soon!

Yet deep it not, thou man of taste, a fault. To add a double quantity of salt. Four times the spoon with oil of succa crown.

And twice with vinegar procured from town; True taste requires it, and your poet begs The pounded yellow of two well-holed eggs.

Let onions' atoms lurk within the bowl. And, scarce suspected, animate the whole. And lastly, in the flavored compound toss A magic spoonful of anchovy sauce.

Oh, great and glorious! Oh, herbaceous meal! "That fellow mistakes To tempt the dying anchorite to eat."

Back to the world he'd turn his weary soul. And plunge his fingers in the salad bowl." BY SYDNEY SMITH.

Your Name. Winifred, lover of peace; Irma, innocent; Virginia, pure; Julia, soft-haired; Stella, a star; Louise, pugnacious; Ruth, beauty; Mildred, gently strict; Lucille, shining; Priscilla, old-fashioned; Victoria, victory; Zoe, life; Nora, honor.

Pretty Is As Pretty Does! Just ordinary shampoo with soft water and castile soap boiled into a liquid, a rinse with cold water to which strained juice of one lemon has been added, and a dry in the sun, makes hair silky and athrob with life.

HER OWN WAY. A GIRL OF TODAY

"HE DIDN'T MEAN IT"

"I got along splendidly at Morton, Mr. Hathaway, thank you," I answered his question.

"You're not having to thank me for, Miss Dean."

"Yes, I have. You see I gave your name as a reference and it worked so well that I worked all morning."

"Have you girls had your luncheon?"

"Yes, indeed, and I must go right back and punch that old time clock."

As Mamie and I started out, Mr. Hathaway held me back for a moment and told me that Jerry had been making an awful fuss about what had happened to me the day before.

"One soul had thought, my dear, to hear Jerry talk, that you were in danger of being murdered."

"Well, I got this anyway," and I pulled my dress away and showed him the red mark that was still about my throat.

"My God, girl, did they choke you like that?" "Jerry should never have given you that expensive bag, and having accepted it you should not have carried it every day. By the way, let me give you a little advice, Miss Dean. Of course, you know that you are a very pretty girl, and my son is a very susceptible as well as a very impetuous young man. But being young his ardor cools as quickly as it heats. If you want my opinion you should allow some older man to pilot you about."

"I don't think you are very nice, Mr. Hathaway, to say such things about your own son. I am very fond of Jerry. He has asked me to marry him, and maybe I will."

"Jerry has asked you to marry him?"

"Yes, is there anything strange about that?"

"Only that I am sure he doesn't mean it—Oh, you need not try to stop me," she said rapidly as I held up my hand. "I'd say it of any man, my dear, that I thought was playing fast and loose with you. Sometime I will explain myself further."

"I didn't dare to raise my eyes. I just sped out the door. I stopped a moment to talk with Mamie about it she said: 'You mustn't think of going away from me. I must have someone to talk to, and I'll tell mother that if she doesn't act all right with you I'll run away with Buddy Tremaine. Come back tonight as though nothing had happened.'"

VICTORIOUS YESTERDAY

St. Andrews, Scotland, June 3.—American golfers led three points to one, at the end of the first day's play between the American and British teams for the Walker cup. The results of today's thirty-six hole, two-ball four some matches were as follows: Roger Wethered and Sir Ernest Holderness defeated Francis Ouimet and Jesse Sweetser, four and three. Jesse Sweetser and George Von Elm defeated Robert Harris and Major C. O. Hezlett, eight up and seven to go. Bobby Jones and Watts Gunn defeated Cyril Tolley and Andrew Jameson, four and three. Robert Gardner and Roland Mackenzie defeated E. S. Storey and the Hon. W. G. Brownlow, one up.

Historic St. Andrew's Links Description Hole-By-Hole

First or Burn—368 yards, par four. Only hazard is Swilican Burn. This little stream curves to left of driver and then in front of green. To be sure of avoiding it, one must pitch squarely on green, which is large.

Second or Dyke—401 yards, par four. Chief hazard for tee shot is whin bushes, as they call the gorse. These are right. Second is threatened by three concealed bunkers on right and three to left. Cleverly concealed: one of features of course. Wig bunker at back of green is always a danger.

Third or Cartgate—356 yards, par four. Whins threaten tee shot, and ground in front made up of hillocks and hollows which make lie uncertain. Big Cartgate bunker to left is main danger at green.

Fourth or Glazer Beer—327 yards, par four. Main hazard is mound in front of green, slightly to left, known as the Elephant. Green is very wide, but quite undulating, which makes it sporty for putting.

Fifth or Hole O'Cross—330 yards, par five. A nerve tester. Whins and seven concealed bunkers to right for tee. Third or masbie shot is blind. Big hill in front hides green. Between hill and green there is dip 30 yards across. Green about an acre and a half in size is biggest in world.

Sixth or Heathery—367 yards, par four. Poor visibility for tee shot, with four concealed bunkers to right and three to left. Ground in front is filled with gullies. Big dip in front of green.

Seventh or High—352 yards, par four. A chancy hole. Best line is between whins to right and mounds to left, but this is apt to land one in big Cockle bunker to right which is artfully concealed.

Eighth or Short—150 yards, par three. A poor hole. No hazards to speak of, except wind. Ordinarily a midiron, but wood necessary if wind is against player.

Ninth or End—306 yards, par four. Main threat is to tee shot. On direct line to pin to left and right are two concealed bunkers named during the Boer War "Kruger" and "His Missus."

Tenth—312 yards, par four. Main features are mounds in front of green. Player cannot roll on green and pitch is often dangerous when pin is on near side.

Eleventh—164 yards, par three. Fine hole whose chief danger is an overdrive for green. Ball will then roll into thick rough or may even go into sea.

Twelfth—314 yards, par. four. Four concealed bunkers confronting player if he plays on line to pin from tee; also deep concealed bunker directly in front of green, sure to catch topped shot.

Thirteenth—119 yards, par four. Sporty hole because one cannot see green for second shot. In going for large green, often necessary to play for safety by pitching away from pin. Fifty-foot puts are, therefore, not unusual.

Fourteenth—527 yards, par five. Something of a terror. Tee shot is in blind. Fairway is between four concealed bunkers on left and wall to right. If avoided player lands on flattest part of course; also free of traps. Hence its name—Elysian Fields. But path onward is full of trouble. Kitchen bunker is lying in wait and, if missed, yawning chasm of big deep Hell bunker is there to threaten. Green presents troubles in shape of two concealed bunkers to left and a whaleback in front.

Fifteenth—409 yards, par four. Most interesting hazards here are three bunkers in front of green, aptly named "Three Sisters."

Sixteenth—348 yards, par four. Tee shot is carefully threatened. Bunker called "The Principal's Nose" is visible, but back of it are twins that are concealed. They are the "Nostrils." In avoiding these, one is apt to shoot to right where there is railway line. Over this is out of bounds.

Seventeenth—467 yards, par five. In some ways this has most famous shot in world. Player, standing on tee, does not see green. Some 50 yards ahead is shed for storage of timber. On it is painted "D. Anderson and Sons." Back of shed is cart yard. Good player aims to go over letter "D" in sign. The drive is one celebrated as "the shot over shed and garden." Second is also full of terrors. Green is very near road and road is out of bounds.

Eighteenth—364 yards, par four. Most interesting hole on links. Not a hazard, except danger of out of bounds on second and this slight for good players.

away from home. The second will be played on Sunday afternoon in Moundsville where the Robert Gear company of New London will furnish the opposition. The team will leave Oak street on Saturday at 1 o'clock and at 12:30 on Sunday.

Other games now being worked into the schedule include the Inslicogs of Bristol, or the Inslicogs of Meriden here on June 10. It is planned to bring the Bristol New Departures to Manchester on June 15.

Manager Vendrillo is also in receipt of a letter from a Boston team which desires to play the Sons up there. Pete said today that if he were able to book two or three other games with teams in that section during the Fourth of July holidays he might consider traveling. The Sons have been invited to become the eighth team in the Middlesex league and a personal invitation has been extended the local manager by the mayor of Middletown to confer with him in that city tomorrow night. Manager Vendrillo will be accompanied to Middletown by Bill Leggett. The vacancy in the league is caused by the inability of the Glastonbury team to agree.

Cheney Brothers baseball nine will cut the first slice of its heavy slate for the month of June tonight when the team tackles the speedy Fuller Brush team from Hartford at the West Side playgrounds. The game will start promptly at six o'clock. Jack Dwyer and Ralph Russell will umpire.

Three games have been played by the silk workers this season and all have resulted in defeats. However, they were at the hands of worthy opponents as the Saints learned Saturday in Meriden. Tonight the locals hope to get into the win column. The players went through a stiff practice session last evening and if they show any similar pep and holding ability this evening, they should make a much better showing against the Fuller Brush nine.

The game will mark the first start of the season for "Pop" Edgar in the pitching capacity. He has twirled many a fine game during his career and should make things interesting for the heavy hitting invaders tonight. Georgetti will be held in reserve. He is slated to do mound duty Saturday, afternoon in Putnam against the Belding-Hemmingway Company.

The Fuller Brush Company is at present well up in the Industrial League standing in Hartford. Headed by Scriminger, former guardian of the initial sack for the Manchester baseball club, the Fuller Brush nine is expected to present strong opposition. The veteran Oppelt will play centerfield. "Pots" Parker is slated to pitch but McCormick may be sent in at the last minute if he looks better when they are warming up. During the present month, Cheney Brothers will play nine games, seven of which will be at home. The schedule calls for home games every Wednesday night at the West Side playgrounds and also home games on Saturdays after June 12. Following is the schedule for the month:

Tonight: Fuller Brush Company of Hartford, here.
Saturday: Belding-Hemmingway Company of Putnam, at Putnam.
June 9: Two-Hartford, of Hartford, here.
June 12: States Prison team at Wethersfield.
June 16: Glastonbury Knitting Company, here.
June 19: Crompton Knowles Company of Worcester, here.
June 23: Aetna Life Insurance Company, here.
June 26: Wico Electric Company of Springfield, here.
June 30: Connecticut General Life Insurance Company of Hartford, here.

ED STEVENS, HARVARD CREW COACH, RESIGNS

Annual Race With Yale Only Three Weeks Away—Freshmen Mentor Fills Gap.

Cambridge, Mass., June 8.—Harvard's rowing crews today were working out under a new head coach. Edward A. Stevens, Cornell oarsman, who came to the Cambridge University three years ago from Portland, Oregon, resigned because of lack of co-operation on the part of the crew.

The annual Yale-Harvard regatta is only three weeks away. Herbert H. Haines, who has coached the freshmen crews for several years, will direct the crew operations for the rest of the season, it was announced.

Whether Haines will attempt to change the system of rowing with only a few days left before the classic or will try to carry out the work started by Stevens is something that only time can tell.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS.
At Boston: Al Mellow, Lowell, Mass., welterweight, outpointed Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh, ten rounds. Pete Zivic knocked out Johnny Moore, Boston, two rounds.

INDUSTRIAL MEET HERE ON JUNE 19

Manchester, Meriden, Bristol and New Haven Concerns to Compete.

Five manufacturing concerns will compete in the annual field day events conducted under the auspices of Cheney Brothers at the West Side playgrounds on Saturday afternoon June 19. Numbered among them will be the Industrial Federation of New Haven, winners of the meet last year. The other three competitors in addition to Cheney Brothers will be the New Departure Companies of Meriden and Bristol, and the International Silver Company of Meriden.

All of the concerns have sent word to Secretary John L. Jenney of Cheney Brothers Athletic Association stating they will send representatives to participate in the various events. The names of the entrants will be announced later. Last year Cheney Brothers won second place and the Meriden New Departure Company came third. The other two manufacturing concerns are new entries.

The program calls for the following events in addition to a baseball game between the local concern and Crompton-Knowles, of Worcester: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, one-mile run, relay race (five men) running broad jump, running high jump, and twelve pound shot put.

FIVE MORE GAMES ON S. M. H. S. SLATE

Locals Play Windham High Here This Afternoon.

Five more games remain on the slate of the South Manchester High school baseball nine. This afternoon the locals are playing Windham High here. Saturday Meriden High will come here for a league game.

Next week the season will come to a close with the following games: Tuesday, West Hartford, there; Thursday, East Hartford High, there; and Saturday, Bristol High here.

TRADE SCHOOL FACES SIMSBURY TOMORROW

Only Four Games Remain on Schedule and Locals May Finish Season Undeclared.

The prospects of the local State Trade school completing an undefeated baseball season this year look real good at this time. Three of the four of the schedule has been completed and the result has been eight consecutive victories. Three of the four remaining games on the slate are with teams the Mechanics have already defeated. The other is with Bridgeport Trade school. This seems the only real hard game left and even this one may prove easy meat for Coach Echmalian's fast stepping ball tossers.

Tomorrow afternoon the locals will travel to Simsbury to meet the High school of that place. Manchester and Bristol, and the International Silver Company of Meriden.

The next two games will be with Bacon Academy at Colchester June 17 and with New Britain Trade school here on June 22. Then comes the Bridgeport game which will be played in conjunction with the annual field day and outing of the instructors and students of the Bridgeport Trade school at Seaside Park, June 25.

Following the close of the season, inter-shop games will be played with the explicit purpose of developing talent for next year's team. It was in the inter-shop competition that Rudy Pospisil, star pitcher of the team this year, was "found."

MORGAN MUST K. O. SULLIVAN TONIGHT

Otherwise Tod Isn't Much of a 130 Pound Champion Thinks Walsh.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, June 8.—For no good reason, except that the boys have plenty of time on their hands and baby needs a pair of shoes, Tod Morgan, Seattle, and Steve (Kid) Sullivan, Brooklyn, respective champion and ex-champion, will take the 130-pound title for an airing at Ebbett Field tonight. Officially, the young men will be fighting for the championship of what is known as the junior lightweights but Broadway knows them as the "calamity class" or the read-em-and-roar division and not without reason. I have a suspicion that Kid Sullivan's participation tonight will not detract from the general hilarity.

Some Cheering For Kid. They riot just for practice around here every time this title changes hands and if the Kid, supposedly defunct these several years he can and will—the customers may beat very piteously. The Kid simply isn't due and addicts don't care for upsets.

This, automatically, makes it a bad match for Morgan and the promoters. It will be Tod's first appearance in the east and they were anxious enough to pick a passe champion as his opponent, which means that the Seattle entry must knock his man round-shouldered or lose a lot of prestige. But the good word is that Sullivan, laboring under the handicap of family troubles when he lost the title, is set for a come back.

It would be more convenient for all concerned if Morgan stopped this supposed push-over before the scheduled limit of fifteen rounds. This seems to be the only way to settle a 130-pound title fight without irritating the populace.

Outline of History.
The brief history of the division is a study in grief. Johnny Dundee first came into the title by acclamation, or something, and they said he lost it to Jack Bernstein, to the great annoyance of many. The next time out, they said Dundee won and the addicts liked that one even less, the gardemeres being called in before the situation was well in hand.

Then Dundee took the Kid just for the exercise. He got that but the Kid got the decision, which wasn't generally esteemed. The latter knocked over Mike Ballerino in a so-called title fight and then lost the championship to Ballerino in Philadelphia on a decision, an upset that seemed to please no one with the possible exception of Ballerino.

He took the title out to the coast and was stopped by Morgan in the tenth round, the effect being somewhat depreciated by the fact that Frank Churchill, manager of Ballerino, immediately took charge of Morgan. The California authorities wanted to be assured that the change took place after the bout and they were.

Meantime, Morgan has done little fighting but his workouts here have created a favorable impression. If he is a real champion, he will win from Sullivan, regardless of the latter's purported comeback.

SWEENEY'S ROOM WINS

Miss Sweeney's room baseball team of the Washington school defeated the Washington school team yesterday night at the Nathan Hale school grounds by the score of twenty to two. Metcalf, twirling for Miss Sweeney's room, did a very creditable job on the slab, and was really tight with the hits, allowing only two. Lessner, Metcalf and Foglio each collected three hits off Eagleson's delivery. The entire roster of the victors shined afield, not a single misplay being credited to them. The Washington school team was guilty of five which contributed materially to its downfall. Miss Sweeney's room thus kept its record clean, and retained its hold on first place in the inter-school league.

All that's best in a cigarette

AFTER glorious exercise nothing is so refreshing as the fragrant smoke of a Camel. Wherever Camels go—to the seashore, to the mountains, to the office—they bring pleasure, full smoking enjoyment.

No other cigarette made ever gladdened the taste of so many millions, for Camels are made of the choicest tobaccos grown. Camels alone satisfy the taste for all that's best in a cigarette, for Camel blending can be found nowhere else at any price. Camels never tire the taste, never leave a cigaretty after-taste.

Camel leadership over all other cigarettes shows that the smokers of America want smoking quality. Camel success is built up on goodness, by the world's largest tobacco organization. Each year the makers of Camels spend millions for quality, and not one cent for frills or fancy wrappings.

No two ways about it, Camels are the finest pleasure, the richest contentment that ever came from a cigarette. If you haven't yet found the utmost in cigarette goodness, answer the most popular smoke invitation ever sounded—Have a Camel!

The seal that protects you. The Tydol dealer will gladly show it to you.

The only gasoline sold under a seal of protection

PROTECTING the quality of a gasoline is a difficult problem. Gasoline is colorless, and to the average motorist all gasolines look alike. Substitution is an easy matter. Especially when the quality of a gasoline is as high as that of Tydol, the risk of substitution looms big.

In New York City, for example, such dishonest substitution did take place on a large scale. So-called "bootleg gasoline"—cheap, third-rate stuff was unloaded on the public through pumps plainly labelled with the trademarks of well-known quality gasolines.

Such a condition was intolerable to Tide Water, and to the Tydol dealers. To end the fraud which was being practiced on the public, a method of sealing Tydol pumps was devised so that Tydol and nothing but Tydol could be sold from a Tydol pump.

The sealed pump in this vicinity
And now the Tydol dealers in this vicinity have united in sealing all Tydol pumps. They want to prevent any possibility of inferior gasolines being substituted for Tydol. They believe that the high quality of Tydol deserves the seal of protection.

Therefore, a seal has been affixed on the intake pipe of every underground tank which feeds a Tydol pump. This seal is only broken when the dealer's tank is being filled with Tydol. Then the intake pipe is immediately resealed and remains sealed until the pump again needs to be refilled. Only genuine Tydol can enter a Tydol tank; only genuine Tydol can flow from the pump.

When you buy Tydol you get Tydol
Stop at the nearest Tydol dealer. Ask him to show you the seal that assures you that you get Tydol when you pay for Tydol. Your dealer is proud of his Tydol seal. And proud of Tydol, the only gasoline sold under a seal of protection.

FIVE WAYS TO PREPARE CHICKEN These Are Favorite Recipes of Four Famous Cooks

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of unusual cooking articles contributed to this paper by six famous cooks.)

Chicken is a universal favorite. Very few folks can find it in their hearts to refuse a second helping of this appetizing fowl. Four famous cooks give tempting recipes for cooking it—fricassée, fried, broiled, stewed, and soup. There's variety enough for everyone!

Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer

the Philadelphia cooking expert, has a recipe for a delicious chicken corn soup. "This is an excellent dish," she says. "With a salad, coffee, and a bit of ripe cheese it makes a wholesome meal."

Chicken Corn Soup

Her directions follow: Singe, draw, and cut up as for stewing a two year old hen. Put it in a kettle, and cover with three quarts of cold water. Bring to a boil, and simmer until tender—about two hours. Remove chicken, skim the broth, and put it back on the burner. Add two medium sized onions chopped, a teaspoon of salt, dash of pepper, and a box of noodles. Add one pint of canned or fresh cut-off corn. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Add the chicken cut into small pieces. When hot, serve. If too thick, add milk to thin.

Delicious Fricassée

For chicken fricassée, made according to the recipe of Mrs. Kate E. Vaughn, Los Angeles cooking expert, select a young chicken, weighing about 4 1/2 pounds. Season with salt and pepper, dredge with flour, and fry in hot fat until browned. Add one pint of water and cook in hot oven, 150 degrees F. for one hour. Keep the cover on the chicken.

As They Cook It "Out West"

Pacific Coast fried chicken is delicious. You have the word of Mrs. Belle DeGraf for that. Mrs. DeGraf is a domestic science counselor in San Francisco. For this dish cut one medium sized young chicken as for fricassée. Sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Heat four tablespoons butter or chicken fat in frying pan. Fry chicken until well browned. Add one tablespoon minced onion and cook until the chicken is tender, using a low flame. When chicken is done, remove to serving plate. If any liquid remains in pan, drain off in cup.

Put 2 tablespoons of butter in the pan. Add 2 tablespoons of flour. Mix until smooth, then add 3 cups of thin cream, or cream and liquid left to make 3 cups. Stir until creamy. Then add one tablespoon finely shredded green pepper, and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Simmer a few minutes, then pour around, not over the chicken.

To prepare the green pepper pour boiling water over it and let stand 10 minutes. Shred with scissors.

Two Southern Methods

Mrs. Rosa Michaels, New Orleans domestic science specialist, comes from the south, where chicken is one of the most popular dishes. She gives two southern ways of preparing it.

For southern broiled chicken, she says, select a very young chicken. Clean, singe, and split it down the back. It will almost lie flat. Season with salt and pepper, and brush melted butter all over it. Have a broiler ready with green pepper, and place chicken in it, and let it broil slowly for a half hour or a little longer if the chicken is not so tender.

Turn the chicken once in a while to brown both sides. When done, place on a heated platter which has been garnished with sprigs of parsley or lettuce leaves. Pour melted butter over chicken, and serve hot.

With Brown Sauce

Chicken prepared with brown sauce is good served with rice, Miss Michaels says. Here are the ingredients:

- 1 chicken
2 tablespoons lard
1 sprig each of thyme, parsley, and bay leaf
1 onion
2 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper to taste

Clean and cut chicken in small pieces. Seasoning with salt and pepper. Chop onion fine. Put lard into deep pot. When hot add onion and let brown. Add chicken. Let this brown, and add chicken. Let simmer a few minutes with thyme, parsley, and bay leaf chopped fine. Stir often. When all is nicely brown, add 1/2 pint boiling water. Stir until it begins to boil.

If necessary, add more salt and pepper. Cover and let simmer until tender (about an hour). The gizzard, liver, and heart may be cooked with sauce, and served with boiled rice. No matter if the chicken is old or young, you can make it taste good if you choose one of these recipes.

New Toaster

It really pays to invest in a good toaster which lasts a life-time. Many hardware stores are displaying the new toaster which makes four evenly browned slices of toast at a time. It has no moving parts, and is very handy for breakfast cereals. Its handle is ever-ready. It can be used with coal, or gas stoves.

RENEW OLD SEARCH FOR LOST MILLIONS

Brest, France.—More than $500,000 worth of gold and silver incots is the prize sought by a French salvaging company which has begun operations to salvage the wreckage of the steamer Egypt which sank four years ago in the Channel after a collision with another steamer, the Selva.

The Egypt was en route from an English port to the Orient with its valuable cargo. Three years ago a Swedish company attempted to salvage the wreckage and redeem the valuable cargo. After several months of search the wreckage was located, about forty-six miles from Brest, where the depth of the channel is more than 350 feet.

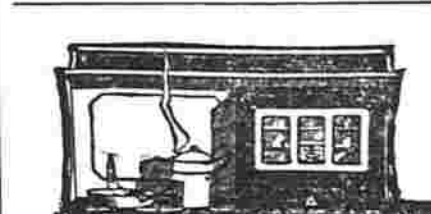

At that time there was no diving apparatus in existence capable of withstanding the water pressure at such a depth and the attempt had to be given up.

The French company is equipped with a special recently perfected German diving apparatus which has already been successfully used at a depth of 275 feet. It is hoped that the apparatus will withstand the added pressure and permit work on the wreckage at the depth of 350 feet.

Three tugs will be used in the attempted salvaging operations. They will first drag the channel bottom to locate the wreckage definitely. Afterward expert divers will descend and attempt to reach the Egypt's valuable cargo with the aid of a special under-water blow-torch. If necessary dynamite will also be used. Hoisting the incots on board the tugs will cause no difficulty if they can once be reached.

FILM INTERPRETERS.

Tokio. — Not all audiences here can read, so there are story tellers in many of the moving picture theaters to interpret the films. Often these interpreters take comedy to tragedy, their personal views of the picture being mistaken.

Builder of First Auto Fixed the Back-Seat Drivers

RENEW OLD SEARCH FOR LOST MILLIONS

BY TOM SMIS

Once upon a time, in the good old days of 1898, when the phrase "Thanks for the horseless buggy ride" came first into being, a man built an automobile that was just right.

For lo! the back seat was in the front and the front seat was in the back and the back seat driver was confounded!

John Henry had all the best of it, indeed. He sat in the back seat and steered, while all Mrs. Henry could do was sit in the front and shiver. The tables were turned.

Ladies and children first! If there were piles to be climbed, fences to be gone through, railroad trains to be struck, there were Mrs. John Henry and little Chester in the front seat, and John, the chauffeur "chauffing" away in the rear.

Powerless, wordless, squirming, Mrs. John Henry sat there while the frisky John Henry raced his infernal vehicle down the dusty roads, to the consternation of the townsfolk and the horses. Fully five miles an hour. But the modern motorist can look upon this picture with horror. Suppose it were the style today, and the ladies indeed did sit in the back seat and actually do the driving instead of merely supervising with shrill cries!

Can't you picture John Henry sitting there, frozen to the seat, with the equipage heading straight on for a street car?

The 1898 model, shown above, and said to have been the first in America, still has most of its molars, and gets around fairly well without crutches. For all its 23 years, it has lived a good life. It is the property of John Wyatt of Saylor Park, Ohio. Miss Cecilia Kessler of Cincinnati is at the throttle.

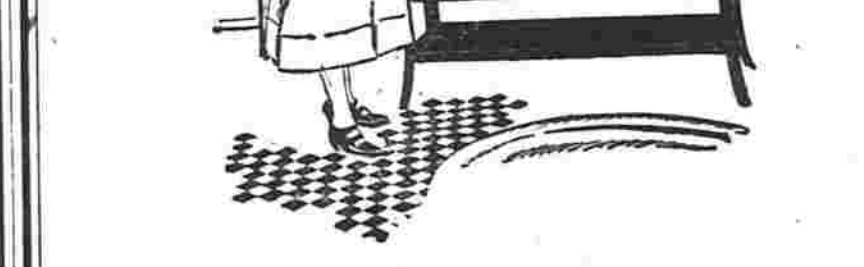

Nobody ever complained of the cold in this venerable model. There was a boiler right under the seat. And it was not always from nervousness, perhaps that John Henry squirmed.

This is Roberta McPherson, 11, daughter of the famous Los Angeles evangelist, Aimee Semple McPherson. Mrs. McPherson, who has disappeared, is believed to have been drowned. Her daughter has taken her place in the pulpit.

LADRONES PROSPER UNDER JAPAN'S RULE

Tokio.—High praise for Japan's administration of the Ladrone Islands was spoken by H. G. Hornbostel, who was a recent visitor in Tokio after spending three years in the Ladrone Islands in the service of the Bishop Museum of Honolulu. The Ladrone were placed under Japanese mandate by the Versailles peace treaty.

Since Japan took over the islands Hornbostel declared a vast amount of work has been done to modernize agricultural and industrial conditions. Cultivation of coconuts and sugar plantations has reached a degree of productivity unknown during the pre-war regime of German control. Many Japanese immigrants are coming to the islands Hornbostel said.

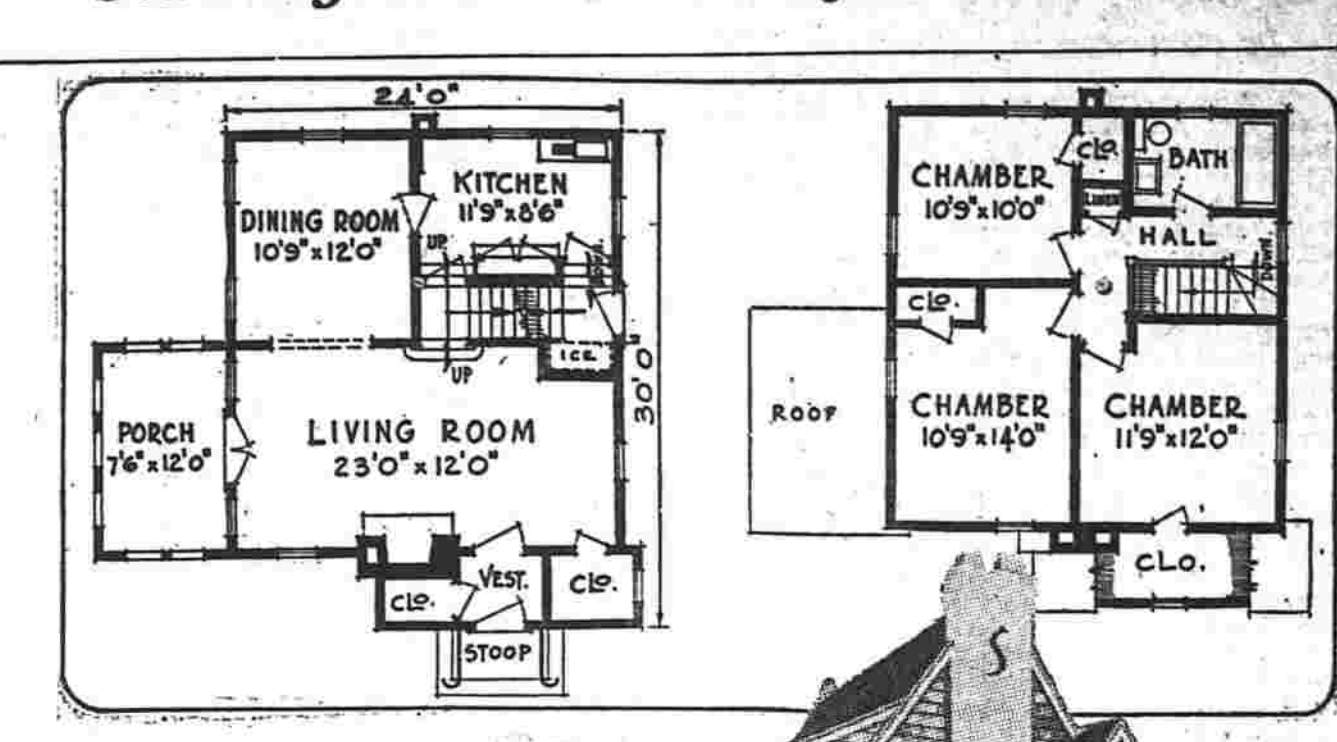

The aborigines of the Ladrone according to Hornbostel, were Polynesian and their language and folkways are very similar to the Hawaiians. The inhabitants now, however, are mainly Caucasian, due to the influx of people from Western nations after the discovery of the island by Magellan.

During his stay on the islands Hornbostel made many interesting excavations, discovering many relics that throw an interesting light on the ancient customs of the natives. Evidences of an old Chinese civilization were seen in the finding of a statue of Buddha, undoubtedly many thousands of years old.

THEY BURN THE LAKE.

Washington.—Dr. Paul C. Standley, botanist of the National Herbarium, who recently returned from Costa Rica, reported that the natives burn a certain lake every year. The lake is thickly grown over with tall grass. The tips dry under the sun and the natives set fire to the mass.

Old English Home of Quaint Charm

This design presents that "something different" that is so sought after by the prospective home owner. A slightly modified Old English style, it is suitable either for city or country surroundings. It is a house that lends itself unusually quickly to "beautifying" by means of vines and shrubbery. Passing through the vestibule with its adjoining clothes closet, one is at once in the large living room, right beside the fireplace—an unusual and effective arrangement. Entrance to the kitchen is gained either by way of the landing to the stairway or through the dining room, which is made airy and pleasant by three good-sized windows.

The enclosed porch at the side of the house is worthy of notice—cool on summer days, but well protected in cold weather. The second floor arrangement is compact and convenient. The hall is well lighted and each of the chambers is roomy and well ventilated. Closet space is generously provided for, and the essential "linen closet in the hall" has not been overlooked.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"I do wonder if Mister Snoopy stole my shadow," said the little Rag-bag Whiffet, as he and the Twins continued on their journey.

"I shouldn't wonder," said a voice. And without any warning at all, a barrel started to roll along beside them.

"Who are you?" cried the Twins, who remembered the story about the wolf and the little pig and how the little pig crawled into a churn and rolled the whole way to Franklin Fair.

"I'm just a barrel fairy," said the voice. "I have no home and I live in a barrel. As I have rheumatism in one of my wings and can't fly, I just roll my barrel around. Do you mind if I go a little way with you? I get very lonesome."

"Certainly not," said Nick. "We'd like to have you."

So they all walked along and along and along and along and along and along, and pretty soon they came to a steep hill. "Dear me!" cried the barrel fairy. "I can't get up this steep hill! And I do want to go with you. I'm so lonesome and everything."

"Oh, that's all right," said Nick. "Don't you worry! You must be pretty light if you're a fairy, and Nancy and I can carry you up. Nancy, you lift one end of the barrel and I'll lift the other, and the little Whiffet can push up from underneath."

"Well then, I'll be ever and ever so much obliged," said the barrel fairy, giving the barrel a little wiggle to show how happy he was. Both ends of the barrel were shut up tight so the Twins couldn't see in. But when they started to lift the barrel, Nick said, "Say, fairy, you must be pretty fat."

"Oh, I'm no really," said the barrel fairy. "I'm so thin I have to stand up twice to make a shadow."

This made the little Whiffet feel pretty bad, talking about shadows in all, but anyway he helped, and after struggling and struggling they got to the top of the hill.

"There!" said Nick as he and Nancy sat down on a bank to rest. "I guess you can go the rest of the way yourself all right. There aren't any more hills to climb."

"Oooh! But I can see out of a crack," said the barrel fairy, "and there's a steep hill to go down right in front of us."

"Can't you roll down?" asked Nancy.

"Oooh! I couldn't! My barrel would smash if it hit anything. And as long as I have such bad rheumatism in my wing, I must have my barrel," said the fairy.

"Well then, we'll have to carry you down," said Nick. So the Twins picked up the barrel and struggled and struggled until at last they reached the foot of the hill.

"There!" said Nick. "I guess you're all right now."

"Just for a little while," said the barrel-fairy. "There's a 'deep creek ahead and I can't roll over that."

"For goodness sake!" said Nancy. "How far are you going?"

"I'm going to see my grandma," said the barrel fairy. "She lives just past the woods."

"Well, sir, the poor Twins carried that barrel about two miles. There was always some new reason why the barrel fairy had to be carried. "This is the place," said the voice in the barrel at last. "Much obliged!"

At last the lid flew off and out bounced the three had Gazook-umses. "Much obliged!" they shouted again as they ran off into the woods. "We had a very nice ride indeed. We'll be going home about half past two if you pass this way." The Twins were too mad to answer.

Ninth School District Turns Over Deed to Land and Buildings.

Without debate the Ninth school district voters who attended the special meeting last night voted to authorize the school committee to execute and deliver a deed of the land and buildings acquired for Trade school purposes, to the Town of Manchester.

In accordance with the action taken March 20, 1924, the school committee had already acquired land and erected a trade school on the site. The land was donated to the district by Cheney Brothers.

The Town of Manchester has already made an appropriation of $125,000 for the purchase of the trade school and its surrounding property. However, interest which is due the district will raise the figure to about $131,000.

With the passing of the necessary deeds, the Trade School will be run as a town proposition instead of as a district affair.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 2. Troop 2 fell in with the salute to the flag and scout oath about 7.30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The meeting was held for a time outdoors. After the appearance of the troop was recorded by the patrol leaders the troop marched inside.

Here much about the construction and theory of radio was explained by Rev. Father Timmins. He also answered the many questions asked by the boys.

Troop matters were then discussed. The games played were: Pull Across the Line, and two kinds of Dodge Ball.

The troop then saluted the flag, repeated the Scout Oath, left faced and marched out of the building.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank all who sympathized with us in the recent illness and at the death of our dear wife and mother. We also wish to thank all those who contributed flowers.
