BLESS NORTH WIND! PRAYER OF FARMERS

Last Night's Mercury Tumble Fatal to Crops if Study Zephyrs Had Not Chased Frost.

With farmers in this section nursing garden truck against adverse conditions and with many of the larger tobacco growers setting out plants, prayers of thanks are being offered today that the heavy frost which rained crops last night in many parts of the state was kept from settling here by a sharp north wind. The wind came up during the night and although it accentuated the cold, farmers say that it prevented crops from being ruined.

Inquiry this morning among farmers and others vitally interested in the weather disclosed the fact that 49 was about the lowest the thermometer went in this vicinity although it was said that up Birch Mountain way a white frost was noticed in the early hours.

Garden truck was not touched, say home gardeners. The cold weather has kept back the growth so that much of it is not yet out of the ground. Beans and beans are up and potatoe tops peeping through the earth. Tomato and pepper plants set out this week seem to be at a standstill.

Tobacco men are now busy setting out plants. The smaller planters have not yet started but the larger ones have three quarters of their land finished. It was stated this morning. These plants were not touched by the cold spell. A grower said that if a frost came at this time he feared that all of the outdoor plants would be ruined. Shade grown would not be affected, he said, unless it was unusually cold.

START CENTER ST. WORK RIGHT AWAY

Connecticut Co. Plans to Replace Rails Immediately; Utilities Meeting Held.

Preliminary work necessary before pavement can be laid on Center street will be started immediately, it was learned at a meeting of town, state and public utility company officials held at the Hall of Records here yesterday afternoon. The Connecticut Company will start replacing its present trolley rails within a week. This job alone will take four months.

Actual pouring of concrete will be started, it is expected, by August 1. Aside from the replacing of the rails the Connecticut Company plans to lay new ballast and change the route of the tracks at the Olcott and Center street junction so that the corner will be made more safe. The turn to the side of the road will be made further west and not on the street corner as at present.

To Lay New Pipe

The Southern New England Telephone Company will install a new pipe with laterals for future need. While doing this job the water company will extend its mains to the new Pine Forest section just west of Adams street.

Most Lay Curbing

Before the pavement can be started the town will lay 3,000 feet of curbing on the south side of Center street. The grade of the street will change but little, but the town will have to install storm water sewers throughout the highway. This will take considerable time.

While all this work is being done the street will be kept open to traffic. It is expected to keep traffic going through even while pavement is being laid. One side will be completed at a time.

RUNAWAY EXCITES NOON DAY CROWD

Baker Wagon Overturns in South End—Driver Injured But Not Seriously.

Bread and broken glass was strewn over Main street near the noon hour today when a baker wagon driven by Hector Blair of Rockville turned over. Blair, who drives for Mohr's bakery, was injured and had to be placed under the care of a local doctor. The horse, which ran away after the wagon fell, was stopped before going a great distance.

Bolt Breaks

The mishap occurred when the bolt holding one shaft to the front axle of the wagon fell out, this shifting the pull of the horse to the other shaft. The horse became frightened when the shaft dropped down and started to gallop. As a result the wheels of the wagon crumpled, tipping it so that it fell over on its side. Blair fell out and the wagon fell on him.

Taken to Bakery

He was extricated from beneath the wagon and an automobile started to take him to the Memorial hospital. After going a short way he was transferred to another automobile and taken to the Mohr bakery on Main street where he was given treatment for his injuries by a local doctor.

Weekly News Items from Manchester's N. G. Companies.

COMPANY G

The local units of the National Guard turned out to parade on Memorial Day but on account of the holiday over the week-end both companies had quite a good many out of town, consequently the showing was small. As the day was so threatening and rainy, the men were ordered to wear slickers, which proved quite handy before the parade was over. After the parade the men of both companies were served with hot dogs, cheese sandwiches and soda by the Women's Auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans Association who volunteered for the occasion. Their help was greatly appreciated by the men of both units. One of the men of G company when accused of eating ten hot dog sandwiches, said it wasn't true as he had only eaten five, so it proved he must have been hungry and ready to join in the usual army cry, "When do we eat?" The officers of the two units, Spanish War Veterans and American Legion enjoyed a buffet lunch served by Commander and Mrs. George Johnson at their quarters in the Army. After the luncheon, Mr. Willard, who was the speaker at the exercises at Cheney hall in the afternoon, entertained with piano selections, and also played songs which were greatly enjoyed and sung with great enthusiasm by the gathering. Sgt. Leslie Cheney also helped out with a solo dance, and an exhibition of the Charleston. A general good time was enjoyed by all. A committee from G company is at work formulating plans for a roast beef supper to be served in the near future. The monthly meeting of the Manchester Guard Club, social organization of Company G, will be held after drill this coming Monday night, June 7th, and all members are urged to be present. Lt. Thomas J. Quish who has been attending the army school at Fort Benning, Ga., for the past three months, returned home yesterday.

BICYCLE MANUFACTURE NOW FIFTY YEARS OLD

The manufacture of bicycles had its beginning fifty years ago. It was then that Col. Albert A. Pope organized the Pope Mfg. Co. in Boston, Mass. Col. Pope had previously spent considerable time in Europe investigating the bicycle situation and weighing carefully the future possibilities of the bicycle as a medium of transportation in this country.

So enthusiastic was he over the outlook that he decided to enter into the business seriously, and thus came into being the first bicycle factory in America. Col. Pope lived to see his judgment fully confirmed, for within a few years after the establishing of the Pope Mfg. Co., all America was riding bicycles. From a humble beginning the business expanded until millions of bicycles were used by the American public. The Westfield Mfg. Co., successors to the Pope Mfg. Co., have set aside June 5th as a day of celebration by all of their dealers, to mark the passing of the half century mark. On that day all Westfield dealers will have on display a special "Golden Anniversary Model" and will keep open house for all friends and visitors who wish to call upon them. Stavinsky Bros. of 24 Birch street says that each dealer will have only one of these special models and while it is intended that it will be sold it will not be delivered until after the day of the celebration is over. It is a far cry from the old ordinary or "high-boy" of 1877 to the two-wheeler and the progress made in manufacturing methods now makes it possible to deliver to the consumer a better built up-to-the-minute bicycle for one-third the cost of the wheel of fifty years ago.

RINGING SPANISH SONGS TO BE AT LAWN FETE

"Juanita" and Other Crooning, Alluring Spanish Melodies in "Songs of the Nations."

Among the musical selections which will comprise "Songs of the Nations" at the lawn fete of the Manchester Community club next week will be some typical Spanish music. A Spanish waltz song will be the opening number of this part of the program, followed by a graceful Spanish dance. The soft notes of the Spanish tongue, also some of the spirit and fire of the Spanish character, will be heard in "Juanita," a song.

The lawn fete will be held on Thursday and Friday evening of next week, on the "White House" grounds. In addition to the elaborate programs planned, there will be high-class out-door vaudeville on the open-air stage and orchestral and hand music.

In Spanish songs, the following pupils of Miss Pierson's classes,

TWO AUTOS WRECKED ON THE TWIN HILLS

Five Occupants Escape Serious Injury — Happened Just Over Boundary Line.

There seems to be considerable mystery surrounding the details concerning an automobile collision that occurred early yesterday morning on the Twin Hills. The cars were quickly taken away and the occupants also disappeared.

The Manchester police were just coming in at 4 o'clock when a report of the accident came in from an autoist who had seen the wrecked cars. The police from here went to the scene and found one car but it was over on the East Hartford side of the line. The machine was badly wrecked but there was no one in the vicinity so our officials made no investigation as it was out of their jurisdiction.

Inquiry today developed that an Ajax car filled with four men said to be musicians were going toward Hartford. An Essex car containing one man was coming toward Manchester. They crashed and the Ajax car, it was said, turned over twice. This car was also smashed beyond repair.

Another car came along and took the five men to Hartford where it seemed they lived. Then Hartford garage men took away the cars. From all accounts outside of a few minor bruises, none of the men involved in the accident was injured. The names of the men could not be ascertained by Herald reporters yesterday who visited the scene. A matter of fact none living nearby knew of the accident as the cars had been taken away quickly.

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 4.—Soldiers of fortune who drift into New York seem, almost invariably, to become taxi-cab drivers.

There is something about the diversity of adventure, the variety of experiences, the hazards of zig-zagging through traffic jams, the whirl of life in the Broadway belt that appeals to adventurous and padded natures.

Perhaps no occupation in all Manhattan attracts such varied types.

Time was when taxi-cabbing offered a fat field for the ex-convict, stick-up man and blackjacker. What could be more simple than driving a fare to a dark street, pulling a gun and staging a robbery?

Most metropolitan cities have now minimized this danger by raising the driver to be photographed by the police license bureau and displaying his picture and name in a prominent place within the cab.

It's pretty hard to tell just who is driving your taxi in Manhattan and this comes about largely because taxi driving is an easy line to drift into while "waiting for something better to turn up."

During vacation time college boys, many of whom have jazz cars of their own, prefer it to waiting table at summer resorts.

The other day I learned that the sun-tanned man who was careening me about was the hero of a famous "dearest island" shipwreck of some half dozen years back.

Since that time he has been too restless to enter upon any sedentary occupation.

But the prize tale concerns a young lady who lives in the exclusive Park Avenue belt.

Hailing a taxi the other day she was just getting settled in her seat when she noticed a snake coiled on the bottom of the car.

At her scream the driver stopped and hastily opened the door. The young lady leaped out, pointing to the snake.

Gertrude Ederle, great woman swimmer who nearly swam the English Channel last summer, here is starting from New York on the Berengaria to renew the attempt. Lillian Cannon, the Baltimore mermaid, already is in Europe training for the same ordeal, and it is expected she may make the great plunge before Miss Ederle. Both girls are to have the same trainer, the famous Bill Burgess.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART.
Washington, June 4.—General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, is a military man through and through. His idea of attaining an objective is to attain it at any cost. Casting about for means of multiplying the number of dry agents in the land, he was struck by the thought, "Why not make state troopers and local policemen dry agents too?" It was a bright hunch, which would have more than doubled the forces at his command—if there'd been no hitch.

Andrews is a soldier, and legality is a question the soldier doesn't have to consider. The less legality the better, in time of war. The commander who stops to inquire, "Is this stunt I'm about to pull off according to law?" is apt to get licked. So the general put his scheme up to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and Mellon, who's giving his dry car a perfectly free hand, recommended it to President Coolidge, whereat the President signed an executive order authorizing the designation of state and local police as federal prohibition agents, to serve at $1 a year apiece and empowered to operate regardless of state lines.

Then the row started. It seems that the order is of doubtful constitutionality. It certainly conflicts with a number of state laws. Of course it enraged the wets. That was to have been expected. But it doesn't seem to have made much of a hit with the dries, either. In fact, several of them have denounced it roundly, in Congress.

In the first place, Congress always resents any executive encroachment upon its legislative rights and this executive order looks a lot like legislation. In the second place, there's the question of constitutionality. True, Attorney General Sargent says the order's constitutional but the lawyers in Congress, wet and dry alike, disagree with him almost to a man, and Congress consists mostly of lawyers.

Thirdly, several states have laws prohibiting any official in their respective services from holding any office but that particular one. Again, no state relishes the idea of having the police of some other state come into its territory and interfere with its citizens. They may be misbehaving but, if so, it prefers to attend to them itself. Yet it's hard to take back, admitting it was a mistake. Indications are it will just be discreetly forgotten from now on.

Ludwig Spohr, violinist, conductor and composer, was the first to use a baton for conducting a large orchestra in England.

IVANHOE—Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

IT LITTLE NOW NEEDS TO BE TOLD. KING RICHARD FORGAVE HIS BROTHER, JOHN, FOR HE WAS INDEED A KINDLY MONARCH. TO THE SORROW OF ALL TRUE ENGLISHMEN, THE LION HEARTED ONE DID NOT LIVE LONG THEREAFTER, AND JOHN'S REIGN WAS A THOUGHTLESS ONE AND MARKED BY HARSHNESS.

WITH ATHELSTANE NO LONGER WOOING ROWENA, THERE WAS NOTHING FOR CEDRIC TO DO BUT CONSENT TO HER MARRIAGE TO HIS SON, WILFRED OF IVANHOE, AND THEIR NUPTIALS WERE SPEEDILY CELEBRATED. NOT LONG AFTER THIS ROWENA WAS VISITED BY A VEILED WOMAN. IT WAS REBECCA, COME TO PAY HER RESPECTS AND SAY GOODBYE.

HE AND ISAAC WERE DEPARTING FOR OTHER LANDS, WHEN SHE LEFT HE GAVE TO ROWENA A CASKET FILLED WITH COSTLY JEWELS. THIS PASSED ISAAC AND REBECCA OFF OF IVANHOE'S LIFE. THE LATTER DISTINGUISHED HIMSELF IN RICHARD'S SERVICE AND WOULD HAVE BEEN VIKING HIS MOTHER HAD IT NOT BEEN FOR THE PREMATURE DEATH OF THE MONARCH.

RICHARD DIED THE DEATH OF A HERO BEFORE THE CASTLE OF CHALIZ, NEAR LIMOGES. HIS DEATH WAS MOURNED THROUGHOUT THE LAND, ESPECIALLY BY GOOD KNIGHTS LIKE IVANHOE, AND ROBIN HOOD AND HIS MERRY MEN OF SHERWOOD FOREST KNEW THAT THEY, TOO, HAD LOST A KIND AND NOBLE FRIEND. THE END

SAFETY FOR SHOW GIRLS!

"NIGHT IN PARIS" IS NO STRAIN ON HOME TEACHINGS BUT BEAUTY FLEES PERILS OF BUSINESS

Jaqueline Brown.

New York, June 4.—She left the stage for a business career, but now Jacqueline Brown has rushed back to the footlights "to avoid the temptation and perils of the business world."

"And this in the face of all that has been said about the 'wicked theater.' And this in the face of the fact that Jacqueline appears in what has been catalogued as 'a naughty show!'"

"Don't make me laugh! I've tried them both. In the show business a girl can be anything she wishes. She at least has her choice," says the attractive Jacqueline, who is a feature of "A Night in Paris."

Not Own Boss.

"In the business world she not only is not her own boss, but she must submit with servility to anything that comes along—no hunting a new job. Everyone should know how completely independent a girl in the show business can be, if she wishes."

"When I left the stage it was to take a very nice salary. But too many positions were tied to my revolving chair and I quit."

"I went into an advertising office as a copy writer, but there was a moment's notice. This latter phenomena has been frequently undertaken by accommodating members of Fakirs' Union No. 1199.

Already Rahman Bey has been "taken up" by New York society and has given demonstrations of his powers at a private performance staged in the Vanderbilt mansion. His program, for which he claims no super-natural powers, includes a dozen and one tests of endurance, hypnosis, catalepsy, magnetic power and body control.

The one drama of the week is "One Man's Woman," by Michael Kalesser, acted in the manner of town hall one-night-stands and telling a Hawaiian story in which spiritual and volcanic eruptions are timed to occur simultaneously.

COAST GUARD.

One of the utterly tragic features of prohibition is the plight of the Coast Guard service.

The old Revenue Cutter service, known as the Coast Guard since its reorganization to include the Life Saving service, is senior to the navy in point of years and has an infinitely more interesting and heroic history, because its service has been continuous from the date of its origin while the major achievements of the navy have been in times of war, of course.

Scarcely known to the American public, the Coast Guard service, generation after generation, performed its arduous and perilous duties with a devotion beyond praise. How many hundreds of gallant rescues of distressed ships have gone to the credit of the service, how many hundreds of thousands of miles of lonely ocean patrol have been performed by its little ships, watching and guarding against the menace of fogs and icebergs, how many scores of times its crews have battled their ways out of safe harbors to the rescue of humanity imperiled by great storms, how many odd jobs of heroism that nobody else dared do or was fitted to do must be set down to its account, very few people in this country even suspect. And in every war where the ships of the American navy were involved, there too have been the little vessels of the Coast Guard, valiant, ready, manned by the finest seamen and the sturdiest hearts in all the world.

A glorious record has been that of the Coast Guard, officered and manned by as heroic a body of sailors as ever breathed the salt air of the sea. And now for the first time in all its history the Coast Guard is the target for a storm of criticism—not from the public, who know next to nothing of Coast Guard affairs—but from the seafaring folk who, through generations, have come to lean on the Coast Guard for emergent protection just as the people of Manchester lean on their firemen and police. Thousands of protests have been lodged with Coast Guard headquarters in the last year against neglect of navigation protection and life saving work, according to official announcement.

And the Coast Guard can only make reply that its personnel and equipment are not sufficient to permit it to carry on. In the old way, when it is compelled to make its major business the chasing of rum runners.

Fifty lives have been sacrificed by the Coast Guard service during the year to the exigencies of its piled-up duties; but of these the Guard would have little to say in any event; it has always given freely and unquestionably of the lives of its men. It is the down-breaking of its traditions, the consciousness that the splendid old service with its long record of heroic duties heroically performed has been ruthlessly sacrificed to the sordid business of hunting bottles of rum that hurts.

When extremists demand that the navy be employed in the business of chasing booze smugglers, the navy and all the country alike stand at once on their dignity and resent the suggestion as unworthy of the purposes and history of our first line of defense. But better far to use the navy, which in times of peace has next to nothing to do but hope for war, in this degrading and demoralizing pursuit of alcohol, than to destroy the finest, most unselfish and most useful—by far—branch of our entire armed establishment.

Put the navy to hunting rum if need be—and let the Coast Guard go back to the noble and gallant work to which it has been dedicated for more than a century.

POST OFFICES.

The news from Washington, in the matter of post office appropriations for Connecticut under the authorization recently passed by Congress, is that the government supervising architect finds the most urgent need for building construction to lie in Branford and Putnam. If there is any comparison between the necessity for greater postal facilities in either Branford or Putnam and that in Manchester it is not visible to the naked eye. However, it is rather the earnest and intelligent work done in behalf of a community, rather than the precise conditions existing in it, which usually determines the decision of the government in these matters.

Manchester appears to have been peculiarly unfortunate in not receiving, for its citizens' keen desire for modern postal arrangements, that ardent support which it had a right to expect, in more than one quarter.

Branford, if you please. And Putnam! But they at least must have had loyal friends, at home and in Washington.

SHEEP AND GOATS.

Ask any New England farm boy if he can tell a sheep from a goat and he will jeer at you, scorn you for a plain fool. He may not have seen many goats, perhaps, but he knows sheep well enough and has no doubt at all about what a goat looks like. Tell a sheep from a goat? Can he tell his dinner from a bunch of weeds?

Yet there are sheep in South America that look so much like goats that it comes pretty near taking a scientist to draw the line between them. And there are goats in Asia that look more like sheep than the South American sheep themselves.

A New York detective has just been broken—disgraced, set down, stands an excellent chance of being fired off the force altogether—for getting soused, falling into a dispute with a taxi driver over a fare and shooting at another taximan who butted into the argument. Absolutely the wrong kind of a character to be a policeman, you will say, everybody will say—and with seeming justice. If cops can behave no better than that, what is to be expected of the rest of the community?

Yet it is only a few months ago that that detective, at deliberate risk of his life and displaying the utmost coolness and capacity as well as courage, captured a desperate bandit and therefor was promoted to the very job which he has now disgraced and lost by his shooting escapade.

He was a goat, beyond question, when he got drunk and began smoking up the taxi profession with his gun. But he had been a pretty high grade sheep only a few weeks before, and he couldn't have altogether changed in character in that little while. It looks as though this New York dick had both some sheep and some goat in him, doesn't it?

And if he, why not other folks? Isn't it true, indeed that most of us, even if the classification were left entirely to ourselves, couldn't honestly tell which fold we ought to be driven into. We are conscious of frequent good sheep impulses and actions and thoughts. And we are conscious, too, of being pretty often much akin to the ugliest, most obstreperous, most perverse and sinful of goats imaginable.

Once in a while there is a person who is, so to speak, a regular museum specimen of a type, so pronouncedly sheep or so unquestionably goat that there's no mistaking and no compromising on his brand. He's plain pickings.

But that's the exception. The mill run of people have so much good in them and so much bad in them that they come pretty near being hybrid. It doesn't do to be too cock sure as to which species they belong to, because really it may not be the one any more than the other.

WASTE OF TIME.

George H. Tinkham is an invulnerable congressional candidate in Massachusetts every two years. He is a Republican. His district is the celebrated Back Bay district of Boston. The Back Bay district is far from being as solidly Republican as a good many other Massachusetts districts. A lot of Democrats live there and vote there—and they always vote. But it so happens that a very great many of those Democrats always, in a Congressional year, vote for Tinkham. Hence the invulnerability.

Tinkham is a well-to-do individual who is in politics because he enjoys it, and who is the best mixer in his party in all Boston. He is as independent as a hog on ice and he shows it in many ways. One way is by wearing a kitchen broom and the other is by being as dripping wet as the Australian crawl.

Usually Tinkham doesn't make many false motions in politics, nor waste many of his numerous words. But just now he is throwing away words and his time most distressingly to his admirers. He is devoting himself to the job of proving Wayne Wheeler a liar—the immediate occasion being Wheeler's assertions that the Anti-Saloon league reported its political expenditures for years and years, which Tinkham is disproving. But what a sheer reckless misuse of good talk and good hours on an absolutely unnecessary job! We would suggest that Mr. Tinkham turn that task over to some office boy or little girl, as being entirely within such juvenile's capacity, and devoting himself to the broader and more worthwhile aspects of the prohibition question.

A well furnished porch makes the outdoors delightful

Nothing quite compares, during summer months, with the luxury of living outdoors. Pure, wholesome, healthful air . . . the cool perfume of flowers and growing things . . . sunny brightness . . . the gentle stir of refreshing breezes . . . the porch can give immense satisfaction when indoors becomes hot and stuffy.

Building liveable and interesting porches is really not so hard, nor expensive! A cool rug of grass . . . a few easy and informal chairs of wicker or maple . . . a sun shade to filter the glaring sun . . . perhaps a gay swing to relax in . . . a table . . . and you have achieved it! Let us help you, with our large selection of furnishings.

Porch or beach

The steamer chair makes a comfortable chair for porch, beach or for the living room of the summer home. Its best feature is that it folds up into a very small space. As sketched, $4.25.

The same chair, without leg rest, $3.08. Many other steamer chairs in striking new striped ducks will also be found in our Summer Furniture Display in the basement. Some with sunshades.

Gift Furniture

Nothing else is received by the bride with such sincere appreciation. And why shouldn't some bit of real good furniture make an ideal gift when there are so many odd pieces that the happy couple must sooner or later add to their new home furnishings! The magazine container sketched, in brown stain with floral decoration. $12.

We've read so much news about the north pole we got mad because the cook didn't have blubber and gumdrops for dinner.

On second thought, perhaps these fellows going to the north pole are looking for a place to park.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK
 President, The American Nature Association.

Baby Woodchucks.

However much we may dislike old woodchucks on account of their depredations in the garden, baby woodchucks, like most baby animals, are so innocent looking that we cannot help liking them.

These youngsters seem to be looking out on the big world for the first time. They were born in a nest deep underground in the early spring, and were not allowed to come out until they were able to eat the tender sprouts of grass and clover.

For some weeks they will be under the parental care, and then the old ones will urge them to find a new home.

Then each will dig a burrow for himself, or more likely clean out one already dug, preferably in the vicinity of a prosperous garden where beans and sweet potatoes, and perhaps cucumbers and cabbages, are growing in well-kept rows.

Such is an ideal location for the upbuilding of a strong body, and a thick layer of fat for the period of hibernation.

As cold weather approaches Mr. Woodchuck's visits to the garden will come to an end, and with the first heavy frosts he will repair to his grass nest, and curl into a round ball for the winter sleep. On she was the wife of a farmer, too, who liked woodchucks well enough to have one for a pet.

All summer she fed him clover and other dainties, and each autumn he went out behind the woodshed and dug himself a fine den just to his liking, and here he passed the winter months.

Send a stamped addressed envelope, and questions of fact having to do with Nature will be answered by the consulting staff of Nature Magazine of Washington through arrangements made by this paper.

DAILY POEM

IDLER.

Now, Jim is the sort of a fella you'd like, just due to the spirit he lends. He's ever been thus, since a wee little tike. His gift is the making of friends.

If something goes wrong, well—he gives not a rap. He smiles away troubles and such. A happy-go-lucky and give-a-dern chap. But never amountin' to much.

To work seems to him like a waste of good time. He'd much rather live on the land. He's pictured no ladder he's achin' to climb. It's something ya can't understand.

Yea, Jim is a mixer who always gets by, and luck seems to follow him 'round. Of money, and where with he ever is shy, but spirit just will not be downed. He's gettin' away with that sort of thing now—but sometime it's all up and discover, somehow, some bound ta stop. He's gonna wake day, that his life is a flop.

19 BATTERS CRUSH 4 PITCHERS SCORING 18 RUNS IN 2 INNINGS

And Cheney Brothers Romp to Overwhelming 18-2 Victory Over Fuller Brush; Long Up Three Times in First Inning When 13 Runs Are Scored.

A thirteen-run batting rally in the first inning in which nineteen batters stepped to the plate against the combined delivery of three pitchers featured the 18 to 2 victory which Cheney Brothers baseball nine inflicted on the Fuller Brush nine of Hartford at the West Side Oval last night.

During the first inning Manchester made eleven hits, five of which were in succession. "Shorty" Long, lead-off man for Cheney's, was up three times in the first inning. Here's how the silk workers made quick work in disposing of the visitors.

Thirteen-Run Rally Long worked McCormick for a free kick. Hanna was hit by a pitched ball. Stratton attempted to sacrifice down the first base line but Scrimminger threw wildly to third in an attempt to force Long. As a result Long scored. White slapped a single to right and Stratton and Hanna both scored. Pitt's single to center was a pitched ball. At this point McCormick was sent to the showers and "Pots" Parker went in to pitch for the Fuller Brush nine.

Cole drew a pass. Lamprecht singled to right, scoring Pitt and Cervini and then stole second. Edgar singled to right, scoring Cole and Lamprecht. Long followed with another single to center and Edgar scored and Long went to third when O'Connell pitched to center. Cervini singled to center. Long decided he had had enough and tapped a grounder to Lewis who stepped on third for the third out.

In the second inning Manchester added five more runs. Hanna singled to right to start the frame. Stratton sacrificed him to second. White was hit by a pitched ball and Pitt walked. Filling the bases, Cervini hit a carpet roller in front of the plate that the catcher picked up and threw over first base, allowing Hanna and White to score. Cole "ripped" to deep left and Cervini and Pitt scored. The inning again with a fly to right field.

CLEVELAND HAS GREAT PROSPECT IN LEVSEN

It looks as if Tris Speaker of the Indians has picked up a great pitcher in Dutch Levensen. Levensen has dished up several first-class pitching exhibitions thus far this season and right now appears to be one of the most dependable runners on the Cleveland staff. He is a right-hander.

TOWEL SAVES KID SULLIVAN A K. O.

Ted Morgan Works Hard But Opposition Is Light; Crowd Likes Fight.

New York, June 4.—Ted Morgan, of Seattle, Wash., still was junior heavyweight champion of America this morning and for all of me and Steve (Kid) Sullivan, he will remain until Gabriel sounds his trumpet. After watching the young man score a technical knockout late in the sixth round last night, I lack the inclination to read him out of his title at any immediate date and, if Sullivan is a typical challenger, the class in general lacks the ability. Morgan gave quite a natty performance.

It wasn't his fault that Sullivan, a broken down ex-champion, was led into the ring by the hand and almost carried out by the feet. Neither was he responsible for the fact that the Kid's handlers deemed it advisable to hurl in a towel in the sixth when their man was on his feet and doing as well as could be expected.

Anti-Climax Displeasing Ted Morgan was in there doing a job of work and he made it a good one, in spite of these adverse circumstances. The crowd didn't like Morgan fighting with the towel and said as much, another chapter for the history of the "calamity class." Apparently, they cannot decide one of these 130-pound title fights without trouble of some kind but this time it was the towel that spoiled the fight.

The same thing happened in the second round, the Kid going down from another left hook. He barely made the ring at the count of ten and weaved into a clinch. Sullivan spent the rest of the round tussling and, for that matter, the rest of the fight.

Occasionally, he swung from the hip in the hope of scoring one of those bulls-eyes in the dark but nine punches out of ten landed on Morgan's elbows. The tenth landed on his shoulder. In the sixth, however, the Kid did manage to score with left and right to the head, and, thus encouraged, started to make a fight of it again. It was a good idea but it went wrong.

Morgan drove his man to the ropes and was hitting him with everything but his knee-cap when the towel fluttered in from the Kid's corner. The gesture was a trifle premature in view of Sullivan's upright and clear-headed condition. But, eventually, why not? The eyes seem to have it.

THE NUT CRACKER by JOE WILLIAMS

A reporter on the New York Times writes the first forms of life seen in the polar regions from Amundsen's airship were gulls and eskimos.

And Bubbling Over? And Lady Cathcart?

In view of what happened, it might have been less embarrassing for Coolidge if the boys had called Morgan a Pennsylvania election account of wet grounds.

"Well the joke certainly is on me," chuckled Mr. O'Goody in his big, good-natured way, as he returned from the historic Carpenter's Hall in Philadelphia the other day. "I used to think that was where the French heavyweight trained."

While there are precise figures to show Babe Ruth is ahead of his 1921 home-run record, nobody seems to know how far he is behind his 1925 hot-dog mark.

Now that "Lefty" Grove is no longer a wild man in the box you can't blame Connie Mack for being wild about him.

Indians probably never will become successful golfers... Just as they used to be negligent about replacing scalps in the frontier days, they show a positive unwillingness to replace the turf today.

George Sisler didn't know when he was well off... Now that he has full possession of his vision again he has to watch those awful Browns every day.

"Red" Grange has evidently become more moderate in his aspirations... He is to star in a movie called "The Halfback." A year ago nothing less than "The Fullback" would have suited him.

The old-fashioned June bride now has a hip-suffling daughter who can hardly wait for her July divorce.

Maybe those White House spiritualists Mr. Houdini prattles about can tell us why Bucky Harris didn't start Dutch Reuther in the world series last fall.

"Is true that none but the brave deserve the fair but what did the good people of Boston do to deserve the Braves?"

Take Things Easy At Opening of Season

BY CHARLEY PADDOCK Sometimes sprinters are ruined for further running by "pulled" muscles and torn ligaments, and sometimes men are injured by compositive athletics. The greatest number of permanent injuries are the direct result of too much work in early season. A man comes out from weeks or even months of comparative idleness soft.

WRIGHT HONORED AT SPRINGFIELD

Local Athlete Named Captain of College Baseball Nine; Also Manager of Basketball Team.

Further honor has been handed to "Gil" Wright, of Pearl street, who is a junior student at Springfield College. Wright, who has played third base on the varsity baseball team for the past two seasons after completing a season of fine ball playing with the Freshmen nine, has been elected captain of the Springfield College nine for 1927. Coming as it does in his senior year, this will be something Wright can well feel proud of.

Knuckle Ball. Despite all legislation, baseball still has a more effective freak delivery. I have referred to the knuckle ball. The knuckle ball is legal because it is pitched without resorting to any artificial means. The peculiar break on the ball is caused by the manner in which it is held prior to delivery.

ORFORD SOAP NINE MEETS PLAINVILLE

DIAMOND DUST

With the mighty Ruth lambasting his seventeenth and eighteenth homers of the season and personally accounting for five runs, the other Yankees merely had to go through the motions to beat the Red Sox, eight to five.

Pinch hitters Blue and Manush led an eight-inning rally which gave the Tigers three runs and a victory over the Indians three to two. Gibson had the better of Gevseen in the matter of pitching.

Emil Vrehe gave the house laugh to crape-hangers who would shoo him back to the minors by holding the Cubs to four hits and winning his own game, three to two, in a double in the ninth. Incidentally the Corsala took second place away from the Cubs and are now only three games behind the Reds.

LOCALS EXPECT TO WIN 7th IN ROW AGAINST ROCKVILLE

LOUISVILLE SEEMS TO HAVE MUCH OPPORTION Louisville, which walked away with the 1925 pennant in the American Association, seems to have a bit of real competition this season. Kansas City and Indianapolis are pushing the Colonels closely with no less than four other clubs not far behind. Columbus appears to be the only real weak sister in the circuit.

TIMELY HITTING BEATS WINDHAM

S. M. H. S. Nine Romps to 7-5 Victory Evening Up for Previous Defeat; Meriden Here Tomorrow. Five singles in a row in the sixth inning started the ball a rolling and Manchester scored four runs and then proceeded to add three more in the next frame giving the local high school a 7-5 victory over Windham High at the Stadium before a small gathering of fans.

Meriden Tomorrow Tomorrow afternoon the local schoolboys will entertain Meriden High in a return game at the local field. Meriden defeated the S. M. H. S. nine in Meriden last Saturday 9 to 3 when Filipek made a home run in the tenth inning.

How They Scored Dahlquist led off in the sixth with a fly to Meikle. Holland was safe on Sawicki's error and advanced a peg on Foley's sacrifice. F. Lupien singled. Holland, going to third, Farr singled scoring Holland. Quish singled and Lupien went to third. Wright singled scoring Lupien and filling the bases. Winsler singled scoring Farr and Quish. Wiley flew out for the third out.

Manchester scored three more runs in the next inning. Dahlquist grounded out. Holland singled and stole second. Foley walked. F. Lupien sacrificed, advancing the runners a peg. Farr safe on Meikle's wild throw of his grounder and both runners crossed the platter. Farr went to second on the over throw and scored on Quish's single.

Willson's "Story of Rapid Transit," a book dealing with the history, a various modes of travel and transportation of mail and freight, has a very interesting chapter dealing with the experiments made by the French during the siege of Paris, in the use of balloons to deliver mail and messages to the outside world.

The balloon had not been used extensively at that time as an engine of war; in fact the government officials had up to that time laughed at those who sought to interest the army in the use of gas bags.

FUEL SHORTAGE TALK IS MORE THAN RUMOR

Acute Situation Faces Motor Car Manufacturers—Light Machine to Solve Problem.

From time to time, we hear the cry that a fuel shortage is imminent. Usually we shrug our shoulders and say that it probably presages another rise in the price of gasoline. A study of the situation however reveals a condition which is far from reassuring and which shows that the possibility of a shortage is some much more definite than a rumor.

The total domestic production of gasoline in the United States in 1923 was 7,555,845,145 gallons and the domestic consumption was 6,655,025,280 gallons of which the motor car used better than 80 per cent. In 1924, domestic production of gasoline was increased to 8,959,650,220 gallons and the domestic consumption of 7,740,625,055 gallons of which the motor cars of the country again used better than 80 per cent.

In the same period, the increase in registrations over the preceding year was 17 per cent showing that the tax per car on our domestic production of fuel was increasing in greater ratio than our car production and registration. In other words each car owner was making his automobile drive him a few miles more each year, at a cost to the productive capacity of the country in fuel, of something like one gallon of gas for each 15 extra miles covered.

In 1925 the productive capacity of our oil companies has been strained to the limit with a constantly increasing drain on the amount of fuel developed. By the end of 1926 when there should be 20,000,000 motor vehicles registered in this country there is likely to come a line between production and consumption, so thin that the two will just about rest on the same figures.

No less an authority than W. T. Thom, Jr., of the United States Geological Survey has predicted that, within the next ten years, the diminishing supply of gas line will have brought the cost of operating an automobile out of reach of the pocketbook of the average citizen.

He says in part: "The time to prepare for the threatened shortage is now, not when the shortage actually occurs. Obvious methods of meeting the threat are more economical cars. If the automobile engineer can produce a car that will give 1000 miles of operation on half the gasoline now required to do that distance, the effect is to double our fuel supply. The average car today will give greater mileage per unit of fuel than the cars of even five years ago. There are signs that still more economies on this side will come."

The average car of today is a lighter car than that of five years ago. It has a smaller motor, more efficient carburation, a higher speed motor and therefore greater fuel efficiency. But as yet the present time we are not getting, as a national average, much better than 15 miles to the gallon, enthusiastic claims of owners and manufacturers to the contrary.

This all brings to mind the discussion of the European small car, redesigned by American engineers for American use. In Europe, petrol costs twice as much as its synonym, gasoline, does here. But the European car goes twice as far on the same amount of fuel. So the cost per mile is not greater than here.

We can get the double mileage here by adopting the salient features of the European light car motor and combining it with our own methods of building chassis and bodies. The answer would appear to be reasonably simple. The European builder gets his high motor efficiency by using a small bore, a long stroke and building his motor to operate at high speed.

He puts this motor into a chassis of reasonable length and builds a body to suit.

The American car using public must accustom itself to a car considerably smaller than the majority of those we see on the streets. If we are going to continue to use cars in the same steadily increasing numbers.

This diminution in size need not necessarily effect the comfortable seating arrangements in the bodies for it is certain that the American adaption of the European type of car will have our own standard tread of 56 inches, and that the wheel base will be about what we have become accustomed to in our small cars.

But, if we adopt the European type power plant we will have much faster small cars than we have now and this will require lower bodies with wind cutting lines which will be quite an innovation in our small car design.

In the past it has been a case of designing a car to use gasoline. The future looks as though, the gasoline would flare back and, in a measure, force a type of design which will enable us to continue to have gasoline to use.

To have this car merely a small car will not be enough. It will have to be a small car engineered along the lines which have proved to be conducive to 28 to 30 miles to the gallon of fuel in countries where fuel comes high in price.

BABIES ARE BARGAINS SAYS CYNTHIA

By CYNTHIA GREY.

Bob and Winnie have been married three years. Bob is thirty and Winnie is twenty-seven. They haven't any children. Bob is making "only $75 a week," and they "really don't think it would be right to have children when they cannot give them all the advantages of life."

Then, too, they are sure "there is plenty of time," and in a few years they will have saved more and prepared for the heavy burdens of parenthood.

In the meantime, Bob goes on spending his money on night clubs and clothes, and Winnie wastes a pretty penny in her frivolousness with her set of young married women. They have not saved a cent in a year.

When I see such cases, I am not brought up over the selfishness of our youth, or its failure to realize responsibilities to the race.

After all, there is nothing compulsory about having children. Nobody really owes it to society to propagate his kind. The race is not in danger of running out because of people like Bob and Winnie.

But I do feel pity for these young people, with their shortsightedness concerning their own welfare. I pity them for missing the happiness of children, and the stimulus that children give for work and achievement.

A woman who has valiantly reared her child without help from anyone, and has gained a measure of professional success for herself, on the side, said to me, "My best recipe for ambition is, 'Have a child to support.' I should never have amounted to anything if I hadn't been forced to try, for my daughter's sake."

Bob and Winnie talk at length of the "cost of babies." And yet the money that they fritter away in empty pleasures would easily support a child, and they would get more fun out of the spending of it than they now get from their golf clubs and their theater parties.

The truth of the matter is that they don't want a baby at all, because their scale of values is topsyturvy. And they temporize by saying, "We'll wait until we can afford it."

That time will never come—and perhaps it is a good thing for the child's sake. Such shallow people seldom make good parents.

But for Bob and Winnie themselves—it's a great pity. A baby at any cost is a good bargain.

"LITTLE TEMPERATURE CHANGE," SAID PROBS.

Osasco, June 4.—One of the worst June frosts in many years struck this town last night, several thermometers registering a drop of from thirty-five to forty degrees from sunset to sunrise. In the lowlands the frost was reported quite heavy and reports from nearby places state that crops have been seriously damaged.

WORLD AID SOCIETY OPENED FOR FLYERS

Paris.—An International Aviators' Aid Society has just been inaugurated through the generosity of Clifford B. Harmon of New York, who has joined the American colony after making a fortune in real estate. Mr. Harmon's donation has provided a magnificent equipped club house in the Bois de Boulogne, assures a life insurance policy of 50,000 francs for an insignificant premium, two free beds with the services of eminent specialists at the American Hospital for all members of the society.

The corporate name of the society is the International League of Aviators and groups of the League have been started in the following countries: Italy, Belgium, Roumania, United States, Canada, Finland, Sweden, Poland and Japan. France's oldest aeronautical society, "The Old Boys," consisting of aviators who received licenses before 1914, have unanimously voted membership in Mr. Harmon's organization.

The noble ideal of the League: grouping all aviators of every country into one powerful organization to renew the spirit of fraternity and civility that has always been associated with the flyers, is hoped may with the association the lacking and encouragement of the Society of Nations.

Speaking at the inaugural banquet of the League's club house, Mr. Harmon said:

"It has always been my greatest hope to think that it was possible to establish a world-wide organization of aviators of every country, which would make them friends. In every country it is the elite of the nation's manhood that takes to the air."

"These young men, proud of their country must serve as the people of understanding to join the people of all countries who are 'nationally ignorant,' blindly jealous, because they know not any other country but their own."

YALE-ROWING PLANT LEAVES HOUSATONIC.

New Haven, June 4.—A procession of launches started down the Housatonic river from the Bob Cook boathouse at Derby today on a thirty-mile voyage to the Adee boathouse on New Haven harbor. The launches have been in use during Yale's training season on the Housatonic and shortly will start on a longer voyage to New London for the training on the Thames.

One of the Yale shells was hoisted onto a truck at the boathouse in Derby this afternoon to be transported to Gales Ferry.

Miss Catherine Twitt, proprietress of the Victoria Inn, Dymchurch (Kent), has held the license of that house for 50 years.

BEHOLD HERE TODAY THE story centers around HARRY MORTON rich, unmarried, middle-aged, much pursued by women; AUDREY, his adopted daughter who is in love with him; NONA, a New York stage girl (who also loves Morton) and JOHN PARRISH, Morton's secretary (who loves Audrey) and is encouraged by Morton...

herself on the arm of Morton's chair. "Nona says she's in love with you," she said, stroking his hair, "but I wonder if she is, so very much?" "Why?" he inquired. "She twisted a lock of his thick hair about her forehead. "Did you notice her tonight, while I was singing, and afterward? She leaned against Mr. Parrish, and once I saw her put her hand on his shoulder, and they were talking a long while together, very low, while you and I were in the alcove. She considered, as she started twisting another lock of hair. "I like Nona. But I wonder if she isn't really a flirt!" Morton turned away, to hide an amused twinkle in his eyes. "And you feel it is wrong for her to tamper with Parrish's young affections?"

Audrey's rehearsals with Nona went on, day after day. The work became longer and more arduous, as she became hardened to it.

to tamper with Parrish's young affections? "You're teasing." She struck him a light pat, on his cheek, and arose. "But he doesn't understand women, and she's experienced, and he might fall seriously in love with her. Any woman can get a mere boy like Mr. Parrish, if she wants him." Morton laughed outright. "That's one of the oldest superstitions of womankind," he said. "Every woman believes that she—or any other woman—can vamp any man on earth, and bring him to her feet. That is, except the man they're trying to vamp. He is generally hard to get." "You're hard to get," she said, tenaciously. "So is any other man—unless he's anxious to be vamped." Morton arose and stood before her, to emphasize his point. "Women just naturally have a vein of—well, conceit, in them," he proceeded. "It is universal. They actually believe you believe, Nona believes, the fat janitress down stairs believes, that all a woman has to do, if she wants a man, is to go out and make eyes. They talk about that as if it were a simple thing. It isn't. They're utterly frank in thinking that any woman, unless she's crippled or past eighty, is an enchantress. Particularly, each woman thinks that she herself can lure any man whatsoever—except, of course, the one she's trying to lure. She's not so sure of him. "But that's why women are so jealous. They regard men as a breed of poor weak creatures, who fall in love with any woman who gives them the eye. Pook!" He touched her, with his forefinger, on the chin. "Men fall in love, of course. But they fall in love with the women that THEY pick out. There'll be men in plenty in love with you, Audrey girl. You're lovely, and worth loving. But even you can't vamp a man who doesn't want to be vamped." She dimpled, and looked into his eyes with a smile. "I'm going to vamp you—as soon as I learn how it's done," she warned him. He kissed her, and started up the stairs. "You've vamped me already—you did that many years ago. But I'll get you married Parrish!" He vanished into his room before she could frame an appropriate retort.

HER OWN WAY A GIRL OF TODAY

When I got back to the store, I slipped into the rest room for a moment. As I looked into the glass I wondered if I was really good looking, and just as I was trying to make up my mind, I heard a strange noise. On opening a door I found Miss Cleaver stretched out prone on the floor, her body writhing in agony. I hastily called the attendant, and she brought the store physician and a nurse. Some way I seemed to feel that this man was not so concerned with the recovery of Miss Cleaver as he was in keeping all knowledge of her condition away from every one in the store. After giving the woman a dose of medicine, which he had to pour down behind her clenched teeth, he left her unceremoniously in the care of the nurse and went to the telephone in the outer sitting room. Here he held a low-voiced conversation with someone. In a few moments he came back and Miss Cleaver was hurriedly taken down the freight elevator into a covered delivery wagon. I immediately knew that an ambulance would be too conspicuous. It all seemed so unfeeling to me. When I asked the doctor if she was being taken to the hospital, at first he said no, and then he informed me that Mr. Robinson had ordered her to a private hospital where she would have every care and consequently have a great chance of recovery. "So there is only a chance of recovery," I said in a hushed voice. "I didn't say that, young woman," answered the doctor tartly. "There is no need for you to stay here any longer. You may go back to your place in the store. And if I were you, I would say nothing about what you have seen here. I didn't deign to answer the man, who I could see was a regular old toady and hypocrite. I was really faint at sick as I took my feet behind the counter. How I hated Robinson. How I hated all men. FLOWERS; MUSIC, CREATE MAGIC OF THE WEDDING

Florist Describes Newest Styles in Bouquets

A bridal bower of lilies and green vines that may be set up in any living room. Ribbon posts forming aisle are portable. Inset, a bride's bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids, with ribbon shower.

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN New York.—Smilax and lilies of the valley and crooning violins! Half the magic of the bridal ceremony, is in the flowers and the music. Many a bride remembers her wedding day best by the fragrance of the altar flowers or the strains of an old song. Never before has the bride enjoyed so much freedom of choice in the floral and musical setting. She need not march to the Lohengrin chorus unless she likes Lohengrin. And if she does not care for bride's roses, she may substitute any flower in the catalog. Word of the latest flower styles comes from Adolf Behr, New York smart set florist. He is daily turning out novel combinations for brides who care more for originality than convention. All White is Gone "The all-white bouquet of tradition is passe," he declares. "Nowadays the bridal bouquet usually echoes the color note of church decorations or bridesmaids' dresses. Thus, a shower of lilies of the valley and orchids will be used when the bride wears a train lined with orchid chiffon, or when the attendants are in orchid. "The new, flesh-colored satin wedding gowns call for cream or butterfly roses, accented by sprays of larkspur. A Colonial bouquet of tiny white flowers and blue forget-me-nots, with a frill of silver lace, is a delightful accompaniment for a demure, quakerish wedding dress. "At a recent smart wedding the bride's grandmother, in gray satin and old lace, with a Colonial bouquet in colors, made a charming picture. "Prayer-Book Shower An alternative for the shower bouquet is the prayer-book shower, consisting of narrow white ribbons knotted with lilies of the valley. Decorative white mousses or velvet binding make the prayer book part of the picturesque costume. "Bridesmaids carry either a sheaf or bouquet of colored flowers to match or harmonize with their dresses. Daisies and lady slippers, in combination with roses are popular. "The flower girl has a little white basket of rose petals and the ring bearer carries the ring in a Jack-in-the-bush lily. "The bride's mother wears a corsage of roses. Boutonnieres for the men are as follows: groom, lilies of the valley; best man and bride's father, gardenia; ushers, white carnation. "For the rainbow or pastel wedding, a bridal bower of green vines and white lilies make a good foil. If the bridal costumes are rather colorless, the decorations may be bright in tone. "Seasonable flowers are always best—roses and daisies for June, and goldenrod and asters for October."

When quaintness is sought in the wedding appointments, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," or "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" may be used. If there are solos or organ numbers, the choice is unlimited, save by the bride's taste. For the recessional, instead of Mendelssohn, many brides are choosing a march from "Folkinger," "Tannhauser," "Aida," or "Carmen." A bride may toss her bouquet to her brides, keeping only one rose for memory's sake, or she may save them all, a Victorian tradition. But the scent of the roses and the rhythm of the march will still be with her when her wedding ring is worn thin.

THEY FIT WELL The yoke idea is very popular in lingerie, some of the most attractive night gowns have yokes of georgette crepe, fitted and outlined with lace or French flowers. NOT SO NARROW Some of the most attractive slips have pleated flounces or have sections of pleating to widen the hemline. DECORATIVE COATS For sport wear there are some very attractive long coats of jersey embroidered in soft tones.

Bacteria and Medicine

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service. Bacteria grow in watery substances or on moist surfaces. Some live chiefly in the tissues of human beings, others in the lower animals, still others grow only in plants, but the greater number live in dead organic matter. They multiply with great rapidity merely by dividing. A particular cell, after growing to a certain size, simply divides into two like cells, which rapidly grow to full size and likewise divide. Many Beneficial. There are a great many kinds of bacteria, many of which are beneficial to mankind, such as those which make bread light (yeast), those that cause milk to sour and those causing decay of organic material. While most bacteria are harmless, there are some that cause disease. The bacterium causing anthrax was the first disease-producing germ to be grown in a "pure culture," that is, the artificial propagation of one particular variety of bacterium in some suitable medium, the most common media used being bouillons, gelatin, blood-serum, agar, etc. It was not many years after Koch had grown a pure culture of the bacillus that causes anthrax that Pasteur dramatically demonstrated the prophylactic value of the injection of a weakened or "attenuated" virus, or culture which he produced by keeping his cultures for a considerable time before replanting them upon fresh nutrient media. Immunology. Although inoculation with smallpox in ancient times, probably 2000 or more years ago, and vaccination with cowpox, introduced by Jenner in 1798, were examples of the earliest practical use of specific methods of producing immunity, immunology as a science is of comparatively recent origin, dating back scarcely 35 or 40 years ago. Pasteur, influenced by Jenner's demonstration that vaccination will protect against smallpox, further developed that principle upon which he based his work in immunity, that resulted in his demonstration of protection against anthrax and rabies. OLD-FASHIONED IDEA The quilted coat is not confined to silk and to light fabrics, but is seen in kasha and rep as well. Usually the quilting is done in the same tone as the material, though a contrast, or gold or silver tricolors are also seen.

Novel Scarf

A charming scarf of bright pink georgette is made in a large square and caught at the throat with a flower of the same material.

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner Women and Homes Are you a "properly-treated wife? If so, your home equipment will include one carpet sweeper, one hair broom, one chemist floor mop, one polishing mop, one self-wringing mop, one wool-mop for walls, one weighted brush for waxed floors, one long-handled scrub brush, dustless dusters, knife and fork cleaner, metal polishes, one power unit (to whip eggs, cream, mix batter, knead bread, grind meat), one sewing machine, one grill, one electric fan, one electric pad, one electric heater, one electric washing machine (or water power), one wringer, one clothes dryer, one electric iron, one washboard, one clothes sprinkler, shirt and stocking drying forms, one ironing machine, folding ironing-board table, folding sleeve-board, bread mixer, dish dryer, electric dish washer, cake mixer, steam pressure cooker. The list comes from a national Household Institute. We can imagine it furnishing grounds for some steen thousand divorce cases! The Ideal Hostess Here has stumbled across these rules as ingredients in the recipe for an ideal hostess. Can you qualify? Learn the mechanics of the home so well that they become unconscious operations. Take advantage of every time and labor-saving device and have physical and mental strength for your guests. Budget the family income and have funds for entertaining. Study human nature; know your guests. Be self-effacing, kind, considerate. Lead the conversation along pleasant lines and patch up differences of opinion. Ignore any mishaps or mistakes. Be sympathetic, poised and natural. Wedding Gifts If one is merely a formal acquaintance of a bride and groom and is merely invited to the church ceremony and not to the home reception or breakfast, a gift is not a social obligation. Faces and Sunburn The summer girl is between the w. k. diabolic and the deep blue sea when it comes to keeping her beau's eye. If you go without a hat, some beauty experts tell her, your hair will grow mellow with red-gold lights. If you go without a hat, some other beautifiers, your skin will grow red as a lobster, dry as Melba toast, and brown as a nut. I lean to the hatless faction, but I suggest the use of vanishing cream before swimming or hiking in the sun, cream cleanse at night, and a face bath in sour milk or cream. Your Home's Beauty All good home color schemes, say the decorators, use complementary hues rather than analogous harmonies. Thus, green, blue, yellow, orange, red and purple are prime colors. If blue is a basic color in a home scheme, green and purple would be analogous colors, but orange is complementary color and would be much better with the blue than the purple or green. Study cretonnes for their lesson in the use of colors. Funny Kidlet Stories "Aren't there any funny stories to read to the youngsters? It seems to me that every time I pick up a fairy book, the story's all about the cruel stepmother who fed the lovely girl poison, and the king who put his son in a caldron of boiling oil—and all that stuff!" writes "A Mother" to me. Then you don't know Pyle's "Pepper and Salt" book of stories, or Bryant's "Stories to Tell to Children," which includes the rollicking tale of "Epaminondas"; Thomas's "East O' the Sun and West O' the Moon," which is story of "Husband Who Was to Mind the House," and Wiggin's "Tales of Laughter." SHOES MATCH FROCK The most attractive footwear for midsummer comes in linen and may be had in all the delicate colors to match up the summer frocks. MORE INTERESTING The printed silk of this season is often veiled with a dark chiffon or georgette which makes it a much more subtle proposition. DARKER HOSIERY Gun metal hosiery, which gives the effect of a sheer black stocking, is more popular now with the dark suit or frock than the nude shade.

Speaking of film families—some months ago a mother and daughter appeared at the Paramount Long Island studio. The mother wanted to get the daughter a position as an extra. She came along to chaperone, a very common phenomenon around film camps where one trips over waiting mothers almost everywhere.

A casting director, needing some middle-aged folk for a scene, looked over the crowd and picked out—the mother.

"But," exclaimed the surprised mother, "I didn't come to act, I'm here to get my daughter a job."

Since then the mother gets work almost constantly. And the daughter is gradually breaking in.

PLAYWRIGHT SEEKS FOR LITTLE DAUGHTER

Kearney Searches Penn. Hills for Child Hidden, He Says, By Divorced Wife.

Stroudsburg, Pa., June 4.—Patrick Kearney, a well-known Broadway playwright, is searching through the Pocono mountains today for his six-year-old daughter, Monita, who he alleges has been spirited away and kept in hiding by his divorcee wife and his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. B. Day of Glen Ridge, N. J.

Kearney declares that his former wife returned from London last week to her mother's home at Glen Ridge, where the child has been staying. Kearney divorced his wife two years ago, and obtained custody of the child. Mrs. Kerney, the former Anita Day, later married G. A. Porterfield.

Kearney, who is the author of "A Man's Man" and other Broadway productions, had planned to send little Monita to Europe tomorrow with his friends, the Baron and Baroness Von Koczian. When the child disappeared from Glen Ridge he came here in the belief that Monita was being hidden in the mountains by Mrs. Porterfield and Mrs. Day.

Attendance at the primary room center district, for the month of May was 86 per cent. Those perfect in attendance for the month were David Porter, Eleanor Mooney, Sylvia Pomponio and Jennie Pomponio. At the Guild Hill school the attendance for the month was 87 per cent. Those having perfect attendance were Daniel H. Hodge, Alex Spak, Harold Spak, William Warner, Barbara Fish, Hazel Porter, Allene Warner, Oliver Warner. The Rev. T. D. Martin went to Colchester on Wednesday to meet with those who gathered to hear an address by Deaconess Cora L. Roberts. The audience was composed of the women of Calvary church, Deaconess Roberts also spoke to the women of St. Peter's church in Hebron on Thursday at 3 p. m. at the rectory.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Ams of New York, spent the week-end and Memorial Day at their Amston home, returning to their city home on Wednesday. A meeting of the selectmen was held at the town clerk's office on Tuesday, June 1. There will be a session of school at the Center on Saturday in order to make up for time lost. The report of the recent inspection by the town school committee on the water supplies and sanitary conditions at the schools of the town is somewhat disheartening. Drinking supplies of the school were reported on only two can pass muster. The well from which the water is drawn for the Lord school, which comes from the Giles Olin place is reported as fairly satisfactory. The White school gets its water supply from a spring on the land of D. L. Hooper. This spring water shows a satisfactory analysis. The others are all unsatisfactory. Minor criticisms are also made on sanitary conditions which can be more easily remedied. The water supply is a difficult problem for the school officers to meet.

Fred Rowley, gamekeeper of the Amston Lake Game club, is scouting the countryside for sitting hens which he is using in the hatching of pheasants' eggs in the game preserve. 876 young pheasants have already been hatched and the state has put in an order for 2,500 birds. Mr. Rowley says that they now have 2,800 eggs in process of hatching. The hatching season will last until the middle of the present month. They also use hens in the hatching of wood ducks, having already set 150 of these eggs. The wood duck is a delicate bird to raise and when ten weeks old a pair of these birds is worth $25. The club had recently leased 2,000 acres more land adjoining for shooting purposes. The club is made up of sportsmen from Hartford, Manchester, New Haven, Norwich, New London and other places. The president is Walter Oleott of South Manchester. The state liberates the pheasants after purchasing.

Mrs. Simon Silverman has sold her dwelling house and part of the land of her farm on the old Colchester road to Julius Halpert of Bridgeport. Silverman will move to New York. Harold Cummings and Grace Rathbun are the latest of the school children of the Center district to come down with measles. Gustav T. Bochman, executive secretary of the Connecticut State Temperance Union, gave a talk to the pupils of the Center school on "The Citizenship of the Future" day. He visited the school here on Thursday recently receiving proficiency certificates from Harry Houston, state penmanship supervisor, Anna Cheresnik, Anna Mosny, Gazilla Stanek and Norton Warner. Certificates will be issued to others at a later date, who were absent at the time of the test but who are qualified to pass. The certificates excuse the pupil from further study in penmanship in the school course. On Monday afternoon there will be a meeting in joint session of the teachers of Columbia and Hebron. The meeting will be held at the grammar school room. Miss Mervelle Goodwin will teach a demonstration lesson in picture appreciation.

The per cent of attendance at the Jaggar school for the month of May was 92. Marion and Clara Porter were perfect in attendance for the month. Miss Helen Gilbert has returned from Rye, New York, for her summer vacation, which she will spend at her Hebron home.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

At the weekly assembly of the local high school yesterday the students were entertained by John Joseph Duffy, the famous blind musician. Mr. Duffy, who is totally blind, played and sang several numbers. The first was a piano solo of his own composition entitled "Minuet." The next was a lively number, also of his own composition, which was called "Let's Play Soldiers." This number was especially well received by the students. Following this he played a transcription from a negro spiritual, "Sometimes I Feel Like a Mother's Child." He said that he had heard this number sung only twice, and had then transcribed it to a piano solo. After playing these numbers Mr. Duffy sang a song that he had composed himself, entitled "Sweet Vision," and played his own accompaniment for the number. Following this he sang Geoffrey O'Hara's beautiful song, "The Wee Little Home I Love." This number was the best received of the entire program.

After Mr. Duffy's program had been completed, Colonel Emerson E. Taylor spoke to the boys concerning the summer course of training at the Citizens' Military Training Camps. Mr. Taylor told of the organization and history of these camps, and of the work they are doing. He said that their purpose is to give American young men a little military training in order that America might not be entirely unprepared if another war should at any time break out. He said that the training was of a fine sort for conditioning young men physically, as well as for giving them military training. He urged any boy over seventeen who has no immediate plans for the summer to apply for admission to one of the Citizens' Military Training Camps. Mr. Harold Turkington of Kemp's Music House spoke to a group of boys interested in starting a high school band. He explained to them that many high schools the country over, not as big as the local school, have large bands. Many of the boys who already have instruments suitable for band work agreed to start the movement, while other boys said that they intended to take lessons on various instruments this summer with a view to taking the band when it is started next fall.

Rehearsals have been started for the graduation exercises of the town schools, which will be held in the church June 16. A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Columbia Improvement Association was held at the town hall Tuesday evening. It was voted to purchase a hand mower for use on the Green. It was also voted that the Board of Directors, working with the Ways and Means committee, raise money by furnishing dinners for outside organizations.

Columbia Grange held its regular meeting Wednesday evening at Yeomans hall. A class of six, consisting of Rev. and Mrs. Wain, Mrs. Minnie Ingram, Mrs. Lulu McCordell, Miss Anna McMahon and Miss Dorothy Wright were initiated in the third and fourth degrees. COLUMBIA

At the weekly assembly of the local high school yesterday the students were entertained by John Joseph Duffy, the famous blind musician. Mr. Duffy, who is totally blind, played and sang several numbers. The first was a piano solo of his own composition entitled "Minuet." The next was a lively number, also of his own composition, which was called "Let's Play Soldiers." This number was especially well received by the students. Following this he played a transcription from a negro spiritual, "Sometimes I Feel Like a Mother's Child." He said that he had heard this number sung only twice, and had then transcribed it to a piano solo. After playing these numbers Mr. Duffy sang a song that he had composed himself, entitled "Sweet Vision," and played his own accompaniment for the number. Following this he sang Geoffrey O'Hara's beautiful song, "The Wee Little Home I Love." This number was the best received of the entire program.

After Mr. Duffy's program had been completed, Colonel Emerson E. Taylor spoke to the boys concerning the summer course of training at the Citizens' Military Training Camps. Mr. Taylor told of the organization and history of these camps, and of the work they are doing. He said that their purpose is to give American young men a little military training in order that America might not be entirely unprepared if another war should at any time break out. He said that the training was of a fine sort for conditioning young men physically, as well as for giving them military training. He urged any boy over seventeen who has no immediate plans for the summer to apply for admission to one of the Citizens' Military Training Camps. Mr. Harold Turkington of Kemp's Music House spoke to a group of boys interested in starting a high school band. He explained to them that many high schools the country over, not as big as the local school, have large bands. Many of the boys who already have instruments suitable for band work agreed to start the movement, while other boys said that they intended to take lessons on various instruments this summer with a view to taking the band when it is started next fall.

Madison, Wis., June 4.—Frank Lloyd Wright, architect, was "holding the fort" at Taliesin, his 200-acre estate near here, this morning against the siege of his estranged wife, Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright. The marital difficulties of the Wrights, which are said to center around Olga Milanoff, a beautiful Montenegro dancer, reached a climax yesterday when Mrs. Wright, accompanied by a deputy sheriff, armed with a warrant for the arrest of the dancer, stormed the gates of Taliesin and tried to force entrance. Didn't Find Dancer Mrs. Wright was repulsed by attendants but the deputy was allowed to enter. After a search of the premises he reported that he could find no trace of Miss Milanoff. Attendants guarding the main gate said Mrs. Wright smashed three signs reading "Visitors Not Allowed," and abused the defenders. Several months ago Wright brought suit for divorce against Mrs. Wright, but later dropped the proceedings when the latter insisted on dragging into her defense the name of Olga Milanoff.

LEADERS' CLASS PLANS OUTING AT THE SHORE

High School Student Organization to Spend Week-End at Guilford—Started by Miss Worcester. As a reward for their work in the Leaders' Class at the South Manchester High school, seven members of the class who have attained the best results from their work will be presented with school letters. The selections will be made soon. As present there are eighteen students in the class. They were selected from a group of thirty candidates for leadership work. Children or Career?

Mrs. George B. Ford.
By Mrs. George B. Ford

A woman, I believe, should fill her days intelligently and therefore delightfully, and thus get the utmost satisfaction for herself and for others.

Whether she is happier devoting herself to her children or to a career or to a combination of both is an individual matter, determined by her natural gifts, her temperament and her training.

Some women have unusual talents and great ambition and cannot be satisfied unless they make a struggle for fame and distinction at any personal sacrifice—husband, babies and the human ties. Other women can satisfy their longings completely with a home and babies.

But today, the majority of women come somewhere between these two extremes, they are not striving for careers at the expense of babies, or for babies at the expense of outside interests and pursuits.

The woman today wants and can handle a home and a career. Usually she is better for activities that keep her in touch with a larger area than her own home, even if these activities are only voluntary, social or civic work.

If she can handle a regular job as well, so much the better. No job is more important than homemaking, and none requires more intelligence or mentality but often it takes a job outside the home to give a woman the proper perspective on her home.

I feel no woman is so open to censure as the one who does not use all her capabilities, who does not get below the surface of her mind.

SWEET YOUTH HAS ITS DAY

Hollywood, June 4.—Sweet, innocuous youth, which has scouted the sidelines while audacious, flaming youth has had representative fling on the screen, is going to have its glorious day.

Fox Films, especially, is gathering a group of unspoiled, and in some cases entirely untrained, youngsters for choice parts in that company's best pictures for the coming year. Seven have been contracted, and others are being sought.

In the Kindergarten. These boys and girls, all under 20, and displaying various personalities, have in common that actual bloom and charm which every parent would like to see preserved in his own children—the idealism which seems so quickly squandered in this generation.

The Fox Kindergarten, as they have been collectively dubbed, comprises Janet Gaynor, Richard Walling, Olive Borden, Gladys McConnell, Gene Cameron, Barry Norton and Reata Hoyt.

Winfield R. Sheehan, vice president of Fox, became convinced that the public is satiated with the antics of the worldly-wise, sex-lectic floppers and sheiks on the screen; that interest has reverted to the more sedate, unsophisticated boy and girl. And very carefully, from a great number tested, he selected the juniors because they genuinely could represent, wholesome youth.

Training was regarded as non-essential, if not actually detrimental, for this particular coterie of cubes, because the usual course of preparing youngsters for the films involves so much of trying and disillusioning experience that few real adolescent emotions are left.

Following out his experiment of bringing the very spirit of the love-ly, unschooled "teens" to the screen, Sheehan assigned his proteges at once to important roles under the best of the company's directors. Janet Gaynor, 19, will be seen in "The Johnstown Flood," "The Shamrock Handicap" and "Pigs."

Important Roles. "The Lily" will bring to light Barry Norton, an 18-year-old boy from Argentine, and Reata Hoyt, 18, a dancer of Ziegfeld's Follies, recommended for films by Irving Berlin.

"Pigs" is also the starting picture for Richard Walling, selected from Fox's still camera staff, and Gladys McConnell and Gene Cameron, both of whom had some experience in two-reel comedies. Olive Borden is the most experi-

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The Twins and the Little Rag-bag Whitet kept going, along toward Mister Snoopsey's cave where they certainly hoped to find the Whitet's lost shadow.

All at once right beside the road they saw a chocolate-drop tree. So they all stopped and picked up some chocolate-drops that had become over-ripe and fallen to the ground.

Nick had eaten a walnut-maple, and a caramela and a chocolate almond, and Nancy had eaten a mint-patty and chocolate-covered Turkish delight and a chocolate cream-nut, and the little Whitet had had six large chocolate marshmallows, when suddenly the ground opened at their feet and up came a house.

There, sitting on the front porch fanning himself with a stove-lid, sat the Nib Nob of Nobody's Land. "What!" he cried, when he saw what was going on. "Eating chocolate-drops! How very ustrabovariusi! How exceedingly rastigulashusi! How horribly—but there! There isn't a word in Nobody Land language bad enough to call what you are doing. Who are you?"

"We're the Twins," said Nick. "And this is the Whitet. He lost his shadow and we're hunting for it. We're looking for Mister Snoopsey's cave in Hidy Go Land."

At this the Nib Nob of Nobody's Land gave a shriek and fainted three times. His servant with two noses rushed to fan him, and his cook with two chins rushed to pour water over him, and after while he came to.

"What happened?" asked Nancy. "Said," said Two Nose. "You mentioned his deadliest enemy. The name of Snoopsey of Hidy Go Land has not been mentioned in Nobody's Land for years 'n years 'n years 'n years. You almost did the business that time!"

Suddenly Ub Glub, the Nib Nob of Nobody's Land demanded, "What made me faint?" "We were just saying, your Majesty," said Two Nose, "that it was a warm day."

"That's right," said Ub Glub. "Very. And if we don't get our chocolates picked soon they will melt and run away. Who did you say these little thieves were?"

"We didn't mean to steal," said Nick. "The chocolate-drop tree was right here and all the chocolate drops were lying on the ground."

"Your faces are familiar," said Ub Glub. "Where did I see you before? Now I remember—you are the children who refused to get me a fire-engine, aren't you?"

"We're awfully sorry," said Nancy, "but really we didn't know where to get you a fire-engine."

"Well, I still want one," said Ub Glub, fanning himself more furiously than ever with his love lid. And if I can't have a fire engine inside of five minutes—off go your heads!"

It looked pretty bad for the Twins and the poor little Whitet. Nobody knew what to do exactly. Nobody wanted to lose his head, but nobody knew where in the world to find a fire-engine. But all at once—chug! chug! chug! rattled, roar, bang! clang! There stood a perfectly good red and gold fire-engine not three feet from the place where Ub Glub was sitting.

"How very nice of you, my dears," said the Nib Nob in a honey-like voice. "I suspected from the first you were fairies. What make is it, and can it do hills on high?"

But nobody answered for nobody knew. Where it came from is still a mystery but I suspect the Fairy Queen.

A quartet is where all four think the other three can't sing.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

What has become of the old-fashioned children who were made to wait for the "second table?"

Home is where you scratch any place that itches.

He (after the honeymoon)—Both pairs of my socks have holes in them, sweetheart.

She—Put on both pairs. The holes are in different places.

Criticism is the work of the incompetent; it enables them to be jealous and show it without feeling embarrassed.

"No," said the man who resided in Chicago for a long time. "I don't think I could be happy in any other city. There are so many things of interest here that one never goes to see."

CHARLESTON

Come on, kid, do your stuff. Everybody's pepped, the party's getting rough.

Drummer hit that skin, make a little din.

We're goin' to step out; shake a mean fin.

Listen to that saxophone, hear those wicked notes,

Piano syncopation, hat! Boy, just how was your boat?

"We're the Twins," said Nick. "And this is the Whitet. He lost his shadow and we're hunting for it. We're looking for Mister Snoopsey's cave in Hidy Go Land."

FILLING THE JOB

At a railway siding a man asked the foreman if there was a vacancy.

"What can you do?" asked the foreman.

"Anything," replied the man.

"All right," answered the foreman. "Take this oil can and oil the points and crossings up the line."

After an absence of three days the foreman received a telegram at which read: "Dear sir: Arrived at Detroit. Please forward more oil."

A PUZZLE A DAY

At a conclave in Detroit the sypsiys of America elected a new ruler, Dick Steve was chosen to succeed his father, the late King John. On that day, Dick Steve celebrated his forty-first birthday and his young son celebrated his thirteenth birthday. At the party a wise old gypsy advised King Dick to make his son his chief helper. But King Dick said he would wait until his son became one-third as old as himself.

When will that be? Last Puzzle Answer

2/3 + 1/2 = 7/6

This rebus puzzle illustrates the words "Balloon Race". The objects named in order are bag, well, spoon, rake and dice. Reducing the fractions to their smallest parts you get, two-thirds bag—ba; one-half well—ll; three-fifths spoon—oon; one-half rake—ra; one-half dice—ce. Adding ba plus ll plus ra plus ce equals Balloon Race. This was a national event and occurred at Little Rock a short while ago.

"THE VOLGA BOATMAN" DE MILLE'S BEST WORK

"The Unknown Soldier" Coming to State Sunday Night for Three Days.

The great drama of revolutionary Russia has received its first real impetus under the hands of Cecil De Mille. With the title of "The Volga Boatman," De Mille announces that his second independent production is a striking and colorful reproduction of the absorbingly interesting events which occurred in Russia, when servant became master—and master servant.

"The Volga Boatman," originally inspired by the song of that name, takes no sides. It is merely a love story between an aristocrat, played by Elinor Fair and a Volga Boatman impersonated by William Boyd, enacted against the background of the most stirring events of recent history.

Perhaps the most unique love sequences in pictures are played in a series of scenes, when the life of an aristocratic girl is placed in the hands of the rough human mule of the Volga. The girl is given but five minutes to live. What happens in that five minutes is said to be one of the most original and gripping moments ever included in a motion picture.

Humor aplenty is injected into the picture by scenes showing the reaction of the various classes when announcement is made that the old regime has been overthrown. Mr. De Mille has provided a splendid spectacle, when the Red interrupted a gorgeous ball of the aristocrats by the shelling and capture of Yuroslav.

"The Volga Boatman," which will be on view at the State Theater today and tomorrow, was adapted by Lenore Coffee from an original story by Konrad Bercovici the famous gypsy novelist. Featured players include William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Victor Varconi, Theodore Kosloff, Julia Faye and Robert Edison.

Don't miss the added attraction for tonight. At 8:30 the old-fashioned dancing contest for the championship of the state of Connecticut between Manchester and Willimantic will be held.

"The Unknown Soldier" comes to the State Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

"The Unknown Soldier" is unlike any other picture ever made or ever contemplated. It is a graphic, potent perpetuation in celluloid of a Great Idea. It will be shown at the State Theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Charles Emmett Mack, Marguerite De La Motte and Henry B. Walthall are featured.

It is a master filming of the honest, believable, and gripping human interest details of war. It paints in cinematographic artistry an original, spiritual side of the World War.

It is an intensely human portrayal of the joint emotional struggle of a war bride and a war mother for the realization of a love they are deprived of through death on the battlefield.

It reflects, not the bombastic magnitude of war, so much as the spiritual effect of the great conflict. It is a striking visualization of the spirit of every dead soldier of every American mother who lost a son in France.

It is a lasting document of patriotism in the sincerest sense. It is a straight-forward, logical, human interest story of a typical American boy who becomes a "fighting fool" in action and develops an inevitable spiritual sense under stress.

SLUSH FUND PROBE HAS EXPENSE FUND

Gets $10,000 Appropriation and Starts Out to Make Political Capital.

Washington, June 4.—The Senate's "slush fund" inquiry, growing out of charges that millions of dollars were squandered in the senatorial primaries in Pennsylvania and Illinois, will get under way as soon as Congress adjourns. It was learned today that the Senate yesterday afternoon appropriated $10,000 to finance the investigation.

The inquiry will carry the committee into each state where charges exist that "slush funds" were used to influence the elections in its choice of party candidates for the Senate. Its inquiry will cover Democratic as well as Republican primaries but the start will be made in Pennsylvania, where newspapers declared $5,000,000 had been spent in the Vore-Pepper-Pinchot contest.

Work All Summer.

The committee will function throughout the summer, keeping a wary ear open to "slush fund" whispers in the campaigns preceding the November elections. As the Democrats have a lean treasury and yet hope to elect a Democratic Senate in the face of this obstacle, their spokesmen on the committee will be doubly vigilant for signs of Republican "slush funds." The Democrats on the committee incidentally are James A. Reed, of Missouri, chairman, and William H. King, of Utah.

The committee will convene regularly throughout the summer, it was said, as the Senate gave it authority to investigate the general elections to the Senate as well as the primaries. It will meet occasionally in Washington, but most of its investigations will be conducted in the states where "slush fund" charges are made.

Alliance in Control.

The Democrats, by an alignment with the Progressives, will control the committee's deliberations, the Progressives being represented by Senator La Follette (R., Wis.). Through a revival of the Democratic-insurgent alliance they hope to dig up considerable campaign ammunition.

The situation in Pennsylvania will be investigated first. Later, the committee will go to Chicago to determine the truth of reports that from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 was spent in the McKinley-Smith fight for the Republican senatorial nomination.

World Eucharistic Congress Greatest Religious Gathering

(This is the second of a series of articles dealing with the Eucharistic Congress which is to be held in Chicago, June 20-24 and which will gather together more than 1,000,000 Roman Catholics from all parts of the world.)

BY EUGENE WEARE

Noted War Correspondent, Journalist and Author

(Copyright 1926, E. W. S.)

Chicago, June 2.—The international Eucharistic congress which is to be held in Chicago June 20-24 is the first of such congresses to be assembled in the United States. More than a million Catholics from all parts of the world are expected in Chicago, to participate in these congressional sessions and ceremonies. Almost every race of people in Christendom will be represented by a national pilgrimage group.

In order to understand the importance and significance of such a congress it is necessary that something be said regarding the teaching of the church of Rome in this matter of the Eucharist.

According to Catholic doctrine, the Blessed Sacrament, or the sacrament of the Eucharist, is "the central fact of Catholic worship and belief."

Outstanding Dogma

All else in the Catholic Church is little more than incidental to this one, outstanding dogma. The teaching of the Catholic Church is that, during the mass, which is defined as "the unbloody sacrifice of the Body and Blood of Christ," that which was, and to all appearances is, but bread and wine, becomes by the power of God, at the words of consecration uttered by the celebrant priest, the "Body and Blood, and Soul and Divinity of Jesus Christ."

It is Catholic belief that "Jesus Christ is actually present upon the altar, under the appearance of bread and wine.... that Jesus Christ is present upon the altar in entirety, in each species." The consecrated host, as the small, white flour wafer is called, is reserved in the tabernacle of all Catholic churches and "is adored as the Living Presence of Jesus Christ."

In other words, Catholic belief has it that Jesus Christ, under the appearance of bread and wine, is as truly present upon Catholic altars as ever He was present in Galilee or on Calvary. And so it is that a tribute of love, adoration or devotion to that which seems to be but bread and wine, is, in truth, a tribute to Christ Himself.

Demonstration of Faith
The Blessed Eucharist, then, is "the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ under the appearance of bread and wine."

Now, a Eucharistic congress is a gathering of clergy and laity to pay homage to Christ in the Blessed Eucharist. The purpose of the assembly is to manifest publicly Catholic love, fealty and devotion to Christ in the Eucharist; to promote and inspire among all peoples a greater love for Christ in this Sacrament and, then, to make reparation for the outrages which have been committed against the Living Presence in all the ages since the dawn of Christianity.

The congress has been said to be a demonstration of Catholic faith in that which, to Catholics, is the most sublime mystery in all the teaching of Christian dogma.

To non-Catholics this doctrine of the Blessed Eucharist is a trifle confusing but, with Catholics, it is the be-all and the end-all of all Catholic worship and belief. Catholics believe that Christ is actually present upon their altars under the appearance of bread and wine. Conversely, pious Catholics are ever ready and eager to pay homage to Christ in this Sacrament and to leave nothing undone that might add to that devotion and practice.

Back to Beginning

The dogma of the Blessed Eucharist goes back to the very beginning of Christianity. But not so the movement which has its expression in these Eucharistic congresses.

These gatherings are of but recent development. Less than fifty years ago the first Eucharistic congress was held in Lille, in France. Since that time the movement has grown enormously.

The idea of this publicly honoring Christ in the Eucharist owes its inspiration to a woman named Mary Martha Tamslier who is said to have conceived the thought on witnessing 200 members of the French Parliament dedicating themselves and their work to Christ in the presence of the Host exposed upon the altar. Surely, she thought, this fine thing should be done on a greater, a more magnificent scale. She laid her plans before a saintly, old bishop of Lille, Mgr. Gaston de Segur, who was prompt to endorse them and who, in 1881, issued the call for the first formal Eucharistic congress.

On that occasion, Bishop de Segur set out the purposes which urged him to organize the congress. Addressing himself to the Catholics of the world, he wrote:

The First Call
The situation in which Christian society finds itself at the present moment is calculated to occasion most serious alarm. Already rudely shaken for many years past by diabolical measures, the object of which is to dechristianize the people.... This torrent of hatred and persecution against religion assumes such overwhelming proportions that man of himself, is powerless to prevent and overcome the peril. An extraordinary intervention of Divine Providence is necessary. Our Lord alone can save our society.... Consequently, we must call for this intervention if we do not wish to perish.... we must strive to defend, implanting more firmly than ever, Jesus Christ in the souls from which our enemies seek to banish Him. So praiseworthy an aim cannot better be attained than by a universal gathering of representatives of the Most Blessed Sacrament and of persons consecrated to the worship of the Eucharist. The evil being universal, the assembly should be international and all countries should be invited to participate.

On the occasion of that first Eucharistic Congress about 9,000 persons were in attendance. Less than thirty years later the movement had grown in popularity to such enormous proportions that, at Montreal, in 1910, more than 750,000 people came down upon the city to participate in the congress sessions. At Chicago, next month, it is not unlikely that more than 1,000,000 Catholics from all parts of the world will foregather.

DRIVER MUST ANSWER FOR AUTO ACCIDENT

Unionville Man Summoned to Court—Local Man Injured in Crash.

Earl Van Sickle, of Maple avenue, Unionville, the driver of the automobile in which William Wood of Porter street, Manchester, was riding and severely injured Memorial Day in South Coventry, has been ordered to appear before the Coventry Town Court Monday evening, June 7, to face a charge of reckless driving. Miss Flora State, of Hartford, operator of the car into which the Van Sickle machine crashed has also been ordered to appear in court to answer to the charge of failing to give the right of way to a passing motorist. State Policeman Walter Hardisty made the arrests. He also arrested Clifford Willis and David Condon, of Hartford for reckless driving when they drove past the scene of the accident at an excessive rate of speed during the investigation. The officer ordered them to stop but they were going so fast the brakes did not act quickly enough and as a consequence the Hartford machine nearly collided with one of the wrecked machines. Meanwhile at his home, William Wood continues to improve from his injuries.

DOUBLE SHOWER.

A rather novel idea in the shower line was introduced last evening when showers were given both to the prospective bride and the prospective bridegroom.

At the home of Mrs. Thomas Graham of Spruce street about 25 girl friends held a party in honor of Miss Helen Rankin. The usual games were played and many gifts presented.

At the same time there was a shower for the groom, George Graham, at the home of Robert Hathaway on Center street at which a dozen men friends gathered. Many useful "gifts" were given the prospective bridegroom. Probably a quarter would cover the expenses of the "gifts," it was reported. At any rate the men passed an enjoyable evening also.

Mystery Man Spends a Day In Our Town

Although few knew it there was a mystery man at police headquarters Wednesday night and all day yesterday. He was taken away early last evening. The mystery was that he would not tell who he was or where he came from, for the longest time. Finally he muttered "John Colvert, Cromwell," and the police got busy.

Motorcycle Patrolman Rudolph Wirtalla found the man wandering about the streets. He surely looked odd. He was dressed in an old, misfit suit of clothes, rubber shoes of the type that go with fells, a battered hat but a clean stiff collar and a fairly good looking tie. But the oddity did not end here. His hair had evidently not been cut for at least a year and hung long over his collar. Also no razor had been used on his face in several months.

When asked questions he just smiled. He spoke very little and when he did speak it was to say "I guess I've forgotten" or "I don't remember."

However, by patiently questioning him and giving him time to think, Chief Gordon got his name and address. He telephoned to Middletown and got word to Cromwell.

Last evening a constable from Cromwell arrived to get the man. He said that he was simple minded and had evidently wandered away from home. He had been missing four or five days, he said. When asked how he got to Manchester he said he walked. Asked if he had friends or relatives here, he said he could not remember. He did not even know the constable who later said he had known the man for years.

Colvert was taken home in an auto. It is probable that he will be sent to an institution.

MAORIS STILL CLING TO OLD ISLAND MYTH

London.—Old legends still prevail among the Maoris of New Zealand. One of the earliest of these stories tells of the formation of the north island of New Zealand, which resembles a fish in shape.

A great warrior named Maui brought up from the depths of the ocean a giant fish, the tale runs, but in course of time it died and the body petrified and became land.

About 40,000 of New Zealand's 1,000 population are descendants of the original native Maoris.

CLOTHING COMPANY USES LARGEST SIKORSKY PLANE.

A new addition to the Curlee Clothing Company's flying squadron is the largest flying machine in the United States. It is a bi-plane, Sikorsky type, equipped with two 400 horsepower Liberty motors, and has a speed of 125 miles an hour.

It is a sixteen-passenger enclosed car and carries two mechanics with pilot. This car raced the Twentieth Century Limited from Albany to New York. The Limited looked as though it were standing still. It also carried two baby grand pianos and six passengers from New York to Washington.

A radio program was successfully broadcast from this machine while flying. This is the only record of broadcasting from a flying machine that is known.

This machine cost $75,000. It is one of the many achievements of the Curlee Clothing Company in rendering a real service to the clothing merchants of the United States.

Owing to the growing demand for speed in delivery of merchandise, this valuable addition to the Curlee Fleet of airships will eliminate the disadvantages of distance both in placing salesmen in their territories and the showing and delivery of merchandise.

M. N. Franklin, representing the Curlee Clothing Company and a passenger on the recent trip of the big plane, called on George H. Wilkins yesterday. He is local dealer for Curlee clothes. Mr. Franklin said that if there had been a suitable landing field in Manchester when the plane was here they would have stopped here also in the interests of Mr. Williams.

CITY INTERSECTIONS CAUSE MOST BUMPS

While the majority of motor vehicle accidents reported last year from the larger cities of the state shown to have occurred at street intersections, most of those in the smaller cities happened between intersections, where automobile drivers had an unobstructed view of all approaching objects.

Out of the accidents reported for 1925 which have been analyzed at the state motor vehicle department 9,359 occurred at intersections and 13,054 elsewhere. The average of intersection accidents for the state is greatly reduced by the rural accidents, by far the greater proportion of which happened on straight away stretches. This influence, however, is counterbalanced, to a considerable extent, by the records of the large cities. New Haven had 1,764 intersection accidents and 944 between intersections; Bridgeport 1,287 at intersections and 683 elsewhere and Hartford 1,919 intersections and 1,163 elsewhere.

On the other hand, Waterbury, the fourth largest city in Connecticut, reported 606 intersection accidents against 876 which happened between intersections; New Britain had 415 at intersections and 470 elsewhere and New London 214 at intersections and 249 elsewhere.

The weather was reported to have been clear when 17,917 of the accidents of last year happened, and to have been stormy when 4,252 occurred. There were 12,769 accidents in daylight and 8,901 at night. The slight disparity in the totals is due to the fact that some of the reports were lacking in information in some respects.

HORSES, HORSES

Baltimore.—Putting pajamas on horse and placing him between clean sheets for a good night's rest was a matter, proposed recently to the navy department as a consideration for court-martialing the owner. Captain Charles DaValin, who is accused, declares the animal was sick and the pajamas and sheets were only bandages.

There is a feeling today among people that is often expressed by the statement, "Oh, what's the difference, a hundred years from now and nobody will know anything about it." 'Tis true, with the lapse of 100 years many things will have been forgotten. On the other hand we have never let this idea pervade our business. With us there is a great deal of difference between serving our customers with satisfactory foodstuffs and selling them some inferior product. It is just that difference that has made Florence's a reliable store and given it a quality reputation.

ABOUT TOWN

The Girls' Friendly society of St. Mary's church will have a hike on Saturday afternoon. The members are requested to assemble at the Center at 1 o'clock.

A son was born yesterday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Erick Loos, of 34 Spruce street.

Last night it was so cold that top coats had to be worn by the men and coats by the women. Some one remembered that it was about this time last year that the Cheney mills had to be closed because of the heat.

A case of remarkable recovery from an extremely serious operation is that of little Peter Gocher Jr., 37-days-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gocher of 7 Hilliard street. Recently the infant underwent an operation for strangulated hernia at the Manchester Memorial hospital. The operation was performed by the chief of the surgical service, hospital visiting staff. Recovery in cases of this sort when a child of that age is involved are considered rare but the little chap is making "splendid recovery" to use the words of the physician attending the baby.

Following the funeral services here yesterday morning, the body of Philip Chapup of 218 Oak street, was shipped on the midnight train last night to Montreal, Canada, where it will be buried in the Notre Dame cemetery. He was a native of that city.

Several members of the Manchester Fish and Game club are planning to go by automobile Sunday to post signs in the territory they have recently acquired. Following the work, a hot dog roast will be held. Any member of the club who is willing to help in the work is requested to report at Senkbell's auto repair shop on Oak street at 8.30 Sunday morning.

Patrick Russell of South Windsor, is in the Manchester Memorial hospital with a fractured right ankle sustained in an accident Wednesday. Russell and James Kennedy, also of South Windsor, were walking along the road and were knocked to the ground by a passing automobile. Kennedy sustained a severe laceration on the head and numerous minor bruises.

A daughter was born Wednesday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kuchinsky of 23 Union street.

A son was born yesterday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Kazimierz Kirka, of 118 Oak street.

The condition of William Wood, of Foster street, who was injured in an automobile accident in South Coventry Memorial Day continues to improve.

Mrs. Louis Dell was taken to the Memorial hospital yesterday where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. She was resting comfortably this morning.

Mrs. Ray Maynard who has been staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Madden of Laurel street has left for Sound View beach, where she will spend the summer.

Recent visitors in Manchester were Miss Gertrude Schmidt and Arthur Schmidt, children of the Rev. W. A. Schmidt, former pastor of the Zion's Lutheran church on Cooper street. The Schmidt family is now located in Jamaica, N. Y. where Rev. Schmidt is pastor of an English Lutheran church.

Mrs. Bertha Hunt, formerly of this town, has left for Eastern Point where she will spend the summer, returning in the fall.

Attention of Manchester Green residents is again called to the regular meeting of the Community club this evening in the school hall to be followed by an entertainment.

CATCH MONSTER EEL
IN COLUMBIA LAKE

Manchester Men Have Battle With Slippery Fish Which Measures Over a Yard.

A monster eel weighing, goodness knows how many pounds and measuring more than a yard from head to tail, was brought back to Manchester from Columbia lake last night by Frank W. Hurlock and Adrian Groot. The eel is one of the largest seen in this section for many years and its size even surprised the natives of Columbia who saw it.

A battle lasting nearly an hour was fought by the two fishermen and even after they had landed the fish in the boat they had to stand guard over it for fear it would wriggle over the side of the boat, as it nearly did once or twice. They got it home, however. It was still alive several hours after its capture. The fish measured exactly 28 inches long, 7 1/2 inches in circumference and nearly filled a good-sized pail.
