

ODD SITUATION IN DELIVERY OF EXPRESS HERE

One May Get Packages Two Miles Away and Yet Not Few Blocks' Distant; Routes Are 20 Years Old.

Tolland Turnpike is what may be termed a stone's throw from Depot Square in the north end, the headquarters of the American Railway Express Co. in Manchester. Hartford Road in the south end is two miles away. Yet Tolland Turnpike is outside the delivery radius of the express company and Hartford Road is inside.

This example can be multiplied many times in Manchester. To cite a few:

One can get delivery on Hartford Road and yet not get it on West Center street.

One may get service on East Center street and yet not get it in the Green Acres tract.

One may get service at Hartford Road and yet not get it east of Clinton street in the south end.

An explanation.
In an effort to obtain an explanation of this seemingly paradoxical situation, one in authority was interviewed today.

It appears that the routes in this town were made about 20 years ago when the Adams Express Co. had the rights on the New Haven railroad. At that time it figured on where the population and business was thickest. For some reason, these routes remain as they did 20 years ago and there is no way to change them unless some organization such as the local Chamber of Commerce takes up the matter.

Legal Routes.
At the time the routes were laid out they were placed before the Interstate Commerce Commission and D. K. G. So they are legal. To make a change, the matter must be brought to state officials and again before the Interstate Commerce Commission and when it is the express company will show reasons why the routes should not be changed and they have reasons.

Company's Side.
From the books at the north end station can be learned that the business done outside of the present routes is not even one twentieth of the business done in one year. Tolland Turnpike, for instance, does not get an express package once a year and to send a truck over that route would be just an added expense. It is also true of other routes not reached at present.

The informant said also that the policy of the express company is to keep the country in not in increase territory. The manufacturers here are all covered with the exception of Case Brothers and the Glastonbury Knitting Co.

Again, although Buckland has an express office there are no deliveries made from there and yet Buckland is in the town of Manchester.

DRUNK DRIVER FINED AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

Only Two Cases in Court Today—North End Man Intoxicated.

Frank Bohlin was found guilty of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, by Judge Johnson in the police court this morning. He was arrested by Officer Joseph Wall last evening after he had an accident at Hartford road and Pine street.

Captain Schenck and Dr. B. L. Salvin both testified that when the man arrived at the police station he was under the influence of liquor. The doctor said he was unfit to drive a car.

The minimum fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

Mr. Bohlin who lives in Glastonbury, said all he had to drink was a half glass of beer.

Vincent Kovas of North street paid a fine of $15 and costs for intoxication. He had some trouble with his wife who made a complaint. Officer John McGlinn made the arrest. Kovas claimed he only had a few drinks. He said he wanted to go fishing and his wife was opposed to the idea.

O'Donnell tramped the city for half an hour, then applied to the police, who found the bus abandoned on Tenth avenue.

Mr. Radding attracted quite a bit of attention in this section addressing groups of farmers telling them how to raise western steers for beef and use the fertilizer on their tobacco lands. His children have won many prizes with their Baby Beef entries in fairs.

BROADCAST 'OF DEATH AS COKE OVEN BLOWS UP

Ten or More Dead, Many Injured, Some Fatally in Blast of Steel and Coal at Gary Plant.

Gary, Ind., June 14.—Ten or more men were killed and more than 100 injured, many seriously, in a terrific explosion at the coke plant of the Illinois Steel Company here today. The blast shook the entire city and threw the residents into a near-panic.

Every available ambulance was rushed to the scene and police and fire department vehicles also were used to convey the injured, some of them in a dying condition, to hospitals.

Officials Seek Secrecy
Officials of the steel company immediately threw a heavy guard around the plant and declined to give out any estimates of the number of dead and injured. Police, however, declared that at least ten men were dead and 100 or more badly hurt, some probably fatally.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined, although it was learned that the blast resulted from the ignition of gases in one or more of the huge coke ovens. Steel and burning coal in process of conversion into coke were buried in all directions, scattering death among the workmen.

Deadly flames from the ovens also added to the casualties, it was said.

Smoke Binds Rescuers
Smoke from the explosion, held down by the heavy, dark atmosphere, forced rescue workers to labor in semi-darkness.

Eight bodies were found in the ruins of the building shortly before noon.

Many of the injured were horribly mangled by the blast. Several workers were thrown hundreds of feet by the force of the explosion while scattering acid added to the horror of the scene.

"Saturator" Explosion
Company officials said the blast was probably caused by one of the big "saturators" blowing up, bursting open with tremendous force, wrecking the building and scattering death and destruction in the form of pieces of broken steel, flames, deadly fumes, and lethal acid.

None of the dead have been identified.

Among the injured identified were Russell Phillips, Charles Holland, Felix Reisk, John Kosak, James Flory, Lloyd Collier and Harry Paris, all of Gary.

FATAL NIGHT RIDE BUT ONE OF MANY

Excursions Like One That Killed 4 at Guilford Common to Yale Students.

New Haven, June 14.—That night excursions of students and girl companions along dimly-lit roads are common was indicated today as the authorities were conducting two investigations into the fatal automobile accident Saturday morning in which two Yale undergraduates and two young women were killed when their machine crashed into a tree.

High-powered cars, dashing wildly through the night, have imperiled public safety, the state police were informed.

The coroner's office has obtained evidence regarding "petting parties" and night excursions of the students and their companions.

One feature of the night rides that interested the authorities was the report that some garages list young women who are available for automobile parties.

The victims of Saturday's accident were William Harvey Cushing of Brookline, Mass. and George Hammett Koppell of Galveston, Texas, undergraduates, and Mrs. Edwin Reeser and Miss Bernadette Dorothy Kiernan.

Proceeding with the utmost secrecy, Coroner Mix today continued his investigation into the accident.

Mrs. Reeser was buried here this afternoon, funeral services being strictly private. Funeral services for Miss Kiernan will be held tomorrow morning.

An unofficial report indicates that Yale officials will take action to curb further the use of automobiles by undergraduates, as a result of the tragedy which stunned the entire university body.

MIDWEST HIT BY TORRENTIAL RAINS

Cloudbursts, High Winds Do Millions of Damage to Crops and Property.

Chicago, June 14.—A devastating storm swept over Chicago and the Middle West late yesterday, taking a toll of two lives here and causing damage throughout the district that may approximate two million dollars.

Rockford, Ill., was the hardest hit. There a veritable cloudburst occurred by more than four inches of rain fell in 30 minutes. Hundreds of homes were flooded and many bridges were swept away. Water on some thoroughfares reached a depth of eight feet. The property damage in Rockford alone was estimated at $500,000.

Farms Suffer
The greatest damage was caused in agricultural districts of Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska, where growing crops of wheat and corn were beaten down or washed away by the heavy rains.

The downpour was accompanied by high winds and lightning, which caused most of the damage in Chicago.

One man was killed when struck by lightning while walking across a South Side prairie. He was John Capuse, father of five small children. Fred Ellwinski was killed when a live wire was blown down on him.

At Rock Falls, near Sterling, Ill., lightning struck a government warehouse standing at the head of Hennepin canal. Much damage was done before the fire was brought under control.

"Frame-up!" says Count.

"Bernard Grover, shoe manufacturer of Brockton, Mass., named me as co-respondent in his suit for divorce but the suit failed and both Mrs. Grover and I were acquitted of all charges," the count said. "I presume my wife is angry because I have been unable to send her a great deal of money lately."

From China, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Ireland, Spain, France, Alaska, Cape Good Hope, Siberia, Algiers, India, Mexico and from Indians' tepees on America's western plains, Catholics poured into Chicago, all gathering to join in a great tribute to Christ through a gigantic re-enactment of the Lord's Last Supper.

"Greatest Caravan."
While the advance guard of the "greatest caravan of humanity in history" with its 15 cardinals, 400 bishops, 8,000 priests, 15,000 nuns and 750,000 laymen, arrived, an army of workmen rushed to completion 500 altars and scores of outdoor platforms where the crowds will assemble for next week's devotions.

Tomorrow the 10,000 extra policemen, 25,000 special train handlers and thousands of other workers recruited to care for the visitors will be in service and Thursday Chicago will turn to welcoming Cardinal Bonzano, papal legate to the congress. He will arrive from New York with a distinguished delegation of European cardinals, archbishops, monsignori, nuns and priests.

City's Participation.
Civic Chicago in every department will be represented in a parade marking the arriving of the papal legate and delegates from every Catholic society, including 1,000 uniformed fourth degree Knights of Columbus, will bow in greeting to the visitors from across the seas.

One of the delegates from distant lands already in Chicago is Sir Joseph Lo Pa Hong, the richest man in China. Sir Joseph, who is the guest of E. N. Hurley, formerly of the United States Shipping Board, brought with him from China a dazzling set of vestments, which will be worn by the Catholic chiefs during the congress.

Marvel Vestments.
All the garments are gold-embroidered and studded like a field of wild flowers, with pearls, jade, beryl and agate stones in varied colors. Each carries the design of wheat, typifying the bread of the eucharist, and purple grapes, symbolical of the eucharist wine.

THREE TOWNS DISPUTE BIRTHPLACE OF NAVY

Marblehead, June 14.—Two things are certain today in a dual squabble between Marblehead, Salem and Kingston as to the birthplace of the United States navy. One is that the navy was born, the other is that Marblehead has the edge on the other two communities — she has begun celebrating the event.

Marblehead claims the Hannah, commissioned in 1775, was this country's first ship of war.

Salem introduces the Ketch, commissioned in 1776.

And Kingston comes to bat with the Brigantine Independence, commissioned in 1776.

GOT RUBBER STAMP "SLUSH" RECEIPTS

"Unsecured Notes" to Grundy Signed by Clerks by Mechanical Means.

Washington, June 14.—Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, poured a golden flow of "loans" into the campaign funds on Senator George Wharton Pepper in Pennsylvania's recent "million-dollar" senatorial race receiving only "rubber stamped" receipts for his money, William H. Folwell, Citizens' Campaign committee treasurer, told the Senate "slush fund" committee today.

The "loans," eighteen in all, totaled $207,575, Folwell said. He produced the receipts which had been given Grundy by an assistant clerk of the committee, which the Pepper "angel" described last week as "unsecured notes." All had been rubber stamped with Folwell's name.

Stamped Receipts.
His name as treasurer had been stamped on the receipts, Folwell said, either by Chester W. Hill or Frank J. Gorman, assistant treasurer of the Citizens' committee. The witness said he had been in Europe when most of the money was given the committee by Grundy.

It was brought out that Hill was an assistant in Folwell's private business while Gorman was an employee of Grundy.

When Folwell turned the Grundy notes over to the Senate committee, Senators Reed (D., Mo.), and King (D., Utah), expressed surprise that all the receipts had been written on the same typewriter and apparently at the same time, despite the difference in the dates of the loans.

Not All in Bunch.
"Don't you think these receipts were all given at the same time?" asked King.

"I don't think so."
The amounts were $8,160 on April 9; $18,240 on April 10; $20,000 on April 14; $6,000 on April 18; $20,000 on April 22; $10,000 on April 30; $10,000 on May 1; $10,000 on May 3; $8,000 on May 4; $10,000 on May 6; $23,175 on May 7; $10,000 on May 8; $25,000 on May 10; $10,000 on May 11;

S. A. MATERNITY HOMES CONVICT AUTO PICKUPS

Astounding Number of Un- wed Mothers of 16 and Under Victims of Motor Rides; Big Social Problem.

New York, June 14.—The lure of the automobile "joy ride" has caused a decided increase in the number of school girls of tender age who have become unmarried mothers, according to statistics received today by the Salvation Army.

In fifteen Salvation Army maternity homes, 42 per cent of the patients were school girls of sixteen years or under.

Philadelphia led the survey of unmarried mothers averaging sixteen years of age with 75 per cent, while Boston had the smallest percentage, 13 per cent, with New York City showing the surprisingly small figure of 20 per cent.

Same Cause Everywhere.
The percentage of other cities in the survey of school girls averaging sixteen years in the maternity homes follows:

Jersey City, one per cent; Cincinnati, (White) 70 per cent; Cincinnati (negro) 60 per cent; Cleveland, (white) 22 per cent; Pittsburg, 50 per cent; Buffalo, 40 per cent; Richmond, 40 per cent; Roanoke, 50 per cent; Wilmington, Del., 35 per cent; Birmingham, 25 per cent; Louisville, 20 per cent.

"In a majority of cases we find the same cause—automobiles with predatory drivers," Col. Margaret Bovill, of the Salvation Army said. "In hundreds of cases we have found girls either on the way to school or on the way home from school have been picked up by men in automobiles with disastrous results."

Twice as Many "Homes."
Col. Bovill said that the situation had changed since 20 years ago when the rescue homes were filled with women of mature age.

"In spite of reforms such as doing away with red light districts, the Salvation Army now has in its territory twice the number of maternity homes it operated in these lurid days of the past and they are all filled to capacity—by whom? Not by professionals, but by school children, many of whom have been obliged to leave their desks in high or elementary grades to go direct to our institutions," declared Col. Bovill.

"The average of these girls is sixteen. Any intelligent observer will see why this means to have an average of sixteen means that we must have an astounding number of girls who are becoming mothers between the ages of eleven and fourteen."

Few Are Really Bad.
"In other words we have relatively few deliberate and consciously bad women in our institutions. Those we have now mostly are girls good at heart, many of them with high academic grades, but who, as a result of indifference toward personal control of any kind of moral or ethical guidance, have allowed themselves to make mistakes."

Manchester Well Represented When Ground Was Broken for New Church.

Manchester was well represented at Storrs yesterday afternoon when the last services were held in the old church. Ground was broken for the new church which has been financed by popular subscription in a drive all over the state.

The old Storrs church was built in 1848 and was the principal place of worship for students at the Connecticut Agricultural College for many years.

Although incorporated in 1737 it was not organized until 1744 when it was first ministered by Rev. William Troop.

It was during his ministry that the first steeple church with gables running around three sides and a steeple sixty feet high—the only "steepled meeting house" in this vicinity, it was well suited to the growing community.

In 1848 the stately old church, whose pews were no longer filled, was torn down and the present building placed upon the old site.

New York yesterday witnessed what was said to be the most colorful ceremony in its history when more than 100,000 persons, many of them kneeling, watched the procession of Catholics, headed by Cardinal Legate Cardinal Bonzano, through the streets of the city to St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Six hundred police were required to clear the streets. A dozen persons were prostrated by the heat.

Cardinal Hayes of New York and the seven European cardinals at present in New York are the guests today of Nicholas F. Brady at Roslyn, Long Island.

The visiting cardinals will be received by Gov. Smith and Mayor Walker at City Hall tomorrow. The American-Italian Historical Society will entertain the visiting cardinals at a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The prelates will leave for Chicago Wednesday, accompanied by Cardinal Hayes. They will leave on the "Cardinal's Special," said to be the most magnificent collection of Pullman coaches ever assembled in this country.

The Rev. Don Manuel Veltrio De Alvarado, archbishop of Braga, Portugal, and primate of Spain, arrived with his party, including Very Rev. Fontes Ferreira, D. D., on the Royal Mail liner Orca.

The Grace liner Santa Eliza brought a number of dignitaries of the Catholic church from South American countries.

GOT RUBBER STAMPS "SLUSH" RECEIPTS

$15,000 on May 13; $25,000 on May 14; $26,000 on May 25 and $55,000 on June 3.

Frank J. Gorman, Folwell's assistant, later told the committee he had given Grundy all the receipts or "unsecured notes" at one time, several days after his final contributions. This testimony was in conflict with Folwell's receipts as latter had given on different dates.

All records of the "loans" were kept by a girl clerk, named Marie Howard, in Gorman's office, the latter testified.

It was from her records, Gorman said, that he later made up the list of receipts for Grundy.

Up To Grundy. Reed cross-examined Folwell closely as to how he expected to get back $30,000 which he and Grundy had obtained from the Corn Exchange bank of Philadelphia for Pepper watchers on election day.

Folwell said he expected Grundy to "make good" on the note "if Republicans failed to meet it with contributions."

"Don't you expect to get this money back from the manufacturers of Pennsylvania?" Oscar M. Burke, the manufacturer, said. "I believe this money will be collected from citizens of Pennsylvania whether they are manufacturers or not."

"You expected the manufacturers to contribute something as individuals, didn't you?" "Yes."

100 PRIESTS AT FUNERAL OF FATHER F. A. JORDAN. Middletown, June 14.—Before a congregation of 800 people, including 100 visiting priests, funeral services were held for Rev. Francis A. Jordan, in St. Francis church, South Farms, today, where Father Jordan had labored for years as pastor. The body was taken to Bristol for burial in St. Bridget's cemetery.

Pontifical requiem high mass was celebrated by Rt. Rev. Maurice McAuliffe, Auxiliary Bishop of Hartford.

AMERICAN FLAG IS FAVORITE IN HANDICAP. New York, June 14.—Crusader won the Belmont on Saturday and another Man O' War product, the Brooklyn Handicap, one of the great turf fixtures, at Aqueduct today.

American Flag will have a worthy challenger in Saraten, the Vanderbilt gelding having achieved a recent return to racing form. Others nominated included Chihowas, Danzarous and Sincelot.

CAMP PIONEER

Next Saturday afternoon and Sunday is set for the outing of the Boy Scout officials of Manchester. Automobiles will leave the Center church promptly at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Eight reservations have already been made. Any scout masters, assistants as well as committee men who are planning to take advantage of this outing should telephone Commissioner Irvine this evening.

The chef is already at the camp and all meals will be served on scheduled time. Mr. Frederick C. Hill, scout executive and camp director, will be right on hand to keep things interesting as well as entertaining. Each one should bring three blankets. Don't forget your bathing suit. A good time rain or shine.

Court of Honor. The June Court of Honor will be held at the East Side Rec Tuesday evening at 7:30. The following scouts should appear before the Court:

William Johnson, Troop No. 1, Camping and Forestry; Robert Dickson, Troop No. 4, First Class Scout; Carl Anderson, Troop No. 6, First Class Scout.

Francis Brer, Troop No. 6, First Aid and Scholarship; Russell Remig, Troop No. 6, First Aid and Scholarship.

All other Scouts and their friends are invited to attend this outing.

Scouts of Troop 3 helped the Kiwanis Club do a "good turn" for the children of Manchester last Saturday afternoon. The troop under direction of Assistant Scoutmaster Strickland, and Scoutmaster Strickland, at the Manchester-Bristol ball game and increased by about $20 the fund which the Kiwanis club is raising for the summer camp at Coventry.

The scouts are able to appreciate this cause, for many of them will soon be living under the tent and in the woods of their scout camp, Pioneer.

Members of the troop did not wear the scout uniform at the ball game, because of the regulation prohibiting its use while selling or canvassing.

600 GOLFERS IN CHAMPION TESTS

Qualifying Rounds for National Open Begin Today in Many Cities.

New York, June 14.—Opening skirmishes of the Battle of Scotto will be indulged in today when the sectional qualifying rounds of the national open golf championship will be played on seventeen courses throughout the country.

The play will afford an innovation in championship golf, not more than four courses being utilized last year and only one man, the champion, being exempt. This year, the exemption list will include those with the best scores last year and members of the Walker cup team, all of whom are amateurs.

The widening of the qualifying scope called for 36-hole rounds to be played today in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Atlanta, Dallas, Pittsburgh and Richmond, Va.

Nineteen will qualify in the Chicago tourney and eighteen in the New York event, these cities topping the list in this respect. Approximately six hundred golfers, amateur and professional, will take part in the nation-wide test.

TEDFORD BIRDS WIN 500 MILE CONTEST

Only Four Returned Yesterday—Remainder Came Back Today.

Five hundred miles proved too long a flight for the band of forty pigeons which attempted to fly home from Chatham, Virginia, yesterday. Only four of the birds returned, the remainder completing the journey today. The four who did return were owned by Walter Tedford of Russell street. Therefore he wins the race.

The birds were originally scheduled to be liberated Saturday morning but owing to adverse weather conditions were held until yesterday morning when they were turned free at 7 o'clock in the morning. It is said that poor weather conditions accounted for the birds being unable to complete the 500 miles before darkness. In case of darkness the birds do not continue their flights. Instead they alight and rest until morning and then continue on their journey.

BRAZIL KICKS OUT OF LEAGUE ITSELF

Severs All Connection With World Peace Body—Completes Franco Action.

Geneva, June 14.—The Brazilian government today announced its formal withdrawal from the League of Nations in a telegraphic message to the League secretary.

By this step Brazil completes the action begun last week when Senator Mello Franco, Brazilian delegate to the League, resigned from the council.

Brazil has now severed all connection with the league.

Spain Only Backer. Brazil's resignation was the direct result of the controversy over seats in the Council, that government insisting on a permanent seat in the face of opposition by all the other delegates with the exception of Spain. The other delegates, it was pointed out, are determined to keep the pledge, made at Locarno, to give Germany a permanent seat in the League.

The action of Brazil did not come as a great surprise. It was considered as virtually unavoidable after the resignation of Mello Franco.

Some comment was seen in the fact that a new Brazilian government would take hold in November, whereafter it is confidently hoped that Brazil will ask re-admission to the League.

"Post Hole" Woodchuck Reported in Buckland

Extra! Extra! Extra!
 Found: A large brown woodchuck believed to be the animal which recently dug fence-post holes for a group of workmen near Andover and which was captured but later escaped.

And the poor animal did not even have a chew of tobacco as reported. He was starving and, better still—

The woodchuck has turned tramp. When seen early yesterday morning he just finished rapping on the front door of the home of Louis L. Grant in Buckland. Mrs. Grant upon going to the door was startled to find the woodchuck sitting on the veranda, evidently waiting for someone to bring him something to eat.

Mrs. Grant told her husband and a shotgun was procured. But Mr. Woodchuck was too wise for his "unwilling-to-be" host. Consequently before Mr. Grant could get to the veranda with his gun, Mr. Woodchuck had vanished.

Edward Stein, an itinerant Buckland resident, however, is insistent over the report that the woodchuck was begging because of hunger.

"Take a look at my string bean patch and you'll drop that foolish idea," Mrs. Stein is reported to have said a neighbor.

It was revealed that some animal, possibly the woodchuck, had eaten up practically all of his string beans. In connection with the case, the story is also told of how Mr. Stein becoming enraged, decided to put an end to the career of Mr. Woodchuck. Therefore he set a steel trap in the field. Later he went to the trap. As he approached he saw the body of an animal caught in the trap.

"Ah! ha!" said Mr. Stein. "I thought I would put a stop to your monkey business. Mr. Woodchuck, hurry to the trap. Mr. Stein picked up the body of the — Oh! wait, please don't laugh. It was a SKUNK."

Meanwhile the workmen for L. T. Wood who captured the woodchuck in Andover only to have it escape from them are still minus their live animal. The search today is being conducted in Buckland — a place where housewives are also busy today keeping their front and back doors closed in their homes.

Get Sleep In Summer

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING

Surgeon General, United States

Public Health Service

Summer clothing should be light in weight and color and porous in texture. Such clothing permits evaporation and allows air to reach the skin readily. Frequent changes of clothing, particularly of that next the skin, are especially conducive to comfort.

The keeping of late or irregular hours during the summer is particularly undesirable. An adequate amount of sleep is necessary for health.

Because of the intense heat, it is sometimes difficult to obtain the requisite amount of sleep. At such times an electric fan may aid in inducing sleep.

The air currents produced by a fan should not be directed upon the body.

Regular and sufficient time should be allotted for sleeping purposes and earnest efforts made to get the needed rest.

Exercise suited to the season, as well as the requirements of the individual, should be sought. Constant automobile riding is strongly to be deprecated.

Indulged in moderately, walking, swimming, dancing, golf, tennis, horseback riding, quoits and similar diversions will provide needed exercise during hot weather.

Participation in these sports may well be confined to the early morning and later afternoon when the heat of the sun is less intense.

Salvationist Tells of British Strike

Speaker at Local Citadel, Just Back from London, Describes Incidents of Tieup.

The speaker at the Salvation Army Citadel last night was Ensign Edward Jackson, who is the officer in charge of the Washington Temple Corps at Washington, D. C. The Ensign has just returned from England where he had been for a 30 day special course of instruction in Salvation Army methods in that country. He was one of 35 officers from different parts of the United States who had been specially selected for the course.

British Strike

In his remarks the Ensign told of the trip across the ocean on the S. S. Leviathan which reached Southampton just when the late strike was at its worst, and everything was tied up so tight that volunteers had to be depended upon to dock the boat, and by the way it was evident they had not done it before. The trip from Southampton to London which generally takes about an hour in the special boat train, had to be taken by motor bus and they were over three hours on the road. Finally London was reached and they were taken to the Congress Hall, London where they spent some days before going to Sunbury on Thames where the meetings were to have been held, but owing to the strike conditions it was postponed.

In London

Whilst in London the party had the opportunity to go sight-seeing and naturally the places of special interest were those connected with the Army. One of the places he mentioned was the spot on Mile End Waste where on July 5, 1865 General William Booth commenced the work of the Salvation Army and they held a little service there and sang one of the songs composed by General Booth. The Whit-sundae week-end was spent at Eastbourne by the sea and the meetings were led by Commissioner Theodore Kitching who has the oversight of all the Army's publications.

Scenes of Battles

This place was the scene of many battles in the early days of the Salvation Army and more people were imprisoned for preaching the gospel from this place than any other on the British Isles. Today the Army has a flourishing branch of work there, which includes a senior and young people's band besides songsters and other activities. He said when he landed at New York after the trip one of the first men he met was Commissioner Breglie who is well known by Manchester Salvationists who asked him "What was the thing that impressed him the most?" and he said it was the Army Spirit as he had been privileged to rub shoulders with officers from all parts of the world, and the one ruling spirit which seemed to possess them was how could they be of service for God and humanity.

In speaking of the work of the Army in London the city is divided into six divisions which are under the direction of 500 field officers and soldiers, roll shows membership of over 20,000. Ensign Jackson returns to Washington, D. C. today where he will take up his work again in that city.

"Old Mill" Boys Hold an Outing

Employees of Warehouse Spend the Day at Point O' Woods; Some Features of Party.

Despite the handicap of wearing a pair of rubber boots, Bob Schliener was victorious in the 100-yard dash against a field of competitors which included only his fellow employees of the Warehouse at Point O' Woods. This was one of the many features of the week-end party Cheney Brothers department enjoyed. Schliener also favored by rendering several "harmonious" selections on his ukulele in addition to giving his own special imitation of the Charleston.

Another feature was the horse-shoe pitching contest won by Ed Swanson and William Warnock. Several competed in this event but Dick McLagan and Bob Boyce are said to have given the poorest exhibition.

The pie-eating contest, and it might be mentioned there was no pastry left when the contest was concluded, was won by Tom Humphries.

James Burdette Johnson, known as the Santa Claus of the department, proved very efficient as a dish-washer but it is understood he had but little competition from the others since the ambulance arrived late Wednesday afternoon, it has caused much notice as it passed through the streets. Its beautiful gray buff color with its black trim makes it noticeable. The motor is guaranteed to give the ambulance a speed of eighty miles an hour for emergency calls and also it is possible to throttle the motor down until the ambulance barely moves.

Much favorable comment has been voiced among Manchester people who have had an opportunity to inspect the new Reo ambulance which has just been purchased by Holloran Brothers, local ambulanciers. The ambulance is of the very latest type and contains almost every up-to-date improvement but the feature which stands out is the fact that it is made in such a manner that it is absolutely sanitary. When the ambulance arrived late Wednesday afternoon, it has caused much notice as it passed through the streets. Its beautiful gray buff color with its black trim makes it noticeable. The motor is guaranteed to give the ambulance a speed of eighty miles an hour for emergency calls and also it is possible to throttle the motor down until the ambulance barely moves.

The ambulance is so constructed that it has three doors, one on each side and one at the rear. This makes it possible to handle all kinds of situations which may arise. Inside, the ambulance is even more attractively finished. The sides and roof are finished in Spanish leather in such a manner that it is impossible for germs to congregate. Electric lights and fans are installed.

In addition to the roller cot there are two folding cushioned seats, one in front of the other. There is also ample space surrounding the cot and seats.

The ambulance cost approximately $6,000. The body was built in York, Pa., and the chassis in Lansing, Mich. The ambulance was sold to Holloran Brothers through the agency of George Smith, salesman for the Reo, who went to York and drove the ambulance to Manchester.

Young Men Escape Death in Accident

Five local youths miraculously escaped death early Saturday night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through several feet of fence-post railing, overturned and went down an embankment coming to a halt with its wheels in the air. The accident which resulted from a blowout in a left rear tire thus causing the machine to skid, occurred on the road to Coventry where the youths were bound for a dance.

How any of the quintet escaped death or at least serious injury is a mystery to those who have viewed the wreckage in Madden Brothers' garage. The entire top of the machine is demolished and other parts are considerably damaged. One of the fence posts went through the windshield and broke off the top of the auto. How the driver was not hit by the post cannot be explained.

The automobile, a Nash sedan, was owned and operated by Earl Judatz. In the machine with him were riding Cecil England, Albert Merrer, Fritz Dienschneider and Elmo Mantel. One of the party received a bruised nose.

STUDYING ART OBJECTS IN SO. METHODIST CHURCH

Miss Harriet D. Condon, art supervisor at the High school, is taking her art classes weekly to the South Methodist church for the study of objects of art and the architecture of the building. One of the articles of interest is the wood carving of the Last Supper done by one of the Passion Players of Oberammergau, which is located in the chancel. Other wood carvings are the pulpit, the center pane being interesting because of the fact that it was done by the late Wesley B. Porter. Another carving on the pulpit is by the Rev. Julian S. Wadsworth of Chateau Thierry, France, a former pastor here.

HYPOCRISY.

We can see no reason why newspapers of Republican affiliation or tendencies should remain so mum and glum as some of them are, so far as editorial comment is concerned, in the matter of the Pennsylvania primary.

It has been revealed that an ocean of money was spent in the three-cornered Vesper-Pinchot senatorial fight, not alone on speech-making and advertising, but at the polls. There is no argument about it. The thing is a matter of record, of free admission by the very people who spent the money.

Well, what of it? We ask this question in no spirit of defiance of the theoretical sanctity of the ballot box, with no idea of justifying the practice of indirect purchase of votes, which is what the Pennsylvania system amounts to, of course. We ask it rather in an inquiring mood. What, really, is the significance of the Pennsylvania revelations as affecting the Republican party?

It shows that politics in Pennsylvania is pretty sordid business. It shows that a tremendous lot of the people down there place no value on their franchise. It shows that there are a lot of mighty poor Americans in the Keystone state. It shows that as a result of lack of any feeling of responsibility in their exercise of the franchise, on the part of these poor citizens, the practice of indirect purchase of votes has grown to be more general, there, than elsewhere.

But there is no news in the first part of this proposition—everybody in the United States knows what over-immigration has done to Pennsylvania. And everybody ought to have been quite prepared for the revelation that the only way a candidate can win, with such people controlling the choice, is by buying his way.

But this again not only ought not to have been startling, it is only in degree novel and not at all unique, except for the amount of money involved and the number of persons indirectly bribed.

In New York Tammany keeps a certain proportion of its adherents in line with election day jobs—the same thing. There probably isn't a single state in all of Dixieland where the Democratic primaries are free from exactly the same kind of business that went on in Pennsylvania. Is there anyone so glibless as to imagine that Jim Reed, head Democratic inquirer into the Pennsylvania scandal, won his last primary fight without certain St. Louis strikers of the same stamp as the Pittsburgh "watchers" ending the day with more money in their pockets than they began it with? The spectacle of Jim Reed standing agape at the corruption in Pennsylvania is good!

The political party to throw the first stone in this affair is the one without sin. And the Democratic party, thereby, is barred.

The situation is merely this—that in Pennsylvania the employment of money has gone, undoubtedly, further than elsewhere. But that is because it is very big state, the men concerned in its politics have more money to spend and there are more voters to spend it on. A million spent on an election in Pennsylvania is not one whit more reprehensible than five thousand spent in the state of Mississippi. It's the same thing over again.

The whole amount of it is that purchase of office is an abominable thing, but a thing that goes on, not in Pennsylvania or Michigan alone but all over the country.

For Republican newspapers to sit supinely back and allow the Democrats to get away with the pretense that the Pennsylvania incident is proof that the Republican party is unfit to touch the hem of the Democratic garment is to lay down their hand under a flagrant and hypocritical bluff.

NOYESES AND OTHERS.

In the passing of Judge Walter C. Noyes of Lyme not only does Connecticut lose a first class citizen and an outstanding representative of original settler stock, but one more of the rapidly disappearing class of lawyers whose antecedents peculiarly fitted them for membership in the bar of the commonwealth.

Judge Noyes was of a family that had been identified with Connecticut since the beginning; was born to the tradition of high and honorable service to the state—and lived up to the history of his family and their association with Connecticut affairs. To such men the practice of law means something much more than the gaining of a livelihood or the acquisition of wealth. They recognize their profession as a great responsibility; the administration of the law with justice and honor as an utter essential to the continued integrity of the great land which their ancestors helped to create. In such hands the law is safe.

There is strange contrast to the Noyeses in the list of graduates of almost any law school in the country today. Flocks of embryo attorneys are being dumped on the country every year, not only product of no long line of American forebears but lacking so much as a single generation of American background—waddle boys who have grabbed at law knowledge solely for the opportunity it offers the essentially unscrupulous man to reap lavishly through teaching crooks how to be crooked safely.

America means nothing to them but personal getting. Connecticut means nothing but a political and geographical unit where they can get it.

For one Noyes being graduated from the law schools of America today there are twenty congenial tricksters of sheerly foreign traditions and backgrounds—probably ten potential scoundrels.

RAVELING.

An oil surfaced macadam road may stand the grind of traffic for a long time so long as there is no broken spot in it, but once it begins to ravel, once a single square inch of its surface comes loose, the finish of that road is in sight unless the damage can be repaired straightaway and effectively.

The League of Nations has begun to ravel. Brazil, vast in territory, is politically insensient. But she is the loose stone in the road. Every day which rolls down the line into the past will be a wheel-shoe bearing on the weak point, wrenching at the other particles in the mass. Every disagreement on minor matters within the Council or Assembly will be a truck, hitting the raveled spot a damaging blow; every major dispute will tear at the fabric like a tractor.

At best, if the other member nations do succeed in dragging Brazil back into the League and preventing her neighbor stone, Spain, from ripping loose, the result will still be a mended spot—and a weakness. It is not to be believed that the world's great powers will abandon all hope of a league for peace, all their desperate planning to provide some other means of living together besides the ridiculous means of mutual destruction. But that there will be a complete new deal, a more practical if less idealistic substitute for the League of Nations, within the next decade, would seem to be the indicated probability. A structure liable to wounding by the disaffection of a minor member like Brazil has something fundamental the matter with it.

BRYANISM.

Without any commitment to the merits or demerits of fundamentalism, it is permissible, perhaps, to pick up one angle of a declaration made by Rev. Elmer T. Merrill of California in his baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Trinity college yesterday. He said, speaking of William Jennings Bryan, "I think he did the cause of religion more harm than any man of his time."

Whether this be true or untrue, the fact stands that Bryan, far more than any score of other religious leaders, stirred into active fire the smoldering embers of discord between those who seek to reconcile Christianity with science and those who flout science in order to hold to the letter of the Book.

And in this abides the interesting, puzzling fact that it was among those people who most violently rejected the political preachments of Bryan that he made the most zealous partisans for his religious creed. The Commoner succeeded in stirring, more tumultuously than any red who ever yelped from a soap box, the bitter resentment of American ultra-conservatism during the years when he was pre-eminent the politician; yet it was precisely that some ultra-conservative element that followed his leadership to the brink of religious revolution when he subordinated politics to biblical fundamentalism as his hobby.

Which suggests the thought, Can people really be led at all, or do they merely consent to march behind the banner of somebody who has taken his place at the head of a procession after it has already been formed and set its own goal?

DICTATORSHIPS.

Pilsudski, after all the elaborate and seemingly aimless shuffling of the cards that has been going on in Poland, comes out, at the end, as supreme boss of the country through absolute control of the army. The Polish army is an astonishingly big affair. It numbers 300,000 men at present and is expandable to a strength of four millions. Pilsudski is its unchallenged and unchallengeable chieftain, actually accountable to nobody for anything.

Mussolini in Italy; Pilsudski in Poland; all we need now is a further crystallization in Russia, with one man instead of a group as the bully of a nation.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

"Seldom he smiles," —Snakespear.

Washington, June 14.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana has, by all odds, the gloomiest visage of any man in Congress.

Senator Smoot has a serious face. It doesn't smile, but neither does it look as if Smoot had eaten something that disagrees with him.

Walsh's expression is desyncetic. Once I had a school teacher of whom Walsh reminds me. He was a dandy teacher but he fairly radiated austerity.

Walsh himself was principal of several high schools in his youth. And a high school principal—a very severe one, who knows how to maintain cast-iron discipline—is what he resembles to this day.

He has a cold, hard eye—the kind to glare right through a classroom cup-up.

His mouth closes in a stern line. His drooping, clipped, gray mustache accentuates it. So do his deep wrinkles, curving downward from his nostrils.

He frowns forbiddingly.

To this extent Walsh's appearance doesn't belie him—he's relentless.

He has nerve and purpose and ability. As a lawyer he hasn't a superior in the Senate. He knows the federal constitution backward. As a cross-examiner he's famous. As a debater he lacks a sense of humor.

When Thomas J. Walsh gets up to make a speech, the Senate knows it's going to get a wealth of information. This information may be thrilling, sensational. But it won't entertain.

Senator Reed of Missouri can be just as scathing as Walsh but he's witty. His wit bites, but it also snaps and sparkles. Small sword-play, like Senator Reed's, though deadly, has its own kind of beauty. About a surgeon's scalpel, like Senator Walsh's, there's nothing but the terrifying.

Reed transfixes his man. Walsh dissects him.

Walsh is very dignified. High school principals have to be. Back talk or any form of freshness from his pupils is fatal to a high school principal.

In the old days, school teachers ruled with a hickory stick. They haven't ruled by that method in Walsh's time, but they've ruled by making the "young idea" afraid of that is, some law. I'll bet Walsh did.

He can say things that hurt worse than hickory. He does it for the recipient's own good, no doubt, but it's difficult to convince the recipient.

Hence it was that Senator

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 14.—Much "sobbing" is done over chorus girls, their pitfalls and struggles and temptations.

But this clan does little weeping for itself or its sisters. It's a little world of "everyone for herself" and personal independence is an outstanding characteristic of the majority. Of course there are bound to be some exceptions.

For instance—a little group of Broadway chorines recently decided to organize a social club. They planned to have a club-house where the new arrivals would have a place to hang their hats and their things could drop in to "talk shop." There was much talk of "uplift" and taking action to change public opinion regarding chorines.

The little group met and, among other things, announced that they were to have a social affair referred to as a chorus girl. The chorines, they said, would rise in arms and defend the reputation of the majority.

Three of them constituted a committee which broadcast letters to the thousands of chorines; they visited the theaters and gave out statements.

Immediately a Fifth Avenue mansion was offered them as a temporary meeting place. From a dozen quarters came offers for benefits, the proceeds of which would go to the club. Up to the sympathetic folk from every which way.

But when the organizers called their "big meeting" only 40 girls showed up. The others preferred to sleep late that day, had dates, or just didn't care. And so this plan, like so many similar ones, threatens to be shelved.

Speaking of chorines, there's an attractive young miss with a great fondness for cats, and, since stray cats are one of New York's leading industries, the dressing rooms of her theater have the general appearance of a poundman's cart after a busy day.

Recently she sued a young man for breach of promise and, settling out of court, gave half her winnings to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to be used, as stipulated, in looking after foreign kittens.

Wasn't it O. Henry in "The Theory and the Hound" who said to look out for folk who were overfond of animals?

Well, anyway, the young chorine of the cat episode has, within six months, brought an action for slander, an action for breach of promise and another for alienation of affection—or something like that.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Porcupine.

BY ARTHUR N. PACK. President. The American Nature Association.

The unfortunate person whose individual hairs stood on end, like quills upon the crest of a porcupine, was, in comparison with "Porky," decidedly out of luck.

Erect hairs only advertise fear, but erect quills mean "hands off." Woe to the animal, human or otherwise who disregards that warning for he is likely to become a sort of quill-cushion before he knows it.

The tail is Porky's most effective end, and if the curious or unwary intruder allows himself to be in its vicinity he is likely to encounter a quick flip from it, and find that his arrest. These men have operated all over the United States and their methods have been so carefully studied as to puzzle the officials of hundreds of large advertising organizations throughout the country.

No less than eleven different business directories have been represented as their publications, the names of many of them being such a misleading character that business men were deceived into thinking that they were advertising in some nationally known publication. A list follows:

Hanson's Trade Index, Page's Business Directory, Mason's Business Directory, Bradshaw's Directory, Burton's Business Guide, Belford's Directory, Rollin's Business Directory, Spencer's Business Directory, Mason's Business Directory, Hodges Business Guide, Lockwood's Business Directory.

These names are all closely copied from some reputable business publication, probably for the purpose of deceit.

The method used was to secure the signature of the purchasing agent or controller on the bottom of a perfectly innocent and non-committal type of communication, and then by cutting off the bottom of this communication and printing a contract in the blank space left for that purpose, make it appear that a contract for advertising had been signed on which they were usually able to collect.

Business men are asked by the Chamber to make inquiry regarding a contract for advertising space, as we have means of determining what the advertising value is of any trade publication in the country.

The Florida State Chamber of Commerce and the Florida Real Estate Commission, together with the Florida Association of Real Estate Boards and the National Better Business Bureau, have combined in a campaign against the activities of unscrupulous promoters. The first issue of their findings have just reached the local Chamber in circulars naming 29 specific companies which have been investigated and many of which have been compelled to cease operations.

Anyone interested in examining the list is welcome to do so by calling on the Chamber of Commerce rooms. This is only the first installment, and others are expected to follow in rapid succession.

In connection with the popular and increasing desire of the ladies to slenderize their forms, there has sprung up a number of frauds, one of which have been the purveyors of unscrupulous chemists should take advantage of this popular desire of the American female to conform to the prevailing style of dress and commercialize the same by selling preparations and appliances to accomplish the desired end.

Some of the preparations are harmful and even dangerous; others are simply bunk. An advertisement recently appeared in papers published in this vicinity which by chancing a certain kind of gum, one could get rid of from three to four pounds of flesh a week. It fully reads the advertisement: "I guarantee to reduce, or even to remove a word in it which says that the gum has any influence on the person that chews it, or that it is guaranteed to reduce, or even to remove a word in it which says that one is led to believe something which is not so."

The Post Office Department on June 9th issued a fraud order against the La-Mar Laboratories of Cleveland, and denied the use of the mails for its advertising or distribution of La-Mar Reducing Soap. Most extravagant claims were made for this soap, all of which were proved by chemists and expert hygienists to be entirely ly without foundation, and in fact, absolutely impossible.

The clever part of these people's advertising was that they made the lavish use of their soap simply a means to an end by which one, through a series of frequent hot baths, diets and exercise accomplish what any normal individual can accomplish with any ordinary soap or without any soap.

Their advertising however, continually stressed the necessities for the use of La-Mar Reducing Soap and certain appliances in connection with it. At the time of the cease and desist order which was issued against them, their daily orders went out over 500 orders and the minimum order was for a dollar box of soap, and many of the orders were for $14.00 combination soap and appliance outfits.

It will readily be seen that they were doing a profitable business, and it is also apparent to anyone who considers the matter that there are still a considerable number of gullible people ready to part with their money when the proper bait is dangled before their eyes.

The Chamber is ready to investigate and give facts in connection with any project which you do not understand.

HEBRON

The rate of attendance at the Jones street school, taught by Miss Ellen Jones, was 98 per cent for the month of May. Children perfect in attendance were Henry and Amelia Mikulski, Eddy, Charlotte, Stanley and Josephine Zawiska, Clifford and Florence Burgess, and Conetta Tere.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright returned from Middlesex hospital on Tuesday, both having been critically ill for a period covering several weeks.

Mrs. Nellie Jones Skinner of Westchester has been engaged to teach in the Jones street school, for the coming year as Miss Ellen Jones, the present teacher, is planning to attend the Willimantic State Normal school next year.

The Hopevale school closed on Wednesday with a picnic for pupils and teacher.

Several members from this town were present at the meeting of the D. A. R. in Colchester at the Foot Memorial Chapter house on Wednesday. Mrs. Frank Clark of Hebron who is regent, presided at the meeting. Miss Clarissa Peniston of Hebron was appointed as a committee to plan for representation among the Hebron members in a coming "Shaw Pageant" to be held July 13, in the garden of the Misses Bigelow in Colchester.

Mrs. Lulu Lord, her daughter Esther and her son Morgan of South Manchester, were visitors at their former home here on Thursday. They also called on friends and relatives.

The closing picnic of the Hopevale school took place at Columbia Lake on Thursday. Teacher, the pupils and parents were present to the number of 35. A picnic dinner was partaken of on the shore of the lake.

DIRECTORY FRAUD BEATS MERCHANTS

The Chamber of Commerce Warns About Three Bunco Methods.

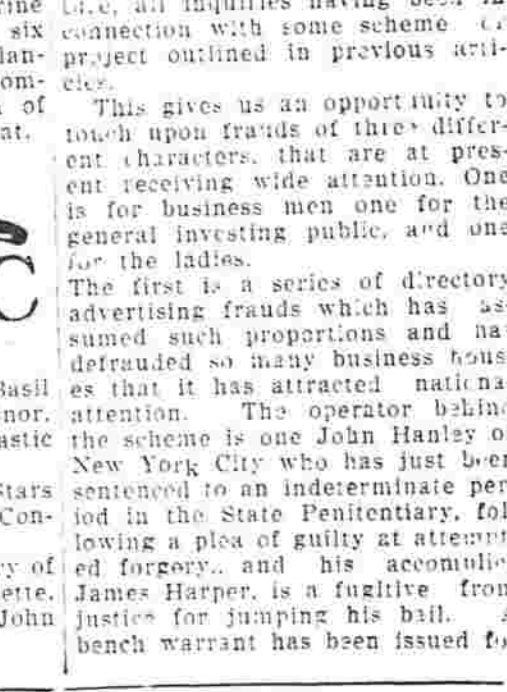

(This is the fifteenth article prepared by the Chamber of Commerce for The Herald.)

Developments during the past week in the Chamber of Commerce fraud prevention campaign have been more or less of a repeat nature, all inquiries having been in connection with some scheme of project outlined in previous articles.

This gives us an opportunity to touch upon frauds of three different characters, that are at present receiving wide attention. One is for business men one for the general investing public, and one for the ladies.

The first is a series of directory advertising frauds which has assumed such proportions and has defrauded so many business houses that it has attracted national attention. The operator behind the scheme is one John Hanley of New York City who has just been sentenced to an indeterminate period in the State Penitentiary, following a plea of guilty at attorney James Harper, and his accomplice, James Harper, is a fugitive from justice for jumping his bail. A bench warrant has been issued for with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright for a week or so to assist in their convalescence.

The weekly prayer meeting at the Hopevale church was held on Thursday evening this week having been postponed from the evening before. It was held in the church and Elder C. P. Lillie was the leader.

The members and friends of the Hebron Christian Endeavor society are requested to be present Sunday evening, June 13, the subject for that occasion being "Getting Things Done." This meeting will be conducted by the officers and there are still a considerable number of gullible people ready to part with their money when the proper bait is dangled before their eyes.

The graduating exercises for pupils completing the eighth grade in the Hebron schools will be held on the evening of June 17, in the Congregational church.

Mr. Fitzsimmons of the State Board of Health visited the Model school in the Center district on Wednesday for the purpose of inspecting the lighting and other facilities of the school building.

DAILY POEM

IN YOUTH.

Say, listen here, son, you should have heaps of fun, and be a real boy while you're small. There's plenty of pleasure for you in full measure, and why need you worry at all?

You only live once and your youthful time stunts will last in your mind when you're grown. Get all that you can ere they call you a man, for then you are put on your own.

Right now life seems free, and just take it from me, you are wise if you run around wild through the fresh open air, out thought of the officers, really livin' the life of a child.

As young days wear out—well, it all turns about, and the care-freeness switches to strife. It's the best of your youth, if you do, son, in truth, it will last you the rest of your life.

A THOUGHT

Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom, and with all thy getting, get understanding.—Prov. 4:7.

Wisdom is rare, Lorenzo! with abundance.—Young.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA — Betsy Ross (2)

The stars which were indicated in the original design were six-pointed and Betsy Ross suggested that they have but five points. She took a pair of shears and a folded slip of paper, and showed how the five-pointed stars could be made with one clip. Members of the flag committee immediately agreed to her plan and changed their design to conform.

It was in her own home, in a little upholstery store on Arch street, Philadelphia, that Betsy busied herself with needle and material and made the first Old Glory.

Every stitch of the tedious work was done by hand, and when the sample flag finally was completed, the flag committee and other officials gathered to inspect it.

Many were the compliments that greeted Betsy's handiwork. The flag was spread out across her lap while those high in government affairs looked it over. Washington, Morris and Ross, the original flag committee, were much impressed with the beauty of it. The 'white' five-pointed stars—13 of them—stood out sharply against the field of blue. MCLAUGHLIN LOSER IN PITCHERS' DUEL

Shamrocks Defeated by Stafford K. of C. for Third Time by One Run.

A spectacular running catch in center field by Fitzpatrick in the ninth inning puffed Jim McLaughlin of a sure triple yesterday afternoon and also tripled a last-inning rally as the Shamrocks went down to a 2-1 defeat in a game with the Stafford Keays at Hickey's Grove. It marked the third consecutive game Stafford has vanquished the Shamrocks by one run, having previously 10-9 and 5-7 victories.

Yesterday's battle which was played before a good sized gathering of fans, was a thriller from the start to the finish. It was clearly a battle of pitchers between Bill McLaughlin and Milt Calchera. There was little or no difference between the two men. McLaughlin walked one less batter and incidentally it was the only one he passed. Both struck out four hitters. McLaughlin allowed five hits and Calchera four.

Stafford scored a tally in the first frame. Pallack walked and was sacrificed to second. Senior filed out to Long but Pallack scored when Hanna muffed B. Calchera's grounder.

The Shamrocks tied the score in the fifth. Brownell walked and went to second on Kelly's attempted sacrifice that went for an out when the ball hit him on fair territory. Bill McLaughlin whiffed and McCarty started to go to the plate. Coach Brennan called him back, however, and sent in George Fester, a Holy Cross player who is now living in Rockville. The new pitcher hit the first ball pitched over short for a single scoring Brownell. He also whalloped another vicious liner the next time up. He has been signed to play regularly with the Shamrocks.

Stafford put over the winning run in the sixth. Huden singled and was forced at second on a fielder's choice. Senior's double scored Pallack who was safe on the fielder's choice. The summary:

DIAMOND DUST

With Gehrig and Lazzeri operating the home run steam roller, the Yankees beat the Browns, six to five, and increased their lead over the Athletics to ten games. Sam Jones held the fort when the Browns got rough with young Miles Thomas.

George Uhle held the Athletics to two hits and the Indians won four to one. Sam Gray, who essayed to pitch for the Mackmen, lasted less than an inning.

Thomas, White Sox freshman, also turned in a two at game, whitewashing the Senators three to nothing. The Sox are now only half a game behind the Athletics.

The Reds bowed to the Giants, ten to three, but retained their hold on first place. Greenfield pitched a great game for the winners while the Giants knocked Jackie May out of the picture in the first inning and pounded his three successors freely.

Brooklyn beat the Cubs, six to five, with the aid of splendid relief pitching by Jess Petty.

The Red Sox downed the Tigers, seven to three. Regan, Boston's new infielder, got four hits.

INSILCOS HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

Sons of Italy to Entertain Meriden Team at West Side—Sipples Will Pitch.

Manchester fans will be treated to plenty of good baseball tomorrow night when the Insilcos of Meriden, winners of eight straight games, will do battle with the Sons of Italy at the West Side. The visiting team is being paid a large guarantee to come here.

Tommy Sipples will do the honors on the mound.

The Insilcos are rated today as one of Connecticut's greatest semi-pro teams and throughout the present season have yet to be defeated. With Sipples pitching the Sons expect to send the visitors home on the short end.

On Thursday, June 24 the Sons will entertain the New Departures at the West Side.

ACES LOSE 9-7

The Aces lost a 9-7 decision to the Ellington team yesterday afternoon at the Rockville fair grounds. It was an interesting and well played game from the start. Next Sunday the Aces will entertain the Ellington team at the Rockville fair grounds.

Three Corner Trade.

Some months ago, there was talk of a triangular trade, involving the Phillies, Giants and Pirates, with Philadelphia, Boston and New York. The Braves also were linked with reports of a transaction with the Pirates, which Bill McLaughlin promptly denied. The alleged deal was to send Burns to Pittsburgh and to send Grunthan to Boston, in return for a player to be named.

At the same time, they seemed determined to send Howard Ehmke away from the Red Sox for Yvonne and Zerkowicz of the Browns, but it is said that the Sox held out for Harry Rice, the young outfielder, instead of Johnson. In this connection, it may be significant that Rice recently benched Ken Williams who once tried to outen home runs with George H. Ruth himself.

They also speak knowingly with any mean anything, or nothing, in fact, it is altogether possible that the dead line will pass without incident, this being more or less of a modern custom. They made bigger and better trades in the old days.

BIG LEAGUE TRADES TO END TOMORROW

Limit at Midnight—Many Rumors and Immediate Denials.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
 New York, June 14.—There may be a brisk bit of baseball trading before midnight tomorrow and if not, there will be none at all for the remainder of the 1926 season. At the hour in question, the curfew will ring and the closed season on major league trades becomes effective. Anyone caught thereafter with the right ball player in the wrong box will have to abide by the game laws and throw him back in again.

Therefore, if various managers are as anxious to do business as immediate action.

Our Mr. McGraw, for instance, is suspected of being very much irritated by the performance of his 1926 entry and there have been all kinds of loose talk about the impending departure of Meusel. Kelly, however, Frisch has had a bad year but his job probably is safe until such time as McGraw gets more infielders or Frisch gets less ambition, if possible.

Wants Genewich.

Quite some few clubs are supposed to be interested in Bill Terry, substitute first baseman, and with the Giant situation as precarious as it is, this is the time to get him, if at all. They say McGraw wants Genewich, the Boston right hander. They all want the young man but they must give plenty in return. Perhaps Meusel is headed for Boston if being practically no secret.

McGraw focuses keenly at the month every time he looks at this hitting outfielder.

The Braves also were linked with reports of a transaction with the Pirates, which Bill McLaughlin promptly denied. The alleged deal was to send Burns to Pittsburgh and to send Grunthan to Boston, in return for a player to be named.

At the same time, they seemed determined to send Howard Ehmke away from the Red Sox for Yvonne and Zerkowicz of the Browns, but it is said that the Sox held out for Harry Rice, the young outfielder, instead of Johnson. In this connection, it may be significant that Rice recently benched Ken Williams who once tried to outen home runs with George H. Ruth himself.

SECRETS OF STARS ON INSIDE BASEBALL

as told by BILLY EVANS

The most difficult play a third baseman must make? Well, that is merely a matter of opinion.

To my way of thinking, it is the handling of a swinging bunt in the third-base line. Now to illustrate:

Let us suppose the batsman is a slusser, fond of pulling the ball down the third-base line with great speed. Such a type hitter is Harry Heilmann, champion batsman of the American League.

When batters of the Heilmann type are up, it is customary for the third-sacker to play deep, largely as a matter of self-preservation.

We will assume that Heilmann, after taking a healthy swing at the ball, merely tops it. The result is usually a slow bouncer in the direction of third.

The fact that the third baseman is playing so deep is what makes the handling of such a ball so difficult.

In making this play, the moment I see the ball has been topped I rush in with all speed, keeping my eye on the ball. When I believe the proper time has arrived to execute the play, I make a sweeping downward motion with my right hand.

If I have properly judged the bound and am favored with good luck, I come up with the ball, which, however, is merely the beginning of the play. The more difficult part is just ahead.

To get your man at first it is necessary that you make a speedy and accurate throw to that base. This must be done while the runner and without straightening up to get set for the throw. Such a delay would invariably result in the loss of the play.

The fact that such a play is the exception rather than the rule adds to the difficulty of successfully executing it. To overcome this, I make it a point to try to handle a dozen such batted balls in practice every day.

HELPFUL HINTS ON GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS' MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

There are various opinions as to the proper way of conditioning oneself for a tournament. Some say you shouldn't play much golf, or more than is necessary. Others believe that the more one plays, the better prepared one is for the contest.

I believe that you cannot play too much golf; that it is a game which requires constant practice in order to retain the touch. However, there is such a thing as over-doing practice just preceding a tournament.

A champion fighter always watches his opponent in the ring if he can before he meets the challenger. Football coaches scout out another's teams all with the idea of getting an idea of the character of the opponent. A golfer's opponent in mental play is the course.

If it were possible, one should visit the course where the championship is to be played at least a month in advance and put in a lot of practice. But the week preceding the tournament one should take things easy.

BRISTOL DOWNS MANCHESTER IN SIXTEEN INNING BATTLE

Errors Responsible for Most of Visitors' Runs—Kiwamis Club Realizes Considerable Money from Game.

It may be a record for high school games and it may not be. Anyway, Manchester high and Bristol battled 16 innings Saturday afternoon before the verdict was reached and when it was, Bristol had won out by the score of 9 to 4. About 200 persons attended the game.

brought in the third. Hultman got in some way or another and the fourth run came across the plate. Manchester could do nothing in its half of the 16th. Wiley, who pitched for Manchester, allowed only 10 hits in the 16 frames but his support was very poor. Many errors were chalked up against the Manchester men and these misplays were directly responsible for most of the Bristol runs.

Summary table for Bristol vs Manchester game. Columns: ab, r, h, po, a, e. Rows: Bristol (50 runs, 8 hits, 10 errors, 45 outs, 23 runs), Manchester (55 runs, 4 hits, 9 errors, 46 outs, 16 runs).

NINTH INNING RALLY FAILS AND GROTON CONQUERS SONS

Double by Ballsieper Scores Two in Final Frame But Groton Wins by One Run; Locals Use Three Pitchers

Despite a desperate rally in the ninth inning by the Sons of Italy at the West Side yesterday afternoon, Groton took the game by one run. The visitors had been leading, 6 to 3, until the final frame when a walk, an error and a smashing double by Ballsieper brought in two for the locals. Without a doubt Groton had most of the breaks and the visiting pitcher was accorded a gilt-edged support. Many of the Sons' offerings that looked like hits were smothered by shoestring catches and almost impossible stops. Four errors by the Sons spoiled things at times and it was the lead that Groton obtained because of these misplays which won the visiting team the game.

Zwick walked and a run was forced in. In the fifth Holland, who had relieved Hewitt, singled and was scored when the shortstop fumbled Ballsieper's grounder. Then the ninth came along with Groton ahead by three runs. Walllett made first on an error and Holland walked. The next two men popped up flies to the catcher. Ballsieper stepped up and smashed out a liner into the field for two bases, both runners scoring. The next man was an easy out to first base.

Summary table for Groton vs Sons of Italy game. Columns: AB, R, H, PO, A, E. Rows: Groton (38 runs, 6 hits, 6 errors, 27 outs, 7 runs), Sons of Italy (34 runs, 5 hits, 8 errors, 27 outs, 6 runs).

Cole's Circuit Clout Conquers Convicts 5-3

"Ike" Cole's home run over the center field wall scoring a runner ahead of him together with the heavy hitting of "Clay" Hanna were the outstanding features of the game between Cheney Brothers and the State's Prison team Saturday in Wethersfield. Manchester was victorious 5-3. The prison team hit Georgetti hard but he was backed up in excellent style by his mates. No less than five runners were thrown out at second base by Eddie Lamprecht when they attempted to pillfer that sack. Cheney Brothers handled 46 chances with only three errors.

Summary table for Cheney Brothers vs State's Prison game. Columns: AB, R, H, PO, A, E. Rows: Cheney Brothers (34 runs, 5 hits, 11 errors, 27 outs, 19 runs), State's Prison (30 runs, 3 hits, 12 errors, 27 outs, 13 runs).

Then came the eighth inning with Cole's homer after Stratton had singled and had been sacrificed to second by White. The prison team scored a run in the same inning bringing the score to 4-2. Each team scored a run in the ninth. Stratton walked, took second on an error and scored on Hanna's fourth hit of the game. A rally by the prisoners in the last half of the ninth looked for a time as if it would erase the local's lead.

Summary table for Cheney Brothers vs State's Prison game (continued). Columns: AB, R, H, PO, A, E. Rows: Cheney Brothers (34 runs, 5 hits, 11 errors, 27 outs, 19 runs), State's Prison (30 runs, 3 hits, 12 errors, 27 outs, 13 runs).

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The Twins looked at all the queer people in Shut-Eye-Town, zong up and down and in and out and here and yonder, willy, nilly, the queere- way ever. They whisked by under their very noses or walked between them, or darted out unexpectedly from nowhere, disappearing just as suddenly into nothing.

The most amazing part of it all however, was that nobody made a sound. With so much hustle and bustle and hurrying and pushing, you'd have expected it to sound like circus-day. The Twins must have showed how very odd they thought it was, for all at once a tall thin person with long arms like toll-gates, suddenly stretched out one of his arms in front of them and they had to stop.

"My name is Geewhilkins," said he in a solemn voice. "Why are you surprised?"

"It's so very quiet," said Nick. "Nobody seems to say a sound. Do they all wear eyeshades?"

"No," said Geewhilkins. "But our streets are made of rubber. Grade A Number One rubber that never wears out."

"Can't you ever stamp or make noise?" asked Nancy. "Just do you do when you're cross?"

"Cross?" exclaimed Geewhilkins. "Cross? What does that mean? Is it anything like whooping cough? As for whooping cough, we have a wonderful invention. Silencers! You can't hear a thing."

"Say, Mister," said Nick suddenly, "we came to this place to look for a couple of friends, so we must be going. I guess. Thank you for telling us so much about everything."

But strange to say Mister Geewhilkins turned a slow, inquisitive great green lobster with enormous whiskers and great green claws like nut-crackers. One of those nut-cracker claws he snapped rapidly before Nick's nose, looking as though he should like to say something rude also.

But he backed hurriedly away without any further remark, and Nancy said indignantly, "I know why he did that. He didn't think his thumb would make enough noise if he snapped it, so he turned it into a lobster's claw so he could have those horrible claws to snap."

"I shouldn't wonder," said Nick. "But, oh, Nancy, look at all those queer people!"

The Twins stood and watched the people of Shut-Eye Town go sliding by in their queer noiseless way.

First a lady as wide as a mattress and no higher than a shoe-scraper passed, leading a dog as long as a clothes-line and as thin as a clothes-pole.

Next came a man as high as a church steeple and so narrow he could have walked through a door crack. Without a word the man jumped up on a six-legged horse which promptly leaped up on a house and went down the chimney.

The third person was no other than an enormous egg who seemed to be able to head quite easily in the middle. For he bowed this way and that to all his friends as he passed, constantly taking pinches of snuff and sneezing without any noise.

The fourth person stopped in front of the Twins and introduced himself. "I'm Upsidaisy," said he. "I'm first cousin to Lowly Dazy, but I refused to be so humble and changed my name. Now you know why I wear a high hat, a pair of glasses on a string, and a sprat, Good-bye!" And away he went.

"Say, Nick, whispered Nancy. "I feel as though I was asleep."

"So do I," nodded Nick. "But I'm sure we're not."

SENSE AND NONSENSE

When our neighbors were about to leave for the country last summer, their little daughter, Jane, called but we were not in, so she left the following note:—"Will you please put out a little food for our cat while we're away? It will eat almost anything but don't put yourself out."

His pants are loose and baggy—I've never seen them with a crease. His coat is limp and saggy.

And William has a voice that draws. A laugh that's really funny. He's bashful, quiet, and awkward, too. And doesn't make much money.

But William has a charm for me. That must be understood—I married dear old William because he is so good.

A PUZZLE A DAY

Donald B. MacMillan has made plans to establish a small colony in northern Labrador as a permanent base for arctic explorations. A few colonist families must live at the base all year to make it of use to the explorers. MacMillan thinks that a quantity just as much short of 45 as its quadruple is more than 45 will represent the desired number of families.

How many families does he desire in his colony?

CARD OF THANKS

In behalf of the Manchester Community Club we wish to express sincere thanks to all who helped make our 1926 Lawn Fete such a gratifying success. To provide out-door entertainment for upwards of 3,000 people an evening for two consecutive evenings, at a nominal admission fee, affording merriment for all, and at the same time netting satisfactory financial surplus for the Community Club, required the generous co-operation of many workers. This co-operation was given splendidly, and the Community Club is aware of the efforts of all whose work helped make the Lawn Fete so successful. The thanks of the Club cannot be extended individually, therefore this means is taken to give assurance that the assistance given by each and all workers is appreciated fully.

The procession was led by the vestal choir followed by the Rev. Joseph Cooper, Miss Mabel M. Pollard and Supt. Albert E. Holman of the Sunday school. The other departments followed in the order of the age of the children. The young people's singing club was marched in front of the Sunday school departments. Seats were reserved for the Sunday school in the front of the church and 48 of the girls, dressed in white, carried bouquets of flowers. Special music was played by Archbishop Sweeney, organist.

FAREWELL PARTY.

About fifty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Avelon Russell of 10 Middle Turnpike West, gave Mrs. Russell a surprise Saturday evening at her home. She had been induced to go to a theater in Hartford and when she returned she found autos parked for a block in front of her home and her apartment flooded with light. When she entered she was greeted by her friends, most of whom came from Hartford and East Hartford. They had decorated the home in her absence and a buffet lunch had also been prepared. Music and games rounded a most enjoyable evening. Mr. Russell assisted by Clarence Carcoud, did conjuring stunts. Helen Russell, Mrs. Henry Halliday and Miss Mildred Bishop, played piano solos. There also were vocal solos rendered by other talented members of the party. Before the party broke up, Mrs. Russell was presented with a beautiful white gold wrist watch and bracelet, suitably engraved. The reason for the party was that Mrs. Russell and her three children, Betty, Howard and George; also her sister, Mrs. A. Simons, of New York and her two children Gladys and Robert, will leave on June 28 for Summerdale, Newfoundland. It will take five days to make the trip. Mrs. Russell expects to remain away for the next three months. This will be the first time she has seen her mother in 23 years. Mr. Russell is well known in business circles in Hartford where he is the vice president of the Parker
