

TELEPHONE CO. BUYS NEW SITE; A $30,000 DEAL

Bond for Deed Passed for Wilhelmina Smith Lot on East Center St.—To Put Up Exchange Building.

District Superintendent Smith of the Southern New England Telephone Co. from his office in Hartford today verified the rumor that has been going the rounds for the past few days that the company has purchased the Wilhelmina Smith property on East Center street.

The way Mr. Smith puts it: "The property has been located and a bond for a deed passed."

The property in question has a frontage of 78 feet and a depth of 225 feet. It is located just west of the Orange and the home of Charles Stave. There is a house on the property.

Looking to Future.

The superintendent was asked if the company planned to put up its exchange on the lot. He answered that the company always looked to the future and that as soon as it appeared that the present exchange was being crowded, a new exchange would be erected. When that would be he said he did not know.

Present Quarters.

The exchange is now quartered in the Odd Fellows' block at the Center. Local business has increased rapidly in the last few years and it is thought that it will not be very long before larger quarters will be necessary. It is thought that a substantial building will be erected solely for the use of the telephone company with rest rooms, business offices, garages for the trouble men's cars and everything that goes with a modern telephone exchange.

Manager Mum.

L. C. Clifford, Jr., manager of the Manchester and Rockville exchanges was also seen this morning but beyond saying that negotiations had been under way a long time and that the company had been looking over various properties, he referred all inquiries to the Hartford office.

The Fourth Home.

The present location of the telephone exchange is the fourth home of the company. The first was in the Rose block in the North End. Business spread to the South End and grew so rapidly that it was necessary to seek larger quarters and the next home was in the Trotter block. The next move was to Orange hall and then to the Odd Fellows' block where it now is located.

It is the opinion that Center street is an ideal location because it is central. The new location is not far from the Odd Fellows' block which will facilitate the moving. It is also on the main cable lines between Boston and New York.

The negotiations have been transacted through the Robert E. Carney agency.

Although no verification of the figures could be obtained it was learned this morning that the deal involves in the neighborhood of $30,000, about $400 a front foot.

ANDREWS' LETTER IN MELLON'S DESK

Resignation Epistle Is of 200 Words and Puts Limit at September 1.

Washington, July 7.—With Gen. L. C. Andrews' letter of resignation as prohibition director temporarily pigeon-holed on Secretary Mellon's desk, a quiet search already has been undertaken by administration officials to select his successor. It became known today.

Maj. Gen. John E. O'Ryan, who commanded the 77th division in France, and Franklin D'Oiler, former head of the American Legion, are both under consideration.

Proposed by Andrews.

His names were proposed by General Andrews himself in his final conference with Secretary Mellon, at which he presented his resignation, and then was prevailed upon to withhold it until his return from England.

Secretary Mellon, it was learned today, was greatly disturbed by General Andrews' letter. This missive, slightly more than 200 words, set forth that upon his return from England the reorganization of the prohibition enforcement system would be completed. After pointing out that this reorganization was his real mission when he accepted the post, the letter concluded that General Andrews wished to be "relieved" at the pleasure of Mr. Mellon between now and September first.

Andrews Sails.

New York, July 7.—General Lincoln C. Andrews, sailing early today for London to negotiate a new agreement with regard to Anglo-American cooperation for the prevention of liquor smuggling, expressed the hope that discussion of his forthcoming resignation would not injure his negotiations with Great Britain.

General Andrews while stating that he is not resigning now was not unequivocal in his statement. It appeared that he had decided to withhold announcement of his resignation until he had completed his negotiations with Great Britain.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE "ROUGHING IT"

French Hangings, Italian Art Adorn Adirondack 'Cabin' at Which They Arrived This Morning.

Paul Smith's N. Y., July 7.—President Coolidge came today to White Pine Camp, a palace in the wilderness, for rest, recreation and work.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge, with an imposing White House entourage, arrived this morning at Gabriels, the terminus of the presidential special, and were at once whisked in the waiting White House limousines over the mountain roads to the wooded estate, on the shore of Lake Osogood, which will be the summer White House until September.

They found fully prepared for their comfort one of the most elaborate and unusual camps in all the wide stretch of the Adirondacks, a camp which in the past had been the scene of gorgeous entertaining and the mecca of social and artistic New York.

Entrancing Views.

Thirty cabins occupy the wooded promontory, on the south side of the mountain lake, affording an unbroken view of the northern tier of Adirondack peaks, stretching to the Canadian line, forty miles away.

Directly to the north, across the lake, they saw a virgin forest, to which man is relatively a stranger and in which wild game abounds, and to the south, from the crest of the promontory, their eyes feasted upon Blue Mountain lakes, glistening under a bright sun, from Saranac to Plattsburgh.

They went at once to a central group of cabins which they will occupy in a grove of clustered giant white pines which throw their shadows into Osogood Lake.

President and Mrs. Coolidge established themselves in the living cabin, a one-story structure fashioned from the white pine slabs and natural granite of the mountains.

Fires on Hearths.

Crackling wood fires, turned in two enormous fireplaces of pink granite, Archibald White, the New Yorker who had established the camp, had chosen French tapestries and Italian works of art for the decorations of this sumptuous cabin.

President and Mrs. Coolidge found in the living cabin, in evidence of a lavishness surpassing the permanent White House. In this cabin President and Mrs. Coolidge will receive their occasional guests and President Coolidge will do the business of the government. A giant radio will bring entertainment from the outside world. Telephone lines run to the executive offices four miles distant, where a switchboard will bring the President into instantaneous contact with the White House, 600 miles distant.

Paved Walks.

The other cabins in this detached group comprise the sleeping and dining quarters of President and Mrs. Coolidge. They will live in one cabin, sleep in another and dine in the third. Each cabin, twenty yards away, is reached by a nicely paved walk through the pines. Four guest cabins, a bowling and billiard cabin, a Japanese pagoda cabin and quarters for the servants complete the remainder of this heavily cabinated estate.

Elaborate arrangements for the protection of the presidential party were found to be complete when the President arrived. A company of forty marines had already pitched camp upon the grounds. A troop of the state's motorcycle police were in readiness to break traffic jams on the state highway. The President was attended by the usual company of twelve secret service men.

Connecticut Headquarters Are Re-established at New Haven Under Wilson Guard.

New Haven, July 7.—Offices of the United States secret service covering Connecticut will be maintained in the Federal building here in the future, according to a declaration made here today, the offices having been opened after an absence of several years during which they were located in Providence, R. SEARCHERS SEEK SLUSH BUCKET MAN

G. O. P. Penn. Treasurer Has Dodged Senate Subpoena for Three Weeks.

Washington, July 7.—A systematic search of the East for Thomas W. Cunningham, treasurer of the Pennsylvania Republican State Committee and a missing witness, has been ordered by the Senate slush fund committee. It was learned today, in an effort to force him to testify at its inquiry into the Pennsylvania senatorial primary.

The long arm of the Senate has been evaded by Cunningham for the last three weeks, it was announced, although special committee investigators trailed him on two occasions through Pennsylvania and New Jersey with a subpoena.

The missing witness, it was said, twice slipped by the subpoena-server after they had apparently located him, once in Philadelphia and again in Atlantic City.

Search All Summer.

The search for Cunningham, Senator King, Democrat of Utah, acting chairman, declared, will be continued all summer, if necessary, until he does appear to testify. The Pennsylvania inquiry, King said, will not be officially terminated until Cunningham has been on the witness stand.

The committee also has demanded the appearance of Rep. John M. Morin, of Pittsburgh, to tell what he knows about Vore and Pepper expenditures in Allegheny county. He acted as an unofficial manager of the Vore campaign.

Chicago Inquiry.

The committee's inquiry into the Illinois senatorial primary will open Monday, July 26, the committee has definitely decided today. The committee has not decided where the hearings will be, although two Chicago hotels are under consideration.

The ensuing explosion drove pieces of glass into the boys' faces and bodies. Ryan's left eye was so badly hurt that doctors are having a difficult time in an effort to save it.

BANK CANNOT DISAVOW ACTS OF GILPATRIC

Seeks to Disclaim Them Yet Benefit by Them Says Judge in Decision on Cutler Suit.

Hartford, July 7.—G. Harold Gilpatric's dishonest acts as cashier of the Putnam National Bank are chargeable to the bank, according to a decision filed in the Superior court here today by Judge Isaac Wolfe in overruling a defendant's demurrer to the substituted complaint in the suit of the Hartford Trust Company, as trustee under the will of Joseph W. Cutler of Putnam, against George M. Coffin, receiver for the Putnam Bank.

To Cover Bond Deal.

The plaintiff trustee claims the Cutler estate had $42,078 on deposit in the Putnam bank and that when Gilpatric, then state treasurer, was being hard pressed to deliver to the state treasury $200,000 of liberty bonds for which he had already taken state money, he mulcted the Cutler estate of the $42,078. Damages of $45,000 were claimed in the substitute complaint.

"In all the acts making up the history of the transactions in question, except that relating to the purchase for the state of Connecticut of the $200,000 in liberty bonds, Gilpatric, the bank's cashier, used the machinery of the bank to accomplish his fraudulent purposes. By his misappropriation of the funds of this estate he conferred a benefit upon the bank, swelling its resources to that extent."

Seeks to Benefit.

"The bank seeks to disclaim the acts of its cashier but desires to retain the benefit it received from those very acts. The plaintiff was in no position to stop Gilpatric's frauds. The defendant bank was in much better position to know that its managing officer was dishonest and is chargeable with knowledge of the acts of its cashier."

"As the plaintiff's loss occurred through the misconduct of the bank's cashier, the bank and not the estate should in equity bear the loss and the plaintiff is entitled to judgment."

"The demurrer to the substitute complaint is overruled."

FRENCH DEPUTY USES MELLON AMMUNITION

Quotes Secretary in Debate in Opposition to the Debt Agreement.

Paris, July 7.—M. Bouillon, president of the Chamber of Deputies, today declared that the Mellon-Berenger accord presents a three-fold danger, namely: The possibility of exaggeration of the sum due the United States, the absence of a safety clause and the possibility of admitting France's obligations.

M. Bouillon flaunted a copy of an American magazine which carried an article by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon which declared that all the debts paid to the United States would mean as much as a hard-working stabilized Europe.

"Ask America," said Bouillon in a dramatic conclusion, "if it is possible for them to stand idly by and watch the appalling spectacle of a country which has successfully endured the sacrifices of war, crushed and broken by the demands of peace."

There was thunderous applause from all sections when M. Bouillon took his seat.

BRITISH LABORITES PLAN WAR ON REDS

Thomas Accuses Drive on Him Is Directed by the Moscow International.

London, July 7.—The opening of a campaign to stamp out Communist agitation from the ranks of union labor was predicted today in parliamentary labor circles as a possible aftermath of the signal triumph of J. H. Thomas, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, over the extremist element which attempted to oust him from office.

The conference of the National Railway Union accorded Thomas a victory today when it defeated by an overwhelming vote a motion demanding his resignation.

The motion was made on the claim that Thomas had not secured a just award of wages for the railroad workers from the National Railway Wage Board.

Charges Moscow Direction.

Thomas, speaking before the meeting of the union at Weymouth, charged that the "minority movement" which was working against him to be nothing less than the British section of the International Labor Union's revolutionary organization working under direction from Moscow.

Communist documents recently seized and published by the British government revealed that a "minority movement" was working to "organize the working masses of Great Britain to secure the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of a Socialist commonwealth." It remained for Thomas to bring the fight into the open, as far as the National Union of Railwaymen is concerned.

Difficulties Not Over.

Thomas' difficulties are not over, however. The Weymouth conference is scheduled to take up the charges that union officials should have obtained better terms from the railway companies upon the conclusion of the general strike.

Meanwhile, the coal strike situation entered a new phase today with the decision of the government to delay passage of the eight hour bill. The cabinet will meet today to consider the matter.

"Mum's the Word" Policy of Club Owners Keeps Facts from Becoming Known.

Boston, July 7.—Secrecy today surrounded a reported investigation into an alleged shortage of several thousand dollars in the funds of the Boston baseball club of the National League. The shortage was said to have resulted from tampering with the turnstiles at the club's park.

While admitting that an investigation is under way, Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the club, declined to discuss the matter.

"I am leaving for New York to take part in the Christy Mathewson day exercises and expect to return to Boston Friday," he said. "Until the investigation is completed, I don't think it would be fair to the person or persons who may be involved to say anything for publication."

S-51 HITS REEF, GOES UNDER AT JOURNEY'S END

Passes Perilous Hell Gate Safely, Then Strikes East River Rock—May Be Off at High Tide.

New York, July 7.—The ill-fated submarine S-51, in tow to the Brooklyn navy yard from where she sank off Block Island last September, sank a second time shortly after ten o'clock this morning when she hit a rock known as Ferry Reef in the East River off 34th street, Manhattan.

As the submarine crashed into the rock, the steamer Falcon, coming along behind, collided with the pontoons supporting the submarine and the S-51 settled beneath the water. Navy officials declared the boat could be floated and immediately started the work of dragging her off the rock.

Safely Through the Gate.

The submarine had been safely towed through the treacherous waters of Hell Gate, where it had been feared there might be trouble. The end of her voyage was only a very short distance away when the accident occurred.

Freight of heroic dead who went down with her had not met with the slightest accident until the supply ship Vestal towed her into the East River. A strong current runs at this point, and the swirling waters swung the submarine around and against the rock before the conveying ships could change their course.

A fleet of tugs sent by the Brooklyn navy yard was on the scene shortly after the S-51 had grounded in thirty feet of water.

Officials said that if it did not prove feasible to drag off the S-51 a wrecking derrick would be used to lift the craft.

Blame the Pilots.

At low tide, when the water depth is about 24 or 25 feet, it was believed that the S-51 would be visible. At present, the submarine lies in the direct line of river traffic.

Official blame, pending the investigation which will be made has been placed on the pilots, one of whom was aboard the Falcon, the vessel following the cortege and the other who was on duty on the Vestal said the tugs had not followed the Vestal's lead.

Captain W. V. Comb, commandant in the Vestal, had just congratulated his fellows in the way the submersible was towed through the treacherous channel of Hell Gate had been successfully navigated, when he turned to look at the S-51 and shouted:

"She's hit!"

Eye-witnesses said that the submarine stood quite still for a moment and then plunged. The Falcon bumped the pontoons as the S-51 struck and in a few minutes, only air bubbles rising to the surface marked the location of the submarine.

Pontoons Alike.

It was evident that the pontoons had sprung leaks after being bumped by the Falcon, as they settled very low in the water. It was believed that the work of raising the S-51 off the rock would be deferred until low tide.

Admiral Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy yard, was aboard the Falcon until ten minutes before the S-51 struck. Assured that the dangerous feat had been accomplished and that no further mishap was likely, he proceeded to the Brooklyn navy yard to prepare for the reception of the submarine and its escorts.

Police boats patrolled the river, keeping at a safe distance all passing vessels.

Navy yard officials said that it was probable that no great damage had been done to the submarine because of the cautious pace at which the tow was moving.

Not Docked Till Tomorrow.

Rear Admiral Plunkett, returning to the navy yard after going up the river to join the S-51 and its convoy, announced that from present indications the submarine would not be docked until tomorrow, unless divers are successful in replacing the two pontoons which broke away.

The admiral exonerated the pilot.

President As Practical Joker, Makes "Touch" From Detectives

By GEORGE E. DURNO. Washington. — President Coolidge, as has been oftentimes recorded, carries little pocket money with him and on occasion has been forced to borrow trifling sums from secret service men accompanying him for the purchase of newspapers, magazines, etc. Those men who have financed these purchases, however, are beginning to suspect that the executive deliberately borrows nickels and dimes for the sake of practical jokes which he conceives in repaying the loans. Recently, the President was "in" to Dick Jervis, debonaire chief of the White House Secret Service. Detail, to the extent of twenty-five cents, borrowed a nickel at a time. One morning Dick arrived at the White House shortly after ten o'clock to be informed that from eight-thirty on Mr. Coolidge had been inquiring for him at fifteen-minute intervals. Such urgent and repeated summons worried Dick. Something of great moment must have happened, or some important matter was about to come up, he thought. With fair amount of apprehension, Jervis entered the President's office. Mr. Coolidge looked up solemnly from his work, thrust his hand into his pocket and pulled out a quarter and handed it to Dick, then continued with his work not saying a word. The incident worried Dick for some time until he remembered that he had bought the President papers and magazines on several of the night's walks. Another time, the President owed Arnold Landvoigt, also a secret service operative, five cents. Calculating Landvoigt's mental reaction to a nicety, and probably laughing the while in his study, Mr. Coolidge dispatched an usher downstairs one night with a dime. "Give it to Landvoigt," he instructed, "and tell him he may keep the change."

"WHY IS STATE FAIR?" TOLD KIWANIAN TODAY

Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon today learned the detailed plans that have been made for this year's Connecticut State Fair at Hartford. Frank Kingman, manager of the fair, was the guest of the club, and talked for a half hour on what the directors are doing in preparation for the big event of Labor Day week. Mr. Kingman was brought to Manchester through the efforts of Edward J. Holl. Mr. Kingman used a blackboard and charts to outline his story of what has been accomplished and what it is hoped to do between now and September. His subject was "Why is the State Fair?" N. B. Richards and R. LaMotte Russell spoke before the club members telling them about the Hebron camp for Manchester boys which has been sponsored by the club membership. They explained how the camp has been organized and informed the members that 20 boys are today enjoying the place. Dr. Duncan, new house surgeon at the Manchester Memorial hospital, was a guest today. He has just come here from Canada. Another guest was Dr. Grant of Golden, Col., a cousin of Dr. Silas of Manchester. Dr. Grant is a Kiwanian and he told the local members something of the work the organization does in the west. W. George Glenney sent cigars to the members today on the recent addition to his family. ENVOYS DEEM WAR OF CHILE AND PERU CERTAIN. Fifty Comedies---And Still Going

When Hal Roach launched the "Our Gang" feature, he believed the idea might be good for six pic- "Our Gang" and "Uncle Bob" McGowan.

Hollywood, July 7.—Completion of his 50th two-reel "Our Gang" comedy in a period of four years, places Robert McGowan upon a high pedestal among the best directors of motion pictures. These 50—one a month—produced for the Hal Roach company, have created an institution, lavishly ting the antics and emotions and tempests of childhood, which seems destined to go on in films even after the present "Gang" shall have retired in favor of other kids. Appeal to All. The doings of these comic youngsters, of appeal to all ages of their terrors, are the creation almost entirely of McGowan, a middle-aged man who has been at once their director, mentor, chaperone and everything else that might be conjured under the affectionate title the gang has given him, "Uncle Bob." There is no other screen director whose work in anything like a similar field has met with such consistent success. He has never made a picture which has been seriously criticised by any important reviewer. With the same troupe, and the same general idea, he has given variety, freshness and hilarious episodes innumerable. He has had the children to "bother with" almost every minute—problems and disputes to settle which are usually left to parents or teachers. Time for schooling and sickness have cut in seriously on his production. And "Uncle Bob" has added many gray hairs during these last few years.

20 BOYS ARRIVE AT HEBRON CLUB

First Group from Town Enjoying Country Life as Guests of Kiwanis Club.

A member of the Hebron Game club wouldn't recognize it today. There, in the deep woods of Hebron are 20 boys, children of Manchester who have not had the privileges that their more fortunate brothers and sisters enjoy. They are the guests of the Manchester Kiwanis club which has taken over the job this year of giving 80 poor children two weeks in the country.

First Group Arrives
The first group of children, flushed with happiness and excitement, arrived at the club yesterday and will stay there two weeks. While at the camp they will sleep in a new dormitory which has recently been built by the Kiwanis club, will enjoy the freshness of the green trees, the clear woodland air and will dip sport themselves in a swimming pool on land owned by Frank Cheney, Jr. of this town.

Country a Novelty
Two weeks in the country is a novelty to most of the children who have never been in the country for any length of time. Many of them come from the East side of the town and some of the under-nourished ones are members of the open air schools of the town, children to whom the two weeks' vacation will do a world of good.

A Cheerful Lot
The boys at the camp are a cheerful lot and have rather good appetites for it was found that they had consumed more than 25 quarts of milk the first day they were there. This according to the directors of the camp, is a good sign. Their appetites will have an opportunity to work into shape for the hikes planned by Director Lloyd Russell will take them into many parts of the 2,800 acres controlled by the Hebron club.

Director Russell, who is a native of Derby, is a graduate of Springfield college and was an athlete of some note at that institution. He will be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dean of Sterling street who will act as assistant director and matron, and Mrs. M. C. Smith, also of the North End, as cook.

Trouble with Well
Some trouble has been experienced while digging the well. The shaft has been sunk 135 feet and the water is coming in at the rate of three and one-half gallons a minute. Five gallons a minute are needed but until the water starts to come in at that rate there is a sufficient supply at the club. The new dormitory was all ready for the boys when they arrived and the clubhouse is being used by the staff.

In order to raise money for the expenses of the camp this year the Kiwanis club is bringing to Manchester the Jitney Players who will appear in several plays at Educational Square on July 16.

HEBRON

The American Legion gave a dance at the town hall on the evening of July 3rd. Music was by Case's orchestra, of Buckland and the dance was well attended.

Special services in honor of Independence Day were held at the churches. The Rev. W. W. Malcomb of the Congregational church preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion. At St. Peter's church there was special music. James Martin of East Hartford was present and assisted in the choir. The Rev. T. D. Martin gave a brief review of history of the Revolutionary period, showing that there was liberality of feeling and sympathy for the colonial view point on the part of many of the British at that time. A prayer composed by George Washington, was used in the day's service.

A lecture on Thomas Jefferson was given at the library at 4 p. m. Sunday, by the Rev. Lewis Field Hite, professor of philosophy and theology in Cambridge, New Church School of Theology. Professor Hite is well qualified to speak on the subject as his grandfather was a personal friend of the great founder of democracy and from his father the speaker had learned much of the life and personality of Jefferson. He spoke of Jefferson's service to the cause of education in the founding of the University of Virginia and in his advanced ideas on the subject of education in general. He also declared that Jefferson was first to urge the doing away with slavery. Professor Hite has been requested to give a second lecture dwelling on the phases of the times as affected by the difference in viewpoint between Jefferson and Adams. Professor Hite is a graduate of the University of Virginia. Jefferson himself designed the early college buildings and personally superintended their erection. These buildings were described as having unusual architectural beauty. Karl Rogers and his son Lester of Ellington were visitors on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Miner.

Carlton H. Jones pitched for the Glastonbury baseball team in a game played with East Hampton on Monday. The Glastonbury team was victorious in a score of 6 to 3.

Mrs. Jared Tennant is at the Hartford hospital for treatment. It is thought that an operation may be necessary.

amples of Hebrew and Chinese music.

A big demonstration was held at the park on Hebron Green Monday evening. There was band playing by the Columbia orchestra, fire works, and a dance at the hall to wind up. The crowd was the largest in some years for a celebration of the kind. Leonard Porter, son of tax collector Clarence E. Porter, received a flesh wound from a toy pistol in playing with boy companions.

Miss Irene Ziglatsky of Hartford was a guest for a few days over the week end as a student at St. Peter's school, returning to Hartford on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Robinson motored to Williamstown, Mass., where they were guests of Professor and Mrs. Monroe Wetmore. Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson and Professor and Mrs. Wetmore will start on a motor trip across the continent to visit California.

An afternoon picnic party was participated in by the members of St. Peter's school at the point known as "The Stone Horse." Twenty-two members were present.

TOBACCO GROWERS IN BETTER STATE

Condition of Industry Improves Along With All N. E. Agriculture.

Springfield, Mass., July 7.—New England's farmers are entering the second half of 1926 in much better financial condition than a year ago, although the general trend of agricultural conditions in this district is still not as favorable to the farmer as it should be, said E. H. Thomson, president of the Federal Land Bank.

Additional proof of the improved financial condition of the New England farmer this summer is shown also at the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange. There, records show a record increase for the half year period in carloads of grain and feed handled. Furthermore, June was the fourth consecutive month in which their business exceeded that of the previous month by more than 100 carloads.

New England Advances.
New England farmers, lodged in a section of the country whose agricultural resources have often been looked upon as trivial when compared with the vaster resources of the Western grain belts and dairy centers, have been steadily forging ahead.

While New England farmers have not rushed to Congress with a plea for financial aid in order to enable them to survive their economic crisis, they have been consistently working forward, building with the aid of co-operative purchasing organizations, increased facilities for efficient crop production and taking advantage of the financial facilities afforded by the Federal Land Bank system.

It is interesting to note that while New England's agricultural trend has shown a marked growth, the same can not be said for New York state, which is also included in the Federal Land Bank District. "I believe that the relatively backward conditions in New York are due to unusually adverse weather conditions this season," said Mr. Thomson, "rather than to the farmers themselves."

New England's agricultural industry is improving all the time, Mr. Thomson says, and his opinion is based on the consistent growth shown through the records of the Federal Land Bank. The tobacco industry in the Connecticut Valley District, although its troubles have been given wide publicity through the projected "tobacco holiday," of last fall, is now in a fair way to solve its own economic problem, through the tightened credit restrictions enforced by the banks and the fertilizer dealers, and the consequently reduced acreage throughout the valley this season, he said.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 1926.

PAEAN.

This is one of the many special occasions which supplement the continuous, everyday occasion that people living in such places as Manchester have for self congratulation that their lot does not compel them to exist as atoms in the population of a great city.

The New York subway strike is just another of the constantly recurring evidences of the egregious blunder of overcrowding.

Not a few persons, but hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of people are called on to undergo the most exhausting, nerve racking experiences in the mere matter of getting to their jobs and back again—forced into unspeakable jams, jostled, harried, rough-housed, lucky to get through with nothing worse than ruined clothes, trampled feet and wrecked tempers.

And without any way at all of escaping except to stay at home—and lose the bread and butter.

Living in a huge hive like New York, for any except the extremely small proportion who are rich enough to command comfort even where comfort is well nigh inaccessible, is a difficult enough business when everything is working at its best.

To be compelled to go through the experiences that are inevitable when any little thing goes wrong, such as this strike of a few disgruntled subway employees, is almost as bad as being conscripted, for a war.

There is no economic, cultural, political or other advantage in the creation of these monstrous human hives. There is no better reason for them than that they happen.

And there are at least ten thousand reasons why they should not be allowed to happen.

Let us small city folk who run no risk of ever undergoing the miseries of compulsory subway riding, let alone a subway strike, be alive to the blessings of our condition and give devout thanks that we are not New Yorkers.

ANDREWS.

An extraordinary situation came about in Washington yesterday, with one press association stating as an unqualified fact that General L. C. Andrews, prohibition chieftain, had resigned, other press associations busily denying the report and the White House and the secretary of the treasury backing up these denials.

Yet the original disseminator of the statement refused to retract and notified its clients that its correspondent had himself seen the resignation letter and had positive knowledge that it had gone forward.

In our mind there is no question whatever that General Andrews did resign—not of immediate effect but with the understanding that he would continue in office until after his European trip, as the dispatch in this newspaper stated. If he was induced thereafter to withdraw the resignation temporarily, for a reason that ought to have been obvious to him and everybody else before he tendered his notice of quittance, the White House and the Treasury might easily justify their announcement that he had not resigned—for in a strained sense it would be true.

That obvious reason is the quite impossible situation that would arise if Andrews were to go to England and other European countries on the special business of getting their governments to help us enforce the Volstead act while he himself stood in the position of having given up the task as a hopeless one.

It is a sufficiently ridiculous thing for the United States to be going to countries that make a business of manufacturing liquor for the United States trade and begging them to please shut down their distilleries and throw their workers out of jobs to help the Anti-Saloon League make good its promises to its contributors. It would be still more ridiculous to have General Andrews the agent for the transmission of the request after he had thrown up the sponge.

There can be hardly a doubt that it is just that angle of the case that has produced these frantic denials of his resignation—and its temporary withdrawal.

COUNTRY FACTORIES.

The voice of Senator Sheppard of Texas is not heard as often as some others and when he does speak he does not always talk sense. But in the closing days of the recent session of the Sixty-ninth Congress he brought forward a proposition on which it is much to be hoped that he will concentrate in the next session all the force that he has hitherto wasted in advocacy of continued Volstead aridity.

For in his new idea the Texas senator has hit upon a thought which may, at the end, prove to be about the biggest thought that America has had in many a decade. He would restore the little industries of the small town, the village and the farming community to the status of sixty or seventy years ago.

That he was not talking through his hat is indicated by the following preamble and resolution which he introduced late in the session and which he proposes, he says, to press for consideration when Congress meets again:

"Whereas the further development of manufacturing processes is one of the most important and powerful means of increasing the Nation's efficiency, wealth, and prosperity; and

"Whereas the distribution of knowledge among the people as to the practicability of conducting manufacturing processes, both with and without machinery, on the co-operative plan and otherwise, and with the smallest practical units of capital, equipment, and marketing area, will open up new channels of occupation and achievement; and

"Whereas the adaptation of modern machinery to small factories in rural districts, villages, towns, as well as cities and larger areas, will open up new avenues of economic independence to the people; and

"Whereas recent scientific research has shown that an increasing number of finished products may be made from raw materials hitherto marketed almost wholly in unfinished form; and

"Whereas it is important that communities, counties, and larger divisions should know the possibilities of the development of local materials into finished products within or near their own limits; and

"Whereas the development of electric power has a vital bearing on manufacturing and the question of smaller operating units: Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Committee on Manufacture is hereby authorized and directed to investigate the advisability of the appointment of a committee of experts to study the matters mentioned in the foregoing preamble and to report through said Committee on Manufacture to Congress as to the best means of developing and diffusing among the people information relative to such matters."

Let us go along with Mr. Sheppard for a few steps and see what facts he has discovered: It has been asserted that France has the widest wealth distribution of any country in the world because its farmers operate small factories, supplementary to their agricultural activities, and that this fact makes individual ownership of farms by those who operate them so general in Europe.

Some years ago it was reported that the average number of workers in the more than nine thousand factories of Paris was less than six. It is calculated that a fourth of all Belgian industrial workers have not more than three operators each, outside the manager.

That there is room in America, and especially in New England, for a very important movement to return to the little country factory is hardly to be doubted—with a tremendous multiplication of the opportunity for independent ownership, of "opportunity" in the very best sense.

It is to be seriously hoped that the Sheppard idea will neither be laughed at nor overlooked. We are suffering heavily from too close concentration, in our manufacturing industries. There are some in which it is necessary. And it is highly probable that there are some that can be operated better in the old way—in the little shop—than in the new way, in the big one. At all events we should find out.

SOUTH, G. O. P.

A great many persons of opposite political faith have always felt that Governor Al Smith of New York had in very unusual degree the qualities of the bright politician—a keen understanding of what to do and what not to do. But these folk are rapidly coming to the conclusion that Smith's political wisdom is strictly limited to the field in which he was brought up—to the cockney outlook of the typical New Yorker.

That Smith has learned nothing from the disastrous experience of 1924 is certain—the lesson of that horrible Democratic convention was completely lost on him. Else he would never be doing what he is doing now—once more announcing himself as a candidate for the Presidency.

It is entirely possible that by getting rid of the majority rule in the next Democratic convention Smith may be able, through intensive political work for the next two years, to achieve the Democratic nomination. And that, evidently, is as far as he is able to see into the future.

That he will carry fewer states than John W. Davis, against either Mr. Coolidge or any other Republican candidate for the Presidency, is as obvious to everybody outside his own immediate following as it appears to be hidden from the New York governor, who seems to entirely miss the point that he is absolutely unavailable as a candidate to the very states where the Democratic party must look for the bulk of its electoral vote.

Smith can carry New York, Boston, probably Chicago. But these are cities and do not have electoral votes. He might carry Louisiana among the Southern states; there is hardly a chance that he would carry any others.

The candidacy of Al Smith, if it is brought about, will be the occasion for welcoming most of the Southern states into the Republican party.

TEXAS.

Who in New England has cared a rap, in many a bygone year, because the grass of Texas was reported as having all dried up and the cattlemen were reported as having to market their stock prematurely? Texas is a long way off.

But now that Texas is laughing in her joy over such grass as she has never known, and such fat cattle as she has never before produced, and all because she has had wonderful, bountiful rains, we begin to notice Texas and to scowl a bit, wondering why a big slob of a place like that should have all that rain while we are simply drying up, here in New England.

It makes a difference whose ox is gored.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART Washington, July 6.—Williamsburg, Va., is one of the oldest towns in the country.

It is strong on historical buildings and spots.

It has a "Washington's headquarters" of course. No self-respecting town in this section of the country is without one of those. It has a church which the old colonial governor used to attend, even before Washington's time. It has a venerable prison, where imprudent individuals once were incarcerated for debt.

And it has the site on which formerly stood the first theater built in America.

This old theater burned down a long time ago but Williamsburg is going to reconstruct it now.

William and Mary College donated the land. New York theatrical interests are going to put up at least part of the money. Williamsburgers who take pride in their town's ancient associations, and the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce are backing the movement.

It will be an up-to-date theater and it will stand exactly where America's first theater stood.

Virginia was the American drama's cradle, anyway.

Up in New England the colonists were too bluenosed to stand for that kind of frivolity, but the Virginia contingent were cavaliers. They produced plays even before they had a regular playhouse to produce them in. They did it informally but they were real plays. We know that, because we have a record of one, put on in Accomack county, across Chesapeake Bay from Williamsburg, in 1665.

That was the first play there's any historical mention of in what is now the United States.

It was called "Ye Bare and Ye Cub."

Some Earl Carroll of the day appears to have been the producer, for they say it was a bit risque.

At any rate, a complaint was made to the magistrates, who ordered all the actors and actresses to appear in costume—such costumes as the actresses had—and give a performance that the bench might see and hear for itself whether it was improper or not.

To the complainant's disgust, the court liked it. It dismissed his charge and made him pay the costs. The historian saith not if there was a girl in the cast.

The Williamsburg theater was opened in 1716.

It belonged to William Livingston, a Williamsburg merchant, who, "on the side," taught dancing throughout King William county.

Livingston had two pupils, Charles and Mary Stagg, of whom he was particularly proud. He made up his mind they were too good for anything but a genuine theater.

So he built one, contracting to star Charles and Mary in it, and to bring additional performers, scenery and music "out of England."

Thus William Livingston became the first impresario in this continent.

He deserves his new theater, on the site of his original one, as a monument to him.

IN NEW YORK

New York, July 7.—Colorful religious pageantry, breathing of other worlds and other times, blossoms in New York's East Side at this season of the year.

Splendid golden shrines from Italy appear suddenly, climbing the fronts of drab tenement buildings.

And this is the signal for a festa spirit to spread through the neighborhood. Overnight the block is hung with flags and the curbsones become lined with hucksters whose carts are piled with inviting candies from foreign lands, odd toys, fruits and nuts and other holiday goodies.

The pageants travel first to this district and to that, celebrating one saint and then another.

While the immediate celebrants are those of one religious faith, yet the children of all faiths and all nations seize upon the opportunity, as children will, to enjoy a holiday.

Bands are heard blaring in the streets, hearing a procession that blends deep solemnity with buffoonery.

Just behind the band appears a giant shrine, carried upon the shoulders of devout ones who urge offerings to the church and saint.

For a moment the mongrel identity of the East Side is lost behind the illusion of ancient ceremonial. Reflection from the gold-enamelled fronts of cheap stores and tenements.

The garish signs announcing sales and bankruptcies seem suddenly out of place. The very figures, in their $18.90 store clothes, seem incongruous as they march along their splendid burden.

At no other season and in no other place does the old world seem quite so close.

More and more the things of America come to play in part in these half-solemn, half-merry fiestas.

Crepe paper, left over from Christmas and Fourth of July, appears on stands. Confetti and serpentine are hawked from the pavements.

One thing at which I have always marveled is the respect these feste times get from the impish and impulsive street gamins.

These youngsters, of many creeds, are first to jibe and prank on all the other occasions, but now they become tame, into a tractable and well behaved lot.

Upon the corners stand venerable old orthodox Jews in their skull-caps, smiling and nodding at the pageantry of an alien sect.

It is one of New York's most colorful panoramas. Just near Mount Carmel, at the edge of the Bronx, is hung with blue and gold for St. Antonio.

Sashes of blue and gold hang from the belts of paraders and three times daily they march through the streets bearing their shrines with a great army of candle bearers in its wake.

DAILY POEM

INTERFERENCE.

The evening meal is over and you've got some time to kill. Ya park beside the radio to get your nightly thrill. The rhythm of the sweet melody, it seems, has got the knack of bringing people back to life, when nerves are out of whack.

There isn't any static and the air outside is clear. It's just the proper night to tune on stations far and near. There are lectures, there are there are ball scores; and it's certain you can get the type of stuff you're craving for.

As ya read the evenin's program and start turnin' dials 'round, you are satisfied completely every time a station's found. Then there comes a loud commotion; in the house a kiddie darts, and he's followed by his sister. Then the interference starts.

In a moment there is bedlam. "Daddy" this, an "daddy" that. Then the good wife adds her voice because the kids have had a spat. Yes, siree, the night is bully, and the radio is clear—but, between the wife and kiddies, how the dickens can ya hear?

KAPLAN SURRENDERS HIS WORLD'S TITLE

Nutmeg State Loses Only Claim to World's Championship When Meriden Fighter Decides He Can No Longer Make Featherweight Poundage.

Connecticut lost her only world champion yesterday when Louis "Kid" Kaplan of Meriden renounced the featherweight throne because he finds it too hard to make the featherweight limit of 125 pounds. Kaplan handed in his resignation to the New York State Athletic Commission. It is Kaplan's plan to attempt to wrest the lightweight title from Sammy Mandell, the recently crowned champion of that division.

The ordeal he went through in getting down to the weight for Bobbie Garcia in order to save his weight forfeit convinced Kaplan he would impair his health if he ever attempted it again.

He became champion as a result of an elimination tournament sponsored by the Boxing Fathers when Johnny Dundee "vacated" the title for the same reason that Kaplan gives for deserting the commission, and in all probability the board will institute another tournament to determine who is the worthy successor to the title now relinquished by Kaplan.

Kaplan knocked out Danny Kramer, a Philadelphia southpaw, in the final for the title in the commission tournament. It was one of the best fights between little men seen in years.

Kaplan recently defended his title at Hartford against Bobby Garcia whom he knocked out after a slugfest match. Though he triumphed over the man who had given him his hardest battle in the eliminations, Kaplan became convinced he never would be able to make the weight again.

Chairman James A. Farley of the State Athletic Commission said last night the matter of another tournament probably will come before its regular meeting Friday.

"In my opinion such an affair might be too long drawn out to be interesting," he said. "Without having had time to give the matter consideration, I would say that Red Chapman, who has been denied the chance at the title a couple of times, is entitled to his opportunity."

Chapman and Kaplan had been scheduled to fight this summer.

Diamond is Disputed Decided
 by BILLY EVANS

What are rights of baserunners to advance on an infield fly and are the two big leagues uniform in this ruling?

The two major leagues once differed on the interpretation of the rule, but for some years have agreed on same.

Relative to the advancement of baserunners on an infield fly, there is no difference between it and any other fly ball that is caught or dropped.

While the batsman is automatically retired, said action does not affect the baserunners. If the ball is caught they must return to their bases to avoid being doubled. If dropped, they can advance at their own peril.

No longer is there any air of mystery about the advancement of runners on an infield fly, they simply do so at their peril as on any other fly ball that is caught or dropped.

PRELIMS IN GOLF AT SCIOTO TODAY

Curtain Raiser in Ohio Centers on Jones vs. MacFarlane Feature Play.

Columbus, Ohio, July 7.—The back-breaking, nerve-racking layout of the Scioto Country Club here of the National Open Golf championship 24 hours hence, will be pinnacled with class today as Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen and Willie MacFarlane, the big three of golf, will re-touch the edges of their play in preparation for the big moment. They will take part in the amateur-pro event, curtain raiser for the championship, and so will many of the remaining stars in the field of 63 that will leave the first tee in the championship proper tomorrow.

The big three will team up in the feature four ball match of the day, Jones pairing with Watts Gunn, his best friend and severest critic, against Hagen and MacFarlane. The crowd will simply swarm all over this one. It couldn't be otherwise.

For one thing, it will want to see how Jones, greatest figure in golf today as a result of his victory in the British open, will size up with MacFarlane, the man who beat him in a special play-off for the American open title last year. The Jones versus Hagen element, which was uppermost in the recent dash toward the British title, which Hagen had won twice previously, also was a crowd pleaser. Even the presence of Gunn will not detract anything from the general interest in this foursome, the young Atlanta having chased Jones right into the Oakland Amateur championship at Oakmont last year. In addition to giving a generally sparkling performance in the British amateur event.

However, the man who thinks that Jones, Hagen and MacFarlane have the field to themselves is a man who may be minus a lot of serious to money when the tournament is over. Jones, even though a general favorite today, was quoted at no better than 8 to 3, with Hagen a staunch second choice at ten to one.

In fact, the premises fairly teemed with ex-holders of the title, the list including Gene Sarazen, "Chick" Evans, Cyril Walker, Jim Barnes and Hagen himself. Furthermore, no one was reading men like MacDonald Smith, Al Watrous, runner-up to Jones abroad, Bill Mehlhorn, Bobby Cruikshank, Jock Hutchinson, first American to win the British open, George Von Elm, who tied Hagen abroad, and Fred McLeod, out of the party without a second look.

They were only a casual few among the big timers, at that. As a matter of fact, with all the champions, past and present, lined up for the tournament, it looked like the greatest open championship since Francis Ouimet first took American golf out of the primary grades by beating Ted Ray and Harry Vardon for that never-to-be-forgotten title at Brooklyne.

SECRETS OF STARS INSIDE BASEBALL

as told to BILLY EVANS BY SHORTSTOP EVERETT SCOTT Who Played 1807 Consecutive Games

There are two set rules that every shortstop must religiously follow if he wants to be a success. They are: Be on your toes and try to handle every ground ball on the big bound.

It is fatal for a shortstop to be caught flat-footed. It prevents him from breaking with the pitch and cutting down his ground-covering possibilities by a couple of steps.

The successful shortstop must be alert physically as well as mentally.

With runners on the bases, try to figure out in advance what you will do with the ball, provided it comes in your direction and the play is up to you.

Handling ground balls is an easy matter if you are able to play the big bound. It is the "between-bounds" that are troublesome.

When the ball is hit, the shortstop must calculate the bounds the ball will take before he makes a play on it and try to be in a position to get the big hop.

It is impossible to figure certain batted balls, such as line drives that strike the ground a few feet in front of the player about to handle them.

On such balls the shortstop must place his hands where he believes the ball will come and trust to luck. I have always tried to get the jump on every ball. This enables one to be more accurate as to throwing, not being hurried.

The batter's speed always influences the position of a shortstop and his throw. He should play deep on slow men, close in on the fast runners. He should time his throw to suit the speed of the man he is making a play on.

A close study of each batsman is a great help. Knowing the field to which he usually hits and the style ball about to be pitched, the shifting of a few feet often makes possible a play on a ball that would otherwise go through for a base hit.

THE NUT CRACKER

THE BIG TRADE
 Johnny Bull has filed international demerit to "The Big Parade" on grounds American eagle has given four more close ups than British lion.

Lifting his fourth chin from expansive cauldron of rare mutton Jonathan means in choicest cockney that movie distillers have served him awful mess of smelt.

The old boy needed himself with 17 brandy sodas and went into a cinema theatre to ogie the movie, that has been called masterpiece of screen.

It may have been a "Big Parade" when Jonathan went in, but it was nothing less than a big trade when he came out and began unlimbering his tonels.

He conceded film was faithful misrepresentation of war time pranks and entire spectacle was projected with beautiful idiosyncy and human imbecility.

What puzzled him most is that there were no clowns, toso-twisting ladies, blood sweating hippos or rube bands to make it like other parades which it is his haughty custom to ignore.

Glaring inaccuracies were readily detected by official bouncer at No. 10 Dowling street, who demanded to know in high-geared octaves why:
 (1) Joe Beckett was left out.
 (2) Bernard Shaw was omitted.

BASEBALL GAME, BAND CONCERT AND CHARLESTON CONTEST ALSO

City of Rockville to Send Hundreds of Representatives to Battle Manchester Athletic Teams—Charleston Supremacy to Be Decided.

Pospall, Trade school ace of the past season, will take the mound in behalf of the Sons of Italy against the pick of the Hill City on Rockville night at the West Side playgrounds this evening. The umpiring will be done by Ralph Russell and Mul McCarthy who have volunteered their services for the occasion.

The baseball game will usher in the festivities and from then on the night will be full of contests which will bring together teams and individual players from this town and Rockville. There are to be volleyball matches, tennis matches of singles and doubles teams and horseshoe pitching tournaments in which the best in Manchester will stack up against the Rockville champions.

Then, at the dance, Manchester and Rockville Charleston experts will battle for the championship of the two towns and the winner will be awarded a suitable prize. This part of the evening's entertainment will take place about 10 o'clock and entries will be accepted up to the beginning of the dance.

The Rockville City band, under a new leader, will play for about three hours on the grounds while the contests are going on. The new leader has promised that there will be no waits between numbers as there have been formerly. The concert will go on without any tedious intervals of waiting but an intermission of 15 minutes will be allowed the bandmen at the half-way mark.

Rockville hot dogs, soda, ice cream and other refreshments will be sold at the canteen from start to finish. It was found last year that Manchester people are the greatest consumers of hot dogs in this section for more than 1,000 of them were disposed of at the last Rockville night here.

Directors of the Recreation Center look forward to one of the largest attended affairs in the history of the town this evening. They are judging from the Rockville night of last year when more than 4,000 people listened to the band concert and watched the contests at the West Side.

The rivalry of days gone by flamed up again for the occasion

WORTH KNOWING

- In only one out of the last 10 seasons has Max Carey, sensational basestealer of the Pirates, failed to pifer more than 35 sacks. That was in 1918 when Max took part in but 68 frays, swiping 18 cushions.
- Five times over that period he has passed the 50 mark in going down and arriving safely. In 1922 being caught but twice in 53 attempts.
- Two years ago he was one short of the half-century figure.
- Since 1916 Carey's best work was 58 steals, chalked up in 1918. His premier major league effort, however, was 63, made 10 years ago.

NATIONALS USE MANY PLAYERS THESE DAYS.

Washington's lineup is getting to resemble a crazy quilt. Manager Harris has been using close to two full teams every day, inserting pinch-hitters and pinch-runners whenever the occasion demands, which has been often of late. Relief hurlers are also getting plenty of work the way the Nat regular gunners are being touched by the opposition.

SEWELL TIES FAN MARK IN FIRST TWO MONTHS.
 Last year Joe Sewell, Cleveland shortstop, was the toughest chap in the American League to strike out, Joe fanned but four times. This season, the diminutive infielder took three whiffs the first time he stepped to the plate in the opening game of the campaign and, with the chase one-third over, has already struck out as many times as he did during the entire 1925 race.

BEGIN HERE TODAY JOHN AND FAY MILBURN, to whom a baby girl has just been born, think they are justified in buying a home of their own when the young advertising agency in which John is a partner lands an important new contract.

"Here," he said to Fay, "handing her the baby, 'I'll call Dick Menefee,' and he grabbed for the telephone." Young Dr. Menefee was over in a big time. "Well, what's the trouble?" he demanded cheerily. "Don't tell me this young lady is getting temperamental."

Waynes are giving next week for Clifton Lane. That's the man Clara is engaged to marry. "Clifton Lane!" John repeated with a comical frown. "Sounds more like a street than a man. Oh, well, what's in a name, as Shakespeare says? I once knew a man named Bersack, and he never touched a drop in his life."

"I hope Dick makes a lot of money. I hope he makes barrels of it."

John does all the firm's advertising copy writing. His partner, NATHANIEL GRAHAM, takes care of the business details. Previous chapters told how John, while Fay was in the hospital, met NELL ORME at a swimming party and was attracted by her beauty and puzzled when PAT FORBES, his host, told him Nell was having trouble with her husband.

John and Fay were sitting at the table when the young doctor came. "I'll be here in a few minutes, first issuing a few quiet instructions and asking a terse question or two. Judith slept soundly the rest of the night." A week later there was a telegram from Mrs. Turner, Fay's mother, announcing her plans for visiting them.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Nancy picked up Inco, the china elephant, in her arms, and Nick picked up Flops, the toy clown. Then they followed the Sandman out of Shut-Eye Town, and down the road of Drowsy Land to the tall blue gate.

Snoozlesnuglesnore, the queer little moon man, opened the gate with a large key and let them out. Then he shut it again and locked it.

Right outside of the blue gate a bright moonbeam slanted down toward the earth like a sliding board.

"Come on," called the Sandman, sitting down and straddling it, his bag of sleepy sand slung over his shoulder. "Wrap your legs around it so you won't fall off—like I do."

So the Twins sat down, and scarcely had they touched it when whizz! Down they flew, and in about six seconds they had reached the earth.

Just in time too, for a big black cloud went over the moon at that minute and the moonbeam disappeared.

"Now you go that way and I'll go this," said the Sandman. "And here are two tickets, the Man-in-the-Moon told me to give you. You should be in bed, but as this is something very special, you may stay up tonight to attend to it. These tickets are for the circus. There is the big tent right there. The show is just beginning."

So the Twins went in and nobody thought it queer to see two children without a grown-up. I suppose, they thought.

But there! The chief thing now is to tell you exactly what happened.

Well, just as the Twins arrived the elephants came in for their act holding each others tails with their trunks.

"I couldn't do that," said Inco to Nancy in a low voice. "I haven't any tail."

"But you could come at the end of the line," said Nancy. "You wouldn't need a tail."

"That's so," said Inco. After that the elephants did all sorts of things. They played ball and danced, and bowed, and stood on their hands, I mean their front feet, and beat drums with sticks tied to their tails, and played tambourines and balanced on barrels, and sea-sawed.

Everybody clapped so hard at that that Inco said, "I wish I could do that. I think I could if I was a really elephant."

Flops was saying to Nick, "I could do all those clown tricks if I was a really clown."

And then something happened. There came from some place, nobody knew where, a lovely white coach that glittered like a million diamonds. White pigeons and doves sat all over it and it was pulled by eight white horses. In it sat a beautiful lady who bowed and smiled as she passed.

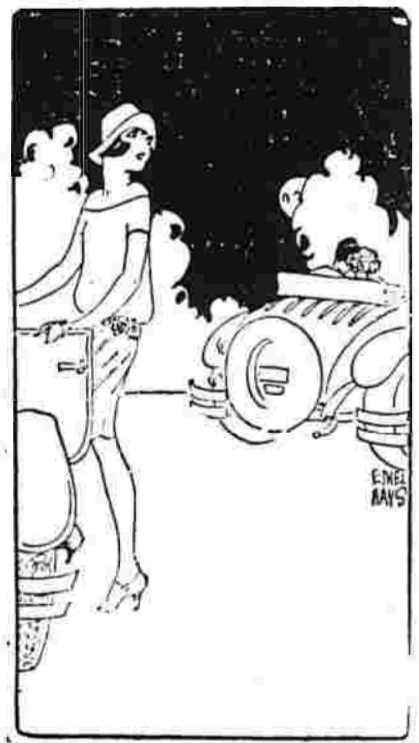

Everybody cheered, but they would have cheered more if they had known that she was the Fairy Queen.

Instantly a pure white elephant with garlands or real roses appeared walking slowly behind her coach. On his back was a clown in a white suit, who blew kisses to the Twins.

Inco and Flops had disappeared but the Twins knew that they had their wish at last.

This year, as usual, Sir Thomas Lipton donated a silver cup to the winner of a yacht race. Here is a note given by him to an impatient spectator just an hour before the start of the race. It is written in code so that it will help the recipient while away the tedious hour. Every letter is merely a straight substitute for another letter.

What is the translation of the note?

Last puzzle answer: Each magazine boy took 640 papers as his morning supply. Each gave 1-16 of those or 40 papers to each of 12 newsboys. In other words they gave 480 papers away. This left them with a remainder of 160 papers. Each newsboy received 40 papers from 3 different boys, or 120 papers. Therefore each magazine boy had 40 more papers than each newsboy.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

It was Sunday morning in the graveyard of a country town church. A tramp had stopped in his rambles to eat his early morning lunch on one of the graves. A short distance away a man was sitting on a bench gazing lazily across the collection of tombstones. It was spring and the tramp being of a philosophical nature said aloud, "Ah, this sort of weather makes things spring up."

The man on the bench registered horror as he rushed up to the tramp and said, "hush, hush, I've got three wives buried here."

Sisterly Love: A girl who'd trust herself to the end of the earth with a man often wouldn't trust her pal to the end of the street with him.

Nothing in melodrama equals the gorgeous thrill of finding a quarter in a pocket of last year's overcoat.

Young man in street car (handing her vanity case to the pretty young thing that has dropped it): "Keep that school-girl complexion."

"What makes you think he is conceited?" "He had a birthday last week and he sent a telegram to congratulate his mother."

When a girl's so thin she can't hide behind a violin bow there's no use playing.

Small Boy: "Please, sir, father wants to know if it is true that there is such a thing as a tobacco trust?"

Grocer: "Yes, my lad, there is." "Well, father would like to be trusted with a can."

JUST LIKE MODERN MAN Old Nebuchadnezzar, the King of the Jews,

Had liver complaint and likewise the blues. He reared and he raved, and he kicked the cat, and he tore his hair and jumped on his hat.

For old Nebby's temper was ragged in spots. You could hear him cuss across ten city lots.

When State affairs vexed him or a touch of the gout— And the doctor said smoking would cure him no doubt.

And he said to himself, "Now I wonder, by Heck, Though I should never see the back of his neck, If that doctor has lied, he's going to be sorry. But I'll get me a dudeen and try it be Gorry."

So old Nebby jumped about four feet in the air, and landed a running like forty, I swear.

Nor stopped his mad race till a mile down the street, and he nearly bowled over the cop on his back.

Well he entered the store kept by Tony the Greek. Where he puffed and he panted until he could speak. And roared in the most highly approved kingly manner, For smoking tobacco, by Jingoos to Hanner.

And Tony he hustled his record for speed, and sold him a pound of the very best weed. The last time I saw him, he wasn't ugly nor spiteful, His temper improved with each fragrant pipetul.

"I will fight at least twice this year,"—Jack Dempsey. Fight what?

May: Rumor has it that you are going to marry Jack. Laura: I shouldn't dream of marrying him. He can't drive a car, dance or play tennis.

"But he swims well, you know." "Yes; but would you want a husband you had to keep in an aquarium?"

Customer: "May I try on that frock in the window?" New Assistant: "Not with the blinds up, Madame!"

She went through hubby's pockets. Yes. It was a mighty stunt. And, once, when he awakened—well, He promptly helped her hunt.

He called upon the tailor shop, To get a suit his aim. But, shucks, he couldn't get a fit. Yet had one just the same.

How can two red lips drive away the blues unless colors clash?

He asked his girlie for her hand in marriage, so to speak. And, did she give it to him? Yes. She did—upon the cheek.

"SAFE AND SANE" PLAN TO SAFEGUARD FOURTH NEXT YEAR SCHOOL ST. DUMP

Citizen Thinks That Town Will Save Money if an Ordinance is Passed.

It is probable that at the next town meeting a motion will be introduced to make the Fourth of the doings over the week-end when roisterers tore down awnings and did other damage in town. It was also learned this morning that the ringing of the Center church bell put the fire alarm system out of commission and men had to work overtime to repair the damage.

A well known citizen in speaking about the matter, last evening said: "It has come to a stage in this town that it will pay the citizens to subscribe for a safe and sane celebration next year. In New York City and cities and towns in New Jersey that I have visited, this condition prevails. The merchants chip in and the town itself chips in for the celebration. I wager that for the price of the extra police, the repair of the fire alarm, the cost of going to false alarms, the arrests and the damage to awnings, Manchester could put on a wonderful celebration next year. One could even have a barbecue as is done in the middle west. There could be a band concert, public fireworks, a free feast and even a carnival and it would not cost so much per capita. Then there would be no danger of lockjaw among the children and no danger of arrests to the older boys and no damage done to property. I for one will vote for a safe and sane Fourth at the next town meeting."

DEWEY-RICHMAN CO.'S GREAT REMOVAL SALE

Starts Tomorrow Morning: Reducing Stock Prior to Moving to Their New Store.

It is an unusual thing for Dewey Richman Company to hold a sale. In fact they don't believe in building business in that way; but just now, with the best excuse in the world, they are going to hold the biggest sale in their history. Within a short time they are going to move into their own new block, a short distance up the street and naturally they want to move as little stock as possible. That is the reason for the ten day removal sale which will start tomorrow morning. The character and quality of their stock is well known to Manchester people and the announcement of reductions of from 10 to 50 percent insures a host of real bargains. Their large advertisement on page 3 of today's Herald gives particulars.

TURKINGTON-LINDSAY.

St. Mary's Episcopal church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, when Miss Mary Lindsay became the bride of William D. Turkington. The ceremony was performed by the rector of the church, Rev. J. Stuart Neill. The bridal attendants were Mr. and Mrs. William Wythe.

The bride's gown was of white georgette, trimmed with white satin ribbon and pearls. She wore a picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore pink georgette with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception was held for close relatives and friends at the newly furnished home of the young couple at 20 Knox street.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a silver mesh bag and the groom's gift to his best man was a gold piece.

Mr. and Mrs. Turkington left early Sunday morning on an un-announced wedding trip.

South End Water Company Also to Place 35 New Fire Hydrants in Near Future.

According to present plans of the South Manchester Water Co. the south end of the town will have 35 new fire hydrants before the cold weather sets in. This will take care of blind ends in streets, make connection with main water conduits and make the section safer in time of danger from fires.

Also it is planned to take out the fire boxes on Main street and place them in the Green section. Those on Main street will be replaced by a modern box called a "multiple." That means that instead of the boxes giving four signals they will give but two and also if another box is run on the same circuit, the next number will be sounded on the siren after the first call has been completed. A case of this kind is possible. The cutting down of the signals from four to two means a whole lot also. For instance if 85 is sounded, it means that the siren must blow thirteen times which means 52 strokes of the Center bell or 52 sounds on the siren.

FRACTURES HIS LEG PICKING CHERRIES

Another broken leg accident as the result of a fall while picking cherries occurred in Manchester yesterday. It was the second of the season. The victim was Paul Kotzer, aged 45, of 42 Washington street.

Kotzer was picking cherries yesterday afternoon and fell from the tree fracturing his right leg. He was removed to the Manchester Memorial hospital.

Recently Mrs. Jennie Watkins of South Main street fell from a step ladder while picking cherries and broke a leg.
