Chaplin's Resolve to Play Napoleon With Miller, High Peak of Courage

Hollywood, July 20.—The blaze of Raquel Heller, Spanish songstress, across the horizon of Charlie Chaplin has evoked from the comedian's heart a secret and long-smoldering ambition, shaping it to a definite plan—to play, seriously, the role of Napoleon. For several years, it is now revealed, the seemingly reticent little comic genius has harbored the Bonaparte complex, not in a Freudian but in a historic sense. And now that he has found in the enchanting Raquel his ideal "Josephine," the baggy trousers and the trick mustache will be discarded for the tight breeches and epaulettes of the Little Corporal, as soon as he has finished his present "Circus."

Chaplin and Raquel Meller, the Spanish Songstress

Lavish Film The announcement of his Napoleonic project marks the high peak in Chaplin's courage. The yearning of years will be given one grand, spectacular outlet, with the battle of Waterloo and other epic events in the great emperor's life already projected for a lavish film. Final details of the tentative pact with Miss Meller will be arranged between her manager, E. Ray Goetz, and Chaplin in October after the Spanish star's present professional tour in America is completed. Miss Meller is scheduled to complete a second tour here next January; and "The Life of Napoleon" will then be started, if present plans do not miscarry.

and his enthusiastic acclaim of the future cinematic "Empress Josephine" was further evidenced in a special Meller appearance which he sponsored for the elite of Hollywood. It was after this event that the screen's greatest comedian announced his purpose of casting aside the old clownish derby for his first serious film effort. Next to Bonaparte, Chaplin had rather play Hamlet, and it is practically certain that if the public will accept his role of the former, the clown who yearns to be more than even the greatest clown will portray Shakespeare's melancholy Dane.

CHANEY IS MYSTERY MAN

Hollywood, July 20.—The cloistered simplicity of Lon Chaney's off-stage life, in striking contrast to that of most Hollywood celebrities, has raised an air of mystery about this side of the famous character actor's existence. Very few of his studio associates know where Chaney goes or what he does after he removes the greasepaint. He goes home. Then, with scarcely a variation, he eats supper with his good wife, helps her wipe the dishes, dons his slippers, reads the real estate page of the newspaper and goes to bed. Once in a while he attends a fight. Outside visiting and visitors are rare events. Hollywood's showplaces and solaces see none of Chaney. Hence the "mystery" about the man who has made a tidy fortune and a great reputation with his grotesque grimaces and bodily distortions. Always Aloof There is something definitely aloof if not exactly anti-social about Chaney. He lives much within himself. No man in his profession takes himself more seriously or studies the possibilities of mimicry more earnestly than the creator of such striking screen roles as the fake cripple of "The Miracle Man," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Phantom of the Opera," the crook in "The Unholy Three," the evil brother in "The Blackbird," and the dive keeper in his most recent "The Road to Mandalay." The front door of his modest home is the deadline between professional concerns and domestic relaxations. Beyond this shop talk is taboo. And while Chaney himself never seems completely free from brooding some new character to add to his galaxy of crooks, outcasts or unfortunates, the occasional visitor may not pry into these preoccupations. "My home," says Lon, "is my own, and the public, I'm sure, has no curiosity about my domestic life." Thus, amiably but tactfully, he has always diverted an intrusive interest in his private affairs. He Studies Hands Character study, the scrutiny of faces and gesturing hands, the revelation of a man's spirit in his physical contours, is an absorbing passion with Chaney. Always he is on the alert for these character indications to be utilized combined and emphasized in his screen portraits. Frequently he follows strangers for miles, making mental notes of physical peculiarities and expressive gestures. Rogues galleries are mines of information and suggestion. Hands fascinate him peculiarly. Members of Chaney's family were deaf mutes, and Lon was compelled to communicate with them by manual talk. He understands to unusual degree how thought, impulse, passion may be conveyed by fist and finger. Deep absorption, alternating between his professional and his home life, is the keystone of Lon Chaney's double devotion and whatever "mystery" may adhere in domestic seclusion.

U. S. MEN GIVE WAY IN PHILIPPINE JOBS

Washington.—Gradual replacement of American officers by Filipinos has proceeded to a point where most of the public offices of the island are filled by natives. The administration of justice has been largely placed in the hands of natives, according to information furnished the War Department by Governor-General Leonard Wood of the island. Of fifty judges of the First Instance in the island, two are Americans, while of the several hundreds of justices of peace but Americans hold this post. All prosecuting attorneys throughout the islands are natives. The United States retains a veto power in the Supreme Court, five are Americans and four Filipinos. Forty-five of the forty-eight governors of provinces are natives while all of the 893 presidents of municipalities are natives. The Bureau of Civil Service is conducted entirely by natives. The United States still retains almost absolute control in the non-Christian Moro provinces.

LINK GREEK WITH CANTON'S CROOKS

(Continued from page 1) number and his exact address," the voice pleaded. Shaeffer said that he got Mellett's address and telephone number and gave it to the "caller" over the phone. Record of Movements. Pittsburgh, July 20.—While George Psalidas, Pittsburgh Hill district leader and gunman, was held in a cell in county jail here today, police checked the story of his movements on the day and night of the murder of Don Mellett, Canton, Pa. In his story, police see evidence pointing to a relationship between the underworlds of Pittsburgh and Canton—a connecting link which they believe will lead to verification of Police Lieutenant Peter Connors' theory that the young Ohio publisher was slain by gunmen imported from Pittsburgh. Police from the two cities under the leadership of Lieut. Connors and Ora Slater, private detective, today were bringing to light details of an alleged underworld alliance. With each detail of Psalidas' story carefully checked in the localities where he told police he had stopped on his trip to Warren, O., on the day of Mellett's death, police had a completely tabulated account of Psalidas' movements. Police Lieutenant Connors returned here today from the scene of the crime and announced that "George, the Greek," who is held on an open charge, would be put in a cell in the city jail here today once as a result of discrepancies. Seeks Writ For Greek Application for the release of Psalidas on a writ of habeas corpus was filed in Common Pleas court shortly before noon by Samuel Cleveland, public defender, in the application will be held tomorrow, the court clerk said. Cleveland Wakes Up. Cleveland, O., July 20.—Declaring that the crime situation at Canton was a "warning example," Safety Director Ed Barry today ordered a complete cleanup of Cleveland's underworld. "I am going to rid the city of all undesirable characters and gunmen," Barry announced. CONTEST DISCHARGE OF CHEAT FROM BANKRUPTCY. Bridgeport, July 20.—Objection to the discharge from bankruptcy of Matthew Rosenbloom, once proprietor of the Connecticut Shirt Co., at Stamford, was made before Joseph J. Shapiro, attorney for creditors, who asked the referee to order Raymond E. Hackett, trustee, to file general specifications of objection. Mr. Shapiro took the ground that Rosenbloom's suspended sentence of one year in jail after he had been found guilty of making false financial statements to obtain credit should bar the discharge. The sentence was imposed by Judge George E. Hinman at the last September term of the Superior court. ASKS NEW YORK FOR TRIO OF VIOLATORS OF LAW Hartford, July 20.—Gov. Trumbull today issued requisitions for the return here of three men now being held in the Tombs, New York City. They are Alex Kozlowski, wanted in Hartford for non-support; Carmine Consiglio, wanted at Cheshire for violation of his parole from the state reformatory; and Mannie Smerring, wanted in New Haven for the alleged theft of $38 from a candy concern.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Ramadell of Trumbull, Pa. are visiting Mr. Ramadell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Ramadell of 35 Main street. Mrs. Ramadell was formerly Miss Elsie Thimier.

The Women of Mooseheart Legion will hold their regular meeting tomorrow evening at the Lincoln school kindergarten, and as the sessions are infrequent during the summer, it is hoped a number will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. George Snow and son have moved from Hawthorne street in the Pinehurst section to the new Brighton bungalow on Alton street.

The Misses Eleanor, Barbara and Prudence Tracy, daughters of George H. and the late Mrs. Gladys Tracy of Boston, are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. James Hutchinson of Laurel street.

Miss Nellie Healey, 43 of 853 Main street, passed away at the Memorial hospital this morning. She had been ill only a few days and on Saturday was operated upon for appendicitis. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. The family would not give out much information this morning as Miss Healey's mother passed away recently and the family is still in mourning. It is known that Miss Healey is survived by three sisters and three brothers. She and her sister conducted a millinery establishment for years in the South End and she was well known.

GEORGE DOUGHERTY WINS HIGH HONORS

George F. Dougherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Dougherty of Dougherty street, has won high honors at Princeton University where he is a student. Dougherty was one of the few to make the honor roll on final examinations and on scholastic standing for the past college year. In the lists which were announced yesterday by the secretary of the university, Dougherty's name appeared high in his mid-year examinations, and again placed well when honors in the final were announced yesterday, thus giving him a fine ranking for the college year. Dougherty is in his third year at the university, and during the summer vacation is selling hosiery. Before entering Princeton Dougherty prepared at the local high school and Loomis Institute. He also took a year at Villanova.

London, July 20.—"Youth must tear ideas of war from the heart of civilization," declared Lloyd George in an appeal for disarmament here before the World Convention of the Christian Endeavor. "We were brought up in a world which regarded armaments, with occasional wars, as part of the grim essentials of human civilization," declared Lloyd George. "Europe is still secretly thinking of armaments. The most horrible and devastating war will have to come yet, unless youth tears the idea from the heart of civilization. "We can't have peace without disarmament."

DRUNKEN SHERIFFS START GUN BATTLE

Muskogee, Okla., July 20.—Five persons were shot and seven were beaten into unconsciousness in three small hotels by two drunk in peace officers here early today. At least one of the injured is expected to die. He is Paul Davis, Muskogee county deputy sheriff, who with Ves Carmack, staged the brawl. Davis was shot through the chest. After shooting up three small hotels, the drink-crazed officers staged a gun battle with several patrolmen and plain clothes men before they were overpowered.

FENNING, COMMISSIONER OF D. C., QUILTS BY REQUEST

White Pines Camp, N. Y., July 20.—Frederick A. Fenning has resigned as commissioner of the District of Columbia at the formal request of President Coolidge. It was announced officially today at the President White House. In behalf of the resignation of Fenning was stated that the executive has anticipated the resignation of Fenning as a result of the findings of the two House committees which had investigated the conduct of his office but to make certain the executive had, just before departing on his summer vacation, made a formal request for it.

MARY HAD A LITTLE STAR

Here is the first picture ever taken of Red Grange, now a cinema star, and his leading lady, Mary McAllister. The "fighting face" of the Phantom of the Gridiron is not ordinarily worn in company with leading ladies and tea-table trousers, but Red is displaying it just to remind folks that he still belongs to the Order of the Pigskin. No, the serpentine doesn't imply that they have just been married, or anything like that, although Mary does admit that Red is "just as nice as can be."

LOYD GEORGE PLEADS TO YOUTH FOR PEACE

MANCHESTER READY FOR BIG FIELD DAY

Fife and Drum Corps Convention Here August 6-7; Proposed Plans.

Preparations are nearing completion for the 41st annual field day and parade of the Connecticut Fife and Drummers' association, to be held here in Manchester, Aug. 6 and 7, under auspices of the Center Flute Band.

Mayor Robert V. Treat will make the address of welcome to the visitors and it is expected that all the local merchants will cooperate in decorating their stores to give the town a gala appearance. The Army & Navy club and several of the other local clubs will keep open house on Saturday, August 7.

Headquarters and registration of all visiting organizations will be at Orange hall. Contests will be held at the McKee street ball grounds Saturday afternoon, August 7, rain or shine. The committee in charge expect that the cups and medals will be received from Meriden this week and will be placed on exhibition in the store window of Robert Donnelly the jeweler in the Farr building.

The judges' stand for judging appearance will be opposite St. James' church, and according to the rule of the executive committee of the association all the judges will be local musicians. The judges on fancy drilling and general appearance will be men who have had military experience.

The parade will form Saturday morning at 10:30 and start from East Center street, march down Main to Hartford road to Pine street; up Pine to Walnut and Cooper to Summer, arriving at the ball grounds.

On Friday evening, August 6 at eight o'clock the executive committee of the association will meet for a business session and supper served by the local band. The judges will be present at this meeting and receive instructions for the following day.

On Friday evening a dance will be held in Orange hall. A six piece orchestra will furnish music and an admission fee will be asked, also to the dance at the state armory Saturday evening when exhibitions of baton swinging and fancy drilling will be given.

KIWANIANS PLAN HEBRON FIELD DAY

Wednesday's noonday luncheon will be omitted by the Manchester Kiwanis club this week. Instead the Kiwanians will have a field day at the camp in Hebron on Thursday and every man is urged to report at the camp on or before four o'clock in the afternoon. Those who have been out will enjoy going again and others will have a fine opportunity of seeing what the camp is doing for poor boys of the town who could not otherwise have such a fine vacation. The kiddies who have returned from the camp—none of them were anxious to leave—made an appreciable gain in weight. One boy was retained for another two weeks as it was thought best to give him the benefit of the extra time.

The members may be certain that there will be plenty of good eats at the camp and luncheon will be served early enough so that all may return in time for the ball game at 5:30 at the West Side grounds. After the game the Salvation Army band will do their bit by giving a concert for the benefit of the camp fund. Thursday will also be "Tag Day" for the Hebron camp.

Frank Rolston has agreed to furnish the prize on Thursday and as it is just possible it may be a portion of his Marvin Green subdivision, it behooves every Kiwanian to be on hand.

Those who have neglected to make returns of tickets sold for the performance by the Jitney Players should attend to this at once so that a report of the amount to go to the Hebron camp may be made at the meeting next week Wednesday.

DIX KEPT ON THE GO IN "SAY IT AGAIN"

Gets Lots of Action in Latest Paramount Romantic Farce.

"Say It Again," which comes to the State theatre today and tomorrow is the third romantic farce in a row for Richard Dix, under the directorship of Gregory La Cava. And it is funnier and faster than either of the other two successes, "Let's Get Married" and "Woman-handled."

The picture has a long, colorful sequence of wholehearted, two-sided scrapping worked out in one of those side-splitting comedy situations which have caused such laughter and excitement in so many of Dix's features. Moreover, the fighting involves nearly one hundred people, all punching at Dix, as the central figure in an intrigue around a throne, is not responsible for his predicament, being kept in ignorance of what all "the shooting's for."

The comedy becomes a riot when Chester Conklin, last laughed at in "A Woman of the World" and "A Social Celebrity," appears as the prince for whom Dix has been mistaken.

As a background for the story we see the quaint streets, houses and citizenry of an imaginary small European kingdom, with the pomp and spectacle of its royal court.

Running through the picture is a thread of romance with real thrills, glamour and heart-tug in the center of this beautiful, blonde Alyce Mills, Dix's new leading woman "Princess Elena." She is slender and tall—as all princesses should be—weighing just 122 pounds and being five feet five inches in height.

She will be remembered as Conway Tearle's leading woman in "Morals for Men," William Powell's in "School for Wives," and Lou Tellegen's in "With This Ring." Little more than a year ago, Miss Mills played a vampire role in Dix's Paramount picture, "Too Many Kisses."

For Thursday matinee and evening a double feature bill will be presented, Estelle Taylor and Bryant Washburn in "Wandering Footsteps" and Tom Tyler in "The Cowboy Cop."

Thursday night at 9:00 P. M. the State theatre will also present Manchester's "Jolly Eight" and William Allen Melody Boys' orchestra who will engage in a "Battle of Music."

The Manchester Jolly Eight under the direction of Tom Trant will present some novelty numbers, Charleston dancers and song hits, featuring "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

The Willmantic Melody Boys under the direction of Everett Allen will bring with them their own Charleston dancers and some new numbers which they claim will open the eyes of the Manchester people.

From all accounts it seems that this will be some "hectic" evening and patrons would do well to come to assure them of the choicest seats.

GLOOM FORECASTER NOT WORRIED; OTHERS ARE

Chesham, England, July 20.—This is a momentous day, the beginning of a "chaotic period," even though nothing of great import appears to be transpiring, according to Reverend Walter Wynn, of the United Free Church.

Great excitement had been caused by Rev. Wynn's predictions that events of great import would happen today, but the pastor, who says he bases his predictions upon writings on the great Pyramid of Egypt, was unconcerned and went about his parish duties as usual. He urged general prayers, however.

BROTHER OF MUSSOLINI TALKS; HE MAY FIGHT

Rome, July 20.—The duel between General Benicvenga and Arnaldo Mussolini, brother of the premier, which had apparently been abandoned, now seems likely to be forced to the duelling field. Arnaldo Mussolini has renewed his attack on the general, characterizing him as a "hack politician" and charging that he has been sympathetic with conspiracies against the life of the premier.

General Benicvenga has replied declaring that Arnaldo's conception of a duel is a war of words between seconds.

GEORGE THE GREEK.

Directly in line with this newspaper's comment on the part played by unscrupulous lawyers in the fostering of crime in America is the case of "George the Greek," held for examination in the murder of Publisher Mellett at Canton.

This man, believed to be intimately connected with the Canton crime, though well out of the neighborhood when the trial ended in his direction, made no effort to escape. Instead, hearing that the police of Pittsburgh were interested in his possible association with the murder, he calmly walks into police headquarters—accompanied by his lawyer—and smilingly yields himself to custody.

Why shouldn't he? He is a crook and an underworld leader and every police officer in western Pennsylvania and Ohio knows that he is—yet why should he fear the law? He has plenty of money and a good lawyer.

Just recently he knifed a man in Pittsburgh. Last Spring he shot a policeman in Canton, so the authorities assert—and well they know. But he had money and a smart lawyer then, as now, and he has been a perfectly free man, to go about as he pleased, to knife or shoot this or that individual fresh enough to incur his dislike by presuming to interfere with his affairs.

What earthly fear of the law should George the Greek have? He would probably be unspcakably astonished if anything unpleasant were to happen to him for the killing of Mellett. He would feel that these ignoble Americans had played him a scurvy trick by making him understand that all you have to do, in the United States, is to have money and a good, smart, crooked lawyer, in order to get away with anything at all, no matter what; and then going back on it all and hanging him.

The other day no less important a personage than the attorney-general of the great state of Illinois, speaking to no less important a body than the American Bar Association, declared as a solemn fact that one of the most brilliant lawyers in the East was the directing spirit of a great association including every first class bank burglar in the country.

George the Greek's lawyer is an officer of a court; every attorney is an officer of a court. If the courts are full of criminals, then, what is to be expected of their operations? What wonder that the judges are helpless, the juries of no effect?

Very rapidly the system of protecting society through the criminal courts is breaking down. When such men as George the Greek can commit crime after crime, and when arrest after arrest is followed by the inevitable failure of any real punishment—and when this kind of thing is going on all over the country—where are the people to look for the securing of their own safety and that of their property?

One thing is quite certain—they will not forever submit to being ridden roughshod by an imported bandit. Fundamentally the good citizens of this country are a far stronger force than the criminals. Sooner or later they are absolutely certain, in default of proper court protection, to take measures for their own defense. What happened in California in the days of the Vigilantes, what happened in New Orleans in defense against the Mafia two score years ago, are not pleasant things to recall. But far more unpleasant things will happen in the United States, if needed to wipe out the reign of the criminal, the thug and the gangster.

There is one law mightier than the laws of the statutes and the courts. It is the law of self preservation. We are not so far from its employment, at this moment, that the courts can afford to delay sudden and immense reforms.

MELLON-CHURCHILL.
 A probably endless controversy has been opened up by Winston Churchill's flat contradiction of Secretary Mellon's figures justifying the American course toward the war debts. Mr. Mellon says, that a large proportion of Britain's borrowings in the United States was applied to commercial and currency stabilization rather than to actual war expenditures. Mr. Churchill says that is not the truth, and declares that Britain, in the war period, spent in this country more than her total borrowings on the two items of munitions and food alone.

As between these two authorities, occupying similar positions in their respective governments, we may expect to hear more, with the citations of long rows of figures on either side.

But we are very much inclined to agree with the British chancellor in one particular—his prediction that years will bring "an immense amelioration to the situation now pressing with iron severity on the war wracked populations of Europe."

There is a certain type of American statesman—he is represented by such broad visioned citizens of the world as Senators Borah, Norris and Bleasie—who take the same view of these international debts as the foreclosures sharp of a backwoods farming community night: "What's mine's mine and I'm going to have it." And it is the attitude of this type that has so far prevailed.

But there are many Americans with vision enough to understand that no sum of money in hand or in prospect is going to compensate for an enforced economic combination of the rest of the civilized world against the United States, either as a social or as a business proposition.

It may be possible to exact burdensome payments from a nation during a period of years—but not through successive generations.

There is one thing that the creditor in this case should remember and which we seem very prone to forget—that there is no machinery in existence for the collection of a single dollar of the war debts. There is no international sheriff to attach nations' property, and no international auctioneer to sell it off for the benefit of the note holder.

We may talk about "collecting" till we are blue in the face, but there will be no payments except at the will of the debtor. Can we afford to create world enmity on such terms?

EUROPE'S NIAGARA.

Probably for millions of years men came to the chasm of Niagara, and stopped. There was no way of crossing. They could go no farther. Then a man flew a kite and dropped it on the opposite shore. By means of the string a little rope was hauled across, then a bigger one, then a cable—and a suspension bridge was built.

For several hundreds of years nations have confronted the chasm of unstable, unscientific currency debacles; bedeviled by the superstition of gold, in heritage from barbarism. They have never found a way across this chasm.

Yet it probably took more brains, more of ingenuity and original thinking, to bridge the Niagara than it would to create a new and unchanging currency system—if the nations were to set about the job in seriousness and in accord of purpose.

Of course there has never yet been accord of purpose. There has been too much advantage for certain nations in the old, slovenly way. But with America now owning most of the world's gold and sitting in the position of creditor to almost all the important countries, for the first time conditions have so shaped themselves that it would be to the advantage of all Europe to execute an economic coup by the adoption of a brand new international currency system predicated solely on Europe's needs and leaving the United States out of the question.

If this does not result in the calling of an all-European monetary congress within the next decade it will be little less than miraculous. And if that congress does not succeed in providing a stable, sound and scientific medium of exchange, which will do away for all time with convulsions such as Belgium and France are undergoing, it will be because Europe hasn't the brains and the vision to build a bridge.

SAVINGS.
 The statement that savings bank deposits in Connecticut banks have gained four million dollars in the last three months has a stimulating sound. It brings visions of the citizens of this state flocking to the bank counters, with parts of their incomes for deposit, in rather surprisingly large numbers.

It is true that there is a good deal of this kind of flocking going on, but the savings bank statement does not necessarily imply that the people have altogether quit spending their money.

of fact, would not represent the total of the interest on money on deposit three months ago. No less than $527,694,444 of the people's money was in the custody of the savings institutions March 31. If not an additional dollar had been deposited and nobody had drawn out any interest, the gain in deposits, through the simple crediting up of interest accumulations, would be nearer six millions than five, instead of the four millions which the accounts have gained.

Of course there are many people living on the interest of savings bank accounts and far from the total of interest can remain on deposit. But undoubtedly the earnings of deposits already made constitute a very considerable portion of the increase reported.

Connecticut people are thrifty, but improbably to the extent of packing away at the rate of sixteen millions a year more money than they draw out of the banks.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS
 BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, July 20.—Watch Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. All the signs are that he is gaining strength every day as a Democratic presidential possibility. Among politicians still in Washington—despite the congressional recess, they're constantly drifting out and in, with tidings from all over the country—the increasing frequency of references to him, as such, is surprising.

Here are some of the things one hears in his favor: He has a tremendous personality. He has ability. He's an indomitable fighter. In his home state he has proved himself a wonderful campaigner and vote getter. Al Smith has all these qualities, but he's known somewhat too exclusively as a wet. So is Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland. While Reed's a wet, he stands for numerous other policies which ought to take some of the curse of his wetness even in dry territory.

William G. McAdoo would be all right for the drys but has nothing to recommend him to any of the wets. No wet could find any fault with Reed and, as previously remarked, he does have certain things to recommend him to some, at least, of the drys.

Another thing, the mid-west is clearly indicated as a good place to pick presidential candidates from in 1928. Reed is a mid-western man. Smith and Ritchie are just as far east as they possibly could be without falling into the Atlantic ocean. McAdoo is western but the Pacific coast is rather too far west.

There'll be talk of Atlee Pomerene if Ohio elects him to the Senate in November. However, he may not be re-elected. Even if he is, there'll be talk also of Gov. Vic Donahey, and, both being Ohioans, they'll tend to nullify one another. Furthermore, geographically they're not as well situated as Reed with reference to the corn belt.

Neither, although both have national reputations, has either one a national reputation of Reed's proportions. Reed's a progressive and progressiveism seems to be in the atmosphere throughout a considerable part of the United States.

His wetness should endear him to the big wet eastern states and to some few western ones which show damp tendencies.

It will hurt him in the dry south, but, to offset that, the south is strongly anti-foreign, and no part of Reed's career has more distinguished him than his fight against foreign entanglements.

He voted against the corn belt's pet farm relief measure, but not because he doesn't believe in farm relief. He simply doesn't believe in a subsidy. The corn belt, discouraged, appears practically to have abandoned the idea of a subsidy, anyway, and to be concentrating on tariff reduction. Reed's for tariff reduction.

DAILY ALMANAC

Today is feast day of St. Margaret virgin and martyr, said to have been prosecuted by her own father, a pagan priest.
 The Bell Telephone Company of New York, later the New York Telephone Company, was organized July 20, 1878.
 Today is holiday in Republic of Colombia, marking Independence Day.

IN NEW YORK

New York, July 20.—Random notes from Manhattan:
 The telephone booth section at Joe Leblang's in the late hours of the afternoon! . . . A dozen booths in one corner of a bare looking, concrete floored, passage way that might be mistaken for a garage. . . . Leading into another room of bare appearance. Only one crude counter, resembling a hastily built booth at a county fair. . . . Yet fortunes go over this counter each day for the purchase of these tickets. Joe is Broadway's most famed ticket agent. . . .

The life of a telephone book in Joe's place is two weeks to a month. . . . People who phone here are in a hurry, no matter how much time they have. . . . Matters of great moment are at stake. . . . They just can't get tickets for such and such a show, but will thus-and-so do just as well. . . . Or young men trying to make last minute dates. . . . So they paw the phone books ruthlessly, whisking through the pages and tearing them from bindings. . . . Frequently entire sections are missing.

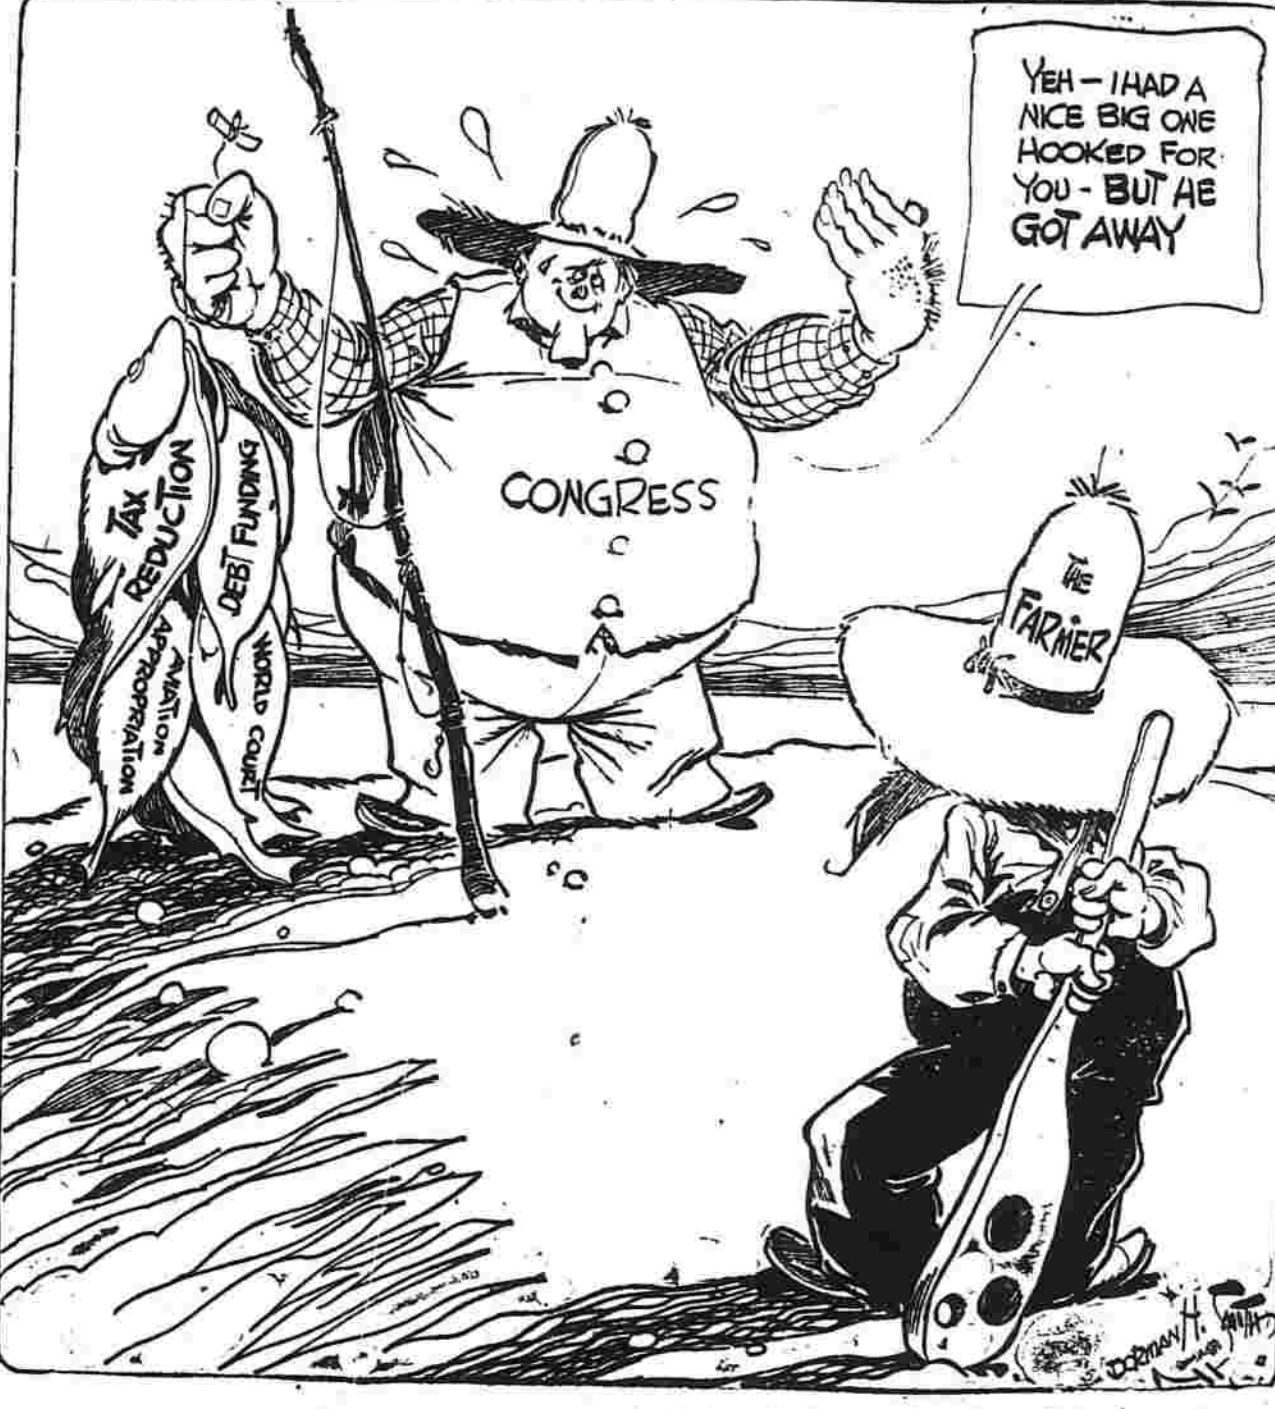

I sometimes think that the whole picture of Broadway's affected and futile rush is reflected in the Niagara of phone book pages at the end of a busy afternoon. . . . Broadway becomes quite "summer resort" at this season of year. . . . With most of the theaters closed, and great jams of visitors milling through its streets, all sorts of catch-ponny stunts are sprung by street fakirs. . . . Curbs are lined with hawkers selling everything from rubber ducks to balloons guaranteed not to fly from chubby hands. . . .

A visiting fireman from Illinois told me the other night that the thing she misses most in New York are corner pop-corn wagons. . . . These grand and glorious institutions are missing from Manhattan's streets for reasons unknown to me. . . . One concern that operates a pop-corn stand in Grand Central station—the only one in existence here, so far as I know—draws pop-corn "hounds" from all parts of the city. . . . I know a woman who spends 65 cents taxi fare each week to make her pop-corn purchase at the railroad station. . . . And yet one can find anything from roasted chestnuts to green almonds, potato chips or pretzels being sold upon the corners. . . . Last winter a friend who is sufficiently fortunate to have a fireplace started out to buy a corn popper. . . . One hour of actual shopping was necessary before a popper could be found. . . . Either pop-corn is no native dish, or the number of people with fireplaces is negligible. . . .

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY AUSTIN H. CLARK
 Curator, U. S. National Museum

Some of the moths we see about quite commonly are moths from other lands which have been brought here in the 1st and, finding our country quite congenial, have made themselves at home and multiplied.

In certain portions of our eastern states, especially in the vicinity of New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Boston, there is found a large and handsome oriental moth known as the cynthia.

The cynthia is much like the native cecropia in its markings, but it is olive green in color and its wings are narrower.

In certain provinces of China this moth is domesticated as a source of silk, and it was to try out as a silk producer that it was brought to this country in 1861.

The cynthia appears in June, and hatches in smaller numbers in the autumn. Of two-hundred and fifty cocoons taken from a tree in Washington last October, fifty had recently hatched and some of the moths were still about. This would mean that about one-fifth of the moths hatched in the autumn while four-fifths sleep till spring. The autumn moths all die with the coming of the cold, and their eggs die also.

The caterpillar of this moth feeds almost exclusively on alantus trees. The cocoon is small for such a large moth. It is spun between two or three leaflets of the food plant, and from it a heavy band of silk runs up the stem of the leaflet and along the midrib of the compound leaf to the twig to which it is attached.

SYMPATHY

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

When mother has a headache, from the same old daily grind, because she simply cannot get the housework off her mind, it helps a lot when other folk within the home are kind. She gets to feeling better on the sympathy she'll find.

When little Willie cuts his foot and, for the moment, cries, the way he takes it quite depends on how his mother tries to tell him he's a big man now; to make him realize that big men never shed a tear. Then teardrops leave his eyes.

When dad comes driftin' home at night, and every thing looks wrong you always know that he is tired from working all day long. A little slap upon the back, plus sympathy, will pay, 'cause that's the proper treatment, if you'd chase the blues away.

Yes, sympathy can do a lot to make us feel better. It plays upon the blue soul, on the worn-out, and the fretter. No doubt you gladly take your share, as day by day you live. Well—think about the good you'll spread by sympathy you give.

HOUSE OF LORDS DEBATE SHAKESPEARE'S MORALITY

London. — Are Shakespeare's immoral?

This question was raised in the House of Lords during a recent debate on the charges of dramatic licence that some of the plays now being produced in London are "immoral, degrading and demoralizing."

The peers differed sharply in their debate. Some claimed that plays should not be rejected because their subject matter was unpleasant; others clamored for stricter regulation of the theatre.

Lord Buckmaster, who pleaded for lifting the censorship ban, characterized Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" as one of "sumptuous immorality."

NO FIGHT SITE YET —AND WHO CARES?

Rickard Still Promising To Tell Fans Where Dempsey-Tunney Will Argue.

Chicago, July 20.—Tex Rickard and the proposed Dempsey-Tunney bout today were just where the world left them yesterday, and many days previous; one still in the office, the other in the throes of statements and counter statements, hastily making new promises to replace those broken yesterday.

At the appointed hour last night, Rickard failed to weigh in with his formal announcement regarding the site of the fight and the identity of the mysterious "committee of five" with which he is convening.

Among the intelligentsia this morning, however, there was a tendency to accept with marked sincerity a rumor that the officials of the Policemen's Benevolent Association of Chicago with the identity of these "five biggest men in town." The policemen's representatives, the report ran, are dickering for the bout as a substitute for their annual track and field benefit, scheduled for late in the summer.

Statement Today After a day of conferences and long distance telephone calls, mostly from New York, Rickard intimated last night that his formal statement would be forthcoming today, and that he was not in the least worried over the threatened interference of the Coliseum A. C., which purports to hold Dempsey's signature to a contract for a Willis bout here.

Dempsey analyzed their contracts and agreement to me at the time he signed with me in Little Rock last May," Rickard said. "They were to pay him $150,000 on a certain date.

A few weeks after that date they made their first financial move, offering Jack $35,000, which he refused. Their failure to comply with the terms of their contract nullified it."

The Illinois State Boxing Commission, up to a late hour this morning, has been silent. As far as was concerned, Secretary Con O'Brien said, the fight was still a rumor. No formal application to the commission, and therefore the solons had nothing to say, individually or collectively.

New York View New York, July 20.—The location of the proposed heavyweight fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney may be determined here this afternoon at the weekly meeting of the New York State Athletic commission.

James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, declared that the commission positively would not issue a license for the fight, while William Muldoon, another member of the board, said he would do everything in his power to prevent the bout from slipping away from New York.

Pittsburgh kept in the swim by trouncing the Braves, ten to four. Genewich lasted only two innings.

Local Sport Chatter

The Easts and Wests are at it again, despite the assertion of one Kipling that never the twain shall meet. The boys and girls of both playgrounds are engaged in athletic competition this evening on each side of a volleyball net. The match between the two boys' teams is played at the West Side playgrounds and the girls will have theirs out on the East Side. So far the West Side is ahead in competition.

There ought to be some fun on Firemen's Night which is scheduled for the second week in August at the West Side playground. The Recreation Centers are going to bring together representatives of the four South Manchester companies and will make arrangements that no fires start while the ladders are disporting themselves. A band concert will be given on the same night.

Somebody lost a wrist watch at Globe Hollow a week or more ago and Saturday it was recovered by Life Guard McCormick. It was a gold affair and when taken out of the water didn't seem to be any the worse for its bath. The owner part of this is the fact that it was found without advertising in The Herald.

The Sons of Italy must like Rockville. They had one battle with the representatives of that city and now are starting another series. The first will be played there on Wednesday and the second on Friday here.

The Highland Park Community team will mix it up with the Colored Stars from the Buckland planned on Thursday evening of this week at Highland Park. The game will start at 6 o'clock.

Diamond isputed eided

What happens if the batsman in swinging at ball for third strike misses, but the ball strikes his person and eludes the catcher? Have runners the right to advance?

The batsman is out, if in taking a third strike he misses the ball, same coming into contact with his person. The ball immediately becomes dead when such a thing happens and no bases can be run.

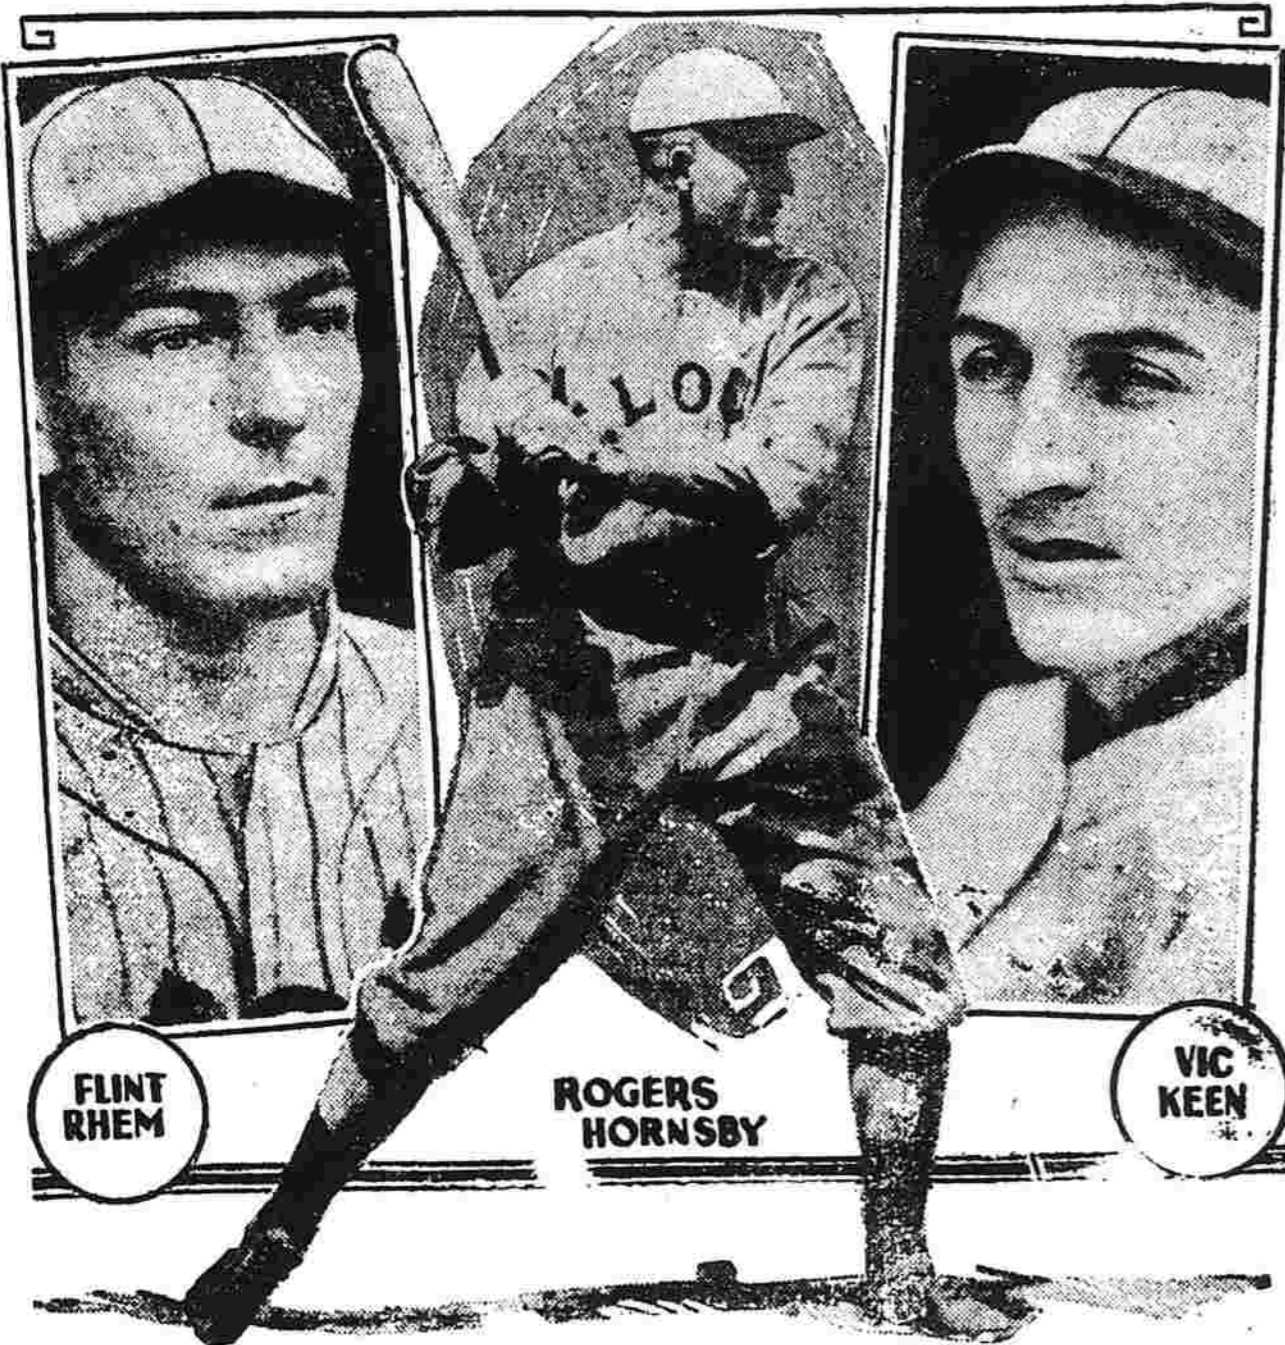

The umpire should immediately call the batsman out. If any runner advanced, due to the fact the ball eluded the catcher, he should send them back to their original bases.

In such a play, the batsman is always out and no bases can be run.

AIRPLANE SEEKS FOR A FLOATING BODY.

Detroit, July 20.—A hydro-airplane was to be sent out over Lake Erie today in search of the body of Dr. Bertrand L. Jones, who vanished mysteriously while aboard the steamer Gerater Buffalo Sunday night.

A PAIR O' TRUMPS AND A KING

Most every athletic outfit has its "Big Three." Here's the outstanding trio of the St. Louis Cardinals—one of the "surprise" teams in the National League this season. They are Flint Rhem, Rogers Hornsby and Vic Keen. Rhem and Keen have been turning in victories with marked consistency, and have been Manager Hornsby's two trump cards. Both are right-handers. Rhem, a former Clemson College star, was obtained by the Cards from the Fort Smith club of the Western Association last year. Keen went to Hornsby from the Chicago Cubs, where he had toiled several seasons. Hornsby, after having been in quite an extended slump, seems to have regained his old batting eye, and of late has been clouting the agate hard and often. His great stick work has had more than a little to do in showing his club up the ladder. Should the Cards startle the baseball world by winning the first pennant at St. Louis entry expected, much of the credit will be due Rogers Hornsby, the old league's King of Klout, and his two bowlers, Flint Rhem and Vic Keen.

CHENEY BROTHERS ARRANGE 3 GAMES

Book Rubber Works for Tomorrow, Saints for Thursday and Aetna Saturday.

Three games will be played by Cheney Brothers this week, the first of them coming tomorrow night when the Hartford Rubber Works team will be entertained at the West Side. The visiting team is one of the leaders in the Hartford Industrial League and comes here with a good record.

Whether McLaughlin will pitch or not has not yet been announced but it is expected that the North End star will take the mound for the locals. He pitched a good game for Cheney last week and kept his hits well scattered.

On Thursday night the Saints and the C. B. A. will play an exhibition game for the benefit of the local camp at Hebron. This game will not count in the series being played by the two teams. The standing now is one win for each.

The Aetna Insurance team which has been booked for an appearance here on several occasions will finally come to Manchester on Saturday. This will be the third game of the week for the C. B. A.

DIAMOND DUST

The Reds came back to life and trimmed Brooklyn, five to two. Carl Mays gained the decision over McWeeny.

The Cubs permanently ruined the Giants' big drive by winning again, nine to five. Wilson, Stephenson and Grimm dominated the fireworks while Hantzinger starred as a relief pitcher.

Somebody fed the Phillies raw meat and the Quakers beat the Cardinals in the tenth, four to three. Bottomley and Mogan got in some heavy batting, Sunny Jim collecting his fourteenth homer.

Scoring eight runs on as many hits in the first inning, the Yankees coasted home to an eleven to two win over the Browns, and increased their lead over the Athletics to seven games. Paschal got a homer and a single in the first inning.

The Athletics lost to the Tigers, eight to three, when Jack Quinn blew up in the eighth. Sammy Hale and Gehring got four hits apiece.

Firpo Marberry, starting his second game of the season, held the Indians to three hits and the Senators won in a walk, four to one.

The Red Sox got back to normalcy and lost to the White Sox, five to four. Johnny Mostil's first hit of the series knocked in the winning run.

CLEMSON IS NEW SHAMROCK MANAGER

New Manager Expects to Book Large Number of Banner Attractions.

At a meeting of the Shamrocks' Baseball club held yesterday evening in the club's rooms at Depot Square, Harold Clemson was elected to take over the managerial reins. Coleman, the former manager, it was said, is too busy with other business to properly manage the team.

The Shamrocks have, this season, been fairly successful. They have won a majority of their games and expect to do even better in the future. The team is a unit, that is, it is not a collection of stars, but is a team whose members have played together for several seasons. There is not a "star" on the team. No one man could be removed and replaced with another without handicapping the team strength considerably. Every member is like a cog in a machine that, if it is removed, impairs the machine's operations.

Manager Clemson said yesterday that he hopes to secure banner attractions for his club for the remainder of the season. Every effort will be made to secure teams whose reputation is high in state baseball circles, and an attractive list of games may be anticipated. Manager Clemson said that he will try to secure a large number of twilight attractions.

Next Sunday the Shamrocks will play Groton in that town. Groton is a team that has been making quite a noise in sport circles in the southern part of the state and will doubtless prove a worthy opponent for the local ball tossers. Manager Clemson is trying to book a twilight game before Sunday, but as yet has made no announcement.

Practice will be held tonight at Hickey's Grove at six o'clock sharp. All members of the team are asked to be present on time.

Only Gehrig at first base, who had been with the New York club about two years, boasted any worthwhile big league experience. Lazzeri, at second, and Koenig, at short, are really in their first year, Koenig having played a few games last fall. Gasella, who is bed for Joe Dugan at third, had few chances as a regular until this season.

A Big Upset That the New York club, with practically a rookie infield, could step out in front to a 10-game margin over the first half of the race stands out as one of the big upsets of major league baseball.

Of the infield recruits, Mark Koenig, at shortstop, has been the first of the youngsters to falter.

YANKS' WEAK SPOT MAY INJURE THEM IN PENNANT RACE

Billy Evans Looks for Slump Because of Koenig's Lack of Confidence.

BY BILLY EVANS

One weak spot in a ball club will ultimately prove a serious handicap to pennant aspirations. With the season half over, despite the fact the New York Yankees are out in front by a comfortable margin, a flaw in the defense of the club, has temporarily upset its winning ways.

Early in the race, when the New York Yankees began to surprise the experts predicted that sooner or later the club would drop back because of an inexperienced infield. The point was stressed that no club could hope to win a pennant with rookies at the all-important positions of shortstop and second base.

Lazzeri, who has played brilliantly all year at second and who is one of the finds of the season, was shifted to short, a position he played in the minors, while Ward, veteran second sacker, was returned to his old place in the lineup.

May Prove Serious The move was a rather drastic one on the part of Manager Huggins, although I imagine he had been contemplating it for some time.

It may be only temporary, a move to give Koenig a chance to regain the poise and confidence that made him such a valuable player early in the race.

Some of the experts are inclined to think the flaw at shortstop will prove more serious than it now seems. Certainly no club weak at that position can hope to get very far.

It always seems as if baseball troubles come thick and fast when Brilliant in the extreme when going good, Koenig is inclined to be erratic at times.

Errors mean nothing unless they are costly. In this respect, a jinx appears to have camped on Koenig's trail.

It seems when Koenig makes an error the player who mangled to get on through his mistake invariably scores. Very often the slip paves the way to many more runs that would have been impossible but for the first miscue.

I recall one game in which Washington made six runs after two were out in the ninth, when an error by Koenig biased the way. Perfect handling of the ball would have retired the side.

At first these mistakes didn't bother Koenig, but as they continued a psychological condition entered into the situation that has played havoc with his work.

Mental Attitude Wrong

At present his mental attitude is all wrong. As a ball is hit down his way I imagine he says to himself: "If I kick this one I suppose it will cost a flock of runs."

That mental state isn't good in a tight place. The old confidence is lacking and that is half the battle. There is no question as to Koenig's ability in the field. At present he simply doesn't believe in himself.

It is unusual for a manager to tear down a lineup that has been good enough to lead from the start. Yet in the afternoon game on July 5 at Philadelphia, Miller Huggins removed Koenig from the Yankees' battlefront.

Lazzeri, who has played brilliantly all year at second and who is one of the finds of the season, was shifted to short, a position he played in the minors, while Ward, veteran second sacker, was returned to his old place in the lineup.

they start. That has been the Yankees' portion.

First it was a broken bone in Bob Meusel's foot that put him on the shelf for six weeks; then Babe Ruth's indisposition, followed by an injury to Waite Hoyt's pitching arm and now Mark Koenig's fielding slump.

It's comforting to have a nice lead when so many unpleasant things happen.

For Killing A Man--No Penalty For Criticizing A Judge--90 Days

Muncie Editor Has Lost All in Fight Against Klan; Will Try to Have Supreme Court Hear Case.

By BRUCE CATTON,
NEA Service Writer.

Muncie, Ind., July 20.—The pen may not be mightier than the sword, but sometimes it's a whole lot more dangerous to use it.

Consider the case of George R. Dale, editor of the Muncie Post-Democrat, for instance.

Dale says he shot a man to death on a public street before at least three witnesses.

Nobody ever said a thing to him about it. No prosecutor or police official ever called him to account for it.

But, at about the same time, Dale wrote a piece in his paper about the county grand jury, charging that it was doing tricks for the benefit of the Ku Klux Klan.

Faces Jail Term and Fine.

So Dale was adjudged in contempt of court, unless he can get the United States Supreme court to free him, he must pay a $500 fine and serve three months on the state prison farm, which has a nice high wall around it and armed guards pacing thereon.

That, in brief, is the outline of one of the strangest cases in the history of America's devious court proceedings.

The Indiana Supreme court has just upheld Dale's sentence. It has ruled that an editor can be found guilty of contempt of court and sent to prison, if he criticizes a court, even though everything he wrote is true.

Because of this Dale's case has attracted nation-wide attention. The American Civil Liberties Union has wired an offer of assistance, which Dale has accepted, and every effort will be made to get the U. S. Supreme court to reverse this decision, which is looked on as a blow to the freedom of the press.

And even though expert lawyers doubt that Dale will win his appeal and say that the decision, taken as a whole, does not greatly restrict any newspaper's freedom of comment, Dale has abruptly become something of a national figure.

Attacked the Klan.

But regardless of the merits of the case, the story of the editor who was never molested for killing a man but who was caught up quickly for what he wrote, is extremely unusual.

Dale came to Muncie a decade ago, and after some three or four years' residence here, he started a weekly paper, the Post-Democrat.

Everything went smoothly until the winter of 1923, when the Ku Klux Klan descended on the city seeking converts. It found them in profusion, and in a few months its strength here was estimated at 10,000—in a city of 30,000.

Dale attacked the Klan editorially—attacked it with courage and bitterness. He was told to be careful, but he refused. Accordingly, he met an adventure a few nights later.

He and his son, George, Jr., were walking home just after dark. An automobile came up beside them. Three men, wearing black hoods and carrying revolvers, jumped out. One man stuck his gun in the editor's ribs.

"I grabbed his hand and bent it back, pointing the gun right back at him," says Dale. "Then I pulled the trigger and he dropped. The other two had been clubbing my son over the head. They quit, dragged the wounded man into the auto and beat it."

A month later the wounded man died. It was given out that he died of heart disease, and his part in the affair was not generally known; but Dale says a doctor here who treated the wounded man knew he died from the gunshot wound.

No Inquest Ever Held.

At any rate, Dale was never held to account for the act. There was not even a coroner's inquest. Police Captain John Moles and Plainclothesmen Albert Rees and Jerry Curran, friends of Dale, began a private investigation to find out who the other two assailants were; but just as they began to trace a promising lead they were dismissed from the force.

About a fortnight after the killing Dale was arrested as he sat in an office with two other men. An empty whisky bottle was found behind a desk and Dale was indicted on a charge of "manufacturing, selling, bartering and giving away" intoxicating liquor. This under Indiana's bone-dry law.

Dale replied with an editorial blast at the grand jury that indicted him, charging that the Klan had "packed" it for the purpose of attacking him.

"Nobody in Muncie," said his editorial, "doubts for an instant that the framed-up indictment of the editor of the Post-Democrat is the natural sequence of the general conspiracy to discredit this newspaper and its publisher."

For that Dale was called to court by Judge Clarence Dearth on a contempt of court charge. Nobody denied the truth of his charge of a frame-up. And it is interesting to note that later on the indictment was dropped, while still later three members of the grand jury that brought it were themselves sent to the penal farm on liquor charges.

At all events, Dale was adjudged in contempt of court. The case has dragged along since then, the Supreme court only recently handing down its decision. Dale has lost his little fortune of $15,000—that was to provide for him in his old age. He has had to sell his

By GEORGE R. DALE
Written Especially for NEA Service and The Herald.

The outstanding feature of my case is this: Is the truth a defense?

I told the truth. It was not denied. Yet I am facing 90 days' imprisonment at the state penal farm.

The Supreme court of Indiana handed down the dictum that the truth of an editorial cannot be offered in defense if the editorial criticizes a judge.

If this is the law, let us change it at once. I do not believe it is the law, however; therefore my case, which is also the case of every newspaper man in America, will go to the court of final resort if the necessary funds are forthcoming to perfect the appeal and if the proper federal question can be raised.

This decision declares that judges have the "inherent" power to punish summarily for contempt.

I must emphatically dissent. The bill of rights plainly says: "All power inheres in the people." Can a judge place himself beyond and above the limitations of the Constitution? The truth, presented in however violent a form, must be bowed down to. The truth is always a defense. That is fundamental. In a free republic it is unthinkable that the truth is a crime and falsehood a cardinal virtue.

Married

house and move into meager quarters. And he has a wife and seven children. But he's going to keep on fighting.

Some constitutional lawyers doubt that he can get the decision reversed. They say that it goes little, if any, farther than previous decisions about an editor's right to criticize a court—in which, however, they are vigorously contradicted by Dale's attorney, W. B. Kooker, of Indianapolis, who says the courts can "hogtie every newspaper in the country" if this decision is upheld. Anyhow—

Never Called to Account.

The fact remains that Dale publicly says he is certain he killed a man and was never called to account for it.

Instead, he was indicted on a liquor charge. And later, while the liquor charge fell through and three of the men who voted it went to jail, he was ordered to prison because of a piece he wrote for the paper.

Is it any wonder that Dale gets a rather tired look in his eyes when you speak about "the orderly processes of law?"

JACK JONES IS FIRED FROM HOUSE AGAIN

London, July 20.—Jack Jones, Laborite M. P. of Silvertown, was again this afternoon ordered out of the House of Commons by the speaker.

Exclusion from the House is becoming chronic with Jones, who has made several departures from the Chamber at the order of the speaker within the past week.

Today Jack, who speaks his mind freely, made remarks concerning the minister of mines which were considered unparliamentary.

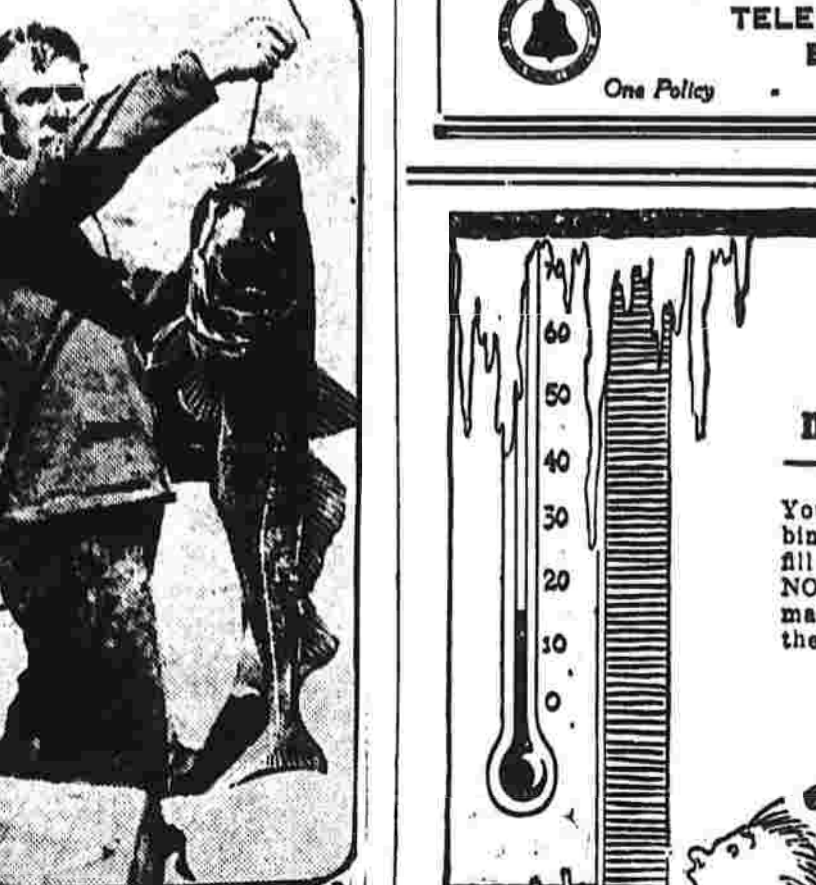

Jack left, shouting his usual protests.

Dr. James P. A. Nolan, 55, of Brookline, charged by police with committing an illegal operation, Mrs. Abbie M. Graham, 35, charged with being an accessory before the fact, and Richard King, 21, of Waltham, charged with being an accessory before and after the fact, pleaded not guilty.

OIL REFINERY BURNS AT WARREN, PENN.

Warren, Pa., July 20.—Firemen are trying to prevent a million dollar fire at the Jamieson Refinery from spreading to nearby refineries. Starting from an exploding oil pump, flames spread rapidly to the Jamieson wax storehouse and soon the entire plant was ablaze. Local firemen were reinforced by others from a half-dozen surrounding towns. Six large benzine tanks, five oil tanks and several buildings had been destroyed.

Several small fires are still burning.

To Swim Channel It Takes— STRENGTH - SPEED - LUCK

Lillian Cannon

BY LILLIAN CANNON

Cape Griz Nez, France.—When I left Baltimore, full of confidence and determination, to come over here to try to swim the English channel I had only a vague idea of the task before me.

I arrived here as another innocent American abroad. After six weeks here I have become wiser. I have lost none of my determination or confidence, but I realize what I have undertaken. There are three essential factors in any successful attempt to swim the channel.

Endurance is the first. No man or woman can hope to swim the channel who is not in shape to stay in the water 16 or 18 hours.

The second is speed. Fast swimming for a long period is not necessary, but a channel swimmer must be able to sprint when caught by an unfavorable tide, to swim swiftly so that the current will not ruin the prospect.

But perhaps the most important factor of success is luck. It seems unsporting even to mention it, but every authority will whom I have talked insists that a swimmer must get about all the breaks in luck, or the game is lost.

My own superb trainer, William Killingly, has never made the crossing.

Jabez Wolfe, one of the foremost trainers of swimmers, made 21 attempts and never succeeded. Once he got within 100 yards of the English coast, but unfortunately was caught by an adverse current. Not having the strength and the necessary speed he was swiftly swept out in the stream again. That meant another six hours of plugging before the tide would be with him, and he didn't have the heart to carry on. Nor could anyone blame a swimmer who suffered such bad luck.

If the channel were just a stretch of water that required hard plugging, the job would be easy. But it isn't. It's a cranky criss-cross business. The tides take a swimmer in a sweeping zig-zag course, and every hour of the long grind is a game of chance. Winds, tides, currents and cold figure just as much as the swimmer's strength of stroke and power of endurance.

However, I'm getting in shape and shall gamble with the sea.

"BATTLE OF MUSIC" AT STATE THURSDAY

Instead of the regular Country Store feature at the State Thursday night Manager Jack San-son has planned something different. A real battle of music will be staged between a Willimantic orchestra and a Manchester aggregation. There will be Charleston dancers with both groups of musicians.

Ev Allen's Melody Boys of Willimantic will battle Tom Trant's Jolly Eight of Manchester. The latest jazz will be played and the audience will be the jury. Allen's musicians have an excellent reputation in and around Willimantic and Tom Trant's string pickers will have to do some tall harmonizing to beat them.

The prize the two bands will play for is a big purse of gold. In addition to this feature there will be two big motion pictures and several short stories on the program.

Northeast Kansas has planted 75,000 cherry trees from France.

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Latex-treated Web Cord

An invention of the United States Rubber Company technicians. The cords are laid parallel without threads, and soaked in virgin rubber latex, which forms an elastic web through and through and between the cords. Important because it gives the cord structure maximum strength and maximum flexibility.

Answering Some Further Questions about Latex-treated Web Cord

NOTE—So great an interest has been shown in this new construction because of the service given by United States Royal Cord Tires on passenger cars and buses that a further explanation of this patented process has been suggested.

- Q—Is treating cords with Latex entirely new in the building?
- A—Yes. Until this process was developed by the United States Rubber Company, the use of Latex before it had been coagulated into crude rubber had never been used in the building.
- Q—Is the process patented?
- A—Yes. The process is patented and owned by this Company.
- Q—What are its advantages?
- A—The tire engineer's ideal is a tire thin and flexible as a soap bubble and strong as steel. The more you can add to a tire's strength without increasing its weight the better. Latex-treated Web Cord provides the strength and flexibility without adding unnecessary weight.
- Q—Is it possible to make the cord structure of a tire too heavy?
- A—Yes. Just as a cable made of many strands of fine and highly tempered wire can be stronger than a heavier iron bar, so the cord structure of a tire can be made strong, yet light and flexible, through this process.
- Q—How does treating cords in Latex give additional strength?
- A—Latex is virgin rubber just as it comes from the tree. There are no chemicals in Latex to destroy the natural oils in the cotton or to weaken the cord fibre. Each cord in a United States Tire is run through a tank of Latex by means of the machine shown in the illustration above. The cords are then laid side by side and drawn up over heated rollers which evaporate the water in the Latex, producing a rubberized fabric of cotton cords and pure rubber. Each cord is impregnated and surrounded by rubber, and attached to its neighboring cord with an elastic rubber web.
- Q—Are there any other advantages?
- A—Yes. In the old cord fabric, the main strands in the cord structure were tied to each other with fine threads. Latex-treated Web Cord has none of these cross-tie threads and this source of internal friction is therefore eliminated. By looking inside of a Royal Cord Tire and comparing it with tires made of the old cord fabric you will see that the Royal Cord has a much smoother and even appearance.

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
 Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion, or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all acids. It neutralizes acid fermentation in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, say drug stores.—Ad.

HERALD REPORTER DESCRIBES RIDE IN AN AIRPLANE

Kind Words Value To Be Proved In "Applesauce" at Chautauqua

Scene from "Applesauce"

(By Staff Correspondent)
 Camp Trumbull, Niantic, July 20.—Through the courtesy of F. H. Spencer, president of the New England Aircraft Corporation of Hartford, the Herald staff correspondent who is here "covering the encampment of the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., yesterday took his first ride in an airplane.

$25.00 Ride Free
 The reporter was given a free ride from the camp field to Brainerd Field in Hartford. This is a distance of forty air miles and the time allotted for the trip is twenty-six minutes. The fare for passengers is $25.00. The Herald man was introduced to Mr. Spencer by Anthony A. Angello, who is doing electrical work at the camp for the government and who is also a student in the Hartford corporation which has twenty other students now.

Trip Takes 38 Minutes
 The plane was piloted by President Spencer himself. Angello and the Herald reporter rode in the front cockpit of the plane, a Waco type. The trip to Hartford consumed just thirty-eight minutes. This was considered slow time, the pilot said. He added it was due to the strong wind the plane bucked and to the numerous air-pockets encountered.

Take-off Thrills
 These air-pockets caused the ship to rise and fall with a suddenness that was sufficient to thrill anyone not accustomed to the conditions. The take-off was made from a remote corner of the field. The plane whisked across the wide, open field and almost before it was realized, the airplane had left Mother Earth. Gracefully it glided up and across the Niantic river and then up some more under the expert guidance of its pilot. Soon an altitude of 1,000 feet had been attained and Spencer swerved the huddle and headed the plane towards Hartford.

Altitude of 3,000 Feet
 With eagle-like gracefulness, the plane sped along its route steadily rising until it was 3,000 feet in the air. Then it rode along on a level. Meanwhile the camp was rapidly becoming indistinct as were other landmarks. The sound also was soon invisible.

Resembled Bed Quilt
 Far below us lay mile upon mile of wooded land, lakes, farm houses, open fields and other noticeable points. It was impossible to see where crops were growing with the naked eye. The fields appeared barren. They resembled a huge bed-quilt. Trees looked as big as the palm of one hand; automobiles even smaller; houses resembled toys children play with; and in fact, everything took on a diminutive aspect.

Manchester Bobs Up
 It was a wonderful trip and a wonderful sight. The first sign of Manchester in the distance was the shaded tobacco fields in Buckland. The landing at Brainerd Field was the real thrill of the trip. It was accompanied by much the same feeling as one experiences on a steep roller-coaster ride. The "empty" feeling it brings about surely whets ones appetite. The landing was made perfectly. So perfect, in fact, that there was not the slightest jar when the plane alighted.

Kind words, whether you mean them or not, make the world a happier place to run about in. At least that's the idea to be garnered from Barry Connors' comedy, "Applesauce," soon to be presented here for the first time on Chautauqua.

The play, another illumination on a supposedly typical American home, does not burn any brighter in its material make-up. Pa raps, ma squawks—and the battle is on. Daughter has her beaux, so that's something that must be settled. There are lots of good comedy gags. The action is surefire for laughs.

In the foreground always is the character of Bill McAllister who can easily claim flesh and blood relationship to Aubrey Piper. He's an enterprising young loafer, paradoxical as it may seem, who specializes in good-nature, compliments every ed safe and sound once more on Mother Earth.
