PALM BEACHES STILL POUNDED BY BIG STORM

Area Flooded, Lights Out, Water Supply Low, Heavy Damage Done — Debris Indicates Many Wrecks.

West Palm Beach, July 28.—Damage estimated at more than $1,000,000 in this vicinity has been caused by the tropical hurricane which struck the Palm Beaches Monday night and raged for more than 24 hours, according to a preliminary survey early today.

Damage to shipping in Lake Worth will run to $500,000, it is reported here. Many valuable yachts have been submerged, and all house boats in Lake Worth have been abandoned, the residents taking refuge in hotels. Lake Worth and ocean shores are covered with debris, and it is feared many ships have foundered.

Worst since 1903. The wind and the waves reached the highest marks registered here since the storm of 1903. The ocean is running down into Lake Worth in many places. The grounds of the Alba Hotel are submerged, and the waves are beating over the roof of the Palm Beach Golf Club, with the grounds all under water. All electric lights are out, with little possibility of restoring service before another 24 hours. The water supply is inadequate, as the wind has blown the water in the fresh water lakes back towards the Everglades.

Many suburbs are already without water, lights or telephone service. No deaths in this vicinity had been reported early today. Serious damage has been done to plate glass windows, electric signs and awnings in the entire business district of West Palm Beach.

Storm Moves Little.

Jacksonville, July 28.—After suffering 36 hours of terrific gales and torrential rains, the storm scattered eastward from Jacksonville today, with scattered attacks from the tropical hurricane which struck the lower east coast Monday night.

The storm center is still on the southeast coast and is moving slowly north, the local weather bureau reported this morning in a preliminary bulletin. The Mexican oil tanker Agwimex, from New York, reported to the Anatasia Island radio station near here that she had run into the hurricane 170 miles north of Jupiter Inlet, and was racing back north. The Agwimex said she was outriding the storm.

The Clyde liner Seminole, en route from New York to Miami with 180 passengers, reached this port safely last night after being ordered back from the lower coast to escape the storm.

Several steamers and schooners crossed the St. John's river bar at Mayport this morning to escape the gales expected to strike this part of the state by noon.

Telegraph and telephone companies whose wires had almost no usable wires south of Jacksonville today. The backwash of the storm last night moved inland from the east coast tearing down wires to the west coast of the Florida peninsula.

KNOFLAS TO BUILD LAKE IN ANDOVER

Construction Company Gets $35,000 Job—Water to Cover 365 Acres.

The Manchester Construction Company was today awarded the contract for building Andover Lake for the Andover Lake Corporation. The job will cost about $35,000. It calls for the clearing of land, building of roads, and the construction of a large concrete dam.

Work will be started immediately. Andover Lake is to be made possible by a corporation of New York, Andover, Willimantic and Manchester men of which Mark Bass, of New York City, is president. C. E. White of Andover is vice president and general manager. E. M. Yeoman of Andover, treasurer; Madison Woodard of Columbia, assistant treasurer; Royal D. Webster, of Manchester, secretary; Frank P. Fenton, of Willimantic, director, and George C. Stanley, of Andover, director.

Pleasure Resort

The land which will be around the lake shores will be developed, and put up for sale. A modern pleasure resort is the aim of the corporation. A tract of land from eight different owners, approximately five hundred acres, has been obtained. The property is situated on the southern part of Andover, one mile from the station and one quarter of a mile from the Manchester to Willimantic highway. It is a half mile from the road leading from Andover to Hebron.

The land which will be flooded is a natural lake bottom. It is practically level all the way back from the proposed dam for a mile and a half. The dam will be 200 feet across and 12 feet high. This will allow for water 12 feet deep at the dam and 8 feet deep at a mile and a half back from the dam. The lake will be entirely surrounded by hills sloping down to the shore, and will be ideal for development.

The story, as pieced together by the police, starts in Newark where McCoy became infatuated with Miss Hardman. Both were employed by a rug firm there.

Miss Hardman, resenting these attentions, left Newark three months ago for Montreal, whither McCoy followed her. The shooting, which resulted in the death of McCoy is believed by police to have followed an altercation between the couple.

McCoy, police said, was a married man.

Frank Norris' study in the First Baptist church on the afternoon of July 17 when he shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy Fort Worth lumber broker and clubman, had been questioned, most of them grand jury convened today to complete its inquiry.

Assistant District Attorney R. B. Brown was holding in reserve one eye witness of the tragic encounter, hoping it would be possible to secure a murder indictment against the fundamentalist leader without revealing this person's identity or his knowledge of the facts.

Dr. Norris has not retained counsel other than his regular legal adviser, Chairman Ben F. Boulden of the church board of pastors, nor has he modified his demand of the last week that he be indicted and given every opportunity to plead his case before a trial jury.

Romance Born in Gobi Desert Dies in a Paris Divorce Court

Paris, July 28.—The "great adventure" of Martha Matley, who as a young American girl had the distinction of being one of the first explorers ever to penetrate the mysteries of the Gobi Desert, has gone upon the rocks.

A decree handed down by the Paris divorce court has granted an annulment of marriage to M. Jacques De Lestain, an equally famous French explorer, whose marriage to the American girl culminated a romance as novel as any expounded in the most imaginative "best-seller."

In 1903, while Lestain was leading an expedition through the Gobi Desert, he crossed the path of another explorer. The latter proved to be Miss Matley who, dressed in men's clothes, commanded her expedition with the assurance born of the safe culmination of many adventures. The couple fell in love and joined company as far as Chaheroun, where a Belgian missionary married them.

This extraordinary romance of the desert came to its end in 1915, when Lestain first began his proceedings for annulment of the marriage. His suit has just been declared successful, because under the French code it is specified that to be valid the marriage of a Frenchman abroad must be celebrated before a diplomatic agent or consular agent or in the form customary in the particular foreign country.

In this case, these conditions had not been fulfilled. M. Agapoff, member of the central executive committee of the Soviets, had been assassinated and that the assassins had escaped.

Another report was that Leon Trotsky, former Soviet war lord, now at Tver, was preparing to lead troops loyal to him in order to protect himself and his friends from attacks directed from Moscow.

It was explained that the arrest of the Communist leader was made with the object of preventing him from reaching a compact with his adherents to fight his deposition.

MELLETT MURDER NEARING SOLUTION

Slater Declares First Arrests He Makes Will Be on Homicide Warrant.

Canton, O., July 28.—Arrest of the murderers and their accomplices in the Don R. Mellett assassination loomed imminent today when it was learned at the headquarters of the hunt that only a few links of evidence remained to be uncovered to complete the investigators' case against certain Canton "jungle" characters.

Ora Slater, generalissimo of the campaign against the underworld, this morning that he would arrest no one to be held on a "suspicious person charge." No arrests will be made until a confession is gained, he said.

Murder, Only Charge. "The first arrest made myself will be on a warrant charging murder," the Cincinnati detective stated.

For several days Slater and his aides have been able to place their hands upon at least one of the men connected with the murder, it became known this morning. In order to complete the chain of evidence, Earl Hexter, acting chief of police, and Slater, who will indulge in a wholesale grilling of underworld characters who to date have escaped questioning.

Anonymous letters, phone calls and other "tips" on the murderers poured into Slater's headquarters by the scores today, strengthening the belief that the $27,000 reward will "get the story," from some one who is aware of all the facts of the murder.

GET 5 WHO ROBBED ROOSEVELT HOSPITAL

Young Bandits Weep as 2 Are Identified as Slayers of Man and Girl.

New York, July 28.—Five confessed bandits and gunmen broke down completely and wept like babies today as witnesses identified two of them as the men who shot and killed a man and girl in hold-up of the Singlo Grocery Co., June 12th.

The men, known as the "Blue Sedan Gang," were arrested in connection with the Liccione bank murder last Saturday. They had partial confessions. Then they were placed in the line-up and witnesses and victims of other robberies and shootings were asked to see if they could identify them.

With visions of the electric chair before them, all five present, a strange appearance as they began weeping and holding out their hands in suppliant manner begging the witnesses not to identify them.

The labor quintet had changed from bold swaggering bandits to hysterical, crying cowards, police said.

One of the band was accidentally killed by a pal in a recent bank holdup, according to the confessions, and another has not yet been caught. Among the robbers the United Front committee had discarded before the federation would take any steps to effect a settlement.

SUSPECT 'GOLF WIDOWS' BACKED CADDY STRIKE

Watch Hill, July 28.—"Golf widows" are suspected of having instigated the strike of fifty caddies at the exclusive Misquanicut Golf club.

Meanwhile, "lugging your own" is "quite the thing" at Misquanicut.

MCKINLEY GIFT TO COLLEGE $5,000

It Was Three Years Later That He Campaigned for Defeated Senator.

Chicago, July 28.—A $5,000 gift by Senator William B. McKinley to the Lincoln University of Kentucky, was followed three years later by its chancellor, John Wesley Hill, coming to Illinois to support the senator in his race for re-nomination.

Henry I. Green, the McKinley "paymaster," testified today in the senate slush fund investigation of the recent Illinois senatorial primary.

The donation to the university was made in 1923, Green said, he added that Hill, who spoke for McKinley by praising his vote for the world court, received no pay for the speeches, but did have his expenses paid.

This was the first of McKinley's "million-a-year" philanthropies to be investigated by the slush fund committee.

Where Fund Went. Under questioning by Senator Reed, Democratic chairman Green also revealed to the committee where a large portion of the $350,000 McKinley campaign fund had gone. Green testified that John W. Stipes of Champaign, Ill., recently named to the Mississippi river commission by President Coolidge, had received $100,000 from the McKinley fund, that Chester Willoughby, the senator's secretary, had been given $55,000; that Andrew Russell, of Jacksonville, Ill., received $30,000 and $40,000 while $29,000 was turned over to H. E. Morgan, of Champaign, Ill., an old friend of the senator.

Stipes, Willoughby, Russell and Morgan, the witness said, in turn paid this money to promote McKinley's futile race for re-nomination.

Just Dumped Cash. An amazing story of Illinois politics, in which money was scattered as carelessly as leaves in a windstorm, was revealed by Henry I. Green.

Green told how he paid out a total of $324,000 without keeping records, while handing sums ranging from $500 to $1,000 to men he had never seen before. Green said he scattered $5,000 a day whenever he visited Chicago and he could give the committee no record at all of these expenditures.

It was in cash, Green explained. He declared the Illinois politicians refused to accept checks, so he paid, he admitted, and in some instances he couldn't tell within $500 how much he had given to McKinley followers.

Denies "Million a Year." Green spread upon the record a flat denial of charges that McKinley had lavished "million dollars a year" on public charities to aid his senatorial campaign. Apparently angered by the suggestion, he declared McKinley had practiced remarkable generosity toward public institutions for many years past and had even reduced his donations to charity in the last year because of the probable effect of the public mind.

FLYING FLIVS SOON SAYS EDEL FORD

Confident That Quantity Production of Low Priced Planes Is at Hand.

White Pine Camp, N. Y., July 28.—"Flying flivvers" are just around the corner, Edsel Ford, son of the automobile manufacturer, told President Coolidge today. Ford expects to see quantity production of airplanes in the near future, and is now directing a large part of the Ford interests in experimenting along this line.

Ford workers have nearly perfected a huge freight airplane, he said, capable of carrying a ton of general cargo on long non-stop flights.

Ford believes that the present high cost of airplanes can be greatly reduced and that an increased demand, which will be noticed when airplanes are more practical, will cut prices to a low figure.

SCHISMATISTS WOULD SUPPLY MEX CHURCHES

Off-Shoot Catholics Offer to Conduct Rites If "Romans" Quit — Mayor Reported Lynched.

Mexico City, July 28.—Schismatic Catholics of Mexico, who hold a doctrine opposed to that of the Roman Catholics, announced today that they were prepared to take over the churches and institute services as soon as the churches are abandoned by their regular clergy on August 1. Their action will depend upon whether or not the government approves their plan, they stated.

The Schismatics, as they are known, gave the following statement: "As fast as the Romanist priests desert the churches we will move in, performing all rites, supplying all the spiritual needs of the people, provided, of course, we can obtain the necessary permission of the government."

Prelates Not Arrested. Adherents of the prelates who signed the pastoral letter ordering the suspension of the regular services in the churches broke up the earlier today by the passing of another twenty-four hours without any overt action by the government. It had been expected that the signers long before this would have been placed behind prison bars.

The government experts are understood to be still studying the suspension order to determine whether or not it is of a seditious nature. Their report is expected today. Upon the nature of this report will depend the action to be taken by President Calles and his followers.

Calles' definite threat to seize the churches when they were abandoned unless they are left in the care of proper guardians has caused considerable disturbance in Catholic ranks. From official sources that the government would consider the committee of eight laymen, appointed by the priests in each church to care for the properties ad interim, as "proper guardians."

Slamming Offer. Definite application for permission to take over most of the important churches in Mexico was filed this morning by Patriarch Perez of the Schismatic Church. Perez made it clear that his followers did not want the churches for their riches but for the opportunity the impending abandonment provided for spreading their teachings.

The first serious incident in the clash between the Mexican government and the Catholic Church was reported from Aguascalientes. Mayor Humberto Cervantes is reported to have been lynched by a mob because he ordered the arrest of the town priest, who refused to register as prescribed by law, according to one of the reports.

Another dispatch charges that the mayor entered into an argument with the priest which ended in his shooting the clergymen and then the citizenry retaliated by lynching the mayor. Still another version is that the mayor was stoned to death.

Official confirmation of these reports is lacking.

Archbishop Moray del Rio, who is directing the Catholic church movements in the controversy, is reported to be on the verge of a breakdown and it is feared that unless the situation eases and the strain upon him is lessened that he cannot continue his work.

Merchants throughout the country are reported to be aroused over the prospects of the controversy. Another religious fervor is running so high as to make it probable that the boycott will be completely effective and will result in serious injury to trade.

Hopes that the government would not be too stern in its actions against the churchmen were reported to be in the air. These charges against Rene Gartz, Rafael Cinceros Villareal and Luis Buceta, lay leaders of the National League of Religious Defense, have been reduced to inactivity and obedience of the law.

Indications of the rush for religious rites prior to the closing of the churches is given in a statement from priests at the Mexico City Cathedral to the effect that there have been 96,000 confirmations between July 1 and July 26. It is also reported that hundreds of unmarried couples have also hastened to the church to have their unions sanctioned and their children blessed.

Yesterday there were 5,000 baptisms, 4,000 confirmations and 1,000 weddings in Mexico City. Thousands attended church services.

Joan Crawford, Star Is Rising in the West

Hollywood, July 27.—Joan Crawford is a screen newcomer to be reckoned with. Her lean, young face stands out memorably from the many faces that flash and vanish in the interminable reel of film.

Careful Training. So certain are her employers that they have in this 19-year-old girl an actress of real caliber that they are favoring her with the most carefully charted training ever accorded a novice by G-M-M.

Her debut, following a course of small bits for a year, was in Jackie Coogan's 'Old Clothes.' Then she won notice in 'Sally, Irene and Mary,' after which she played opposite Harry Langdon in 'Tramp, Tramp, Tramp.'

In 'Paris,' a current G-M-M release, playing Charles Ray and Douglas Gilmore, she catches distinction in the fine portrayal of an Apache girl. And next in order is 'The Grey Hat,' in which she will play opposite Lew Cody.

Outstanding. She is frank, earnest, well-mannered, arresting. Her assortment of quick emotions live very close to the surface of her almost aquiline features, which suggest driving power and unswerving purpose.

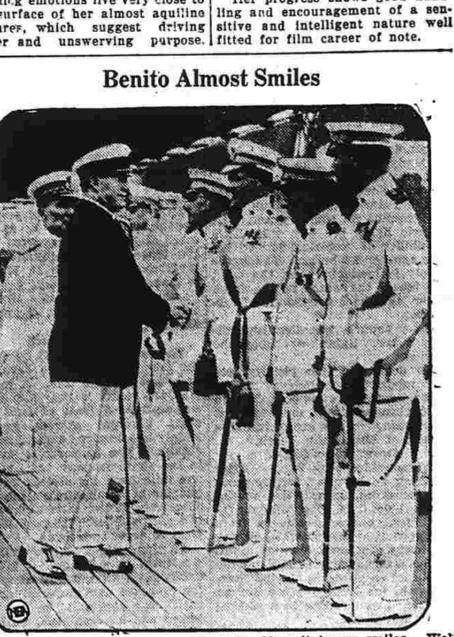

She stands out from the crowd of her young contemporaries, on and off the screen. Her progress shows good handling and encouragement of a sensitive and intelligent nature well fitted for film career of note.

CROWDS AT OPENING CHAUTAUQUA SHOW

Entertainments Pleasing; Zedellers on Program for Tonight.

Both afternoon and evening performances yesterday, the first day of Chautauqua, were well attended. The superintendent expressed his pleasure at both sessions on being privileged to return to Manchester after an absence of one or two seasons, and their gratitude to the guarantors who made it possible for the children and grownups to have this joyous week. He briefly outlined the program for the seven days and assured his audience that the entertainments were all of the highest order.

The Junior superintendent, Miss Sugg, who has been here before, called attention to the particularly appropriate and attractive entertainment which the local children will provide for the closing afternoon when the boys and girls will dramatize the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Yesterday afternoon the Lowell Paton artists gave a splendid program of popular and classic music in costume. Lowell Paton is one of the finest pianists ever heard here. He is also a composer of note. His brother sang some of his catchy tunes and appeared with a promising young Italian singer in a variety of character songs, old-time English ballads, sacred and operatic music. Every number was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

The major portion of last night's entertainment was by Ross B. Crane in his lecture "Painting Pictures With Furniture." Mr. Crane is connected with the Extension Division of the Art Institute of Chicago. He is a national authority on interior decoration and is sometimes referred to as "The Apostle of the Heartstone." The stage was set for a living room, like many others with bad lines and ugly combinations. Mr. Crane transformed it with the use of inexpensive materials and furnishings into one of color, charm and individuality, at the same time holding the attention of young and old in his audience with his flow of ready wit, affording an entertainment at once instructive and unique.

The expert carries with him drapery materials, paintings and lamps. He depends upon the courtesy of the furniture stores in the towns Chautauqua visits for his furnishings, and he paid a high tribute to those in Manchester. He said not in the forty towns he had visited this summer already, of Manchester's size, had he found stores the equal of those in this town. He was able to find exactly what he needed for his demonstration last night.

On Saturday's Home Page Mary Taylor will write more in detail about this profitable lecture and the benefit of those who were unable to enjoy it.

This afternoon Frank H. Hollman, editor of the American Pigeon Journal and an acknowledged authority on the subject delighted the children as well as their parents with his exhibit of rare specimens of pigeons. Mr. Hollman has been on the Chautauqua circuit the past two summers and his entertainment is a favorite. He carries twenty-five different varieties. His exhibit which entirely fills the platform is conveyed from town to town in a special automobile, the pigeons being in small cases.

Tonight the program will be furnished by the Zedeler Symphonic Quintet, consisting of two violins, cello, piano and a specially constructed reed organ. Nicholas is the first chair violinist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and his associates are artists of equal ability.

"Dream Baby" Valid Heir to Title; Famous Case Decided

London, July 28.—The kings bench court today declined Baby Geoffrey Russell, the "dream baby", the legitimate child of the Hon. John Hugo Russell, son of Lord Amptill, and Mrs. Christabel Russell, thus bringing to a conclusion one of the most famous divorce cases in the history of the English courts.

Russell petitioned for a divorce in 1922, charging infidelity. Mrs. Russell defended. In the course of the trial Russell's attorneys denied their clients paternity of Geoffrey, maintaining that Russell and his wife had never lived together as man and wife. Mrs. Russell answered this charge with the claim that Geoffrey was a "dream baby" and amazing medical evidence was presented.

Russell was granted a divorce decree after two trials. Mrs. Russell carried the case to the House of Lords.

The decisions of the various courts, left a cloud on the legitimacy of Baby Geoffrey. Since the child might one day come into the title of Lord Amptill, Mrs. Russell sought a court ruling.

Mrs. Russell now conducts a modiste's shop and designs many of the costumes for London theatrical productions.

One of the features in a picture that will live forever! As old as the heart of every great American city there lives another city—the ghetto. Scattered for centuries, these people have come from the far corners of Europe, each bringing a dream of happiness and prosperity. Here they live and love. Here they rise and fall. Here they lose and win.

Against the vivid, colorful background of New York's East Side you will see a tender, yet mighty picture drama—hot with the living breath of a story old as the ages—new as tomorrow. Its name is "His People!" It takes a great picture to do what this picture will do to you—and by "great" we mean great in the end, great in acting, and great in direction.

For the other feature we have a real Pepper entertainment. "Chill Con Carne" comedy! Shot with tabasco action! A surging, swinging, smashing story of the open west! Bob Custer in "The Fighting Boob."

For today, matinee and evening, the State Theater will present the last showing of Norma Talmadge in "The Lady" Come! Learn the Lady's way of looking at life. The strange philosophy of the dance hall girl who hoped, dreamed to be a lady and awoke in the end with realization in her heart. It's too big a picture for you to miss. Two performances tonight at 7 and 9.

15 AUTO DRIVERS LOSE THEIR LICENSES

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are fifteen names on the list. One was a Connecticut operator convicted in another state. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

ANDREWS PACT IS NOT ON DRY LAWS

Merely Agreement for Cooperation in Enforcing British Shipping Rules.

Washington, July 28.—The agreement reached at London yesterday between General Lincoln C. Andrews and British government officials, by which a working plan between the two nations with reference to American prohibition enforcement was adopted, has not been made public here, and will not be, it was stated authoritatively, "for obvious reasons." The government does not wish to tip its hand to the rum runners.

It is pretty well understood here, however, that Andrews received no promise of aid in the enforcement of the American prohibitory laws. What he did accomplish was an understanding by which both America and Great Britain will assist in the enforcement of British laws now to some extent being violated by the smugglers.

No Right of Search The permission by which American revenue craft will be allowed to enter West India ports on a few hours notice does not carry with it the right of search, but merely of co-operation with the British authorities in detecting and preventing violations of the British shipping laws.

There is a general belief in official circles that General Andrews accomplished everything that he expected and that was expected of him by the Treasury Department, but that "the expedition" has been over-played in the news as seeking far greater and different results than were ever intended.

HALF HUNDRED HURT IN CONEY ISLAND CRUSH

New York, July 28.—Three persons are dying and fifty others were injured following the collapse of a store railing on a crowded stairway leading from the Boardwalk at Coney Island to the beach. With a crowd packed on the stairway witnessing the weekly display of fireworks, the railing gave way under the pressure of the throng and hurled a hundred spectators to the beach below. A number were injured in the panic which followed.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 28, 1926.

THAT SANE FOURTH.

The summer moves along. Presently it will be autumn and the annual town meeting will be here.

Probably much less than one in ten persons in this town wants any repetition of the kind of an Independence day celebration we had this year.

GOOD SCOLDING.

The scolding that President Coolidge administered to those fresh Americans who have been rasping the frazzled nerves of the Paris mob by their gauche flaunting of dollars, is one of the most noteworthy utterances which he has permitted himself to make since he has occupied the presidential office.

It is a decided pity that the idiotic myth of the "official spokesman" prevented the statement from being put squarely between quotation marks and squarely attributed to its real author.

The frankness with which the President expressed his opinion of the bumptious tourist, the pikestaff directness of his advice to Americans who don't like their treatment in Europe to stay home and keep their mouths shut, would seem to dissipate at one stroke the general impression that Calvin Coolidge lacks the courage to speak out in meeting.

And now that the President has broken the habit of over-cautious watchfulness on his words there is room for hope that quite soon he may speak as plainly, as directly and to as much effect what is really, we believe, in his mind with relation to Europe's debts.

INTEREST.

Borah says we have made European debtors a present of seven billion dollars in the course of various settlements.

The total of all the European debts at the face of their contractual value was nine billions. That would leave two billions that we intend to collect.

As a matter of fact the total to be paid to the United States by these debtor nations, as per signed agreements, is something like twenty-two billions.

idea is that we have made them a present of seven billions because they are not to pay us a total of twenty-nine billions for the nine borrowed.

The thing that causes this conflict of figures is, of course, the matter of interest.

Interest is a singular institution. To the minds of millions of persons it is a fundamental of existence, like sunshine, water or the good brown earth.

Then someone with a cunning mind and a crafty soul invented the scheme of taking advantage of another's necessities by making such a charge—and interest came into being.

During the centuries interest has come to occupy such a place in our civilization that we should have, to revolutionize society altogether if we did away with it.

Most thinking Connecticut people will applaud their governor for his outspoken condemnation of government by constitutional amendment, expressed at the conference of governors in Wyoming; even though they have to gulp a bit over his declared belief that all the federal amendments since the fourteenth, with the exception of the seventeenth—for direct election of senators—would be better out of the constitution than in it.

It takes a rather courageous individual, these days, to include the woman suffrage amendment in the category of ill-advised law, but the fact remains that the determination of the qualifications of the electorate ought, in the broader sense, to remain a function of the state itself.

We are glad to see Connecticut's chief executive among those modernly thinking Republicans who do not permit tradition to prevent them from taking over the one and only principle of the old Democratic power which possessed intrinsic merit—the principle of states' rights, now altogether abandoned by that party since its entire southern wing committed itself to the policy of national prohibition.

The Democrats never did know how to apply that principle; they fumbled and muddled it; but for many years they held their party together by using it as a slogan.

HONOR, OR NOT.

It will begin to dawn on the American people by and by, if these revelations continue, that to be a United States senator may be one thing and to be another United States senator may be an entirely different thing; that, in other words, a senatorship may be an honor or it may be a dishonor.

Here in Connecticut we have never yet put up a senatorship at auction. We have never yet sent to the Senate a man who bought his seat. We have taken our political obligations seriously.

When we learn of senatorial candidates in big states engaging in an utterly sordid battle of dollars, when we discover that in Illinois one privilege seeking public utilities magnate contributes to the campaign funds of candidates of both parties and that a senator spends several hundred thousand dollars to get a renomination—and incidentally falls only because he didn't spend enough—we nevertheless begin to wonder how long it will continue to be a way of honoring our best citizens, this sending them to the Senate.

FLORIDA BLAST.

Ascending currents of heated atmosphere continuing steadily for a long period are bound to result in the setting in of heavy gales from the surrounding regions.

How the resort section of Florida escaped so long from the natural meteorological consequences of its production of hot air passes un-derstanding, and that the whole locality escaped being blown away like two quarts of dry sand must be attributed to a special dispensation of Providence.

IN NEW YORK

New York, July 28.—See-sawing up and down Broadway, I wandered in on several night clubs during the brief period while the 2 o'clock "curfew law" was in effect.

Another place issued "guest cards." These went to all the "regulars" of the night life and their friends, to be presented at the door after 2 o'clock.

Nothing pleases Broadway more than the arrival of a "mysterious" new spender. Particularly if the spender is unbelievably lavish and general in his distribution.

Just now the "inside circles" buzz with the name of a "big oil and gusher man" from Texas, whose name must indeed be large and awe-inspiring. On two consecutive Sundays he has taken the entire chorus and cast of one of the popular supper clubs to Atlantic City for a week-end "party" and, I am told, he has stood all costs from train fare to drinks.

Also I hear that, whatever the decision of the recent congress of dancing masters, the step which promises eventually to take the place of the Charleston will be "the mess-around." After all Broadway's verdict has more than a little to do with popular crazes in dance, music and drama.

Those interested in the "mess-around" have been quietly getting their "stunt" under way and Tom Delaney, the negro blues composer, has turned out the first of the "mess-around" compositions, to be known as the "Louisiana Mess-around" and backed by a leading publishing house.

The dance is slower in tempo than the Charleston, being done to music which is similar to the old "blues."

When Reed was appointed chairman of the slush fund investigating committee, Yates, as his secretary, automatically became the committee's secretary.

We worked up the whole investigation.

It was his case, so to speak, prepared by him as an office lawyer prepares a case, to run over to the court room specialist who develops it, through the examination and cross-examination of witnesses, sums up and demands a verdict on the evidence.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By Charles P. Stewart. Washington, July 28.—Trust as extraordinary a senator as James A. Reed of Missouri to have an extraordinary secretary.

The fact is that Hicklin Yates is far more than a mere secretary, or even super-secretary.

Well, in effect, so he is, with himself as president, engaged in mapping out broad general policies. Yates, as vice president and general manager, is in charge of the company's actual operations.

For instance, everybody wondered how in the world Reed managed to push that investigation into the late Pennsylvania Republican senatorial election and keep up with his regular Senate work at the same time.

When Reed was appointed chairman of the slush fund investigating committee, Yates, as his secretary, automatically became the committee's secretary.

We worked up the whole investigation.

It was his case, so to speak, prepared by him as an office lawyer prepares a case, to run over to the court room specialist who develops it, through the examination and cross-examination of witnesses, sums up and demands a verdict on the evidence.

CZECH ARMY SUICIDES INCREASED SINCE WAR

Prague.—Suicides among soldiers and officers of the Czech army have shown a slight increase in the last four years according to a report of the Minister of War. In the year 1922 the percentage was 6.7 for each 10,000 soldiers in the army of about 75,000 men. Next year it reached 8.04 and in 1924 it was 7.32. Last year it was 8.91 which is unaccountable since the army has been inactive. The suicides in the army are thirty percent greater than for the civil population. Officers represented about twenty percent of the suicides although they are proportionately only about three percent of the army.

POE'S STORIES: The Murders in the Rue Morgue (2)

The apartment from which the blood-curdling scream had issued was found to be in the wildest disorder. Furniture had been broken and thrown about in all directions. On a chair lay a razor, stained with blood. On the hearth were two or three thick tresses of gray hair, that seemed to have been pulled out by the roots.

On the floor were found four Napoleons, a topaz earring, and among other valuables, two bags containing 4000 francs in gold.

A small iron safe was discovered under the bed. The bed had been torn away from the bedstead. The safe was open, the key still in the door.

Of the inhabitants nothing was seen at first, but a large quantity of soot near the fireplace led to a search in the chimney where the body of Mlle. L'Espanaye was found where it had been thrust into the narrow aperture, head downward. The decapitated body of the mother was found in a small paved yard in the rear. There seemed absolutely no clew to the mystery.

60 HOME RUN HITTER MAKES YANKEE GRADE

Tony Lazzeri, $75,000 Find, Proving Big Sensation in Metropolis.

(By Billy Evans) "Push 'em up, Tony!" That is the favorite expression of New York fanatics at present. It closely rivals what has been the college yell of the Yankee supporters for years: "Bust one Babe!" For Tony Lazzeri, playing his first year under the big tent, is already an established favorite in New York. Without a doubt, Tony Lazzeri is one of the best looking young infielders to break into the American League in years. He is destined to be a star, a much-talked-about athlete. In fact, already is the subject of considerable gossip.

Tony Lazzeri

Lazzeri is colorful. He has an easy, graceful style in the field, is fast, and at the bat takes a healthy cut at the ball that gets great distance. Tony, however, is not strong on oratory. He is a tough guy to interview. "You play baseball with your head, hands and feet, not your mouth," is Tony's favorite expression when he talks about himself. While Tony is very appreciative of all the kind words that have been said about him, he much prefers the newspaper man to draw on their own imagination for copy rather than talk about himself. His Start Lazzeri came to the Yankees as a shortstop. He looked rather awkward, a trifle out of place on the spring when shifted to second base. There was much skepticism as to whether he would deliver. Since being assigned to second he has improved his play with each game, already looks the part of the finished ball player and is certain to be one of the best men that has ever played that position in the majors. Recently he was shifted to shortstop when Mark Koenig slumped in his work. He has performed brilliantly at his old position. That is why he is so highly regarded. The Jongleurs— a. Ode to Spring b. FIND OLD FOOTPRINTS

Denver—Discoveries of footprints left in the Grand Canyon that are at least 35,000,000 years old, have just been announced by Prof. Charles W. Gilmore, curator of vertebrate paleontology at the National Museum. The tracks were 1800 feet below the rim and were those of some queer, extinct reptiles. Batted .355 The consensus was that the rarified air of Salt Lake was responsible for Lazzeri had won fame under the same conditions he was placed in Strand's class. Last season Lazzeri hit .355 for Salt Lake, drove in the amazing total of 223 runs and set a home-run record with 60. New York gave $50,000 and five players for Lazzeri, practically $75,000, and he is worth every cent of it and then some. And Lazzeri, by the way, assisted by Oscar Melillo of St. Louis, does your wife want a washing machine for her birthday? Read "They Never Know."

EXTORTION.

London.—Women money lenders in the slums district have been found to charge as high as 100 per cent per week on loans of 5 to 20 pounds. The offenders are hard to catch because of the victims' wish to hide the disgrace of their poverty from their neighbors.

JIGGERS MCCARTHY GETS RASPBERRIES AT THE VELODROME

Referee at Boxing Bouts Gives Raw Decision and Crowd Boos Him.

Hartford, July 28.—What would otherwise have been a splendid bill of boxing was marred last night in the Velodrome here before a mere handful of spectators when Referee "Jiggers" McCarthy handed down one of the rawest decisions ever seen in state boxing circles in the bout between Ruby Bradley of Holyoke and Emil Paluso, of Salt Lake City. McCarthy gave the verdict to the white boy and simultaneously from all corners of the spacious amphitheatre came hoots of disapproval from the sprinkling of fans. It was clearly the consensus of the colored boys from Holyoke that the white boy had won by virtue of being far superior in aggressiveness, by outslugging Paluso and by outwitting him. A stiff right landing only at irregular intervals during the bout was the only real blow it was insufficient to even earn him a draw.

REASON FOR MR. NURMI'S SUPERIORITY LIES IN LOW TEMPERATURE OF HOMELAND

New York, July 28.—The reason for Nurmi's superiority as an athlete lies in the low average annual temperature of his homeland. That's the conclusion you may draw from a study just completed by Guillermo Hoxmark, in charge of the weather bureau at Buenos Aires. Hoxmark went over the points scored by the athletes of 22 nations that participated in the Olympic games at Antwerp in 1920 and at Paris in 1924.

THE BEAUTY DOCTOR

BY NINON.

Katherine Burke showing neck exercise.

CONDITION—Bony structure of the neck and shoulders too prominent.

DIAGNOSIS—Your breathing is at fault. You do not get full service out of your lungs. You neglect to exercise the muscles of the neck and shoulders so as to pad the bones with muscles and enough flesh to be pleasing.

TREATMENT—Practice breathing exercises every night and morning. And as you walk remember to fill your lungs full of air instead of just as much as they feel inclined to take. When you arise, stand before the open window, and slowly bring your arms up above your head, as you rise on your tiptoes and inhale slowly. Then exhale slowly as you lower your arms and return your heels to the floor. Always hold the air in your lungs as long as you can and expel it under control as you lower your body. Twenty times at night and even more in the morning will be beneficial.

A WOMAN'S DAY ABROAD

By ALLENE SUMNER.

Paris, July.—I read about it in the paper. "Think what fun it will be to tell your friends that you learned to make real French dishes in Paris!" It read, singing the praises of a certain cooking school where one could make an "omelette champignonne" taste just as it does at a certain place. I know where said viand sells for 40 francs a portion.

Moreover, for only 15 francs, so the ad continued, one could learn to make all these delectable tidbits and thus amaze the constituency at home.

I investigated my duenna, Miss Pretzel Herring, into accompanying me to said scholastic halls.

We are enveloped in white aprons before we could say "wee-wee" which seems to be the proper thing to say on each and every occasion.

And now I will tell you some of the marvelous lore which I learned for my 15 francs.

First of all, no dish fit to put upon the table is ever made without a rich yellow gravy made from six eggs, well beaten, to which is added one tablespoonful of brandy. The best homes should serve only such desserts as may be brought to the table all ablaze with that aromatic blue flame which comes from lighted brandy. Take pancakes, for instance. They are called "crepes" if made thin enough and are the one and only dessert fit made like this.

Put one-half cup sweet butter in chafing dish. Add one cup powdered sugar and stir well. Pour in one-quarter cup of brandy, and light. Dump over the crepes and serve to the High Mogul of Thibet if you get a chance.

Pansy and I learned that no dinner hostess, who knows her radiance, will ever omit fish from a dinner. Fish is to these French what bread is to us.

Pardon the digression, but just to prove my fish story: We sat on the stone ledge surrounding the carp pond behind the Petit Trianon, the summer home of Marie Antoinette, when a young couple came along with a hunk of the eternal French bread in their hands.

Madame ogled the carp which were so thick in the little pond that they could hardly wiggle their girlish fingers. Then she ecstatically murmured something which our French interpreter as "takey home to supper."

She chewed up bits of bread and threw it into the pond. As the fish jumped up for the bread like so many puppies, hubby hit 'em a clip on their marceled heads and stored 'em into his hat, and so merrily home to supper!

We learned at cooking school that fish should ever be served with a sauce Hollandaise, you know what that is.

We learned that potatoes and other vegetables must never be served with meat, but must be a separate course in themselves.

We knew that before. We have trotted out all the words in our little dictionaries in a wild attempt to get potatoes with our bouef, but the waiters have their sense of fitness and refuse to comply.

French fried or string beans will come only after all the meat is properly consumed.

Eating in Paris is a drama in itself. One eats outdoors mostly, on little sidewalk tables. Vendors of everything crowd about to tempt the diner.

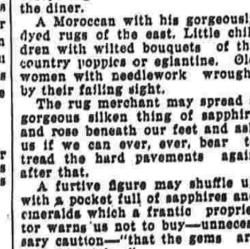

A Moroccan with his gorgeously dyed rugs of the east. Little children with wilted bouquets of the country poppies or gypsies. Old women with needlework wrought by their falling sight.

The rug merchant may spread a gorgeous silken thing of sapphire and rose beneath our feet and ask us if we can ever, ever, bear to tread the hard pavements again after that.

A furtive figure may shuffle up with a pocket full of sapphires and emeralds which a frantic proprietor warns us not to buy—unnecessary caution—"that the gems are probably stolen."

A woman may go by using a loaf of bread as a walking stick. Two children may come along, each carrying an end of the loaf for breakfast. Bread is both literally and figuratively the staff of life here.

A different kind of necklace is this combination of pearls in two tints. Two rows of large cream pearls have loops of smaller pink ones knotted at the side.

Another Great American Love Story

One Kiss Nearly Wrecked Opera—But Won Mario Chamlee a Bride

Ruth Miller Was So Upset She Sang Off Key.

Mario Chamlee and Ruth Miller.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

New York.—Mario Chamlee was responsible for the worst performance Ruth Miller ever gave as an opera singer.

It was entirely his fault that her Marguerite, usually so perfect and so satisfying, lost poise, floundered miserably among the sharps and flats and couldn't make the high notes.

Chamlee gave her a kiss, which every Faust has a perfect right, and even a duty to bestow on Marguerite, according to the libretto, but the kiss he gave her wasn't Marguerite's casual stage kiss at all—it was a very real one from Mario Chamlee to Ruth Miller, and it revealed to her what she had not suspected—that she loved him. Only a carping critic would not forgive her for singing off key then.

Chamlee Rejoices.

As for Chamlee when he observed the effect of his kiss, and heard her singing off key and saw how her performance sagged, then he knew his love was answered. He sang better than he ever had before—and saved the evening for the audience.

This was in Detroit. Chamlee had heard Ruth Miller sing one other time, on the occasion of his first visit to New York, when he had bought a ticket for opera before he knew where he was going to stay.

He had admired her voice so much that he had begged to be presented to her afterwards so he might tell her so. But he had never seen her since until several months later when both had been engaged to sing in the same company that was sent to Detroit.

But not only had her clear soprano tones registered in his mind—in his heart he carried the image of her wistful face with the very large blue eyes and the soft brown hair that framed it so delicately.

She was in Detroit. Chamlee had only fanned the flame one sight of her had ignited. He fell more hopelessly in love daily. One afternoon he warned her.

"Tonight we are playing opposite each other in Faust, and I am going to kiss you squarely on the mouth—that's my privilege, you know."

She had received the news casually enough, but she couldn't be casual about the kiss. So, after that performance, they were engaged.

The marriage was delayed for years. Along came the war and into khaki went Chamlee, first to a training camp, then to the trenches in France. Meanwhile, Ruth Miller went ahead and while she was singing in the Metropolitan Opera, she was playing cymbals in regimental band, listed as a fourth-class musician.

He had never played any instrument until this time, and was allowed to be the cymbalist because his voice made him a desirable addition to the band.

His spare time was spent writing to Ruth Miller.

"I suffered more from writer's cramp than from sharpnell," he laughed. "But while she was getting on professionally, she didn't forget her husband in the trenches."

When the war was over, they were married. Then Chamlee studied, slaved and sang, and eventually he too won the distinction every singer craves—admission into the Metropolitan Opera company. Today he is one of the leading tenors.

Sing in Concerts.

Since the birth of their son, Mrs. Chamlee has retired from opera, but she often appears in concert with her husband, incidentally both the Chamlees are American born and trained, and are good arguments against the theory that America can't produce opera singers.

Both are Westerners, she from Oregon and he from California, but they make their home in New York during the opera season, and in Connecticut, on their farm, at other times.

The most pleasing feature about this American romance is that it has that sturdy perennial quality which is not considered indigenous to operatic soil. And they are so supremely happy that Mrs. Chamlee has long since forgiven her husband for throwing her off key in Detroit.

Too Tired To Talk?

by Olive Roberts Barton.

There is no doubt of it! Conversation is on the wane. It is out of fashion as surely as hatspins. Young people seem to dislike talking nowadays—moreover, they seem to dislike even thinking. Observe a crowd of them—listen to the "give and take and merry repartee. You won't have to listen long. There isn't any!"

"If you try to exert yourself and say witty things—you're a back number" is the latest amendment to their ever-changing constitution. Their code is to act and talk as if life was one long bonanza.

It is so ridiculous, for under it all they are seething with life and happiness. Just nice, natural boys and girls!

But this lack of conversation is more than an idiosyncrasy of youth. It is really a serious state of affairs—due no doubt to the nerve strain of a strenuous age. People are together, socially, in the evening mostly when they are tired or relaxed. They make less effort now than they used to when it was the custom to wear a certain kind of ceremonious behavior with dinner clothes.

De Quincy would turn in his grave to listen to the average dinner conversation now. Personalities! Almost always and altogether personalities! Why cannot we separate the deer from the deer? Americans seem to be more vitally

HER OWN WAY

By A GIRL OF TODAY

A Real Friend
 "Lela, it is I," said Joan coming forward from behind me.

With a cry Mrs. Cornwall sat up in bed and with a gesture with her weak hands as though trying to push Joan away, said:

"Don't come near me, Joan Meredith. I am punished enough for trying to get my husband to get all the money he could out of you."

"This morning I knew that it was I who sent him to his death. I knew he was going to blackmail you. It was I who first put it into his head. I knew about the name of Barry Cornwall and wife on the hotel register. He gave me that name from the register to keep."

I started forward now, she said this. I opened my mouth to ask her where she put it, for I knew that Joan or I must get that page before Jim Smith got there, and I expected him every minute.

It was Joan this time that kept me from starting things. Slowly she went forward toward the bed. Slowly she held out her hands, and, although Lela, visibly shook upon the pillows, Joan came near her, and began to speak.

"Dear Lela, I know about it all. He told me last night that you were going to have a child and he told me he loved you, and because he loved you, Lela, I have come to help you. I'll be your friend if you will let me."

"What are you going to do that for? Don't you know that I tried to ruin you? I framed it up for you, and—Oh my God—that is the reason Barry died. That is my punishment. Let me die, both me and my poor baby!"

"No dear, you are going to live and I am going to take care of you."

The poor tired body of Lela Cornwall straightened out. She had fainted.

A Bad Adviser
 As we tried to bring her to there was a noise in the hall and in strode Jim Smith. At the sight of Joan and I in there with Lela so still and white on the pillow, he turned and almost shouted in a rough voice:

"So you have killed her with your demands, Miss Meredith! Well, let me tell you it will do you no good. I can carry on for her. I know that you and Barry were at that road house, and I have the name on that register myself."

I looked at Lela quickly. Was it possible that Providence had let her die and left us in the hands of this bounder?

To my relief and surprise her eyes flew open with a jerk. She had heard the voice of the master of the Circle, the voice that she feared, the voice that made her dance whether she wished to or not.

"What is it, Mr. Smith?" she asked, before her lazy lids drooped again and shut out all expression in her face.

Although her voice was hardly above a whisper, the man heard her.

He rushed over toward the bed. "Don't you believe, Lela, what these dames have been telling you. They have probably been giving you some applause trying to make you think they are your friends. But I know all about them. They came to my place for your address. I told them that I didn't have it. I wanted to get to you first, for I wanted to tell you that I was your friend. I wanted to make you understand that they were trying to syp you. Don't have anything to do with them."

"Give me that piece of paper that Barry cut out of the register. I'll make them pay for it. I'll make them pay enough to keep both of us all the rest of our lives."

MIGHT MELT.

Tin articles should never be arranged on the stove to dry, as this darkens them, and enough heat will melt them.

Wooden bowls should be dried in the sun, but never by the fire, as the heat cracks the wood.

A PUZZLE A DAY

Hidden in this puzzle is the name of a famous ball player. Each of the six pictured objects may be described by a word of seven letters. When rightly guessed and placed one below the other in the proper order, their initials will spell the player's first name. To discover his last name pick out one letter contained in each word and they in turn will spell his other name.

Can you find the man's name? Last puzzle answer:

One hundred and eighty people drove to Los Angeles to hear Mrs. McPherson. There were three persons in each of the 60 cars (3 x 60 equals 180.) On the way 15 cars broke down so the 45 remaining machines each carried one person more (4 x 45 equal 180.) On the trip home 15 more cars were left in Los Angeles leaving only 30 cars. Since each car carried three persons more than in the morning, each car carried six people (6 x 30 equals 180).

HIS HAND SMASHED IN PRINTING PRESS

James H. Clifford of Garden Street, Victim of Painful Accident.

James H. Clifford of 74 Garden street was the victim of a painful accident at a printing office in Hartford yesterday when his right hand was caught in a job press.

An X-ray picture at the hospital revealed that six small bones in the hand had been smashed. The skin was also lacerated and while the injury is not considered serious to any great extent, it was exceedingly painful. Clifford was treated by a local physician.

He will be out of work about six weeks because of his injury.

TINY GARDENS GIVE OLD WORLD TINGE TO COURT

It is strange how the Italians try to get their home atmosphere no matter where they locate in the new world. A walk through Kenney Court, that street hardly ever visited by Manchester folks is a splendid example of this.

Each tenant has a garden surrounded by a screen fence. The gates to these gardens are securely locked. In these small spaces on which the average American would probably be able to raise a few radishes, some lettuce and a few hills of corn, these residents raise vegetables of all kinds in profusion.

But that is not all. On these same tiny plots there is a small chicken coop, a rabbit hutch, wire enclosed and sometimes four apartments high and last and most important, a villa. These villas, made of packing cases and covered with tar paper, are tiny affairs but all have them.
