MEXICO INDIANS ARM TO DEFEND THEIR SHRINES

Crisis in Conflict of Church and State Due at Mid- night When Clergy Will Abandon Edifices.

Mexico City, July 30.—Mexico was at a high pitch of tension today as the climax in the controversy between the government and the Catholic church approached.

Today Catholic dignitaries and ordinary priests are holding masses at intervals of thirty minutes during the day. At midnight the churches will be abandoned by the clergy and turned over to lay committees, providing the government does not place municipal committees in charge of them.

The Mexican Federation of Labor is preparing to respond to this action by the Catholics by ordering a total suspension of traffic from daylight Sunday until two in the afternoon—merely as a demonstration of the power of organized labor, which is aligned with the government in this fight.

The government, meanwhile, is holding its hand. No action will be taken with regard to the pastoral letter issued by the bishopric and it has not been made clear whether the government intends to take over the churches. The government, however, is preparing to meet any attempt at organized resistance.

It was reported today that the government has ordered Catholics holding the carriage of arms to be strictly enforced. Prominent Catholics, it is understood, are being watched by government agents. That there may be ugly incidents was indicated today by reports that Mexican Indians, fully armed, have arrived at Guadalupe to guard the shrine there and to prevent the government from taking it over. In other regions it is reported that some of the more famous churches are being protected by Indians and peasants, who are prepared to defend them by force.

POPE BANS PROTESTANTS AT GENERAL AUDIENCES

Rome, July 30.—Regulations forbidding the admission of Protestants to general audiences with the Pope were put in effect today by Vatican officials, as the result of the incident yesterday when a British Protestant refused to kneel during an audience, as the Pope passed.

ESTATES MELT IN BANKRUPTS' COURT

Creditors Get $730,800, Referees, Trustees, Etc. Get Over Million in Conn.

New Haven, July 30.—Connecticut's 458 bankruptcies in the fiscal year ending July 1, presented total liabilities of $7,491,374.65 and their estates yielded $967,981.21, according to the annual report filed today by C. E. Pickett, clerk of the United States court here.

General creditors received $430,965, and preferred creditors received $299,835 while administration expenses totaled $223,544.

The year's bankruptcies resulted in the sum of $1,009,145 being paid to United States marshals, referees, trustees, receivers and others.

The bankruptcies for the year included 405 voluntary and 53 involuntary petitions.

Aaron Zollman, a Bridgeport grocer, today filed a voluntary petition with liabilities $1,870, assets $638.

EVANGELIST TO FACE INQUIRY AS TO PERJURY

Aimee McPherson Is Sub- poenaed to Confront Wit- nesses from Carmel Who May Identify Her.

Los Angeles, July 30.—Aimee Semple McPherson has been subpoenaed to appear before the county grand jury next Tuesday and be confronted by witnesses who say she strongly resembles the woman who was with a man identified as Kenneth G. Ormiston, Angelus Temple radio operator, in a cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The issuance of the subpoena followed an announcement by District Attorney Asa Keyes that he will re-open the McPherson case investigation before the grand jury for the purpose of having the jury decide if Mrs. McPherson committed perjury when she told her story under oath of having been kidnapped and held prisoner for ransom.

Claims Case Solved. Keys decided to take the case to the grand jury again after hearing the report of Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan and Chief of Detectives Herman Cline, who claim the evidence they found at Carmel-by-the-Sea "solves" the McPherson case.

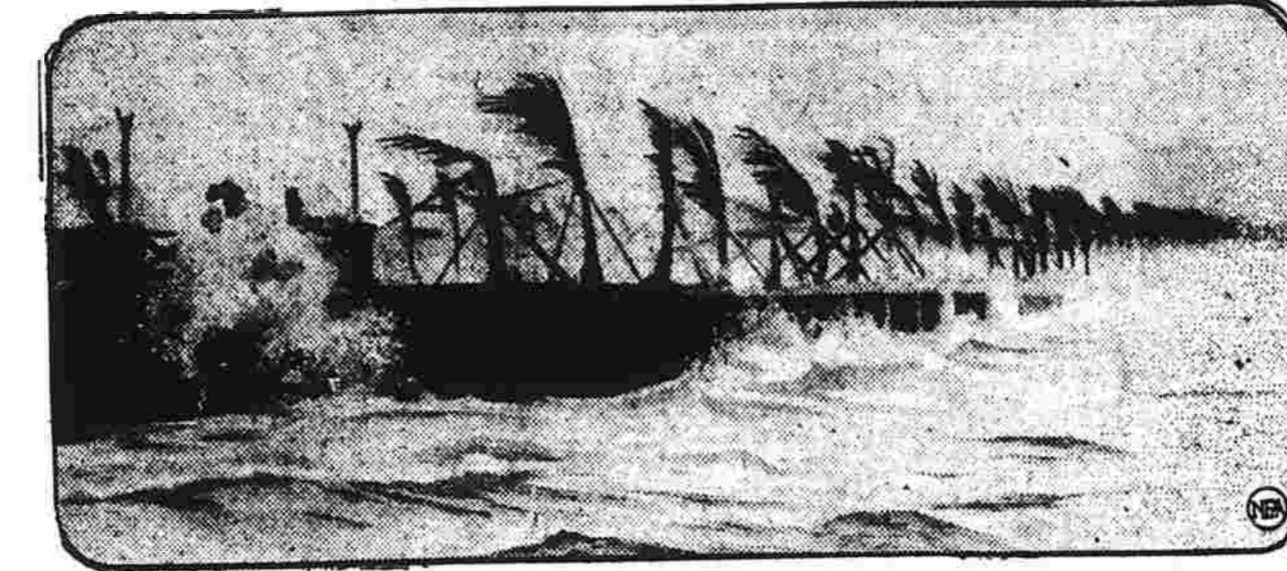

All the witnesses found at "Carmel-by-the-Sea," including fifteen persons who identified Ormiston as the man who rented and occupied the cottage and several who say the woman with him bore a strong resemblance to Mrs. McPherson, will be brought to Los Angeles to testify before the jury.

Search continues for the three "higher-ups" in the alcoholic liquor racket which has taken forty-five lives in Buffalo and along the Niagara frontier. The search was broadened today to include Pittsburgh and Rochester, where several deaths from poison liquor have been reported during the last three months.

Authorities declare that papers seized in the domicile of James G. Voelker, alleged active head of the racket, indicated that he had certain connections in the Pennsylvania city.

Brewers Indicted. The arrest of a New York man was expected as F. J. Hale, head of the federal alcohol squad, sent two men to the metropolis to investigate the source of the liquor.

INDICT NINETY IN SLAUGHTER BY DEATH-RUM

31 Arrested, 60 and Trio of High-ups Sought in Alco- hol Crime—Brewers to Face Trial.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 30.—United States Attorney Templeton was today making preparations to try alleged members of the high "poison liquor" ring at the September term of the federal court.

Ninety indictments have been returned. Thirty-one suspected bootleggers have been arrested and released on bail and Templeton said that sixty more probably would be arrested within 24 hours.

MAY MAN, WIFE SPOON IN AUTO?

Cleveland Judge Can't Decide Case Off-Hand So Reserves His Ruling.

Cleveland, July 30.—Municipal Judge Tom Green has under advisement the cases of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mack, 22 and 23 years old respectively, which involves the momentous question of whether man and wife may in this free United States spoon in an automobile upon a public highway.

The couple were arrested by Sgt. Arthur Rolp and Patrolman Clayton Benesch. The officers alleged they caught the defendants spooning in a car on West 25th Street.

"But we're married, Your Honor," the defendants declared in pleading not guilty.

"Humph—," said his Honor, "I want to think about this a little. It seems to me that a man and his wife ought not to be disturbed."

TROOPS THREAT IN COAL FIELD RIOT

British Government Fears Soldiers May Be Needed to Quell Disturbances.

London, July 30.—Intimation that the government may be forced to use troops to prevent further rioting in the coal fields was made today in the House of Commons by Sir William Joynton-Hicks, home secretary, when he moved the continuation of the state of emergency for another month, in accordance with the king's proclamation.

HUMAN TORCH WON'T TESTIFY AGAINST MATE

Husband Accused of Setting Fire to Her Clothes; Wife Is Mum; He's Held on Earlier Statement.

Monroe, July 30.—Mrs. Ida Sanford today refused to testify before a justice's court here against her husband, Claude, who is accused of having hung kerosene over his wife's clothing and setting it afire.

Justice Marquise D. Curtis, acting on the strength of a signed statement made by Mrs. Sanford in Griffith hospital, Derby, ordered Sanford held for the superior court on a charge of assault with intent to murder, and committed him to Bridgeport jail in default of $5,000 bail.

Repeats Charge. Mrs. Sanford was taken to the hospital at Derby on July 13, suffering from burns. Neighbors told of a quarrel between the couple before she was injured and later Mrs. Sanford signed a statement relating the facts as she knew them.

Today she repudiated the statement declaring she was under influence of a hypodermic when she signed it. The Sanfords went to Bridgeport together after the hearing. Sanford had been confined there since July 13, awaiting a formal hearing when his wife should recover, and when they met here today they embraced each other.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 30.—Harold Light, of Yorkers, N. Y., who was severely injured in the motor crash in which Thomas McCrory of New York, was killed, was still unconscious and in a critical condition at the hospital today.

Miss Eleanor Mulligan of Hartford who was attacked by Light, is suffering from a fractured jaw and was reported in a hysterical condition.

'PIG WOMAN' WILL 'STICK TO TRUTH'

Jane Gibson Declares She Is Ready to Testify in Hall- Mills Murder.

In an exclusive statement to John A. Moroso, noted author, Mrs. Jane Gibson, so-called "pig woman" of the Hall-Mills murder mystery, today reiterated the charges of her amazing account of the tragedy, Jane Gibson sticks to her story that she saw Mrs. Hall and a man at the scene of the double murder.

Jane Gibson. Years of life tell a lie about another woman as rich as Mrs. Hall? There would be nothing for me to gain by lying. Because I did tell the truth about this double murder I was deeply maligned in the press. It has come about that the pig woman is in a cell and the rich woman is still working rather bitterly hard to keep her farm going.

NORRIS TRIAL WILL BE FACTION FIGHT TALE

Both Sides Prepare to Go Into Long Review of Controversy Leading to Killing.

Fort Worth, Tex., July 30.—Rev. J. Frank Norris' trial in September for the murder of D. E. Chipps will develop into a review of a 15-year factional controversy in Fort Worth, at trial Judge George E. Hoey accepts the view of counsel for both state and defense as expressed here today.

The fundamentalist clergyman has said repeatedly that he welcomed prosecution for shooting the clubman-broker on July 17. His attorneys began today the assembling of evidence to show that Norris' life was in imminent peril, not alone at Chipps' hands but as the result of his long continued pulp criticism of Fort Worth men and affairs.

GOVERNOR ACTS IN PROSECUTION OF MRS. HALL

Decides to Appoint Special Deputy Attorney-General; Bergen Fights Release of Prisoner on Bail.

Trenton, N. J., July 30.—Governor Moore today decided that a special deputy attorney-general shall be appointed to prosecute Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, charged with the murder of her husband, Rev. Edward W. Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, in 1922.

State Senator Alexander Simpson of Jersey City has been suggested for the post, and is expected to receive the appointment.

Somerville, N. J., July 30.—Attorney for Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, in jail here charged with the first degree murders of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and his pretty choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today made application for her release on bail.

The motion will be argued at three o'clock this afternoon before Chief Justice William Gumory in Point Pleasant.

Prosecutor Bergen, as soon as he learned of the new move, announced that he would fight the release of Mrs. Hall in any bail whatsoever.

New Witness Found. A new witness has been found who is expected to corroborate, at least in part, the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson, "pig woman" regarding the events on the deserted Phillips farm on the night of the Hall-Mills murder, it was learned today from a most authoritative source.

The man in question was on the farm at the time when the double killing is believed to have occurred. He preceded Mrs. Gibson by only a minute or two along the grass grown lane near which the bodies were found under a crabapple tree.

Whether he saw the two men and the woman in the light coat who were described by Mrs. Gibson, the police refuse to say, but the man's story is known to be one of their leads in their efforts to corroborate the farmer woman's story.

PIG WOMAN WILL STICK TO HER STORY

(Continued from page 1.) I am not ashamed of being called the pig woman. If I had raised cows instead of pigs I might have been called the cow woman. The night of the crime I saw Mrs. Hall leaning over in the grass of the Phillips farm and heard her sobbing. I could not be mistaken about it. No one seeing her could ever forget her face.

Casual Romance Brought the New Hall-Mills Thunder Clap

Somerville, N. J., July 30.—A young piano salesman met a young woman. It was one of those very casual meetings. She liked to dance and be taken about, and he liked to dance and take her about. There was a secret courtship, a secret wedding, and an equally quiet separation.

GOV. MOVES IN THE HALL PROSECUTION

Mrs. Hall has already engaged three attorneys of particular prominence. They are Robert H. McCarter, former attorney general of New Jersey, and a power in Republican politics; Timothy H. Pfeiffer, New York barrister; Russell E. Watson, of New Brunswick, and counsel for the medical firm of Johnson & Johnson.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. James Sullivan of Elro street and Mrs. Harry Dwyer of Cedar street will spend the next two weeks at Crystal Lake. They will leave tomorrow. A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Amie Demars of Erie street, last evening.

HAS NOVEL WAY TO ESCAPE HEAT

Although Manchester is not bothered by any heat wave at present, the recent heat wave brought out the story of a prominent local man who discovered a novel way of evading it. It seems that the man found relief without going to the shore. He gained comfort in "the shade of the old apple tree" so to speak.

RAIN IS WELCOMED BY BIG PLANTERS

Came in the Nick of Time to Bring Crops Back to Normal Condition. Despite current reports that tobacco harvesters in various sections of the state will lose more than half of their crops as a result of excessive heat, this is not the case in Manchester, according to a survey made today. In fact local growers will harvest at least a ninety per cent crop judging from present indications. Of course, unfavorable weather may still raise havoc with the growing crops. It was stated by one local grower:

Charlotte Mills

Charlotte Mills, daughter, was a poignant figure in the tragedy. Then but a child crying that her mother's murder be avenged, she now is a grown girl working as typist in the office of a motor company. Among the new figures in the Hall-Mills case as it stands revived, there are: New Figures Francis Bergen, the young prosecuting attorney of Somerville. Son of a late state supreme justice, he was elected to office but four months ago and finds himself injected into what promises to be a murder trial of the generation.

ASKS POLICE BOARD TO REPRIMAND COP TO REPRIMAND COP

Victim of Patrolman Radding's Alleged Attack Seeks Hearing. Paul Balleseper of Prospect street has asked the Board of Police Commissioners for a hearing in order that he may prefer charges against the policeman Aaron Radding. The charges are a result of an altercation on July 15, Balleseper explained his delay in filing his complaint by stating he had waited in hope that Radding might give a reason for what Balleseper considered an attack on him.

Mr. Johnson came back with members of his family who were spending some time with relatives in Cleveland. He joined them in that city and the party came home together.

POLICE COURT

Because of the automobile accident on Main street last evening, an account of which is given elsewhere in The Herald Nathan Bask of Hartford, was found guilty of reckless driving and fined $25 and costs by Judge Johnson in the police court this morning. Bask was represented in court by Attorney W. S. Hyde. Bask was placed under arrest by Sgt. William Barron, who investigated the accident. Through his attorney Bask gave notice of an appeal and furnished a real estate bond of $100 for his appearance at the September term of the Superior court. John Steger was sent to jail for 30 days for intoxication. He was arrested by Sgt. Barron at a small shack on Autumn street yesterday afternoon. He has been in the local court several times and has been in jail before for the same offense. Frank Warren of Highland Park who was with Steger at the time he was arrested, was also placed under arrest for intoxication. It was the first time that Warren had ever been before Judge Johnson and for this reason he was placed on probation for three months. Samuel Parke who is connected with the Chauteauqua organization now in Manchester paid a fine of five dollars and costs for violating a town ordinance in regard to the distribution of handbills. He pleaded guilty. He was ordered to appear in court by Officer Wirtall.

NATIONAL GUARD'S EXPENSE AT PEAK Appropriation of $31,000,000 for 1927 Exceeded Only in 1918, Says Chief. Washington, July 30.—Appropriations for raising the National Guard have mounted from the $200,000 average from 1808 to 1886 to nearly $31,000,000 provided by Congress for the fiscal year 1927. It is pointed out by Major General C. E. Hammond, chief of the Militia Bureau, Department of War. The figure for the 1927 fiscal year, however, is not the peak amount which has been appropriated for the emergency army of the United States, says General Hammond. During 1918, in the midst of the World War, $39,000,000 was expended for National Guard purposes.

McGLYNN REMARKABLE AS ABRAHAM LINCOLN Chautauqua Presentation of John Drinkwater Play Thrills Tentful. Frank McGlynn as "Abraham Lincoln" in the John Drinkwater play of that name, gave the best dramatic performance ever witnessed in Manchester at the Chautauqua tent last night. McGlynn's characterization of Father Abraham was remarkable, and cast in the Drinkwater drama, he gave a performance that was marvellous. The Lincoln in literature. No other piece of work so clearly outlined the Civil War period as dominated by Lincoln, and at the same time so accurately, as does this play.

One Blonde In A Thousand

Dreiser Play Producers Find Her in Mid-West After Vainly Combing New York.

Producers of Theodore Dreiser's play, "An American Tragedy," rejected a thousand New York blonde candidates for the flapper role of "Sondra" in favor of Miriam Hopkins, whom they found in Chicago.

New York, July 30.—The blonde preferred by Horace Liveright for the role of Sondra in the dramatic version of Dreiser's "An American Tragedy" has turned out to be Miss Miriam Hopkins, a more or less obscure young actress now appearing in Chicago.

And thus ends one of the most important and hectic theatrical searches of many seasons. And thus, also, the accident of facial and physical construction catapults this pretty girl, who started with the "Little Jesse James" chorus, into one of the outstanding roles of the coming show season.

Liveright, who turned from his publishing routine last season long enough to redress Hamlet in plus-fours, had determined to cast the Dreiser story with people who "absolutely looked the part."

That was the first jolt. This, in itself, is a novelty almost as startling as the appearance of Shakespeare in tweeds. Broadway is accustomed to having its actors and actresses make up for their parts, rather than having the parts agree with the players. Thus Katherine Cornell, who bears not the slightest physical resemblance to the Arlen conception of Iris March, has successfully played a march in "The Green Hat." The same is true of many other productions.

Discovery of someone to play Roberta, the pathetic and tragic victim of accumulating circumstances in "An American Tragedy," was comparatively easy. Liveright and Louis Glue, his assistant, spotted Katherine Wilson, who plays the "mean sister" in "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em." And several names at once came to mind as prospects for the role of the young bellhop.

But the blonde and flapper Sondra? All New York was combed. Something like 1000 blondes passed in review. Just about that time to be expressed you must have the exact type. And we felt that in the Dreiser story we must have the exact type."

At any rate the search required more than two months, exhausted Broadway, and spread across the country where Miss Hopkins was spotted.

She began her career in musical comedy going later to the legitimate stage. Her one appearance in serious drama was "Puppets," while she has had light comedy parts in "High Tide" and "The Home Towners."

THE NEW SHOW.

"Americana" has no connection with the ironic and biting paragraphs collected about the nation by H. L. Mencken for his monthly publication. Such satire of the heat as may be found in this newest music review is applied with the padded slap-stick in good natured hands. Richard Herndon, who presents it at his own theater, has had the courage to give ideas the headline position with the result that this revue carries along smartly and gaily, becoming quite the most informal of any professionally given productions.

J. P. McAvoy, the Chicago comic, supplied most of the adroit fun, which reaches a sophisticated apex in "Rollo and His Pa," in which an old-fashioned father seeks to inform his offspring on the "facts of life." The "star spangled" scenery and costumes of John Held are important factors and there is a quiet comic, Charles Butterworth, of whom much will be heard on Broadway some day. It's a show to put on your New York list if you prefer musing ideas to levity.

"A Night in Paris" (second edition) It is the Broadway fashion to change revues in mid-season, whatever the admonition about horses in streams. And so Schubert's stop out a newly costumed—if any—generally altered version of their naughty but nice Parisian revue. There is little danger of the chorus girls suffering from the heat and it has been made to order for the "good old summer time." Jack

Pearl does the best clowning and, for the eyes, there is Katherine Ray, "the most beautiful figure," Norma Terry, the Hoffman girls, and lib.

THIS MAIN STREET IS ELEVATED

Minneapolis, Mo.—Minneapolis' Main Street is to be an elevated roadway, eight feet above the floor line of the stores that front on it. According to new state highway plans, a "fill" is to be made to shorten a grade that is famous among motorists. Nearly a million dollars is being spent by the state in hard-surfacing the road through the Minneapolis district. Minneapolis is noted for its salt springs, its scenery and the fact that Isaac Van Bibber, adopted son of Daniel Boone, built a tavern at Minneapolis which for a century was famous.

SWAN'S NIGHT OUT

London.—The police of London have all sorts of odd characters to handle, but the "Bobby" who bumped into a waddling swan in blackest midnight in High street, Godalming, claims the most unusual experience. The astonished official guided the "old bird" back to its home in the river Wey. What the bird said to the policeman is not considered evidence.

BOLL WEEVILS HAPPY

Washington.—Millions of boll weevils are preparing an onslaught on America's cotton. Department of Agriculture experiments show that the infestation of cotton fields will be heavy in the Mississippi Valley region, but light in Texas and the extreme east.

MILLIONS BY ELEVATORS

New York.—More than ten million passengers are carried every night and day on New York's greatest rapid transit system, its thousands of elevators. These run on a 100 per cent grade and carry more people than all the subways, elevated and street car lines, taxicabs and railroads in the city.

CHANNEL ISLES AGAIN REFUSED TO BE TAXED

London.—A critical decision is understood to have been taken by the Jersey-Channel Islands State Committee which has been examining the demand of the British Home Department for a contribution to Imperial funds in respect of the cost of the World War of $600,000 annually for the next 100 years.

The report of the committee is to be published almost immediately. Briefly, it will be found to reject only the previously rejected offer of a single final payment of $1,500,000 without prejudice to the liability of the Jersey State.

A proposal that Jersey should pay $2,500,000 in respect of war pensions already paid by the British government, and be responsible in future for its own pensions administration and the maintenance of the Militia, was advanced by a group of local legislators, but this compromise was also refused by the State Committee.

The majority of the members of the committee contend that the ancient privilege of the Jersey State free it from all monetary claims and that the only sovereign power to which they are subject is the King, although the Committee of the Privy Council of England which investigated the position on the spot in the Islands ruled that the British Parliament has unquestionably the right and the legal power to impose financial legislation upon the islands with or without their consent.

SUICIDES IN BUDAPEST AVERAGE TWELVE A DAY

Budapest.—Unable to stop the increasing number of suicides in Hungary, which now averages twelve daily, by law the Hungarian government has established first aid stations throughout the city of Budapest. The stations are open and in charge of a nurse day and night.

Special facilities for saving life have been established along the Danube in both Buda and Pest. A river police boat patrol has started and ambulances are kept at all of the bridges, since it from them that most of the would-be suicides throw themselves into the Danube.

Author, Director, Actor--- All Are Von Stroheim

Hollywood, July 29.—There are three Erich von Stroheims, all compactly embodied in the bronzed, shaven-headed, cynical-minded screen realist whom a poll of the foremost critics has just placed at the head of the best film directors. The three Erichs never quite merge—Stroheim the writer of drama, Stroheim the actor, and Stroheim the director. After they are positively at war with one another.

When Stroheim the writer secludes himself to prepare a script, the other two of him are apt to shrug an uncompromising shoulder, or even to stick out a derisive tongue. It's no easy task for the scrivener to pass muster with the actor, or for these two to convince the director, as they have had to do in the case of "Greedy," "The Merry Widow," and "The Wedding March," which is now in production.

Constant Rehearsal.
No man in films agonizes so over his product as this super-critical Erich. Stroheim the actor rehearses every scene his writing self presents, rehearses it for dramatic worth, for "timing," for the feel of it.

If it doesn't meet his rigid requirements it's discarded ruthlessly. And this rehearsing is done, as a few of his intimates relate, with all the fervor that goes into the final product.

In "The Merry Widow," 2,800 scenes were thus given the triple test before the script was put to camera for its 10-reel length. Stroheim always hides out for his pre-production agony. In preparing "The Wedding March," in which he returns to the screen as actor, under his own direction, he spent many weeks prowling along a lonely California beach courting the screen muse. The idea wouldn't crystallize. So he forsook the beach for the mountains.

"Von" is geographical minded. Place has a great influence upon his ideas. And high peaks are particularly stimulating.

He Got It.
It took him almost two days to reach a solitary peak after he had deserted the beach. Then when near the top, sweaty with the climb he yelled to his sole companion, "I've got it!" Perched upon the crags like an eagle he brooded the drama.

Stroheim's mind is a night-blooming one. Occasionally, when pressed for time, he attempts to write in the daytime, but invariably he tears up such day product when the shades of night fall in the dark hours come his hunches, his faculty, and the approval of his judgment.

After the film is completed Stroheim the playwright gets back at his other two critical selves. "Terrible!" is his usual comment to the other selves, uttered with a sort of thumb-to-nose mockery which corresponds precisely with his pungent individuality and bespeaks his never-relinquished passion for perfection.

AILEEN PRINGLE, STAR, AT THE STATE TODAY

Today and tomorrow the State theatre presents another double feature bill. The first features Aileen Pringle in "One Year to Live."

"One year to Live," M. C. Levee's first National production at the State theatre is a story dealing with a girl who is told that she has only one year to live and proceeds to live it as recklessly as she knows how. The expected thing would be that the essential and most poignant parts of that one year are left to the imagination.

No such thing in "One Year to Live." Director Cummings has retained every portion of the John Hunter story which newspaper reporters would refer to as "stark realism."

Aileen Pringle, as Elsie Duchanier, is shown debating with herself whether she shall die without having her high and fast living at life. When she finally decides what she does decide, the camera trails her.

When Antonio Moreno, in the role of Tom Kendrick, refuses to accept the love of Lollette, a celebrated Parisian dancer played by Rosemary Theby, it is shown why. The fact that she loves Brunel, interpreted by Joseph Kilgour, is conveyed delicately of course, but without mincing words.

Let him who wants pure and unadulterated description and coherence in his entertainment look to "One Year to Live" as a brilliant example. In it is embodied frankness of expression.

For the second feature a William DeMille production, "The Runaway."

To dispel whatever doubts may lie in the minds of Manchester citizens, Manager Jack Sanson of the State theatre, wishes it known that "The Runaway," William de Mille's Paramount production which arrives today and tomorrow, refers to a girl—and not a horse. "The Runaway" is the tale of a young actress who runs away because she is afraid she will be suspected of having committed another's crime. Clara Bow, Warner

MISS ORCUTT TO TRY BEATING MISS COLLETT TODAY

New London, July 30.—Maureen Orcutt, New York University miss, will attempt to "take" Glenna Collett, National champion, today. They meet in the finals of the Griswold golf cup tourney at the Shennecossett Country club. If the Metropolitan and New Jersey champion succeeds in beating Miss Collett she will have accomplished one of the outstanding feats of the season.

The National champion threw down the "def" to all comers yesterday by playing in her rarest golfing form. It was the form which brought Glenna the United States title and was powerful enough to overwhelm Mrs. F. E. Dubois, Westchester-Biltmore club champion by a score of five and four.

FOUR DIE IN FRENCH WRECK
Paris, July 30.—Four persons were killed and ten injured when the mail train from Mulhouse to Paris jumped the track at Noysey-Le-Sec today. No foreigners were among the casualties.

EARTH'S TREMORS TRACED TO TILTING AFTER GLACIAL AGE

Report on the St. Lawrence Earthquake, February 28, 1925, Made by Department of Interior.

Washington, July 30.—The St. Lawrence earthquake that disturbed New Englanders on February 28, 1925, was caused indirectly by the tilting of the rock beds of the affected area following the glacial period, according to a statement issued on July 27 by the department of the interior, based upon a scientific investigation conducted by Arthur Keith of the Geological Survey.

The theory, said the statement, is that under the weight of the great ice sheet which lay upon the country thousands of feet thick, in the northeastern States were depressed or tilted toward the north and that since the retreat of the ice they have nearly recovered their former attitude. The recovery is not yet complete, however, for the tilting has continued with the passage of time. This postglacial tilting, it is stated further, is clearly of the order of magnitude to be associated with the production of earthquakes.

The St. Lawrence earthquake was but one, though the most severe, of a series of great earthquakes that disturbed a great area in the northeastern United States and Canada between July, 1924, and March, 1926. "Aside from the testimony of the sensitive seismograph," the statement says, "the human senses in an area of about a million square miles, extending from the northeastern tip of the province of Quebec west to Chicago, a distance of 1,500 miles and from Sudbury, Ontario, South Carolina, a distance of 1,200 miles. As the northern border of this region is the tract along the St. Lawrence that was most violently shaken, it can be assumed that a similarly large uninhabited area to the north was affected and as the Boston region at the shore was rocked almost as severely as any other part of New England, probably a great area beneath the Atlantic Ocean was shaken also—in other words, the shocks extended over an area of some 2,000,000 square miles."

BULGARIA PASSES BILL TO HELP AMERICAN SCHOOLS
Sofia.—The Bulgarian National Assembly has passed a bill granting to American colleges in Bulgaria three-thousand cubic metres of lumber for rebuilding purposes. Answering a protest made by a deputy that the government helps alien schools and not Bulgarian institutions Premier Lyapcheff said: "I do not care whether they be alien or not. What I do know is that they are good Anglo-Saxon institutions and are helping our best citizens."

N. C. CITY CELEBRATES FIRST WHITE BIRTH

Elizabeth City, N. C.—Eyes of two nations will turn momentarily upon this little North Carolina town, August 18, in the midst of the Dare County, Virginia, celebration commemorating the birth of America's first-native-born and the Lost Colony.

On the day that thousands of persons from over the country arrive here to take in the gigantic celebration that will take place on Roanoke Island, Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, will make the principal address.

Sir Esme will be taken directly to Roanoke Island to old Fort Raleigh on the Coast Guard cutter Apache. The celebration will take place on the site of the old Fort Raleigh, where the first English settlement in America was made in 1854. This is now the property of the Roanoke Colony Memorial Association, a little band of patriots who have worked since 1890 to preserve the memory of the Roanoke settlement.

The association has marked the site of the fortresses, and by yearly celebrations have kept alive interest which will culminate this year in one of the most widely heralded celebrations of its kind in history.

President Coolidge has written a letter to be read on August 18, when Sir Esme Howard will speak. Governor McLean, of North Carolina, Ex-Governor Morrison, and Bishops Cheshire, Darst, Horner, and Penick of the four Episcopal bishops of North Carolina, are expected to attend the celebration.

Congressman Warren's bill providing for the erection of a marker to commemorate the birth of Virginia Dare, has been passed and it is believed that it will be erected in the near future under the supervision of Secretary of War Davis.

BOO YANKEES, BRITISH AT FRENCH SEA RESORT
Nice, France, July 30.—Anti-foreign feeling which had been thought to have subsided, broke out again when a French crowd booed and hissed British and American bathers at a beach here today.

Some of the Frenchmen threw stones at the bathers but none was injured.

NEW QUOTAS MAY CHANGE COURSE OF IMMIGRATION

Federal Departments Are Busy Preparing Figures from Census Data.

Washington.—Great Britain and northern Ireland may furnish sixty per cent of the annual immigration to the United States if new quotas are proclaimed next April 1 by President Coolidge as directed by the immigration law.

This prospect has brought so many protests of discrimination that a committee of the state, labor and commerce departments, now engaged in preparing the new quotas will endeavor to complete a report to the President in time to permit congressional action next winter.

Sharp changes from the present system of allotting the state, labor and commerce departments, now engaged in preparing the new quotas will endeavor to complete a report to the President in time to permit congressional action next winter.

Quotas now are based on two per cent of the foreign-born people of the United States as shown by the census of 1920. Under the "national origins" provision effective next year the 150,000 permits to enter the United States will be based on the proportionate strength of the various nationalities in the United States as shown by the 1920 census.

Since a large proportion of the people of the country are of British ancestry, a distinct gain in the number of immigrants from Great Britain and north Ireland—the Irish Free State having a separate quota—is expected.

Protests are being made. Some experts declaring that under the new law 90,000 of the 150,000 immigrants each year will be British.

Under one computation made the "national origins" provision would change quotas of the principal countries as follows: Great Britain, present, 62,468, new, 91,111; Germany, present, 50,129; new, 22,018; France, present, 3,875; new, 2,863; Austria, present, 990, new, 1,840; Denmark, present, 2,782, new, 1,092; Italy, present, 3,888, new, 5,878; Norway, present, 6,453, new, 2,433; Poland, present, 8,872, new, 4,509; Russia, present, 1,792, new, 4,002; Sweden, present, 9,551, new, 3,707.

The governmental committee now engaged in framing the quotas under the new law is understood to be finding the task of applying it difficult, on the basis of census bureau information.

While President Coolidge is directed to proclaim the new quotas next year, he is left the alternative of declaring the information at hand is insufficient, and postponing the decree from year to year.

ADDISON

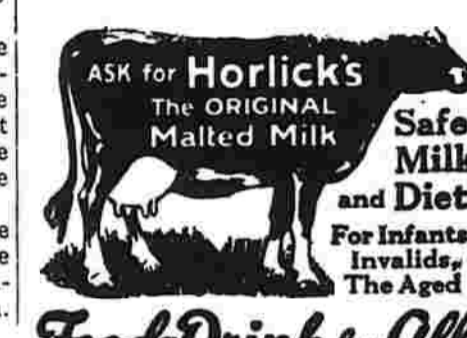

Mrs. Burton Bell and son Brainard and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter and daughter of Glastonbury, are spending a week's vacation in Alstead, N. H.

A resident of Glastonbury was amused in watching a small Hartford boy on Market street, who picked up a discarded bottle in front of a bar-shop and took a long small of the liquid. There was a teaspoonful or so in the bottom of the bottle.

He held the bottle above his head and poured some of the liquid in his badly soiled hand and anointed his hair. The bottle was labeled "bay rum."

One farmer says that last night rain has divided his tobacco field by a gully three feet deep.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By AUSTIN H. CLARK
Smithsonian Institution.

Perhaps the commonest of all our giant moths is the polyphemus. This is a very handsome moth, usually five or six inches across the wings, most commonly dull tawny yellow with a large black and blue spot in the middle of each hind wing.

There is a transparent spot on the fore wings and another in the outer part of the black and blue spot on the hind wings. Frequently the wings are reddish, and they may vary all the way from cream color to olive or blackish bronzy, but dull yellowish is the usual shade.

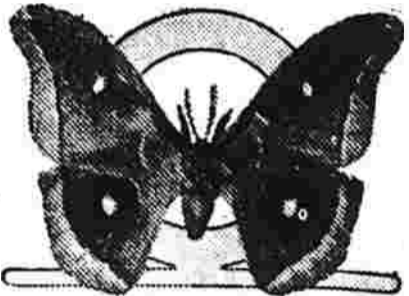

In the north this moth is seen only in June and July, but in the south it appears earlier, and it also reappears in autumn. In the central portion of its range it is common in the spring, but rare in autumn.

Mistaken for Bat.
Under electric lights you often find the crushed remains of this handsome moth, and it sometimes flutters at your windows trying to get in and reach the light. But you seldom see it unless you hunt for it. On the wing it is so large that most people take it for a bat.

The caterpillar, which is a bright translucent green with a brown head, is more than three inches long, though comparatively chunky. It feeds on many different kinds of trees. It is a prodigious eater. It has to be, because the moth cannot eat at all and lives entirely on the food material stored up within its body when it was a caterpillar.

Although very large and such great eaters, these caterpillars are not sufficiently abundant to be troublesome; but under exceptional conditions they may become destructive.

Spins Silk.
When fully grown the caterpillar spins a very dense and sticky cocoon, ovoid in shape, between two leaves. In the autumn with the leaves the cocoons fall to the ground and you sometimes see them on the sidewalks even in our cities.

Occasionally a caterpillar, more timid than his fellows, runs a thin band of silk up the stem of one or both leaves and fastens the cocoon more or less securely to the branch.

Various attempts have been made to utilize the silk from these cocoons, and, indeed, the polyphemus is often called the American silk-worm moth.

TWO RICH HARVESTS

HAWAII
Honolulu—Hawaii's sugar plantations will produce approximately 739,000 tons of raw sugar during the 1926 season, according to recent predictions of the sugar agencies. All of the predictions are classed as "conservative."

The figures closely follow the estimate made by the pineapple canners a few weeks ago in which it was announced that the territory's "second industry" would equal the 1925 crop.

The pineapple interests announced that the pack would have an estimated valuation of between $34,000,000 and $35,000,000 involving the packing of nearly 9,000,000 cases.

Thus, sugar and pineapples in Hawaii produce an annual crop valued at more than $100,000,000.

"No Lily"

"Sure—I'm no lily," said Col. Ned M. Green (above), federal prohibition chief for northern California and Nevada, when asked if it were true that he had drunk a large quantity of the liquor his raiders seized. Accordingly he has been suspended, and U. S. District Attorney George Hatfield (below) will present the facts to a grand jury.

FRIDAY, JULY 30, 1926.

THE PICK-UP.

The terrible experience of a Hartford girl—of two Hartford girls for that matter—resulting from an automobile "pick-up" at Atlantic City, is just one more instance added to an appalling list of such tragedies that have become public.

It isn't worth the risk. It isn't worth a tiny fraction of the risk. It isn't as if the men with automobiles who prowls about towns, cities and vacation resorts, inviting the companionship of girls, were, on the average, ordinary men. They are not.

SUGAR.

To an agricultural population considerably harried by the depressed state of the cigar-tobacco market, the unexpected and apparently authoritative opinion that the sugar beet may advantageously be raised on Connecticut's tobacco lands will undoubtedly be received with the keenest interest.

There is, aside from the scientific and purely agricultural aspect of a proposition, just one element that any intending sugar raisers in these parts might do well to bear in mind from the start.

Because of its direct and clearly apparent bearing on the most immediate of all domestic questions—the prices of staple foods—the Democratic party for years past has used the tariff on sugar as a target.

Another and generally much less progressive Connecticut city, New London, has owned its own water system for many years. It not only gets its fire protection water without cost but the system earns, at reasonable charges to householders, a very considerable annual profit which is applied to the general expenses of the city and helps, of course, to keep down the tax rate.

TALK.

The young man who knows more about everything than anybody else in the United States, having visited President Coolidge at White Pine camp, comes out with a public announcement that there is no possible doubt that Mr. Coolidge will be a three-times President.

PRECEDENT.

A decision has been quietly made by the Immigration Board of Review of the Labor Department from which we shall like enough hear more at a later date, when somebody for business reasons seeks to take advantage of a precedent established with so little flourish of trumpets that it has escaped the attention even of the press agencies.

has been granted permission to import a subject of Great Britain exempt from the contract labor law. It appears that the Californian, said to be in ailing health, and steadily losing his sight for a number of years, desires the constant assistance of someone when attempting to walk, as well as someone who will attend to his personal needs and act as companion.

The American consul in Paris questioned the legality of issuing a visa to the Britisher because of the interference of the contract labor law, but the Review Board now holds that labor of the like kind, unemployed, cannot be found in this country, so that the person's admission is not in conflict with the law.

Very naturally, many Americans will see in this ruling an opening for a similar plea to be entered in behalf of particular varieties of contract labor which they have always supposed they were prevented by law from importing.

It would be ridiculous to suppose that there were no persons in this country open to employment as companions to a blind invalid, any more than that there are no glass workers or weavers or machinists open to employment.

On that basis a glass manufacturer might very well claim that he has the right to import Bohemian glass workers because he wants to make Bohemian glass, or a textile mill owner might insist on the legality of bringing in Belgian hand weavers on contract to make Belgian-woven linens.

We may be quite mistaken, but this ruling of the Board of Review looks like the setting up of a theory that would knock the contract labor law upside if it were to receive general application.

"LINCOLN."

The Chautauqua system arises to quite new heights when it carries into regions otherwise debarrated from such culture of the theater the "Abraham Lincoln" of Drinkwater and Frank McGlynn.

A tautful of people in Manchester last evening doubtless got more of the true inwardness of the Civil war, of the character of Lincoln, of the institution of war itself and of half a dozen other aspects of civilization than they had ever accumulated concerning these things in all their lives before.

This is extremely worth while business. It quite naturally suggests further undertakings in this direction. Having taken a very long step up from a somewhat kindergartenish plane, it is to be hoped that Chautauqua will keep on climbing. Not, of course, beyond the special achievement of "Abraham Lincoln," for it might strike a long, long time and achieve nothing more important than this, but beyond the pleasant but rather infantile grade of some of its past ambitions.

WATER SYSTEMS.

Forty years ago the city of Bridgeport couldn't see its way clear "at this time" to take over the properties of the Bridgeport Hydraulic Company and become owner of its own water system.

Another and generally much less progressive Connecticut city, New London, has owned its own water system for many years. It not only gets its fire protection water without cost but the system earns, at reasonable charges to householders, a very considerable annual profit which is applied to the general expenses of the city and helps, of course, to keep down the tax rate.

The young man who knows more about everything than anybody else in the United States, having visited President Coolidge at White Pine camp, comes out with a public announcement that there is no possible doubt that Mr. Coolidge will be a three-times President.

PRECEDENT.

A decision has been quietly made by the Immigration Board of Review of the Labor Department from which we shall like enough hear more at a later date, when somebody for business reasons seeks to take advantage of a precedent established with so little flourish of trumpets that it has escaped the attention even of the press agencies.

had had any opportunity to express himself at all on the subject. But in a confab between one so extraordinarily prolific of words as Childs and one so extraordinarily chary of them as Coolidge it is an excellent bet that the President never got any further than "How do you do?" and "Good by."

IN NEW YORK

New York, July 30.—Random notes from an afternoon's ramble about Manhattan: Baby boxes constrictors on sale at a leading department store. Window sign announces: "Special shipment of two crates. The price is $1.95. Quite reasonable. It seems to me, for a box. But who buys them?"

Speaking of Manhattan's big department stores, many of them keep a "cafeteria" fund for shoppers who lose their purses or spend more than they intended. A young lady of my acquaintance started not on "bargain Monday" and lost with the superintendent of the Saks department store, Myron Sparrow, or bring the gifts to the church not later than August as the box will have to be sent that month to be assured of reaching there by Christmas.

Only a few questions were asked. She was advanced 50 cents and went upon her way. The young lady in charge of this department tells me this happens many times a day. Almost invariably the money is returned. She says she can pick out the "panhandlers" at a glance.

Most New York hotels employ experts whose business it is to know an honest face and, likewise, a dishonest one. Strangers ask that checks be cashed; some in payment of bills, others seeking change. It is not good business to turn them down; but it is worse business to take worthless checks. For years hotels were the victims of all sorts of sharpers. Times change. Hotel Williams, for instance, cashed $6,000,000 in checks annually for guests of the McAlpin. Only two-thirds of one percent of the checks cashed are bad and of this amount 50 per cent eventually is collected.

Williams, who scans the faces of more than 100,000 persons per year, tells me that the most honest people generally act most suspiciously. They hesitate to ask for the favor and, hence, fight nervously about it. The "slicers" are invariably the surest in approach. Confidence men learn to look a victim straight in the eye. The slickest of old time money getting games, he relates, was worked by a pair posing as honeymooners.

CALIFORNIA SMITHS SET MORE RECORDS

Sacramento.—The populous and celebrated Smith family, whose ancestral line is represented in virtually every hamlet of the state, today was awarded two more blue ribbons in competitions with other well known household groups.

Not content with the distinction of being California's largest clan, the Smiths enrolled an immense for Dan Cupid's sweepstakes last year and smashed martial records of the Johnsons, Browns and other rival factions in convincing fashion.

Then, clinching their claim to majority rule, the many Mr. and Mrs. Smiths entered in Dr. Stork's annual birth record classic and led the field by a wide margin.

L. E. Ross, chief of the state bureau of vital statistics, who has just completed the compilation of averages for California's six leading families, declared that keeping tabs in the Smith rivals any of the famous labors of Hercules. The Johnsons, Browns and other rival and Wilson family group rank next in order in statistical importance, asserted Ross.

A total of 555 daughters of the Smith household discarded the family name during 1925 by reason of trips to the marriage altar.

The Johnson girls came in a close second with 481 weddings, and the Browns furnished 296 of the state's brides for the year. Then followed the Jones family with 289 brides, the Williams clan with 222 and the Wilsons with 205.

Slow Motion Pictures New? Yes, They Were in 1878!

This series of pictures, taken nearly half a century ago, was the grandfather of the modern cinema. The flight of the deer was recorded by a battery of separate cameras.

Palo Alto, Calif., July 30.—You who have marveled at the detail of physical motion revealed by the slow motion camera are just 48 years behind the times.

The first slow motion pictures were made on the Palo Alto stock farm, in July, 1878.

Senator Leland Stanford, who later founded the university bearing his son's name, had the "motion pictures" taken to settle a wager of $25,000, a bet based primarily on his love and intimate knowledge of horses.

The senator had stated publicly that a horse in trotting at some pace of the motion had all four feet clear from the ground. A friend disputed the truth of the assertion and the wager resulted. Senator Stanford had his men place a series of 12 cameras 21 inches apart alongside his running track. The mechanism of a clock set off the shutters in rapid succession. Later, in order to have the camera "snap" at the precise moment, the sulky and horse were attached to each shutter and stretched through a groove across the track. The wheels crossed each wire, thus depressing it and snapping the shutter.

Science had its hold on the senator and his next development, after the first experiments had proved his point conclusively, gave him what he called "a perfect moving picture" of Occident, one of his famous trotters.

He increased the number of cameras to 24 and decreased the space between each to 12 inches. Threads stretched across the track met the moving animal at the shoulders.

When the thread broke, its movement in tightening closed an electrical current which automatically released the shutter.

Thus he had a series of 24 pictures taken within 23 feet, the sum total being a complete picture story of a horse (and later, other animals) trotting and running and of acrobats doing various stunts.

Total time elapsed counted less than a second.

Photographs taken of the experiments were lost until recently because of suppressions of the book in which they were published nearly a half century ago at the behest of a photographer who alleged infringement of a copyright.

Ideas developed during these experiments were later incorporated into the moving picture cameras of today.

Cop's Night Stick Brings Speech To Shell Shocked War Veteran

Lawrence, Mass.—Life is once again worth living to George Hayden Gibbs, World War veteran.

For Gibbs, shell-shocked, deaf and dumb for nine years, has recovered both hearing and speech. And the manner in which he recovered his lost senses is described by medical men as an almost unprecedented "miracle."

Gibbs at the age of 19, enlisted in the famous Princess Pat Canadian Regiment. He went overseas with his comrades and was wounded in the terrific fighting at Neu-Chatelle. Removed to a field hospital he was found to be suffering from shell-shock and ten body wounds. Physicians worked in vain to restore his lost senses.

A few days ago Gibbs appeared in Lawrence and secured a position as a watchman for Herrick Alken, guarding a building that was being moved from Pine Street to Chestnut street.

But life in the building was lonely and early one morning the war veteran fell into a sound sleep.

Patrolman Henry Roche, making his rounds, discovered him there. In belief that Gibbs was just a "tramp" the officer entered the building, played a flashlight on the sleeping veteran, and tapped the soles of his shoes with a night-stick.

Gibbs leaped to his feet, startled. He identified himself to the patrolman and the latter walked to the door, opened it and went out. As the patrolman passed through the door it slammed shut. Gibbs heard the noise. He sat down for a minute and said, referring to the officer, "Damn him."

It is believed that he could both hear and speak was too much for the shattered nerves of the veteran and he cried himself to sleep with joy.

Four brothers and a sister of Gibbs were killed during the fighting at Armentiers.

Find Desert Realism in Filming 'Barbara Worth'

Barbara Worth, Nev., July 30.—Here in the Black Rock desert, an ancient lake bed haunted by mirage, and remote from the small towns of a sparsely settled region, Henry King is filming Harold Bell Wright's "The Winning of Barbara Worth" for Samuel Goldwyn, under conditions approximating those described by the author.

Mitigated by excellent camp organization, the conditions faced by the movie company nevertheless are arduous enough to demand much of that self-discipline, patience, will and courage which Wright ascribed to the reclamation pioneers of his romance.

Intense heat. Parching sand storms. The depressive effect of the alkali desolation. The inevitable monotony of hard routine in such a movie outpost as this. All these during many weeks of filming present a very real test of caliber for the 400 people now here.

Sun at 120

Vilma Banky, who keeps cool even on desert location.

Routine awakens the camp at 4:30, with breakfast at 5:30. An hour later the cameras are grinding. They continue until sunset. Man and beast become gray with alkali dust.

Lips chap. Eyes squint painfully at the crystalline glare. Warmish water scarcely slakes the thirst. Children whimper. Women in calicos and sunbonnets sigh.

Nevada cowboys, used to this land, ride their parts in the picture then look laconically on while Hollywood tenderfoot fume and fret. Ronald Colman, as "Wildard Holmes," the hero, is imperturbable, and nothing flusters the composure of the blond Vilma Banky, who enacts "Barbara."

Stamp of Realism

Far out on the flat the wind devils muster their dust spirals for a charge upon the camp. Weird mirages display their lying promise of water. And the naked Harlequin Mountains stick out taunting tongues at the tolling movie folk.

ploding in now for wash-up and a rush to the mess shack and quick retirement to the sleeping tents. The very elements which make the filming and acting difficult have also put a fine stamp of realism upon the picture as thus far made.

The setting for "Barbara Worth" has had plenty of its own drama and tragic episode. Five miles from camp, out on the dry lake bed, stands a buggy, and beside it the skeleton of a horse.

Here, an old prospector, driving 50 miles for supplies, was recently caught in a rain storm. He died, bogged down in the cement-like mud, in trying to ride his second horse to safety. The desert has other skeletons, too.

Up the canyons across the lake bed live certain Plute Indians, whose guns are notched for white men slain. And in the movie camp, working as extra players, are members of two factions in an old sheepmen's war for precious waterholes—the feud held in abeyance now.

LEPROSY PATIENTS CURED OF DISEASE

Louisiana Institution Reports 4 Released, 62 Admitted and 25 Absconded.

Washington, July 30.—In the past year three patients who had suffered from leprosy were paroled from the leprosarium maintained by the United States Public Health Service at Carville, La., as no longer considered a menace to public health. It is stated in a report to the Health Service from hospital officials, which was announced on July 27. A fourth patient was discharged from the hospital, said the report, because it was determined that he was not suffering from leprosy.

The report also disclosed that during the 12-month period from June, 1925, to June of this year there were 62 lepers admitted to the institution, while 25 had absconded. Thirteen of the absconders, however, returned for readmission to the hospital. Since the Public Health Service assumed operation of the leprosarium, which formerly was known as the Louisiana Leprosy Home, about 400 patients have been hospitalized, says the report.

There were 29 fatalities occurring to patients in the institution as a result of their infections during the past year, which is estimated at the rate of about 112 per thousand.

Hospital authorities are continuing to use chaulmoogra oil to a large extent at the institution, with a view to checking the ravages of leprosy. Definite improvement has followed in a sufficient number of cases at the hospital, says the report, to encourage the patients in the continuation of the treatment.

SCENERY CHANGE BETTERS PLAYERS

Evans Cites Cause of Bill Jacobson and "Bing" Miller as Proof of Statement.

Jacobson

A change of scenery often works wonders for a ball player. I have in mind the experiences of Bill Jacobson of the Boston Red Sox and "Bing" Miller of the St. Louis Browns.

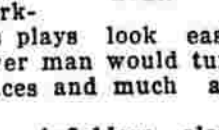

Miller

Recently these two players figured in trades that won for themselves regular berths in the outfield. Before that they had been warming the bench as the result of batting slumps.

Connie Mack's desire to add Pitcher Howard Ehmke of the Boston Red Sox to his team, was responsible for Jacobson and Miller taking on a new lease of life as far as batting was concerned.

TRIPLE PLAY HEROES WEAR TRIBE SUITS

Cleveland, July 30.—With the addition this season of Ernie Padgett, formerly of the Boston Braves, Cleveland has had four triple-play heroes on its payroll at various times.

PITCHER BREAKS THUMB.

Blankenship, the White Sox pitcher, may be out of the game for some time, having suffered a broken thumb when he knocked down a liner off the bat of Shortstop Myers of the Senators.

Rigney Barely Misses World Fielding Record

(By BILLY EVANS.)

Twenty-four chances in one afternoon at shortstop! Such was the busy day "Topper" Rigney of Boston put in on July 15 in a double-header with Cleveland.

In the second game the former Detroit Tiger star who has added much strength to the Red Sox, all but equaled two American League records that have stood for more than a score of years.

In the opening game Rigney prepared himself for what was to follow by handling four putouts and five assists, several of them being of a difficult nature.

In the final half of the twin-bill Rigney did his stuff by taking care of four putouts and 11 assists. His sensational fielding aided greatly in putting over Pitcher Tompkins' first win in a Boston uniform.

Close to Record. In handling 15 chances in a nine-inning game, Rigney came within two of equalling the American League record, back in 1902 Bobby Wallace of the St. Louis Browns took care of 17.

The major league record of chances accepted by a shortstop is 19, made by Danny Richardson of the Washington club, then a member of the National League circuit. It happened in the second game of a double-header on June 20, 1912.

Taking care of 11 assists falls one short of the American League record made by Kid Elberfeld, then playing with Detroit. It is a peculiar coincidence that this feat also came in the second game of a double-header staged Sept. 2, 1901.

The major league record for assists is 14, made by Tommy Corcoran of the Cincinnati club on Aug. 7, 1903. While Rigney fell just shy of the American League marks, his 24 chances at short for one afternoon is just about a record for one day's play.

Six in Row. One of the peculiar features of Rigney's performance in the second game of the double-header was his whirlwind finish. In the seventh and eighth innings he retired six successive batters. Rigney to First Baseman Todd.

Rigney's busy afternoon emphasizes the importance of high-class work at shortstop. Unquestionably it is the most exacting position in the infield. Three or four clubs in the American League have suffered severely this year because of erratic work at the all-important position.

Of the new arrivals breaking in this year the play of Billy Hunnefeld of Chicago has been the most impressive. I know of a number of big league clubs that have their scouts doing intensive work on promising players for the position of shortstop.

Weak at Short. Aside from inferior pitching, the slump of the champion Washington club this year can be traced to shortstop play, or better, perhaps, lack of it.

Early in the year Roger Peckinpaugh, one of the greatest shortstops the game ever has known, was handicapped by bad underpinning. This forced Manager Harris to fall back to the rookie, "Buddy" Myer. Filling Peckinpaugh's shoes on the spur of the moment is a rather big task and Myer found it so. He had trouble hitting his stride.

The Peck got back into the game for a short time, only to suffer more injuries that again forced him out of the lineup. Failure to make double plays by a scant margin is the difference between victory and defeat in many a ball game. It is in this feature of play that most recruit shortstops falter.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home of their own shortly after their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract.

John, in love with his wife, but a romantic individual, is fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom PAT FORBES, a friend of his, hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

NOEL and VERA BOYD, a young married couple, give a party and Vera shows an interest in John which he doesn't return, but which arouses Fay's jealousy. Noel Boyd later boasts of an arrangement with Vera whereby each leaves the other to do as he pleases.

Fay, with the baby, visits her parents in Washington, and during her absence John runs around with Pat Forbes, whose wild tendencies have aroused the suspicions of his wife.

Word begins to go around that John is being indiscreet. NATHANIEL GRAHAM, his partner, takes him to task for it, and John resents it.

John carries on a short but violent flirtation with ELEANOR MASON, and drops her.

PAUL DAVIDSON, a lawyer and amateur actor, finds himself involved with a girl named RITA JOHNS and asks John to break it up. John reluctantly agrees, and is successful, but he learns from her something of the vindictiveness of thwarted women, for she tells about him to Davidson and only a sense of humor saves the two friends from becoming enemies.

Fay returns, and John, although a little worried about how she is going to take it, decides to tell her about some of his actions while she was away.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

"John, were you really drunk? You know I think that's disgusting."

after a pause, "I've got a sort of confession to make to you."

Fay looked at him quickly, in some alarm, but saw a queer little smile playing over his lips.

"What now?" she asked, with mock severity. "Yes? Who was it?"

"Have you been misbehaving in my absence?"

"I was out with another woman," John said, smilingly melodramatic. "An old flame of mine."

He was watching her narrowly, and he noticed an expression of disapproval—or something akin to it—flit across her features.

But her question was composed enough. "Yes? Who was it?"

"Dorothy Francis. You've heard me speak of her. Used to know her in the old days at school, and now she's a leading lady in musical comedy."

"Oh, John," Fay said with some impatience. "Won't you ever learn?"

"Learn? What do you mean?" He was instantly on the defensive. He knew he was on the wrong side of the argument but, he thought, not wholly wrong.

He went on hurriedly to explain. "Look here now, Fay, it was business—strictly business. She wants to get on the dramatic stage and what she wanted from me was some publicity ideas."

"How often did you see her?"

"Oh, about two or three times. We had dinner together one night."

"And danced, I suppose," Fay put in.

"Why, yes, we danced, but mainly we discussed the thing that was on her mind."

"Was it necessary to take her out to a public dining place?"

"Wouldn't you rather I did that," he countered, "than meet her at some private rendezvous? I can't say as I had anything to hide, Fay."

She exclaimed "Oh," as if she were completely out of patience with him, and turned her face away.

He was a little appalled at a realization of the difficulty of his job, but there was a stubborn hon-our in him that impelled him to go on.

"Look here, Fay, I'm being square ways wanting to be forgiven."

"Not forgiven," he said a little sharply. "Not until I've sinned, at least. I want to ask you this—do you think I'd have come out and told you about kissing Dorothy Francis if I had thought it was something to be ashamed of?"

"I don't know," she answered dubiously. "Sometimes I don't know what to think of you at all."

He grinned, like a schoolboy who has been caught at some prank, and Fay again felt the impulse to mother him, and relented.

But that night as he lay beside her he was forced to confess to himself that he had not been as honest with her as he had pretended to be. "Confound it, though," he thought, "how can I tell her about Eleanor and the other things if she feels this way about Dorothy? She'd have a fit if I told her I had kissed Eleanor Mason."

He thought of something that Fay had said to him just before going to bed.

"Suppose," she had asked, "I had fallen in love with an old flame when I was back home, and I had kissed him. How would you feel about it?"

And looking at her seriously he had answered, in all honesty: "It would be all right, Fay. If you did such a thing I'd know it would have to be all right."

He felt that he understood something of Fay's attitude. She was so honest and above board that he knew he could trust her implicitly. But he knew, also, that Fay was never quite sure about him, and it was that that was troubling her.

Sleep was long in coming to his troubled mind. He felt that by telling Fay nothing of his other escapades he would be doing the squarer thing. It would be so hard for her to understand and it would make her so unhappy.

Judith was taking her afternoon nap the next day when Mrs. Blodgett decided to call. Fay, observing her from the window as she walked stiffly across the street, had a fleeting impulse to hide herself upstairs and not answer the doorbell. But her better judgment prevailed. Instead, she answered Mrs. Blodgett's ring and offered the "sour-faced old prune," as John termed her, a chair.

When her visitor departed a half hour later Fay had all she could do to keep from insulting her.

"The nerve of her!" Fay thought. "Coming in my own house to tell me a thing like that! Her face flamed. She felt suddenly as if she were fighting a battle against immense odds and nowhere was there a dependable ally."

"John," she complained bitterly to the white kitchen walls as she moved about preparing dinner. "Why can't you be careful? Why are there such busy-bodies as that hateful old hen?"

John came bustling home to dinner, full of enthusiasm over some copy he had written that day, but Fay quickly quenched it.

"What's this I hear," she asked him, "about your coming home disgracefully drunk with another man?"

He eyed her queerly. "Old Lady Blodgett's been here again, hasn't she?"

Despite her firm intentions to be severe with him, Fay had to laugh. But she quickly recovered.

"John," she asked, "were you really drunk?"

"I don't know," he said. "I think that's disgusting."

"Drunk? No. There's a difference between being drunk and being hilarious. Pat Forbes and I had been drinking some of Pat Davidson's very excellent Holland gin-fennel wine long enough to impress Pat with the virtues of that particular brand."

In spite of herself, Fay again found herself laughing, and John suddenly exploded.

"Damn Old Lady Blodgett!" he cried, smacking his fist on the table.

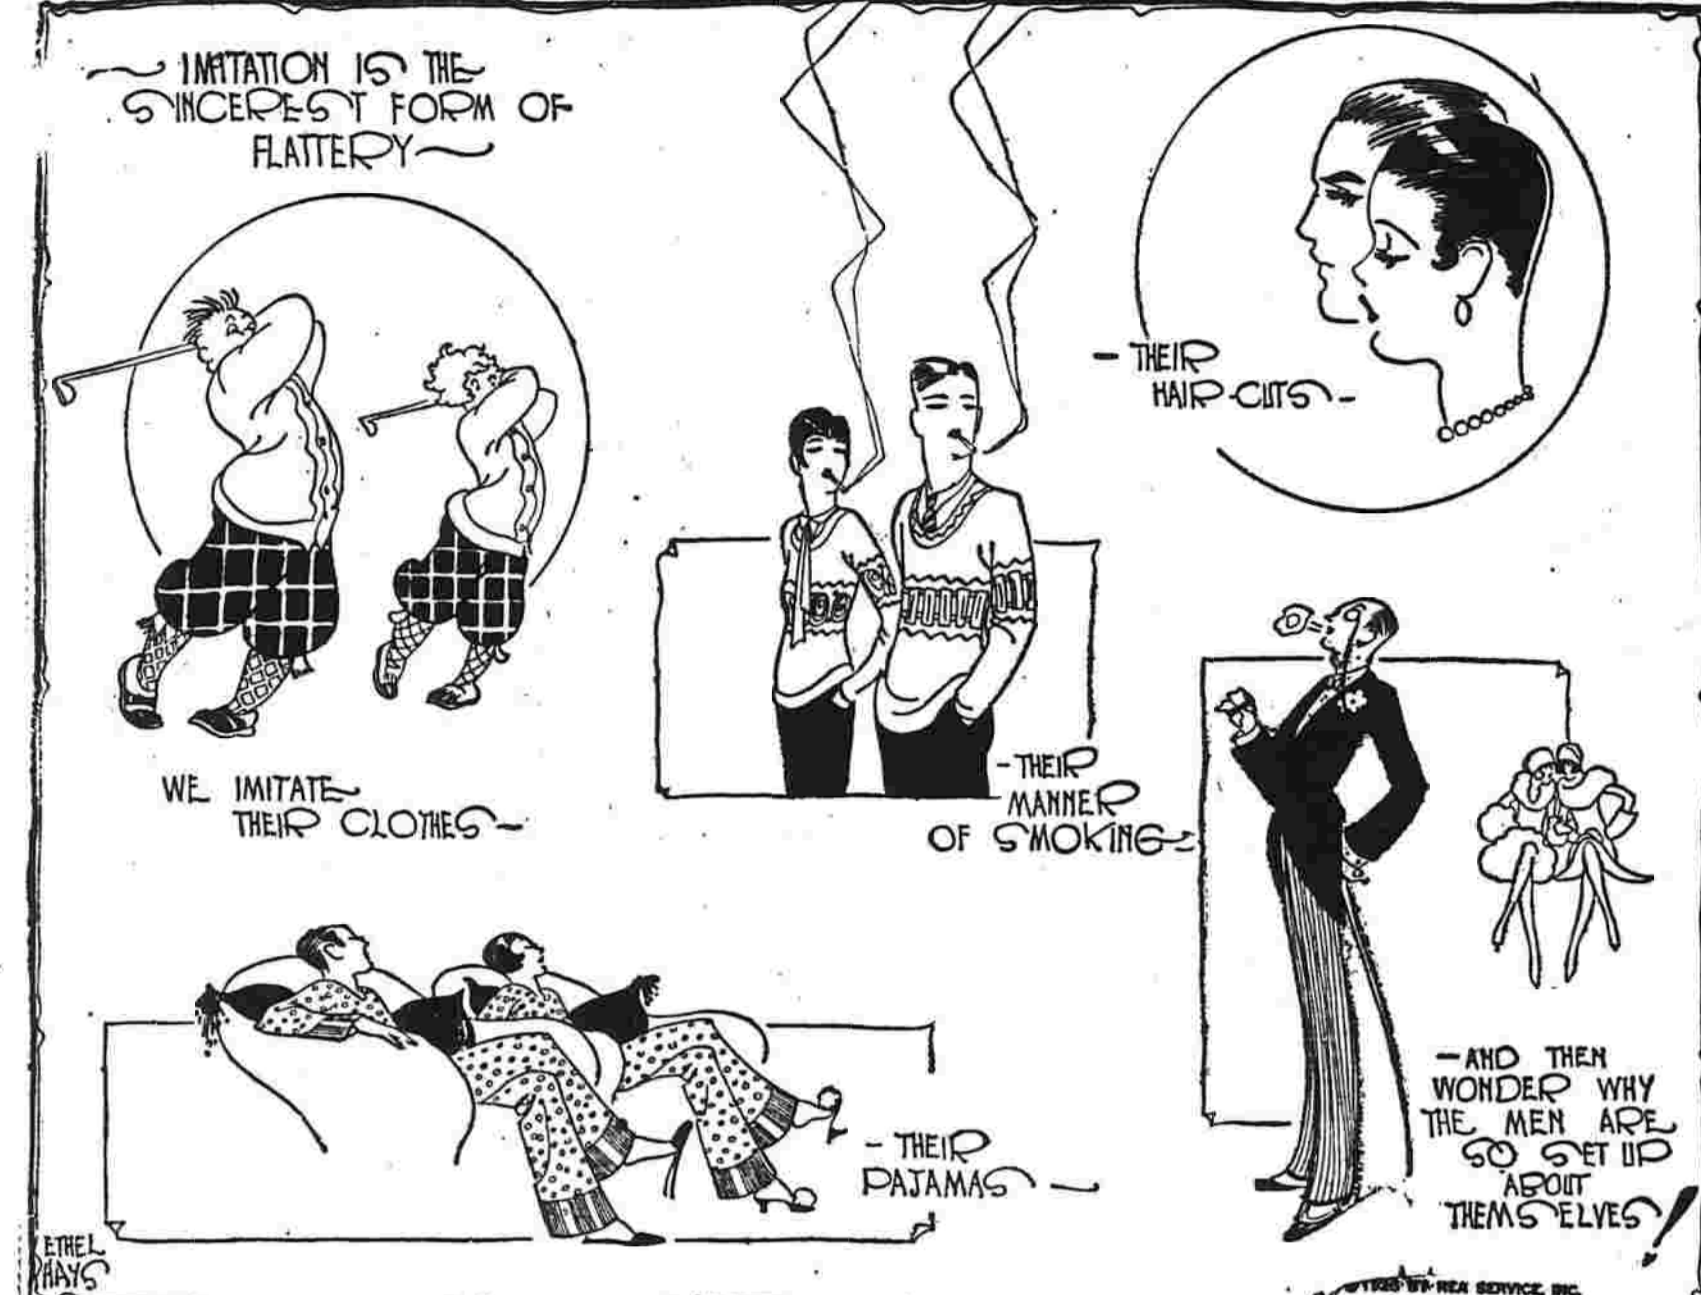

"What did she tell you? Ten to one, she exaggerated it."

But Fay, giving him a little wistfully, said, "John, do be careful—please. I'm afraid, John, afraid."

"Afraid of what?" he asked, alarmed at her tone. But she did not answer.

CONDITION—Drooping corners of the mouth and sagging cheeks.

DIAGNOSIS—A discouraged state of mind is apt to manifest itself in this way, so one of the most important measures of correction is to force yourself to take a pleasanter outlook on matters generally. Gentle molding and massage will strengthen the muscles.

TREATMENT—With the thumbs stationed just below the ears work upward and out with your finger tips bringing up the corners of your mouth, lifting them gently. Take the precaution to dip the massaging fingers in a nourishing cream that will build up the tissues. Afterwards go over the face with ice wrapped in a cloth. Smile as much as you can—this is most effective in lifting the muscles.

Then, the other day, an almost forgotten uncle, Ames Rubideaux, died, and left her heiress to his estate of 2300 acres in Pima county, Arizona. The land contains some of the richest gold mines in the state, and their value is estimated at upwards of $75,000,000. So now Miss White is forming a $5,000,000 company to develop the property.

Good Nature and Good Health

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

Even the pain of sunburn, as comparatively trivial as it may seem, is a warning against too sudden and prolonged exposure of the skin to strong sunlight.

SLOW AND EASY.

All puddings that should be smooth and creamy such as tapioca, bread, rice and corn-starch puddings, should be baked very slowly. Too rapid cooking produces that uninviting crust and waxy product.

BRIGHTEN UP.

When the woodwork does not require cleaning, but looks dull or faded, polish it with turpentine and oil.

SCRATCH EASILY.

Always keep your table silver in a compartment where it does not mix with steel knives or kitchen utensils, as silver is very easily scratched.

Avoid Poorly Balanced Breakfasts

Start the day with Quaker Oats—food that "stands by" you.

If you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety," 12 hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Thousands have unenergetic mornings because they start the day with wrong breakfasts.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 36% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamins and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you. Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL OF TODAY MARRIAGE AS LAST RESORT

Joan and I were so busy getting Lela ready for the hospital that it seemed no time at all before the ambulance came shrieking up to the door.

After the first burst of grief and horror Lela seemed apathetic. She put herself absolutely in our hands. "I'll have to go with her to the hospital," said Joan to me.

"Of course," I answered, "and I'll come along a little while afterward when I have put the place in order."

After they had left I suddenly felt physically weak. I grew frightened. I wondered if I were going to faint. I felt greatly depressed, but why I should be I could not explain to myself. With that startling truth, which is almost always stranger than fiction, providence had entered, and ignoring our plans had taken all of us and treating us like pawns had settled everything.

Everything now was going on splendidly. We really had nothing more to fear. Joan would in a few days be of age and her stepfather, according to the terms of the will, would have to turn her money over to her. She would probably go to Europe, at least I would advise her to do so. And if I will, after the series of thrills I had been having I could hardly see anything that did not look monotonous ahead of me.

I wondered if this were the end.

Knowing What Really Counts

by Olive Roberts Barton.

It was interesting to read of the recent national convention of the Federation of Woman's Clubs at Atlantic City.

The speaker who won the day and the hearts of the thousands of women who listened to her was a small person from the west, who got up and gave a simple talk on the "simple life," and home.

She told of her husband's work—he is an engineer on one of the new tunnels through the mountains—of how they lived in a small mining town, of how quiet and peaceful God's Country was out there. She spoke of the greatness of the land, the mountains, the sunsets! And she told of their home. Then she read a simple, sweet poem she had written about her mother.

The convention captured her. She had to give the speech over and over again at various meetings. She found herself suddenly great. The interest of the matter lies not with her particularly, for simplicity is the secret of real greatness, but in the fact that these clubwomen, many of whom had hurried through their work and family cares and boarded trains to seek something different, had heard their own stories.

And hearing it, had they yawned and nudged each other and said, "We didn't come for this!"

No, they recognized with quick perception that it was the greatest thing on the program because home is the greatest thing in the world.

Women do tire of domestic routine! They must, or should, have an outlet, other activities of one kind or another to round out their lives and to furnish the variety which makes routine bearable.

The woman's club, whether it be civic, cultural, religious or charitable, is probably the greatest power for good, next to the church, in the country.

But the greatest thing of all is the home, and it was the greatest tribute that womanhood could pay to womanhood, the ovation given the woman from the west when she spoke of home.

Household Suggestions

FOLD IT WIDE.

Table linen should be ironed in a thickness until it is absolutely dry. It may be folded and pressed. It is advantageous to have as few folds in a cloth as possible.

MIGHT SPILL.

In waiting upon the table, never pile one dish upon another. It is unattractive to behold, and often results in accidents.

USE COLD PLATE.

Remember that dishes on which food—meat or any cold food—may be served should be chilled beforehand in the ice box. Nothing is less tempting than a salad served on a warm plate.

U. S. Plans To Beautify Graves Of Our War Dead In Europe

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
Washington.—American World War dead in Europe will sleep in cemeteries of great architectural beauty, under plans evolved by the Battlefields Monument Commission of which General John J. Pershing is chairman. Every monument and memorial erected in the cemetery zones will be submitted to artists for approval. Already many suggested memorials have been disapproved. Return of General Pershing from Europe is expected to be followed by the formulation of a final program involving the expenditure of several millions of dollars, to be presented to the next Congress for approval.

Three great commemorative monuments, costing about $1,000,000, are proposed for the zones of greatest American operation during the war—the Meuse-Argonne, St. Mihiel and Aisne-Marne. Other smaller monuments proposed by the commission will be supplemented by memorials of states and divisions, some of which already have been completed.

There are 50,057 American soldiers dead in France, England and Belgium, according to the latest figures of the commission. The number is gradually increased from time to time as bodies are discovered in the reconstruction work. There now are 3,412 soldiers listed as missing. More than half the soldier dead—46,214 in all—were returned to the United States. The simplest headstones of marble will replace the present temporary markers. Two designs will be used—the cross and the Star of David, the latter for dead of Jewish faith.

East of the eight American cemeteries excepting at Brookwood, England, will be enclosed by a wall. It is proposed to build a non-sectarian chapel at each of them, together with administrative buildings of architectural beauty. Stone seats will be placed in them for sorrowing relatives and American tourists who visit the cemeteries.

While the United States has proceeded slowly in the permanent care and enhancement of foreign cemeteries, the Battlefields Monument Commission promises that ultimately NO more beautiful cemeteries will be found. The British have already spent about $50,000,000 on 1,000 cemeteries in France and other countries, and German and Italian cemeteries also will be permanently maintained in France.

The eight American cemeteries abroad are at Surances, Frenzen-Tarmonis, Dony, Belleau, Thiaucourt, Romagne - sous - Montfaucon, France; Waerghem, Belgium, and Brookwood, England.

BOBBED HAIR NOT NEW ARMY ORDERS PROVE

Washington.—Bobbed hair having been discovered an ancient custom in many countries, musty army orders are now produced to show it isn't new in the United States.

Soldiers at the West Point garrison in 1776 were issued orders to bob the hair. The order read in part:

"As the head dress of a soldier is one of the first and necessary ornaments, the Captain commands the N. C. officers and Privates of the First Regiment to have their hair cut behind not to exceed seven inches long and close to their head."

"The N. C. officers and Privates of the Second Regiment to have their hair tied behind in a bob cut close to the head, the hair of the whole to be cut on the top of the head short and brushed back."

A PUZZLE A DAY

The investor made $810 on his lot. The quickest way to obtain this answer is to consider the sidewalk blocks. A strip of one-yard square blocks would increase his plot to a square one yard greater in size, containing 81 square yards. Divide 61 as nearly as possible in even halves (30 and 31). 30 yards is the size of the plot, 31 yards of the plot plus the sidewalk. (30x30 equals 900; 31x31 equals 961; 961 minus 900 equals 61.) (30 yards equals 90 feet; 90x90 equals $100; 10 cents x $100 equals $10.00.)

A Puzzle a Day:

The head of the dress shop was a spend for economy. And any cutter found with a heap of scraps in his waste basket was sure to be blamed for it. No one dreaded these outbursts of temper more than the oldest cutter. So when he was asked to cut a pattern for the child's blouse, shown above, he took a rectangular piece of paper and cut it into four equal parts. These he refitted together and carefully pinned on the material to be cut, forming the desired pattern. Can you discover how he accomplished this result?

LITTLE JOE

SOME TIMES IT DOESN'T PAY TO DROP A LINE

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Margaret, our little neighbor girl had just been told that Mrs. ... down the street, was very ill and had a new baby girl. She said: "Oh, phaw, I wish my mamma would get real sick so I could have a little sister to play with. All my mamma ever gets is a headache." A stranger is a person we don't know well enough to dislike. "I'm all taken up with my work," said the elevator man. No matter how mannish the modern woman grows, she never gets past powdering her nose. A Chicago judge says most of those who get divorces love one another. If only that were true of those who get married. Impatient Youth: "Barber, how long shall I have to wait for a shave?" Barber (after careful scrutiny): "Oh, about two years, sir!" "I hear that the United States is trying to annex Ireland." "How come? What's the big idea?" "So we can raise our own policemen." Sbes: Why do rabbits have shiny noses? Hes: Because their powder puffs are on the other end. Biology teacher— We will now name some of the lower species of animals, starting with Jimmy Ornut. This is the time of the year when green apples find their place in the sun. Family Bed—For Sale—Brass bed, $36.50. Slightly married.—Advt. in Vancouver (B. C.) Province. "John, you seem fond of going to the pictures lately. What's the reason?" "It's such a relief, dear, to see women opening their mouths without hearing them!" "Hello!" said the Chestnut to the Robin. "What are you?" "I'm a little bird," said the Robin. "What are you?" "I'm a little burred, too," said the Chestnut. The radio—and the padlock—are converting us into a home-loving people. "Are caterpillars good to eat?" asked little Tommy at the dinner table. "No," said his father; "what makes you ask a question like that while we are eating?" "You had one on your lettuce, but it's gone now," replied Tommy. No doubt whenever Adam got peeved at Eve, he often called her a "spare rib!" Chemistry professor—"What can you tell me about nitrates?" Student—"Well-er-they're a lot cheaper than day rates." The garment that covers the most territory at the seashore is a coat of tan. "What foh you scratch yo haid, Rastus?" "Coz I got 'rithmatic bugs." "Why you say 'rithmatic bugs'?" "Coz dey add to mah misery, subtract from mah pleasure, divide my attention and multiply like de dickens." Any art school will tell you that the sooner a girl begins to paint the sooner she can draw men. The truly poor are those who must buy cheaper cuts of beef in order to afford nice stockings. A man who has a catty wife usually leads a dog's life! Didja ever notice that the happest guys are the busiest?

EXPLORERS FIND COMPLETE STORY OF PALESTINE

Expedition to Old Lands Dig Up Evidence of Early History There.

St. Louis.—The most complete unbroken history of civilization in Palestine revealed by any city of the land yet uncovered—a history that reached before 200 B. C.—was unearthed by explorers last April and May, according to an interesting letter just received here from Dr. M. G. Kyle, president of the Xenia Theological Seminary, who assisted in the search work. Dr. Kyle, who will return to the United States soon, was aided in his explorations by the American School of Oriental Research at Jerusalem. His letter tells of the finding of great quantities of ancient pottery and the discovery of quaint gates and an ingenious water supply system in the ancient city of the Canaanites and Israelites.

Fenced City of Judah. "The site selected as that of the ancient 'fenced city,' Kirjath Sepher, proved beyond cavil to be that greatest 'fenced city of Judah,' and the last to fall before the 'whole army' of Joshua," the letter recites.

"There are eleven points, requirements indeed, which the identification of this city at any place must meet, five archaeological and six topographical. Tell Beit Mirsim, the site selected as Kirjath Sepher, these eleven requirements and there is no other ruin that satisfactorily meets even one of these eleven. Daherjeh, the place marked on maps of Palestine as Kirjath Sepher, has nothing whatever to commend it, except that it is a convenient place for travelers to visit. "The item in the identification of Tell Beit Mirsim as Kirjath Sepher that is most interesting to the public is that the two wells, the 'upper spring and the nether spring' mentioned in Joshua (15:13-19) are here and unmistakable. Their age can only be reckoned by m. leniums. Six successive wells have been put around these grooves in turn worn into deep grooves by the running of the ropes in drawing water; these grooves in hard limestone are sometimes three or four inches deep.

Beautiful Pottery. "But what makes this place so interesting even when identified? It was a typical 'fenced city' of the old Canaanites and of the Israelites—and in such a complete state of preservation that is possible to see, by clearing away the rubbish, exactly what the walls and the gateway were like. "The city crowns a conical, isolated hill that seems as if it had been dropped down in the midst of a valley. The wall sloping in the lower part and with perpendicular parapets, still stands about thirty feet high, though the parapet has been almost wholly thrown down; so that with the parapet the whole wall must have been between forty and fifty feet in height."

Gotham Spruces Up Its Dean Of Attractions

New York's famous Aquarium, this—with scaffolding up for reconstruction work.

like to see the Aquarium?" asks the New Yorker.

"Now, I saw that nine years ago," responds the second or third-time visitor to the metropolis.

But the routine of seeing the Aquarium, first concern of newcomers to New York, must be done all over again by some millions of the city.

For a new Aquarium soon is to present itself down on the outer rim of Battery Park, Manhattan's jumping-off place.

It will be new in appearance at least. Too much history mingles the present great, round-house-like structure for it to be done away with. So it will be given a $225,000 disguise.

Over its dingy walls, worn and blackened by almost a century and a quarter of service in one capacity or another, a gray cement covering will be placed.

To provide more room for the myriad funny exhibits it houses, a third story will be built.

To the piscatorial collections an assortment of aquatic birds will be added—penguins, pelicans, gulls and the like.

Finally, as a new attraction, there's "Big Ben," the 200-pound black grouper, brought to the Aquarium from Florida not long ago.

It will be some time in the fall or winter before reconstruction is completed.

Then the countless New York visitors who "already have seen it."

The blaze who already have heard the colorful history of its long years as a federal fort, "Cast's Garden," where Jenny Lind sang and Lafayette was received, and a station through which 8,000,000 immigrants passed—They'll have to "do" the Aquarium all over again.

BOLTON

The Ladies' Society of the Bolton Congregational church will present Saturday evening, July 31 at 7:30, standard time, a comedy entitled "Patsy."

The cast of characters is as follows: Patsy, the Irish Maid Jeanette Sumner Nita Farrell, the Bride-to-Be Ruth Fielding, Bob's Sister Phyllis Edwards and Beatrice Edwards, twins Louise Phelps Miss Lucretia Lane, Nita's aunt Elizabeth Daly Hilda Williams, an insurance agent Betty Rose Mary and Helen McGurk will entertain during the acts with athletic dancing. The play will be followed by a dance, music being furnished by Paramount orchestra.

TWO AUTOS COLLIDE; ONE MAN INJURED

Hartford Driver Arrested; Slippery Pavement Given as Reason for Accident.

One person was slightly injured and two automobiles were damaged in a collision in front of Metter's Smoke Shop on Main street early last evening. The driver of one of the automobiles, Nathan Bakst, of 127 Worcester street, Hartford, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. It was said that slippery pavement caused the accident.

Charles J. Feeney, of 55 Wadsworth street, was driving south on Main street in his Chevrolet touring car and was about to turn around in front of Metter's Smoke Shop. A Dodge sedan operated by the Hartford man was following closely and crashed into Feeney's car. The rear end of the Chevrolet was badly damaged and one of the wheels broken completely off. The Hartford man's auto had a bent fender and a broken headlight. Bakst escaped uninjured but Feeney was not so fortunate. He sustained a torn ligament in his left knee and a bruised chest. Feeney is well known about Manchester. His business is landscape gardening.

BULGARIAN BANDITS TERRORIZE BALKANS

Sofia.—During the last few weeks the southern portion of the Dobruja region has been terrorized by the incursions of Bulgarian bandits, whose operations have been the subject of numerous diplomatic exchanges between the Roumanian and Bulgarian Governments.

The Roumanian authorities claim to have now established the fact that these bands are under the command of the notorious Bulgarian outlaw, Basil Teodoroff, and his girl ally, Eva Maneva, known on account of her valor and cruelty as the "White Terror of the Dobruja."

Maneva, who is said to be of extraordinary beauty is the daughter of a priest of Sishova, on the Danube, where she attended the girl's High School. She became infatuated with stories of Teodoroff's exploits of the robber leader of Dobruja, and when she saw him once in Sishova, she immediately fell in love with him.

She ran away from home and school, and made her way to Macedonia, where she threw in her lot with the bandit chief.

Their lot with the bandit chief. Their band is now two-hundred strong, and is divided into three detachments. They are armed with machine-guns, hand grenades, and rifles.

By day they remain hidden in the forests, and at night they sallied forth to attack and loot the villages. Last year Teodoroff and his laces. Last year Teodoroff and his laces.

Have you ever taken particular note of the manner in which we keep our foodstuffs? All our home made food products are kept under glass. The salads, fish cakes, pickles and relishes of all kinds in addition to being under glass are also ice—likewise the meats. All the pastry or cake, rolls, bread, etc., are kept in sanitary case, screened and glassed so that flies, dirt and other things of like nature CANNOT reach the food we sell you. In addition to that no one handles the food except ourselves—but everything is in plain sight.

IS U. S. DRY? YOU DOUBT IT? THEN READ THIS

The king of the fish stories is here and even Lou Stone of Winsted in his palmist days could not equal it. D. D. Austin, who manufactures cigars in his store on Main street, was sitting there during a dull hour ruminating on the frailty of human nature and what to do about it when he was startled to see crawling through his door a monster crawfish of the variety used by fishermen in this section for bait. "Good evening," said Mr. Austin, recovering from his surprise. "And what brings you here?" No answer. Evidently the crustacean was not in a talkative mood. "However," said Mr. Austin, "we can give him a home for the night." He did so. Joe McKinney happened along just about this time. Joe is a fisherman. Mr. Austin saw where the crawfish could have a good warm bed for the night so he called Joe in. Joe was going fishing the next day to Bolton. "Here is a crawfish that came in to pay me a visit tonight, Joe," said Mr. Austin, "and I will give him—or her, to you on the condition that you bring back a good sized bass." Joe did. He put the animal, or fish, on the hook the next day and pulled out a bass weighing two and one half pounds. Miss Doris McCollum of Pearl street is spending the week in Holyoke, Mass. with Miss Josephine Rothwick.
