Closely Watched As If in Jail, Asserts Simpson; "Spare Nobody, Fear Nobody," Says Moore.

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 4.—Sensational developments in the renewed investigation into the murders of Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills "if certain things happen" were promised within 12 hours today by State Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, as the probe threatened to degenerate into a game of "warrants, warrants—who's got the warrants."

Simpson's promise of action followed an official denial that warrants for six persons had been issued in connection with the case. "If I am prosecutor, no warrants have been issued," Simpson said. "If any are out they are getting in my way."

Who "they" are, Simpson did not say, but on the heels of his announcement came one from Prosecutor Francis L. Bergen of Somerset county, setting forth that he also knew nothing of the six warrants, reports of which have been current in this section until they were generally accepted as fact.

Simpson admitted that he had given orders for a close surveillance over six persons, two of whom are said to be intimately associated with the case. The other four are understood to be material witnesses. "If I have any reason to believe any of these persons intend to leave the state," Simpson said, "I shall order their immediate arrest. They are all closely guarded as if they were in jail."

Simpson, Bergen and Major Mark O. Kimberling of the state police were scheduled to hold a conference late this afternoon but Simpson declined to say what will be discussed. Simpson was scheduled to confer this afternoon with Ford David, Middlesex county detective, who worked on the case four years ago. George Totten, former Somerset county detective, who had a part in the original investigation, also has been asked to appear.

None of his appointments as special prosecutor in the case was received by Simpson from Gov. Moore today. "My secretary, Mr. Bloodgood, is in Trenton today getting the signature of the attorney-general, and you will have your formal commission this afternoon," said Simpson's message read. "Spare no pains to get at the truth in this matter."

"Do not persecute anybody; do not pre-judge anybody; do not spare anybody; do not favor anybody. Do your best to drag all facts to light in this foul tragedy and all the circumstances following it. If murder is a fine art in the state of New Jersey, it will only be because the ten commandments are revised. Such a thought is, of course, impious and beyond the power of the human race."

Simpson declared today that he favored full publicity for the investigation in a belief that much information may be secured from persons who read of the developments in the probe.

Letters Most Important
Senator Simpson made it clear today that he attaches great importance to the torn love letters, exchanged between the Rev. Hall and the choir singer, which were found scattered over their bodies.

"The letters were put there by somebody," he said. "They did not walk there and must have come from the home of the dead man. My detectives have information that the letters were in the possession of a certain person. We also know that person obtained possession of them after they were found beneath a pillow."

"Naturally, I can not give the name of the person who had the letters just before the murders, but I don't distinguish between the people who brought the letters and those who committed the murders. It was believed today that Senator Simpson would move immediately to have a special grand jury summoned to take up the case.

T. B. DEATH RATE CUT ONE HALF IN 25 YEARS

Twenty-five years ago tuberculosis caused approximately 200 deaths every year in each 100,000 population of the United States, whereas now it causes less than half that number; it was declared at the United States Public Health Service on August 2.

COOLIDGES BOTH GO TO PLYMOUTH

Forecasts of President's Lone Visit to Old Home Fail to Come True.

White Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 4.—President and Mrs. Coolidge departed from here by train early today for Plymouth, Vt., for a week's visit at the President's former home.

The President's Plymouth visit has been the subject of as many contradictory reports as a war. Twice he has been reported as on the point of making the trip without Mrs. Coolidge, who, it was each time reported, would remain at White Pine Camp and entertain her mother in the President's absence. Without explanation these reports failed to come true.

CHAMBERLAIN NEW CRITIC OF MELLON

British Foreign Minister Says Secretary Misrepresented England's Borrowings.

London, Aug. 4.—The debt controversy was revived today in the House of Commons, and Sir Austen Chamberlain joined in the fray.

Sir Austen, who as foreign minister has retained a discreet silence up to now, today caused something of a sensation when he made the direct charge that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has misrepresented the character of British borrowings from the United States in public statements which he has issued.

Will Pay as Agreed.
"This statement was necessary because a statement by Secretary Mellon misrepresented the character of our borrowings," said Sir Austen. "It was not in the interest of good relations that such misrepresentations should prevail."

Sir Austen declared that Great Britain would settle her debt to the United States as she had agreed, but that he believed the best solution would have been the cancellation of all debts.

"That solution did not commend itself," he said. "We have since adopted a policy of taking from our debtors only as much as is needed to meet the payments we have to make ourselves."

"The actual sums we will receive will amount to the sums we will have to pay."

"It is incompatible with our honor and dignity to be excused. We make no complaint. We will discharge our obligations."

WETS SWAMP DRY FORCES IN MISSOURI TEST

G. O. P. and Democratic Senate Candidates Win in Primaries Against the Anti-Saloon League.

St. Louis, Aug. 4.—Indicating a victory for the wet forces, unofficial returns today from almost one-half of the state showed Congressman Harry B. Hawes, Democrat, and Senator George H. Williams, Republican, both of St. Louis, leading by wide pluralities on their respective tickets for the United States nominations.

It was estimated on the basis of returns that Hawes would win by a margin of more than 50,000 votes while Williams was expected to pile up a lead exceeding 50,000.

Opposed by Anti-Saloonists
Hawes' opponents were opposed by the anti-Saloon forces. Hawes is classified strictly as a wet, while Williams said he would vote for modification of the prohibition amendment if the people vote with that sentiment when a repeal referendum is submitted.

Williams was opposed by David M. Proctor, of Kansas City, a "dry," and Blodgett Priest of St. Louis, a "wet."

CURTIS RENOMINATED

Negro Opponent Polls Negligible Vote in Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 4.—Senator Charles Curtis, republican floor leader in Congress, and Gov. Ben S. Paulen, of Kansas, were safely re-elected today as tabulations in yesterday's republican primary came in.

In 300 precincts out of 2,641, Curtis had 13,001 votes and Nick Chiles, negro opponent, 1,055. Paulen received 10,053 votes and Golden B. Davis, of Colony, 1,756.

Henry S. Johnston, Ku Klux Klan supporter, also was re-elected, but he was defeated by a large margin. He had a lead of nearly 5,000 votes over his nearest opponent in the race for gubernatorial honors on the Democratic ticket.

WALTON DEFEATED

Oklahoma Ex-Governor Beaten in Senate Contest.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 4.—J. C. Walton, former governor who was deposed, staged an unsuccessful fight for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate in yesterday's primaries, on the face of returns here today. Elmer Thomas, former Congressman from Tulsa, led a field of five and was ahead of Walton by more than 5,000 votes as returns from 505 precincts were tabulated. Walton campaigned as an opponent of the Ku Klux Klan.

Senator J. C. Harrell, Republican Senator from Oklahoma, led a field of seven for renomination by a comfortable plurality.

Sea Amazon Who Lost Battleship

It's the Sly Shifting Tides That Beat Channel Swimmers

By LILLIAN CANNON.
(Expert who herself is soon to essay the Channel swim under the auspices of the New Enterprise Association, of which the Manchester Herald is a member.)
(Copyright, 1926.)

Cap Gris Nez, France, Aug. 4.—One swimmer after another has been setting out these recent days to conquer the 20-mile ribbon that is the English channel—and to learn first-hand that beneath the water's surface are hidden dark secrets.

Those tides! The swimmer who, by dint of expert advice and the right luck, hits them at just the proper time will win. That is, if she is durable enough. The one who hits them at the wrong time loses.

Miss Clarabelle Barrett made a splendid effort. She swam for more than 21 hours. But the tides defeated her. As to the rest of us—we shall see.

Swim in the channel is a many-hued adventure. The other day, as I was sweeping along, my head bumped against something. I was startled and swerved aside.

BOSTON BATTLES 2 OLD CRIPPLES

Fight to Get Rid of News Stand on Common Makes Allies of Enemies.

Boston, Aug. 4.—A movement has been launched to drive a news vendor's stand from Boston Common.

Rev. Dr. E. A. Horton, chaplain of the State Senate and president of the Boston Common Society, is leading the fight. He claims the co-operation of Mayor Nichols.

The Boston Common Society feels, according to Dr. Horton, that the news stand is an "eyesore."

John J. Boyce, 73, a cripple, who conducted the stand for many years has become a property owner. Because of his feeble condition he has been forced to give up coming down town daily. Two years ago William Monahan, another cripple, took over the stand and a quarrel between the two cripples ensued. Now the cripples have submerged their differences to make a combined stand against the Common Society.

WITH $200,000 STICKS TO "GOAT RIDE" JOB

Kin of Harding Keeps Amusement Park Work Despite His Fat Inheritance.

New York, Aug. 4.—George J. Harding, 48, who, for seventeen years has been in charge of the "Kiddie Goat Ride" at Palisades amusement park, is back on his job, although he has inherited $200,000.

Harding, whose father, he says, was a cousin of the late President Warren G. Harding, said he had received word of a bequest in the will of a great uncle who just died in Portsmouth, England.

Outwardly the "goat man" was indifferent to his new wealth, but he admitted that he had gone on a splurge and bought twenty-five raincoats for old friends and associates in the amusement park.

At Westbury, R. I., Harding has a farm of 180 acres, stocked with a herd of several hundred goats.

HER DOG BARRED, SHE HIRES SPECIAL TRAIN.

Bethlehem, N. H., Aug. 4.—The most expensive devotion to a dog on record here is that of Mrs. Butler Hedges of San Francisco, who has arrived to spend the month. On leaving San Francisco her pet dog was refused admission to a Pullman car, whereupon Mrs. Hedges promptly hired a private car for her journey across the country to New York with the dog.

ENEMY OF STILLS SLAIN IN PULPIT

Morgantown, Ky., Aug. 4.—An evangelist and a choir singer are dead here, killed as they sang the opening hymn at revival services by an unidentified assassin who fired through the window at the county school house where the meeting was in progress.

The Rev. W. A. Moss, thirty-two, toppled from his pulpit, dead, and Mrs. Jerome Robinson, thirty, died two hours after the shooting at the Early School, twelve miles from here. J. D. Young, 70, suffered a slight scalp wound and others in the meeting narrowly escaped.

Bootlegger Arrested.
Clifford Wilson, thirty, a fugitive since his escape from jail here a year ago, was arrested at his home on the statement of a fourteen-year-old girl that he had fired the shots. Wilson, wanted on a bootleg charge, denied the shooting.

County officials laid the crime to moonshiners, whose ire the evangelist had aroused by his campaign against illicit whiskey and his activities in aiding enforcement officers.

NO INTERDICT ON MEXICO IS ROME'S WORD

Berlin Story Squarely Denied—Diaz Offers to Deal With Calles on "Liberal Interpretation."

Rome, Aug. 4.—The report that Mexico had been placed under the interdict by the Pope, was ridiculed today by Monsignor Pizzardo, under-secretary of the Vatican.

The report originated, it is believed, in a carelessly written article in the newspaper Corriere della Sera declaring that three centuries after interdicting the Venetian republic, the church may again have recourse to its most powerful spiritual weapon.

Facts Show Error.
"Nothing new has occurred since Saturday," Pizzardo said, "the day on which, in view of the abnormal situation created by the new anti-Catholic law in Mexico, the bishops dispensed their priests from the need for performing their pastoral duties. That is all. The fact that the faithful continue to pray in the open churches speaks for itself. If there was an interdict against Mexico, that would not be the case."

Pizzardo pointed out that, notwithstanding centuries of secret anti-Catholic persecution, the interdict was never applied. He added that this sweeping ban has only been applied in local crises, and has never been used against a whole state.

Up to Calles.
Mexico City, Aug. 4.—Settlement of the controversy between the Catholic church and the Mexican government today appears to be squarely up to President Calles. A formula for a peaceful settlement of the difficulties has been reached between Bishop Diaz of Tabasco and Attorney General Romeo Ortega, it is reported. This formula is to be submitted to the president.

There is no hope of religious regulations, which caused the present strife, being lifted but it is understood that if President Calles is willing to accept a liberal interpretation of these regulations that there may be a way open to peace.

The Catholic, it is reported, are prepared to make some concessions and will accept some of the regulations, such as the registration of priests, as health measures.

Bishop Diaz has formally demanded the lifting of the regulations, a period of a year of armistice, and a plebiscite, but it is understood that he would be prepared not to insist upon these demands in full if President Calles displays a willingness to permit a less strict enforcement of the regulations.

The president, however, has up to the present taken a stern stand, and there is some doubt whether the settlement which has been agreed upon by the attorney-general and Bishop Diaz will meet with his approval.

Diaz expressed indignation this morning over numerous efforts of the church's enemies to place Catholics in an anti-government, even rebellious light.

"Loyal to Government."
"I am loyal to my country and my government," Diaz said, "and I respect its institutions."

Mexican banking circles were considerably cheered by the report of the settlement.

COCHRAN NAILS THAT GENERAL MOTORS YARN

Never Named "Future Price" That Has Caused Wild Buying of Securities.

New York, Aug. 4.—Thomas Cochran, a member of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., denied through a statement issued by the firm today that he had made a statement relating to the probable future price of General Motors stock, as attributed to him earlier in the week. The Morgan firm issued the following statement:

"Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. announce that their partner, Thomas Cochran, who was a passenger on the S. S. Olympic en route to London, requested the following statement to be given the press:

"In response to inquiries made by a ship news reporter upon my sailing from New York on a holiday, I spoke with enthusiasm of the prospects of the General Motors corporation. I authorized no statement of any kind as to the future price of the stock, which obviously no one can foretell."

LOS ANGELES FLYING TO NEWPORT TODAY

Leaves Mooring Mast at Lakehurst for New England Trip; To Boston Tomorrow.

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 4.—Under almost ideal weather conditions, the naval dirigible Los Angeles swung away from its mooring mast here at 10:40 daylight saving time, and sped away northeastward for Newport. From there, she will fly to Boston tomorrow.

The Los Angeles is to moor overnight to the mast-hip Patok, which has been anchored at Newport for several days. En route, complete radio compass calibrations with the Amagansett and Price's Neck wireless stations are made. Similar adjustments will be made on the trip tomorrow with two stations outside Boston.

FIND SLAIN MAN IN WALLINGFORD LOT

Body of Young Stranger, Shot Through Heart, Discovered When Day Comes.

Wallingford, Aug. 4.—The body of an unidentified man, apparently in the early twenties, was found in a vacant lot on Prince street, early this morning. He had been shot through the head and through the heart.

Coroner Ell Mix of New Haven came here just before noon and took over the investigation in person, having previously ordered that no information concerning the affair be given out.

It is understood that a card was found on the dead man's body indicating he was a resident of Staten Island, N. Y.

Perhaps Killed Elsewhere.
The belief here is that the man was killed elsewhere and his body placed in the lot where it was found.

Prince street runs from the Hartford turnpike to a point near the Erie street building. The street is well built up and there are many houses close to the lot where the body was found. Neighbors heard no shots fired during the night nor any unusual noise of motor traffic.

George C. Abbott, chief of police, was under orders of secrecy in regard to the murder after the arrival of the coroner.

"You will have to get all your news from Coroner Mix," he said. Coroner Mix's examination lasted about three hours and he departed for New Haven without issuing a statement.

RADIO TO AID IN CONN. COPS' WORK

Police Chiefs of 20 Towns Confer With WTIC Experts on Broadcasting Plans.

Hartford, Aug. 4.—Police chiefs from twenty Connecticut towns gathered here this afternoon to discuss with the Travelers Insurance company's radio experts the best methods of broadcasting and receiving routine police news and emergency crime information.

Harris Whitebore Jr., of Naugatuck, presided and explained that a fellow townsman had conceived the feasibility of a station like W T I C broadcasting police news to all police headquarters and that today's meeting had been arranged and the W T I C officials invited.

Walter G. Cowles, vice-president of the Travelers, told what W T I C is now doing and agreed to give the services of the station to the Connecticut police departments along whatever lines might be agreed on.

John C. Randall, radio engineer, explained that a warning bell might be placed in the apparatus so that the signal would ring whenever the station went on the air. One objection to the plan would be that the receiving sets in police stations would have to be tuned in at all times.

Finally the meeting decided to name a small committee for further study of the plan.

Towns represented at the meeting were Ansonia, Bridgeport, Danbury, Groton, Hartford, Manchester, Meriden, Middletown, Milford, Naugatuck, New Britain, New London, Norwalk, Rockville, Stratford, Waterbury, West Haven, West Hartford, Westport, Willimantic.

In the rest of the state, he added, the commission ordered a $2,883,330 slash on rates for Insull companies and a $1,477,000 reduction of other companies.

STORES HERE ONLY ONES IN STATE TO CLOSE YEAR ROUND

Summer Schedules of Other Cities Shows Manchester Alone in Thursday Half Holiday — May Adopt New Plan.

A summer schedule of store closing for leading Connecticut cities, just issued by the state chamber of commerce, shows Manchester to be the only city in the state which observes a half holiday the year around.

Practically all of the stores in other cities observe a half day closing during July and August but none of them go to the extent Manchester does in closing its stores every Thursday afternoon.

Favor New Plan. Many Manchester business men are opposed to the half holiday throughout the year, and it is said that some action may be taken soon to have the stores observe the Thursday holiday during the summer months only.

The summer store schedule for all cities as announced by the state chamber follows. The city is given first, then the afternoon the store closes and third, the months the closing is observed.

Ansonia—Tuesday—through Labor Day. Bridgeport—5 o'clock every day—July 6-Sept. 6.

Bristol—Wednesday—July 14-Oct. 1. Derby—Tuesday—July 13-Sept. 28.

Greenwich—Wednesday 75 per cent Saturday 25 per cent—July and August.

Hartford—(1) 2 department stores and a few shops operate 6 full days per week. (2) 4 large Main Street stores, the grocery stores, certain men's clothing and furniture stores close Wednesday afternoon. (3) Specialty shops, jewelry and stationery stores close Saturday afternoon—July and August.

Manchester—Thursday—all year around. Meriden—Wednesday—July 14-Sept. 1.

Middletown—None except Wednesday for markets—July and August. Naugatuck—Wednesday—July 1-Sept. 15.

New Britain—Wednesday—July 7-Sept. 8. New Haven—(1) Majority on Wednesday; (2) Some specialty shops—July and August.

Norwalk—Wednesday—July and August. Norwich—Thursday—July 15-Sept. 2.

Stamford—(1) Majority on Wednesday; (2) Some on Saturday—July and August. Torrington—Wednesday—July 1-Sept. 1.

Waterbury—Wednesday—July and August. Willimantic—Thursday—July and August. Winsted—Tuesday—July and August.

WEXED BECAUSE BRITAIN DIDN'T GAG MALONE, WET London, Aug. 4.—The government was attacked in the House of Commons today by Robert Young, Laborite, of Glasgow, for permitting Dudley Field Malone to broadcast a speech on July 30, attacking prohibition in the United States.

Lord Welmer, who replied for the Post Office Department and the government, said that the question of Malone's speech had not been submitted to the government and that it is regarded as "only incidental to a general presentation of views by a distinguished American."

UNIQUE STORY BUILT AROUND 2 ACCIDENTS

"Recuperating isn't so bad after all providing one turns a closed eye to the expense account," said Herman Muske, of School street the other day when speaking about his recent accident which resulted in his being confined to the Memorial hospital for ten weeks.

When seen by a Herald reporter he was riding around in a large, closed-in automobile. It was a rather funny sight inasmuch as Maurice Jobert, of Maple street was in the car with him. Both were in the back seat. Each had his leg propped up on the back of the front seat while a pair of crutches lay at the side of each.

Both were injured in the same manner, each having been operating a motorcycle with sidecar attached. Muske was injured May 27; Jobert two days later. Both were taken to the hospital. During the ten weeks of their confinement, they grew to be great pals. Each tried to comfort the other, that is, when opportunity presented itself.

Both were discharged from the institution the same day, July 29. Now both are recuperating together. Muske has recovered from all of his injuries except his fractured left leg. Jobert's lone injury is his fractured left leg.

The only difference between the cases is that Jobert is going to get well sooner. He will be able to have the cast on his leg removed next week, he says, while Muske's injury will not permit this action for about three weeks more.

"FOUR MORE WEEKS, O, HORRID THOUGHT"

This Story Presumably Was Written by a Student Who Just Loves School.

Four more weeks of freedom; four more weeks of bliss; four more weeks of fishing and swimming; four more weeks of carefree roaming; four more weeks of lying in bed late in the morning; four more weeks in which to earn money; in short, four more weeks of vacation—and then school. Four weeks from today the school bell will sound at eight thirty in the morning, and another ten months of school will have gotten under way.

This is indeed bad news to all these unfortunates who will have to go back to the old grind. Teachers, homework, after school assignments, examinations, and all the other horrors of school life are not pleasant thoughts in this un-interrupted season of dreaming. But four weeks are four weeks—and have yet to elapse before the fatal hour.

"RAINBOW" OPENS THURSDAY NIGHT

Peerless Orchestra Engaged for Season — Special Effects for the Opening.

The Rainbow, a beautiful new dance hall on the Hartford-Willimantic road, two miles east of Manchester, will be formally opened on Thursday evening, August 5. The hall is said to be one of the most attractive in New England. It will accommodate 450 dancers and its lighting effect is said to be most novel. From the center of the hall is suspended a three-foot ball containing 750 mirrors which reflect, with the aid of four huge spotlights located in each corner of the hall, all of the colors of the rainbow. Located as it is in Bolton which has an unusually high altitude, The Rainbow is always favored with cool breezes and to the east and south of it are beautiful cool groves attractively laid out.

Peerless Orchestra The Peerless orchestra, of Willimantic, one of the best known orchestras in this section, has been engaged for the remainder of the season. To complete the plans, Frank L. Pinney, owner and manager of the new rendezvous, has insisted upon several rehearsals during which the orchestra has become familiar with the lighting effect which is operated by the leader of the orchestra who has a series of levers on the orchestra platform with which he controls the lights. Mr. Pinney insists that it is just as important to harmonize lights and music as it is to harmonize music with movies.

Hotel Open West of the new dance hall is the re-built New England hotel which will hereafter be known as the Rainbow hotel, the same decorative scheme that features the dance hall being carried out in the hotel. There will be special features at the opening Thursday evening.

VOTE BY PHONE METHOD IS NOT POPULAR HERE

Although the brass cupola on top of the new City Hall at the Center is for purely ornamental purposes, some people in this town were dejected the other day into thinking that it was to be used for something else.

It was imparted in confidence to a group of men who congregated around the Center that the cupola was to be part of a broadcasting station which would give out the proceedings of the annual town meetings and also the selectmen's meetings.

"In that way," said the person starting the rumor, "you won't have to go to the polls to vote but may phone your ballot to the town hall where it will be registered."

This didn't go very well with the voters and for a few days George H. Waddell, town treasurer, was besieged by angry voters wanting to know what the idea was.

BEEES BEATEN IN A BATTLE WITH TROLLEY

It was a Stafford Springs trolley crew. Of course when anything funny happens it always must be about a crew on that line. But since it happened to them one must tell the truth.

The car was in charge of Motor-man Keating and Conductor Carpenter. They were bowling along at a fast rate when suddenly they ran kerplunk into a swarm of bees. The window in front of the motor-man was down so you can imagine how it felt for Keating when millions of the insects struck him. He shut off the power and put on the brakes. Meantime the bees had gotten into the car. The conductor ran up and started to slap at the bees with a newspaper he had picked up. Some of them had fallen on the floor of the car and both Keating and Carpenter stepped on them. It was a fight for life but in the end most of the bees flew out of the car and the members of the crew had only been stung two or three times.

But the story does not end here. There is still something to tell. There was one passenger on the car, a slight gray haired man who had all the earmarks of a naturalist. He watched the battle between the men and the bees and when it had ended he gave those trolley-men a lecture. It concluded with these words:

"To think two great big husky men would ruthlessly kill such tiny, innocent insects. Are you not ashamed. Do you not know we would never have any flowers were it not for the bees who pollenate them? Do you know that it was a bumble bee that caused Australia to become the greatest sheep raising country in the world? Now let me tell you this in great detail. It was, I believe, in 1864, when a German scientist —"

But the crew was paying little attention.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1923.

STUPID.

We do not hold with those who are always ready to cry out in indignation against the occasional hardships to which individuals are put incidentally to the enforcement of law. The person who is held by the police as a suspect and later found to be entirely innocent seldom has no reasonable ground for complaint, unless perhaps against Fate for creating the circumstances of suspicion. It is part of the business of citizenship to submit to such inconveniences and unpleasantnesses with as good a grace as possible; and there is far too great a tendency on the part of such people and their friends to talk about "outrages." How else can there be any law enforcement?

Nevertheless it takes an extraordinarily philosophical mind to rest content with the proceedings in the case of Peter Kopszenski, held for two years in the Hartford jail while the federal authorities fiddled about ineptly in sporadic efforts to find out whether he could be deported or not.

There is nothing in the record of this person to indicate that he belongs to the desperate criminal class. He served what seems like an unusually adequate sentence for a minor crime after having lived in the United States practically since boyhood. Thousands like him are permitted to go about their business, in similar circumstances, unmolested. But somebody got the notion it would be a good scheme to deport this particular offender—and the two years of perfectly unjustifiable imprisonment have been the result. Now, because the government really had no case at all against Kopszenski, he is allowed to go.

It has been a dunderheaded piece of business—and a heartless one. There are two things that we sorely need in the administration of our laws—honest enthusiasm and a savor of the humanities.

ANTI-COURTITES.

The kind of people among whom the anti-world court crowd, led by Senator Borah, get their support is shown by the evidence of former Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago before the Senate investigating committee yesterday. Thompson declared that the Crowe-Barrett faction in Cook County swapped its platform for the Chicago anti-court element's support of Smith against McKinley in the Republican senatorial primaries. In consideration of the votes of the gang for Smith the faction declared against the court "and all entangling alliances."

Thompson was mayor of Chicago for a number of terms. He was kept in office by the most corrupt machine that ever cursed an American city. His strength lay among gamblers, gangsters, crooks, gamblers and professional vice. He was the political associate of the vast Chicago underworld, and was turned out of office only by one of those intermittent revivals of decency which once in a while drive the decent citizens of that community to see red and get out the broom.

Among the highbinders and thugs who constitute Thompson's particular gang there are probably hundreds who are bitterly opposed to the world court because they imagine it to be a place where they try holdup men and bootleggers far from the protecting wing of the Thompsons of Chicago—and they want no part of it. To hear such people as these yapping about George Washington's policies is the sublimity of mockery. Not three in ten but would tell you that Washington was a negro.

They are not even of any party. They vote in Democratic primaries and Republican primaries with equal readiness if ordered to do so by their bosses. Yet it is they who beat an administration senator on the "world court issue."

We may not know where we are going politically, in this country, but we surely are on our way—somewhere.

THRIFT.

Italy is eating black bread so as to reduce the importation of wheat, largely from America. So is Belgium. So, soon, may France if her own wheat crop should fall short of her necessities. The king of Belgium leaves his cars in their garage and uses a motorcycle—which is another way of saying that the Belgians are cutting down the importation of gas and oil. This is thrift. All Europe, having more or less recovered from the post-war lunacy of luxury, is thinking seriously about chopping its living costs—of licking the wolf of debt by the process of self-restraint. The lira is gaining in worth. The Belgian franc is gaining. The French franc is on the way up again.

Meantime in the United States the shares of a motor building corporation jump ten or twenty points in a day. Having more money than we ought to have in circulation, the dollar is showing signs of becoming cheaper—in other words, commodities, if they follow the securities boom, are going to soar in price again. The thousand dollars in the bank which would have bought a certain building lot or a certain number of beefsteaks will not buy so good a building lot nor so many beefsteaks next year. The savings of the people are going to depreciate in purchasing power—the phenomenal stock market figures are any criterion. While Europe is doing her best to stop printing press inflation we are doing our best to bring about gold inflation, which is the same in principle if not so disastrous in degree.

They told us in England five years ago that Europe would smother us in gold if we insisted on having gold.

By thrift Europe is forcing its money up. By lack of it we are forcing our money down. By lack of it we are in a fair way to get into a muddle—the same kind of muddle that we avoided when, in 1894, we refused to swallow the free silver cure. Too much money is the next worst thing to too little. Yet we insist on more, from Europe.

AUTOCRACY.

There is a not inconsiderable element in this country which finds much to admire in the Mussolini kind of government—the rule of a "strong" man, free of all nonsense, unhampered by red tape or public opinion. For a nation brought up on a diet of "down with all tyrants," America has developed a surprising amount of complaisance, in certain quarters, toward the dictatorship idea.

It would be interesting to get, from these Americans who have in their hearts such a soft spot toward Il Duce, a frank expression of opinion with relation to Senor Calles, dictator of Mexico. There is much similarity between these two men both as to strength and as to methods—considerable difference, we suspect, as to ultimate purposes. Mussolini, despite his early experiences as a red, is now decidedly a classist. Calles seems to be a good deal more of a massist, if the terms is understandable. At all events he certainly is not a classist—and the truth is that it is, in America and elsewhere, classists who like Mussolini.

If one-man rule is a good thing in principle it is a good thing in Mexico as well as in Italy and would be a good thing in the United States, in England, in China—anywhere. If you cotton to Mussolini you have to cotton to Calles. If you object to the one you have to object to both—on principle.

Autocracy is autocracy, wherever you find it. We fought the world's greatest war to end it—and there is more of it in the world today than there was in the days of the Czar and the Kaiser.

MASSACHUSETTS.

"Massachusetts, there she stands!" With a petition in her hand, signed by a hundred and fifty thousand persons, begging the governor of the commonwealth to set aside the law and commute to life imprisonment the death sentences of three of the most despicable young villains who ever disgraced New England soil.

Tough, thoroughly bad eggs these three, who in callous cold blood dashed the life out of a car barn watchman at Waltham because he resisted their attempt at a holdup. With the community smeared from end to end with crime and not one in ten of the criminals being caught, these hundred and fifty thousand petitioners yet blubber at the enforcement of the law when the rare event of a conviction transpires.

Yet well they know, these petitioners, that under the debauched system of paroles in Massachusetts, another petition, of a tenth the strength of this one, would obtain the release of all three of the murderers in a year or two or three, if the governor should yield.

"Massachusetts, there she stands!" With a smudge on her classic brow and dirt on her garments—the state of all the American sisterhood where sympathy runs to the criminals and the crime, where a hundred and fifty thousand weep for the murderers and forget the slain.

NO INTERDICT.

Obviously the Berlin story of the issuance of a papal interdict against Mexico, cabled to this country yesterday, was a fabrication of the Prussian imagination. Though it was put out by a responsible European news agency the untimeliness of such a proceeding was so obvious that it was with reservations that the Herald printed the report for what it was worth.

It is quite apparent that the conflict between the Church of Rome and the Mexican government has not reached a point where such an extreme measure on the part of the Vatican would be good strategy. It is highly improbable, as a matter of fact, that the trouble will ever reach such a stage.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

Washington, Aug. 4.—What chance would a wet presidential candidate—that is, a candidate who favored a national prohibition referendum, which would be wet enough for all practical purposes—stand in 1928?

It's a question under pretty serious consideration at both Republican and Democratic party headquarters here.

Not that either national committee wants it to become a presidential issue. On the contrary, it's an issue that both are deadly afraid of. They simply are forced to analyze the situation, because of reports they're receiving from various—and numerous—parts of the country.

There's no denying, as the party managers see it, that a bloc of wet states has sprung up in the last year or two—states which would subordinate every other issue to that of prohibition, if given an out-and-out wet presidential candidate to vote for.

In this group the managers include, as certainties, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Connecticut, Delaware, Rhode Island, Missouri and Wisconsin, with 113 electoral votes among them.

Counting other states which are suspected of having wet leanings, the political dogeaters reckon that a moist candidate might start off with as many as 167 electoral votes sewed up from the very beginning of the campaign, on that single issue.

That many votes assured, out of the 268 required in the electoral college, would be a pretty nice nest egg.

Take a wet Democratic candidate, for instance.

Assume, for the sake of argument, that he started with 167 wet northern votes. Democratic national committee members think his wetness might cost him some of the south, but they don't believe it would cost him all of it. The south would know it could remain dry, anyway. Even a wet president wouldn't dispute any state's right to be as dry as it chose.

And suppose the wet Democrat carried the whole south, plus his initial 167 wet northern electoral votes—he'd be elected, without counting a single state west of the Mississippi.

On the other hand, take a wet Republican.

First give him his theoretical 167 wet votes, mostly in the east—all east of the Mississippi river. It's almost impossible to imagine that he wouldn't get enough additional western votes to win.

Of course this is taking more or less for granted that might not happen as outlined. The national committees' calculators don't profess to have done more than consider possibilities.

It isn't a discussion of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment. Even after the election of a wet president that might be about as difficult as ever.

It's a discussion of presidential chances. All a presidential candidate has to do is to get a majority of vote in the electoral college and he can do it without carrying a majority of the states, by a long shot.

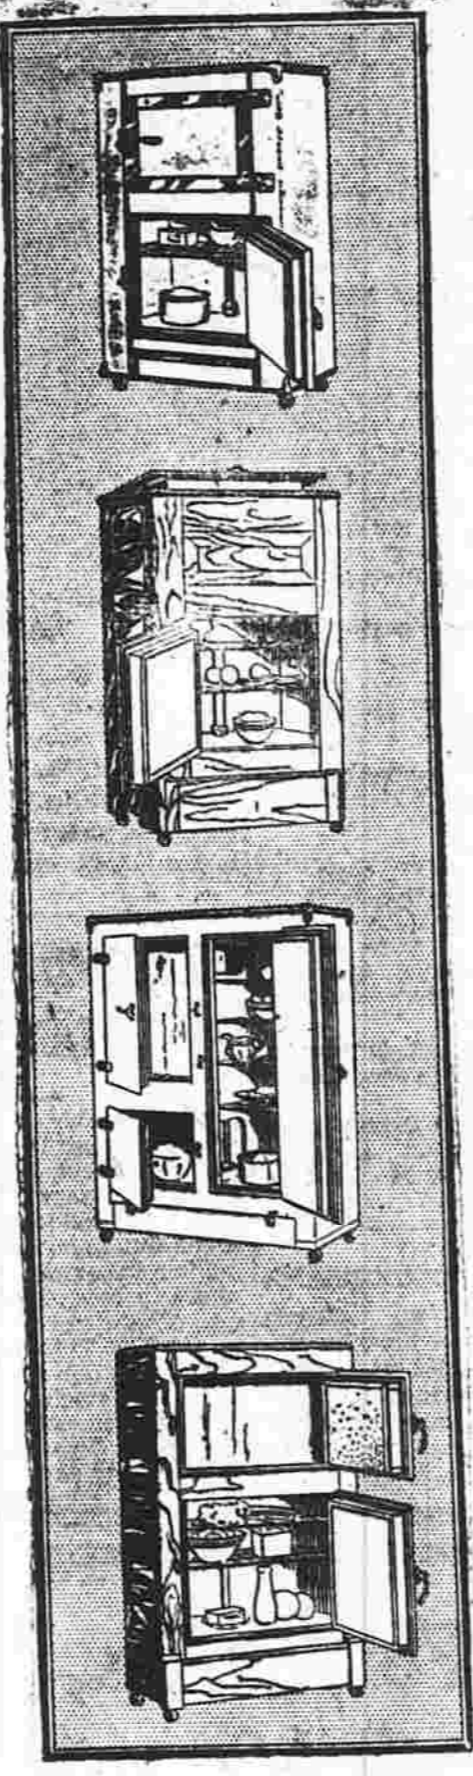

That's what's worrying the national committees.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 4.—A pilgrimage to the Theodore Roosevelt house is on the itinerary of most tourists. And while taking this trip to a national shrine, a few minutes walk will take the visitor about the Gramercy Park section. Now Gramercy Park, which is one block square, is Manhattan's most exclusive park. It is fenced in and keys to the gate are held only by those who live around it. The number of keys is limited to 200.

Many years ago one Samuel Ruggles gave the park to the neighborhood under the strict proviso that it may not be in any way disturbed. To begin this easy little jaunt, take a Fifth Avenue bus at any part of the city. No. 28 East 20th Street is the rebuilt Roosevelt house. It is kept up by a

Months Of Careful Planning Bring To A Climax The Greatest Values Of The Entire Year

Our Buyers have travelled thousands of miles visiting the various Expositions. Hundreds of Manufacturers have called upon us with Special Offerings and you will find here now on display the cream of the Markets.

Our connection with fourteen other progressive stores in New England and the Middle West give us the advantage of Special Quantity Prices enjoyed by no other store in Hartford.

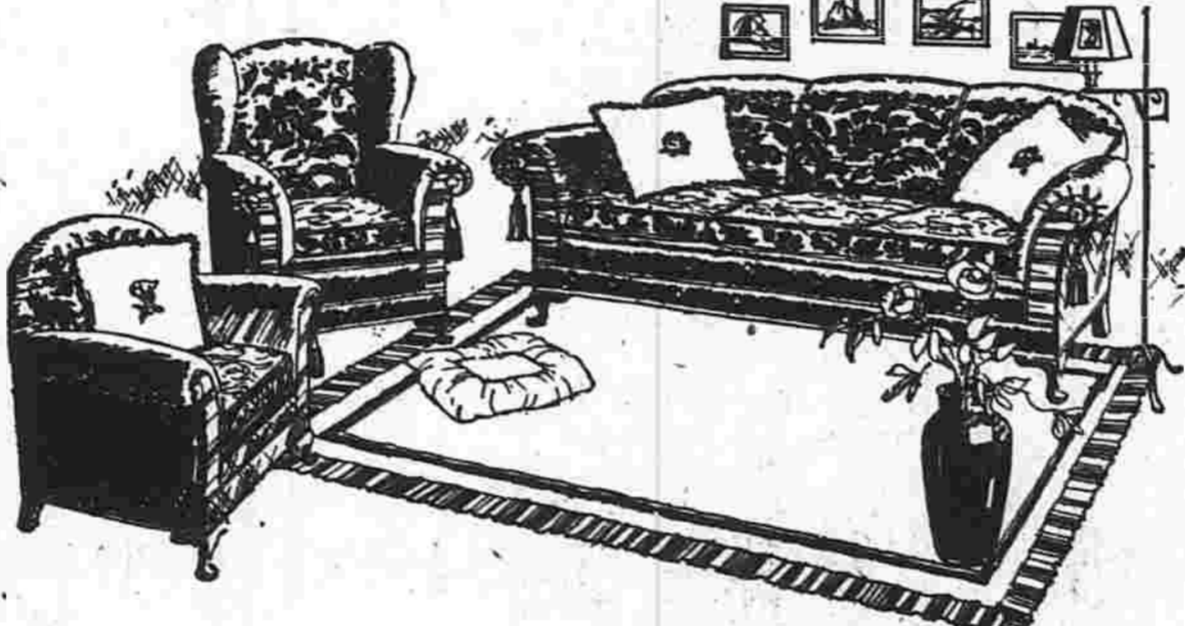

Selling in volume permits us to operate on a narrow margin of profit. The Flint-Bruce's Values, therefore, are always exceptional.

Compare the Furniture of all the Furniture Sales, if you please, but never compare price alone—nor judge value by what some other store says was the "Regular Price." Remember that "Reduction" means nothing until you compare the actual goods and the prices.

POE'S STORIES: The Pit and the Pendulum

The prisoner of Toledo had escaped death in the pit by an accident, but it was to be a temporary respite. The man fell into a deep slumber and, upon awakening, found himself bound on a framework of wood. There was now some light in the chamber and, gazing upward, the prisoner saw the figure Time, from which hung a huge pendulum.

Consumed with thirst, the man discovered that his pitcher of water had been removed, and spiced meat put in its place.

The prisoner's left hand had been left partly free, so he could wave away the large rats that issued from the direction of the well.

Gazing up a short time later at the pendulum, directly above him, the man could see that it was made of glittering steel, in the shape of a crescent, and sharp as a razor edge. A new panic seized him when he saw that as it swung hissing, to and fro, it descended! (Continued.)

UNUSUAL PICTURES ON STATE PROGRAM

"Skinner's Dress Suit" Tonight—Country Store and Two Film Features Tomorrow.

Tonight that rollicking comedy "Skinner's Dress Suit" which rocked the audience at the State yesterday, will have its final showing. Ask those who saw it and you will crowd around early to see Reginald Denny in his finest impersonation of the famous screen version of The Saturday Evening Post's prize story.

Now for tomorrow. First in point of local interest will be the country store. There will be given away presents of all kinds, chairs, a rocker, a lamp, chinaware, groceries, novelties. And that is not all. There will be two features. Johnny Hines in "The Brown Derby" and a Rex Beach story called "The Goose Woman."

"The Brown Derby" is a comedy drama. Johnny Hines takes the part of a young plumber who called his wrench a pipe organ. He is called to do a job in the mansion of a rich woman and the mistakes that follow and the fun that accrues are something you must see to appreciate.

The other feature will be "The Goose Woman." Jack Pickford, Louise Dresser and Constance Bennett are the stars. Here are some of the highlights of the story.

Robbed of her nightgale voice, the world no longer wanted her. Taunted and shunned she sank to the depths! Her son's love affair with an actress enraged her drunken brain to madness. A freak of fate connected her with a great murder mystery and the headlines once more screamed her name! Then a remarkable transformation took place! A climax you'll never forget!

Marie De Nardi, forgotten forget-me-not—yesterday the toast of the country—today shunned and ridiculed by the people who once applauded her!

A boy and a girl born for each other—between them, a ruthless, selfish old woman rapidly sliding into hell—makes "The Goose Woman," a drama with a big, big "H."

The startling climax will lift you out of your seat.

The story of a love which conquered ridicule—disgrace—temptation and down the terrors of the third degree.

The most beautiful love story of years, picturing a mother you'll always remember.

On Friday and Saturday "Alexander the Great," a movie wonder dog will appear in person at the State. He has substituted for such dogs as "Rin-Tin-Tin," "Strongheart," and "Thunder." He will be seen in stunts at the State with his master.

Two features will also be on the bill for Friday and Saturday, "Phantom of the Forest" a dog picture and Douglas MacLean in "That's My Baby," a comedy drama.

Do you love animals—especially dogs?

We will hazard a guess that you do. In that case you know you will most certainly enjoy seeing the two champion dogs of the world—the highest development of canine intelligence and physical perfection—"Thunder" the marvel dog and "White Fawn."

These two remarkable canines co-star in a very fine Gotham production "The Phantom of the Forest."

Speed is the keynote of "That's My Baby," the other feature. There isn't a dull moment in the entire production; in fact, the complications pile up so thick and fast that the laughs come in bunches. Besides the baby, who sticks to him like glue despite all his heroic and screamingly funny efforts to get rid of it, MacLean has many other trials to contend with. As luck would have it, the girl's father is an old business rival of his. In trying to win him over, MacLean only succeeds in antagonizing him all the more.

The fun reaches a high pitch of hilarity when MacLean presents the old man with a headache powder which proves to be poison! The life-and-death struggle that follows brings the picture to an hysterical climax that mingles laughs and thrills at rate of speed guaranteed to leave the audience breathless with surprise and merriment.

THEY NEVER KNEW TOM SIMS

THEY NEVER KNEW TOM SIMS

CHAPTER III

THIS is chapter three of this powerful novel. If you don't believe it look just above this paragraph.

The last chapter closed when Jim was shot over the heart by Pearl's angry father. The bullet entered directly over the heart and came out Jim's back. He sank to the floor.

The author did not intend to end the chapter at this point. But the author was so overcome by the shooting he could not continue.

Today's chapter, however, starts upon the exact spot where yesterday's chapter ended. Jim was stretched out on the floor. Pearl was bending over him. The irate parent was standing with a triumphant smile upon his lips and the smoking pistol in his hand.

The minister was under the table. The minister's wife was in the kitchen where ministers' wives usually stay. The minister's son was down town hunting a job.

The minister's daughter was not to be seen because the minister had no daughter.

"Tell me darling, are you dying?" sobbed Pearl as she bent over the prostrate form of the man who was almost her husband.

"No, I don't see any angels," said Jim, weakly. "I don't see any angels, except you sweetheart."

"You wouldn't see any angels," laughed Pearl's father. "You would see devils. Do you see any devils?"

"None except you," said Jim, gasping until his last breath.

The father merely laughed. He was proud of the shot he had made. It was over the heart and surely Jim would die.

The doorbell rang because someone at the front door pushed the button.

Going to the telephone, Pearl picked up the receiver. "Hello," she said.

"Number please?" said Central.

"The phone rang," said Pearl, hanging up the receiver.

The doorbell rang again because someone at the front door had pushed the button again.

Pearl went to the door. She opened it. There stood a fellow with a satchel full of tools.

"Do you need any doctoring done today?" asked the fellow.

"Goody! Goody!" laughed Pearl. "Are you a doctor? You are just in time. Peter was sick."

"I'm a horse doctor," said the

The detective examined the room.

There was a crash and a splintering sound. The door flew open. Detective Gumshoe's pipe entered. Gum had forgotten his pipe, so it followed him. Reaching the locked door the pipe had kicked it open. Remarkable? Not in the least. You evidently don't know just what a kick Gum's pipe had. It was strong. It could kick Dempsey. Its great strength was discussed for miles around. When not following Gum it passed away the time by pulling autos out of the mud. Gum's pipe was stronger than the entire onion crop of the United States combined with the garlic crop of Italy. One time when Gum was hunting in Africa he sent the pipe out to bring back a dozen eggs for dinner. The pipe got into a fight with a lion and forgot what Gum had sent it for. Two days later it returned carrying a dozen elephants instead of eggs. The pipe was stronger than a burning rubber factory where the firemen used hair tonic for water. It was a very brave pipe. One time it followed Gum to a bridge party where dozens of women were playing bridge. That's how strong and how brave Gum's pipe was. Detective Gum lit the famous pipe. "I always say," he said, "that it is better to have your pipe lit than to be lit yourself."

"Pearl's eloped," wailed Mr. Handle, as Gum smoked.

The detective calmly puffed away and blew enormous smoke rings. These rings were so perfect they settled to the floor and remained intact. Gum expected to be rich very soon, rich enough to retire.

He hoped to start an auto tire factory where the tires would be made out of smoke rings. It was one of his great accomplishments, blowing smoke rings.

Frequently, when he passed motorists who had plenty of punctures but no spare tires, he stopped long enough to light his famous pipe and blow a smoke ring to help them out. Then too, the smaller smoke rings were very delicious when rolled in sugar and fried in hot fat. Powdered sugar was added after they cooled, and just a touch of cinnamon.

Oh, there is no telling how well Gum's pipe was.

"I locked her in the room," went the father. "She always was missing something. Now she is missing herself."

"Show me the room," cried Gum. "But wait," he added, "I'll go to it. Gum's great experience had taught him there might be some difficulty in bringing the room to him."

The detective examined the room. He opened a dresser drawer. Her clothes were gone. Everything was gone.

"She isn't in there," cried Mr. Handle. "I looked."

"No," admitted the great detective. "Pearl isn't in the soap dish. Her soap is gone. Her towels are gone. Looks like a clean get-away."

Detective Gumshoe was stumped. Really, he was worse than stumped. He was up a tree.

As the two men stood facing a great problem and each other, the door knob turned. It rattled. The door was locked.

The detective examined the room.

FAMOUS MOVIE DOG COMING TO STATE

"Alexander the Great," Wonder Dog, Has Often Appeared in Films—Here Himself.

The kiddies and the grownups, too, will have an opportunity to see a real novelty at the State theater on Friday and Saturday of this week. Not an actor of prominence, although he may be termed that, but an unusual dog. A wonder dog they call him, a canine that appears in the movies and will appear in person just like the big movie stars are doing these days.

"Alexander the Great" is the name of this wonder dog. His master will tell just how movies are made and how the dogs do those wonderful stunts you see on the screen. You know you never see the trainer in the pictures. He is without the range of the camera, but it is the trainer who does all of the thinking. The director reads the script and explains it to the trainer. Then the trainer tells the dog what to do. You have seen a dog shot dead and how he drops and rolls over lifeless. Do you know how that is done? It is done just opposite to what you imagine. The trainer will explain this and a score of other camera tricks that will astonish you.

This dog, "Alexander the Great" has substituted for all of the famous dogs you have ever seen or heard about and why does he substitute?

His master will also explain this on Friday and Saturday.

If you want to hear the inside of how movies are made, especially how elephants, tigers, lions and other animals act in movies, come to the State Friday or Saturday.

On the same bill will be two features, a dog feature and a comedy drama.

HEAT BRINGS DEATH TO A WEST HAVEN MAN
New Haven, Aug. 4.—William O. Stowell, Jr., an insurance agent of West Haven, was found dead in his automobile at Fort Hale park here today. He died "of perfectly natural causes," according to Dr. George H. Joslin, acting medical examiner.

"He had a tendency toward apoplexy and showed traces of diabetes. His death, in my opinion, was fatal in large measure to the heat," said Dr. Joslin.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS.

Hurling Stars Find Jinx at Station 13

Victory No. 13 has surely been a jinx for Pitchers Herb Pennock of the New York Yankees and Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox. Lyons has found it even more difficult to reach and then pass, than Pennock.

Winning 12 games was a comparatively easy job for the two stars, then trouble started. Pennock, whose fine pitching has kept the Yankees in the race, after stumbling a couple of times, managed to put over his thirteenth victory.

It was far more difficult for him to add another victory and leave the supposedly unlucky 13 behind. It required five starts before he was able to turn the trick. In the meantime, he suffered three defeats and had two other pitchers receive credit for games which he really deserved to win.

Lyons had plenty of woe adding victory No. 13 to his list and is bumping into even more trouble trying to leave the hoodoo figures behind.

Like the craps-hooter's goal, a natural 11, has been the big jinx for Flint Rhem of the St. Louis Cardinals. He lost only one game while winning 11 but it has been different since.

Four of the Red's pitching staff. For several years the pitching staff of the Cincinnati Reds has been pointed out as the best in the majors, the big reason for the club being troublesome.

Now, good pitchers are not supposed to cut any figure at the bat, but the National League averages reveal the fact that the members of the Cincinnati staff can help their pitching with a base hit.

Four of the Red's pitching staff. Donahue, Luque, Rixey and Lucas boast better than .300 batting averages.

Until this year, the Cincinnati team has been regarded by the experts as a pretty good defensive club, plus great pitching but lacking in batting punch.

Yet, during the greater part of the present season the Reds have topped the National League in batting. Without a doubt the fact that four of the pitchers have hit better than .300 has had much to do with it.

Incidentally, Pitcher Lucas has starred in the role of pinch batter aside from performing capably on the rubber.

Tris Speaker Below .300. For the second time in his major league career Tris Speaker faces the prospect of falling below the .300 mark.

Away to a bad start this spring, which eventually led to Speaker taking himself out of the lineup in an effort to break the slump, he has worked under a serious handicap.

Of late he has been hitting the ball in old-time style and has gradually fattened his mark until he is now flirting with the charmed .300. Tris says he will be there by the middle of August.

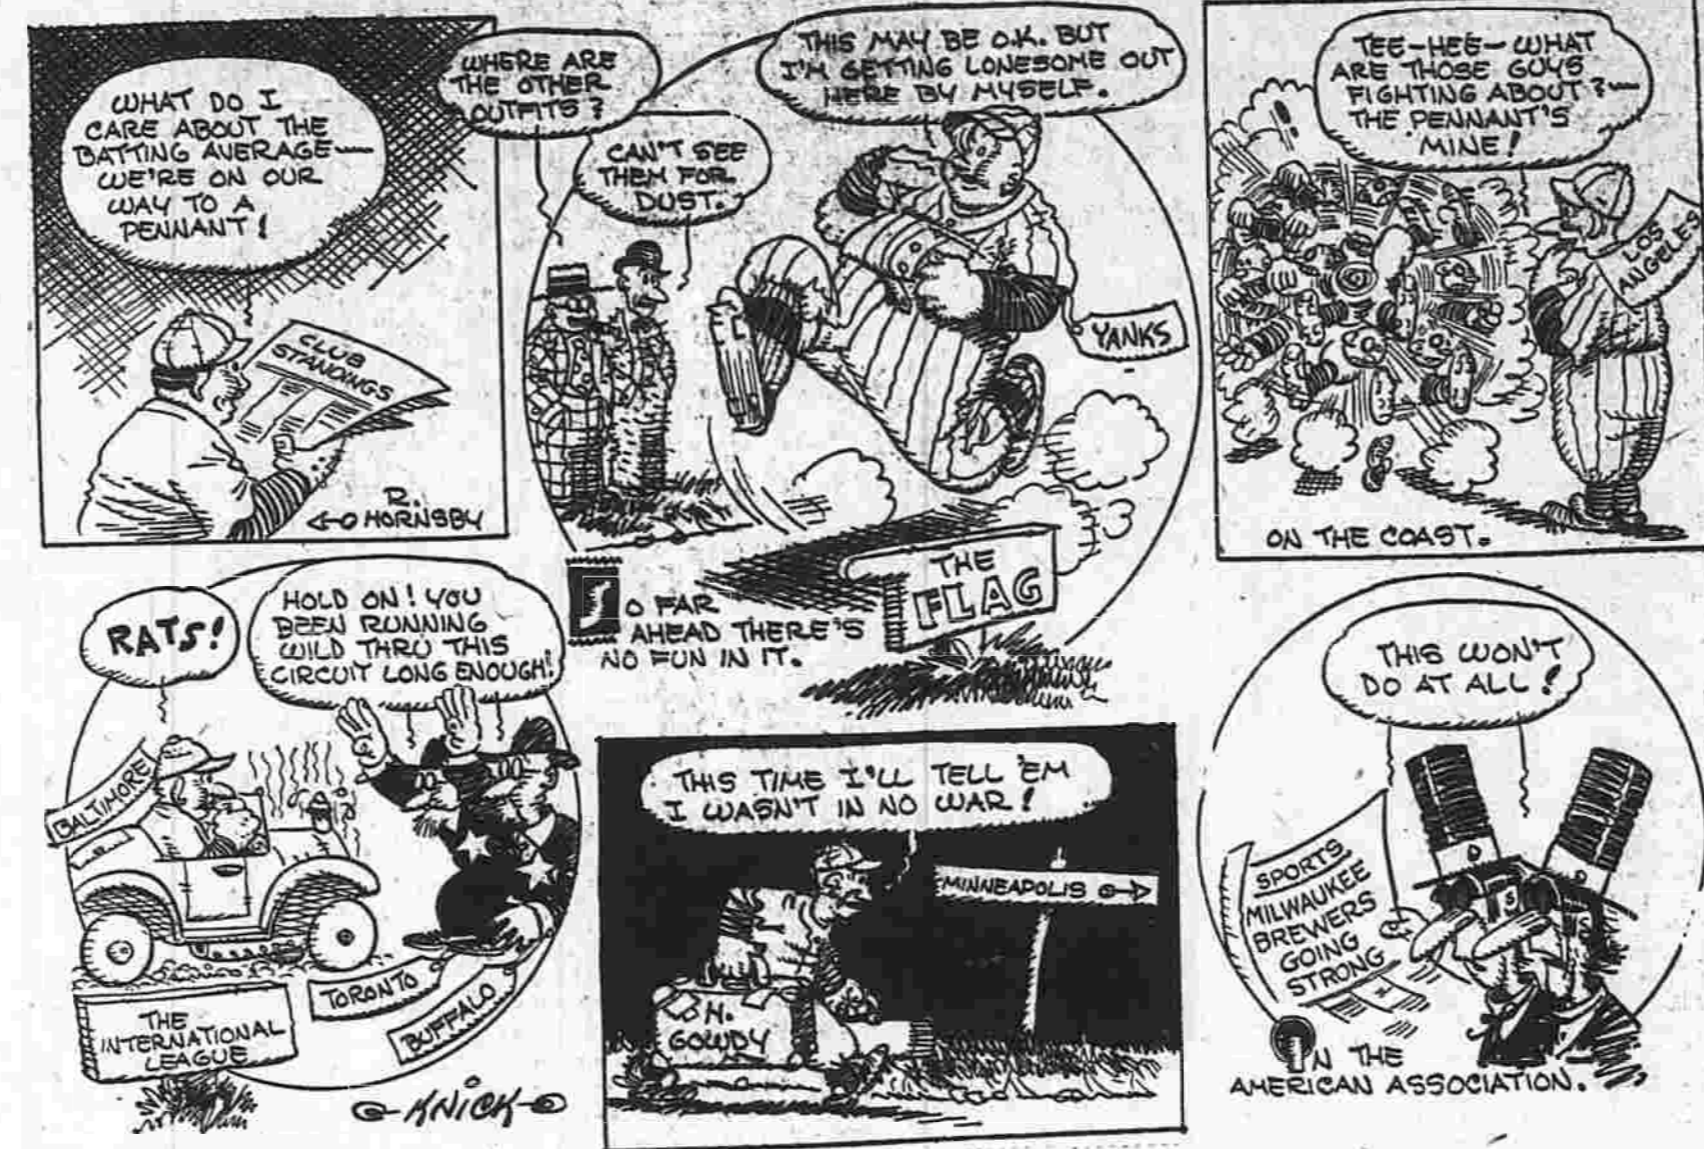

In 1919, his fourth season with Cleveland, he was just three hits shy of the .300 mark, his average being .296. That is the only season he has been out of the select circle, his average for 19 years in the majors being the remarkable total of .351.

Anent Cobb's Great Record. In this connection, Ty Cobb's present mark of around .300 is considerably below his life-time average of .369 over a period of 21 years.

Cobb's batting eye is as good as it ever was, but his underpinning no longer has the speed of other days. Beating out bunts for base hits is no longer a part of Ty's program, also he is thrown out on many a ball to the infield that he would have easily beaten 10 years back.

I doubt if Cobb plays much more baseball this year. He realizes his legs have slowed up and that his work is affected in the outfield as well as at the plate. He has a mark of better than .300 this year would enable Cobb to break one of the few batting records that are not held by him alone. He and Adair Anson are tied at 20 years in which each batted .300 or better.

ON TRAIL OF MAJOR AND MINOR LEAGUES

SECRETS OF STARS ON INSIDE BASEBALL

By TRIS SPEAKER, World's Greatest Outfielder.

It is necessary for an outfielder to be a sure catch as a first baseman. Nothing is more demoralizing to a ball club than to have fly balls drop safe in the outfield. A player who desires to make a success of the outfield must first strive for perfection in catching. A player must also perfect himself in the art of taking a ball to either side while going at full speed. Most players have certain limitations. Some can go out after a ball better than they can come in. This, however, is an exception, for most outfielders are more proficient on coming in on fly balls.

Fielders proficient in going out after a ball have a decided advantage for it enables them to play a much shorter field, thereby cutting off many hits that ordinarily would go safe.

It is my experience that in the course of a season three times as many balls fall safe in front of a fielder than are driven over his head. This is usually caused by playing too deep.

In playing "position" it is well to make a careful study of your batters and get a working knowledge of where they are most liable to hit, then adjust yourself to conditions by shifting accordingly.

It is also well to know whether they have a reputation as sluggers or short-field hitters, in order to determine where it is best to play them.

It is these things that enable an outfielder to catch many a fly ball that would otherwise drop just out of his reach. It is real test of a good outfielder.

fast one, followed by the slow ball. He always reserves that for last. Being practically sure of such a style of pitching with said catcher working, I can take a stance that will be of the greatest help to me in combating the pitcher's efforts to fool me.

Another great help to a batter is the making of an effort to hit through vacated territory. This spot should be the greatest open space offered on the infield. It is a test of place hitting.

Thus, with a runner on first base and the guardian of that bag holding him on by playing close to the sack, the biggest open space in the infield is between first and second base. Try to hit through that spot.

When trying to hit to right through the open space made possible by the first baseman holding the runner on, hug the plate as closely as possible. This puts you in a better position.

On the hit and run play the opposition will often tell you the position will be open space in the action of its infield who is going to cover second with a runner on first. That knowledge is very helpful, since it gives you some idea of where to hit through.

When you have valuable pointers relative to the opposition's defense do not fail to profit there. In the same manner, when you get the pitcher in the hole, don't let him get out of it if possible.

broke into big time company with a vengeance. Cochrane was purchased from Portland in the Pacific Coast League during the winter of 1924-25. The reported price was $50,000.

In his first season he participated in 134 games, poled 139 hits and hung up a batting mark of .331. His all-around work stamped him as one of the greatest to come into the majors in years.

Cochrane in his college days at Boston University was quite an athlete, too. He was a backfield star on the football eleven, a clever ball-toter and an expert drop-kicker.

What was Wilbur Cooper's pitching record with the Cubs last season?—F. G. J. Won 12, lost 14 for a percentage of .462.

Has Stuffy McInnis always played first base?—D. S. T. McInnis started as a shortstop, later switching to the initial corner; has also filled in at third base.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Dexter Cummings, former Yale star, put over the unique in inter-collegiate golf when he won the championship twice in succession. That was in 1923 and 1924.

In all the years the college classic has been staged, it was the first time a titleholder had ever successfully defended his laurels. Cummings won his first victory at St. Anway and the second at Greenwich.

In his final match at Greenwich Cummings played wonderful golf, beating Taft of Dartmouth 6 and 5. The winner was three under 4's for the last seven holes.

There may be a saturation point for mediocrity, but honest value will always command a great and ever expanding market.

HIGH SCHOOL NINE ESTABLISHES NEW RECORD IN TEXAS

Waxahachie, Tex., Aug. 3.—Waxahachie is a little city of 10,000 but it has placed its name to the front in baseball centers of the United States as a result of a championship high school team.

During the past seven years Waxahachie has won the baseball championship of Texas each season. It has annexed the Oklahoma scholastic title four years and has defeated the champions of Arkansas and Louisiana once each.

At present the Indians, as the high school players are called, are arranging a series with the city champions of Chicago and New York. A series for the national championship will be arranged if possible.

Winning streaks have been experienced by many teams in baseball, but it is doubtful if any club has won more consecutive games than the Indians. At the present their list of successive victories has passed the 45 mark and it does not appear likely that the Indians will meet defeat this year.

Waxahachie has not been defeated since mid-season 1924. They have not dropped a series since 1923.

Recently the Indians invaded West Texas and in a three-game series Waxahachie scored 56 runs while the opponents were unable to score.

Not satisfied with defeating all opposition in scholastic circles, the Indians have whipped college teams, university freshmen clubs and fast semi-pro aggregations.

A. A. Scott has been coach of the Indians since they started on their remarkable record.

An old Midsummer Eve custom in England was for a girl to walk backward into a garden and gather a rose. This had to be kept in a clean sheet of paper and never looked at until Christmas Day. Tradition had it that the rose would then be as fresh as it had been in June.

Speed Galore

CARL COOPER, ABOVE, AND PETE DE PAOLO.

Whenever you speak or think of speed just give a thought to these birds! The faster they like it. Cooper won the 200-mile event at Salem, N. H., the other day, averaging 116.562 miles an hour. De Paolo took the 50-mile dash on the same track, "stepping on her" to the tune of 128.24 miles per hour. If that isn't speedy enough for you old Uncle "Pop," we're all wrong.

GERMANY MAY SURPRISE IN '28 OLYMPICS

Expert Picks Vaterland to Make Great Showing in Olympiad at Amsterdam.

BY ART CARLSON. When the 1928 Olympics roll around, America may find one more worthy foe added to the list which now includes Finland, Great Britain, France and a few others of high caliber.

I refer to Germany. The Germans are back in international competition again. What is more, they bid fair to push many of the other countries' athletic contests, especially true in track and field.

Great progress is being made in Germany in various branches of sport. But more so in track and field. Countless meets are being held there this summer to encourage youths to participate, and the campaign is proving a huge success.

Aim, 1928 Olympics. It is apparent Germany is bent on making a splendid showing in the next Olympiad at Amsterdam. And while the German entries can hardly hope to lead the procession, they are pretty certain of cutting in on the points to a great extent.

Germany's latest sensation, as you know, is Dr. O. Peltzer, middle distance runner. Peltzer recently smashed the world record for the half mile, turning the event in 1:54.3-5. It clipped the three-year record of Ted Meredith's mark made 10 years ago—a record, by the way, that looked good to stand for several years yet.

Not only did Peltzer set a new figure, but in so doing whipped Lowe, the British star, generally recognized as one of the greatest middle distance men in history.

After watching Lowe in action, no less a personage than Ted Meredith once said that if any athlete of the present generation would break his record, it would be the one to perform the feat. Peltzer, however, beat Lowe to the tape by three yards in a driving finish. So the German must have something.

Great Sprint Star. In Cortis a sprinter, Germany appears to have another possible Olympic champion. Cortis can run century in 9 4-5, pretty fast time you'll admit. Several other youthful stars are stepping to the front over there, too. By the time the next Olympics start around Germany should boast quite a stellar group of track and field stars.

In tennis, the Germans likewise seem to be coming along rapidly. Only recently two of America's high-ranking players met defeat at the hands of German pastimers. Dr. Heinz Landmann (doctors seem to be strong for sports there) whipped both Richards and Kinsey, while a youngster named Rahe gave Vinnie a stirring battle, carrying the American to five hard sets.

As I understand it, Rahe ranks only sixth in German net circles, so their first half dozen players must possess a fair amount of ability.

As in track and field and in tennis, Germany is pushing ahead in other sports as well. Hagenlecher, a German, is present 18.3 balkline a German, King, having defeated Jake Schaefer last winter. Incidentally, he's the second foreigner (Horemans was the other) to rule the cue world since the top buggy, the town pump and hand scythe were in vogue.

Germany will bear watching. Sports there are on the boom. German athletes are popping into the spotlight now. You'll hear even more of them in the future.

The NUT CRACKER

Mr. Bobby Jones. When you speak of jazz, White-man is your man, when the parlor chat turns to hot dogs, Nurni, Bee Palmer and Babe Ruth draw the spot, and when the topic is golf—

Well, there is, for instance, that young real estate man from Atlanta who is rumored to have been born with a silver masher in his mouth, that young Jones fellow of the celebrated Jones family.

Study the records of the great Scottish nuisance and you'll find he has won everything the game has to offer except the boiler room in the club house and the funny white hat the kitchen chef wears.

He has to his credit one of the miracles of the age. While it is no trick at all to make a golfer talk it remained for Jones to make a golf ball speak.

More than that he persuaded it to talk in a foreign tongue with a pronounced Scottish and English accent, proving that his mastery in this respect is not restricted by shore lines or citizenship papers.

Jones is the first American athlete to draw cheers from a British gallery while using an upturned row of British faces for a carpet in walking to an international piece of silverware.

Indeed, we have the word of Mr. O'Gootty that all during the execution of Britain's golf nobility Johnny Bull was singing in his cracked falsetto, "It had to be you, Nobody else would ever do."

One of the qualities which endear you to Jones is his ability to tell you how he shot an eagle on a 560-yard hole without radiating the super importance of the man who invented non-roaring soup.

He is one of the few persons connected with the top fringe of the game who has successfully demonstrated that it is possible to take the game of golf seriously without taking one's self seriously.

It is one thing to come bounding into this world a natural born golfer. It is quite another to register as a natural born sportsman. Jones seems to conquer par over both courses with a stride that almost charms.

Another amazing thing about him is that he even looks human in baggy knickers that have the exterior effect of a racing blimp suffering from stomach torture.

It is impossible to flatter him more unless you add that the average kid who can caddy for Jones promptly loses all interest in the presidency as a high mark of social distinction.

Diamond Disputes Decided

By JIMMY EVANS. Explain what is meant by a fielder's choice?

A fielder's choice is created when the player handling a batted ball decides to try to retire another baserunner instead of the batter.

For instance, with a runner on second the batter hits to the shortstop. A perfect throw to first would have easily retired the batsman. The fielder elects to try for the more difficult play, the retiring of the runner trying to advance to third.

In such a play, the batsman is scored as having reached first base on a fielder's choice. He is charged with a time at bat.

ANY TEAM CAN WIN THE FLAG EVANS ASSERTS

(By Billy Evans) Not in the last 20 years has there been an easier one to win a major league pennant than the present season.

With the two leagues nearing the 100-mark in games played, a glance at the percentage column of the American and National Leagues reveals a most unusual situation.

Only one of the 16 clubs, the New York Yankees, boasts a mark of better than .600. I cannot recall a similar state of affairs during my 21 years' connection with the American League.

The National League race is a thriller with six clubs having a chance and promises to continue that way until the very end of the season.

In the American League, the Yankees are coasting along with a comfortable lead, made possible by two winning streaks of eight and 16 games. The next five clubs are stumbling over each other for the possession of second place.

Recently Manager McGraw of the New York Giants made the statement that there wasn't a great team in either league and that any club capable of playing good baseball could win.

It seems that Manager McGraw said a mouthful.

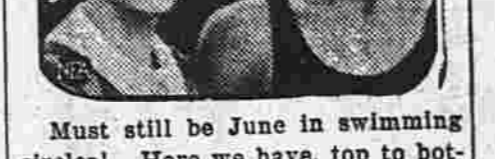

Very often unusual success against one ball club is a potent factor in the winning of a major league pennant.

This year the Boston Red Sox have won little more than a doornail for the New York Americans. The Sox have sure been easy for the Yankees.

Already the two clubs have played 17 games and of that number New York has recorded 14 victories, an average in excess of the .800 mark.

In a sense, the margin that the Yankees now enjoy as a lead over the rest of the field, has been due to the unusual success the New York club has had at the expense of Boston.

In the Love Swim

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

ABE MITCHELL. Wethered's Long Ball.

Mr. Wethered hits the ball very cleanly, and not often does he hit into the sky, a point which is due to his club head—traveling well after the ball before the head begins to come up. Put another way, here is a long, flat bit in the swing which is seen immediately before the club reaches the ball, and also just after the ball has gone. This is just as it should be, and the on-looker, who is out to see those things, will notice that his left arm comes well forward on the line of flight.

We cannot drive well if we pull the arms in as the club head meets the ball, and here Mr. Wethered is an example to us all, for at the finish his hands are well out and away from the body.

He is, to my idea, one of the modern school who hit the ball first and let the follow through take care of itself, and his length off the tee, and with iron clubs, is truly remarkable, for he does not appear to be physically strong, but he has all the art of good timing, without which even the strongest cannot drive the ball far.

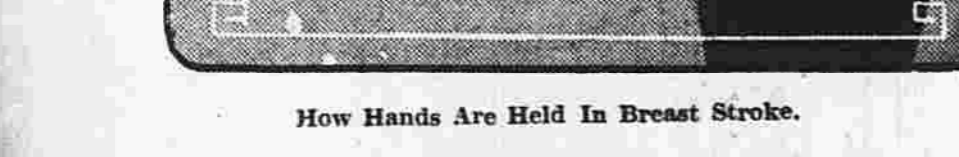

Time-honored procedure is that the first lesson is taken with the driver. Many professionals are breaking away from this idea.

prospective player, will be properly advised to buy one club at a time, beginning with a mashie, or perhaps at putter. With the mashie as a measuring tape, it is possible to add exactly the right clubs as fast as they are needed.

A difference of a half-inch in length of shaft or a half-ounce in weight is a very important matter in the choice of clubs; equally important with choosing clubs of the right lie to fit the player, or the right whiffiness of shaft.

Time-honored procedure is that the first lesson is taken with the driver. Many professionals are breaking away from this idea.

HOW TO SWIM by Lillian Cannon

How Hands Are Held in Breast Stroke.

The breast stroke is what one uses while idling in the water or "just swimming." It is not a good stroke for speed, but for long distances it is excellent.

It rests one to change his stroke while on a long swim and a change from another stroke to the breast stroke gives relief from the monotony of one series of movements over a long period.

The nose is kept well out of the water at all times during the breast stroke, and that too is a relief from swimming-breathing, although one should have the habit of correct breathing while swimming.

However, it is a relief for those who have not perfected breathing.

SHAMROCKS START STRETCH OF HOME CONTESTS TOMORROW

East Glastonbury Here for Return Game; Dan Smith to Pitch; Walleit Back in Fold; Taftville Here Sunday.

Twilight baseball will get its first real initiation at the North End tomorrow evening when the Shamrocks and the East Glastonbury outposts try conclusions for the second time this season.

Return Engagement Tomorrow night's tilt will be the first game of any consequence played in the evening at the North End this season and that is also expected to add to the drawing power of the game.

Pitchers' Battle The contest tomorrow night should be more interesting than the usual run of games in view of the fact that Smith, Buckland's well known old timer, is slated to work for the Shamrocks.

Wally to Catch "Woody" Walleit, former Shamrock catcher, will be back in his familiar togs tomorrow night. He will replace Kelly who is out of the game with a sore arm, according to Manager Clemson, who adds that Walleit may finish the season with the Shamrocks.

MUCH INTEREST OVER TOWN TILT TOMORROW NIGHT

St. Mary's and Cheney Bros. Clash in Third and Deciding Game of Their Series at West Side.

Judging from the fact that tomorrow night's game between the St. Mary's and Cheney Brothers will have an important bearing on the 1926 baseball championship of Manchester, the contest should be one worth going a long distance to watch and it will take place only a few minutes' walk from the center of the town—the West Side playgrounds.

The two teams have met twice before and on each occasion the games were decided by large scores. The Saints won the first 9 to 3 and the silk mill aggregation the second, 8 to 2. But the probabilities are that tomorrow's game will not be decided in a decisive manner.

Today there is an air of mystery as to who will pitch for the Saints. Manager Stevenson has not come forth with any announcement yet, but is expected to shortly. Manager Jenney says Giorgetti will hurl for his team with Bill McLaughlin held in reserve. The silk workers have won 8, lost 11, and tied 1. That is their season record to date.

Eastern players expected to take part are William T. Hunter, Vincent Richards, Francis T. Hunter, Manuel Alonzo, Dr. George King and others.

Local Sport Chatter

Manager Vendrillo of the Sons of Italy and Manager Clemson of the Shamrocks will meet tomorrow evening to make arrangements for a five game series which is expected to get under way the middle of next month.

Cheney Brothers and the St. Mary's meet tomorrow evening in the third and deciding game of their series. It is expected the winner will hurl a dart to the winner of the Shamrock-Sons of Italy series.

Tonight the Sons of Italy play their 34th game of the season when they travel to Rockville to meet the All-Rockville nine in the third of a five game series. Following is the lineup for Manchester: La Bell cf, Zwick 2b, Alexander lf, St. John rf, Farrell 1b, Sipples p, Parsons 3b, Barton or Wright ss, Walleit c.

There seems to be a great demand for the services of Tom Sipples this season. The crack all-around player who is at present coaching and playing with the Sons of Italy, is wanted by at least a half a dozen teams of note about the state.

Kingston played here last night and after watching the local star slip out his two hits with apparent ease attempted to sign him to play with them in an important series which they are to play shortly. East Hampton, The Bristol New Departures, Ansonia, Meriden and numerous other crack outfits all are seeking his services.

A large crowd of fans will doubtless trek to the Community grounds tomorrow evening to see old Dan Smith pitch for the Shamrocks against the East Glastonbury nine.

A horseshoe tournament to decide the championship of the town of Manchester is soon to be started at the West Side playgrounds. Director Olson has made plans for a schedule of games in which anybody in Manchester may take part. The contestants will be divided into groups of eight players each and the standing at the end of the schedule will decide the championship. Games will total 21 points.

Scott Wins Tennis Title Beats Bissell 6-8, 8-6, 6-1

Walter Scott is the tennis champion of Cheney Brothers mill today as a result of his match with Sherwood "Cap" Bissell last night. Both finalists had worked their way through a strong field of competition and met last night on the West Side court to settle the championship. The unusually hot weather turned the play into laborious work on the part of both contestants.

Scott did not win, however, until after he had been forced to exert himself. Two of the set went "overtime." Bissell won the first 8 to 6 after flashing a brilliant brand of tennis. Scott came back strongly and took a big lead in games in the next set but Bissell rallied and forced the set to go "overtime" again. Scott winning 8 to 6. Scott then won the third and deciding set 6 to 1.

PARTON'S DOUBLE BREAKS TIE AND SONS DEFEAT KENSINGTON

JACK'S LIKE FIRPO—COURTS AFTER HIM

And, Like Luis, They May Get Him, Says Walsh; Arrives in N. Y. Today.

New York, Aug. 4.—What with law suits and witness boxes, Jack Dempsey is likely to be a very worried young man by the time he steps into the ring with Gene Tunney, today, and if the writer was a betting man he would lay three to two on the challenger right at this moment. The writer happens to remember that Luis Firpo, the well-known human being, was flustered by law suits at the time he met Harry Wills and the encounter was a terrible thing to behold.

Dempsey's plight today is not unlike that of Firpo on the occasion of the Wills battle. They were going to deport the dear old senior on the grounds of moral turpitude and today they plan to do the same by the heels with a series of subpoenas. They slapped one on his jaw yesterday at Indianapolis in lieu of the B. C. Clements proceedings. There will be another one waiting for him in New York at the hands of Jack Kearns, his ex-manager, and the mere possibility of some action being taken by Harry Wills, the heavyweight champion of Harlem.

Back to Indiana. Outside of that, Dempsey has nothing on his casual mind. The Indianapolis summons demands that he be on hand within twelve days. That merely is to decide whether the injunction shall be permanent or temporary. On September 6th the dear boy will be desired again in the State of Indiana to determine whether the injunction should continue.

Of course, if Dempsey wishes to remain smart, which undoubtedly he thinks he is, he need not return to Indiana before 1976 or words to that general effect. This will constitute the heinous crime of contempt of court, or a very severe slap on the wrist watch.

However, a summons on a Chicago proceeds that is good in Indiana should remain valid in New York and there is nothing to prevent B. C. Clements from serving same, barring the $39.44 car fare. This may be a serious item.

In New York today Dempsey is due in New York today to definitely sign with Tex Rickard for the Tunney bout. He is not unlike the Firpo who met Harry Wills in a Newark ring with a dozen law suits hanging over his Latin head and naturally couldn't fight a lick.

A natural doubt exists as to whether the dear old boy can step back into the class after a three-year absence. Taking that into consideration, plus the fact that B. C. Clements is hampering with summons and the possibility that Jack Kearns and Harry Wills will have him sitting in the witness box in New York, makes the proposition look extremely dubious.

KAPLAN WINS FIRST BOUT AS LIGHTWEIGHT

Defeats Tommy Cello by Hard Fighting But Knows He Was in a Mill.

New York, Aug. 4.—Louis "Kid" Kaplan, who retired undefeated as featherweight champion, today was considered as a formidable contender for the lightweight crown as a result of his victory last night in a ten-round bout with Tommy Cello of California. It was Kaplan's debut in the lightweight division.

Although Kaplan's edge over the Californian was nothing to boast of, the Meriden fighter earned the decision by his caseless body-pounding and superior strength. Cello finished strong and in winning the last round staggered Kaplan with a whirlwind attack.

Hardest Game of Season Goes to Locals After Lead Changes Hands Several Times — LeBell Stars With Bat.

Parton's timely two-base hit in the sixth frame with two men on and the score tied at 5 all gave the Sons of Italy a hard-earned victory over the All-Kensington team at the West Side last night. The game went only six frames but was one of the most exciting seen in Manchester this season.

Fisher did not allow a hit until the fourth inning and after that the All-Kensington came from behind. The visitors were trailing by three runs when they crashed over several hits in the fifth and pushed across four runners which put them ahead of the locals.

Manchester retaliated in the same inning and made two runs to take the lead. This was held for a while until the visitors came back again to knot the count in the next frame. One run came across the pan and all the good work of the Sons was undone.

In the sixth inning the locals put the game on ice. Two men went to first on hits and McCann came to bat. He placed a neat double into right field and the runners scored, giving the Sons a one-run lead.

For Kensington Weir, McCormick, starred with the stick while McCormick Jasper and Patrus did some pretty fielding. LeBell, Sipples, Partons and McCann were the highlights of the Sons. A relay from Sipples to LeBell to Walleit cut off several runs at the plate.

Noblesse Oblige

"Noblesse oblige," that expression born centuries ago when the people of the earth looked to their overlords for protection, shelter and food, is still with us, though changed.
As time went on it grew to mean more than material dependence. The vassals and retainers did what their masters did. "Noblesse oblige" took on a more noble meaning; it applied itself to manners and customs. Those in power found themselves setting a moral standard for Europe.

However, Kenneth won't get caught that way when he lands his next big one, for he joined the Manchester Bass Club on the spot. He is the 52nd member.

Seven bass have been registered for the club prizes. They range from 2 lbs. 9 oz. to 4 lbs. in weight. Memberships are being booked nearly every day. A person must have been a member of the club ten days before registering a bass.

Stuck to Jobs. While the town writhed under the heat most of which was caused by the unusually high humidity, the thousands of Manchesterites who work in the mills, pluckily stuck to their tasks despite the adverse elements which are even more affecting to persons who work indoors where the intermittent breezes fail to exist. However, the blowers provide much comfort to the shop workers. The complaints they voice in regard to the heat is only secondary in importance as far as they are concerned. The most important thing, in their estimation, is the short-time schedule on which many are now employed. They eagerly await the time when orders become larger and more frequent resulting in working hours being increased to normalcy again.

However, the cool breeze today decreased the number in attendance at Globe Hollow slightly and those working in the mills said yesterday was far the hotter of the two.

COOLING BREEZES CUT HEAT WAVES

Humidity Today Less So Manchester Folks Do Not Swelter as They Did.

A slight breeze coming at intervals today brought partial relief to Manchester and made the weather a contrast to yesterday when the town stewed in its own juice. Yesterday the point of humidity reached a peak of 85 here while the mercury sped up until it hovered about the 95 notch. Today the humidity was much lower and the temperature slightly lower.

While not a case of prostration from the heat was reported, this was largely caused by people staying indoors. The heat caused a slump in the afternoon shopping crowds; many refusing to venture out onto the sun-baked streets. They found their houses with curtains drawn much cooler. All local mills continued operations despite the heat but there were several who did not report back to work in the afternoon. These sought relief at the shores and nearby lakes and ponds as the attendance at Globe Hollow will attest.

At the Pool. At Globe Hollow yesterday it is estimated well over 500 persons were in attendance. And these were not all from Manchester. There were some present from out-of-town. The pool literally swarmed with human beings, like bees at a honey-comb. Early in the day, all the lockers in the bath house were utilized. Late-comers were forced to undress in the small rooms and leave their clothing in automobiles or other places of safety. While the majority of the bathers came in the afternoon, there was, nevertheless, a large number in the pool in the early hours of the evening. Lifeguard Fred McCormick was kept busy but said no casualties had occurred. The canteen in the bathhouse did a rushing business.

No Rain. Manchester got one big disappointment yesterday. Jupiter Pluvius was to blame. He refused to issue a rain-license to the threatening clouds which loomed up over the horizon late in the afternoon carrying with them every indication of rain. But outside of a minuscule gale, his banks of clouds maneuvered overhead furnished but little relief from the muggy atmosphere which prevailed. The stickiness which hugged the town created an oppressiveness unequalled this year notwithstanding the record heat-wave which swept over the East two weeks ago leaving death and devastation in its wake.

FRED PATTON ADDS TO HIS LAURELS

Musical Critic of Cincinnati Enquirer Praises Him Highly for His Recital.

Further proof that Fred Patton, Manchester's premier singer, has not only gained recognition in the localities around New York City, but also into the West, may be assumed from a story recently published in the Cincinnati Enquirer. The account, written by the music critic of that newspaper pays great credit to Patton's versatility.

Patton has been singing in Cincinnati for several weeks. Friday he is included in the program at the Sesqui-Centennial at Philadelphia.

Here is the account published in the Cincinnati paper: "The King can do no wrong" is a statement which, translated into the language of 20th opera patrons, means "Whatever Fred Patton does is right." And it is another way of saying that Fred Patton has won the allegiance of his audiences far more certainly than any monarch has with an army and navy behind him.

Patton can sing such things as Wolfram in "Tannhauser" and Plunkett in "Martha," roles as diverse as the poles, and then turn to Mephistopheles in "Faust," three extreme roles in as many languages and weeks, and in his own humble opinion of himself "get by with it." And this week he will be Escamillo, the torador, in "Carmen."

It will be no news to Fred Patton's many admirers to learn that off stage he is what is known as a "regular fellow." Somebody spoke of artistic temperament the other day and Patton hastened to the dictionary to find out what it meant, as he had never heard of it.

Now that the performances are over and Patton has achieved pronounced success, it need no longer be kept a secret that he sang Wolfram in "Tannhauser," one of the most difficult roles in all operatic literature, for the first time at the Zoo this season. Added to this is the fact that Patton can not speak German. He learned enough, however, to understand the text and then memorized it.

After the performance Musical Director Van Grove hastened backstage to pass his compliment to Patton: "There are very few singers who could do what you did to-night." And without a moment's hesitation Patton replied, "And there are very few conductors that a singer could do it for." So everybody is happy.

Stuck to Jobs. While the town writhed under the heat most of which was caused by the unusually high humidity, the thousands of Manchesterites who work in the mills, pluckily stuck to their tasks despite the adverse elements which are even more affecting to persons who work indoors where the intermittent breezes fail to exist. However, the blowers provide much comfort to the shop workers. The complaints they voice in regard to the heat is only secondary in importance as far as they are concerned. The most important thing, in their estimation, is the short-time schedule on which many are now employed. They eagerly await the time when orders become larger and more frequent resulting in working hours being increased to normalcy again.

However, the cool breeze today decreased the number in attendance at Globe Hollow slightly and those working in the mills said yesterday was far the hotter of the two.
