TOLSTOY'S SON IN DANBURY; HIS AMBITION

"I Shall Play My Father," He Says in an Interesting Interview — Is Now 60 Years Old.

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 5.—As a child he was singled out as "the son of his father."

In his beardless youth the features of Ilya Tolstoy began closely to model those of his great sire, Count Leo.

When a silken, flowing beard appeared, the resemblance became even more striking. More subtle were the philosophical and spiritual similarities, planted in the son almost from pioneer days.

In 1928 the world will celebrate the centenary of the birth of Count Leo Tolstoy, Russia's greatest among world-famed novelists.

Here in Danbury, in a rustic cabin hung upon the hillside of an idyllic wood that overlooks a limpid, emerald lake, Count Ilya Tolstoy polishes the slightly dulled surface of his old dream.

With a little aid from a make-up box he might, to all outward appearances, be the beloved Tolstoy again walking in his old dream.

He would present to the masses of the earth the portrait of his father as he knew him. He would make the occasion of the centennial the opportunity for bringing to the world the personality of the philosopher, the very person of his father before the millions of today.

Count Ilya is 60, but young in virility and enthusiasms.

He told me of his dream, his face glowing with boyish fervor, his words almost tumbling out under the unexpressed excitement of anticipation.

Extraordinary Thing. It is a courageous and extraordinary thing—this son impersonating his father by bringing to the world the personality of the philosopher.

"I had thought, perhaps, that it might never be possible. But now I am hopeful," he said.

It all came out when I asked him how he had managed to go into the film.

Recently the announcement was made that Count Ilya Tolstoy would assist Edwin Carewe in preparation of "Resurrection," the Tolstoy classic, for a forthcoming screen production.

"My father called me in to work on that book," he recalled. "And I will do it for you. I worked for you, turning out page after page in the fire of creation. I would give me the pages to read and correct."

"I have always followed the teachings of my father. He brought the family up on his Christ-like philosophy."

Strict Vegetarian. "He did not believe in killing, and so we had no meat or fish. I am a strict vegetarian, and look, I am not well preserved for 60."

He rolled up one sleeve, showing the iron swelling of muscle; turned his back to show the huge breadth of shoulders, squaring of a fine six-foot body.

For 20 years I worked among the peasants, that I might be one broke the soil, and told the long hours. And this I found, the gospel of peace and non-resistance to force was not given by him to the peasants, but given by the peasants to him.

Let me tell you, too, it is this passivity, this peaceful resistance on the part of the Russian peasant that will doom the Bolshevik regime in the end.

FAMOUS GERMAN ACE IS FILLED IN OHIO

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 5.—The colorful career of Alfred Jung, former German ace, was nearing a tragic close in the City hospital here today.

Employed by the Safety Airways Company of Stow field as a research worker, Jung was giving an exhibition when his machine came down in flames.

Milo Evans, a passenger, was cut and bruised.

BISHOP DIAZ AGREES WITH COOLIDGE PLAN

Says U. S. President is Right in His Stand Not to Interfere in Mexico—Episcopalists Agree Also.

Mexico City, Aug. 5.—President Coolidge's determination not to intervene in Mexico's religious conflict has found sympathetic understanding and not resentment in Catholic and Episcopal circles here.

"President Coolidge probably believes that American interference in Mexico, whether justified or unjustified, would result in a controversy in his own country over the merits of such a course," said Bishop Diaz, spokesman for the Catholic episcopate today.

The week-end found great evidences of religious fervor. The second Sunday since the suspension of the cult by the Catholic episcopate saw the Catholic churches crowded, some of them having larger congregations than under normal conditions.

Many curious filed the streets about the churches, waiting for incidents which never occurred. Order prevailed during the day.

Upon the doors of many of the Catholic churches was posted this placard: "It is urgent and indispensable to placate the 'Divine Majesty. We must implore pardon and beg mercy. We must pray ceaselessly to the Holy Trinity, not forgetting to protect our sincerest repentance. Then quickly, from the pure hands of the Mother of God and the glorious patriarch St. Joseph, we shall receive freedom from our afflictions."

Take definite step to end textile strike.

New York, Aug. 5.—A definite step forward in ending the Passaic textile workers' strike was anticipated today when the citizens' committee of four, representing the strikers, will meet with the officials of the United Textile Workers.

The United Textile Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, will be asked to approve the proposed union of the strikers.

"We are hopeful for a speedy settlement of the trouble," W. Jewett Lauck, chairman of the citizens' committee said. "Much will depend on the attitude of the proposed union. We are going ahead with plans to form a union of the strikers to replace the United Front committee and expect to have the organization effected in a week or ten days."

"If the United Textile Workers agree to take over the union, there will be no question of the rights of the strikers in attempting to bargain with the mill operators. If the A. F. of L. group refuses to take in the new organization, we will prepare to function as an independent organization with a right to collective bargaining."

BIG NAVAL DIRIGIBLE ON TRIAL TRIP TODAY

Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 5.—The giant U. S. Naval dirigible, the Los Angeles, took to the air again today on a scheduled practice flight from the air station here to Amagansett, Mass., for the purpose of calibrating the ship's radio compass.

The dirigible carried as passengers Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, and Captain Edward S. Jackson, commanding officer of the Lakehurst air station.

The itinerary of the big airship called for a cruise over New York City on the return trip from Amagansett, late this afternoon.

CAMPAIGN TO AID CHILDREN GET VACATION

Local Kiwanians Ask Public to Subscribe $1,000 to Make Hebron Camp Permanent One.

A campaign was started today to raise at least $1,000 to make the camp for needy children started this year in Hebron by the local Kiwanians, a permanent one. The members of the Kiwanis club have pledged $1,000; they have raised another thousand by plays, concerts and other means and now they plan to ask the public to subscribe another thousand.

A Worthy Cause. Here is a most worthy cause. It is past the experiment stage. That stage was passed after the first two weeks when the members and town officials visited the camp and saw the happy faces of the poor boys and what good the vacation had done them.

This campaign will be a short one. It will last but ten days. Any sum, no matter how small, is welcome. Each contribution will be acknowledged in the columns of The Evening Herald. Contributions should be made to Lewis P. Sipe, of the Home Bank and Trust Co.

Girls in Camp. The needy girls of the town are in camp this week. Why not, on your next auto trip, go out Hebron way and visit this camp? If, after you have seen how the little girls are treated and how they appreciate their vacation, you don't contribute to make this a permanent affair, then you have no heart and no civic pride.

We Have Slums. Manchester always prides itself on being without slums. But is it? Ask the welfare nurses or take a day off and make the rounds with them. It will astonish you.

This is not alone a sentimental idea, but it is a common sense one. Healthier children make better and healthier citizens and these children are Manchester's future citizens.

Parents Happy. Go around to the poorer sections and watch when the children go away and when they come back. A week ago a batch of boys came back to Purnell Row. There was a regular reception by the mothers.

U. S. TO COUNTERACT TRADE ANTAGONISM

Washington, Aug. 5.—Steps to counteract an attitude of antagonism which exists against the United States in some big industrial centers abroad as a result of operation of the American tariff law, has been launched by the government, it was learned today.

Coming at a time when considerable anti-American feeling has been aroused abroad over war debt settlements, the drive may take on something of a political as well as economic aspect, according to officials.

Thomas O. Marvin, chairman of the tariff commission, expects to sail for Europe August 11, while Edward P. Costigan, a tariff commissioner, sails today. The announced purpose of the trip is an inspection of the commission's foreign staff.

Officials, however, disclosed that both Marvin and Costigan are expected to confer with foreign business men to acquaint them with the modus operandi of the flexible tariff.

WIFE WORKS IN MILL. HE DRINKS WINE AT HOME

Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 5.—Stephen Laslo, of Winnepauk, who takes care of the house while his wife earns forty-five dollars a week in a local mill, entered Police court today on his wife's charge that he was drunk.

Laslo, contending he had not taken much, told the court he consumed half a gallon of rhubarb wine at a sitting and was in condition to drink much more. He was permitted to depart without further punishment by the court.

'FREE' HOUSE LOTS ARE OFTEN COSTLY

Chamber of Commerce Finds Many Frauds Are Being 'Worked' in Manchester.

This is the 23rd article prepared for the Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Some of the outstanding features of the past week in connection with the Chamber of Commerce campaign for the suppression of fraudulent sales and practices, are inquiries received regarding the so-called "free" house lots; collection of agency letters received by a number of people in town who claim not to owe the bills; the new phase of Florida real estate transactions known as agents' "credits"; definite information regarding two men wanted by the police for burglary and uttering worthless checks.

In connection with the free house lots, we have had several inquiries and it is surprising and pitiful to note the enthusiasm which these sales letters continue to arouse in almost every case. One thing that seems to appeal to everyone is the fact that the price necessary to obtain title to the lot is so small that they could not lose anything. This is exactly the psychological reaction that the promoters depend upon. As a matter of fact, the purchasers of these lots find after they have secured title to them that they are of absolutely no value, owing to the small acreage, the remoteness, and inaccessibility and the impossibility of locating any particular lot on the tract which is being developed. In effect, it amounts to the same thing as handing the promoters the sum of money varying from $4.85 to as high as $26.00 per lot, for a worthless piece of paper.

The land has lain idle and undeveloped from the beginning of time and will continue to remain in the same state for many years to come as the large number of small owners widely scattered throughout the country make it practically impossible for them to get together and affect any development.

Even though no lots are "sold," the so-called "free" lots at $26 each, as in the present case, give the developers several hundred per cent. on their investment. What looks like a new type of bunco game has cropped up in connection with letters sent out by a certain out-of-town collection agency, dunning Manchester citizens for bills contracted in other parts of the state. Several of these letters have been turned over to the Chamber of Commerce for investigation. In every case the recipient claims to have no knowledge of the debt with which he is charged. The Chamber is investigating the methods of this agency from several different angles.

Anyone else receiving copies of these letters will do a favor to the Chamber of Commerce by turning them in. A new phase of the Florida real estate game has come to light through the receipt by a local physician of a letter from a relative in Florida, urging him to send money with which to purchase so-called real estate "credits." The Chamber has taken this matter up with the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, the Florida Real Estate Commission, the National Better Business Bureau, and the William J. Burns Detective Agency.

Those who have replied state that it is a brand new proposition which they are investigating. As nearly as can be learned, certain real estate brokerage concerns are paying their salesmen's commissions, one-half in cash, and one-half in "credits" over to the purchase of real estate. These "credits" do not seem to be very highly thought of by the salesmen themselves who have received them in 1/2 of cash, and they are being offered at ridiculous discounts in order that the salesmen may get them off their hands and realize even a small cash return. In the case which has come to our attention, even the salesmen are not attempting to dispose of them, and they are being peddled by a stenographer in the employ of the brokerage company.

The campaign being conducted by the Chamber is now in its 23rd week. The results have certainly more than justified the expenditure of time and money involved. It is seldom that a day passes that there are not one or more applicants for advice, or profers of information regarding some crooked game. In addition to this, letters from Chambers of Commerce and other organizations throughout the United States are being received, expressing commendation or congratulation, and in several instances, permission has been asked to reprint the articles in newspapers in other parts of the country. Much of the success of the campaign is due to the active interest which the Manchester citizens have taken in it and the information which has been turned in.

The Chamber wishes to repeat its request to anyone receiving a communication which excites their suspicions to turn it over to the Chamber of Commerce for investigation. This action may save other people some hard earned dollars.

BAND CONVENTION HERE BIG SUCCESS

Between 40 and 50 Organizations in Parade and Competitions Saturday.

One of the biggest parades this town has witnessed in years opened the annual convention of the Connecticut Fifers and Drummers association which was held here on Saturday. More than 40 bands appeared in line and the parade required almost three quarters of an hour to pass a given point. The affair brought into town thousands of visitors and it is estimated that nearly 1,000 bandmen were participants in the parade and the competitions.

Manchester organizations and individuals won ten prizes for appearance and playing. Five of these prizes went to the Talcottville drum corps for individual playing and for the largest number of men in line. In the latter competition, the Silk City band, also of this town, was tied with Talcottville and the Father Matthew Cadets of Thompsonville for first place.

At the Stadium Several thousand people witnessed the competitions at the Stadium on McKee street, where the main part of the exercises were held. On the ball diamond the bands competing in music were lined up in front of the judges and each played one selection.

The parade itself was a colorful affair. Uniforms of every description were seen but the predominant fashion seemed to be the colonial and Grenadier costumes. The former bands were garbed in the dress of soldiers in the time of the Revolutionary war and the latter's uniforms resembled closely those of the United States military academy at West Point.

Some of the Grenadier uniforms were of gray but others were of blue with white trimmings. All bands uniformed in this manner wore Grenadier hats with high plumes. The drum majors invariably wore the busby. Some of them gave the crowds a thrill by twirling their silver batons as the bands marched along. One of the corps, the Lancers of New Haven, had a tall Indian in war paint and costume, carrying the Stars and Stripes.

Father Matthew Bands Three of the organizations started by Father Matthew were in line. They were the Father Matthew Corps of Hartford, the Sons of Father Matthew of Pawtucket, R. I., and the Father Matthew Cadets of Thompsonville. Both the original band and the cadets were prize winners in competition.

One of the bands which excited favorable comment was composed of 12 British Tommies, every man of them a World War veteran who had fought with the British and Canadian armies. Each wore the British Victory medal along with other decorations. The organization was a typical collection of British soldiers and the bugle calls and marches which the band gave stirred the blood of the onlookers.

This was the Canadian American bugle and drum corps of Pawtucket, R. I., a combination that won three prizes. The drummers in this band had a peculiar style, raising their drumsticks to their shoulders after every roll. The individual bugle medal went to V. Farnhurst of this corps and second prize was won by another member.

Police Platoon The parade was led by Captain Herman Schendel of the local police department who was followed by ten patrolmen and Sergeant John Crockett. Immediately behind the policemen came the marshals and the officials of the state association. Then came the bands.

Blaring of bugles, the shrill pipe of the fife, and the roar of the drums told the crowds that lined Main street of the approach of the parade. It was without a doubt the noisiest Saturday morning that Main street had ever experienced and even after the bands had turned the corner into Hartford road, the low roll of the drums could still be heard all over Manchester.

Because of the condition of Center street the parade went through the West Side and across Summer street to get to the Stadium. Diners were sold there and the contests started just as soon as the last band had entered the gates. There were so many bands in the competitions that it was not until late afternoon that the last one was judged.

Hot Work Low hanging clouds threatened rain but it held off until night. Nevertheless, the weather was exceedingly hot and the bandmen sweltered and perspired under their heavy uniform coats. Many of them took their coats and hats off when their turn came to march and play in front of the judges' stand.

Main street was the scene of a lot of good natured fun on the part of the visiting bandmen during the early evening hours. A snake dance was organized and uniformed men with drums, bugles and fife played popular airs while weaving in and out of stores along the street. A snake dance around the dummy cop at the Center held up traffic for several minutes but nobody minded that in the least.

baton continually for 15 or 20 minutes. Two were exceptionally good in unusual positions while one man lay flat on his back on the floor while still winding his baton around his head, between his legs and around his arms.

The enormous crowd at the Armory showed considerable interest in this event and it was with difficulty that a way could be cleared for the drum corps that were to march to the center of the floor where the contests were held. The former competed in the Institute class while Springfield was put into the out of state division so they were not matched. At the slightest move of the drum major's baton the corps resolved itself into cartwheels, single files, straight line marching, by fours, eights and pairs, captivating the crowd with the precision with which the maneuvers were executed.

Dancing filled out the evening and the prizes were awarded about 11:30.

EASTERN TRAINMEN ASK FOR INCREASE

Hearing is Being Held Today in New York, Behind Closed Doors.

New York, Aug. 9.—Claims of eastern railroad trainmen for a wage increase were being heard today by the recently created Federal Railway Mediation Board at its first official session. The meeting was closed. L. E. Shepherd, president of the Order of Railroad Conductors and W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, acted as spokesmen for the trainmen. Conductors, brakemen, switchmen, baggage men and switch tenders on all railroads north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi are affected. The trainmen seek a wage increase amounting to approximately $1.00 a day.

No Statement Yet. "Statements and discussion before the board will not be made public and no statement will be issued by the board at the close of the hearing," Samuel Lee Winslow of Massachusetts, chairman of the mediation board said. "This board is not a court and has no judicial authority. All matters brought before it will be kept secret until we deem it advisable to make a public statement."

Shepherd, speaking for the trainmen, said that the entire day would be taken up in presenting the trainmen's claims. The board is scheduled to hear the representatives of the railroad operators tomorrow.

"No strike is contemplated," Shepherd said. "If we can not reach an agreement before the mediation board, we will take the case up before an arbitration board."

Members of the board are: Winslow, chairman; Edward P. Morrow, of Kentucky; G. W. W. Hanger, of Washington; Hywell Davies of California and Carl Williams of Oklahoma.

'OUTSIDE THE LAW' PRISCILLA DEAN'S BEST

Priscilla Dean is said to have reached the height of her beauty and popularity in Todd Browning's famous crook melodrama, "Outside the Law," in which Lon Chaney gained world-wide renown as a character actor. In the role of "Silky Moll" Miss Dean has made beauty the vehicle of inward rancher, for the soul of the girl has been embittered by the apparent injustice of the world. But even a woman as abandoned to crime as is "Silky Moll" may have her awnings, and even a picture that deals with the most vicious crooks may convey a great moral.

"Outside the Law," hailed a few years ago as the finest melodrama of this type ever produced, has been revived to satisfy a country-wide demand for a re-showing and will be the feature at the State theater tomorrow and Wednesday.

In addition to Priscilla Dean and Lon Chaney the cast includes Ralph Lewis, Wheeler Oakman, E. A. Warren, Stanley Goethals, Melbourne, MacDowell and Wilton Taylor. For tonight the final presentation of "The High Steppers," which had its first local showing at the State theater last night and its final showing tonight, Edwin Carrewe presents the movie version of one of the most popular of the Sir Philip Gibbs novels. It is a First National release featuring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes.

ANOTHER COP MURDERED. New York, Aug. 9.—Police Commissioner McLaughlin set the entire police department at work today to check the slaughter of members of the force. His action followed the death of Patrolman Frank J. Murphy of Brooklyn, who was shot three times by gunmen when he tried to halt a stolen automobile in which they were riding.

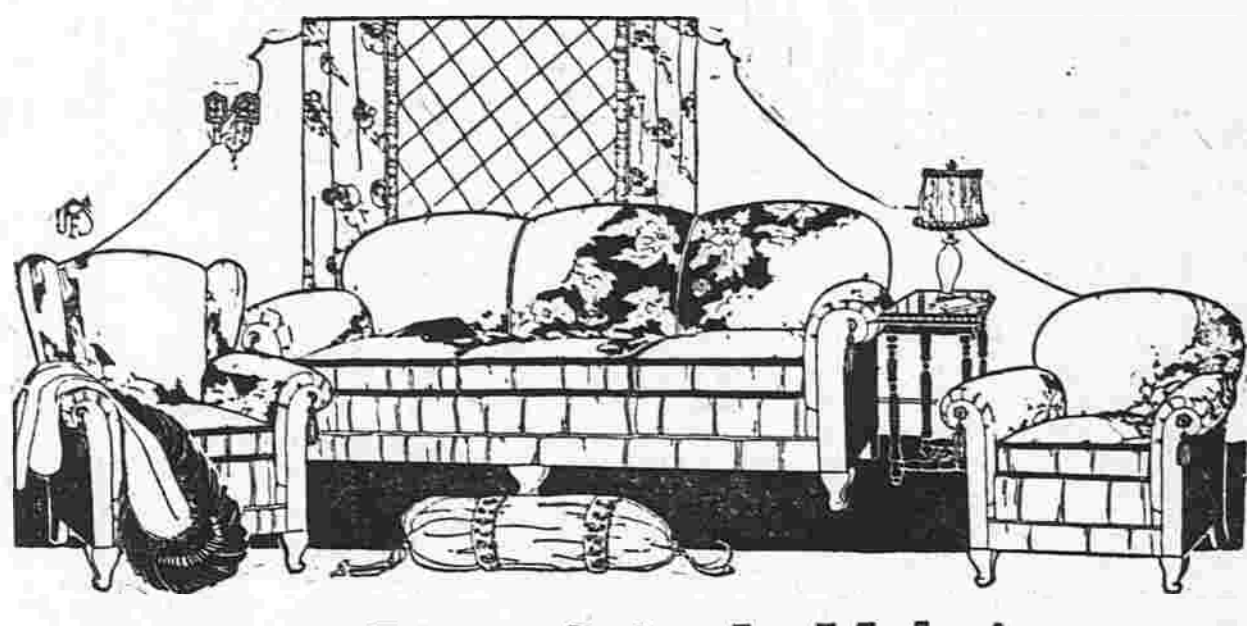

Murphy was the fifth policeman murdered this year and the second within forty-eight hours.

IMPORTANCE.

For a long time astronomers have been trying to translate into terms understandable to the average individual the monstrous figures of astronomical distances.

Imagine the earth to be the size of the tiniest germ that biologists can just see with the most powerful microscope.

Yet so much greater are the outer distances of our known universe than those in the sun's particular system that, considering our earth to be less than a thirty-second of an inch from the tiny sun, the nearest of the other fixed stars or suns of that universe would be fifteen hundred feet away from the little smudge in the thimble.

Now forget about the imaginative shrinking of the earth and get a mental picture of a watch nine thousand miles in diameter and about as thick as the distance from New York to Omaha—nine thousand miles is considerably more than the diameter of the earth, about the distance from Manchester to China.

Now go a step further with the scientists and realize that they have recently identified 13 other star clouds or universe like ours, infinitely far off in space.

Behold the small boy in the second month of his school vacation. For he hath lost from his shoulders the mantle of civilization and hath become as the beasts of the field; yea, even as many wild beasts.

All of which is respectfully submitted to the consideration of whatever individual labors under the impression that he is pretty important.

MONEY.

The almost complete dissipation of the huge fortune of forty million dollars left by her husband to the late Mrs. William B. Leeds, more recently the Princess Anastasia of Greece, constitutes probably the most spectacular example in modern times of the consequences of social ambition run mad.

There was once, within the coast lines of the British Isles, a man named Timothy Dexter. He had neither wit, learning, family tree; not even the ability to hit a pitched ball in the eye nor yet a K. O. punch up his sleeve.

So one day he hied himself to a maker of clay pipes. "If you'll sign an agreement to put my initials on every pipe your concern makes, from this time on through perpetuity, I'll give you five thousand pounds," he said.

The pipe maker, seeing no harm to the pipes by the incorporation of a couple of letters into the moulds, nor any great expense, agreed, took the money and no doubt had a good time with it.

And that, it is said, is the origin of the T. D. pipe, for generations famous the world over.

Mrs. Leeds, in order to achieve a place in the eyes of the world, bought a prince, financed a war, blew the timplat fortune sky high, caused the death of thousands of soldiers, made all the mischief she could and died the laughing stock of the world, the only successful rival of silly old T. Dexter.

Yet if Leeds had accumulated three thousand dollars instead of scores of millions she would probably have lived a happy, useful and maybe admired life.

Contrasted, then, federal government cost $27.77, to local government's $33.53, so that cutting down on local cost is more important than cutting down on federal.

In all states taxes are high but in some states they are much higher than in others. It is very little satisfaction to a taxpayer in a state whose rate is $15 to know that the general average, per state, is only $9.59.

Federal taxes are being reduced, it's true, but local taxes are advancing—perhaps not everywhere, but on the average.

As compared with the 12.5 cents to the dollar which went for government in 1924, only 11.80 were requisitioned in 1923 and but 6.9 in 1913.

While the national debt was being reduced by about 4 1/2 billions, from Jan. 1, 1920 to Jan. 1, 1926, state and local debts were being increased by about 6 1/2 billions.

Then there's the tariff—another tax. Nobody pretends to estimate what it costs consumers. What it brings in to the government is shown to a cent by treasury statistics.

It definite, all round figures were obtainable from any single source, it might be possible to determine what taxes are, but they must be obtained from dozens—from the treasury, from the commerce department, from the census bureau, from the tariff commission, from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, from committees of the senate and house of representatives, to name just a few of them.

The country simply doesn't know what it is taxed.

mediately encountered the opposition of his father, Otto Kahn, the well known banker and opera patron.

The father stood for music in its highest, most esthetic form. The rebellious attitude of his son was a keen disappointment. Otto Kahn did everything he could to discourage the lad.

And now Roger, at 18, has ten orchestras bearing his name, is making a lot of money and has decided to buy a night club in New York.

There is nothing bad about being a jazz orchestra leader. Nor is there necessarily anything lowbrow about it, particularly if you are a good one.

Roger Kahn seems, above all others, to be fitted for, the family reformed. The boy is known to millions today as Al Jolson.

The case is somewhat similar to the career of a youth named Yoelson, son of a rabbi, who incurred his family's displeasure by announcing he had chosen a stage career.

For years there was an estrangement. Then, when it was demonstrated that the boy had chosen the career that he seemed, above all others, to be fitted for, the family reformed.

Washington, Aug. 9.—When a member of the diplomatic corps in Washington is recalled by his government or transferred to some other post, Washington generally has at least an inkling of the reason why.

The case of Ambassador Don Juan Riano y Gayanoos of Spain puzzles everybody, including the ambassador himself.

Don Juan not only was dean of the foreign representatives here, but, in official circles he was considered one of the best.

His connection with King Alfonso's embassy in the United States dates back to the re-establishment of diplomatic relations between Madrid and Washington following the Spanish-American war.

From his 27 years' residence in it, he knows the country thoroughly. He is very popular. He has an American wife, formerly Alice Ward, of the capital.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 9.—One of the favorite sights of Manhattan is that which issues at the mention of Sherry's, Rector's or Delmonico's.

The paradises of the gourmets are doubtless passing, and popular places where food is worse than ordinary gain in number daily.

George Rector, of the famous restaurant family, narrating his story in a national magazine, recalls that everybody from little champions to gamblers to explorers to society all celebrated their successes at old Rector's Broadway.

Let Lieutenants-Commander Byrd cross the pole in an aircraft and return to Manhattan and you'll read within a day or two that "he was present last night at Guinan's."

Let a celebrated lawyer win his case, a new diplomatic agent be named, a millionaire's son come in to his heritage, a big gambler from the west hit Broadway, a society girl come out.

Let the Prince of Wales come to town, Harry Thaw return to the bright lights, Wilda Bennett stage a matrimonial farce-up, Ellen MacKay find romance with a jazz singer, Rudolph Valentino appear with a new girl.

One of the main food courses consists of the weaker brothers and sisters. Were the brood to remain together the logical result would be one well-fed spider. Then, too, birds are fond of young spiders.

From the spinnerets, small tubular organs, is ejected a fluid which on exposure to the air hardens into silk. This, of course, is the substance from which the wonderful webs are woven, and the egg cases, and the lining to the homes of those species that make burrows and trapdoors.

When you lose your self control the steering gear is broken. Don't drink. Next morning an actress found she had married a man.

Looking for the brighter side of things is their brighter side. Most real love stories begin with, "And so they were married."

There certainly have been changes in his homeland since Don Juan came to Washington. Gen. Primo de Rivera was an obscure young army officer then.

One thing is certain. Don Juan didn't want to be recalled or transferred. It was rumored that he would be, but he denied it—didn't want to believe it, in all probability.

Ohio Primary Campaign Is Hot With 77 Running For State Jobs

Columbus, O., Aug. 9.—With 77 candidates seeking nominations for eight state offices, while labor, the Ku Klux Klan, the anti-saloon leagues, and civic organizations all over the state are taking an active part in the campaigns, voters of Ohio are preparing to go to the polls on Primary day, tomorrow, their minds in a whirl.

Never before in the history of the state has there been such a large field; never before the endorsements coming from all directions in a primary; never before the sentiment shown by civic organizations.

With candidates being endorsed on all sides, speculation is running in all directions and the heaviest vote in many recent primaries is expected to be polled.

Beside the heavy field, the voters will have the proposed amendment to the state constitution, abolishing the primary system to vote upon; while another amendment to be presented to these electors is one authorizing assessments by municipalities for public improvement projects.

Whether or Not Italy Likes Mussolini's Bitter Medicine, She's Taking It With a Smile

By MILTON BRONNER.

Rome, Aug. 9.—On a certain morning recently, Gaetano Lanfranchi, who ordinarily works in a machine factory, put on his Sunday best clothes, pinned the Italian tricolor of red, white and green in his buttonhole, ate a frugal breakfast of bread and cheese, and told his wife and kids he was going off to his labor union headquarters.

The union was going to have its own band and was going to march through the Corso, Rome's most fashionable shopping street, and into the Piazza Colonna where it would mass with other labor unions and pay tribute to the Duce, who is Benito Mussolini.

Blaring Bands. All over town other Marios, Giacomos, Giovannis and Pietros were telling their wives the same thing and going to their various unions. And for hours, beginning at about nine in the morning, Italian labor unions, proudly headed by blaring bands and flag carriers, poured into the Piazza.

There were thousands of us spectators seated at little tables in front of cafes sipping coffee. We were a representative crowd, a slice of the life of Rome. The washerwoman elbowed the proud daughter of the aristocracy, the street cleaner stood next to the distinguished looking professor.

Six years ago in Italy, red flags and black flags of Bolshevism and Communism were flying over metallurgical and automobile plants. Today nothing was seen but the Italian tricolor. Six years ago, the flag was torn from the hands of men, thrown to the ground and spat upon. Today, heads were bared as the colors passed and the Roman Fascist salute with the outstretched hand was given.

Mad Applause. Six years ago bands played and men sang the Internationale and other Communist songs. Today band after band boomed out the catchy inspiring strains of the Fascist hymn, and men and women applauded madly.

After all the color and music and excitement and patient waiting until 1:30, a Black Shirt leader appeared at a window and said the Duce could not come. The crowd quietly dispersed. There was not a murmur. The King of England would not have dreamed of disappointing a great crowd like that. It is the measure of the mastery of this Mussolini and the revolution he has brought about.

Few people outside Italy realize the revolution Mussolini has affected in industry. Whether the workmen deep down in their hearts like it or loathe it is hard to ascertain. Their own former labor unions have been dissolved by law and new labor unions under Fascist control have been created. Independent labor has no press to voice its thoughts.

Signed Pact. What has happened in Italy has been this: last October the Confederation of Industrialists and the Confederation of Fascist labor unions signed a pact agreeing to consider each other as the only authorized representatives of capital and labor in industry. And just a few weeks ago the Parliament, under Mussolini's spur, passed a Trade Union act which consolidates them.

Fascist labor unions are legalized. More than that, whether a workman formally joins them or not, one day's wages each year is deducted and goes to the union of his trade. The same thing applies to the employer. The law makes strikes practically impossible. But the same law makes lockouts practically impossible. A special court for adjudicating industrial disputes is set up. It will consist in each dispute of three magistrates and two citizens, chosen from a panel. These citizens are to be drawn from lists of persons known to be experts in problems regarding capital and labor.

If the Italian workman dislikes the whole law, he has the consolation that his boss can't lock him out. And certainly on this particular Sunday, when he went to pay homage to Mussolini, he didn't seem to be particularly sore. His wages were small, but they were sure.

It probably would never work in America or England, but so far under Black Shirt supervision it has been a success in Italy. If it is bitter medicine, Gaetano and Pietro have up to date taken it with smiling faces—in public.

Mack Sennett Prefers Blonds, He Confesses

Here are Mack Sennett and two of the blonds he says beat any brunettes Flo Ziegfeld can produce. The full length portrait shows Ruth Taylor; the other picture is of Ruth Hault.

By DAN THOMAS.

Hollywood, Aug. 7.—Cheer up, ye blonds with the golden hair! All is not lost.

Flo Ziegfeld, who professes to be one of the nation's foremost judges of beautiful women, may give you a cold shrug of the shoulder as you stroll along Broadway. Mr. Ziegfeld, you know, recently said that brunettes have it on blonds six ways from the ace.

But what of that? Just go west, young blonds, go west.

For Mack Sennett, who has seen many of the bathing beauties he selected sign $1,000-a-week movie contracts, says the eastern point of view regarding blonds, as expressed by Mr. Ziegfeld, is all wrong.

The blond is the thing, according to Mr. Sennett. "Brunettes come and go, but blonds remain forever," he asserts. "Since the days of fairy tales and folk lore, poets have never ceased writing of the charms of the golden-haired beauty. One of the most famous heart-breakers of all time is Lorelei, the Rhine siren whose long golden hair lured sailors to their death.

Mythology has always identified Spring as a beautiful maiden with fair hair and skin—the embodiment of eternal youthfulness. Her silky light hair and fair complexion stand the ravages of time far better than the olive skin and dark hair of her brunette sister.

"Blonds have the advantage on the screen. Look how long the popularity of Mae Murray, Mary Pickford, Blanche Sweet, Lillian Gish, Constance Taimade and Betty Compson has lasted. They're all blonds.

"I'm starring blonds in my own comedies now. If I could find brunettes to surpass them I'd replace them. But I can't."

The Chinese used natural gas for light and fuel before the time of Christ.

INCIDENT CLOSED COOLIDGE ASSERTS

Comments on Clemenceau's Letter While on Way Back to Summer Camp.

Enroute with President Coolidge, Ludlow, Vt., Aug. 9.—President Coolidge considers the French debt settlement a closed incident, and not even the appeal of M. Clemenceau can reopen it.

The president read Clemenceau's open letter with interest, but hardly more. Not a word of comment was forthcoming and it was announced that there would be no comment.

Head Newspapers. The president had to depend upon newspaper dispatches for the text of the "Tiger's" appeal, which declared that the French debt settlement is unworkable but he studied the appeal carefully.

There were indications that M. Clemenceau's open letter was some what annoying to the president, and that he considered it a futile and provocative document. If the president felt this way about it, however, he gave no public indication of his feelings, for the official spokesman merely let it be known that there would be no reply to M. Clemenceau.

Out of His Hands. The president feels that the French debt question is now entirely out of his hands. The tentative settlement only awaits ratification by Congress and the French Chamber of Deputies.

The administration's policy on the French debt has been clearly set forth, and appeals, sentimental or otherwise, can not bring about any change in policy.

As the president started on his journey back to White Pine camp, after a few days at his old home in Plymouth Notch a denial was also issued of a report that he had held a telephone conversation with President Calles of Mexico relative to the religious situation in Mexico.

COTTON REPORT

Washington, Aug. 9.—Based on a condition of 69.8 per cent of normal on Aug. 1, the United States will have a cotton crop this year of about 15,621,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, the crop reporting board of the Department of Agriculture announced today.

The number of acres in cultivation on June 25 was 48,898,000. Simultaneously the census bureau issued a report showing that 47,749 running bales, counting round as half bales, were ginned from the 1926 crop prior to August 1, compared with 161,632 for 1925 and 21,795 for 1924.

We have plain and figured assorted patterns and colors. For protecting furniture from dust and dirt, slip covers are very practical.

REPAIR WORK

If you have any furniture to have repaired now is the time to have it done, in the warm weather while you are not at home. We urge you to call and have our representative give you an estimate.

"If You're Sure It's Right Then Add Your Mite" Help Give Our Underprivileged Children A Vacation "We're Out To Raise At Least $1,000"

The Manchester Kiwanians, an organization of business and professional men, gather weekly to think and talk of things that will better Manchester. They conceived the idea that one of the best ways to help the town would be to help its children. Simple, isn't it? Yet from an idea this great country was created but the idea had to be developed and carried out. The Kiwanians have the idea. Will you not help it along?

Out where the breezes blow in Hebron; where nature is at its best, they have organized a camp for our children who need an out-of-door vacation with nourishing food and health giving surroundings. They want to make this camp a permanent one and next year send two or three hundred kiddies instead of 80 as this year. "Let Charity Begin At Home" slogans are worn out but is there a better one to put over this plea?

DO YOU REALIZE THAT HERE IN MANCHESTER WE HAVE A CASE LIKE THIS RIGHT NOW?

Five children, nude, playing on the floor. Mother unable to take care of them because she has too much work to do. Children, sickly, have to remain indoors in dark kitchen, because they have no suitable clothes to go outdoors. No cool showers for these youngsters this year because the quota is filled.

THIS SCENE CAN BE MULTIPLIED. ARE YOU INTERESTED NOW?

Campaign Starts on Monday August 9, Today To Last Only Ten Days

TWICE AS MANY APPLICANTS SEEKING TO GO OUT TO KIWANIANS' HEBRON CAMP

Not seeking literally, for if the youngsters had their way the camp would be jammed. Nurses who work daily among the needy pick out the cases and their hearts bleed because the camp is not big enough to take care of all. Exaggerated? Ask the nurses. Only 80 were taken care of and are being taken care of this summer. THAT DOES NOT MEAN THAT THERE ARE ONLY 80 CHILDREN HERE WHO NEED THE VACATION.

LET US MAKE THIS CAMP A PERMANENT ONE. GIVE IN THE NAME OF YOUR OWN CHILDREN.

Send or give your contributions to Lewis H. Sipe, the Kiwanis Club treasurer, at the Home Bank and Trust Co., at your convenience but, DO IT NOW BEFORE YOU FORGET IT. Any sum acceptable. All contributions will be acknowledged as received by The Evening Herald.

POE'S STORIES: The Pit and the Pendulum (6)

All hope had faded. Those burning eyes of red-hot iron pressed in and in, toward the terrible wall, on whose very brink crouched the horrified prisoner. In the agony of despair his soul found vent in one last, loud scream of despair. He tumbled on the edge of the abyss of death, averting his eyes from that black hole.

As in a dream he heard the discordant hum of many voices above him. There was a loud blast as of many trumpets!

The hand was that of General Lasalle. It meant that the French army had entered Toledo, that thequisition was in the hands of its enemies. The prisoner of the dungeon was saved, brought back to this world from the very inner chamber of death. (Next—The Black Cat.)

HERE IS A REAL HUMAN INTEREST STORY FOR YOU!

Akron, O., Aug. 9.—Moonlight and starshine, playing on rippling water in a warm spring night, are as insubstantial as the shadows of a dream.
Yet out of them can be woven a web stronger than all the strength of years—stronger even than life itself, a shimmering net that can hold a kingdom and the power and the glory forever bright and unshattered.
And this is why Naomi Knowlton, a gray-haired grandmother, has at last become the bride of John Gray, whom she learned to love 39 long years ago.
It was a warm summer night in June, 1895, and a big round moon was building misty shadows on the dreamy campus of Wooster College, O. An ardent lover and his sweetheart stood on a wooden bridge and watched the moonbeams on the dark water below.
The girl was Naomi Knowlton. She was telling the boy, John Gray, that she had finished making her wedding gown. And he told her that he would be married as soon as he was graduated. The time was only a few weeks away.
The wind rustled the leaves of the trees by the quiet creek, and all the wide world narrowed to the tiny orbit that held these two.

MISS LEMUS DISCHARGED. Mexico City, Aug. 9.—Senator Dolores Lemus, sixteen-year-old typhoid, and eight others, charged with plotting against the life of President Calles, have been released from custody for lack of evidence. Enrique Orellana, who was the principal accused of the girl, when confronted and questioned by the military authorities, became considerably confused and contradicted his testimony repeatedly. Orellana's discomfiture caused considerable amusement in the court room and led to dismissal of the case.

THEY NEVER KNEW TOM SIMS

FOR LATE ARRIVALS (Fictional cognomens, cities, streets, sidewalks and whiskers are used in this story to avoid possible identification.)
Well, JIMPSON WEED and PEARL HANDLE live in OMEGA-ONLY, OHIO, just for example. JIMP, who is the son of MR. and MRS. WEED (his father and mother) marries PEARL, who is the daughter of MR. and MRS. HANDLE (her father and mother).
The WEEDS set forth upon their honeymoon, planning to tour THE UNITED STATES, which is the place discovered by CHRISTOPHO COLUMBO, the explorer. COLUMBO died quite a while ago so doesn't enter into this remarkable story at all.

Arrow shows Jimp and Pearl trapped on top of burning Atlantic City hotel.
The author pauses here for an instant to recall that heart-rending predicament in which Jimp and Pearl found themselves at the close of the previous chapter.
Only those readers who had stood upon the top of a burning building in Atlantic City and felt the intense heat singe their eyebrows as the walls of the doomed structure shuddered beneath them—only those can read the plight of our Jimp and our Pearl.

Even the fire chief, accustomed as the hard-hearted devil was to such gruesome sights—even he stood spellbound in his tracks and uniform.
This was no common tragedy. It was an uncommon tragedy. Oh, it was tragic as everything.
Two humans were burning alive. One was Pearl, a lovely young bride from whose innocent features the bloom had yet to be erased. The other was Jimp, the charming millionaire.
"Weep! Weep! Weep!" wept the sweet darling. She was crying like an Irish potato in a barrel of onions. The tears trickling down her cheeks soaked her dress and filled her shoes. This, and this alone, projected her from the flames which by now surrounded and obscured her delicate form.
Jimp took her in his arms. "We are saved! We are saved! We are saved!" he cried.

Mrs. Hall's Features Analyzed By Expert, Shows Great Strength

By MARGERY REX. International News Service Special Correspondent.
New York, Aug. 9.—What's in a face?
Faces are the nameplates of personality, for not only physiognomists, but physicians, can tell character from features.
Now the grand specialists are able to divulge us into certain types of faces. One of these specialists, Dr. Herman Rubin, analyzes the features of Mrs. Edward Hall, wife of the murdered actor of New Brunswick, now charged with murdering her husband and Mrs. Mills, with whom he was in love.
Masculine Type. Dr. Rubin says: "Mrs. Hall is a hyper-pituitary type, with heavy masculine eyebrows—indicating cleverness—and almost square of jaw. She would strongly resist any attack or opposition, and would be able to hold a secret more closely than the ordinary woman. She can hide her thoughts and is not to be intimidated by this or any other investigation."
Women are changing from the unusual turn of mind, rather cold and brutal, I'm afraid, it is too large for a woman, yet it goes well enough with a long, large face. This large boned face is called "acromegalic"—many faces show enlargement of bones after middle age.

FEDERAL FARM FACTS

Brand Rose canker has found its way into the United States and seems to be spreading rapidly, seriously damaging roses wherever it appears.
Every year preventable forest fires in the United States destroy or damage timber of sufficient amount to build five-room houses for the entire population of New Hampshire.
Ohio is rapidly progressing as a dairy state. From 1920 to 1925 the manufacture of creamery butter increased 73 per cent, and the production of market milk 60 per cent in this state.
Apple-tree tent caterpillars are unusually abundant in the area westward into New York State and southwestward to Virginia, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture.
5 KILLED IN WRECKS Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 9.—Five met were killed and four injured in week-end automobile accidents here. The Ohio State Limited left a light sedan in which five men were riding at the Hartford road "death crossing" near here Sunday and terribly mangled their bodies.

A TREE WITHIN A TREE IS THIS UNUSUAL SIGHT

In the crotch of a large maple tree on Main street on the east side of the South Methodist church is growing a small pine tree about a foot high.

FLOWER SHOW SUCCESS: WILL REPEAT AUG. 28

Plan Fine Showing of Gladiolus, Asters and Dahlias on "White House" Grounds.

So much interest has been aroused in the Flower Show given on the "White House" grounds last Friday and the many requests for a showing to be given for the later season blossoms that Director G. H. Washburn and Mrs. C. J. Collins have announced that August 28th has been set as a tentative date for a special showing of Gladiolus, Asters and Dahlias.

All the flower lovers who enjoyed the exhibit of the hundreds of blossoms shown last Friday are further assured of an even more beautiful treat in this next exhibit. Many of the exhibitors, at Director Washburn's request, turned over their entire showing to him for the purpose of distributing the flowers to the hospital.

COVENTRY

Lyle Harrington and Mr. Stewart of Mount Hope spent the week-end with Mr. Harrington's parents at Autumn View Farm.

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salve can't do this. An internal remedy must be used.

Diamond Disputes Decided

What is the usual procedure of major league umpires in determining an infield fly?

The infield fly is a judgment play, hence there is no set rule that could be given.

What would be regarded an infield fly by one umpire, might not be so interpreted by another official equally competent.

The infield fly is any fair fly ball other than a line drive that the umpire believes can be handled by an infielder.

What happens on such a play is legal. Back in 1920, the rule governing this play was changed, making the ball dead and anything that happened a pure accident.

NEXT DEMPSEY BOUT IS UP TO PHELAN

If He Refuses to Grant Champion a License the Fight Is Off.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH New York, Aug. 9.—Colonel John J. Phelan, the man whose word will produce Jack Dempsey in the ring next month or drive him into permanent retirement, was about town today declining by even so much as a gesture to indicate what his decision will be.

The colonel will be asked tomorrow to grant Jack Dempsey a boxer's license and either he will do so like a little gentleman, thereby making possible the Dempsey-Tunney match on September 16, or he can refuse the request, thereby making the champion's attempted come-back the greatest farce in the history of boxing.

Opinion Divided Opinion today as to which way the colonel will jump was as evenly divided as the part in the hair of a matinee idol. Most of the "mega-phone men" lined up behind Tex Rickard and declared that the promoter absolutely knew his groceries on this issue.

The Rules The rules in question deal with a demand that champions accept legitimate challenges at least every six months and the whole world knows that Jack Dempsey hasn't given Harry Wills a rumble in more than six years.

This fact, in truth, seems to simplify Phelan's curse. When the commission says that Dempsey and Tunney may meet, it is tacitly saying that Dempsey is a boxer in good standing and, therefore, is entitled to his license just like any other citizen.

Of course, Phelan's is not the only voice to be heard on the question but the other member of the committee, D. Walker Wear, will vote the way his chairman does. They probably have already agreed on their course and, by tomorrow night, everybody this side of the Himalaya mountains will know what it is.

That's the kind of a ballyhoo this fight is getting.

SONS OF ITALY TURN TABLES ON NEW LONDON AGGREGATION

Some weeks ago the Robert Gair team of New London defeated the Sons of Italy by a big margin in that city. Yesterday the tables were turned and the visitors lost the worst game of their career at the West Side. Manchester took this game easily by the score of 14 to 1.

Manchester was out to get the visitors from the drop of the hat. During the first inning, which was as long as some whole games, the locals touched Daniels, former Bulkeley High star for plenty of hits and 11 runs crossed the plate.

This was not enough for the locals, however, for they came back in the second and third to score one apiece and again in the sixth another came in. The visitors were at a loss and did not threaten to score until the sixth when they made one run.

Daniels, the same man who held the Sons to about nine hits in New London in the first appearance of the local team there, allowed 16 bingles, two of them doubles, and 3 errors were made by his teammates.

The fielding of Sipples and Zwiek were a feature of the game and Ballsieper, in his first appearance in the outfield, speared two line drives that looked like hits. St. John was cheated of a putout when he caught a fly over the bank in right field. The umpire ruled that as the ground rules allowed two bases over the bank, the catch did not put the man out. Wallitt caught a good game and Fisher held the visitors to 6 hits, all widely scattered.

Hayes, Sipples, St. John, Ballsieper, McAnn and Fisher were the leaders in the onslaught on the visiting pitcher. Hayes and Sipples each socked out three hits.

TILDEN SLIPPING? WATCH CHANDLER EVANS TELLS US

Expert Also Gives Interesting Dope Pertaining to New York Yankees.

(By BILLY EVANS.)

Had a chance to watch Champion Bill Tilden in action the other day at the Longwood courts in Boston. It was the first time I had seen Big Bill perform in more than a year and I was anxious to note his condition and style of play.

While Tilden has probably slipped back a bit (starts in all sports ultimately do), he is still a marvelous player, who seems able to rise to his greatest heights in the pinch.

Tilden was not pressed in the matches I saw him play, which may account for the fact that some of the old-time enthusiasm that always featured his play was lacking.

Incidentally, he didn't seem quite so sure of himself. It appears as though he has lost some of the supreme confidence that he has always had in himself.

It is just possible that Bill Tilden is not quite the player of say three years back, but he is still very good, as the fellow that beats him will realize. Eddie Chandler, intercollegiate champion, may reach the top in a year or two.

The New York Yankees of 1926 have so far been an interesting as well as most unusual team.

The club has played brilliant, mediocre and poor baseball. Yet on July 20, the Yankees were out in front in the American League with a seven-game lead.

At that time the Yankees had played 88 ball games, of which they had won 56 and lost 32.

Early in the race, at two different stages, the Yankees had suffered winning streaks which resulted in wins of eight and 16 straight games.

On July 20, the Yankees with 56 wins and 32 defeats had won 24 more games than they had lost. These 24 games are accounted for by the two winning streaks.

So by deduction, we find that the Yankees in the first 88 games of the season, excluding the two winning streaks of eight and 16 games, have played only 50 baseball.

Along the same line of reasoning, the club need only play 50-50 baseball the rest of the year to be right in the running.

An even break down the stretch will insure the Yanks of winning 90 games and that number has often won a pennant.

The hectic battle that five clubs have staged for second place since the opening of the American League season, has proved a great help to the New York club.

The manner in which Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago have knocked each other off, has reacted most favorably to New York's chances.

On July 20 when the Yankees enjoyed a seven-game lead over their closest rival, Philadelphia, only four games separated the other five clubs.

Recently, two games that New York won in the ninth inning from Detroit after being seemingly hopelessly beaten may have been the turning point for the Yanks.

New York in a slump, having played only 53 ball for about three weeks, hooked up with the Tigers in a four-game series at the Yankee stadium.

Detroit only split even in the four games but had a great chance to win the entire series. Had the Tigers done so, they would have tightened up the race considerably and destroyed some of the Yankees' then fading morale.

Going into the ninth inning of one game, beaten 5-1, the Yankees made five runs after two were out to tie up the fray. They won it in the twelfth.

In another game, beaten 3-1 going into the ninth and for seven innings having made only one hit off Southpaw Johns, the Yanks with one down, rallied, and pushed over three runs, enough to win.

I will always believe the winning of those two games were of vital importance to the Yankees.

The break in the schedule is the one thing that may handicap the Yankees and work to the benefit of the other western contenders.

New York plays its final game at home on Sept. 9, spending the final three weeks of the season on the road.

Several of the western clubs have played far better ball at home than on the road and should they be within striking distance of the Yankees when the home-stretch is reached, they certainly will be favored by the schedule.

Washington is in the same situation as New York. The Athletics also follow the same route, except Washington is met in three games at home to finish the season.

CARP SAYS DEMPSEY WILL BEAT TUNNEY

Los Angeles, Aug. 9.—Jack Dempsey should successfully defend his heavyweight title against Gene Tunney, leading white contender, Georges Carpentier, former world's light heavyweight champion declared today. Carpentier is touring Southern California on a vaudeville circuit preparatory to starting training for his Labor Day scrap with Eddie Huffman at Tijuana.

"Carpenter is entitled to a selection, at least, since both Dempsey and Tunney have socked him on the chin."

"Of course," Carpentier explained, "I am thinking of the Dempsey I met in 1921 and the Tunney I fought two years ago. I do not believe that Dempsey is in poor physical condition. When I saw him at Colorado Springs recently he looked as superb as he did when I met him in Jersey City. Of course the long lay-off may reasonably be expected to have dimmed his fighting judgment, but I still think he's good enough to beat Tunney."

Dempsey will miss Jack Kearns, his former manager, when the two time comes for the championship bout with Tunney, Carpentier declared.

Worcester Trims Cheney Brothers 2-0; Home Run Features; Rain Interferes

Robert Gair Team, Victors Over Locals a Month Ago, Come to Grief at Hands of Manchester Batters.

(Special to The Herald.)

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 9.—Cheney Brothers of Manchester, Conn., were defeated here Saturday 2 to 0 by the Crompton-Knowles Company in a five inning game which was cut short by a downpour of rain. The visitors scored a run on Mantelli's double and Ritchie's single in the sixth but the rain came before the inning was finished so the score did not count.

Naw's single and a home run smash by Savaria gave the locals their two runs. Only two other Worcester men got on bases in the game. Ritchie, the visiting moundsman, who is a Bay State man, pitched great ball for Cheney Brothers, allowing but four hits. Tunney also was in rare form allowing but three hits. The visitors got men on every inning but Tunney was invincible in the pinches.

VETERAN ALLOWS 4 HITS AS SHAMROCKS WIN 3-1

Brennan's Timely Hitting Also Helps Local's Cause Greatly—Only One Error by Each Team.

Old Dan Smith wasn't gitted by a streak of good luck the other night when he held the St. Mary's at bay. Dan showed that beyond any particle of doubt yesterday afternoon when he duplicated the feat against the highly touted Taftville aggregation. Like the St. Mary's, Taftville scored but once. The Shamrocks tripled this, thus winning 3 to 1.

Allows 4 Hits

There was a large crowd, one of the biggest of the season, on hand yesterday at Hickey's Grove and they were treated to a real classy exhibition of ball tossing. Smith was the center of attraction, however, and he well deserved to be. Dan retired seven on strikes and allowed but four scattered singles.

Bunts Bother Dan

Taftville took a one run lead in the fifth inning and for a time it looked as if that was going to be the only score of the game. Gaudette singled and was sacrificed to second. On another bunt, he advanced to third and the batter safe at first. Smith was having trouble fielding the bunts; it seemed his only failing. His legs would not respond quickly enough. Another bunt, a squeeze play, followed and the run was scored.

The Shamrocks scored one in the seventh on Brennan's triple and McLaughlin's single and won the game in the eighth frame by scoring two runs. Mantelli singled, Brownell doubled, scoring Mantelli, and then Brennan hit again scoring Brownell.

HOW TO SWIM by Lillian Cannon

Second and third movements in frog kick.

The frog kick is associated usually with the breast stroke, but it is much better to learn the scissors kick and stick to it if possible.

It fits in with almost every stroke and is more efficient than the frog kick in every way.

However, to keep the record straight, here is the frog kick.

The first position is with the legs straight out with ankles touching. Second, the feet are drawn up toward the body, the feet in line with the legs to give the least water resistance, as the knees spread out.

Third, the flats of the feet are opposed to the water and the legs are kicked straight back until ankles touch again and the movements are repeated.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are—

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."

PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose domestic life is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom Fay Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

When Fay took JUDITH, the baby, to Washington to visit her parents, John "ran around" a good deal, mostly with Pat Forbes.

When Fay returned gossip had retailed some of his doings and greatly exaggerated them. He thinks Sharp quarrels followed, one of which drives him "out on a tear," and when Fay learns he has been out again with other women she threatens to leave him if it is repeated. He begins to think she dislikes him, whereas it is only her fear that he will get into trouble.

He becomes aware that he is being talked about. NELL GRAY, his partner, blames the loss of a client on the "damaged reputation" John was giving the firm, and John is filled with resentment. Fay breaks with a malicious gossip, and John is so loyal that he begins to look as if he had again reached an understanding. However, she falls out with another one over Judith, and this time John is unsympathetic and it repeats the old wound.

Pat and Marian Forbes give a party, and there John again sees Nell Orme. Later in the evening he finds her alone on the porch and finds himself wanting to take her in his arms.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXI

HE found himself taking her hand in his, and she turned quickly and looked at him. Beneath her steady, inquiring gaze he let her hand fall, and at once she dropped her eyes and turned away again.

Better not, he reasoned. She might take offense, might misunderstand, and he would feel like a fool. He said, "Don't you think we'd better join the others? They might be wondering, you know." He was sure, as he stood aside to let her pass through the door, that her hand pressed against his purposely.

He followed her through the house and emerged on the front porch feeling like a boy who had been caught with his fingers in the jam jar. But no one noticed them particularly. Fay, he saw, was still talking animatedly with Paul Davidson, who seemed to be at his best tonight. Nell, passing close to him as she helped Marian serve refreshments, said, "Don't forget the race," and Pat took her up. "Have you picked John as the victim again?" he said loudly.

Howard Orme was smoking a cigarette in silence and Pat asked Noel if he was going in swimming. "Not sober," Noel retorted, and Pat said, "Well, I'll try to get you drunk, then."

An hour later Pat and Nell Orme were distributing bathing suits, some of which were said looking affairs, being ancient in design and moth-eaten. "I'll get arrested for indecent exposure if I wear this thing," complained Paul Davidson, holding up a dilapidated suit of faded red.

"Aw, no one's looking," growled Forbes. "Besides, the moon has gone behind a cloud."

Marian Forbes had pressed her own suit on Fay, and she and John went down to the beach together, followed by the rest of the party.

It was Nell, and at sight of him a startled exclamation came from her lips.

half of whom insisted on not going in the water.

Fay shivered about in the shallow water and John patiently tried to make her strike out and swim. But it was too cold, she said, and after one "live she contented herself with lying on the sand and near the bonfire and helping Marian Forbes toast marshmallows.

Nell came wading out to the springboard and he followed her as she climbed up to the little platform. "Coming?" she called to him as she stood bouncing gently on the board. "I'm ready," he answered, and saw her muscles tighten as she gathered them together for the dive, saw her arms shoot out and her feet leave the board and her body cut the water with scarcely a ripple.

He followed, and they swam across the lake and back in silence. He felt that he dared not speak to her, for fear of saying something she might improve him for. Eleanor Mason and Paul Davidson came splashing in noisily, and he found excuse to complain of the cold and joined the others at the bonfire.

On the way home Fay brought up the topic of the Ormes and their mysterious attitude toward each other. He said he couldn't fathom Howard, couldn't understand his coldness.

"I'm inclined to sympathize with Howard," Fay said.

"This annoyed him. 'Why do you say that?' he challenged retortily. 'You don't know what's behind it all.'"

"Just the same, I think Nell Orme is to blame."

"Well, why?"

"I don't like some of her actions," she answered vaguely.

"Oh, come now, Fay." He was exasperated. This, he felt sure, was nothing more than a woman's jealousy for another of greater charm.

"What don't you like about her actions?" he asked her. "I thought you were fond of Nell Orme."

She was silent, and when he insisted she answered, "Well, doesn't it strike you as a rather proud of herself in a bathing suit?"

He looked at her in astonishment. "Why, it hadn't occurred to me. Of course, she looks rather well in one."

"I thought you would notice it."

"Now Fay, was that necessary? I with the senior partner?" and John shrugged. "Don't know, Briggs; think I've never seen him."

"Well, if you ever split, I'm with you."

Split? The thought never occurred to John as something likely to happen. And yet things couldn't go on forever this way.

"Thanks," he said shortly. "I won't forget."

He met Clara Lane on the street the next day as he was wandering off to lunch. She had eaten, she said in answer to his invitation, but she would have a cup of tea with him. "I wanted to tell you that the divorce was moving along smoothly," she told him.

"Good," he commented, and they discussed Clara's plans for the future. It seemed that she was resuming her piano lessons with a view to teaching later on.

He told Fay that evening that he had lunched with Clara. "Thought I'd let you know before someone else told you first," he added.

She looked at him reproachfully and made no answer. Fay, this time, was rising to her feet. She wanted to say to him, "John, you're breaking my heart, talking like that," but pride prevented her.

And John was sorry the minute he had made his sarcastic announcement. He wanted to tell her that he loved her, that henceforth he would try to be more considerate of her. But he couldn't help thinking that Fay was beginning to dislike him. "If she'd only indicate that she was willing to start all over again," he thought, and went to his favorite chair before the fireplace, to smoke his pipe in moody silence, not knowing that Fay, glancing up occasionally from her knitting, was regarding him with tearful eyes.

And then the thing happened that scarred their lives.

If there had not been this coldness between him and Fay, this feeling on his part that he was becoming more incidental to her existence with each passing day, he probably would have steered clear of it. But—

He was surprised several days later to receive a telephone call at his desk from Vera Boyd.

"I wanted to know if you could drop in for tea tomorrow afternoon," she said.

Tea—in her house? He demurred, as politely as he could, his old hostility for Vera mounting.

But she was insistent. "It's important," she told him. "I wouldn't ask you otherwise."

"Well, what is it? Tell me."

"No." She laughed mysteriously. "When you come you'll be glad I invited you. And John—"

"Yes."

"Don't say anything to Fay."

Well, now, why shouldn't he say anything to Fay? Why all the mystery? But she refused to say anything more and hung up after getting his promise to be out.

John was rather uncomfortable that evening at home. It seemed unfair to Fay, this business of running off to tea at Vera's, especially in the face of an unexpected pleasantness in Fay. He told himself that he wouldn't let himself in for anything foolish. He'd be dogged if he would!

Four o'clock the next afternoon found him turning up the street in which a the boy's little brown single home. Vera heard the car drive up and met him at the door.

"You were right on time," she said. "Now come in, and try not to be surprised."

"What the dickens—" he began, but she slipped her finger over his mouth.

The tea wagon, he saw, bore three cups and saucers. Who, he began to wonder, was the third? Was it Noel?

And then he heard someone descending the stairs. He glanced questioning at Vera, who shook her head mysteriously and held up a warning finger.

A familiar voice said, "You there, Vera?" and his pulse suddenly was racing madly. That voice, low and throbbing—it belonged to Nell Orme.

And it was Nell. She suddenly came in view, and at sight of him a startled exclamation came from her lips.

Briggs said, "What's the matter with the family should not be made to adapt itself to the home. The home should adapt itself to the family. If you are worrying about never having your children with you, why not try the idea of having them invite their friends to the house? With phonographs and radios and pianos there is plenty of diversion music these days, and—well, at our house there's a hole most worn through the living room carpet."

Lace for Fall

Is your home a house with furniture and rugs and curtains and pictures, or is it—a home? Is it a by-station where the family merely stops for repairs and food, or is it the welcome haven of rest and entertainment at the end of a busy day?

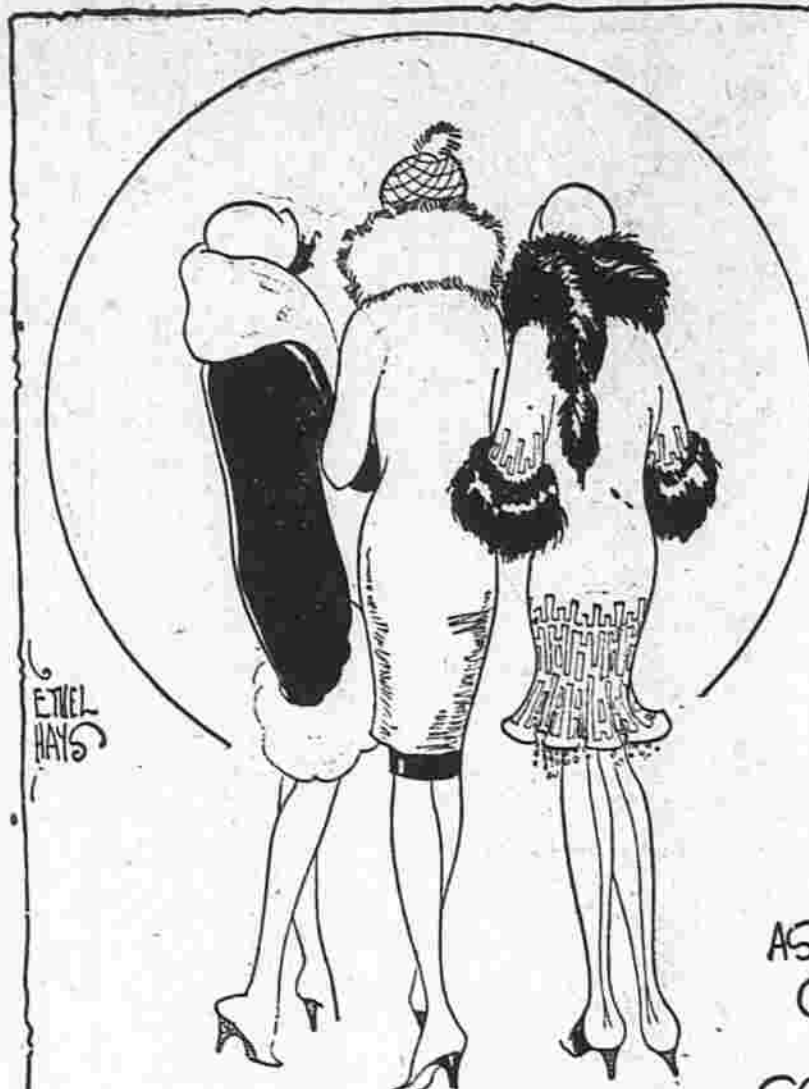

Is it a place where each chair has to stand on exactly the same depressions in the rug day in day out, the window shades kept permanently so many inches from the sill, and the doors religiously closed so that dust will not blow in—or is it a place where your sons and daughters and their friends can come and enjoy themselves?

Once a man described his old home thus in a letter: "It was like an open place full of sunlight, a warmth which no cloud nor fleck of cloud seemed ever to come, and whence I retired for strength and refreshment—with my mother."

It is so very evident why not only girls, but boys leave home! Home is too often a place of complaint and scolding. We scold about muddy tracks when they are little; we scold about everything under the sun when they are older. And then we wonder why they learn to look upon home as something to be endured rather than enjoyed.

May I suggest that true hospitality has almost lost its place in the dictionary? The wise mother will allow her children to bring their friends home often. We fuss too much about CONDITION—Tired-looking eyes, with wrinkles or hollows beneath.

DIAGNOSIS—This may come from eye strain, in which case you may need glasses. You should be careful of your position when reading or doing close work and not get into a position where you throw the eyes out of their normal focus. Massage, too, is helpful.

TREATMENT—Stimulate the circulation, and soothe the nerves about the eyes this way: Place the thumbs under the chin, and with the forefinger go completely over the surface surrounding the eyeball several times with a light tapping motion. Have two dishes of water, one warm, the other cold. Dip pads of cotton first in the cold and then in the warm water, and hold them over the closed eyelids. End with the cold compress. This is exceedingly restful to the muscles, and hence signs of strain and tiredness are eliminated.

Good Nature and Good Health

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

The essentials of healthy baby life are air, nourishment and sleep, and sleep is by no means the least important of the three.

A normal baby can usually be trusted to manage his own program of sleeping, but when abnormal conditions exist mothers should know how to meet these conditions and secure the proper amount of rest for the infant.

During the first two weeks of life, a healthy baby will sleep nearly all the time. He will wake only long enough to nurse. Even during the second month a healthy child will sleep about twenty hours of the twenty-four.

His Own Crib
One serious mistake that commonly is made by parents is allowing a baby to sleep with adults. In circumstances of extreme poverty, this often is unavoidable, but usually the mistake is prompted by love for the child or ignorance of the dangers.

It is bad enough for two people of the same age and physical condition to occupy the same bed, but for a child to sleep with an adult is distinctly harmful.

There are some mothers who believe that the younger the baby the less air space in sleeping quarters will be required. Consequently the younger children are given the smallest rooms. This is a serious mistake, for the growing child needs as much fresh air as does the adult.

To carry a child into a room which is brightly lighted is not the best method to employ in putting the child to sleep. If your baby goes to sleep in a room flooded with light it is merely because it has developed the power of habit for it has been demonstrated that relaxing the sense of sight to sleep is most difficult under such conditions. Any baby will sleep best in a dimly lighted or dark room. Quiet is also important. These are ideas sleeping conditions that should be guaranteed to every baby.

Not all mothers appreciate the fact that an odor will act as a potent disturber of sleep. A mild odor will not always waken a child but most children will display restlessness when odors are present in a sleeping room or are brought in to close proximity to the sleeper. Even an odor of perfume may cause vomiting on the part of the baby, especially if the baby's stomach is not in good order.

Fret When Hungry
Another frequent cause of sleeplessness is hunger. Most babies will not sleep until hunger has been satisfied and although regularity of feeding is of the utmost importance a little milk given sometimes of schedule does less harm than the sleeplessness and fretting which baby experiences while waiting for the scheduled feeding time.

Mothers should be careful, however, to use good judgment in the matter in order that the habit of feeding at off hours may not be developed. In case the baby shows an unusual appetite and a desire for food at off schedule times a doctor should be consulted.

A GIRL OF TODAY
JOAN EXPLAINS

Jerry was instantly all sympathy when he heard Joan speak of her brother.

"We must certainly bring him out of his morbid temperament," he said. "Surely, Mr. Robinson might have done something."

"That is the one thing," said Joan. "That I have always held against Dad. He pays no attention whatever to John. I think he has not seen him since my mother died. Consequently he doesn't know what a wonderful chap he is physically even with his shorter leg and crippled arm. The rest of his body has been trained until he has the broad shoulders and slender waist of a prize fighter. He has had some wonderful contraption made by which he can walk without showing his limp. And he can ride a horse like a cowboy and operate a specially made motor perfectly."

"Yet he will go nowhere. He seems to think that his infirmities make him a being apart."

"Much of this is due to my mother who would have counteracted it if she had lived. But you see she died when he was three years old and naturally he had been backward up to that time. Right after her death he was sent to the camp and from then on he has grown into one of the finest young men that I have ever known."

"He is studying anthropology and going to South Africa immediately after this fall business is settled."

for he of course comes into his share of the estate at the same time that I do.

"Do you think, Judy," said Joan turning to me, "that I have been selfish with my brother. Many times I have offered to stay with him up there. But his tutors told me that he did not seem himself even with me, and I know he loves me better than anyone on earth. Ever since I have been able to reason, I have tried to make John come out into the world and live with me. His isolation has been a constant grief to me."

"Some years ago when he was 11, however, a man came up to camp direct from Yale where he had been offered a position as professor of anthropology. This man came up to spend his vacation with one of John's teachers, who was his brother. He and my brother immediately struck up a great friendship. He has stayed right there in camp ever since, and it has been a dream of my brother that as soon as he came into his fortune he was going to finance an expedition into Africa. There, far from civilization, I hope he will shed his sensitive obsession about his lameness. He has made all preparations for this, as you see, Mr. Hathaway, which is hanging on the speedy settlement of our property."

A PUZZLE A DAY

At the horse races I found this slip of paper. And when I asked my companion what it meant, he said:

"Oh, that's one of Sanke's code tips on how to bet on his horse, 'Ida'."

"That's a long division problem. The letters of a ten-letter word are used in it instead of numbers. If you can solve the problem, you will discover the proper order of the letters, and in that way read the code message."

What is the solution? Last puzzle answer: The astronomer described the planet "Mercury." For "M" is in motion, but not in speed; "E" is in poverty, and in greed; "R" is in creep, and in crawl; "U" is in sun, but not in moon; "R" is in morning, but not in noon; "Y" is in sunny, and not in light; the whole is a spot in the sky at night.

"Have you scattered the Sunday paper over the clearing?" "Yes, Ma."

"Mary Ellen, have you smeared the left-over jam on that bench?" "Yes, Ma."

"William, break those two milk bottles and hide the glass in that shady place under the big tree." "Yes, Ma."

"Myrtle, hurry up and finish tramping down those wild flowers." "Yes, Ma!"

"Frédéric, go over and help your father break down that fence." "Yes, Ma."

"John, are you sure the camp fire is still smoldering?" "Yes, my love."

"Then we seem to have done all that's expected of us. Let's go!"

"May be your son hasn't found himself yet," we consoled. "Isn't he gifted in any way?"

"Gifted? I should say he is. He ain't got a darned thing that wasn't given to him."

His numerous other minor injuries, he was taken to a Rockville physicians' office where he was treated and later taken back to his home here. Today Jerry, both hands swathed in bandages is looking for "Fluffy."

Dellino had two other passengers neither of whom was badly hurt. The accident occurred when the steering apparatus broke and the car hit a pole.

MANCHESTER-MAN, ILL., HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Going to Jersey Shore for Health, Charles R. Wheeler Is Badly Bruised and Cut.

A jinx must be following Charles R. Wheeler, 59, of 247 Oakland street. It caught up to him Saturday morning.

Wheeler has been a patient in the Memorial hospital for eight weeks. His condition was such that an operation was deemed inadvisable. Later he returned to his home. He was still far from being well and it was decided to take him to his sister's home in Point Pleasant, N. J. Here it was hoped Wheeler might recuperate.

Early Saturday morning he started for New Jersey. With Wheeler in the car was his wife, Frank Fitzgerald, of 147 North Main street, Otto F. Miller of Oakland street and Horace Miller of Oakland street.

As the party approached Stamford, it encountered a heavy fog. At Miller's Bridge on the Boston Post Road in the outskirts of the city the car collided with another oncoming machine operated by Caroline I. Crowley, of New Rochelle, N. Y. The crash was caused by another motorist who passed the Crowley car suddenly causing the other two machines to collide. He escaped.

The two cars were badly damaged. Wheeler sustained several cuts and bruises about the head and body the most serious being a cut over the right eye. Fitzgerald was also badly cut. He was taken to the Stamford hospital but Wheeler was taken to the home of his wife's brother Mrs. Thimble in Stamford, where he is now under the care of a trained nurse. The Miller boys escaped uninjured. Fitzgerald returned to his home here last night with Mrs. Wheeler and Otto Miller, who was the driver of the local automobile.

Wheeler will stay in Stamford for the rest of the week at least and then will probably return to Manchester, his wife said today.

THESE GIRLS MUST LIKE GLOBE HOLLOW'S 'HOTEL'

Three little girls' almost spent last night in the bath house at Globe Hollow.

Life-guard McCormick, who was closing the place at 8 o'clock, blew his whistle and shouted into the women's section, asking if there was anybody there. He received no answer so he locked the shed and went home.

He had been home but a few minutes when the sister of one of the girls came to his house and told him that her companions had been locked-in at the pond. He went over to Globe but found that during his absence someone had loosened the wire partition and had liberated the girls.

This is not the first time that girls have been locked in. Once before girls disregarded the life-guard's warning and failed to answer.

POLICE COURT

Fred P. Burrone of North Brantford was before the court this morning on the charge of motor vehicle violations. He was driving a car without proper lights and with the muffler open. He pleaded guilty and a fine of $2 and costs was imposed on each count. He was arrested by Officer Martin.

William Johnson, on the charge of intoxication, was placed on probation for six months. He was arrested by Officer John McGinn who was called out to his boarding place on Lydall street.

William C. Baker, charged with reckless driving, had his case continued until Thursday morning. Mr. Baker had an accident on Middle Turnpike when he ran into a telephone pole and partly destroyed his car.

AMBITIOUS PROGRAM FOR SO. METHODISTS

Plans for the coming year at the South Methodist church have been formulated by Rev. Joseph Cooper and adopted by the first quarterly conference. An ambitious program has been planned for every department of the church and notices of them have been posted on the bulletin board at the rear entrance of the building.

They will include a preaching and visitation evangelistic week, organization of a Go to Church band for boys and girls, circularizing among the congregation, Sunday evening meetings in the temple with popular subjects of general interest and musical features, formation of an intermediate Epworth League, wiping out the church debt and the advisability of creating a fund through legacies and by other means.

Miss Mabel L. Pollard has been placed in charge of the entire educational program of the church.

PEACHES WRONGLY PRICED IN FRIDAY ADVERTISEMENT In an advertisement for Hale's Self Serve grocery appearing in Friday's Herald it read that 4 quarts of peaches were to be sold at 25 cents. This was a typographical error and should have read "4 quarts of peaches 45 cents."
