MUSCILLO TOT BORNE TO GRAVE BY PLAYMATES

Father's Negligence Was the Cause; Odd State Law Keeps Him Out of Prison; Help Kiddies' FUND

There has been a woful lack of public interest in the campaign to provide vacations for Manchester's slum children. There are but a few days more left to raise at least $1,000 to help our needy children.

Now here is the rub. The father may be arrested for neglect of his children but all that implies is a fine. He will not be sent to prison for it. He will pay the fine and that fine will be paid by his wife, an elderly woman just being over a serious illness.

The case also brings up a curious state of affairs far as law is concerned. Within a week or ten days two of Muscillo's children have been in danger of death. He ordered the doctors stating that they could not compel him to send them to the hospital nor could the officials compel him to call a doctor.

Further inquiry last night developed that about 6 o'clock Friday a local physician was called to the Homestead Park area. Who made the call is not known. All the doctor knew was that a child was sick. He called at the house and diagnosed the case as Cholera Infantum. This is caused by eating something that does not agree with a child. It is generally associated with green apples but from the history of the case it was not the cause here.

Last night Homestead Park paid tribute to little Lillian. She was known to all of the youngsters in the neighborhood and they all came to the house to see their little playmate in her little white casket.

Four little Homestead Park girls, Olive Damato, Jenny Burk, Nellie Gedrats and Frances Palitto, were the ball bearers at the funeral this afternoon at St. Bridget's church. Burial was in St. Bridget's cemetery.

All day yesterday the Muscillo home was filled with mourners. There were flowers in profusion piled about the little coffin.

If this is not an argument for the Kiwanians' vacation fund, what is?

BLAMES HARTFORD FOR NOT 'BOOSTING'

Willard B. Rogers Takes a Whack at Chamber There for Scant Publicity.

Hartford, Aug. 16.—Dissensions among members of the Hartford Chamber of Commerce were aired today at a business men's luncheon when Willard B. Rogers, of Manchester, delivered an address in behalf of that fact of the Chamber which is supposed to be planning a rival organization.

"There are progressive citizens in this country who believe that the proven rule that private business goes where it is invited and stays where it is welcomed is applicable to countries, states, cities and communities."

"But, if public advertising did not pay dividends in the form of increased population it is universally conceded it would send a city's assets to its own inhabitants. This automatically converts malcontents and trouble-makers into boosters. It makes for a greater peace of mind among your citizenry and it diverts attention of your citizens from the few things that may be wrong to the many things that are right."

Mr. Rogers then cited, as instances where public advertising had paid, Davenport, Ia., and Springfield, Mass., saying telegraph editors all over the country constantly scan press dispatches under the Springfield date line because one live organization, the Chamber of Commerce, has found that forging tradition into trade has paid cash dividends and that the making of a city into a premier convention center scans press dispatches with hundreds of industrial products to the far ends of the earth.

CRIME CHARGE LAID AGAINST ANTI-SALOON

Rep. Tinkham Demands Prosecution of League; Says, It Spent 50 Millions to Put Over Prohibition.

Washington, Aug. 16.—A formal request for the criminal prosecution of the Anti-saloon League of America on charges of alleged violation of the corrupt practices act was today by the Department of Justice before the latest wet attack on the national dry organization.

A complaint, charging the dry league with "a systematic, intentional and criminal purpose" to violate the election law was filed with the department by Rep. Tinkham, (R., Mass.), a wet leader.

Tinkham wrote to Attorney General Sargent that the League had spent $50,000,000 in the last few years to "put over the eighteenth amendment" and the prohibition enforcement laws. The League's failure to report its expenditures, as provided in the corrupt practices act, he said, was an act of nullification of the election law.

The League incidentally has maintained it did not come within the meaning of the law and therefore was not compelled to file reports. Tinkham however, demanded the immediate prosecution of the League, its national officers and the state organizations.

SUES FOR $200,000 FOR RESTRAINT AS LUNATIC

New York State Man Alleges Railroads Got Property During Incarceration.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Owen J. Doody, of North Tonawanda, has instituted proceedings in the supreme court to recover $200,000 for damages which he says he suffered by reason of his incarceration in the Erie County State Hospital for eighteen years.

The defendants in the suit are former city and county officials of North Tonawanda, the New York Central Railroad and the International Railway Company. Doody alleges he was committed to the asylum in 1906 and was released about two years ago as sane. Doody's property was sold at too low a valuation after his commitment. Miss Florence Farrington, his counsel, is appearing for a number of co-defendants. Premus avers Doody was committed to the asylum after his wife had made a complaint to the authorities and a commission passed on his mental condition.

NIP FILIBUSTERS AGAINST MEXICO

U. S. Officers Capture 'Army' of 150 Ready to March Upon 2 Border Towns.

San Diego, Aug. 16.—Believed to have planned a revolt in Lower California, between 125 and 150 men were held for arraignment today before United States Commissioner Ryan. The men, led by General Enrique Estrada, former Mexican secretary of war, were arrested by federal officers late yesterday as they were preparing to march upon and capture Tia Juana.

Estrada and the other ring leaders of the revolt were held overnight in the county jail here. The rank and file were corralled at Fort Rosecrans on Point Loma. Estrada and his aides will be charged with participating in an armed expedition against a friendly government. Federal officers believed the men planned to capture Tia Juana and Mexical and then build up a financial reserve by taking over the revenue from the gambling houses and saloons of the two border towns.

Get Munitions. Officers confiscated four hundred Springfield rifles, two machine guns, one armored truck and 150,000 rounds of ammunition. The insurrection, it was believed, is the one which was reported to be brewing in the Imperial Valley several weeks ago. Premature publicity and the prompt action of Imperial County peace officers in patrolling all highways were responsible for checking the concentration there, it was believed.

The aborted revolt, it was believed, has no connection with the present religious crisis in Mexico.

KITCHENER TALE A HUGE HOAX; COFFIN EMPTY

Only Few Clods of Earth in Casket— London Police Seek Power, Author of Unexplained Deception.

London, Aug. 16.—The coffin which was brought to London with great ceremony and said to contain the remains of Lord Kitchener, was opened today by Coroner Ingley Oddie and Sir Bernard Spilsbury, eminent pathologist, and found to be empty, the Home Office announced.

The announcement of the Home Office created great excitement and directed attention immediately at Frank O. Power, free lance writer, who brought the coffin to London, claiming that he had found what he believed to be the remains of Lord Kitchener buried on the shores of Norway, where the body had been washed ashore.

The coffin, draped with the Union Jack, has been in the Ardenne Chapel until seized by the police last night and removed to Lambeth mortuary and then taken with great respect into the coroner's court today.

Huge crowds had gathered for the inquest, and were kept back only by a large force of police. The Home Office announced that when the coffin was opened it was found to contain nothing but a clod of earth and tar about the sides.

Scotland Yard officers are understood to be now searching for Power. Power has been conducting a newspaper campaign for many months in which he has claimed that Lord Kitchener was buried on the Hampshire through neglect of the admiralty to take proper precautions when the ship sailed for a Russian port through a submarine-infested zone.

Power's alleged discovery of the remains had been given wide publicity and his articles describing the discovery have been syndicated all over the world.

The Home Office statement declared that the case which was opened was found to contain an empty coffin. The coffin was apparently new and obviously had not contained human remains.

The authorities state that there is no offense in bringing an empty coffin to England and that no charges can be made against Power, but the police are anxious to question him.

The affair has generally been dismissed in official circles as a gigantic hoax.

Power yesterday denied reports that he had had his made off scenes in Norway when he was alleged to have discovered "the remains" of Lord Kitchener.

FAKE 'FORD' STOCK CHEATS BERLINER

Berlin, Aug. 16.—Many hundred Berliners have been cheated by a gang of swindlers offering shares of a fictitious "Canadian Ford Company" to credulous people. They demand the rate of $90, although Ford shares are owned by the Ford family and will not be offered in the market for a long time to come.

The swindlers predict a tremendous boom of the "Ford shares" and an extraordinarily great dividend. The police are after the swindlers and have closed their offices.

MEXICAN BISHOPS GATHER IN SECRET

Pledge to Carry On— Call for Orders Disarming—Deputies Have Dissensions.

Mexico City, Aug. 16.—Tension became greater today in the religious controversy as the government began to take action which indicated a sterner attitude by the Calles administration.

Military commanders are carrying out the instructions of the war department and are disarming all civilian groups. Arrests of alleged plotters against the government continue, particular attention being paid to those who have aligned themselves with the boycott movement.

Not Catholics Alone. The government declares that the order for disarming is not directed at the Catholics alone, but is intended for all groups and factions, and states that if similar orders issued a fortnight ago had been carried out the religious riots in the western part of Mexico would not have occurred.

Officials state that there appears to be no disposition on the part of civilians to group themselves under men who have armed themselves and that there appears to be a general desire for peace.

Bishops Meet Secretly. The heads of the Catholic Episcopate are united in their determination to carry on the struggle against the religious regulations, it was decided last night at a secret meeting held at the residence of Archbishop Moray del Rio, with the majority of the archbishops and bishops of Mexico in attendance.

At the Episcopate headquarters it was stated that a riot which occurred Sunday morning at the Magdalena church, in the suburb of San Angel, where three persons were wounded when troops were compelled to fire to disperse rioters, was spontaneous and could not have been foreseen or prevented.

The national chamber of deputies building today presents the appearance of an armed fortress with a hundred soldiers, armed with machine guns, on duty and ready for instant action.

BACKS GIBSON STORY, REFUTES NEGRESS' TALE

New Witness Corroborates Presence of Pig Woman in Murder Lane— Saw Her Riding Mule.

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 16.—Hearing of the murder charges against Henry De La B. Carpenter and Willie Stevens, charged with the killing of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills four years ago, got under way today before a crowd which jammed every seat and every inch of standing room in the county court room.

The first witness was an architect, Russell Briscoe, who drew maps of the murder scene at the deserted Phillips farm shortly after the bodies were discovered.

As Briscoe gave his testimony, Carpenter, wealthy broker and cousin of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, also charged with the murder of her husband, leaned forward in his chair, listening intently.

Willie Not Interested. Willie Stevens, brother of Mrs. Hall, and known throughout his home town of New Brunswick as "Crazy Willie," apparently took no interest in the proceedings. He gazed vacantly around the packed room, not even indicating recognition of friends and acquaintances.

The hearing is almost a trial. Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson has announced that he will call all his fifty-three witnesses, so that he may have their sworn testimony to present to the grand jury who he asks that body to return indictments charging first degree murder against the three defendants.

Among those in the court room was Charlotte Mills, young daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir singer, whose mutilated body was found beside that of the Rev. Hall in 1922.

Robert Earling, the second witness, confirmed the previous testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson, "pig woman," who said she passed the murder scene on the fatal night. Earling said he was near the spot with a woman companion, and saw Mrs. Gibson there. He refused to divulge his companion's name.

Rules Out Spectators. Judge Cleary announced that hereafter none but witnesses, reporters and officials would be allowed to remain in the courtroom. His ruling was occasioned by an outbreak of laughter by the spectators when Earling, in reply to a question as to what he was doing in the vicinity of the deserted farm, answered "resting."

Earling said he was in Derussery's Lane, running past the scene of the killing, seated in a car with his companion. They were there some two or three hours, he stated.

"Between nine and ten o'clock, I saw Mrs. Gibson ride by on her mule 'Jenny,'" he declared.

Refutes Russell Story. This statement corroborated the "pig woman's" story, and refuted the testimony of Mrs. Nellie Russell, negress, who said that Mrs. Gibson was with her throughout the evening.

Timothy Pfeiffer, attorney for the defense, then took up the cross-examination. He asked if the witness had left his car during the evening, to which Earling replied that he had walked down the road once with his companion.

CAMP MEETING OPENS IN WILLIMANTIC

Bishop Bradley Gives Fine Address on India—Musical on Saturday.

(Special to The Herald.) Willimantic, Campground, Aug. 16.—The sixty-seventh session of the Willimantic Campmeeting Association opened yesterday with favorable weather, and large audiences, considering it was the first Sunday of the meeting. The District Superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Zenger, was in charge.

As Bishop Bradley, who was put on the list as the speaker of the morning, did not arrive in Willimantic till about noon, Mr. Zenger preached an excellent sermon on "Revelation, not Reason, the Way to Christ." His text was Luke 24:15. "Which scriptures together read, and reasoned, Jesus himself grew near, and went with them."

In the afternoon, Bishop Bradley gave a very interesting and informing address on India, where he was born and where is his work as bishop. He stated that the religions, political, social and religious. He dwelt especially on the later. He said many did not know that India had more miles of railroad than any other country in the world save the United States. He pointed out the fact that the excellent macadam roads, He commended Gandhi for his excellent things, such as his firm stand for prohibition, his desire to lift up those who are low down, and his admiration for Jesus. Yet he nevertheless was a devotee of the Buddha, and Christless Mohammedanism.

Bishop Bradley was again the speaker in the evening. He vividly pictured the frightful tortures the so-called "holy men" of India are willing to undergo for the sake of propitiating, as they imagine their horrible gods. He told of seeing a man stretched on a bed of spikes, of another who hung head downward over fire, of those who would throw themselves under the wheels of the car of Juggernaut ("the god of the world"). He said this sort of devotion put to shame the Christian in America who have left family devotions out of their homes, and who cannot go to church when it rains. He also told of the glad suffering of some missionaries for Christ's sake. One Indian Christian had his hands and feet fastened in stocks, and then leeches poured upon him.

On Saturday evening, a fine musical was given to a good sized audience in the tabernacle by the Manuel Concer Artists of White Plains, Mass. They were Mrs. Florence B. Manuel, soprano; Miss Addie Sprague, contralto and violinist, and Miss Mildred Waters, pianist. Vocal and instrumental solos and duets, negro spirituals with mandolin and guitar accompaniments made up the program.

Pontillard settled for the damage. The accident was investigated by Policeman R. H. Wirtalla.

NINETEEN INJURED IN ERIE RAILROAD BUMP

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 16.—Nineteen men were injured, three critically when a New York train, entering the Jersey City terminal of the Erie railroad, sideswiped another train today.

The incoming train was jammed with passengers. The force of the collision threw men from their seats and showered the injured passengers with broken glass.

One hundred tickets have been allotted to the Manchester station for the excursion to New York next Sunday. The allotment of tickets was quickly sold out on the occasion of the last two excursions run by the New York and New Haven railroad to the metropolis.

POLICE COURT

Seven cases were on the Manchester police court docket this morning, six of which were motor vehicle violations.

Carroll Leconchi of Hartford was before the court on a charge of reckless driving. He was represented by Attorney Harry Schwolsky of Hartford, who asked for a continuance of the case until August 24, which was granted.

Frank Hobarth for loaning his auto markers was fined $2 and costs.

Alfred Hayes of the south end was fined $10 and costs for driving without proper registration. He had just bought the car Saturday night and was using his father's truck markers.

Frederick M. Davis of Hartford paid a fine of $10 and costs for speeding. He was arrested yesterday afternoon by Traffic Officer Wirtalla. The officer said Davis was speeding his car up to 46 or 47 miles an hour.

Samuel Barabara, for evading responsibility, paid a fine of $15 and costs. The car he was driving backed into the New Ford truck belonging to the Eighth School & Utilities district on Homestead street Saturday afternoon. Mr. Barabara did not make an effort to find who was in charge of the truck. Dr. F. A. Sweet was the principal witness in the case. The minimum fine for evading responsibility is $50 and costs. In this case the judge remitted $35 of the fine.

Louis Lavigne of 13 School street was fined $10 and costs for operating without registration.

William Gudatitz of Homestead Park was charged with intoxication. The man could not speak English and the case was continued until tomorrow morning in order to have an interpreter in court.

TOWN SAVES CASH; OUR PLUMBERS ON AN OUTING

Water pipes found rattle Saturday in Manchester. The relentless hammer, which they are usually subjected to did not occur. A truce for one day had been declared while the Manchester plumbers celebrated their first annual outing.

Thirty-eight workmen left Manchester in automobiles shortly after 7 o'clock and motored over the New London Turnpike through New London and Westery to Narragansett Pier.

A shore dinner was served after which Joe Wilson was called upon for a few remarks. He said he hoped the affair will be an annual one and that it will be as successful as the first one. Bathing and sports concluded an enjoyable time all around.

The local plumbers who took their help to the outing were Sam Jones, Joseph Wilson, Fred Lennox, John Flavel, Clark Healey and Plumbing Company, Alfred Grezel, Johnson and Little, Carl W. Anderson.

HALE'S NOTES

VETERANS OF '98 GARLAND'S BEARERS

Daniel Garland, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, going out as a volunteer in April 1899, was lowered to his last resting place on the knoll to the right of the main entrance in St. James' cemetery, with the United States flag draped over the casket today. Just a few of his relatives and friends were present. There was no firing squad, for it was twenty-eight years ago that "Dan" with other members of Company G of the First Connecticut, volunteering at the call of the martyred president, William McKinley, marched away from the old Army on Wells street and entrained for the South. Manchester railroad station amid tears and cheers, started for war. They did not know their destination, but their flag had called them and they were ready. They did not reach Cuba. To Niantic and then to the camp at Bucksport, Me., they traveled, only to be pulled out of that cool climate and hurried to Camp Alger, in Virginia, where the sanitation was poor and the "feed" such that typhoid killed more men than did the bullets at the block house at San Juan hill in Cuba.

The bearers were George Johnson, Seth Leslie, Charles, Thomas Murphy, Henry Leidholdt, William Healey and George L'Heureux.

Deputies Militant

The reason for these extraordinary precautions is found in the militant rivalry between the opposing groups who have been contending for the control of the lower chamber. The strife already has resulted in three pistol battles, one within the halls of the chamber, and the other two in nearby saloons.

The political situation has become suddenly acute with the appointment of a committee of deputies, representing a coalition of regional parties, to notify President Calles of their displeasure with the methods of organization of the chamber by the alliance of socialist parties.

Obregon Group Opposed

The coalition deputies allege that the procedure adopted by the socialist parties constitutes a violation of the constitution, and are demanding action by President Calles. Many of those who are in opposition to the government are supporters of General Obregon.

Women Belligerent

A serious religious riot was averted at Saltillo by the arrival of the police. A group of women sallied forth from the cathedral and began throwing sticks and stones at a government parade which was passing. The marchers drove the women back into the cathedral and followed them inside. The police arrived in time to avert a real clash and arrested the leaders of the women.

Both Silent After Conference on Mexican Situation.

White Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 16.—The Mexican situation, insofar as the United States may be concerned, was laid directly on President Coolidge's doorstep today by Secretary of State Kellogg, who motored here to the summer White House purposely to get the executive's reactions to the many appeals for American intervention in the struggle between church and state in Mexico.

What decision has been reached, however, both refused to reveal. "Nothing to say," was the answer to all questions.

"FREE" HOUSE LOT
BUG HITS HERE HARD

Many Manchester People
"Stung" by Offers of Real Estate Promoters.

This is the 24th article in a series prepared for The Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Florida has nothing on certain sections of New England when it comes right down to brass tacks on wild cat real estate promotional projects.

It would seem from the inquiries which reach the Chamber of Commerce that half the people in town have been stung by the free house lot bug. Despite the several articles which have been printed in The Herald regarding this form of advertisement, the form letters which are being sent out by the thousands, continue to impress and interest and arouse enthusiasm in minds of those who receive them.

Those who go to claim their free lots are offered a lot in a very remote and inaccessible section of the development and of such a size or shape that no building can be placed on it unless additional land is purchased.

Having once aroused the interest of a prospect, the salesmen are quick to meet the disappointment which is apparent when the location of the lot is known by offering to make a very generous allowance on the "free" lot, toward the purchase of a more expensive lot in a better location.

The lots are of a standard size, 25 by 100 feet, and the prices vary according to location, $500 per lot has been reported as having been paid for some lots. When one considers that thousands of letters have been sent out notifying people that they are entitled to a free house lot, it is interesting to note that upon what would happen if a few hundred of them should get together and present their letters in a group, each demanding their free lot. It is a safe bet that the bluff would be called, but even on the basis of $26 a lot, the promoters would realize a handsome profit.

In one case as high as a $90 allowance was offered on one of the "free" back lots toward the purchase of a water-front lot as a much higher price. This sounds good, but of course, the $90 was added to the price of the water-front lot.

Nor is New England alone in this class of real estate development. It has proved itself a gold mine and a never failing source of ready cash and as such, the originator of the plan has had many imitators and followers. Unfortunately it is just within the law and so far, no legal means have been found to stop it.

Extensive publicity is being given to this vicious plan by several national organizations and during this past week, information has reached the Chamber of Commerce either through inquiry by local people, or as the result of investigation by other agencies regarding these new schemes of this sort which have their salesmen working in this vicinity.

Muscle Shoals
The Allen Land Company is promoting another Muscle Shoals Land Corporation, Richard B. Allen and his representatives are however, treading on thin ice in that they are making positive statements and guarantees in connection with the intention of Congress and President Coolidge at the next session of Congress as regards the lease of the Muscle Shoals plant to Henry Ford. Here too, the size of the lot offered is 25x125 feet.

The Ocean Heights Estate, Inc. is another scheme which is being peddled through New England. This represents a sub-division near Eastford, Long Island. The lots in this case are 20x100 feet and range in price from $75 to $225.

The Realty Development Corporation is a third scheme of which New Englanders should be wary. Based on the expectations of what Congress may do, lots on the Tennessee River at Florence Island in the Muscle Shoals district, are selling at $850 for lots 25x100 feet. Some of these promotions may seem good way off, but the fact that inquiries have come to the Chamber of Commerce on all three show that local people are being approached and would do well to get the facts through a careful investigation, not only of the developments themselves but of the men who are promoting them.

Outlaws
In addition to the swarm of out-of-town real estate salesmen, an army of unregistered, unlisted stock and real estate salesmen are abroad in the land. These men are outlaws, selling stocks which have no value and oftentimes real estate which exists only in their imagination. They are not registered or licensed for the very reason that no state commissioner or board would license anyone to peddle the wares which they are handling.

brought warnings against an unusual number of swindlers who are preying on the banks, hotels, merchants and professional men. Their activities cover the whole field of forged signatures, checks on fictitious banks, forged bank drafts, forged travellers checks, forged certified checks, forged pension checks and American Legion claim vouchers.

Merchants and others who have occasion to accept any form of paper from strangers should insist on absolute identification of the person presenting it, or of the value of the paper presented. Don't make the mistake of thinking that you can judge by appearance of document or the man. These have all been carefully studied in advance.

At least two have been in Manchester within the past month and it is probable that if everyone who has suffered was perfectly candid, others would be brought to light.

The Chamber urges anyone who is approached by any suspicious character to make the matter known either to the police or to the Chamber of Commerce. The practice of keeping their losses to themselves through shame or fear or ridicule is exactly what the crook depends upon and it simply encourages him to carry on his vicious trade.

BOYS FIND TREASURE HIDDEN IN ROCK

Playground Youngsters in Exciting Search. Locate Buried Wealth After Long Search.

The mystery and the search for hidden treasure is not far from the surface of young America at any time. This was proved again Saturday when the north end playground children gathered and promptly at ten o'clock Mrs. C. J. Comins brought out a large map and gave instructions as to just how the trail went leading to the hidden treasure.

The boys were given explicit instructions to take no short cuts, as an infringement of this rule would disqualify them even if they should find the treasure itself. At the word to start the boys streaked off across the playground through the community grounds and out on to North Main street. Following them Director Washburn and Mrs. Comins in a car watched them according to instructions. Evidently their trail was a winding one through Depot Square, Hudson street, around Williams street, thence straight out Woodbridge street, toward Manchester Green.

At the Cowles Fruit Farm they were seen to cut back to the Green Road and after having traversed a quarter of a mile or so, stopped near a red barn. Director Washburn then told them that the treasure was hidden within an area of a hundred feet either way. Here and there they looked in the bushes, around the trees with many false alarms from the boys as having found it. After some time the impending shower forced the director to state more nearly a closer area nearer the treasure with renewed vigor they again searched.

Finally one of the boys Stanley Wrobel of 74 North street, and in the fifth grade at the district school was heard to give the cry of victory. Right in the crack, well hidden away, yet in plain sight the edge of a piece of paper was brought to light, which read: "You are the lucky searcher for the hidden treasure. If you will bring this to the director you will receive the treasure." Stanley was awarded a brand new one dollar bill much to the envy of many of his chums who had either stepped on the rock or sat down on it to rest never dreaming how near he or she was to the treasure.

BOARDS, CHAMBERS.

Not being of Hartford, the rum-pus going on in that interesting capital with relation to an alleged moribund state of its Chamber of Commerce is perhaps no business of Manchesterians.

A considerable number of Hartford gentlemen have been busy, for some time, in what they term an attempt to "energize" the Chamber of Commerce.

It has always seemed to us that Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, in the ordinary usage of the terms in this country, stood for exactly the same thing—though what that thing exactly is it might not be so easy to set forth.

In nine cases out of ten they are useful organizations—and disappointing ones. Useful because they do bring into a certain degree of co-ordination the larger business and industrial influences of a community, create a sort of clearing house for valuable information concerning the town or city, and provide a rallying point for the forces of enterprise and community spirit—occasional rather than continuous.

Disappointing because not once in fifty times, probably, do these organizations accomplish certain objects which some of the people of the place and some of the members of the organization think they might accomplish.

In other words a Chamber of Commerce or a Board of Trade usually serves a good purpose; in some instances, naturally, its service is far greater than in some other instances. But it hardly ever accomplishes everything that everybody thinks it ought to accomplish. Probably never.

We seem to have a hazy recollection of a parallel situation, somewhere or other, to the Hartford imbroglio. A case where some dynamic persons thought a Board of Trade had gone fast asleep and snoring and so organized a Chamber of Commerce.

It started off with a bang, the Board of Trade gave a despairing gasp and died—and in three years the new Chamber had settled down into the exact similitude of its predecessor—snoring a little and waking up and doing a chore or two now and then, just as such organizations everywhere are doing all the time.

As a matter of fact it is probable that those who expect an everlasting and feverish activity on the part of any such civic organization are looking for the impossible—certainly they are if they anticipate continuous and satisfactory results.

Business, trade, industry, is not materialized out of thin air by magic, nor yet created by formulae. If a bustling Chamber of Commerce gets an automobile factory away from some other town, the Chamber of Commerce in the losing town scores a miss—and the next time, under the law of averages, will probably score a win over the other Chamber.

These trade-and-industry bodies are good things; the Manchester Chamber of Commerce would be sorely missed if it should cease to exist. But the point is that the enthusiast who looks to them to perform miracles is going to be disappointed. And there are a good many such folks. They are forever starting new organizations—which turn out to be just like the old ones, good but not marvelous.

REFERENDUM.

Decision by a New York state supreme court judge that the forthcoming referendum on prohibition is not unconstitutional, and denying an injunction against it requested by a tax payer, is in accord with the vital principals of popular government. As the court points out, the Volstead act is not an unchangeable or unrepeatable statute. The power that made it can repeal it and unmake it.

And by the same token, this is equally true of the eighteenth amendment, even though the process of repeal may be, in the nature of things, far more cumbersome and difficult.

The practice of the extreme dries, in holding up their hands in shocked horror and shouting "Treason!" whenever it is suggested that amendment which adopted that amendment can, at will, wipe it out, cannot be the result of conviction; it must be unquestionable is—the merest pretense, calculated to appeal to a superstitious veneration for the very name, "constitution."

The fundamental body of law which carries that name is sufficiently safeguarded against unconsidered change, without giving it the added fortification of a mystic legend. The constitution is no more sacred against change today than it was in the days when the dries were moving heaven and earth and spending millions in propaganda to bring about the alteration whose abominable fruits we are experiencing.

Everybody knows this, including the most passionate of the dries. The reason for their antagonism to the New York referendum does not lie in a sincere belief that there is anything illegal about it, but in fear that the verdict of the people of the greatest state in the Union will be heavily against prohibition "as is."

An expression of opinion as to the workings of Volsteadism is not out of place after six years, either legally or ethically.

A GOOD WORK.

The United States government prints many a ponderous document, at great pains and immense cost, which is read by the compositors and the proof readers and by nobody else. But it is just now engaged in the production of a work, almost as big as an encyclopedia, which ought to prove of immense interest as well as usefulness—the same being eight or ten great volumes containing the diplomatic correspondence of the United States during the World war.

To a probably great majority these volumes will be about as attractive as the annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for 1897. But there must be many thousands of persons in this country of sufficiently serious and studious mind to greet this undertaking with satisfaction.

There has been so much of controversy over a hundred aspects of the war, and the facts have been dished up in such small lots and so carefully chosen to bolster this or that argument or color this or that assertion, that it is a very small class of people indeed who have enough of the truth at hand to justify sincere opinion.

Perhaps these volumes—of which three are ready for the printer and the others will be completed in the next two or three years—will not be exactly the kind of thing to go onto the ordinary cottage bookshelf, but they will have a very proper place in every public library, available to the student or casual inquirer as an extremely valuable reference work.

RUDOLPH.

As it turns out, perhaps it is just as well for K. O. Valentino that that Chicago editor whom he so ardently desired to fight did not accept the challenge of the movie man. A person with an ulcer in his stomach and an inflamed vermiform appendix is not in exactly the right shape to enter into a duel of the squared circle, no matter how confident he is about smashing the "sagging jaw" of his critic.

We have always been just a little regretful that the battle Rudolph so passionately sought was not arranged, for there could not help intruding a mite of wonderment as to how the shiek intended to arrange for a "double" whenever the other fellow's fist was coming his way and a closeup for whatever punch he might himself land, if any.

Now, however, everybody will be glad that the Chicago newspaperman refrained from participating in the scene. There is no glory in beating up an appendicitis case, whatever may be the temptation. Besides, Rudolph has troubles enough, what with the certainty that they will not let him wear his slave bracelets in his hospital cot.

TAKING FRANCE'S FOOD.

One of the unfortunate consequences of the French financial crisis and the fall of the franc lies in the fact that foreigners are buying up large quantities of French food products, by paying slight advances on the market rates for them, yet in terms of their own money getting the foods for less than they could be bought in their own countries. Grain, fruit and milk are all being acquired by these speculators. So much milk has been exported to England, it is asserted, that the French now have to buy Holland cheeses, paying more than their home rates.

The consequences of such operations, unless means are found to stop them, will of course be a French food shortage.

It is not to be supposed that this condition can go on for long, but it has already lasted for a sufficient length of time to add one more item to the list of grievances of the French people against the dollar faunters.

SMITH AGAIN.

Al Smith is going to run for governor of New York again. He told the world so in a speech at Buffalo Saturday night. He said he didn't want the job, feared it would overtax his strength, thought he ought to have "some consideration" and was sure it wasn't good for the party to tacitly admit that it had but one candidate to offer—but would run if the Democrats insisted.

So that's that. Whatever alignments may suggest themselves in the Empire state, they will have to meet the condition that Smith is to be the candidate for governor.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 16.—The small "butter and egg men" get their inning on Broadway about this season of year.

Their "big butter and egg" brothers are "taken over" for theatrical enterprises when the winter show season starts. But every soda dispenser and taxi driver can get a play produced in the "dog days."

Hundreds of theaters line up, waiting for someone to come along with a play. It makes little difference what it is, or what its chances may be. Theaters can be had for little or nothing and anyone who has saved a few thousand dollars can enjoy the sensation of seeing his play produced.

Few, indeed, of the summer try-outs survive, though there have been accidents. And, certainly, this is a hazardous season in which to go to a theater without careful advance research.

In one warehouse may be found the remnants of all the fond hopes and dreams. You've heard of Cain's. That's the one place in Manhattan that stays crowded all year. All the heartbreaks of the theatrical world find their way to John Cain's store room. The van backs up at the stage door, the lights go out and away go the settings to this "no man's land."

It takes a six-story building to house the remnants of Broadway failures. When successes run out, they go there, too. And John Cain was a policeman. Something like half a century ago he decided that one could work up a healthy transfer business in the theater belt. So he took off his uniform, hitched up a truck and started in. He has made a fortune.

The "Throw Down"

Have you ever seen an album that was born in years gone by, in days when famous ty-typers were quite pleasin' to the eye? When ol' grandfather posed for shots, he stood and held his breath. 'Twas solemn then, but, say, today, you'd laugh yourself to death.

Fair grandma wore a bonnet that would make a dozen now. A feather perched upon it and they called it style somehow. Her skirts hung down just far enough to show her pantaloons. The sleeves upon her shirtwaist always puffed out like balloons.

There is a South Sea island, the name of which is "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company and the chariots of a "Ben Hur." There are flower pots and artificial ferns that bow their leaves, heavy with dust. There are property stores.

and stage fireplaces; ball rooms and hovels; mummies and seashores; hillside and oceans.

A great deal is never claimed and then is sold for the amount of storage rent due. Dozens of theatrical brokers and agents come around daily looking over available material, most of which eventually finds its way into the "sticks."

—GILBERT SWAN.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

Washington, Aug. 16.—Headquarters of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is about the most optimistic place in Washington these days.

As the anti-prohibition folk see it, things have been breaking their way so fast recently that they actually believe—or profess to believe—they stand some chance of having a majority in the next Congress, which is more than they dared hope for until very recently.

They did look for gains, they say, and for victory in a number of statewide referenda, but not for a congressional majority earlier than two years hence.

The Senate's prohibition investigation and the prohibition angle of its slush fund inquiry laid a good foundation for moist campaigning, preliminary to the fall elections, spokesmen at wet headquarters observe, but they never expected to see such a super-structure on top of it as later developments have built there.

Andrews May Quit The sequence of events was rapid first came the lawyer run ring trial, with its revelation of coast-guard graft and of A. Bruce Bielaski as a dry under-cover man for the justice department at a salary of $13,200 a year, or $3,200 more than the next best paid man in the department except Attorney General Sargent, and within 11,800 of what Sargent himself gets.

Then followed unofficial but almost certainly authentic confirmation of reports that Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews will resign as dry czar, as soon as he returns from England, on the ground that prohibition is unenforceable without stricter laws than now exist, which seems an impossibility, inasmuch as so dry a congress as the present one failed to enact them at its last session.

Finally came the suspension by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Winston, of the northern California and Nevada prohibition administrator, Col. Ned Green, on charges of drinking still liquor, giving it to his friends and entertaining them at wet parties.

When it is considered that Green was Andrews' right hower and supposedly was slated to succeed him, it becomes apparent that this was extremely serious. The remark attributed to Green—"Sure I don't, I'm no lily, I'm a regular fellow"—did nothing to help matters.

The wet view is that the major happenings, in connection with the regular run of minor ones of a similar character will produce a decided reaction at the polls in November—a damp one.

Pat's Worries The Anti-Saloon League attitude is that enforcement never has been in the hands of prohibition's real friends, and that this is the explanation of its admitted laxity.

Flaws in enforcement, which is one of its duties, obviously is a embarrassment to the party in power. The opposition's embarrassment would be very gratifying to the Democrats if they themselves were not so badly split on the same issue. As it is, it annoys them quite as much as it does the administration.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE. BY ARTHUR N. PACK. President American Nature Ass'n. Here we have two inhabitants of our gardens which seem to come "out of nowhere into the here." We cannot visualize the process that makes it possible, in a few hours, for an organism so complicated as the mushroom to grow in a few hours from the plant long hidden underground. This mycelium or spawa, is the real plant, and that which grows up so quickly is fruit, the part which is to produce the new crop of spores which in these lowly plants take the place of seeds. This fine particles and making available for plant food the elements which form them. Trees no longer in a healthy state are likewise assisted in the process of disintegration and thus returned to dust. Mushrooms themselves, of course, are eagerly sought by man, and if they be well-bred, form a delicious component of many of his favorite dishes. In their selection, however, he must use knowledge, for many species are deadly in their action. Now mushrooms, or toadstools—for the terms are synonymous—serve other creatures than the toads that are popularly supposed to sit upon them. Here for instance is a garden snail, one of the kind which carries no visible shell, resting, or perhaps walking, for her locomotion seems not to expend any fatigue, on its broad surface. If we have the patience to trace back her trail perhaps we will find the little pocket of eggs which she has left beneath the last year's leaves.

EVA LE GALLIENNE KEEPS STERN DISCIPLINE ON SELF EVEN AFTER SUCCESS IS WON

New York, Aug. 16.—New York's oldest theater is about to become its newest. The same stage that saw Kate Claxton increase the blood pressure of her audiences in "The Still Alarm" will soon witness ultra-modern presentations of Tchekov's "Benevento," Galsworthy's "Goldoni" and Ibsen. And what is likely to prove the season's greatest novelty will be a fusion therein of those artistic and aesthetic ideals established by the Moscow Arts Theatre...

LOCAL BOY FAILS IN RIVER SWIM

Plans to Make Middletown But Only Negotiates a Mile Before He Quits.

Richard Whitcomb, local boy who attempted to swim the Connecticut river yesterday from Hartford to Middletown, was forced to give up the attempt when an old injury to his right knee made it impossible for him to proceed further. Whitcomb is sixteen years old, and has been living in Manchester but a few weeks. Young Whitcomb entered the river at State street in Hartford about 8.30 yesterday morning. Conditions were favorable for the swim. Whitcomb started out with a long overhand stroke, and seemed to be making good progress. As he passed an elevated point on the river bank near the Hartford Light and Power company, a local man who was watching said that Whitcomb should have made the swim easily, had nothing happened. After being in the water about an hour, and just as he was nearing Dutch Point, his right knee, which he had wrenched some time ago, began to pain him severely, and he was unable to proceed. He was assisted to the bank, where he said that he was not the least fatigued, but that his knee hurt him so he could go no further.

Fine Clothes Don't Make The Actress, Says Gloria

Gloria Swanson as she will appear as a member of the women's battalion in a picture based on the historic Russian episode.

New York, Aug. 16.—Gloria Swanson, producer, has decreed that Gloria Swanson, actress, shall forswear the lure of screen finery and substitute roles for robes. Whereas it has been the custom to emphasize the personal beauty and allure of the screen star, her self-imposed ruling is that henceforth the actress shall come first. She says she wants only stories giving her full opportunities to employ her particular talents. If, by chance, these stories necessitate finery and exploitation of beauty, very well! But as commander of her own company in her new venture as a member of United Artists she is to be a stern disciplinarian of Gloria Swanson, the actress. Compromise, she feels, plays too strong a part with artists whose convictions militate against freedom. In Riggs Next. By way of demonstrating this, she announces herewith for the first time that she will appear as a woman soldier in the historic Russian battalion of death. The picture carries the working title of "The Woman's Battalion of Death," but doubtless will be changed. In this, her habitment will be

BRITISHERS DOUBT TRUDY'S BIG SWIM

Tugs Did the Work, Tenor of Skeptics; Scent Trickery in Beating of Tide.

London, Aug. 16.—Gertrude Ederle's historic and record-breaking swim across the English channel has not entered the realm of controversy. The Westminster Gazette today publishes a lengthy article declaring that there is a keen controversy raging in the English and French channel ports relative to the merits of the swim. The Dover Express and East Kent News is quoted as saying: "So far little information has been given of the details of Miss Ederle's swim. The most extraordinary thing about it being that she made no westward drift with the ebb tide, which on the day in question ran westward for nearly seven hours." Horace Carey, trainer of Miss Mercedes Gietze, the London tylist who has failed to swim the channel, has issued a challenge to Miss Ederle to swim without the aid of tugs for more than a few hours on a day when the water is as rough as it was on the day in which she made her swim. Lord Diddell, through his newspaper "The News of the World," has offered $5,000 to any British man or woman who breaks Miss Ederle's record. Always Done, Says Skipper. Cape Gris Nov. 16.—The London press may make disparaging suggestions regarding Gertrude Ederle swimming the English channel, charging that she swam in the lee of the tug which served as protection from the seas, but around Cape Gris there is no lack of respect for the feat which Miss Ederle accomplished. "Since 1902," said Louis Certhes, captain of the tug Alsace, "I have accompanied thirty-three swimmers attempting to swim the channel, including Jabez Wolfe, on ten occasions. I have seen her swim done by her in a long time; an astonishing fact to one who watched the filming of it. She was under doctor's orders during the entire latter half of it. Count 'Banz' is attending to most of her business affairs and, while remaining quiet and getting much recreation, Gloria is doing a great deal of mental preparation.

GILEAD

Rev. Mr. Burnap of Hartford occupied the pulpit Sunday and preached from the text "What is Truth?" Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fish and Mrs. A. H. Post were Sunday visitors at Myron and Earl Post's in Silver Lake. Banks Jones were guests at Mr. and Mrs. Walter Batty's in Wapping Sunday. The Misses Doris and Lydia Hutchinson of South Manchester spent the week-end at Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jones'. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Foote visited her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hills in Willimantic Sunday afternoon. Miss Edith Ellis, who is employed in the office of the commissioner of Motor Vehicles of Hartford, is spending part of her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ellis. Tuesday is the day for the Sunday school picnic at Nordland's beach on Columbia Lake.

SAYS CANADA HATE FOR U. S. IS STIRRED

McKenzie King Accuses Conservatives of Trying to Start Prejudice Drive. Ottawa, Aug. 16.—Former Premier McKenzie King has tossed a bombshell into the bitter political campaign in Canada by charging that the leaders of the Conservative party are seeking to arouse a campaign of prejudice against the United States. "For themselves," King said, speaking of the Conservative leaders, "this attempt has come at a particularly inopportune moment. Every hotel in every city in Canada today is crowded with American tourists, who cherish only the kindest of feelings toward the people of the Dominion and who are spending their money very freely in all parts of our country. "The wholly unnecessary talk of annexation and the contemptuous terms in which many Conservatives refer to the United States breeds ill-will in a variety of directions; it is a cheap sort of business at best, and the party driven to appeals of this kind can not wonder if its patriotic attitude is getting in the minds and hearts of the public, a resentment which makes itself felt in no uncertain manner."

BOLTON

Mrs. Howard Hart and children have returned to Cromwell after a week's visit at Mrs. R. K. Jones. Mrs. Frederick Taylor and daughter, Dorothy, have returned from a visit at Westboro, Mass. Miss Ruth Jones was a week-end guest of Miss Louise Phelps. Cape Gris Nov. 16.—The London press may make disparaging suggestions regarding Gertrude Ederle swimming the English channel, charging that she swam in the lee of the tug which served as protection from the seas, but around Cape Gris there is no lack of respect for the feat which Miss Ederle accomplished. The Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening was led by Elizabeth Bertsch. His subject was "How can we prevent waste?" The concert given Friday evening in the church by the Julius Hart School of Music of Hartford, was a great success financially, nearly $80 being cleared for the Columbia Improvement Association. Only human beings and certain kinds of apes have flat nails on their fingers and toes.

HEBRON

During the severe thunderstorm of Thursday afternoon a ball of fire, so-called, exploded in the vicinity of Selectman Claude W. Jones' barn. Robert Schuyler who is employed on the place was partially shocked but recovered. A tree was struck and splintered to pieces in Hebron. A representation from this place attended the committee meeting held in Rockville to plan for the coming Nathan Hale celebration to be held in South Coventry, September 22. Mrs. N. C. Johnson and children and Mrs. Robert Coodrich recently spent two days with Mrs. Henry Higgins in East Hartford. Miss Annie Deasy, a former resident of this town, who is spending a month's vacation with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Lynde Porter in Columbia, visited her sister, Mrs. Edward Fredericks, in Hebron one day recently. Robert Will of Mansuocock, N. Y., is the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. T. D. Martin at the rectory. Mr. Will is a student at Wesleyan and has been spending a month at Camp Hazen in Chester. Several from this place attended the concert given in Columbia by the Julius Hart School of Music. Benjamin Bissell who has spent most of the summer here has gone to New Haven and will return to California soon. He goes to his former position of instructor of English at the Southern Branch of the University of California. As there was no service at the Center Congregational church on Sunday many of the members attended the service in Gilead, the Rev. Mr. Barnes of Hartford officiating. Others attended the services at St. Peter's church. At the latter service the Rev. T. D. Martin gave an interesting sermon on the sin of gossiping. James Martin of East Hartford was present and sang a solo as part of the offertory. Ruth and Kenneth Ellis of Gilead were week end visitors at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waldo. George E. Rix of South Manchester was a visitor in this town on Sunday, attending the morning service at St. Peter's church. The recent thunder storms have put many of the telephones in this vicinity out of commission. Frank Bissell of East Hampton was the guest of his sister, Mrs. W. O. Searns, for the week end. There was no Christian Endeavor service in either Gilead or Hebron Sunday evening. The Gilead society accepted an invitation to unite with the Andover society and the Hebron members were invited to attend a missionary meeting at the Colchester service, when a returned missionary from China made an address. Morris Friedman of New York, his two sons, Frank and Lillian are spending a week with friends in town.

The story was adapted from George Gibber's celebrated novel, "The Yellow Dove." "The great deception" of the title is the successful ruse practiced upon the German military authorities during the recent World War by a young Englishman in winning a commission as a member of the German Secret Service while actually a member of the British espionage bureau. Ben Lyon plays the role of a war ace, Miss Pringle, who has the leading feminine role, also

In the next instant a dozen stout arms were toiling at the wall the man had built up to hide the body.

The work of the police was quick, and the wall, which had been rebuilt none too stoutly, soon fell completely with a shower of bricks.

There stood the corpse, erect before the eyes of the police. And, perched upon its head, with "red extended mouth and solitary eye of fire, sat the hideous beast." The master had walled up the monster within the tomb!

HOW COME

JIMPSON WEED and PEARL HANDLE live in OMEGOMY, OHIO. JIMP makes a million dollars with a new idea for killing flies. He paints one fly red, white and blue, and the others cheer themselves to death.

One day while JIMP is thinking about something else, PEARL up and marries him. They decide to spend their honeymoon together.

PEARL'S FATHER, Mr. Handle, follows them about the country and shoots at JIMP. This leads JIMP to suspect the old man doesn't like him.

DETROIVE GUMSHOE and MRS. GUMSHOE also trail JIMP and PEARL. They have been hired by MR. HANDLE to bust up the match.

JIMP and PEARL become lost in MAMMOTH CAVE. It's almost dinner time and they haven't had much to eat since lunch. So they stretch out and prepare to die.

ANOTHER CHAPTER CHAPTER XIII "HELP! Help! Help!" shouted JIMP into the darkness of the cave. But his voice only reverberated from unseen crull.

His echo returned, mockingly hollow. "No use, Jimp. No use," moaned Pearl. "We must have stayed into an unexplored part of the cave."

Two small fiery points peered at them now and then, evidently the eyes of a bat. A rattlesnake dislodged a rock nearby, and it went bounding into a bottomless chasm.

The air was damp, chilly, moist, almy. "We mustn't die, Pearl," whispered Jimp. "I'll have $300,000 to spend."

"If we could offer it for a reward," suggested Pearl, hopefully. "I'll try," said Jimp. He shouted into the empty darkness, "Eight hundred thousand dollars reward to any one finding me!"

The amount was large. There are people in Florida and California who don't make as much as $300,000 in a week.

But Jimp got no answer. There was no one to hear him. "Well," said the dying man to his dying wife, "this is the end. We are lost in Mammoth Cave. No one can find us."

"Yes," said the dying bride to her dying husband, "we are lost in Mammoth Cave and no one can find us."

"I wish I had some life insurance," whispered Jimp. The dying man and his dying wife were started by a rush of feet. Lights came bobbing from every direction.

Mammoth Cave promised with insurance agents. "Arawmed me," said the first arrival, "that you won't do anything in the way of insurance."

His head buzzed as he went about his window washing.

Can't pay my hotel bill." "Too bad," smiled the manager. "Hurry up with your breakfast. The window need washing. You'll find a pall in the kitchen."

Jimp smiled a little sadly. In one night he had gone from millionaire to window washer.

"Run along to your room," said he to his wife, Pearl. "I must be about my work."

In a few minutes they stood outside the cave, the blue sky above them once more. It was great to be free. But they were broke. Jimp had spent his $300,000 on insurance.

The hotel at Cave City is a large semi-Colonial structure, looking more like an expensive private residence. A wide, airy porch extends across the front and is known as a veranda. Here the guests sit in hickory chairs and gaze idly at the street of Cave City. You never can tell when someone is going to pass. Very often people pass two, and sometimes three at a time.

The hotel is famed for its southern cooking. It specializes in hot biscuits. Jimp and Pearl were seated at breakfast, busily engaged in surrounding a plate of these biscuits smeared with butter.

"Narrow escape you had," said the manager, approaching on foot. "Yes," said Jimp. "Narrow escape."

"I understand," said the manager, "that you were saved by a gang of insurance agents."

"Yes," said Jimp, becoming uncomfortably suspicious. "Quite clever," smiled the manager. "No matter where you are, if you want insurance those boys will locate you."

"Yes," said Jimp. "I was glad to have the dern insurance."

"Yes," said the manager. "It's good stuff for you. Spent all your money for it, didn't you?"

"Yes," admitted Jimp. "Spent all my money for insurance. Broke now."

back aches. What a swell honeymoon this turned out to be. "Quit your blamed kicking," snapped Pearl, who up until now had put up a brave front.

"Who's kicking?" cried Jimp, his nerves raw. "I'll kick somebody in somebody's eye."

"Meaning me?" asked Pearl, calmly grabbing the pan of dishes and smashing them over the unfortunate husband's head.

"What's this? What's this?" cried the excited manager, attracted to the scene by the noise of the falling dishes.

"What's what and who wants to know?" smiled Pearl. "Why did you break those dishes over Jimp's head?"

"Because he's my husband." "Oh," said the manager, apologizing. "I forgot." So he departed. Pearl had become a hard boiled egg. But Jimp was only slightly addled. His head buzzed as he went about his window washing. The blow had started something. He was thinking.

"Hello Pearl," said a voice at Pearl's elbow. "Detective Gumshoe," exclaimed Pearl. "What brings you here?"

"I am with you always," blushed Gum. "I have watched you since you married Jimp because I love you. He's broke. Come, flee with me."

"Flee with you?" said Pearl, considering the proposition. "You mean you want me to chase you?"

"No," sighed the new lover. "I want to take you away from here. Seeing your beautiful hands in that dishwasher is like a dagger in my heart."

Gum was a handsome gentleman. He was almost as handsome as Jimp. Intuition told Pearl he loved her. Should she flee?

Jimp, busy washing windows and thinking, was annoyed by someone pinching his leg. "Stop that," said he, looking down from his ladder.

It was Mrs. Gumshoe. "Hello, sweetheart," said the fast worker. "Climb down a minute. I have a huge hug for you."

Jimp climbed to the top of the ladder and sat there, at bay. "Come to me," coaxed Mrs. Gum. "Come Jimp, come Jimp. Come flee with me," quoth the she-devil.

"Not so loud," whispered Jimp. "My wife will hear you."

(Author's note: Apologies are due for the conclusion of this otherwise perfect chapter.

Mr. Handle, Pearl's father, was supposed to dash into the hotel and shoot at Jimp, or at least have Jimp cornered on top of the ladder.

But there is a cobblestone road just outside of Cave City. The old man lost his false teeth on this road, and stopped to hunt them. He finally found the teeth over in a patch eating watermelons.

Too late today, Mr. Handle will be with us tomorrow.

UNDISMAYED BY 8-2 REVERSAL, SHAMROCK MEET COLORED STARS

Springfield Wicos Romp to Easy Win When Errors Pave the Way—Prentice to Pitch Tomorrow Night.

The Shamrocks bit off more than they could chew yesterday in the Springfield Wicos who came here and romped away with the long end of an 8 to 2 triumph. Six errors paved the way for the Shamrocks' downfall.

Old Dan Smith essayed to pitch for Manchester and the fans were happy. The gladness was short-lived, however, as in the third inning Smith was replaced by Bill McLaughlin after the visitors had piled up a four to nothing lead. It wasn't Dan's fault though as much as it was the ragged support he was given. Graff and Pitt both contributed a pair of bobbles and these played a big part in the downfall of the Shamrocks although the other two errors made by Mantelli and Brownell did not help the cause along any.

The Wicos lived up to the advance hope regarding their ability. The large crowd of fans which saw the contest were well satisfied that the visitor's rank had not been overrated. The Wicos hit and hit hard as the box score will attest. And what's more the top of their batting order was the group that led the assault. Usually this paves the way to victory.

Mantelli and Brennan drove out three hits apiece.

Colored Stars Tomorrow

Tomorrow night the crack Hartford Colored Stars who were supposed to come here last week, will play at the Community Grounds in a twilight game. The visitors' lineup will be: C. Willis, ss, Jackson, 2b, Hughes, 1b, McIntee, lf, Jones, rf, J. Willis, cf, Hickman, c, Strong p.

Burke, of Rockville, will appear at short for the Shamrocks. Joe Prentice will be on the firing line. The box score of yesterday's tilt follows:

Hartford, Aug. 16.—The Grays took a double header from Hartford here yesterday 2-1 and 3-1. Although both games were well played, Hartford failed to take chances Providence left wide open. In the opener Hartford had 8 men left on bases.

Morrison's single with two on, Wight's home run over the left field fence, and errors accounted for the Grays' three runs in the second game.

SIPPLES' HOMER WITH MAN ON HELPS SONS IN SHUTOUT GAME

Sons of Italy Defeat Taftville by 5 to 0 There Yesterday—Fisher Retires Batters in Order for Seven Innings.

Fisher appeared in rare form for the Sons of Italy against the J. B. Martin team in that town yesterday and administered the whitewash brush to the tune of 5 to 0. Although the locals made only five hits they made every one of them count for runs by clever base running and extra bases.

Timely hits by Fisher, Walllett, Zwick and Sipples brought in the tallies and Walllett caught one of his best games of the season, catching three men stealing second. LeBell made a sensational catch of a line drive that would have been a home run and the local man received a tremendous ovation from the fans at Taftville.

Sipples only got one hit yesterday but that was a drive that went over the center fielder's head. The local man was home before the ball had been returned to the infield. Zwick, who was on second, came home on the hit. Sipples was robbed out of another homer when the center fielder stuck up one hand to spear his hard hit.

Fisher was the dominant figure of the day and only three men faced him in seven of the nine innings. The summary:

Sons of Italy
LeBell, lf . . . 4 0 0 4 0 0

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Chick Galloway, stellar shortstop of the Athletics, has been in the 500 circle as a batter just once. That was in 1922 when he hit .324. He played every game that year.

In the other campaigns the Mackie has batted anywhere from .202 to .278, hitting the latter mark in 1923. His best work as a run-scoring was in 1922 when he counted 83 times.

Galloway joined the Mackian forces in the latter part of the 1919 chase. He came from Atlanta in the Southern Association where his fielding had attracted considerable attention.

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are:

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."

PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose domestic life is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom Pat Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

Fay took JUDITH, the baby, to visit her parents in Washington, and during her absence John "ran around" a good deal, mostly in company with Pat Forbes. When Fay returned gossip had related some of his doings and sharp quarrels between him and Fay followed, one of which drove him "out on a tear."

Fay, learning he had been out again with other women, threatened to leave him if it was repeated.

John becomes aware that people are talking about him, and NATHANIEL GRAM, his partner, charges his actions are damaging the firm's reputation.

Vera Boyd invites John to tea, and there he finds Nell Orme. He realizes the danger of this, as he is aware of Vera's propensity for promoting "affairs."

Nevertheless, he goes again, and this time he hadly takes Nell in his arms.

Fay, learning of it, says she is leaving him. He tries to dissuade her, but she goes through with it and departs with Judith for Washington. John, left alone, goes to DICK MENEFEE, his best friend, and tells him the story. He announces to Dick that he intends leaving town.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XLVII MENEFEE looked at John for quite a while before replying. Finally, "That," he remarked quietly, "strikes me as a particularly astute thing to do."

"You think so?" John challenged him. "Why?"

"Why do you want to run away? Why make a fool of yourself because you have some trouble on your hands?"

"I'm tired," John said sharply. "I'm tired of having my affairs goseped about. I'm sick of it all. A few more hours and the town's tongue waggers will be heading most mortems on the remains of the Milburns' romance. Damn it, talk is what started this whole mess. I'm sick of it. I want to get away from it. I'm sick of it—sick of it."

In his anger he was striding violently across the room, striking his fist in his palm, banging it against Menefee's desk.

Dick looked at him pityingly. Unseen by John, he shook his head and muttered, "It was out of the question, at his mustache. He took his watch from his pocket, opened the case and stared, as if half expecting inspiration, at the picture of Margaret he carried there."

"Look here, John," he said finally. "Sit down and let me talk to you. You don't want anybody butting in on this thing. All right. But I am going to start butting in when you talk about leaving town. You've got a good business here—"

"And a hell of a partner," John put in bitterly.

"All right. Let that pass. If you don't like him, some day you'll probably split with him, and you'll see that he'll be the better off for it. But I'm not going to sit back and see you sacrifice yourself on the altar of pride, or resentment, or whatever it is. You're going to stick. Hell! You talk as if you haven't any friends here in Chicago. You're crazy. What if a few people do talk about you? Most of us here know you for what you really are, don't we?"

In a sudden blind rage, John leaned over and slapped his face.

John, his face buried in his hands, looked up to say that he was tired and roused him to feel equal to the task of carrying on.

"Then go off some place for a few days and take a rest," Dick told him. "No, you'd better not do that either. I don't want you alone with your thoughts. Look here, I'm your physician, am I not?"

John nodded.

"Then you do what I tell you to do. Go back to the office and work as hard as you know how. Try to forget everything but work. And report to me once every day. First thing you know you'll be going to pieces. I know your newspaper and advertising men. You're a high-strung, nervous lot. You keep in touch with me."

His words, sharply spoken, fell on John with the effect of a whiplash and roused him to action. He rose to his feet and stared at Menefee contemptuously.

"I don't know whether you know what you're talking about or not," he said, "but I'll try it—for a while, at least." He struck out his hand.

As late dinner downtown and got home late that night, and though he was not sure, he thought he detected the shadowy outlines of Mrs. Blodgett's figure at her window.

What to do about the house troubled him as he tossed fitfully on his bed. It was out of the question, of course, to remain living here, where constant reminders of Fay and Judith met him on every hand. Then there was another worry. The matter of raising the $3000, although he had said nothing to Fay about it, had not been so easy. It had necessitated draining his savings and checking accounts at the bank and he had to ask for a heavy advance from the firm, at which Max Graham, though he said nothing, had frowned.

As it was, he was pretty well plashed financially, with another payment on the mortgage coming due shortly. He wondered whether it wouldn't be a good idea to try borrowing some money from a bank on personal credit. He couldn't very well put the house up as security, without Fay's consent. No, it would be worse while trying just to see if he could raise some money on the strength of his name. No telling when he would need it, and it would still, he hated to come to Blodgett with a request like this, but he supposed business was business. Briefly, he outlined what he wanted. He wanted to establish his personal credit, and would the bank be willing to lend him a thousand dollars on the strength of his name?

Blodgett heard him patiently, a thin smile on his cold features. How funeral he looked, John was thinking. "No security at all!" Blodgett was saying.

"No. I've got some, of course. There's the house, you know." "But you'll have to have your wife's signature for that."

"Well," John said sharply, "what's to prevent me from getting it if I want it?"

Blodgett said nothing, but smiled mysteriously and nodded to himself, an act that for some unaccountable reason irritated John, although he tried to bring himself to speak calmly.

"What I want to do," he said, "is to see whether my credit is good without security. After all, you know, I've done business at this bank for a number of years, and I've got a good credit record here."

"Yes, yes, I know," Blodgett was saying. "But, of course, that isn't exactly easy to do, you know."

"Why not? You get your six per cent, don't you?"

A sardonic grin overspread Blodgett's features. "Of course—when we get it."

"What do you mean?" This fellow Blodgett was going a little too far, John hated innuendo.

"Just this, Mr. Milburn," and Blodgett leaned forward a little, still drumming on his desk with the pencil. "In case of a personal loan, the important thing is character."

"I understand that, of course. Do you mean to insinuate that mine—"

"I'm not insinuating anything," Blodgett retorted sharply. "I'm going to tell you pretty bluntly that your character is not all that it should be."

It was like a blow in the face to John. He sprang to his feet. "Just what do you mean, Blodgett? You'd better be pretty careful when you talk like that."

Blodgett was not very clear, but John realized that he was mumbled something about "midnight revels" and "drinking." "And, of course," he added boldly, "I ain't any secret, it is, that your wife has left you."

John forgot himself completely. All he could think of was that this man sitting in front of him was insulting him—insulting him and seeming to enjoy it. In a sudden blind rage he leaned over and slapped Blodgett's face. The other recoiled, threw his arm up and John turned on his heel and left the office. Blodgett, speechless with anger, was rubbing his face.

"It takes a big man or a big woman to triumph over success."

He decided not to do anything about the house for the present, merely shut it up and leave it. Later, he supposed, he'd have to sell it, but Fay first would have to be consulted, and that could wait.

Such was the intensity of his concentration that at Monday noon he looked up from his desk and found himself with no work whatever on his hands. Everything had been cleaned up. He made a hasty exit from the office and made directly for his bank, determined to get that matter of a loan settled right away.

He stated his business at the first teller's cage, and presently found himself in a quiet business-like atmosphere. He was waiting. Everything was pleasant enough so far, he told himself, and then he looked up sharply at the man who was coming in the room with an inquiring smile on his face. It was Henry Blodgett. He suddenly remembered now that, after all, Blodgett was in the loan department of his bank and he shouldn't be surprised to see him what you want to do, and what you know is right. And don't leave God out of your life. If you do, the whole business of living will be hopeless."

Biographies of great men, not great merely in their achievements, but in their manner of living, are always an inspiration, particularly the biographies of those who have struggled, who have made mistakes, who have failed, and have finally attained success.

Best of all is the story of the man who keeps on working after success comes. Instead of enjoying the ease he has earned, he continues to give the world the benefit of his experience and to pass on to others the lessons he has learned.

It takes a big man or a big woman to triumph over success.

MEN? OH, WELL? London.—Men are of some use after all! So the National Federation of Women's Institutions has declared. At a recent meeting a resolution was adopted urging more "co-operation with the men, especially with regard to choral and dramatic societies." The mere male receives few bouquets at meetings of the Federation, and even this one has been striking on it. It was the only fear of Mrs. Amy Adams, who moved the resolution, that the men would say that "at last the women have admitted they need men's help."

THE BEAUTY DOCTOR BY NINON.

Virginia Magee at the brush. CONDITION—Rough, pimply skin on the upper arms. DIAGNOSIS—Probably the diet is at fault, certainly the circulation is and it must be improved. TREATMENT—You need a flesh brush; either one with strong, firm bristles, or one of the rubber scrubbers. Use a pure soap, very warm water and scrub the skin until it is pink and glowing. Rinse first in lukewarm water, then in cold, and follow with an ice rub. Then dry thoroughly using a coarse towel that will induce much friction. Be sure to dry thoroughly, as pimples may result from hasty drying.

HER OWN WAY

JOAN IS BUSINESSLIKE.

"Oh," Joan exclaimed as though she were interrupting some one. "Of course, I am very sorry that Mr. Elkins has been ill, but I am sure if he is able to see you now, he will be able to see Dad and me. I wish you would tell him that I am coming to see him tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. If he is not able to see me, I understand that his son has taken over much of his legal business, and I think that he might make the settlement of Dad's and my estate."

There was another silence on the part of Joan and then she said, excitedly: "No, I cannot possibly wait until next week, as I hope to be on my way to Europe by that time. If Mr. Elkins is able to see you, he will see Dad and me, and I believe, Dad, you have another attorney."

"The reason I didn't tell you I was going abroad was because I did not know it until today. I might as well tell you now that Dad will also want a large sum of money because he is going to make an expedition into Africa right away."

Joan listened again and then answered: "No, I am not at home. I have been out all day. But I am leaving the Blackstone immediately and will probably be home before you. In any case I want you to tell Mr. Elkins or his son that I want to

Good Nature and Good Health

SPINAL MENINGITIS BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING

Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

Cerebro-spinal meningitis caused by a germ which produces inflammation of the spinal cord and the membranes covering the brain.

While the disease is regarded as being proportionately more frequent among children, epidemics have shown that older persons are attacked, at the beginning of the epidemic, just as frequently. It is most prevalent in cold climates during the winter and spring and seems to attack principally those living in over-ventilated or overcrowded houses.

Spread by Carriers It is believed now that this disease is most often communicated by "carriers," persons who are not ill, or only slightly ill, but have the germs of meningitis in their noses and throats. "Spotted fever," as it sometimes is called, begins with a convulsion or chill followed by pains in the muscles, headache, fever, rapid pulse, increased respiration, vomiting and delirium. Small hemorrhages under the skin have given it the name of spotted fever, but these marks are not always present.

Checking Disease Mortality from spinal meningitis remains high, but it has been greatly reduced by early and prompt treatment with a specific serum.

When patients are treated at their homes, isolation of the cases should be enforced by having the patients in a well ventilated and well lighted room which has been cleared of all unnecessary furniture. Most important of all is the examination of those who have come into contact with the sick, or have been exposed in any way. They should receive medical attention daily.

A WOMAN'S DAY ABROAD

BY ALLENE SUMNER

Rome, Italy, Aug. 16.—"And believe me when I come the next time, I'll have no baggage—just the duds on my back!"

Europe. We have found but one station in almost constant travel over three nations where porters were permitted to board trains at stations and take luggage off.

The accepted method is for one-half of one's party to betake itself to the platform while the other faction hurls baggage through the compartment window at 'em or on 'em, smash what will.

Not so much fun when one has attempted to loot the shops of potteries and pictures and perfumes, all that the old family pocket book will stand, heavy though the result may be!

Then one pays the porter by bag, something like 15 cents a bag, which does not seem so much, but after the first hundred moves might have bought a gorgeous Roman scarf or Florentine bag.

One pays per bag, also in the taxis, and one finds oneself growing more and more reluctant to move on to farther climes with the baggage problem eternally haunting one!

The very smartest American I have found in Europe is a Boston professor who is traveling utterly sans baggage save for a brief-case wherein are tucked a toothbrush and one specimen of the family B. V. D. Professorial.

He buys soap, cough drops, shoe strings, handkerchiefs, shaving cream as he needs it, or them. He estimates that he is in no way extravagant by throwing his various purchases away when contrasted with the cost of baggage if he had it.

He is the merriest, happiest, traveling soul, pushing on from one unknown place to another, walking the highways and byways, as free to roam when and where he will as the ubiquitous Italian flea.

One dark and cool traveling costume is about all one needs, anyway. Travelers are accepted at par value and nothing more is expected of them. I have not seen one dress hat among the traveling herd yet!

HANG IN SHADE. When airing sofa pillows do not hang them in the sun, as this brings out the oil from the feathers. Select rather a shady spot with a light breeze.

CHEER UP ROOM. Printed calico in bright colors and small patterns makes delightful curtains for a summer home.

WOMAN INJURED AS AUTOS CRASH Driver Arrested After Accident Here—Two Hurled Through Windshield.

Charged with reckless driving following a crash at the corner of Oak and Spruce streets yesterday afternoon, Carl C. Leconde of Maple avenue, Hartford, was arrested by Officer John McGilinn at the scene of the accident.

The crash involved a Hupmobile sedan driven by Leconde and a Ford roadster driven by Joseph N. Charter of Vernon. Leconde's car was going west on Oak street at about 3.30 yesterday afternoon and the Ford was traveling south on Spruce street. The machines came together at the intersection of the streets, inflicting considerable damage to both cars.

Auto Turns Over. The Hupmobile, after hitting the Ford, skidded about 27 feet and turned over on its side. Charter and his companion, Mrs. Ethel Heffron of Cooper street, were thrown through the windshield of the Ford and landed on the pavement. Mrs. Heffron was picked up and taken to the Memorial hospital with a gash on her right knee, a cut on her forehead and a bruise on the back of her head. Her injuries were not serious and after having had them dressed she was discharged from the hospital.

Eyewitnesses' Story. According to witnesses, Leconde's car was going at a fast rate of speed and a collision was unavoidable. Officer McGilinn said that the automobile skidded 44 feet before the crash after the driver had applied his brakes and then skidded 27 feet after striking the Ford. The rear end of the Ford was badly damaged, the right rear wheel being smashed, the tire on the other wheel blown completely off the rim, and the fenders badly bent. The windshield was smashed to pieces and the body of the car damaged.

Damages to the Hupmobile consisted of a broken fender and broken windows on the side on which the machine landed when it tipped over.

Another young woman, who refused to give her name, was rescued from drowning at the Globe Hollow swimming pool on Saturday by William Marks of School street, who was swimming there at the time. Marks swam about 20 yards to reach the girl and carry her to safety.

The girl was swimming at one side of the pond a short distance from the platform on which are located the diving boards. She had gone out too far and when she tried to touch bottom, went under. Marks saw her predicament, dived from the raft and was at her side in a few moments.

CHENEY PENSIONER DEAD; 88 YEARS OLD

William Dalton Passes Away Suddenly at His Home on Hartford Road.

Another of Cheney Brothers' pensioners is dead. William Dalton, aged 88, of 396 Hartford Road, died suddenly Saturday. Death was caused by heart trouble. His death came as a surprise. He had been in apparently good health considering his age. The night before he died, Mr. Dalton was about the house as usual.

Mr. Dalton had lived in Manchester for over fifty years. He was born in Ireland. His work at Cheney Brothers which covered a span of many years, was in the Dye House. He was retired on a pension twenty years ago.

His survivors are two daughters: Miss Catherine Dalton, who lived with him, and Mrs. Hamlin Fish, of Hartford; three sons: William Jr., James and John Dalton; six grandchildren and three great grandchildren all of whom live in Manchester.

The funeral services were held at the late home and the St. James' church this morning. Burial was in the St. Bridget's cemetery. The funeral service was largely attended this morning both at the home and at the St. James' church. There were many floral tributes. Mr. Dalton was one of the oldest residents of Manchester.

As the body casket was borne into the church, "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung. At the offertory Mrs. Claire Brennan sang "Ave Maria" and as the body was taken from the church James Breen sang "When Evening Comes."

The bearers were Patrick Fraher, Michael Foley, Phillip Shaw, Stephen Horan, Thomas Hillery and Patrick Ryan.
