Unusual Accident Occurs During Draining of Union Pond—Victim May Be Hurt Seriously.

Hurled 25 feet by a flying lever in the gatehouse this morning at the Union Pond, Charles Wardwell of 64 Gardner street is in the Memorial hospital probably seriously injured. His condition is such that he cannot be examined at the present time to determine the extent of his injuries although he did not lose consciousness.

Wardwell, an employee of the millwright department of Cheney Brothers, was working in the gatehouse at the pond, opening the water gates that control the flow to the power house on North Main street. It is said that the gate, which is actuated by a lever and gear arrangement, became stuck and Wardwell put more than the usual pressure on it.

Taken to Hospital
It released suddenly and carried the man with it in its way and threw him down an opening in the gatehouse floor to the weir under the building. He fell to the water and was picked up by other employees who were working on a platform near the weir. He did not lose consciousness but seemed to be seriously injured and was taken immediately to the hospital. The gatehouse contains machinery to operate three water gates from the pond. Two men were working on the other machinery and Wardwell was working on the third. It is said that gates had not been operated in some time and for that reason were operated with difficulty.

Accident Unavoidable
"It was an unavoidable accident," said John Hood, superintendent of the millwrights, "and no other of the hazards of this trade."

At present the pond is little more than a wide river running from its inlet at the Oakland Paper mill pond to the outlets at the powerhouse. Millwrights are cleaning out the dirt and mud which have accumulated at the base of the weir for more than 20 years. After this work is completed new gratings will be put in the weir.

SUSPECT POISONING OF THREE FOR INSURANCE

New Britain Man Third Victim Of Sudden Death on Farm In Massachusetts.

Dudley, Aug. 20.—While the body of Anatos Gelos, farmhand, formerly of New Britain, Conn., was exhumed today and an autopsy performed with the possibility of an autopsy on the body of another employee of the same farm, authorities were investigating a third death—that of an infant.

Both farmhands—Gelos and Frank Wilson—died shortly after, it is alleged, they had taken out life insurance. They were employed on the farm of Joseph Shirka, a former resident of New Britain.

The autopsy on the body of Gelos was performed in an effort to determine if Gelos had been poisoned. The cause of Gelos' death last Saturday had been given as lodgement of a piece of meat in the throat.

Wilson died two months ago, ostensibly from alcoholism and stomach ulcers.

EIGHT OF FAMILY DROWN IN SMACK FOUNDING

Madrid, Aug. 20.—A dispatch from Coruna says the fishing boat Eitel Vina, from the port of Pasajes, foundered in a storm today the loss of the entire crew of eight persons, owner five sons and two nephews. The pilot of a rescue boat was also drowned.

Though He Is Blind His Heart's Not Sad; Versifies Affliction

Here is a character known to almost every man, woman and child in Manchester. He has been blind for almost ten years. In the heyday of his youth he entertained our fathers and mothers on the stage. He is a poet. A sort of George M. Cohan for the "Red, White and Blue" has always been the theme of his verses.

TRAVELERS REACH REMOTE SWANETIA

Philadelphia Pair Report Finding Civilization of 1,000 Years Ago.

Moscow, Aug. 20.—Interesting tales of the penetration of the forgotten country of Swanetia, "on the roof of the world," were told today by William stix Wassermann a Philadelphia banker, and his wife Marion, who appeared in Moscow after having been reported lost for three weeks in the Georgian wilds.

Wassermann claims that he and his wife penetrated the interior of forgotten Swanetia, where the inhabitants are said to be descended from the ancient Chaldeans.

Riding on horseback from Kutarsk, over two ranges of Caucasian mountains, 10,000 feet high, Wassermann said they reached Swanetia to find it situated on a hidden plateau 8,000 feet above the sea level. Weeks of hazardous adventure preceded the arrival in Swanetia, he said.

Welcome For Visitors
The Swanetians, numbering 12,000, received the Americans with a great welcome and gave them the keys to their ancient capital of Mestia.

Wassermann said, after they had demonstrated the forest Mrs. Wassermann was the object of much admiration, for she was the first white woman ever seen in Swanetia.

The Swanetians, who for a thousand years have repelled all intruders, probably maintain the world's oldest civilization according to Wassermann.

They were described as an extremely warlike people, but rigid in their puritanism, prohibiting all public love-making and signs of affection.

Wassermann went into Georgia seeking concessions, but he is now being hailed as the discoverer of a new country.

GAINES CONVICTED OF DAUGHTER'S MURDER

Seattle War Veteran Faces Death on Recommendation of the Jury's Verdict.

Seattle, Aug. 20.—Wallace C. Gaines, disabled war veteran, was found guilty of first degree murder in the death of his pretty 22-year-old daughter, Sylvia, Smith college graduate, whose battered body was found on the shores of Green Lake June 17.

The jury was out less than three hours last night when it returned and informed Judge Robert M. Jones that a verdict had been reached. The death penalty was recommended.

Gaines received the verdict calmly. The dead girl's body was discovered on the shores of Green Lake on the morning of June 17. Suspicion suddenly turned to the father. Ugly rumors concerning his alleged relations with his daughter were circulated. Gaines was finally arrested and formally charged with murder. He has steadfastly professed his innocence.

An alleged confession to a neighbor, Louis Stern, was the strongest evidence introduced against him. Another witness, however, testified that he saw Gaines about two miles from where Sylvia's body was discovered at about the approximate time the killing occurred.

NINETY LIGHTHOUSES FOR FLIERS ORDERED

Washington, Aug. 20.—Ninety huge 24-inch revolving aerial lighthouses have been purchased to facilitate night flying on seven government commercial routes it was announced today by William P. McCracken, Jr., aviation secretary of the Department of Commerce.

The lights, with a normal visibility of 50 miles during favorable weather, will be placed ten miles apart. Under ordinary conditions pilots will be able to see three or four of the lights while in flight.

2 SCORE INDICTED IN FLORIDA LAND FAKES

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 20.—Indictments on charges of using the mails to defraud stood today against Merle C. Tebbets, promoter of the Pulford-by-the-Sea and president of the Florida Cities Finance Co., and Arthur Dunas of Chicago, head of the Stanley Realty and Development Co., promoters of Arcadia Gardens, near Arcadia, Fla., and more than forty other officials and employees of the two companies.

Had Flown Channel MORE THAN 600 TIMES

Pilot of Wrecked Plane Long in Service—Hazards Still in Serious Condition.

London, Aug. 20.—Both Rev. Stanley Hazard and his sister, Miss Marguerite Hazard, of New York who were injured in the Paris-London passenger airplane crash at Romney Marsh, were still in a serious condition in the Folkestone hospital today. All other American airmen who were injured in the crash have been removed to Sandgate, and are improving.

Emile De Lisle, pilot of the plane who died of his injuries, had flown the channel more than 600 times.

CALLES GRANTS CHURCH'S RIGHT TO SEEK LAWS

Will Not Suspend Regula- tions, Though, as Change In Constitution is Made Legislative Objective.

Mexico City, Aug. 20.—President Calles, it is believed has opened the way for a possible future settlement of the religious controversy in a letter to the Catholic Episcopate declaring that he will not interfere with their efforts to secure legislative reforms.

The right to work in the legislature for such reforms was one of the requests made by the Episcopate in its recent letter to the president, and his reply would seem to indicate his willingness to meet the Episcopate half-way on all matters except the suspension of the existing laws.

President Calles promises the Episcopate a fair chance to attempt legislative reform, stating "I declare my intention of complying with my duty as a ruler and will not hinder your legal recourse to amendment to the laws. At the same time I point out that it is my intention not to evade discussion of these matters in congress."

Finds Encouragement
The Episcopate has not yet officially disclosed its view of the president's letter but it is semi-officially stated that it finds encouragement in the letter and hopes that it may eventually light the way to peace.

President Calles himself issued this letter to the press, reading it over carefully to the reporters and stressing his contention that he was following his interpretation of the laws to the utmost.

The president's letter in some circles was regarded as tantamount to a challenge to the Episcopate to lay the matter before the legislature and perhaps submit it to a future election.

In a formal letter addressed to Archbishop Moray del Rio and Bishop Pascual Diaz, the president flatly refused to consider a suspension of the government's religious regulations, as proposed by the bishops, until the congress has had an opportunity to act on the regulations.

Referred to Courts
Calles invited the bishops to take recourse to the nation's courts if the Episcopate considers the regulations unconstitutional, and to take the request for a revision of the regulations to the members of congress. The president declared that he would have nothing to do with the introduction or support of a bill looking to such revision, but said he would do nothing to hinder its introduction.

President Calles' letter to Archbishop Moray del Rio was in part as follows:

"You have rightfully exercised your right of petition by applying to one of those able to initiate the laws, but I must sincerely tell you that I am the least fitted person to undertake the constitutional abolitions and amendments requested, as the constitutional articles contended

AUTO THIEF TO ARGUE HABEAS CORPUS CASE

Man Serving Long Wethers- field Term His Own Lawyer In U. S. Court.

New Haven, Aug. 20.—Harry A. Bradley, of Meriden, is to appear before Judge Edwin S. Thomas in United States District Court here at 5 p. m. today to argue a plea for a writ of habeas corpus to release him from the state prison at Wethersfield where he is serving a 12 year term for automobile theft.

Bradley drew up all the legal papers in the case in his own hand writing in his prison cell. He commences his question in New York state, Connecticut has no jurisdiction. He will argue this point during the hearing today.

FLOODS IN OHIO ARE BECOMING SERIOUS

Columbus, O., Aug. 21.—With rain again forecast for today and Saturday and a number of rivers and streams in southern Ohio continuing to rise, flood conditions in many Ohio counties today took on a more serious aspect.

The flooded rivers and creeks have already taken a toll of five lives and caused heavy property damage.

Keans Lands Lightly on Jack Dempsey in Bout of Dollars

New York, Aug. 20.—Jack Keans today attached the funds of Jack Dempsey on deposit in the Harriman National bank. Dempsey, however, anticipating such action, had withdrawn most of his balance there.

The Keans attachment follows suit against Dempsey for $333,333 filed several days ago. Keans' first move, after filing of the suit, was to attempt to attach Dempsey's $15,000 automobile. He was too late there for Dempsey ducked the punch by transferring the car to his wife.

Dempsey's property in Los Angeles is not attachable for the reason that it is corporation holdings and is not owned individually by the champion.

TO FIGHT FOR BAIL IN HALL-MILLS MURDER.

An excellent photo-study of "Crazy Willie" Stevens, the brother of Mrs. Frances Hall "who never grew up", taken as he sat in Somerville, N. J., court listening to testimony connecting him with the murder of Dr. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills. At the right is Henry de la Bruyere Carpenter, New York stock broker, and "Willie's" cousin, who is held with him without bail on a murder charge. They are to start a fight for release on bail. Left, Sidney Carpenter, another cousin, who charges the revival of the case is "politics."

PLAN TO DEFEAT RUM ROW IN AIR

Fleet of Planes Building for Patrol of Waters off Long Island and Jersey.

Washington, Aug. 20.—An airplane blockade of "rum row" in the north Atlantic will be placed in operation by the Coast Guard service before the summer ends, it was learned at the Treasury department today.

Five modern airplanes, now under construction for the prohibition service, will be used to patrol the waters off Long Island and the New Jersey shore, it was said. The prohibition airplane base probably will be located at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., just off the mouth of New York Bay.

George P. Busch, Commandant of the proposed "North Atlantic zone", intended to include the area where the largest amount of rum smuggling is carried on, has left for New York for a series of conferences with prohibition chiefs of the various states.

The training academy for officers of the Coast Guard meanwhile will be transferred from New London to either New Bedford or Newport, it was announced. The change was made imperative by the increased personnel of the Coast Guard, due to its war on rum smugglers, and the limited quarters, available at New London.

Since the use of the Coast Guard cutters in prohibition work, it was stated, the number of planes at its disposal have been increased from 5,000 to 9,000 men.

The use of airplanes in the North Atlantic, officials said, was decided on after their use in Florida waters had proven a huge success. By the use of planes it was declared, the Coast Guard and prohibition units were enabled to effect scores of captures of rum ships plying their trade between islands in the Atlantic and Florida coasts.

WILL INDICT SCORES IN BANK WRECKING

Grand Jury to Accuse Many After Probe of Atlanta Trust Co. Fiasco.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 20.—"Indictments against scores of persons," will be returned here next week by the Fulton County grand jury in connection with the failure of the Bankers Trust Company of Atlanta, Solicitor-General John Boykin announced here today.

Boykin said the grand jury today is winding up its intensive investigation of the defunct bank financing company's affairs, which has been in progress for three weeks, and will devote most of the next week to the returning of indictments.

The bankers trust company was financial agent for a chain of 125 state banks and Georgia, more than 75 of which were forced to close when the concern went into receivership more than a month ago. Only one indictment has been returned so far, against W. D. Manley, president of the defunct concern.

MIDDLE HADDAM MAN FALLS INTO BOILING VAT

Employee of East Hampton Thread Plant Dying from Scalds in Hospital.

Middletown, Aug. 20.—Thomas Hopkins, 42, of Middle Haddam, is in a dying condition at Middletown hospital here this afternoon after having fallen into a vat of boiling water at the Summit Thread Company's plant at East Hampton.

The accident occurred in the wash room of the thread plant where rods are stretched above vats. Thomas walked across a pair of the rods to the heater to shut off the heat. As he turned around he slipped and fell into a vat. Fellow employees took him out.

BROWNIE COW ON LONG, LONG TRIP

Boss Bossy Starts on Show-Off Journey of 10,000 Miles to Visit Many Fairs.

Camden, Me., Aug. 20.—Gaily chewing her cud, with the blare of bands and the eloquence of orators still ringing in her ears, and wondering what it was all about, "Brownie," the "wonder cow" of Maine, started on a 10,000 mile journey today.

Admirers from twenty miles around came to give "Brownie" a send off, planned and executed by the local Chamber of Commerce.

"Brownie," whose home address is the weather-beaten barn of Ralph V. Cripps, who pastures on the rocky hills and who is a world's record for a grade Ayrshire, will follow this itinerary:

Ohio State Fair, Columbus, Ohio; Indiana State Fair, Indianapolis; Sequi - Centennial Exposition, Portland, Oregon; National Dairy Show, Detroit, and Pacific International Exposition, Portland, Ore.

U-S MAN WOULD RUN CANTON PROBE

Federal Atty. Bernstein May Take Direct Charge of Mellett Murder Case.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 20.—United States District Attorney A. E. Bernstein is willing to go to Canton and take charge of the Don R. Mellett murder investigation in person.

On the eve of his departure today on a three weeks' fishing trip in Canada, the district attorney informed International News Service that he has been the recipient of numerous requests from prominent Canton residents that he take complete charge of the Mellett case.

Might Get Release
"If the people of Canton will secure my release from my federal duties for two or three months, so I will be free to concentrate on the Mellett problem, I will gladly take charge of the whole probe," Bernstein said this morning, explaining that such a release would have to come from the attorney general of the United States.

A petition by Canton citizens might bring this release, Bernstein stated.

Has "Airtight Case"
"Don't think for a minute that the government hasn't an airtight case against the boys at Canton," said Attorney Bernstein. In my deal there are signed statements that will startle the country.

In each of these statements, names, dates and exact figures have been furnished the government that should be proof enough to any judge in the land.

Mazer, who is held on both a federal liquor warrant and a state murder charge, based his whole story to the investigators on being shielded no one, not even himself and he has implicated several of the most prominent figures in Canton.

Expects McDermott Story
"Carl Studer who went through a severe grilling smuggling, came through with his contribution and his statements will add much flavor to the case."

Bernstein expressed the belief today that Pat McDermott, missing keyman in the case would come forward in a few days and surrender and tell his story of what happened the night that the publisher of the Canton News was slain.

Canton, O., Aug. 20.—Preparing to break down the alibi of Louis Mazer, "rajah of the Canton Jungle," charged with the murder of Don R. Mellett, slain publisher of the Canton News, investigators of the Canton News, today planned to use the federal probe of the alleged liquor conspiracy conditions in Canton as a "springboard" from which to land the Mellett murder ring.

Expect Rush to Squal
When the round-up occurs, Canton investigators are confident, there will be scramble for preferred treatment and the complete inside story of the Mellett assassination will be revealed.

Joseph R. Roach, special investigator, asserted today he had several affidavits to prove Mazer and Policeman Florey E. Streitenberger had met within the past few months, Streitenberger, Mazer's alibi witness, now in Buffalo, N. Y., insisted he had not seen Mazer for three years until the night of the murder when he could account for his movements.

AT 101 WOULD DIVORCE NO. 7 TO MARRY NO. 8.

Santa Ana, Cal., Aug. 20.—Juan Magana has filed suit for divorce from Mathilda. Juan is 101 years old. His wife is 56. She is his seventh and Juan wants to be free to take an eighth because Mathilda has no affection.

U-S TRADE ABROAD BREAKS RECORDS

Heaviest Buying in Europe of Any Summer in the Last Five Years.

Washington, Aug. 2.—America's tremendous wave of national prosperity is spreading to the world market, it was revealed today by the Department of Commerce.

While American industry, commerce and agriculture show their surplus production into the world market at a pace exceeding all records since the World War, the department announced that American buyers also are purchasing far more heavily from abroad than in any other summer in the last five years.

The department's records showed that although industry generally is in the usual summer slump, as compared to winter months, both exports and imports for the last sixty days exceed the same figures for any similar period since 1920. The July trade was: exports, $369,000,000; imports, $338,000,000.

Buying Steel Abroad
An instance of the American buying abroad was indicated by reports on the iron and steel trade. In these lines, the imports in June totaled 124,215 tons, making a total of 612,329 tons for the first six months of the year. This volume smashed every record in history the department announced.

It exceeded the whole total iron and steel imports in 1924. Germany led in the shipments with Belgium, England and France not far behind.

The United States however, continued to be the center of the gold market, with $3,745,717,956 in gold coin and bullion in the federal treasury. It will take a lot of spending to affect this gold reserve.

TELLS STRANGEST STORY OF ATTACK

New Haven Woman's Tale of Negro Who Set a Fire and Sheared Her Hair is Doubtful

New Haven, Aug. 20.—Police here are investigating a strange story told by Mrs. Jacob Sobol, of 515 Orange street, who last evening was picked up by a policeman near her home in a hysterical condition and who, after being assaulted and robbed in her home by a negro, who had first set fire to a couch in her living room. She reported that she had lost two valuable diamond rings and $35 in cash though she did not remember them being taken.

She pointed to her head to show where several locks of her hair had been shorn away. Some of her hair was clutched in her hands when police arrived.

The alleged assault occurred when the woman's two daughters had gone for a walk, from which they returned within twenty minutes, and during her husband's absence from home. The Sobols live in a congested part of the town.

According to the detective bureau today, Mrs. Sobol's story is the strangest on records. It is being probed from every angle including that of a possible hallucination.

VALENTINO FACES 3 WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

New York, Aug. 20.—Further improvement today marked the condition of Rudolph Valentino, who is now considered by his physicians as definitely on the road to recovery.

Notwithstanding the star's improved condition, visitors still were barred from the sick room. Among those who were turned away from the hospital door were Gloria Swanson and her husband, the Marquis de Falaise. Valentino faces three more weeks in Polyclinic hospital. He is expected to pass the convalescent period at the summer home of Hiram Abrams, film magnate, at Poland Springs, Me.

SEVEN INJURED IN N. Y. SUBWAY TRAIN CRASH

New York, Aug. 20.—The transit commission today is investigating a subway crash last night in which seven persons were injured, three painfully when a south-bound express rumbled a stalled work train at 13th street and Lenox avenue.

The terrific force of the impact and the noise of breaking glass created a panic among the 400 passengers in the ten-car express.

SAYS JURY HEAD IN HALL CRIME OPPOSES PROBE

Simpson Won't Let Case Go To Indictment Hearing Till New September Grand Jury Is Called.

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 20.—"Willie" Stevens and Henry B. Carpenter, who have been held for the grand jury on charges of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, were in Somerset County jail today, while their attorneys planned to secure their freedom on bail.

The first official move by defense attorneys is to be made on Monday when an application for bail will be made before Chief Justice William E. Gummere in Newark.

Before Monday, Chief Justice Gummere will have an opportunity to review the records of the five men's preliminary hearing which ended yesterday. The complete record will be turned over to the chief justice, Simpson said.

No recommendation will be made to have Mrs. Hall committed to jail without bond, Simpson said. The decision of the chief justice after he has read all evidence will be satisfactory to the state, according to the prosecutor.

Charges Bias
The grand jury which will act on the murder charges will not convene until the third week in September. Action on the Hall-Mills case is not expected until after October 1.

Carl Hoagland, foreman of the April grand jury, as yet undismissed, is lashed in favor of the defendants. Senator Simpson has charged Hoagland is editor of a weekly newspaper published in Somerville and has attacked the prosecutor in his editorial columns, according to Simpson. Charges against Mrs. Hall include the phrase "the next grand jury" and it is held that she cannot legally be indicted by the April grand jury.

The isolation of the jail is welcomed by Stevens and Carpenter, their jailers said, as the two men were tired by the long hours in the court room and the continual stare of hundreds of spectators. Stevens, they said, missed the comfort of his old black and white companion in jail. Both men are in comfortable quarters and have their meals sent in. A barber from a Somerville shop comes in every morning to shave "Willie".

Stevens and Carpenter will be treated as other prisoners insofar as they will not be allowed to see visitors except on the regular visiting days of Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Visiting is restricted to two hours a day.

Several witnesses were to be questioned today by Simpson. The real work of clearing up the mystery has just started, he said.

Brooch Enter's Case
An antique brooch on which a cross is engraved may be an important clue in the Hall-Mills case. The brooch has been turned over to authorities and has been examined by a man named Tierse who lives near New Brunswick. It was found near the scene of the double murder a short time after the crime Tierse told investigators.

"We knew this brooch was missing and I believe its recovery will have an important bearing on the investigation," Senator Simpson said. The name of the owner of the brooch was not disclosed.

SEEK HOTEL REGISTER

Identities of 1922 Guests Who Left Pistol Key to Mystery

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—Authorities probing the Hall-Mills murder in New Brunswick, N. J. in 1922, began search here today for the register of the Alton hotel in South Philadelphia, for that year, believing that it will reveal the identity of four persons, two men and two women, who have direct knowledge of the dual slaying.

This followed a statement by William A. Winterer, security salesman, who last night related in detail the circumstances surrounding the finding of the pistol with which it is alleged the New Jersey clergyman and his choir singer were murdered and which he turned over to Lieutenant William H. Beshaw of the local murder squad after Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the double murder case, received an anonymous letter stating that "the death pistol and much valuable information could be obtained by showing the investigation's searchlight on Philadelphia."

With the information given by Winterer, detectives today resumed their hunt for the man who owned the hotel in 1922, hoping that he still may possess or know the whereabouts of the hotel register on which were inscribed the names of the two men and two women who occupied a room in the hotel, a few days after the New

ST. JAMES CHURCH DEDICATED JUST FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Land Donated by Cheney Brothers; Structure Cost $30,000; Took Two Years To Build; Some 'Pillars'.

50 Years Old Today

St. James' R. C. Church

How many readers of The Herald and members of St. James Roman Catholic parish are aware of the fact that St. James church was dedicated just fifty years ago today. The solemn ceremony of dedication took place on August 20, 1876, with the then Right Reverend Bishop presiding and with the completion of the dedication, solemn high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Thomas Kane of Valley Falls, R. I.; Rev. J. J. Furlong as deacon, Rev. P. Mulholland as sub-deacon and Rev. F. McCabe as master of ceremonies. The dedication discourse was pronounced by the Rev. Lawrence Walsh of Waterbury.

The work on St. James church began in 1874 and was completed in August, 1876. It was built at a cost of $30,000, with a seating capacity of 750. The land on which the church and rectory now stands, consisting then of one acre and valued then at $2,800, was the gift of Cheney Brothers who, it is stated, have contributed at intervals toward the parish.

The windows of the church represent our Saviour in life size and was the gift of John Walsh, the builder of the edifice. The windows on the epistle side are the gifts of Thomas Egan, Oliver Maxwell, Michael Walsh and Thomas Golden, while on the gospel side the windows are the gifts of William Dwyer, Denis Dunn, John Shaw and John Sullivan.

The early Catholic history of Manchester is connected with the mother church, St. Bridget's of the north end. It was here that the residents of the south end were shipped for a period of years and Father Campbell, who died in 1890 and who was pastor of St. Bridget's parish, was buried in front of St. James church, a splendid monument marking his last resting place.

The first pastor of St. James parish was the Rev. Daniel Haggerty, who for eight years previous had been assistant to Father Campbell at St. Bridget's. Father Haggerty took charge of St. James parish on November 21, 1890. He built the present parsonal residence at a cost of $5,000 toward which Cheney Brothers contributed $2,000. From time to time other improvements have been made, indicative of sound taste and good judgment.

Father Haggerty died in 1898 at St. Vincent's hospital in New York City after a month in search of health in southern climes. He was succeeded by the Rev. William McGurk, now pastor of the immaculate Conception church in Waterbury. The present pastor the Rev. William P. Reidy, formerly of St. Thomas Seminary of Hartford, succeeded Father McGurk with the Rev. James P. Timmins as his assistant.

ABOUT TOWN

Former Chief Limerick of the Manchester Fire Department is in New London attending the two-day convention of the Connecticut Firemen's Association.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Strickland, who in company with Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Buckley of Ridgewood, N. J., are touring the White Mountains and Maine shore resorts, were in Kennebunkport yesterday and called on Allan Taylor, who has been at Kennebunk Beach since June 3 without seeing anyone from Manchester. Many from here have passed through the town on their way to and from Old Orchard and Portland but the rain drove to the beach and return takes considerable time.

Memorial Temple Pythian Sisters will have their annual outing this coming Sunday at Maple Grove, Rockville. A program of sports of different kinds has been planned for and prizes will be awarded the winners. A roast beef dinner will be served at the grove at one o'clock. Those who go by trolley are advised to alight at Burke's corner, turn to the left and follow the Pythian outing signs.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knofa have moved from Washington street to their recently completed colonial home at Lakeview in the southern section of the town.

Annie Hopner and Enly Dowd have purchased a 9 room single house on Chestnut street now occupied by the Cozy Beauty Parlor from the Manchester Construction Company. The transfer was made through the Arthur A. Knofa agency.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Shells like these are highly prized for making ornaments.

BY AUSTIN H. CLARK
Smithsonian Institution

At Matsushima Island off the northern coast of Korea this shell forms the object of a fairly important fishery, the animal being cut out and dried for food.

This fishery is carried on by the Korean women. They swim about pushing before them a waterproof basket and wearing only what looks like a pair of old fashioned automobile goggles over their eyes.

When they see a shell clinging to the rocks on the bottom they let go the basket and swim down through the water to it, bring it up, and drop it into the basket. They are able to swim down to incredible distances. When the basket has all the shells it can carry they swim ashore with the catch.

Wherever the abalones are found of sufficient size and in sufficient numbers they are always in demand both for food and for the manufacture of ornaments. The kind shown above, the Kamchatka abalone, lives from Kamchatka south to northern Japan and Korea and also along the shores of continental Alaska, being particularly abundant about Sitka.

Though this abalone is not large it is very pretty, the inside being white, with a beautiful pearly play of colors. The Indians of Alaska make beautiful ornaments from it.

Export of Used Cars Is Bad Business, Government Warns

Washington, Aug. 20.—What is equivalent to a warning to the automobile industry of United States to avoid exportation of second-hand automobiles has been issued by Irving H. Taylor, acting chief of the automotive division of the department of commerce.

Taylor declared that the department is not aware of one instance in which the exportation of American second-hand cars has been carried out successfully, Taylor said.

"For obvious reasons—the most important being that, where duty is assessed on a specific basis, proportionately higher rates are paid on second hand cars and consequently the foreign customer would not be getting a commodity at a price consistent with its true value—this division has discouraged the practice."

An analysis of the foreign used car situation discloses the increasing tendency of foreign users of American machines to trade them in for new models. Taylor said that the foreign used car situation is comparable to that in United States.

Questionnaires Sent Out

Questionnaires were submitted to foreign representatives of the department of commerce in an effort to acquaint the American auto manufacturers with true conditions.

Some of the returns obtained in return were summarized as follows:

In Belgium, according to Assistant Trade Commissioner L. W. Hunt, old open cars are being turned in on new closed automobiles. The present market for touring cars and roadsters is practically non-existent. A great preference is shown for closed machines.

Assistant Trade Commissioner P. E. McKenney, at the Hague, reported that dealers in the old world are confronted with a serious problem that for so long has been a concern to auto dealers in United States.

Importer and dealers, he said, accept old cars from customers as part payment for new vehicles.

The situation in Poland is more encouraging although used car sales are at the present time sustaining the market in view of the drop in the sale of new vehicles.

Local conditions in Rumania do not accept old cars in selling new machines. Commercial Attache Sprull Fouché declared. There is a considerable demand for used cars in Rumania but because of tariff restrictions their import from the United States is not considered practicable.

Used Cars in Cuba

Commercial Attache William Boaz, at Bogota, Colombia, declared that used cars are no problem as yet in that country because original owners of new machines usually drive them until they are unfit for use.

"The used car situation in Cuba has become somewhat embarrassing," Assistant Trade Commissioner O. R. Strackheim, of Havana, informed the department. "Efforts to drive it, however, have alleviated conditions somewhat. More care is being exercised than formerly in evaluating and accepting used cars in trade."

"The used car market of Canada is comparable to that of United States, although the problem has been aggravated since lowering of the Canadian tariff," Trade Commissioner L. W. Meekins, of Ottawa said.

"The reduction in customs duties automatically reduced the value of all used cars in Canada and a large number of dealers are having some difficulty in disposing of their stocks."

Taylor declared that the practice of exporting second hand cars would jeopardize the prestige of the American automobile abroad and "his experience has proved, would result in no material benefit to the exporters."

DR. BAKER URGES WORLD MEETING TO STUDY COAL USES

Pittsburgh.—Dr. Thomas Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, is now in Europe endeavoring to secure the co-operation of British, French and German scientists in his plan for an international effort to determine the best uses of coal. Dr. Baker has invited the European scientists to attend a conference at Pittsburgh in November when means of utilizing coal to the best advantage will be discussed.

Conversations with German scientists have impressed Dr. Baker with the progress being made there in investigating the possibilities of coal.

"I am interested particularly," he said in an interview, "in the questions of power, low temperature carbonization, the complete gasification and liquefaction of coal and in special chemical development."

"The efforts of Professor Fischer and Dr. Bergius in Germany are sensationally striking. Proceeding from two different methods, they are able to produce a substitute for gasoline from coal. It is impossible to forecast at the moment what their results will lead to, but the prospects are distinctly hopeful."

"Both Great Britain and the United States have much to gain from the campaign to obtain a hundred per cent of what coal will yield. In America there is an over-production of bituminous coal. It is so cheap there that the premium on economy is not high. That is all the more reason why new uses should be discovered and coal made more valuable than it is now."

"The campaign of the Carnegie Institute is one of public enlightenment. The aim is to render a service to humanity in general and to industry all over the world in particular."

EXPRESS DELIVERY AREA IS INCREASED

Herald's Story Helps Correct Routes Covered by American Express Company.

As a result of an article regarding express delivery published in The Herald, it was learned today that orders have been issued greatly enlarging the area covered by the American Railway Express Company in Manchester. The new routes will begin on September 1.

Recently The Herald printed a story voicing the complaints of several local residents over the sections covered by the express company. It was claimed the company delivered in some localities but did not in others lying even nearer the station. The Herald article came to the attention of the publicity agent of the firm and he turned the matter over to the superintendent, J. R. Brubaker. The state division of the American Express. The latter investigated the territory covered by the local branch and decided a much wider area should be included.

Express Agent Frank Nickerson said that normally that he had received orders from Superintendent Brennan to increase the territory covered. A complete list of the streets to be included in the increase will be published in a few days. The schedule is being drafted now.

The new plan calls for a greatly increased area as may be seen from the following town limits:

West as far as McKee street. Formerly the western boundary ended at Cooper street.

South on Main street as far as the schoolhouse. Formerly Spring street was the termination.

East as far as Manchester Green. Delivery will extend east to an imaginary line drawn from East Center and Woodbridge streets to Autumn and Charter Oak streets.

Originally the line reached as far as from the Ely Cemetery south to Clinton street.

At the North End, the territory covered will remain practically the same. However it will include more of Woodbridge street, all of Parker street and further toward Oakland.

One advantage of the enlargement is that it will include practically all of the tracts where new houses are being erected.

THIS DRAGON HAS HEAD OF A SHEEP

Vernon, B. C.—The strange monster which inhabits the Okanagan lake, and which has been reported several times, reared a motor car along the lake shore road recently. J. L. Lorie, manager of a local land company who drove the car, describes the monster as having a head like a sheep and dark colored body, about 15 feet long.

Three other persons in the car with Lorie said the monster raised a swell about a foot high and made the spray fly ahead of it as it cut through the water at approximately the same speed as the auto.

Good Nature and Good Health

PROVE HAY FEVER NOT CONTAGIOUS.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

About one hundred years ago several medical writers mentioned as curiosities patients who began to sneeze and wheeze at the time of the blooming of the roses.

In 1817 an English physician named Bostock described his own symptoms, which included a sense of heat and swelling of the eyes, with itching and smarting and with much running of tears when one looked at the light. This was followed by a fullness in the head and irritation in the nose, with fits of severe sneezing, sometimes so violent as to cause pain in the chest.

Naturally a person afflicted with these symptoms would feel generally ill and be tired most of the time, because of inability to rest at night. Usually the symptoms appeared about the beginning or middle of June and disappeared toward the end of July.

Pollens Blamed.

After more and more cases of the disease were studied, it was found that there were also cases which appeared in the early summer and some which came on in the late summer and in the fall, and that persons in different sections of the country were likely to succumb at different times to the disease.

The very earliest investigator, Bostock, gave to the disease the name of "summer catarrh," and also suggested the term "hay fever." Later investigators differed with that suggestion and experimented with extracts of the pollens of all sorts of flowers and grasses. The earliest observations disclosed that the appearance of the disease was definitely associated with the pollination of plants.

Another English physician, named Blackley, experimented on himself between 1856 and 1877 with the pollens of more than one hundred grasses and flowers, inhaling it and applying it to the membranes of his nose and eyes.

Not Contagious.

Later Dunbar proved that it is the protein portion of the pollen which brings on the symptoms in the more intense form, and that neither the whole pollen nor the protein extract would have any effect on normal persons, although they did produce the most severe symptoms in persons who were subject to the disease.

The average person may not be particularly interested in the details of the investigations that have been made, but these have established beyond the shadow of a doubt that hay fever is the result of a definite sensitivity of the person to the protein portions of the pollens of various flowers and grasses.

The disease is not contagious, but a history of the disease in the ancestry is found in from 58 to 68 persons affected. This may indicate a possible hereditary relationship.

POE'S STORIES: The Masque of The Red Death (4)

Six of the apartments of the Prince were crowded and in them beat feverishly the heart of life. But to that seventh chamber, into which filtered the blood-red light, none of the maskers ventured. Knights and ladies, dressed as phantoms, as Beauty, as Life, floated through the chambers in their mad revel.

As the hour of twelve drew near, a feeling of tension, as if some dread occurrence were impending held the dancers.

Sketches by Redner, Synopsis by Braucher

As though carried on the wings of thought there crept through the crowd of maskers the realization that in their midst there was some unwanted presence that boded evil. The assemblage became aware of a tall gaunt figure, shrouded in the habiliments of the grave, a masker that none in the crowd had seen before.

KNOFLAS GET BIG JOB IN STAFFORD SPRINGS

Awarded Contract for Building New Water Power Plant at Woolen Mill.

The Manchester Construction Company has been awarded the contract for building the Cyril Johnson Woolen Mills in Stafford Springs, President William A. Knoflas announced today.

The contract calls for building a dam across the present waterway leading to the mill's power plant. A temporary pipe line must be built and penstock constructed. Considerable concrete work will be necessary.

The installation of a new turbine at the mills makes necessary the building of a new draft tube, and also a new raceway for leading the water away from the plant. Plans for the new system were drawn by Charles T. Maine, a construction engineer, of Boston.

The contract is worth $20,000 and one of the biggest that has been given in Stafford Springs in some time. Mr. Knoflas believes it will take 6 months to complete the work, since it is necessary to cut through 34 feet of solid rock in order to build one part of the raceway.

ZANE GREY MAKES WEST BREATHE AGAIN

As a writer of outdoor yarns, particularly those of the great West he knows so well, Zane Grey is firmly established in the minds and hearts of millions of readers.

"Born in the West," which comes in the shape of a new engagement of two days starting today, those qualified to judge, feel that he has evolved one of the most entertaining and true-to-life stories thus far written.

Faramount has brought it to the screen with marvelous fidelity. The rather lengthy cast is filled with names that stand high in the cinema world—all well known and popular for their former achievements.

The story starts with a fight between two boys over a girl. Both emerge from the fray with marks they carry from school through life, marks which seem ever to remind them of the enemy that must exist to the end.

For the companion feature to-day and tomorrow will be Elinor Glyn's "The Only Thing." A great blaze of glory. The court room in the palace radiant with brilliant jewels, bright colors and all the pomp of a flourishing kingdom.

Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel are featured and the picture was directed by Jack Conway.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL SWIMS ACROSS CHEESAPEAKE BAY.

Baltimore, Aug. 20.—The Chesapeake has produced another potential challenger of the English channel. Ruth Kitchin, a sturdy 14-year-old girl, swam the bay under stormy conditions in 8 hours and 15 minutes. The air line distance was only nine miles, but wind and current made it a 15-mile swim.

Lillian Cannon, now waiting for favorable conditions to attempt the channel, is the only other woman who ever negotiated the bay.

Pine Forest

The English House of PINE FOREST is now entirely completed; in its setting of pines, it makes a picture to stir an artist; a study in brown. But it is more than a thing of beauty; it is as honest in its construction as one of the charming Colonials of our forefathers, and every convenience is there. It is GOBBEN-BUILT; more need not be said to the initiated. We invited everyone interested in PINE FOREST to see it; just 'phone to any of our officers, and the house will be opened for you. Be sure, however, to send for the interesting literature pertaining to PINE FOREST.

PINE FOREST CORPORATION

THEY NEVER KNEW TOM SIMS

BEGIN HERE TODAY, PLEASE

Mr. and Mrs. Whimpiddle were sitting at home playing bridge one night when Mr. Whimpiddle caught what he thought was a perfect hand.

He had 13 spades. So he bid "no trumps" expecting to start in and lead the spades for 13 times.

The other side raised his bid, so he went to "five no trumps." Then the catastrophe happened. Since he had nothing but spades, and he bid "no trumps," he could not get the lead. He lost every trick and his wife divorced him.

This, however, has nothing to do with the present story. JIMMY WEED marries PEARLY HANDLE. The two have met before. They live in MEMPHIS, OHIO. So they start on their honeymoon.

During the past 16 chapters PEARLY FATHER has shot at JIMMY nine times. So JIMMY holds very little affection for the old man. Another character is DETECTIVE GUMSHOE. Still another character is MRS. GUMSHOE.

It's a good story. Go ahead if you have nothing else to do. They are in Chicago on their honeymoon.

ALL RIGHT, READ ON CHAPTER XVII

If you are a constant reader as you should be, you'll remember the conclusion of the last installment of this great novel, which is attracting attention far and wide, especially far.

Jimmy and Pearly had eaten a big breakfast in a Chicago hotel. Then they visited the stockyards. Jimmy made such a hog of himself at breakfast he was started toward the slaughter pen in the stockyards.

"Soey," yelled the roughneck at our Jimmy, "Soey," yelled he, as the rush of hogs thrashed the young millionaire along with the common swine.

The other hogs were grunting and snorting their way up a long chute. As they arrived upon a platform a fellow salt their throats with a sharp knife, or knocked them in the head, or did what ever it is they do to hogs in the stockyards.

"Where do you keep your sausages?" "I must do some shopping," laughed Pearly. "When we leave Chicago I'll need some clothes." Painful as it was, the young husband consented to escort his bride upon her shopping expedition.

"We'll go to Marshall Fields first," said Pearly. "Then I want to drop by Sears-Robuck and get a catalog to send to mother."

"How is the old yester?" laughed Jimmy. He usually referred to her as "ovster" because she was the mother of Pearly.

"She's fine," said Pearly. "I had a letter from her. She said she wished father would hurry up and shoot you. She needs him around home."

"Is that so?" asked Jimmy, indignant.

"Yes," said Pearly, ignoring her husband's attitude. "Father is very handy about the house. Mother carries on an extensive correspondence. Father usually sits around with his tongue out so she can moisten her stamps."

"Is that so?" was the only response her husband made.

Pearly continued her idle chatter. "Mother smokes quite a bit. She strikes her matches on father's whiskers. So, you see, he really is missed."

Arriving at State street, they paused to let the traffic pass.

"I am a big slob, am I?" screamed Pearly. (Photo shows only square rolling pin in existence.)

was just in time. When the fellow came back there stood Jimmy with his middle squeezed in.

"Hello," said the fellow. "You look like a sausage."

"I am a sausage," laughed Jimmy. "Where do you keep your sausages?"

"The fellow showed Jimmy a long building. 'Run down there' said he, pointing his bloody finger. 'Run down there and tell them to put you in a box with the other sausages.'"

So Jimmy ran down there. But he caught a side gate, removed Pearly's corset and was free once more.

Happy after the dreadful experience at the stockyards, Jimmy and Pearly sallied forth to see the city of Chicago.

They liked the town. Pearly, especially, wanted to settle down and live there. She knew of no other city where she could walk the streets in her nightgown and not be noticed.

And the lovely young girl was walking the streets in her nightgown. When she and Jimmy leaped from the train window she had on only her nightgown and the article of wearing apparel which Jimmy used in the stockyards to disguise himself as a sausage.

Now that this garment was gone her nightgown alone remained. But that was all right. She was in Chicago.

The sidewalk felt warm to her toes. Gay pink ribbons fluttered from the garment she wore. She caught her fond husband by the hand and slipped lightly down the street.

"Taxi?" called a driver, pulling his machine over to the curb. "How far is it to Marshall Fields?" asked Jimmy.

"Let me see, now," said the taxi driver. "We are on State and Madison. It's about nine miles."

So they got into the taxi. Six hours later they arrived across the street at Marshall Fields.

Night found them back at their hotel. The shopping expedition had been a long one and tedious. It was without adventure to Jimmy, except once when a woman window dresser mistook him for a dummy and started unbuttoning his coat.

Pearly was worn out. Being already dressed for bed, she hopped under the covers.

Jimmy, even though more robust than his delicate wife, was slightly fatigued himself. He read a while, then slipped into his baby blue pajamas and jumped into bed.

No robbers knocked at their door. The word had been passed that Jimmy's robbing was to be done by the waiter.

But about midnight Jimmy's slumber was interrupted by Pearly. "Quit snoring," said his darling as she kicked him in the ribs.

"I wasn't snoring," rebuked Jimmy. "You were so," snapped Pearly, sitting up in bed and yanking the cover off. "You snore all the time."

"I do not snore. I'll bet you anything I don't snore."

"You can't prove you don't snore. You know you can't."

"I can prove it, too. And I will." "How you going to prove it? Going to stay awake and see?"

"No," shouted Jimmy, crawling out of bed. He slipped on his mules and left the room. Pearly heard him catch the elevator.

He returned in a few minutes carrying a dictaphone. This he put by the side

IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 20.—See-sawing up and down Broadway, came upon Tammany Young, who once was numbered among the two or three champion "gate crushers" of America. . . . And who now seems resigned to the life of an actor since for an entire year, he has been "atmosphere" in "Lulu Belle. . . ."

Saw Jack Dempsey calmly watching John Barrymore making love to the beautiful Estelle Taylor Dempsey. . . . In the films of course. . . . And Will Hayes watching himself talk at the premiere of the Vitaphone. . . . A new form of talking to oneself, as it were. . . .

And Otto Kahn, the banker, dilettante, who could well afford to spend the hot days at the North Pole did he wish, but who never seems to want to be more than 45 minutes from Broadway. . . . Quite content to swelter with the rest of us through the first nights of new production. . . . Greater love for the drama has no man.

Helen Chandler, who only a few months back was the flapper Ophelia of the "modern dress" Hamlet, seated upon a stool in one of those drug-store-lunch-rooms, munching on "quick and tasty" sandwiches. . . . And they tell me she is addict to these gosh-awful eating emporiums, appearing with the rest of the mob almost daily. . . .

View with alarm the inroads of real estate men from all points upon the great highway. . . . Surely the Los Angeles and Florida influence is upon Broadway. . . . At central points one may see the slick gents wearing great signs in their hats reading "Muddat Manor" and such. . . . Whereas the Pennsylvania and Grand Central stations of a Sunday morning are one vast array of silk badges, glaring buttons and blazing placards announcing the wonders of "Umpville Heights." . . . Surely it does seem that all the unsuccessful Floridians have moved their camps. . . . And for all I care they can return to Florida tomorrow.

Without doubt the oddest door to be found in all these United States has been contrived by one of the big New York publishing houses. . . . Just as various disguises are used by grog dispensaries, so this concern has built a door into the "sanctum sanctorum" that will baffle all but the initiated.

The waiting room is, obviously, a huge library. The door appears to be a continuation of the library shelves and, until it is opened, only a practiced eye would be able to locate it. It is opened by grabbing the binding of a book which is glued to the woodwork and substitutes for a door-knob.

The purpose, while partially for effect, is chiefly for keeping out the usual crowd of nuisances who throng to publishers and have no hesitance in crashing through any visible gate.

MARIE COMING

Queen Marie of Rumania is coming to America. Queen Marie has been coming to America for a long time. But this time she seems to really mean it.

It is doubtful if even the Prince of Wales was ever the cause of so much of fluttering, secret planning and scheming, so much of tremulous hope and frightened apprehensions on the part of society with a capital S as these frequent reports of the approach of Rumania's interesting queen.

Well, if this unexpected circumstance precludes triumphs for some handful of multi-millionaires' wives, it likewise precludes weal and wallings and gnashing of teeth on the part of a very great deal larger number.

Nevertheless we cannot but be impressed by the notion that if Marie had any idea how much a trip through forty-eight states, traveling with a retinue, stopping at the kind of hotels she will of course stop at, is going to set back the treasury of Rumania, she would hesitate long about declining in advance the hospitality of those private caravansaries where the bill would be nothing.

COAST GUARD ACADEMY

Mysterious are the processes some times, which produce results in the governmental departments. It is announced by the Treasury that the Coast Guard Academy at New London, where for many years cadets of the Coast Guard service have been educated just as at West Point and Annapolis Army cadets and Navy midshipmen are trained for their commissions, is to be abandoned and the academy re-established either at Newport or New Bedford.

It is explained that the New London quarters are inadequate, having become overcrowded since the enlargement of the Coast Guard personnel from five to nine thousand when it was dedicated to the business of rum chasing.

Here we have, then, an established governmental institution occupying an ideal location with plenty of room and to spare, which it is proposed to root up simply because it is inadequately housed and equipped—and to transplant it to some less advantageous location where not only housing and equipment must be provided, but the ground room as well, at a thundering cost—for there is no desirable sea front property to be picked up by the government or anybody else anywhere in New England, at any gift figure.

It would be extremely interesting to know just what reasoning has prompted the Treasury Department to arrive at this conclusion with relation to the Coast Guard Academy, certainly it is to be hoped that no longing aspirations of shore front realty promoters or marine manufacturers—who might easily see fine profits to be had out of the old Fort Trumbull reservation if it were to go on the market—have anything to do with convincing the Treasury that its Academy is poorly situated at New London. Yet, regrettably, such things do happen and the removal of the institution from Connecticut must have some other reason than the need of a new site. That, frankly, will not wash.

Senator Bingham knows New London very well. Perhaps we shall hear his voice lifted speedily in earnest and doubtless effectual protest against this mysterious proceeding.

MEXICAN DEPUTIES

If the frantic factional war going on in the Mexican Chamber of Deputies has any really close relationship to the religious controversy between the Calles government and the Catholic church, disclosure of that fact in the dispatches has been rather successfully prevented. Even after the rump parliament yesterday in a pitched gun battle in the heart of Mexico City, in which several important personages were killed or mortally wounded, the news of the parliamentary war comes to us as a separate matter from the all-absorbing church-and-state conflict.

There have been persistent clashes and continual quarreling among the deputies ever since the parliamentary elections on July 4. The trouble seems to be principally over the certification of successful candidates in those elections. The other day these resulted in a split in the chamber, when a rump parliament was established by one faction and both that body and the remaining or presumably "regular" body of the congress each organized an "electoral college" to canvass the result and return election certificates.

The Calles government appears to stand with the "regulars" and has provided a military guard for the physical chamber. It is probably because this guard prevents violence in the congress building that the deputies have taken their battles into the streets.

That the religious issue enters more or less into these quarrelings is highly probable, but it is surprising, nevertheless, how the two matters seem to be regarded as separate and distinct.

OCEAN FLYING

The impending transatlantic flight of the great Sikorsky monoplane from New York to Paris, through the very circumstance of its novelty, is a striking illustration of the reckless impatience with which forecasts concerning aerial travel have been made. The days have stretched into years and the years approach a decade since the minds of men unquestioningly accepted the conclusion that transoceanic voyaging by plane was, to all intents and purposes, an accomplished fact and that it was a mere matter of getting about it when there would be more flying than sailing across the ocean.

True, it may not be nearly so long again before the present expedition is followed by others, for it is a far cry from the machine of Alcock and Brown to the giant Sikorsky in which the Fonce party is to fly; but none the less the vision of stabilized transoceanic flight is one thing and the realization of it is a vastly different one, and it would not be at all surprising if many young heads turned grey before the airship supplants the water-borne vessel in the carrying of even an important proportion of passenger traffic, let alone freight, across the yawning Atlantic.

This transition is a matter essentially of infinite patience, courage and fortitude—not one of magic.

STRIKE CONTRIBUTIONS

There is a very serious question whether any American has a moral right to contribute to the fund being raised in this country for the support of the British coal strikers. In the first place it is not at all certain that these strikers are in need, for Soviet Russia is sending them large sums and British labor unions are contributing to their support. Also, according to the declarations of operators, they still living rent free in houses belonging to the mine owners and are even receiving their customary free fuel allowance. It is stated that the picture houses, football games and charabancs in the mining districts are as well patronized as ever.

In the second place the continued success of the coal strike is bound to react against all British industry, against the normal prosperity of the country, against British ability to pay its debt to America according to agreement and to trade with this country in a normal way; which would bring reaction against business in this country and quite possibly against the continued employment of the very enthusiasts whose money helped to continue the British labor war.

COLONEL'S HAT

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt took occasion, at a dinner of the New York Republican club, last night, to enter upon the records, through the medium of a speech, a rather complete Rooseveltian platform for 1926. He condemned the primary scandals, advocated return to the convention system of nominating political candidates, declared himself in opposition to religious domination in public affairs, roasted the Ku Klux Klan and set himself against turning the United States senate into a "board of directors of public utilities or any other business."

All of which would indicate that the Colonel's hat, like that of his famous father, is in "the ring." The next thing is to find out what ring and why.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART Washington, Aug. 20.—For more than half a century a certain quaint old negro, John H. Plummer by name, worked for the late Robert T. Lincoln, as caretaker in the latter's big house in the Georgetown district of Washington.

"An' at the end of that time," he adds, "I was no bettah acquainted with him than the day he hired me."

"A mos' extraw'dinary gent'man!" reminisced the old servant. "Nobody could get nex' to him. Seem'd like he was always a-sayin' to himself, 'No use me tryin' to be evah be he jus' the-om of muf fath-ah.' So he jus' shruk into hisself an' the oldah he got, the mo' he got that way."

"Regulah humbit!" "I've head' he was a right sma' man, but you nevah could tell it by talkin' to him, fo' he almos' nevah said anything 'ceptin' what he couldn't get out o' sayin' an' then he said it the shotest way possible. 'He spent mos' all his time readin'.' He nevah had no company. He nevah accepted no invitations. He nevah puttahed around in the garden. He sca'cely evah went walkin'. The only time he got out was sometimes fo' a little automobile ride an' he didn't do that 'v'ry often."

"They called him a humbit. If evah then was one, he was it. 'He was pooly the las' yeah he lived, but it didn't make him no mo' of a humbit than he was before, 'cause nothin' could. He was a humbit evah since he settled down to live in Gawgetown regulah."

"Was he a good employah? 'W'y I was with him so long an' I've had so few employas that I sca'cely got anything to compeh him with. You see, I was with this house when he bought it, which was mo' than 50 years ago—I disremember jus' how many mo' years—an' I jus' went with the house when he took it ovah. He wasn't heah much fo' a good many years, but he kep' the house ready fo' him an' I had charge of it."

"I guess he was a to'able good employah. 'I know he didn't give no trouble. He wanted sca'cely anything. Him not goin' out nowheah an' neva havin' anybody in an' playin' no games an' havin' no fads av nuffin', he didn't take much waitin' on."

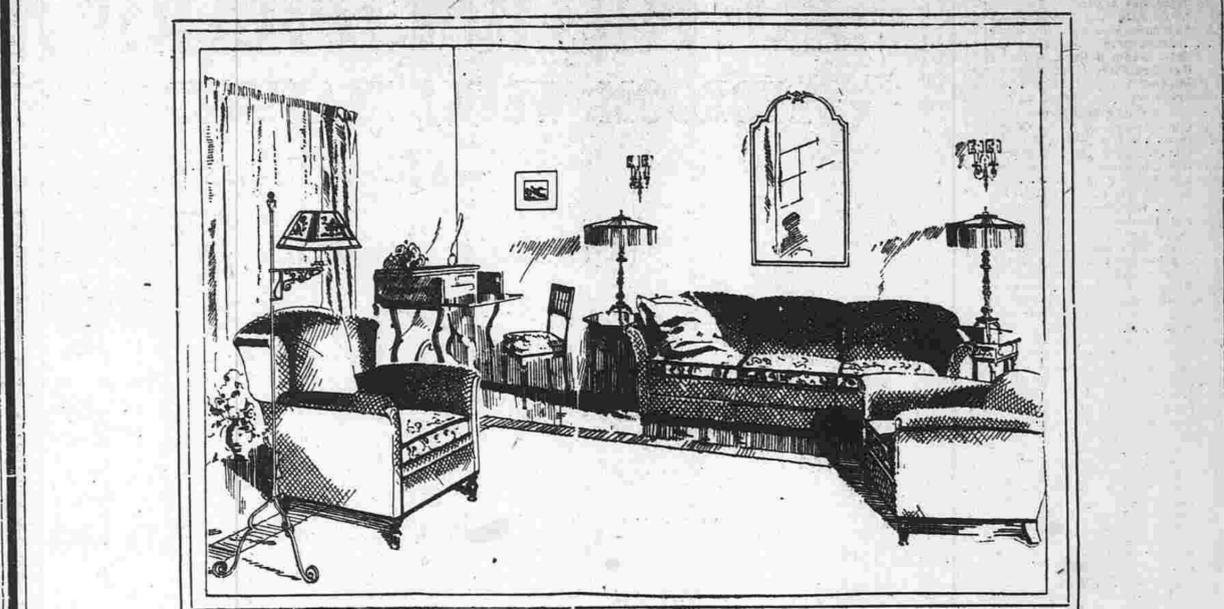

Unlike His Father "But he was afraid of buglans. This is a big house, you see, an' he was mos' alone in it an' the neighborhood is rathah lonely, too, an' him a mighty old man, an' it worried him thinkin', how somebody might bus' in some night. He had all the fanciest kind of burglar alarms, an' if anybody evah had broke in, the noise would 'a' made would 'a' been something tree-millions."

"Mista Lincoln wasn't a bit like his fathah. I use to see him when I was a younstab. He was mighty tall an' mighty thin an' they say he was talkative. Mista Robet' was short and chunky an' I nevah head' him uttah a wo'd he could get out of."

The Georgetown house is closed now, but Plummer is still in charge of the premises, pending settlement of the estate. When that has been attended to, he, too, intends to retire, to his old home at Rosstyn, Virginia.

In the coldest parts of Siberia a rainbow may sometimes be seen all day long in a cloudless sky. This is supposed to be due to the reflection of the sun on fine particles of snow in the air.

Bristol Loses When Sipples Bats in Three Runs

SONS OF ITALY INFLECT FIRST DEFEAT ON VISITORS IN A YEAR

Local Center Fielder Responsible for All Scores Made by Sons—Fisher Pitches Airtight Ball and Allows 3 Hits—Next Game There on Sunday.

The tables were turned last night for the first time this year and the Sons of Italy, who had lost two games to the New Departure team of Bristol, came through with two runs in the seventh and with 3 to 2. Three timely hits in this game and a base on balls spelled defeat for the visitors.

It was absolutely the best game of the year on the West Side diamond. Bristol came here with its best lineup and the Sons had a snappy team on the field. Teams were even in the first two innings with neither team gaining an advantage.

And at that, Manchester was the first to score. The tally came in the third when LeBell singled to right field as a starter. He was advanced to second on Wright's sacrifice and scored on Sipples' single to right field. Incidentally, it was Sipples' work with the stick that brought in all the Manchester runs for the local man in rare form.

He hit for two out of three, both hits coming when they were needed. Manchester led until the first half of the fourth inning when Bristol came to bat. Scott singled to left and was brought in when Eddie Goodridge doubled over the auto-mobies in right field. Reilly singled to put the Bristol manager on third and he came in on a passed ball with lots of time to spare.

It was a Sipples night and he played a wonderful game in the field and at the plate. One of his spectacular catches in center field got him the best hand of the game. The bingle looked as though it would go for a homer but a one hand stab after a hard run brought it safely into Sipples' glove.

The game went on and on and nothing happened except a hit and then but no runs came across. The sixth inning came and went and darkness began to fall. The seventh went for Bristol and the Sons came to bat.

Walleit, first man up for the Sons, went out to Eddie Goodridge, unassisted. Fisher, who wanted to add some more prestige to his name, singled and was advanced to second on LeBell's one base hit. Wright walked, filling the bases.

It was a typical Mighty Casey setting and Tim Sipples, the mainstay of the Sons, was next at bat. He had already made two hits which drove him to come through with another. However, he took a swing at the ball and connected for a nice single to center field.

Two men came in and the game was over. It was the first time that Bristol had been defeated in Manchester in more than a year. Every time that the New Departure came here somebody had the Indian sign out and that Indian sign came to rest on the local team. Last night was different and the Sons, in spite of the two defeats they had suffered at the hands of Bristol, flew in the face of fate and took the game away from the visitors.

Fisher, moundsman for the Sons, was in the rarest of form, his tight hurling giving the visitors only three hits most of which were bunched in the fourth inning. He struck out only three men, however, but kept most of the batted balls in the infield. Gil Wright on short-stop played one of his good games and accepted seven chances without an error. As a matter of fact, neither team made an error throughout the entire game.

Sunday the Sons will go to Bristol to play the fourth game in this series. Bristol has won two of them and the Sons have gained new confidence through their victory last night.

NEW ITALIAN GAME A ROUSES INTEREST

Boscoe Tournament Starts at East Side Playgrounds; The Winners of First Round.

The Boscoe tournament, or Italian bowling at the Cottage street playgrounds under the supervision of "Dodger" Dowd has aroused great interest among the Italian-Americans in the South End. Each evening large crowds watch the players. On Wednesday evening the South of Italy players won over the North of Italy players. The next set of games will be played this evening and an even larger crowd is expected.

Here are the scores of the last set of games played:
Guido Giogetti and Adolfo Chaucer defeated Americo Agostinelli and Antonio Giorgetti by the score of 12 to 1.
Secondo Agostinelli and John Nicola defeated Luigi Stennella and Antonio Guida by the score of 12 to 10.

Michele Di Simoni and Luigi Capola defeated Guido Giogetti and Adolfo Chaucer by the score of 12 to 1.
Secondo Agostinelli and John Nicola defeated Antonio Agostinelli and Antonio Guida by the score of 12 to 10.
Michele Di Simoni and Luigi Capola defeated Antonio Gravano and John Antonio by the score of 12 to 8.

Lisandro Webanetti and John Viot defeated Antonio Agostinelli and R. Simone by the score of 12 to 2.
Liseo Stennella and Antonio Guida defeated Antonio Gravano and John Antonio by the score of 12 to 5.

HARTFORD LOSES AFTER BIG LEAD OVER ALBANY

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Hartford lost a ball game here that Billy Lush had tucked away and labored a win yesterday when Albany started a fusillade after the fourth and didn't give up until it had overcome an eight run lead.

The Senators led 10-2 in the fourth. Schinkel White, Shirley and Krahe had done heavy hitting to give the Senators 5 in the second, 2 in the third and 3 in the fourth. But McCorry went into the box in the fifth and stopped the Hartford hitting.

Then Albany started. Heavy hitting and errors gave Albany a chance to tie, and Emmerich scored the winning run when Hermann bunted in the eighth.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

One of the greatest utility men in baseball is Jimmy Johnston of the Braves. Jimmy has played about every position on the diamond except pitcher and catcher.

He started as an outfielder with Kewanee of the Central Association in 1908. Since then he has played in various leagues and on several clubs. He made his major league debut in 1914 with the Chicago Cubs.

Two years later found him with Brooklyn where he remained until last year when he was traded to the Braves.

In 1918 he was listed as an outfielder, first, second and third baseman. If that isn't being versatile what would you call it?

Former Champ's Condition Not Good—Too Much Broadway, Says Walsh

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, Aug. 20.—This is the story of a male mite without wings, a flit with the wisp who followed the flame until its light burned low and the other darkers claimed him for its own.

Last night at Madison Square Garden, Harry Greb attempted to regain the middleweight title he once held so jealously that he thought it hardly worth the prosecution that a will-trained body could give it. However, the escaped quarry gains in value, and it was a very serious Greb who stepped out against Tiger Flowers, the Georgia Negro who had slumped him out of the championship several months before.

But the moth had burned himself beyond redemption and while no one ever seriously tried to endow Harry Greb with wings, the effect he gave last night was that of one whose wings were clipped. He flapped, he fluttered, he squirmed and quivered in an ecstasy of effort. But he didn't win. The decision again went to Flowers and rightfully so. He won ten of the fifteen rounds, according to my tally sheet.

ATHLETICS 9, TIGERS 1
Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—The Athletics slaughtered the Tigers, nine to one, and tied Cleveland for second place. Gray and Willis held the Benazels to four hits and Alex Metzler, Connie Mack's new rookie drove in three runs with three singles.

COLORED STARS' ALIBI WILTS WHEN INVESTIGATION IS MADE

Manager Strong's Letter of Explanation Fails to Withstand Probe; Admits he Cancelled Game at 6 P. M.; Shamrocks Exonerated Following Inquiry.

The sports department of The Herald is in receipt today of a special letter of explanation from Manager Strong of the Hartford Colored Stars which gives his version of why his team failed to appear for the game with the Shamrocks Tuesday night. It follows:

"We have played baseball and football in Manchester for the past ten years and during that time we have never failed to put in appearance nor have we cancelled a game on any team.

"Tuesday night was dark and cloudy. I had my team in uniforms to play, but knowing that the fans would not be able to see more than one or two innings at the most, I called up Mr. Clemson at 5:30. He was not at home but at about 6 o'clock I got in touch with his brother and explained that I did not want to impose a one or two inning game on the fans, it being obvious that the weather would not permit further play.

"It is known, without exaggeration, that my club has the reputation of being one of the best sportsmanlike teams in New England. Our purpose is to satisfy the fans and not merely to collect the guarantee for appearance on a field where only people imposed upon are the fans who pay to see a game that weather conditions make impossible to play."

Hoping this will receive publication in your sporting columns so I might clear up a most distasteful affair, and keeping the welfare of the fans always at heart:

I am yours in sports,
JAMES M. STRONG,
Mgr. Colored Stars.

Herald Investigates
P. S.—The Herald has taken particular pains to investigate the circumstances surrounding the failure of the Hartford Colored Stars to appear for their game with the Shamrocks and granting Manager Strong every possible alibi, it is impossible to do anything but exonerate Manager Clemson of all blame.

Clemson told The Herald he talked with Manager Strong personally at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and that Strong promised faithfully at that time to have his team on the field before quarter past six. It appears that Strong in his plea that he was thinking only of the fans, failed to do this when he attempted to call off the game as late as 5:30 and then actually did call it off at 6 o'clock. At that late hour, it certainly was impossible for Manager Clemson to notify the fans the game was off. They came to the field and were disappointed.

As far as the "one or two" inning game being all that could have been played is concerned, that matter rested entirely on the shoulders of Manager Clemson. It was up to Clemson to cancel the game and not Strong. The writer was at the field at the scheduled time for the game to start and although it was a trifle dark, at least three innings could have been played and seven had the Colored Stars arrived as scheduled.

The Herald stands back of Manager Clemson and the Shamrocks in the matter. If anyone is to be blamed for the "distasteful affair" as Manager Strong terms it, let the guilty man get that blame.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are—

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."
PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose domestic life is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies.

John was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, who, Forbes hints, is having trouble with her husband.
Fay took JUDITH, the baby, to visit her parents in Washington, and during her absence John "ran around" a good deal. When Fay returned gossip had retailed his actions and sharp quarrels followed, one of which drove John to a tear, and Fay again attended to leave him if he again went out with other women.

John finds that people are talking about him and NATHANIEL GRAHAM, his partner, charges his actions are damaging the firm's reputation. John later, by accident, meets Nell Orme at Vera Boyd's. He resolves not to see her again, realizing she is carrying him off his feet, but he does, and the day comes when he takes her madly in his arms.

Fay learns of it and goes through with her threat to leave him. John closes the house and takes an apartment. MISS KINSLEY, his firm's secretary, resigns and John later learns she has gone with a rival agency. Nat Graham comes back off a "vacation" and again quarrels with John about the firm's damaged reputation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER LI
NAT GRAHAM was not long in hiring a young woman to take the place of the useful Miss Kinsley. But after a week John Milburn decided she'd never do—at least she'd never approach the standard set by her predecessor.

It seemed to John that Graham had been decidedly careless about hiring her. He had spent very little time interviewing applicants; had virtually taken the first one that came along.

Things simply couldn't go on this way much longer, he told himself. Either he and Nat would have to reach some sort of understanding—which would mean, of course, that Nat would have to drop his critical attitude—or a break was a foregone certainty.

Never once, during the year that had witnessed this gradually widening breach, had he ever questioned Graham's ability, his willingness to work or his integrity.

It was only the man's personality—cold, forbidding, eternally revolving around the passionless business of chasing the dollar. It had often occurred to him that he would have welcomed some sign in Nat of not being all that he should be—some human weakness, some little fault.

But hang it, the man never drank, he never touched tobacco, he refused to look at a woman, he rarely—in his moments of greatest annoyance—said anything stronger than "damn."

The very fact that he was possessed, apparently, of no vices whatever, that his armor of smug virtue seemingly was puncture-proof, served only to anger John all the more.

Consequently he was more than surprised when he was literally shocked when he discovered some evidence that, after all, Nat might not be playing exactly square with him. An errand one day carried him along about lunch time, a part of the downtown section that he rarely ever visited. Back again on the street, he realized that he was hungry and that the busy afternoon ahead of him would not allow him sufficient time to go to his usual eating place.

So he slipped into the first likely-looking restaurant that he hadn't seen the inside of in years. And he was amazed when, after he had ordered and had let his eyes rove about the place, to see Nat Graham sitting at a table nearby, after puzzled with John about the firm's damaged reputation.

At first the thing seemed of little significance; perhaps Nat had accidentally encountered the man and they had decided to eat together. But on reflection John decided that the thing was really very odd.

After all, Graham, who had been the first to tell him that Kelly and Jones were establishing a rival agency in Chicago, had spoken of them as people they would have to watch and be on their guard against. And then this business of Miss Kinsley's decamping and going over to Kelly and Jones. In view of that it looked decidedly queer for Nat to be lunching with the senior partner.

Fortunately he was sitting in such position that he could watch the two men and at the same time be unobserved by them. And Graham seemed to be in deadly earnest about something.

His jaw was thrust forward, his eyes mere slits—a habit Nat had when he was discussing important business. And then he pulled from his pocket a pencil, with which he gestured as if to add emphasis. And began to jot down presumable figures on it.

"What could it mean?" John asked himself the question over and over, but found no satisfactory answer—unless it meant that Nat was thinking of slyly himself with Kelly and Jones. And, in that event, where would he (John) be? Without Graham, what would happen to their business?

John paid his bill and walked slowly down the street, thinking on the way that he was jumping at conclusions. He must not suspect Nat of any betrayal like that—the man's whole character was so free of reproach that it wasn't fair.

But "Pshaw!" he exclaimed. "Nat knows that he's got too good a thing in his present business. What could Kelly and Jones offer him? Perhaps they've been after a new account—both of them—and they ran into each other and decided to have lunch."

out favor. Vera Boyd had called him up several times since his last meeting with Nell Orme, but he kept evading her—he could find no interest now in other women, not with this insatiable longing for Fay and Judith filling him. The thought that kept recurring to him time after time was that he was being punished pretty badly, and he cursed himself for having missed his big chance.

Under the circumstances, it was most indispensable employe away from them.

And persistently the thing bobbed up to worry him. Was Nat capable of throwing him overboard? He was hearing once a week from Fay, who considered it her duty to report on Judith. Reading one of these notes one day, he suddenly paused, laid the letter down and, out of a mental fog that had blurred his thinking ever since Fay had left him, came to the shocking realization that the thing was final. Fay had written that she had, the week before, consulted her lawyer.

Not until he read that line had he grasped the significance, the dread finality of it.

Rather had he unconsciously sought to evade a full realization of what it meant. And somehow the fact that she could find it in her to write to him had softened the blow and raised in him the hope that perhaps, after all, Fay given time enough, might reconsider.

But here she was, consulting her lawyer. . . . Divorce. . . . How, he thought in an agony of spirit, could she write so cold-bloodedly of her intention?

Did this dreadful thing really have to happen to him? Was there no way of bringing about a reconciliation? He realized now, with a sudden nip at his heart, that he loved Fay more dearly than anything in the world—that life without her would be a flat, tasteless thing, an unsatisfied hunger.

Divorce. . . . People, after all, did quit when they discovered they had made a bad bargain.

There was Clara Wayne. She had obtained a divorce and no one had tried to dissuade her—everyone had sided her. And were people signing themselves on the side of Fay, as they had done in the case of Clara? Undoubtedly they were, he thought.

He had a hard time keeping his letters to Fay from being pathetic. He would take his medicine like a man, he thought. He would not whine or whimper. He told her nothing about his new business troubles or his dreadful loneliness.

It seemed so strange to be writing letters to a woman who had been his wife and who was proceeding to cut the legal strings that tied them together, it seemed so strange that Fay could cut him admit and still not consider him an enemy.

Still, he thought, that perhaps was the way such things were done. Clifton Lane had even called on Clara while their divorce was in the courts.

Everything he did now was with

CONDITION—Hair that has lost its "life" and consequently falls more rapidly than it should.

DIAGNOSIS—With the present bobbed styles, too many women neglect the daily brushing that all belles used to consider as necessary as cleaning the teeth.

TREATMENT—Divide the hair into small strands, and apply tonic on the scalp on a tiny pad of cotton. Massage this thoroughly into the scalp with the finger tips. Then get out the hairbrush and brush, but instead of stroking downward, hold the strands of hair up, and brush upward. This loosens the hair from the scalp, removes the dust and particles that are bound to settle in it, and stimulates the scalp in a most healthful fashion.

AMERICA HAS NEVER SEEN A QUEEN LIKE THIS!

That Piquant, Dashing and Ever-Fresh Ruler, Marie.

BY MILTON BRONNER

London, Aug. 18.—So Marie of Rumania—"The Queen Who Wears the Trouser"—is to visit the United States! A long-cherished dream, that.

Traveling only with her 17-year-old daughter, Princess Ileana, and ladies-in-waiting, reports have it she will land in Canada this fall. Her entry into the United States probably will be at Seattle, and she will travel eastward.

News from Bucharest, however, puts several ifs into the program. Plans to reconcile her son, Prince Carol, with his father, King Ferdinand, may interfere. And ex-Premier Bratianu, still powerful in the Balkans, opposes the trip. Ferdinand, too, is not well.

Is Real Ruler
America has seen queens before, but never one like this! Ferdinand Hohenzollern is king of Rumania in name, but Marie is king in fact. Ferdinand signs decrees, but she dictates them.

She is the most powerful, most talked of, best looking, busiest and most intriguing queen in the world today. The Balkans revolve around her.

And she's the greatest royal matchmaker Europe has known in decades. That's the secret, of course, of the opposition to her trip. Rumanian society is shocked, and many members of Balkan royalty offended at the idea of an American son-in-law.

Queen Marie just shrugs. "Princess Xenia of Greece, Ileana's cousin has married young Leeds, an untitled American," she observes.

And the Leeds have spent nearly $10,000,000 trying to put the Greek dynasty back on the throne, if rumor be true! Wise Marie!

Is New Idea
This idea of an American son-in-law is a recent development, gossips say. As late as last spring, when she visited London, there was talk of marrying Ileana to the Prince of Wales.

Two of her daughters are queens Marie of Jugo-Slavia and Helen of Greece—though Helen and King George are in exile now. Prince Carol to Princess Elena of Greece, despite the fact that he had a common-law wife, Zizi Lambrino, whom he deeply loved.

Now Carol has abandoned succession to the throne for the charms of one Mme. Lupesco. Carol's difficulties do not shock his mother as they might. Years ago, when the blue-eyed, handsome athletic granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England came to Rumania as the bride of Ferdinand, then crown prince, she found he did not love her—the story runs.

Became Royal Flirt
Three years the Crown Princess spent in unhappiness. Then she changed. Lifting up her head, forcing a smile, she entered on a social whirl that soon stamped her the most dashing flirt in Europe. Dozens of handsome officers danced attendance. She was toasted everywhere. Finally even Ferdinand woke up, and in a month he was jealous.

That was exactly what Marie wanted. When finally she took him back, it was on her own terms—and has remained so. Matchmaking and politics have not been Marie's only interests. She writes for newspapers, composes operas, produces plays. She once incensed an American cosmetic—for cash! Then there was trouble! So undignified. So democratic! It was a scandal!

But that blew over. Now Rumanians fear she may turn movie director at Hollywood if she visits the United States. And so she may!

Quaker Oats "stands by" you through the morning

That's why doctors urge it to start every day

To feel right through the morning you must have well-balanced, complete food at breakfast. At most other meals—that is, at luncheon and at dinner—you usually get that kind of food but rarely at breakfast.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 53% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamins and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Food that should start every breakfast you eat. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL OF TODAY

An Understanding

I could not tell whether Mr. Robinson was angry or frightened, but the blood rushed to his face until it was fairly purple. I knew, however, that he understood by my questions that I had said nothing to Joan and would not do so unless he drove me to it. As far as I was concerned the episode was closed. After slight hesitation he said: "Yes, I found the bottle, and I surmised that it was you who left it there. Thank you, very much."

I was sure by the way he spoke that he knew I never would betray him in any way to his stepdaughter.

The door opened to his drawing room and entering I was very much surprised to find John Meredith already standing near the mantel. He must have come in through one of the long French windows, for we had been standing in the hallway.

"Hello, John," said Mr. Robinson, casually.

"Hello, Dad," answered John Meredith just as impersonally.

"What brought you here to the city, where you have not been for so many years?" his stepfather inquired.

asked Mr. Robinson with assumed surprise.

"No, Dad, I didn't get any notice, and I expect I would not have thought of it myself, as everything seems to be going on so well, if Symington had not called upon me for money to start the expedition, which I am financing."

"Well, I'm sorry to disappoint you, my boy, but I'm sure the work cannot be done today. Elkins will not be able to come. He has been very ill."

"That's all right, Mr. Robinson," I broke in. "Both Elkins, Sr. and Jr., are going to be here. I'm expecting them any minute. That was all arranged by telephone this morning. Mr. Josiah Elkins is feeling quite well today and he thought the drive would do him good. He said that with what small help he could give him, his son had been working on the papers for a long time and they were practically finished."

"You certainly have been on the job already as business manager, Miss Dean," said Mr. Robinson, with a smile that was a cross between admiration and sneer.

I did not think it was necessary to tell him that Jerry had found it all out for me through his father, who was also a client of the Elkins. I merely contented myself with a nod.

My eyes strayed again to John Meredith. This time I caught an expression on his face which was entirely different from any I had ever seen there before. It was one of interest and appreciation. I would almost say that he had received a distinct thrill. As soon, however, as he caught my eye his face settled back again into its sad indifference.

Elkins, father and son were announced and we proceeded to seat ourselves.

Noblesse Oblige

by Olive Roberts Barton.

The other day in a railroad station I witnessed a little drama. A young man was sending his three small nephews and their mother away on a short vacation.

I stood by while the donor of the holiday was buying the tickets. "Three full fares and a half-fare ticket to C—," said the young man, laying a couple of bills on the counter.

The unusual ticket agent eyed the little group through the grating. "You don't need three full fares if you're not going yourself, do you?" he remarked. "That chap there doesn't need a full fare ticket, does he?" nodding at the middle-sized boy—all three were almost of a height.

The uncle hesitated only the fraction of a second. "Yes, he does," was the answer. "His birthday was the day before yesterday."

"Little chaps for their ages," said the ticket dispenser, turning away to stamp the slips for the trip. "You could have fooled me on a couple of them."

"Say, John," said another man who also had witnessed the little scene, "What made you do that? You're not your own children and you're doing the kids a kindness. Why didn't you let the railroad stand half? You're not a millionaire and you're doing without your own vacation."

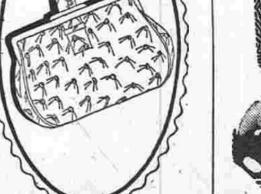

"Well, I'll tell you," laughed John. "I'm in a funny position."

The boys think I'm a little tin Angel and a Greek God and George Washington all rolled into one. And they were listening.

"I guess you couldn't have done any different yourself. I have to watch myself every minute, I tell you. If I ever slipped up and later on any of them went wrong, I'd think it was me that did it."

"It isn't any too darn comfortable having a reputation to live up to, but I just have to stand it, that's all. Anyway I suppose it's just as good for me as it is for them, don't know who's doing who the favor."

Zoo Animals Are Happy; They Don't Have To Fight Or Flee

BY DAVID DIETZ.

Don't pity the animals in the zoo. Don't say, "Poor things, locked up in cages when they might be running around enjoying life in the jungles of Africa."

Pity the animals who are running wild in the jungles and forests. The animal in the zoo is the only happy animal today.

You have the word of Dr. William T. Hornaday, for thirty years the director of the Bronx Zoo, New York, for that.

"The safest and happiest animal today is the animal in the zoo," Dr. Hornaday says. "In the house, he is well fed and comfortably housed, he's as comfortable in winter as in summer."

Must Fight.

"The animal in the open has to fight for his life continuously. He must fight other animals, nature and man."

"He must hunt and kill smaller animals for his own food. He must keep out of the way of larger animals or become food himself. He runs the risk of freezing to death in winter or dying of thirst in a drought. He must evade hunters with high-powered rifles and all the other aids of the modern game seeker."

In fact, Dr. Hornaday believes that unless the number of animals a hunter is allowed to kill is reduced, and unless more and bigger animal sanctuaries are established throughout the world the next 25 years will see the disappearance of all wild animal life outside of zoos.

Work for Laws.

"It is alarming to see the rate at which wild animal life is disappearing," Hornaday says.

"I intend to devote most of my time from now on working for the establishment of more sanctuaries and zoos and for the passage of more stringent game laws."

Hornaday has been called in as consulting expert for the zoo in the city of Cleveland. He has just completed plans for an enlarged zoo there.

Thirty years at the Bronx Zoo have convinced Hornaday that animals think and reason and possess a language of their own.

"In time I learned to distinguish the meaning of many animal sounds," Hornaday says.

"One day I heard a call from one of the bear pits. It was a sound which I had learned was a distress call. Investigation proved that one of the bear cubs had gotten his paw between the bars and couldn't release it. The cub held perfectly still while keepers extricated his paw. He realized that they were helping him and made no attempt to interfere with their efforts."

"We had a chimpanzee which used to wear a sweater in cold weather. He'd put it on himself and take it off again if he became too warm. One day, he saw a banana lying outside his cage just beyond the reach of his paw. He took off his sweater and used it to sweep the banana within the range of his paw."

Says Animals Think.
"We tried other experiments with chimpanzees at the zoo. We put a banana inside a long pipe which was too small in diameter to allow the animal to put his paw into it. Then we left a bamboo pole lying in the cage. The chimpanzee took the pole and used it to poke the banana out of the pipe."

"There are countless examples in the wild life of nature that show that animals think. Take the musk-ox for example. When a herd of musk-oxen is attacked by wolves, the oxen form a circle with their heads at the center of it. They make the circle so that their bodies touch. Then they lower their heads so that the wolves find themselves faced with a closed circle of sharp horns."

"If a wolf attacks, an ox will charge him. But only for a short distance, probably 20 or 30 feet. Immediately, he backs into the circle again so that the protective ring is not broken."

SCIENTISTS PUZZLE

AT SEX OF CHICKS

Washington.—A fortune awaits the man who will develop a practical method of separating the sexes in a flock of day-old chicks!

Increasing numbers of farmers are purchasing their baby chicks from commercial hatcheries. With this growing tendency there is a greater desire to purchase only female chicks, even at a premium, for it is largely for egg production that most farm flocks are kept.

Poultry feeders would like to buy only male chicks for feeding purposes.

At present, however, both classes of buyers are forced to take double the number of chicks they want in order to get the desired number of the sex they want.

Until some sort of an egg-sex detector is devised, all eggs will be hatched, and nature will continue to send the baby chicks into the world in equal sex numbers.

Poultry investigators in the past have given the matter much attention but without noticeable success. The Chinese are said to be able to distinguish the sex of young chicks by careful examination. But time is too valuable and labor too expensive here for this.

A poultryman in California is said to have perfected a method for detecting the sexes of baby chicks.

A number of poultry investigators in the state experiment stations and the Federal Department of Agriculture have at various times endeavored to solve the problem. The best that any of them has been able to do thus far is to produce baby chicks that bear distinguishing sex marks.

These marks are produced by crossing certain breeds of chickens. This method is satisfactory from the standpoint of distinguishing the sex of day-old chicks, but it has the disadvantage of mixing up the good work that has been done by breeders of pure-bred poultry.

COOKING A LA CLOC

Bride: Good heavens, John, dear that pie is burning and I can't take it out for ten minutes yet.—Aussie, Sydney.

TOO MUCH FOR HIM

Visitor: I hear you've lost your parrot that used to swear so terribly.
Hostess: Yes, poor dear, we found him dead on the golf links.—Tit Bits, London.

WAPPING

Mrs. James M. Preston of Grove street, Manchester, formerly of this place, received word, by Air-Mail from her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Ball, from Los Angeles, Cal., that they were coming east for a visit. It will be remembered they visited Mrs. Preston while she lived here.

Walden Collins, who is enjoying a two weeks vacation left Wednesday morning for a trip to New York and will return by the way of Newark and visit at the home of Harry Bussing for a few days.

Mrs. Josephine Wetherell and daughter Miss Mabel S. Wetherell, Sherwood, Bowers and Mrs. W. W. Grant motored to Wallingford Thursday, to visit Mrs. Mary Wetherell, who is ill at the home of her daughter Mr. and Mrs. William Shearer.

Mrs. Walter S. Nevers who has been suffering with a severe attack of rheumatism, is improving at this writing.

Mrs. Emma J. Skinner and her grandson Harold Hart, left the first of the week, to visit her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Hart of Broad Brook. There was a house party of eighteen at the new cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Stoughton at Black Point, over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Buckland and family were all present, and enjoyed the good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Foster and family motored to the Willimantic camp grounds on Thursday of this week.

CHEAP CARS ARE A MENACE TO THE TOWN

An accident that occurred in this town recently brought to light a condition that is common here. A man driving a $75 Ford was involved in an accident that did considerable damage to other cars and also to a team of horses, a wagon and the driver of the wagon was injured. Although the others implicated in the accident were covered by insurance the man with the cheap car was not nor has anything that could be held.

A prominent resident speaking about the matter said today: "I've heard something about compulsory insurance but do not know all of the details but I am for it on the face of it. In Manchester I think there are more persons driving cars that they have bought for as low as $25 than anywhere in the state. You can imagine what kind of a car that is. Then imagine that man going out into traffic with the car. Something goes wrong and it is almost a safe bet that something will go wrong and an accident happens that may probably mean loss of life or limb. We who own cars, or horses and trucks, are protected by insurance so that if our men or ourselves are involved in an accident the victims are protected. But what protection has one from these men with the $25 cars?"

Shoulders of Lamb: We will cut them any size you wish, and bone and roll them properly so that the lamb will be easy to slice. Serve with Brown Gravy and Baked Brown Potatoes.

GREEKS DEMANDING NATIONAL ELECTION

Athens.—The demand for a national election is growing daily among the Greeks especially since the repeated failures of several politicians to form governments without parliamentary majorities but with the dictatorial support of President Pangalos. The present government seems inclined to order an election for fear that it would encourage army cliques to combine and possibly attempt a coup d'etat.

The President is understood to be willing to order the election if other means to obtain a government fail, but also will support certain changes in the national constitution.

SEE INDIAN RUNNER AS SECOND NURMI

Los Angeles.—Phil Osif, who won the six mile run in both the senior and junior national A. A. U. meets at Philadelphia recently, will develop into a distance runner capable of regaining for the United States, the ascendancy in the longer races, according to Harry Trotter, well-known track coach of the University of California in Los Angeles.

Trotter, after watching the 19-year-old Indian runner at his summer coaching school, declared that Osif is a second Nurmil. Track fans who saw the "Flying Finn" marveled at his seeming lack of effort, but Osif runs as if he were flying—a light, tireless pace, and steady hips—gliding through pace without a quiver.

LET'S END IT

Magistrate: Have you a lawyer?
Prisoner: No, sir.
Magistrate: Do you want a lawyer to defend you?
Prisoner: Not in particular, sir.
Magistrate: Well, what do you propose to do about it?
Prisoner: Well, s'far's I'm concerned, I'm willing to drop the whole business.—Humorist.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES AT FUNERAL OF MR. MARON

There was a large attendance and numerous floral tributes at the funeral of Julius Maron yesterday. The service was held at the home of Mrs. Maron's mother, Mrs. Sarah Thornton, 411 Main street, at 2.30 in the afternoon. Rev. Shannon, of the St. Mary's church and Rev. Heindrick of the German church in Hartford, officiated.

The bearers were Samuel Thornton, John Chambers, William Thornton, Walter Fox, Walter Gustafson and Edwin Maguire. Interment was in the East cemetery.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cook of Cambridge street, who recently sold their cottage to Dr. B. L. Salvin, moved today to the lower flat at 115 Main street.

Miss Doris McPherson of Center street who has been a member of the office force at the Pinehurst Grocery for the past four years, will terminate her duties there next week. Miss McPherson after a short vacation will take the hospital training course at the Long Island College Hospital, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Thomas Fox and son John who have been spending the past ten days with relatives here, returned to their home in Brooklyn today. They were accompanied by Marie and Joseph McGrath, also of that city who have been here for a month with their aunts, Mrs. Frank Rawson and Mrs. James Campbell of Main street.

Miss Charlotte Foster of Henry street and Miss Mildred Seidel of Flower street will leave Sunday for their vacation, most of which will be spent in Rockland, Maine.

Members of Lady Roberts Lodge, Daughters of St. George are requested to attend the funeral services for Thomas Wass, to be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock at his late home, 46 Foster street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. P. Lathrop and family of Benton street and two cousins from Wadsworth street, are sojourning at York Harbor, Maine.

Herbert Johnson, who lives on Edgerton street, sustained a laceration of the left knee while playing at the West Side playgrounds Wednesday evening.

Albert Srachia, of Bolton Hill, who miraculously escaped serious injury when the auto in which he was riding overturned yesterday, is making a satisfactory recovery at the Memorial hospital. He has a fractured left ankle.

X-ray pictures taken at the Memorial hospital yesterday disclosed that Mrs. Richard Boughton, of High street, who was injured in an automobile accident at the Center Wednesday night, did not sustain a fractured skull as was at first believed. Mrs. Boughton's injury is a mild concussion of the brain. She is expected to recover.

In Monday's and Tuesday's Herald it was reported that a William Guadalupe of Homestead Park had been in the local police court charged with intoxication. However the man's name is not Gudaitis. There is but one family in town by that name. The man's name is Gerdrilas.

Francis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McCaughy, of 47 Maple street, is in the Memorial hospital for treatment.

The swimming pool and shower baths at the School street Rec. will be closed next week for repairs to the boilers in the heating plant.

Sterling K. Lippincott of McCabe street has returned from a two weeks trip to Philadelphia and his old home at Beverly, N. J. His sister, Miss Ruth P. Lippincott, will leave Saturday to make a similar trip.

POLICE COURT

Gustave Metz, chef at the Edgewood house, complained to the police last night because of the actions of four young fellows who he said were using vile and insulting language on Main street in front of the new Dewey-Richman block.

The officers found the young fellows and took them to the police station. In court this morning one of the quartet pleaded guilty to intoxication and the other three not guilty to breach of the peace. Metz was unable to identify the young fellows. The evidence was not strong enough to convict and Judge Johnson found them not guilty.

In the case of the young man who pleaded guilty to intoxication he suspended judgment. The judge warned the boys that such actions would not be tolerated and because of their youth he did not care to inflict severe punishment.

'KIDDIES' REVUE'

BEING ARRANGED

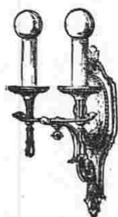

Jack Sanson and Tom Trant Going to New York to Secure Special Scenery.

Manager Jack Sanson of the State theatre and Tom Trant, well known local orchestra leader, are going to New York the first part of next week. The purpose of their trip will be to buy special stage sets and scenery for the forthcoming State theatre's Kiddie Revue.

Manager Sanson said today that he will buy the finest scenery available. He is anxious to "put it over big" and is leaving no stone unturned in his efforts to do so. When the revue is staged, Manager Sanson says, local people will receive one of the biggest surprises they have had in a long time. The show will be on no small scale.

Tom Trant will be leader of the large jazz orchestra that will furnish the music for the affair. "It will be a jazz orchestra, too," said Trant today, "and I don't mean maybe." Kemp's Music House is furnishing the orchestrations for the revue.

In an early issue of next week's Herald a definite announcement will be made concerning the exact dates upon which the Kiddie Revue will be presented. Manager Sanson said it will run for three days.

ARMY'S CITADEL

BEING IMPROVED

New Metal Ceiling Being Installed and Interior Will Be Repainted.

Alterations costing approximately $1,000 are being made at the Salvation Army citadel on Main street. A new metal ceiling has been installed to replace the former plaster ceiling. The entire exterior is to be repainted. Work started Monday morning and is expected to be finished early next week.

Big Improvement. The metal ceiling and the new coat of paint will make a great improvement in the appearance of the citadel. For some time the parishioners at the church have discussed the advisability of making alterations and recently it was decided to carry out the plan. Monday four workmen from Boston began putting up the metal ceiling. It was finished last night. Today painters applied a coat of white paint to the metal and tomorrow will begin work on the walls.

Not to Stop Services. Special arrangements will be made in order that the Sunday services will not have to be omitted. Other rooms in the building will probably be utilized for the purpose and it is possible that the evening service may be held in the Center Park. This, however, has not been confirmed.

The alterations on the citadel will be finished before a week from tonight because on that evening one of the most famous characters in Salvation Army circles will speak at the citadel. He is Commissioner Unsworth, of England. Commissioner Unsworth has been an active Salvation Army worker for many years. He has served in many countries including South Africa. He is known the world over in Salvation Army circles. Commissioner Unsworth's topic has not been announced yet but further information will be given out in a few days. He will speak at 7.30 o'clock next Friday evening.

FUNERAL OF THOMAS WASS

Funeral services for Thomas Wass, whose sudden death occurred Thursday while at his work in the Burr nurseries, will be held at his late home, 46 Foster street tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. The Rev. T. J. Shannon who is substituting at St. Mary's Episcopal church during the absence abroad of the rector, Rev. J. Stuart Neill, will officiate. It is expected that a large attendance from Lady Roberts Lodge, Daughters of St. George of which Mrs. Wass is a member, will attend the funeral services. Burial will be in the East cemetery.

DANCE AT JARVIS GROVE

A large attendance is expected at the picnic and dance to be held tomorrow afternoon and evening at Jarvis Grove. The affair will be run under the auspices of the Mantonomoh Tribe, No. 58 of Red Men. In the afternoon the picnic and sports for children will take place. Included in the program for the young folks will be contests in horseshoe pitching, peanut race, indoor baseball, running races, marshmallow eating and bottle contest.

In the evening there will be dancing from eight until twelve. The music will be furnished by Case's family orchestra of Buckland. Dan Miller will be the prompter.
