

THUGS ATTACK, ROB STRANGER AT LOVE LANE

West Hartford Man Brought Here, Beat Up and 'Rolled' for $50—Barron Finds Stone That Was Used.

Paul Cyr of 550 Fern street, West Hartford, was viciously assaulted and robbed here yesterday afternoon. His assailants are unknown and he is unable to give a good description of them. Cyr was treated by Dr. B. L. Salvin for a badly bruised head.

Cyr's story told at Manchester police headquarters is that he was brought to Manchester by two men in a Ford sedan. He said he was in Hartford, and had been drinking liquor. He was somewhat under its influence when the Ford pulled up to the curbing on Front street where he was standing. One of the occupants offered to give Cyr a ride to his home.

Robbed of $50. Instead of driving to West Hartford, the automobile came in this direction, although Cyr did not realize where he was going. He remembered the car being driven into a "path in the woods near a swamp." There he was attacked by one of the men who hit him in the head with a stone. A roll of bills amounting to about $50 was taken from his pocket, and then he was thrown into a clump of bushes.

When Cyr regained his senses he wandered around and when walking on Spencer street he saw a passing automobile and tried to get in. He was refused a ride. A woman living on Spencer street reported the case to Chief of Police Gordon who sent Sergeant Barron to investigate. Barron went with the man to a place on Love Lane which fit the driver's description of the spot where he was attacked. After some searching Sergeant Barron found a good sized stone smeared with blood and hair. Sergeant Barron is investigating the case further today. No clues have yet been found.

AT 3, DRIVES CAR OFF HIGH BANK

Boston Tot at Albany Starts Daddy's Auto—Both Occupants Unhurt.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Three-year-old Edward Sears, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sears of Boston, and his cousin, Eleanor Hennessy, five, of this city, today are recovering from bruises received when an automobile in which they were riding went over a 70-foot embankment into Lincoln Park.

The little girl jumped as the machine dropped over the embankment but the boy, who was "driving daddy's car," stuck to the wheel until the car made its first somersault. Then he was thrown clear of the machine, slid twenty feet down the bank, grabbed a small tree and watched the car tumble its way down to the bottom of the bank.

The boy's father was playing ball in the park when he saw his car come over the embankment with his little son at the wheel. The children had climbed into the machine while it was standing in front of the Hennessy home on the steep South Hawk street hill, facing the park. Sears said he thought his boy must have loosened the brakes.

Both children were taken to the hospital, but it was found they had suffered only a few minor bruises. The machine was completely demolished.

SOCIALISTS HERE RETURN TO G. O. P.

Backbone of Old Party Registers for Republican Cause This Year.

Three prominent members of the group of voters which made up the Socialist party in Manchester have returned to the Republican ranks. Mathias Spiess, William H. Schiedge and Joseph Rollason have registered this year with Registrar Robert N. Veitch as Republicans.

Different Viewpoint. Mr. Spiess, speaking of his return to the G. O. P. after about 15 years absence, said that the "war changed things." He personally has a different viewpoint regarding things politically. He believes that the Republican party's principles today warrant the support of every workingman in New England. He believes that business in New England can be good only under a protective tariff.

All three former Socialists are business men. Mr. Spiess is in the telephone business, Mr. Schiedge is a printer and Mr. Rollason is a shoe repairer.

CUSTOMS PATROL HAS ORGANIZED ENEMIES

Followed by Limousine, Fired at by Smugglers, Gets Orders to Shoot to Kill.

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 24.—The newly-formed customs harbor patrol, organized by Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews to prevent smuggling liquor, drugs and aliens into the port of New York, was in possession of its first confiscated rum today, following raids on two ships here and two gun battles.

In both vessels fights with alleged bootleggers occurred, but they all escaped. Members of the patrol were shot at by a crowd of fifty smugglers and rum-runners who gathered outside the piers. They returned the fire, but apparently no one was injured.

Everywhere the patrol went it was followed by a large limousine with drawn shades. As a result of the apparently organized opposition, the guards were later given orders to "shoot to kill" if they were again threatened.

Taylor, on August 11, struck Anthony Cybulski, who was riding a motorcycle and injured him so badly that one of his legs was amputated.

PLAN TO TRY PANGALOS FOR TYRANNY RULE

Deposed Dictator May Be Made Example for All One-Man Power Aspirants—New Election.

Athens, Aug. 24.—General Pangalos, deposed president of the Greek republic, was still in jail today, while the new legal authorities met to draft formal charges, to be preferred against the ex-dictator before a special revolutionary tribunal.

General Kondylis, leader of the bloodless revolution, whose successful coup turned the government upside down overnight, conferred with Admiral Kounduriotis, who was deposed as president by Pangalos when the latter burst in upon the republic with his new ideas in government on the charges to be made against Pangalos.

To Be New Election. Kounduriotis has temporarily resumed the role of president pending the approval of the people. At several mass meetings demands were made that Pangalos and all his supporters be tried, as an example to posterity that Greece is through with all dictatorships.

Admiral Kounduriotis today made it clear that he has no aspirations to be again made the president of the republic. He announced that he would fill the post of president pro tem in the present emergency, but that he would not consider again taking office.

Kondylis today reported to the office of the war minister that he had issued orders and a personal appeal to the army to preserve order throughout the nation.

The new government, to all appearance, has thus far met with the approval of the people. At several mass meetings demands were made that Pangalos and all his supporters be tried, as an example to posterity that Greece is through with all dictatorships.

People Approve. The new government, to all appearance, has thus far met with the approval of the people. At several mass meetings demands were made that Pangalos and all his supporters be tried, as an example to posterity that Greece is through with all dictatorships.

COOLIDGE'S HANDS OFF IN NEW YORK POLITICS

Will Have Nothing to Do With Selection of G. O. P. Candidate for Governor.

White Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 24.—President Coolidge today disavowed all interest in the political situation in New York state insofar as his taking a hand in the selection of the Republican gubernatorial candidate is concerned.

Through the official spokesman he let it be known he is perfectly willing to entrust the selection to the Republican convention. The people elect delegates to this meeting solely to express a choice of their leader, and what interest the President has in the situation, he feels may safely be left to these delegates.

Sam Koenig, Republican chairman for New York county, who saw Mr. Coolidge yesterday, discussed nothing but welfare work, it was revealed. The President is much interested in conditions in the city slums and interested in the politician on his charity work.

Koenig told the executive, it was stated, that while charity still costs as much as ever because of increased costs, the number of applicants for relief had diminished greatly. Better wages and living conditions are gradually clearing up bad conditions in the slums, he reported.

As Disciple Sees His Deity

Krishnamurti—affectionately called Krishnaji by his followers—here is pictured by James Montgomery Flagg, famous illustrator and a believer. Krishnamurti, hailed by his disciples as a new Messiah, is to make a tour of the United States this fall. He is to arrive in New York tomorrow.

Chicago to Hear New Messiah, Reincarnation of Three in One

New York, Aug. 24.—A slender, dapper, from these he will go to Los Angeles, to remain in seclusion until the time is ripe for him to preach the word to his followers.

His "John the Baptist" and in his wake there is a gentle, white-haired old lady who might perhaps be called a sort of feminine John the Baptist for this new leader. She is Mrs. Annie Besant, founder of the Theosophist movement, student of India for many years, who is still active at the age of 79.

It was Mrs. Besant who "discovered" Krishnamurti in the police department permitted the "underworld" to flourish. Mayor Swarts charged Lengel with "incompetency, inefficiency and neglect of duty," in a letter to him.

FIVE IN 12 HOURS FAIL IN CHANNEL

Lillian Cannon III When She Started; Porpoise Scares Out Vierkotten.

Cape Gris Nez, France, Aug. 24.—Within a span of twelve hours the English Channel defeated five swimmers of three nations who aspired to conquer its treacherous currents.

They were, in order of their acknowledgment of defeat: Lillian Cannon, Baltimore girl swimmer; Otto Kemmerich, German; Le Driant, Frenchman; and Ernest Vierkotten, German.

Miss Barrett was forced to give up the attempt after swimming four miles when she ran into a school of jelly-fish and the rough sea caused her to become seasick. Miss Cannon had covered four and a half miles of stormy water when she was taken with cramps in the stomach.

Porpoise Scares One. Le Driant gave up the attempt at one o'clock this morning, returning to Boulogne and Vierkotten quit at eight o'clock, returning to Calais.

Kemmerich struck a porpoise and was braved and badly frightened that he clambered aboard the accompanying tug, fearful lest he was being attacked by a shark. Vierkotten was several miles off Goodwin Sands when he gave up owing to bad weather.

Miss Cannon, pale and discouraged, reached Boulogne at 3:30 this morning and immediately went to bed. When she came ashore she admitted that she had suffered from a pain in her right side for several days and had said nothing lest she would not be permitted to make the attempt.

Miss Cannon Overtrained. Gertrude Ederle probably will remain the only woman to swim the channel for at least another year. Miss Cannon was examined by physicians today and was found to be suffering from strained muscles.

CANTON POLICE CHIEF OUSTED; OTHERS TO GO

Turning Point Believed Reached in Battle to Bring Murderers of Mellett to Justice.

Canton, Aug. 24.—Declaring that he would not be "coerced or intimidated by anyone," and that he would prosecute the grand jury investigation of the murder of Don R. Mellett "honestly, fearlessly and courageously," Prosecutor C. B. McClintock today in a formal statement "fired back" at Joseph P. Roach, Chicago lawyer-investigator for the latter's attack of McClintock's conduct of the murder case.

McClintock asserted he would remain prosecutor until the expiration of his term and that in the grand jury investigation of the Mellett murder, which begins tomorrow, anyone who has any information will be given the opportunity to tell what they know about this case before the grand jury, which will be permitted to pass upon the facts of this case without any interference on my part.

Police Chief Dismissed. On the eve of the grand jury investigation, Mayor S. M. Swarts dismissed S. A. Lengel, Canton police chief, from the department. Lengel's suspension of thirty days for inefficiency expired today and the police chief was scheduled to resume his office.

The mayor's move appeared to mark the turning point in favor of the "clean-up" forces of the city and weeding out of the entire police department is planned. Mellett's crusade along these lines was held as responsible for his slaying, it being alleged by him that conditions in the police department permitted the "underworld" to flourish.

Major Swarts charged Lengel with "incompetency, inefficiency and neglect of duty," in a letter to him. Failed to Investigate.

"You, as chief of police, after the murder of Don R. Mellett and until you were suspended failed to make a thorough and proper investigation of the facts surrounding such murder and failed to properly question those you might well know to be suspects as guilty of such murder," Swarts wrote, "and you failed and neglected to compel, require and direct police officers under you to make a proper investigation concerning the facts surrounding such murder."

Swarts further charged in his letter that Lengel could not enforce the city laws because of his "close association" and the "close association" of police officers under him with certain law violators in Canton, some of said known law violators being Karl Studer, Louis Mazer, Ben Rudner, James Crowley, Teddy Abbey and Val Cook.

Two in Toils. Mazer is in Cleveland jail on a federal liquor conspiracy charge and also is charged with the murder of Mellett. Studer is charged with liquor conspiracy by federal authorities, who declare the Canton liquor investigation and the Mellett murder doctored.

Lengel was reported as planning to fight Mayor Swarts' charge, relying on the moral and financial support of the Ohio Association of Police Chiefs, before whom he told his side of the story at the Toledo convention last week.

Truth of Their Pledge Is Vouched for by Eyton and Kathryn Williams.

Los Angeles, Aug. 24.—Pola Negri, the beautiful Polish film star to whom Rudolph Valentino was to have been married early next year, was still in retirement today, grieving.

Charles Eyton, who with his wife, Kathryn Williams, the motion picture player, was the first to comfort the stricken actress, declared today that both Valentino and Miss Negri had confirmed to him their intention of becoming married shortly after the first of next year.

When she slipped into seclusion late yesterday, Eyton explained that Miss Negri had gone to the beautiful home in Beverly Hills to which Valentino expected to take her as his bride.

The Polish actress spent nearly an hour wandering through the house they had planned together, each room poignant with memories.

CONTINUE FIGHT IN HALL-MILLS BAIL

Mrs. Hall's Kinsmen Appeal to Justice Parker for Hearing on Release.

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 24.—Plans for a legal offensive before Supreme Court Justice Parker to secure the liberty of "Willie" Stevens and Henry Carpenter, held without bail for the murder of Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were being made today.

Attorneys for the two defendants, Stevens, who is Mrs. Hall's brother, and Carpenter, who is her cousin, were unsuccessful in their effort to secure an immediate bail release when they appeared to Chief Justice Gummere of the Supreme Court. Justice Gummere ruled that he was under the jurisdiction of Justice Parker and that the application would have to be made before the latter.

Robert M. McKarter, counsel for the defendants, and State Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, were in New York today to see Justice Parker at Bar Harbor, Me., where he was vacationing, and he was reported to be on the way home to hear the application.

New Backers for Mrs. Gibson. Simpson announced that he had found two new witnesses to corroborate the story of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the so-called "pig-woman," who declared she saw Mrs. Hall and Carpenter at the scene of the Hall-Mills crime, the night the two were murdered and their bodies left beneath crab-apple trees on the abandoned Phillips farm.

The authorities working on information said to be in the hands of Special Prosecutor Simpson, were considering dragging a lake at Spotswood, N. J. in an effort to confirm a report that a man and woman had been seen to drop bulky parcels into the lake on the day after the bodies of Rev. Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found four years ago.

Hearing on Thursday.—The application for the release of Carpenter and Stevens will be heard on Thursday by Justice Parker, it was said today by Attorney Pfeiffer.

According to Pfeiffer, Robert H. McCarter, chief of the defense counsel, communicated with Justice Parker by long distance telephone and the jurist informed McCarter that he was on his way home and would hear the bail applications on Thursday.

BODY OF PRES. ELIOT ON WAY TO BOSTON

Little Church in Maine Filled With Mourners at Services for Dead Educator.

Eliot of Harvard was placed aboard a steamer bound for the way to its last resting place in Mt. Auburn cemetery, Cambridge, Mass. Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Appleton Chapel, Harvard.

Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, son and only immediate survivor, and the wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Eliot, accompanied the body to Boston.

MEX CATHOLICS SEE NO HOPE OF CONGRESS AID

No Chance to Get Reform Laws Passed, Episcopate Believes; Vatican Denies Negotiations.

Mexico City, Aug. 24.—Hopes of an early end to the struggle between the Mexican Catholic Episcopate and the Calles government over the religious regulations, prompted by the favorable reports following the conference between President Calles and two Catholic prelates, changed to pessimism today when spokesmen let it be known that the church regards as futile any attempt to present corrective legislation before the federal congress.

"An attempt by the Catholic church to present to Congress legislation favorable to the church, in response to the invitation extended by President Calles, would be an empty gesture without the slightest hope for success," a spokesman for the Episcopate said.

Following a conference of the leading prelates for the purpose of considering methods for placing the proposed legislative project before the forthcoming session of Congress, Bishop Diaz announced that such a plan would be futile.

"After a careful canvas of the situation, we find there is not a single member of either the Senate or the Chamber of Deputies upon whom we could count to introduce legislation sponsored by the church before Congress, to say nothing of working for the passage of such bills," the bishop said. "Much less than that," he added, "we cannot secure the support of any entire state legislature for our bills."

The Carranza project for amendment of the constitution, with regard to religious matters, is still technically before Congress and Catholics will work for action on this project if a favorable opportunity provides.

President Calles has given his pledge that the project will not be withdrawn. The adoption of this project would restore to the church about a billion dollars worth of movable church property which is now in the process of nationalization, would permit the church to maintain an unlimited number of priests in all states of either Mexican or foreign nationality and would eliminate the necessity for registration of priests.

The Carranza project does not meet all the demands of the church but insofar as it goes it has the tentative approval of the Episcopate with the exception of a few sections.

No further meetings between President Calles and representatives of the Episcopate have been arranged.

No Vatican Negotiations. Rome, Aug. 24.—The Vatican today issued a denial of reports that it has entered into negotiations with President Calles of Mexico for the settlement of the religious controversy in Mexico.

Norwalk, Aug. 24.—Dress goods valued at ten thousand dollars were completely ruined by being sprayed with a powerful acid in the plant of Reisman & Lewis, dress goods manufacturers of South Norwalk, according to a complaint made to the police today.

The owners of the concern notified the police that some one gained access to the plant during the night and maliciously destroyed the material with acid.

The firm believes the deed was done by a man who had been discharged by the company. The police are holding a bag found in the place bearing the name of a Stamford man.

CHICAGO TO HEAR NEW MESSIAH, THREE IN ONE

ered' the new Messiah. It was Mrs. Besant who nurtured him and brought him up from childhood, securing for him an European education and putting a Twentieth Century veneer on his other-age Asiatic personality. And it was Mrs. Besant who induced a wealthy British nobleman, a member of the religious cult she founded, to settle a sum of money on Krishnamurti so that he need never know the poverty and want of the first Messiah.

It was Mrs. Besant who assumed the role of the "Great World Teacher." Mrs. Besant says she noticed her that this Hindu lad was to be the mouthpiece for the revelation of a new religion. "The Great World Teacher" is a spirit, a divine essence of some sort, hidden deep in the fastnesses of the Himalayas. No human eye has ever seen him, or ever can; but Mrs. Besant says her astral body visited him, and learned that Krishnamurti was to be the instrument through which light would descend on a sinning world.

Was Small Boy. Krishnamurti was at that time a boy of some seven or eight years. Mrs. Besant promptly adopted him, somewhat against the wishes of his father, and proceeded to prepare him for his mission. She traveled with him, had him educated, gave him the best education possible, and awaited the day when the divine fire should alight on his person.

She wants it distinctly understood that neither she nor any other Theosophist assumes that Krishnamurti is the actual Messiah. Instead, the "Great World Teacher," who has spoken through the voices of all of the world's great religious leaders, from Confucius on down, is using Krishnamurti as a mouthpiece. The Messiah, according to Mrs. Besant, is speaking through Krishnamurti's body; the soul with which the lad was originally endowed is absent—just where is not stated.

Author at 12. At the age of 12 Krishnamurti made his first pronouncement. He wrote a book, "At the Feet of the Master," and his disciples hail this as a parallel to Christ's discourses in the Temple at the same age. Unfortunately, non-Theosophists have gone so far as to criticize even such things as the book's grammar; but at any event, Krishnamurti was not moved by the inner light for many years after he wrote it.

His youth and early manhood were spent in travel and study. Twice he has visited the United States, staying near Los Angeles. But because the time was not ripe for him to speak he came and went quietly and held his peace.

Thousands Kneel. Now, however, the time has come. Mrs. Besant and Krishnamurti first went to London, and then to Holland, where thousands of devout Theosophists knelt before the young Hindu in the utmost adoration. Even miracles, on a small scale, were reported.

For a second Messiah, Krishnamurti is still keeping rather quiet. In London he attended a meeting with Mrs. Besant and sat on the platform; but he was silent, while it was Mrs. Besant, who did the speaking—and, indeed, had rather a stormy time, with a certain faction of the London Theosophist Church that did not wish to accept the divinity of the new teacher.

Wears Flowing Robes. On formal occasions Krishnamurti wears flowing Hindu robes; at other times he usually dresses in the most approved western styles. He is not an ascetic, in the eastern sense of the word, although he has never eaten meat or tasted alcoholic liquor; and he is fond of such diversions as tennis and golf. He is extremely good-looking, rather frail in build, and the voice which is to announce wonders is soft and well modulated.

TOWN IS SWARMED BY ANNUAL VISIT OF TINY MILLERS

Manchester was invaded last night by millions of tiny millers making their annual visit. Attracted by the glaring lights from store windows on Main street, the swarm of insects literally covered the sidewalks in front of many of the stores. The millers lived but a few hours.

According to Joseph B. Grimes, local naturalist, they are only a few days old. He says they come out of the chrysalis, lay their eggs and then die.

This morning Main street merchants who had left the display windows of their stores lighted last evening, found the doorways and sidewalks covered with thousands of the dead insects. It was a common sight this morning to see men sweeping them into the gutters.

Lonely folk might find a sermon in the case of Ida A. R. Wylie, the prolific young English woman.

Loneliness, instead of being a breeding place for morbidity, can just as easily be made the opportunity for imaginative flights, for creating dream worlds and other escapes from reality.

It was a lonely childhood, Miss Wylie told us upon her last visit to America that turned her to writing stories for the sole purpose of amusing herself. She has never stopped.

Her latest volume is a collection of short stories in many moods. "The Mad Busman" (Doris Merril) by Henry Kitchell Webster. The first has to do with the murder of one Hubbard, blackmailer and all-round villain.

What the ingenious new camera technique is to the much-discussed German films, "From Nine to Nine" (Viking Press) is to the writer of mystery stories. The product of a real artist, Lee Perutz, who enjoys great popularity in Germany, this is a phantasmagoric, nightmarish tale of the adventures of a young man who dares not reveal his hands because they are mangled.

The author plays upon its pages those lights and shadows that give a shuddersome unreality to the stark reality and pathos of the story. There is something in it of the pantomimic art of Charlie Chaplin which leaves one wondering whether to laugh or to cry.

Efforts to earn ten cents cost nine-year-old George Johnson of 24 Winter street a fractured jaw and three front teeth last night. Today he is in the Memorial hospital.

According to information given by Mrs. William Johnson, the boy's mother, George had accepted an offer to help distribute the red lanterns on the Center street where the roadway is under construction. Mrs. Johnson says that George was running down the street with several lanterns in his hands when the accident occurred. He was evidently trying to get his work done quickly and collect his ten cents.

"PROTECTION."

Two crimes stand out from all other crimes of the period in their interest to the normal citizen. The Hall-Mills murder in New Brunswick and the Mellett assassination at Canton, Ohio, command the closest attention of people at a distance to whom stories of crime, ordinarily, are merely revolting or at least distressing. In neither case is the special interest created by the circumstance of mystery; there is only a relative degree of that quality in either case, for in both the general public is well enough satisfied in its minds both as to motives and as to the groups wherein the crimes originated—and the identity of the actual killers is a more or less casual incident. There have been many murders far more mysterious.

The absorbing intrigue of these two crimes lies in whether or not it is possible, in America, in any case which has come under the glare of publicity, for authorities to condone homicide, either for pay or because exposure of the killers threatens to carry with it exposure of misdeeds on the part of highly placed and influential citizens.

Both in New Jersey and in Ohio that is the real problem at issue. Shocking as was the original crime in each of these cases it shrinks into unimportance compared with the sinister suggestion that local law administration can fall into hands of individuals so cynical, so calloused against the prods of conscience, that seeming respectability does not hesitate to ally itself with blood letters if there be anything of money or security to be gained thereby.

Thousands of murderers in these United States have gone unpunished. That of course is not a good thing. But it is a less serious and less discouraging matter for all of these thousands to escape through honest stupidity on the part of authority than for one to be deliberately protected by the officers of the law on whom the people of a state place responsibility for the safeguarding of our whole fabric of society.

VALENTINO.

As unexpected as sad is the closing of the life of Valentino, the film idol. It is all very well for the physicians to look wise and tell, after it is all over, how hopelessly ill the young actor was from the beginning, but that does not jump with the fact that he had once pronounced him out of danger, and that it was not the direct result of his operation that killed him, but an unforeseen complication. He had passed the customary four days without the development of necessarily fatal conditions, and the doctors had no more idea that he would not get well, probably, than he had himself. But with the customary lack of sportsmanship of physicians of their type—and it is not at all the type of the small city doctor which we folk know—they cannot say, frankly, "Well, we lost him and that's all there is to it." They would rather give the impression that the boy came to them doomed and that they knew it all along.

It is this sort of thing that, among the unthinking, gives the medical profession an unearned, undeserved reputation for four-flushing. There are no more conscientious people in the world than the doctors, taken by and large. But the big cities attract and develop a certain medical element which goes more for reputation and fees than for service—and they are the world's best all-around artists. The pity is that they become so conspicuous that they are supposed by thousands of laymen to represent the ethics of their profession—which they don't.

Doubtless Valentino was not, indeed a first class risk. Doubtless he did not take the best of care of himself. He had too much money, too much adulation, no stabilizing background—just a footloose boy with an overdose of luck, plenty of good looks and not a little dramatic talent. The film world raved over him, spoiled him—and now it must mourn over him. He was out of luck for once. Infinitely greater men have gone to their graves unnoticed. But Valentino captured the fancy of millions. He was their beau ideal. They admired and loved him. They will feel as deeply his taking away as though he had loved them too.

WATERWAYS.

We like Mr. Hoover best when he talks as an engineer. In that capacity he can and does give authoritative opinions—opinions that carry more weight than when he talks as a business man or as a politician. In the latter aspect he is not particularly impressive.

It is as an outstanding engineer, and therefore as an economist of the first grade, that Mr. Hoover urges the development of America's waterways. He says we must eventually develop them in order to beat the Malthusian theory of over-population. To quote him in a recent address to a Pacific coast waterways organization:

A modern transportation system of 9,000 miles of connected waterways serving 20 states can be developed in the Mississippi basin at an investment under $125,000,000. That, though Mr. Hoover did not mention it, is about the cost of four first-class fighting ships.

The Great Lakes can be developed, by deepening the shipways, so that every lake port can be an ocean port, decreasing the grain export cost, making possible the carriage of raw materials into the interior on a cheaper basis and tending to up-build industry in the heart of agriculture.

Irrigated lands of the highest productivity equal to the state of Maryland in size can be made available by development of the Colorado river and the Columbia river project involves the possibility of adding 1,750,000 acres of land to intensive cultivation besides 2,500,000 horsepower.

The Hoover idea is that the government ought to increase its expenditures on water, "beginning at $25,000,000 and rising to $100,000,000 a year."

This is the engineering view, the mathematical view, the Napoleonic view. We wish him luck with it.

But with the jealousies of sections obstructing it, with the stubborn opposition of the railroads blocking it, and with the vast majority of the people of the country interested in nothing but the affairs of the moment, we think we see Mr. Hoover's waterways vision going the way of all other waterways vision in this country—the way of utter neglect and indifference—until that future day comes in which it will be a case of use our water or starve. Then, perhaps a hundred years belated, something will be done.

FERNALD.

Death has removed from among the people of the state of Maine perhaps the most respected and best beloved citizen of that commonwealth, in the person of United States Senator Bert M. Fernald. No other man of Maine in a generation, with the single exception of the late Thomas Brackett Reed, has meant so much to and been so deeply regarded by his community as this able, unostentatious, plain spoken and plain living New Englander. And as between these two, though Fernald was always less in the spotlight than was Reed in the heyday of his career, it is probable that he will occupy a more enduring place in the history of his state. There was much more of constructiveness, more of real achievement in his life—and he did far more for the material good of Maine and of New England.

A responsible, clear headed, deeply conscientious statesman was Senator Fernald—not a glitterer, not a trumpeter, but the type of man for which the United States Senate would be far better were there more like him in its membership. He provided one more proof that the best material for national legislators is not necessarily found among graduates of law schools.

END OF A DICTATOR.

Pangalos is a goner. The man who for fourteen months high-tailed the Greek nation, bossed it, bullied it, strutted in Mussolini-like grandeur and ran the affairs of the country as if it were his own private enterprise, can never, never come back. Often there is a chance for a deposed dictator to stage a return. Generally he has tied to himself a group of skillful politicians who know how to manipulate counter-revolutions. Usually he is a force to be reckoned with by whatever regime succeeds him. But Pangalos is a dead cock in the pit.

He has made himself ridiculous. Running away like a sacred rabbit was bad enough. Trying to hide behind the control levers in the tiny turret of a little destroyer put the finishing touches to his blunder.

They pulled Pangalos out of his refuge like a scared puppy from behind a steam radiator—and that was the end.

Once let a people have a single good roaring laugh at a public man and he might just as well wash up and call it a day. His job is done for good and all. Viva Kandyll! Pangalos—ha, ha!

REAL MOVIE.

Why, oh, why didn't the scenarioists think of it first? A traffic cop on a motorcycle glimpses a girl, driving of course a "speedy roadster," fleeting past a stop signal. He pursues and overhauls her, berates and threatens her, softens as he catches the pleading, humorous twinkle of her beautiful eyes, relents to the extent of warning her against doing it again—speeding, not twinking—and the next time he sees her he gallantly salutes. Thence acquaintance, thence romance and the traffic cop, more or less roughnecked, leads to the altar the daughter of a proud, aristocratic and wealthy house.

It has all happened in New Rochelle. And a ribald New York copy reader prints, over the picture of the bride, the caption: "Gets Even With Motor Cop Who Bawled Her Out." When they put this story in the movies the title writer should not miss that caption.

It consists of gathering groups of "judes" from points east, herding them on a "dude ranch," dressing them in Steinsons and cowboy attire and, for a liberal fee, giving them a taste of "western life."

The Broadway variation on this pastime is "yokel steering." It is a sort of return favor to those living west of the Hudson. It consists of gathering groups of "yokels" from points west, herding them on the gay white way, dressing them in night club attire and, for a liberal fee, giving them a taste of "Broadway life."

The "steerers" are, for the most part, wis and attractive girls who have achieved 33rd degree membership in Broadway.

They are ex-hostesses and chorines put "at liberty" by the fact that so many night clubs close their doors when the hot nights arrive. But well do they know that tourists from everywhere are hitting town and the buyers arriving from way points for the fall and winter season.

They have "tie-ups" with various resorts under which they receive a goodly percentage of the money spent. Some of them use professional models, giving a fee for an introduction to a "butter and egg" prospect. The model meets the easy-money-man in pursuit of her daily duties. The buyer wants to "have a party." The model agrees to help him. She "knows a girl who knows Broadway." And she gets hold of the "steerer." A day or so after she is rewarded with a check.

Sometimes the "steerers"—particularly those who have been night club chorines—manage to get model jobs and thus make an even fatter profit.

Each "wrangler" has a particular supper club to which she "steers" her prey.

The pretty maid assures the "visiting fireman" that he must be prepared to "do a little spending" and, wishing to be a "wise guy," the victim winks knowingly. The rest is simple. When the "wrangler" brings in her man she is spotted at once by everyone from the leadwater down. They proceed to send the victim "to the cleaners," as they say on Broadway.

Many hours after the victim is sent home with a terrific headache, the "she-wrangler" goes back and collects her percentage of profit. Which, not infrequently, is handsome.

Whether you're wealthy, or whether you're not, not just a question of how much you've got. That angle to riches is all tommyrot. Let's thrash the thing out and just see if we can't.

The man who is poor, though quite happy at heart, 'cause living through life he is doing his part, can always, at worst, breathe the free open air, and say to the whole world, "By golly, I'm fair."

He holds his head high, since his conscience is clear. There's nothing on earth that he ever need fear. His bread and his butter may come rather tough, but at least, when he gets them, it isn't on bluff.

Then, turn to the man who has money galore, so much that the one thing he craves for, is more! He views all the world with a sort of a doubt, 'cause money is something to worry about.

If you have enour' to go lightly along, and keep on the right road, and off the wrong, you needn't much worry. Turn cheerfulness loose, 'cause say, after all, you're as rich as the deuce.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Aug. 23.—W. R. Campbell has been official guide at the State, War and Navy building under 16 secretaries of war and 11 secretaries of the navy. It would have been 13 secretaries of the navy, only the Navy Department was crowded out, into another building, during the World War, and never managed to get back in again. Today, in reality, it's the State and War building and at that, it houses but a small fraction of the War Department.

Campbell doesn't recall in just what year he did his first guiding, but "Grover Cleveland was president, Thomam F. Bayard was secretary of state, William C. Endicott was secretary of war and William C. Whitney was secretary of the navy," he says, which makes about 40 years of it.

"I was in the naval construction bureau for 18 or 20 years," relates the veteran cicerone, "but my health broke down and I needed lighter work."

"Young Captain Poole was a superintendent of the State, War and Navy building then. 'How would you like,' he said, 'to try guiding?' I have been guiding people ever since, except during the World War, when the building was closed to visitors."

"You'd be surprised—the people I have guided. The greatest men and women of America and Europe—yes, and Asia and Africa, and many an odd corner of the earth—I've shown about this building."

"It's rich in historical associations, you know," he continued. "Look, when Jefferson Davis was secretary of war that clock stood on his mantelpiece."

"That flag draped Lincoln's coffin when he was buried at Springfield."

"That one, over there, floated over Fort Sumpter."

"This is the one that General Allen hauled down when he left Germany."

The old guide could tell a rare story of the personalities of the celebrities with whom he's come in contact but, of course, he won't do it.

Concerning the wonders of the State, War and Navy building he can and will discourse endlessly, but names are about all he'll mention as to the visitors he has escorted through it.

Let a White House or a departmental or a capital guide or usher or private secretary get to analyzing character and he never knows what toes he may be stepping on. Discretion! That's the watchword for a long official life in Washington.

W. R. Campbell learned it so thoroughly, long ago, that he hesitates to discuss notables who have been dead for decades, with no living descendants.

That he's been guide, however, for thousands of the highest officials from dozens and scores of countries is no secret.

"And when they get home," he adds, "they send me cards and letters of appreciation. I have a trunkful of them and some of the signatures on them, I think, would make an autograph collector pretty envious."

"I'm very proud of them. That is, I'm proud of having obtained them by good guiding."

There are two miles of corridors in the State, War and Navy building. W. R. Campbell has tramped them thousands of times, in the company of cabinet members, and generals, of ambassadors plenipotentiary and of envoys extraordinary.

He's the best posted man in the world in his particular field of activity.

3 Pieces in Jacquard and Plain Velours $149

These suites, exactly as sketched, are of a simple, dignified and graceful design with a full length davenport, a wing chair and a comfortable arm chair. The pieces are upholstered in a gray

Jacquard with rose background. Outside arms and backs of pieces are covered with a plain gray velour to match the Jacquard. A suite of excellent design and construction at an extremely low price. Formerly $198.00.

Exactly as shown

3 Piece Suites in all Jacquard $198

This is an unusually attractive design, having swell fronts on all pieces and the moulding base as shown in our sketch. The three pieces—davenport, arm chair and wing chair—are upholstered in a handsome, new, two-tone walnut Jacquard velour having a rose background. The reverse side of the seat cushions are in the same, durable material. Formerly $255.00.

Exactly as shown

Combination Mohair and Velour Suites $229

Here mohair and velour have been happily combined to make an attractive suite. The plain taupe mohair has been used on the fronts and seats of the pieces where the most wear naturally comes, while the velour—a perfect match of the mohair—is used on the outside arms and backs. Damask in bright colors is used on the reverse side of the seat cushions. The design is Queen Anne with arms finished with tassels. Formerly $269.00.

Watkins' plan of home furnishing allows you to select any pieces you desire. It is not necessary to buy the complete suite. Just select the pieces you can use—at the sale prices!

Exactly as shown

Mohair and Velour Suites of Three Pieces $259

In this suite the combination of mohair and velour is used in the same way as in the suite above. The mohair is of a taupe shade with rose background, and the velour matches it. On the reverse side of the seat cushions you find a bright damask, making it possible to "dress up" the suits on special occasions. Note the new carved wood base and carved feet, as shown in our sketch of this suite above. Formerly $325.00 for the three pieces.

OPPENHEIM STORY AT STATE TODAY

In "The Passionate Quest," the Warner picture at the State Theatre today and tomorrow, J. Stuart Blackton has turned out another extremely entertaining photoplay.

"The Passionate Quest" was adapted from E. Phillips Oppenheim's story of the three young people who went to London to seek fame and fortune, passionately. These three characters are played on the screen by May McAvoy, as the girl who went on the stage; Willard Louis, as an English girl-quick Wallingford; and Gardner James as the fiery young poet.

Featured with Miss McAvoy and Mr. Louis is Louise Fazenda, who contributes a deft and fascinating portrait of a French modiste. SENATOR FERNALD OF MAINE DEAD

"Dirt Farmer" and Supporter of Coolidge Yields to Illness After Ten Days.

West Poland, Me., Aug. 24.—Bert M. Fernald, United States senator, who had been ill at his home here for ten days, died yesterday in his 69th year.

The first intimation that Senator Fernald's condition had become serious came 10 days ago when he informed the Republican State Committee that he would be unable to fulfill speaking engagements during the state election campaign.

After the adjournment of Congress he returned home greatly wearied from the long and arduous session. Recently intestinal indigestion developed and on Aug. 17, his physician, Dr. W. W. Bolster, announced that his condition was critical.

Crippled from birth, he did not walk till he became years of age, but persistence finally built up an athletic body.

"Dirt Farmer."—When he was 17 years old the death of his father cut short his preparation for college at Hebron Academy. He went to Boston for a brief business course, taught school for three years and took over the management of the farm which was first carved out of the wilderness by his great, great grandfather in 1795. He paid particular attention to the raising of dairy cows and gradually established one of the best holstein herds in the state.

Sensing the possibilities in the growing of sweet corn in Maine he started a corn cannery. The firm which he established now operates western Maine.

His entry into politics came with his election to the Legislature in 1897. In 1909 he was elected Governor. He was first elected to the United States Senate in 1916 to complete the unexpired term of Edwin C. Burleigh. He was re-elected in 1918 and 1924. In the Senate he served as chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds and as a member of the Arlington Memorial Bridge Commission.

He was a staunch friend and supporter of President Coolidge.

THE WAY OUT

Lawyer: But why do you want to change again?

Mr. Brown: Ven dey say to me, "Yot vas your name before it was Robinson?" I want to say it was Brown.—Punch, London.

SAYS DANGEROUS VARICOSE VEINS CAN BE REDUCED AT HOME

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or hunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's of it.—Adv.

Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. North End Pharmacy, South Manchester agents Magnell Drug Co., sell lots of it.—Adv.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By AUSTIN H. CLARK
Smithsonian Institution.

Almost the whole world over you will see this pretty little butterfly for the only places where it is not found are the polar regions.

It is the most common butterfly in Egypt, where it flies throughout the year. It is abundant elsewhere in North Africa, in South Africa, and in the higher parts of India.

Two years ago it was the most common butterfly in New England, but since then it has almost completely vanished.

This is a shy and nervous butterfly with a rapid dashing flight. Dry, open places, especially dusty roadsides and hot and sandy regions, are its favorite haunts. It is very fond of flowers, especially thistle flowers and sweet white flowers like those of the button-bush and privet.

Decaying fruit has an irresistible attraction for this butterfly, and after prolonged indulgence in an orchard it sometimes becomes sadly intoxicated.

When disturbed, this butterfly commonly circles irregularly about

He can fly hundreds of miles, and returns to the place from which it started. But, unusually strong upon the wing, it is capable of flying for enormous distances. It has been found at sea 600 miles from land, and in 1879 immense swarms appeared in Europe, coming across the Mediterranean from North Africa.

No matter how common it may be we have nothing to fear from it, as its caterpillars feed almost entirely on thistles. They are sometimes found on hollyhocks and occasionally on other plants, mostly obnoxious weeds; but the thistles are especially their favorites.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda

Here after, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any druggist. Milk of Magnesia has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

POE'S STORIES: The Oblong Box (1)

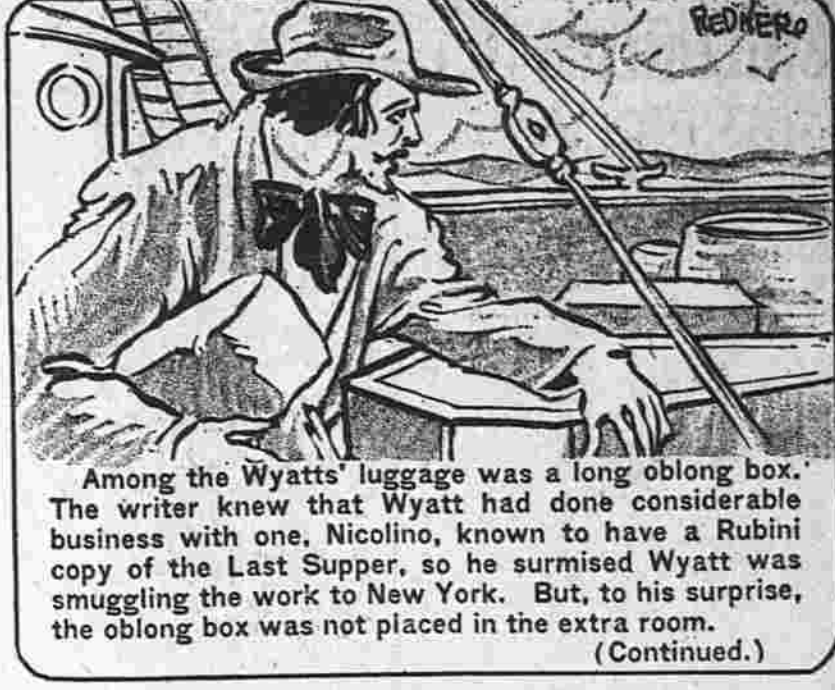

Among the passengers on a ship bound from Charleston, S. C., to New York City, in June of the year 18—, were listed Cornelius Wyatt, his wife and two sisters. Wyatt was an artist. Booked for passage on the same boat was a young writer who was a friend of the artist.

The writer's stateroom was near the Wyatts', and he was considerably mystified to notice the party had engaged three rooms.

He had explained to himself that probably a servant would accompany them, but was puzzled when no servant came on board.

Among the Wyatts' luggage was a long oblong box. The writer knew that Wyatt had done considerable business with one, Nicolino, known to have a Rubini copy of the Last Supper, so he surmised Wyatt was smuggling the work to New York. But, to his surprise, the oblong box was not placed in the extra room. (Continued.)

BRITAIN TO CONTINUE "EMERGENCY" RULES

London, Aug. 24.—King George has issued a summons for the Privy Council to assemble at Balmoral Castle at Edinburgh tomorrow to declare an extension of the period of national emergency declared by the cabinet at the time of the general strike last May. The reason for the extension at this time is the continuance of the coal stoppage. It is generally expected that Parliament will be called for a special session on Monday or Tuesday next week for the purpose of renewing the emergency regulations passed last May. The miners' executives today said that the mine owners are making a determined effort to break the strike in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire where numerous miners have returned to work. These efforts, the miners' executives declare, have failed on the whole, although they admit that some coal is being moved. The mine owners express confidence that the steady return to work by the striking miners will continue.

ARGENTINE POLOISTS TO PLAY AT MEADOWBROOK

New York, Aug. 24.—Headed by the famed Luis Lacey, the Argentine polo four will make its first appearance in American competition tomorrow afternoon at Meadowbrook, it was announced today. The South Americans will play a special match with the National, Town and Country Club quartet, which will include the greatest of America's internationalists, Tommy Hitchcock and Devereux Milburn. The latter will occupy his usual position on defense while Hitchcock, former international star, will face the great Lacey at No. 3. Other members of the Argentine team will include C. N. Land, Jack Nelson and Manuel Andrade.

NO FIGHT, SAYS PADDY

Boston, Aug. 24.—Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Willis, declared today: "There will be no Dempsey-Tunney fight in Philadelphia. The champion will not fight anyone anywhere until he keeps his agreement to meet Willis. I have one trump card—a contract signed by Dempsey to meet Willis in Chicago in September of this year. This contract prevented the Dempsey-Tunney battle in Chicago, stopped it in New York and will play its part in the Philadelphia proceedings. I have been offered $50,000 to surrender this piece of paper, but I wouldn't take a million dollars for it." Willis is here for an exhibition joust with Jeff Clark.

FIND HOTEL GUEST AT BOTTOM OF AIR SHAFT

New York, Aug. 24.—A thud at the bottom of an air shaft in the Broadway Central Hotel early today caused excitement among patrons and night employees, who found a man, partly clothed, who said he was Simon Honora, of Elmhurst, N. Y. He had plunged from an upper floor of the hotel, but his identity could not be determined from the hotel books. He was removed to St. Vincent's hospital in a serious condition.

THEY NEVER KNEW TOM SIMS

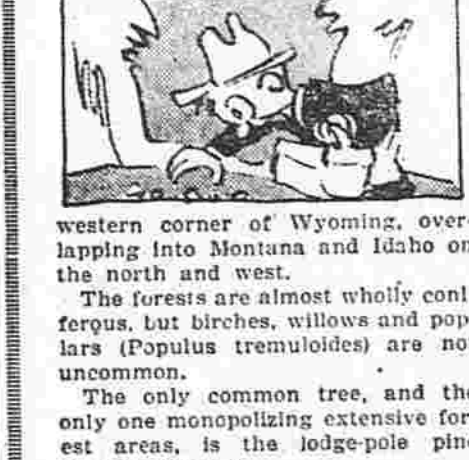

START HERE, S'IL VOUS PLAIT Slim Slimmer was in tears. He was ambitious and desired to become a Charleston dancer. He took a correspondence course. "Hey! Hey! Charleston," he would call out daily as the postman brought his lessons. He soon started calling the postman "Professor." After months of hard work Slim was good. He was a fine Charleston dancer. Then a terrible thing happened. The doctor told Slim he would have to quit drinking. This, however, has nothing to do with the present story. In "They Never Knew" a charming couple are on their honeymoon. JIMMYSON WEED marries PEARL HANDLE. The other characters are PEARL'S FATHER and two detectives, MR. and MRS. GUMSHOE. The latter three are trying to part the happy young couple.

Mrs. Gum loved Old Man Handle. Space prevented the romance from getting into this novel. But, we used the picture. Anyway, this chapter is about Yellowstone Park. You can see it illustrated on post cards.

NOW GO AHEAD CHAPTER XX AS the preceding chapter ended, Pearly had fallen out of an airplane. She and Jimmy had gone riding around donkeys along the Grand Canyon. When they climbed into the plane they discovered too late that they were unable to sit. Donkeys can produce painful results. So Pearly stood up in the plane. The wind caught her and she fell over the side. Her husband, naturally, was horror-stricken. "Come down!" called Jimmy, watching his darling wife fall toward the earth 2000 feet below. The plane had been traveling at a terrific rate of speed. Now it descended to earth to gather up what was left of the lovely Pearly. "Why, this is Yellowstone Park," exclaimed the surprised Jimmy, looking about him at the wonderful scenery.

"So it is," said the aviator. "And just think, Jimmy, your wife is a part of this beautiful scenery now." "Yes," said the young husband, sadly. "She's probably scattered all about the place. We must get a basket and look for her." Yellowstone National Park occupies a rectangular area in the northwestern corner of Wyoming, overlapping into Montana and Idaho on the north and west. The forests are almost wholly coniferous, but birches, willows and poplars (Populus tremuloides) are not uncommon. The only common tree, and the only one monopolizing extensive forest areas, is the lodge-pole pine (Pinus contorta). This tree is so common it frequently climbs upon a hill and throws pine cones at unsuspecting tourists, the dirty bum. All wild animals, with the exception of tourists, are protected by the government. The original geological structure of the park is almost completely hidden by a great Thrift lava flow, this being a first cousin to Sangu Flow, but not related to Flo Ziegfeld.

Most of both classes are highly charged with mineral matter, usually siliceous. Tourists, when paying their bills, as you probably know already. Owing to the elevation, the climate is rigorous, but not excessively cold. Every year, just as soon as the weather is warm enough, they have summer. And every winter, just as soon as the weather is cold enough, they have winter. This, quite naturally, comes as a great surprise to the residents and their visitors. All winters are the coldest in forty years, and all summers are the hottest in forty years. The mean temperature is at its meanness in July and January. Here and there are diurnal extremes, but these usually are either caged or chained. There is probably no region of equal area which exceeds Yellowstone Park in scenery. One peculiar bathing suits are worn by the women in the lakes and numerous streams, and the mountains are real, not just painted upon canvas. Springs of all kinds abound. There is the regular spring which follows winter and which usually is a few weeks late. Then there are hot springs, cold springs, lukewarm springs, and the guides frequently do hand-pumps, sometimes breaking their watch springs. Many of the hotels have springs in some of their beds. The ordinary springs of Yellowstone Park, however, may be divided into two classes: the non-eruptive springs, and the geysers. Most of both classes are highly charged with mineral matter, usually siliceous. Tourists, when paying their bills, as you probably know already.

force slackened. With much spluttering it subsided and came down to earth. And there Pearly stood before the astounded gaze of Jimmy. In falling from the plane the lovely girl landed directly on top of Old Faithful just as it began to erupt. She was carried high into the air by the column of hot water. Unable to climb down, she had sat there quietly, awaiting the time when she would be back on earth. "Don't stand there gaping like a blooming idiot," said the darling girl. "Get me a glass of ice water. I'm hot." Both had recovered from their donkey ride and could sit where they pleased. "We'll walk a while, and then we'll sit down," said Jimmy. "I'm a bit fresh and invigorating. Snow-capped peaks loomed against the skyline. Flowers bloomed everywhere, and the scent of pine thickets was all about them. "I feel as if I could walk a million miles," laughed Pearly. "This Yellowstone Park certainly is the berries." "Yes," smiled Jimmy. "Let's do walk a million miles. I like Yellowstone Park myself." "Silly boy!" laughed the lovely girl, kicking her husband on the shins. "I'll tell you what I will do with you, though!" "What?" asked Jimmy. "Climb Pike's Peak?" "You took the words right out of my mouth, Jimmy." So chatting and singing, the two started to climb Pike's Peak. On and on they went. The ascent was a sharp one, the road twisting round and round and doubling back upon itself. The morning waned. At noon they stopped and consumed the lunch which they had brought with them. During the afternoon they climbed steadily. Dust, fell, and still they were not in sight of the top of Pike's Peak. "There's something wrong," said Jimmy to Pearly. For hours they had seen nothing, no road, no trees, no scenery, no anything. They had been climbing so fast this escaped their notice. Now, however, as they paused to look about them, the realization of their predicament slowly dawned. They were thousands of feet above the earth, standing alone in mid-air. "There's something wrong about this," repeated Jimmy, puzzled. "I wish the author was here," sobbed Pearly. "He's the guy who got us into this jam." "I do, too," said Pearly, who was nobody's fool. "We were in Yellowstone Park. He started us out to climb Pike's Peak. But Pike's Peak isn't in the park. It's near Colorado Springs." And just then the chapter closed, leaving Jimmy and Pearly standing thousands of feet above terra firma with no possible way of getting down. (To Be Continued)

East Meets West on Athletic Field Wednesday Night

CHILDREN'S CARNIVAL FEATURE OF BIGGEST PLAYGROUND NIGHT

Expect 400 Boys and Girls in Costume Competition; Baseball Game and Other Events Scheduled.

Somebody, probably it was Kipling, said that east was east and west was west and never the twain should meet. That his statement is somewhat of a fallacy will be shown tomorrow night when representatives of the East and West Side playgrounds meet in all kinds of competition as the windup to the playground season. The feature of this evening will be a costume carnival in which more than 300 children will take part.

There will be a baseball game between the pick of the West and East Sides in addition to the other competitions. Some of the best horseshoe pitchers in Manchester will do their stuff on the court and each winner will be claimed the champion of the town.

The baseball game will bring out the greatest collection of stars that has been seen on a local diamond in some years. All the available talent on both sides of the town will have gathered up and the teams look about evenly matched.

The West Side Jayhawkers and the East Side Tigers, girls' volleyball teams, will have it out on their court. To date the Jayhawkers have won nine games and the Tigers eight. The balance shifted to the West side last night when they won two out of three from their opponents.

The best quot pitchers on both sides of the town will play at horseshoes. On the lineup for the West Side will be Feeney and Murphy, two of the leading lights in the town championship tournament while Oakes and Francis, who have won the East Side tourney for the last three or four weeks, will appear on the East Side team.

Following is the baseball lineup: East Side West Side Mantell, lf Stratton, 2b Pitt, 2b ... Balliseper, lf Fartons, 3b ... Sipples, cf St. John, cf ... Wallett, c Farr, ss ... Seelert, rf Cole, rf ... Hanna, 3b Carlson, c ... Macdonald, 1b Pospisil, p ... Holland, Hewitt, p

It can be seen that neither team is taking a chance on being left without pitchers. The West Side has three and their opponents will have two and possibly more by the time the game rolls around.

The lineup for the volley ball game will be the following: Tigers Jayhawkers Washkewich Rundes ... Driadus McCann ... Carlin Tomlinson ... Gligio Angulo ... Gryk

The West Side will be represented in the horseshoe pitching by Murphy, Fogarty, Feeney, Hubbard, Smith and McIntyre. The East Side team will be composed of Oakes, Francis, Lang, Shields, Suhle and McLaughlin.

WON'T STAY DOWN AVOWS DEMPSEY

Must Vindicate Himself Before Public, Says Champ; Is Furious in Training.

BY DAVID J. WALSH New York, Aug. 24.—Of casual interest to Gene Tunney and any one who thinks the short end might be a sound investment, comes the word today that Jack Dempsey has privately declared himself to the effect that he will leave the ring on the night of September 22nd the undefeated champion or feet first and inert.

Some pro-Tunney addicts have taken this performance to mean that Dempsey, doubting his own ability, is trying to convince himself that he is good. Personally, I believe that the champion has been irritated into a state of absolute ferocity and that Gene Tunney is fortunate he doesn't have to step out with the man while the mood is on him.

BEGIN HERE TODAY JOHN and FAY MILBURN joy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are...

But suddenly John stopped to stare at the paper's ominous headlines, which were proclaiming a thing almost unbelievable.

John later encounters Nell Orme at the Boyd's—a plot of Vera's, who takes delight in promoting "affairs." He resolves not to see her again, as he realizes Nell is carrying him off his feet. But he does and the day comes when he takes her manly in his arms...

Let him have it out," and she remained where she was. Orme was not long in recovering and John, as the other slowly raised his head, said, "Howard, do you want to listen to me?"

The words were as friendly, as kindly as he knew how to make them, but why, asked Orme, his lips tightening again, should he listen to any more lies?

"Wasn't this evidence enough for him—to come in on his wife in another man's apartment, in another man's arms? What did he have to listen to?"

John could do nothing but stare. And within him was the knock-knack of the fulfillment of words...

As for Howard Orme, the man's face was quite terrible to behold. The thin, straight line of his mouth was even thinner and straighter because of the set teeth.

The muscles of his jaw stood out like great knots and his eyes narrowed in anger, blazed like a cat's.

Of the two, John, despite the false position he was in, was far the calmer. As for Nell, she had backed against the wall and stood there, a breathless spectator.

"Hell have to say the first word. I won't make any apologies."

Howard, closing the door behind him and bracing his back against it, looked slowly from John to his wife and then back again to John.

"Well," he said finally, his voice little louder than a whisper, "I'm not surprised. I would have bet money this was where I'd find you two."

And then silence again. John, although the untruthfulness of the accusation angered him, still stubbornly refused to speak.

Once more Howard stared at his wife and shifted his gaze back again to the man he thought had destroyed his home. And the muscles of his jaw began to work and his mouth to tremble; the narrowed eyes to blink.

"You see," he cried at Nell, "I told you you were lying when you denied your love affair with this man. You lied—didn't you?"

He was trembling now, all over, in a fitful figure. And quite suddenly he collapsed and sank sprawling into the nearest chair. Nell spoke his name—"Howard"—and at the sound of her voice a great sob escaped him and he buried his face in his hands.

Nell at once started toward him, her hands outstretched to comfort him, but John whispered, "Wait."

"Well, try to stop me." And now John had surrendered completely to his anger.

"If you insist on doing that, Orme—do you hear me?—if you insist on that, I believe I'll be tempted to kill you. I think I would kill you. God! I've stood a lot, but I won't stand for this."

Nell had gone over to her husband's side and was plucking at his sleeve.

"Please, Howard, he's telling the truth, the honest truth. Come, let's go home. Let's get out of here."

She shot an agonized glance at John over her shoulder.

"Come, Howard," she went on, as Orme began to push her away, "please let's go home, and you sleep on it tonight and maybe in the morning you'll be able to think clearly."

"Think clearly! I'm thinking as clearly now as I'll ever think. Damn you, Milburn," he cried, his voice breaking. "And you, too, Nell. Damn you both. I'll have you both in court—you see if I don't!"

"You do," John told him, "and you'll regret it to your dying day."

"You mean to say I haven't got the right to get a divorce? You'd better not butt in on my affairs any more."

And John, not knowing what else to say, turned wearily away, thinking, though, that if Orme did go through with this and drag his name into it, he'd be tempted to kill him.

Orme was snatching at his hat.

"I ought to kill you," he was crying, and started toward the door. Nell, after him, "I ought to kill you."

And John—"Yes, I suppose so," he said.

There was no sleep for him that night. Going to bed was not even to be thought of. But before settling down in his arm chair he went first to a closet and brought out a bottle...

Over his glass he was reflecting that if Howard should do what he had threatened to do and Fay should learn of it, he'd sooner die than live with the knowledge that she could think of him as the kind of man Howard would paint him.

"God!" he cried, "What have I done that I should deserve all this? It isn't fair, isn't it? Fay, I'm innocent—I swear it!"

And so the night wore on. What, he wondered, was Howard Orme doing now. Had Nell gone home with him, and were they quarreling again? What a pity that Nell should have this trouble on her hands.

And yet Howard—how could he really blame the man? What would he—John—have done had he come upon his own wife in another man's apartment?

What a nasty, muddled thing life was anyway. What trouble could be born of misunderstanding. And what was to become of him?

He rose to pour himself another drink. Wouldn't Nat Graham goad, he was thinking as he tipped the bottle, if he only knew of this.

He could hear a horse-drawn vehicle clattering past his window—the milk man, most likely. Funny that routine things should go on uninterrupted like this while his own life was going to smash. But that was the way of the world—harsh, unfeeling, no one caring a rap for anyone else.

Some time during the long hours before dawn he went to his bedroom and opened the bureau drawer where lay the little rubber doll that had belonged to John's wife. He squeezed it hard, and the toy emitted a faint squeak. It was unbearable—it tore so at his heart.

He was glad when he saw the sun shining in on the window, glad for the excuse of dressing and jumping into the tub. And now, he thought, as he emerged from his bath, another day, with more trouble in store.

On a way to breakfast he bought a newspaper, glancing at the thing mechanically and with no idea whatever of reading. But suddenly he stopped to stare at the paper's ominous headlines, which were proclaiming a thing almost unbelievable.

The flame of scandal, he saw, was about to sear him again.

HER OWN WAY. A GIRL OF TODAY. JOAN'S ESCAPE. John Meredith slumped down in his chair, as though I had struck him.

"What can I do, what can I do? Surely Joan's stepfather should have taken some care of her."

John Meredith sprang to his feet. "What are you telling me?" he exclaimed.

"I am telling you the truth," I answered, as I, too, arose to my feet, and looked him straight in the eye, for I was nearly as tall as he.

"Beneficent fate stepped in. The man was killed in an automobile accident day before yesterday. Otherwise she would probably have been trapped into a mock marriage and been made to pay a check of $20,000 which he had forged."

"You will probably find Joan this minute at the hospital, where Barry Cornwall's wife is awaiting a babe, while the father is lying in the morgue."

"How did Joan find it out?" "The man told her, himself. She insisted on having me as a witness to their marriage. As she was trying to get away with what he had done to her and had to tell her. He also told her that he needed twenty thousand dollars immediately and that when they were married he was going to tell her stepfather what he had done and get the twenty thousand dollars for hushing the matter up."

"The dirty dog. My poor sister." "Yes, Joan Meredith, your poor sister. Poor because she had no man to protect her."

"How can I ever thank you, Miss Dean, for what you have done for my sister?" "You can come back here for dinner with me tonight, and then take me to a theater and afterward a cabaret and supper," I answered.

TOMORROW—A Great Change.

A WOMAN'S DAY ABROAD

BY ALLENE SUMNER Venice, Italy.—One of the great outdoor sports of the woman tourist is to take a post before one of the vast French or Italian cathedrals, and watch the members of her own sex ejected from the church, or refused entrance, because of too short a sleeve or too bare a neck, or too short a skirt.

Remonstrance, threats, entreaties, all seem of no avail. Uniformed gendarmes, policemen of the church, stand in almost solid phalanxes before St. Mark's, Santa Croce of Florence, Milan Cathedral, and even before the smaller churches scrutinizing each female who enters.

Sometimes a conference is held as to the eligibility for entrance of a signorina. There seems no set rule as to so many permissible inches of bare throat or "Santitas" enforces the sense of fitness of the particular policeman who scrutinizes one, or one does not.

I have seen women with sleeves below their elbows refused cathedral admission, and the next moment have seen girls with sleeves enfolded in the elbow permitted entrance.

Sometimes the vigilant eye is averted as a bare-throated damsel enters. But what a furore when she emerges and they see what has happened!

Some of the smaller churches are more lenient and are ready with a supply of coarse crash toweling, a la draper scarves, which are doled out to the erring sister to drape over her bare arms.

Bare arms seem the prime offense. Some countries have different demands for the foreigner and home women. They demand longer skirts of the former but permit bare arms which must be covered by their own women.

The "Scala Santa" or "Sacred Stairway" at Rome, for instance, demands a long flight of steps the devout crawl step by step on their knees, for the promise of a lessened stay in purgatory for self and loved ones, permits fairly short skirts on foreign women, but long ones on home women, but long cautions all languages to carefully pull down their skirts as they crawl on bruised and sore knees from step to step.

Tiny little girls and shaking white-haired women clutch fearfully at their skirts as they toil upward.

Some of the church's attitude toward dress, overflows into secular life. In Florence, we saw two sleek, well-groomed men in ice cream trousers and striped silk sport shirts ejected from a street car for wearing no coats.

The men, Germans, could not understand the commotion of the mormon, conductor, and a train crew, recruited from another car, until the rabble of perspiring, greasy-coated waiters pushed at their coats, pointing in shame at the coatless two.

One is fined in the Italian trains for putting shoes on seats, with the result that a compartment for eight is thronged on a hot day with about six pairs of shoeless feet. Happy he who reads with no imagination!

Flavor is everything in breakfast oats

WHEN you find a person, especially a child, who "doesn't like oats," chances are they haven't tried the right kind.

Get Quaker Oats. Once you taste "Quaker" flavor, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That rich and tasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years milling experience. No other oats approximate it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. Thus those who eat Quaker Oats find laxatives seldom needed. Combines protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and "bulk" in excellent proportions.

Costs the same as ordinary brands. You alone lose when you accept a substitute.

HAY-FEVER IN LATE FALL USUALLY MORE SEVERE. This is the third of a series of five articles on hay fever. Tomorrow: Desensitization.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The hay-fever that occurs in the late fall is usually more severe, lasts longer, and affects more people than that occurring in the early spring and summer.

Investigations have shown that the cause of fall hay-fever is the pollen of plants such as the ragweed and sage-brush, which flower at that time. These pollens are blown about by the wind, which is likely to be brisk and to disseminate the pollen over a wide territory.

In addition to the plants mentioned, other wind-pollinated plants, such as pigweed and tumbleweed, may go to seed and spread their pollens.

Second Period. Many grasses have a second period of pollination late in the summer. In New England, the fall hay-fever season begins, according to Walker, about the fifteenth or twentieth of August when the ragweed first pollinates. Patients will name a certain day, and even the hour when the symptoms are expected to appear each year.

These symptoms continue until nois and Nebraska south to Louisiana and New Mexico, marsh elder and the Russian thistle may be concerned; in Arizona, the careless weed, pigweed, lamb's quarters, and the irrigated country Barnuda grass and Johnson grass sensu lato appear.

In Colorado, the ragweed, Russian thistle, sawwort, sagebrush and the milkweed are involved, and in California many types of ragweed, povertyweed, goldenrod and tansy may be concerned.

The physician must determine by the skin test which pollen or groups of pollens affect the patient. He then makes a special study with the pollens concerned to find out just how sensitive the patient is. When he determines the sensitivity, it is sometimes possible to desensitize the patient. This will be discussed in the next article.

AUTO LEAVES ROAD, DRIVER BADLY HURT

James Hewitt Pinned Beneath Car When It Hits Pole and Overtakes.

As a result of a mysterious automobile accident late yesterday in Highland Park, James Hewitt, of 179 Middle Turnpike East, is in the Memorial hospital today with injuries, the full extent of which have not yet been learned.

According to Sergeant Barron who investigated the accident with Patrolman McGinn, it is not definitely known what caused the accident. Hewitt was driving his Hudson Coach toward Manchester. He was alone in the car. At a point where the road turns toward Case Brothers mills, Hewitt evidently lost control of his car.

The Hudson crashed into a telephone pole, moving it about five inches and then glanced off and went down the road about 150 feet where it overturned pinning Hewitt underneath. When the machine sideswiped the telephone pole, the left rear wheel came off and rolled onto a nearby lawn. The Hudson was a total wreck.

Joseph Carlson, of Middle Turnpike East, Frank Novak, of 10 Cooper street, and another man whose name could not be learned reached the scene shortly after the accident. They helped take Hewitt from the wreck. Carlson then brought the injured man to the hospital in his automobile.

The attending physician reported last night following examination of the patient that it would be impossible to tell the exact extent of Hewitt's injuries until late this afternoon. It is not known whether or not he has a fractured skull or not. He is suffering from severe head injuries, an injury to the right shoulder and numerous minor bruises.

Hewitt is a concrete contractor and is well known in Manchester. He was returning from a business trip when the accident happened it was stated by a member of the family.

PROCRASTINATION Isn't it peculiar why people will put off ordering coal until the last minute when they could just as well have their bins filled before the cold weather arrives? It's human nature to put off until tomorrow what can be done today, but every sudden cold snap keeps us busy writing orders, each order stating "must be delivered at once." All of which leads us to ask, have you ordered your winter supply of coal? THE W. G. GLENNEY CO. Allen Place, Manchester.
