

PUBLIC SHOWING OF VALENTINO'S BODY CEASES

Brawling Mob Ejected from Church; Fascisti and Anti-Fascisti Claiming the Right to Honor the Dead Star, It Was Decided to Close the Doors of the Chapel. This Was Done a Few Minutes Before Midnight.

New York, Aug. 26.—The general public was barred from the bier of Rudolph Valentino today. Because of the irreverence of the thousands who filed past the casket, which had been lying in state in Campbell's funeral church on Broadway, and the possibility of clashes between Fascisti and anti-Fascisti claiming the right to honor the dead star, it was decided to close the doors of the chapel. This was done a few minutes before midnight.

But when the great mob of people standing six deep in line for blocks learned that the doors had been closed there was a violent protest. They fought desperately when the mounted police dispersed them. Many of them would not leave the vicinity of the chapel, and at 12:20 a. m. a mob of men and women rushed the main entrance to Campbell's, forced back the police guard on duty and crowded into the chamber where Valentino's body had been lying in state. Police reserves were summoned and the intruders were ejected.

No Ejection. It is estimated by the police that between 50,000 and 75,000 filed past the silver-bronze coffin in single column up to the time the doors of the funeral parlor were closed.

The decision to close the doors to the public was made by S. George Ullman, manager for Valentino, when he visited the funeral church last night after pushing his way through the struggling mob. "This has gone far enough," he said, "these people are not reverent. There is too much disorder."

Then, too, the danger of a clash between Fascisti and anti-Fascisti became not unlikely after the right of the Fascisti to post black-shirted guards at the head and foot of Valentino's coffin was challenged by Pietro Allegro, secretary of the anti-Fascisti Alliance of North America.

Allegro sent a telegram to Nilman saying his organization held that the presence of the Fascist guards "is an insult to the memory of this great artist, who in life manifested his opposition to the anti-democratic policies of Mussolini and was for that reason outrageously treated on his last visit to Italy."

Refused to Be Fascist. Valentino, according to Allegro, repeatedly refused to become a Fascist.

A squad of detectives was assigned to escort the Fascists from Valentino's bier to their headquarters when the doors of the chapel were closed at midnight. There were no demonstrations against them, however.

Revised plans have been made for Valentino's funeral on Monday. The plan now is for the funeral to be as simple as possible and to abandon all ideas of a "state funeral."

On Monday the body will be taken to the Actors' chapel at St. John's Catholic church, where Father E. F. Leonard will celebrate a eulogical mass at 11 o'clock. A few automobiles with close friends of the dead star will follow the hearse from Campbell's to the church. Attendance at the funeral will be by invitation only.

New Clash Today. Even though the doors were closed a crowd, growing steadily in numbers, assembled near the funeral church this morning. Fully two thousand were in the mob by 9 o'clock.

At this hour several hundred of the most venturesome threatened to storm the doors of the chapel and mounted and foot police were forced to disperse them in wild disorder with their night sticks.

Later the police gained complete control and disorder seemed to have come to an end.

Only persons accompanied by Ullman or bearing cards from him are admitted to the "gold room" where the body lies.

Won't Await Brother. The brother of Valentino, Alberto Guglielmi, who is now on the high seas, aboard the liner Homeric will not get here in time for the funeral services on Monday, and the funeral services will be delayed until he arrives, according to Ullman. The Homeric is not expected to dock until Wednesday.

When Alberto arrives, Ullman will take up with him the matter of where Valentino is to be buried. Ullman said this morning that, in all probability, the body will be sepulchred at Hollywood.

Winifred Offers Vault. Word came today by cablegram from Paris from Natacha Rambova, formerly Winifred Hudnut, Valentino's second wife. It was the first direct word from her.

KING GEORGE GIVES UP TROUSERS SIDE CREASE

London, Aug. 26.—King George has staggered Saville Row—London's exclusive tailoring district—by forsaking the side crease in his trousers for the front crease. COOLIDGE REVIEWS 6,000 WAR PUPILS

President and First Lady Visit Great Training Camp at Plattsburg.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 26.—A cross section of America's reserve strength—sturdy youth voluntarily learning the game of war that their country may not be caught unprepared in any emergency—passed in review here today before President and Mrs. Coolidge, bringing home forcibly to the chief executive the great system of national defense being worked out by the coming here of the civilian training camps.

The President's visit to Plattsburg to inspect the Citizens' Military training camp was his first official call in New York state away from the summer White House. He expressed an especial interest in coming here to see the civilian training camps, which had his approbation from their inception. His son, John, put in two summers at Camp Devens, Mass.

6,000 in Review. Six thousand young men, trained in the rudiments of all the various branches of the service, swept past the reviewing stand where the official party was assembled, presenting an imposing panorama of the military.

The presidential party left White Pine Camp by motor shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, making the sixty-mile journey here through the picturesque valley of the Saranac. Townfolk along the route, informed in advance of their President's passing, were out en masse to greet Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge.

BAR U. S. MUSICIANS FROM GREAT BRITAIN

Appeal to State Department Here Discloses Britons to Be Within Rights.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The United States would not be justified in protesting against the action in denying labor permits to Ben Bernie, orchestra leader; Paul Specht and other American musicians to play in England, according to an answer of the Department of State to the appeal of Mr. Specht to the department against the action of the British government in denying Mr. Bernie and others the right to enter England and play at the Kit Kat Club. Mr. Bernie had contracts to appear in England, which, according to him, have been canceled.

It does not appear, the department's answer states, from the evidence submitted, that American citizens are being discriminated against by the British government, and in the absence of such evidence the United States Government cannot appropriately protect its citizens against such exclusion, as it is within the sovereign power of any country to determine who shall be admitted within its jurisdiction.

QUEEN MARIE MUST PAY HER WAY HERE

No Obligation on U. S. to Become Official Host, Say Washington Officials.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Queen Marie of Roumania will be shown all the courtesies due the head of a friendly state during her proposed tour of the United States but she will pay her own way.

Officials who have considered just how the royal visitor should be treated were said today to have decided that no obligation rests upon the government to become an official host.

The State Department is still without official intimation of her impending visit.

SUICIDE WHEN SHE HEARS OF DEATH OF VALENTINO

London, Aug. 26.—"When I learned that Rudolph was dead, something snapped in my mind and I couldn't go on longer."

This was the statement made by Peggy Scott, 27, an actress, before she committed suicide by poison, according to evidence presented in an inquest today into the death of the girl, who was found dead in her flat in James street.

FULL ROLL OF DELEGATES AT LEGION ANNUAL

Convention of World War Fighters Opens at New Haven With Col. Roosevelt as Notable Guest.

New Haven, Aug. 26.—With distinguished guests on hand, including Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, the annual convention of the Connecticut Department, American Legion, opened its sessions at the 102nd Infantry Armory here today after registering an almost complete list of delegates. With the address of Colonel Roosevelt, on subjects of interest to the Legion, the meeting was thrown open to the public.

Harry C. Jackson, of New Britain, state commander, opened the convention and later delivered his annual report covering the activities of the department since January 1, when he took office. His report showed a substantial increase in membership, a gain in finances, and a general carrying out of the Legion's policies as outlined by the national headquarters.

For Allington Hospital. A feature of Jackson's report is his call for an effort to have the United States Veterans' Bureau retain the Allington hospital. "There is a possibility of the government purchasing the property, providing funds are presented showing the need of retaining it," said Mr. Jackson.

The state department has "reached within a few dollars" of the $150,000 called for by the rehabilitation bill, and there has been no word from the federal government purchasing the property, providing funds are presented showing the need of retaining it," said Mr. Jackson.

Of legislative acts, the report said, "I probably will surprise many to learn that there has been more legislation enacted beneficial to service men during the past session of Congress than has come out of Congress in recent years." He urged that the department work to have the passage of the Fitzgerald bill or "emergency officers bill." He also suggested that the laws of Connecticut be codified for use of members and to determine what further action may be needed.

SENATOR RECANTS ON WORLD COURT

Gooding of Idaho Gets Renomination by Promising to Oppose Entry.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The formidable band of Senate irreconcilables who fought bitterly against the World Court last January, and who are laying plans to reverse the vote in the forthcoming session, were more hopeful today than ever of success.

Since adjournment of Congress in June a number of senators who voted for the court, under administration pressure, have had a change of heart. The latest of these is Senator Frank R. Gooding, (Rep., Idaho), who was renominated by his state convention yesterday only after he had recanted his vote on the court. The convention adopted an anti-court plank in its platform.

"I will stand squarely on the plank you have adopted today," Senator Gooding is quoted as having said in a speech. "I voted for the court, for I hoped it would be a factor for promoting the peace of the world. But if I had the vote to cast over again I would vote against any court that is a part of the League of Nations."

Gooding, according to the irreconcilables, will get a chance to carry out his pledge of reversing his vote, for a resolution of reversal.

FIFTEENTH CENTURY MANUSCRIPT STOLEN

"Book of Hours," Valued at $15,000, Vanishes from Case of National Art Club, N. Y.

New York, Aug. 26.—A reward of $1,000 was out today for the safe return of a fifteenth century manuscript, beautifully lettered and illuminated, stolen from the National Art Club here, where it had been on exhibition.

The manuscript, entitled "The Book of Hours," had been placed on exhibition at the Arts Club along with other priceless specimens of early printed books, the property of Dr. Otto H. Vollbehr, the German collector.

A short time before the robbery, a well-dressed man was seen peering through the glass case in a furtive manner. It is believed he found the hiding place of the cabinet key, and, waiting until the attention of the person in charge was occupied, stole the manuscript and then re-locked the case.

Dr. Vollbehr valued his manuscript at $15,000.

Miss Mildred Erwin of Pine street and Miss Louise Pukoskey of Ridge street are enjoying their vacation with friends in Philadelphia, and while there, will visit the Centennial.

Not A Messiah Just "Vehicle" Says Imported Hindu Mystic

By LEON M. SILER. New York, Aug. 26.—Jiddu Krishnamurti, the Hindu "vehicle of God," little relishes playing that curiosity-challenging role here in boisterous, irreverent, skeptical America.

The "vehicle" came to New York yesterday with cold sweat on his thin, plucked brow. He is devastated when addressed as a new Christ or Messiah. For he is but a "vehicle"—that's all.

Jiddu hovers close to his venerable sponsor and foster mother, Mrs. Annie Besant.

Mrs. Besant to Lecture. It was Mrs. Besant, leader of one faction of the Theosophists of the world, who first saw vehicular possibilities in the fragile young Brahmin.

She took him under her maternal wing, and trained him in the way she thought the potential incarnation of the Nameless One should go.

Chicago is to be honored with the first formal appearance of Mrs. Besant.

The "vehicle" is alarmed lest people misunderstand.

Mosquitos Prefer Blondes For Glucose In Their Blood

London, Aug. 26.—Gentlemen as to the preference shown by the mosquitoes in their selection of human hosts, corresponds to the phenomena discussed at a recent meeting of the Royal Society of Tropical Medicine in London.

"It was then proved that there are, as far as mosquitoes are concerned, three classes of persons; those extremely sensitive to infection by mosquito bite; those who might be called normal, and those who might be called resistant.

"There seems to be no explainable reason why these three classes should be thus positioned in regard to the mosquito, unless as I have said, it is due to the presence of glucose in the blood."

LAWYERS TILT OVER CHARGES OF CONTEMPT

Stamford Political Court Case Marked by Many Exceptions to Rulings of Judge Young.

Stamford, Aug. 26.—Stamford's contempt of court case was adjourned at one o'clock this afternoon after a two hour session marked by verbal tilts between Judge Carl Foster, of Bridgeport, for the defendants, and Max Spilke, town prosecutor, who is pressing the contempt charges.

Judge Foster took many exceptions to rulings of Judge Samuel Young, presiding, as Judge Young overruled objections made by the Bridgeport attorney.

Witnesses during the morning were C. Milton Fessenden, law partner of M. H. Kenealy, and Warren S. Abel, Frank B. Gurley, John Roberts, James T. Crane and John J. Treat, members of the Republican town committee, and E. L. Witham, advertising manager of the Stamford Advocate.

No Corruption Charge. Members of the committee, who prepared the political advertising leading to the contempt charges, declared to Judge Young that they had no intention of charging the city court staff with corruption but that they merely criticized the procedure taken in two cases before court.

Mr. Witham told of receiving the advertisement and of putting it through the usual channels of an advertisement in his office.

The hearing was scheduled to be resumed soon after two o'clock and is expected to consume the rest of the afternoon.

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 26.—Detectives today returned to Denver with a 20-year-old youth describing himself as Baron George Frederick Von Krupp, Jr., wanted in Colorado for passing bad checks.

Young Von Krupp was arrested here last night. He claims to have been a Harvard student for two years and a friend of Henry Ford.

A Ford special car which he drove was presented to him by Ford, he said.

Von Krupp's companion, Charles Taetsch of Newark, N. J., claiming to be a student at Brown University, Providence, was held by Albuquerque police pending investigation.

Von Krupp claims to be the son of the Krupp family of Germany.

London, Aug. 26.—Central News dispatches from Sofia report important troop movements going along the Greek frontier, accompanied by considerable fighting.

"Fighting continues near Salonica," the dispatches state.

"The situation seems to be that the troops faithful to General Pangalos, commanded by General Otentz, and including the garrisons to the north of Salonica, are fighting against the forces of General Kondylis, who are supported by the Greek fleet."

The Kondylis troop movements are said to be centering about Xanthi, near the Macedonia-Thrace border.

One of the chief products are the fins, which are highly prized as a table delicacy in some parts of the world.

CALLES PLANNING NEW RESTRAINTS

May Propose Further Regulations; State Claims Few Churches Closed.

Mexico City, Aug. 26.—The Mexico city municipal government today announced that the churches Professa and San Hipolito have been returned to the custody of the priests who formerly were in charge. The action, the announcement asserted, was taken after the priests had declared their submission and obedience to the government's religious regulations.

The Catholic episcopate denied the report that the priests of the churches in question had agreed to abide by the government's regulations, declaring that the Catholic ranks remain unbroken.

Plans New Regulations. While both sides at this time last week were issuing conciliatory statements, the situation now appears to have taken a less hopeful turn if the seriousness of recriminations from both sides can be taken as evidence of the true state of affairs.

According to reports from reliable sources the government is determined not only to enforce the existing religious regulations but also proposes to submit supplementary regulations to Congress which would curb the influence of the church in temporal affairs.

The episcopate has issued a statement regarding the government with a campaign of intimidation of school teachers and public employees.

The government declares that it has made a survey of the churches in and around Mexico City and finds that of 110 Catholic churches only four are closed, all others remaining open. All sixteen Protestant churches are open.

Kellogg, Sheffield Confer. Washington, Aug. 26.—The perplexing Mexican situation, as it affects the application of the new laws to American property, again occupied the attention today of Secretary of State Kellogg and Ambassador James B. Sheffield.

INSANE MOTHER KILLS HER BABY HORRIBLY

Boils Child, Then Proposes That Her Sister "Cook Her Baby Too."

New York, Aug. 26.—Maternal love broke down before insanity today when Mrs. Rosina Rato, 26, mother of four children and until recently a patient in an insane asylum, placed her youngest son, Frank, aged sixteen months, in a large kettle and scalded him to death.

The woman then rushed up-stairs to the apartment of her sister, Mrs. Rosalina Conarbie, mother of three children, and proposed that she "cook" her youngest son, Frank, aged sixteen months, in a large kettle and scalded him to death.

"I've just cooked Frankie. Let's cook your baby too."

Feigning agreement, Mrs. Conarbie seized her infant daughter and rushed to the street, where she screamed for help.

Police entered the house and found Mrs. Rato gibbering in the cellar. The child's body was found in the kettle.

Justice Parker Denies Second Application—Lawyer Accused of Misreading Testimony.

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 26.—Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker today refused to grant an application made for the release on bail of Henry B. Carpenter and Willie Stevens, charged with the murder of the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, both of New Brunswick, N. J., in 1922.

The court room was crowded when the hearing on the application began.

Fingerprints Evidence. Immediately after the hearing was formally opened, Special Prosecutor Simpson arose and said that as a matter of fairness to the defense, he wanted to present evidence in addition to that which was offered by the state at the special hearing last week.

Simpson said that a card bearing the fingerprints of one of the defendants was found near the bodies of Rev. Dr. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills. The prosecutor did not indicate the identity of the fingerprints.

Seated on the bench with Justice Parker was County Judge Frank L. Cleary, before whom was held the special hearing which resulted in Carpenter and Stevens being held without bail for grand jury action.

Neither Carpenter nor Stevens was present when the court convened.

Edwin Carpenter, brother of Henry, and Peter Tumulty, Henry Carpenter's chauffeur, who was chauffeur for the Halls at the time of the murder, were in the court room.

Verbal Tilt. As the hearing proceeded, McCarter and Simpson engaged in a verbal tilt as to the propriety of the state introducing additional evidence.

CARPENTER AND STEVENS AGAIN REFUSED BAIL

Justice Parker Denies Second Application—Lawyer Accused of Misreading Testimony.

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 26.—Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker today refused to grant an application made for the release on bail of Henry B. Carpenter and Willie Stevens, charged with the murder of the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, both of New Brunswick, N. J., in 1922.

The court room was crowded when the hearing on the application began.

Fingerprints Evidence. Immediately after the hearing was formally opened, Special Prosecutor Simpson arose and said that as a matter of fairness to the defense, he wanted to present evidence in addition to that which was offered by the state at the special hearing last week.

Simpson said that a card bearing the fingerprints of one of the defendants was found near the bodies of Rev. Dr. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills. The prosecutor did not indicate the identity of the fingerprints.

Seated on the bench with Justice Parker was County Judge Frank L. Cleary, before whom was held the special hearing which resulted in Carpenter and Stevens being held without bail for grand jury action.

Neither Carpenter nor Stevens was present when the court convened.

Edwin Carpenter, brother of Henry, and Peter Tumulty, Henry Carpenter's chauffeur, who was chauffeur for the Halls at the time of the murder, were in the court room.

Verbal Tilt. As the hearing proceeded, McCarter and Simpson engaged in a verbal tilt as to the propriety of the state introducing additional evidence.

"Your Honor," said McCarter, "the record of the previous hearing has been submitted and we considered the case closed. This was to be an application for bail for these defendants, in support of which I offer an alibi affidavit for one of the defendants."

Simpson rose quickly to his feet.

"Your Honor," he declared, "we have new evidence which I believe should be submitted and, in fairness to the defense, I believe that it should be offered first. We have, in our possession, a card found near the bodies when they were discovered, upon which are the fingerprints of one of these defendants."

Carpenter and "Willie" Stevens had, by this time, made their appearance in the court room. Carpenter, freshly shaved and attired in a blue serge suit, smiled as he took his seat at the counsel table.

"Willie" Stevens presented a rather shabby appearance. His hair was not brushed and his clothes were baggy. Stevens slipped noisily into a seat near Carpenter and stared at the ceiling. Carpenter kept his eyes upon Judge Parker.

When Prosecutor Simpson made the announcement regarding the fingerprint card, a wave of excitement swept through the court room.

McCarter proceeded to argue against the admission of new evidence.

"Both men were near the spot on the Phillips farm or De Russey's Lane at 8 o'clock on the evening of Sept. 14, 1922, according to the state's witnesses," said McCarter. "It also appears, according to the testimony of these witnesses, that at about 10 o'clock that night four pistol shots were heard in the vicinity. We may, therefore, assume that a murder took place on that night."

"This place, the Phillips farm, is near De Russey's lane. De Russey's lane is a connecting link between two roadways on which there is quite a lot of traffic. De Russey's lane is a place greatly frequented and, as one witness, O'Rourke, stated, it was a trying place. O'Rourke on that night could not go up De Russey's lane due to the fact that there were a number of people there. The fact that there were a number of people is of considerable importance, O'Rourke, Ninety Investigators."

"Ninety people were located in the New Brunswick hotels for three months after the crime, investigating the murders and going over the ground. There were not only the county officers, O'Rourke, but newspaper reporters and the very able Special Prosecutor, Wilbur A. Mott. The case was thoroughly gone over."

"The case was brought before the Somerset county grand jury and that body failed to find an indictment."

"Now four years have elapsed. The matter has quieted down. The people whose names have been mentioned, have lived quietly in New Brunswick."

Nine Billion Dollars Of World Trade For The U. S. In 1926

Washington, Aug. 26.—On a golden flood of commerce with all the world, the United States will boast of a nine billion dollar volume of world trade for the year 1926, it was estimated today at the department of commerce.

Into the maw of ever hungry world market, American agriculture and industry have flung $2,576,041,000 in exports during the first seven months of the year, the department announced, while buying $2,640,265,000 of foreign goods in the same time. If this rate is maintained for the next five months, America's foreign trade for the year will total about $4,450,000,000 in exports and $4,550,000,000 in imports.

Despite this potential "unfavorable" balance of about $100,000,000, government officials predicted a bright outlook for 1927. They explained that America's export market is gradually being broadened to include virtually every nation on earth.

"Thirty-four foreign countries from Canada to Australia are in the American market to purchase agricultural implements, automotive products, chemicals, electrical appliances, foodstuffs, iron, steel, hardware, machinery, petroleum products, shoes, textiles and specialties," the department announced.

BOYS, GIRLS BUILDING FOR THE STATE FAIR

To Be Given Over to Educational Enterprises in Interests of Youths.

The new Boys' and Girls' Building now nearing completion and which will be ready for this year's Connecticut State Fair is the first step in the management's permanent plan of development. The Charles P. Waterman Co. are contractors and Delbert K. Perry, the architect.

The building is seventy-two feet square of brick and steel construction and two stories high. Because of the short period of time in which to construct the building only one unit of the completed building was built. The finished building will be 72x200 feet and will have an auditorium, kitchen and offices in one end.

The building is located immediately to the left of the automobile entrance in what is known as the recreation area.

In deciding upon what building should be the first erected the directors of the State Fair decided unanimously that the best way to show the citizens of the state that the state fair is being placed upon an educational basis was to erect a boys' and girls' building to be used by them exclusively. This step is also in line with their policy of encouraging and stimulating boys and girls to make their best better.

The first floor will be used by three junior organizations: the 4-H Clubs, the Junior Achievement Clubs and the Boy Scouts. The space has been allotted to each organization and the exhibits for this year's State Fair are ready to be put in place.

The second floor will be used exclusively for dormitories and will be divided into sections for both boys and girls. The State Fair is having as their guests during the week of the fair approximately 150 boys and girls who will live and exhibit on the grounds during the week.

This building will be available for recognized junior organizations for them to use during the year.

Grouped outside at one end of the building will be the outdoor exhibits of the boys and girls. The 4-H club members will have dairy calves, baby beavers, poultry and bees under tents. Adjacent to them will be the outdoor camp of the Boy Scouts consisting of seven tents where the boys will live during the week and in front of which, on their campus, they will give their demonstrations.

U. S. PROTESTS ON CHINA BOND ISSUE

Declares Debts to Americans Should Come Before Provision for New Paper.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Emphatic protest has been made to China by this government against reported plans for the issuance of a silver dollar $25,000,000 domestic bond issue (about $12,500,000 United States currency), to be secured by $11,000,000 ($5,500,000) a year which is at present paid out of revenues derived from maritime customs for the "ninth-year domestic loan," a previous issue.

The text of the note, addressed to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs in Peking and delivered by John Van A. McMurray, the Minister, was made public by the State Department today, copies having been given the press in Peking at the same time.

Debts to a number of American citizens and corporations that have not been met, including indemnities due for looting outrages by bandits, are cited in the protest.

The United States Government insists that a large number of debts to American citizens, long past due, are entitled to priority and should be met.

The ninth-year domestic loan is due to be extinguished in 1927, and the State Department contends that the funds that become available then should be applied toward payment of Chinese obligations to Americans. The Peking authorities were told, in fact that failure to do so would be regarded "as a further failure to observe good faith toward the American creditors of China."

KRISHNAMURTI.

It would be our opinion that Mrs. Besant, who in the course of her long life has not made many mistakes in psychological interpretation, has pulled a fielding error this time in the selection of the present period to undertake the staging of a revival of Theosophical enthusiasm in America.

Twenty years ago, perhaps twenty years hence, little Krishnaji would have stood an infinitely better chance of being taken seriously in this country.

There would seem to be only one way in which Krishnaji could really be put over in America. Let Mrs. Besant go whacks with somebody in the movies, put the Hindu lad's big cow's eyes into a film along with at least three temptresses and a couple of murders, let him save a bespattered heroine from herself and the devil and carry her off in an airplane to the Himalayas in a Sikorsky plane—and she will have three-quarters of the United States talking Theosophical patter and raving over the "world's teacher" inside of three months, while Valentino is forgotten.

Of course this would get more of money than of spiritual victory for Mrs. Besant and the gentle Krishnaji—but we suspect there would be balm in the dough.

RUM BONUSES.

Apparently any gentleman or lady who contemplates going into the business of unofficial rum snooping for whatever profit may accrue therefrom will have to go directly to the treasury department to find out whether there is really an opening for his or her talents.

Perhaps the complainants in these cases are not so very much to blame, after all. Being extremely busy from boyhood learning how to make horrid noises in the horriest possible way, and thereafter in getting jobs and continuing the noise before the echoes die, they are not, probably, and not supposed to be, very familiar with treaties and international law.

They get their ideas from the news and comment of the current hour. And since that news and comment for some time has led toward the assumption that all Europe was supposed to dance according to Uncle Sam's fiddling, and that every overseas government was expected to sneeze whenever he took snuff, it is not to be wondered at that the music makers were astounded to discover that one could not, necessarily, go wherever he pleased in this world, and do precisely what he chose, simply because of American citizenship.

Nothing in the world is such a stimulus to the sense of moral responsibility of a certain type of individual as cash. There are many thousands who are now crying out about the laxity of liquor law enforcement, yet who will not trouble themselves to tip off the authorities when they know that this or that jakey shop is selling rum, whose virtuous indignation might easily be stirred into helpful action at the prospect of fingering a quarter of the fine in the case.

To be sure, the result would be a little more of hatred, a little more of loss of self respect, a little more of sordidness and demoralization of the social order, a little more of crystallization of meanness, a good many more murders of reprisal. But what of that? It would help enforce the prohibitory law—and that seems to be the only thing in all this world that counts.

MEXICAN PUZZLE.

It is a little difficult to understand just how the Catholic Episcopate in Mexico expects to win its contest with the government if, as the church body has in effect declared, there is nothing to be expected from appeals to either the national congress or to the legislatures of the various Mexican states for relief by amendment of the basic law.

If there is no important church party in Mexico, if there are no members of the Mexican congress interested in championing the cause of the clerics in their battle for freedom from the constitutional regulations imposed by President Calles, if there is no single state in Mexico in which the influence of the Episcopate is sufficiently powerful to bring about at least an effort to ameliorate the existing condition, then it would seem as if the church, in that country, decidedly inferior in strength to the secular political machinery—which is not exactly the impression which has prevailed on this side of the boundary.

It might even be possible for entirely fair minded, unprejudiced outsiders, lacking perhaps special information on the subject but merely following the usual custom of adding two and two, to conclude that the influence of the church lay with the non-voting part of the population almost entirely. If this should turn out to be so, it would be a good deal of a revelation to those—and this would include most Americans—who have supposed Mexico to be seriously as well as nominally a Catholic nation in all its strata.

Most Americans had believed that if the church could get recognition of its right to seek a change in the constitution, favorable to its continued freedom of action, nothing more would be necessary. When the Episcopate merely shrugs its shoulders at this opportunity and says "What's the use?" the situation becomes puzzling enough.

INDIGNANT JAZZISTS.

A number of American jazz artists having been denied the right or privilege of entering England to play club engagements there, the indignant calthumpianists have appealed to the United States State Department to have something immediately done about the outrage. To the utter astonishment and no doubt still greater indignation of the complainants they are informed that there is nothing to be done.

It does not appear, the State Department sets forth, that United States citizens are being discriminated against, and if Great Britain sees fit to exclude any class of persons, even saxophonists and traps jugglers, she has a right to do so—and there will be no war.

Perhaps the complainants in these cases are not so very much to blame, after all. Being extremely busy from boyhood learning how to make horrid noises in the horriest possible way, and thereafter in getting jobs and continuing the noise before the echoes die, they are not, probably, and not supposed to be, very familiar with treaties and international law.

They get their ideas from the news and comment of the current hour. And since that news and comment for some time has led toward the assumption that all Europe was supposed to dance according to Uncle Sam's fiddling, and that every overseas government was expected to sneeze whenever he took snuff, it is not to be wondered at that the music makers were astounded to discover that one could not, necessarily, go wherever he pleased in this world, and do precisely what he chose, simply because of American citizenship.

There are others than jazzists who have fallen into the same error. Some of them are in the United States Senate.

Postmaster Nahum Bartlett of Searsburg, Vt., who sprang into distinction a year or two ago when he demanded a ten dollar increase in his salary on account of the high cost of crackers—which are the only food Nahum has ever been known to buy—and who, it then developed, was boss of the post office doing the smallest business of any in the United States, has had his nose put out of joint by Postmaster G. E. Frazier at Randle Cliffs, Md., less than a hundred miles from Washington. The receipts of the Randle Cliffs office in the last fiscal year were just $123, so the official records disclose. There is mystery in this. A hundred and twenty-eight dollars is a hundred and twenty-eight dollars, and it takes quite a number of two cents stamps and postal cards to figure up to that amount. How it can be less than the intake of the Searsburg office will require some explanation to anyone who has ever found himself in that out-of-way corner of the world.

Whether a new family has moved into Searsburg, or whether the infrequent motorists who get into Searsburg by losing their way, attracted by the fame of Postmaster Bartlett have paddled the intake by buying post cards or him, or whether people have taken to sending him packages of crackers on the "collect postage" plan or whether one of Searsburg's two or three bachelors has acquired a girl and is writing to her, can only be guessed. But business at Searsburg's office must have gotten a whale of a boom, somehow, for a hundred and twenty-eight dollar rival to beat it for the booby prize.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 26.—It happened shortly after the noon hour just about half a block from the stock exchange in the Wall street bet.

The narrow sidewalks overflowed with scurrying humanity. Only a fraction of the Wall Streeters ever use a sidewalk anyway. They walk in the streets like plodders on a country road.

And, with mechanical regularity, the whole world seems to hit Broadway or Seventh avenue at the same moment. At noon or at night it is always the same: a great river of humans flowing and swirling until they meet the impact of cross traffic. Then turmoil and chaos.

Upon this noon hour it was the same. Sweating crossing cops were going through their frantic and futile warnings. Jaywalkers were taking their chances alone and in groups. Auto, trucks, postoffice vans loaded with mail, vullion wagons rushing to the mint, acres of people, all scrambled together at a couple of corners.

Suddenly the giant parade was halted, as if some signal that threw into paralysis the whole scheme of locomotion. As usual the traffic officer had whistled his warning. But this time it was needed! Not a wheel turned, and along the slim sidewalks the crowds congested, their eyes fastened upon the street.

An alley cat had come slinking out from behind the postoffice building at City Hall Square and furtively made her way to the pavement and started across. She was carrying in her mouth a wee ball of black fur.

And the great tide of traffic, that hesitates neither for man or machine, had come to a dead stop before this slinking symbol of motherhood.

Speaking of cats, the New York sidewalk breed is about the mangiest, snakiest, most predatory collection to be found anywhere on the globe.

They thrive in particular in the alleys and byways of Greenwich Village, where safety may be found in dark cellarways and handy ash-cans.

Hot weather brings them out, as magicians bring rabbits from hats. They spring from the most unexpected places in amazing numbers. By way of diversion a party of strollers kept count upon a recent warm evening and found 40 within half a block, scattered over window ledges, doorways and pavements.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART Washington, Aug. 26.—Not much has been heard lately from Col. "Billy" Mitchell, aviator, but there's liable to be, shortly.

When the National Aeronautic Association meets in Philadelphia Sept. 4-11, a drive is to be launched to make Col. "Billy" the organization's president.

The colonel's supporters say a majority in favor is assured already, and the colonel himself, now on a vacation in Maine, is quoted as having promised to accept, if elected.

Now, as we all know, Colonel Mitchell holds that navies are obsolete and armies nearly so—that military aviation is everything these times.

We also know that orthodox army and navy men dissent from this judgment and that the colonel was driven out of the service, not, perhaps, for his opinions, but for the way in which he expressed them.

After his enforced retirement, Mitchell tried to keep up his fight but wasn't very successful. He was a good leader but he lacked an organized following. Maybe here's where he gets it.

The National Aeronautic Association's motto is "America First in the Air," which speaks for itself. It was formed in Detroit in 1922. Its first president was Howard E. Coffin, who served on President Coolidge's aircraft board.

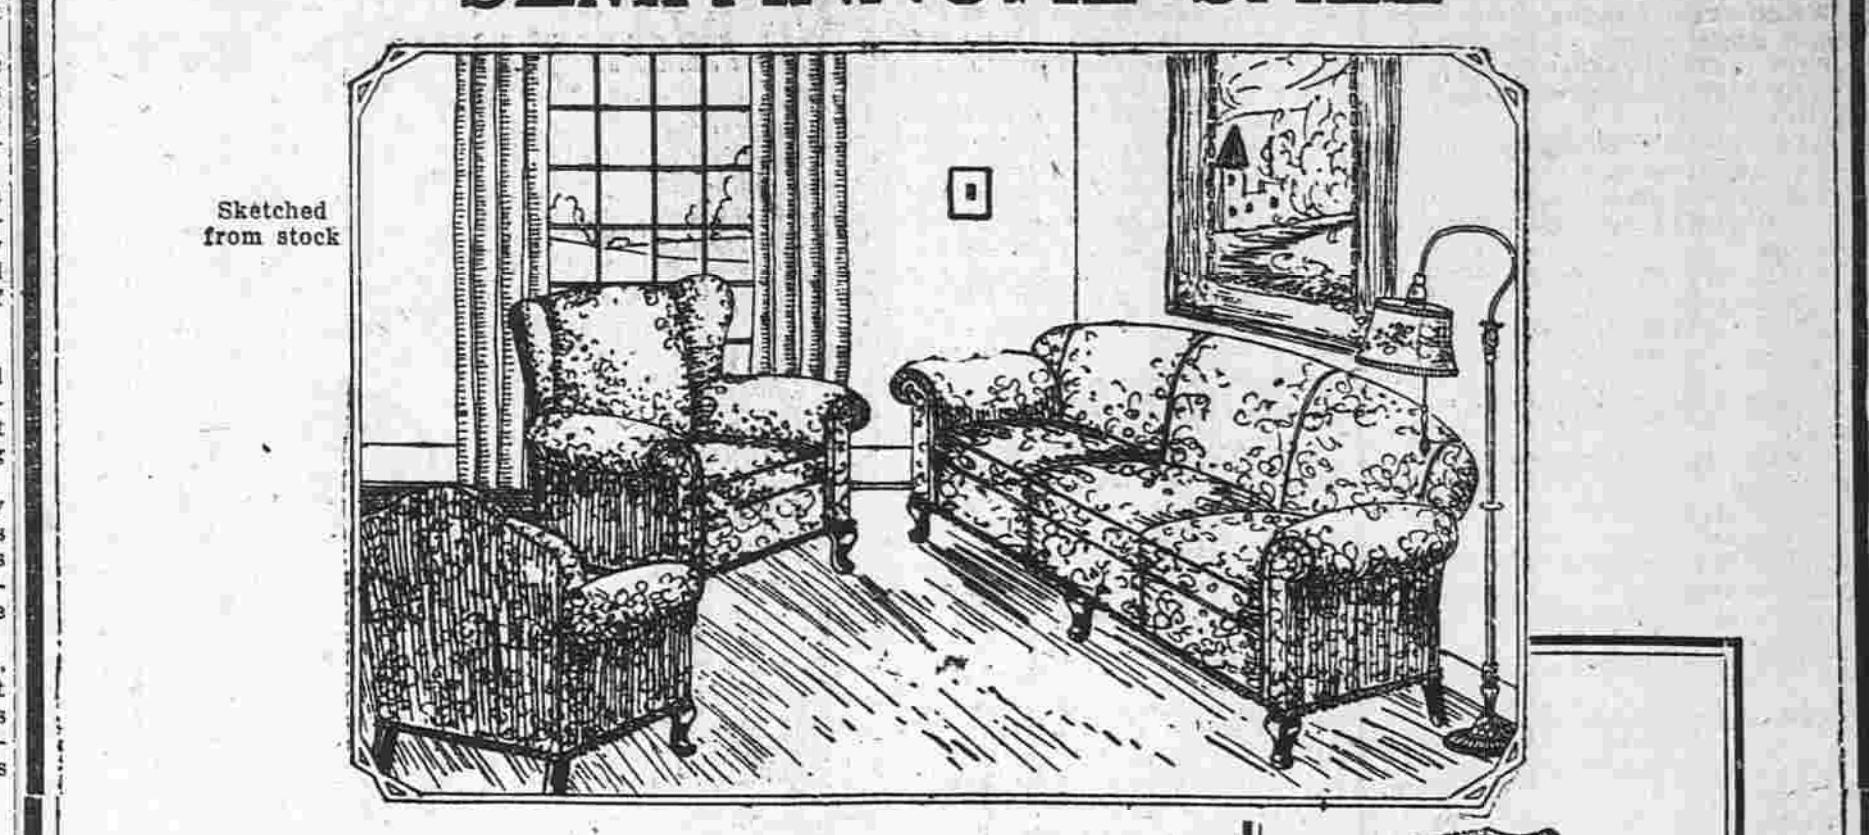

Whether right or wrong, nobody denies that he's got the "punch." But he can't talk all the time, as a single individual. It would become tiresome. As head of an association, however, he could give out daily statements.

He could agitate unceasingly. He could bring pressure to bear on congress. He could make aviation development nearly as live a topic as prohibition enforcement or Volstead Law modification.

If Mitchell gets that National Aeronautic Association presidency, we've an interesting controversy ahead of us.

WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc. FURNITURE, FLOOR COVERINGS, PIANOS, PHONOGRAPHS

Perhaps the man who is best at organizing voters serves the people best, and perhaps he doesn't. Always look to see if medicine is marked "poison" and read the radio programs for "sopranos." If Rip Van Winkle returned today he would find "No Parking" signs where there were hitching posts. The older the argument the harder it falls.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK President American Nature Association In the early years of our republic when the people of the federated colonies had just begun to explore the western country and to find out in an imperfect way the vast extent of their territory they found among other strange and new birds and animals this little ground squirrel. Strange to say, it had thirteen stripes, which were taken to represent the thirteen colonies and between these stripes were rows of white spots on a dark ground, typifying the stars of our flag.

So some people sometimes called it the Federation squirrel, and naturalists named it Spermophilus tridecemlineatus, the thirteen-lined spermophile or "seed-lover." The generic name was given the group in allusion to their favorite food, the seeds of plants. But as the country was settled up this liking for the nutritious seeds of plants caused its undoing. When the fields of wheat and oats came to occupy the prairie country, our striped friend recognized and welcomed a new and delicious food. He seized upon it eagerly, and the affection for the little animal gave way to one of hatred. He was hunted and trapped and poisoned, and finally, noxious gases were used in his destruction. This animal is one of the seven sleepers going into hibernation early and sleeping all winter. The young are born in spring, in warm nests of grass deep in the burrows. Besides their stock diet of grasses and seeds, the little animals consume great quantities of insects, and some meadow mice, animals even more generally harmful than itself.

JUST LIKE KIDS Hal Cochrans DAILY POEM

"Say, mom, I'm hungry as 'in be. Aw, kin I have some jam? The kids eat'n', all but me I'm hungry, too, I am." So mother stops the shoutin' with a piece of bread 'hat's fine. Then Willie starts in shoutin', "Sister, twice as big as mine." "Hey, pop, I need a dollar, 'cause I'm steppin' out tonight." Then pop starts in to holler, "Is that sorta spendin' right? Why, where's that big allowance that I give you every week?" And then he answers son's request. He's easy, so to speak. "Well, folks, look o'er my bonnet. Don't you think it's kinda nice? There's flowers and ribbon on it, and I got it just half price." Course grown-up sister's talkin'. With pop's charge account she's game. The bill starts father balkin', but he pays it just the same. It's funny how the children always pester mom and dad. They always talk of things to get—and not of things they've had. Their r'al appreciator doesn't come up'll they're grown—until they're either mom or pop to children of their own. Fishermen are bigger liars than golfers. Golfers' arms are not long enough to tell about their shots. Here's a fine symbol for a 1925 political party: Camel in a canoe.

LOCAL PAIR ESCAPE INJURY IN ACCIDENT

Car Overturns But McVeigh and Ashford Escape With Small Injuries.
Two Manchester men had a narrow escape from death Tuesday afternoon when the Buick coupe in which they were riding, skidded, struck an embankment and overturned near Williamitic. Both escaped with slight injuries.
James McVeigh, of 60 West Center street, the driver of the car, received wounds on both knees and the left leg plus a badly bruised left shoulder. Joseph Ashford, of Ridge street, McVeigh's companion sustained a finger injury.
According to the story told by McVeigh, they were coming down a steep grade on the road from Storrs College to Williamitic. At the foot of the grade was a sharp turn. The road was slippery, McVeigh said. A slight fall of rain on the oily roadway had made it treacherous. At the foot of the hill the car skidded into the embankment and turned completely over. The car was badly wrecked. Several other accidents occurred on the hill during the day.
"We were just plain lucky we didn't get seriously injured," concluded McVeigh.

POE'S STORIES: The Oblong Box (3)

The strange relations of the Wyatts during the voyage was a source of growing bewilderment to the writer. Mrs. Wyatt remained very talkative. She was much older than Wyatt, and her conversation was not that of an educated woman. Her face was plain, even "indifferent looking." The women called her "vulgar."

Remembering that Wyatt had once written "for love only" the writer was more puzzled than ever.

The sisters remained aloof from the passengers, confining themselves to their staterooms during most of the voyage.

Determining to watch the staterooms a second time, the writer again saw Mrs. Wyatt steal into the extra room. From the room of his friend, the writer thought he could hear the opening of the strange box with a chisel. There seemed no solution to the mystery. (Continued.)

East and West Battle to Tie in Annual Games

HONORS ARE EVEN AT WEST SIDE WHEN GAMES RESULT IN DEADLOCK

East Wins Baseball Game But West Takes Volley Ball and Horseshoe Pitching—Costume Carnival a Success.

The East met the West last night on the West Side playgrounds and after several hours of competition it was found that neither side of the town had gained an advantage. Odds were even at the end of the competition for the sides were evenly matched. In spite of the threatening weather a large crowd attended the band concert and viewed the children's costume carnival.

First of all came the baseball game and it was a hotly contested affair but the East Side scored a run in the first inning and three in the third while the West Side could make only one run in the third. Holland pitched for the West Side and allowed several walks and several hits. Mantelli was taken out of the mound in favor of Partons for the East Side in the fourth inning and the second man finished the game. Umpire George Olds called the affair off in the fifth because of darkness.

Some spirited competition was seen in the horseshoe pitching tournament but Fenney and Smith, the pride of the West Side defeated Oads and Francis. East Side champions in two straight games, 21 to 19 and 22 to 15. This tied the score so far in the point accounting.

The East Side came to the front again when the girls' volley ball team defeated the West Side Jay-hawkers by the scores of 15-9, 16-14 and 11-15. This makes the season's games between these two teams even at 10 each.

The costume contest again when the West Side volley ball team trampled over Lupin's East Side stars in three out of four games. The scores were 15-7, 3-15, 15-4, 15-4. The lineup: West Side East Side Kerr Lupin Russell Lang Wilkison Schiedge Gustafson H. Von Deck C. Gustafson E. Von Deck H. Gustafson R. Von Deck Waddell

The tennis match was a triple tie, the East Side of the West, defeating O'Leary of the East. The winner was defeated by Gribbon of the West Side in the next match.

In the costume carnival among the entries there appeared two cowboys and a hobo. The judges decided to give the prize for the most grotesque costume to the hobo and when the name was announced it was found that the hobo was a girl. She was Dorothy Leonard and the decision to give the prize to her was unanimous. The next contest was for the prettiest costume and a little girl Pearl Prentice by name, was awarded the honor.

The next prize went to a girl, Jessie Hutchinson, who had the most original costume in the opinion of the judges. It was a fetching dress, that of a gyrfalcon. Miss Hutchinson made a striking appearance on the platform. Incidentally, the Bristol New Departure band, which played at the concert, was about the best that has been heard here this season.

Wash Tubbs, dressed as Two-Gun Billy appeared in the contest of Alfred Doyle and was given the prize for the best boys' costume.

ROBINS 2, PIRATES 1.
Pittsburgh, Aug. 26.—Max Carey got a taste of real revenge from the team that deposed him yesterday. The dismissed captain of the Pirates raced to first against a throw from Pie Traynor in the fifth, while the run that gave Bob McGraw and the Robins a two-to-one victory over the Pirates was crossing the plate. Carey was greeted with a horseshoe floral from his home town admirers.

GIANTS 2, REDS 1.
Cincinnati, Aug. 26.—To the accompaniment of Cincinnati groans and Giant sighs of relief, several records, runs, streaks et al. went to pot yesterday. The Giants beat the Reds 2 to 1, winning their first game in seven starts, putting an end to the victorious streak of ten in a row pulled up by the Reds, and sending Carl Mays home with a sharp pain in his pitching record. Previous to this day of upsets, Carl had won five in a row, to say nothing of pitching a 2-2 tie in a thirteen-inning game against Boston last Saturday.

FIGHT TICKET SALE ALREADY $800,000

Rickard Says It Has Jumped Beyond His Own Great Expectations.

New York, Aug. 26.—Back on the old home grounds today for a short series with his local problems, big and small, Tex Rickard made the almost incredible statement that advances orders for the fight became a possibility some months ago.

A total of 20,000 tickets, he said, had been shipped to his headquarters in Philadelphia for the opening of the sale and added that more were to follow as the demand increased, if at all. Some 50,000 tickets from New York will see the fight, thirty thousand going by train and twenty thousand by motor, he estimated.

"No one was about it, this fight has claimed the public's interest as no other has in history," he said. "I knew it was a good attraction but the demand even has been heavier than I expected."

"Special trains will be run from Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, Baltimore, Cleveland and Cincinnati when the railroads see their way clear to that the out-of-town customers are coming by the thousands."

Plenty of Tickets
The promoter, in tones heavy with regret, next imparted the unfavorable news that he had printed only 130,000 tickets, which reminded me of the sad story about the man who only had fifty million dollars. Anyhow, our Mr. Rickard says he is having twenty thousand additional tickets printed and doesn't care what happens to them. His main concern is what happens to the money.

According to his present plan, Rickard will put on the big bout at 9:30 o'clock on the night of September 23, with a preliminary match to follow in order that a large proportion of the addicts may wander away into the night and take themselves off his hands forever.

Corbett, No Bother
As to possible trouble from Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion who apparently had been given one of those rubber promises by Philadelphia officials to conduct a heavyweight fight there, Rickard intimated that he was sleeping soundly with conscience serene.

"Corbett, as I understand it, doesn't want to spoil the show," Rickard added. "His heart is in boxing and they tell me he would do nothing that would interfere with his progress. I don't know a thing about his verbal agreement with Philadelphia officials, may be he has the right of it. But I acted in good faith when I took the fight here and feel sure that Jim sees my side of it. He probably will straighten out the matter with the officials themselves."

FRANCO-JAP BATTLE ON DAVIS CUP TODAY

Right to Challenge America for Famous Tennis Trophy Rests on Contest.

New York, Aug. 26.—With the privilege of stake of becoming the official challenger, France and Japan will meet in the opening matches of the finals of the Davis cup series this afternoon at Forest Hills. The winner will face the American holders of the cup at the Germantown cricket club, Philadelphia early next month with what is believed will be the sternest challenge issued since the United States reclaimed the famous trophy six years ago.

French, on paper strength, ruled the favorite over Japan but many conceded the Mongolians more than a fighting chance for several reasons, one of which was the fact that Jean Borotra, French star will not reach America until after the interzone campaign. Another was that the French have had little practice on turf courts owing to heavy rains in the east during recent weeks, while the Japanese have been working on the turf for several months.

An all-night rain and heavy skies this morning gave a rather dubious aspect to today's matches. These were to feature Henri Cochet, the latest French sensation, against Tsumie Tawara and Rene la Coste opposed to Takeichi Harada, the Japanese captain. The doubles will be played tomorrow and the last two singles on Saturday.

BRING 'EM ON, SAYS JACK
Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 26.—New and bigger sparring partners were said to be on the way to the champion's camp today as Jack Dempsey prepared to engage in his first day of serious training here. He hoped to work out in the open at the dog track but threatening skies made this program seem improbable. The champion's wife, Mrs. Estelle Taylor Dempsey, was expected to leave for the west during the next 24 hours to resume her work in the movies.

ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are:
NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."
NELL and HOWARD ORME, who seem to be unhappy together.
DR. DICK MENEFFEE, John's best friend, and his wife, MARGARET.

"He beat her," said Forbes. "Got jealous of a young fellow who writes poetry."

Felicity chapters told how: Fay took JUDITH, the baby, to Washington to visit her parents, and during her absence John "ran around" a good deal. When Fay returned, gossip had retailed and magnified some of his actions and sharp quarrels followed, one of which drove him out "on a tear," and caused Fay to threaten to leave him.
A growing, unkind, interest in Nell Orme is brought to a head by Vera Boyd, who takes delight in promoting "affairs." She has Nell out to tea and invites John. He goes again and again, and the day comes when he takes Nell madly in his arms. Fay hears about it and leaves him. John closes up the house and takes an apartment, where Nell comes to see him one night after a quarrel with her husband. Howard comes in on them, and threatens divorce. That night he commits suicide, and John for a short time is suspected of murder.
Dick Meneffee begins to worry about John, who, he sees, is going to pieces under the strain of being talked about and linked up with the Orme tragedy. So he writes Fay a letter.

NOV GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XVI

NAT GRAHAM had reached the point now where he was not even speaking to John, and the latter, sitting silently at his desk and working grimly, thought of a breaking up of the partnership was inevitable.
How long, he asked himself, how long before Nat comes out with it? And all the time a growing feeling that Graham was providing against this emergency, while the best he could do was to sit and mull it over. Right now, he felt sure, Graham was able to buy him out—so why did the man wait? What did he have up his sleeve?
Day by day he grew more morose, and he was drinking heavily. Meneffee kept in daily touch with him and was so solicitous that John grew impatient with him. Why didn't Dick let him alone?
He realized that Dick was all he had to lean on—Pat Forbes, staunch friend though he was, provided little comfort—and yet he refused to lean on him, and was almost curbed in refusing his many invitations to go out to the house for dinner.
He encountered the Blodgetts downtown one evening, and they both went sailing past with their chins elevated.
"I'm beat out now," John laughed to himself. "Well—" and he shrugged indifferently.
But later on he passed Eleanor Mason on the street. He was sure she had seen him, and was rather surprised that she should deliberate to avoid speaking to him.
"That girl, of all people," was his thought.
Dick Meneffee came to see him at his office the next day, complaining loudly that John had no business isolating himself from Margaret and him.
And John, with a cynical laugh told him, "I'm damned if I'll contaminate you, Dick. People, out and tell everything. Well, it seems Vera didn't mind what Noel did, but she kinda drew the line at being used for a sparring partner. The modern marriage, John, the super-marriage."

And then John laughed; and when finally he was able to stop and to resume questioning Forbes, he felt somehow that he had been avenged—why, he could not tell.
Forbes went into details.
"Vera, you know, had taken up lately with this young poet fellow, Gray—Felton Gray—you know about him. Well, for a time Noel didn't mind, and he used to kid Vera about it. But finally he must have got sick of seeing the fellow around, for he had some words with Vera and she absolutely refused to give him up. Told Noel it wasn't any of his business."
"And it wasn't, either," put in John, "if Noel was intending to live up to his bargain."
"But? Oh, absolutely. That's why the thing's so rich. Well, anyway, Vera says Noel didn't like this and he served notice that the next time he saw the fellow around he'd throw him out. And then Vera reminded him that she'd never interfered with him; never even asked him any questions. But Noel was hauled, and the next time he saw Gray he told him a few things. And when Vera heard of it she resented it and called Noel a cheap welsler. Now, can you beat that?"
"And then he bit her?"
"Hit her! Say, she called into her something scandalous, Vera told Marian. Funny thing, you know, Vera and Marian haven't been any too friendly lately, but Vera came to her first with the whole story. Noel gave her a black eye and cut her mouth. I'm afraid he beat her up pretty badly."
John was thinking that never in his life had he heard of so many husbands and wives coming to blows. Recalling... And the memory of Fay's stinging slap burning his own cheek.
"So that," he said slowly, "is what came of Noel's great arrangement. The marriage that was to be so different from all the rest, all the quibbles and bickerings of the rest of them."
"Well," and he paused, "it came out just as Paul Davidson predicted. It was all right for Noel as long as Vera didn't demand her own rights."
"Yeah," said Forbes, "Paul, poor fellow—wonder what became of him?"
"You know, Pat, it gives me a sort of unholy joy to hear that about suspect, are finding it unprofitable to be seen talking to me. I'm not going to have you be my sponsor. "Don't be a fool." Meneffee growled; nevertheless John was firm.

A letter from Fay was so different from the rest of her notes to him that he read it and re-read it for nearly an hour. In it was an indication that Fay was feeling some concern for him, and he knew that somehow word of his latest predicament had reached her.
And there was something about the letter that raised a little spark of hope in him. The wording of certain phrases; a tender note.
And the way she signed it—"as ever"—when she had been using "sincerely" for so long.
But he was clutching at straws, he told himself, to think that the note had any real significance. Maybe she felt sorry for him—yes, that was it. No use deluding him self with any optimistic thoughts.
And so that dreary day passed—with Nat Graham wordless and grim, and the new stenographer not daring to notice him with Nat around.
Occasionally he looked up to catch Briggs, the artist, looking at him, an expression of pity in his eyes, and once Briggs found an excuse to clasp his hand and wring it hard and murmur something about "sitting with you, old fellow."
A telephone call from Pat Forbes caught him just as he was leaving the office.
"I'm staying downtown to dinner," Pat told him. "Want to see you."
"By golly, you won't be so indifferently to me when I tell you the latest bit of news."
"Something more about myself, I suppose?"
"Don't be sarcastic. I'll tell you when I see you."
And when he met Forbes on the street and heard from him the promised news, he was unable to resist throwing his head back and laughing—a hard, mirthless laugh that caused passers-by to stare.
Vera Boyd, Forbes told him, had left Noel.
"And, John, you'll die when I tell you the reason. It seems he beat her up. Got jealous of a young fellow who writes poetry. Can you tie that—from Noel Boyd?"
"I refuse to believe it," John said. "I don't blame you. So did I when I first heard it. But Marian got it straight from Vera herself. I know Vera—she'd come right perhaps you would like to come in to my office."

"Thank you, Mr. Hathaway. It is very kind of you to ask me to do this—but Jerry should have told you that I have just taken a place as private secretary and companion to Miss Meredith."
"But my dear Judy, you will not like working for a woman. No girl does."
"Well, I cannot say that I'm real crazy about working for a man, Mr. Hathaway, and as I must work for somebody I cannot see how I can help working for one of the sexes. I think I shall stay with Miss Meredith for a little while at least. Thank you just the same."
Before I could hang up Mr. Hathaway shouted through the telephone:
"Here, here, Judy, wait a minute. I have another proposal for you. You have probably heard this one before, but I'm going to try and clinch it."
"Probably by this time you very well know that that boy of mine seems to think he is greatly in love with you. I presume you know this before he did. Anyway he has made it so uncomfortable around this office lately that we have not been able to do much work. He has got it into his head that he didn't like you or you didn't like him, or something foolish. I told him this morning that he must go and marry you immediately, for until he got it out of his system he wouldn't be worth much to me or anyone else."
"When I asked you to come into my office, Judy, I was just kidding a little to see what you would really do about it."
"Well, I told you, Mr. Hathaway. You certainly heard me say that I am acting as secretary to Miss Meredith."
TOMORROW—What About Jerry?

be called a great success. True, there are some unusual women who are strong enough physically and mentally to carry a double responsibility. I have seen that, too. But as it is not normal, it is not usual. Few women can make a real home if their hearts are wrapped up in some other work. And if women fall down on the home question, there won't be homes—or good homes at least. The men won't make them. They don't know how.
It is largely a question of money. It takes so much to live! And women want to work to help. But if there are women worrying and facing this problem, why not let nature have a say? You can't beat nature. Nature says woman and home—"be it ever so humble!"

HER OWN WAY
A GIRL OF JODAY
A SURPRISING OFFER.
As soon as everyone had left me to go on their several errands, I walked back to the library and called up Jerry. I could not find him at his own office so I called his father's office.
The stupid girl at the switchboard instead of giving me Mr. Gerald Hathaway, Jr., put me on his father's line. Mr. Hathaway, Sr., recognized my voice immediately, and asked:
"Is this Miss Dean speaking?"
"I want very much to talk with you, my dear Miss Dean, immediately. My son tells me you have left Mr. Robinson and I thought perhaps you would like to come in to my office."

"Thank you, Mr. Hathaway. It is very kind of you to ask me to do this—but Jerry should have told you that I have just taken a place as private secretary and companion to Miss Meredith."
"But my dear Judy, you will not like working for a woman. No girl does."
"Well, I cannot say that I'm real crazy about working for a man, Mr. Hathaway, and as I must work for somebody I cannot see how I can help working for one of the sexes. I think I shall stay with Miss Meredith for a little while at least. Thank you just the same."
Before I could hang up Mr. Hathaway shouted through the telephone:
"Here, here, Judy, wait a minute. I have another proposal for you. You have probably heard this one before, but I'm going to try and clinch it."
"Probably by this time you very well know that that boy of mine seems to think he is greatly in love with you. I presume you know this before he did. Anyway he has made it so uncomfortable around this office lately that we have not been able to do much work. He has got it into his head that he didn't like you or you didn't like him, or something foolish. I told him this morning that he must go and marry you immediately, for until he got it out of his system he wouldn't be worth much to me or anyone else."

Anyway he has made it so uncomfortable around this office lately that we have not been able to do much work. He has got it into his head that he didn't like you or you didn't like him, or something foolish. I told him this morning that he must go and marry you immediately, for until he got it out of his system he wouldn't be worth much to me or anyone else."

"Thank you, Mr. Hathaway. It is very kind of you to ask me to do this—but Jerry should have told you that I have just taken a place as private secretary and companion to Miss Meredith."
"But my dear Judy, you will not like working for a woman. No girl does."
"Well, I cannot say that I'm real crazy about working for a man, Mr. Hathaway, and as I must work for somebody I cannot see how I can help working for one of the sexes. I think I shall stay with Miss Meredith for a little while at least. Thank you just the same."
Before I could hang up Mr. Hathaway shouted through the telephone:
"Here, here, Judy, wait a minute. I have another proposal for you. You have probably heard this one before, but I'm going to try and clinch it."

IT'S ALL RIGHT TO JOCKEY AROUND ON A HORSE

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The youngster ran around the barn With very clumsy legs. He stepped into a chicken's nest, And, pronto, scrambled eggs.

The pedestrian usually knows what the motorist is driving at. Traffic Cop: "What's the idea balling up traffic! Why don't you use your noodle!" Sweet Miss: "Didn't know the car had one."

It sounds unreasonable, but if you travel far enough in the open you'll get to where you can't smell hot dogs.

The average chauffeur certainly takes life easy.

An example of silent salesmanship is the decrepid look the old car has with a new license plate on it.

Turning the Tables. "Three gallons of gas, please."

"Yes, sir. Want some cylinder oil, too?"

"No, just gas."

"Do you want some paint? Your car needs it, and we've got some dandy paint—heat-proof, dirt-proof guaranteed to wear long."

"No, I want only gas today."

"Then you want your car washed."

"I said that I wanted only gas."

"You want a tire, then. We've got some good non-skids. Only $40 apiece. Want one? Yours—"

"I tell you I want only gas today!"

"Yes, sir, but—say, your rear lights are all shot to pieces. You need new ones. We just got in some dandy new crack-proof celluloid lights. Shall I put one in?"

"No! I want only gas, do you understand?"

"Your magneto needs adjusting—didja hear that funny noise in the motor when you stopped; it needs adjusting. I'll fix it, what?"

"No! I want only gas, gas! Do you hear!"

"Yes, sir!" And with the gas obtained, the exasperated motorist drove angrily away. But for once the garage man had got even with his barber.

The difference between a traffic officer and a woman is that when a traffic officer says "stop" he means it.

If something must be hugged, let it be the curve, not the driver.

The smaller the town, the more girls can crowd into a jitney.

Any fool can be careless.

"Hallo! Where are you walking in such a hurry?"

"Fellow just stole my car, and went down this way."

"But surely you don't expect to overtake him on foot?"

"Rather! He forgot to take the repair kit with him. I know that car."

A first thing the new school for drivers should undertake is to teach the motorists how to read the speedometer.

Autos and men are alike in that both go faster down hill.

Automobiles wouldn't be dangerous if the horsepower of the engine was proportioned to the horse sense of the driver.

Most fellows never come to life until their engines go dead.

"He's quite an auto fiend, isn't he? Never seen without his car."

"But I saw him yesterday without it."

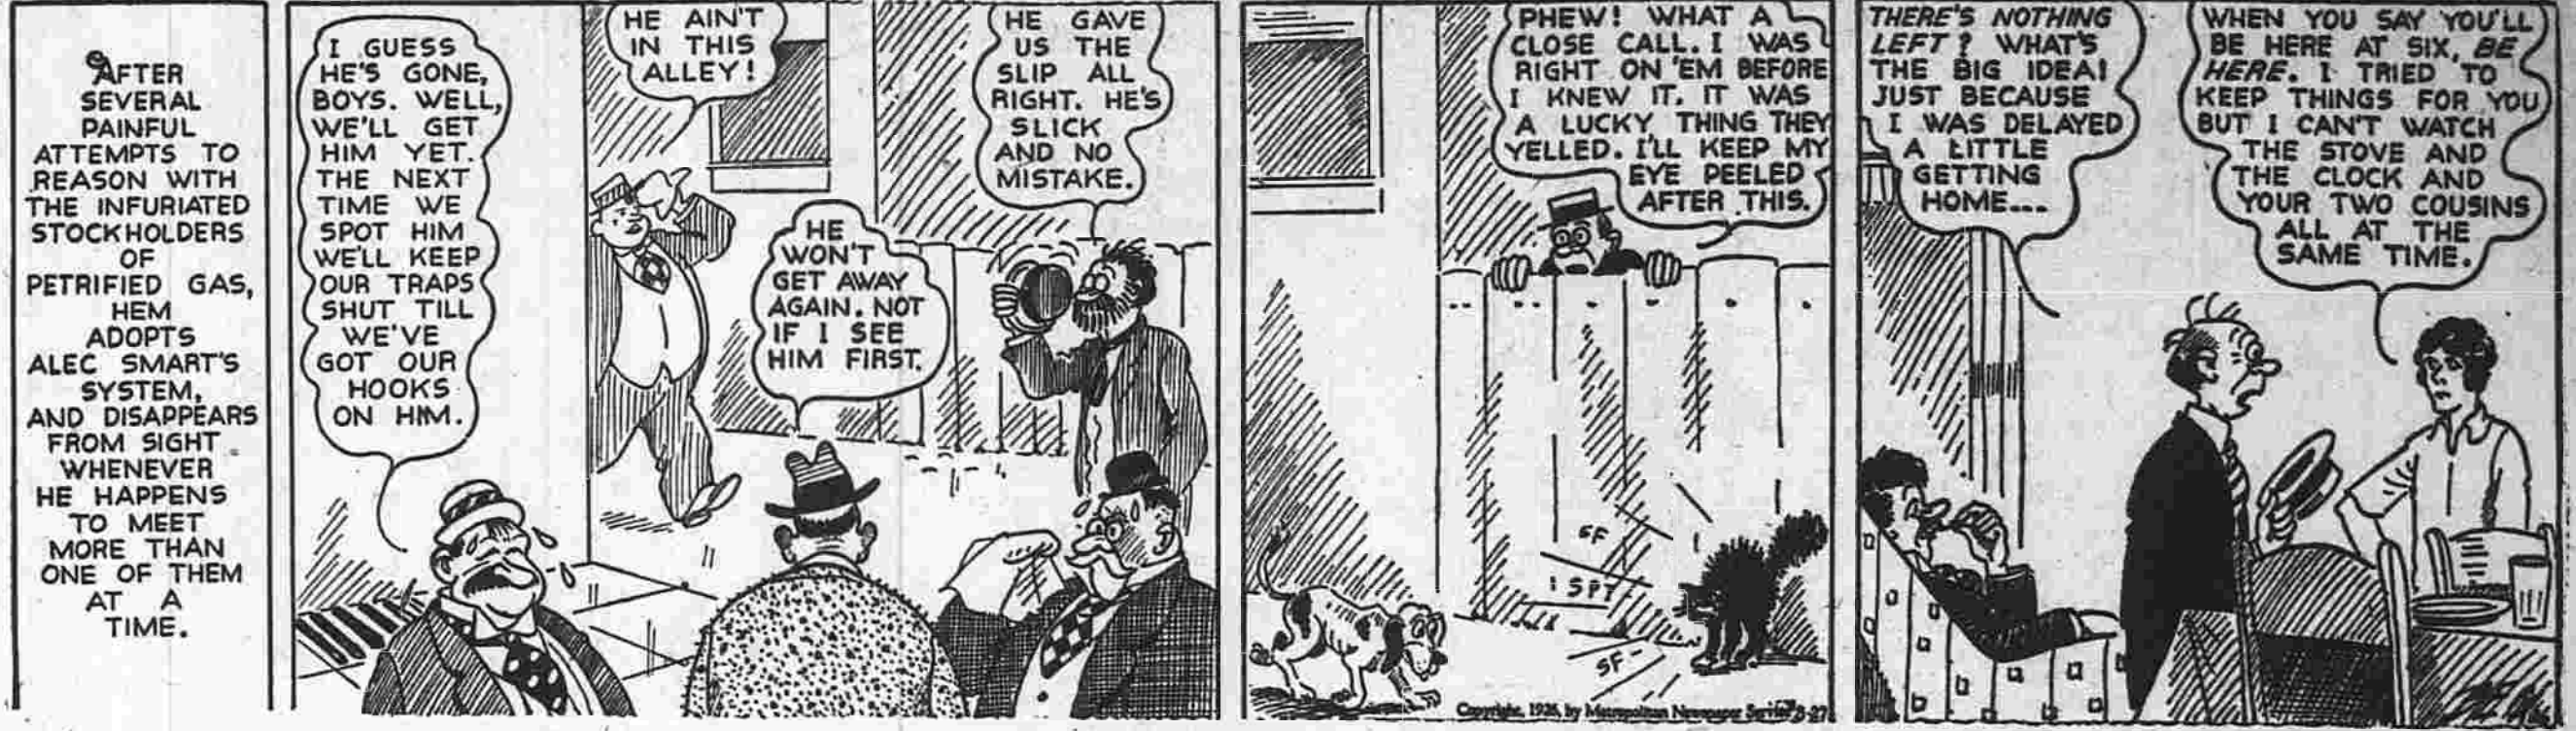

"That so? Where was he?"

"He was sitting on the cow-catcher of a locomotive with a steering wheel around his neck."

Married men are like Ford cars. You can tell them by their clutch.
