PRICE THREE CENTS

TWO CONTESTS STIR INTEREST IN PRIMARIES

Legislative Race Looms Big- ger Than Fight for Seat as Selectman-Constable Run- Off Not Held Important.

Republicans here will be asked to make a choice in candidates for three different offices when the annual town primaries are held in the new City Hall on Tuesday, September 14. Democrats will not go to the polls to settle any contests for office, as there are none.

Three contests in the Republican primaries should bring out a big primary vote. The contest between Miss Marjorie Cheney, Emil L. G. Hohenthal, and Judge Raymond A. Johnson for the two seats in the General Assembly looms biggest. Miss Cheney and Judge Johnson are the incumbents. Mr. Hohenthal, who is not a registered Republican, and therefore cannot vote in the contest, has entered the race for Representative without stating whether he opposes Miss Cheney or Judge Johnson.

Three Corner Fight
It is said that an attempt was made to get a running mate for Mr. Hohenthal, but none was found who would enter such a contest. This means a three-cornered fight. Miss Cheney has served one term, and Judge Johnson three. It returned to the Legislature Judge Johnson will, it is certain, be honored with the floor leadership by the Republicans. He has attained a more influential place in the General Assembly than any other man in Manchester has ever seen to the Legislature. Mr. Hohenthal has sought office as a Prohibitionist and as a Democrat, but this is the first year he has tried to obtain office through Republican channels.

The second most important contest to be argued by the voters primary day will be for a place on the Board of Selectmen. There are eight candidates and seven can be named. Albert Jackson of Winter street, is the voter seeking a seat on the board. He has never held office before. The present selectmen are John H. Hyde, Carl Johnson, Harry Keeney, Thomas J. Rogers, Robert J. Smith, Wells Strickland and Robert V. Treat. This board has held office continuously for three years.

Constable Candidates
Midnight last night was the deadline for proposals. Last minute nominations produced candidates enough to make a contest for constable on the Republican ticket. There are six seeking the office and four can be named. The candi-

HOPE OF COAL WAR

TRUCE ABANDONED

British Commons Adjoins as MacDonald Charges Favoritism to Operators.

London, Aug. 31.—The government sees the signs of an early settlement of the British Coal Strike, Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister, declared in the House of Commons today, and that body voted to adjourn at 5 o'clock this afternoon until November ninth.

J. Ramsey MacDonald, leader of the labor party, has proposed that Commons adjourn until September 7, in the hope that there might be a peace proposal to discuss at that time.

Assails Government
MacDonald assailed the government and its policy with regard to the strike, alleging that the cabinet is favoring the operators and has favored them throughout the struggle. He urged government negotiations to end the strike, declaring that a settlement is impossible without a national agreement between the miners' Federation and the Mining Association.

Great privation is being suffered by the miners and their families, MacDonald said.
The executive of the Miners' Federation has decided not to formulate any new peace proposals at this time, it was announced this afternoon.

Rioting Brings Dole
Manchester, Eng., Aug. 31.—Refusal of the Methodist Parish council to grant poor-law allowances to striking coal miners led to serious rioting during the night. Order was restored after the council agreed to grant an allowance of sixpence to each miner.

WINGED ANTS A PEST
AT BRITISH RESORT

Southampton, Eng., Aug. 31.—Golf, tennis and bathing had to be suspended and vacationists were put to rout here by a swarm of winged ants. The ants, sweeping down in a cloud, made outdoor life impossible for several hours.

G. O. P. BATTLE FOR SECOND PLACE ON

Wadhams-Brainard Contest For Lt.-Governor Takes Definite Shape.

Hartford, Aug. 31.—A vigorous campaign is under way today in behalf of John M. Wadhams, Torrington banker, as Republican candidate for lieutenant-governor. The campaign developed when the senatorial district delegates to the state convention were listed here by party leaders.

Lieut.-Gov. J. Edwin Brainard, who is now acting as governor in the absence of Gov. John H. Trumbull, today declared he is fully aware of the contest he will face in the coming convention but expressed himself as confident he would carry the day.

Alternate Candidates.
News that C. M. Bakewell, of New Haven, and Frederick C. Wolcott, of Norfolk, are being advanced as possible candidates in the event the convention deadlocks over the Wadhams-Brainard fight. Both are members of the state Senate and are considered as leaders.

LOS ANGELES DRIVEN FROM MAST BY STORM

Suddenly Abandons Compass Tests and Returns to Hangar in Squall.

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 31.—The dirigible Los Angeles arrived at its hangar at 4:19 this morning after an all-night battle with a severe electrical storm off the Virginia coast.

The Los Angeles, which arrived at Norfolk yesterday afternoon, was not due here until Wednesday. She left her mooring mast on the U. S. S. Patoka, near Cape Charles, at 8 o'clock last night when a squall arose suddenly. Her commander deemed it advisable to run before the blow rather than attempt to outride it under moorings.

The squall was followed by an electrical storm before which the dirigible moved staunchly, and with fair speed. She was to have held compass calibrating tests by radio with various wireless stations at Norfolk today.

K. OF C. HEAD WILL APPEAL TO COOLIDGE

Supreme Knight Flaherty to Confer with President on Mexico Tomorrow.
White Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 31.—James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the American Knights of Columbus, will confer with President Coolidge tomorrow, it was officially announced today.

This meeting between the Catholic leader and the president will again bring to the fore the Mexican situation insofar as this government is concerned. Flaherty already has appealed to Secretary of State Kellogg to have the American government act as mediator in the struggle between the Mexican government and the Catholic church, and he is now prepared to carry his plea direct to the White House.
It is doubtful, however, whether Flaherty's proposal will change the situation. Both the chief executive and Secretary Kellogg are in accord that the Mexican controversy is purely domestic, and that as such Washington could not well interfere in it.

'FULL PICTURE' OF HALL-MILLS CRIME DRAWN

State Has Motive, Events All Aligned, So Says Under- wood—Seek Fingerprints on Clothes

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 31.—The four-year-old wall of mystery surrounding the motive for and the execution of the murders of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer sweetheart, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, has been broken down and the prosecuting authorities have a complete and complete picture of the events directly preceding the slayings, according to an announcement by Inspector John Underwood.

Several witnesses of the events which came directly before the eyes of an Mrs. Mills were shot to death, have been found, Underwood said. Questioning of these witnesses and other investigation has left no doubt as to the motives for the murders. Underwood said, but he declined at this time to divulge fully the revelations of the past few days that prompted this announcement of assurance.

Motive Established.
"A definite motive has been established," Underwood said, "covering all angles of the murder. Of the twenty or thirty witnesses who, we are convinced, saw what went on that night, we have a sufficient number of stories, carrying corroboration with each other in all essentials, to give a complete picture of what occurred."

Underwood said he had now only to induce others who saw the murder to come forward and corroborate the facts. "A proper investigation four years ago would have solved this so-called mystery in a fortnight."

A new angle of the investigation was begun today in a careful examination of all the clothing worn by Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills the night they were murdered, in the hope of finding fingerprints.

Underwood said a new witness had been found in a city "twenty hours from New York," by a detective sent out to investigate several leads. Reports from Cleveland yesterday said that Lieut. Walter Cieliech had arrived there in an effort to run down "Mr. and Mrs. M." but that his search had not met with success.

Today Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Adkins, believed to be residents of Cleveland, were named as the witnesses who are expected to substantiate the story of Mrs. Jane Gibson. Inspector Underwood received a long distance telephone call from Detective Cieliech stating that he hoped to locate the Adkins there and bring them to Somerville.

ENGAGE FUNERAL CAR FOR VALENTINO'S BODY

Friends Confident Brother Will Consent to Burial at Holly- wood.

New York, Aug. 31.—A special car was engaged today to carry the dead body of Rudolph Valentino to Hollywood for burial, so certain are his friends that the dead screen star's brother, Albert G. Valentin, will approve interment in that city when he arrives tomorrow from Europe.

Disposition of the body has been left entirely to the brother, but friends of Valentino feel so sure that he will consent to the Hollywood burial that they have arranged for a special car on the Twentieth Century Limited, leaving tomorrow afternoon for Chicago.

Pola Negri, fiancée of the dead star, also will return west on the same train, as will S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager and Mrs. Ullman.

"BABE" GETS $100,000 VAUDEVILLE CONTRACT

Swat King to Receive Fortune For 12 weeks' Tour of Western Circuit.
New York, Aug. 31.—Babe Ruth is going into vaudeville after the world series. He has signed a contract, it was announced today, for a twelve weeks' tour over the Panhandle western circuit. He will get $100,000, which according to Panhandle agents here, is the largest contract ever signed in vaudeville.

The Babe will make the tour alone—being his own supporting cast.
The tour will open in Minneapolis and will take the home-running circuit to the Pacific coast, returning east before the spring training trip.

League Faces Crisis in the Row Over Germany's Entry

By MILTON BRONNER. London, Aug. 31.—Unless all signs fall, another huge rumpus will be staged at Geneva in September as the League of Nations meets.

Seats in the League's council will be at stake. Wire-pulling, scheming, trickery, cajolery all are due to run riot. The main object of the meeting is to accomplish what last March's assembly failed to do—elect Germany to a permanent seat in the council and thus bring into complete play the famous Locarno agreements.

Last March the thing ended in a general row because France had argued on Spain and Poland to demand seats in the council. As "Makeweight," Poland already was a non-permanent member. France wanted her satellite in again as a makeweight to carry Germany, and wanted to add Spain for good measure. The seats in the council should

VERY ROUGH STUFF FOR NORWALKERS

Taxi Man and Friends Drive Negro Far, Lose Money, Watches and Cab.

Norwalk, Aug. 31.—After driving colored men to New Rochelle, N. Y., in their taxicab, Anthony Passanube and Tony Klein, of Norwalk, were there robbed at the point of gun of $125 in cash and $300 worth of jewelry and their watches early today. Then they were forced to drive to a point on West Fifth street, Manhattan, where they were ejected from their car, which was stolen.

Police Aid Return
Such was the report that the two Norwalk men made to New York police who in return relayed the information to local police and aided the two men to return. New York police this afternoon reported finding the car abandoned in another part of that city.

Passanube received a call to go to Twilight Inn, a Negro club house in South Norwalk, to take the three men to New Rochelle. He took Klein along for company. In the hold-up the Negroes used four revolvers, one man having two and the others one each.

N. Y. DEMOCRATS PICK WAGNER FOR SENATE

See Chance to Win as Drys in G. O. P. Make Drive Against Wadsworth.
Albany, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Governor Al Smith will be renominated and Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner of New York will be selected as a candidate for the United States Senate when the Democratic state convention meets at Syracuse, Sept. 27 and 28, it was reported here today.

Gov. Smith had hoped to retire from state politics at the end of his present term but he was reported today as having changed his mind at the insistence of party leaders. Because of the fight which the "dry" element in the Republican party is making on U. S. Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., the Democratic leaders are said to be convinced they have an excellent chance to capture a seat in the United States Senate.

CLEMENCEAU WILL NOT WRITE COOLIDGE AGAIN.
Paris, Aug. 31.—And now M. Clemenceau denies that he is going to write another letter to President Coolidge on the American debt question, according to L'Intransigeant, which quotes him as saying: "I never said I intended to write a second letter to President Coolidge."

Coolidge Won't Stand For Alienating Yankee Ships

White Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Statements of Matthew C. Brush, head of the American International Corporation, to the contrary notwithstanding, the policy of this government will be to see that all possible ships of the Merchant Marine carry the American flag.
This was the answer of President Coolidge's official spokesman today to the suggestion of Brush that it was relatively unimportant under what registry a ship was

150 DROWN IN PANIC AS SHIP SINKS AT PIER

One Hero, Shipload of Fear Lunatics When Soviet Ves- sel Is In Collision in Rus- sian Canal.

Leningrad, Aug. 31.—Some 150 persons were drowned when the Burevestnik, a Soviet passenger ship, sank in the Moskva canal on Sunday night after colliding with a pier in an effort to avoid a collision with the German steamer Greta.

An unknown sailor, a member of the crew of the battleship Murat and a passenger on the Burevestnik returning to his station at Kronstadt from a holiday, ran into the boiler rooms as soon as he realized the Burevestnik was sinking, and opened the steam-cock. His action is believed to have prevented an explosion and an even worse disaster. He was unable to regain the decks, however, and was drowned.

Most of those who lost their lives are believed to have been trapped below decks, as only fifteen bodies have thus far been recovered.

Few Life Preservers
A rigid inquiry into the causes of the disaster and the possible lack of life-saving apparatus on a ship carrying 400 passengers and forty crew, is under way.

The Burevestnik was outward bound for Kronstadt, carrying chiefly officers of the Soviet navy and their families who were returning to their station at Kronstadt after a holiday.

Many passengers were caught in their cabins and drowned without having a chance to make their escape. The sinking of the vessel was accompanied by scenes of wild panic, and it is estimated that at least forty women were among those who met death by drowning.

Life saving apparatus, it is alleged, was inadequate and one report is current that there were but 172 life belts on this boat, which carried some 400 passengers and a crew of forty.

Many passengers were thrown into the water and others jumped, saving their lives by clinging to the stone pilings of the pier, against which the ship crashed.

Swamp Rescue Boat
The crew of the Greta lowered a life boat, but it was almost immediately swamped by frantic persons who insisted on clinging to it. When the boat was swamped those who had already been picked up were thrown into the water and drowned.

The crew's nest was left standing far above the water and there was a frantic effort to reach it. No less than twenty-five passengers had clambered up, when the mast gave way under their weight and threw them all back into the water, most of them drowning.

Among those who lost their lives were many high officers of the Kronstadt garrison.

Hamilton, O., Aug. 31.—George Yerrigan, 29, demented ex-soldier, was in a padded cell today awaiting trial. Later, police made arrangements to bring him back for another examination. They will ask him who was his companion on the trip that resulted in the Pickett car coming here, for they say they have learned that another man had fled from the car and fled just before Jarash was arrested.

BAKER DEBT IDEA PUZZLES CAPITAL

Finds No Support Even in Wilson Wing of Democra- tic Party.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Newton D. Baker's action in resurrecting a movement for the cancellation of Europe's war debts to the United States was a source of considerable mystification to politicians in the capital today.

Diligent searching revealed no support for the cancellation proposal in Washington by any political faction. The treasury "deplored" the renewed agitation for cancellation which Baker's widely published views is considered certain to stir up abroad; the Republicans pooh-poohed it, and leading Democrats were no less cold to it. Even the close friends of the ex-war secretary said they could not support his theory.

Democrats Opposed
Leading Democrats, in and out of the so-called Wilsonian wing of the party, merely pointed to the fact that the Democratic platform has always declared for the collection of the war debts. And in addition it was pointed out that the Democrats in the last session of Congress opposed the Italian and Belgian settlements because they considered them too lenient.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, a fellow cabinet member with Baker in the Wilson Administration, and who with Baker was one of the war president's closest inti-

SCOFF AT TALE OF M'DERMOTT MURDER

"No Foundation" Is Verdict of Authorities as Mellett Probe Is Resumed.

Canton, O., Aug. 31.—A stark county grand jury today resumed its investigation into the Don R. Mellett murder, halted momentarily while authorities retrieved fleeing witnesses and investigated vague rumors of the reported murder of Pat McDermott, formerly sought as the "key" to the solution of the slaying.

According to County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, three witnesses, women from Cleveland, had not yet been located. Other witnesses are "either forgetting their former statements or are keeping detectives busy locating them," the official said.

All officials connected with the inquiry termed the report that Pat McDermott was murdered and shipped to New York in a trunk, some time after the assassination, by a man now under suspicion in connection with the crime, as "absolutely without foundation."

HORTA, FAYAL, DESTROYED BY QUAKE, REPORT

Azores Port of 7,000 Inhabi- tants Wrecked—Meagre News Tells of Many Killed And Injured.

London, Aug. 31.—The town of Horta, Fayal Island, the Azores, has been practically destroyed by an earthquake, according to a Central News dispatch from Lisbon. The dispatch declared that meagre reports received at Lisbon told of many being killed and injured in the earthquake.

Horta, which is on the south-eastern coast of Fayal, has a population of 7,000, and is the principal port of the island. Fayal is one of the most populous islands in the Azores group and is rather thickly settled. It has a population of 53,000.

Cable Relay Working
New York, Aug. 31.—The French cable company, at noon today, reported that their automatic cable relay on the island of Fayal was working normally, indicating that the earthquake which shook the Azores this morning had subsided.

For a time, it was stated at the company offices here, the relay failed to operate, and it was later learned that this was due to the quake. Then across the line from Brest, France, the continental receiving point was reported tick-tick of the instruments again, and it was supposed that the danger was passed.

Worst in History.
Washington, Aug. 31.—The severest earthquake in the history of the Azores was reported today by American Consul Horace Remillard at Horta, in a cablegram to the State Department.
"All houses in Horta have suffered and many are down," the cablegram said. "All Americans are believed to be safe. All residents are preparing to live out of doors."

Estimate of the property damage and loss of life is as yet impossible. Remillard reported.
Through the state department, the American Red Cross made plans for relieving the earthquake sufferers. Acting Secretary of State Grew cabled Remillard asking what supplies are most needed there.

Immediate relief action will be taken by the Red Cross if conditions warrant, officials said.

FULLER WON'T ACT TO AID SACCO-VANZETTI

Refuses to Postpone Execution Of Man Cited as Real Murder- er.

Boston, Aug. 31.—Governor Alvan T. Fuller said today that he would not grant a respite to Celestino Madeiros, of New Bedford, scheduled to die in the electric chair next week for the murder of an aged Wrentham bank cashier. William G. Thompson, counsel for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, urged the respite on the ground that Madeiros had confessed to the South Braintree paymaster slaying, for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted. A motion for a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti is to be heard by Judge Webster Thayer in Norfolk Superior court during the week of September 15.

Gov. Fuller told Mr. Thompson that he would not grant the respite unless asked to do so by the judge or by the attorney-general's office. The latter has not acted and Thompson charged the attorney-general with evading his duty, with refusing to die in the electric chair. Judge Thayer is sick and Mr. Thompson said it was impossible for him to go on with the hearing of the new Sacco-Vanzetti motion until the date set.

STRIKE AGITATOR GETS 60 DAYS JAIL TERM

Stamford, Aug. 31.—Another batch of prisoners arrested as the result of the garment maker's agitation here appeared in city court today and all except one were released under noles. Sam Klumpe, representative for the striking New York garment workers, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to jail for two months for intimidation of Mrs. Clara McMahon, proprietor of a garment factory. He was released under bond of $750 pending an appeal.

DEMOCRATS NAME THEIR DELEGATES

Caucus Proceeds Without a Hitch—Town Committee Renamed, One Exception.

Without a hitch the caucus of the local Democratic party named its committees at a meeting held last evening at the Hose House at Main and Hilliard streets in the north end. About twenty men and women were present. The session took up about an hour's time.

Charles W. Holman presided as temporary chairman and was later made the permanent presiding officer as was Miss Catherine Murphy who acted as clerk.

Nominating Committee
Dr. Edward G. Dolan, C. I. Balch and Michael O'Connell were named as a nominating committee for the congressional district and Edward J. Murphy, Mrs. John P. Sheridan and Louis Breen as a nominating committee to choose delegates for the county convention and for delegates to the Senatorial District.

Town Committee
The town committee was also named as follows: John F. Limerick, C. W. Holman, Dr. Edward G. Dolan, Edward J. Murphy, John Spillane, Michael O'Connell, Arthur Manning, Robert V. Treat, Charles I. Balch, Edward Lynch, Thomas J. Danaher, James P. Wilcox, Catherine M. Murphy, Mrs. J. F. Sheridan, Mrs. Robert V. Treat, Mrs. Harriet Holman, Mrs. John Gleason, F. H. Wall and Miss Ellen Buckley.

Mr. Holman said that he would be unable to serve on the town committee and it was decided that the committee be empowered to fill

DEMOCRATIC PARTY HERE NORTH END ORGANIZATION

Odd but true is the fact that almost all of Manchester's Democrats live north of the Center. Why this should be is hard to understand. This was noticeable last night at their caucus. With but two exceptions every man and woman was from the North End. As one man put it: "I wonder how Chris McHale ever got into the Democratic Party in this town you know he lives south of the Center and that seems to mean that one must be a Republican then."

any vacancies that might occur. Just before the meeting adjourned Edward J. Murphy moved that Dr. Edward G. Dolan be chosen as a member of the state central committee and the caucus named him. He made a few remarks thanking those present for the honor.

Dr. Dolan said that the country was on the doorstep of a new era. He advised the Democrats to take more interest in local affairs and help to bring back to the fold those Democrats who had fallen away. He said that although the lists showed only a vote of 400 there were over twice that many Democratic voters in Manchester. Work among the young folk, he urged. His remarks were well applauded.

GREEN DISTRICT VOTES ADDITION

Voters Decide to appropriate $35,000 for Four Additional Rooms.

Last night's special meeting at the Manchester Green schoolhouse was marked by an absence of any opposition to the appropriation of $35,000 for the erection of a four-room addition to the present school. In fact a discussion about who should be allowed to hold keys to the school occupied more time than the principal matter.

It took less than five minutes from the time Committeeman Walter J. Buckley called the meeting to order for the fifty voters present to elect William Cowles moderator and go on record as favoring the appropriation. Then it was voted that the treasurer be authorized to borrow in the name of the district $35,000 and to give notes of the district therefor.

Following this, two minor clauses were discussed briefly and then accepted. Then came the only excitement of the evening and even at that it was very mild. John Jansen asked the chairman about the possibility of a member of the building committee having a key to the school so they might hold special meetings at will. It appears that the committee, Walter J. Buckley, was the only man outside of the janitor who has a key to the school.

It was the opinion of the voters that an injustice had been done Mr. Buckley by not naming him on the building committee as all district officers are supposed to be on the committee. It was stated.

Someone made a motion that Mr. Buckley be admitted to the building committee but this was not allowed as it would necessitate the calling of another special meeting. Three have been held since the annual meeting and the voters felt that was sufficient.

Therefore it was voted that the committeeman turn over a key to the chairman of the building committee and thus ended the only incident of the evening.

The entire business lasted less than a half an hour.

FORMER SCHOOL TEACHER HERE MARRIED IN TORRINGTON.

Of considerable local interest is the marriage of Miss Margaret Mary Simpson and Edward P. Wesson which took place yesterday at St. Thomas's church, Southington, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Christopher. Mrs. Edmund Foley was matron of honor and Miss Kathryn Wesson, sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaid. Robert Wesson, brother of the bridegroom was best man.

The bride's gown was of ivory satin crepe with court train. Her veil fell from a coronet of pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. Her attendants wore costumes of orchid and peach colored tulle and black velvet hats, and carried arm bouquets of cosmos.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesson will reside in Philadelphia.

The bride for a number of years was domestic science teacher in the Eighth district schools.

THRILLING—GORGEOUS—DRAMATIC—"MISMATES"

Doris Kenyon's Latest Screen Vehicle Is Lavish Picture at State Today and Tomorrow.

A picture of many heart throbs, a mother's love and daring for her child; a picture with a smashing climax, is "Mismates", the first National production which is playing at the State today and tomorrow, afternoon and evening. This picture was produced on a lavish scale. One of its high lights is a gorgeous jewel parade the like of which has never before been seen on the screen. In it are a score of the most beautiful artists' models in New York. This display of feminine pulchritude and dazzling jewels is one of the features of the picture.

Aside from this, Doris Kenyon, with Warner Baxter as her leading man, gives one of the finest dramatic performances of the year. You will not have seen the ultimate in drama until you have seen this picture. Philo McCullough, a new "find," and one of the most miserable of villains as he appears on the screen, but really one of the best male actors in the business, supplies enough villainy for a dozen pictures.

"Mismates" is a real triumph. Do not fail to see it, either today or tomorrow.

Don't forget the Kiddie Revue which will play on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. This production will be the most important event of the current theatrical season in Manchester. It will surprise you beyond words.

The youngsters, fifty of them, have been rehearsing faithfully for weeks under Jack Sanson's personal supervision. They are anxious to show the Manchester theatergoers what they can do. Don't think that all the best revues appear on here in town the last three days of Broadway. There will be one light this week that would do justice to any theater anywhere.

Special scenery, stage sets, and lighting effects have been secured for the revue. It will be put on in a truly lavish manner. And then, too, there will be a large jazz orchestra with the kiddies. The orchestra will be made up entirely of local musicians, under the direction of Tom Treat.

On the same program will be a feature picture and an "Our Gang" comedy. And all this for the regular picture prices, for there will be no advance in prices.

There are many "don't's" included in our rules of life. There will be an addition to this list, a very important addition, and one that will affect everyone in Manchester for the latter three days of this week. It is: "don't fail to see the Kiddie Revue."

The revue will be shown three times: matinee and twice each evening, on Thursday and Friday and on Saturday the showing will, as usual, be continuous.

QUARRELS OF 67 AND 84 END IN DUAL DEATH

Flint, Mich., Aug. 31.—The bodies of Mrs. Nancy Woods, 34, and her 67-year-old husband, Charles Woods, were found in the Woods yard on Dartmouth Road near the city limits, early today, evidence indicating that Woods had shot his wife and then himself. Relatives and neighbors said the couple had quarreled continually of late, the wife finally suing for divorce.

Oooh!

"Oooh!"—Master Robbin Cleland, grandson of General John I. Hines, chief of U. S. army staff, is impressed. He wants to see that birdie the photographer tells about.

KIDDIES DO WELL AT REHEARSALS

Constant rehearsing has been the rule with the youngsters who have been preparing faithfully for weeks for the State theatre's Kiddie Revue, which will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. It is to be expected that these rehearsals will have the result of producing one of the best theatrical offerings Manchester has ever seen.

Myrtle Muir, the little leading lady, and her supporting principals with the rest of the big cast that amounts to over fifty, will furnish one big surprise for Manchester's theatre-goers. And then, too, there will be the jazz orchestra under the direction of Tom Treat. It will be a fitting event for the crowning of the summer season at the State.

EARTHQUAKE IN AZORES.

London, Aug. 31.—Earthquakes of unusual severity have occurred in the Azores, doing considerable damage in Fayal, according to dispatches received here.

Keith's Open for Business

This store has been closed for two weeks, as most of you know, not by the sheriff's orders, but by orders from the store managers, so that we might all have a restful vacation. So far as we know no one has suffered for want of goods while we have been closed. We are not sorry we adopted this plan.

- Chest of Drawers $34.50
- Dining Suite Reduced To $139.50 (Regular price $175.)
- Metal Beds $8.95

We have several of these odd Chests of Drawers left from chamber suites that we are closing at this very low price. Made of genuine walnut combined with other beautiful woods, in the light French walnut finish. A high grade piece of merchandise that you would pay $47.50 for if bought with a suite.

We also have a four drawer Vanity to match for $29.00. With metal bed to match you have a three piece suite around $85.00. (On Easy Payments thru Profit Sharing Plan.)

(1 year to pay thru our Profit Sharing Plan.) This Tudor Dining Suite, consisting of Buffet, Table and six Chairs, represents extreme value. Made by one of our best manufacturers, of genuine walnut combined with other beautiful woods, has the new Huguenot finish. The diners are leather seated and if you prefer we can supply them in tapestry or velour. Eight pieces selling this week for $139.50. (Regular price $175.)

- Couch Hammocks 1/2 Price
- 3 Piece Suite in Velour $129.50
- All Lamps Marked Extremely Low

All our couch hammocks have been further reduced and are now being sold at 1-2 the original price. There are some splendid hammocks left though not many of any one pattern. Adjustable, padded backs with fine soft mattresses. $15.00 Hammocks now $7.50. $27.50 Hammocks now $13.75. $31.50 Hammocks now $15.75. $52.50 Hammocks now $26.25.

(Easy Payments thru our Profit Sharing Plan.) This suite represents a splendid value. Covered with a good quality of velour. Frame is made of hard wood, cushions are spring filled and reversible. HOHENHAL

The aspiration of Emil L. G. Hohenthal to represent Manchester in the Legislature is not easy to understand. There is not much money in being a legislator in Connecticut.

Nor would there be, for a person who has been the leader of one political party in Connecticut—even so small a political party as the Prohibition organization—any particular glory in becoming a mere cog in the machinery of another political party.

As to Manchester's interest in the gentleman's desire to become its representative, the situation is much clearer. The town's feeling in this relation will be something like that of an indulgent parent who would fain give a red wagon to each of her good little boys.

"Gimme" is not an adequate political platform. It would be fair to suggest that, if Emil L. G. Hohenthal desires to gain public office at the hands of his fellow citizens of Manchester, he affiliate, in the regular way, with the dominant political party, serve his apprenticeship by at least voting the Republican ticket once or twice, and then make known his candidacy, like anybody else, and take his chances as a Republican within the Republican party.

His present foray is not only inexplicable, it is intrusive and in excessiveness had taste.

CANCELLATION Because Newton D. Baker was secretary of war during the World War and so is a more or less interested figure in the premises, his flat declaration that America should erase all the war debts of our allies is certain to attract more attention than if it were uttered by somebody less intimately associated with the contracting of those obligations.

mostly either little known persons or big financial magnates who have had to be extremely careful in the degree of their advocacy, let the very fact of their favoring it might react against it in the popular mind.

There are only a few—very few—Americans who are at this time prepared to entertain the thought of wiping off that prodigious debt against Europe and assuming, as an apparently unjust load, the whole carrying cost of our national debt—largely the result of these foreign loans.

And of these few it is probable that as many are of one political faith as of another. Certain it is that the frenzied objections that would meet any such proposition, if made by a member of our government, from a member of Congress to the President himself, would come with equal promptness from both Democrats and Republicans.

Mr. Baker's suggestion is, in effect, a purely academic one, for American thought has not traveled sufficiently far along the line of these European debts to permit the proposal to be taken seriously—not yet.

Yet nothing is more certain in all this world than that the debts, even as agreed on for the purpose or funding, will never be paid.

Nor is it conceivable that Mr. Hohenthal can expect to accomplish anything for any of the well known reforms in which he specializes, even if his present ambition should be gratified.

Perhaps it was inevitable that the performance of the American swimming women in the English channel should eventually be made the subject of jangling discussion, of talk of big bets and a ruck of challenges and counter challenges, of accusations and aspersions; but it was hardly to have been expected that partisanship would degenerate into something pretty close to pot-house brawling almost before the swimmers had got their breath back after their achievements.

That the girls, if left reasonably to themselves, would be anything but pretty good sports, we do not believe. But there are too many male managers in the situation, too many foxy gentlemen with financial axes to grind, to allow even this heretofore clean recreation to stand on a sporting basis for any length of time.

How much genuine feeling there is between the Ederle crowd and the Corson crowd we don't know—but our guess is that there isn't any. They are talking, like the balldog man at the circus, not for the love of the sound of their voices, nor yet from any unbridled enthusiasm, but for cash.

One of the strangest things is the figure cut in the affair by Dudley Field Malone, once upon a time a pretty important looking personage in the larger affairs of America, but now descended close to the level of the individuals who stage legally complicated prize fights.

Our sympathies go out to Miss Ederle and Mrs. Corson, brave, fine girls both. For they seem to have fallen into poor company.

The entire wilderness of the extreme dry element in the Republican party to wreck the organization, thereby turning government over to the opposition, which is fundamentally wet throughout the north, is demonstrated in the New York state situation, where a dry minority is doing its prettiest to bring about the defeat of Senator Wadsworth and the re-election of Governor Al Smith by creating hopeless dissensions within the party.

The logging of Supreme Court Justice Croysey into the governor-ship contest, the while he demands a dry plank in the party platform even with a state referendum on the liquor question pending in the same election, is as deliberate a piece of scuttling as can be imagined.

That it is certain to be defeated is reassuring to an extent. That there are enough Republicans in the great state willing to ruin their party's chance of success by foisting on it the responsibility for an utterly unpopular issue squarely opposed to the principles of its senatorial candidate, is discouraging.

The eagerness of the single track dries to rule or ruin the Republican party constitutes the greatest, in fact the only, danger to the eventual success of the Coolidge administration. If they perform in the rest of the country as they are performing in New York there will be a very fair chance of the next Congress being Democratic. And President Coolidge with a Democratic congress on his hands is not a prospect for Americans to contemplate with ease of mind.

KING-MAKER

Rudolph Valentino's funeral, in its stilling of the activities of the metropolitan streets, was like the burial of a king.

Not at all a great actor, much less great as a man, but because he was endowed with a sort of sulky beauty of face and form and because he was extraordinarily well advertised, this young man had been embossed on the romantic side of mass human nature until he had come to be a very real part of mass human existence.

There are probably, in filmland, five hundred better actors than Rudolph Valentino. There are scores of better looking young men—if character and intellect as portrayed in the countenance are any part of good looks. There are a great many whose private lives offer more for admiration than did his. Yet there was only one Valentino, and millions felt it incumbent upon them to mourn for him.

Never has there been a more perfect demonstration of the power of publicity. It is the king maker of the twentieth century.

DAILY POEM

FATHER'S

Well, Willie's got a brand new coat. It fits him kinda good, and yet it doesn't hang around the shoulders as it should. The sleeves are just a trifle long, but even so, they'll fit; Willie helps the cause along and rolls them up a bit.

And have you seen the necktie he's been wearin' here of late? When mother tied it 'round his neck, he looked and said, "that's great." Of course, it may be much too long, but say, how kin that hurt, 'cause anyway the youngster tucks the long end in his shirt.

I mustn't overlook the shirt and pants he calls his best. Why, say, the kid's a knockout when he's really dressed. There may be things about the clothes it wouldn't do to tell. He doesn't just what style is—and I guess it's just as well.

I met the kid just yesterday, when he was all togged out. I asked him what the classy dress-up stunt was all about. Said I, "Where did you get the tie, and all the grown-up clothes?" The kid just smiled, looked up at me and said, "Ask dad, he knows."

IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 31.—Cafe men, hotel attendants and even housewives tell me that women are the greatest offenders in the matter of carelessly flicking cigaret ashes about and leaving lighted cigarets lying around.

Women who have earned reputations as meticulous housewives seem to have no conscience when it comes to leaving ashes sprinkled over the floors, couches and chairs of places they visit. Flappers are the most heedless.

Perhaps it is longer experience in the amenities of smoking that makes men master; and then, again, it is not unlikely that neatness in depositing ashes has been habitized by nagging wives—the very ones who offend the most.

One of the saddest stories I have heard recently grows out of this outbreak of carelessness. In one of the smartest coffee rooms of the "frantic forties" there has been for years a huge goldfish bowl. Back in the days when this place was a bar and only the "boys" could gather there, the goldfish flourished—ever as the roomsmen.

In one of the Broadway rounders prided themselves that they had tamed certain of the fish to come up for crumbs taken from the free lunch counter.

The other day I happened into the place, for the first time in many a month. The goldfish bowl was there. But it was empty.

Why, I demanded of Garcon, had this grand old institution been allowed to pass.

"Alas," wept Garcon, "It is the ladies. They come here now and drink coffee and smoke cigarets. But, as they have not the thoughtfulness of the men, they would put their cigaret ashes here and there. Yes, as they passed the goldfish bowl they would flick them in there. They would even throw their cigarets in the bowl. Alas, the fish could not live. We replaced them many times. But what was the use? We would have gone broke trying to keep the bowl full of fish. Each day it would be the same. We give it up. The goldfish—he is no more."

The proprietor of a Fifth Avenue pet store tells me that, next to dogs and canaries, marmosets are now in greatest demand. These puny, human-faced little simians have a particular appeal to women, he says. They need a great deal of care and attention and hence, no doubt, help the tenets of childless women.

Styles in pets change rapidly. Last year, when Florida was all a boom, alligators had a large run. Score of New York bathrooms were turned over to baby alligators. The problem, of course, was what to do with them when they grew up. Few, however, were able to survive in the new environment.

Faddists will be interested to learn that it is now fashionable to have birds to match one's household decorations. Thus a parrot should adorn your green curtained room—or, perhaps, parakeets; a cardinal would fit well into your red-room and where kaleidoscopic effect is desired, mayhap a peacock could strut.

The Advantage of Not Being a World's Champion

A THOUGHT

A fool Jeapiteth his father's instructions; but he that regardeth reproof is prudent.—Prov. 15:5.

Remember this: that they will not be counselled cannot be helped. If you do not hear Reason, she will rap your knuckles.—Franklin.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES F. STEWART.

Washington, Aug. 31.—"Back home," remarked the spruce waitress in the so-called "popular price restaurant" where this particular Washington neighborhood eats most of its lunches, "I'm supposed to be a clerk in one of the government departments."

"I was originally, but mercy! I couldn't begin to live on the pay I got. Between my pay and my tips I make enough here to buy up two or three girl clerks for the government."

"Of course the disagreeable part of it is that a waitress isn't anybody socially. It would make my folks feel dreadfully if they knew I worked in a restaurant. So I let 'em go on thinking I'm still on Uncle Sam's payroll."

"Once a year I go home for a couple of weeks and swell around, in clothes I couldn't even dream of on a government salary, and they look at me and say, 'My! she has a government position in Washington.' I'm invited out and entertained by all the best people and have a lovely time."

"Wouldn't their eyes pop if they knew I really was just a hash-slinger!"

This damsel's confession could be duplicated to the tune of hundreds, and maybe thousands, if anybody wanted to take the trouble to do the necessary research work.

The capital's full of young women and young men, too, and some not so young, whom the "home folks" fondly suppose to be holding down dignified federal jobs, but who, in reality, are engaged in considerably less classy but much more remunerative employment.

What's more, they show their financial good sense, and the little deceit they practice doesn't hurt anybody.

Washington officialdom hears with much satisfaction the news that Latin-American diplomats have tendered their good offices, as mediators, between the church and the state in Mexico.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, The American Nature Association

Ever since man has been on earth, he has in all probability admired the spiders, their skill and courage as hunters, the ingenuity which they display in fashioning their snares, the underground retreats of some species, so fashionably fitted to their environment, so fashionably fitted to their environment, so fashionably fitted to their environment.

The bite of all spiders is poisonous. It is in this way that they kill their prey. But the amount of poison is so small and their ability to penetrate the human skin so inadequate, that very few species, out of the thousands known, may be considered dangerous.

All spiders live on other creatures and their methods of securing their prey are various. Some spin webs of diverse styles which serve as nets or snares; others hunt by open pursuit or by stealth. The crab spiders, such as the one shown here, belong to the latter class. They have found that it is just as easy to make a living without the labor of spinning a web, or the monotony of remaining continually in one place.

They are usually light colored and are not conspicuous on golden-rod or other similar plants. So they merely wait around until some there's some chance it will do so ultimately.

Washington can hardly say a word without arousing the suspicion that it inclines to dictate in Mexican internal affairs—for, if it wanted to dictate, of course it could dictate.

Obviously no Latin-American country can do anything of the kind—and make it stick—so none is likely to be under any such suspicion.

If the Mexican situation develops still more threateningly, and President Calles sees the necessity for compromise, it's believed here that Latin-American might afford him an opportunity for a peaceful one, where force is about the only thing the Mexicans would respect, from this side of the Rio Grande.

WAIT HORDE OF 17-YEAR LOCUSTS Washington, D. C.—The 17-year locusts appear on time? That is the question now before the scientific world and the belief that the species should make its re-appearance this year in Virginia, Georgia, Iowa and Missouri is to be tested.

The Bureau of Entomology has asked four states to keep a sharp lookout for the insects and report if they are discovered.

DIESEL ENGINES

FOR AUTOS SOON

Engineers Predict Big Saving from Heavy Oil Motor; Fewer Parts.

By ISRAEL KLEIN. Advocates of the Diesel, crude oil burning, engine for automotive use as well as industrial use, have moved up another notch in the climb to their goal.

The first commercially developed high speed Diesel engine has made its bow in a severe test at Springfield, Ohio, and has been declared a remarkable success. It's of the kind, say Diesel engineers, that could very well be used for automotive travel, and which in fact these engineers predict will be common in motor cars ten years hence.

The new engine turns as fast as 1200 revolutions a minute, a speed that makes the Diesel possible for automotive use. The best speed possible heretofore in Diesels of this type was 200 revolutions a minute.

Many Less Parts. No spark plugs, no ignition system, no carburetor bother the operation of this engine. Long tappets, rocker arms, valves and such things that make a gasoline motor noisy also are absent. In fact, it's said, the modern Diesel of automotive type has upwards of 50 parts less than the gasoline motor.

and the whole thing runs on the crudest of crude oil at a cost less than one-fourth that of modern auto fuel. In fact the engine could run on buttermilk, since this liquid contains the essential qualities found in crude oil.

H. C. Blake, president of the Springfield concern that built the latest Diesel, sees an annual saving of more than $20,000,000 in the building trades alone through use of this crude oil burning engine, for it will supplant the gasoline engines now used in tractors, excavating machinery, dredges, cranes and other construction material.

Would Save Much. "A Diesel engine," he says, "cuts the operating cost of a gasoline motor 80 per cent. A Dieselized automobile would run fifty miles on a gallon of crude oil costing but five cents, while you know the present day car gets only around 17 miles on 20 cents a gallon gasoline."

Although the makers of the new motor are developing their efforts at present entirely to its manufacture for construction machinery, they believe the time of the Dieselized motor car is not far distant.

The engine will occupy no more space than the present motor, they say. It will be many times as powerful and will burn almost any oil that can flow through a pipe.

And the engine, they add, will outlive three present-day gasoline engines.

At the same time a great saving in motor fuels will be effected, for gasoline has been going lately at an alarming rate.

ECONOMY OUTING AT LAKE COMPOUNCE.

The employees of the Economy Grocery Company held their third annual outing at Lake Compoence, Bristol, Connecticut, on Sunday. Perfect weather and excellent picnic grounds made conditions ideal for such a gathering and an immense crowd was on hand, representing the Economy employees from all over the state. It is estimated that at least 700 people attended the outing. The day was complete with such sporting activities as a picnic gathering. The feature event was a baseball game between the Waterbury Economy team, champions of the Waterbury Mercantile League and the Good Shapard team, champions of the Church League of Hartford. The Waterbury Economy team won a very exciting game, score 8-33.

The other events were a 50-yard dash for married men won by I. Metcalf of Waterbury; 100-yard dash, won by Irving Dunston of Waterbury; pipe race, won by J. Finn of New Haven; balloon race, won by J. Tomany of Hartford. One of the most interesting of races was the 75 yard relay race which was won by the Waterbury team composed of Messrs. Metcalf, Dunston and O'Day. The most exciting event of the day was a tug-of-war between the Hartford and Waterbury districts, with Waterbury coming out on top. The decision was very doubtful until the last few minutes when the spiked shoes of the Waterbury team turned the tide in their favor.

Kelly's orchestra of Hartford furnished music and entertainment for the picnickers.

Those floppy pants the dear boys are wearing get a bit draughty in cool weather. So Eugene Prewett, 16, of Fort Worth, Tex., has devised fur cuffs for them, doubtless to keep out the cold. He's shown here doing the Charleston in 'em to demonstrate how they look in action. Inset shows a close-up of the fur bottoms.

ILLINOIS ROADS AID BUSINESS OF BUSSES

Springfield, Ill.—Operating fleets of 872 busses, with an organization with nearly $10,000,000 invested, 78 motor bus lines now blanket the state of Illinois, aided ably by the state's system of hard roads, perhaps the best in the union.

These busses last year carried 25,280,129 miles and operated 76,733,739 passengers.

These figures are taken from a report made by Chester G. Moore, executive vice-president of the Illinois Motor Transportation Association, for an interstate commerce commission hearing.

Of these 78 companies, 63 operate inter-city busses only while 17 have interstate operations. Of the 872 busses, 325 ply between the cities of Illinois, the rest operating within the limits of the cities of Illinois.

How the bus lines compare with the steam lines is shown by the fact that in Illinois during the year 1925 the railroads carried 83,553,564 fare paying passengers at the average fare of 73 2-10 cents per passenger while the inter-city busses carried 8,153,021 fare paying passengers at an average fare of

HARVARD TACKLE IN RED GRANGE'S JOB

Medford, Mass.—Chicago has its "football" iceman,—Red Grange. So has this city. He is Carl Lindner, Harvard tackle for the past two years.

Lindner, former Medford High athlete keeps in condition by carrying ice for the Medford Ice Company. He believes there is no better exercise than "hauling ice up three stories to Mrs. Smith" or "pulling" cakes onto the teams as they are loaded for delivery.

Young Lindner has no intention of emulating Red Grange, although he admits that he can see where the former University of Illinois star gained much from the hard work he put in while carrying ice to customers.

"I would not give anything in the form of conditioning preference over the work I do each summer to prepare for the opening of Harvard football practice," he declared. "It makes me feel as if I had practiced football all Summer when I join the squad. While others are fighting their hardest to become 'sacutoms' to the hard grind I am in the best of condition and so much ahead when it comes to the hardening exercises."

ILLINOIS FARMERS WAR ON POISONOUS WEEDS

Springfield, Ill.—War has been opened by Dr. F. A. Laird, state veterinarian, and the state department of agriculture on snake-root weed, which this year is claiming its usual number of cattle as victims.

Death of eight cattle on one farm near here brought a warning to farmers from the state to destroy this weed whenever found.

A survey is being made in an attempt to stamp out the menace to the cattle.

POE'S STORIES: The Purloined Letter (1)

One evening, in the autumn of 18—, shortly after he had solved the murders in the Rue Morgue, C. Auguste Dupin, the famous detective and analyst, was sitting in his apartments enjoying a pipe with his friend. Suddenly the door was thrown open and there entered Monsieur G., the prefect of the Parisian police.

The prefect was greeted warmly by the two men, who found in his methods much that was amusing, even if crude.

Dupin supplied the visitor with a pipe and a chair and asked him the nature of his business.

The prefect began the narration of his story, relating to a theft which he said was "so simple and yet so odd" that the police were puzzled. He first cautioned the two men to hold to the greatest secrecy, since the deed of which he spoke was enacted in the royal apartments. (Continued.)

CALIFORNIA VOTES AFTER HOT BATTLE

Shortridge, World Court Advocate and Coolidge Man Fights to Keep Office.

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—California voters went to the polls today to cast their ballots in the primary elections. With the issues in the open, and with open clashes among members of both the Republican and Democratic parties, interest is centered in the contests for the United States senatorial and gubernatorial nominations.

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, a proponent of the world court and a supporter of the Coolidge regime, is fighting for the Republican nomination against Judge Robert M. Clarke, an opponent of the court. The latter has had the support of Senator Hiram Johnson during the primary campaign and is expected to give the incumbent a close race.

Governorship Struggle
The contest for the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican ticket is of even more interest to California voters. Governor Friend W. Richardson and his opponent, Lieut.-Gov. C. C. Young, today are both claiming victory, at the conclusion of whirlwind campaigns. Young has also been supported by Senator Johnson.

The campaign for nominations for the United States Senate and the governorship on the Democratic ticket has been equally hectic, with both factions, one led by William Gibbs McAdoo, and the other by former Senator James D. Phelan, hurling charges and counter charges.

Who'll Be Next Great Lover of Moviana?

By GENE COHN.
New York, Aug. 30.—In that illusory kingdom of Moviana there is an undercurrent of tension since the great Sheik has died suddenly without direct heir, there are many to claim his throne.

And as the people of Moviana are idolatrous folk, the task will not be easy. In addition, loyalty to their idols is fierce and many are those who have died in favor, while surviving in flesh.

It is not only that the counselors of Moviana will introduce another Sheik; it would be too great a test to ask another to wear the exact mantle of the late Rudolph Valentino.

Symbol of Romance
There are certain types who awaken similar responses and there are physical and temperamental similarities, but the basis of Moviana popularity is romantic appeal.

Styles in romance change vitally, though romance maintains its hold upon the masses of population. The idol must be a symbol of the current ideal. Thus, a few seasons back, the shy, timorous lover as exemplified by Charlie Ray, Richard Barthelmess, captured the following:

"The Sheik" appeared just as the younger generation was beginning its gesture of revolt against conventions. The "cave man" was having appeal, but something was needed to refine the roughness of his ardor. This "the sheik" type did. He would carry away his lady but, possessing her, would be the gentle lover and cave man combined.

This appeal ran to Latin types and has not entirely gone its course.

Here Ricardo Cortez and Ramon Novarro suggest themselves as outstanding possibilities if the Latin-shek style is to continue in popularity.

Looks Like Sheik
Cortez bears actual physical similarity to the late Valentino. At various times the roles he has played have skirted the sheik-type, and with some degree of success. The inside picture circles are going to give much attention to his appeal as a romantic in a forthcoming picture.

Novarro also has done service in the Valentino type of role. Indeed a couple of years back when Valentino had temperamental difficulties been on up grade for some time, has included a variety of types. In no secret that Novarro was groomed for his place. Somehow he didn't quite make it then, but his work in "Ben Hur" may bring a change.

The real test will come however, if United Artists decide to film the life of Benvenuto Cellini, a part planned for Valentino. The announcement of the actor they look to as successor.

Of the American types there are John Barrymore, Ronald Colman and John Gilbert to consider. Gilbert's popularity, which has of a medieval swash-buckler. His abilities as "great lover" have been continuously stressed, and they are climaxed as Don Juan. What is more, Barrymore now sails under the same Schenck banner that floated over Rudy and is cast next as Francis Villon.

Colman has been gaining in favor and his capacity to carry the flavor of costume drama is being tested in "Beau Geste."

Finally there is mention of a dark horse—one Tullio Carminetti, from the land of Valentino imported by Schenck and being tried out in Talmadge pictures.

NO MORE TIME CALLS AT W. U.

According to an announcement made yesterday by Miss Pauline Novelli, manager of the local branch of the Western Union Telegraph company, no more time calls will be answered.

Miss Novelli is in receipt of orders from headquarters that beginning tomorrow "correct time, please" calls are taboo. The notice says the repeated calls have been a hindrance to the speedy handling of telegrams.

Today the local office was moved from the Orford building to the State Theater building. Its new address is 8 Bissell street.

THREE C. B. A. A. PLAYERS BAT OVER 400 DURING 1926 SEASON

Stratton Heads Pack With 460 Average; Team Won 8, Lost 13 Games; The Statistics.

Three regulars, Jack Stratton, Elmo Mantoli and Bill Brennan, batted above the 400 mark for Cheney Brothers' baseball nine during the 1926 season which sang its swan song last week for the silk workers. Stratton led the team with the willow. He attained the average of 460 for the games in which he participated.

Cheney Brothers played 23 games. The record shows that the silk workers ploughed their way through a strenuous schedule included in which were some of the leading teams in the state.

Before lowering the curtain on the 1926 season for Cheney Brothers, it might be said to their credit that the lineup which sported the C. B. A. A. colors was practically intact in every game. This is a performance that all the other teams in Manchester cannot boast of.

PIRATES AND CARDS SPLIT THEIR GAMES

Reds Break Cubs' Winning Streak and Advance Phillies Win.

PIRATES 9-8, CARDS 0-5. St. Louis, Aug. 31.—The Pirates held their grip on first place in the National League by splitting a double-header with the Cardinals. Pittsburgh took the first in a three-to-nothing shut-out, while they lost the second, 5 to 3.

THE PENNANT RACES

New York, Aug. 31.—By defeating the Chicago Cubs while the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals were breaking even in a double header, the Cincinnati Reds gained a half game on their two rivals yesterday in the triangular National League race. The Pirates lost a percentage point through breaking even but continued at the pace with a percentage of .537. The Reds advanced to .532, being less than a half game behind the leaders. By winning again from the Cubs today, the Reds can take the lead if the Pirates and Cards again break even. The latter today have a percentage of .575, less than 1-2 games behind the leaders.

In the American League, the New York Yankees again lost ground by finishing second to the Washington Senators while the Cleveland Indians were idle. The latter thus gained a half game and now are 6 1-2 games behind the lead.

Emulates Prince of Wales

Here's a spectacular photograph of the most daring of all of a bucking bronco's wild and wicked maneuvers, the deadly forward somersault. This picture was snapped just as Guy Schutte, Cheyenne, Wyo., cowboy was hurled through the air from his horse's back. A moment later the horse fell on Schutte, sending the daring cowpuncher to the hospital for five months. The accident happened during the recent "Frontier Days" celebration at Cheyenne.

Gene Tunney Got $100 For Debut As A Fighter

This is the third of a series of articles by Joe Williams, fistic expert of The Manchester Evening Herald which is affiliated with the New Service, Inc., dealing with the life story of Gene Tunney, challenger for the heavyweight title.

BY JOE WILLIAMS. Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc. Gene Tunney's first professional opponent in America after the war was Dan O'Dowd of Boston, a strong turkey with a weakness for the canvas. Tunney rendered him null and void after eight rounds. For this he was paid the 100 berries promised by Billy Roche.

"I was interested more in the money than in winning or losing that fight," recalls Tunney. "I needed it desperately. I don't even remember what kind of a fight it made, or what kind of a fight O'Dowd made against me."

Tunney's mother had dreams of him wearing the somber robes of the priesthood, and had not limited funds made it necessary for the old St. Harris, 2b, to go out and provide for the family, the monastery is where he would have gone.

I don't know what actually happened when Tunney came back to his home in Banks street in Green-wood Village that December night after whipping O'Dowd at Bayonne, N. J.

Must have been hard for him to announce he had definitely decided to become a fighter. And it must have been hard for the mother, leaning on the arm of the priest, to have heard him saying that.

This boy's quiet, firm voice as it broke the tense stillness of the prim little living room.

"It's the only way I can make money, mother. It's just as much a business as oil, or steel, or merchandising. I will start at the bottom and keep working until I have reached the top. Yes, until I have won the championship from Dempsey."

Tunney didn't remain under Roche's management long. After bouncing over a flock of dime-a-quart tomatoes, he signed a contract with Frank "Doc" Bagley, one of the big league managers of the street. Bagley had taken Willie Jackson, hard hitting Philadelphia lightweight, and made a fortune out of him.

The shrewd Bagley got Tunney plenty of work and under him he began to develop unmistakable symptoms of a coming fighter.

Among his early battles was an indoor engagement against an unknown by the name of Sullivan, which was held at Newark, and which Tunney remembers as the hardest fight of his career, although he won by a knockout in the first round.

"This fellow was a southpaw," says Tunney. "The first southpaw I had ever faced. At the time he shot out of his corner and crowded me to the ropes. In some way or other I became entangled in them and before I could get square away I felt something land knock-plunk on the right side of my jaw. I thought Mr. Goliath was one of the ringers and had playfully thrown an anvil into the ring. I proved only to be Mr. Sullivan's good left hand. I immediately saw a dozen Sullivan's. My knees began to buckle and I would have gone down and probably stayed down if I hadn't been within reach of the ropes.

PUNCH ON NOSE'LL AROUSE DEMPSEY

May Not Be Man-Eater in Training But That Doesn't Mean Anything.

By DAVIS J. WALSH. New York, Aug. 31.—It would seem to a man up a tree that a rather disquieting impression has been gained of our Mr. Dempsey since he took up his training quarters at Atlantic City. There is nothing the matter with his condition. They say it is excellent. There is no complaint entered about his sincerity of purpose. They picture him as being most earnest as he goes about his daily labors.

But at the same time, the boys appear to be rallying around the idea that the gentleman is not punching as of yore and, if one cares to read down under the type, one might almost believe that some of them fear the worst for Miss Taylor's husband when he attempts to alter, revise and otherwise rearrange Mr. Gene Tunney on the night of September 23.

Weak Partners. Personally, I wouldn't care to go that far about it. For all anyone knows, Dempsey's "catchers" may be as fragile that he fears manslaughter and with some justification. It has been intimated that Bill Tate is the best of a very poor lot and William is rather elderly, at that.

Then again, it may be that the champion is playing "dead" after the manner hitherto exclusive to college football teams on the eve of a big game. Another possibility is that he is working on his timing and to the exclusion of heavy punching, for three years beyond his ropes must take their toll in accuracy.

It may be any of these explanations or it may be none. The possibility that Dempsey might not be the man-eater of old has been one of the engaging considerations since the Tunney match first was made.

Certainly, when the critics gaze fixedly at a heavyweight champion, for more than a week and then turn in a composite report, purporting to indicate that they "ain't seen nothing yet," there is only one of two explanations. Either the critics are wrong or Dempsey is. The night of September 23—not the mere shelling of a push-over in camp—will furnish the answer.

Camera Fighter. Meantime, the boys will continue to view the champion with alarm. They feel that there is something sub-normal and unseemly about a recognized man-eater who goes around being amiable to other human beings and snarls only when cameras are in the offing. They think it is a sign of retrogression when, in reality, it may be a sign that Dempsey no longer finds it necessary or sensible to intimidate those associated with him.

Can it be that the passing years have mellowed our hero? I might even get around to feeling that way, if I didn't know for a certainty that with the first punch on the nose he will be about as mellow as a barbed wire fence.

GERMAN TO TRAIN WIFE FOR CHANNEL

Verkoetten Says He's Going To Have Frau Beat Ederle's Record.

Calais, Aug. 31.—Refreshed and invigorated by a night's rest, Ernest Verkoetten, the German swimmer, who yesterday plowed his way across the English channel in the fastest time ever recorded, announced today that he was going to train his wife to duplicate his feat.

"As for myself," Verkoetten said, "I am coming back to swim to Dover and back. I am going to start in at once to train my wife so that she can surpass the time made by Gertrude Ederle. I feel confident that she can do it."

Verkoetten is leaving this afternoon for his home in Cologne. Backed by Friends. It became known today that the German swimmer had arrived at Cape Gris Nez a fortnight ago, almost penniless. What money he had, had been contributed by friends.

Verkoetten was accompanied on his swim by Emile Ranson, municipal councillor of Calais; Leon Vincent, son of the mayor of Calais, who represented the French Swimming Federation; a Calais journalist, a German journalist, and a French naval officer. All of these attested that Verkoetten's swim was entirely authentic.

The strength and speed of the German amazed me, for it surpassed anything I could imagine," said Ranson.

DEMPSY PRACTICING TO COUNTER TUNNEY LEADS. Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 31.—Jack Dempsey who has puzzled and confounded the fistic critics parked here by his complete change of style in the last few days, explained the "mystery" today.

"All I've been doing is to build up an attack that will whip Tunney before he knows what all the shouting is about," he said.

Dempsey has had his men poke their fists at him in jabbing fashion here. Many of the spectators thought as "Tunney's specialty. And whenever they have done it Dempsey has ducked just enough to escape it, and then, seemingly with the same movement, has lunged in and let go with the right drive. It has landed nine times in every ten tries.

LONGWOOD TENNIS. Brookline, Mass., Aug. 31.—With all the seeded and otherwise favored teams still in the running, play in the national championship doubles at Longwood Cricket club advanced to the second round today.

The present title holders, Vincent Richards and A. Norris Williams, II, were matched against Axel Graven and Henry R. Guild while the William T. Tilden and Alfred H. Chipin combination were opposed by N. W. Niles and Watson Washburn.

DAY WINS FAST BOUT FROM MIKE BALLERINO. New Haven, Aug. 31.—George Day, of New Haven, was awarded the referee's decision over Mike Ballerino, of Bayonne, N. J., after ten rounds of fast and furious fighting at the Nutmeg stadium here last night. The local boy's aggressiveness proved too much for the former junior lightweight champion, the Elm City scrapper getting the majority of rounds.

Both men were strong at the finish. Many of the spectators thought Ballerino was entitled to a draw. No knockdowns were scored. Both men fought at 132 pounds.

GREAT BRITAIN GIVES LICENSES FOR TELEVISION

London Radio Fans Hope Soon to "Look In" As Well As Listen In; Baird in Demonstration Explains Plan.

London.—With the granting by the British radio authorities of two licenses to J. L. Baird, the young Scottish inventor of a television apparatus, television may be said to have a long last chance to become a practical possibility, and already radio enthusiasts here are asking how long it will be before it is as common to "look-in" as now it is to "listen-in."

It is understood that the licenses granted to Baird will enable him to construct and distribute for sale any number of televisions, and also to establish a service whereby possessors of his invention will be enabled to "look-in" to programs provided by his company.

According to Baird, in a year's time anyone will be able to see broadcast moving pictures, with a receiving apparatus which will cost around $150. Captain Hutchinson, Baird's business manager, is even more optimistic, prophesying that this will be possible within three months.

Gives Demonstration.
 Baird described his invention at a demonstration given to International News Service, during which he explained that he is actively working on the apparatus still, improving it here and there and constantly experimenting in the sending of pictures over various distances.

The subject to be transmitted is played on by a number of low-power electric lamps. Before it is the transmitter, consisting of a collection of minute metal tubes bound together in honeycomb form, a large number of lenses, behind which is a revolving shutter, and a light sensitive cell. The image is translated into sound waves, as it is in the form of sound, traveling via an ordinary radio aerial on the roof, that it leaves the transmitting station. At the receiving station the sound is re-translated into light and appears in rapidly-moving bars of red and blue light across the screen. The face of the sitter—if the sitter is a human person—can be plainly seen and recognized, and every movement is caught with remarkable clearness, considering the immature state of Baird's apparatus.

The wave length used by Baird at present is of 200 metres, and if the sitter speaks, his voice is transmitted simultaneously with the movement of his lips. "The rate of development of my invention will now depend solely on finance," Baird told I. N. S. "The whole thing is comprehensive. You turn a knob, and you see in a frame on the set the face of whoever is talking, moving pictures. It is as simple as ordinary radio.

SUMMER "SLUMP" IS ANOTHER MYTH Radio Broadcasters Claim This Has Been Best Year Yet in Their Game.

Broadcasters are generally agreed that this has been the best radio summer they've had—that fans have not forsaken their receivers for the highways and the beaches, as they did last year and the year before. The following article by the chief radio engineer of a large Chicago corporation disproves a popular fallacy that summer is a bad time for radio.

BY LEONARD E. PARKER
 There has been a large and impressive funeral this summer. Millions of joyful mourners have written a eulogy of radio fallacy number one. That is, that people don't use their receiving sets during the summer months.

As evidence of the demise one startling fact alone, will suffice. There are more people tuning in on radio this summer than there were last winter.

If further "proof of death" is needed it can also be pointed out that the radio stations of the United States today are presenting far better programs generally than were presented during the winter months.

One of the strange things about the whole matter is the fact that it has been the public itself that has forced this issue. It has been more than a year since this demand has made itself felt.

Letters Pile Up
 The first indication of it came when broadcasting stations generally began to receive almost as much mail in the summer as in the winter, regard this evidence of public interest.

Other stations more progressive, however, followed it up with better programs during the summer. This continued until now the programs are far superior to those of last winter.

However, you will find this said: "People don't care to sit inside and listen to radio these days. They are out motoring or doing something else."

Why not include phonographs and talking machines? People today are taking radio sets just the same as they are taking fishing line and sunbathing cream with them on their vacations.

Summer Necessities
 There is a logical explanation for this. When the radio industry was even more of an infant than it is today there were only a few scattered broadcasting stations in the country. Only a few people who lived a comparatively short distance away were able to use their sets. These sets, by the way, were generally hand made and inefficient. This in itself restricted any wide receiving range.

Now, however, we find a broadcasting station in almost every section of the United States and in consequence there are only a few people in this country who cannot get good reception during the period of thunder storms and atmospheric disturbances.

WINS RADIO FAME AFTER ESCAPING REDS

Shortly after the close of the World War a young man appeared at the offices of the American Consul in Constantinople and asked if he could obtain information concerning his parents.

To a group of interested auditors he unfolded an amazing tale of adventure and privation. Upon the outbreak of the war, he had enlisted in the Russian Army and for three and a half years was engaged in actions on the Russian front. Then came the capture by the Bolsheviks as a soldier of the Czar. At this point in his narrative the young man paid an impressive tribute to the power of music, for it was his ability as a musician, he said that saved him from imprisonment or worse. He was drafted into the Bolsheviks. In the meantime he had lost all trace of his parents, the Bolsheviks refusing to permit him to establish any communication that would lead to knowledge of their whereabouts. They finally established a carefully matured plan to escape and work his way down to the Golden Horn. The condition of his clothes and of himself bore out his tale of privation following his escape from the Bolsheviks.

Tucked under his arm was a violin case. The young man opened the case and there lay a violin and equipment in perfect condition—safe despite his trying experiences. Then he played. And won the hearts of his hearers. They finally established communication with his parents, who, in the meantime, had departed for America. Funds were sent for his passage and the young refugee arrived in New York.

In a few months his art in interpreting the songs of his native land attracted widespread attention. He was engaged to play at exclusive restaurants, at resorts and before private gatherings.

Then one day representatives of The Great A. & P. Tea Company, in search of radio talent, heard this young Russian and a group of his compatriots who he had gathered about him.

Today millions know him as Harry Horlick and his group of musicians from the A. & P. Gypsies. Early in September his beloved violin, that survived so many vicissitudes, will again be heard over WEAF and a group of other stations when the A. & P. Gypsies will resume their hour of broadcasting Monday evening from 9 to 10 o'clock. During the summer the Gypsies have been on tour playing to enthusiastic audiences in various cities.

A Silent Charleston

It was a very noiseless convention that was held in Washington the other day when members of the National Association of the Deaf convened. They all talked on their fingers, and Miss Virginia Dries and Miss Molly Liss showed how a finger-talker says "Charleston." The delegates were sorry Mrs. Coolidge wasn't in town—they wanted to talk to her. She used to teach in a school for the deaf and dumb.

DOUGHERTY GIVES CRIME WAVE CURE

New York.—Public hanging of automobile-bandits and deportation of confirmed criminals to a penal settlement were among the drastic methods of dealing with the American crime wave suggested by George S. Dougherty, former chief of the detective force of New York in an interview given in London.

"I believe in the horrible example system which was in force in England a century or so ago, when people were hanged at the crossroads," Dougherty said. "In 95 cases out of 100 today when a hold-up robbery takes place, the resist-

Power is one reason for Pontiac Six popularity

Powered by the largest six-cylinder engine used in any car costing less than $1000, the Pontiac Six exhibits a performance range entirely new in its field. Power to soar up hills. Power to lug smoothly and steadily through mud and sand. More power than any other six at its price—and a permanent source of power too. Beauty, comfort, economy and roadability—in all these qualities the Pontiac Six represents a decisive departure among low-priced sixes. Yet, on the basis of power in relation to wheelbase, weight and price, it ranks as the one outstanding engineering triumph of the day.

is either killed or wounded. "The bandit has a revolver with him and he intends to use it to kill if necessary. Therefore I say that if he is caught he should be at once strung up by the hands of the people who have been killed." "Confirmed criminals, if of American birth, should be sent to a penal settlement and there sterilized, so that they can have no children to follow them. If they are of alien birth they should be deported to their country of origin." "That will be a big punishment for them, for the money an alien carpenter or bricklayer earns in New York in a day would probably not be earned in a month in his country of origin. The chief causes of the crime wave in the United States, in my opinion, are the revolver, the stolen automobile, narcotics, bootleg whiskey, and the absolute disregard for the law on account of Prohibition.

I am convinced that a removal of the ban on light wines and spirits in the United States would go far towards putting an end to the crime wave America is now experiencing.

UNITED STATES RUBBER COMPANY

Some Questions and Answers about United States Water-Cured Tubes

Question—What is the Water-Cure Process?
 Answer—The Water-Cure Process is a new method of curing or vulcanizing automobile tubes now in use in the United States Rubber Company tube factories.

Question—How does it differ from the old process?
 Answer—During vulcanization heat and pressure must be applied to the tube. The old method used steam to supply this pressure and heat. The new method uses water under high pressure and at steam temperature.

Question—Why does this make a better tube?
 Answer—In the old steam method the pressure could not be applied evenly. Small air bubbles were formed in the tube, each of which became a source of weakness.

The new Water-Cure Process eliminates the possibility of such bubbles by its heavy, even pressure. It also insures better union between the tube and the valve-base, and at the same time gives the rubber itself a finer, longer-wearing, more age-resisting texture.

Question—Can water-curing alone make a good tube?
 Answer—No. A good tube demands good rubber, proper construction and proper splicing as well.

Question—How are these provided in United States Tubes?
 Answer—The rubber used is Sprayed Rubber, the purest and most uniform rubber known. It is made from rubber latex from the United States Rubber Company's own plantations, by a process developed and patented by the Company.

United States Tubes are constructed of four plies of rubber. Most other tubes are made of one or at most two.

Splicing is done by a specially developed method, which not only assures uniformly strong splices but also limits the pressure and heat to the splice itself and does not tend to weaken the rest of the tube.

WEEKLY STAGE LETTER

Broadway Slaps Back at Rural Critics in Promising New Cohan Play, "Home Towners"

New York, Aug. 31.—George M. Cohan, in his newest play, gives his regards to Main Street.

And since Mons. Cohan is highly urban and to the Broadway manner born, these regards are none too warm.

The play is "The Home Towners," and represents Cohan at his most Collyerian.

Its basis is the common suspicion and animosity of metropolis and average town. The small town frowns upon the city slicker and the metropolis becomes superior to the yokel. The small town views the metropolitan population as so many potential crooks and the metropolis looks upon the Main Streeters as victims of smuggering and hypocrisy. There is, doubtless, something to be said for both sides.

A son of South Bend, which becomes symbol for the "provinces," has made a fortune in New York. He is about to marry and invites his closest friends from the old home town to attend. One Bancroft, after a few drinks, becomes suspicious that the bride and her family are typical "city slickers" trying to get his friend's cash. This precipitates a crisis. The bride's family starts in pursuit of the accuser and the windup is a very Cohanesque assault on the "small town mind," quite as certain to get the crowd as did the "grand old flag" stuff of the earlier Cohan pieces.

Earl Carroll's Revue of 1926 does little to improve the standard of major league revues. The "big" producers can learn wit, taste and originality by visiting such smaller efforts as "American" and the Garrick Gatties. The best of them was "The Merry World," with its collection of adroit and skillful Britishers. It perished while many tawdry things survived, and the Chaberters will bring it on the road under the title of "The Passing Show." Which is Broadway's loss and the road's gain.

The Carroll opus is costumed and presented with about the same taste the manager uses in his publicity.

Lawrence Langer, who should know better since he has written good satirical stage material and has had long association with the Theatre Guild, provides Broadway with a standardized farce "Henry, Behave!" He uses the old amnesia device wherein a soured and crabbed old g--er gets tapped on the bean, loses his identity and reverts to his devilish youth back in the Anna Held days to his kin and Joanne Eagles, who leaves "Rain" for "The Garden of Eden," and in set, Pauline Lord, who is to star in associates and humanizes himself in their eyes.

Meanwhile the theatrical strolchers proceed with the serious business of casting the stars.

Jeane Eagels, who has given two years of her life to "Rain," goes to a less psychopathic comedy, "The Garden of Eden," a part originally considered for Katherine Alexander, who shifts to Owen Davis' "Gentle Graters."

Pauline Lord also ends her two year appearance in "They Knew What They Wanted," a role that sent her skyrocketing among the dramatic notables, and is cast for "Sandalwood," a sardonic comedy regarding which there has been much advance furor. It seems that Owen Davis dashed it off a couple

IOWA VOTERS TO SELECT SENATOR NEXT NOVEMBER

Having Had Four Members In Upper House This Year May Pick Fifth; Death of Cummins Stirs Unusual Contest.

Des Moines, Iowa.—Having established what is believed to be the unique record of being served by four United States senators within a year, Iowa voters will go to the polls this fall to select perhaps still another.

The past year has been a marked one for this state in the matter of national representatives. First, Smith W. Brookhart, after a long contest was unseated this spring in favor of his Democratic opponent, Daniel Steck, Iowa thereby had her first Democratic representative in the upper house at Washington since before the Civil war days.

Then came the sudden death of the venerable Senator Albert B. Cummins, leading light in Hawkeye state politics for more than a quarter of a century. Iowa had seemingly settled its political difficulties at the state convention immediately preceding the death of Senator Cummins, but incidents that followed for a time threatened to drive the dove of peace from the Republican ranks.

Successor to Cummins. Staunch friends of the late senator were open in their declarations that only a man imbued with the ideals of Cummins should be named to succeed him. Brookhart's followers were equally loud in demanding his selection. War clouds hovered over the Republican party as delegates gathered here to nominate. And then David W. Stewart, of Sioux City, a "dark horse" was named, and the opening breach was again closed. Following Stewart's selection to run for the office in November Governor Hammit named him to serve until the election.

And so Iowa had her fourth senator of the year.

The Democrats have not yet named a man to oppose Stewart for the short term. They fear a second nominee might confuse the voters, and they are intent on sending Claude R. Porter, nominated to oppose Brookhart, to Washington as running mate to Senator Steck. Therefore, it is possible that no one will be put up against Stewart.

An Uneasy Feeling.

While the Brookhart faction seems to be on terms of goodwill with the so-called "regulars" there is a feeling of uneasiness, and of this the Democrats are making the most. Steck's ultimate victory has given them encouragement and they are preparing to put up the "fight of their life" for Porter. Brookhart, however, is not idle.

He has already made a number of addresses over the state, although the real campaign is yet distant, plonics, fairs and conventions are the drawing cards. Occasionally he and Porter appear on the same program.

1926 ELECTRICAL PRODUCTION TOPS FIGURE FOR 1925

Connecticut Shows Gain of Nearly 2,000,000 K. W. H. During First Six Months of Year.

Electrical production in Connecticut for the first six months of 1926 exceeded that of the same period in 1925 by 1,925,000 Kilowatt hours. This gain, according to the committee, was made despite the fact that there was a falling off of 945,000 Kilowatt hours in the production of electricity by steam operated plants as compared with the first six months of 1925.

This deficiency in production by steam was more than made up by electricity generated by the various hydro-electric plants, operated by water power. Water power generation by the hydro plants during the first six months of the present year totaled 104,691,000 Kilowatt hours, a gain of 2,269,000 Kilowatt hours over the same period in 1925. Abundant water in Connecticut rivers during the early part of the year, particularly in January, enabled the electrical companies not only to better last year's production, but also to cut down the amount of fuel burned by nearly 5,500 short tons.

Electric production figures for the first six months of 1925 and 1926 in Kilowatt hours are as follows:

	1925	1926
January ..	85,117,000	93,800,000
February ..	81,827,000	87,907,000
March ..	82,478,000	91,263,000
April ..	75,740,000	76,396,000
May ..	74,444,000	71,546,000
June ..	80,786,000	71,715,000
Total	490,402,000	492,327,000

New Opera Star, A Highborn Flapper; Quick, Athletic, Colorful, Modern

Lucretia Goddard

BY GILBERT SWAN

New York, Aug. 30.—Introducing the "flapper diva" Lucretia Goddard, 17-year-old Boston girl, is the youngest prima donna in grand opera.

Her hair is bobbed and she has learned to smoke, though she tossed over the habit when told it threatened her career; she swims like a fish, can turn somersaults from a spring board, drives a racing car and can talk intelligently and frankly on any of the "modern subjects."

On the other hand—she has studied seven languages, sings operas in four and is well acquainted with five; knows music and musicians and has devoured everything written on both subjects; is an ardent student and says she has had as much fun working as playing; keeps pace with reading, and converses wittily and without self consciousness.

Comes of Old Family

In brief she combines those qualities that make the "modern youth" the topic for so much debate.

Lucretia's is no Cinderella story. Whereas Marion Talley, last season's spectacular young figure in musicdom, came from humble mid west background, Lucretia traces back to colonial days. Her folk are cultured, aristocratic, well-to-do New Englanders.

Lucretia, it seems, was born with a silver spoon and a silver note in her mouth.

Fortune Gallo, the opera impresario, who has taken her under his wing and contracted with her to sing principal soprano roles with his San Carlo Grand Opera Company, announces her debut for October in ultra-critical Boston.

Unlike Miss Talley, who was quiet, poised and somewhat colorless of manner, little Miss Goddard is dark, fiery, dramatic. What she may lack in the high, flute-like notes achieved by the 19-year-old Marion is said by her sponsors to be more than made up for in stage presence and robustness of tone.

Better than Talley—Some predict for this "baby diva" a place beside the dramatic and fiery Mary Garden that is, when Lucretia has lived and learned a bit more.

Impressario Gallo's attention was attracted to her last season. He declares her better than Talley and says her acting will be widely acclaimed.

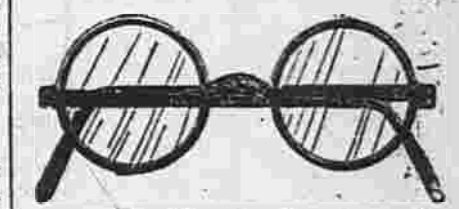

Her first role will be Marguerite in "Faust," though she has already been heard in Boston in "Mignon" and "Manon."

MANY AUTOS ENTER PIKE'S PEAK CLIMB

Colorado Springs, Colo.—With indications pointing to the largest entry list in its history, the eighth annual Pike's Peak Hill Climbing contest for automobiles will be staged on Labor Day, September 6, under the auspices of the Pike's Peak Automobile Highway Association.

The thrilling race over the world's greatest highway to the summit of Pike's Peak, is contested annually for the Spencer Penrose Trophy and cash prizes totalling $2,000. The Penrose trophy is awarded to the winner for one year. It is an immense antique silver cup secured by Penrose in England. The course, approximately 12 miles, up the side of the mountain, around numerous "hairpin" curves, is the most picturesque auto race track in the world. It is a double track boulevard, 20 to 50 feet wide, smooth and even as a pavement.

The race is annually witnessed by thousands of spectators who can look down thousands of feet to the starting point and watch the speed demons climb the rock-walled peak and race on to its snow clad summit above the clouds.

The road this year is reported in better condition than ever. The contest is conducted under the sanction and rules of the American Automobile association.

Among the early entries to be received is that of Charles H. Myers, who took first place last year in a Chandler. He will drive a Studebaker special this year.

Glen Shultz, widely known western auto racer, is also entered in his Stutz Special, which won second place last year.

Brookhart, however, is not idle.

CHAPTER LX

AS John rode down to work the following morning, something inside him seemed to be whispering that this was to be an eventful day.

The sun was warm, and faces around him in the street car radiated good cheer; breakfast, in the old familiar restaurant next door to his office building, had never tasted better.

Briggs was at work ahead of him. "Well, partner," and the little artist wore a broad grin, "do you know who's Kelly and Jones' biggest client?"

"Schuyler and Lowry Hats?" "Right—and that's the client I've decided we're going to get. We'll aim our artillery at their biggest target."

"The boy's getting ambitious," John laughed, amused at Briggs' enthusiasm. "We've got a fat chance." "Did you know that their publication advertising this year amounted to something like two hundred thousand dollars?"

"That much? Where'd you get your information?" "Never mind. Now, a friend of mine, who's a crackerjack salesman, is willing to go after clients for us on the regular commission basis. I talked it over with him last night. Fellow named Harris. He's been selling automobiles, but he knows something about the agency business—and he's a great salesman, John."

"Well," John began, but Briggs went on. "Now, since you've made me a sort of junior partner I've been studying things. Out of your fifteen per cent commission a little over nine per cent is net, isn't it?"

"That's about right." "Well, is eighteen thousand a year worth going after? Say we deduct ten per cent of that for Harris, if he helps us land it—is it worth while?"

"Briggs," and John sat down to explain, "it would be worth while if it were only half of that—or a quarter—or a tenth, even. But there are things about this business you don't understand—that I'm just beginning to understand myself. Now doesn't it strike you as rather odd that Kelly and Jones should have that Schuyler Hat business instead of one of the big, high-powered agencies? Does it?"

"You mean," the little artist suggested, "that Kelly has a pull?" "I mean," John told him, "that Kelly is a sharpshooter, and there's more one advertising manager who's getting his palm greased by Kelly and Jones. I mean that Kelly splits his commissions with the Schuyler advertising manager. Do you understand now?"

"Crooked stuff, eh?" "Well, personally I'd be inclined to say the advertising manager was the crook—more so than Kelly. I've never done business that way and I never will, and the fellows that do it are just making it hard for the rest of us who care something about ethics. Now you see why I don't think it's any use going after Schuyler and Lowry."

"But," and Briggs was smiling mysteriously, "what would you say if I told you that Schuyler and Lowry were getting a new advertising manager?"

"You mean that?" John sat up in his chair. "He criss told me they were making the change. That's what suggested the idea to him of going after them for us. He's acquainted with the man who's going in. But," and Briggs frowned a little, "I also saw the new man will most likely want to let a big agency handle it."

"We'll go after it anyway," John got to his feet, his jaw thrust out. "But where, John was thinking as he ran through the magazines Briggs had turned over to him, was the secretary Menefee had promised to send over?"

to be someone with real intelligence, capable of running the office without asking questions—someone who wouldn't ask a fancy salary.

And suddenly he was thinking again of Fay. "What did it all amount to, anyway, without Fay around?"

He went into Briggs' office to borrow the artist's shears and busied himself with cutting out the hat advertisements. Here, he was thinking as he studied one of them, was a chance for improvement—a half-tone, say, of a pearl gray spring hat, lying on an elegant hat table, and a pair of gloves thrown carelessly beside it. And beneath it the slogan, "Hats for gentlemen."

Miss White came in noiselessly. "A lady to see you, Mr. Millburn. She said Miss Menefee sent her."

"Where, Miss White?" "In the conference room. She has a little girl with her."

"I mean," John told him, "that Kelly is a sharpshooter, and there's more one advertising manager who's getting his palm greased by Kelly and Jones. I mean that Kelly splits his commissions with the Schuyler advertising manager. Do you understand now?"

"Crooked stuff, eh?" "Well, personally I'd be inclined to say the advertising manager was the crook—more so than Kelly. I've never done business that way and I never will, and the fellows that do it are just making it hard for the rest of us who care something about ethics. Now you see why I don't think it's any use going after Schuyler and Lowry."

"But," and Briggs was smiling mysteriously, "what would you say if I told you that Schuyler and Lowry were getting a new advertising manager?"

"You mean that?" John sat up in his chair. "He criss told me they were making the change. That's what suggested the idea to him of going after them for us. He's acquainted with the man who's going in. But," and Briggs frowned a little, "I also saw the new man will most likely want to let a big agency handle it."

"We'll go after it anyway," John got to his feet, his jaw thrust out. "But where, John was thinking as he ran through the magazines Briggs had turned over to him, was the secretary Menefee had promised to send over?"

"Where was this paragon Dick had recommended? Oh, if it did happen to be someone with real intelligence, capable of running the office without asking questions—someone who wouldn't ask a fancy salary.

And suddenly he was thinking again of Fay. "What did it all amount to, anyway, without Fay around?"

Extravagance!

by Olive Roberts Barton.

The sermon, good friends, today is an extravagance.

Joubert says to "ponder only those evils from which we ourselves are exempt." Ponder, here, means to criticize. Also there is a deep, dark saying about people in glass houses: Who am I, to talk about extravagance when I am a woman?

That is why. And because I am a woman I know why I am extravagant. Variety is life itself to a woman. The weekly or bi-weekly shopping trip is planned not altogether for diversion, but to actually purchase something for themselves or the house or the family that will lend variety. It may be anything from a new deck of cards to lawn seed, but whatever it is you may gamble that in the near future it is going to contribute a change of some sort to something in that woman's line of vision.

"I get tired of looking at so and so," is the most common remark in the world. You seldom hear a man say it.

There is another trouble. Women actually do have vision. One sees an attractive mat. Instantly there springs into her mind's eye a bare spot by the side door promptly covered by the mat. She buys the mat. She sees a yellow velvet dress—then she sees Betty in her old sun-faded green. (Be sure she always sees the worst in this mind's eye of hers.) Instantly there's Betty as pretty as sunlight in the yellow. Five on the yellow! The yellow wins!

Once an older woman asked me what I was going into a certain store for. "To look around," said I. "I might see something I need."

She slammed the car door shut. "No, you're not," she said. "You're going home." And then followed a lecture on aimless shopping—and needless spending. The woman was rich and I listened. If any one builds up a fortune on this advice, she might send me a commission.

"Plan before you go into a store—no matter," said she, "and stick to it." "I don't go," I said. "I don't have a cent's worth if the bill is going to jump on your pillow every night."

Good Nature and Good Health

DIETING IS ADVISED AS RHEUMATIC TREATMENT

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene and Health Magazine

The most important treatment of rheumatism and joint disease is the search for a spot of infection somewhere in the body from which germs pass to the inflamed joints.

It has been learned also, however, that many modifying factors may enter into consideration; the chemistry or the special nature of the blood and the tissues may be such as to enable the tissues to resist the attack of the germs.

For instance, Dr. Ralph Pemberton has found that the ability of the blood to take care of sugar in the diet is distinctly lowered in such cases. The lowering is not of the same nature as that which occurs in diabetes. In that disease, an organ called the pancreas is chiefly involved.

In the case of joint inflammation the disturbance seems to be in the blood itself. There seems to be no doubt also that the intestinal tract may be inefficient in such instances and that putrefactive products may be kept and absorbed into the blood thus bringing about a lack of resistance to the inciting germs.

The evidence for the latter view is largely based on the fact that a cleansing of the intestinal tract is frequently accompanied by relief of the symptoms, and that the use of milk soured with the bacillus acidophilus sometimes brings about unusual improvement.

Fasting Beneficial There are other instances in which a mere lowering of the amount of food taken into the body is accompanied by a beneficial response.

As to whether the special case concerned is one for dietary treatment, the decision must be made by a physician who has carefully considered all of the important factors.

If some of the other points mentioned may be eliminated, the first step in the dietary treatment involves a reduction of the amount of calories taken into the body each day. These calories are represented chiefly by carbohydrates or sugar foods.

Usually Safe The average person takes into his body from 3000 to 4200 calories each day, so that a reduction to 2000 is simple and safe. On this amount of food, it is possible to live quite comfortably.

A new work apron has been patented called the "Nelly Don" handy dandy buttonless. It slips on over the head and there is just one tie in the back. It does not muss up the dress yet protects it completely and is youthful in cut. It is made of fast color gingham, prints, percales and cretonnes and sells at one dollar.

In reply to my broadcast for new items, unusual recipes and helpful hints, I have received several responses. The pleacepie and governor's sauce printed today are among them. The recipe for the latter was accompanied by a jar of the relish and I can vouch for its goodness after trying it with an accompanying cold ham and baked beans. Make some while tomatoes are plentiful, or half the recipe.

Governor's Sauce 36 ripe tomatoes 8 red peppers 10 onions 4 apples 1 teaspoon red pepper 5 cups vinegar 5 tablespoons salt 1 teaspoon cloves 1 teaspoon cinnamon 3 cups brown sugar.

Cook the tomatoes for three hours. Put the apples, onions and red peppers through the meat grinder, add with the vinegar and other ingredients and cook an hour longer. Use large tomatoes and cook as for stewing. Cook them to reduce the water as above, but the sauce need not be so full. This chutney resembles chili sauce but is not so dark with spices. Tomatoes are just right to use now and if red peppers are not obtainable green ones may be substituted without affecting the result very much.

Read Olive Barton's editorial on "Extravagance" and see what you think of it. Isn't it true of most of us? As a girl I was employed in secretarial work for years right in the center of the city of Hartford. Every day meant a tour of the big department stores, every night I brought home my purchases, wise and otherwise. I simply couldn't resist the pretty things which had to offer. To be certain I could but what I wanted when I wanted it I opened charge accounts in five of the largest stores. The temptation would be just as great today were I similarly situated, as it is with most women.

Pineapple Pie 3 tablespoons minute tapioca 3 small cups cold water, little salt. Cook in double boiler. 1 can crushed pineapple 1 egg 1 small package cocoanut or the moist canned cocoanut to the amount desired. Sweeten to taste. This is of course a two crust pie, and the quantity above will fill one very large deep pie plate or two small ones.

For a hot weather beverage there isn't anything more refreshing than well-made lemonade, the syrup made separately. The addition of pineapple or orange juice, or both makes it doubly delicious.

Every housewife likes to entertain her friends as house guests occasionally, but in these maddest days the inexperienced housekeeper hesitates to invite week-end visitors, as she wants much leisure with her guests as possible. There is only one way to manage and that is to plan carefully in advance for each meal down to the least detail, write down your plans, then take an inventory of the supplies on hand and replenish early. Look over the silver and linen and use your best. This is a compliment any guest appreciates. Make a batch of choice cookies as early as Wednesday and store in a tight tin box. Lay in sandwich spreads. Both of these will come in handy for tea or motor trips. Most week-end visits begin on Friday evening and end with Monday morning breakfast. It all depends on whether the guests are people of leisure or employed outside.

Norma Talmadge, the screen star possesses an interesting collection of tennis, golf, motoring and bathing costumes—all correct in line, color, and detail to the particular sport which they are intended for.

A new device has been invented to darn stockings like weaving. This little tool works on the principal of a loom and has teeth which lift every alternate thread, then the device is turned on its other side causing the other sets of threads to be lifted. It was mentioned in Popular Science Monthly but whether it is on the market yet I do not know. Any device for darning that is practical should fill a long felt want.

Believe me wrote once before of the method of treating worn stockings so that the mend at the heel will not show above the shoe. That plan was to take a little more in on the regular seam, running down and a little tuck across that seam below the shoe top. Another writer claims to have found a better method. She takes a seam like a small gore on the foot of the stocking beginning at the center of the foot between the toe and the heel. The seam is pinned down, then the mended place on the heel below the shoe top but it is not felt under the heel. I have tried the former, but not the latter method. However, try to discover a brand of stockings that wears well even at the heel, buy all the pairs you can afford and alternate them just as many do their linen flat pieces.

ABOUT TOWN

Gustave Luther, of 14 Middle Turnpike West, has gone to New York City to live. He formerly was employed in the needle shop in the north end.

The detour at the Center is shutting all of the autos down our main street in the south end with the result that business is better and the town is getting a lot of advertising. Tourists are seeing Manchester for the first time.

The Misses Louise and Edna Cole of 99 Ridge street left Saturday morning for a two weeks' stay with Mr. and Mrs. John McFadden at Hamilton, Ont., Canada.

Mrs. H. R. Sharpe of Main street and daughter Dorothy are spending a few days with Mrs. Richard C. Williams at Groton Long Point.

George E. Snow, machine shop foreman at the Orford Soap factory with Mrs. Snow and his father, C. H. Snow of Pine street, are visiting friends and relatives in New York and New Jersey. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Snow will be guests of Samuel Cross, formerly master mechanic at the Orford factory who now lives in Harrison, N. J., while C. H. Snow will visit his cousin Captain Herbert Greenwood who is in charge of the life saving station at Coney Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Tuttle of North Elm street and sons Louis and Burton left today for a week's stay at the Parke cottage at White Sands beach.

Miss Valerie O'Gorman of 123 Maple street has left for Pleasant View, R. I., where she will remain over Labor Day as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. O'Connell of Clinton street.

Mrs. John Lang has an Easter lily in full bloom in her flower garden on West street. This is very unusual for this time of the year.

Miss Iona Chapman of 41 Summer street has returned after visiting her aunt, Mrs. E. M. Sullivan of Enfield, Conn.

Miss Helen Comstock of Main street is enjoying a motor trip around Cape Cod in company with Mrs. Lillian Tucker of Enfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Goslee and son Sherwood have returned from an automobile trip to Montreal, Canada. Other interesting places visited were the Thousand Islands, the island route at Lake Champlain and the Bear Mountain bridge across the Hudson.

Lady Roberts Lodge, Daughters of St. George, will hold its regular meeting in Tinker hall tomorrow evening at eight o'clock sharp. All members are requested to be present in order to make final arrangements for the outing at East Hampton on Monday, September 6, which is open to all members, their husbands and families. Plans will also be made at tomorrow night's meeting for an entertainment to be given during the fall.

Mrs. Charles E. Snow and daughter of Spruce street are enjoying a three weeks' vacation at North Adams, Mass., and Reedsborough, Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Verplanck who have been spending the past few weeks at Grand Lake stream, Maine, are expected home this evening.

The next meeting of Mystic Review, W. B. A. which would fall on Labor Day, will be held on Thursday evening, September 9 instead. Officers and guards are urged to be present as plans will be made for the combined anniversary celebration, class initiation and supper the second meeting night in the month.

Miss Cora Blankenburg, teacher at the Manchester Green school and Mrs. Leroy Roberts, returned last night from a vacation at the Sesqui-Centennial in Philadelphia.

The next meeting of the Froshin Lodge, No. 24, O. D. H. S. will be on Sept. 2 at eight o'clock in Tinker hall. All members are requested to be present as the grand officers and the Rockville lodge are expected.

The new temporary partition in the assembly hall of the Manchester Green school will be installed tomorrow. The purpose is to make two school rooms of the hall for use until the new addition is ready for occupancy. It is expected that the partition will be taken down before Christmas as the hall is used for the Christmas Day exercises.

HALE'S NOTES

Charles McCann, assistant manager, has returned from a three weeks' vacation, two of which were spent at "The Breakers," Narragansett Pier, R. I.

Miss Rose Woodhouse, secretary has left for a week's stay at Indian Neck, Branford, Conn.

Miss Mary Sargent, buyer for the apparel department and Mrs. Ann Waddell are in New York on a business trip.

Eric Crawshaw, display department, has returned from a two weeks' stay at Pleasant View, Westbury, R. I.

Miss Jennie Johnson, neckwear department, will spend the next week at Grove Beach, Conn.

Miss Elsie Johnson, cashier, spent the last two weeks at Bayview, Conn.

Mrs. Walter Tedford, buyer for the baby shop, has returned after spending the last two weeks in Philadelphia, Pa.

NEW PIPE ORGAN NOW AT CIRCLE

Announcement Soon to be Made When Playhouse is to be Re-opened.

The work of installing the three manual Austin pipe organ in the Circle theatre is now completed. The instrument is built backstage. It is what is known as an orchestral organ. It has, besides a large and varied set of pipes, many other facilities for interpreting motion pictures. These facilities include snare drums, bass drums, bells, cymbals and other attachments.

The Austin organ is one of the finest toned organs made. It has not the harsh, raspy tone quality that characterizes many organs. Besides, it is the latest word in electro-pneumatic-playing action. In a few days an announcement will be made in The Herald concerning the date upon which the Circle will re-open. A general touching up process has been under way in the theatre since it was closed last spring. The floors have been repainted, as has been the marquee over the sidewalk. Other places here and there have been repaired or brightened up.

TO ENTER BOSTON U. IS GIVEN FAREWELL

Miss Annie Strickland of Highland Park was given a real surprise at her home last night by a party of her young women friends, most of whom were her traveling companions to and from the office of the Traveler's Insurance company in Hartford. It was in the nature of a farewell party as Miss Strickland leaves the Travelers today and on September 13 will enter the College of Liberal Arts, Boston University, to take up the ministry of music.

The girls spent a merry evening together, music playing a prominent part in the program. A lunch was served and her friends left with Miss Strickland as a token of their good wishes, a handsome boudoir clock.

Miss Strickland graduated from the South Manchester High School in the Class of 1924. She was one of those who delivered an essay, the program that year being entirely by the girls. After graduation she attended the Connecticut Business college and for a year or more has been employed by the Travelers. She has been active in musical circles and for the past six years has been pianist of the Sunday school and Epworth League of the South Methodist church.

HURT AT PLAYGROUND

Raymond, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicola Della Ferra, of 16 Cottage street, was painfully injured last night while playing at the East Side playgrounds.

The child was attempting to climb a pole and a splinter of wood stuck into his chest to a depth of about two inches. A physician was summoned and it was necessary to make a small incision before the splinter could be removed.
